Warblades, often called sword princes, live for the chance to test themselves in battle—the stronger the foe, the greater the glory once an enemy is defeated.

MAKING A WARBLADE

A warblade is a front-line melee combatant, much like a barbarian or fighter.

He engages his enemies toe to toe and defeats them through skill at arms.

Abilities: Pure physical perfection is a warblade’s ideal, so Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution are all vital to him. Because mastering a bewildering variety of martial maneuvers is difficult, Intelligence is also important to a warblade, because he appreciates the bonus skill points, and many of his class features reward a high Intelligence bonus.

Given the choice between Wisdom and Charisma, a warblade is more likely to boost the latter—the better to wear the mantle of glory he hopes to win with his deeds on the battlefield.

Races: The warrior cultures that give rise to warblades are most often found in human, elf, and hobgoblin lands.

Admiration for athletic prowess, the martial ideal, and sheer physical daring is common among these races.

The githyanki also take great pride in their martial skill, and a number of warblades can be found among this race.

Dwarves appreciate a warblade’s martial prowess but might shy away from overweening praise.

Halflings generally admire athletic prowess, but most find the stringent requirements of this class too challenging.

Half-orcs and savage humanoid races generally do not appreciate beauty in motion in quite the same way that their more civilized counterparts do; they fight to destroy their enemies, not to cover themselves in glory.

Gnomes feel no particular need to try themselves in battle; they are happy with their normal pursuits.

Alignment: A warblade can choose any alignment, though many prefer chaotic over lawful.

After all, a warblade seeks to win glory through individual deeds of prowess, so he is unlikely to adopt a personal code emphasizing obedience over freedom to improvise.

Good warblades are champions of the weak and downtrodden; evil ones are vicious warlords who exult in the defeat and humiliation of their foes.

Starting Gold: 5d4×10 (125 gp).

Starting Age: As barbarian.

CLASS SKILLS
(4 + Int modifier, ×4 at 1st level): Balance, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Intimidate, Jump,

Knowledge (history), Knowledge (local), Martial Lore*, Swim, Tumble.

* New skill described on page 28.

CLASS FEATURES

When fighting, you rely on an ever-increasing repertoire of spectacular martial maneuvers.

Depending on which disciplines you choose to study, you might be a mongoose-swift skirmisher who uses speed as your sword and shield, a fierce master of blades, or a bold commander who leads your allies into battle.

Your maneuvers are the signature moves that serve to define your character.

Regardless of the path you choose, you acquire a modest number of bonus feats that make you quicker, more agile, and more athletic than most other warriors.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You are proficient with simple and martial melee weapons (including those that can be used as thrown weapons), light and medium armor, and all shields except tower shields.

Maneuvers: You begin your career with knowledge of three martial maneuvers.

The disciplines available to you are Diamond Mind, Iron Heart, Stone Dragon, Tiger Claw, and White Raven.

Once you know a maneuver, you must ready it before you can use it (see Maneuvers Readied, below).

A maneuver usable by warblades is considered an extraordinary ability unless otherwise noted in its description.

Your maneuvers are not affected by spell resistance, and you do not provoke attacks of opportunity when you initiate one.

You learn additional maneuvers at higher levels, as shown on Table 1–3.

You must meet a maneuver's prerequisite to learn it.

See Table 3–1, page 39, to determine the highest-level maneuvers you can learn.

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered warblade level after that (6th, 8th, 10th, and so on), you can choose to learn a new maneuver in place of one you already know.

In effect, you lose the old maneuver in exchange for the new one.

You can choose a new maneuver of any level you like, as long as you observe your restriction on the highest-level maneuvers you know; you need not replace the old maneuver with a maneuver of the same level.

For example, upon reaching 10th level, you could trade in a single 1st-, 2nd-, 3rd- or 4th-level maneuver for a maneuver of 5th level or lower, as long as you meet the prerequisite of the new maneuver.

You can swap only a single maneuver at any given level.

Maneuvers Readied: You can ready all three of the maneuvers you know at 1st level, but as you advance in level and learn more maneuvers, you must choose which maneuvers to ready.

You ready your maneuvers by exercising for 5 minutes. The maneuvers you choose remain readied until you decide to exercise again and change them.

You need not sleep or rest for any long period of time to ready your maneuvers; any time you spend 5 minutes in practice, you can change your readied maneuvers.

You begin an encounter with all your readied maneuvers unexpended, regardless of how many times you might have already used them since you chose them.

When you initiate a maneuver, you expend it for the current encounter, so each of your readied maneuvers can be used once per encounter (until you recover them, as described below).

You can recover all expended maneuvers with a single swift action, which must be immediately followed in the same round with a melee attack or using a standard action to do nothing else in the round (such as executing a quick, harmless flourish with your weapon).

You cannot initiate a maneuver or change your stance while you are recovering your expended maneuvers, but you can remain in a stance in which you began your turn. Stances Known: You begin play with knowledge of one 1st-level stance from any discipline open to warblades.

At 4th, 10th, and 16th level, you can choose additional stances.

Unlike maneuvers, stances are not expended, and you do not have to ready them.

All the stances you know are available to you at all times, and you can change the stance you are currently using as a swift action.

A stance is an extraordinary ability unless otherwise stated in the stance description.

Unlike with maneuvers, you cannot learn a new stance at higher levels in place of one you already know.

Battle Clarity (Ex): You can enter a state of almost mystical awareness of the battlefield around you.

As long as you are not flat-footed, you gain an insight bonus equal to your Intelligence bonus (maximum equals your warblade level) on your Reflex saves.

Weapon Aptitude (Ex): Your training with a wide range of weaponry and tactics gives you great skill with particular weapons.

You qualify for feats that usually require a minimum number of fighter levels (such as Weapon Specialization) as if you had a fighter level equal to your warblade level – 2.

For example, as a 6th-level warblade, you could take Weapon Specialization, since you're treated as being a 4th-level fighter for this purpose, these effective fighter levels stack with any actual fighter levels you have.

Thus, a fighter 2/warblade 4 would also qualify for Weapon Specialization.

You also have the flexibility to adjust your weapon training. Each morning, you can spend 1 hour in weapon practice to change the designated weapon for any feat you have that applies only to a single weapon (such as Weapon Focus).

You must have the newly designated weapon available during your practice session to make this change.

For example, if you wish to change the designated weapon for your Weapon Focus feat from greatsword to longsword, you must have a longsword available to practice with during your practice session.

You can adjust any number of your feats in this way, and you don't have to adjust them all in the same way.

However, you can't change the weapon choices in such a way that you no longer meet the prerequisite for some other feat you possess.

For instance, if you have both Weapon Focus (longsword) and Weapon Specialization (longsword), you can't change the designated weapon for Weapon Focus unless you also change the weapon for Weapon Specialization in the same way.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 2nd level, you gain the ability to react to danger before your senses would normally allow you to do so.

You retain your Dexterity bonus to AC (if any) even if you are caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

However, you still lose your Dexterity bonus to AC if you are immobilized.

If you already have uncanny dodge from a different class (barbarian or rogue, for example), you automatically gain improved uncanny dodge (see below) instead.

Battle Ardor (Ex): The sheer love of battle lends uncanny strength to your blows.

Starting at 3rd level, you gain an insight bonus equal to your Intelligence bonus on rolls made to confirm critical hits.

Bonus Feat: At 5th level, you gain a bonus feat from the list given below.

You must meet the prerequisite for the feat you select.

Every four levels thereafter (at 9th, 13th, and 17th level), you choose another bonus feat from the list.

Bonus Feat List: Acrobatic, Agile, Athletic, Blade Meditation*, Blind-Fight, Combat Reflexes, Diehard, Endurance, Great Fortitude, Improved Initiative, Iron Will, Ironheart*, Lightning Reflexes, Quick Draw, Run, Stone Power*, Tiger Blooded*, Unnerving Calm*, White Raven Defense*.

* New feats described in Chapter 2.

Battle Cunning (Ex): Your instinct for seizing the moment gives you a significant advantage over foes unprepared for your attack.

At 7th level, you gain an insight bonus equal to your Intelligence bonus on melee damage rolls against flat-footed or flanked opponents.

Battle Skill (Ex): You anticipate your enemies' ploys and tactics.

At 11th level, you gain an insight bonus equal to your Intelligence bonus on any check made to oppose an enemy's bull rush, disarm, feint, overrun, sunder, or trip attempt.

Battle Mastery (Ex): You notice the most subtle openings and cues offered by your opponents.

At 15th level, you gain an insight bonus equal to your Intelligence bonus on melee attack rolls and melee damage rolls made whenever you make an attack of opportunity.

Improved Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 6th level and higher, you can no longer be flanked; you can react to opponents on opposite sides of you as easily as you can react to a single attacker.

See the barbarian class feature (PH 26) for more information.

Stance Mastery (Ex): At 20th level, you can have two stances active simultaneously.

When you use a swift action to initiate or change your stance, you can initiate or change one or both stances.

PLAYING A WARBLADE

Mastering the techniques of blade and shield is important to you, but even more important is the sense of daring, recklessness, and even joy that transports you in the hour of danger.

You fight for glory, the thrill of combat, and personal honor.

Thus, you approach each encounter as if the bards will sing of it for ages.

Every raging bulette that breaks through the cobblestones in the bazaar, every dragon snarling on its pile of coin, and every reth dekala champion still carrying a sword of the Shadow Tiger horde is an opportunity for you to test your skill, prove your heroism, and shine ever brighter.

Gold and magic are pleasant tokens, but the real measure of your success is the height of the obelisk commemorating your triumphs.

As a warblade, you find adventure wherever an opportunity for glory exists.

A more mercenary character might ignore an impecunious burgomaster's plea for aid, but you are quick to step in, taking the accolades of the villagers and the rapture of combat as pay along with a small bit of gold.

Diplomatic missions have all the appeal of weak tea for you, but nearly any fight will do.

Even a quick hunt through the sewers for a rabid otyugh can become a suitable adventure, as long as the otyugh is a worthy opponent and some townsfolk are present to honor you when you emerge, slime-covered but victorious.

RELIGION

If you are good-aligned, you probably worship Kord.

His independent and amiably belligerent nature reflects your brash approach to life.

Other good warblades favor Pelor, Heironeous, and, in rare cases, dour St. Cuthbert.

If you are evil, you probably champion the cause of Erythnul or Hextor.

A rumored secret sect of warblades follows Vecna, claiming to be the descendants of the loyal army that watched horrified as its commander, Kas, committed his famous betrayal.

OTHER CLASSES

Because you appreciate the long years of study and practice necessary to become a master of combat, you have great respect for fighters and paladins—though you sometimes feel a rivalry with them, as well.

You don't get along too well with barbarians because they seem incapable of properly bestowing or receiving honor. Bards are among your favorite companions as long as they stay out of the way and leave the glory of the fight to you—and sing of your success later in tavern and hall.

Both divine and arcane spellcasters are foreign to your pursuit of physical perfection, so you see them as little more than a means of support for your own endeavors. For that matter, you rarely work well with other warblades, since they are as competitive as you are, and you're always suspicious that one of them might try to steal your glory.

COMBAT

You revel in melee.

Your place is battling face to face with vrocks and umber hulks, where you can deal maximum damage while keeping such monsters away from the softer targets in your own party.

You make good use of your various battle-keyed abilities to give yourself an important edge in combat.

Although these abilities might not be as physically impressive as a barbarian's rage, they can grant a significant boost to defense, as well as situational bonuses on attack and damage rolls.

Unlike rage, your class features carry no fatigue penalty.

Your lack of proficiency with heavy armor is both a blessing and a curse—it allows you to enter combat quickly but leaves you vulnerable to the enemy.

Consider taking feats such as Improved Toughness (see Complete Warrior) to increase your ability to soak up damage and partially offset your lack of heavy armor.

Choose bonus feats that enhance your capabilities (such as Blind-Fight or Improved Initiative) or bolster your weaknesses (such as Iron Will).

You consider swordplay to be high art, and a martial maneuver to be the artist's signature on his masterpiece. Learning many maneuvers in one discipline generally makes you more lethal in combat than a warblade who learns a few maneuvers from each of several disciplines. This phenomenon stems from the fact that taking many maneuvers from one discipline while largely ignoring the rest lets you master higher-level maneuvers sooner. You gain only thirteen maneuvers over the course of twenty levels, so make your choices carefully.

ADVANCEMENT

Warblades come from all walks of life.

Perhaps you were a poor youth who lacked the respect of the upper class and now seeks to redress this inequity and win the praise of all through your fighting.

Perhaps your drive to succeed was inborn, like the innate power of a sorcerer.

Your race matters little; anyone with the drive to win glory through combat is a good candidate to warblade training. The first warblades to embark on the path of the Iron Heart were hobgoblins.

They were the first to teach Reshar, and their discipline was the first that he mastered.

In the centuries that have followed, hobgoblins have not forgotten this fact, and that race still produces more warblades than many others.

Elves and half-elves often take up this class because they appreciate the warblade's view of battle as a glorious art, and the martial dwarves favor it as well.

Outsiders often wonder at a warblade academy in which synchronized lines of young would-be warblades practice their weapon forms, especially when they notice that these ordered ranks include elves, hobgoblins, and dwarves.

But as a warblade, you know that it is the art of the sword that makes a true warrior, not a coincidence of race.

As you become more skilled, your most important decisions are which maneuvers to learn.

When selecting maneuvers, try not to choose any in isolation.

Instead, pick two or three that work well in synergy so that one maneuver can set up another.

HUMAN WARBLADE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Concentration	4	Con	—
Jump	4	Str	-6
Balance	4	Dex	-6
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Martial Lore	4	Int	—
Climb	4	Str	-6
Knowledge (local)	4	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Bonus Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, Hint and steel, 3 torches, quiver with 20 arrows, tent, traveler's outfit, cold weather outfit.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

WARBLADES IN THE WORLD

"The clicks and scrapes echoed off the limestone blocks, warning us of danger ahead.

The dwarf and I whispered, debating a retreat, but our third was a warblade and a student of the Bright Annis.

He charged, slicing the umber hulk's mandibles off, then striking it seven times more before the creature's jaw had clattered to the floor."

—Dorrom Veshthazrell, swordsage of the Murient Temple
Warblades live by muscle and steel, but their interaction with the campaign world is not limited to trading sword slashes for talon rakes.

These characters are keenly aware of their social standing, and for them, glory and honor are at least as important as gold and gems.

Because these precious intangibles cannot be won by strength of blade alone, warblades constantly find themselves embroiled in liaisons with generals, kings, princesses, archbishops, and others who can confer the honor of an entire society upon a victorious hero.

The whispers of courtesans, the badinage of bards, and the wit of aristocrats can be as significant to a warblade's career as the giants and phase spiders of the Sunspire Mountains—and even more ferocious.

Warblades in adventuring parties must strike a balance between group and individual goals.

Ideally, the party's path guarantees the warblade both the thrill of combat and the laurels of an acclaimed hero.

In cases where only one of the other is possible (such as a stealth mission to extirpate a reth dekala cell operating in embarrassingly high government circles, or a crucial escort mission in which the danger comes not from flashing swords but from the wayward nature of a dauphin), the warblade must bide his time and accept the need to sacrifice one objective for another.

Never for long, however, does a prince of the sword allow himself to forgo tasting the heady rush of combat and the sweet adulation of the multitudes.

DAILY LIFE

A warblade must train constantly to maintain his puissance. Thus, much of his day is spent working through forms, jabbing at wooden effigies, and swinging weighted swords. Many warblades are affiliated with sword temples or dojos that allow them space to practice.

While out adventuring, a prince of swords often spends his time at night on watch practicing his breathing exercises and stretches.

The character taking the next watch is likely to wake and find his predecessor in the trees, meditating with measured breaths and supported only by a branch under each far-flung ankle.

Once he has reached a respectable level of accomplishment, a warblade might take the Leadership feat and begin teaching his own pupils at a school—either his previous academy or one he has founded.

Teaching allows a warblade to prove his worth to many students on a daily basis—and the more prestigious they are, the better.

Nobles' daughters and sons are highly sought-after students.

A positive word from them, placed in the right ear, can earn a warblade honor, a royal audience, or even an honor guard and a ship for his next journey.

NOTABLES

Famous warblades fall into two categories: those who recruit followers to found a sword temple or form an adventuring band, and those who operate independently.

Among the warblades who have founded their own schools, the one known as the Bright Annis is famous for her merciless training techniques.

Fewer than one in ten of her students manage to complete her tutelage.

Many perish while sparring with their instructors or are lost in Bright Annis's ferocious quest for the heads of drow, whom she blames for the death of a lover long ago.

Among the warblades who refuse to tie themselves to a particular school or demesne are Allek Thrast, an outcast of the hobgoblin masters of the Iron Heart school.

He is known to trade his former school's secrets for bright gold.

The charcoal-skinned dwarf sword prince Mardilkuthor Pwarna, the scourge of the Seekers of Reshar (a group that hopes to rediscover the Nine Swords and hasten Reshar's return).

Whether Mardilkuthor's motive is fear, jealousy, or an agenda he has managed to conceal even from the Sage of Snow and Shadow, the dwarf reportedly hunts down martial adepts who seek to reunite the Nine Swords.

ORGANIZATIONS

Because of their independent and sometimes downright chaotic natures, many warblades refuse to join traditional, hierarchical organizations, though they are not averse to the greater glory of founding one.

Thus, some warblade-created organizations have one or more warblades in a leadership position, while the rank and file consists of fighters, rangers, and bards, who can record the deeds of the organization's leaders.

Mardilkuthor Pwarna has built up a network of spies, assassins, and rangers across the Sunspire Mountains and the Deluge Jungle.

These individuals meet in concealed safe houses, tree blinds, and mountainside caves in the peaks gathered at the skirts of the Mother Mountain, Koshtra Amnorn.

Members of this organization can advance through the capture of any adepts seeking the Nine Swords, but Mardilkuthor maintains an iron grip on command.

The Bright Annis welcomes all princes of the sword to her open-air dojo in the southern fens of the Deluge Jungle.

A consummate teacher, she is harsh even by warblade standards.

Her students are regularly required to make forays into the dark places beneath the earth to hunt dark elves.

Any warblade who slays large numbers of drow is guaranteed advancement.

Countless other warblade organizations rise and fall according to the mercurial fortunes of individual sword princes.

Most of these movements are dedicated to the greater glory of their founders, although a fair number are ostensibly at least, focused on amassing coin or arcane power.

Because the warlike natures of their leaders guarantee a high casualty rate, most such organizations are always eager for new blood.

NPC REACTIONS

Governments, churches, and spy rings love to employ warblades.

Easily motivated by promises of gold, glory, and land (whichever the employers possess a surplus of at the moment), warblades can lend excellent, efficient muscle to any mission.

A wise patron sends companions of other classes along with a warblade.

though, to keep him on track.

Many kings and high priests have been left cursing in their chambers when word reached them of their hired muscle's fickle decision to abandon the job, seize the goal for his own, or even change sides to gain greater glory.

RACES

The stoic, taciturn, clan-oriented mindset of dwarves is anathema to the free-thinking, brash, and individualist warblade.

But even so, a surprising number of dwarves (often outcasts from their clans) choose to take up this path.

Conversely, warblades are often admired by the more gregarious races, including humans, halflings, and gnomes, for their life-on-the-edge, devil-may-care attitude.

OTHER CLASSES

Fighters, paladins, and other front-line fighters welcome warblades as brothers in steel.

Mages, however, are often suspicious of warblades and tend to give them a wide berth.

Rogues often see warblades as useful muscle, so eager for glory and gold that they can easily be duped.

In the absence of other motives, most classes and races regard warblades with a cautious and hesitant eye.

The chaotic and individualist nature of warblades means that they sometimes make unreliable companions, and no one wants to be caught in the Sunspires while the party's warblade pouts in his tent, unsatisfied with his split of the last battle's loot.

WARBLADE LORE

Characters with ranks in Gather Information or Knowledge (nobility and royalty) can research warblades and learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.
DC 10: A warblade is a fighter with delusions of immortality.

These glory-hounds think they can live forever in a bard's song!

DC 15: Warblades walk the Sublime Way, and few can match their skill with weapons.

A warblade can learn combat maneuvers from many different disciplines, so you can't guess the strengths or weaknesses of any warblade you face in battle. He might move with the speed of thought, tumble like a boulder through your ranks, or attack with the savagery of a beast.

DC 20: A warblade tends to be a chaotic creature. His downfall is his pride—he cannot abide an affront to his prestige.

The promise of honor and the laurels of a city are often enough to entice a warblade to risk his life.

An enterprise's possible reward—be it glory or gold—is much more important to a warblade than the potential risks, which he often disregards completely.

WARBLADES IN THE GAME

Combat is the natural campaign entry point for warblades. With the sun glinting off their polished armor, these characters literally shine in combat.

The first warblades in your campaign might be a brother and sister seeking to restore their family name by defeating the most renowned fighter in the area (one of the PCs).

Their martial maneuvers have been passed down in secret for generations, and at last these two have chosen to reveal themselves in the name of redemption and recovered honor.

Alternatively, if a PC is the first warblade in your campaign world, he might experience an epiphany in battle, foreshadowed by the soothsayings of a mysterious sage, so that his first use of a martial maneuver becomes the fulfillment of a prophecy.

Once warblades have become an established part of a campaign world, they find their niches on the battlefield, in the royal court, and in the twin arenas of public opinion and public entertainment.

With their crowd-pleasing martial maneuvers, warblades make excellent gladiators, and their thirst for glory often leads them to the public games.

However, warblades are equally likely to become enmeshed in the webs of court intrigue, playing cardinals off dukes and fantas off dauphins in a game that they find nearly as rewarding and exciting as swordplay.

Whereas a rogue might lament the loss of his riches and a cleric his loss of faith, a warblade feels no deficiency more keenly than the loss of the public's admiration.

ADAPTATION

Campaign worlds without large, established nations or organizations can still offer warblades a chance at glory. Becoming the hero of a village can be just as meaningful as becoming the hero of a nation—especially if the warblade knows every person in the village, can inquire about the innkeeper's grandchildren by name, and is met in the temple by a congregation that rises to its feet whenever he enters.

You might also consider making warblades revolutionaries fighting for freedom rather than seekers of personal glory. Their lack of magical skill plays well to the idea that warblades are oppressed fighters working to subvert a powerful arcane regime that denies the use of magic to all but its chosen agents.

Level	Base Attack Bonus	HIT DIE: d12			Special	Maneuvers Known	Maneuvers Readied	Stances Known
		Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Battle clarity (Reflex saves), weapon aptitude	3	3	1
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Uncanny dodge	4	3	1
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Battle ardor (critical confirmation)	5	3	1
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	—	5	4	2
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Bonus feat	6	4	2
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Improved uncanny dodge	6	4	2
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Battle cunning (damage)	7	4	2
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	—	7	4	2
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	Bonus feat	8	4	2
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	—	8	5	3
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Battle skill (opposed checks)	9	5	3
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	—	9	5	3
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4	Bonus feat	10	5	3
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	—	10	5	3
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	Battle mastery (attacks of opportunity)	11	6	3
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	—	11	6	4
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Bonus feat	12	6	4
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	—	12	6	4
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	—	13	6	4
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Stance mastery	13	7	4

TOME OF MAGIC (3.5)

BINDER

"I call upon you, Amon, the Void before the Altar. Render unto me your sight and your breath, for I stand before your seal and possess your talisman."

—Morden, dwarf binder, calling upon a vestige to make a pact

Between mortality and godhood, beyond life and undeath, souls exist in a place both forgotten and inaccessible.

Mortals too strong-willed to pass into the afterlife, dead outsiders too powerful to be absorbed into their planes, the dreams of slain deities put to rest eons before the current age—these are the beings called vestiges.

A seal forms the door between these beings and reality, and knowledge is the key to opening it.

Only the binder possesses that key, because only he knows the vestiges' special seals and the rituals by which they can be called from the void beyond reality.

By drawing their seals and speaking the words of power, he summons these strange entities, bargains with them, and binds them to his service.

MAKING A BINDER

The binder can redefine his role in an adventuring party on a daily basis, if desired.

His potent abilities are always useful in combat, but what those abilities are and what strategies he employs when using them depend on the vestige that he binds.

As with any class, the race, alignment, and ability choices made upon character creation influence future choices.

The binder class, however, offers a special opportunity to break free of a spellcaster's typical boundaries.

Abilities: A binder typically possesses a healthy body and a strong personality, since high Constitution and Charisma scores can improve many of his supernatural abilities.

More importantly, a high Charisma score enhances the binder's ability to make beneficial pacts with vestiges. Since many vestiges grant improved melee or ranged combat ability, a high Strength or Dexterity score serves the binder well.

Lastly, a high Intelligence score grants him extra skill points to spend on important class skills.

Races: Because binders associate with spirits beyond the control of the gods, the practice of pact magic is forbidden by most religions.

Binders tend to be rare among all humanoid races.

Given their ambition and their penchant for a cosmopolitan lifestyle, humans choose the path of the binder more frequently than members of other races do, but binders are no more welcome in human society than in any other.

Many halfling traveling communities remain largely unaware of binders, but settlements often gain knowledge of them—and learn to fear them—from the clergy of other races in neighboring areas.

Because single deities dominate the cultures of both elves and dwarves, members of these races tend to be more aware of—and more opposed to—binders than their fellow humanoids.

Gnomes who know of binders claim that Garl Glittergold appreciates the cosmic joke of mortal souls that grow so powerful that they can be neither saved nor damned.

Half-orcs and half-elves, accustomed as they are to existing on the fringe of society and suffering persecution, sometimes even sympathize with the plight of binders.

Alignment: Although vestiges were once beings of light and darkness like all creatures of the planes, their long existence in a strange state beyond normal reality has twisted them into enigmatic and amoral entities.

However, their nature does not dictate the alignments of those who bind to them.

A fearsome and violent vestige can lend its powers to a good binder, who uses them to make peace with enemies. Conversely, a sweet-faced and kind vestige might grant an evil binder the power to wreak havoc.

In some cases, the same vestige might make separate but simultaneous pacts with two binders who are in direct conflict with one another.

Vestiges are not easily defined as good, evil, lawful, or chaotic, but their unfathomable mindsets and strange appearance often disturb lawful and good creatures.

Thus, most binders are neutral, chaotic neutral, chaotic evil, or neutral evil.

Starting Gold: 5d4×10 (125 gp).

Starting Age: As cleric.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Bluff, Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (history), Knowledge (religion), Knowledge (the planes), Profession, Sense Motive.

CLASS FEATURES

As a binder, you can serve many purposes in an adventuring party.

Since each vestige grants you a different set of supernatural abilities, you can choose which role to play on any given day—diplomat, scout, support, melee combatant, or ranged combatant.

At higher levels, you can host more than one vestige at a time to gain an even wider range of abilities.

You also gain special defenses and bonus feats that let you further refine your role in the party and play to your strengths.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: As a binder, you gain proficiency with all simple weapons and with light armor, but not with shields.

Soul Binding (Su): Through special methods known only to binders, you can contact a vestige and make a pact with it.

At 1st level, you can make a pact with one vestige at a time.

At higher levels, you can form and maintain pacts with multiple vestiges simultaneously, as shown on Table 1–1.

You must complete the summoning and binding process with each separately, so each has its normal chance to influence you.

You bear the physical sign of binding for each one.

Your effective binder level, or EBL (your binder class level plus any soul binding bonuses you receive from prestige classes or other sources), determines the maximum level of vestige you can summon, as well as all other functions related to binding vestiges.

This value equates to your binder class level, as given on Table 1–1, for this purpose.

If the vestige you are trying to contact is of a higher level than your indicated maximum, you cannot summon it.

To contact a vestige, you must draw its unique seal visibly on a surface (generally the ground), making the image at least 5 feet across.

Drawing a seal requires the ability to mark a surface and 1 minute of concentration, and the act provokes attacks of opportunity.

A seal not used within 1 minute of its drawing loses all potency, and you must draw a new one to contact the vestige.

A vestige might also have other requirements for contact, as noted in its entry (see The Vestiges, page 16).

Once the seal is drawn, you must perform a ritual requiring a full-round action to summon the corresponding vestige.

During this time, you must touch the seal and call out to the vestige using both its name and its title.

The ritual fails if you cannot be heard (for example, if you are within the area of a silence spell).

Otherwise, a manifestation of the vestige appears in the seal's space as soon as you finish the ritual. This image is not the actual vestige; it is merely a figment—an illusion that cannot harm or be harmed by any creature. Creatures that interact with the image or study it carefully automatically recognize it as illusory. The summoned image ignores everyone but you. If you fail to address it within 1 round, it disappears. The vestige speaks in whatever language you used to call it. To make a pact with your summoned vestige, you must make a binding check (1d20 + your effective binder level + your Cha modifier). This process requires 1 minute but you can choose to make a rushed binding check as full-round action at a penalty. The DC for this check is provided in the description of each vestige (see pages 16–49). You must make your perilous pact alone; others cannot aid you in any way. Whether the binding check succeeds or fails, you gain the powers granted by the vestige for 24 hours. During that time, you cannot rid yourself of the vestige unless you possess the Expel Vestige feat. Success or failure does, however, determine other aspects of the pact. If you fail the binding check, the vestige influences your personality and your actions, and you are said to have made a poor pact. (Specifically, the vestige's presence changes your general demeanor, and it can force you to perform or refrain from certain actions). If your binding check is successful, the vestige has no control over your actions and does not influence your personality. In this case, you are said to have made a good pact. While under the influence of a vestige, you must adhere to its requirements to the best of your ability. If you are conscious and free-willed, and you encounter situation in which you cannot or will not refrain from a prohibited action or perform a required one, you take a –1 penalty on attack rolls, saving throws, and checks until, that vestige leaves you. If you are influenced by more than one vestige, you must act according to all their influences. If you fail to fulfill the requirements of more than one vestige or disobey a single vestige more than once, the penalties stack. As long as you are bound to a vestige, you manifest a specific physical sign of its presence, as given in its entry. This sign is real, not an illusory or shapechanging effect, and someone using true seeing perceives it just as it is. You can hide a sign by mundane or magical means without penalty, or you can prevent it from appearing at all if you have the suppress sign ability. Vestiges are bound to your soul by the pact. They cannot be targeted or expelled by any means except the Expel Vestige feat, nor can they be suppressed except by an antimagic field or similar effect. The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against any supernatural power granted by a vestige is 10 + 1/2 your effective binder level + your Cha modifier. Suppress Sign (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, when you make a good pact, you can choose not to exhibit the physical sign that normally accompanies a pact with a vestige.

You can suppress or reveal the sign at will as a swift action. With a poor pact, you gain the powers of the vestige, but you cannot suppress its sign. You show it for the duration of the pact and are influenced by it as normal.

Bonus Feats: At 4th level, and again at 11th and 18th level, you gain a bonus feat of your choice from the following list: Armor Proficiency (medium), Armor Proficiency (heavy), Diligent, Investigator, Martial Weapon Proficiency, Negotiator, Persuasive, Shield Proficiency, and the feats presented in this chapter.

Feats not described in this book can be found in the Player's Handbook.

These feats are in addition to those normally gained for attaining higher levels, but you must still meet any prerequisites for the bonus feats you choose.

Pact Augmentation (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, you can draw additional power from the vestiges you bind.

As long as you are bound to at least one vestige, you can choose one ability from the following list.

Each time you rebind a vestige, you also reselect your pact augmentation ability.

As you attain higher levels, you can make additional selections from the list.

You gain one additional ability at 5th, 10th, 16th, and 20th level (to a maximum of five selections at 20th level).

You can choose a single ability multiple times, and their effects stack.

For instance, at 16th level you could choose bonus hit points twice and damage reduction twice, gaining +10 hit points and damage reduction 2/–.

PACT AUGMENTATION ABILITIES

+5 hit points

Energy resistance 5 (acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic)

+1 insight bonus on saving throws

Damage reduction 1/–

+1 insight bonus to Armor Class

+1 insight bonus on attack rolls

+1 insight bonus on damage rolls

+2 insight bonus on initiative checks

Soul Guardian (Su): Beginning at 6th level, you have immunity to fear effects as long as you are bound to a vestige.

As you attain higher binder levels, the vestige guards its time with you even more jealously, granting you protection from additional effects that would harm your soul and life energy for as long as the pact lasts.

At 9th level, you gain the slippery mind ability, which allows you to wriggle free from magical effects that would otherwise control or compel you.

If you fail your saving throw against an enchantment spell or effect, you can attempt it again 1 round later at the same DC.

You get only this one extra chance to succeed on your saving throw.

At 13th level, you gain immunity to energy drain and negative levels.

When you attain 19th level, your bound vestiges completely protect your mind, granting you immunity to all mind-affecting spells and abilities.

PLAYING A BINDER

Others might misunderstand your powers, but you can't allow their shortcomings to stop you.

You know that contacting the vestiges isn't an evil act, and you've never traded your soul for any sort of benefit. However, you can't afford to be too open about your activities, or those who fear your form of magic might learn something truly terrifying—your magic is easy.

You don't need to spend hours studying incomprehensible writings, beg for boons from a distant deity, or have magic in your blood.

With the proper seal and the necessary personal power, you can call up a vestige and gain its abilities with just a few words.

The situation does sometimes get more complicated, and you haven't figured it all out yet, but you're certain that your path to power lies with the vestiges—creatures so strong that even the gods can't contain them.

You are well aware that others like yourself exist.

The process of summoning a vestige is so simple that you've probably met other practitioners without even knowing it.

All it takes is the knowledge and the will to complete the process, so any kind of person could conceivably speak with the same spirits that serve as your patrons.

You must always watch for the signs and be wary of other binders.

Although they could be valuable sources of knowledge, they might also be enemies.

You might engage in adventures for many reasons, but amassing personal power is generally your primary concern.

Certain vestiges refuse to answer the call of novice binders, and a desire to contact them and gain their powers often motivates your escapades.

Perhaps you took up a life of adventure after fleeing persecution.

After all, your activities and powers seem foreign and frightening to many people, and various religious sects consider contacting a vestige a sacrilege.

RELIGION

Because you have the means to speak directly with powers beyond the reach of most deities, you tend to scorn the worship of such beings.

At the same time, your strength flows from creatures expatriated from the rule of those deities, and for that reason, you fear inciting the ire of a god or his worshipers.

Although you are unlikely to take up a cleric's raiment, you find it convenient to pay homage to gods and show outward respect for their servants.

OTHER CLASSES

You need to be especially careful around paladins, clerics, and others devoted to a deity.

Such individuals are likely to have the worst reaction to your abilities, though they might not be informed enough to have an opinion.

Wizards, sorcerers, and other arcane spellcasters appreciate the power you can gain, but consider their own magic superior.

Characters of any class tend to mistrust you if they actually see you summoning a vestige, but open-minded individuals value your worth as an ally no matter how you achieve your power.

COMBAT

When you're not hosting a vestige, you're not a great melee or ranged combatant.

Your combat skills are roughly comparable to those of a cleric without spells, except that you lack the cleric's proficiency with shields and medium and heavy armor. Making a pact with a vestige can easily make up for this deficiency.

The mix of abilities that vestiges offer you lets you define your role in each day's encounters.

For example, you could make a pact with a vestige that makes you stealthy so that you can scout ahead and take foes by surprise.

You could bind with one that lets you take on the role of a stalwart fighter who can use arms and armor with skill. Alternatively, you could decide to be a silver-tongued speaker, winning the hearts and minds of friend and foe alike.

At higher levels, you can make a pact with more than one vestige at a time to gain even greater versatility in combat and roleplaying encounters.

ADVANCEMENT

You profit most from remaining a binder throughout your career.

Each level of the binder class increases the power you gain from making a pact with a vestige; you gain other class abilities at higher levels as well.

As you advance and establish your role in the adventuring party, you might find yourself using one or two vestiges more than others.

In that case, consider taking a level or two in another class to supplement the abilities the vestige grants you.

For example, if you often find yourself in melee, a level of barbarian or fighter might help to make you more effective.

On the other hand, if you regularly act as your group's spokesperson and scout, a level of rogue might be appropriate.

DWARF BINDER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (-2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8, crit x2, 6 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning and piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Decipher Script	4	Int	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Gather Information	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (history)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (the planes)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (religion)	4	Int	—
Sense Motive	4	Int	—

Feat: Shield Proficiency.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Three torches.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

BINDERS IN THE WORLD

“Binders—you know why they’re called that?

Because they give up their souls to bind with the dark forces.

Heretics, the lot of them.

They profane the natural order!

Should you ever meet one, destroy him, and let the gods punish him for his crimes.”

—Prelate Czarran Highfist, dwarf paladin of Moradin
Binders put the allure of the forbidden into the hands of players, allowing them to participate in occult-style activities without forcing them to play evil characters.

At the same time, the reaction that most religious organizations have to binders can reveal a darker side to the clergy of good-aligned deities while creating opportunities for great roleplaying.

DAILY LIFE

A binder typically begins his day by finding a quiet, out-of-the-way place to summon the vestige whose power he desires.

He then spends the rest of the day engaged in whatever task seems most pressing while trying to avoid too much contact with others.

Although many binders are adept at social interaction, a vestige’s influence can affect his personality.

The bound spirit’s sign also manifests on his body unless he has the means to prevent it.

When not adventuring, binders often spend their time seeking out scraps of information about vestiges and other soul binders.

The pursuit of such forbidden knowledge is often quite dangerous and can result in the binder undertaking additional adventures.

Binders generally avoid accepting followers or serving in leadership positions because a high-profile station draws too many eyes.

Yet the charismatic and mysterious nature of most binders draws others to them like moths to flame, so binders often develop friendships with outcasts, rebels, curious youths, and others who feel they don’t fit in or aren’t fond of the status quo.

By actively strengthening these bonds of friendship, a binder can create secret networks of allies and spies who will alert him to threats and aid him in times of danger.

Local authorities rarely see these groups as simple gatherings of friends.

The binder’s allies are often involved in other clandestine dealings that spell trouble for the whole network.

NOTABLES

Because of the secrecy surrounding vestiges and the constant attempts to quash all knowledge of soul binding, few binders become notable in their communities.

Even so, most who pursue this class know of Syfal, the mythic individual who is said to have first discovered the means of contacting vestiges.

Syfal’s name appears in almost every text about vestiges, though whether he is invoked as a patron saint of the practice or cursed as a foul denier of the universal order depends on the writer’s viewpoint.

No one knows for certain who or what Syfal was, or even when he lived, but the age of some carvings about him found in ruins indicates that he must have lived and died millennia ago.

Without an obvious champion for their practice, many binders look to history for signs of famous folk who might secretly have pursued this profession.

Legends are replete with great heroes and villains who possess strange powers, and many a binder takes comfort in the belief that an admired individual spoke to the same vestiges that he contacts every day.

ORGANIZATIONS

Binders rarely work in groups, but an individual binder who gathers a small circle of friends occasionally chooses one or two of them as apprentices.

Such a group might eventually grow into a cabal of a dozen or so people whom the binder has taken into his confidence.

In general, cabals of this sort exist solely to protect the binder and to seek out rumors and hints relating to other binders or vestige lore.

Rarely, such a cabal grows into a larger organization, such as the Theurgian Society.

For more information about the Theurgian Society, see the Pact Magic Organizations section beginning on page 90.

NPC REACTIONS

Most people have an indifferent attitude toward binders because they know very little about what such individuals do.

Even those who gain a basic understanding of binders’ powers typically view these individuals with the same respect or fear that they view conjurers or necromancers. The situation changes radically when religion comes into the equation, however.

The leaders of most organized religions are aware of binders to at least some degree.

Most choose to keep that knowledge secret, lest the common and worshipers learn of powers beyond the reach of their deities.

Occasionally, a church even maintains a secret arm of its organization to seek out and eradicate binders.

Such a force usually possesses a small library of texts describing vestiges and the practices required to summon them, so that its leaders can teach members to recognize the signs of pact magic and train them to defeat binders. Ironically, books stolen from such libraries introduce many future binders to pact magic.

In fact, many binders began their careers as clerics before the promise of a swift means to power seduced them to the path of pact magic.

This attrition is one reason, why clerics, paladins, and other religious people who know about binders react to them in an unfriendly or hostile manner.

BINDER LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana) or Knowledge (religion), or who have the bardic knowledge ability, can research binders and pact magic to learn more about them.

Also, although religious groups try to quash the stories of binders, bards often find the intrigue and romance of pact magic so alluring that they can’t resist sharing the tales of it, if only with other bards.

When a character makes a skill check or a bardic knowledge check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

A character with ranks in Knowledge (the planes) can also gain some information about binders, though each of the DCs below increases by 5 for such checks.

DC 15: Certain strange spellcasters called binders practice a taboo art known as pact magic.

Most clerics who know of binders consider them little more than heretics but grudgingly acknowledge that they are real.

These spellcasters routinely contact otherworldly forces and make pacts with them for power.

A particular sign, seal, or name is associated with each spirit.

DC 20: Binders contact vestiges—souls that have been lost to the gods and planes, and banished to some hidden place.

A binder calls forth these spirits and makes pacts with them.

In exchange for allowing the vestige to experience life through his body, a binder assumes some of its powers.

Many churches outlaw this practice of pact magic.

Some even mark its practitioners for death.

DC 25: Binders aren't true spellcasters—they and the spirits they summon work outside the normal flow of magic.

The powers they gain and the vestiges they host can't be dispelled or banished by normal means, DC 28: Characters who achieve this level of success know the legend, manifestation, sign, and seal of one or more particular vestiges.

They also know the basic powers that the vestige grants (the first paragraph beneath the vestige's name and title in its entry).

DC 30: Characters who achieve this level of success can learn important details about the specific binders in your campaign, or the arm of a church responsible for finding and eradicating users of pact magic.

Also, such a character could learn the specifics of the powers that a particular vestige grants.

A character trying to establish contact with a binder or an organization opposed to such individuals can make a DC 30 Gather Information check to discover the necessary intermediaries and protocols for contact.

Talking directly to a binder or member of an opposing group won't work, because both are likely to feign ignorance.

A PC who can offer something of value (such as information or a magic item) to the person or people he is trying to contact gains a +2 circumstance bonus on the check.

BINDERS IN THE GAME

Binders fit easily into just about any game simply because their existence has remained largely a secret.

You can introduce binders through the PCs' discovery of ancient lore, a chance meeting with an NPC binder, or an encounter with agents of a church seeking out a binder. Perhaps your group's introduction to pact magic comes when a player sits down to play her new binder PC.

In any case, using binders in your game requires little more than simply putting one into play.

The player of a binder character probably thrills at dancing on the dagger's edge of discovery by the authorities.

Hiding the signs of soul binding, controlling a vestige's influence, and finding explanations for supernatural abilities make for fun roleplaying, so the player will be looking for such opportunities.

At the same time, the player of a binder character might find continual persecution tiresome and grow disillusioned if public use of her characters abilities always provokes a negative reaction.

The best solution is to keep in mind that those who hunt binders generally want to keep their efforts—and even the existence of binders—a secret.

Although the conflict between binders and those who fear them could explode at any time, in most cases it simmers under the surface as a cloak-and-dagger conflict.

Therefore, a game that includes a binder PC can function in much the same way as it does now.

You can occasionally present side plots, adventures, and encounters that focus on the binder's class and abilities, just as you would for any other member of the adventuring party.

ADAPTATION

You can significantly change the binder's role in your game without dramatically changing the mechanics.

For example, binders could devote themselves to beings other than vestiges.

To lend binders a darker or lighter feel, you could have them contact and bind themselves to fiends or celestials.

Binders related to a particular religious or secular order could bind themselves to the spirits of saints or heroes.

The process of soul binding could even be a totemic rite that lets a binder call up ancestors or the essential spirits of creatures by drawing upon the power of special tattoos or talismans.

When changing the focus of a binder's pact making, you can keep the mechanics of the class largely the same, though you might want to change the influences of the vestiges (or whatever beings you choose) to suit their new natures.

TABLE 1-1: THE BINDER		HIT DIE: D8
Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Maximum Vestige Level
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Soul binding (1 vestige)	1st
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Pact augmentation (1 ability), suppress sign	1st
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	—	2nd
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Bonus feat	2nd
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Pact augmentation (2 abilities)	3rd
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Soul guardian (immune to fear)	3rd
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	—	4th
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	Soul binding (2 vestiges)	4th
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Soul guardian (slippery mind)	4th
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7	Pact augmentation (3 abilities)	5th
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Bonus feat	5th
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	—	6th
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Soul guardian (immune to energy drain and negative levels)	6th
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	Soul binding (3 vestiges)	6th
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	—	7th
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Pact augmentation (4 abilities)	7th
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	—	8th
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	Bonus feat	8th
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Soul guardian (mind blank)	8th
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Pact augmentation (5 abilities), soul binding (4 vestiges)	8th

VARIANT: HETERODOXY AND HERESY

Deities who despise vestiges and binders might frown upon a follower consorting with binders or for taking up pact magic. In the case of a cleric or paladin, such punishment often involves revocation of divine powers, rendering the character an ex-cleric or ex-paladin, as described in the Player's Handbook. This penalty is quite harsh, especially if the transgression is one for which the deity does not allow atonement, such as taking levels in the binder class. If you want to represent removal of a cleric's or paladin's powers but you don't want to overly hinder the offending PC, consider the following ideas.

Clerics and paladins need not abandon their principles to be friendly with binders or even to take up pact magic. Perhaps the character maintains all her powers, but they now stem from devotion to her ideals, like those of any cleric not devoted to a specific deity. The character becomes a heretic to her own church, but she maintains the same morals and outlook she had before.

Alternatively, a PC cleric or paladin need not abandon her deity. Perhaps the main wing of her church disavows her, but other heterodox factions exist. In this situation, the character's deity doesn't offer followers a clear opinion about binders and pact magic, but rather allows them to wrestle with the topic on their own. Perhaps the deity has withheld an opinion on the subject in hopes that his followers will come to the proper conclusion by themselves, or perhaps he is content to let the strongest philosophy win the day.

Although it isn't necessary to provide rules for penalizing characters who consort with (or even become) binders, you can use the following optional rules to represent the above possibilities.

Cleric: A cleric who goes against the will of his deity with regard to pact magic—usually by taking a level in the binder class—loses the ability to access his domains, including his domain spell slots and granted powers. If the cleric takes a second level in the class and thus gains the pact augmentation ability, he can add his cleric level to his binder level for the purpose of determining its effects. In addition, he gains a bonus feat chosen from the binder's bonus feat list upon attaining 3rd level as a binder (as well as the bonus feat awarded to all binders at 4th level). A cleric who merely consorts with a binder might find himself turned away from his own temples, at best, or hunted as a heretic alongside his binder companion, at worst.

Paladin: A paladin who goes against the will of her deity with regard to pact magic—again, by taking levels as a binder—cannot use the divine grace ability. If she takes enough binder levels to gain the pact augmentation ability, she can add her cleric level to her binder level for the purpose of determining its effects. As with clerics who associate themselves with binders, a paladin might be ostracized, excommunicated, or hunted by her own church if she continues the relationship with the binder.

SHADOWCASTER

"Behind the fire, between the worlds, in all the empty spaces, at the end of all things, we are there.

Matter, light, life—these things are fleeting.

Shadow, only shadow, is eternal."

—Eddas Coradran, Lord of the First House, Parliament of Shadows

All things fall into shadow, even light.

Shadows do not represent the absence of light; they show the presence of darkness.

Thus, shadow and darkness are not death or diminishment; they are the fundamental state of the universe, the constant that existed before, that exists now, and that will exist when all other things are snuffed out.

So it is with the Plane of Shadow, that dark mirror to the Material Plane and many other realities.

Shadowcasters tap into this most fundamental offerees and planes to work their dark wills.

By tying themselves to the Plane of Shadow, they maintain a tenuous link to the ultimate force of existence.

The shadowcaster understands the true, primal power of darkness, attunes herself to the Plane of Shadow, and learns great shadow mysteries the equal of any mundane spell.

These dark casters are workers of alien magic, possessing an occult understanding of the world and magic that even other spellcasters find disturbing.

They are masters of a dark power—and perhaps, as some worry, its servants as well.

MAKING A SHADOWCASTER

The shadowcaster is a potent magic user.

Her abilities are tightly focused, making her somewhat less versatile than other spellcasters, but what she lacks in range she makes up in sheer capability.

Shadow magic is unfamiliar to most enemies and, especially at higher levels, far more difficult to counter, disrupt, or dispel.

Depending on the shadowcaster's focus and choice of paths, she might be an exceptional scout, a master of scrying, a commander of shadowy minions, a thief of life, or any combination thereof.

Like most spell users, her role depends largely on the magic she chooses.

Those who walk the dark road of shadow magic must fortify themselves against the pull of the Plane of Shadow. As the power the plane grants grows, so too does its grip on a shadowcaster's soul.

This constant contest between shadow and soul strengthens a shadowcaster's will and fortitude. Few shadowcasters are leaders of adventuring groups, being more concerned with expanding their knowledge and understanding of the mystical in general, and of shadow in particular.

Abilities: Shadowcasters must be both clever and confident, studious and determined; Intelligence and Charisma both impact their mysteries.

Wisdom is useful for perception, particularly if they opt for any of the scrying-oriented paths.

Because shadowcasters rarely wear armor, a high Dexterity proves helpful.

Races: The majority of shadowcasters are humans or half-elves, individuals whose quest for power, understanding, or knowledge is at the forefront of their personas.

Dwarves tend to see shadowcasters as agents of evil, even if they are unwitting ones.

Elves do not necessarily consider them evil, but they do see shadow magic as unnatural, and therefore harmful even when their masters intend no malice.

Gnomes are more accepting of shadowcasters.

They view them with suspicion, but simultaneously respect their drive and wonder at the great arcane secrets they possess.

Halflings fear shadowcasters for their powers but envy their ability to enter and explore the dark, hidden places.

Half-orcs tend to distrust shadowcasters, although some lust after their abilities; however, few half-orcs have the mental capacity to be effective shadowcasters.

Alignment: Shadowcasters deal with dark powers, magic often associated with evil, and live with a skewed perception of the world itself.

Mastering the paths and mysteries, and learning to comprehend the world through the alien filter of the Plane of Shadow, requires an exceedingly disciplined, organized mind.

Thus, while shadowcasters can be of any alignment, those with good or chaotic alignments are exceedingly rare.

Starting Gold: 3d4x10 (75 gp).

Starting Age: As wizard.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Concentration, Craft, Hide, Intimidate, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (the planes), Move Silently, Profession, Spellcraft, Spot.

CLASS FEATURES

Your class features represent a growing mastery of shadow magic and a more intimate connection to the Plane of Shadow.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You are proficient with all simple weapons.

You are not proficient with any type of armor or shield.

Armor of any type interferes with your gestures, which can cause your mysteries to fail when they function as spells.

Fundamentals of Shadow (Su): As a shadowcaster, you must master certain basic powers before proceeding to deeper secrets of shadow.

These powers, known as fundamentals, function as supernatural abilities usable three times per day.

You begin play with three fundamentals and gain an additional fundamental at 4th level and every four additional levels beyond 4th.

At 14th level, you can use your fundamentals an unlimited number of times per day.

You can, when gaining a new level, choose a new fundamental in place of another mystery.

When choosing a fundamental, you can "relearn" an already known fundamental, thus gaining another set of uses of that fundamental per day.

The save DC of any fundamental is equal to 10 + your Cha modifier.

Mysteries and Paths: You do not cast spells as other classes do, but instead invoke mystical secrets called mysteries (see pages 139–153).

You know one mystery at 1st level and gain one additional mystery every class level.

Up to 6th level, you can learn only apprentice mysteries.

At 7th level, you gain access to initiate mysteries, and at 13th level you become able to use master mysteries.

You can choose your new mystery from any category you have access to (including fundamentals).

For instance, at 8th level, you could select either a fundamental, an apprentice mystery, or an initiate mystery. Shadow magic progresses in very specific stages.

You may not "jump ahead" in a path, although you need not complete a path if you do not wish to.

Within a category (apprentice, initiate, master), you can only learn mysteries of a new level if you have learned at least two mysteries of a previous level, and you must know all previous mysteries within a path to select a mystery from that path.

For example, you cannot learn congress of shadows (the second mystery of the Ebon Whispers path) until you know at least two 1st-level mysteries, one of which must be voice of shadow (the first mystery of that path).

However, you can always select the first mystery in a path of a category you have access to, even if you didn't complete the lower category paths.

For example, you could learn the shadow vision mystery, the first one (4th level) in the Initiate Veil of Shadows path, even if you know no 3rd level mysteries (all of which are in the Apprentice category).

Mysteries represent thought patterns and formulae so alien that other spells seem simple in comparison.

As you progress, however, your connection to the Plane of Shadow grows stronger, and your mysteries become more ingrained in your essence.

When you are capable of casting only apprentice mysteries, you cast them as though they were arcane spells.

They all have somatic components, armor-based spell failure chance, and are subject to interruption (but they do not require material components, foci, or verbal components).

Whenever you cast a mystery as an arcane spell, observers can make a DC 15 Spot check to note that your shadow is making different gestures from the ones you make when you cast the mystery (see Detecting Mysteries, page 138). At 7th level, when you become capable of casting initiate mysteries (whether or not you choose to learn any), your apprentice mysteries become so much a part of you that they now function as spell-like abilities, and they no longer require somatic components.

Your new initiate mysteries (when you learn them) function as arcane spells and follow the rules described above.

When you reach 13th level and become capable of casting master mysteries, another change occurs.

Your master mysteries now function as arcane spells, and your initiate mysteries function as spell-like abilities.

Your apprentice mysteries become supernatural abilities. (See page 139 for rules governing supernatural abilities).

You can learn a mystery more than once.

Each time you relearn a mystery, you gain another set of uses of that mystery per day.

You can use each mystery you know a certain number of times per day depending on whether it is cast as a spell (once), a spell-like ability (two times), or a supernatural ability (three times).

The allotments per level are given on Table 2–2, but only apply if you are able to cast mysteries of the level indicated.

TABLE 2–2: USES PER MYSTERY PER DAY

Class Level	Mystery Level
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	1	–	–	–	–	–	–	–	–
2nd	1	–	–	–	–	–	–	–	–
3rd	1	1	–	–	–	–	–	–	–
4th	1	1	–	–	–	–	–	–	–
5th	1	1	1	–	–	–	–	–	–
6th	1	1	1	–	–	–	–	–	–
7th	2	2	2	1	–	–	–	–	–
8th	2	2	2	1	–	–	–	–	–
9th	2	2	2	1	1	–	–	–	–
10th	2	2	2	1	1	–	–	–	–
11th	2	2	2	1	1	1	–	–	–
12th	2	2	2	1	1	1	–	–	–
13th	3	3	3	2	2	2	1	–	–
14th	3	3	3	2	2	2	1	–	–
15th	3	3	3	2	2	2	1	1	–
16th	3	3	3	2	2	2	1	1	–
17th	3	3	3	2	2	3	1	1	1
18th	3	3	3	2	2	2	1	1	1
19th	3	3	3	2	2	2	1	1	1
20th	3	3	3	2	2	2	1	1	1

For example, if you choose breadth over depth and know no 4th-level mysteries as a 7th-level shadowcaster, you cannot take advantage of the one use per mystery per day detailed in the table.

Unlike spellcasters, you don't get bonus mysteries for a high ability score.

Although you do not prepare spells, you must rest for 8 hours and meditate for 15 minutes each day to regain your use of mysteries just as a sorcerer or bard must rest and meditate to regain use of spell slots.

In order to cast a mystery, you must have an Intelligence score of at least 10 + the mystery's level.

The save DC for your mysteries equals 10 + mystery level + your Cha modifier. Even though as a shadowcaster you do not "cast spells" in the traditional sense, your levels in this class count for the purpose of determining your overall caster level.

Bonus Feats: Beginning at 2nd level, you gain bonus feats equal to half the total number of paths you have access to, rounded down.

For instance, most shadowcasters know the first mystery of two different paths at 2nd level, so they gain one bonus feat.

If you learn the first mystery of a third path at 3rd level, you still have only one bonus feat, but if you learn the first mystery of yet another path at 4th level, you know four paths, and therefore gain a second bonus feat.

Thus, you have a choice: fully master fewer paths and gain access to more high-level mysteries, or branch out into more paths and gain more feats but fewer high-level mysteries.

You do not gain a new bonus feat for repeating a path you already know, and fundamentals do not apply for the purpose of bonus feats.

You must meet the prerequisite (if any) in order to select a feat as a bonus feat.

The list of feats you can select includes any metamagic feat (as described in the Player's Handbook), Favored Mystery, Greater Path Focus, Nocturnal Caster, Path Focus, Shadow Vision, and any metashadow feat.

Umbral Sight (Su): When you reach 3rd level, your vision extends slightly into the Plane of Shadow.

You gain darkvision out to 30 feet.

If you already have darkvision, or gain it from some other source, the effective distance of that vision is increased by 30 feet.

At 11th level, you become able to see perfectly in complete darkness, even magical darkness, out to 60 feet.

Sustaining Shadow (Ex): When you reach 5th level, your bond to the Plane of Shadow allows you to absorb dark energies, mitigating certain biological needs.

You need eat only a single meal per week to maintain health.

At 10th level, you only need 1 hour of sleep per night (but you must still rest for 8 hours to regain your mysteries for the next day).

At 15th level, you gain immunity to nonmagical diseases and poisons.

Finally, at 20th level, you no longer need to breathe, and need never eat or sleep.

PLAYING A SHADOWCASTER

You are a master of arcane secrets far greater than any other—or at least you will be.

You understand what others do not: All power stems from darkness.

All reality is a facade, and everything is symbolism; by changing a thing's reflection—its shadow—you change the thing itself.

Other forms of magic, and other religions, aren't necessarily inferior or worthy of scorn; it's simply that they see only a part of the whole, the first layer of a deeper truth. You rarely take anything at face value or make snap decisions.

You might be inclined to see conspiracies where none exist, so accustomed are you to looking for the shadows behind the obvious.

Mostly, you adventure to perfect your understanding and mastery of shadow.

You likely prefer endeavors that allow you frequent use of your mysteries and other abilities, or those that promise access to ancient lore.

You might have personal goals as well, and it's not uncommon for shadowcasters to adventure for the sake of riches, to avenge a past wrong, or for any other "standard" adventure motive.

RELIGION

If you are the scholarly type, you might eschew religion, preferring to focus entirely on your own abilities and those offered by shadow magic.

Those of you who do subscribe to religion most frequently follow deities of darkness, mystic knowledge, and secrets, such as Boccob, Vecna, and Wee Jas.

OTHER CLASSES

You tend to view other spellcasters, arcane and divine, as both talented and misguided.

You respect the abilities of these other classes, and acknowledge that they can perform feats that you cannot. Nevertheless, you usually maintain that darkness is the ultimate power of the multiverse, and those who devote themselves to other magic, and other powers, are deluded. You appreciate fighters and barbarians, who can handle physical threats while you deal with more esoteric matters. You enjoy the company of rogues, as you understand the rogue's need to hide from the eyes of others.

You tend not to get along well with paladins, who are usually mistrustful; with druids, who view mysteries as outside nature; or with bards, who seem flighty and unfocused.

COMBAT

You possess fewer overtly damaging powers than spellcasters.

Against a single foe, you are quite capable of dealing damage on par with any wizard, assuming you have selected the proper mysteries.

Against a larger number of enemies, however, your area-affecting abilities are better suited toward weakening or impeding your foes so that your companions can finish them off—at least until you reach higher levels. If you have selected any of the perception-related mysteries, you are particularly adept in arranging ambushes, flanks, and other tactical maneuvers involving surprise.

Your abilities to see the battlefield from all angles, or in the dark, allow you to position your companions for maximum effectiveness.

At high levels, you can often call forth weapons and minions of darkness, enabling you to turn many battles through sheer weight of numbers, without putting yourself directly in harm's way.

Consider gaining proficiency in armor and wearing it at this point.

Only your master-path mysteries risk spell failure from wearing armor, and magic armor with a low arcane spell failure chance minimizes that.

A magic shield is a particularly good option because it can be set aside when casting master-path mysteries but held in all other situations.

ADVANCEMENT

Continuing your development as a shadowcaster requires a substantial amount of time and effort.

You must study arcane and esoteric texts, not merely to learn new mysteries but to comprehend the very nature of what you do.

You must investigate the interaction of planes and forces. You might also elect to study shadow magic in a religious context, determining how the Plane of Shadow fits into your belief system—or at the very least how it impacts the beliefs of other shadowcasters, so you can better understand them.

When you are not studying, you are practicing, training your mind to comprehend the alien formulae of mysteries, and your body to channel ever greater amounts of shadowstuff.

As you reach high levels, you might start to feel a bit distant from your companions.

You could find it difficult to maintain friendships; the changes in your thought patterns and physiology leave you feeling much less human (or whatever race you are).

Mechanically, you should increase your Intelligence and Charisma as you attain levels.

