

1937 US PASSPORT

This prop is an authentic replica of a United States passport from the late 1930s.

Enter information on pages 2 and 3 of passport.

Option 1: Use built-in Adobe Acrobat form fields.

Option 2: Delete default form entries and print pages "blank." Use an actual typewriter or your choice of page layout software and fonts. (The HPLHS Telegram font is a close match for the real passport look.)

Print passport pages on ordinary white paper. The inside cover page (page 2 of this file) is printed on only one side. The visa pages are meant to be printed on both sides of the paper. Print pages 3-10 odd pages only; then reinsert paper into printer and print even pages only (so page 4 is on the back of page 3, page 6 is on the back of page 5, etc.).

Score at dashed lines, and trim at crop marks.

Starting with the inside cover page, put pages in correct order. Sew, if possible, or staple the pages together at the spine. Fold pages to form booklet insert.

Print cover on white or off-white cardstock, with a linen or leatherette texture, if possible. Score at dashed lines. Cut out cover, (TIP: round corners later, when passport is completely assembled). Fold cover in half on central scored line.

Insert page booklet snugly into cover, matching the top and bottom edges. Place passport on table surface, and carefully open front cover, preserving the positioning of the booklet within the cover. Apply glue to the inside surface of the front cover right up to the outer scored line. Do not put glue directly on the spine. Close front cover around the page booklet again, matching edges, and press down, securely gluing the cover to the booklet. Repeat this procedure with the back cover. When completed, the cover should be securely glued with free play between the scored lines of the spine.

Trim edges, if necessary, so that the closed booklet is even all around. Round corners of cover and pages at this time.

When passport is completely assembled, open front cover and lay booklet flat on surface. Using an X-acto knife, cut out the white oval window in the front cover, revealing passport number.

Glue b/w photo of bearer to indicated page in passport. Stamp or glue in appropriate visas. Enter other information by hand.

A NOTE ABOUT PASSPORTS

Passports from different countries traditionally came in different styles, but after the first World War the League of Nations held a number of conferences in an attempt to standardize international transit and commerce. In the early/mid 'Twenties, a committee of the League of Nations recommended that all countries adopt a standard booklet-style passport, which was already common in some places. Although it usually ignored advice from the League, the U.S. gradually converted to the booklet style, and the US passport went through a couple of design changes in the time of Lovecraft. Hence, there are three styles of US passport in the HPLHS prop collection.

The fold-out, pre-League of Nations style is most appropriate for games set up to about 1926. The hardback booklet style is for games set in the late 1920s and early '30s, and this softback booklet style is for games set in the later 1930s - '60s.