Beyond this, focus on feats and skills that enhance the mysteries you have chosen.

HUMAN SHADOWCASTER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None (speed 30 ft.).

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6, crit ×2, 4 lb., two-handed, bludgeoning).

light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Concentration	4	Con	—
Hide	4	Dex	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (the planes)	4	Int	—
Move Silently	4	Dex	—
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Spot	4	Wis	—

Feat: Improved Initiative.

Bonus Feat (Human): Combat Casting.

Fundamentals Known: Arrow of dusk (supernatural, 3/day), black candle (supernatural, 3/day), widened eyes, supernatural, 3/day).

Mysteries Known: Dusk and dawn (spell, 1/day).

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 4 pints of oil.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 3d4 gp.

SHADOWCASTERS IN THE WORLD

“I wish I could say which bothers me more...that shadowcasters claim darkness is the greatest power of the cosmos, or that a small part of me believes they might be right.”

—Jinna Aurinaire, priestess of Pelor

A shadowcaster is perhaps the most frightening magic user the PCs might run across.

Her abilities are strange and dark, she can do things no other class can, and she practices magic in ways unfamiliar to even the most learned wizard.

As villains, shadowcasters should terrify even confident parties.

As PCs, they allow players to approach the use of magic in new and exciting ways.

Perhaps most important for DMs, the shadowcaster is a walking plot hook; from the fearful and hateful reactions of those who do not understand her, to her innate connection to the mysterious Plane of Shadow, a single shadowcaster provides fodder for an entire series of adventures.

DAILY LIFE

When not adventuring, shadowcasters spend the majority of their time in study, meditation, and contemplation.

No less so than wizards, shadowcasters must constantly research new discoveries regarding their powers and the sources thereof and must review formulae and esoteric concepts so thoroughly that they burn them into their minds.

This is not to say that shadowcasters have no life outside their mystical pursuits, simply that they have little time to devote to other endeavors.

NOTABLES

Few shadowcasters are particularly famous; shadow magic does not lend itself to flashy displays.

Many practitioners remain hidden from the eyes of those who would destroy them.

Still, several shadowcasters have gained fame or notoriety, in the eyes of their comrades if not the outside world.

These include Eddas Coradran, one of the most vocal leaders of the Parliament of Shadows, who believes the organization holds authority over all shadowcasters whether they acknowledge it or not; his daughter Irrin, the so-called “left hand” of the Parliament; Zathra Kuhn, called the Daughter of Night, one of the infamous enforcers of the Brotherhood of the Blinded Sun; and Hallair Shadowmane, an elf priest and shadowcaster who departed to dwell in a hermitage—some say in the Plane of Shadow itself.

NPC REACTIONS

Few people understand shadowcasters, and even fewer trust them.

The common association of darkness with evil is simply too hard to shake, particularly since a goodly number of shadowcasters are evil, or at least uncaring of others.

Most common folk react to shadowcasters as they would any other arcane spellcaster, unaware that they are dealing with something different.

Should a shadowcaster reveal her unusual nature—perhaps by casting a blatantly shadow-oriented effect, or by allowing others to spot her shadow’s unnatural movements—most people become unfriendly or even hostile.

Spellcasters are also unfriendly, for they neither trust nor comprehend the shadowcaster’s abilities.

Clerics of gods of darkness and shadow, however, are often quite friendly toward shadowcasters, at least initially.

Good-hearted shadowcasters can usually overcome these reactions, given time and opportunity, but it requires substantial effort.

Clerics of gods of light are particularly hostile to shadowcasters, and many remain rivals even if a shadowcaster has proven to be an ally.

Similarly, evil creatures of darkness consider shadowcasters dangerous, fearing that the mystery users might too easily discover their own vulnerabilities and exploit their powers.

For their own part, shadowcasters usually return such hostility in kind, considering each a potential threat.

SHADOWCASTER LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana) or Knowledge (the planes) can research shadowcasters to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: Shadowcasters are magic users who focus on the powers of darkness and shadow.

DC 15: Shadowcasters draw their power from the Plane of Shadow, shaping it into magic both familiar and alien to other practitioners.

They believe that shadow, as both the reflection of the material world and the substance between worlds, is the only eternal force in existence.

DC 20: Shadowcasters grow inextricably linked to the Plane of Shadow as they continue their studies.

They no longer have even the most basic biological needs, and their powers become so great that they can cast many of their spells as innate abilities.

A DC 20 Gather Information or Knowledge (religion) check in a very high-magic community, or one in which a god of darkness or night is worshiped, will reveal the existence of shadowcasters.

A bardic knowledge check can reveal the same information as these skill checks, but in each case the DC is 5 higher than the given value.

SHADOWCASTERS IN THE GAME

In an ongoing game, shadowcasters might be restricted to specific organizations, particularly those with which the PCs have not dealt.

Maybe only a particular college or church possesses these secrets.

Given the planar source of their power, perhaps they did not even exist in the world until recently, traveling there from elsewhere by means of the Plane of Shadow.

If you have a player with a shadowcaster PC, allow the PC to excel on occasion.

The magic of the shadowcaster is more subtle and more alien than those of other classes.

If the campaign consists primarily of large-scale battles, a shadowcaster might (at least at low levels) feel inferior to a sorcerer or wizard.

Although she is not ineffective in such circumstances, she truly shines in battle against single, more potent foes.

She is also very comfortable in circumstances requiring espionage or deceit, or when normal strategies have failed and creative solutions and abilities are called for.

ADAPTATION

While the shadowcaster’s magic comes from, and focuses on, the Plane of Shadow, other options exist.

In a cosmology where no such plane exists, shadowcasters might draw their powers from a deity of night, functioning as divine rather than arcane casters.

Alternatively, they might draw their power from night itself becoming more potent after sunset but less so during the day.

Perhaps the “shadowcaster” does not manipulate shadow at all, instead using smoke or mist to accomplish similar effects.

TABLE 2-1: THE SHADOWCASTER HIT DIE: D6

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Fundamentals of shadow, apprentice mysteries
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Bonus feat; see text
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Umbral sight (darkvision 30 ft.)
4th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Bonus fundamental
5th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Sustaining shadow (eat 1 meal/week)
6th	+3	+5	+2	+5	—
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Apprentice mysteries (spell-like), initiate mysteries
8th	+4	+6	+2	+6	Bonus fundamental
9th	+4	+6	+3	+6	—
10th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Sustaining shadow (sleep 1 hour/day)
11th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Umbral sight (see in darkness 60 ft.)
12th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Bonus fundamental
13th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Apprentice mysteries (supernatural), initiate mysteries (spell-like), master mysteries
14th	+7/+2	+9	+4	+9	Unlimited uses of fundamentals
15th	+7/+2	+9	+5	+9	Sustaining shadow (immune to poison/disease)
16th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	Bonus fundamental
17th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	—
18th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	—
19th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	—
20th	+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Bonus fundamental, sustaining shadow (no need to breathe, eat, or sleep)

A CREEPING DARKNESS: MULTICLASS SHADOWCASTERS

Darkness spreads, and night overcomes the day. Experienced spellcasters who turn their efforts toward shadow might find their connection to primal darkness growing swiftly, at the expense of their previous abilities.

When a multiclass sorcerer or wizard gains a new shadowcaster level, she can choose to sacrifice a preexisting level of sorcerer or wizard, in exchange for an additional shadowcaster level. For instance, a 3rd-level wizard/4th-level shadowcaster who attains a new shadowcaster level becomes either a 3rd-level wizard/5th-level shadowcaster, or a 2nd-level wizard/6th-level shadowcaster. A character can exchange only one such level at a time.

When “swapping” levels, make the following changes:

- Add 1 hit point, to represent the average difference between the sorcerer/wizard’s d4 Hit Die and the shadowcaster’s d6.
- When exchanging sorcerer levels, you must also remove an appropriate number of spells from the sorcerer’s list of spells known. A wizard who exchanges a level does not lose spells from his spellbook, though some spells might no longer be available.

- Leave skills gained at that level as they are; these classes have the same number of skill points, and many skills in common.
- When replacing any wizard level at which you gained a bonus feat, you lose that feat.
- When replacing any level at which you gained one of the following feats as a normal feat (not a class-related bonus feat), swap it out as follows: Trade metamagic feats for similar metashadow feats, Spell Focus for Path Focus, and Greater Spell Focus for Greater Path Focus.
- You can’t lose a feat or class ability that would make you ineligible for any other feat or prestige class you already have, even if this means you can no longer take advantage of the creeping darkness feature.

This notion of creeping darkness does more than add an alien element to shadow magic. DMs who introduce shadow magic into an ongoing campaign can use this as a way of allowing players to embrace the new material without having to abandon their existing characters.

TRUENAMER

“I name you thelehb’maürechthalahh, tyrant.

I rend asunder your petty spells with bhauo-yualé-mannarae.

And I bring you to your knees with gorvoätyrmu-lälautha.

With only three words, I have you at my mercy.”

—Sekhen, Master of Truespeech

Truenamers study the words that comprise the fabric of existence.

They seek to unravel and comprehend the mysteries of the Multiverse by learning the truenames of as many of its components as possible.

A truenamer learns new truenames as he progresses in level, which he can use as utterances to manipulate the world around him.

All truenamers know the basic words of Truespeak that allow them to describe creatures that they encounter, so the new words they learn enable them to alter those creatures in very specific ways.

As they continue to advance, they also learn to describe—and thus affect—inanimate objects and even places, which are more difficult to describe using truenames.

If you want to understand the secret language of the universe, the truenamer class is for you.

By delving into the truenames of everything that surrounds you, you can reshape reality itself.

You will speak words of power so potent that the cosmos will rearrange itself to match their meaning.

MAKING A TRUENAMER

At first, you will only be able to use Truespeak in a few ways, so your power will necessarily be limited.

You will know only a few truenames, and more important, your ability to pronounce them is imperfect.

You will encounter situations when you aren't as skilled with Truespeak as you need to be, and you say "ghaurtahlakranammio" when you meant to say "ghaurtalhakranammio".

As a low-level truenamer, you might be able to increase an ally's effectiveness in combat or freeze an enemy in place, but you won't be commanding demons or altering the landscape—yet.

As you attain more levels, your power grows in three main ways.

First, you gain access to new lexicons, expanding your abilities to influence items and places, as well as creatures. Second, you learn new utterances, each of which gives you a new way to affect creatures, objects, and places.

Third, as you gain ranks in the Truespeak skill, you will naturally be able to pronounce truenames more reliably, especially the truenames of more powerful creatures.

In many ways, you're like a spellcaster.

You would rather deliver an utterance or a recitation than attack with a weapon.

By choosing the path of the truenamer, you give up a degree of flexibility compared to a spellcaster.

You have a set of utterances and recitations you can make, and this set doesn't change from day to day the way a wizard can change her arsenal of prepared spells.

But because you aren't casting spells, you don't have to worry about spell slots, spell levels, or running out of your most precious resource.

You can continue to speak utterances and recitations as long as you can continue to succeed on Truespeak checks. Abilities: Intelligence and Charisma are the most important ability scores for you.

Intelligence is the relevant ability score for the Truespeak skill; a high Intelligence will help you learn and remember the long strings of syllables and exact pronunciation of the truenames you know.

Charisma provides the force and conviction behind your words.

In game terms, it sets the save DC for many of your utterances.

Other ability scores matter less, because you would much rather deliver an utterance than swing a sword or shoot a bow.

If you're spending points on a physical ability score, consider Constitution because it provides extra hit points—a resource everyone runs short on eventually.

Races: The knowledge of truenames—and how to manipulate them—can be found among most races, but, as with the magic of wizards, the lore of truenamers requires a certain scholarly bent.

Truenamers also spend significant time in libraries and other places of knowledge, and thus are more rare among less civilized (or at least, less urban) races.

Humans and dwarves, especially, find truenamer magic appealing.

Dwarves find truenamer magic like a delightful puzzle to be solved: combinations of individual words of power, when put together a certain way, capable of achieving a specific effect.

Scholarly dwarves are on the forefront of combining genealogy and truenames, discovering how the personal truenames of dwarves within the same clan have some common syllables.

Humans living in the centers of major cities have access to some of the libraries and other resources so essential to learning truenames.

They're also natural explorers, crossing the globe in search of new things to name.

The division of truenames into three lexicons is largely a human invention, and now all truenamers enjoy the convenience of the three classifications.

Truenamers can also be found among elves and gnomes, although such characters tend to prefer a more organic approach to magic.

Halflings and half-orcs frequently lack the discipline or access to sources of knowledge to make truenamer magic feasible, although some clans and tribes might include members with ranks in Truespeak, and perhaps knowledge of a few truenamer spells.

Alignment: Truenamers have no preferred alignment.

Both the blackest hearts and the purest souls seek to understand the cosmos by mastering truenamer magic.

Evildoers want to reshape the universe for their own ends—or for those of their dark masters.

The defenders of all that is good want to use truenames to create a more just, compassionate world.

The rigid complexities of truenamer linguistics appeal to lawful characters, while chaotic characters love how truenamer magic confounds society's rules as an agent of fundamental change.

Starting Gold: 4d4×10 gp (100 gp).

Starting Age: As wizard.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Concentration, Craft, Perform (oratory), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Truespeak, Use Magic Device.

CLASS FEATURES

Your class features involve learning new utterances, attaining more knowledge among the three lexicons, and learning recitations that use your personal truenamer.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You are proficient with simple weapons and with light armor, but not with shields.

Known Personal Truenamer: You know your own personal truenamer.

You cannot pronounce it automatically; doing so requires a Truespeak check with a DC equal to 15 + (2 × your Hit Dice) + 2.

Because it's your personal truenamer, you get a +4 bonus on the Truespeak check.

Utterances (Sp): You have the ability to speak utterances, powerful combinations of truenames that can alter the world around you in fundamental ways.

Utterances exist in three lexicons: The Lexicon of the Evolving Mind, the Lexicon of the Crafted Tool, and the Lexicon of the Perfected Map.

You begin play knowing one utterance from the 1st level of the Lexicon of the Evolving Mind, and you gain one utterance from this lexicon at each truenamer level you attain.

You gain access to higher levels of utterances at the levels indicated on Table 3–3.

TABLE 3-3: MAXIMUM UTTERANCE LEVEL KNOWN

Level	Lexicon of the Evolving Mind	Lexicon of the Crafted Tool	Lexicon of the Perfected Map
1st	1st	—	—
2nd	1st	—	—
3rd	2nd	—	—
4th	2nd	1st	—
5th	2nd	1st	—
6th	3rd	1st	—
7th	3rd	2nd	—
8th	3rd	2nd	1st
9th	3rd	2nd	1st
10th	4th	2nd	1st
11th	4th	3rd	1st
12th	4th	3rd	2nd
13th	4th	3rd	2nd
14th	5th	3rd	2nd
15th	5th	4th	2nd
16th	5th	4th	3rd
17th	5th	4th	3rd
18th	6th	4th	3rd
19th	6th	5th	3rd
20th	6th	5th	4th

When you gain access to higher-level utterances, you can choose an utterance from that level or from a lower level, if you wish.

Each utterance represents hundreds of truenames in your repertoire.

When you gain the word of bolstering, for example, you say thanthan'ku'ul-hrasechni when you're delivering it on your elf ranger ally and yanu-shankrini'qalaasha when you're delivering it on your gnome rogue friend.

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against your utterances is $10 + 1/2$ your truenamer level + your Cha modifier.

Beginning at 4th level, you also gain access to the 1st-level utterances of the Lexicon of the Crafted Tool, allowing you to alter objects with your truenames.

You gain access to higher-level utterances from this lexicon at 7th, 11th, 15th, and 19th levels, as indicated on Table 3-3. Beginning at 8th level, you gain access to the 1st-level utterances of the Lexicon of the Perfected Map, allowing you to alter places with your truenames.

You gain access to higher-level utterances from this lexicon at 12th, 16th, and 20th levels, as indicated on Table 3-3.

See page 232 for the rules on successfully speaking utterances.

Knowledge Focus (Ex): As a truenamer, you spend a great deal of time studying the world around you in an effort to learn new truenames.

At the levels indicated on Table 3-2, you gain a permanent +3 bonus on a Knowledge skill of your choice.

Each time you gain this ability, you can apply it to a different Knowledge skill, or to the same Knowledge skill, if you want to focus on a particular area of expertise.

Truename Research: At 6th level, you gain Truename Research as a bonus feat.

See page 229 for details.

Bonus Recitation Feat: By repeating your own personal truename over and over with a particular inflection, you can achieve various healing effects starting at 8th level. Choose one recitation feat from those given later in the chapter.

You must still meet the prerequisites for the bonus feat to take it.

At 15th level, you gain a second bonus recitation feat.

See the Named (Su): Beginning at 9th level, you have the ability to see a creature from afar whose personal truename you know.

This ability works as the scrying spell, but does not require a mirror or pool of water to function.

Instead, you must make a Truespeak check for the creature as normal (see page 196 for information on making a Truespeak check to affect a creature).

If your check is successful, the creature does not get a save to resist the ability, but you can view the subject for only 1 round.

You can use this ability once per day.

Sending (Su): Beginning at 13th level, you can speak to creatures whose personal truenames you know from a great distance.

You must make a successful Truespeak check (DC $15 + 2 \times$ target's CR) to use this ability.

If successful, you can send a message to the subject as a sending spell (caster level equal to your truenamer level).

You can use this ability three times per day.

Speak unto the Masses (Su): At 17th level, you have the ability to affect a number of creatures of the same creature type with a single, powerful utterance.

You can only affect creatures of the same type (humanoids, giants, or dragons, for example) with a single use of this ability, although you could use it against a different group of a different creature type each round.

No two of the creatures you wish to affect with your utterance can be more than 30 feet apart, and the base DC for your Truespeak check is equal to the most powerful (highest CR or most Hit Dice, if you are affecting PCs) creature in the group.

For each creature you wish to affect with the utterance beyond the first, the DC of your Truespeak check increases by 2.

The Law of Resistance (see page 233) applies to utterances altered with speak unto the masses.

As a result, additional uses of an utterance modified with speak unto the masses might be more difficult, even if you then want to use the utterance on a single creature later in the day.

For example, if you attempted to use an utterance against four fire giants (each CR 10), the DC would be $15 + (2 \times 10) + 6$, or 41.

If your attempt was successful, and you later tried to use that same utterance against a single marut (CR 15), the Law of Resistance applies, and the DC would be $15 + (2 \times 15) + 2$, or 47.

Say My Name and I Am There (Su): At 20th level, you develop a truename—not your personal truename, but a sort of true nickname—that is invested with cosmic power such that others who speak it can conjure you forth.

Whenever someone successfully says this truename, you can appear at that creature's location as if taken there by a word of recall spell.

You know who is saying your truename, and you can choose not to be transported if you wish.

The nickname is often one or two syllables taken from your personal truename.

A creature speaking your true nickname need not make a Truespeak check to do so.

Most truenamers with this ability teach the truename to their friends and allies so they can be called when needed.

PLAYING A TRUENAMER

The whole point of being a truenamer is that your words have impact.

You're at the table to be heard.

Whether you're a glib negotiator, a master of riddles, or a laconic hero who speaks only when she must, you should develop a distinctive style for your character's speech.

As a truenamer, you're particularly interested in defining things.

You want to figure out the game world and accurately name all its contents.

That's what drives you to solve puzzles, uncover hidden enemies, and undertake other adventures: the desire to catalog and name all you encounter.

RELIGION

Any deity with knowledge, lore, or speech in its pantheon is a natural for truenamers.

But more than that, truenamers favor the creator deity (if one exists) in a given pantheon.

Many truenamers have the explicit or implicit belief that the creator deity used the language of truenames to define everything in the universe at the moment of creation, essentially speaking every truename at the beginning of time.

Not every truenamer believes in the connection between the creation of the universe and the power of truenames, but most do.

This can sometimes get truenamers in trouble with strongly orthodox religions that lack a creator deity or don't incorporate truenames into their creation story.

In the standard D&D pantheon, truenamers tend to worship Boccob (N), Vecna (NE), or the patron deities of a specific race such as Corellon Larethian (elves, CG), Moradin (dwarves, LN), Garl Glittergold (gnomes, NG), or Yondalla (halflings, LG).

Truenamers of the FORGOTTEN REALMS setting often venerate Azuth (LN), Gond (N), Lathander (NG), Mystra (NG), or Oghma (N).

Some truenamers worship Selûne or Shar due to their importance in the world's creation myth.

Others favor Deneir because they see a connection between truenames and the Deneiran Metatext.

The racial patron deities find worshipers among truenamers, too.

The truenamers of the EBERRON setting worship Aureon (LN), Onatar (NG), or the Path of Light (kalashtar, LN).

OTHER CLASSES

Most members of other classes know little about the ways of truename magic, and thus most will judge you independently of your magical inclinations.

Wizards and some clerics are the most likely to know something of your art, and many can be invaluable allies, aiding you in your research and complementing your utterances with their own powerful forms of magic.

You also benefit from the presence of strong melee combatants, as do spellcasters, since they can keep enemies away from you while you shake the battlefield and strike terror into the hearts of your foes from a distance.

Allies can become mistrustful once they see your power and realize that they too have truenames, and some will take time before they become comfortable with you knowing their personal truenames.

COMBAT

Although you don't cast spells, strictly speaking, you're effectively a spellcaster in a fight.

In a typical combat round, you attempt an utterance, hoping to damage or otherwise confound your enemies in some way, or to aid your allies.

If you are wounded, you might be able to use an utterance to heal yourself.

But your interesting combat options revolve around the utterances you have at your disposal.

If a foe proves especially resilient to your truename magic, or if your offensive utterances have been repeated to an extent that you can no longer succeed on your Truespeak checks, your tactical role in a fight shifts from offense to defense and support.

ADVANCEMENT

Once you have undergone your initial training, you can continue your studies in the downtime between adventures, much the way a wizard learns new spells.

You're always practicing the pronunciation of truenames you already know and trying to figure out the truenames you don't know yet.

Occasionally, you might visit the library of your mentor or a truename-aware organization so you can learn more truenames.

When you reach higher levels, you might advance the lore of truenames yourself, discovering new truenames and becoming the first truenamer to speak them aloud.

As you attain more levels in the truenamer class, the most important choice you face is which utterances to learn.

Each utterance from the Lexicon of the Evolving Mind represents an action, and its reverse, that you can use against friends or enemies.

Eventually, you learn words that you can use to form utterances that affect objects and places.

At every level, you learn a new utterance that can affect creatures you encounter.

The words you can learn also increase in difficulty (and therefore increase in power) as you gain levels, allowing access to new, more powerful utterances.

ELF TRUENAMER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather armor (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Spear (1d8, crit x3, 6 lb., Medium, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., Medium, piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill Penalty	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check
Concentration	4	Con	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (nature)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (local)	4	Int	—
Truespeak	4	Int	—
Use Magic Device	4	Cha	—

Feat: Skill Focus (Truespeak).

Utterance: Utterance of minor health Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel, six torches, 10 bolts.

Gold: 1d8 gp.

TRUENAMERS IN THE WORLD

"If it's magic, it's awfully subtle magic."

I was watching for the handwaving and chanting. Instead, he just said something—and I couldn't move!
—Captain Von Hakri of the city guard

Truenamers are a good addition to a magic-rich campaign because they extend the boundaries of magic. What they do is unquestionably magical, but it doesn't involve spells, components, schools, or any of the other accoutrements normally associated with spellcasters.

DAILY LIFE

Most truenamers are content to catalog new truenames, practice the truenames they already know, and engage in other linguistic and historical studies.

Adventuring truenamers are an exception, however.

They use truenames to bring their vision of the way the world should be that much closer to reality.

Some are eager to find the truenames of monsters, places, and items that no sentient eyes have ever seen before—even if they have a hand in creating such things in the first place.

Truenamers are curious about the world around them, so a high-level truenamer can make a good patron for lower-level PCs.

Such truenamers often hire adventurers to gather rare items for study or to recover lost treasure troves of truenamer lore.

NOTABLES

Perhaps the most famous truenamer is Khurufu the Eloquent, a human truenamer who lived centuries ago and founded several truenamer colleges that exist to this day. Khurufu lived to be more than 130 years old, although his mental faculties had diminished significantly from their peak.

He didn't die so much as utter the truename for "ascend" and disappear.

Some say that for centuries, Khurufu the Eloquent has been wandering the caves of Pandemonium, where the screaming wind drowns out his voice and makes rational thought impossible.

ORGANIZATIONS

Several organizations of interest to truenamers exist, including the Collectors of the Lexicon and the Kingmakers.

They are described beginning on page 270.

NPC REACTIONS

Most people have an indifferent attitude toward truenamers, because truename magic is regarded as just another esoteric discipline.

The average peasant doesn't distinguish between truenamers and wizards—they're all scholars who make magic, aren't they?

Truenamers likewise have few enemies.

Logokron devils (described on page 265) regard them as rivals and have starting attitudes of unfriendly.

TRUENAMER LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana) can research truenamers to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: Truenamers speak their magic aloud using long strings of what sounds like gibberish.

DC 15: Truenamers claim to tap into the power of a fundamental language of the universe, and if they know something's truename, they can affect it with their magic.

DC 20: Truenamers gradually learn more truenames and more ways to use each truename they know.

They also can learn the personal truename of an individual creature, which gives them lots of power over that creature.

TRUENAMERS IN THE GAME

Truenamers rely on truename magic, obviously.

But as long as truename magic is compatible with your ongoing campaign, you can introduce it gradually.

The most important way to keep the player of a truenamer happy is to let that truenamer use his most important utterances—especially those recently acquired.

Mostly, though, truenamers are versatile enough to have fun in nearly any sort of encounter.

You can pay attention to the types of utterances a truenamer takes to get a clue as to the types of encounters the player would enjoy most.

ADAPTATION

The underlying structure of the truenamer class is modular:

He can use utterances and recitation feats.

That leaves plenty of room to replace those elements described in this chapter with utterances and recitation feats invented by the truenamer or DM.

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Utterances Known
						Lexicon of the Evolving Mind	Lexicon of the Crafted Tool	Lexicon of the Perfected Map
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Known personal truename	1	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Knowledge focus	2	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	—	3	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	—	4	1	—
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	—	5	1	—
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Truename Research	6	1	—
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Knowledge focus	7	2	—
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6	Bonus recitation feat	8	2	1
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6	See the named 1/day	9	2	1
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7	Knowledge focus	10	2	1
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7	—	11	3	1
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	—	12	3	2
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	Sending	13	3	2
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9	Knowledge focus	14	3	2
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9	Bonus recitation feat	15	4	2
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	—	16	4	3
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	Speak unto the masses	17	4	3
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11	—	18	4	3
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	19	5	3
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Say my name and I am there	20	5	4

UNEARTHED ARCANA (3.5)

EXPERT

The expert can be a jack-of-all-trades or a master of a limited area of expertise.

Based on his selection of skills and feats, he can focus on diplomatic matters, stealth, combat, wilderness survival, thievery, or any of a number of critical tasks.

At first glance, the expert appears similar to the rogue; it shares that class's combat ability, wide range of class skills, and tendency toward simple weapons and light armor.

Unlike a rogue, however, the expert has no special class features, but instead defines his specialty by his selection of bonus feats.

Hit Die: d6.

Base Save Bonuses: Two good saves and one poor save.

Class Skills: Choose any twelve skills as class skills, plus Craft and Profession.

Skill Points: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number at 1st level).

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: All simple weapons, one martial weapon; light armor.

Bonus Feats: The expert gets one bonus feat at 1st level, another at 2nd level, one at 4th level, and another one at every fourth class level thereafter (8th, 12th, and so on).

TABLE 2-7: THE EXPERT

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Good Saves	Poor Save	Special
1st	+0	+2	+0	Bonus feat
2nd	+1	+3	+0	Bonus feat
3rd	+2	+3	+1	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	Bonus feat
5th	+3	+4	+1	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	—
7th	+5	+5	+2	—
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	Bonus feat
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	—
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	—
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	—
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	Bonus feat
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	—
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	—
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	Bonus feat
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	—
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	—
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	—
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	Bonus feat

SPELLCASTER

Whether arcane or divine, the spellcaster has an array of magical effects at her beck and call.

Depending on her choice of spells, she can be a healer or an enchanter, a necromancer or a trickster.

The spellcaster most closely resembles the sorcerer, though she has fewer spells per day than that class.

In exchange, she gains a number of bonus feats that she can use to improve her magical aptitude, increase her survivability, heighten her combat skills, or achieve any of a wide variety of other goals.

Hit Die: d4.

Base Save Bonuses: One good save and two poor saves.

Class Skills: Choose any four skills as class skills, plus Craft, Knowledge (all), and Profession.

Skill Points: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number at 1st level).

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: One simple weapon; no armor.

Bonus Feats: The spellcaster gets one bonus feat at 1st level, one at 5th level, and another one at every fifth class level thereafter (10th, 15th, and so on).

Spellcasting: A spellcaster learns and casts spells as a sorcerer.

She may select her spells known from the cleric, druid, and sorcerer/wizard spell lists.

A spellcaster must choose at 1st level whether to be an arcane spellcaster or a divine spellcaster.

This choice has no impact on the spells that she may learn, but affects what kinds of scrolls she can use and which ability score controls her spellcasting.

An arcane spellcaster may designate either Intelligence or Charisma as the ability score that determines the highest-level spell she can learn or cast, and the Difficulty Class of her spell's saving throws.

A divine spellcaster must use Wisdom to determine the highest-level spell she can learn or cast, and the DC of her spell's saving throws.

TABLE 2-9: SPELLCASTER SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	5	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	6	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	7	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	7	5	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	8	5	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
9th	8	5	4	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
10th	9	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
11th	9	5	5	4	3	2	—	—	—	—
12th	9	5	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
13th	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	—	—	—
14th	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
15th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	—	—
16th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
17th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	—
18th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	1
19th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	2
20th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	3

Multiclassing: A character can multiclass between arcane spellcaster and divine spellcaster.

TABLE 2-8: THE SPELLCASTER

Level	Base			Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Good Save	Poor Saves		0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+0	Bonus feat	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0		5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+3	+1		5	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+4	+1		6	5	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+4	+1	Bonus feat	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+5	+2		6	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+5	+2		6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+6	+2		6	6	5	4	2	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+6	+3		6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+7	+3	Bonus feat	6	6	6	5	4	2	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+7	+3		6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+8	+4		6	6	6	6	5	4	2	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+8	+4		6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+9	+4		6	6	6	6	6	5	4	2	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+9	+5	Bonus feat	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+10	+5		6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	2	—
17th	+8/+3	+10	+5		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—
18th	+9/+4	+11	+6		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	2
19th	+9/+4	+11	+6		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3
20th	+10/+5	+12	+6	Bonus feat	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5

WARRIOR

The warrior is the basic combatant of the trio of generic classes.

He has the fighter's hit points, combat prowess, bonus feats, and weapon selection.

Unlike the fighter, the warrior can choose a different array of class skills, can designate any one of his saves as a good save, and can select his bonus feats from the entire list of feats available.

Also, if he wants to be proficient in heavy armor, he must take the Armor Proficiency (heavy) feat.

Hit Die: d10.

Base Save Bonuses: One good save and two poor saves.

Class Skills: Choose any six skills as class skills, plus Craft.

Skill Points: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number at 1st level).

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: All simple and martial weapons; light and medium armor; shields (but not tower shields).

Bonus Feats: A warrior gets one bonus feat at 1st level, one at 2nd level, and another one at every second class level (4th, 6th, and so on).

TABLE 2-10: THE WARRIOR

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Good Save	Poor Saves	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	Bonus feat
2nd	+2	+3	+0	Bonus feat
3rd	+3	+3	+1	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	Bonus feat
5th	+5	+4	+1	—
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	Bonus feat
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	—
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	Bonus feat
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	—
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	Bonus feat
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	—
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	Bonus feat
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	—
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	Bonus feat
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	—
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	Bonus feat
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	—
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	Bonus feat
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	—
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	Bonus feat

BLOODLINES

UNEARTHED ARCANA (3.5)

CELESTIAL

A character with a celestial bloodline can trace her heritage to beings of the Upper Planes, much like an aasimar or celestial creature.

Most angels, archons, guardinals, and eladrins have the ability to interbreed with humanoids, and examples of celestial creatures descending from the heavens to live with mortals often appear in myth and legend.

Descendants of such relationships often have silver or golden hair, a proud bearing, or a piercing stare.

CELESTIAL BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Sense Motive checks
8th	Alertness
12th	Wisdom +1
16th	Protection from evil 1/day (Sp)
20th	Celestial affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
2nd	+2 on Sense Motive checks	Alertness
3rd	—	Wisdom +1
4th	Alertness	Protection from evil 1/day (Sp)
5th	—	Celestial affinity +2 ¹
6th	Wisdom +1	Smite evil 1/day (Su) ²
7th	—	+2 on Concentration checks
8th	Protection from evil 1/day (Sp)	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)
9th	—	Charisma +1
10th	Celestial affinity +2 ¹	+2 on saves against poison (Ex)
11th	—	Celestial affinity +4 ¹
12th	Smite evil 1/day (Su) ²	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
13th	—	+2 on Listen checks
14th	+2 on Concentration checks	Improved Initiative
15th	—	Constitution +1
16th	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
17th	—	Celestial affinity +6 ¹
18th	Charisma +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Spot checks
20th	+2 on saves against poison (Ex)	Damage reduction 5/evil

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with celestials.

2 You can smite an evil creature with a melee attack as a paladin of your character level once per day.

DEMON

A character with a demon bloodline has one or more ancestors of demonic origin.

The most common source of such a bloodline is a succubus, but any demon capable of taking humanoid form might be responsible for the character's unusual traits.

Characters with a demon bloodline may bear some minor characteristic reminiscent of such an ancestor: sinister glowing eyes, a faint smell of brimstone, or a love of brutality.

DEMON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Move Silently checks
8th	Power Attack
12th	Strength +1
16th	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)
20th	Demon affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Move Silently checks
2nd	+2 on Move Silently checks	Power Attack
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Power Attack	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)
5th	—	Demon affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	Smite good 1/day (Su) ²
7th	—	+2 on Hide checks
8th	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
9th	—	Constitution +1
10th	Demon affinity +2 ¹	+2 on saves against poison (Ex)
11th	—	Demon affinity +4 ¹
12th	Smite good 1/day (Su) ²	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
13th	—	+2 on Intimidate checks
14th	+2 on Hide checks	Cleave
15th	—	Charisma +1
16th	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
17th	—	Demon affinity +6 ¹
18th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Spot checks
20th	+2 on saves against poison (Ex)	Damage reduction 5/good

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with demons.

2 You can smite a good creature with a melee attack as a blackguard of your character level once per day.

DEVIL

For a character with a devil bloodline, an erinyes is often the source.

However, other devils with the ability to use a polymorph effect, such as gelugons or pit fiends, have been known to consort with mortals.

A character with this bloodline may also possess tiny horns or unusually sharp teeth.

DEVIL BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Bluff checks
8th	Dodge
12th	Charisma +1
16th	Darkness 1/day (Sp)
20th	Devil affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Bluff checks
2nd	+2 on Bluff checks	Dodge
3rd	—	Charisma +1
4th	Dodge	Darkness 1/day (Sp)
5th	—	Devil affinity +2 ¹
6th	Charisma +1	Smite good 1/day (Su) ²
7th	—	+2 on Diplomacy checks
8th	Darkness 1/day (Sp)	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
9th	—	Constitution +1
10th	Devil affinity +2 ¹	+2 on saves against poison (Ex)
11th	—	Devil affinity +4 ¹
12th	Smite good 1/day (Su) ²	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
13th	—	+2 on Search checks
14th	+2 on Diplomacy checks	Alertness
15th	—	Intelligence +1
16th	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
17th	—	Devil affinity +6 ¹
18th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Listen checks
20th	+2 on saves against poison (Ex)	Damage reduction 5/good

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with devils.

² You can smite a good creature with a melee attack as a backguard of your character level once per day.

DOPPELGANGER

The ultimate humanoid shapechanger, a doppelganger can be anyone, anywhere, at any time.

It's easy to imagine even a single doppelganger being responsible for a plethora of offspring tainted with shapechanging powers.

DOPPELGANGER BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Disguise checks
8th	Alter self 1/day (Sp)
12th	Charisma +1
16th	Detect thoughts 1/day (Sp)
20th	Doppelganger affinity +2 ¹

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with doppelgangers.

DRAGON, BLACK

The sinister black dragon occasionally makes a close "alliance" with a like-minded humanoid, and that can lead to a black dragon bloodline.

A character with this bloodline shares his ancestor's cunning and malevolence, and may have a sunken, almost skeletal appearance to his face.

BLACK DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Swim checks
4th	+2 on Swim checks	Alertness
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Alertness	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
10th	—	Black dragon affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Hide checks
16th	Acid resistance 5 (Ex)	Resistance to acid 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Black dragon affinity +2 ¹	Water breathing (Ex) ²

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with black dragons.

² You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use special abilities while submerged.

DRAGON, BLUE

In times long past, blue dragons often interacted with the kings and queens of great desert empires.

The bloodlines created by such intermingling were treated as a mark of royalty, though such empires have long since vanished.

An individual bearing a blue dragon bloodline tends to be territorial and may smell faintly of ozone.

BLUE DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Bluff checks
4th	+2 on Bluff checks	Alertness
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Alertness	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)
10th	—	Blue dragon affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
16th	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)	Resistance to electricity 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Blue dragon affinity +2 ¹	Create/destroy water 1/day (Sp)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with blue dragons.

DRAGON, BRASS

Bards tell a popular tale of a lost desert traveler encountering a friendly woman who nurses him back to health before putting him on the path home.

In the tale, this helpful individual turns out to be a powerful brass dragon who merely wants someone to talk to, and who, many months later, gives birth to a half-dragon child.

The descendants of this chance encounter are often talkative and friendly.

BRASS DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Gather Information checks
4th	+2 on Gather Information checks	Alertness
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Alertness	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
10th	—	Brass dragon affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Bluff checks
16th	Fire resistance 5 (Ex)	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Brass dragon affinity +2 ¹	Speak with animals 1/day (Sp)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with brass dragons.

DRAGON, BRONZE

With its innate ability to take on humanoid form, coupled with a natural inquisitiveness, it is common for the bronze dragon to give rise to lines of creatures carrying its bloodline.

These descendants tend to share the bronze dragon's curiosity as well as its love for the water.

BRONZE DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Swim checks
4th	+2 on Swim checks	Alertness
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Alertness	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)
10th	—	Bronze dragon affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
16th	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)	Resistance to electricity 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Bronze dragon affinity +2 ¹	Water breathing (Ex) ²

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with bronze dragons.

² You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use special abilities while submerged.

DRAGON, COPPER

When the playful copper dragon meets a like-minded creature, a long-term friendship is often struck. The result of such a relationship can give rise to a long line of dragon-blooded individuals.

Such characters often share the copper dragon's incorrigible nature, but may also be a bit miserly.

COPPER DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Perform checks
4th	+2 on Perform checks	Alertness
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Alertness	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
10th	—	Copper dragon affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Bluff checks
16th	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)	Resistance to acid 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Copper dragon affinity +2 ¹	Spider climb 1/day (Sp)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with copper dragons.

DRAGON, GOLD

Gold dragons occasionally take more than a passing interest in mortals.

Thanks to their ability to polymorph, some leave a lasting reminder of their presence in the form of a half-dragon child.

Even many generations later, this draconic blood can manifest in the form of bloodline traits.

Descendants of a gold dragon tend to get along well with other good-aligned creatures, displaying uncommon grace and courtesy.

GOLD DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
4th	+2 on Sense Motive checks
8th	Alertness
12th	Strength +1
16th	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
20th	Gold dragon affinity +2 ¹

Character

Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
2nd	+2 on Sense Motive checks	Alertness
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Alertness	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
5th	—	Gold dragon affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
7th	—	+2 on Heal checks
8th	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)
9th	—	Constitution +1
10th	Gold dragon affinity +2 ¹	Water breathing (Ex) ²
11th	—	Gold dragon affinity +4 ¹
12th	+1 to natural armor	+1 to natural armor
13th	—	+2 on Swim checks
14th	+2 on Heal checks	Power Attack
15th	—	Intelligence +1
16th	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)	Breath weapon (Ex) ³
17th	—	Gold dragon affinity +6 ¹
18th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Jump checks
20th	Water breathing (Ex) ²	Immunity to fire (Ex)

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with gold dragons.

2 You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use special abilities while submerged.

3 30-ft. cone of fire; 6d8 damage; Reflex half (DC 10 + one-half HD + Con modifier).

DRAGON, GREEN

In certain rare instances, green dragons have been known to take control of (rather than simply devour) small enclaves of forest-dwelling humanoids.

Some of those humanoids later give birth to half-dragon offspring, creating bloodlines that last centuries.

Descendants of a green dragon are often voracious and belligerent, picking fights with little or no provocation.

GREEN DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITSCharacter

Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Move Silently checks
4th	+2 on Move Silently checks	Alertness
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Alertness	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
10th	—	Green dragon affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Bluff checks
16th	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)	Resistance to acid 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Green dragon affinity +2 ¹	Water breathing (Ex) ²

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with green dragons.

2 You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use special abilities while submerged.

DRAGON, RED

Though most evil dragons don't enjoy friendly relationships with humanoids, red dragons do occasionally spawn bloodlines among humanoids.

Such descendants exhibit extraordinary powers beyond those of their people.

A character with a red dragon bloodline is usually covetous and vain, and may smell faintly of smoke.

RED DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITSCharacter

Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Bluff checks
8th	Alertness
12th	Strength +1
16th	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
20th	Red dragon affinity +2 ¹

Character

Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Bluff checks
2nd	+2 on Bluff checks	Alertness
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Alertness	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
5th	—	Red dragon affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
7th	—	+2 on Intimidate checks
8th	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)
9th	—	Constitution +1
10th	Red dragon affinity +2 ¹	Locate object 1/day (Sp)
11th	—	Red dragon affinity +4 ¹
12th	+1 to natural armor	+1 to natural armor
13th	—	+2 on Appraise checks
14th	+2 on Intimidate checks	Power Attack
15th	—	Charisma +1
16th	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)	Breath weapon (Ex) ²
17th	—	Red dragon affinity +6 ¹
18th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Jump checks
20th	Locate object 1/day (Sp)	Immunity to fire (Ex)

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with red dragons.

2 30-ft. cone of fire; 6d8 damage; Reflex half (DC 10 + one-half HD + Con modifier).

DRAGON, SILVER

Silver dragons are perhaps most likely of all dragons to have taken humanoid companions, and thus this is the most common dragon bloodline.

Characters of the silver dragon bloodline tend to be regal and statuesque.

SILVER DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Sense Motive checks
8th	Alertness
12th	Strength +1
16th	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
20th	Silver dragon affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
2nd	+2 on Sense Motive checks	Alertness
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Alertness	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
5th	—	Silver dragon affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
7th	—	+2 on Perform checks
8th	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)	Resistance to cold 10 (Ex)
9th	—	Constitution +1
10th	Silver dragon affinity +2 ¹	Alter self 1/day (Sp)
11th	—	Silver dragon affinity +4 ¹
12th	+1 to natural armor	+1 to natural armor
13th	—	+2 on Bluff checks
14th	+2 on Perform checks	Power Attack
15th	—	Charisma +1
16th	Resistance to cold 10 (Ex)	Breath weapon (Ex) ²
17th	—	Silver dragon affinity +6 ¹
18th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Jump checks
20th	Alter self 1/day (Sp)	Immunity to cold (Ex)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with silver dragons.

² 30-ft. cone of cold; 6d8 damage; Reflex half (DC 10 + one-half HD + Con modifier).

DRAGON, WHITE

Some arctic tribes have managed to bargain with nearby white dragons, trading food and occasional sacrifices for protection from their enemies.

These alliances can result in dragon-blooded descendants, who tend to mimic the single-minded ferocity of their forebears.

WHITE DRAGON BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Hide checks
4th	+2 on Hide checks	Alertness
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Alertness	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
10th	—	White dragon affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Swim checks
16th	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)	Resistance to cold 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	White dragon affinity +2 ¹	Icewalking 1/day (Ex) ²

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with white dragons.

² As spider climb, but the surface must be icy.

ELEMENTAL, AIR

Similar to but less specific than a djinni bloodline (see below), the air elemental bloodline derives its power from a connection to the Elemental Plane of Air.

Characters with air elemental bloodlines tend to shift between emotions with surprising quickness, and may have hair or skin tinged with light blue.

AIR ELEMENTAL BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Balance checks
4th	+2 on Balance checks	Improved Initiative
6th	—	Dexterity +1
8th	Improved Initiative	Gust of wind 1/day (Sp)
10th	—	Air elemental affinity +2 ¹
12th	Dexterity +1	Weapon Finesse
14th	—	+2 on Spot checks
16th	Gust of wind 1/day (Sp)	Air mastery (Ex) ²
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Air elemental affinity +2 ¹	Flyby Attack

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with air elementals.

² As the air elemental special ability.

ELEMENTAL, EARTH

Creatures that bear a bloodline of elemental earth feel a sense of gravity and stability that ties them to the stones of the world.

They have a palpable sense of inertia about them, which sometimes manifests as a slowness to take action.

EARTH ELEMENTAL BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Climb checks
4th	+2 on Climb checks	Power Attack
6th	—	Strength +1

8th	Power Attack	Meld into stone 1/day (Sp)
10th	—	Earth elemental affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Listen checks
16th	Meld into stone 1/day (Sp)	Earth mastery (Ex) ²
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Earth elemental affinity +2 ¹	Improved Sunder

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with earth elementals.

2 As the earth elemental special ability.

ELEMENTAL, FIRE

Those who bear elemental fire within their veins are often high-strung and quick-tempered.

Their eyes often seem to glow like embers, and their skin may take on a reddish hue.

FIRE ELEMENTAL BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Tumble checks
4th	+2 on Tumble checks	Dodge
6th	—	Dexterity +1
8th	Dodge	Pyrotechnics 1/day (Sp)
10th	—	Fire elemental affinity +2 ¹
12th	Dexterity +1	Mobility
14th	—	+2 on Listen checks
16th	Pyrotechnics 1/day (Sp)	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Fire elemental affinity +2 ¹	Spring Attack

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with fire elementals.

ELEMENTAL, WATER

The bloodline of elemental water is most common among the water-breathing races, but it also manifests among sailors and fishermen, and even the occasional character with no link whatsoever to oceans, seas, or large lakes.

Such characters are often independent-minded, and generally don't live in any one place for very long.

WATER ELEMENTAL BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Swim checks
4th	+2 on Swim checks	Power Attack
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Power Attack	Fog cloud 1/day (Sp)
10th	—	Water elemental affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Spot checks
16th	Fog cloud 1/day (Sp)	Swim 30 ft. ²
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Water elemental affinity +2 ¹	Improved Bull Rush

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with water elementals.

2 Or +30 ft. to existing swim speed.

FEY

Every culture tells stories of fey creatures taking mortal lovers, so it's no surprise that individuals display fey bloodlines from time to time.

Regardless of whether it descended from a dryad, nymph, satyr, or other kind of fey, a creature with a fey bloodline often has a personality that is both aloof and carefree.

FEY BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Major
4th	+2 on Hide checks
8th	Iron Will
12th	Charisma +1
16th	Charm person 1/day (Sp)
20th	Fey affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Hide checks
2nd	+2 on Hide checks	Iron Will
3rd	—	Charisma +1
4th	Iron Will	Charm person 1/day (Sp)
5th	—	Fey affinity +2 ¹
6th	Charisma +1	Low-light vision
7th	—	+2 on Move Silently checks
8th	Charm person 1/day (Sp)	Alertness
9th	—	Dexterity +1
10th	Fey affinity +2 ¹	Speak with animals 1/day (Sp)
11th	—	Fey affinity +4 ¹
12th	Low-light vision	Invisibility 1/day (Sp)
13th	—	+2 on Perform checks
14th	+2 on Move Silently checks	Damage reduction 1/cold iron
15th	—	Wisdom +1
16th	Alertness	Deep slumber 1/day (Sp)
17th	—	Fey affinity +6 ¹
18th	Dexterity +1	Speak with plants 1/day (Sp)
19th	—	+2 on Bluff checks
20th	Speak with animals 1/day (Sp)	Damage reduction 5/cold iron

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with fey.

GENIE, DJINNI

Though few sages put much stock in myths that humanoids and genies share a common ancestor, there is no denying that the races are very similar in form.

Characters with a djinni bloodline are often haughty but display great guile.

DJINNI BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Concentration checks
8th	Improved Initiative
12th	Dexterity +1
16th	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
20th	Djinni affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Concentration checks
2nd	+2 on Concentration checks	Improved Initiative
3rd	—	Dexterity +1
4th	Improved Initiative	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)
5th	—	Djinni affinity +2 ¹
6th	Dexterity +1	+1 to natural armor
7th	—	+2 on Knowledge (the planes) checks
8th	Resistance to acid 5 (Ex)	Dodge
9th	—	Wisdom +1
10th	Djinni affinity +2 ¹	Invisibility 1/day (Sp)
11th	—	Djinni affinity +4 ¹
12th	+1 to natural armor	Resistance to acid 10 (Ex)
13th	—	+2 on Appraise checks
14th	+2 on Knowledge (the planes) checks	Create food and water 1/day (Sp)
15th	—	Strength +1
16th	Dodge	Gaseous form 1/week (Sp)
17th	—	Djinni affinity +6 ¹
18th	Wisdom +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
20th	Invisibility 1/day (Sp)	Immunity to acid (Ex)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with djinn.

GENIE, EFREETI

Characters with the bloodline of the efreet are most likely descended from slaves of that terrible and powerful race. They typically have reddish skin and a cruel disposition, and may display tiny horns or bronze-colored eyes.

EFREETI BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Bluff checks
8th	Improved Initiative
12th	Strength +1
16th	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
20th	Efreeti affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Bluff checks
2nd	+2 on Bluff checks	Improved Initiative
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Improved Initiative	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
5th	—	Efreeti affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
7th	—	+2 on Knowledge (the planes) checks
8th	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)	Dodge
9th	—	Charisma +1
10th	Efreeti affinity +2 ¹	Produce flame 1/day (Sp)
11th	—	Efreeti affinity +4 ¹
12th	+1 to natural armor	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)
13th	—	+2 on Concentration checks
14th	+2 on Knowledge (the planes) checks	Scorching ray 1/day (Sp)
15th	—	Dexterity +1
16th	Dodge	Wall of fire 1/week (Sp)
17th	—	Efreeti affinity +6 ¹
18th	Charisma +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Intimidate checks
20th	Produce flame 1/day (Sp)	Immunity to fire (Ex)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with efreet.

GENIE, JANNI

As natural wanderers of the Material Plane, the only thing surprising about janni bloodlines may be that there aren't more of them.

A creature who bears the janni bloodline tends to be a couple inches taller than normal for his race, standing with a proud and regal posture.

He may also share the janni's nomadic behavior.

JANNI BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Appraise checks
8th	Improved Initiative
12th	Wisdom +1
16th	Invisibility 1/day (Sp)
20th	Janni affinity +2 ¹

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with jann.

GIANT

In ages past, giants mingled more freely with smaller humanoids.

Today, the evidence of such relationships is rare at best. Characters with bloodlines of the lesser evil giants (hill, frost, and fire) may be the result of voluntary or involuntary breeding with the greatfolk.

Bloodlines of stone, cloud, or storm giants, on the other hand, are more likely the results of long-ago alliances between those races and the ancient nobility of the world.

In any event, characters bearing giant bloodlines tend to be massive for their race, and often share characteristics (skin and hair color, attitudes, and such) with their ancestor. An intermediate bloodline can only be taken for cloud giants, fire giants, frost giants, stone giants, and storm giants.

A major bloodline can only be taken for storm giants.

CLOUD GIANT BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Climb checks
4th	+2 on Climb checks	Power Attack
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Power Attack	+1 to natural armor
10th	—	Cloud giant affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	Obscuring mist 1/day (Sp)
14th	—	+2 on Jump checks
16th	+1 to natural armor	Improved Bull Rush
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Cloud giant affinity +2 ¹	Scent (Ex)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with cloud giants.

FIRE GIANT BLOODLINE TRAITS

Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Climb checks
4th	+2 on Climb checks	Power Attack
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Power Attack	+1 to natural armor
10th	—	Fire giant affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	Resistance to fire 5 (Ex)
14th	—	+2 on Jump checks
16th	+1 to natural armor	Cleave
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Fire giant affinity +2 ¹	Resistance to fire 10 (Ex)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with fire giants.

FROST GIANT BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Climb checks
4th	+2 on Climb checks	Power Attack
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Power Attack	+1 to natural armor
10th	—	Frost giant affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
14th	—	+2 on Jump checks
16th	+1 to natural armor	Improved Sunder
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Frost giant affinity +2 ¹	Resistance to cold 10 (Ex)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with frost giants.

HILL GIANT BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Climb checks
8th	Power Attack
12th	Strength +1
16th	+1 to natural armor
20th	Hill giant affinity +2 ¹

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with hill giants.

STONE GIANT BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Climb checks
4th	+2 on Climb checks	Point Blank Shot
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Point Blank Shot	+1 to natural armor
10th	—	Stone giant affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	Stone shape 1/week (Sp)
14th	—	+2 on Jump checks
16th	+1 to natural armor	Combat Reflexes
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Stone giant affinity +2 ¹	+1 to natural armor

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with stone giants.

STORM GIANT BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Climb checks
8th	Power Attack
12th	Strength +1
16th	+1 to natural armor
20th	Storm giant affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Climb checks
2nd	+2 on Climb checks	Power Attack
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Power Attack	+1 to natural armor
5th	—	Storm giant affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)
7th	—	+2 on Jump checks
8th	+1 to natural armor	Cleave
9th	—	Constitution +1
10th	Storm giant affinity +2 ¹	Water breathing (Ex) ²
11th	—	Storm giant affinity +4 ¹
12th	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)	Resistance to electricity 10 (Ex)
13th	—	+2 on Swim checks
14th	+2 on Jump checks	Call lightning 1/day (Sp)
15th	—	Wisdom +1
16th	Cleave	Freedom of movement 1/day (Sp)
17th	—	Storm giant affinity +6 ¹
18th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Concentration checks
20th	Water breathing (Ex) ²	Immunity to electricity (Ex)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with storm giants.
² You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use special abilities while submerged.

GITHYANKI/GITZERAI

After a raid, a githyanki or githzerai war party may return home with prisoners or rescued slaves.

In some rare instances—particularly when children are involved—they take pity on these individuals and raise them as their own.

Upon reaching adulthood, such a gith-raised character may take a mate among his or her rescuers, resulting in half-blooded children who then pass on the gith traits to their offspring.

These descendants share the githyanki warlike nature or the githzerai xenophobia, and tend to be hard-hearted or even cruel.

GITHYANKI BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Search checks
8th	Iron Will
12th	Constitution +1
16th	Spell resistance 2 + HD
20th	Githyanki affinity +2 ¹

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with githyanki.

GITHZERAI BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Concentration checks
8th	Iron Will
12th	Dexterity +1
16th	Spell resistance 2 + HD
20th	Githzerai affinity +2 ¹

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with githzerai.

HAG

Many hags have the ability to change their appearance, making it possible for them to interact with creatures of other races.

Though horrible to contemplate, some use this ability to lure in mates, in the hopes that the offspring can help them further their evil plots.

The descendants of a hag tend to be strong but ugly, and often share their ancestor's love of schemes.

HAG BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Hide checks
8th	Alertness
12th	Strength +1
16th	+1 to natural armor
20th	Hag affinity +2 ¹

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with hags.

LYCANTHROPE

When he isn't murdering innocent townsfolk, the typical lycanthropic character may enjoy an almost entirely normal social life—even having a family.

While the offspring of an afflicted lycanthrope might not share the curse itself, the bloodline might still pass its characteristics down the generations, allowing later descendants to display some of the lycanthrope's attributes. Regardless of the original animal stock, the carriers of lycanthropic bloodlines tend to share similar characteristics, including a feral stare and an overabundance of body hair.

LYCANTHROPE BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Search checks
8th	Power Attack or Dodge ¹
12th	Constitution +1
16th	Scent (Ex)
20th	Lycanthrope affinity +2 ²

¹ If the base animal's Strength is higher than its Dexterity, it gains Power Attack. Otherwise, it gains Dodge.
² You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with lycanthropes.

MINOTAUR

Horrid tales describe the fate of innocents carried away from their homes by marauding minotaurs—and the rare individual displaying a minotaur bloodline proves the truth of such stories.

These characters have a savage look, with thick hair and sometimes even tiny stubs of horns.

MINOTAUR BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Search checks
8th	Alertness
12th	Strength +1
16th	+1 to natural armor
20th	Minotaur affinity +2 ¹

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with minotaurs.

OGRE

A character with ogre blood is most likely the result of raids on humanoid settlements, but may also derive from the more intelligent and magically gifted race of ogre mages (in fact, all intermediate ogre bloodlines are actually ogre mage bloodlines).

These characters may appear clumsy and brutish, but they can possess a high degree of cunning.

OGRE BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Climb checks
4th	+2 on Climb checks	Power Attack
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Power Attack	+1 to natural armor
10th	—	Ogre affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	Darkness 1/day (Sp)
14th	—	+2 on Concentration checks
16th	+1 to natural armor	Invisibility 1/day (Sp)
18th	—	Charisma +1
20th	Ogre affinity +2 ¹	Fly 1/day (Sp)

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with ogres.

SLAAD

In perhaps one in a million cases, a red slaad's egg implant or a blue's slaad fever has an unexpected result: A creature physically similar to the afflicted humanoid, rather than a true slaad.

These creatures are often fearsome warriors, using their strength and ferocity to great advantage.

SLAAD BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character

Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Jump checks
4th	+2 on Jump checks	Power Attack
6th	—	Strength +1
8th	Power Attack	Shatter 1/day (Sp)
10th	—	Slaad affinity +2 ¹
12th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Climb checks
16th	Shatter 1/day (Sp)	Cleave
18th	—	Constitution +1
20th	Slaad affinity +2 ¹	Resistance to energy 5 (Ex) ²

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with slaadi.

2 Roll 1d10 to determine type of energy: 1–2 acid; 3–4 cold; 5–6 electricity; 7–8 fire; 9–10 sonic.

TITAN

Whether as allies, tyrants, or objects of reverence, titans have on occasion interacted actively with lesser beings.

In rare cases, these interactions have given rise to scions of great power—power that hides within rare mortals to this very day.

Creatures with a titan's bloodline tend to have wild emotional swings, and are generally large and powerful.

TITAN BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character

Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Jump checks
8th	Power Attack
12th	Strength +1
16th	Levitate 1/day (Sp)
20th	Titan affinity +2 ¹

Character

Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Jump checks
2nd	+2 on Jump checks	Power Attack
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Power Attack	Levitate 1/day (Sp)
5th	—	Titan affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
7th	—	+2 on Concentration checks
8th	Levitate 1/day (Sp)	Improved Sunder
9th	—	Constitution +1
10th	Titan affinity +2 ¹	Spell resistance 2 + HD
11th	—	Titan affinity +4 ¹
12th	+1 to natural armor	Use oversized weapon (Ex) ²
13th	—	+2 on Knowledge (any one) checks
14th	+2 on Concentration checks	Daylight or deeper darkness 1/day (Sp) ³
15th	—	Intelligence +1
16th	Improved Sunder	Remove curse or bestow curse 1/day (Sp) ³
17th	—	Titan affinity +6 ¹
18th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
20th	Spell resistance 2 + HD	Damage reduction 5/lawful

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with titans.

2 As the titan special ability.

3 If you are good, you gain daylight at 14th level and remove curse at 16th; if evil, deeper darkness and bestow curse; if neutral, 50% chance of either.

TROLL

Though the origin of such a bloodline is almost too hideous to contemplate, there are nonetheless a few creatures who display a certain trollish fortitude.

Such characters tend to bear many scars from old wounds, and are often ferocious in attitude.

TROLL BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character

Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Spot checks
4th	+2 on Spot checks	Great Fortitude
6th	—	Constitution +1
8th	Great Fortitude	Double heal rate (Ex) ²
10th	—	Troll affinity +2 ¹
12th	Constitution +1	+1 to natural armor
14th	—	+2 on Listen checks
16th	Double heal rate (Ex) ²	Power Attack
18th	—	Strength +1
20th	Troll affinity +2 ¹	Scent (Ex)

1 You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with trolls.

2 You heal naturally at double normal rates.

VAMPIRE

The vampire's powers of persuasion have led more than one weak-willed humanoid into its deadly clutch of intimacy.

Though it seems impossible that any child could result from such a union, tales of humanoids possessing some of the vampire's physical and mental prowess abound. These pale, haunted creatures are inevitably cloaked in mystery and deception, for even good-aligned descendants of vampires fear retribution from those mistaking them for the undead.

VAMPIRE BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor
4th	+2 on Climb checks
8th	Stealthy
12th	Strength +1
16th	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
20th	Vampire affinity +2 ¹

Character
Level	Intermediate	Major
1st	—	+2 on Climb checks
2nd	+2 on Climb checks	Stealthy
3rd	—	Strength +1
4th	Stealthy	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)
5th	—	Vampire affinity +2 ¹
6th	Strength +1	+1 to natural armor
7th	—	+2 on Search checks
8th	Resistance to cold 5 (Ex)	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)
9th	—	Charisma +1
10th	Vampire affinity +2 ¹	Lightning Reflexes
11th	—	Vampire affinity +4 ¹
12th	+1 to natural armor	Alertness
13th	—	+2 on Sense Motive checks
14th	+2 on Search checks	Improved Initiative
15th	—	Dexterity +1
16th	Resistance to electricity 5 (Ex)	Suggestion 1/day (Sp)
17th	—	Vampire affinity +6 ¹
18th	Charisma +1	+1 to natural armor
19th	—	+2 on Bluff checks
20th	Lightning Reflexes	Damage reduction 5/silver

¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with vampires.

YUAN-TI BLOODLINE TRAITS

Character
Level	Minor	Intermediate
2nd	—	+2 on Hide checks
4th	+2 on Hide checks	Alertness
6th	—	Charisma +1
8th	Alertness	Detect poison 1/day (Sp)
10th	—	Yuan-ti affinity +2 ¹
12th	Charisma +1	Blind-Fight
14th	—	+2 on Disguise checks
16th	Detect poison 1/day (Sp)	Chameleon power 1/day (Sp) ²

18th — Intelligence +1
 20th Yuan-ti affinity +2¹ +1 to natural armor
¹ You gain the indicated bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Perform checks made to interact with yuan-ti.
² As the yuan-ti special ability.

YUAN-TI

At least one faction among these ruthless serpentfolk often engages in intimate relations with untainted humanoids, believing this to be a means of corrupting other races.

The descendants of such activities are often indistinguishable from purebloods, having subtle snakelike features such as scaly patches or unblinking eyes.

EPIC PRESTIGE CLASSES

EPIC LEVEL HANDBOOK (3.0)

AGENT RETRIEVER

Finding items, especially long-lost ones, is an agent retriever's specialty.

A member of this class has a knack for hunting down unique and valuable items, unrelentingly following every clue, every whispered rumor, and every trail, no matter how cold, until the object for person is in hand.

He is the ultimate bounty hunter, able to move among the planes in his quest.

Although a focused set of skills paves the way to becoming an agent retriever, several classes exhibit the talents needed to excel at this endeavor.

Rangers, bards, and rogues most commonly take this epic prestige class, but spellcasters, especially those with scrying capabilities, also make good agent retrievers.

Other classes rarely become agent retrievers.

While many agent retrievers function independently, working for hire on a freelance basis, most work with the Gleaners (see Chapter 6), an organization that trains them in their unique abilities.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an agent retriever, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Skills: Gather Information 24 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 15 ranks.

Feats: Track.

CLASS SKILLS

The agent retriever's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Intuit Direction (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (local) (Int), Knowledge (the planes; (Int), listen (Wis), Search (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the agent retriever prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: An agent retriever gains no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each agent retriever level, the character gains new spells per day and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

If already an epic spellcaster, the character gains only the benefit noted under the Spells entry for that epic class. He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

If the character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming an agent retriever, the player must decide to which class to add the new level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Uncanny Location (Sp): When an agent retriever spends one day attuning himself to a person or object he is seeking (speaking with others who knew the person or object, examining items that belonged to that person or written descriptions of the object, researching histories, or the like), he automatically determines that person's or item's location as the discern location spell.

Once he has established a sense of the location, the agent retriever can maintain this uncanny link even if the target moves, but only so long as he hunts down this person or item to the exclusion of all other pursuits.

If he ever turns aside to undertake a second pursuit, the uncanny location ends, and the agent retriever must spend another day to reattune himself to the target.

Tracking Bonus (Ex): The agent retriever develops a keen sense of the path his quarry is likely to take and a better understanding of how that quarry will attempt to shake pursuit.

This keen sense gives the agent retriever a +10 insight bonus on Wilderness Lore checks to track the quarry. This bonus increases by +10 every five levels thereafter (+20 at 6th level, +30 at 11th level, +40 at 16th level, and so on).

Plane Shift (Sp): The agent retriever can use plane shift as a 14th-level caster once per day starting at 2nd level, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (7th, 12th, 17th, and so on).

Force Sphere (Sp): Without the ability to capture a target, finding it does no good.

Gleaner training allows the agent retriever to call forth a force sphere.

The agent retriever can attempt to enclose any creature or object he can see within 30 feet.

The target is allowed a Reflex saving throw (DC 20 + 1/2 the class level of the agent retriever + the agent retriever's Dexterity modifier).

Those who fail are then encapsulated in a sphere of force with a radius of up to 50 feet (the sphere is only as large as it needs to be, up to its maximum radius).

Those trapped inside cannot escape except with methods that can bypass or destroy a wall of force.

The sphere persists as long as the agent retriever desires, up to a maximum of seven days.

A captured target does not count toward the capacity of the agent retriever's plane shift ability, and the agent retriever can plane shift with the target despite the presence of the force sphere.

The agent retriever can use this power once per day at 3rd level, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (8th, 13th, and so on).

Ethereal Jaunt (Sp): The agent retriever can use ethereal jaunt as a 14th-level caster once per day at 4th level, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (9th, 14th, 19th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The agent retriever gets a bonus feat at 5th level and an additional bonus feat every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, 20th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Climber, Legendary Rider, Legendary Tracker, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Spontaneous Spell, Storm of Throws, Swarm of Arrows, and Uncanny Accuracy.

TABLE 1–24: THE AGENT RETRIEVER

Agent Retriever Level	Special	Spells per Day
1st	Uncanny location, tracking bonus +10	+1 level of existing class
2nd	Plane shift 1/day	+1 level of existing class
3rd	Force sphere 1/day	+1 level of existing class
4th	Ethereal jaunt 1/day	+1 level of existing class
5th	Bonus feat	+1 level of existing class
6th	Tracking bonus +20	+1 level of existing class
7th	Plane shift 2/day	+1 level of existing class
8th	Force sphere 2/day	+1 level of existing class
9th	Ethereal jaunt 2/day	+1 level of existing class
10th	Bonus feat	+1 level of existing class

COSMIC DESCRYER

The cosmic descryer is interested in the infinite variety of the planes and fascinated by the different layers of the multiverse.

She uses experimentation to grow knowledgeable in the whirl and gyre of the cosmos, developing an extraordinary affinity for all things planar.

Furthermore, she derives power from that fundamental understanding.

She is particularly adept in the summoning arts, able to call and command the most powerful outsiders known.

She can travel to other planes with ease, adapting herself to those otherworldly environments no matter how alien.

By necessity, spellcasters are the only classes eligible to become cosmic descryers.

But most spellcasters, whether divine or arcane in nature, can eventually advance into this epic prestige class.

The cosmic descryer can serve a variety of capacities in an ongoing campaign.

She is a useful part of an adventuring group that travels to different planes of existence or that has frequent need of an outsider's help.

Even if she doesn't travel very often, a cosmic descryer can help anyone who seeks knowledge through scrying or communication with outsiders.

The Gleaners employ cosmic descryers, as does the Planar Cartographic Society (see Chapter 6).

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a cosmic descryer, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 24 ranks.

Feats: Spell Focus (Conjuration).

Epic Feats: Energy Resistance.

Spells: Ability to cast gate and any planar ally or planar binding spell.

Special: Must have previously traveled to any other plane of existence.

CLASS SKILLS

The cosmic descryer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the cosmic descryer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A cosmic descryer gains no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At every other cosmic descryer level, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

If already an epic spellcaster, the character gains only the benefit noted under the Spells entry for that epic class. She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

If the character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a cosmic descryer, the player must decide to which class to add the new level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Superior Planar Summoning (Ex): Beginning at 1st level, the cosmic descryer can increase the power of any of the following spells—elemental swarm, gate, greater planar ally, greater planar binding, summon monster IX, or summon nature's ally IX—to affect or summon outsiders of 4 Hit Dice higher than the spell's normal limit or conjure creatures with 4 Hit Dice of advancement.

Thus, greater planar binding summons an outsider of 28 HD rather than just 24 HD.

Every four levels thereafter, the cosmic descryer can increase the number of extra Hit Dice by 4.

Naturalization (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, the cosmic descryer develops a natural affinity for one plane that she has visited, becoming resistant to any spells and spell-like effects that would normally affect any creature not native to that plane (such as banishment).

Every two levels thereafter, the cosmic descryer gains naturalization to one additional plane (two planes at 4th, three planes at 6th, four planes at 5th, and so on).

Enduring Gate (Su): Starting at 3rd level, as a full-round action, the cosmic descryer can make any casting of the gate spell remain for a full day, rather than disappearing after 1 round per caster level.

Every three levels thereafter, the cosmic descryer can increase the duration of gate by one additional day (two days at 6th, three days at 9th, four days at 12th, and so on).

Bonus Feat (Ex): The cosmic descryer gains a bonus feat at 5th level and an additional bonus feat every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, 20th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Combat Casting, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Focus, Spell Knowledge, Spell Mastery, Spell Opportunity, Spell Penetration, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Cosmic Connection (Su): At 7th level, the cosmic descryer may join with the massive energy of the multiverse once per day, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (12th, 17th, 22nd, and so on).

The cosmic descryer can remain connected for a number of minutes equal to her class level.

The cosmic connection is a transcendent experience for the devotee, and she is transfigured by it.

While connected, she is immune to critical hits, is a native on any plane she visits, and can use dimension door at will as a 20th-level caster.

Using her exceptional knowledge, the cosmic descryer can draw off excess energy from the multiverse itself to increase her effective caster level or enhance any attack roll, saving throw, skill check, or ability check.

Drawing off excess energy from the multiverse is dangerous, and it deals the cosmic descryer 5 points of damage for each +1 bonus applied to a single roll or +1 caster level on a single spell.

For instance, a cosmic descryer could add a +5 bonus on her next attack roll or saving throw, but in doing so she takes 25 points of damage.

TABLE 1-25: THE COSMIC DESCRYER

Cosmic Descryer Level	Special	Spells per Day
1st	Superior planar summoning (+4 HD)
2nd	Naturalization (1 plane)	+1 level of existing class
3rd	Enduring gate (1 day)
4th	Naturalization (2 planes)	+1 level of existing class
5th	Bonus feat, superior planar summoning (+8 HD)
6th	Naturalization (3 planes), enduring gate (2 days)	+1 level of existing class
7th	Cosmic connection 1/day
8th	Naturalization (4 planes)	+1 level of existing class
9th	Superior planar summoning (+12 HD), enduring gate (3 days)
10th	Naturalization (5 planes), bonus feat	+1 level of existing class

DIVINE EMISSARY

Deities have need of powerful servants, many of whom are epic clerics, paladins, and other characters.

Some gods also have special, handpicked agents who speak with their authority.

However, the same deities may choose a single proxy through whom a little of their own power flows.

Called divine emissaries, these characters are second to none in the god's favor.

They act with that god's full blessing and some of its divine power.

Divine emissaries who abuse their powers (in the eyes of the deity) may be stripped of them.

Divine emissaries are often instruments of war, and thus paladins and blackguards are often chosen to serve this role. However, some deities also choose clerics.

Despite being the highest representative of a deity, a divine emissary usually travels with comrades who supplement the emissary's strength.

When a deity gives an important decree to mortals, lesser agents often serve as that deity's voice.

But when a god needs to back up its decrees with force, a divine emissary has a new mission.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To become a divine emissary, the character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +23.

Feats: Weapon Focus (deity's favored weapon).

Epic Feat: Great Smiting.

Skills: Knowledge (religion) 10 ranks.

Special: Must have a patron deity.

Furthermore, the potential divine emissary must complete some quest that furthers his deity's goals so much that it impresses the deity.

If the deity has no other divine emissary (or is willing to oust the current divine emissary), the god may choose the character.

The DM makes this choice, not the player.

CLASS SKILLS

The divine emissary's class skills (and the key ability for each) are: Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), and Use Magic Device (Cha). See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the divine emissary prestige class.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each divine emissary level, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

If already an epic spellcaster, the character gains only the benefit noted under the Spells entry for that epic class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

If the character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a divine emissary, the player must decide to which class to add the new level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Special Mount: if he has one, the divine emissary's special mount continues to increase in power.

Every five levels after 1st (6th, 11th, 16th, and so on), the special mount gains +2 bonus Hit Dice, its natural armor increases by +2, its Strength adjustment increases by +1, and its Intelligence increases by +1.

The mount's spell resistance equals the divine emissary's class level + the class level that provided the special mount + 5.

Granted Domain (Ex): A divine emissary gains access to one of his deity's domains, as well as the granted power of that domain.

The extra domain expands a paladin's selection of spells, but he does not gain the ability to cast higher-level spells than he otherwise could.

Clerics gain an additional domain but otherwise use the rules for preparing spells from their domains normally.

Divine Inspiration (Sp): A divine emissary gains a +2 luck bonus on his attack and damage rolls for 10 rounds, once per day at 1st level, plus one additional time per day every three levels thereafter (4th, 7th, 11th, and so on).

Extra Smite (Su): A divine emissary can use his smite ability two extra times per day, plus one additional time per day every three levels thereafter (5th, 8th, 11th, and so on).

To determine the damage with any smite attack, a divine emissary adds together his divine emissary levels and class levels that originally conferred the smite ability.

Greater Planar Ally (Sp): The emissary can call a greater planar ally (as the spell) once per day at 3rd level, plus one additional time per day every ten levels thereafter (13th, 23rd, 33rd, and so on).

The ally does not request a return favor when a divine emissary uses this ability.

Bonus Feats: The divine emissary gains a bonus feat at 6th level and an additional bonus feat every ten levels thereafter (16th, 26th, 36th and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list:

Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Epic leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Great Smiting, Holy Strike, Improved Aura of Courage, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Spell, Widen Aura of Courage.

Divine Hand (Su): Sometimes the divine emissary feels the touch of his deity.

As a free action, the emissary gains a +20 sacred (or profane if appropriate) bonus on his next melee or ranged attack roll, as long as the attack is made with the deity's favored weapon.

The emissary can use divine hand once per day at 9th level, plus one additional time per day every ten levels thereafter (19th, 29th, and so on).

TABLE 1–26: THE DIVINE EMISSARY

Divine Emissary Level	Special
1st	Divine inspiration 1/day, granted domain
2nd	Extra smite 2/day
3rd	Greater planar ally 1/day
4th	Divine inspiration 2/day
5th	Extra smite 3/day
6th	Bonus feat
7th	Divine inspiration 3/day
8th	Extra smite 4/day
9th	Divine hand 1/day
10th	Divine inspiration 4/day

EPIC INFILTRATOR

The epic infiltrator is an agent of espionage, an undercover operative, and sometimes a saboteur.

He is the plant in the enemy's forces, going incognito to retrieve secret battle plans or steal a valuable item.

He excels at pretending to be someone other than he is, convincing everyone around him through disguises and an uncanny ability to tell people what they want to hear.

He may use special equipment to aid him in his mission, but his most important tool is his own ability to stay calm in a tight spot.

His grace under pressure helps him get the information he needs to succeed without getting caught.

Rogues and bards are best suited for becoming epic infiltrators, but fighters, wizards, and sorcerers also work well undercover.

Other classes turn to espionage less often.

Barbarians, druids, and paladins do not usually work well as spies except in very unusual circumstances.

Epic infiltrators often work for governments or powerful merchant lords.

Sometimes they accept short-term, one-shot missions, but often they engage in long-term infiltration operations.

Many epic infiltrators operate freelance, taking contracts through a third party.

Occasionally, an epic infiltrator may be found as part of an adventuring group, putting his talents to use as a scout.

The Regulators have many epic infiltrators among their ranks, and the Gleaners, the Garrote, and the Godkissed all employ them from time to time (see Chapter 6).

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an epic infiltrator, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonchaotic.

Skills: Bluff 24 ranks, Diplomacy 10 ranks, Disguise 24 ranks, Read Lips 10 ranks.

Feats: Alertness.

Epic Feat: Polyglot.

Special: Must have successfully spent one month using the Disguise skill to pose as someone else.

CLASS SKILLS

The epic infiltrator's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Innuendo (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Pick Pocket (Dex), Profession (Wis), Read Lips (Int), Scry (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the epic infiltrator prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: An epic infiltrator is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all armor, and shields.

Improved Cover Identity (Ex/Su): At 1st level, an epic infiltrator establishes three specific cover identities, plus one additional cover identity every four levels thereafter (5th, 9th, 13th, and so on).

An epic infiltrator at work must keep his true identity secret, so he pretends to be a merchant, a stable boy, or an innkeeper, or possibly a fighter, a low-level wizard, or some other class.

A cover identity allays others' suspicions and leads opponents to underestimate the epic infiltrator until it is too late.

While operating in a cover identity, the epic infiltrator gains a +4 circumstance bonus on Disguise checks and a +2 circumstance bonus on Bluff and Gather Information checks.

When the epic infiltrator has the option of adding a new cover identity, he may instead work on further perfecting a cover identity already possessed.

An improved cover identity grants a +6 circumstance bonus on Disguise checks and a +4 circumstance bonus on Bluff and Gather Information checks while operating in that identity.

A specific cover identity may be improved again and again, each time adding +2 to the bonuses.

The web of different cover identities inside the epic infiltrator's mind makes it impossible to detect his alignment with any form of divination.

This ability functions exactly like an undetected alignment spell, except that it is always active as a supernatural ability. Only divinations are confounded; spells that function only against certain alignments, such as protection from evil and holy smite, affect the epic infiltrator normally.

Should the epic infiltrator wish to "retire" a cover identity and develop a new one, he must spend one week rigorously practicing subtle vocal intonations and body language before he earns the bonuses.

Cover identities do not in themselves provide the epic infiltrator with additional skills, proficiencies, or class features that others might expect of the pretended professions; however, a successful Bluff check at the right time is enough to deter suspicion.

The epic infiltrator can switch cover identities or don a disguise using the Disguise skill in 1d3 minutes.

He can also put on or take off armor in one-half the normal time.

Sneak Attack: If an epic infiltrator can catch an opponent when she is unable to defend herself effectively from his attack, he can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Basically, any time the epic infiltrator's target would be denied her Dexterity bonus to AC (whether she actually has a Dexterity bonus or not), the epic infiltrator's attack deals +1d6 points of damage.

This extra damage increases by +1d6 points every three levels (+2d6 at 4th level, +3d6 at 7th level, +4d6 at 10th level, and so on).

Should the epic infiltrator score a critical hit with a sneak attack, this extra damage is not multiplied.

It takes precision and penetration to hit a vital spot, so ranged attacks can only count as sneak attacks if the target is 30 feet away or less.

With a sap or an unarmed strike, the epic infiltrator can make a sneak attack that deals subdual damage instead of normal damage.

He cannot use a weapon that deals normal damage to deal subdual damage in a sneak attack, not even with the usual—

4 penalty, because he must make optimal use of his weapon in order to execute the sneak attack.

An epic infiltrator can only sneak attack living creatures with discernible anatomies—undead, constructs, oozes, plants, and incorporeal creatures lack vital areas to attack.

Additionally, any creature immune to critical hits is similarly immune to sneak attacks.

Also, the epic infiltrator must also be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach a vital spot.

The epic infiltrator cannot sneak attack while striking at a creature with concealment or by striking the limbs of a creature whose vitals are beyond reach.

If an epic infiltrator gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as rogue levels), the bonuses to damage stack.

Specialist Training (Ex): At 2nd level, the epic infiltrator gains the benefit of focusing his craft on a particular type of work, specializing in one of the following categories and receiving a +3 bonus on all checks with the listed skills.

Every three levels thereafter (5th, 8th, 11th, and so on), the epic infiltrator gains specialist training again.

He may select the same category more than once.

Concealment: Bluff, Disguise, Forgery, and Innuendo.

Subterfuge: Hide, Move Silently, Open Lock, and Pick Pocket.

Espionage: Listen, Read Lips, Search, and Spot.

Interaction: Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Sense Motive.

Read Thoughts (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, the epic infiltrator can "hear" the surface thoughts, once per day, of any single target he selects.

Every four levels thereafter (7th, 11th, 15th, and so on), the epic infiltrator can perform this ability one additional time per day.

This ability functions as the detect thoughts spell cast by a 15th-level caster, except that it targets a single mind.

Far Senses (Su): Starting at 4th level, the epic infiltrator can extend his vision or hearing into an area beyond his normal range, once per day, to a distance of 20 feet plus an additional 20 feet per epic infiltrator level.

The epic infiltrator must have personally visited the physical location earlier to use far senses on it.

Barriers do not impede far senses, and low-light vision or darkvision function normally if the epic infiltrator has one or both of those abilities.

Far senses can also apply to the epic infiltrator's read thoughts ability.

Every two levels beyond 4th (6th, 8th, 10th, and so on), the epic infiltrator can perform this ability one additional time per day.

This ability functions as the clairaudience/clairvoyance spell cast by a 15th-level caster, except for the limit on range, the need to know the locale beforehand, and the ability to use the read thoughts ability.

Mind Blank (Sp): At 3rd level, the epic infiltrator can become immune to all mind-affecting spells and divinations by rigorously silencing his mind once per day, plus one additional time per day every eight levels thereafter (11th, 19th, 27th, and so on).

This ability works as the mind blank spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

TABLE 1–27: THE EPIC INFILTRATOR

Epic Infiltrator Level	Special
1st	Improved cover identity (3), sneak attack +1d6
2nd	Specialist training
3rd	Read thoughts 1/day, mind blank 1/day
4th	Far senses 1/day, sneak attack +2d6
5th	Specialist training, improved cover identity (4)
6th	Far senses 2/day
7th	Read thoughts 2/day, sneak attack +3d6
8th	Far senses 3/day, specialist training
9th	Improved cover identity (5)
10th	Far senses 4/day, sneak attack +4d6

GUARDIAN PARAMOUNT

The guardian paramount is an extraordinary bodyguard, a protector of others who is skilled in preventing harm to his charge.

He often places himself in danger, taking the brunt of attacks meant for the person he is protecting.

He displays unparalleled prowess in defending his charge, keeping her from harm and returning her to health should she be injured.

Guardian paramounts most often come from the ranks of rogues, rogue/fighters, and rogue/clerics, Rogue/wizards, sorcerers, and druids rarely answer the call to defend, because their martial skills are not up to the demands of such work.

The guardian paramount is a valued member of society, a mercenary willing to accept the dangers of attack in exchange for payment.

Most guardian paramounts work independently, although some belong to the Order of the Shield (see Chapter 6).

It is fairly uncommon to have a guardian paramount as part of an adventuring group, although a wizard or a sorcerer may employ one or recruit a guardian paramount as a cohort.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a guardian paramount, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +15.

Skills: Spot 13 ranks.

Feats: Alertness, Lightning Reflexes.

Epic Feats: Blinding Speed, Superior Initiative.

Special: Uncanny dodge, evasion.

CLASS SKILLS

The guardian paramount's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Diplomacy (Cha), Innuendo (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the guardian paramount prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A guardian paramount is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all armor, and shields.

Bonus Feats: The guardian paramount gets a bonus feat at 1st level and an additional bonus feat every three levels thereafter (4th, 7th, 10th and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Bulwark of Defense, Combat Archery, Damage Reduction, Dexterous Fortitude, Dexterous Will, Epic Dodge, Epic Fortitude, Epic Reflexes, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Will, Exceptional Deflection, Fast Healing, Great Dexterity, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Sneak Attack, Improved Spell Resistance, Infinite Deflection, Legendary Climber, Lingering Damage, Mobile Defense, Perfect Health, Reflect Arrows, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Spellcasting Harrier, Trap Sense, and Uncanny Accuracy. Uncanny Dodge Enabler (Ex): The guardian paramount must have the uncanny dodge class feature to qualify for the prestige class, so at a minimum the guardian paramount has the extraordinary ability to retain his Dexterity bonus to AC (if any) regardless of being caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

It is possible that the character has higher-level aspects of the uncanny dodge ability, such as a bonus to avoid traps. Whatever the level of uncanny dodge attained by the character, the guardian paramount can extend the features of his uncanny dodge ability to include any one creature he designates within 5 feet of him (he can designate a creature or change designations as a free action once per round).

Thus, if a guardian paramount retains his Dexterity bonus to AC when flatfooted, the designated target retains it as well.

The guardian paramount can extend his uncanny dodge ability three times per day at 1st level, plus one additional time per day every three levels thereafter (4th, 7th, 10th, and so on).

Evasive Preceptor (Ex): The guardian paramount must have the evasion class feature, which allows the character to take no damage from an area attack with a successful Reflex save.

He may also have improved evasion, though this is not a prerequisite.

The character can extend evasion or improved evasion to include any one creature he designates within 5 feet of him. The guardian paramount can extend his evasion ability once per day at 2nd level, plus one additional time per day every three levels thereafter (5th, 8th, 11th, and so on).

Protective Aura (Sp): Starting at 3rd level, the guardian paramount can use a special form of shield other once per day, plus one additional time per day every three levels thereafter (6th, 9th, 12th, and so on).

When a guardian paramount creates a protective aura, the transferred wounds are dealt to the guardian paramount as subdual damage, not normal damage, as with the shield other spell.

Otherwise, the guardian paramount's protective aura functions like the shield other spell cast by an 8th-level cleric.

Adjust Probability (Ex): On reaching 5th level, the guardian paramount gains the ability to affect probability twice per day, plus one additional time per day per three levels thereafter (8th, 11th, 14th, and so on).

The guardian paramount can force a reroll of one attack roll, check, or saving throw that another creature within 25 feet—friend or enemy—just made.

The guardian paramount often uses this ability to allow his ward to reroll a saving throw, but he could also use the ability to make an enemy striking his ward reroll a successful attack.

The guardian paramount can find out whether the attack roll, check, or save would have succeeded before using this ability.

The recipient must take the second roll, whether it's better or worse than the original roll.

The use of this ability takes place outside the normal initiative order, but the paramount guardian can't use it if he is flat-footed or unable to see the situation resulting in the roll.

The guardian paramount must decide whether to reroll as soon as the result of the attack roll, check, or save is known; otherwise he must wait for another opportunity.

When possible, the guardian paramount player should notify the DM prior to another character's roll, stating his intention to use this ability immediately if the outcome appears undesirable.

Call Back (Sp): On reaching 6th level, the guardian paramount gains the ability to return a dead creature that he has previously used any of his other class abilities on back to life, as if he had cast true resurrection as a 20th-level cleric.

The character can use this ability once per day, plus one additional time per day every six levels (12th, 18th, 24th, and so on).

TABLE 1–28: THE GUARDIAN PARAMOUNT

Guardian Paramount Level	Special
1st	Bonus feat, uncanny dodge enabler 3/day
2nd	Evasive preceptor 1/day
3rd	Protective aura 1/day
4th	Bonus feat, uncanny dodge enabler 4/day
5th	Adjust probability 2/day, evasive preceptor 2/day
6th	Call back 1/day, protective aura 2/day
7th	Bonus feat, uncanny dodge enabler 5/day
8th	Evasive preceptor 3/day, adjust probability 3/day
9th	Protective aura 3/day
10th	Bonus feat, uncanny dodge enabler 6/day

HIGH PROSELYTIZER

The high proselytizer is the holy inspiration that begins religious movements.

She is the word of her deity, spreading the teachings of her god and sharing her beliefs in a truly stirring display of rapture and fervor.

All who listen to her preaching find it easy to accept her words as truth.

They come to understand that committing themselves to the dogma of the high proselytizer's order will grant them enlightenment in her deity's name.

Entire nations have fallen under the glorious sway of a high proselytizer's ardent zeal.

Clerics most often command the attention of the people well enough to begin the work of a high proselytizer, and paladins sometimes hear the calling as well.

Druids and rangers rarely experience such a calling, and other characters simply do not have the proper relationship with their deities.

High proselytizers generally work within a society already worshipping the character's deity, although it is not uncommon for a high proselytizer to be at odds with the established religious leaders of the temple.

Often, a high proselytizer's deity takes a particularly active role in the events of her world and leads the deity's followers to action.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a high proselytizer, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Diplomacy 12 ranks and either Knowledge (religion) 24 ranks or Knowledge (nature) 24 ranks.

Feats: Leadership.

Epic Feats: Epic Leadership.

Spells: Ability to cast 5th-level divine spells.

Special: Must have a patron deity.

CLASS SKILLS

The high proselytizer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the high proselytizer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: High proselytizers are proficient with all simple weapons, all armor, and all shields.

Spells per Day: At every other high proselytizer level, the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

If already an epic spellcaster, the character gains only the benefit noted under the Spells entry for that epic class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as an improved chance of turning undead).

If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a high proselytizer, the player must decide to which class to add each high proselytizer level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Proselytize (Sp): At 1st level, the high proselytizer gains the ability to preach the word of her deity to large crowds with great effect.

She may speak in such a manner once per day, plus one additional time per day per ten class levels thereafter (11th, 21st, 31st, and so on).

Proselytize has three effects.

First, any time the high proselytizer is speaking in this manner, she is treated as though affected by a sanctuary spell.

Second, her voice can be heard clearly by anyone within a radius of 100 feet plus 50 feet per class level, regardless of background noise, and her speech can be understood as though the audience were affected by a comprehend languages spell.

Finally, everyone in the range of the high proselytizer's voice immediately has a chance of becoming enraptured:

Type of Listener	Effect
Followers of the same deity	Automatic if 10 or fewer HD, otherwise Will save (DC 20 + 1/2 high proselytizer's class level + Wis modifier)
Others of the same alignment	Automatic if 5 or fewer HD, otherwise Will save (as above)
All others	Will save (as above)

Enraptured audience members act as though affected by a symbol of persuasion (see the symbol spell), changing alignment as appropriate and otherwise functioning according to the charm person spell.

The high proselytizer can inspire the crowd to take any of a number of actions depending on her alignment.

She might urge an army to fight with courage or convince an urban crowd to do good deeds in the streets of the city. In the case of a chaotic or evil high proselytizer, she might incite a mob to wreak havoc and vandalize the city or seek out and punish nonbelievers.

Any suicidal suggestion grants audience members a new saving throw to break the rapture (with the exception of low-level followers of the same deity, who never got a save in the first place).

This rapture lasts for 10 minutes plus an additional 5 minutes per high proselytizer level.

At 3rd level, the high proselytizer's proselytize ability includes deific touch once per day, plus one additional time per day per ten levels thereafter (13th, 23rd, 33rd, and so on).

During her speech, she can move among the enraptured, shaking hands, caressing brows, and otherwise making contact with audience members.

Anyone so touched is healed of 1d4 points of damage and cured of any natural disease or poison.

Up to six individuals per round can be so affected.

An audience member can benefit from deific touch only once per proselytize session.

The high proselytizer can use deific touch as long as her proselytize ability lasts.

At 5th level, the proselytize ability includes deific word once per day, plus one additional time per day per ten levels thereafter (15th, 25th, 35th, and so on).

The words spoken by the high proselytizer can, if she chooses, function as a triple-strength sound burst spell (3d8 points of sonic damage and a Will save to avoid being stunned for 3 rounds) to all who are not enraptured, as the spell cast by a 20th-level cleric.

The deific word can occur at any point during her proselytize speech.

At 7th level, the proselytize ability includes deific face once per day, plus one additional time per day per ten levels thereafter (17th, 27th, 37th, and so on).

When the high proselytizer speaks, she can cause a blinding burst to shine from her face.

Deific face functions against all in the audience who are not enraptured as the sunburst spell cast by a 20th-level cleric.

The deific face can occur at any point during her speech.

At 9th level, the proselytize ability includes deific aura once per day, plus one additional time per day per ten levels thereafter (19th, 29th, 39th, and so on).

When the high proselytizer speaks, she can cause a rolling wave of deific power to spring from her body that functions as either a blasphemy, dictum, holy word, or word of chaos spell

(as appropriate for her alignment), affecting only those in the audience who have resisted becoming enraptured.

Deific aura otherwise functions as the relevant spell cast by a 20th-level cleric.

The deific aura can occur at any point during her speech.

Heal (Sp): At 2nd level, the high proselytizer can use heal on herself or another creature once per day, plus one additional time per day per four levels thereafter (6th, 10th, 14th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The high proselytizer gets a bonus feat at 4th level and an additional bonus feat every four levels thereafter (8th, 12th, 16th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be chosen from the following list: Armor Skin, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Will, Extended Life Span, Great Charisma, Great Wisdom, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Legendary Commander, Multispell, Negative Energy Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Polyglot, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

TABLE 1–29: THE HIGH PROSELYTIZER

High Proselytizer Level	Special	Spells per Day
1st	Proselytize 1/day
2nd	Heal 1/day	+1 level of divine spellcasting class
3rd	Proselytize (deific touch) 1/day
4th	Bonus feat	+1 level of divine spellcasting class
5th	Proselytize (deific word) 1/day
6th	Heal 2/day	+1 level of divine spellcasting class
7th	Proselytize (deific face) 1/day
8th	Bonus feat	+1 level of divine spellcasting class
9th	Proselytize (deific aura) 1/day
10th	Heal 3/day	+1 level of divine spellcasting class

LEGENDARY DREADNOUGHT

The legendary dreadnought is the ultimate foot soldier, an absolute force of destruction, a total warrior who excels at sheer combat prowess.

While some rely on cunning and reflexes in a fight, and others uphold a code of honor or engage in combat from horseback, the legendary dreadnought simply wades into battle, completely bent on relentless, steady destruction. When the tide of combat flows against him, he stands like a rock.

It is the legendary dreadnought who has the might to breach the seemingly unbreachable gates.

Fighters, rangers, and barbarians most often seek to become legendary dreadnoughts, as do ex-paladins and blackguards. Clerics, paladins, and monks may occasionally change their focus and become legendary dreadnoughts, but druids, rogues, sorcerers, and wizards seldom do.

Legendary dreadnoughts may function as brute force in an adventuring group, but small groups of them make up the most devastating combat units in an army.

On occasion, a legendary dreadnought might serve as a champion for a prominent ruler or noble, acting as a strong-arm or engaging in staged combats for money.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a legendary dreadnought, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +23.

Skills: Intimidate 15 ranks.

Feats: Combat Reflexes, Great Cleave, Improved Bull Rush, Improved Critical.

CLASS SKILLS

The legendary dreadnought's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the legendary dreadnought prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A legendary dreadnought is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all armor, and all shields.

Unstoppable (Ex): At 1st level, the legendary dreadnought can concentrate his power, turning himself into an unstoppable force once per day, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (6th, 11th, 16th, and so on).

This ability grants the character a +20 bonus on his Strength check to break or burst a door or item (see Breaking Open Doors in Chapter 4: Skills and Breaking Items in Chapter 8: Combat in the Player's Handbook).

As a special use of this ability, the legendary dreadnought can attempt to break a wall of force (Strength DC 32, and the character applies his unstoppable bonus to this check as well).

Alternatively, the legendary dreadnought can apply the +20 bonus to a single attack roll.

Unmovable (Ex): At 2nd level, the legendary dreadnought can concentrate his power, making himself unmovable once per day, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (7th, 12th, 17th, and so on).

This power grants the character a +20 bonus on any one of the following:

- A grapple check made to avoid being grabbed with the improved grab ability.
- A Strength check to avoid the effects of a bull rush, trip attempt, or similar effect.
- A Strength check against any effect that would move the character either physically or magically.
- Any one saving throw.

If an effect that would move the character either physically or magically does not normally allow a saving throw, the legendary dreadnought can use this ability to gain a Will saving throw.

He still gains the +20 bonus on the saving throw in such a case.

Shrug off Punishment (Ex): The legendary dreadnought grows more and more able to withstand the injuries that would fell lesser men, gaining 12 bonus hit points at 3rd level and 12 more every five levels thereafter (8th, 13th, 18th, and so on).

Thick Skinned (Ex): At 4th level, the legendary dreadnought learns to ignore the minor nicks and cuts of battle, gaining damage reduction 3/–.

This does not stack with damage reduction granted by magic items or nonpermanent magical effects, but it does stack with any damage reduction granted by permanent magical effects, class features, the Damage Reduction feat, and this ability itself.

The damage reduction improves by 3 points every five levels thereafter (9th.

14th, 19th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The legendary dreadnought gets a bonus feat at 5th level and an additional bonus feat every five levels thereafter (at 10th, 15th, 20th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Epic Fortitude, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Fast Healing, Great Constitution, Great Strength, Improved Combat Reflexes, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction.

TABLE 1–30: THE LEGENDARY DREADNOUGHT

Legendary Dreadnought Level	Special
1st	Unstoppable 1/day
2nd	Unmovable 1/day
3rd	Shrug off punishment
4th	Thick skinned
5th	Bonus feat
6th	Unstoppable 2/day
7th	Unmovable 2/day
8th	Shrug off punishment
9th	Thick skinned
10th	Bonus feat

PERFECT WIGHT

The perfect wight is a master of skulking, the ultimate prowler and thief.

She has transcended the extraordinary, honing her talents to supernatural levels.

She can bypass any protection and slip through any defense.

Few see her coming, and she does not leave evidence of her passing.

She quite literally is a shadow in the night.

Only the sneakiest and stealthiest of characters can become a perfect wight, so rogues are the most likely candidates.

Assassins sometimes enhance their own skills by spending some time as a perfect wight, although the perfect wight's focus on stealth and evasion comes at the expense of some offensive abilities.

Few other classes ever excel at the talents necessary to become perfect wights, although the occasional sorcerer or wizard might find herself in a position to do so.

Perfect wights are true thieves, cat burglars in the extreme. They have heightened the art of breaking and entering to a new level, and they consider it an exciting challenge to test their mettle against the best security to multiverse has to offer.

Most operate solo, although some may work with a group or perhaps use their talents to aid in protecting rather than stealing.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a perfect wight, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Hide 24 ranks, Move Silently 24 ranks.

Epic Feats: Self-Concealment.

Special: Sneak attack +10d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The perfect wight's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Innuendo (Wis), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (any) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the perfect wight prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A perfect wight gains no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Improved Invisibility (Su): Starting at 1st level, the perfect wight gains the benefit of improved invisibility once per day, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (6th, 11th, 16th, and so on).

The improved invisibility is as the spell cast by a 20th-level caster.

Improved Legerdemain (Su): A perfect wight can perform the following class skills at a range of 30 feet: Disable Device, Open Lock, Pick Pocket, and Search.

If desired, the perfect wight can take 10 on the check.

Any object manipulated during the skill check must weigh 100 pounds or less.

Alternatively, the perfect wight can use improved legerdemain to make one melee sneak attack against any creature within 30 feet.

The perfect wight executes the sneak attack (or death attack, if applicable) as if attacking from a flanking position. If the attack is successful, the victim is dealt the appropriate sneak attack damage despite the fact that the perfect wight and her weapon do not physically cross the intervening distance.

A perfect wight can use improved legerdemain once per day at 2nd level, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (7th, 12th, 17th, and so on).

Incorporeal (Su): At 3rd level, the perfect wight can become incorporeal once per day, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (8th, 13th, 18th, and so on).

A perfect wight can remain incorporeal for a number of rounds equal to 20 + her perfect wight level.

As an incorporeal creature, the perfect wight can be harmed only by other incorporeal creatures, +1 or better magic weapons, and spells, spell-like abilities, and supernatural abilities.

She is immune to all nonmagical attack forms.

Even when hit by spells or magic weapons, the perfect wight has a 50% chance to ignore any damage from a corporeal source (except for force effects, such as magic missile, or attacks made with ghost touch weapons).

An incorporeal perfect wight has no natural armor but has a deflection bonus equal to her Charisma modifier (always at least +1, even if her Charisma score does not normally provide a bonus).

An incorporeal perfect wight can pass through solid objects at will, but not force effects.

Her attack passes through (ignores) natural armor, armor, and shields, although deflection bonuses and force effects (such as mage armor) work normally against it.

An incorporeal perfect wight moves silently and cannot be heard with Listen checks if she doesn't wish to be.

While incorporeal, the perfect wight has no Strength score, so her Dexterity modifier applies to both her melee and her ranged attacks.

Shadow Form (Su): At 4th level, the perfect wight can take shadow form once per day, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (9th, 14th, 19th, and so on).

The perfect wight's shadow form lasts 1 minute per level of the prestige class.

The shadow form is the ultimate expression of the perfect wight's power.

She is incorporeal (see above), she is immune to critical hits, and she can fly at a speed of 100 feet (good).

The perfect wight can also use the substance of her own shadow to enhance her effective level on any attack roll, check, or saving throw.

Drawing power from her own shadow form deals the perfect wight 7 points of damage for each +1 bonus on a single roll or +1 effective level for any other single use. For example, a perfect wight could add a +5 bonus on her next attack roll or saving throw, but in doing so she takes 35 points of damage.

Bonus Feats: The perfect wight gets a bonus feat at 5th level and an additional bonus feat every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, 20th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Blinding Speed, Combat Archery, Dexterous Fortitude, Dexterous Will, Epic Dodge, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Sneak Attack, Legendary Climber, Lingering Damage, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Spellcasting Harrier, Superior Initiative, Trap Sense, Uncanny Accuracy.

TABLE 1-31: THE PERFECT WIGHT

Perfect Wight Level	Special
1st	Improved invisibility 1/day
2nd	Improved legerdemain 1/day
3rd	Incorporeal 1/day
4th	Shadow form 1/day
5th	Bonus feat
6th	Improved invisibility 2/day
7th	Improved legerdemain 2/day
8th	Incorporeal 2/day
9th	Shadow form 2/day
10th	Bonus feat

UNION SENTINEL

A Union Sentinel is a member of an elite police force that guards the demiplane-city of Union (see Chapter 6).

Union Sentinels patrol the city streets, enforcing the laws of Union and ensuring that peace reigns supreme.

A Union Sentinel is trained to capture lawbreakers and imprison them for trial rather than killing them. A Union Sentinel uses lethal force only as a last resort, or he calls in higher beings to aid him when his own power proves ineffective. Union Sentinels often come from fighter, ranger, or cleric backgrounds, and paladins occasionally take up the mantle of union sentinel, too. Rogues and monks occasionally have enough battle prowess to serve as Union Sentinels, but druids, sorcerers, wizards, and barbarians lack either the raw fighting skill or the discipline necessary to serve in Union. Union Sentinels are regular sights in Union, appearing in small units of two to five. They are stoically true to the law, serving the mercanes that run the city with unswerving loyalty. Off-duty Union Sentinels occasionally take up other professions and might even agree to join adventuring groups if the task at hand doesn't interfere with their duty. But in any case, they rarely leave the city.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a Union Sentinel, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Base Attack Bonus: +21.

Skills: Diplomacy 8 ranks, Knowledge (local) 3 ranks.

Feats: Alertness, Improved Disarm.

Epic Feats: Armor Skin.

Special: Must reside in the demiplane-city of Union.

CLASS SKILLS

The Union Sentinel's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (local) (Int), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis\ Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the Union Sentinel prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Union Sentinels are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all armor, and all shields.

Sending (Sp): At 1st level, the Union Sentinel gains the use of the sending spell as a spell-like ability once per day, plus one additional time per day every seven levels thereafter (8th, 15th, 22nd, and so on).

Union Sentinels normally use sending to contact their superiors if their patrol meets a threat they can't handle. This ability functions as the spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Shield of Law (Sp): At 1st level, the Union Sentinel gains the use of the shield of law spell as a spell-like ability once per day, plus one additional time per day every three levels thereafter (4th, 7th, 10th, and so on).

Union Sentinels normally use shield of law prior to confronting a threat in the streets.

This ability functions as the spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Freedom (Sp): At 2nd level, the Union Sentinel gains the use of the freedom spell as a spell-like ability once per day, plus one additional time per day every six levels thereafter (8th, 14th, 20th, and so on).

This ability functions as the spell cast by an 18th-level caster.

Knock (Sp): At 2nd level, the Union Sentinel gains the use of the knock spell as a spell-like ability once per day, plus one additional time per day every four levels thereafter (6th, 10th, 14th, and so on).

This ability functions as the spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Dimensional Anchor (Sp): At 3rd level, the Union Sentinel gains the use of the dimensional anchor spell as a spell-like ability once per day, plus one additional time per day every three levels thereafter (6th, 9th, 12th, and so on).

This ability functions as the spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Portal Guardian (Su): A 4th-level Union Sentinel can become a portal guardian once per day, plus one additional time per day every six levels thereafter (10th, 16th, 22nd, and so on).

The Union Sentinel must position himself within 5 feet of a portal or gate, and while he remains, the portal cannot be activated from either side by any means.

The Union Sentinel can defend himself and use any of his other abilities normally, as long as he remains adjacent to the blocked portal.

This ability only functions against portals and the gate spell, not against creatures with other spell-like or supernatural interplanar traveling abilities.

Forcecage (Sp): At 5th level, the Union Sentinel gains the use of the forcecage spell as a spell-like ability once per day, plus one additional time per day every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, 20th, and so on).

This ability functions as the spell cast by a 20th-level caster.

Imprisonment (Sp): At 7th level, the Union Sentinel gains the use of the imprisonment spell as a spell-like ability once per week, plus one additional time per week every five levels thereafter (12th, 17th, 22nd, and so on).

This ability functions as the spell cast by a 20th-level caster.

TABLE 1–32: THE UNION SENTINEL

Union Sentinel Level	Special
1st	Sending 1/day, shield of law 1/day
2nd	Freedom 1/day, knock 1/day
3rd	Dimensional anchor 1/day
4th	Portal guardian 1/day, shield of law 2/day
5th	Forcecage 1/day
6th	Dimensional anchor 2/day, knock 2/day
7th	Imprisonment 1/day, shield of law 3/day
8th	Freedom 2/day, sending 2/day
9th	Dimensional anchor 3/day
10th	Knock 3/day, forcecage 2/day, portal guardian 2/day, shield of law 4/day

EPIC INSIGHTS (3.0)

CELESTIAL PARAGON

The celestial paragon embodies the divine power of good and righteousness.

She channels the holy power of the Upper Planes in her battles against the forces of evil.

Eventually, a celestial paragon transcends her normal form and becomes a celestial being.

Most celestial paragons are paladins or good clerics, though an occasional druid or ranger aligned with the forces of good follows the path.

Multiclass fighter/clerics or monk/clerics make excellent celestial paragons.

Other classes either lack the divine connection to the holy powers or aren't interested in such pursuits.

NPC celestial paragons are champions of good.

At lower levels, they may work with other similarly minded individuals, but by higher levels they often serve at the right hand of their deities.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a celestial paragon, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 10 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 25 ranks.

Feats: Extended Lifespan.

Spells: Able to cast 4th-level divine spells.

Special: Must pledge to serve the greater cause of good.

CLASS SKILLS

The celestial paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (any), Sense Motive (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the celestial paragon prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The celestial paragon gains no proficiency in armor or weapons.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At every odd-numbered level, the celestial paragon gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level. If already an epic spellcaster, the character gains only the benefit noted under the Spells entry for that epic class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as improved turning or lay on hands ability).

If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a celestial paragon, the player must decide to which class to add the new level for the purpose of determining spells per day (though she must choose a class in which she can cast at least 5th-level divine spells).

Planar Diplomacy (Ex): The celestial paragon may add her class level to any Diplomacy checks made to adjust the attitude of an intelligent creature native to the Upper Planes.

Radiant Aura (Su): A celestial paragon radiates bright light (equivalent in effect to the daylight spell cast by a character whose level equals the celestial paragon's divine caster level) at all times.

The radius of this radiant aura is equal to 10 feet per class level.

The celestial paragon can douse or relight this aura as a standard action.

Aura of Menace (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a righteous aura surrounds a celestial paragon when she fights or gets angry.

Any hostile creature within a 20-foot radius of her must succeed at a Will save (DC 20 + celestial paragon level + Cha modifier) or be shaken for one day or until it successfully hits the celestial paragon that generated the aura.

A creature that has resisted or broken the effect cannot be affected again by that celestial paragon's aura for one day.

Celestial Metamagic (Su): Once per day, a celestial paragon of 3rd or higher level can treat any good spell she casts as if it were maximized.

This has no effect on the spell's spell level or casting time. She can use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained above 3rd.

Holy Strike (Su): Beginning at 4th level, the celestial paragon deals +1d6 points of damage whenever she strikes an evil creature with a melee attack.

This bonus damage increases by an additional +1d6 for every four levels gained above 4th.

Healing Touch (Su): A 5th-level celestial paragon can heal injuries and other afflictions with her touch.

Treat this as a heal spell, except that it cures 100 + 10 per class level hit points of damage instead of restoring all hit point damage.

The celestial paragon may use her healing touch one additional time per day for every five levels gained above 5th.

Timeless Body (Ex): After achieving 7th level, the celestial paragon no longer suffers ability penalties for aging and cannot be magically aged.

Any penalties she may have already suffered, however, remain in place.

Bonuses still accrue, and the celestial paragon still dies of old age when her time is up.

Divine Transformation: At 10th level, the divine paragon becomes a native outsider.

Her type changes to outsider, though she may still be raised or resurrected as normal.

She also gains the good subtype.

Thanks to this transformation, the celestial paragon gains SR equal to 31 + her class level.

Ex-Celestial Paragons A celestial paragon who becomes nongood or who willingly commits an evil act loses all features of the celestial paragon class and cannot progress in levels as a celestial paragon.

She regains her abilities and may continue to advance in the class if she atones for her violations in the presence of a good deity.

The Celestial Paragon

Level	Special	Spellcasting
1	Radiant aura, planar diplomacy	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2	Aura of menace
3	Celestial metamagic 1/day	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4	Holy strike +1d6
5	Healing touch 1/day	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6	Celestial metamagic 2/day
7	Timeless body	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8	Holy strike +2d6
9	Celestial metamagic 3/day	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10	Divine transformation, healing touch 2/day

CELESTIAL PARAGON

The celestial paragon embodies the divine power of good and righteousness.

She channels the holy power of the Upper Planes in her battles against the forces of evil.

Eventually, a celestial paragon transcends her normal form and becomes a celestial being.

Most celestial paragons are paladins or good clerics, though an occasional druid or ranger aligned with the forces of good follows the path.

Multiclass fighter/clerics or monk/clerics make excellent celestial paragons.

Other classes either lack the divine connection to the holy powers or aren't interested in such pursuits.

NPC celestial paragons are champions of good.

At lower levels, they may work with other similarly minded individuals, but by higher levels they often serve at the right hand of their deities.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a celestial paragon, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 10 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 25 ranks.

Feats: Extended Lifespan.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: Able to cast 4th-level divine spells.

Special: Must pledge to serve the greater cause of good.

CLASS SKILLS

The celestial paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (any) (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the celestial paragon prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The celestial paragon gains no proficiency in armor or weapons.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At every odd-numbered level, the celestial paragon gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of that class.

If already an epic spellcaster, the character gains only the benefit noted under the Spells entry for that epic class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as improved turning or lay on hands ability).

If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a celestial paragon, the player must decide to which class to add the new level for the purpose of determining spells per day (though she must choose a class in which she can cast at least 5th-level divine spells).

Planar Diplomacy (Ex): The celestial paragon may add her class level to any Diplomacy checks made to adjust the attitude of an intelligent creature native to the Upper Planes.

Radiant Aura (Su): A celestial paragon radiates bright light (equivalent in effect to the daylight spell cast by a character whose level equals the celestial paragon's divine caster level) at all times.

The radius of this radiant aura is equal to 10 feet per class level.

The celestial paragon can douse or relight this aura as a standard action.

Aura of Menace (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a righteous aura surrounds a celestial paragon when she fights or gets angry.

Any hostile creature within a 20-foot radius of her must succeed at a Will save (DC 20 + celestial paragon level + Charisma modifier) or be shaken for one day or until it successfully hits the celestial paragon that generated the aura.

A creature that has resisted or broken the effect cannot be affected again by that celestial paragon's aura for one day. Celestial Metamagic (Su): Once per day, a celestial paragon of 3rd or higher level can treat any good spell she casts as if it were maximized.

This has no effect on the spell's spell level or casting time. She can use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained above 3rd.

Holy Strike (Su): Beginning at 4th level, the celestial paragon deals +1d6 points of damage whenever she strikes an evil creature with a melee attack.

This bonus damage increases by an additional +1d6 for every four levels gained above 4th.

Healing Touch (Su): A 5th-level celestial paragon can heal injuries and other afflictions with her touch.

Treat this as a heal spell, except that it cures 100 + 10 per class level hit points of damage instead of restoring all hit point damage.

The celestial paragon may use her healing touch one additional time per day for every five levels gained above 5th.

Timeless Body (Ex): After achieving 7th level, the celestial paragon no longer suffers ability penalties for aging and cannot be magically aged.

Any penalties she may have already suffered, however, remain in place.

Bonuses still accrue, and the celestial paragon still dies of old age when her time is up.

Divine Transformation: At 10th level, the divine paragon becomes a native outsider.

Her type changes to outsider, though she may still be raised or resurrected as normal.

She also gains the good subtype.

Thanks to this transformation, the celestial paragon gains SR equal to 31 + her class level.

EX-CELESTIAL PARAGONS

A celestial paragon who becomes nongood or who willingly commits an evil act loses all features of the celestial paragon class and cannot progress in levels as a celestial paragon.

She regains her abilities and may continue to advance in the class if she atones for her violations in the presence of a good deity.

THE CELESTIAL PARAGON

Level	Special	Spellcasting
1	Planar diplomacy, radiant aura	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2	Aura of menace	—
3	Celestial metamagic 1/day	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4	Holy strike +1d6	—
5	Healing touch 1/day	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6	Celestial metamagic 2/day	—
7	Timeless body	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8	Holy strike +2d6	—
9	Celestial metamagic 3/day	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10	Divine transformation, healing touch 2/day	—

MASTER ARCANE ARTISAN

Some arcane spellcasters aspire only to perfect their own spellcasting powers.

The master arcane artisan instead focuses her efforts outward, creating vessels of great power to wield against her enemies.

Most master arcane artisans are wizards, since few other classes have the ability to learn the wide range of item creation feats required for the class.

However, bards and sorcerers who focus their attentions can qualify for this class as well.

A variety of prestige classes also offer good preparation for this class, including the gnome artificer and the master alchemist.

Master arcane artisans tend to have many acquaintances—everyone seems to like the wizard with all the toys—but few true friends.

Many arcane spellcasters, particularly sorcerers, disdain the artisan's reliance on trinkets, but it's hard to argue with the result.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a master arcane artisan, a character must fulfill all the following criteria:

Skills: Craft (any) 12 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 24 ranks, Spellcraft (24 ranks).

Feats: Efficient Item Creation, Skill Focus (Knowledge [arcana]), any four item creation feats.

Spellcasting: Able to cast 6th-level arcane spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The master arcane artisan's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Appraise (Wis), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Spellcraft (Int), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the master arcane artisan prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The master arcane artisan gains no proficiency with weapons or armor.

Spells: The epic master arcane artisan's caster level increases by 1 per even-numbered level gained above 10th. In addition, at every even-numbered level, the epic master arcane artisan gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Rapid Item Creation (Ex): When crafting any magic item for which she has selected the Efficient Item Creation feat, a master arcane artisan can craft magic items at an even more accelerated rate.

At 1st level, she can craft such items at a rate of 20,000 gp per day.

This increases by 10,000 gp per day for every 2 levels gained after 1st (30,000 gp per day at 3rd level, 40,000 gp per day at 5th, and so on).

This ability has no effect on creation times for items that require feats for which she has not selected the Efficient Item Creation feat.

Item Creation XP Pool (Ex): A 2nd-level master arcane artisan has a source of magical energy from which she can draw the equivalent of XP to contribute toward the creation of magic items.

At 2nd level, the pool has the equivalent of 3,000 XP in it. Every level thereafter, the pool gains a number of points equal to the level gained times 1,000 (+3,000 at 3rd level, +4,000 at 4th, and so on).

These points can be spent only to create magic items, and once spent, the points are gone.

Bonus Item: At 4th level the master arcane artisan gains a single magic item of her choice (whose market price can't exceed 100,000 gp) that she could craft herself.

She need not spend any time working on the item, and she need not expend any gp or XP.

She is assumed to have been working on the item during her studies and spare time, and she completes it for free as part of gaining the new level.

The master arcane artisan must meet all the item's prerequisites herself.

Every 4 levels after 4th, the master arcane artisan gains an additional free magic item, and the maximum market price of the item gained increases by 100,000 gp (to 200,000 gp at 8th, 300,000 gp at 12th, and so on).

Cannibalize Magic Items (Ex): A 10th-level master arcane artisan gains the ability to cannibalize magic items to harvest the power held within.

The process requires 1 day per 100,000 gp of the item (or fraction thereof), at the end of which the artisan can add a number of points to her item creation XP pool (see above) equal to one-half the XP required to create the item.

For instance, if a master arcane artisan cannibalized a +5 longsword (which costs 2,000 XP to create) she would add 1,000 points to her pool.

A charged item that isn't fully charged only contributes a proportional amount of XP.

For instance, a wand with only 25 charges would contribute half the normal points of a fully charged wand.

The power harvested from such activity contributes only to the character's item creation XP pool, not to her normal XP total.

Bonus Feats: The master arcane artisan gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic master arcane artisan feats) at 3rd level, and every 3 levels thereafter.

Epic Master Arcane Artisan Bonus Feat List: Additional Magic Item Space, Augmented Alchemy, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Forge Epic Ring, Improved Spell Capacity, Master Staff, Master Wand, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge.

Master Arcane Artisan

Level	Special	Spellcasting
1	Rapid item creation (20,000 gp/day)	--
2	Item creation XP pool	+1 level of existing class
3	Bonus feat, rapid item creation (30,000 gp/day)	--
4	Bonus item	+1 level of existing class
5	Rapid item creation (40,000 gp/day)	--
6	Bonus feat	+1 level of existing class
7	Rapid item creation (50,000 gp/day)	--
8	Bonus item	+1 level of existing class
9	Bonus feat, rapid item creation (60,000 gp/day)	--
10	Cannibalize magic items	+1 level of existing class

MASTER ARCANE ARTISAN

Some arcane spellcasters aspire only to perfect their own spellcasting powers.

The master arcane artisan instead focuses her efforts outward, creating vessels of great power to wield against her enemies.

Most master arcane artisans are wizards, since few other classes have the ability to learn the wide range of item creation feats required for the class.

However, bards and sorcerers who focus their attentions can qualify for this class as well.

A variety of prestige classes also offer good preparation for this class, including the gnome artificer and the master alchemist.

Master arcane artisans tend to have many acquaintances—everyone seems to like the wizard with all the toys—but few true friends.

Many arcane spellcasters, particularly sorcerers, disdain the artisan's reliance on trinkets, but it's hard to argue with the result.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a master arcane artisan, a character must fulfill all the following criteria:

Skills: Craft (any) 12 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 24 ranks, Spellcraft 24 ranks.

Feats: Efficient Item Creation, Skill Focus (Knowledge [arcana]), any four item creation feats.

Spellcasting: Able to cast 6th-level arcane spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The master arcane artisan's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Spellcraft (Int), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the master arcane artisan prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The master arcane artisan gains no proficiency with weapons or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic master arcane artisan's caster level increases by 1 per even-numbered level gained above 10th.

The epic master arcane artisan continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new even-numbered level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the spellcasting class to which the master arcane artisan belonged before adding the prestige class.

Rapid Item Creation (Ex): When crafting any magic item for which she has selected the Efficient Item Creation feat, a master arcane artisan can craft magic items at an even more accelerated rate.

At 1st level, she can craft such items at a rate of 20,000 gp per day.

This increases by 10,000 gp per day for every two levels gained after 1st (30,000 gp per day at 3rd level, 40,000 gp per day at 5th, and so on).

This ability has no effect on creation times for items that require feats for which she has not selected the Efficient Item Creation feat.

Item Creation XP Pool (Ex): A 2nd-level master arcane artisan has a source of magical energy from which she can draw the equivalent of XP to contribute toward the creation of magic items.

At 2nd level, the pool has the equivalent of 3,000 XP in it. Every level thereafter, the pool gains a number of points equal to the level gained times 1,000 (+3,000 at 3rd level, +4,000 at 4th, and so on).

These points can be spent only to create magic items, and once spent, the points are gone.

Bonus Item: At 4th level the master arcane artisan gains a single magic item of her choice (whose market price can't exceed 100,000 gp) that she could craft herself.

She need not spend any time working on the item, and she need not expend any gp or XP.

She is assumed to have been working on the item during her studies and spare time, and she completes it for free as part of gaining the new level.

The master arcane artisan must meet all the item's prerequisites herself.

Every four levels after 4th, the master arcane artisan gains an additional free magic item, and the maximum market price of the item gained increases by 100,000 gp (to 200,000 gp at 8th, 300,000 gp at 12th, and so on).

Cannibalize Magic Items (Ex): A 10th-level master arcane artisan gains the ability to cannibalize magic items to harvest the power held within.

The process requires 1 day per 100,000 gp of the item (or fraction thereof), at the end of which the artisan can add a number of points to her item creation XP pool (see above) equal to one-half the XP required to create the item.

For instance, if a master arcane artisan cannibalized a +5 longsword (which costs 2,000 XP to create) she would add 1,000 points to her pool.

A charged item that isn't fully charged only contributes a proportional amount of XP.

For instance, a wand with only 25 charges would contribute half the normal points of a fully charged wand.

The power harvested from such activity contributes only to the character's item creation XP pool, not to her normal XP total.

Bonus Feats: The master arcane artisan gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic master arcane artisan feats) at 3rd level, and every three levels thereafter.

Epic Master Arcane Artisan Bonus Feat List: Additional Magic Item Space, Augmented Alchemy, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Forge Epic Ring, Improved Spell Capacity, Master Staff, Master Wand, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge.

THE MASTER ARCANIC ARTISAN

Level	Special	Spellcasting
1	Rapid item creation (20,000 gp/day)	—
2	Item creation XP pool	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3	Bonus feat, rapid item creation (30,000 gp/day)	—
4	Bonus item	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5	Rapid item creation (40,000 gp/day)	—
6	Bonus feat	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7	Rapid item creation (50,000 gp/day)	—
8	Bonus item	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9	Bonus feat, rapid item creation (60,000 gp/day)	—
10	Cannibalize magic items	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

SPELLFIRE HIEROPHANT

While many characters may call themselves master of spellfire—the raw energy of the weave—such individuals are mere students compared to you.

The spellfire hierophant learns new methods of controlling and shaping spellfire that lesser mortals barely comprehend.

A spellfire hierophant can come from almost any background, though most have some previous training in the use of spellfire (such as the spellfire channeler prestige class).

Other than that class, spellcasters have the easiest time qualifying.

With the generally solitary nature of spellfire wielders, it's no surprise that spellfire hierophants tend to exist outside of normal society.

Those few who venture from their hidden lairs in the wilderness or on the planes rely on disguises and subterfuge to accomplish their goals.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a spellfire hierophant, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Concentration 24 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 12 ranks, Spellcraft 12 ranks.

Feats: Endurance, Epic Spellfire Wielder, Spellfire Wielder, Weapon Focus (spellfire).

CLASS SKILLS

The spellfire hierophant's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disguise (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Wilderness Lore (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the spellfire hierophant prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Spellfire hierophants gain no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Greater Charged Item Drain (Sp): A spellfire hierophant can drain a number of charges from a touched charged item (including single-use items such as potions or scrolls), converting the energy into stored spellfire energy levels. The limit to the number of charges she can drain is equal to her Charisma bonus (minimum 1), but she can't drain more charges than the item has remaining (each spell on a scroll counts as one charge).

A fully drained item has no magical properties (a potion becomes water, a scroll becomes blank paper).

A creature gets to make a Will save (DC = 20 + one-half class level + Charisma modifier) to prevent one of its held or carried items from being drained.

Ranged Healing (Su): At 2nd level, the spellfire hierophant gains the ability to release stored spellfire energy levels to heal at a range of up to 25 feet (plus 5 ft./2 levels).

This requires a ranged touch attack.

The amount of healing is normal for the character (either 2 points per level expended or 1d4+1 points per level expended if the character has the spellfire wielder class feature improved healing).

Haste (Su): Once per day, the spellfire hierophant can expend spellfire energy levels to accelerate her actions, just as if she had cast haste on herself.

Each spellfire energy level expended when the ability is activated allows the hierophant to act as hasted for 1 round. The hasted hierophant sparkles with light while so affected. For every three levels gained after 3rd, the spellfire hierophant can use this ability one additional time per day (twice at 6th level, three times per day at 9th level, and so on).

Greater Permanent Item Drain (Sp): At 5th level, a spellfire hierophant can drain power from permanent magic items by touch as a standard action.

An item that creates spell effects (such as boots of speed) loses that function for 24 hours, and the spellfire hierophant gains spellfire energy levels equal to the caster level of the item.

A creature gets to make a Will save (DC = 20 + 1/2 class level + Charisma modifier) to prevent one of its held or carried items from being drained.

An item with all its permanent abilities drained for the day is still a magic item (for purposes of making saving throws when damaged, and so on).

Spellfire Reserve (Ex): At 7th level, the spellfire hierophant learns how to store spellfire energy levels in deep reserve. These energy levels don't count as part of the character's normal storage capacity, but they also can't be used to power spellfire effects without first calling them from reserve.

Spellfire energy levels in reserve also don't detect as magical (allowing a spellfire hierophant to disguise her nature).

Placing any number of stored spellfire energy levels in reserve, or calling any number of levels from reserve into normal storage capacity, requires a full-round action.

The spellfire hierophant can store a number of energy levels in reserve equal to her class level plus her Constitution bonus (if any).

Spellfire Burst (Su): At 10th level, the spellfire hierophant can substitute a spellfire burst for a normal spellfire blast.

The range remains the same, but instead of requiring a touch attack, the spellfire energy explodes in a 5-foot radius burst at the target point, dealing appropriate damage to all creatures in the area (Reflex halves; DC 20 + 1/2 class level + Charisma modifier).

This can affect as many bursts as the character would normally fire blasts in the round, but it can be used only for one round per day.

For every 5 levels gained thereafter, the spellfire hierophant can use this ability one additional round per day (two rounds at 15th, three rounds at 20th, and so on).

If the character also has the spellfire channeler class feature maelstrom of fire, the area of the burst is a 10-foot radius instead.

Bonus Feats: The spellfire hierophant gains a bonus feat at 4th level and an additional bonus feat every 4 levels thereafter (8th, 12th, 16th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Energy Resistance, Epic Skill Focus (Concentration), Epic Spellfire Wielder (new feat, described below), Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (spellfire), Exceptional Deflection*, Fast Healing, Infinite Deflection*, Reflect Arrows*.

* The spellfire hierophant can ignore the prerequisite of Improved Unarmed Strike for these feats.

Spellfire Hierophant

Level	Special
1	Greater charged item drain
2	Ranged healing
3	Haste 1/day
4	Bonus feat
5	Greater permanent item drain
6	Haste 2/day
7	Spellfire reserve
8	Bonus feat
9	Haste 3/day
10	Spellfire burst 1/day

SPELLFIRE HIEROPHANT

While many characters may call themselves master of spellfire—the raw energy of the weave—such individuals are mere students compared to you.

The spellfire hierophant learns new methods of controlling and shaping spellfire that lesser mortals barely comprehend.

A spellfire hierophant can come from almost any background, though most have some previous training in the use of spellfire (such as the spellfire channeler prestige class).

Other than that class, spellcasters have the easiest time qualifying.

With the generally solitary nature of spellfire wielders, it's no surprise that spellfire hierophants tend to exist outside of normal society.

Those few who venture from their hidden lairs in the wilderness or on the planes rely on disguises and subterfuge to accomplish their goals.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a spellfire hierophant, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Concentration 24 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 12 ranks, Spellcraft 12 ranks.

Feats: Endurance, Epic Spellfire Wielder, Spellfire Wielder, Weapon Focus (spellfire).

CLASS SKILLS

The spellfire hierophant's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disguise (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Survival (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the spellfire hierophant prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Spellfire hierophants gain no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Greater Charged Item Drain (Sp): A spellfire hierophant can drain a number of charges from a touched charged item (including single-use items such as potions or scrolls), converting the energy into stored spellfire energy levels.

The limit to the number of charges she can drain is equal to her Charisma bonus (minimum 1), but she can't drain more charges than the item has remaining (each spell on a scroll counts as one charge).

A fully drained item has no magical properties (a potion becomes water, a scroll becomes blank paper).

A creature gets to make a Will save (DC = 20 + one-half class level + Charisma modifier) to prevent one of its held or carried items from being drained.

Ranged Healing (Su): At 2nd level, the spellfire hierophant gains the ability to release stored spellfire energy levels to heal at a range of up to 25 feet (plus 5 feet/2 levels).

This requires a ranged touch attack.

The amount of healing is normal for the character (either 2 points per level expended or 1d4+1 points per level expended if the character has the spellfire wielder class feature improved healing).

Haste (Su): Once per day, the spellfire hierophant can expend spellfire energy levels to accelerate her actions, just as if she had cast haste on herself.

Each spellfire energy level expended when the ability is activated allows the hierophant to act as hasted for 1 round.

The hasted hierophant sparkles with light while so affected.

For every three levels gained after 3rd, the spellfire hierophant can use this ability one additional time per day (twice at 6th level, three times per day at 9th level, and so on).

Greater Permanent Item Drain (Sp): At 5th level, a spellfire hierophant can drain power from permanent magic items by touch as a standard action.

An item that creates spell effects (such as boots of speed) loses that function for 24 hours, and the spellfire hierophant gains spellfire energy levels equal to the caster level of the item.

A creature gets to make a Will save (DC = 20 + 1/2 class level + Charisma modifier) to prevent one of its held or carried items from being drained.

An item with all its permanent abilities drained for the day is still a magic item (for purposes of making saving throws when damaged, and so on).

Spellfire Reserve (Ex): At 7th level, the spellfire hierophant learns how to store spellfire energy levels in deep reserve. These energy levels don't count as part of the character's normal storage capacity, but they also can't be used to power spellfire effects without first calling them from reserve.

Spellfire energy levels in reserve also don't detect as magical (allowing a spellfire hierophant to disguise her nature).

Placing any number of stored spellfire energy levels in reserve, or calling any number of levels from reserve into normal storage capacity, requires a full-round action.

The spellfire hierophant can store a number of energy levels in reserve equal to her class level plus her Constitution bonus (if any).

Spellfire Burst (Su): At 10th level, the spellfire hierophant can substitute a spellfire burst for a normal spellfire blast. The range remains the same, but instead of requiring a touch attack, the spellfire energy explodes in a 5-foot radius burst at the target point, dealing appropriate damage to all creatures in the area (Reflex halves; DC 20 + 1/2 class level + Charisma modifier).

This can affect as many bursts as the character would normally fire blasts in the round, but it can be used only for 1 round per day.

For every five levels gained thereafter, the spellfire hierophant can use this ability 1 additional round per day (2 rounds at 15th, 3 rounds at 20th, and so on).

If the character also has the spellfire channeler class feature maelstrom of fire, the area of the burst is a 10-foot radius instead.

Bonus Feats: The spellfire hierophant gains a bonus feat at 4th level and an additional bonus feat every four levels thereafter (8th, 12th, 16th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Energy Resistance, Epic Skill Focus (Concentration), Epic Spellfire Wielder (see New Epic Feats), Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (spellfire), Exceptional Deflection*, Fast Healing, Infinite Deflection*, Reflect Arrows*.

* The spellfire hierophant can ignore the prerequisite of Improved Unarmed Strike for these feats.

THE SPELLFIRE HIEROPHANT

Level	Special
1	Greater charged item drain
2	Ranged healing
3	Haste 1/day
4	Bonus feat
5	Greater permanent item drain
6	Haste 2/day
7	Spellfire reserve
8	Bonus feat
9	Haste 3/day
10	Spellfire burst 1/day

VOID INCARNATE

The void incarnate specializes in “not being”.

He trains himself in the art of avoiding detection and escaping danger, and he steels his body and mind to resist harm.

Eventually, the void incarnate extends this ability to the point where he can simply ignore a wide variety of physical and mental effects—much as if he weren't there at all.

Void incarnates are sometimes referred to as “blanks” or “untouchables”.

Rogues and shadowdancers make the most common void incarnates.

Few other characters have the talents to become a blank, though ex-monks who meet the prerequisites often find this class to their liking.

NPC void incarnates might as well not exist, for all that anyone can remember about them.

You could live right next door to a void incarnate and not only would you be unaware of his talents, but you also might not even know you had a neighbor at all.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a void incarnate, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Skills: Bluff 24 ranks, Escape Artist 24 ranks, Hide 24 ranks.

Feats: Great Fortitude or Iron Will or Lightning Reflexes.

Epic Feats: Dexterous Fortitude or Dexterous Will.

Special: Evasion class feature, slippery mind class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

The void incarnate's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Tumble (Dex), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the void incarnate prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The void incarnate gains no proficiency in armor or weapons.

Blank Aura (Ex): The void incarnate (and any equipment he wears or carries) radiates no aura of any kind.

Detect chaos, detect magic, and similar spells simply register him as a blank.

The void incarnate cannot lower this aura.

For every four levels gained above 1st, the void incarnate can share this aura with one additional willing creature (and its equipment) within 30 feet of the void incarnate. Granting the blank aura to one or more creatures within range is a standard action; the effect lasts for 24 hours or until the void incarnate dismisses the aura as a free action. A creature sharing the aura must remain within 30 feet of the void incarnate (regardless of line of effect) to receive the benefit of the effect.

If a creature sharing the aura leaves the range of the effect, the effect on the creature fades for the amount of time spent away from the void incarnate; moving back into range allows the creature to once again gain the aura's benefits for the remainder of the 24 hours or until the creature leaves the area again, whichever comes first.

Improved Evasion (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, when subjected to an effect that allows a Reflex save for half damage, the void incarnate takes only half damage on a failed save (and no damage on a successful save, just as with evasion).

Improved evasion can be used only if the void incarnate is wearing light armor or no armor.

Void Presence (Ex): Opponents of a void incarnate unconsciously ignore the void incarnate's presence starting at 3rd level.

They are always treated as flat-footed to the void incarnate (and thus may not apply their Dexterity modifier to AC). This lasts until the void incarnate attacks the opponent, but resumes again at the start of the void incarnate's next turn. This is a mind-affecting effect.

You can also use Bluff to create a diversion to hide as a move-equivalent action, rather than as a standard action. This ability has an interesting side effect.

Anyone attempting to use Gather Information or similar methods to learn about a void incarnate finds the task very difficult.

Increase the DC of such tasks by 20 plus the target's void incarnate class level.

Mettle of Fortitude (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, if exposed to any effect that normally allows a character to attempt a Fortitude save for a partial or half effect (such as slay living), the void incarnate suffers no effect with a successful saving throw.

Blank Mind (Ex): At 5th level, the void incarnate is protected by a mind blank effect at all times.

The void incarnate cannot lower this aura, even to accept a harmless mind-affecting spell.

For every four levels gained above 5th, the void incarnate can share this effect with one additional willing creature (and its equipment) within 30 feet of the void incarnate. Granting the blank mind to one creature is a standard action; the effect lasts for 24 hours or until the void incarnate dismisses the aura as a free action.

A creature sharing the effect must remain within 30 feet of the void incarnate (regardless of line of effect) to receive the benefit of the effect.

If a creature sharing the effect leaves the range of the effect, the effect on the creature fades for the amount of time spent away from the void incarnate; moving back into range allows the creature to once again gain the effect's benefits for the remainder of the 24 hours or until the creature leaves the area again, whichever comes first.

Mettle of Will (Ex): If exposed to any effect that normally allows a character to attempt a Will save for a partial or half effect (such as an inflict wounds spell), the 6th-level void incarnate suffers no effect with a successful saving throw. Null Strike (Ex): Once per day, a 7th-level void incarnate can declare any melee or ranged attack he makes to be a touch attack.

He may use this ability one additional time per day for every 4 levels gained above 7th.

Improved Mettle of Fortitude (Ex): By 8th level, if subjected to an effect that allows a Fortitude save for a partial or half effect, the void incarnate takes only the partial or half effect on a failed save (and no effect on a successful save, just as with mettle of fortitude).

Empty Form (Ex): A 9th-level void incarnate has a permanent freedom of movement effect (as the spell) on him at all times.

The character also becomes immune to force effects. Such effects either deal no damage (such as magic missile), don't exist for the void incarnate (such as wall of force, which the void incarnate can simply walk through), or otherwise fail to affect the void incarnate (such as mage armor).

For every four levels gained above 9th, the void incarnate can share this effect with one additional willing creature (and its equipment) within 30 feet of the void incarnate. Granting the empty form to one creature is a standard action; the effect lasts for 24 hours or until the void incarnate dismisses the aura as a free action.

A creature sharing the effect must remain within 30 feet of the void incarnate (regardless of line of effect) to receive the benefit of the effect.

If a creature sharing the effect leaves the range of the effect, the effect on the creature fades for the amount of time spent away from the void incarnate; moving back into range allows the creature to once again gain the effect's benefits for the remainder of the 24 hours or until the creature leaves the area again, whichever comes first.

Improved Mettle of Will (Ex): Beginning at 10th level, if subjected to an effect that allows a Will save for a partial or half effect, the void incarnate takes only the partial or half effect on a failed save (and no effect on a successful save, just as with mettle of will).

Ex-Void Incarnates A void incarnate who becomes lawful may not progress in levels as a void incarnate. He retains all class abilities.

The Void Incarnate

Level	Special
1	Blank aura
2	Improved evasion
3	Void presence
4	Mettle of fortitude
5	Blank mind
6	Mettle of will
7	Null strike
8	Improved mettle of fortitude
9	Empty form
10	Improved mettle of will

VOID INCARNATE

The void incarnate specializes in "not being".

He trains himself in the art of avoiding detection and escaping danger, and he steels his body and mind to resist harm.

Eventually, the void incarnate extends this ability to the point where he can simply ignore a wide variety of physical and mental effects—much as if he weren't there at all. Void incarnates are sometimes referred to as “blanks” or “untouchables”.

Rogues and shadowdancers make the most common void incarnates.

Few other characters have the talent to become a blank, though ex-monks who meet the prerequisites often find this class to their liking.

NPC void incarnates might as well not exist, for all that anyone can remember about them.

You could live right next door to a void incarnate and not only would you be unaware of his talents, but you also might not even know you had a neighbor at all.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a void incarnate, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Skills: Bluff 24 ranks, Escape Artist 24 ranks, Hide 24 ranks.

Feats: Great Fortitude or Iron Will or Lightning Reflexes.

Epic Feats: Dexterous Fortitude or Dexterous Will.

Special: Evasion class feature, slippery mind class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

The void incarnate's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Tumble (Dex), and Use Magic Device (Cha). See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the void incarnate prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The void incarnate gains no proficiency in armor or weapons.

Blank Aura (Ex): The void incarnate (and any equipment he wears or carries) radiates no aura of any kind.

Detect chaos, detect magic, and similar spells simply register him as a blank.

The void incarnate cannot lower this aura.

For every four levels gained above 1st, the void incarnate can share this aura with one additional willing creature (and its equipment) within 30 feet of the void incarnate.

Granting the blank aura to one or more creatures within range is a standard action; the effect lasts for 24 hours or until the void incarnate dismisses the aura as a free action.

A creature sharing the aura must remain within 30 feet of the void incarnate (regardless of line of effect) to receive the benefit of the effect.

If a creature sharing the aura leaves the range of the effect, the effect on the creature fades for the amount of time spent away from the void incarnate; moving back into range allows the creature to once again gain the aura's benefits for the remainder of the 24 hours or until the creature leaves the area again, whichever comes first.

Improved Evasion (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, when subjected to an effect that allows a Reflex save for half damage, the void incarnate takes only half damage on a failed save (and no damage on a successful save, just as with evasion).

Improved evasion can be used only if the void incarnate is wearing light armor or no armor.

Void Presence (Ex): Opponents of a void incarnate unconsciously ignore the void incarnate's presence starting at 3rd level.

They are always treated as flat-footed to the void incarnate (and thus may not apply their Dexterity modifier to AC).

This lasts until the void incarnate attacks the opponent, but resumes again at the start of the void incarnate's next turn. This is a mind-affecting effect.

You can also use Bluff to create a diversion to hide as a move-equivalent action, rather than as a standard action.

This ability has an interesting side effect.

Anyone attempting to use Gather Information or similar methods to learn about a void incarnate finds the task very difficult.

Increase the DC of such tasks by 20 plus the target's void incarnate class level.

Mettle of Fortitude (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, if exposed to any effect that normally allows a character to attempt a Fortitude save for a partial or half effect (such as slay living), the void incarnate suffers no effect with a successful saving throw.

Blank Mind (Ex): At 5th level, the void incarnate is protected by a mind blank effect at all times.

The void incarnate cannot lower this aura, even to accept a harmless mind-affecting spell.

For every four levels gained above 5th, the void incarnate can share this effect with one additional willing creature (and its equipment) within 30 feet of the void incarnate.

Granting the blank mind to one creature is a standard action; the effect lasts for 24 hours or until the void incarnate dismisses the aura as a free action.

A creature sharing the effect must remain within 30 feet of the void incarnate (regardless of line of effect) to receive the benefit of the effect.

If a creature sharing the effect leaves the range of the effect, the effect on the creature fades for the amount of time spent away from the void incarnate; moving back into range allows the creature to once again gain the effect's benefits for the remainder of the 24 hours or until the creature leaves the area again, whichever comes first.

Mettle of Will (Ex): If exposed to any effect that normally allows a character to attempt a Will save for a partial or half effect (such as an inflict wounds spell), the 6th-level void incarnate suffers no effect with a successful saving throw.

Null Strike (Ex): Once per day, a 7th-level void incarnate can declare any melee or ranged attack he makes to be a touch attack.

He may use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels gained above 7th.

Improved Mettle of Fortitude (Ex): By 8th level, if subjected to an effect that allows a Fortitude save for a partial or half effect, the void incarnate takes only the partial or half effect on a failed save (and no effect on a successful save, just as with mettle of fortitude).

Empty Form (Ex): A 9th-level void incarnate has a permanent freedom of movement effect (as the spell) on him at all times.

The character also becomes immune to force effects.

Such effects either deal no damage (such as magic missile), don't exist for the void incarnate (such as wall of force, which the void incarnate can simply walk through), or otherwise fail to affect the void incarnate (such as mage armor). For every four levels gained above 9th, the void incarnate can share this effect with one additional willing creature (and its equipment) within 30 feet of the void incarnate. Granting the empty form to one creature is a standard action; the effect lasts for 24 hours or until the void incarnate dismisses the aura as a free action.

A creature sharing the effect must remain within 30 feet of the void incarnate (regardless of line of effect) to receive the benefit of the effect.

If a creature sharing the effect leaves the range of the effect, the effect on the creature fades for the amount of time spent away from the void incarnate; moving back into range allows the creature to once again gain the effect's benefits for the remainder of the 24 hours or until the creature leaves the area again, whichever comes first.

Improved Mettle of Will (Ex): Beginning at 10th level, if subjected to an effect that allows a Will save for a partial or half effect, the void incarnate takes only the partial or half effect on a failed save (and no effect on a successful save, just as with mettle of will).

EX-VOID INCARNATES

A void incarnate who becomes lawful may not progress in levels as a void incarnate.

He retains all class abilities.

THE VOID INCARNATE

Level	Special
1	Blank aura
2	Improved evasion
3	Void presence
4	Mettle of fortitude
5	Blank mind
6	Mettle of will
7	Null strike
8	Improved mettle of fortitude
9	Empty form
10	Improved mettle of will

WARLORD OF UTTERDARK

The warlord of utterdark is the personification of evil. He may be cold and calculating or savage and brutal, but one fact remains crystal clear: He is evil incarnate and the sworn foe of all who hold good and mercy dear to their hearts.

The path of utterdark attracts fighters, barbarians, rangers, monks, and even fallen paladins.

However, most warlords of utterdark come from the ranks of blackguards or warriors of darkness (see the Book of Vile Darkness).

A warlord of utterdark can rule an army of like-minded individuals, or he may serve an even more powerful master of evil, whether mortal or divine.

They care nothing for rank or personal honor—only the performance of vile deeds upon innocents interests them.

Hit Die: d10.

Requirements To qualify to become a warlord of utterdark, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +21.

Skills: Alchemy 12 ranks, Hide 15 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 9 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 9 ranks, Speak Language (Abyssal and Infernal), Spellcraft 6 ranks.

Feats: Cleave, Evil Brand, Great Cleave, Iron Will, Power Attack, Sunder, Vile Martial Strike (or Vile Ki Strike or Vile Natural Attack).

Special: The character must endure a month-long ritual of black magic performed by an evil spellcaster of at least 21st level or an evil outsider of at least 21 HD.

Class Skills The warlord of utterdark's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Scry (Int), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Class Features All of the following are class features of the warlord of utterdark prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A warlord of utterdark gains proficiency with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Darkvision (Ex): At 1st level, the warlord of utterdark gains darkvision 120 feet.

This overlaps (but does not stack with) any darkvision the character may already possess.

Bulwark of Evil (Su): The warlord of utterdark gains a +1 profane bonus to saves against good spells.

All evil allies within 30 feet of the warlord share this save bonus.

The profane bonus increases by +1 every four levels thereafter (+2 at 5th level, +3 at 9th level, and so on).

The warlord of utterdark radiates evil as if he were an evil outsider.

Vile Strike (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, the warlord of utterdark deals 1 additional point of vile damage with any weapon or natural weapon attack.

This additional vile damage increases by 1 additional point for every four levels gained thereafter (6th, 10th, and so on).

Dark God's Blessing (Su): At 3rd level, the warlord of utterdark can apply a +5 luck bonus to a single attack roll, skill check, ability check, or saving throw once per day.

Using this ability is a free action but must be declared before the roll is made.

At 7th level, and every four levels thereafter, the warlord of utterdark can call upon this blessing one additional time per day (twice at 7th level, three times at 11th, four times at 15th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The warlord of utterdark gains a bonus feat at 4th level and an additional bonus feat every 4 levels thereafter (8th, 12th, 16th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Poison Crafter (new feat; see above), Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Will, Improved Darkvision, Legendary Commander, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health.

Warlord of Utterdark

Level	Special
1	Darkvision, bulwark of evil +1
2	Vile strike +1
3	Dark god's blessing 1/day
4	Bonus feat
5	Bulwark of evil +2
6	Vile strike +2
7	Dark god's blessing 2/day
8	Bonus feat
9	Bulwark of evil +3
10	Vile strike +3

WARLORD OF UTTERDARK

The warlord of utterdark is the personification of evil. He may be cold and calculating or savage and brutal, but one fact remains crystal clear: He is evil incarnate and the sworn foe of all who hold good and mercy dear to their hearts.

The path of utterdark attracts fighters, barbarians, rangers, monks, and even fallen paladins.

However, most warlords of utterdark come from the ranks of blackguards or warriors of darkness (see the Book of Vile Darkness).

A warlord of utterdark can rule an army of likeminded individuals, or he may serve an even more powerful master of evil, whether mortal or divine.

They care nothing for rank or personal honor—only the performance of vile deeds upon innocents interests them. Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a warlord of utterdark, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +21.

Skills: Craft (alchemy) 12 ranks, Hide 15 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 9 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 9 ranks, Speak Language (Abyssal and Infernal), Spellcraft 6 ranks.

Feats: Cleave, Evil Brand, Great Cleave, Improved Sunder, Iron Will, Power Attack, Vile Martial Strike (or Vile Ki Strike or Vile Natural Attack).

Special: The character must endure a month-long ritual of black magic performed by an evil spellcaster of at least 21st level or an evil outsider of at least 21 HD.

CLASS SKILLS

The warlord of utterdark's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the warlord of utterdark prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A warlord of utterdark gains proficiency with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Darkvision (Ex): At 1st level, the warlord of utterdark gains darkvision 120 feet.

This overlaps (but does not stack with) any darkvision the character may already possess.

Bulwark of Evil (Su): The warlord of utterdark gains a +1 profane bonus to saves against good spells.

All evil allies within 30 feet of the warlord share this save bonus.

The profane bonus increases by +1 every four levels thereafter (+2 at 5th level, +3 at 9th level, and so on).

The warlord of utterdark radiates evil as if he were an evil outsider.

Vile Strike (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, the warlord of utterdark deals 1 additional point of vile damage with any weapon or natural weapon attack.

This additional vile damage increases by 1 additional point for every four levels gained thereafter (6th, 10th, and so on).

Dark God's Blessing (Su): At 3rd level, the warlord of utterdark can apply a +5 luck bonus to a single attack roll, skill check, ability check, or saving throw once per day.

Using this ability is a free action but must be declared before the roll is made.

At 7th level, and every four levels thereafter, the warlord of utterdark can call upon this blessing one additional time per day (twice at 7th level, three times at 11th, four times at 15th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The warlord of utterdark gains a bonus feat at 4th level and an additional bonus feat every four levels thereafter (8th, 12th, 16th, and so on).

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Poison Crafter (see New Epic Feats), Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Will, Improved Darkvision, Legendary Commander, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health.

THE WARLORD OF UTTERDARK

Level	Special
1	Darkvision, bulwark of evil +1
2	Vile strike +1
3	Dark god's blessing 1/day
4	Bonus feat
5	Bulwark of evil +2
6	Vile strike +2
7	Dark god's blessing 2/day
8	Bonus feat
9	Bulwark of evil +3
10	Vile strike +3

WORLDWALKER

The worldwalker is a planetouched character that travels far and wide across the planes of existence.

He draws power from each new realm he discovers and gains strength as he slowly masters the unique magic and energy inherent in each realm.

Doing so further enhances his own body and mind, which slowly grows more and more akin to his outsider or elemental ancestors.

Most worldwalkers are multiclass characters, usually with several levels of monk (the usual restriction on multiclass monks applies to this class), ranger, rogue, or sorcerer, although any planetouched character that is self-sufficient and willing to travel to numerous realms can eventually gain the skills required to become a worldwalker.

Druids are perhaps the rarest worldwalkers, since they often prefer to remain in regions they favor rather than explore other planes.

NPC worldwalkers are often oracles, seers, mystics, or other mysterious and unknowable figures, and they frequently settle for several decades in a rural or wilderness area to rest for a while before beginning their travels anew.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a worldwalker, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Race: Any planetouched (or the perfect self class feature).

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 24 ranks, Survival 24 ranks.

Feats: Self-Sufficient.

Epic Feats: Epic Skill Focus (Knowledge [the planes]).

Special: Must have visited at least 6 different Outer Planes for at least 30 days each.

Worldwalker Infusions

Level + Cha Modifier	Effect
1	+4 bonus to any one skill (may be chosen more than once, but must apply to a different skill each selection)
2	+4 bonus to Initiative checks
3	Spell-like ability: 1st-level cleric spell
4	Spell-like ability: 1st-level sorcerer spell
5	Bonus Feat (selected from the list of bonus worldwalker feats)
6	Spell-like ability: 2nd-level cleric spell
7	Spell-like ability: 2nd-level sorcerer spell
8	+2 bonus to an ability score
9	Spell-like ability: 3rd-level cleric spell
10	Spell-like ability: 3rd-level sorcerer spell
11	Bonus Feat (selected from any feat for which the character meets the prerequisites)
12	Spell-like ability: 4th-level cleric spell
13	Spell-like ability: 4th-level sorcerer spell
14	+4 bonus to one saving throw (you may select this infusion up to three times; each time it must apply to a different saving throw)
15	Spell-like ability: 5th-level cleric spell
16	Spell-like ability: 5th-level sorcerer spell
17	+4 dodge bonus to Armor Class
18	Spell-like ability: 6th-level cleric spell
19	Spell-like ability: 6th-level sorcerer spell
20	+4 bonus to an ability score

His worldwalker level plus his Charisma modifier determines the total number and power of infusions he can choose.

He can't choose the same infusion more than once, unless the infusion specifically states that it allows multiple selections.

Many infusions grant spell-like abilities.

Saving throw DCs for these spell-like abilities are equal 10 + the spell's level + his Charisma modifier; caster level equals his worldwalker level.

CLASS SKILLS

The worldwalker's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Diplomacy (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Speak Language (none), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the worldwalker prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Worldwalkers gains no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Planar Infusion: At 1st level, a worldwalker's outsider blood and heritage absorbs the ambient magical energies he is exposed to during his travels.

These energies reshape and augment the worldwalker's body, mind, and soul, purifying him and magnifying the traits he inherited from his elemental or outsider ancestors.

The worldwalker chooses one infusion from the table below at 1st level, and then again every additional 3 levels (at 4th level, 7th level, 10th level, and so on).

A worldwalker can use the spell-like ability once per day. He can never have more than one cleric spell-like ability or one sorcerer spell-like ability per spell level.

Bonus Feats: The worldwalker gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of worldwalker feats) at 2nd level and every 3 levels after that.

Epic Worldwalker Bonus Feat List: Additional Magic Item Space, Energy Resistance, Epic Endurance, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Extended Life Span, Holy Strike, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Negative Energy Burst, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Health, Planar Turning, Polyglot, Positive Energy Aura, Unholy Strike.

Favored Plane: At 3rd level, and again every 3 levels thereafter (at 6th, 9th, 12th, and so on), the worldwalker selects one plane of existence he has personally visited. From this point on, the worldwalker is treated as a native of that plane (not an extraplanar creature) when on that plane. Additionally, while on a favored plane, a worldwalker gains a +4 morale bonus on all Will saving throws and Charisma-based skill checks.

Worldwalker
Level	Special
1	Planar infusion
2	Bonus feat
3	Favored plane
4	Planar infusion
5	Bonus feat
6	Favored plane
7	Planar infusion
8	Bonus feat
9	Favored plane
10	Planar infusion

PLAYER'S GUIDE TO FAERÛN (3.5)

NETHERESE ARCANIST

The archwizards of ancient Netheril were arguably the greatest human spellcasters in all of Faerûn's history, though the elves often point out that the Netherese learned all they knew from elf wizards.

But even so, the spellcasters of Netheril were renowned for the mighty magic under their control—spells that could shear the tops from mountains and levitate them in the air to serve as floating enclaves.

Some say that these archwizards even had access to a spell that could make a man into a god.

The Netherese arcanist is a pioneer of epic spellcasting who focuses his efforts on mastering the secrets of spells that go beyond ordinary limits.

Most members of this prestige class died when their floating enclaves plummeted from the sky and their mighty empire crumbled into the desert of Anauroch, though at least one still survives as a lich.

But two means remain by which modern-day wizards and sorcerers can approach the techniques of ancient Netheril. They can explore lost Netherese ruins and find records of the arcanists' forgotten secrets, or they can visit the living heirs of those powerful spellcasters—the shades.

Among the shades, Netherese arcanists are once again rising to a level of prominence in society, to the great concern of their neighbors.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a Netherese arcanist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Race: Human (including human undead) or shade.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 25 ranks, Spellcraft 25 ranks.

Feats: Improved Metamagic, Improved Spellcasting.

Spells: Able to cast 13th-level arcane spells.

Special: Traditions of Netheril: The candidate must have access to the ancient magical traditions of Netheril.

A lich or a shade character from the Empire of Shade meets this criterion, or (at the DM's discretion) another character who has unearthed ancient Netherese lore might also qualify.

CLASS SKILLS

The Netherese arcanist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Decipher Script (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Speak Language (None), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the Netherese arcanist.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Netherese arcanists gain no proficiency with any weapon, armor, or shield.

Armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Sleight of Hand, and Tumble, and double the normal armor check penalty applies to Swim checks.

Epic Spellcasting: At 1st level, the Netherese arcanist gains Epic Spellcasting as a bonus feat if he does not already have it.

Field Specialization: Every Netherese arcanist chooses one of three "fields" of magic—invention, mentalism, or variation—for his major field of specialization.

He also chooses one of the remaining two fields as his minor field.

He cannot cast spells based on seeds from the third field. The epic spell seeds covered by each field are given in the table below.

Field	Seeds
Invention	afflict, armor, conjure, destroy, energy, slay, summon
Mentalism	banish, compel, conceal, contact, delude, foresee, reveal
Variation	animate, animate dead, dispel, fortify, reflect, transform, transport, ward

The base Spellcraft DC for developing spells in the arcanist's major field of specialization is reduced by 5, as though it were within the caster's specialist school.

If it already is within the caster's specialist school, there is no additional benefit.

Spell Focus (Epic): At 2nd level, the saving throw DC for each of a Netherese arcanist's epic spells increases by 1, but the Spellcraft DC does not increase.

Backlash Resistance (Su): At 3rd level, a Netherese arcanist gains resistance 5 to backlash damage from casting epic spells.

Each time he casts an epic spell with a backlash, that damage is reduced by 5 points.

If the backlash damage continues for more than 1 round, the reduction is 5 points each round.

Epic Spell Artisan: At 4th level, a Netherese arcanist gains the ability to develop epic spells with less expense in time and resources.

When determining the cost of raw materials for researching an epic spell, he multiplies the Spellcraft DC by 7,000 gp instead of the usual 9,000 gp and reduces the development time and XP cost accordingly. Greater Spell Focus (Epic): At 5th level, the saving throw DC for each of a Netherese arcanist's epic spells increases by 1, but the Spellcraft DC does not increase. This increase stacks with that provided by his Spell Focus (epic) ability, for a net increase of +2.

TABLE 5—II: THE NETHERESE ARCANIST

Class Level	Special
1st	Epic Spellcasting, field specialization
2nd	Spell Focus (epic)
3rd	Backlash resistance 5
4th	Epic spell artisan
5th	Greater Spell Focus (epic)

SPELLFIRE HIEROPHANT

While many characters may call themselves master of spellfire—the raw energy of the Weave—such individuals are mere students compared to the spellfire hierophant. This master of the Weave learns new methods of controlling and shaping spellfire that lesser mortals barely comprehend.

A spellfire hierophant can come from almost any background, though most have some previous training in the use of spellfire.

The spellfire channeler prestige class (see Magic of Faerûn) provides the lion's share of the candidates for this prestige class; otherwise, spellcasters have the easiest time qualifying.

Considering the generally solitary nature of spellfire wielders, it's no surprise that spellfire hierophants tend to exist outside of normal society.

Those few who venture from their hidden lairs in the wilderness or on other planes usually rely on disguises and subterfuge to accomplish their goals.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a spellfire hierophant, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Concentration 24 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 12 ranks, Spellcraft 12 ranks.

Feats: Endurance, Epic Spellfire Wielder, Spellfire Wielder, Weapon Focus (spellfire).

CLASS SKILLS

The spellfire hierophant's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disguise (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Survival (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the spellfire hierophant prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Spellfire hierophants gain no proficiency with any weapon, armor, or shield.

Armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump,

Move Silently, Sleight of Hand, and Tumble, and double the normal armor check penalty applies to Swim checks. Greater Charged Item Drain (Sp): A spellfire hierophant can drain a number of charges from a touched charged item (including single-use items such as potions or scrolls) and convert that energy into stored spellfire energy levels. She can drain a number of charges equal to her Charisma bonus (minimum 1), but she can't drain more charges than the item has remaining.

(Each spell on a scroll counts as 1 charge).

A fully drained item has no magical properties—a potion becomes water, and a scroll becomes blank paper.

A creature holding or carrying such an item may attempt a Will save (DC 20 + 1/2 spellfire hierophant level + spellfire hierophant's Cha modifier) to prevent the item from being drained.

Ranged Healing (Su): At 2nd level, the spellfire hierophant can release stored spellfire energy levels to heal at a range of up to 25 feet + 5 feet per two caster levels.

Using this ability requires a successful ranged touch attack. The amount of healing is normal for the character (either 2 points per spellfire energy level expended, or 1d4+1 points per spellfire energy level expended if the character has the improved healing class feature of the spellfire channeler).

Haste (Su): Once per day, a spellfire hierophant of 3rd level or higher can expend spellfire energy levels to accelerate her actions, just as if she had cast haste on herself.

She must decide how many levels to spend upon activation of the ability.

Each spellfire energy level she spends allows her to function as though affected by a haste spell for 1 round, and she sparkles with light while this ability is in effect.

The spellfire hierophant can use this ability twice per day at 6th level and three times per day at 9th level.

Bonus Feats: At 4th level and again at 8th level, the spellfire hierophant gains a bonus feat selected from the following list: Energy Resistance, Epic Skill Focus (Concentration), Epic Spellfire Wielder, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (spellfire), Exceptional Deflection*, Fast Healing, Infinite Deflection*, Reflect Arrows*.

She must meet all of a feat's prerequisites in order to select it, except as noted below.

* The spellfire hierophant can ignore the prerequisite of Improved Unarmed Strike for these feats.

 New epic feat; see page 135.

Greater Permanent Item Drain (Sp): At 5th level, a spellfire hierophant can drain power from permanent magic items by touch as a standard action.

An item that creates a spell effect (such as boots of speed) loses that function for 24 hours, and the spellfire hierophant gains spellfire energy levels equal to the item's caster level.

A creature holding or carrying such an item may attempt a Will save (DC 20 + 1/2 spellfire hierophant level + spellfire hierophant's Cha modifier) to prevent the item from being drained.

If all of an item's permanent abilities are drained, it is still a magic item for the purpose of making saving throws when damaged, and so on.

Spellfire Reserve (Ex): At 7th level, the spellfire hierophant learns how to store spellfire energy levels in deep reserve. These energy levels don't count as part of her normal storage capacity, but they also can't be used to power spellfire effects without first calling them out of reserve.

Spellfire energy levels in reserve don't detect as magical, so a spellfire hierophant's true nature cannot be determined by detecting them.

Placing any number of stored spellfire energy levels in reserve requires a full-round action, as does calling any number out of reserve into normal storage capacity.

The spellfire hierophant can hold a number of spellfire energy levels to her spellfire hierophant level plus her Constitution bonus (if any) in reserve.

Spellfire Burst (Su): At 10th level, the spellfire hierophant can substitute a spellfire burst for a normal spellfire blast. The range remains the same, but instead of requiring a touch attack, the spellfire energy explodes in a 5-foot-radius burst at the target point, dealing appropriate damage to all creatures in the area.

Each affected creature may attempt a Reflex save (DC 20 + 1/2 spellfire hierophant level + spellfire hierophant's Cha modifier) to halve the damage.

The character can substitute bursts for as many blasts as she would normally fire in a round, but she can use the ability for only 1 round per day.

For every 5 levels gained thereafter, the spellfire hierophant can use this ability for 1 additional round per day (2 rounds at 15th, 3 rounds at 20th, and so on).

If the character also has the maelstrom of fire class feature of the spellfire channeler, the area of the burst is a 10-foot radius.

TABLE 5-12:

THE SPELLFIRE HIEROPHANT

Class Level	Special
1st	Greater charged item drain
2nd	Ranged healing
3rd	Haste 1/day
4th	Bonus feat
5th	Greater permanent item drain
6th	Haste 2/day
7th	Spellfire reserve
8th	Bonus feat
9th	Haste 3/day
10th	Spellfire burst 1/day

RACES OF FAERÛN (3.5)

ELVEN HIGH MAGE

Elves study magic with a matchless passion.

But even among the elves, the high mages are regarded as obsessed with the accumulation of arcane power.

Elven high mages are the masters of creating their own epic spells—mythals that can grow to engulf entire cities.

Learning the secrets of epic magic is the culmination of any arcanist's career, and the elves are very selective about who can learn such potent lore.

Existing high mages often observe high mage candidates for a decade or more, probing for the faintest hint of unworthiness.

So far, their extreme secrecy has worked.

Less than a dozen elves even know where the lore of elven high magic is even kept, much less how to actually cast an epic spell.

All elven high mages are sun elves, moon elves, or wood elves, and all are powerful wizards or sorcerers.

No one else can learn the elves' greatest magical secrets. NPC high mages spend their time developing new epic spells, organizing searches for lost elven lore, or taking steps to ensure that elven secrets stay secret.

PC high mages will find that being a high mage is a full-time job, making adventuring a challenge.

But due to their considerable personal power, elven high mages often wind up on the front lines of the defense of the elven people.

The elven high mage prestige class makes use of material found in Epic Level Handbook, since any elven high mage is by definition an epic-level character.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an elven high mage, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Race: Sun elf, moon elf, or wood elf.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 25 ranks, Spellcraft 25 ranks.

Feats: Epic Skill Focus [Knowledge (arcana)], Epic Skill Focus (Spellcraft).

Spellcasting: Able to cast 9th-level arcane spells.

Special: Must survive scrutiny and meet with the approval of all existing elven high mages.

CLASS SKILLS

The elven high mage's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (any) (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Knowledge (any) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language, and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the elven high mage.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The elven high mage gains no proficiencies in weapons or armor.

Spells Per Day/Spells Known: Starting at 1st level and every other elven high mage level thereafter (1st, 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 9th), the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

If already an epic spellcaster, the character gains only the benefit noted under the Spells entry for that epic class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit that a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

If the character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming an elven high mage, the player must decide to which class to add the new level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Seed Affinity (Ex): The elven high mage's studies have provided insight into the finer points of epic spell creation. Whenever this class feature is attained (at 1st, 3rd, 6th, and 8th levels), the elven high mage chooses an epic spell seed from the list in Chapter 2 of the Epic Level Handbook.

The base Spellcraft DC for epic spells created with this seed is two lower, so the elven high mage can achieve powerful epic spells at lower levels.

For example, an elven mage who chooses the banish seed (normally DC 27) will gain quicker access to all epic spells that use the banish seed, because the base Spellcraft DC will be 25, not 27, and the elven mage will be able to achieve a given effect two levels earlier than other epic spellcasters.

Mythal Invention (Ex): Whenever the elven high mage attains this class feature (at 2nd, 4th, 7th, and 9th levels), she may develop a single epic spell for 75% of the normal development cost in gold, time, and experience points.

The elven high mage doesn't have to develop an epic spell right away, but if she attains this class feature again before she develops an epic spell, the previous benefit is lost.

For example, an elven high mage who attains a mythal invention at 2nd level must use it before 4th level, when the next mythal invention is available.

Bonus Feat (Ex): The elven high mage gains a bonus feat at 5th level and an additional bonus feat every five levels thereafter.

These bonus feats must be selected from the following list: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Combat Casting, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spellcasting, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Focus, Spell Knowledge, Spell Mastery, Spell Opportunity, Spell Penetration, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Spell.

TABLE A—9: THE ELVEN HIGH MAGE

Class
Level	Special	Spells Per Day/Spells Known
1st	Seed affinity	+1 level of existing class
2nd	Mythal invention	—
3rd	Seed affinity	+1 level of existing class
4th	Mythal invention	—
5th	Bonus Feat	+1 level of existing class
6th	Seed affinity	—
7th	Mythal invention	+1 level of existing class
8th	Seed affinity	—
9th	Mythal invention	+1 level of existing class
10th	Bonus Feat	—

EPIC PROGRESSIONS

COMPLETE ADVENTURER (3.5)

DUNGEON DELVER

If you plan on venturing into trap-infested dungeon complexes, there's no one better to take along than the epic dungeon delver.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier.

Trap Sense (Ex): An epic dungeon delver's bonus on Reflex saves to avoid traps and his dodge bonus to AC against traps increase by 1 for every three levels above 10th.

Augury (Sp): An epic dungeon delver can use augury one additional time per day for every three levels above 9th.

Skill Mastery (Ex): An epic dungeon delver can apply the effect of skill mastery to one additional class skill each time he attains a new level.

Blindsense (Ex): An epic dungeon delver can use blindsense one additional time per day for every five levels above 10th.

Bonus Feats: An epic dungeon delver gains a bonus feat every three levels above 10th.

Dungeon Delver Class Level	Special
11th	Skill Mastery
12th	Augury 4/day
13th	Bonus feat, trap sense +5
14th	—
15th	Augury 5/day, blindsense 3/day
16th	Bonus feat, trap sense +6
17th	—
18th	Augury 6/day
19th	Bonus feat, trap sense +7
20th	Blindsense 4/day

COMPLETE ARCANE (3.5)

MAGE OF THE ARCANE ORDER

An epic mage of the Arcane Order displays a great thirst for arcane knowledge.

His associations with his guild and the Spellpool grow to new heights.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: An epic mage of the Arcane Order's caster level increases by one for each new mage of the arcane order level he attains.

A mage of the Arcane Order's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

If a mage of the Arcane Order memorizes his spells from a book (as a wizard does), then each time he achieves a new spell level he learns two new spells of any level that he can cast.

Bonus Language: For every four levels higher than 10th (14th, 18th, and so on), a mage of the Arcane Order gains another bonus language.

Bonus Feats: An epic mage of the Arcane Order gains a bonus feat every four levels after 10th.

Spellpool: If you have access to the Epic Level Handbook, an epic mage of the Arcane Order can also call epic spells from the Spellpool as long as he has the Epic Spellcasting feat.

Treat epic spells as 10th-level spells for the purpose of accumulating Spellpool debt.

A DM might wish to rule that certain epic spells are unavailable to an epic mage of the Arcane Order on a case-by-case basis.

WARLOCK

A being of fell magic, an epic warlock is a supernatural force incarnate, losing all but the smallest fragment of his humanity.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Invocations: The epic warlock's caster level is equal to his class level.

He does not learn additional invocations.

Eldritch Blast: The epic warlock's eldritch blast damage increases by 1d6 at every even-numbered level higher than 20th (12d6 at 22nd level, 13d6 at 24th level, and so on).

Damage Reduction: The epic warlock's damage reduction increases by 1 point (to 6/cold iron) at 23rd level and by 1 additional point every four levels thereafter (7/cold iron at 27th, 8/cold iron at 31st, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic warlock gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, 29th, and so on).

WARMAGE

An epic warmage has perfected the art of destruction and devastation through his magic, able to lay waste to entire armies and cities with horrifying ease.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: An epic warmage's caster level is equal to his class level.

The warmage's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level, but he can learn additional spells through the advanced learning class feature (see below).

Advanced Learning (Ex): At 21st level and every four levels after (25th, 29th, and so on), the epic warmage can continue to add new spells to his spell list.

Spells added must be sorcerer/wizard spells of the evocation school.

Once added, they become a part of that warmage's spell list to be cast like any other spell.

Bonus Feats: The epic warmage gains a bonus feat at 23rd level and at every three levels after (26th, 29th, and so on).

Bonus feats must be chosen from the following list, and can be selected even if the warmage does not meet the prerequisites.

Epic Warmage Bonus Feats: Automatic Silent Spell*, Automatic Still Spell*, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell*, Epic Spell Focus*, Epic Spell Penetration*, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting*, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff*, Master Wand*, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spellcasting Harrier, Tenacious Magic.

* Feats marked with an asterisk are presented under Epic Feats, below.

See page 209 of the Dungeon Master's Guide (as well as the Epic Level Handbook) for descriptions and information on other epic feats.

WU JEN

The epic wu jen continues to grow apart from society, her mighty powers and strange ways becoming even more frightening to those uninitiated into the mysteries of arcane magic.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: An epic wu jen's caster level is equal to her class level.

The wu jen's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level, but each time the wu jen achieves a new level, she learns two new spells of any spell level that she can cast.

Spell Secret: Every three levels after 18th (21st, 24th, 27th, and so on), the epic wu jen can select one additional spell known to her to become modified as though affected by one of the following feats: Enlarge Spell, Extend Spell, Still Spell, or Silent Spell.

The spell's level does not change, and once the spell and the modification are chosen, they cannot be changed.

As the wu jen goes up in level, she can choose the same spell to be modified in different ways with multiple spell secrets.

She does not need to know a feat in order to apply its effect to the spell.

Each time a new spell secret is learned, the wu jen must also choose an additional taboo (see page 16).

Bonus Feats: The epic wu jen gains a bonus feat every three levels after 20th (23rd, 26th, 29th, and so on).

Bonus feats must be chosen from the following list, and can be selected even if the wu jen does not meet the prerequisites.

Epic Wu Jen Bonus Feats: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell*, Automatic Silent Spell*, Automatic Still Spell*, Enhance Spell*, Epic Spell Focus*, Epic Spell Penetration*, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting*, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Superior Initiative, Tenacious Magic.

* Feats marked with an asterisk are presented under Epic Feats, below.

See page 209 of the Dungeon Master's Guide (as well as the Epic Level Handbook) for descriptions and information on other epic feats.

COMPLETE DIVINE (3.5)

HOLY LIBERATOR

An epic holy liberator displays an incredible devotion to the cause of freedom.

His implacable quest to overthrow tyranny shall not be easily thwarted.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Smite Evil (Su): The holy liberator adds his class level to damage with any smite evil attack, as normal.

He can smite one additional time per day for every fire levels higher than 10th (4/day at 15th, 5/day at 20th, and so on).

Spells: A holy liberator's caster level is equal to his class level.

A holy liberator's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Break Enchantment (Sp): A holy liberator can use break enchantment one additional time per week for every four levels higher than 10th (3/day at 14th, 4/day at 18th, and so on).

Celestial Companion (Sp): A holy liberator's celestial companion continues to increase in power.

Once a holy liberator becomes an epic character, at every five levels higher than 20th (25th, 30th, 35th, and so on), the companion gains +2 bonus Hit Dice, its natural armor increases by +1, its Dexterity adjustment increases by +1, and its Intelligence increases by +1.

The companion's spell resistance equals the holy liberator's class level +10.

Bonus Feats: An epic holy liberator gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic holy liberator feats) every three levels after 10th.

COMPLETE PSIONIC (3.5)

ARDENT

At epic levels, an ardent continues to gain access to new mantles, albeit at a much slower rate, representing his devotion to understanding the myriad philosophies that make up the multiverse.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Powers: An epic ardent's manifester level is equal to his ardent level.

An ardent's base power points do not increase after 20th level (except through the use of epic feats).

Each time an ardent attains a new level, he learns one new power from an existing mantle that he can manifest.

New Mantles: An ardent continues to gain access to new mantles at higher levels, although his rate of accrual slows. He gains access to a new mantle at 21st level and every seven levels after 20th (one at 27th level, one at 34th level, and so on).

Bonus Feats: An epic ardent gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

DIVINE MIND

An epic divine mind becomes one of the foremost aspects of his deity.

He is a creature charged with psychodeific energy, a divine aspect incarnate.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Powers: An epic divine mind's manifester level is equal to his divine mind level minus 4.

A divine mind's base power points do not increase after 20th level (except through the use of epic feats).

Psychic Aura: A divine mind's psychic aura ability continues to expand in area after 20th level.

At 22nd level and every 2 levels thereafter, the radius of the psychic aura increases by 5 feet.

Mantles: A divine mind's ability to wear more than one mantle simultaneously continues to improve.

At 30th level, he can don or change a single mantle as a free action.

At 40th level, he can don or change two of his mantles as free actions.

At 50th level, he can don or change all his mantles as free actions.

ERUDITE

The myriad powers of an epic erudite converge and crystallize in his mind, granting him unparalleled depths of psionic mastery.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Powers: An epic erudite's manifester level is equal to his erudite level.

An epic erudite's base power points do not increase after 20th level (except through the use of epic feats).

Each time an erudite attains a new level, he learns two new powers of any level or levels that he can manifest.

Unique Powers: An epic erudite's number of unique powers per day continues to increase after 20th level, but at a reduced rate.

At 25th level and every five levels thereafter, an erudite can manifest one additional unique power.

Thus, a 25th-level erudite can manifest twelve unique powers per day, a 30th-level erudite can manifest thirteen unique powers per day, and soon.

Psicrystal: An epic erudite's psicrystal continues to increase in power.

At every odd-numbered level higher than 20th (21st, 23rd, and so on), a psicrystal's natural armor bonus and Intelligence each increase by 1.

The psicrystal's power resistance is equal to an erudite's psionic class level + 5.

At 21st level and again every 10 levels thereafter, a psicrystal gains the benefit of the Psicrystal Power epic feat (EPH 34) for a power of its master's choice.

Bonus Feats: An epic erudite gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

LURK

The dangerous thrusts employed by a lurk become even more lethal, making the character a true angel of death.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Powers: An epic lurk's manifester level is equal to her lurk level.

A lurk's base power points and powers known do not increase after 20th level (except through the use of epic feats).

Lurk Augment: An epic lurk continues to gain additional uses of her lurk augment after 20th level.

Her total number of augments each day is equal to her lurk level + 3.

Focused Sneak Attack: An epic lurk continues to increase her focused sneak attack after 20th level.

At 22nd level and every five levels thereafter, a lurk's focused sneak attack deals an additional 1d6 points of damage (+5d6 at 22nd level, +6d6 at 27th level, and so on).

Bonus Feats: An epic lurk gains a bonus feat at 22nd level and every four levels thereafter (26th, 30th, and so on).

COMPLETE WARRIOR (3.5)

FRENZIED BERSERKER

Few mortal beings can surpass the destructive capabilities of the epic frenzied berserker.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Frenzy: An epic frenzied berserker may enter a frenzy one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 9th (6/day at 11th, 7/day at 13th, and so forth).

Inspire Frenzy: An epic frenzied berserker may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 10th (4/day at 12th, 5/day at 14th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: An epic frenzied berserker gains a bonus feat every three levels beyond 10th (13th, 16th, 19th, and so on).

DUNGEON MASTER'S GUIDE 1 3.5 (3.5)

BARBARIAN

An epic barbarian is a terror to behold.

The very incarnation of rage, this furious warrior can cut his opponents to ribbons with awe-inspiring ease.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Barbarian Rage: The epic barbarian gains one use of rage per day every four levels higher than 20th (7/day at 24th, 8/day at 28th, and so on).

Trap Sense (Ex): The epic barbarian's bonus increases by +1 every three levels higher than 18th (+7 at 21st, +8 at 24th, and so on).

Damage Reduction (Ex): The epic barbarian's damage reduction increases by 1 point every three levels higher than 19th (6/- at 22nd, 7/- at 25th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic barbarian gains a bonus feat every four levels higher than 20th (24th, 28th, and so on).

BARD

An epic bard's music can move even the cruelest, most soulless creature, or inspire his allies to the heights of power and bravery.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

Spells: The bard's caster level is equal to his class level.

The bard's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The bard does not learn additional spells.

Bardic Music: The bard gains no new bardic music effects from his Perform ranks.

Bardic Knowledge: Add the bard's class level + Intelligence modifier to all bardic knowledge checks, as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic bard gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

Inspire Courage (Su): The epic bard's bonus when this ability is used increases by +1 every six levels higher than 20th (26th, 32nd, and so on).

CLERIC

In a typical world, the epic cleric stands as one of his deity's most elite servants.

In an adventuring party, he must also stand as the solid center of the group, providing power and assistance to his companions.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The cleric's caster level is equal to his class level.

The cleric's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Turn or Rebuke Undead: Use the cleric's class level to determine the most powerful undead affected by a turn or rebuke check and the turning damage, just as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic cleric gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

DRUID

The epic druid is a mighty symbol of the power of the natural world, able to focus the primal forces of the elements to do her bidding.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The druid's caster level is equal to her class level.

The druid's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Animal Companion: The druid may have a maximum number of animal companions equal to twice her class level, as normal.

Wild Shape (Su): The druid can use this ability to take the form of an animal one additional time per day every four levels higher than 18th (7/day at 22nd, 8/day at 26th, and so on).

The druid's ability to wild shape into an elemental does not improve.

Bonus Feats: The epic druid gains a bonus feat every four levels higher than 20th.

FIGHTER

The epic fighter is a combat machine, a master of more battle maneuvers than any other character in the game. More than a mere sword-slinger, the epic fighter knows how to best his opponents in any arena.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feats: The epic fighter gains a bonus feat every two levels higher than 20th (22nd, 24th, 26th, and so on).

MONK

The epic monk has achieved an inner tranquility that lesser characters can't even dream of.

Her speed, power, grace, and force of will are unmatched by mortal beings.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

AC Bonus (Ex): The monk's bonus to Armor Class when unarmored increases by +1 every five levels higher than 20th (+5 at 25th, +6 at 30th, and so on).

Unarmed Strike: The damage for a monk's unarmed strike does not increase after 16th level.

Stunning Attack: Use the monk's class level when determining the DC to resist this attack, as normal.

Unarmored Speed Bonus: The epic monk's speed when wearing no armor increases by 10 feet every three levels higher than 18th (+70 ft. at 21st, +80 ft. at 24th, and so on).

Ki Strike (Su): The monk's ki strike ability does not automatically increase with class level after 16th level.

Wholeness of Body (Su): The epic monk can cure up to twice her class level in hit points each day, as normal.

Abundant Step (Su): Use the monk's class level when determining the effective caster level of this ability, as normal.

Diamond Soul (Ex): The epic monk's spell resistance is equal to her class level +10, as normal.

Quivering Palm (Su): Use the monk's class level when determining the DC to resist this attack, as normal.

Empty Body (Su): Use the monk's class level when determining the duration of this effect, as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic monk gains a bonus feat every five levels higher than 20th (25th, 30th, and so on).

PALADIN

The epic paladin stands at the forefront of the battle against chaos and evil in the world, shining as a beacon of hope to all who fight the good fight.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Lay on Hands (Su): Each day the epic paladin can cure a total number of hit points equal to her Charisma bonus (if any) times her class level, as normal.

Smite Evil (Su): The epic paladin adds her class level to damage with any smite evil attack, as normal.

She can smite one additional time per day for every five levels higher than 20th (6/day at 25th, 7/day at 30th, and so on).

Turn Undead (Su): The paladin turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower, as normal.

Spells: The paladin's caster level is equal to one-half her class level, as normal.

The paladin's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Special Mount: The epic paladin's special mount continues to increase in power.

Every five levels higher than 20th (25th, 30th, 35th, and so on), the special mount gains +2 bonus Hit Dice, its natural armor increases by +2, its Strength adjustment increases by +1, and its Intelligence increases by +1.

The mount's spell resistance equals the paladin's class level + 5.

Remove Disease (Sp): The epic paladin can use remove disease one additional time per week for every three levels higher than 18th (7/week at 21st, 8/week at 24th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic paladin gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, 29th, and so on).

RANGER

Whether cunning protector of the wild or cold-blooded hunter of the weak, the epic ranger is one with the wilderness, moving with deadly grace and keen mind through the natural world.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

Spells: The ranger's caster level is equal to one-half his class level, as normal.

The ranger's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Favored Enemy (Ex): The epic ranger gains one additional favored enemy, and his bonuses against one category of favored enemies go up by +2, every five levels higher than 20th (6th enemy at 25th, 7th enemy at 30th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic ranger gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

ROGUE

The epic rogue is a trickster and a thief, a trap-detector and a tale-spinner.

Her skills are legendary and her tales of derring-do even more so.

If you listen to the stories, there's nothing she can't do.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier.

Sneak Attack: The epic rogue's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 at every odd-numbered level (+11d6 at 21st, +12d6 at 23rd, and so on).

Special Abilities: The rogue does not gain additional rogue special abilities after 19th level, but can choose a rogue special ability from the Player's Handbook (crippling strike, defensive roll, improved evasion, opportunist, skill mastery, and slippery mind) instead of a bonus feat.

Bonus Feats: The epic rogue gains a bonus feat every four levels higher than 20th (24th, 28th, and so on).

SORCERER

The epic sorcerer has grown his natural arcane ability to mythical proportions, but the need for ever-greater power never abates.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The sorcerer's caster level is equal to his class level.

The sorcerer's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The sorcerer does not learn additional spells.

Familiar: The epic sorcerer's familiar continues to increase in power.

Every two levels higher than 20th (22nd, 24th, and so on) the familiar's natural armor bonus and Intelligence each increase by +1.

The familiar's spell resistance is equal to the master's level + 5.

At 21st level and again every ten levels higher than 21st, the familiar gains the benefit of the Familiar Spell epic feat for a spell of its master's choice.

Bonus Feats: The epic sorcerer gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

WIZARD

To the epic wizard, knowledge is power, and the quest for knowledge is never-ending.

The secrets of greater magic and the creation of artifacts tempt the epic wizard, who pursues these secrets across the planes.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The wizard's caster level is equal to her class level.

The wizard's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Each time the wizard attains a new level, she learns two new spells of any level or levels that she can cast (according to her new level).

Familiar: The epic wizard's familiar continues to increase in power.

Every two levels higher than 20th (22nd, 24th, and so on) the familiar's natural armor bonus and Intelligence each increase by +1.

The familiar's spell resistance is equal to the master's level + 5.

At 21st level and again every ten levels higher than 21st, the familiar gains the benefit of the Familiar Spell epic feat for a spell of its master's choice.

Bonus Feats: The epic wizard gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

EPIC LEVEL HANDBOOK (3.0)

ARCANE ARCHER

The epic arcane archer is a living extension of the bow, capable of achieving wonders of archery that cause lesser beings to gape in awe.

As an epic arcane archer, the path you pursue depends greatly on the path you took to qualify for the class.

This example assumes that you focused on combat abilities, picking up spellcasting only as an afterthought.

In this case, Epic Weapon Focus is your first stop, with Distant Shot and Uncanny Accuracy coming soon after.

While any archer hopes to never need defense, you don't have the luxury of ignoring feats such as Epic Toughness and Energy Resistance.

For ability increases, the arcane archer has three good choices—and all of them are Dexterity. If you're determined to look elsewhere, a Constitution boost can give much-needed hit points. Other Options: if your spellcasting powers are more than a mere afterthought, look to additional Improved Spell Capacity and metamagic feats. You might also need to improve your defensive capabilities more than noted here, in which case you should consider Armor Skin. Also, consult the epic paths for your other class or classes for alternative options.

Hit Die: d8.
 Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.
 Enchant Arrow: For every two levels beyond 9th, the potency of the arrows fired by the arcane archer increases by +1 (+6 at 11th, +7 at 13th, and so on).
 Hail of Arrows: In lieu of her regular attacks, once per day the arcane archer can fire an arrow at each and every target within range, with a maximum number of targets equal to her arcane archer class level, as normal.
 Bonus Feats: The arcane archer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic arcane archer feats) every four levels after 10th.
 Epic Arcane Archer Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Combat Archery, Distant Shot, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (any bow other than a crossbow), Improved Arrow of Death, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Manyshot, Swarm of Arrows, Uncanny Accuracy.

TABLE 1–15: THE EPIC ARCANE ARCHER

Arcane Archer Level	Special
11th	Enchant arrow +6
12th	—
13th	Enchant arrow +7
14th	Bonus feat
15th	Enchant arrow +8
16th	—
17th	Enchant arrow +9
18th	Bonus feat
19th	Enchant arrow +10
20th	—

ASSASSIN

The epic assassin flits from shadow to shadow, lying in wait until his target is vulnerable, then striking like a cobra and leaving only a cold corpse behind. Like the epic rogue, the epic assassin must pay attention to offense, defense, and skill improvement as he plots his path to power. It's easy to see the power of Improved Death Attack and Improved Sneak Attack, but don't forget the usefulness of Lingering Damage and Blinding Speed as well. Epic Toughness gives you some staying power in a fight (at least enough to get away from your foes), while Epic Skill Focus (Disguise, Hide, and Move Silently) can ensure that you don't get into a fight until you choose to.

The assassin can use ability increases in a variety of scores, including Dexterity, Intelligence, Wisdom, and Charisma. Other Options: An epic assassin who finds himself in the midst of combat with frequency should consider giving up some sneak attack capability in favor of Armor Skin, Self-Concealment, and other defensive feats. Improved Spell Capacity and one or more metamagic feats can greatly improve your spellcasting capability. Depending on which other skills you favor, additional Epic Skill Focus feats can greatly improve your aptitudes. Also, consult the epic paths for your other class or classes for alternative options.

Hit Die: d6.
 Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.
 Sneak Attack: The epic assassin's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every two levels after 9th (11th, 13th, and so on).
 Death Attack: The assassin counts only half his class levels beyond 10th when determining the DC to resist this attack.
 Spells: The assassin's caster level is equal to his class level. The assassin's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.
 Each time the assassin achieves a new level, he learns two new spells of any spell levels that he can cast (according to his new level).
 Uncanny Dodge: The assassin's uncanny dodge bonus on saves against traps doesn't increase after 10th level, because it shows no pattern during the normal ten-level progression.
 Saving Throw Bonus against Poison: The assassin's bonus on saves against poison increases by +1 every two levels after 10th (12th, 14th, and so on).
 Bonus Feats: The epic assassin gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic assassin feats) every four levels after 10th.
 Epic Assassin Bonus Feat List: Dexterous Fortitude, Dexterous Will, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Death Attack, Improved Sneak Attack, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Tracker, Lingering Damage, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Spell Knowledge, Spontaneous Spell, Superior Initiative, Tenacious Magic, Uncanny Accuracy.

TABLE 1–16: THE EPIC ASSASSIN

Assassin Level	Special
11th	Sneak attack +6d6
12th	+6 save against poison
13th	Sneak attack +7d6
14th	+7 save against poison, bonus feat
15th	Sneak attack +8d6
16th	+8 save against poison
17th	Sneak attack +9d6
18th	+9 save against poison, bonus feat
19th	Sneak attack +10d6
20th	+10 save against poison

BARBARIAN

The epic barbarian is a terror to behold. The very incarnation of rage, this furious warrior can cut his opponents to ribbons with awe-inspiring ease. Focus on increasing the power of your rage while picking up other feats that boost your overall damage-dealing (and damage-resisting) power.

Chaotic Rage, Thundering Rage, and other rage-boosting fears are tailor-made for the epic barbarian. Epic Toughness, Damage Reduction, and Fast Healing allow you to continue fighting long after others have dropped dead, while the leaps of a barbarian with Legendary Leaper are truly stupendous. Ability increases should go into Strength and Constitution, unless you need ability boosts to qualify for other feats. Other Options: Consider selecting feats from the Power Attack feat path, eventually taking Devastating Critical. If your saves are poor, think about Energy Resistance. And if you really want a frightening barbarian, Blinding Speed is the way to go.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Barbarian Rage: The epic barbarian gains one use of rage per day every four levels after 20th (24th, 28th, 32nd, and so on).

Uncanny Dodge: The bonus on the barbarian's saving throws against traps increases by +1 every three levels above 19th (22nd, 25th, and so on).

Damage Reduction: The epic barbarian's damage reduction increases by 1 point every three levels above 20th (23rd, 26th, 29th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic barbarian gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic barbarian bonus feats) every four levels after 20th (24th, 28th, 32nd, and so on).

Epic Barbarian Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Chaotic Rage, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Incite Rage, Legendary Climber, Legendary Leaper, Legendary Rider, Legendary Tracker, Legendary Wrestler, Mighty Rage, Overwhelming Critical, Ruinous Rage, Terrifying Rage, Thundering Rage.

TABLE 1-3: THE EPIC BARBARIAN

Barbarian Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	Uncanny dodge (+5 against traps)
23rd	Damage reduction 5/-
24th	Rage 7/day, bonus feat
25th	Uncanny dodge (+6 against traps)
26th	Damage reduction 6/-
27th	—
28th	Uncanny dodge (+7 against traps), bonus feat
29th	Damage reduction 7/-
30th	—

BARD

The epic bard's music can move even the cruelest, most soulless creature, or inspire his allies to the heights of power and bravery.

First and foremost, you must focus on improving your epic bard's ability to perform his bardic music.

Epic Skill Focus (Perform) is the obvious choice, but Lasting Inspiration and Inspire Excellence are crucial as well.

Gaining additional spellcasting ability is useful.

Don't forget that you'll still be in combat from time to time, so Epic Prowess is a good selection.

Put most if not all your ability increases in Charisma, because that's the key to most of your powers.

Of course, an occasional boost to Dexterity or Intelligence is never a bad idea.

Other Options: If you already have combat-related feats such as Weapon Focus or Point Blank Shot, consider picking up the epic feats that use them as prerequisites.

Improved Spell Capacity lets you work your way toward 9th-level spells (and that in turn allows access to the automatic metamagic feats).

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The bard's caster level is equal to his class level.

The bard's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The bard does not learn additional spells unless he selects the Spell Knowledge feat (see the Feats section below).

Bardic Music: The bard gains no new bardic music effects from his Perform ranks.

However, he may select epic feats that grant new bardic music effects (see the Bonus Feats section below).

Bardic Knowledge: Add the bard's class level + Intelligence modifier to all bardic knowledge checks, as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic bard gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic bard bonus feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Bard Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Deafening Song, Epic Inspiration, Epic Leadership, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Group Inspiration, Hindering Song, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Inspire Excellence, Lasting Inspiration, Master Staff, Master Wand, Music of the Gods, Permanent Emanation, Polyglot, Ranged Inspiration, Rapid Inspiration, Reactive Countersong, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Tenacious Magic.

TABLE 1-4: THE EPIC BARD

Bard Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	—
23rd	Bonus feat
24th	—
25th	—
26th	Bonus feat
27th	—
28th	—
29th	Bonus feat
30th	—

BLACKGUARD

The epic blackguard is a twisted reflection of the epic paladin, radiating evil power from every pore of his body. The epic blackguard should focus on his combat prowess, including such feats as Epic Weapon Focus, Unholy Strike, and Improved Sneak Attack.

He can boost his ability to command undead by picking up Undead Mastery and Planar Turning, allowing him to lead an army of undead and fiends.

Finally, defensive feats such as Epic Toughness and Armor Skin ensure that he'll survive the battle and plague the forces of good on yet another day.

The blackguard needs a high Charisma score, but Strength and Wisdom can also use ability increases from time to time.

Other Options: An epic blackguard interested in commanding more mundane armies should look to Epic Leadership.

Improved Spell Capacity expands the blackguard's meager spell ability.

Also, consult the epic paths for your other class or classes for alternative options.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The blackguard's caster level is equal to his class level.

The blackguard's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Smite Good: The epic blackguard adds his class level to damage with any smite good attack, as normal.

Command Undead: The blackguard commands undead as a cleric of two levels lower, as normal.

Sneak Attack: The epic blackguard's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every three levels after 10th (13th, 16th, 19th, and so on).

Fiendish Servant: Up to 20th character level, a fiendish servant's powers depend on its master's character level, not his blackguard class level.

After that, they depend on his blackguard level.

For every five blackguard levels above 10th (15th, 20th, and so on), the fiendish servant gains +2 bonus Hit Dice, its natural armor increases by +2, and its Strength and Intelligence each increase by +1.

Fallen Paladins: A blackguard who trades in more than ten levels of paladin can gain more than ten levels of blackguard, but only if his character level is 21st or higher.

Bonus Feats: The epic blackguard gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic blackguard feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Blackguard Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Great Smiting, Improved Aura of Despair, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Sneak Attack, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Lingering Damage, Negative Energy Burst, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Spontaneous Spell, Undead Mastery, Unholy Strike, Widen Aura of Despair, Zone of Animation.

TABLE 1-17: THE EPIC BLACKGUARD

Blackguard Level	Special
11th	—
12th	—
13th	Sneak attack +4d6, bonus feat
14th	—
15th	—
16th	Sneak attack +5d6, bonus feat
17th	—
18th	—
19th	Sneak attack +6d6, bonus feat
20th	—

CLERIC

In a typical world, the epic cleric stands as one of his deity's most elite servants.

In an adventuring party, he must also stand as the solid center of the group, providing power and assistance to his companions.

Like most spellcasters, you should consider improving your spellcasting ability at regular intervals.

Epic Spellcasting is a must, and metamagic feats help fill your higher-level spell slots.

Think strongly about increasing your turning ability as well, such as with Planar Turning.

Epic Skill Focus (Diplomacy) can help you change enemies into allies.

Your Wisdom controls your spellcasting power, so that's where you should put your ability increases.

Charisma is a reasonable second option, particularly if you use your turning or rebuking powers frequently.

Other Options: A combat-oriented cleric can look to Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Toughness, and Armor Skin to enhance his fighting capability.

Efficient Item Creation can help you pump out powerful magic items at an increased rate.

If your cleric rebukes undead rather than turning them, he should consider Undead Mastery and Zone of Animation.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The cleric's caster level is equal to his class level.

The cleric's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Turn or Rebuke Undead: Use the cleric's class level to determine the most powerful undead affected by a turn or rebuke check and the turning damage, just as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic cleric gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic cleric bonus feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Cleric Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Negative Energy Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

TABLE 1-5: THE EPIC CLERIC

Cleric Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	—
23rd	Bonus feat
24th	—
25th	—
26th	Bonus feat
27th	—
28th	—
29th	Bonus feat
30th	—

DRUID

The epic druid is a mighty symbol of the power of the natural world, able to focus the primal forces of the elements to do her bidding.

Take Improved Spell Capacity to gain higher-level spell slots.

Broaden your wild shape horizons by picking up Beast Shape, Improved Elemental Wild Shape, and other wild feats.

To improve your ability to cast spells while in another form, focus on the Automatic Still Spell and Ignore Material Components feats (or pick up Improved Metamagic).

Boost your Wisdom to improve your spellcasting power.

Most other abilities are reasonable second choices, but they all pale beside Wisdom.

Other Options: If you don't care about spellcasting while in wild shape, consider picking up different metamagic feats, such as Automatic Quicken Spell.

Weapon Focus (claw) and Epic Weapon Focus (claw) can apply to the natural attacks of a wide variety of wild shapes.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The druid's caster level is equal to her class level.

The druid's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Animal Companion: The druid may have a maximum number of animal companions equal to twice her class level, as normal.

Wild Shape: The epic druid can use this ability to take the form of an animal one additional time per day every four levels after 18th (22nd, 26th, and so on). Note that an epic druid gains the extraordinary abilities of whatever creature she becomes.

Bonus Feats: The epic druid gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic druid bonus feats) every four levels after 20th.

Epic Druid Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Beast Companion, Beast Shape, Colossal Wild Shape, Diminutive Wild Shape, Dragon Shape, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Fast Healing, Fine Wild Shape, Gargantuan Wild Shape, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Elemental Wild Shape, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved

Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Magical Beast Shape, Multispell, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Plant Shape, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Vermin Shape.

TABLE 1-6: THE EPIC DRUID

Druid Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	Wild shape 7/day
23rd	—
24th	Bonus feat
25th	—
26th	Wild shape 8/day
27th	—
28th	Bonus feat
29th	—
30th	Wild shape 9/day

DWARVEN DEFENDER

The epic dwarven defender becomes the very definition of immovable object.

This stalwart warrior can stand his ground against virtually any foe imaginable. Your epic dwarven defender's first priority is improving his already impressive defensive capabilities with feats such as Epic Toughness, Fast Healing, and Damage Reduction.

Boost the power of your defensive stance with Bulwark of Defense and Mobile Defense (you'll probably have to spend a feat slot on Spring Attack as well).

Don't forget to increase your offensive ability with Epic Weapon Focus as well.

While Constitution seems the default choice for the dwarven defender, chances are good that you've already got more hit points than anybody else in the group.

Consider Strength or even Wisdom (the better to spot or hear your foes).

Other Options: Take a close look at other defensive feats, such as Energy Resistance and Spell Resistance.

If you have Weapon Specialization, pick up, Epic Weapon Specialization as well.

Also, consult the epic paths for your other class or classes for alternative options.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Defensive Stance: The epic dwarven defender gains one additional defensive stance per day every two levels above 9th (11th, 13th, and so on).

Defensive Awareness: The dwarven defender's defensive awareness bonus on saves against traps doesn't increase after 10th level, because it shows no pattern during his normal ten-level progression.

Damage Reduction: The epic dwarven defender's damage reduction increases by 3 points every four levels above 10th (14th, 18th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic dwarven defender gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dwarven defender feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Dwarven Defender Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Bulwark of Defense, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Energy Resistance, Epic Endurance.

Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Darkvision, Instant Reload, Mobile Defense, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Spellcasting Harrier.

TABLE 1–18: THE EPIC DWARVEN DEFENDER

Dwarven Defender Level	AC Bonus	Special
11th	+4	Defensive stance 6/day
12th	+4	—
13th	+5	Defensive stance 7/day, bonus feat
14th	+5	Damage reduction 9/—
15th	+5	Defensive stance 8/day
16th	+6	Bonus feat
17th	+6	Defensive stance 9/day
18th	+6	Damage reduction 12/—
19th	+7	Defensive stance 10/day, bonus feat
20th	+7	—

FIGHTER

The epic fighter is a combat machine, a master of more battle maneuvers than any other character in the game. More than a mere sword-slinger, the epic fighter knows how to best his opponents in any arena.

Like the class name says, you're all about fighting, so there's no point in ignoring Epic Weapon Focus and Epic Weapon Specialization.

However, the epic fighter who forgets to pick up defensive abilities may not live to regret it.

Think about Epic Toughness and Armor Skin (or Damage Reduction and Fast Healing if you meet the prerequisites).

Because your saving throws, particularly against most spells, are your weak point, consider and Energy Resistance.

Strength is the ability score you should increase, though you should boost Dexterity if you favor ranged combat. Extra hit points always help, so Constitution is a good occasional choice as well.

Other Options: The fighter who focuses on ranged weapons can ignore a little defense in favor of offensive feats such as Uncanny Accuracy and Swarm of Arrows.

You might also consider pursuing the Dodge and Expertise feat progressions if you've previously disdained them.

Eventually you can gain Improved Whirlwind Attack. Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feats: The epic fighter gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic fighter bonus feats) every two levels after 20th.

Epic Fighter Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Combat Archery, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Distant Shot, Epic Endurance, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Manyshot, Improved Stunning Fist, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Infinite Deflection.

Instant Reload, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Legendary Wrestler, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Reflect Arrows, Spellcasting Harrier, Storm of Throws, Superior Initiative, Swarm of Arrows, Two-Weapon Rend, Uncanny Accuracy.

In addition to the feats on this list, the fighter may treat any feat designated as a fighter bonus feat, but not listed here, as being on his bonus feat list.

TABLE 1–7: THE EPIC FIGHTER

Fighter Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	Bonus feat
23rd	—
24th	Bonus feat
25th	—
26th	Bonus feat
27th	—
28th	Bonus feat
29th	—
30th	Bonus feat

LOREMASTER

If the epic loremaster doesn't know something, it probably isn't worth knowing.

This champion of secret tales stores the teachings of the ancients in her mind.

You need to balance the need for more spell power (with Epic Spellcasting and metamagic feats) with the improvement of your skills: with Epic Skill Focus).

Other feats that expand your powers include Permanent Emanation (for your wide variety of divination spells), Spontaneous Spell (so you're never caught without a screaming or legend lore), and Polyglot (to help decipher that strange map you just found).

The loremaster's choice for ability increases depends wholly on which ability score controls her spellcasting: Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma.

Other Options: Loremasters who focus on combat may want to sacrifice some knowledge for offensive and defensive capabilities (such as additional metamagic feats or Epic Toughness).

Those who like to create magic items should consider Efficient Item Creation and the various epic magic item feats.

Also, consult the epic paths for your other class or classes for alternative options.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic loremaster's caster level increases by 1 for each new loremaster level she attains.

If she has more than one spellcasting class, she must decide, which class receives the increase in caster level.

The epic loremaster's number of spells per day (and number of spells known, if applicable) does not automatically increase after 10th level.

Secret: The loremaster doesn't gain additional secrets after 10th level, because there is a built-in limit to the number of secrets that can be gained, but you can choose a lore master secret instead of a bonus feat.

Remember that you can't select the same secret twice.

Lore: Add the loremaster's class level + Intelligence modifier to all lore checks, as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic loremaster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic loremaster feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Loremaster Bonus Feat list: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Polyglot, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

In addition to the feats on this list, the loremaster can select a loremaster secret instead of a bonus feat.

TABLE 1-19: THE EPIC LOREMASTER

Level	Special
11th	—
12th	—
13th	Bonus feat
14th	—
15th	—
16th	Bonus feat
17th	—
18th	—
19th	Bonus feat
20th	—

MONK

The epic monk has achieved an inner tranquility that lesser characters can't even dream of.

Her speed, power, grace, and force of will are unmatched by mortal beings.

Your epic monk has a wide variety of options available to her, so it's best for you to focus on a few areas of improvement, at least early in your epic career.

Improved Ki Strike means you don't have to rely on anything other than your fists and feet to damage creatures, while defensive feats such as Exceptional Deflection, Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, and Fast Healing allow you to stick around longer in a fight.

Improved Stunning Fist and Keen Strike make your unarmed attacks truly epic in nature, and the maneuverability provided by Blinding Speed is pretty awesome.

The only ability scores you shouldn't worry about boosting are Intelligence and Charisma, unless you're playing a very atypical monk.

Wisdom, Dexterity, Strength, and Constitution are all viable places to put your ability increases.

Other Options: Beef up your staying power with Epic Toughness, Damage Reduction, and Fast Healing.

Epic Prowess and Epic Weapon Focus (unarmed strike) let you keep up with the fighters.

Shattering Strike is great at kicking through doors and walls, as well as destroying your opponents' weapons and shields.

Legendary Climber lets you scamper up a wall faster than most characters can run.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Armor Class Bonus: The monk's bonus to Armor Class when unarmored increases by +1 every five levels after 20th (25th, 30th, and so on).

Unarmed Strike: The damage for a monk's unarmed strike does not increase after 16th level.

Stunning Attack: Use the monk's class level when determining the DC to resist this attack, as normal.

Fast Movement: The epic monk's speed when wearing no armor increases by 10 feet at 21st level and every three levels thereafter (24th, 27th, 30th, and so on).

The unarmored speed of Small and dwarven monks increases by 5 feet instead of 10 feet.

Wholeness of Body: The epic monk can cure up to twice her class level in hit points each day, as normal.

Ki Strike: The monk's ki strike ability does not automatically increase with class level after 16th level.

However, the monk can select the epic feat Improved Ki Strike to increase the effective enhancement bonus of her unarmed strikes.

Abundant Step: Use the monk's class level when determining the effective caster level of this ability, as normal.

Diamond Soul: The epic monk's spell resistance is equal to her class level +10, as normal.

Quivering Palm: Use the monk's class level when determining the DC to resist this attack, as normal.

Empty Body: Use the monk's class level when determining the duration of this effect, as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic monk gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic monk bonus feats) every five levels after 20th.

Epic Monk Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Blinding Speed, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Exceptional Deflection, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Ki Strike, Improved Spell Resistance, Improved Stunning Fist, Infinite Deflection, Keen Strike, Legendary Climber, Legendary Wrestler, Reflect Arrows, Righteous Strike, Self-Concealment, Shattering Strike, Vorpal Strike.

TABLE 1-8: THE EPIC MONK

Monk Level	AC Bonus*	Unarmored Speed	Special
21st	+4	100 ft. (65 ft.)
22nd	+4	100 ft. (65 ft.)
23rd	+4	100 ft. (65 ft.)
24th	+4	110 ft. (70 ft.)
25th	+5	110 ft. (70 ft.)	Bonus feat
26th	+5	110 ft. (70 ft.)
27th	+5	120 ft. (75 ft.)
28th	+5	120 ft. (75 ft.)
29th	+5	120 ft. (75 ft.)
30th	+6	130 ft. (80 ft.)	Bonus feat

*This figure plus the monk's Wisdom modifier is added to the monk's Armor Class (if this figure plus the monk's Wisdom modifier is not a positive number, do not add it). The Armor Class bonus is 1/5 the monk's level.

The number in parentheses indicates the speed of Small and dwarven monks.

PALADIN

The epic paladin stands at the forefront of the battle against chaos and evil in the world, shining as a beacon of hope to all who fight the good fight.

As an epic paladin, you'll want to improve your combat ability (Epic Weapon Focus and Holy Strike) while not forgetting about defense (Epic Toughness, Armor Skin and Energy Resistance).

Planar Turning lets you deal with those pesky fiends that keep getting in your way.

Charisma, Strength, and Wisdom are all good choices for ability increases.

Other Options: If you enjoy spellcasting, consider Improved Spell Capacity and metamagic feats.

Epic Leadership can get you a pretty big dragon to ride, and that's something few paladins refuse.

If you have a high Constitution score, consider Fast Healing and Damage Reduction.

Epic Skill Focus (Diplomacy) can turn would-be enemies into allies to the cause.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Lay on Hands: Each day a paladin can cure a total number of hit points equal to her Charisma bonus (if any) times her class level, as normal.

Smite Evil: The epic paladin adds her class level to damage with any smite evil attack, as normal.

Remove Disease: The epic paladin can use remove disease one additional time per week for every three levels above 18th (21st, 24th, 27th, and so on).

Turn Undead: The paladin turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower, as normal.

Spells: The paladin's caster level is equal to one-half her class level, as normal.

The paladin's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Special Mount: The epic paladin's special mount continues to increase in power.

Every five levels after 20th (25th, 30th, 35th, and so on), the special mount gains +2 bonus Hit Dice, its natural armor increases by +2, its Strength adjustment increases by +1, and its Intelligence increases by +1.

The mount's spell resistance equals the paladin's class level + 5.

Bonus Feats: The epic paladin gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic paladin feats) every three levels after 20th (23rd, 26th, 29th, and so on).

Epic Paladin Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Great Smiting, Holy Strike, Improved Aura of Courage, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Spell, Widen Aura of Courage.

TABLE 1-9: THE EPIC PALADIN

Paladin Level	Special
21st	Remove disease 7/week
22nd	—
23rd	Bonus feat
24th	Remove disease 8/week
25th	—
26th	Bonus feat
27th	Remove disease 9/week
28th	—
29th	Bonus feat
30th	Remove disease 10/week

PSION

The epic psion has evolved his inborn mental abilities, achieving mental mastery of lesser mentalities. But the path of the mind beckons still.

As a psion, you are a specialist in one of six disciplines, but no matter which discipline you follow, you'll want to enhance your manifesting ability through Improved Manifestation, as well as psionic versions of Epic Spellcasting, Spell Knowledge, and metamagic feats.

Don't forget to continue to improve your key ability score, which provides power points, increased DCs to avoid your psionic powers, and all the usual benefits of a high score.

Other Options: If you favor powers that require ranged attacks, think about Epic Weapon Focus (ray).

Energy Resistance is also likely to be useful.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Powers: The psion's manifester level is equal to his class level.

The psion's number of power points per day does not increase after 20th level, but the limit on power points spent on a metapsionic power is 19 (though feats such as Improved Manifestation extend this limit).

Each time the psion achieves a new level, he learns a new power of any power level that he can manifest (according to his new level) that is within his primary discipline.

Psions continue to gain bonus power points for high ability scores.

Psicrystal: The psion's psicrystal continues to increase in power.

Every two levels after 20th (22nd, 24th, 26th, and so on), the psicrystal's hardness and Intelligence each increase by +1.

The psicrystal's power resistance is equal to the master's level +5.

Bonus Feats: The epic psion gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic psion feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Psion Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quickened Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Combat Casting, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Manifestation, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Focus, Spell Knowledge, Spell Mastery, Spell Penetration, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

In addition to the feats on this list, the psion may select any item creation feat or metapsionic feat not listed here.

For example, a feat called Craft Epic Crystal Capacitor, which does not appear in this book but which might eventually be published or developed by the DM, could conceivably allow a psion to create a crystal capacitor with higher power point storage limits.

As noted in the Epic Feats section later in this chapter, psions learn "psionically flavored" versions of feats, as appropriate.

TABLE 1-21: THE EPIC PSION

Psion Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	—
23rd	Bonus feat
24th	—
25th	—
26th	Bonus feat
27th	—
28th	—
29th	Bonus feat
30th	—

PSYCHIC WARRIOR

You are a meld of mental and martial prowess.

All fear your psionically enhanced blade.

As a warrior, you should divide your efforts between improving your offensive potency (Epic Weapon Focus, Overwhelming Critical, and Devastating Critical) and defensive prowess (Epic Toughness and Fast Healing). Improve your Strength with most ability increases, but occasionally boost Dexterity and Constitution.

Other Options: So your psionic skills do not languish, consider taking a few more Inner Strength feats (from the Psionics Handbook) to really pump up your power point reserve.

If you prefer thrown weapons to archery, try Storm of Throws.

Distant Shot works equally well with any ranged weapon.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The psychic warrior's caster level is equal to her class level.

The psychic warrior's number of power points per day does not increase after 20th level.

The psychic warrior does not learn additional powers unless she selects the Spell Knowledge feat, though in psionic parlance, the feat would be called Power Knowledge.

Bonus Feats: The epic psychic warrior gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic psychic warrior bonus feats) at 21st level and every three levels thereafter.

Epic Psychic Warrior Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Combat Archery, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Distant Shot, Epic Endurance, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Stunning Fist, Improved Manifestation, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Infinite Deflection, Instant Reload, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Legendary Wrestler, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Reflect Arrows, Spellcasting Harrier, Storm of Throws, Spell Knowledge, Superior Initiative, Swarm of Arrows, Two-Weapon Rend, Uncanny Accuracy. In addition to the feats on this list, the psychic warrior may select any feat designated as a fighter or psychic warrior bonus feat but not listed here.

As noted in the Epic Feats section later in this chapter, psychic warriors learn "psionically flavored" versions of feats, as appropriate.

TABLE 1-22: THE EPIC PSYCHIC WARRIOR

Psychic Warrior Level	Special
21st	Bonus feat
22nd	—
23rd	—
24th	Bonus feat
25th	—
26th	—
27th	Bonus feat
28th	—
29th	—
30th	Bonus feat

RANGER

Whether cunning protector of the wild or cold-blooded hunter of the weak, the epic ranger is one with the wilderness, moving with deadly grace and keen mind through the natural world.

Like the epic paladin, you should divide your efforts between improving your offensive prowess (Epic Weapon Focus, Bane of Enemies, and Death of Enemies) while remembering the value of defense (Epic Toughness and Fast Healing).

Epic Skill Focus (Wilderness Lore) is a must for any serious tracker.

Improve your Dexterity and Wisdom with most ability increases, while throwing an occasional boost to Strength or Constitution.

Other Options: If you like to cast spells, think about picking up Epic Spellcasting and one or more metamagic feats.

Epic Skill Focus (particularly for Spot, Listen, and other scouting skills) can be quite useful as well.

If you prefer thrown weapons to archery, try Storm of Throws, and Distant Shot works equally well with any ranged weapon.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The ranger's caster level is equal to one-half his class level, as normal.

The ranger's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Favored Enemy: The epic ranger gains one additional favored enemy (and his bonuses against all existing favored enemies go up by +1) every five levels after 20th (25th, 30th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic ranger gains a bonus feat selected from the list of epic ranger feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Ranger Bonus Feat List: Bane of Enemies, Blinding Speed, Combat Archery, Death of Enemies, Distant Shot, Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Favored Enemy, Improved Manyshot, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Climber, Legendary Rider, Legendary Tracker, Perfect Health, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Permanent Emanation, Spontaneous Spell, Storm of Throws, Swarm of Arrows, Two-Weapon Rend, Uncanny Accuracy.

TABLE 1-10: THE EPIC RANGER

Ranger Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	—
23rd	Bonus feat
24th	—
25th	6th favored enemy
26th	Bonus feat
27th	—
28th	—
29th	Bonus feat
30th	7th favored enemy

RED WIZARD

The epic Red Wizard is an example of how to build an epic progression for a ten-level prestige class beyond those described in the DUNGEON MASTER's Guide (which are covered in the first chapter of this book).

The only class feature that follows a consistent progression for the Red Wizard prestige class is the spell power ability, (The specialist defense ability is almost regular, but because it skips 5th level in the standard progression, it cannot be extended past 10th level).

The Red Wizard's caster level increases as with the loremaster.

Because spell power is a powerful ability, the Red Wizard's bonus feat progression is slow.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The Red Wizard's caster level is equal to the sum of his class levels of Red Wizard and whatever other class his spellcasting is derived from.

The Red Wizard does not learn additional spells unless he selects the Spell Knowledge feat (see Feats, below).

Spell Power: The epic Red Wizard's spell power increases by +1 every two levels.

Specialist Defense: The epic Red Wizard's specialist defense does not increase after 10th level, because the progression is not consistent during the first ten levels.

Bonus Feats: The epic Red Wizard gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of bonus Red Wizard feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Red Wizard Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell; Combat Casting, Spell Focus, Spell Mastery, Spell Penetration.

In addition to the feats on this list, the Red Wizard may treat any item creation feat or metamagic feat not listed here as being on her bonus feat list.

Also, the following feats from the FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting book are on the bonus feat list for the epic Red Wizard: Greater Spell Focus, Greater Spell Penetration, Improved Counterspell, Improved Familiar, Innate Spell, Magical Artisan, Signature Spell, and the new item creation and metamagic feats presented there.

TABLE A1-1: THE EPIC RED WIZARD

Red Wizard Level	Special
11th	—
12th	Spell power +6
13th	—
14th	Spell power +7, bonus feat
15th	—
16th	Spell power +8
17th	—
18th	Spell power +9, bonus feat
19th	—
20th	Spell power +10

ROGUE

The epic rogue is a trickster and a thief, a trap-detector and a tale-spinner.

Her skills are legendary, and her tales of derring-do even more so.

If you listen to the stories, there's nothing she can't do.

Your epic rogue must split her attention among three goals: offense, defense, and skills.

Improved Sneak Attack, Lingering Damage, and Sneak Attack of Opportunity are all great feats for the battle-minded rogue.

Epic Dodge and Self-Concealment help protect you from danger.

Epic Skill Focus is useful in any number of skills (particularly Hide), while other skill-based feats such as Trap Sense and Legendary Climber come in very handy. For most rogues, it's all about the Dexterity score.

However, don't neglect Intelligence and Wisdom, because many key rogue skills use, those abilities.

Fast-talking rogues should improve Charisma as well.

Other Options: Trap-minded rogues should pick up Epic Skill Focus (Search) and Epic Skill Focus (Disable Device).

If you find yourself in combat frequently, think about Epic Prowess and Epic Toughness.

Consider completing the Dodge and Expertise feat progressions if you haven't already, eventually reaching Improved Whirlwind Attack.

The various ranged attack feats (Distant Shot Uncanny Accuracy, and so on) are useful for rogues who prefer to fight from a distance.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier.

Sneak Attack: The epic rogue's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 at every odd-numbered level (21st, 23rd, and so on).

Uncanny Dodge: The bonus on the rogue's saving throws against traps increases by +1 every three levels above 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

Special Abilities: The rogue does not gain additional rogue special abilities after 19th level, but can choose a rogue special ability from the Player's Handbook (crippling strike, defensive roll, improved evasion, opportunist, skill mastery, or slippery mind) instead of a bonus feat.

Bonus Feats: The epic rogue gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic rogue feats) every four levels after 20th.

Epic Rogue Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Combat Archery, Dexterous Fortitude, Dexterous Will, Epic Dodge, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Sneak Attack, Legendary Climber, Lingering Damage, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Spellcasting Harrier, Superior Initiative, Trap Sense, Uncanny Accuracy.

The rogue may choose a special rogue ability from the Player's Handbook instead of a bonus feat.

TABLE 1-11: THE EPIC ROGUE

Rogue Level	Special
21st	Sneak attack +11d6
22nd	—
23rd	Sneak attack +12d6, uncanny dodge (+5 against traps)
24th	Bonus feat
25th	Sneak attack +13d6
26th	Uncanny dodge (+6 against traps)
27th	Sneak attack +14d6
28th	Bonus feat
29th	Sneak attack +15d6, uncanny dodge (+7 against traps)
30th	—

SHADOWDANCER

While the epic assassin uses the shadows, the epic shadowdancer becomes the shadows, indistinguishable from the darkness cloaking her.

Your best bet is to focus on stealth and defense with feats such as Epic Dodge, Self-Concealment, and Epic Skill Focus, leaving combat for the less subtle.

However, Blinding Speed and Improved Combat Reflexes make you a formidable opponent for anyone.

Dexterity is a shadowdancer's best choice for ability increases, though Strength and Constitution can be useful, too.

Other Options: Other Epic Skill Focus feats might be appropriate, based on your skill selection.

Epic Prowess can help in combat, and if you started out as a rogue, Improved Sneak Attack makes an attractive choice. Also, consult the epic paths for your other class or classes for alternative options.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

Uncanny Dodge: The shadowdancer's uncanny dodge bonus on saves against traps doesn't increase after 10th level, because it shows no pattern during her normal ten-level progression.

Summon Shadow: Every three levels after 9th (12th, 15th, and so on), the shadowdancer may summon an additional shadow and adds +2 Hit Dice (and the requisite base attack and base save bonus increases) to all her shadow companions.

Shadow Jump: The total distance of a shadowdancer's shadow jump doubles every two levels after 10th (12th, 14th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic shadowdancer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shadowdancer feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Shadowdancer Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Dexterous Fortitude, Dexterous Will, Epic Dodge, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Darkvision, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Infinite Deflection, Legendary Leaper, Reflect Arrows, Self-Concealment, Spellcasting Harrier, Superior Initiative.

TABLE 1-20: THE EPIC SHADOWDANCER

Shadowdancer Level	Special
11th	—
12th	Summon shadow (four of 9 HD each), shadow jump (320 ft.)
13th	Bonus feat
14th	Shadow jump (640 ft.)
15th	Summon shadow (five of 11 HD each)
16th	Shadow jump (1,280 ft.), bonus feat
17th	—
18th	Summon shadow (six of 13 HD each), shadow jump (2,560 ft.)
19th	Bonus feat
20th	Shadow jump (5,120 ft.)

SORCERER

The epic sorcerer has honed his natural arcane ability to mythical levels, but the need for ever greater power never ceases.

At first glance, your epic sorcerer's path is clear: improve your spellcasting ability through Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spellcasting, Spell Knowledge, and metamagic feats. But you must also give at least a passing nod to defensive feats such as Epic Toughness.

Finally, Epic Skill Focus (Spellcraft) isn't a bad choice. A sorcerer's success begins and ends with his Charisma score, though an occasional boost to Dexterity and Constitution can help long-term survival.

Other Options: If you favor spells that require ranged attacks, think about Epic Weapon Focus (Ray) Armor Skin works just as well for a sorcerer as for a fighter, and Energy Resistance can help protect against those pesky meteor swarms.

If you ever want to pick up Multispell, you'll have to "waste" a feat slot on Quicken Spell first.

FAMILIARS AT EPIC LEVEL

Special abilities granted to a familiar continue to grow as the level of its master increases beyond 20th, as shown on Table 1-13: Epic Familiar Special Abilities. Even though the table shows advancement only to 42nd level, that is not the limit. The patterns in the table continue infinitely. Familiar special abilities gained at less than 20th level also continue to improve. For instance, the familiar's spell resistance is 26 if her master is 21st level.

Familiar Spell: The familiar gains the benefit of the Familiar Spell epic feat for the spell you choose.

Bonus Feats: The epic sorcerer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic sorcerer bonus feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Sorcerer Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity.

TABLE 1-12: THE EPIC SORCERER

Sorcerer
Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	—
23rd	Bonus feat
24th	—
25th	—
26th	Bonus feat
27th	—
28th	—
29th	Bonus feat
30th	—

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The sorcerer's caster level is equal to his class level. The sorcerer's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The sorcerer does not learn additional spells unless he selects the Spell Knowledge feat.

Familiar: The sorcerer's familiar continues to increase in power.

Every two levels beyond 20th (22nd, 24th, 26th, and so on), the familiar's natural armor and Intelligence each increase by +1.

The familiar's spell resistance is equal to the master's class level + 5.

TABLE 1-13: EPIC FAMILIAR SPECIAL ABILITIES*

Master Class Level	Natural Armor	Int	Special
21st–22nd	+11	16	Familiar Spell
23rd–24th	+12	17
25th–26th	+13	18
27th–28th	+14	19
29th–30th	+15	20
31st–32nd	+16	21	Familiar Spell
33rd–34th	+17	22
35th–36th	+18	23
37th–38th	+19	24
39th–40th	+20	25
41st–42nd	+21	26	Familiar Spell

*A psion's psicrystal uses part of this table. Natural armor does not increase, but the psicrystal's hardness increases by 1 point at 21st level and every additional two levels thereafter (23rd, 25th, 27th, and so on). The psicrystal's Intelligence improves as indicated. Familiar Spell is gained in its "psionically flavored" version: Psicrystal Power.

WIZARD

To the epic wizard, knowledge is power, and the quest for knowledge is never-ending.

The secrets of greater magic and the creation of artifacts tempt the epic wizard, who pursues these secrets across the planes.

Your epic wizard has more options than an epic sorcerer.

In addition to the obvious (Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spellcasting, and metamagic feats), Efficient Item Creation is extremely useful.

Multispell is an absolute must-have; if you don't already have Quicken Spell, get it first.

Don't forget some defense, such as Epic Toughness.

The wizard must place most or all of her ability increases in Intelligence.

Constitution and Dexterity can help survival prospects, but without Spellcasting, you're useless.

Other Options: Epic Weapon Focus (ray) can be useful, depending on what your favorite spells are.

Energy Resistance are strong defensive feats, and Permanent Emanation can make invisible dangers a thing of the past.

Spontaneous Spell means you're never without your favorite spell.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The wizard's caster level is equal to her class level. The wizard's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Each time the wizard achieves a new level, she learns two new spells of any spell levels that she can cast (according to her new level).

Familiar: The wizard's familiar continues to increase in power.

Every two levels after 20th (22nd, 24th, 26th, and so on) the familiar's natural armor and Intelligence each increase by +1.

The familiar's spell resistance is equal to the master's level + 5.

Bonus Feats: The epic wizard gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic wizard feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Wizard Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Combat Casting, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Focus, Spell Knowledge, Spell Mastery, Spell Penetration Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

In addition to the feats on this list, the wizard may select any item creation feat or metamagic feat not listed here.

TABLE 1-14: THE EPIC WIZARD

Wizard Level	Special
21st	—
22nd	—
23rd	Bonus feat
24th	—
25th	—
26th	Bonus feat
27th	—
28th	—
29th	Bonus feat
30th	—

EPIC INSIGHTS (3.0)

ACOLYTE OF THE SKIN

By 10th level, the acolyte of the skin is permanently bonded to his fiendish epidermis, transforming his type to outsider.

He has a +2 natural armor bonus, a +2 modifier to Dexterity and Constitution, cold and fire resistance 20, 120-ft. darkvision, and a variety of supernatural and spell-like abilities related to his fiendish nature.

However, other than the character's spells-per-day progression and bonus feats, no clear pattern of ability gain exists.

Therefore, to continue the acolyte's "journey" into fiendishness, we must extrapolate additional class features for the character.

We can do this by examining the half-fiend template, as well as the common powers possessed by demons and devils.

A half-fiend has the following ability modifiers: Str +4, Dex +4, Con +2, Int +4, and Cha +2, which substantially exceeds what the acolyte gains.

Occasional ability modifiers might be a good place to start for class features.

In addition, the half-fiend has a list of a dozen potential spell-like abilities, only two of which (poison and summon fiend) the acolyte shares in any form, as well as poison immunity and acid and electricity resistance 20.

Here, then, are other good options for the epic character. Looking at demons and devils, we find that telepathic communication is a common ability.

They tend to have high Strength and Constitution, and many are highly intelligent, wise, or charismatic (or all three).

From these elements we put together a reasonable epic class progression for the acolyte of the skin.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic acolyte's caster level increases by 1 every even-numbered level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every even-numbered level, the epic acolyte of the skin gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Physical Power (Ex): At 11th level, and every 10 levels thereafter, the epic acolyte of the skin gains a permanent +2 bonus to Strength or Constitution (character's choice).

Poison Immunity (Ex): The epic acolyte of the skin becomes immune to poison at 11th level.

Fiendish Heritage (Sp): At 13th level, and every 4 levels thereafter (17th, 21st, and so on), the acolyte of the skin gains one daily use of each of the following powers: desecrate, unholy blight, and blasphemy.

Use the character's acolyte of the skin level as the caster level.

Acid Resistant (Ex): At 14th level, the fiendish skin grants acid resistance 20.

Improved Symbiosis: At 15th level, and every 5 levels thereafter, the enhancement bonus needed to bypass the damage reduction of the epic acolyte of the skin increases by +1 (to DR 20/+2 at 15th level, DR 20/+3 at 20th level, and so forth).

Mental Power (Ex): At 16th level, and every 10 levels thereafter, the epic acolyte of the skin gains a permanent +2 bonus to Intelligence or Charisma (character's choice).

Electricity Resistant (Ex): At 18th level, the fiendish skin grants electricity resistance 20.

Telepathy (Su): A 19th-level acolyte of the skin can communicate telepathically with any creature within 100 feet that has a language.

Bonus Feats: The epic acolyte of the skin gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic acolyte of the skin feats) every 4 levels after 8th.

Epic Acolyte of the Skin Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Energy Resistance, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Extended Life Span, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Spell Capacity, Spell Knowledge.

Acolyte
Level	Special
11	Physical power, poison immunity
12	Bonus feat
13	Fiendish heritage (1/day)
14	Acid resistant
15	Improved symbiosis
16	Bonus feat, mental power
17	Fiendish heritage (2/day)
18	Electricity resistant
19	Telepathy
20	Bonus feat, improved symbiosis

ACOLYTE OF THE SKIN

By 10th level, the acolyte of the skin is permanently bonded to his fiendish epidermis, transforming his type to outsider.

He has a +2 natural armor bonus, a +2 modifier to Dexterity and Constitution, cold and fire resistance 20, 120-ft. darkvision, and a variety of supernatural and spell-like abilities related to his fiendish nature.

However, other than the character's spells-per-day progression and bonus feats, no clear pattern of ability gain exists.

Therefore, to continue the acolyte's "journey" into fiendishness, we must extrapolate additional class features for the character.

We can do this by examining the half-fiend template, as well as the common powers possessed by demons and devils.

A half-fiend has the following ability modifiers: Str +4, Dex +4, Con +2, Int +4, and Cha +2, which substantially exceeds what the acolyte gains.

Occasional ability modifiers might be a good place to start for class features.

In addition, the half-fiend has a list of a dozen potential spell-like abilities, only two of which (poison and summon fiend) the acolyte shares in any form, as well as poison immunity and acid and electricity resistance 20.

Here, then, are other good options for the epic character. Looking at demons and devils, we find that telepathic communication is a common ability.

They tend to have high Strength and Constitution, and many are highly intelligent, wise, or charismatic (or all three).

From these elements we put together a reasonable epic class progression for the acolyte of the skin.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic acolyte's caster level increases by 1 every even-numbered level gained above 10th.

The epic acolyte of the skin continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new even-numbered level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the arcane spellcasting class to which the acolyte of the skin belonged before adding the prestige class.

Physical Power (Ex): At 11th level, and every ten levels thereafter, the epic acolyte of the skin gains a permanent +2 bonus to Strength or Constitution (character's choice).

Poison Immunity (Ex): The epic acolyte of the skin becomes immune to poison at 11th level.

Fiendish Heritage (Sp): At 13th level, and every four levels thereafter (17th, 21st, and so on), the acolyte of the skin gains one daily use of each of the following powers: desecrate, unholy blight, and blasphemy.

Use the character's acolyte of the skin level as the caster level.

Acid Resistant (Ex): At 14th level, the fiendish skin grants acid resistance 20.

Improved Symbiosis: At 15th level, the DR becomes 20/good and magic.

At 20th level, and every five levels thereafter, the value of the DR increases by 5 points (to DR 25/good and magic at 20th level, DR 30/good and magic at 25th level, and so on).

Mental Power (Ex): At 16th level, and every ten levels thereafter, the epic acolyte of the skin gains a permanent +2 bonus to Intelligence or Charisma (character's choice).

Electricity Resistant (Ex): At 18th level, the fiendish skin grants electricity resistance 20.

Telepathy (Su): A 19th-level acolyte of the skin can communicate telepathically with any creature within 100 feet that has a language.

Bonus Feats: The epic acolyte of the skin gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic acolyte of the skin feats) every four levels after 8th.

Epic Acolyte of the Skin Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Energy Resistance, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Extended Life Span, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Spell Capacity, Spell Knowledge.

EPIC ACOLYTE OF THE SKIN

Level	Special
11	Physical power, poison immunity
12	Bonus feat
13	Fiendish heritage (1/day)
14	Acid resistant
15	Improved symbiosis
16	Bonus feat, mental power
17	Fiendish heritage (2/day)
18	Electricity resistant
19	Telepathy
20	Bonus feat, improved symbiosis

ANIMAL LORD

From Masters of the Wild

The epic animal lord is a paragon of natural prowess, almost more animal than humanoid.

Regardless of your chosen animal, feats such as Fast Healing and Perfect Health help you get along in the wild.

Ignore Material Components allows you to forego the awkwardness of transferring your component pouch to animal form.

Select other feats based on your animal form and preferred mode of combat.

Your spellcasting is based on Wisdom, as are many of your skills.

Your particular animal form may also direct this choice to Strength, Dexterity, or any other ability.

Other Options: Diminutive Wild Shape and Fine Wild Shape may open up additional options for your lesser wild shape ability.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic animal lord's caster level is equal to her class level.

The epic animal lord's number of spells per day increases until her caster level reaches 20th.

Animal Bond: The epic animal lord's maximum Hit Dice of animal companions equals twice her animal lord level.

Animal Sense: The range of the epic animal lord's animal sense ability is equal to her class level squared, in miles.

Summon Animal: The epic animal lord may use this ability one additional time per day for every six levels gained after 6th.

Beginning at 12th level, she may use the ability to summon 1d3 legendary animals of her selected group.

Totem: The epic animal lord does not gain any additional totems after 8th level.

Instead, she may select her bonus feats either from her class list or from a list unique to her associated animal.

Bonus Feats: The epic animal lord gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic animal lord feats, or from the list of bonus feats affiliated with her associated animal) every three levels after 8th.

Epic Animal Lord Bonus Feat List: Diminutive Wild Shape, Epic Weapon Focus (any natural weapon appropriate to chosen animal), Fast Healing, Fine Wild Shape, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Perfect Health.

Epic Apelord Bonus Feat List: Epic Toughness, Legendary Climber.

Epic Bearlord Bonus Feat List: Damage Reduction, Epic Weapon Focus (claw or bite).

Epic Birdlord Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus (Spot).

Epic Catlord Bonus Feat List: Epic Skill Focus (Move Silently), Superior Initiative.

Epic Equinelord Bonus Feat List: Epic Endurance, Epic Speed.

Epic Marinelord Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Epic Skill Focus (Swim).

Epic Snakelord Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Improved Combat Reflexes.

Epic Wolflord Bonus Feat List: Epic Skill Focus (Wilderness Lore), Legendary Tracker.

Level	Animal Lord Special
11	Bonus feat
12	Summon animal (legendary, 3/day)
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	—
17	Bonus feat
18	Summon animal (4/day)
19	—
20	Bonus feat

ANIMAL LORD

The epic animal lord is a paragon of natural prowess and is almost more animal than humanoid.

Regardless of your chosen animal, feats such as Fast Healing and Perfect Health help you get along in the wild. Ignore Material Components allows you to forego the awkwardness of transferring your component pouch to animal form.

Select other feats based on your animal form and preferred mode of combat.

Your spellcasting is based on Wisdom, as are many of your skills.

Your particular animal form may also direct this choice to Strength, Dexterity, or any other ability.

Other Options: Diminutive Wild Shape and Fine Wild Shape may open up additional options for your lesser wild shape ability.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic animal lord's caster level is equal to her class level.

The epic animal lord's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Animal Bond: The epic animal lord's maximum Hit Dice of animal companions equals twice her animal lord level.

Animal Sense (Su): The range of the epic animal lord's animal sense ability is equal to her class level squared, in miles.

Summon Animal (Sp): The epic animal lord may use this ability one additional time per day for every six levels gained after 6th.

Beginning at 12th level, she may use the ability to summon 1d3 legendary animals of her selected group.

Totem: The epic animal lord does not gain any additional totems after 8th level.

Instead, she may select her bonus feats either from her class list or from a list unique to her associated animal.

Bonus Feats: The epic animal lord gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic animal lord feats, or from the list of bonus feats affiliated with her associated animal) every three levels after 8th.

Epic Animal Lord Bonus Feat List: Diminutive Wild Shape, Epic Weapon Focus (any natural weapon appropriate to chosen animal), Fast Healing, Fine Wild Shape, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Perfect Health.

Epic Apelord Bonus Feat List: Epic Toughness, Legendary Climber.

Epic Bearlord Bonus Feat List: Damage Reduction, Epic Weapon Focus (claw or bite), Epic Birdlord Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus (Spot).

Epic Catlord Bonus Feat List: Epic Skill Focus (Move Silently), Superior Initiative.

Epic Equinelord Bonus Feat List: Epic Endurance, Epic Speed.

Epic Marinelord Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Epic Skill Focus (Swim).

Epic Snakelord Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Improved Combat Reflexes.

Epic Wolflord Bonus Feat List: Epic Skill Focus (Survival), Legendary Tracker.

EPIC ANIMAL LORD

Level	Special
11	Bonus feat
12	Summon animal (legendary, 3/day)
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	—
17	Bonus feat
18	Summon animal (4/day)
19	—
20	Bonus feat

ARBOREAL GUARDIAN

The epic arboreal guardian is one of the most powerful protectors of the Spirit Wood, holding the line against all those who would endanger the trees of that forest. Most epic arboreal guardians combine combat prowess with spellcasting, so choosing a mix of feats from those categories—such as Swarm of Arrows, Improved Metamagic, and Combat Archery—is a pretty good idea. The arboreal guardian's Wisdom score is usually her most important, though combat-oriented guardians may look to Strength or Constitution instead.

Other Options: Thanks to her ever-increasing natural armor, the epic arboreal guardian usually doesn't have to worry about defense, but even so, feats such as Energy Resistance or Fast Healing can come in awfully handy. If your spellcasting powers meet the prerequisites, consider Epic Spellcasting.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic arboreal guardian's divine caster level increases by 1 per even-numbered level gained above 10th. In addition, at every even-numbered level the epic arboreal guardian gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever divine spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Natural Armor (Ex): The epic arboreal guardian's natural armor bonus improves by +1 at every even-numbered level above 10th (+6 at 12th, +7 at 14th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic arboreal guardian gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic arboreal guardian feats) every 5 levels after 10th.

Epic Arboreal Guardian Bonus Feat List: Beast Companion, Combat Archery, Distant Shot, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Penetration, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Manyshot, Improved Metamagic, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Plant Wild Shape, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Swarm of Arrows, Tenacious Magic.

Epic Arboreal Guardian

Level	Special
11
12	+6 natural armor
13
14	+7 natural armor
15	Bonus feat
16	+8 natural armor
17
18	+9 natural armor
19
20	+10 natural armor, bonus feat

ARCANE TRICKSTER

From Tome and Blood

Combining choice elements of the epic rogue and epic wizard, the epic arcane trickster is a force to be reckoned with, unless you're looking forward to having your vault looted.

In general, most epic arcane tricksters focus on slipping past potential combats, selecting such feats as Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus, and Self-Concealment.

But since that doesn't always work, think about Improved Sneak Attack and Improved Combat Casting, too.

Dexterity and Intelligence are important abilities for your skills.

Don't forget Charisma, particularly if that ability influences your spellcasting ability.

Other Options: Those arcane tricksters with particularly noteworthy spellcasting power should look to Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, and Spell Opportunity. Both Lingering Damage and Sneak Attack of Opportunity are great options if you can qualify for them.

Hit Die: d4

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic arcane trickster's caster level increases by one per level gained above 10th.

The epic arcane trickster's number of spells per day increases until his caster level reaches 20th.

Sneak Attack: The epic arcane trickster's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every 2 levels above 10th.

Impromptu Sneak Attack: The arcane trickster may use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels above 7th.

Ranged Legerdemain: The arcane trickster may use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels above 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic arcane trickster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic arcane trickster feats) every 4 levels after 10th.

Epic Arcane Trickster Bonus Feat List: Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Sneak Attack, Improved Spell Capacity, Lingering Damage, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway.

Arcane Trickster

Level	Special
11	Impromptu sneak attack 3/day
12	Sneak attack +8d6
13	Ranged legerdemain 4/day
14	Sneak attack +9d6, bonus feat
15	Impromptu sneak attack 4/day
16	Sneak attack +10d6
17	Ranged legerdemain 5/day
18	Sneak attack +11d6, bonus feat
19	Impromptu sneak attack 5/day
20	Sneak attack +12d6

ARCANE TRICKSTER

The epic progression for the arcane trickster prestige class is now found in the Revision Booklet.

BERSERK

The epic berserk is a paragon of battle frenzy who lays waste to all those who would stand in their way. You can take advantage of your battle fury's similarity to rage by picking up feats such as Chaotic Rage or Thundering Rage.

Alternatively, improve your defensive capabilities with Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, or Epic Toughness. Strength is your best friend, so you should put most of your ability increases there, but improving your Dexterity and/or Constitution every now and then is a good idea, too. Other Options: To put an extra dose of terror in your opponents, pick up Wield Oversized Weapon, Terrifying Rage, and Overwhelming Critical, then watch your foes flee with their tails tucked between their legs!

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Battle Fury (Ex): The berserk can enter a battle fury one additional time per day for every 4 levels gained after 8th (4/day at 12th, 5/day at 16th, and so on).

For the purpose of qualifying for or using epic feats, treat the berserk's battle fury as interchangeable with rage.

Beast Shape (Su): The berserk can change to his beast shape one additional time per day for every 3 levels above 9th (4/day at 12th, 5/day at 15th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic berserk gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic berserk feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Berserk Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Chaotic Rage*, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Mighty Rage*, Overwhelming Critical, Ruinous Rage*, Terrifying Rage*, Thundering Rage*, Wield Oversized Weapon (new feat; see below).

* For the purpose of these feats, the berserk's battle fury is treated as rage.

Berserk

Level	Special
11
12	Beast shape 4/day, battle fury 4/day
13	Bonus feat
14
15	Beast shape 5/day
16	Battle fury 5/day, bonus feat
17
18	Beast shape 6/day
19	Bonus feat
20	Battle fury 6/day

BERSERK

The epic berserk is a paragon of battle frenzy who lays waste to all those who would stand in their way. You can take advantage of your battle fury's similarity to rage by picking up feats such as Chaotic Rage or Thundering Rage.

Alternatively, improve your defensive capabilities with Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, or Epic Toughness. Strength is your best friend, so you should put most of your ability increases there, but improving your Dexterity and/or Constitution every now and then is a good idea, too. Other Options: To put an extra dose of terror in your opponents, pick up Wield Oversized Weapon, Terrifying Rage, and Overwhelming Critical, then watch your foes flee with their tails tucked between their legs!

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Battle Fury (Ex): The berserk can enter a battle fury one additional time per day for every four levels gained after 8th (4/day at 12th, 5/day at 16th, and so on).

For the purpose of qualifying for or using epic feats, treat the berserk's battle fury as interchangeable with rage.

Beast Shape (Su): The berserk can change to his beast shape one additional time per day for every three levels above 9th (4/day at 12th, 5/day at 15th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic berserk gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic berserk feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Berserk Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Chaotic Rage*, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Mighty Rage*, Overwhelming Critical, Ruinous Rage*, Terrifying Rage*, Thundering Rage*, Wield Oversized Weapon (see New Epic Feats).

* For the purpose of these feats, the berserk's battle fury is treated as rage.

EPIC BERSERK

Level	Special
11	—
12	Beast shape 4/day, battle fury 4/day
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Beast shape 5/day
16	Battle fury 5/day, bonus feat
17	—
18	Beast shape 6/day
19	Bonus feat
20	Battle fury 6/day

BLADESINGER

From Tome and Blood

The epic bladesinger melds art, swordplay, and magic into a breathtaking, deadly display of combat prowess.

Epic Weapon Focus and Epic Prowess boost your offensive skills, as does Blinding Speed.

Epic Toughness helps make up for your low hit points.

Improved Combat Casting and Improved Spell Capacity help your arcane magic.

Dexterity, Strength, and Intelligence are your most important ability scores, so bump those up when you can.

Other Options: Automatic Still Spell proves quite valuable to the epic bladesinger who can qualify for it.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic bladesinger's caster level is equal to her class level.

The epic bladesinger's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Bonus Feats: The epic bladesinger gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic bladesinger feats) every three levels after 8th.

Epic Bladesinger Bonus Feat List: Automatic Still Spell, Blinding Speed, Epic Prowess, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (longsword), Improved Combat Casting, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Spell Capacity, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Permanent Emanation, Superior Initiative.

Bladesinger

Level	Special
11	Bonus feat
12	—
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	—
17	Bonus feat
18	—
19	—
20	Bonus feat

BLADESINGER

The epic bladesinger melds art, swordplay, and magic into a breathtaking, deadly display of combat prowess.

Epic Weapon Focus and Epic Prowess boost your offensive skills, as does Blinding Speed.

Epic Toughness helps make up for your low hit points.

Improved Combat Casting and Improved Spell Capacity help your arcane magic.

Dexterity, Strength, and Intelligence are your most important ability scores, so bump those up when you can.

Other Options: Automatic Still Spell proves quite valuable to the epic bladesinger who can qualify for it.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic bladesinger's caster level is equal to her class level.

The epic bladesinger's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Bonus Feats: The epic bladesinger gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic bladesinger feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Bladesinger Bonus Feat List: Automatic Still Spell, Blinding Speed, Combat Insight (see New Epic Feats), Epic Combat Expertise (see New Epic Feats), Epic Prowess, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (longsword), Improved Combat Casting, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Spell Capacity, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Permanent Emanation, Superior Initiative.

EPIC BLADESINGER

Level	Special
11	—
12	Bonus feat
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Bonus feat
19	—
20	Bonus feat

BLOODHOUND

From Masters of the Wild

Once an epic bloodhound is on your trail, you might as well stop running, since nothing on the planet can keep him from tracking you down.

Legendary Tracker is a no-brainer, but Epic Skill Focus is another solid choice.

Epic Endurance helps you stay on the trail, and Epic Prowess and Epic Toughness make sure you'll be able to handle your mark when you catch up.

Wisdom and Dexterity are important for a variety of reasons.

Don't overlook Strength or Constitution, though.

Other Options: Epic bloodhounds often find themselves on the trail of powerful extraplanar creatures, so Penetrate Damage Reduction can be useful.

And if you'd rather take out your mark from a safe distance, consider Distant Shot.

Hit Die: d10

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier

Determination: The epic bloodhound's insight bonus to Gather Information, Spot, and Wilderness Lore checks made to determine the whereabouts of a mark increases by +1 for each level gained.

Mark: An epic bloodhound may have one additional mark per two levels gained above 10th (round up).

Bonus Feats: The epic bloodhound gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic bloodhound feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Bloodhound Bonus Feat List: Distant Shot, Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Legendary Tracker, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Health.

Bloodhound

Level	Special
11	Determination
12	Determination, mark
13	Bonus feat, determination
14	Determination, mark
15	Determination
16	Bonus feat, determination, mark
17	Determination
18	Determination, mark
19	Bonus feat, determination
20	Determination, mark

BLOODHOUND

Once an epic bloodhound is on your trail, you might as well stop running, since nothing on the planet can keep him from tracking you down.

Legendary Tracker is a no-brainer, but Epic Skill Focus is another solid choice.

Epic Endurance helps you stay on the trail, and Epic Prowess and Epic Toughness make sure you'll be able to handle your mark when you catch up.

Wisdom and Dexterity are important for a variety of reasons.

Don't overlook Strength or Constitution, though.

Other Options: Epic bloodhounds often find themselves on the trail of powerful extraplanar creatures, so Penetrate Damage Reduction can be useful.

And if you'd rather take out your mark from a safe distance, consider Distant Shot.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

Determination (Ex): The epic bloodhound's insight bonus to Gather Information, Spot, and Survival checks made to determine the whereabouts of a mark increases by +1 for each level gained.

Mark (Ex): An epic bloodhound may have one additional mark per two levels gained above 10th (round up).

Bonus Feats: The epic bloodhound gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic bloodhound feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Bloodhound Bonus Feat List: Distant Shot, Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Legendary Tracker, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Health.

EPIC BLOODHOUND

Level	Special
11	—
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	—
19	Bonus feat
20	—

CAVALIER

From Sword & Fist

The epic cavalier is a rider without peer, a true master of mounted combat.

Focus on feats that improve your combat prowess, such as Epic Weapon Focus or Overwhelming Critical.

Armor Skin and Epic Toughness boost your defensive skills as well.

And of course, no self-respecting epic cavalier passes up Epic Skill Focus (Ride).

Strength is the most important ability score for most cavaliers, although Dexterity (as the ability that affects your Ride skill modifier) is significant as well.

It's hard to go wrong by adding points to Constitution from time to time.

Other Options: Command a powerful cohort or a legion of troops by selecting Epic Leadership or Legendary Commander.

If you're good at mounted archery, consider some of the archery-based feats, such as Distant Shot or Swarm of Arrows.

Hit Die: d10

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Tall in the Saddle: The epic cavalier's bonus to Ride checks made to negate a hit against his mount increases by 1 point every odd-numbered level above 10th.

Deadly Charge: The epic cavalier may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels above 10th.

Mounted Weapon Bonus: The epic cavalier's bonus to attack rolls when using a sword while mounted increases by 1 every even-numbered level above 10th.

His bonus to attack rolls when using a lance while mounted increases by 1 every odd-numbered level above 10th.

Ride Bonus: The epic cavalier's competence bonus to Ride checks increases by 2 points every odd-numbered level above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic cavalier gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic cavalier feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Cavalier Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical (lance or any sword), Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus (Ride), Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Overwhelming Critical (lance or any sword).

Cavalier

Level	Special
11	Mounted weapon bonus lance +6, Ride bonus +10, tall in the saddle +6
12	Deadly Charge 6/day, mounted weapon bonus sword +6
13	Mounted weapon bonus lance +7, Ride bonus +12, tall in the saddle +7
14	Deadly Charge 7/day, mounted weapon bonus sword +7, bonus feat
15	Mounted weapon bonus lance +8, Ride bonus +14, tall in the saddle +8
16	Deadly Charge 8/day, mounted weapon bonus sword +8
17	Mounted weapon bonus lance +9, Ride bonus +16, tall in the saddle +9
18	Deadly Charge 9/day, mounted weapon bonus sword +9, bonus feat
19	Mounted weapon bonus lance +10, Ride bonus +18, tall in the saddle +10
20	Deadly Charge 10/day, mounted weapon bonus sword +10

CAVALIER

The epic cavalier is a rider without peer, a true master of mounted combat.

Focus on feats that improve your combat prowess, such as Epic Weapon Focus or Overwhelming Critical.

Armor Skin and Epic Toughness boost your defensive skills as well.

And of course, no self-respecting epic cavalier passes up Epic Skill Focus (Ride).

Strength is the most important ability score for most cavaliers, although Dexterity (as the ability that affects your Ride skill modifier) is significant as well.

It's hard to go wrong by adding points to Constitution from time to time.

Other Options: Command a powerful cohort or a legion of troops by selecting Epic Leadership or Legendary Commander.

If you're good at mounted archery, consider some of the archery-based feats, such as Distant Shot or Swarm of Arrows.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Tall in the Saddle: The epic cavalier's bonus to Ride checks made to negate a hit against his mount increases by 1 point every odd-numbered level above 10th.

Deadly Charge: The epic cavalier may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels above 10th.

Mounted Weapon Bonus: The epic cavalier's bonus to attack rolls when using a sword or lance while mounted do not increase after 10th level.

Instead, he gains a bonus to damage rolls with these weapons, which begins at +1 at 11th level (lance) or at 12th level (sword).

Each damage bonus increases every other level.

Ride Bonus: The epic cavalier's competence bonus to Ride checks increases by 2 points every odd-numbered level above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic cavalier gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic cavalier feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Cavalier Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical (lance or any sword), Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus (Ride), Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Overwhelming Critical (lance or any sword).

EPIC CAVALIER

Level	Special
11	Mounted weapon damage bonus lance +1, Ride bonus +10, tall in the saddle +6
12	Deadly Charge 6/day, mounted weapon damage bonus sword +1
13	Mounted weapon damage bonus lance +2, Ride bonus +12, tall in the saddle +7
14	Deadly Charge 7/day, mounted weapon damage bonus sword +2, bonus feat
15	Mounted weapon damage bonus lance +3, Ride bonus +14, tall in the saddle +8
16	Deadly Charge 8/day, mounted weapon damage bonus sword +3
17	Mounted weapon damage bonus lance +4, Ride bonus +16, tall in the saddle +9
18	Deadly Charge 9/day, mounted weapon damage bonus sword +4, bonus feat
19	Mounted weapon damage bonus lance +5, Ride bonus +18, tall in the saddle +10
20	Deadly Charge 10/day, mounted weapon damage bonus sword +5

DEATHWARDEN CHANTER

At epic levels, the deathwarden chanter becomes one of the most respected dwarves in the history of the Deathwarden clan.

The deathwarden chanter is a powerful spellcaster, and most focus their epic feat selection on those that improve that capacity, including Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Improved Heighten Spell.

Feats that aid in combat against undead, such as Great Smiting, Positive Energy Aura, and Spectral Strike, also make fine choices.

As a divine spellcaster, Wisdom is likely the most important ability for the epic deathwarden chanter.

Other Options: Deathwarden chanters who find themselves in combat with frequency should consider Epic Toughness or Armor Skin to aid in defense.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic deathwarden chanter's divine caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every even-numbered level the epic deathwarden chanter gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever divine spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Smite Undead (Su): The epic deathwarden chanter may use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels gained above 8th (4/day at 12th, 5/day at 16th, and so on).

Deep Chant (Su): The epic deathwarden chanter may use this ability one additional time per day for every five levels gained above 10th (3/day at 15th, 4/day at 20th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic deathwarden chanter gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic deathwarden chanter feats) every 4 levels after 10th.

Epic Deathwarden Chanter Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Epic Will, Great Smiting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spellcasting, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Spell.

Alternatively, the deathwarden chanter may learn a new chanter rune (for which he must meet all prerequisites) in place of a bonus feat.

Epic Deathwarden Chanter

Level	Special
11
12	Smite undead 4/day
13
14	Bonus feat
15	Deep chant 3/day
16	Smite undead 5/day
17
18	Bonus feat
19
20	Deep chant 4/day, smite undead 6/day

DEEPWOOD SNIPER

From Masters of the Wild

The epic deepwood sniper has but to aim and fire, and her target's days are almost certainly over.

Since you're all about archery, you should focus on those feats that improve that aptitude, such as Distant Shot, Epic Weapon Focus, Improved Manyshot, Swarm of Arrows, and Uncanny Accuracy.

Dexterity is the bread and butter of the epic deepwood sniper.

Wisdom is an acceptable second choice.

Other Options: For those unpleasant situations when you find yourself closer to a target than you'd prefer, pick up Combat Archery.

Crossbow wielders should look to Instant Reload.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Concealment Reduction: An epic deepwood sniper's miss chance against opponents with concealment drops by 10% for every four levels gained after 10th, to a maximum of 50% reduction at 18th level.

This can't reduce the miss chance to less than 0%.

Consistent Aim: The epic deepwood sniper may use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained after 9th.

Projectile Improved Critical: The critical damage multiplier of the epic deepwood sniper's projectile weapons increases by 1 for every five levels gained after 7th.

Bonus Feats: The epic deepwood sniper gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic deepwood sniper feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Deepwood Sniper Bonus Feat List: Combat Archery, Distant Shot, Epic Prowess, Epic Weapon Focus (any bow or crossbow), Improved Manyshot, Instant Reload, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Swarm of Arrows, Uncanny Accuracy.

Level	Deepwood Sniper Special
11	—
12	Consistent aim 4/day, projectile improved critical +3
13	—
14	Concealment reduction 40%, bonus feat
15	Consistent aim 5/day
16	—
17	Projectile improved critical +4
18	Consistent aim 6/day, concealment reduction 50%, bonus feat
19	—
20	—

DEEPWOOD SNIPER

The epic deepwood sniper has but to aim and fire, and her target's days are almost certainly over.

Since you're all about archery, you should focus on those feats that improve that aptitude, such as Distant Shot, Epic Weapon Focus, Improved Manyshot, Swarm of Arrows, and Uncanny Accuracy.

Dexterity is the bread and butter of the epic deepwood sniper.

Wisdom is an acceptable second choice.

Other Options: For those unpleasant situations when you find yourself closer to a target than you'd prefer, pick up Combat Archery.

Crossbow wielders should look to Instant Reload.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Concealment Reduction (Ex): An epic deepwood sniper's miss chance against opponents with concealment drops by 10% for every four levels gained after 10th, to a maximum of 50% reduction at 18th level.

This can't reduce the miss chance to less than 0%.

Consistent Aim (Su): The epic deepwood sniper may use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained after 9th.

Projectile Improved Critical (Ex): The critical damage multiplier of the epic deepwood sniper's projectile weapons increases by 1 for every five levels gained after 7th.

Bonus Feats: The epic deepwood sniper gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic deepwood sniper feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Deepwood Sniper Bonus Feat List: Combat Archery, Distant Shot, Epic Prowess, Epic Weapon Focus (any bow or crossbow), Improved Manyshot, Instant Reload, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Swarm of Arrows, Uncanny Accuracy.

EPIC DEEPWOOD SNIPER

Level	Special
11	—
12	Consistent aim 4/day, projectile improved critical +3
13	—
14	Concealment reduction 40%, bonus feat
15	Consistent aim 5/day
16	—
17	Projectile improved critical +4
18	Consistent aim 6/day, concealment reduction 50%, bonus feat
19	—
20	—

DEVOTED DEFENDER

As far as pure defense goes, nobody can really hold a candle to the epic devoted defender.

This character's charge might as well be protected by a foot of reinforced adamantine.

Your shtick is defense, so consider feats such as Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, and Energy Resistance.

On the other hand, it has been said that the best defense is a good offense, and Epic Prowess and Epic Weapon Focus fit that bill nicely.

Epic Skill Focus (Listen or Spot) helps you pick out the enemy before he makes his move.

More than most other characters, your ability increases depend largely on your favored tactics—if you prefer to go toe-to-toe against enemies, pick Strength or Constitution, but more defensive-minded individuals should select Dexterity.

An occasional Wisdom boost helps some of your important bodyguard skills.

Other Options: If you have the Intelligence to qualify (or can spare the ability increases to get there), Epic Combat Expertise can make you extraordinarily hard to hit.

Armed Deflection allows you to protect yourself from ranged attacks.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Armor Class Bonus: The devoted defender's dodge bonus to AC improves by +1 every 2 levels above 9th (to +6 at 11th, +7 at 12th, and so on).

Defensive Strike (Ex): The bonus gained to attacks of opportunity against adjacent opponents who attack your charge in melee improves by +1 every 2 levels above 10th (+5 at 12th, +6 at 14th, and so on).

Deflect Attack (Ex): The bonus to Reflex saves to deflect melee attacks against your charge improves by +1 every 2 levels above 9th (+5 at 11th, +6 at 13th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic devoted defender gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic devoted defender feats) every 4 levels after 10th.

Epic Devoted Defender Bonus Feat List: Armed Deflection (new feat; see below), Armor Skin, Blinding Speed, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Combat Expertise (new feat; see below), Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus (Listen), Epic Skill Focus (Spot), Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Exceptional Deflection, Infinite Deflection, Perfect Health, Reflect Arrows.

Devoted Defender

Level	Special
11	Dodge bonus +6, deflect attack +5
12	Defensive strike +5
13	Dodge bonus +7, deflect attack +6
14	Defensive strike +6, bonus feat
15	Dodge bonus +8, deflect attack +7
16	Defensive strike +7
17	Dodge bonus +9, deflect attack +8
18	Defensive strike +8, bonus feat
19	Dodge bonus +10, deflect attack +9
20	Defensive strike +9

DEVOTED DEFENDER

As far as pure defense goes, nobody can really hold a candle to the epic devoted defender.

This character's charge might as well be protected by a foot of reinforced adamantine.

Your shtick is defense, so consider feats such as Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, and Energy Resistance.

On the other hand, some say that the best defense is a good offense, and Epic Prowess and Epic Weapon Focus fit that bill nicely.

Epic Skill Focus (Listen or Spot) helps you pick out the enemy before he makes his move.

More than most other characters, your ability increases depend largely on your favored tactics—if you prefer to go toe-to-toe against enemies, pick Strength or Constitution, but more defensive-minded individuals should select Dexterity.

An occasional Wisdom boost helps some of your important bodyguard skills.

Other Options: If you have the Intelligence to qualify (or can spare the ability increases to get there), Epic Combat Expertise can make you extraordinarily hard to hit.

Armed Deflection allows you to protect yourself from ranged attacks.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Armor Class Bonus: The devoted defender's dodge bonus to AC improves by +1 every two levels above 9th (to +6 at 11th, +7 at 12th, and so on).

Defensive Strike (Ex): The bonus gained to attacks of opportunity against adjacent opponents who attack your charge in melee improves by +1 every two levels above 10th (+5 at 12th, +6 at 14th, and so on).

Deflect Attack (Ex): The bonus to Reflex saves to deflect melee attacks against your charge improves by +1 every two levels above 9th (+5 at 11th, +6 at 13th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic devoted defender gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic devoted defender feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Devoted Defender Bonus Feat List: Armed Deflection (see New Epic Feats), Armor Skin, Blinding Speed, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Combat Expertise (see New Epic Feats), Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus (Listen), Epic Skill Focus (Spot), Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Exceptional Deflection, Infinite Deflection, Perfect Health, Reflect Arrows.

EPIC DEVOTED DEFENDER

Level	Special
11	Dodge bonus +6, deflect attack +5
12	Defensive strike +5
13	Dodge bonus +7, deflect attack +6
14	Defensive strike +6, bonus feat
15	Dodge bonus +8, deflect attack +7
16	Defensive strike +7
17	Dodge bonus +9, deflect attack +8
18	Defensive strike +8, bonus feat
19	Dodge bonus +10, deflect attack +9
20	Defensive strike +9

DIABOLIST

The epic diabolist seeks to build her power base and prepare for that inevitable day when she takes her rightful place as one of the rulers of hell itself.

Though she may bargain with archdevils, she does so from a position of equality.

The epic diabolist should look to feats that strengthen her greatest power: her spellcasting ability.

Epic Spell Focus and Epic Spell Penetration are excellent choices, as are Improved Spell Capacity and Improved Metamagic.

Epic Evil Brand displays her allegiance (and power) for all to see.

And, of course, vile feats are always attractive.

The epic diabolist's ability increases usually go toward the ability that controls her spellcasting (Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma).

If she enjoys casting corrupt spells, she should also consider boosting any ability commonly drawn upon by such spells.

Other Options: Epic diabolists with divine spellcasting abilities can pick up Improved Alignment-Based Casting. Those looking to build an army should try Epic Leadership and Legendary Commander.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic diabolist's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every level, the epic diabolist gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Diabolism: At 13th level, and every 3 levels thereafter, the diabolist can choose to grant one of her spells greater magical power one additional time per day.

At 15th level, and every 5 levels thereafter, the unholy damage dealt by one of these spells increases by +1d6 (+4d6 at 15th, +5d6 at 20th, and so forth).

Bonus Feats: The epic diabolist gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic diabolist feats) every 4 levels after 10th. Epic Diabolist Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Automatic Violate Spell (new feat; see above), Enhance Spell, Epic Evil Brand (new feat; see above), Epic Reputation, Epic Spell

Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic. In addition, the epic diabolist can select any vile feat (see the Book of Vile Darkness) as a bonus feat.

Diabolist
Level	Special
11	--
12	--
13	Diabolism 5/day
14	Bonus feat
15	Diabolism +4d6
16	Diabolism 6/day
17	--
18	Bonus feat
19	Diabolism 7/day
20	Diabolism +5d6

DIABOLIST

The epic diabolist seeks to build her power base and prepare for that inevitable day when she takes her rightful place as one of the rulers of hell itself.

Though she may bargain with archdevils, she does so from a position of equality.

The epic diabolist should look to feats that strengthen her greatest power: her spellcasting ability.

Epic Spell Focus and Epic Spell Penetration are excellent choices, as are Improved Spell Capacity and Improved Metamagic.

Epic Evil Brand displays her allegiance (and power) for all to see.

And, of course, vile feats are always attractive.

The epic diabolist's ability increases usually go toward the ability that controls her spellcasting (Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma).

If she enjoys casting corrupt spells, she should also consider boosting any ability commonly drawn upon by such spells.

Other Options: Epic diabolists with divine spellcasting abilities can pick up Improved Alignment-Based Casting. Those looking to build an army should try Epic Leadership and Legendary Commander.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic diabolist's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic diabolist continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the spellcasting class to which the diabolist belonged before adding the prestige class.

Diabolism: At 13th level, and every three levels thereafter, the diabolist can choose to grant one of her spells greater magical power one additional time per day.

At 15th level, and every five levels thereafter, the unholy damage dealt by one of these spells increases by +1d6 (+4d6 at 15th, +5d6 at 20th, and so forth).

Bonus Feats: The epic diabolist gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic diabolist feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Diabolist Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Automatic Violate Spell (see New Epic Feats), Enhance Spell, Epic Evil Brand (see New Epic Feats), Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic. In addition, the epic diabolist can select any vile feat (see the Book of Vile Darkness) as a bonus feat.

EPIC DIABOLIST

Level	Special
11	—
12	—
13	Diabolism 5/day
14	Bonus feat
15	Diabolism +4d6
16	Diabolism 6/day
17	—
18	Bonus feat
19	Diabolism 7/day
20	Diabolism +5d6

DIVINE AGENT

From Manual of the Planes

The epic divine agent may well be her deity's most powerful mortal servant.

Since most divine agents are formidable spellcasters, look to the various feats that improve that ability, such as Epic Spell Penetration (particularly useful against the many outsiders you're likely to face), Improved Spell Capacity, and Epic Spellcasting.

To help ensure your survival in dire circumstances, pick up Epic Toughness.

As a divine spellcaster, Wisdom is your most important ability score.

Charisma is often a good option as well.

Other choices may depend on your career before becoming a divine agent.

Other Options: Extremely powerful spellcasters can look to feats such as Automatic Quicken Spell and Intensify Spell. Planar Turning is a great choice for epic divine agents who began their career as clerics or paladins.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic divine agent's caster level increases by one level for every two levels gained above 10th.

The epic divine agent's number of spells per day increases until her caster level reaches 20th.

Godly Gift: Every three levels after 9th, the epic divine agent gains another godly gift.

This is usually the ability to use a spell from one of the epic divine agent's domains (up to 9th level) as a spell-like ability.

Alternatively, the epic divine agent may gain one additional use per day of a godly gift she already possesses.

Bonus Feats: The epic divine agent gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic divine agent feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Divine Agent Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Extended Lifespan, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Planar Turning, Permanent Emanation, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Level	Divine Agent Special
11	—
12	Godly gift
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Godly gift
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Godly gift
19	Bonus feat
20	—

DIVINE AGENT

The epic divine agent may well be her deity's most powerful mortal servant.

Since most divine agents are formidable spellcasters, look to the various feats that improve that ability, such as Epic Spell Penetration (particularly useful against the many outsiders you're likely to face), Improved Spell Capacity, and Epic Spellcasting.

To help ensure your survival in dire circumstances, pick up Epic Toughness.

As a divine spellcaster, Wisdom is your most important ability score.

Charisma is often a good option as well.

Other choices may depend on your career before becoming a divine agent.

Other Options: Extremely powerful spellcasters can look to feats such as Automatic Quicken Spell and Intensify Spell. Planar Turning is a great choice for epic divine agents who began their career as clerics or paladins.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic divine agent's caster level increases by one level for every two levels gained above 10th.

The epic divine agent continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the divine spellcasting class to which the divine agent belonged before adding the prestige class.

Godly Gift: Every three levels after 9th, the epic divine agent gains another godly gift.

This is usually the ability to use a spell from one of the epic divine agent's domains (up to 9th level) as a spell-like ability.

Alternatively, the epic divine agent may gain one additional use per day of a godly gift she already possesses.

Bonus Feats: The epic divine agent gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic divine agent feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Divine Agent Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Chosen Weapon Specialization (see New Epic Feats), Divine Spell Penetration (see New Epic Feats), Enhance Spell, Epic Devotion (see New Epic Feats), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Extended Lifespan, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC DIVINE AGENT

Level	Special
11	—
12	Godly gift
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Godly gift
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Godly gift
19	Bonus feat
20	—

DRAGON DISCIPLE

From Tome and Blood

The rare dragon disciple who continues his progress beyond apotheosis finds even greater draconic power awaiting him.

Mimic your draconic ancestor with feats such as Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Toughness, and Extended Lifespan.

Epic Prowess and Perfect Multiweapon Fighting boost your combat abilities.

Improve your Strength and Charisma above all other ability scores.

Other Options: To become as legendary as the most powerful dragons themselves, select feats such as Epic Reputation and Epic Leadership.

Hit Die: d10

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier
 Spells: The epic dragon disciple does not gain any bonus spells after 9th level.

Natural Armor: The epic dragon disciple's natural armor bonus increases by 1 point for every three levels after 10th.

Breath Weapon: For every three levels after 10th, the epic dragon disciple's breath weapon deals an additional two dice of damage (if his breath weapon inflicts six dice at 10th level) or an additional one die of damage (if his breath weapon inflicts three dice at 10th level).

Any additional dice are of the same type (d4, d6, d8, or d10) as his breath weapon normally inflicts.

Bonus Feats: The epic dragon disciple gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dragon disciple feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Dragon Disciple Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Extended Lifespan, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Spell Capacity, Perfect Multiweapon Fighting.

Dragon Disciple

Level	Special
11	—
12	—
13	Increased breath weapon, +5 natural armor
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	Increased breath weapon, +6 natural armor
17	—
18	Bonus feat
19	Increased breath weapon, +7 natural armor
20	—

DRAGON DISCIPLE

Perhaps the most symbolic of the transformational prestige classes, the path of the dragon disciple allows a character to become the most iconic monster of the D&D game: a dragon.

Along the way to reaching dragon apotheosis, the dragon disciple gains claw and bite attacks, natural armor, wings, size, and, of course, a breath weapon.

But in most cases, these are only pale reflections of the power of a true dragon.

This suggests that the best route for the epic dragon disciple is to improve upon his already formidable draconic powers.

Because the dragon disciple's bonus spell progression doesn't follow an easily discernible pattern, and because the class is quite potent enough without it, the epic progression presented below does not continue the bonus spells.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Natural Armor: At 11th level, and every 3 levels thereafter, the dragon disciple's natural armor bonus increases by +1 (to +5 at 11th, +6 at 14th, and so on).

Wing Slam: At 12th level, the dragon disciple gains the ability to make two wing slam attacks each round (assuming he is at least Medium-size).

Wing attacks deal the damage listed in the table below plus one-half the dragon disciple's Strength bonus, and are at a -5 penalty to the attack bonus.

Breath Weapon Increase: At 13th level, and every 3 levels thereafter, the epic dragon disciple's breath weapon increases in power and frequency of use.

The damage dealt by the breath weapon increases by 2 dice (if it deals 6 dice of damage at 10th level) or by 1 die (if it deals 3 dice of damage at 10th level).

The additional dice are of the same type normally dealt by the dragon disciple's breath weapon.

In addition, the save DC for the breath weapon increases by 1 point, and the range increases as shown in the table below.

Finally, the dragon disciple gains one additional daily use of his breath weapon, though he must wait 1d4 rounds before each use.

Enlargement: At 15th level, and every 10 levels thereafter, the dragon disciple's size increases by one step (such as from Large to Huge), to a maximum of Colossal size.

The change in size affects the dragon disciple's base natural weapon damage (see below).

Apply the appropriate new size modifier to the character's attacks and AC.

If the dragon disciple is already Colossal, he instead gains a +2 bonus to Strength.

Tail Slap: At 17th level, the dragon disciple grows a serpentine tail that he can use to deliver tail slap attacks.

A tail slap deals the listed damage plus 1/2 times the dragon disciple's Strength bonus and is at a -5 penalty to the attack bonus.

Spell Resistance (Ex): The 18th-level dragon disciple gains spell resistance equal to 20 + his class level.

Blindsight (Ex): The dragon disciple gains blindsight at 20th level, allowing him to ascertain creatures by nonvisual means just as a dragon does.

The range of this ability is 30 feet at 20th level, and it increases by 30 feet every 10 levels thereafter.

Bonus Feats: The epic dragon disciple gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dragon disciple feats) every 5 levels after 10th.

Epic Dragon Disciple Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus (Knowledge [arcana]), Epic Toughness, Extended Life Span, Flyby Attack†, Great Charisma, Great Constitution, Great Strength, Hover†, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Spell Capacity, Improved Spell Resistance, Snatch†, Spell Knowledge, Wingover†.

Non-epic feat: Treat the dragon disciple's age category as one-half his class level for the purpose of the Hover feat.

Dragon Disciple

Level	Special
11	Natural armor +5
12	Wing slam
13	Breath weapon increase
14	Natural armor +6
15	Bonus feat, enlargement
16	Breath weapon increase
17	Natural armor +7, tail slap
18	Spell resistance
19	Breath weapon increase
20	Bonus feat, natural armor +8, blindsight

Dragon Disciple Natural Attacks and Breath Weapon Range

Size	Bite	Claw	Wing*	Tail Slap	Line (length)	Cone (length)
Small	1d4	1d3	n/a	n/a	60 ft.	30 ft.
Medium-size	1d6	1d4	1d3	n/a	60 ft.	30 ft.
Large	1d8	1d6	1d4	1d6	60 ft.	30 ft.
Huge	2d6	1d8	1d6	1d8	100 ft.	50 ft.
Gargantuan	2d8	2d6	1d8	2d6	120 ft.	60 ft.
Colossal	4d6	2d8	2d6	2d8	140 ft.	70 ft.

*Gained at 12th level.

Gained at 17th level.

DRAGON DISCIPLE

The epic progression for the dragon disciple prestige class is now found in the Revision Booklet.

If using the dragon disciple prestige class as originally presented in Tome and Blood, you can use the following variant epic progression originally presented in the Epic Insights column on transformational prestige classes. Perhaps the most symbolic of the transformational prestige classes, the path of the dragon disciple allows a character to become the most iconic monster of the D&D game: a dragon.

Along the way to reaching dragon apotheosis, the dragon disciple gains claw and bite attacks, natural armor, wings, size, and, of course, a breath weapon.

But in most cases, these are only pale reflections of the power of a true dragon.

This suggests that the best route for the epic dragon disciple is to improve upon his already formidable draconic powers.

Because the dragon disciple's bonus spell progression doesn't follow an easily discernible pattern, and because the class is quite potent enough without it, the epic progression presented below does not continue the bonus spells.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Natural Armor: At 11th level, and every three levels thereafter, the dragon disciple's natural armor bonus increases by +1 (to +5 at 11th, +6 at 14th, and so on).

Wing Slam: At 12th level, the dragon disciple gains the ability to make two wing slam attacks each round (assuming he is at least Medium-size).

Wing attacks deal the damage listed in the table below plus one-half the dragon disciple's Strength bonus, and they are at a -5 penalty on the attack bonus.

Breath Weapon Increase: At 13th level, and every three levels thereafter, the epic dragon disciple's breath weapon increases in power and frequency of use.

The damage dealt by the breath weapon increases by 2 dice (if it deals 6 dice of damage at 10th level) or by 1 die (if it deals 3 dice of damage at 10th level).

The additional dice are of the same type normally dealt by the dragon disciple's breath weapon.

In addition, the save DC for the breath weapon increases by 1 point, and the range increases as shown in the table below.

Finally, the dragon disciple gains one additional daily use of his breath weapon, though he must wait 1d4 rounds before each use.

Enlargement: At 15th level, and every ten levels thereafter, the dragon disciple's size increases by one step (such as from Large to Huge), to a maximum of Colossal size.

The change in size affects the dragon disciple's base natural weapon damage (see below).

Apply the appropriate new size modifier to the character's attacks and AC.

If the dragon disciple is already Colossal, he instead gains a +2 bonus to Strength.

Tail Slap: At 17th level, the dragon disciple grows a serpentine tail that he can use to deliver tail slap attacks.

A tail slap deals the listed damage plus 1 1/2 times the dragon disciple's Strength bonus and is at a -5 penalty on the attack bonus.

Spell Resistance (Ex): The 18th-level dragon disciple gains spell resistance equal to 20 + his class level.

Blindsight (Ex): The dragon disciple's blindsight goes up by 30 feet at 15th level, and increases by 30 feet every 5 levels thereafter.

Bonus Feats: The epic dragon disciple gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dragon disciple feats) every five levels after 10th.

Epic Dragon Disciple Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus (Knowledge [arcana]), Epic Toughness, Extended Life Span, Flyby Attack†, Great Charisma, Great Constitution, Great Strength, Hover†, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Spell Capacity, Improved Spell Resistance, Snatch†, Spell Knowledge, Wingover†.

† Non-epic feat.

Treat the dragon disciple's age category as one-half his class level for the purpose of the Hover feat.

EPIC DRAGON DISCIPLE

Level	Special
11	Natural armor +5
12	Wing slam
13	Breath weapon increase
14	Natural armor +6
15	Bonus feat, enlargement, blindsense
16	Breath weapon increase
17	Natural armor +7, tail slap
18	Spell resistance
19	Breath weapon increase
20	Bonus feat, natural armor +8, blindsense

DRAGON DISCIPLE NATURAL ATTACKS AND BREATH WEAPON RANGE

Size	Bite	Claw	Wing [☆]	Tail Slap ^{☆☆}	Line (Length)	Cone (Length)
Small	1d4	1d3	n/a	n/a	60 ft.	30 ft.
Medium	1d6	1d4	1d3	n/a	60 ft.	30 ft.
Large	1d8	1d6	1d4	1d6	60 ft.	30 ft.
Huge	2d6	1d8	1d6	1d8	100 ft.	50 ft.
Gargantuan	2d8	2d6	1d8	2d6	120 ft.	60 ft.
Colossal	4d6	2d8	2d6	2d8	140 ft.	70 ft.

*Gained at 12th level.

Gained at 17th level.

DREADMASTER

The epic dreadmaster rules (or seeks to rule) all he can survey and he keeps his subjects in a constant state of terror.

The ultimate tyrant, the dreadmaster satisfies himself with nothing less than total control of his domain.

The typical epic dreadmaster focuses feat selection on those that boost his ability to rule the wills, minds, and souls of others, such as Epic Spell Focus (Enchantment), Epic Reputation, Epic Leadership, and Legendary Commander. Craft Epic Rod allows the dreadmaster to strengthen the symbolic representation of Bane, while Epic Spell Penetration ensures that even powerful outsiders and the like can't escape his dominion.

After Wisdom, which controls the dreadmaster's divine spellcasting capability, Charisma is the character's most appropriate choice for ability increases.

Other Options: Dreadmasters can augment their undead-rebuking powers with Negative Energy Burst, Planar Turning, or Undead Mastery.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic dreadmaster's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every level, the epic dreadmaster gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Dominating Aura (Su): The radius of this aura increases by 20 feet every 2 levels beyond 9th (11th, 13th, 15th, and so on).

Enhanced Leadership (Ex): The bonus to the epic dreadmaster's Leadership score increases by +2 for every 2 levels after 10th (+8 at 12th, +10 at 14th, and so on).

This bonus also applies to the epic dreadmaster's Leadership score if he takes the Epic Leadership feat. Bonus Feats: The epic dreadmaster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dreadmaster feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Dreadmaster Bonus Feat List: Bonus Domain, Craft Epic Rod, Enhance Spell, Epic Leadership, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus (Intimidate), Epic Spell Focus (Enchantment), Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Legendary Commander, Multispell, Negative Energy Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

Dreadmaster

Level	Special
11	Dominating aura 80 feet
12	Enhanced leadership +8
13	Dominating aura 100 feet, bonus feat
14	Enhanced leadership +10
15	Dominating aura 120 feet
16	Enhanced leadership +12, bonus feat
17	Dominating aura 140 feet
18	Enhanced leadership +14
19	Dominating aura 160 feet, bonus feat
20	Enhanced leadership +16

DREADMASTER

The epic dreadmaster rules (or seeks to rule) all he can survey and he keeps his subjects in a constant state of terror.

The ultimate tyrant, the dreadmaster satisfies himself with nothing less than total control of his domain.

The typical epic dreadmaster focuses feat selection on those that boost his ability to rule the wills, minds, and souls of others, such as Epic Spell Focus (Enchantment), Epic Reputation, Epic Leadership, and Legendary Commander. Craft Epic Rod allows the dreadmaster to strengthen the symbolic representation of Bane, while Epic Spell Penetration ensures that even powerful outsiders and the like can't escape his dominion.

After Wisdom, which controls the dreadmaster's divine spellcasting capability, Charisma is the character's most appropriate choice for ability increases.

Other Options: Dreadmasters can augment their undead-rebuking powers with Negative Energy Burst, Planar Turning, or Undead Mastery.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic dreadmaster's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic dreadmaster continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the divine spellcasting class to which the dreadmaster belonged before adding the prestige class.

Dominating Aura (Su): The radius of this aura increases by 20 feet every two levels beyond 9th (11th, 13th, 15th, and so on).

Enhanced Leadership (Ex): The bonus to the epic dreadmaster's Leadership score increases by +2 for every two levels after 10th (+8 at 12th, +10 at 14th, and so on).

This bonus also applies to the epic dreadmaster's Leadership score if he takes the Epic Leadership feat.

Bonus Feats: The epic dreadmaster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dreadmaster feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Dreadmaster Bonus Feat List: Bonus Domain, Craft Epic Rod, Divine Spell Penetration (see New Epic Feats), Enhance Spell, Epic Devotion (see New Epic Feats), Epic Leadership, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus (Intimidate), Epic Spell Focus (Enchantment), Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Legendary Commander, Multispell, Negative Energy Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

EPIC DREADMASTER

Level	Special
11	Dominating aura 80 feet
12	Enhanced leadership +8
13	Dominating aura 100 feet, bonus feat
14	Enhanced leadership +10
15	Dominating aura 120 feet
16	Enhanced leadership +12, bonus feat
17	Dominating aura 140 feet
18	Enhanced leadership +14
19	Dominating aura 160 feet, bonus feat
20	Enhanced leadership +16

DUELIST

From Sword and Fist

The epic duelist darts and weaves in combat, relying on his extraordinary agility and cunning to win the day.

Combat-related feats should occupy most of your bonus slots.

Look to Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Prowess, and Superior Initiative to gain the upper hand.

Of course, no duelist is complete without widespread recognition, and Epic Reputation does the trick well.

The epic duelist's most important ability score is Dexterity.

Intelligence bumps help increase your canny defense.

Strength isn't as significant for most duelists, since they tend to favor finesse weapons.

A duelist who relies on interaction skills should consider increasing Charisma from time to time.

Other Options: Epic duelists favoring two-weapon combat should look to Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting and Two-Weapon Rend for a boost.

To really show off against lesser mortals, pick up Exceptional Deflection or Infinite Deflection and watch the enemy archers gasp in awe.

Hit Die: d10

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Precise Strike: Every four levels above 10th, the extra damage inflicted by the epic duelist's precise strike increases by +1d6.

Bonus Feats: The epic duelist gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic duelist feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Duelist Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Weapon Focus (rapier), Exceptional Deflection*, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Infinite Deflection*, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Superior Initiative, Two-Weapon Rend.

*The epic duelist need not have Improved Unarmed Strike to qualify for these feats.

Duelist

Level	Special
11	—
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	Precise strike +4d6
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Precise strike +5d6
19	Bonus feat
20	—

DUELIST

The epic progression for the duelist prestige class is now found in the Revision Booklet.

If using the new feats found in this compilation, add the following feats to the epic duelist's bonus feat list: Combat Insight and Epic Combat Expertise.

DUNGEON DELVER

From Song and Silence

If you plan on venturing into trap-infested dungeon complexes, there's no one better to take along than the epic dungeon delver.

The epic dungeon delver appreciates the value of feats that keep her safe from harm, such as Epic Dodge and Trap Sense.

You can't go wrong with Epic Skill Focus or Legendary Climber.

Dexterity and Intelligence help most of your important skills.

Depending on your other aptitudes, Strength, Constitution, and Wisdom are all reasonable choices as well.

Other Options: Epic dungeon delvers who face combat frequently should consider Superior Initiative or Fast Healing.

Hit Die: d6

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier
 Danger Sense (Ex): The epic dungeon delver's insight bonus on Reflex saves to avoid traps, dodge bonus to Armor Class against attacks by traps, and insight bonus on Spot checks made to spot creatures at the beginning of an encounter increase by +2 every five levels gained above 6th.
 Blindsight: The epic dungeon delver's blindsight range improves by 20 feet for every six levels gained above 8th.
 Treasure Sense: The range of an epic dungeon delver's treasure sense increases by 200 feet for every level gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic dungeon delver gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dungeon delver feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Dungeon Delver Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Dodge, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Fast Healing, Improved Darkvision, Legendary Climber, Superior Initiative, Trap Sense.

Dungeon Delver
Level	Special
11	Danger sense +6/+8, treasure sense
12	Treasure sense
13	Bonus feat, treasure sense
14	Blindsight (60 ft.) , treasure sense
15	Treasure sense
16	Danger sense +8/+10, bonus feat, treasure sense
17	Treasure sense
18	Treasure sense
19	Bonus feat, treasure sense
20	Blindsight (80 ft.) , treasure sense

DUNGEON DELVER

If you plan on venturing into trap-infested dungeon complexes, there's no one better to take along than the epic dungeon delver.

The epic dungeon delver appreciates the value of feats that keep her safe from harm, such as Epic Dodge and Epic Trapfinding.

You can't go wrong with Epic Skill Focus or Legendary Climber.

Dexterity and Intelligence help most of your important skills.

Depending on your other aptitudes, Strength, Constitution, and Wisdom are all reasonable choices as well.

Other Options: Epic dungeon delvers who face combat frequently should consider Superior Initiative or Fast Healing.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier.

Danger Sense (Ex): The epic dungeon delver's insight bonus on Reflex saves to avoid traps, dodge bonus to Armor Class against attacks by traps, and insight bonus on Spot checks made to spot creatures at the beginning of an encounter increase by +2 every five levels gained above 6th.
 Blindsight (Ex): The epic dungeon delver's blindsight range improves by 20 feet for every six levels gained above 8th.

Treasure Sense (Su): The range of an epic dungeon delver's treasure sense increases by 200 feet for every level gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic dungeon delver gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dungeon delver feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Dungeon Delver Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Dodge, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Trapfinding, Fast Healing, Improved Darkvision, Legendary Climber, Superior Initiative.

DUNGEON DELVER

Level	Special
11	Danger sense +6/+8
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	Blindsight (60 ft.)
15	—
16	Danger sense +8/+10, bonus feat
17	—
18	—
19	Bonus feat
20	Blindsight (80 ft.)

DWEOMERKEEPER

The epic dweomerkeeper serves as one of Mystra's most trusted and powerful safeguards of the Weave.

Few living creatures exceed the epic dweomerkeeper's knowledge of arcane mysteries.

Most epic dweomerkeepers continue their training in metamagic and/or item creation with such feats as Improved Metamagic, Improved Heighten Spell, Craft Epic Staff, or Craft Epic Wondrous Item.

As with most epic spellcasters, ability increases should go to improving the character's spellcasting capability.

Regardless, Intelligence is a good second choice since it boosts many of the dweomerkeeper's signature skills.

Other Options: Though most dweomerkeepers focus on spellcasting pursuits over more mundane clerical capabilities, feats such as Positive Energy Aura or Negative Energy Burst can come in handy.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic dweomerkeeper's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every level the epic dweomerkeeper gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Mantle of Spells (Su): At 12th level, and every 2 levels thereafter (14th, 16th, and so on), the epic dweomerkeeper adds one arcane or divine spell to the list of spells which he can spontaneously convert from other spells.

The number in parentheses indicates the total number of spells into which the epic dweomerkeeper can spontaneously convert other spells.

Bonus Feats: The epic dweomerkeeper gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dweomerkeeper feats) every 4 levels after 9th.

Epic Dweomerkeeper Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Skill Focus (Knowledge [arcana] or Spellcraft), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Weapon Focus (ray, energy missile, or touch spell), Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Dweomerkeeper
Level	Special
11
12	Mantle of spells (4)
13	Bonus feat
14	Mantle of spells (5)
15
16	Mantle of spells (6)
17	Bonus feat
18	Mantle of spells (7)
19
20	Mantle of spells (8)

DWEOMERKEEPER

The epic dweomerkeeper serves as one of Mystra's most trusted and powerful safeguards of the Weave. Few living creatures exceed the epic dweomerkeeper's knowledge of arcane mysteries.

Most epic dweomerkeepers continue their training in metamagic and/or item creation with such feats as Improved Metamagic, Improved Heighten Spell, Craft Epic Staff, or Craft Epic Wondrous Item.

As with most epic spellcasters, ability increases should go to improving the character's spellcasting capability.

Regardless, Intelligence is a good second choice since it boosts many of the dweomerkeeper's signature skills.

Other Options: Though most dweomerkeepers focus on spellcasting pursuits over more mundane clerical capabilities, feats such as Positive Energy Aura or Negative Energy Burst can come in handy.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic dweomerkeeper's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic dweomerkeeper continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the spellcasting class to which the dweomerkeeper belonged before adding the prestige class.

Mantle of Spells (Su): At 12th level, and every two levels thereafter (14th, 16th, and so on), the epic dweomerkeeper adds one arcane or divine spell to the list of spells which he can spontaneously convert from other spells.

The number in parentheses indicates the total number of spells into which the epic dweomerkeeper can spontaneously convert from other spells.

Bonus Feats: The epic dweomerkeeper gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic dweomerkeeper feats) every four levels after 9th.

Epic Dweomerkeeper Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Divine Spell Penetration (see New Epic Feats), Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Devotion (see New Epic Feats), Epic Skill Focus (Knowledge [arcana] or Spellcraft), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Weapon Focus (ray, energy missile, or touch spell), Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC DWEOMERKEEPER

Level	Special
11	—
12	Mantle of spells (4)
13	Bonus feat
14	Mantle of spells (5)
15	—
16	Mantle of spells (6)
17	Bonus feat
18	Mantle of spells (7)
19	—
20	Mantle of spells (8)

EIDOLON

The epic eidolon is a true horror to the living, whether as a profane haunter of the innocent or a dire warning to those of evil bent.

The connection between the epic eidolon and his levels of the "living" classes allows him to select bonus feats from the lists available to those classes, but only so long as he maintains a minimum percentage of class levels in nonghost classes.

The eidolon's ability increases should go primarily toward Strength or Dexterity—depending on which score is more crucial to the character's success.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feats: The epic eidolon gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic eidolon feats) every 2 levels after 20th.

Epic Eidolon Bonus Feat List: An epic eidolon may select any feat with the [Ghost] descriptor as a bonus feat.

In addition, an epic eidolon may select bonus feats from the class lists of any class, provided that at least one-fifth (20%) of his total class levels are made up of levels from that class (round down to the nearest whole number).

See above for details.

Epic Eidolon

Level	Special
21
22	Bonus feat
23
24	Bonus feat
25
26	Bonus feat
27
28	Bonus feat
29
30	Bonus feat

EIDOLONCER

As the eidoloncer moves into the realm of epic levels, her link to the world of the living becomes weaker, though her ghostly and magical powers continue to improve.

Due to the link between the epic eidoloncer and her levels of the “living” classes, her bonus feat selection is limited to those that were available to her in life, but only so long as she maintains a minimum percentage of class levels in nonghost classes.

For this reason, most epic eidoloncers choose to spend occasional stretches of adventuring time in living form. An eidoloncer should focus ability score increases on the ability that influences her spellcasting, though an occasional point of Dexterity or Constitution can't hurt. Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spellcasting: The epic eidoloncer advances her spellcasting ability at every level in the eidoloncer class, just as at non-epic levels.

When the eidoloncer's spellcasting ability exceeds 20th level in a class, treat the eidoloncer as an epic spellcaster (see the individual class levels in the Epic Level Handbook for details).

Bonus Feats: The epic eidoloncer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic eidoloncer feats) every 3 levels after 20th.

Epic Eidoloncer Bonus Feat List: An epic eidoloncer may select any feat with the [Ghost] descriptor as a bonus feat.

In addition, an epic eidoloncer may select bonus feats from the class lists of any class, provided that at least one-fifth (20%) of her total class levels are made up of levels from that class (round down to the nearest whole number).

See above for details.

Epic Eidoloncer

Level	Special
21	Spellcasting
22	Spellcasting
23	Spellcasting, bonus feat
24	Spellcasting
25	Spellcasting
26	Spellcasting, bonus feat
27	Spellcasting
28	Spellcasting
29	Spellcasting, bonus feat
30	Spellcasting

ELEMENTAL SAVANT

From Tome and Blood

The epic elemental savant's quest for power need not end with her transformation into elemental form—instead, she can continue and discover even greater mysteries.

Spellcasting is your forte, so look to feats that increase that aptitude, such as Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spellcasting, and Improved Spell Capacity.

Armor Skin and Damage Reduction boost your defensive prowess.

Focus on improving the ability score (Charisma, Intelligence, or Wisdom) that affects your spellcasting.

Other Options: Clerics following this path should consider Planar Turning, since they're likely to encounter many hostile extraplanar creatures.

Hit Die: d4

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic elemental savant's caster level increases by one per level gained above 10th, except for any level that ends in 0 (such as 20th or 30th).

The epic elemental savant's number of spells per day increases until her caster level reaches 20th.

Elemental Focus: The save DC for any spell using the epic elemental savant's chosen type of energy increases by +1 for every three levels after 8th.

Elemental Penetration: The competence modifier to caster level checks made by the epic elemental savant when casting a spell using her chosen type of energy increases by +1 for every three levels after 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic elemental savant gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic elemental savant feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Elemental Savant Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spellcasting, Extended Lifespan, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Planar Turning, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell.

Level	Elemental Savant Special
11	Elemental focus +4
12	Elemental penetration +4
13	Bonus feat
14	Elemental focus +5
15	Elemental penetration +5
16	Bonus feat
17	Elemental focus +6
18	Elemental penetration +6
19	Bonus feat
20	Elemental focus +7

ELEMENTAL SAVANT

At first glance, the elemental savant seems to make for an easy epic progression.

Her resistance, elemental focus, and elemental penetration all follow regular patterns of improvement over the 10 levels of the class, suggesting that all one needs to do to continue into epic levels is continue the patterns.

Unfortunately, this is one of those places where the guidelines in the Epic Level Handbook simply don't work. Since the elemental savant gains total immunity to her chosen energy type at 10th level, continued improvement of her energy resistance serves no purpose.

And if we simply grant an additional +1 to save DCs and spell penetration checks every 3 levels, these numbers quickly outstrip anything obtainable by other spellcasters. By the 20th level of elemental savant (minimum 30th-level character), the save DCs for her chosen energy type will be 7 points higher than those of a typical wizard or sorcerer (turning a difficult save into a near-impossible one), and a typical creature's spell resistance simply won't offer more than a speed bump.

That's not to say that these features can't continue to improve—they just have to do so more slowly than at non-epic levels.

And in addition, we can peruse the elementals in the Monster Manual for other options.

Certainly the save DC against her special elemental attacks (whirlwind, burn, or vortex) can continue to improve. The ability to transform into an elemental seems like a natural ability to grant, as is damage reduction and other powers traditionally associated with elementals.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic elemental savant's caster level increases by 1 every level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every level, the epic elemental savant gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Elemental Special Attacks: The save DC against the epic elemental savant's special attacks (whirlwind, burn, or vortex) is equal to 20 + 1/2 her number of class levels above 10th + Con modifier.

Elemental Transformation (Su): At 11th level, the elemental savant gains the ability to shapechange into a Large or smaller elemental of her chosen type (air, earth, fire, or water) once per day as a sorcerer of her class level. She also gains the elemental's supernatural special attacks and special qualities.

For every 3 additional levels gained above 11th, the savant can shapechange one additional time per day (twice at 14th, three times at 17th, and so on).

For every 5 additional levels gained above 11th, the elemental savant can take the form of an elemental of one size category greater (Huge at 16th, greater at 21st, and elder at 26th).

Elemental Focus (Ex): The save DC for any spell using the epic elemental savant's chosen type of energy increases to +4 at 12th level, and by another +1 every 6 levels thereafter.

Damage Reduction (Su): At 13th level, the epic elemental savant gains DR 10/+1.

The enhancement bonus required to bypass this DR increases by +1 every six levels thereafter (to 10/+2 at 19th, 10/+3 at 25th, and so forth).

Ability Increase: The 13th-level epic elemental savant gains a permanent +2 increase to an ability score based on her chosen element: Strength (earth), Dexterity (air or fire), or Constitution (water).

Every 10 levels thereafter, she gains an additional +2 increase to the same ability score.

Elemental Penetration (Ex): The competence bonus to the epic elemental savant's caster level checks to defeat spell resistance increases to +4 at 15th level, and by another +1 every 6 levels thereafter.

Bonus Feats: The epic elemental savant gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic elemental savant feats) every 4 levels after 10th.

Epic Elemental Savant Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Damage Reduction, Epic Fortitude (earth, water only), Epic Reflexes (air, fire only), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness (earth, water only), Extended Life Span, Great Constitution (water only), Great Dexterity (air, fire only), Great Strength (earth only), Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Superior Initiative (air, fire only).

Elemental Savant

Level	Special
11	Elemental transformation (Large) 1/day
12	Elemental focus +4
13	Damage reduction 10/+1, ability increase
14	Elemental transformation 2/day, bonus feat
15	Elemental penetration +4
16	Elemental transformation (Huge)
17	Elemental transformation 3/day
18	Elemental focus +5, bonus feat
19	Damage reduction 10/+2
20	Elemental transformation 4/day

ELEMENTAL SAVANT

At first glance, the elemental savant seems to make for an easy epic progression.

Her resistance, elemental focus, and elemental penetration all follow regular patterns of improvement over the ten levels of the class, suggesting that all one needs to do to continue into epic levels is continue the patterns.

Unfortunately, this is one of those places where the guidelines in the Epic Level Handbook simply don't work. Since the elemental savant gains total immunity to her chosen energy type at 10th level, continued improvement of her energy resistance serves no purpose.

And if we simply grant an additional +1 to save DCs and spell penetration checks every three levels, these numbers quickly outstrip anything obtainable by other spellcasters. By the 20th level of elemental savant (minimum 30th-level character), the save DCs for her chosen energy type will be 7 points higher than those of a typical wizard or sorcerer (turning a difficult save into a near-impossible one), and a typical creature's spell resistance simply won't offer more than a speed bump.

That's not to say that these features can't continue to improve—they just have to do so more slowly than at non-epic levels.

And in addition, we can peruse the elementals in the Monster Manual for other options.

Certainly the save DC against her special elemental attacks (whirlwind, burn, or vortex) can continue to improve.

The ability to transform into an elemental seems like a natural ability to grant, as is damage reduction and other powers traditionally associated with elementals.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic elemental savant's caster level increases by 1 every level gained above 10th.

The epic elemental savant continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the arcane spellcasting class to which the elemental savant belonged before adding the prestige class.

Elemental Special Attacks: The save DC against the epic elemental savant's special attacks (whirlwind, burn, or vortex) is equal to 20 + 1/2 her number of class levels above 10th + Con modifier.

Elemental Transformation (Su): At 11th level, the elemental savant gains the ability to shapechange into a Large or smaller elemental of her chosen type (air, earth, fire, or water) once per day as a sorcerer of her class level. She also gains the elemental's supernatural special attacks and special qualities.

For every 3 additional levels gained above 11th, the savant can shapechange one additional time per day (twice at 14th, three times at 17th, and so on).

For every 5 additional levels gained above 11th, the elemental savant can take the form of an elemental of one size category greater (Huge at 16th, greater at 21st, and elder at 26th).

Elemental Focus (Ex): The save DC for any spell using the epic elemental savant's chosen type of energy increases to +4 at 12th level, and by another +1 every six levels thereafter.

Damage Reduction (Su): At 13th level, the epic elemental savant gains DR 5/–.

This increases by 1 every 3 levels thereafter (to 6/– at 16th, 7/– at 19th, and so on).

Ability Increase: The 13th-level epic elemental savant gains a permanent +2 increase to an ability score based on her chosen element: Strength (earth), Dexterity (air or fire), or Constitution (water).

Every ten levels thereafter, she gains an additional +2 increase to the same ability score.

Elemental Penetration (Ex): The competence bonus to the epic elemental savant's caster level checks to defeat spell resistance increases to +4 at 15th level, and by another +1 every six levels thereafter.

Bonus Feats: The epic elemental savant gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic elemental savant feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Elemental Savant Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Damage Reduction, Epic Counterspell (see New Epic Feats), Epic Fortitude (earth, water only), Epic Reflexes (air, fire only), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness (earth, water only), Extended Life Span, Great Constitution (water only), Great Dexterity (air, fire only), Great Strength (earth only), Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Darkvision, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Superior Initiative (air, fire only).

EPIC ELEMENTAL SAVANT

Level	Special
11	Elemental transformation (Large) 1/day
12	Elemental focus +4
13	Damage reduction 10/+1, ability increase
14	Elemental transformation 2/day, bonus feat
15	Elemental penetration +4
16	Elemental transformation (Huge)
17	Elemental transformation 3/day
18	Elemental focus +5, bonus feat
19	Damage reduction 10/+2
20	Elemental transformation 4/day

FAVORED SOUL

An epic favored soul continues to grow closer to her deity, gaining more and more divine characteristics and resistances.

A truly high level epic favored soul is easily mistaken for an angel, devil, demon, or similar outsider.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The favored soul's caster level is equal to her class level.

The favored soul's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The favored soul does not learn additional spells.

Improved Energy Resistance (Ex): Starting at 22nd level, and every four levels thereafter, the favored soul adds +10 to one of her three energy resistances.

Divine Gift (Ex): At 25th level and every five levels thereafter, a favored soul's bond with her deity grows stronger and manifests physically.

She can choose any one of the following benefits at this time.

Damage Reduction (Ex): The favored soul's damage reduction increases by +2.

Increased Flight: The favored soul's flying speed increases by +10 ft.

Natural Armor: The favored soul's natural armor bonus increases by +2.

Sacred Ability: The favored soul gains a +1 bonus to an ability score of her choice.

Each time this gift is chosen, the favored soul must select a new ability to modify.

Sacred Skill: The favored soul gains a +4 sacred bonus on one skill.

Each time this gift is chosen, the favored soul must select a new skill to modify.

Sacred Spell: The favored soul selects one spell she knows; the selected spell's level must be equal to or less than her favored soul level divided by 10.

She can cast this spell one time each day without expending a spell slot, and each time she casts this spell it resolves at caster level +2.

Each time this gift is chosen, the favored soul must select a new spell to make sacred.

These benefits carry with them some form of physical change appropriate to the favored soul's deity.

This can be something as simple as glowing eyes, or it can be something as impressive as skin made of liquid fire.

In all cases, apart from the actual game benefit granted by the divine gift, this change is physical only.

Bonus Feats: The epic favored soul gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic favored soul feats) at 23rd level and again every three levels after that.

Epic Favored Soul Bonus Feat List: Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Enhance Spell, Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Extend Life Span, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Spell Stowaway, Tenacious Magic.

Epic Favored Soul

Level	Special
21	--
22	Improved energy resistance
23	Bonus feat
24	--
25	Divine gift
26	Improved energy resistance, bonus feat
27	--
28	--
29	Bonus feat
30	Improved energy resistance, divine gift

FRENZIED BERSERKER

From Masters of the Wild

Few mortal beings can surpass the destructive capabilities of the epic frenzied berserker.

Feats that augment your frenzy ability are obvious choices, but don't overlook more utilitarian options such as Epic Prowess and Fast Healing.

Your Strength and Constitution scores should benefit from ability boosts most often.

Dexterity is a good third option.

Other Options: Those few frenzied berserkers who care about boosting their defenses can pick up Damage Reduction or Epic Toughness.

Hit Die: d12

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Frenzy: The epic frenzied berserker may enter a frenzy one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 9th.

In addition, at the DM's option, any epic feat that affects rage (such as Chaotic Rage) has the same effect on the frenzied berserker's frenzy ability.

Inspire Frenzy: The epic frenzied berserker may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic frenzied berserker gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic frenzied berserker feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Frenzied Berserker Bonus Feat List: Chaotic Rage, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Fast Healing, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Ruinous Rage, Terrifying Rage, Thundering Rage.

Frenzied Berserker

Level	Special
11	Frenzy 6/day
12	Inspire frenzy 4/day
13	Frenzy 7/day, bonus feat
14	Inspire frenzy 5/day
15	Frenzy 8/day
16	Inspire frenzy 6/day, bonus feat
17	Frenzy 9/day
18	Inspire frenzy 7/day
19	Frenzy 10/day, bonus feat
20	Inspire frenzy 8/day

FRENZIED BERSERKER

Few mortal beings can surpass the destructive capabilities of the epic frenzied berserker.

Feats that augment your frenzy ability are obvious choices, but don't overlook more utilitarian options such as Epic Prowess and Fast Healing.

Your Strength and Constitution scores should benefit from ability boosts most often.

Dexterity is a good third option.

Other Options: Those few frenzied berserkers who care about boosting their defenses can pick up Damage Reduction or Epic Toughness.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Frenzy (Ex): The epic frenzied berserker may enter a frenzy one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 9th.

In addition, at the DM's option, any epic feat that affects rage (such as Chaotic Rage) has the same effect on the frenzied berserker's frenzy ability.

Inspire Frenzy (Su): The epic frenzied berserker may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic frenzied berserker gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic frenzied berserker feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Frenzied Berserker Bonus Feat List: Chaotic Rage, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Fast Healing, Mighty Sunder (see New Epic Feats), Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Ruinous Rage, Terrifying Rage, Thundering Rage.

EPIC FRENZIED BERSERKER

Level	Special
11	Frenzy 6/day
12	Inspire frenzy 4/day
13	Frenzy 7/day, bonus feat
14	Inspire frenzy 5/day
15	Frenzy 8/day
16	Inspire frenzy 6/day, bonus feat
17	Frenzy 9/day
18	Inspire frenzy 7/day
19	Frenzy 10/day, bonus feat
20	Inspire frenzy 8/day

GATECRASHER

From Manual of the Planes

The epic gatecrasher is, quite honestly, a headache of cosmic proportions to those who seek to maintain order on the planes.

Since the epic gatecrasher can't help but get into trouble, he should look for feats useful in such situations, including Blinding Speed, Epic Toughness, and Superior Initiative. Energy Resistance, Epic Spell Penetration, and Penetrate Damage Reduction help him deal with the denizens of the planes he visits.

Intelligence, Charisma, and Dexterity all help the epic gatecrasher keep his wits about him and his feet under him.

Other Options: Few gatecrashers would mind having an Epic Reputation, and once you've established that why not stick around with Extended Lifespan?

Hit Die: d6

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier

Analyze Portal (Sp): The epic gatecrasher gains one additional daily use of this ability per level gained above 10th.

Bonus Language: The epic gatecrasher gains a free language every three levels after 10th, chosen from those commonly spoken on other planes.

Bonus Feats: The epic gatecrasher gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic gatecrasher feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Gatecrasher Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Extended Lifespan, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Polyglot, Superior Initiative.

Level	Gatecrasher Special
11	Analyze portal
12	Bonus feat, analyze portal
13	Bonus language, analyze portal
14	Bonus feat, analyze portal
15	Analyze portal
16	Bonus language, bonus feat, analyze portal
17	Analyze portal
18	Bonus feat, analyze portal
19	Bonus language, analyze portal
20	Bonus feat, analyze portal

GATECRASHER

The epic gatecrasher is, quite honestly, a headache of cosmic proportions to those who seek to maintain order on the planes.

Since the epic gatecrasher can't help but get into trouble, he should look for feats useful in such situations, including Blinding Speed, Epic Toughness, and Superior Initiative. Energy Resistance, Epic Spell Penetration, and Penetrate Damage Reduction help him deal with the denizens of the planes he visits.

Intelligence, Charisma, and Dexterity all help the epic gatecrasher keep his wits about him and his feet under him.

Other Options: Few gatecrashers would mind having an Epic Reputation, and once you've established that why not stick around with Extended Lifespan?

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier.

Analyze Portal (Sp): The epic gatecrasher gains one additional daily use of this ability per level gained above 10th.

Bonus Language: The epic gatecrasher gains a free language every three levels after 10th, chosen from those commonly spoken on other planes.

Bonus Feats: The epic gatecrasher gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic gatecrasher feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Gatecrasher Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Extended Lifespan, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Polyglot, Superior Initiative.

EPIC GATECRASHER

Level	Special
11
12	Bonus feat
13	Bonus language
14	Bonus feat
15
16	Bonus language, bonus feat
17
18	Bonus feat
19	Bonus language
20	Bonus feat

GUILD WIZARD OF WATERDEEP

As one of the most prestigious and powerful organizations of wizards in all of Faerûn, the Watchful Order of Magists and Protectors count a number of epic-level characters among its membership.

Most don't involve themselves in the day-to-day politics of the guild, but their devotion to the cause is second to none. The epic guild wizard selects feats much like a typical wizard, since she often focuses on metamagic and/or epic magic item crafting feats such as Enhance Spell or Craft Epic Wondrous Item.

Epic Spell Focus and Epic Spell Penetration are wise choices, as well.

Improved Spell Pool Access, a new feat described below, is a very worthy feat for this prestige class.

As a wizard, Intelligence is your single most important ability score.

Constitution is a good choice to boost your hit points and Concentration checks, and you can't argue with the positive effects of a Dexterity increase.

Other Options: Make your spellcasting more versatile with Spell Opportunity or Spell Stowaway.

Pick up defensive feats, such as Epic Toughness or Energy Resistance, to bolster your fortitude in combat.

Epic Spellcasting is useful, though you can't share the results with the rest of the guild.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic guild wizard's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic guild wizard's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level, unless the sum of her class levels contributing to her caster level equals 20 or less.

Membership: The epic guild wizard of Waterdeep must continue to carry out the duties and responsibilities of membership, including dues, obedience to rulings, aid to other members, defense of the city, and devotion of personal time and energy.

Improved Spell Acquisition: At each level of advancement in the guild wizard prestige class, a character gains three spells of her choice of any level she can cast to add to her spellbook.

Bonus Language: At 12th level, and every 4 levels thereafter, the guild wizard can add one additional language to the list of those she already knows.

She can include ancient languages (see the section on Language in Chapter 3: Life in Faerûn in the Forgotten Realms Campaign Setting).

Spellpool: Beginning at 12th level, an epic guild wizard of Waterdeep can call spells of up to 10th level from the spellpool.

For every two additional levels of guild wizard gained, the upper limit of the spell level called from the spellpool increases by +1 (11th-level spells at 14th level, 12th-level spells at 16th level, and so on).

The spellpool can't provide epic spells (those created from the epic spellseeds described in Chapter 2 of the Epic Level Handbook).

The percentage chance that a desired spell is available in any 24-hour period is equal to 65% minus 5% per level of the spell, to a minimum of 5% for spells of 12th level or higher.

The spellpool otherwise functions just as described in Chapter 1: Magic Variants in Magic of Faerûn.

Bonus Feats: The epic guild wizard of Waterdeep gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic guild wizard feats) every 4 levels after 9th.

Epic Guild Wizard Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell (new feat; see below), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Improved Spellpool Access (new feat; see below), Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Polyglot, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Guild Wizard of Waterdeep

Level	Special
11
12	Bonus language, spellpool (10th)
13	Bonus feat
14	Spellpool (11th)
15
16	Bonus language, spellpool (12th)
17	Bonus feat
18	Spellpool (13th)
19
20	Bonus language, spellpool (14th)

GUILD WIZARD OF WATERDEEP

As one of the most prestigious and powerful organizations of wizards in all of Faerûn, the Watchful Order of Magists and Protectors count a number of epic-level characters among its membership.

Most don't involve themselves in the day-to-day politics of the guild, but their devotion to the cause is second to none. The epic guild wizard selects feats much like a typical wizard, since she often focuses on metamagic and/or epic magic item crafting feats such as Enhance Spell or Craft Epic Wondrous Item.

Epic Spell Focus and Epic Spell Penetration are wise choices, as well.

Improved Spell Pool Access, a new feat described below, is a very worthy feat for this prestige class.

As a wizard, Intelligence is your single most important ability score.

Constitution is a good choice to boost your hit points and Concentration checks, and you can't argue with the positive effects of a Dexterity increase.

Other Options: Make your spellcasting more versatile with Spell Opportunity or Spell Stowaway.

Pick up defensive feats, such as Epic Toughness or Energy Resistance, to bolster your fortitude in combat.

Epic Spellcasting is useful, though you can't share the results with the rest of the guild.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic guild wizard's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic guild wizard continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the arcane spellcasting class to which the guild wizard belonged before adding the prestige class.

Membership: The epic guild wizard of Waterdeep must continue to carry out the duties and responsibilities of membership, including dues, obedience to rulings, aid to other members, defense of the city, and devotion of personal time and energy.

Improved Spell Acquisition: At each level of advancement in the guild wizard prestige class, a character gains three spells of her choice of any level she can cast to add to her spellbook.

Bonus Language: At 12th level, and every four levels thereafter, the guild wizard can add one additional language to the list of those she already knows.

She can include ancient languages (see the section on Language in Chapter 3: Life in Faerûn in the FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting).

Spellpool: Beginning at 12th level, an epic guild wizard of Waterdeep can call spells of up to 10th level from the spellpool.

For every two additional levels of guild wizard gained, the upper limit of the spell level called from the spellpool increases by +1 (11th-level spells at 14th level, 12th-level spells at 16th level, and so on).

The spellpool can't provide epic spells (those created from the epic spellseeds described in Chapter 2 of the Epic Level Handbook).

The percentage chance that a desired spell is available in any 24-hour period is equal to 65% minus 5% per level of the spell, to a minimum of 5% for spells of 12th level or higher. The spellpool otherwise functions just as described in Chapter 1: Magic Variants in Magic of Faerûn.

Bonus Feats: The epic guild wizard of Waterdeep gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic guild wizard feats) every four levels after 9th.

Epic Guild Wizard Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell (see New Epic Feats), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Improved Spellpool Access (see New Epic Feats), Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Polyglot, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC GUILD WIZARD OF WATERDEEP

Level	Special
11	—
12	Bonus language, spellpool (10th)
13	Bonus feat
14	Spellpool (11th)
15	—
16	Bonus language, spellpool (12th)
17	Bonus feat
18	Spellpool (13th)
19	—
20	Bonus language, spellpool (14th)

HATHRAN

As far as outsiders believe, there are no hathrans above the rank of othlor among the Witches of Rashemen. That is because those few hathrans who exceed this level of power keep their identities secret and often disappear from public view.

They may continue to work from behind the scenes, but more likely they travel incognito to distant lands or planes of existence in search of greater knowledge.

The epic hathran has perhaps the widest array of bonus feats available to any class.

Your choice of feats largely depends on your spellcasting preference (arcane or divine).

Former clerics might select Bonus Domain or Improved Alignment-Based Casting, while arcane hathrans probably lean toward improving their metamagic capabilities.

Regardless of your background, general feats such as Epic Spell Focus and Epic Spell Penetration come in very handy, and you can't go wrong with Improved Spell Capacity. Focus on increasing the ability score that controls your spellcasting, whether that is Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma, as your primary option.

An occasional bump to your secondary spellcasting ability score (since hathran are multiclassed spellcasters) is a reasonable second choice.

Other Options: An epic hathran who seeks to become a ruler among her people might consider Epic Leadership or even Legendary Commander.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic hathran's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic hathran's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Fear: The epic hathran may use this ability one additional time per day for every 3 levels gained above 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic hathran gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic hathran feats) every 2 levels after 10th.

Epic Hathran Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Leadership, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat

Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Hathran Level	Special
11
12	Bonus feat, fear (4/day)
13
14	Bonus feat
15	Fear (5/day)
16	Bonus feat
17
18	Bonus feat, fear (6/day)
19
20	Bonus feat

HATHRAN

As far as outsiders believe, no hathrans are above the rank of othlor among the Witches of Rashemen. That is because those few hathrans who exceed this level of power keep their identities secret and often disappear from public view.

They may continue to work from behind the scenes, but more likely they travel incognito to distant lands or planes of existence in search of greater knowledge.

The epic hathran has perhaps the widest array of bonus feats available to any class.

Your choice of feats largely depends on your spellcasting preference (arcane or divine).

Former clerics might select Bonus Domain or Improved Alignment-Based Casting, while arcane hathrans probably lean toward improving their metamagic capabilities.

Regardless of your background, general feats such as Epic Spell Focus and Epic Spell Penetration come in very handy, and you can't go wrong with Improved Spell Capacity.

Focus on increasing the ability score that controls your spellcasting, whether that is Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma, as your primary option.

An occasional bump to your secondary spellcasting ability score (since hathran are multiclassed spellcasters) is a reasonable second choice.

Other Options: An epic hathran who seeks to become a ruler among her people might consider Epic Leadership or even Legendary Commander.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic hathran's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic hathran continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the spellcasting class to which the hathran belonged before adding the prestige class.

Fear: The epic hathran may use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained above 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic hathran gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic hathran feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Hathran Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Devotion, Epic Leadership, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC HATHRAN

Level	Special
11	—
12	Fear (4/day)
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Fear (5/day)
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Fear (6/day)
19	Bonus feat
20	—

HEALER

An epic healer seems to exude an aura of serenity and peace, since she has finally reached a level of power where suffering and death no longer seem like insurmountable foes.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The healer's caster level is equal to her class level.

The healer's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The healer does not learn additional spells.

Epic Unicorn Companion (Ex): The epic healer's unicorn companion continues to increase in power.

At 24th level and at every four levels higher than that, the unicorn gains +2 bonus Hit Dice, its natural armor increases by +2, and its Strength, Dexterity, and Intelligence increases by +1.

The unicorn's spell resistance equals the healer's level +5.

If the healer is using an alternative companion, remember to subtract the value indicated in the appropriate list header from the character's healer level to determine the companion's powers and statistics.

If the healer's effective level for the companion is 20 or less, use the appropriate value from the Healer's Companion table on page 10 of the Miniatures Handbook.

If the healer's effective level for the companion is 21 or higher, the companion gains +2 bonus Hit Dice, its natural armor increases by +2, and its Strength, Dexterity, and Intelligence increases by +1.

When determining the companion's spell resistance, first subtract the value indicated in the appropriate list header from the character's healer level before adding +5.

Epic Cleansing (Ex): At 21st level, and every four levels after that, the epic healer can use all of her cleanse abilities (including new limb and new life) one additional time per specified time period.

In most cases, this increases the ability's use to +1 use per day, but for new life, it increases it to +1 use per week.
Bonus Feat: The epic healer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic healer feats) at 23rd level and again every three levels after that.

Epic Healer Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Damage Reduction, Efficient Item Creation, Energy Resistance, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Extended Life Span, Fast Healing, Improved Spell Capacity, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Perfect Health, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Stowaway, Superior Initiative, Tenacious Magic.

Epic Healer

Level	Special
21	Epic cleansing +1
22	--
23	Bonus feat
24	Epic unicorn companion
25	Epic cleansing +2
26	Bonus feat
27	--
28	Epic unicorn companion
29	Bonus feat
30	Epic cleansing +3

HOLY LIBERATOR

From Defenders of the Faith

The epic holy liberator is an enduring symbol of liberty and freedom from tyranny.

You can boost your offensive power with Epic Prowess, Overwhelming Critical, and similar feats, but don't overlook defensive boosts such as Armor Skin and Epic Toughness.

Great Smiting and Holy Strike provide extra oomph for your smite evil ability.

Charisma, Strength, and Wisdom are all critical for your success.

Other Options: Epic holy liberators who like to turn undead may want to select Planar Turning or Positive Energy Aura.

With Epic Leadership, you can obtain the service of a powerful ally to your cause.

Hit Die: d10

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic holy liberator's caster level is equal to his class level.

The epic holy liberator's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Smite Evil (Su): The bonus damage inflicted by an epic holy liberator's smite evil attack increases by 1 point per level gained.

Turn Undead (Su): The epic holy liberator turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower, as normal.

Celestial Companion: The epic holy liberator's celestial companion continues to increase in power.

Every five levels after 10th, the celestial companion gains +2 bonus HD, its natural armor increases by +2, its Strength adjustment increases by +1, and its Intelligence increases by +1.

The celestial companion's spell resistance equals the holy liberator's character level.

Bonus Feats: The epic holy liberator gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic holy liberator feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Holy Liberator Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Great Smiting, Holy Strike, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Rider, Overwhelming Critical, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Spell.

Holy Liberator

Level	Special
11	Smite evil
12	Smite evil
13	Bonus feat, smite evil
14	Smite evil
15	Smite evil, celestial companion
16	Bonus feat, smite evil
17	Smite evil
18	Smite evil
19	Bonus feat, smite evil
20	Smite evil, celestial companion

HOLY LIBERATOR

The epic holy liberator is an enduring symbol of liberty and freedom from tyranny.

You can boost your offensive power with Epic Prowess, Overwhelming Critical, and similar feats, but don't overlook defensive boosts such as Armor Skin and Epic Toughness.

Great Smiting and Holy Strike provide extra oomph for your smite evil ability.

Charisma, Strength, and Wisdom are all critical for your success.

Other Options: Epic holy liberators who like to turn undead may want to select Planar Turning or Positive Energy Aura.

With Epic Leadership, you can obtain the service of a powerful ally to your cause.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic holy liberator's caster level is equal to his class level.

The epic holy liberator's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Smite Evil (Su): The bonus damage inflicted by an epic holy liberator's smite evil attack increases by 1 point per level gained.

Turn Undead (Su): The epic holy liberator turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower, as normal.

Celestial Companion: The epic holy liberator's celestial companion continues to increase in power.

Every five levels after 10th, the celestial companion gains +2 bonus HD, its natural armor increases by +2, its Strength adjustment increases by +1, and its Intelligence increases by +1.

The celestial companion's spell resistance equals the holy liberator's character level.

Bonus Feats: The epic holy liberator gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic holy liberator feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Holy Liberator Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Great Smiting, Holy Strike, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Rider, Overwhelming Critical, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Spell.

EPIC HOLY LIBERATOR

Level	Special
11	—
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	—
19	Bonus feat
20	—

HOSPITALER

From Defenders of the Faith

The epic hospitaler lives only to protect those of his faith, wherever in the world they might be.

In many cases, the epic hospitaler's sword and shield are all that stand between her charges and the forces of evil.

Epic Prowess, Armor Skin, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, and Overwhelming Critical are all useful to you.

Epic Reputation helps you get off on the right foot no matter what far-off land you visit.

The epic hospitaler depends on her Charisma and Strength above all else.

Other Options: Those epic hospitalers who find themselves facing undead with frequency should look to Positive Energy Aura or Spectral Strike.

By selecting Epic Leadership, you can ensure that your quest won't be a solitary one.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic hospitaler's caster level increases by one per level gained above 10th.

The epic hospitaler's number of spells per day increases until her caster level reaches 20th.

Lay on Hands: The amount of damage an epic hospitaler can cure by touch continues to increase as her level increases.

Turn Undead: The epic hospitaler turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower, as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic hospitaler gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic hospitaler feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Hospitaler Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Spell.

Hospitaler

Level	Special
11	—
12	Bonus feat
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Bonus feat
19	—
20	Bonus feat

HOSPITALER

The epic hospitaler lives only to protect those of his faith, wherever in the world they might be.

In many cases, the epic hospitaler's sword and shield are all that stand between her charges and the forces of evil.

Epic Prowess, Armor Skin, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, and Overwhelming Critical are all useful to you.

Epic Reputation helps you get off on the right foot no matter what far-off land you visit.

The epic hospitaler depends on her Charisma and Strength above all else.

Other Options: Those epic hospitalers who find themselves facing undead with frequency should look to Positive Energy Aura or Spectral Strike.

By selecting Epic Leadership, you can ensure that your quest won't be a solitary one.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic hospitaler's caster level increases by one per level gained above 10th.

The epic hospitaler continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the divine spellcasting class to which the hospitaler belonged before adding the prestige class.

Lay on Hands (Su): The amount of damage an epic hospitaler can cure by touch continues to increase as her level increases.

Turn Undead (Su): The epic hospitaler turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower, as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic hospitaler gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic hospitaler feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Hospitaler Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Spell.

EPIC HOSPITALER

Level	Special
11	—
12	Bonus feat
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Bonus feat
19	—
20	Bonus feat

IAIJUTSU MASTER

Iaijutsu is the art of drawing a weapon (usually a katana) and striking with it in one fluid strike.

Many are the samurai who seek to master this deadly art, but few can fully embrace this skill.

Among the iaijutsu masters are told stories of warriors who have transcended this ancient art.

These are the epic masters of iaijutsu—swordfighters of incomparable skill.

Some can strike numerous times with a single cut, others can use their swords to perform blinding works of precision cutting, and some even strike so fast that they do not seem to draw their blade at all.

These masters form legends that are whispered or dramatically recounted to many but are encountered by few.

Epic iaijutsu masters continue to hone their skills as they progress beyond 11th level in their class.

They focus on the art of swordfighting by selecting feats that further enhance their ability to end duels with a single, impossibly fast strike.

Iaijutsu duels are about focus, not strength, and as a result Charisma is the most important choice for ability increases for an epic iaijutsu master, although Strength and Dexterity are also appropriate choices.

Other Options: A rare few epic iaijutsu masters choose to augment their skills with magic.

These characters often take Automatic Quicken Spell and Multispell so they can cast spells as quickly as they strike with their swords.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Echoes of the Edge (Su): At 11th level, the epic iaijutsu master gains the ability to strike at a creature an additional time as a free action, as long as she successfully damages the target on the initial strike.

This additional attack is resolved at the character's highest base attack bonus and must be directed at the same creature the character's previous attack struck; the strike lands on precisely the same location as the cut before, but slices yet deeper.

If this strike hits, it deals an amount of damage equal to the previous strike.

If the previous strike was a critical hit, this free strike is a critical hit as well and it inflicts the same damage as the prior strike.

An epic iaijutsu master may use echoes of the edge only once per round and only once per day.

At 14th level, and again at every 3 levels thereafter, she may perform an echo of the edge an additional time each day.

Spirit Strike (Su): At 12th level, the epic iaijutsu master can draw her sword, strike with it, and return it to its sheath so quickly that she doesn't even seem to move.

The strike is so fast that no blood stains the blade, and the victim may not initially realize he has been cut.

The epic iaijutsu master makes one attack as a full round action when she spirit strikes; a successful Spot check (opposed by the iaijutsu master's Iaijutsu Focus skill check) allows an observer to notice a faint blur about the target as the strike connects.

If the epic iaijutsu master hits her target with a spirit strike, it is treated as an iaijutsu strike and she can make an Iaijutsu Focus check to determine how many additional points of damage her strike inflicts.

The iaijutsu master can follow a spirit strike with an echo from the edge, but unless she uses up another of her spirit strike uses for the day, this second strike is visible (but still shockingly fast).

At 15th level, and every 3 levels thereafter, an epic iaijutsu master can make an additional spirit strike each day.

Bonus Feats: The epic iaijutsu master gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic iaijutsu master feats) every 3 levels after 11th.

Epic Iaijutsu Master Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Devastating Critical, Epic Dodge, Epic Prowess, Epic Reflexes, Epic Skill Focus (Iaijutsu Focus), Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Iaijutsu Focus, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Overwhelming Critical, Spectral Strike, Superior Initiative.

Iaijutsu Master

Level	Special
11	Echoes of the edge 1/day
12	Spirit strike 1/day
13	Bonus feat
14	Echoes of the edge 2/day
15	Spirit strike 2/day
16	Bonus feat
17	Echoes of the edge 3/day
18	Spirit strike 3/day
19	Bonus feat
20	Echoes of the edge 4/day

ILLITHID SAVANT

The epic illithid savant believes itself to be a scholar—a scientist involved in the research of knowledge. It is also among the deadliest, most unpredictable foes in the world.

The epic illithid savant's feat and ability score choices depend largely on its choice of victims.

Since most savants dabble in arcane lore, it's likely that feats contributing toward improved spellcasting, such as Spell Knowledge, Epic Spell Focus, or Improved Spell Capacity, will prove useful.

Regardless of its acquired abilities, feats that contribute toward defense help the savant survive encounters with pesky meals, so consider Energy Resistance or Epic Toughness.

Boosting your Charisma is always a good choice, since it enhances your innate powers.

Other Options: If the illithid savant has pursued a more unorthodox selection of victims, just about any feat in the book can come in handy, from Combat Archery to Epic Weapon Focus to Unholy Strike.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Lore (Ex): Beginning at 11th level, the illithid savant may use its lore ability at will.

Acquire Skill (Ex): The epic illithid savant can acquire and use one additional skill from a consumed brain at every even-numbered level above 10th.

Acquire Feat (Ex): The epic illithid savant can acquire and use one additional feat from a consumed brain at every even-numbered level above 10th.

Since an illithid savant may acquire a feat from a devoured brain only if he meets the feat's prerequisites, an illithid savant cannot acquire an epic feat before character level 21.

Acquire Class Feature (Ex): The epic illithid savant can gain one additional class feature from a consumed brain for every three levels gained after 10th.

An illithid savant below 13th level cannot gain the ability to cast spells higher than 9th level.

Beginning at 13th level (the first level at which an epic illithid savant can acquire a class feature), it can gain the ability to cast spells higher than 9th level if it consumes the brain of a creature who has the ability to cast such spells.

An illithid savant cannot gain the ability to cast epic spells unless he has selected (or acquired) the Epic Spellcasting feat.

If an illithid savant with the Epic Spellcasting feat devours the brain of a creature who knows one or more epic spells, the illithid savant gains the ability to cast one of those spells, chosen by the illithid savant.

Acquire Special Attack or Special Quality (Ex): The epic illithid savant can gain another special attack or special quality from a consumed brain for every 4 levels gained after 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic illithid savant does not gain any bonus feats for its illithid savant class levels.

It still gains bonus feats for other class levels as appropriate, as well as the normal feat gained every 3 levels.

Illithid Savant

Level	Special
11	Lore at will
12	Acquire feat 5, acquire skill 5
13	Acquire class feature 4, acquire special 3
14	Acquire feat 6, acquire skill 6
15	--
16	Acquire class feature 5, acquire feat 7, acquire skill 7
17	Acquire special 4
18	Acquire feat 8, acquire skill 8
19	Acquire class feature 6
20	Acquire feat 9, acquire skill 9

ILLITHID SAVANT

The epic illithid savant believes itself to be a scholar—a scientist involved in the research of knowledge. It is also among the deadliest, most unpredictable foes in the world.

The epic illithid savant's feat and ability score choices depend largely on its choice of victims.

Since most savants dabble in arcane lore, it's likely that feats contributing toward improved spellcasting, such as Spell Knowledge, Epic Spell Focus, or Improved Spell Capacity, will prove useful.

Regardless of its acquired abilities, feats that contribute toward defense help the savant survive encounters with pesky meals, so consider Energy Resistance or Epic Toughness.

Boosting your Charisma is always a good choice, since it enhances your innate powers.

Other Options: If the illithid savant has pursued a more unorthodox selection of victims, just about any feat in the book can come in handy, from Combat Archery to Epic Weapon Focus to Unholy Strike.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Lore (Ex): Beginning at 11th level, the illithid savant may use its lore ability at will.

Acquire Skill (Ex): The epic illithid savant can acquire and use one additional skill from a consumed brain at every even-numbered level above 10th.

Acquire Feat (Ex): The epic illithid savant can acquire and use one additional feat from a consumed brain at every even-numbered level above 10th.

Since an illithid savant may acquire a feat from a devoured brain only if he meets the feat's prerequisites, an illithid savant cannot acquire an epic feat before character level 21.

Acquire Class Feature (Ex): The epic illithid savant can gain one additional class feature from a consumed brain for every three levels gained after 10th.

An illithid savant below 13th level cannot gain the ability to cast spells higher than 9th level.

Beginning at 13th level (the first level at which an epic illithid savant can acquire a class feature), it can gain the ability to cast spells higher than 9th level if it consumes the brain of a creature who has the ability to cast such spells.

An illithid savant cannot gain the ability to cast epic spells unless he has selected (or acquired) the Epic Spellcasting feat.

If an illithid savant with the Epic Spellcasting feat devours the brain of a creature who knows one or more epic spells, the illithid savant gains the ability to cast one of those spells, chosen by the illithid savant.

Acquire Special Attack or Special Quality (Ex): The epic illithid savant can gain another special attack or special quality from a consumed brain for every four levels gained after 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic illithid savant does not gain any bonus feats for its illithid savant class levels.

It still gains bonus feats for other class levels as appropriate, as well as the normal feat gained every three levels.

EPIC ILLITHID SAVANT

Level	Special
11	Lore at will
12	Acquire feat 5, acquire skill 5
13	Acquire class feature 4, acquire special 3
14	Acquire feat 6, acquire skill 6
15	—
16	Acquire class feature 5, acquire feat 7, acquire skill 7
17	Acquire special 4
18	Acquire feat 8, acquire skill 8
19	Acquire class feature 6
20	Acquire feat 9, acquire skill 9

INCANTATRIX

The epic incantatrix is even more solitary than the typical representative of the class.

Epic Spell Penetration is tailor-made for dealing with extraplanar creatures (who often have substantial spell resistance).

Improved Metamagic helps your prodigious metamagic abilities, and any of the epic metamagic feats (such as Improved Heighten Spell) are likely to come in handy.

Focus your ability increases on the ability that controls your spellcasting (typically Intelligence or Charisma). Beyond that, either Dexterity or Constitution are fine choices.

Other Options: With Master Staff or Master Wand, the incantatrix can conserve the power of charged items until she needs a big boost.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic incantatrix's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic incantatrix's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level, unless the sum of her class levels contributing to her caster level equals 20 or less.

Instant Metamagic (Su): The incantatrix can use her instant metamagic ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 9th (11th, 13th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic incantatrix gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic incantatrix feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Incantatrix Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell (new feat; see below), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Will, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved

Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Incantatrix Level	Special
11	Instant metamagic 3/day
12
13	Instant metamagic 4/day, bonus feat
14
15	Instant metamagic 5/day
16	Bonus feat
17	Instant metamagic 6/day
18
19	Instant metamagic 7/day, bonus feat
20

INCANTATRIX

The epic incantatrix is even more solitary than the typical representative of the class.

Epic Spell Penetration is tailor-made for dealing with extraplanar creatures (who often have substantial spell resistance).

Improved Metamagic helps your prodigious metamagic abilities, and any of the epic metamagic feats (such as Improved Heighten Spell) are likely to come in handy.

Focus your ability increases on the ability that controls your spellcasting (typically Intelligence or Charisma). Beyond that, either Dexterity or Constitution are fine choices.

Other Options: With Master Staff or Master Wand, the incantatrix can conserve the power of charged items until she needs a big boost.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic incantatrix's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic incantatrix continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the arcane spellcasting class to which the incantatrix belonged before adding the prestige class.

Instant Metamagic (Su): The incantatrix can use her instant metamagic ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained after 9th (11th, 13th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic incantatrix gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic incantatrix feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Incantatrix Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell (see New Epic Feats), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Will, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC INCANTATRIX

Level	Special
11	Instant metamagic 3/day
12	—
13	Instant metamagic 4/day, bonus feat
14	—
15	Instant metamagic 5/day
16	Bonus feat
17	Instant metamagic 6/day
18	—
19	Instant metamagic 7/day, bonus feat
20	—

MAGE-KILLER

The epic mage-killer is a terrifying opponent and is legendary in her ability to bring enemy spellcasters to their knees.

Though any given order might count only a tiny number of these characters among them, even the rumor of a single hunter of this power is enough to guard against the abuse of magic.

Spell Stowaway is a great way to take advantage of your opponents' powers.

Energy Resistance helps bolster your ability to weather potent attacks.

Epic Spell Focus goes well with your many Spell Focus feats, and you can't beat Epic Counterspell for its sheer utility against enemy spellcasters.

As with any spellcaster, your ability increases should boost your spellcasting power (Intelligence, Charisma, or Wisdom).

Dexterity helps avoid damage, while Constitution increases your ability to weather it.

Other Options: Boost your combat effectiveness with Epic Prowess.

If you're worried about your saves, pick up Epic Fortitude or Epic Reflexes.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic mage-killer's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic mage-killer's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level, unless the sum of his class levels contributing to his caster level equals 20 or less.

Improved Saves (Ex): At every odd-numbered level, the mage-killer gains a +1 bonus on either his Fortitude or his Reflex save.

These bonuses stack.

Bonus Feats: The epic mage-killer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic mage-killer feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Mage-Killer Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell (new feat; see below), Epic Fortitude, Epic Prowess, Epic Reflexes, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

MAGE-KILLER

Level	Special
11	Improved saves
12	—
13	Improved saves, bonus feat
14	—
15	Improved saves
16	Bonus feat
17	Improved saves
18	—
19	Improved saves, bonus feat
20	—

MAGE-KILLER

The epic mage-killer is a terrifying opponent and is legendary in her ability to bring enemy spellcasters to their knees.

Though any given order might count only a tiny number of these characters among them, even the rumor of a single hunter of this power is enough to guard against the abuse of magic.

Spell Stowaway is a great way to take advantage of your opponents' powers.

Energy Resistance helps bolster your ability to weather potent attacks.

Epic Spell Focus goes well with your many Spell Focus feats, and you can't beat Epic Counterspell for its sheer utility against enemy spellcasters.

As with any spellcaster, your ability increases should boost your spellcasting power (Intelligence, Charisma, or Wisdom).

Dexterity helps avoid damage, while Constitution increases your ability to weather it.

Other Options: Boost your combat effectiveness with Epic Prowess.

If you're worried about your saves, pick up Epic Fortitude or Epic Reflexes.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic mage-killer's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic mage-killer continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the spellcasting class to which the mage-killer belonged before adding the prestige class.

Improved Saves (Ex): At every odd-numbered level, the mage-killer gains a +1 bonus on either his Fortitude or his Reflex save.

These bonuses stack.

Bonus Feats: The epic mage-killer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic mage-killer feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Mage-Killer Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell (see New Epic Feats), Epic Fortitude, Epic Prowess, Epic Reflexes, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC MAGE-KILLER

Level	Special
11	Improved saves
12	—
13	Improved saves, bonus feat
14	—
15	Improved saves
16	Bonus feat
17	Improved saves
18	—
19	Improved saves, bonus feat
20	—

MARSHAL

An epic marshal commands legions of soldiers and sometimes rules his own nation.

His followers are loyal to the death, and his empire is the stuff of legend.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Auras: The bonus granted to an epic marshal's major auras increases by +1 every five levels after 20th.

An epic marshal does not continue to gain new minor or major auras after 20th level.

Grant Move Action (Ex): The epic marshal's ability to grant move actions increases by +1 use per day every four levels.

Bonus Feat: The epic marshal gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic marshal feats) at 23rd level and again every three levels after that.

Epic Marshal Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Combat Archery, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Distant Shot, Epic Dodge, Epic Endurance, Epic Fortitude, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reflexes, Epic Reputation, Epic Speed, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Will, Fast Healing, Gloom Aura*, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Manyshot, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Lasting Aura*, Legendary Commander, Multiaura*, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Polyglot, Radiant Aura*, Storm of Throws, Superior Initiative, Swarm of Arrows, Two-Weapon Rend, Uncanny Accuracy, Widen Aura*.

* This new feat is detailed in the feats section below.

Epic Marshal

Level	Special
21	--
22	--
23	Bonus feat
24	Grant move action 6/day
25	Major aura +5
26	Bonus feat
27	--
28	Grant move action 7/day
29	Bonus feat
30	Major aura +6

MASTER SAMURAI

From Sword and Fist

At rest, the epic master samurai is the calm within the storm.

But in battle, he becomes the storm itself.

The epic master samurai should balance pure power—symbolized by such feats as Epic Weapon Focus and Overwhelming Critical—with cunning, using such choices as Blinding Speed and Superior Initiative.

The epic master samurai values Strength above all, but Dexterity and Charisma are also important.

Other Options: To build an army, the epic master samurai is likely to need Epic Leadership and Legendary Commander.

Taking Epic Reputation can't hurt, either.

Hit Die: d12

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Ki Strength: The epic master samurai may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained above 9th.

Ki Attack: The epic master samurai may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic master samurai gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic master samurai feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Master Samurai Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Blinding Speed, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (bastard sword), Legendary Commander, Overwhelming Critical, Superior Initiative.

Master Samurai

Level	Special
11	Ki strength 4/day
12	Ki attack 4/day
13	Ki strength 5/day, bonus feat
14	Ki attack 5/day
15	Ki strength 6/day
16	Ki attack 6/day, bonus feat
17	Ki strength 7/day
18	Ki attack 7/day
19	Ki strength 8/day, bonus feat
20	Ki attack 8/day

MASTER SAMURAI

At rest, the epic master samurai is the calm within the storm.

But in battle, he becomes the storm itself.

The epic master samurai should balance pure power—symbolized by such feats as Epic Weapon Focus and Overwhelming Critical—with cunning, using such choices as Blinding Speed and Superior Initiative.

The epic master samurai values Strength above all, but Dexterity and Charisma are also important.

Other Options: To build an army, the epic master samurai is likely to need Epic Leadership and Legendary Commander. Taking Epic Reputation can't hurt, either.

Hit Die: d12.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Ki Strength: The epic master samurai may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained above 9th.

Ki Attack: The epic master samurai may use this ability one additional time per day for every two levels gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic master samurai gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic master samurai feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Master Samurai Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Blinding Speed, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (bastard sword), Legendary Commander, Mighty Sunder (see New Epic Feats), Overwhelming Critical, Superior Initiative.

EPIC MASTER SAMURAI

Level	Special
11	Ki strength 4/day
12	Ki attack 4/day
13	Ki strength 5/day, bonus feat
14	Ki attack 5/day
15	Ki strength 6/day
16	Ki attack 6/day, bonus feat
17	Ki strength 7/day
18	Ki attack 7/day
19	Ki strength 8/day, bonus feat
20	Ki attack 8/day

METAMIND

The metamind knows that accumulating the most power in the shortest time is key to psionic superiority.

Their single-minded pursuit of this power leads many to believe that continued focus into the realm of epic psionics will bring them the ultimate psionic power they seek.

Other Options: The epic metamind's ability to utilize Trigger Power and Epic Trigger Power to manifest many of his lower level powers helps him reach his goal of ultimate psionic power.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Powers: The epic metamind does not discover any additional powers after 10th level unless he selects the Spell Knowledge feat.

The epic metamind's manifester level increases by 1 per level of epic metamind gained above 10th.

The epic metamind's number of power points per day does not increase after 10th level.

Psicrystals: The epic metamind's psicrystal continues to increase in power.

Every two levels after 10th (12th, 14th, 16th, and so on), the psicrystal's hardness and Intelligence each increase by +1.

The psicrystal's power resistance is equal to the master's level +5.

Trigger Power: Every other level starting at 11th, the epic metamind gains a bonus Trigger Power feat.

Each time he takes this feat, he chooses a power of level 0 to 3 that he can attempt to manifest for free.

Bonus Feats: The epic metamind gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic metamind bonus feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Metamind Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quickened Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Combat Casting, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Trigger Power (see Epic Psionic Feats), Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Manifestation, Improved Metamagic, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Focus, Spell Knowledge, Spell Mastery, Spell Opportunity, Spell Penetration, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

As noted in the Epic Feats section of the Epic Level Handbook, metaminds learn "psionically flavored" versions of feats, as appropriate.

EPIC METAMIND

Level	Special
11	Trigger Power
12	—
13	Trigger Power, bonus feat
14	—
15	Trigger Power
16	Bonus feat
17	Trigger Power
18	—
19	Trigger Power, bonus feat
20	—

NINJA OF THE CRESCENT MOON

From Sword and Fist

The epic ninja becomes like a living shadow, flitting between pools of darkness without leaving a trace—except her victim.

While combat feats such as Epic Prowess and Improved Sneak Attack are quite useful to the epic ninja, it's often better to bypass combat altogether.

Epic Skill Focus, Legendary Climber, and Self-Concealment can mean the difference between success or failure on the hardest missions.

Dexterity is the epic ninja's best friend.

Charisma helps her kuji-kiri ability, and Wisdom is good for helping her pick out hidden enemies.

Other Options: If you routinely face bow-wielding guards, pick up Infinite Deflection or Reflect Arrows.

If you can meet the prerequisites—usually by picking up at least 10 levels of rogue—think hard about Lingering Damage or Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Sneak Attack (Ex): The epic ninja's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every odd-numbered level above 10th.

AC Bonus: The epic ninja's Armor Class bonus increases by +1 for every five levels gained above 9th.

Spell-Like Abilities: The epic ninja can use kuji-kiri and invisibility one additional time per day per level gained above 10th.

The duration of the epic ninja's gaseous form increases by 1 round per level gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic Ninja of the Crescent Moon gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic Ninja of the Crescent Moon feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Ninja of the Crescent Moon Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Dodge, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Sneak Attack, Infinite Deflection, Legendary Climber, Lingering Damage, Reflect Arrows, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Level	Ninja of the Crescent Moon Special
11	Sneak attack +6d6
12	—
13	Sneak attack +7d6, bonus feat
14	AC bonus +3
15	Sneak attack +8d6
16	Bonus feat
17	Sneak attack +9d6
18	—
19	Sneak attack +10d6, AC bonus +4, bonus feat
20	—

NINJA OF THE CRESCENT MOON

The epic ninja becomes a living shadow, flitting between pools of darkness without leaving a trace—except her victim.

While combat feats such as Epic Prowess and Improved Sneak Attack are quite useful to the epic ninja, it's often better to bypass combat altogether.

Epic Skill Focus, Legendary Climber, and Self-Concealment can mean the difference between success or failure on the hardest missions.

Dexterity is the epic ninja's best friend.

Charisma helps her kuji-kiri ability, and Wisdom is good for helping her pick out hidden enemies.

Other Options: If you routinely face bow-wielding guards, pick up Infinite Deflection or Reflect Arrows.

If you can meet the prerequisites—usually by picking up at least ten levels of rogue—think hard about Lingering Damage or Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Sneak Attack (Ex): The epic ninja's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every odd-numbered level above 10th.

AC Bonus: The epic ninja's Armor Class bonus increases by +1 for every five levels gained above 9th.

Spell-Like Abilities: The epic ninja can use kuji-kiri and invisibility one additional time per day per level gained above 10th.

The duration of the epic ninja's gaseous form increases by 1 round per level gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic Ninja of the Crescent Moon gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic Ninja of the Crescent Moon feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Ninja of the Crescent Moon Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Dodge, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Sneak Attack, Infinite Deflection, Legendary Climber, Lingering Damage, Reflect Arrows, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

EPIC NINJA OF THE CRESCENT MOON

Level	Special
11	Sneak attack +6d6
12	—
13	Sneak attack +7d6, bonus feat
14	AC bonus +3
15	Sneak attack +8d6
16	Bonus feat
17	Sneak attack +9d6
18	—
19	Sneak attack +10d6, AC bonus +4, bonus feat
20	—

PLANAR CHAMPION

From Manual of the Planes

The epic planar champion's victories don't just span worlds, they span entire universes.

A smart epic planar champion balances offense with defense, alternating choices such as Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Prowess, and Penetrate Damage Reduction with Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, and Energy Resistance. Of course, it's a poor epic planar champion who doesn't take the time along the way to build an Epic Reputation for herself.

Depending on the epic planar champion's combat style, either Strength or Dexterity should be her first choice for ability increases.

Her specific background may dictate other options as well. Other Options: Once the epic planar champion has carved out her domain, Legendary Commander helps attract an appropriate army and Epic Leadership ensures she'll have a powerful lieutenant at her side.

Epic Spell Penetration or Planar Turning might also be good choices, if she has the right background.

Hit Die: d10

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Favored Plane: The epic planar champion may select one additional favored plane for every five levels gained above 10th.

Bonuses for previous favored planes increase by +1.

Bonus Feats: The epic planar champion gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic planar champion feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Planar Champion Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Extended Lifespan, Improved Favored Enemy*, Legendary Commander, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Health, Planar Turning.

* May instead apply to natives of one of the epic planar champion's favored planes.

Level	Planar Champion Special
11	—
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Favored plane
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	—
19	Bonus feat
20	Favored plane

PLANAR CHAMPION

The epic planar champion's victories don't just span worlds, they span entire universes.

A smart epic planar champion balances offense with defense, alternating choices such as Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Prowess, and Penetrate Damage Reduction with Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, and Energy Resistance. Of course, it's a poor epic planar champion who doesn't take the time along the way to build an Epic Reputation for herself.

Depending on the epic planar champion's combat style, either Strength or Dexterity should be her first choice for ability increases.

Her specific background may dictate other options as well. Other Options: Once the epic planar champion has carved out her domain, Legendary Commander helps attract an appropriate army and Epic Leadership ensures she'll have a powerful lieutenant at her side.

Epic Spell Penetration or Planar Turning might also be good choices, if she has the right background.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Favored Plane: The epic planar champion may select one additional favored plane for every five levels gained above 10th.

Bonuses for previous favored planes increase by +1.

Bonus Feats: The epic planar champion gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic planar champion feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Planar Champion Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Extended Lifespan, Improved Favored Enemy*, Legendary Commander, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Health, Planar Turning.

* May instead apply to natives of one of the epic planar champion's favored planes.

EPIC PLANAR CHAMPION

Level	Special
11	—
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Favored plane
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	—
19	Bonus feat
20	Favored plane

PLANESHIFTER

From Manual of the Planes

If the epic planeshifter hasn't visited it, it's probably not worth calling a plane.

The epic planeshifter is best off picking feats that boost his spellcasting prowess, such as Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, and Epic Spellcasting.

Energy Resistance and Epic Spell Penetration helps him deal with the inhabitants and hazards of the planes he visits.

Focus on improving the ability score (Intelligence or Charisma) that affects your arcane spellcasting ability. Anything else is a distant second.

Other Options: Extended Lifespan lets the epic planeshifter enjoy his demiplane for even longer than normal.

Hit Die: d4

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic planeshifter's caster level increases by one level every time he gains a class level ending in 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, and 0.

The epic planeshifter's number of spells per day increases until his caster level reaches 20th.

Analyze Portal (Sp): The epic planeshifter gains one additional daily use of this ability per level gained above 10th.

Morphic Stability (Ex): The range of this ability increases by 30 feet per level gained above 10th.

Grant Planar Survival (Su): The epic planeshifter can extend his planar survival ability to one additional person per level gained above 10th.

Planar Area Swap (Sp): The radius of this effect increases by 100 feet per level gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic planeshifter gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic planeshifter feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Planeshifter Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation (wondrous item), Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Extended Lifespan, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Level	Special
11	Analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
12	Analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
13	Bonus feat, analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
14	Analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
15	Analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
16	Bonus feat, analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
17	Analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
18	Analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
19	Bonus feat, analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap
20	Analyze portal, morphic stability, grant planar survival, planar area swap

PLANESHIFTER

If the epic planeshifter hasn't visited it, it's probably not worth calling a plane.

The epic planeshifter is best off picking feats that boost his spellcasting prowess, such as Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, and Epic Spellcasting.

Energy Resistance and Epic Spell Penetration helps him deal with the inhabitants and hazards of the planes he visits.

Focus on improving the ability score (Intelligence or Charisma) that affects your arcane spellcasting ability. Anything else is a distant second.

Other Options: Extended Lifespan lets the epic planeshifter enjoy his demiplane for even longer than normal.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic planeshifter's caster level increases by one level every time he gains a class level ending in 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, and 0.

At each of these levels, the epic planeshifter gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable), up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the spellcasting class to which the planeshifter belonged before adding the prestige class.

Analyze Portal (Sp): The epic planeshifter gains one additional daily use of this ability per level gained above 10th.

Morphic Stability (Ex): The range of this ability increases by 30 feet per level gained above 10th.

Grant Planar Survival (Su): The epic planeshifter can extend his planar survival ability to one additional person per level gained above 10th.

Planar Area Swap (Sp): The radius of this effect increases by 100 feet per level gained above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic planeshifter gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic planeshifter feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Planeshifter Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation (wondrous item), Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell (see New Epic Feats), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Extended Lifespan, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC PLANESHIFTER

Level	Special
11	—
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	—
19	Bonus feat
20	—

PYROKINETICIST

While few pyrokineticists venture into the realm of epic psionics, those that do find the experience brings them closer to becoming one with the flame.

Pyros are generally shunned by society, and the epic pyro is even more so.

Often pyros seek out one another and form small communities in barren wastelands on the fringes of society where they can study their art among those who truly appreciate it.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Powers: The epic pyrokineticist does not discover any additional powers after 10th level unless she selects the Spell Knowledge feat.

The epic pyrokineticist's manifester level increases by 1 per level of epic pyrokineticist gained above 10th.

The epic pyrokineticist's number of power points per day does not increase after 10th level.

Psicrystals: The epic pyrokineticist's psicrystal continues to increase in power.

Every two levels after 10th (12th, 14th, 16th, and so on), the psicrystal's hardness and Intelligence each increase by +1. The psicrystal's power resistance is equal to the master's level +5.

Bonus Feats: The epic pyrokineticist gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic pyrokineticist bonus feats) every 2 levels after 10th.

Epic Pyrokineticist Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Combat Casting, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Manifestation, Improved Metamagic, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Focus, Spell Knowledge, Spell Mastery, Spell Opportunity, Spell Penetration, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

As noted in the Epic Feats section of the Epic Level Handbook, epic pyrokineticists learn "psionically flavored" versions of feats, as appropriate.

EPIC PYROKINETICIST

Level	Special
11	—
12	Bonus feat
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Bonus feat
19	—
20	Bonus feat

RED WIZARD

It should come as no surprise that the Red Wizards were among the first in Faerûn to explore the realms of epic power.

Thankfully for the rest of Faerûn, the Red Wizards' need for secrecy and politicized society prevent them from sharing this power among their number too widely.

For a Red Wizard, it's all about magic.

Crank up your save DCs with Epic Spell Focus and Improved Heighten Spell, ready a barrage of spells with Automatic Quicken Spell and Multispell, or emerge from the lab with truly awesome magic items thanks to feats such as Craft Epic Staff or Forge Epic Ring.

Epic Red Wizards should work to boost the ability score that their spells rely on, whether that's Intelligence or Charisma.

Other Options: Every self-respecting Red Wizard needs a mighty bodyguard, and Epic Leadership can fit the bill (particularly for those high-Charisma sorcerer/Red Wizards).

If you can't pick up one of those, Epic Reputation might let you talk your way out of a problem, or Epic Toughness might give you the extra hit points you need to make your escape.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic Red Wizard's wizard caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic Red Wizard's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

The epic Red Wizard does not learn additional spells unless he selects the Spell Knowledge feat (see the Feats section of the Epic Level Handbook).

Specialist Defense: The bonus to the epic Red Wizard's saves against spells from his specialist school increases by +1 for every 2 levels after 9th.

Spell Power: Add an additional +1 to the DC for saving throws against spells of the epic Red Wizard's specialty school, and to his caster level checks to overcome spell resistance using spells from this school, for every 2 levels after 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic Red Wizard gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic Red Wizard feats) every 5 levels after 10th.

Epic Red Wizard Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Enhance Spell, Epic Leadership, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Forge Epic Ring, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Red Wizard Level	Special
11	Specialist defense +5
12	Spell power +6
13	Specialist defense +6
14	Spell power +7
15	Specialist defense +7, bonus feat
16	Spell power +8
17	Specialist defense +8
18	Spell power +9
19	Specialist defense +9
20	Spell power +10, bonus feat

RED WIZARD

The epic progression for the Red Wizard prestige class is now found in the Revision Booklet.

RUNECASTER

Epic runecasters are particularly common among the dwarves and giants, who originated this form of magic. A runecaster of this level is likely a legend among his people, and the power of his runes is beyond comparison. The epic runecaster should pick up Inscribe Epic Rune (a new feat described below) as soon as possible.

Beyond that, any feat that helps your spellcasting become more powerful is a good choice, from Enhance Spell to Improved Metamagic to Spell Stowaway.

If your divine spellcasting relies on Wisdom, that's the best place for your ability increases.

Constitution is a solid second choice, since many runecasters take pride in their physical toughness.

Other Options: Epic Toughness is a good choice for epic runecasters looking to emulate their dwarf or giant teachers.

You might also work with your DM to create other rune-based epic feats, such as ones that mimic metamagic feats.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic runecaster's divine caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic runecaster's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Rune Craft: The epic runecaster's bonus to Craft checks made to inscribe runes increases by +1 for every 3 levels after 10th.

Rune Power: For runes created by the runecaster, add an additional +1 to the DC of all saves and attempts to erase, dispel, or disable the rune, and to caster level checks to overcome the spell resistance of a target, for every 3 levels after 9th.

Crafting Epic Runes: As with scrolls, you can't create a rune with a spell level above 10th or an effective caster level above 20th without using the Inscribe Epic Rune feat (see below).

Bonus Feats: The epic runecaster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic runecaster feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Runecaster Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Skill Focus (Craft [any]), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Inscribe Epic Rune (new feat), Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Runecaster Level	Special
11
12	Rune power +4
13	Rune craft +4, bonus feat
14
15	Rune power +5
16	Rune craft +5, bonus feat
17
18	Rune power +6
19	Rune craft +6, bonus feat
20

RUNECASTER

Epic runecasters are particularly common among the dwarves and giants, who originated this form of magic. A runecaster of this level is likely a legend among his people, and the power of his runes is beyond comparison. The epic runecaster should pick up Inscribe Epic Rune (a new feat described below) as soon as possible.

Beyond that, any feat that helps your spellcasting become more powerful is a good choice, from Enhance Spell to Improved Metamagic to Spell Stowaway.

If your divine spellcasting relies on Wisdom, that's the best place for your ability increases.

Constitution is a solid second choice, since many runecasters take pride in their physical toughness.

Other Options: Epic Toughness is a good choice for epic runecasters looking to emulate their dwarf or giant teachers.

You might also work with your DM to create other rune-based epic feats, such as ones that mimic metamagic feats.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic runecaster's divine caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic runecaster continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the divine spellcasting class to which the runecaster belonged before adding the prestige class.

Rune Craft: The epic runecaster's bonus to Craft checks made to inscribe runes increases by +1 for every three levels after 10th.

Rune Power: For runes created by the runecaster, add an additional +1 to the DC of all saves and attempts to erase, dispel, or disable the rune, and to caster level checks to overcome the spell resistance of a target, for every three levels after 9th.

Crafting Epic Runes: As with scrolls, you can't create a rune with a spell level above 10th or an effective caster level above 20th without using the Inscribe Epic Rune feat (see Feats section).

Bonus Feats: The epic runecaster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic runecaster feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Runecaster Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Skill Focus (Craft [any]), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Inscribe Epic Rune (see New Epic Feats), Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

RUNECASTER

Level	Special
11	—
12	Rune power +4
13	Rune craft +4, bonus feat
14	—
15	Rune power +5
16	Rune craft +5, bonus feat
17	—
18	Rune power +6
19	Rune craft +6, bonus feat
20	—

SAMURAI

The epic samurai is a peerless paragon of bushido, vowing to uphold the honor of his lord and himself above all else.

The only thing greater than his skill in battle is his reputation of nobility and principle.

The epic samurai should focus on improving his combat prowess by selecting feats such as Armor Skin, Epic Prowess, and Epic Weapon Focus (katana).

The samurai depends on Strength and Constitution above all else.

Those who favor archery or riding (such as samurai belonging to the Unicorn clan) also favor Dexterity.

At higher levels, Epic Ancestral Daisho expands the power that the samurai can imbue into his weapons.

Other Options: The epic samurai makes a fine leader, and feats such as Epic Leadership and Legendary Commander are right up his alley.

Depending on his clan, other feat choices may be appropriate as well.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Ancestral Daisho: The epic samurai's ancestral daisho can't be improved beyond the values shown in Table 2–2:

Ancestral Daisho unless the character selects the Epic Ancestral Daisho feat (see below).

Bonus Feats: The epic samurai gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic samurai feats) every 2 levels after 19th.

Epic Samurai Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Ancestral Daisho (new feat; see below), Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Weapon Focus (katana), Legendary Commander.

In addition to these feats, an epic samurai may select an epic feat appropriate to his clan:

- Crab: Devastating Critical, Epic Endurance, Epic Weapon Focus (battleaxe, greatclub, or warhammer), Overwhelming Critical.
- Crane: Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus (Iaijutsu Focus), Epic Speed, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Superior Initiative.
- Dragon: Exceptional Deflection, Infinite Deflection, Legendary Wrestler, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Righteous Strike.
- Lion: Epic Endurance, Epic Fortitude, Epic Toughness, Epic Will, Superior Initiative.
- Phoenix: Epic Fortitude, Epic Will, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Whirlwind Attack.
- Scorpion: Blinding Speed, Dire Charge, Epic Reflexes, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Superior Initiative.
- Unicorn: Distant Shot, Epic Weapon Focus (spear, lance, or any bow), Legendary Rider, Swarm of Arrows, Uncanny Accuracy.

Samurai Level	Special
21	Bonus feat
22
23	Bonus feat
24
25	Bonus feat
26
27	Bonus feat
28
29	Bonus feat
30

SAMURAI

The epic samurai is a peerless paragon of bushido, vowing to uphold the honor of his lord and himself above all else.

The only thing greater than his skill in battle is his reputation of nobility and principle.

The epic samurai should focus on improving his combat prowess by selecting feats such as Armor Skin, Epic Prowess, and Epic Weapon Focus (katana).

The samurai depends on Strength and Constitution above all else.

Those who favor archery or riding (such as samurai belonging to the Unicorn clan) also favor Dexterity.

At higher levels, Epic Ancestral Daisho expands the power that the samurai can imbue into his weapons.

Other Options: The epic samurai makes a fine leader, and feats such as Epic Leadership and Legendary Commander are right up his alley.

Depending on his clan, other feat choices may be appropriate as well.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Ancestral Daisho: The epic samurai's ancestral daisho can't be improved beyond the values shown in Table 2–2:

Ancestral Daisho unless the character selects the Epic Ancestral Daisho feat (see Feats below).

Bonus Feats: The epic samurai gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic samurai feats) every two levels after 19th.

Epic Samurai Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Ancestral Daisho (see New Epic Feats), Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Weapon Focus (katana), Legendary Commander.

In addition to these feats, an epic samurai may select an epic feat appropriate to his clan: Crab: Devastating Critical, Epic Endurance, Epic Weapon Focus (battleaxe, greatclub, or warhammer), Overwhelming Critical.

Crane: Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus (Iaijutsu Focus), Epic Speed, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Superior Initiative.

Dragon: Exceptional Deflection, Infinite Deflection, Legendary Wrestler, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Righteous Strike.

Lion: Epic Endurance, Epic Fortitude, Epic Toughness, Epic Will, Superior Initiative.

Phoenix: Epic Fortitude, Epic Will, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Whirlwind Attack.

Scorpion: Blinding Speed, Dire Charge, Epic Reflexes, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Superior Initiative.

Unicorn: Distant Shot, Epic Weapon Focus (spear, lance, or any bow), Legendary Rider, Swarm of Arrows, Uncanny Accuracy.

EPIC SAMURAI

Level	Special
21	Bonus feat
22	—
23	Bonus feat
24	—
25	Bonus feat
26	—
27	Bonus feat
28	—
29	Bonus feat
30	—

SHADOW ADEPT

The benefits of the Shadow Weave are as potent as they are tempting.

A rare few who follow this path make it to epic levels, and those who know their names dare mention them only in whispers, and even then only in bright daylight.

As a spellcaster, you should focus on picking up feats that bolster your spellcasting power, such as the ever-popular Improved Spell Capacity.

Epic Spell Focus, particularly in Enchantment, Illusion, or Necromancy, serves you well.

Improved Low-Light Vision boosts your visual acuity in the shadowy conditions you love.

As with any epic spellcaster, you should improve the ability score that controls your spellcasting.

Other than that, Dexterity is a good choice, particularly if you typically go without armor.

Other Options: If you're satisfied with your spellcasting prowess, consider picking up feats that accentuate your other abilities.

If you have the prerequisites, Self-Concealment fits well with the shadow adept's motif.

Spectral Strike is another interesting choice for shadow adepts who were clerics before embracing the Shadow Weave.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic shadow adept's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic shadow adept's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Shadow Defense: The epic shadow adept's bonus to saves against Enchantment, Illusion, Necromancy, and darkness spells increases by +1 for every 3 levels gained after 8th.

Spell Power: For every 3 levels gained above 9th, add an additional +1 to the DC for saving throws against Enchantment, Illusion, Necromancy, and darkness spells cast by the epic shadow adept, and a like amount to his caster level checks to overcome spell resistance using the spells from this school.

Bonus Feats: The epic shadow adept gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shadow adept feats) every 4 levels after 10th.

Epic Shadow Adept Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell

Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spectral Strike, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Shadow Adept Level	Special
11	Shadow defense +4
12	Spell power +4
13	—
14	Shadow defense +5, bonus feat
15	Spell power +5
16	—
17	Shadow defense +6
18	Spell power +6, bonus feat
19	—
20	—

SHADOW ADEPT

The benefits of the Shadow Weave are as potent as they are tempting.

A rare few who follow this path make it to epic levels, and those who know their names dare mention them only in whispers, and even then only in bright daylight.

As a spellcaster, you should focus on picking up feats that bolster your spellcasting power, such as the ever-popular Improved Spell Capacity.

Epic Spell Focus, particularly in Enchantment, Illusion, or Necromancy, serves you well.

Improved Low-Light Vision boosts your visual acuity in the shadowy conditions you love.

As with any epic spellcaster, you should improve the ability score that controls your spellcasting.

Other than that, Dexterity is a good choice, particularly if you typically go without armor.

Other Options: If you're satisfied with your spellcasting prowess, consider picking up feats that accentuate your other abilities.

If you have the prerequisites, Self-Concealment fits well with the shadow adept's motif.

Spectral Strike is another interesting choice for shadow adepts who were clerics before embracing the Shadow Weave.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic shadow adept's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic shadow adept continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the spellcasting class to which the shadow adept belonged before adding the prestige class.

Shadow Defense: The epic shadow adept's bonus to saves against Enchantment, Illusion, Necromancy, and darkness spells increases by +1 for every three levels gained after 8th.

Spell Power: For every three levels gained above 9th, add an additional +1 to the DC for saving throws against Enchantment, Illusion, Necromancy, and darkness spells cast by the epic shadow adept, and a like amount to his caster level checks to overcome spell resistance using the spells from this school.

Bonus Feats: The epic shadow adept gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shadow adept feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Shadow Adept Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spectral Strike, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC SHADOW ADEPT

Level	Special
11	Shadow defense +4
12	Spell power +4
13	—
14	Shadow defense +5, bonus feat
15	Spell power +5
16	—
17	Shadow defense +6
18	Spell power +6, bonus feat
19	—
20	—

SHAMAN

The epic shaman's connection with the spirit world continues to grow as he gains power and wisdom. He is the spirit world's mightiest representative among mortals.

Most epic shamans favor epic feats that improve their spellcasting ability, such as Epic Spell Focus and Improved Spell Capacity.

Spontaneous Domain Access can be a powerful feat for the shaman.

Since many epic shamans face extraplanar creatures, Planar Turning and Epic Spell Penetration can come in very useful.

Since Wisdom affects the epic shaman's spellcasting, most ability increases should go there.

An occasional Charisma increase helps the shaman's ability to turn or rebuke undead.

Other Options: Pick up feats such as Automatic Silent Spell or Spell Opportunity to increase your spellcasting versatility.

Evil shamans should look to feats such as Negative Energy Burst, Undead Mastery, and Zone of Animation to bolster their link with the world of the undead.

Don't forget the bonus feats listed in your class description in Oriental Adventures, as well.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic shaman's caster level is equal to his class level.

The shaman's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Turn or Rebuke Undead: Use the shaman's class level minus 2 to determine the most powerful undead affected by a turn or rebuke check and the turning damage, just as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic shaman gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shaman feats) every 4 levels after 20th.

Epic Shaman Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Negative Energy Burst, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

Alternatively, the shaman can select any of the feats listed under the class's bonus feat list found in Oriental Adventures.

Shaman Level	Special
21
22
23
24	Bonus feat
25
26
27
28	Bonus feat
29
30

SHAMAN

The epic shaman's connection with the spirit world continues to grow as he gains power and wisdom.

He is the spirit world's mightiest representative among mortals.

Most epic shamans favor epic feats that improve their spellcasting ability, such as Epic Spell Focus and Improved Spell Capacity.

Spontaneous Domain Access can be a powerful feat for the shaman.

Since many epic shamans face extraplanar creatures, Planar Turning and Epic Spell Penetration can come in very useful.

Since Wisdom affects the epic shaman's spellcasting, most ability increases should go there.

An occasional Charisma increase helps the shaman's ability to turn or rebuke undead.

Other Options: Pick up feats such as Automatic Silent Spell or Spell Opportunity to increase your spellcasting versatility.

Evil shamans should look to feats such as Negative Energy Burst, Undead Mastery, and Zone of Animation to bolster their link with the world of the undead.

Don't forget the bonus feats listed in your class description in Oriental Adventures, as well.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic shaman's caster level is equal to his class level.

The shaman's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Turn or Rebuke Undead: Use the shaman's class level minus 2 to determine the most powerful undead affected by a turn or rebuke check and the turning damage, just as normal.

Bonus Feats: The epic shaman gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shaman feats) every four levels after 20th.

Epic Shaman Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Negative Energy Burst, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

Alternatively, the shaman can select any of the feats listed under the class's bonus feat list found in Oriental Adventures.

EPIC SHAMAN

Level	Special
21	—
22	—
23	—
24	Bonus feat
25	—
26	—
27	—
28	Bonus feat
29	—
30	—

SHIFTER

The epic shifter has gone beyond the normal druidic ability to wildshape; no longer does she simply assume a new form when she changes shape.

The epic shifter actually becomes the new creature.

Epic shifters are rarely encountered in their true form; indeed, some of the most ancient and powerful shifters claim (with some pride) to have forgotten their true form entirely.

Epic shifters are generally a wild and carefree lot, and they prefer to spend their time exploring the multiverse and reveling in new forms and shapes they discover along the way.

Their natural affinity with wild shape duplicates many of the epic wild feats, but a few of them, such as Colossal Wild Shape, Imbue Wild Shape (see below), and Quicken Wild Shape (see below), are quite popular choices.

Wisdom is perhaps the most important ability for the shifter, since it helps enhance any divine spells she can cast.

Strength and Dexterity are often ignored by shifters since they can just turn into something with the score they require.

Other Options: Most epic shifters do not possess a fair amount of spellcasting ability, since they have chosen to focus their training on their ability to wild shape.

Some shifters continue to study magic, though, and those who can qualify for feats like Epic Spellcasting and Improved Spell Capacity benefit greatly from these feats, especially if they have the Natural Spell feat.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Epic Wild Shape(Su): At 11th level, an epic shifter gains the ability to use epic wild shape.

This functions identically to greater wild shape (see the description of the shifter in Masters of the Wild for details on greater wild shape), except that the shifter gains all of the supernatural special attacks and supernatural special qualities of the assumed form.

The epic shifter is still limited to new forms that have equal or fewer Hit Dice than her own.

Spell-like abilities are not granted by epic wild shape.

An epic wild shape lasts for only an hour.

The epic shifter can use epic wild shape an additional 2 times each day at 14th level, and two more times a day every 3 levels after that.

Bonus Feats: The epic shifter gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shifter feats) at 13th level, and again every three levels after that.

Epic Shifter Bonus Feat List: Colossal Wild Shape, Damage Reduction, Dire Charge, Epic Endurance, Epic Fortitude, Epic Reflexes, Epic Speed, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Epic Will, Fast Healing, Ignore Material Components, Imbue Wild Shape (see sidebar), Improved Darkvision, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Quicken Wild Shape (see sidebar), Spell Stowaway, Superior Initiative.

Shifter

Level	Special
11	Epic wild shape 1/day
12	--
13	Bonus feat
14	Epic wild shape 3/day
15	--
16	Bonus feat
17	Epic wild shape 5/day
18	--
19	Bonus feat
20	Epic wild shape 7/day

SHUGENJA

The epic shugenja combines nobility and piety with great divine power, often becoming the most respected supporters of the faith of Rokugan.

As with any epic spellcaster, the shugenja favors epic feats that strengthen her spellcasting.

Enhance Spell can increase the punch of her damage-dealing spells, and Spell Knowledge lets her add more spells to her repertoire.

Improved Element Focus is another solid option for the shugenja.

Charisma is the epic shugenja's first priority among her ability scores.

Improving Dexterity or Constitution can allow her to hold up better in combat situations.

Other Options: Shugenja who specialize in metamagic can pick up feats such as Automatic Silent Spell or Improved Heighten Spell to further bolster that capacity.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic shugenja's caster level is equal to her class level.

The shugenja's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The shugenja does not learn additional spells unless she selects the Spell Knowledge feat.

Bonus Feats: The epic shugenja gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shugenja feats) every 3 levels after 20th.

Epic Shugenja Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Element Focus (new feat; see below), Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Tenacious Magic.

Shugenja Level	Special
21
22
23	Bonus feat
24
25
26	Bonus feat
27
28
29	Bonus feat
30

SHUGENJA

The epic shugenja combines nobility and piety with great divine power, often becoming the most respected supporters of the faith of Rokugan.

As with any epic spellcaster, the shugenja favors epic feats that strengthen her spellcasting.

Enhance Spell can increase the punch of her damage-dealing spells, and Spell Knowledge lets her add more spells to her repertoire.

Improved Element Focus is another solid option for the shugenja.

Charisma is the epic shugenja's first priority among her ability scores.

Improving Dexterity or Constitution can allow her to hold up better in combat situations.

Other Options: Shugenja who specialize in metamagic can pick up feats such as Automatic Silent Spell or Improved Heighten Spell to further bolster that capacity.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic shugenja's caster level is equal to her class level.

The shugenja's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The shugenja does not learn additional spells unless she selects the Spell Knowledge feat.

Bonus Feats: The epic shugenja gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic shugenja feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Shugenja Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Element Focus (see New Epic Feats), Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC SHUGENJA

Level	Special
21	—
22	—
23	Bonus feat
24	—
25	—
26	Bonus feat
27	—
28	—
29	Bonus feat
30	—

SLAYER

Seeking to rid the land of illithids forever, slayers embrace epic psionics.

It is this continued pursuit of the illithids that makes them the nemesis of illithids everywhere.

Other Options: The epic slayer finds the Epic Prowess, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, and Epic Skill Focus feats quite useful in their war on the illithids.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Powers: The epic slayer does not discover any additional powers after 10th level unless she selects the Spell Knowledge feat.

The epic slayer's manifester level increases by 1 per level of epic slayer gained above 10th.

The epic slayer's number of power points per day does not increase after 10th level.

Bonus Feats: The epic slayer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic slayer bonus feats) every 2 levels after 9th.

Epic Slayer Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Combat Archery, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Distant Shot, Epic Endurance, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Manifestation, Improved Stunning Fist, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Infinite Deflection, Instant Reload, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Legendary Wrestler, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Reflect Arrows, Spellcasting Harrier, Storm of Throws, Superior Initiative, Swarm of Arrows, Two-Weapon Rend, Uncanny Accuracy.

In addition to the feats on this list, the slayer can select any fighter or psychic warrior bonus feat not listed here. As noted in the Epic Feats section of the Epic Level Handbook, epic slayers learn “psionically flavored” versions of feats, as appropriate.

EPIC SLAYER

Level	Special
11	Bonus feat
12	—
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Bonus feat
16	—
17	Bonus feat
18	—
19	Bonus feat
20	—

SOHEI

The epic sohei defends the faithful from those who would terrorize the innocent, and she works tirelessly to further her monastery’s goals in the world.

When selecting epic feats, the sohei traditionally balances offense, with feats such as Devastating Critical and Dire Charge, with defense, including such feats as Armor Skin and Reflect Arrows.

Epic Ki Frenzy is a new feat that is appropriate to all epic sohei.

The sohei should distribute her ability increases between Strength, Constitution, and Wisdom, as all of these are important to her well-being.

Other Options: Sohei who rely on their spells should consider Improved Combat Casting and Improved Spell Capacity.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic sohei’s caster level is equal to one-half her class level, as normal.

The sohei’s number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Ki Frenzy (Ex): The epic sohei may use this ability one additional time per day for every 4 levels gained after 19th (23rd, 27th, and so on).

Damage Reduction (Ex): The epic sohei’s damage reduction improves by 1 point for every 3 levels gained after 20th (5/- at 23rd, 6/- at 26th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic sohei gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic sohei feats) every 3 levels after 20th.

Epic Sohei Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Epic Ki Frenzy (new feat; see below), Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Reflect Arrows.

Sohei Level	Special
21
22
23	Damage reduction 5/-, ki frenzy 7/day, bonus feat
24
25
26	Damage reduction 6/-, bonus feat
27	Ki frenzy 8/day
28
29	Damage reduction 7/-, bonus feat
30

SOHEI

The epic sohei defends the faithful from those who would terrorize the innocent, and she works tirelessly to further her monastery’s goals in the world.

When selecting epic feats, the sohei traditionally balances offense, with feats such as Devastating Critical and Dire Charge, with defense, including such feats as Armor Skin and Reflect Arrows.

Epic Ki Frenzy is a new feat that is appropriate to all epic sohei.

The sohei should distribute her ability increases between Strength, Constitution, and Wisdom, since all of these are important to her well-being.

Other Options: Sohei who rely on their spells should consider Improved Combat Casting and Improved Spell Capacity.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic sohei’s caster level is equal to one-half her class level, as normal.

The sohei’s number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Ki Frenzy (Ex): The epic sohei may use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels gained after 19th (23rd, 27th, and so on).

Damage Reduction (Ex): The epic sohei’s damage reduction improves by 1 point for every three levels gained after 20th (5/- at 23rd, 6/- at 26th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic sohei gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic sohei feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Sohei Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Epic Ki Frenzy (see New Epic Feats), Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Reflect Arrows.

EPIC SOHEI

Level	Special
21	—
22	—
23	Damage reduction 5/—, ki frenzy 7/day, bonus feat
24	—
25	—
26	Damage reduction 6/—, bonus feat
27	Ki frenzy 8/day
28	—
29	Damage reduction 7/—, bonus feat
30	—

SOULKNIFE

Most soulknives embrace epic psionics.

They advance their mind-blades to powers unheard of in the world of normal psionics.

The amount of violence they employ in their combat style increases along with their power, causing them to be shunned by society.

They often seek out the societies of epic pyros to find acceptance.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Powers: The epic soulknife does not discover any additional powers after 10th level unless he selects the Spell Knowledge feat.

The epic soulknife's manifester level increases by 1 per level of epic soulknife gained above 10th.

The epic soulknife's number of power points per day does not increase after 10th level.

Sneak Attack (Ex): The epic soulknife's extra damage from this ability increases by +1d6 at 11th-level and every other level gained thereafter (13th, 15th, and so on).

Mind-Blade (Su): When the epic soulknife reaches 12th level, his mind-blade gains a +6 enhancement bonus; this bonus increases by +1 at every other level gained thereafter (14th, 16th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic soulknife gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic soulknife bonus feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Soulknife Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Brilliant Mind-Blade (see Epic Psionic Feats), Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Dire Charge, Epic Endurance, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Epic Weapon Specialization, Exceptional Deflection, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Manifestation, Improved Stunning Fist, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Infinite Deflection, Legendary Commander, Legendary Rider, Legendary Wrestler, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Reflect Arrows, Spellcasting Harrier, Storm of Throws, Superior Initiative, Two-Weapon Rend, Uncanny Accuracy.

In addition to the feats on this list, the soulknife can select any fighter or psychic warrior bonus feat not listed here.

As noted in the Epic Feats section of the Epic Level Handbook, each epic soulknife learns "psionically flavored" versions of feats, as appropriate.

EPIC SOULKNIFE

Level	Special
11	Sneak attack +6d6
12	Mind-blade +6
13	Sneak attack +7d6
14	Mind-blade +7, bonus feat
15	Sneak attack +8d6
16	Mind-blade +8
17	Sneak attack +9d6
18	Mind-blade +9, bonus feat
19	Sneak attack +10d6
20	Mind-blade +10

SPELLSWORD

The epic spellsword weaves magic and melee together with unparalleled skill.

Since you mix combat with your spellcasting, your epic feat selection should mirror that combination.

Keep up with the fighter-types with Epic Prowess and Epic Toughness, but make sure that the other spellcasters aren't kicking sand in your face by beefing up your spells with Epic Spell Focus, Improved Spell Capacity, or Intensify Spell.

Try to resist the temptation to spread your ability increases too widely—you're probably better off focusing on Strength and either Intelligence or Charisma, depending on what controls your spellcasting.

Other Options: If you have the time and ability, consider learning Epic Spellcasting and coming up with some unique spells that fit your tactics.

If you're a finesse-fighter, focus on improving your Dexterity over your Strength—if you can't hit the target, your spell channeling isn't much good.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic spellsword's caster level increases by 1 per even-numbered level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every even-numbered level, the epic spellsword gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Channel Spell (Su): The epic spellsword's ability to channel continues to improve after 10th level.

At 15th level, the maximum allowable spell level that may be channeled by the epic spellsword is 4th.

This maximum level increases by 1 for every 5 additional levels gained (5th-level spell at 20th, 6th-level spell at 25th, and so on).

Ignore Spell Failure (Ex): The reduction of arcane spell failure chance increases by 5% for every two levels above 9th (to 35% at 11th, 40% at 13th, and so on).

For instance, at 17th level the epic spellsword could wear full plate armor and a large shield and suffer no chance of arcane spell failure.

Bonus Feats: The epic spellsword gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic spellsword feats) every 4 levels after 8th.

Epic Spellsword Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Prowess, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Epic

Weapon Focus, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

Spellsword

Level	Special
11	Ignore spell failure 35%
12	Bonus feat
13	Ignore spell failure 40%
14
15	Channel spell (4th), ignore spell failure 45%
16	Bonus feat
17	Ignore spell failure 50%
18
19	Ignore spell failure 55%
20	Channel spell (5th), bonus feat

SPELLSWORD

The epic spellsword weaves magic and melee together with unparalleled skill.

Since you mix combat with your spellcasting, your epic feat selection should mirror that combination.

Keep up with the fighters with Epic Prowess and Epic Toughness, but make sure that the other spellcasters aren't kicking sand in your face by beefing up your spells with Epic Spell Focus, Improved Spell Capacity, or Intensify Spell.

Try to resist the temptation to spread your ability increases too widely—you're probably better off focusing on Strength and either Intelligence or Charisma, depending on what controls your spellcasting.

Other Options: If you have the time and ability, consider learning Epic Spellcasting and coming up with some unique spells that fit your tactics.

If you're a finesse-fighter, focus on improving your Dexterity over your Strength—if you can't hit the target, your spell channeling isn't much good.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic spellsword's caster level increases by 1 per even-numbered level gained above 10th.

The epic spellsword continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new even-numbered level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the arcane spellcasting class to which the spellsword belonged before adding the prestige class.

Channel Spell (Su): The epic spellsword's ability to channel continues to improve after 10th level.

At 15th level, the maximum allowable spell level that may be channeled by the epic spellsword is 4th.

This maximum level increases by 1 for every 5 additional levels gained (5th-level spell at 20th, 6th-level spell at 25th, and so on).

Ignore Spell Failure (Ex): The reduction of arcane spell failure chance increases by 5% for every two levels above 9th (to 35% at 11th, 40% at 13th, and so on).

For instance, at 17th level the epic spellsword could wear full plate armor and a large shield and suffer no chance of arcane spell failure.

Bonus Feats: The epic spellsword gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic spellsword feats) every four levels after 8th.

Epic Spellsword Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Prowess, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC SPELLSWORD

Level	Special
11	Ignore spell failure 35%
12	Bonus feat
13	Ignore spell failure 40%
14	—
15	Channel spell (4th), ignore spell failure 45%
16	Bonus feat
17	Ignore spell failure 50%
18	—
19	Ignore spell failure 55%
20	Channel spell (5th), bonus feat

SPYMASTER

From Song and Silence

The epic spymaster would be legendary for her ability to assume alternate identities—that is, if anyone knew who she was.

Epic Skill Focus and Polyglot can help you maintain cover identities.

Dexterous Fortitude and Dexterous Mind are great at helping you avoid dangerous spell effects.

And for combat situations, there's no denying the value of Improved Sneak Attack or Superior Initiative.

The epic spymaster should keep three abilities in mind when selecting her ability increases: Charisma, Charisma, and Charisma.

Barring that choice, think about Wisdom, Intelligence, or Dexterity.

Other Options: If you can qualify, consider Lingering Damage or Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier

Cover Identity (Ex): An epic spymaster can maintain one additional cover identity for every three levels gained above 10th.

Sneak Attack: The epic spymaster's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every odd-numbered level above 10th.

Required Ranks: At every spymaster level, the epic spymaster must spend at least 2 skill points on a Craft, Profession, or Knowledge skill relating to one of her chosen cover identities.

Bonus Feats: The epic spymaster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic spymaster feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Spymaster Bonus Feat List: Dexterous Fortitude, Dexterous Mind, Epic Skill Focus, Improved Sneak Attack, Lingering Damage, Polyglot, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Superior Initiative.

Spymaster
Level	Special
11	Sneak attack +6d6, required ranks
12	Required ranks
13	Sneak attack +7d6, required ranks, bonus feat, cover identity
14	Required ranks
15	Sneak attack +8d6, required ranks
16	Required ranks, bonus feat, cover identity
17	Sneak attack +9d6, required ranks
18	Required ranks
19	Sneak attack +10d6, required ranks, bonus feat, cover identity
20	Required ranks

SPYMASTER

The epic spymaster would be legendary for her ability to assume alternate identities—that is, if anyone knew who she was.

Epic Skill Focus and Polyglot can help you maintain cover identities.

Dexterous Fortitude and Dexterous Mind are great at helping you avoid dangerous spell effects.

And for combat situations, there's no denying the value of Improved Sneak Attack or Superior Initiative.

The epic spymaster should keep three abilities in mind when selecting her ability increases: Charisma, Charisma, and Charisma.

Barring that choice, think about Wisdom, Intelligence, or Dexterity.

Other Options: If you can qualify, consider Lingering Damage or Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier.

Cover Identity (Ex): An epic spymaster can maintain one additional cover identity for every three levels gained above 10th.

Sneak Attack (Ex): The epic spymaster's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every odd-numbered level above 10th.

Required Ranks: At every spymaster level, the epic spymaster must spend at least 2 skill points on a Craft, Profession, or Knowledge skill relating to one of her chosen cover identities.

Bonus Feats: The epic spymaster gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic spymaster feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Spymaster Bonus Feat List: Dexterous Fortitude, Dexterous Mind, Epic Skill Focus, Improved Sneak Attack, Lingering Damage, Polyglot, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Superior Initiative.

EPIC SPYMASTER

Level	Special
11	Required ranks, sneak attack +6d6
12	Required ranks
13	Cover identity, required ranks, sneak attack +7d6, bonus feat
14	Required ranks
15	Required ranks, sneak attack +8d6
16	Bonus feat, cover identity, required ranks
17	Required ranks, sneak attack +9d6
18	Required ranks
19	Cover identity, required ranks, sneak attack +10d6, bonus feat
20	Required ranks

STORMLORD

The epic stormlord is a barely contained frenzy of destructive energy—almost more a force of nature than a mortal being.

He does what he wants, when he wants, and he answers to no one but Talos the Destroyer himself.

Maximize your destructive power with feats such as Automatic Quicken Spell, Blinding Speed, and Multispell. Crush your enemies with Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, and Intensify Spell.

Broaden your power base with Bonus Domain, Improved Spell Capacity, or Spectral Strike.

As a divine caster, Wisdom is your best bet for ability increases.

Constitution is a good second option, since you pride yourself on being tough.

Other Options: On the off chance that you decide that the best defense isn't a good offense, protect yourself with Energy Resistance, Epic Fortitude, or Epic Toughness.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic stormlord's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

In addition, at every level the epic stormlord gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever divine spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class, up to the number of spells per day possessed by a 20th-level character of that class.

Electricity Resistance: The epic stormlord's electricity resistance increases by 5 points for every 3 levels gained after 9th (35 at 12th, 40 at 15th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic stormlord gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic stormlord feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Stormlord Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Blinding Speed, Bonus Domain, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Endurance, Epic Fortitude, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (any spear or javelin), Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Negative Energy Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

Stormlord
Level	Special
11
12	Electricity resistance 35
13	Bonus feat
14
15	Electricity resistance 40
16	Bonus feat
17
18	Electricity resistance 45
19	Bonus feat
20

STORMLORD

The epic stormlord is a barely contained frenzy of destructive energy—almost more a force of nature than a mortal being.

He does what he wants, when he wants, and he answers to no one but Talos the Destroyer himself.

Maximize your destructive power with feats such as Automatic Quicken Spell, Blinding Speed, and Multispell. Crush your enemies with Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, and Intensify Spell.

Broaden your power base with Bonus Domain, Improved Spell Capacity, or Spectral Strike.

As a divine caster, Wisdom is your best bet for ability increases.

Constitution is a good second option, since you pride yourself on being tough.

Other Options: On the off chance that you decide that the best defense isn't a good offense, protect yourself with Energy Resistance, Epic Fortitude, or Epic Toughness.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic stormlord's caster level increases by 1 per level gained above 10th.

The epic stormlord continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the divine spellcasting class to which the stormlord belonged before adding the prestige class.

Electricity Resistance: The epic stormlord's electricity resistance increases by 5 points for every three levels gained after 9th (35 at 12th, 40 at 15th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic stormlord gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic stormlord feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Stormlord Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Blinding Speed, Bonus Domain, Divine Spell Penetration (see New Epic Feats), Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Devotion (see New Epic Feats), Epic Endurance, Epic Fortitude, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (any spear or javelin), Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Negative Energy

Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

EPIC STORMLORD

Level	Special
11	—
12	Electricity resistance 35
13	Bonus feat
14	—
15	Electricity resistance 40
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Electricity resistance 45
19	Bonus feat
20	—

SWORD DANCER

The epic sword dancer is a huntress, an entertainer, a healer, and a diplomat, but above all else she is a fighter. Striving always to infuse her fighting style with beauty and grace, she views each fight as a prayer to her goddess, Eilistraee.

To see an epic sword dancer in combat is to witness fighting at its most artistic and wondrous.

Epic sword dancers tend to focus on enhancing their magical and physical prowess in ways that complement the other, and they tend to split their feats fairly evenly between those that might aid fighting (such as Epic Weapon Focus) and those that enhance their spellcasting ability (such as Improved Spell Capacity).

Wisdom, Dexterity, and Charisma are the most appropriate choices for ability increases for epic sword dancers; their style of fighting is based on grace, insight, and style, rather than brute force or speed.

Other Options: Epic sword dancers with bardic music ability often select feats like Lasting Inspiration, Music of the Gods, and especially Rapid Inspiration so they can further maximize the performance aspect of their fighting styles.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Singing Sword (Su): At 11th level, a sword dancer can select a single sword to infuse with the divine power of Eilistraee; this sword must be one that she has previously attuned herself to (see Faiths and Pantheons, page 206).

Once the attuned sword is infused, it gains the ability to use bardic music to inspire courage as a bard of equal level to the character level of the sword dancer who infused it; neither the sword nor the sword dancer need have any ranks in the Perform skill to use this ability.

The sword can use this ability once per day.

Activating the sword's song is a free action for the sword dancer, as long as she is wielding the sword.

Additionally, the sword dancer can select one of the following magic weapon qualities to add to the singing sword.

Every 15 levels, the sword dancer can select one more quality to add to this sword.

The added power is permanent so long as the sword dancer keeps the sword.

The power fades away if the sword ever leaves the sword dancer's possession for more than 1 minute, but it returns instantly if the sword dancer regains possession.

If the sword is destroyed, permanently lost, or the sword dancer chooses to attune a new sword, the newly attuned sword gains the abilities the sword dancer gave to the old sword via this ability.

Once the sword dancer chooses an ability to give her sword, she cannot change it.

• +1 enhancement bonus.

This quality may be added multiple times; its effects stack.

• Bane.

This quality may be added multiple times, but each time a new bane type must be selected.

• Defending

• Flaming

• Frost

• Shock

• Keen

• Spell Storing

• Thundering

Epic Spell Song: At 12th level, and again every 4 levels thereafter, the sword dancer can select two spells from the cleric spell list.

From this point on, she can cast either of the selected spells spontaneously, just as a good cleric spontaneously casts prepared cleric spells as cure wounds spells.

To do so, the sword dancer must "lose" a prepared cleric spell of the same or higher.

The spell lost cannot be a domain spell.

Spells cast in this manner always have a verbal component in addition to their normal components.

Silverhair Armor (Su): At 13th level the sword dancer's hair becomes infused with divine energy and glows softly with silver light that illuminates a radius equal to 10 feet per point of Charisma modifier.

The sword dancer can suppress and activate this glow as a free action.

As long as her hair is glowing and she is not wearing armor or using a shield, she gains a +2 sacred bonus to her Armor Class.

This bonus increases by +2 every four levels after 13th.

Craft Epic Swords (Su): At 20th level, an epic sword dancer gains the ability to craft epic magic swords as if she had the Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor feat.

This ability works only on her attuned swords, but the magic abilities given to the sword persist even if she loses her attunement to the sword.

She may add any epic properties (including enhancement bonuses) to the sword as long as she meets the property's other prerequisites.

Bonus Feats: The epic sword dancer gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic sword dancer feats) every 4 levels after 10th.

Epic Sword Dancer Bonus Feat List: Bonus Domain, Deafening Song, Devastating Critical, Efficient Item Creation, Epic Dodge, Epic Inspiration, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Weapon Focus, Group Inspiration, Improved Alignment Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Low-Light Vision, Improved Spell Capacity, Inspire Excellence, Lasting Inspiration, Music of the Gods, Overwhelming Critical, Permanent Emanation, Rapid Inspiration, Spontaneous Spell.

Sword Dancer

Level	Special
11	Singing sword 1
12	Epic spellsong
13	Silverhair armor +2
14	Bonus feat
15	Singing sword 2
16	Epic spellsong
17	Silverhair armor +4
18	Bonus feat
19	Singing sword 3
20	Craft epic swords, epic spellsong

TEMPEST

The epic tempest is barely visible behind the incessant, whirling blur of her twin weapons.

Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting is usually an early choice on the epic tempest's wish list, but don't overlook other feats that allow you to dish out additional pain and suffering to your enemies, including Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, and Penetrate Damage Reduction.

Superior Initiative lets you strike first in a combat, but Epic Toughness may let you strike last, which is often more important.

Depending on whether you wield heavy or light weapons, Strength or Dexterity is probably your first choice for ability increases.

Other Options: An epic tempest who learns to deflect ranged attacks by means of the Armed Deflection feat opens up an entire new world of options, including Exceptional Deflection and Reflect Arrows.

You'll probably need to send some ability increases toward your Wisdom to best follow this path.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feats: The epic tempest gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic tempest feats) every 2 levels after 10th.

Epic Tempest Bonus Feat List: Armed Deflection (new feat; see below), Blinding Speed, Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Exceptional Deflection, Infinite Deflection, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Reflect Arrows, Superior Initiative, Two-Weapon Rend.

Tempest

Level	Special
11
12	Bonus feat
13
14	Bonus feat
15
16	Bonus feat
17
18	Bonus feat
19
20	Bonus feat

TEMPEST

The epic tempest is barely visible behind the incessant, whirling blur of her twin weapons. Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting is usually an early choice on the epic tempest's wish list, but don't overlook other feats that allow you to dish out additional pain and suffering to your enemies, including Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, and Penetrate Damage Reduction.

Superior Initiative lets you strike first in a combat, but Epic Toughness may let you strike last, which is often more important.

Depending on whether you wield one-handed or light weapons, Strength or Dexterity is probably your first choice for ability increases.

Other Options: An epic tempest who learns to deflect ranged attacks by means of the Armed Deflection feat opens up an entire new world of options, including Exceptional Deflection and Reflect Arrows.

You'll probably need to send some ability increases toward your Wisdom to best follow this path.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feats: The epic tempest gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic tempest feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Tempest Bonus Feat List: Armed Deflection (see New Epic Feats), Blinding Speed, Devastating Critical, Epic Prowess, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Exceptional Deflection, Infinite Deflection, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Perfect Two-Weapon Fighting, Reflect Arrows, Superior Initiative, Two-Weapon Rend.

EPIC TEMPEST

Level	Special
11	—
12	Bonus feat
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	—
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Bonus feat
19	—
20	Bonus feat

TEMPLAR

From Defenders of the Faith

The epic templar is a mighty chosen protector of her deity's holy grounds.

You live and die with your combat capabilities, so focus on feats such as Epic Prowess, Armor Skin, and Damage Reduction.

Epic Weapon Focus and Epic Weapon Specialization demonstrate your devotion to your deity's chosen weapon. Great Smiting and Penetrate Damage Reduction help even the odds against powerful enemies.

Your Strength and Constitution keep you alive, so boost them whenever you can.

Other Options: Templars who favor spellcasting should look to Improved Combat Casting or Improved Spell Capacity.

Hit Die: d10

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic templar's caster level is equal to her class level.

The epic templar's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Smite: The epic templar may use her smite ability one additional time per day for every five levels gained above 7th.

The bonus damage is equal to her class level.

Damage Reduction: The epic templar's damage reduction increases by 1 point for every three levels above 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic templar gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic templar feats) every four levels after 8th.

Epic Templar Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Energy Resistance, Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Weapon Focus (deity's favored weapon), Epic Weapon Specialization (deity's favored weapon), Great Smiting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction.

Templar

Level	Special
11	—
12	Smite 3/day, DR 4/—, bonus feat
13	—
14	—
15	DR 5/—
16	Bonus feat
17	Smite 4/day
18	DR 6/—
19	—
20	Bonus feat

TEMPLAR

The epic templar is a mighty chosen protector of her deity's holy grounds.

You live and die with your combat capabilities, so focus on feats such as Epic Prowess, Armor Skin, and Damage Reduction.

Epic Weapon Focus and Epic Weapon Specialization demonstrate your devotion to your deity's chosen weapon. Great Smiting and Penetrate Damage Reduction help even the odds against powerful enemies.

Your Strength and Constitution keep you alive, so boost them whenever you can.

Other Options: Templars who favor spellcasting should look to Improved Combat Casting or Improved Spell Capacity.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic templar's caster level is equal to her class level.

The epic templar's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Smite (Su): The epic templar may use her smite ability one additional time per day for every five levels gained above 7th.

The bonus damage is equal to her class level.

Damage Reduction (Ex): The epic templar's damage reduction increases by 1 point for every three levels above 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic templar gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic templar feats) every four levels after 8th.

Epic Templar Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Energy Resistance, Epic Devotion (see New Epic Feats), Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Weapon Focus (deity's favored weapon), Epic Weapon Specialization (deity's favored weapon), Great Smiting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction.

EPIC TEMPLAR

Level	Special
11	—
12	Smite 3/day, DR 4/—, bonus feat
13	—
14	—
15	DR 5/—
16	Bonus feat
17	Smite 4/day
18	DR 6/—
19	—
20	Bonus feat

TEMPLE RAIDER OF OLIDAMMARA

From Song and Silence

The epic temple raider doesn't just swipe religious icons from shrines or wandering pilgrims—he's planning how to nick Boccob's own staff right out of his study!

Epic Skill Focus helps you get the job done like no other feat.

Trap Sense and Epic Speed help you avoid or outrun danger.

And for those times when you just can't avoid combat, try Improved Sneak Attack or Improved Combat Casting. Improving your Dexterity and Intelligence help out your most important skills, while an increased Wisdom boosts your spellcasting prowess.

Other Options: If you meet the prerequisites, consider picking up Lingering Damage or Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Those epic temple raiders who focus on spellcasting should think about Improved Spell Capacity.

Hit Die: d6

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier

Spells: The epic temple raider's caster level is equal to his class level.

The epic temple raider's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Sneak Attack: The epic temple raider's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every three levels above 8th.

Save Bonus: The epic temple raider's luck bonus to saving throws increases by 1 point for every three levels above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic temple raider of Olidammara gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic temple raider feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Temple Raider Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Sneak Attack, Improved Spell Capacity, Lingering Damage, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Trap Sense.

Temple Raider of Olidammara

Level	Special
11	Sneak attack +4d6
12	—
13	Save bonus +4, bonus feat
14	Sneak attack +5d6
15	—
16	Save bonus +5, bonus feat
17	Sneak attack +6d6
18	—
19	Save bonus +6, bonus feat
20	Sneak attack +7d6

TEMPLE RAIDER OF OLIDAMMARA

The epic temple raider doesn't just swipe religious icons from shrines or wandering pilgrims—he's planning how to nick Boccob's own staff right out of his study!

Epic Skill Focus helps you get the job done like no other feat.

Epic Trapfinding and Epic Speed help you avoid or outrun danger.

And for those times when you just can't avoid combat, try Improved Sneak Attack or Improved Combat Casting.

Improving your Dexterity and Intelligence help out your most important skills, while an increased Wisdom boosts your spellcasting prowess.

Other Options: If you meet the prerequisites, consider picking up Lingering Damage or Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Those epic temple raiders who focus on spellcasting should think about Improved Spell Capacity.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic temple raider's caster level is equal to his class level.

The epic temple raider's number of spells per day does not increase after 10th level.

Sneak Attack (Ex): The epic temple raider's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 every three levels above 8th.

Save Bonus (Ex): The epic temple raider's luck bonus to saving throws increases by 1 point for every three levels above 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic temple raider of Olidammara gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic temple raider feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Temple Raider Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Trapfinding, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Sneak Attack, Improved Spell Capacity, Lingering Damage, Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

EPIC TEMPLE RAIDER OF OLIDAMMARA

Level	Special
11	Sneak attack +4d6
12	—
13	Save bonus +4, bonus feat
14	Sneak attack +5d6
15	—
16	Save bonus +5, bonus feat
17	Sneak attack +6d6
18	—
19	Save bonus +6, bonus feat
20	Sneak attack +7d6

THIEF-ACROBAT

From Song and Silence

Quite simply, the epic thief-acrobat can often get into (and out of) places no one else could even dream of entering. Legendary Climber, Legendary Leaper, and Epic Skill Focus are key for boosting your primary areas of specialization.

Blinding Speed, Improved Sneak Attack, and Superior Initiative are great to have when you must fight past an obstacle.

The epic thief-acrobat should boost her Strength and Dexterity whenever possible.

Other Options: For even greater stealth, look to Self-Concealment.

Those thief-acrobats who can qualify often enjoy Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Hit Die: d6

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier

Slow Fall: The falling distance that an epic thief-acrobat can ignore increases by 10 feet for every three levels gained after 9th.

Sneak Attack: The epic thief-acrobat's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 for every five levels above 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic thief-acrobat gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic thief-acrobat feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Thief-Acrobat Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Dodge, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Sneak Attack, Legendary Climber, Legendary Leaper, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Superior Initiative.

Thief-Acrobat

Level	Special
11	—
12	Slow fall (50 ft.), bonus feat
13	—
14	Sneak attack +3d6, bonus feat
15	Slow fall (60 ft.)
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Slow fall (70 ft.), bonus feat
19	Sneak attack +4d6
20	Bonus feat

THIEF-ACROBAT

Quite simply, the epic thief-acrobat can often get into (and out of) places no one else could even dream of entering. Legendary Climber, Legendary Leaper, and Epic Skill Focus are key for boosting your primary areas of specialization.

Blinding Speed, Improved Sneak Attack, and Superior Initiative are great to have when you must fight past an obstacle.

The epic thief-acrobat should boost her Strength and Dexterity whenever possible.

Other Options: For even greater stealth, look to Self-Concealment.

Those thief-acrobats who can qualify often enjoy Sneak Attack of Opportunity.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

Slow Fall (Ex): The falling distance that an epic thief-acrobat can ignore increases by 10 feet for every three levels gained after 9th.

Sneak Attack (Ex): The epic thief-acrobat's sneak attack damage increases by +1d6 for every five levels above 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic thief-acrobat gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic thief-acrobat feats) every two levels after 10th.

Epic Thief-Acrobat Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Epic Dodge, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Sneak Attack, Legendary Climber, Legendary Leaper, Self-Concealment, Sneak Attack of Opportunity, Superior Initiative.

EPIC THIEF-ACROBAT

Level	Special
11	—
12	Slow fall (50 ft.), bonus feat
13	—
14	Sneak attack +3d6, bonus feat
15	Slow fall (60 ft.)
16	Bonus feat
17	—
18	Slow fall (70 ft.), bonus feat
19	Sneak attack +4d6
20	Bonus feat

VERDANT LORD

The epic verdant lord protects the plants of the natural world, preventing other creatures from causing damage to the environs and wreaking terrible vengeance upon those who would abuse the forest for their own needs.

Often, an epic verdant lord retires to the depths of an ancient forest in times of peace and spends decades in quiet contemplation, arising from his slumber only when he senses his world has come under attack.

Epic verdant lords are, above all else, patient.

They rarely act out of haste, and as a result they tend to avoid the flashier and more frantic combat epic feats.

Verdant lords prefer to acquire feats with long-term value, such as the various Craft Epic Item feats or Extended Life Span.

Wisdom is generally the most important ability for verdant lords.

Other Options: Although most verdant lords are deliberate in their actions, some headstrong lords find the traditional “lethargy” of their brothers to be a major disadvantage.

These verdant lords focus more on combat, combining the potent defenses of their plant bodies with various combat-related feats to become truly dangerous guardians of the natural world.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Regeneration (Su): An epic verdant lord's body repairs damage to itself with shocking speed as long as he is in a natural area.

At 11th level, the verdant lord gains regeneration 3; the rate of the lord's regeneration increases by +3 every three levels after that.

Acid, cold, fire, and negative energy deal lethal damage to a verdant lord.

In urban areas, or inside of structures, the verdant lord's regeneration does not function and he takes lethal damage from all sources; if the verdant lord later enters a natural area, any lethal damage he suffered in the non-natural region remains as damage and heals normally, but any further damage is treated as nonlethal (except for acid, cold, fire, and negative energy).

Gift of the Green (Su): As the verdant lord gains levels, he begins to manifest amazing abilities and qualities possessed by many plantlike creatures.

At 13th level, and again at every 3rd level after that, a verdant lord may select one of the following:

- Camouflage: In a natural area, the verdant lord can use a free action to blend in with the surroundings and gain total concealment.

This functions just like a greater invisibility spell except that the effect lasts until the verdant lord enters a structure or an urban environment or uses a free action to suppress it.

- Constricting Vine: The verdant lord gains a natural melee attack in the form of a thick vine.

If the vine hits, it inflicts 1d8 points of bludgeoning damage and can immediately make a grapple check without provoking an attack of opportunity.

If the vine gets a hold, it constricts for 1d8 points of damage plus 1.5 times the verdant lord's Strength modifier each round the hold is maintained.

- Natural Armor: The verdant lord's natural armor increases by +3 as his skin grows thick and barklike.

This ability can be selected multiple times.

- Poison Thorns: The verdant lord gains the ability to fire poison thorns from his flesh.

These thorns have a range increment of 70 feet, deal 1d8 points of damage on a hit, and have a x3 critical multiplier. Any creature struck must make a Fortitude save (DC = 10 + half the verdant lord's level + his Constitution modifier) or suffer 1d6 points of temporary Dexterity damage (the initial and secondary damage is the same).

- Reach: The verdant lord's arms become long like tree branches; his reach increases by 5 feet.

This gift may be chosen up to three times.

- Wild Shape (Plant): The verdant lord may wild shape into a plant creature as a 12th-level druid.

Each time he gains a new gift of the green, he may wild shape an additional time each day.

This wild shape ability stacks with any other uses of wild shape the character may possess.

Other gifts of the green can be designed by the player, although the DM must approve of any player-designed gifts.

Bonus Feats: The epic verdant lord gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic verdant lord feats) at 12th level, and again every three levels after that.

Epic Verdant Lord Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Staff, Create Epic Infusion (see sidebar), Damage Reduction, Efficient Item Creation, Energy Resistance, Epic Endurance, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Extended Life Span, Improved Spell Capacity, Instant Infusion (see sidebar), Master Staff.

Verdant Lord

Level	Special
11	Regeneration 3
12	Bonus feat
13	Gift of the green 1
14	Regeneration 6
15	Bonus feat
16	Gift of the green 2
17	Regeneration 9
18	Bonus feat
19	Gift of the green 3
20	Regeneration 12

WARLOCK

A being of fell magic, an epic warlock is a supernatural force incarnate, losing all but the smallest fragment of his humanity.

Hit Die: d6

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier

Invocations: The epic warlock's caster level is equal to his class level.

He does not learn additional invocations.

Eldritch Blast: An epic warlock's eldritch blast damage increases by 1d6 at every even-numbered level higher than 20th (1d6 at 22nd, 1d6 at 24th, and so on).

Damage Reduction: The epic warlock's damage reduction increases by 1 point (to 6/cold iron) at 23rd level and by 1 additional point for every four levels thereafter (7/cold iron at 27th, 8/cold iron at 31st, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic warlock gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, 29th, and so on). Bonus feats must be chosen from the following list, and can be selected even if the warlock does not meet the prerequisites.

Epic Warlock Bonus Feats: Additional Magic Item Space, Augmented Alchemy, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Damage Reduction, Dark Transient*, Efficient Item Creation, Eldritch Sculptor*, Energy Resistance, Epic Eldritch Blast*, Epic Extra Invocation*, Epic Fiendish Resilience*, Epic Spell Penetration, Extended Lifespan, Extra Epic Invocation*, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Casting, Lord of All Essences*, Master of the Elements*, Morpheme Savant*, Paragon Visionary*, Scribe Epic Scroll, Shadowmaster*, Souleater Incarnate*, Spellcasting Harrier, Superior Initiative, Verminlord*.

* An epic warlock must meet this feat's prerequisites to select it as an epic bonus feat.

WARMAGE

An epic warmage has perfected the art of destruction and devastation through his magic.

He can lay waste to entire armies and cities with horrifying ease and shocking efficiency.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The warmage's caster level is equal to his class level. The warmage's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

The warmage does not learn additional spells, except through the advanced learning class feature (see below).

Advanced Learning (Ex): An epic warmage continues to add new spells to his spell list once every four levels; the spell added must be a wizard spell of the evocation school. Once a new spell is selected, it is forever added to that warmage's spell list and can be cast like any other spell on the warmage's list.

Bonus Feats: The epic warmage gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic warmage feats) at 23rd level and again every three levels after that.

Epic Warmage Bonus Feat List: Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Craft Epic Magic Arms and Armor, Craft Epic Rod, Craft Epic Staff, Craft Epic Wondrous Item, Efficient Item Creation, Energy Resistance, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spellcasting Harrier, Tenacious Magic.

Epic Warmage

Level	Special
21	--
22	--
23	Bonus feat
24	Advanced learning
25	--
26	Bonus feat
27	--
28	Advanced learning
29	Bonus feat
30	--

WARPRIEST

From Defenders of the Faith

The epic warpriest lives for the sound of battle, often commanding armies that stretch to the horizon and beyond.

For building and keeping an army, you can't beat Epic Leadership, Epic Reputation, and Legendary Commander. Armor Skin and Epic Toughness keep you alive and well in the most chaotic of battles.

Feats such as Bonus Domain, Improved Spell Capacity, and Spontaneous Domain Access boost your spellcasting powers.

Your spellcasting depends on Wisdom, but you shouldn't neglect your Charisma.

Strength and Constitution make reasonable options for ability boosts as well.

Other Options: Evil warpriests should consider Negative Energy Burst, Undead Mastery, and Zone of Animation to build and support armies of undead minions.

Hit Die: d8

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier
Spells: The epic warpriest's caster level increases by one level for every two levels gained above 10th.

The epic warpriest's number of spells per day increases until his caster level reaches 20th.

Turn or Rebuke Undead: Levels of warpriest count toward cleric or paladin levels when turning or rebuking undead.

Rally: The morale bonus this ability grants to the epic warpriest's allies increases by 1 point per level gained above 10th.

Inflame: The morale bonus this ability grants increases by +2 at each even-numbered level above 10th.

The effect's duration increases by one minute per level gained.

Fear Aura: The DC to resist this ability increases by 1 point every two levels gained above 10th (rather than by 1 point every level).

The epic warpriest may use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained after 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic warpriest gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic warpriest feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Warpriest Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Bonus Domain, Epic Leadership, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Negative Energy Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Domain Access, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

Warpriest
Level	Special
11	Rally
12	Fear aura (3/day), rally, inflame
13	Rally
14	Bonus feat, rally, inflame
15	Fear aura (4/day)
16	Inflame, rally
17	Rally
18	Fear aura (5/day), bonus feat, rally, inflame
19	Rally
20	Inflame, rally

WARPRIEST

The epic warpriest lives for the sound of battle and often commands armies that stretch to the horizon and beyond. For building and keeping an army, you can't beat Epic Leadership, Epic Reputation, and Legendary Commander. Armor Skin and Epic Toughness keep you alive and well in the most chaotic of battles.

Feats such as Bonus Domain, Improved Spell Capacity, and Spontaneous Domain Access boost your spellcasting powers.

Your spellcasting depends on Wisdom, but you shouldn't neglect your Charisma.

Strength and Constitution make reasonable options for ability boosts as well.

Other Options: Evil warpriests should consider Negative Energy Burst, Undead Mastery, and Zone of Animation to build and support armies of undead minions.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic warpriest's caster level increases by one level for every two levels gained above 10th. The epic warpriest continues to gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) at each new level, up to the maximum spells per day and spells known of the divine spellcasting class to which the warpriest belonged before adding the prestige class.

Turn or Rebuke Undead (Su): Levels of warpriest count toward cleric or paladin levels when turning or rebuking undead.

Rally (Ex): The morale bonus this ability grants to the epic warpriest's allies increases by 1 point per level gained above 10th.

Inflame (Ex): The morale bonus this ability grants increases by +2 at each even-numbered level above 10th.

The effect's duration increases by one minute per level gained.

Fear Aura (Su): The DC to resist this ability increases by 1 point every two levels gained above 10th (rather than by 1 point every level).

The epic warpriest may use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained after 9th.

Bonus Feats: The epic warpriest gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic warpriest feats) every four levels after 10th.

Epic Warpriest Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Bonus Domain, Chosen Weapon Specialization (see New Epic Feats), Divine Spell Penetration (see New Epic Feats), Epic Leadership, Epic Reputation, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Toughness, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Negative Energy Burst, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spontaneous Domain Access, Undead Mastery, Zone of Animation.

EPIC WARPRIEST

Level	Special
11	—
12	Fear aura (3/day)
13	—
14	Bonus feat
15	Fear aura (4/day)
16	—
17	—
18	Fear aura (5/day), bonus feat
19	—
20	—

WARRIOR SKALD

The epic warrior skald has become a mighty hero in her own right, and while she continues to serve as a valuable ally in combat, she is just as often the subject of legends as she is the teller of such tales.

Most epic warrior skalds continue to focus on their oratory abilities, selecting feats that boost their ability to use bardic music such as Deafening Song, Hindering Song, Lasting Inspiration, Music of the Gods, Ranged Inspiration, and Rapid Inspiration.

After Charisma, which modifies and augments many of the warrior skald's special abilities, Strength is the character's most appropriate choice for ability increases.

Other Options: Epic warrior skalds who can meet the prerequisites take Overwhelming Critical and Devastating Critical, if only to enhance their own legendary battles.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Bardic Music: The epic warrior skald continues to hone her skills with bardic music.

She combines her bard and warrior skald levels to determine how many times per day she can use her bardic music ability.

Epic Heroism: At 11th level, the epic warrior skald gains the ability to inspire incredible heroism in an ally within 30 feet.

The ally the epic warrior skald chooses to affect gains a +4 morale bonus to his Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution, and gains +3d10 temporary hit points (these hit points are modified by the subject's Constitution score).

The effect lasts for as long as the ally hears the warrior skald recite poetry and for up to 5 rounds thereafter.

This is a mind-affecting ability that counts as a daily use of bardic music.

The epic warrior skald can inspire epic heroism in one additional target every three additional levels (2 targets at 14th, 3 at 17th, 4 at 20th, and so on).

Unlike the inspire heroics ability the bard gets at 15th level, each additional ally targeted increases the cost of using the ability by +1 daily use of bardic music.

Words of Wrath (Su): At 12th level, the warrior skald has learned and mastered the art of creating waves of sonic force by uttering ancient lines of magical poetry.

He can target one creature within 60 feet with the words of wrath; activating this supernatural ability is a standard action that does not provoke an attack of opportunity and uses one of the skald's daily uses of bardic music.

The target of the words of wrath must immediately make a Fortitude saving throw (DC = 10 + the epic warrior skald's level + Charisma modifier).

Failure indicates the target takes 1d6 points of sonic damage per warrior skald level and is permanently deafened.

Success indicates that the target suffers half damage and is deafened for only 1d4 rounds.

The epic warrior skald can simultaneously use the words of wrath against one additional target every three additional levels (2 targets at 15th, 3 at 18th, 4 at 21st, and so on).

Each additional target increases the cost of using the ability by +1 daily use of bardic music.

Bonus Feats: The epic warrior skald gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic warrior skald feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Warrior Skald Bonus Feat List: Deafening Song, Devastating Critical, Epic Endurance, Epic Fortitude, Epic Inspiration, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Great Charisma, Group Inspiration, Hindering Song, Inspire Excellence, Lasting Inspiration, Music of the Gods, Overwhelming Critical, Polyglot, Ranged Inspiration, Rapid Inspiration, Reactive Countersong.

Warrior Skald

Level	Special
11	Epic heroism (1 target)
12	Words of wrath (1 target)
13	Bonus feat
14	Epic heroism (2 targets)
15	Words of wrath (2 targets)
16	Bonus feat
17	Epic heroism (3 targets)
18	Words of wrath (3 targets)
19	Bonus feat
20	Epic heroism (4 targets)

WEAPON MASTER

The epic weapon master is an unparalleled expert in the use of his chosen weapon, whether that weapon is sword, axe, or nunchaku.

You can improve your already prodigious combat talents by selecting Epic Prowess, Epic Weapon Focus, or Overwhelming Critical.

Alternatively, enhance your defensive capabilities with Epic Combat Expertise or Epic Toughness.

As a melee fighter, Strength is likely your most important ability score, so it should receive the lion's share of ability increases.

Other Options: If your chosen weapon is a reach weapon, it's tough to beat Improved Whirlwind Attack.

Penetrate Damage Reduction is great if you routinely find yourself facing foes whose DR your chosen weapon can't overcome.

If you go the Weapon Finesse route, then Dexterity becomes a prime target for ability increases.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Ki Damage (Ex): The epic weapon master can use his ki damage ability one additional time per day per level gained after 10th (11/day at 11th, 12/day at 12th, and so on).

Increased Multiplier (Ex): The epic weapon master can declare that he is increasing the critical multiplier of his chosen weapon one additional time per day for every 2 levels gained above 10th (6/day at 12th, 7/day at 14th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic weapon master gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic weapon master feats) every 3 levels after 10th.

Epic Weapon Master Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Devastating Critical, Epic Combat Expertise (new feat; see below), Epic Prowess, Epic Reflexes, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (weapon of choice only), Extended Lifespan, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction.

Weapon Master

Level	Special
11	Ki damage 11/day
12	Increased multiplier 6/day, ki damage 12/day
13	Ki damage 13/day, bonus feat
14	Increased multiplier 7/ day, ki damage 14/day
15	Ki damage 15/day
16	Increased multiplier 8/ day, ki damage 16/day, bonus feat
17	Ki damage 17/day
18	Increased multiplier 9/ day, ki damage 18/day
19	Ki damage 19/day, bonus feat
20	Increased multiplier 10/ day, ki damage 20/day

WEAPON MASTER

The epic weapon master is an unparalleled expert in the use of his chosen weapon, whether that weapon is the longsword, greataxe, or nunchaku.

You can improve your already prodigious combat talents by selecting Epic Prowess, Epic Weapon Focus, or Overwhelming Critical.

Alternatively, enhance your defensive capabilities with Epic Combat Expertise or Epic Toughness.

As a melee fighter, Strength is likely your most important ability score, so it should receive the lion's share of ability increases.

Other Options: If your chosen weapon is a reach weapon, it's tough to beat Improved Whirlwind Attack.

Penetrate Damage Reduction is great if you routinely find yourself facing foes whose DR your chosen weapon can't overcome.

If you go the Weapon Finesse route, then Dexterity becomes a prime target for ability increases.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Ki Damage (Ex): The epic weapon master can use his ki damage ability one additional time per day per level gained after 10th (11/day at 11th, 12/day at 12th, and so on).

Increased Multiplier (Ex): The epic weapon master can declare that he is increasing the critical multiplier of his chosen weapon one additional time per day for every two levels gained above 10th (6/day at 12th, 7/day at 14th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic weapon master gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic weapon master feats) every three levels after 10th.

Epic Weapon Master Bonus Feat List: Blinding Speed, Devastating Critical, Epic Combat Expertise (see New Epic Feats), Epic Prowess, Epic Reflexes, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus (weapon of choice only), Extended Lifespan, Improved Combat Reflexes, Improved

Whirlwind Attack, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction.

EPIC WEAPON MASTER

Level	Special
11	Ki damage 11/day
12	Increased multiplier 6/day, ki damage 12/day
13	Ki damage 13/day, bonus feat
14	Increased multiplier 7/ day, ki damage 14/day
15	Ki damage 15/day
16	Increased multiplier 8/ day, ki damage 16/day, bonus feat
17	Ki damage 17/day
18	Increased multiplier 9/ day, ki damage 18/day
19	Ki damage 19/day, bonus feat
20	Increased multiplier 10/ day, ki damage 20/day

WU JEN

The epic wu jen continues to grow apart from society, since her mighty powers and strange ways often frighten those uninitiated into the mysteries of arcane magic.

The epic wu jen lives and dies by her spellcasting, and her epic feat selection, including such choices as Multispell, Intensify Spell, and Epic Spell Focus, reflects that reality. For higher-level wu jen, Epic Spell Secret is a powerful option.

Since the wu jen's spells are affected by her Intelligence, most ability increases should go there.

Dexterity and Constitution are reasonable second options since they improve her defensive capabilities.

Other Options: Superior Initiative makes a fine choice for the wu jen who believes in striking first.

Improved Metamagic is good for the wu jen who employs many such feats.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic wu jen's caster level is equal to her class level.

The wu jen's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Each time the wu jen achieves a new level, she learns two new spells of any spell level that she can cast (according to her new level).

Spell Secret: Every 3 levels after 18th, the epic wu jen may select one additional spell known to her to become modified as listed for this ability.

She must choose an additional taboo each time she learns a spell secret.

Bonus Feats: The epic wu jen gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic wu jen feats) every 3 levels after 20th.

Epic Wu Jen Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spell Secret (new feat; see below), Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Superior Initiative, Tenacious Magic.

Wu Jen Level	Special
21	Spell secret
22
23	Bonus feat
24	Spell secret
25
26	Bonus feat
27	Spell secret
28
29	Bonus feat
30	Spell secret

WU JEN

The epic wu jen continues to grow apart from society, since her mighty powers and strange ways often frighten those uninitiated into the mysteries of arcane magic.

The epic wu jen lives and dies by her spellcasting, and her epic feat selection, including such choices as Multispell, Intensify Spell, and Epic Spell Focus, reflects that reality.

For higher-level wu jen, Epic Spell Secret is a powerful option.

Since the wu jen's spells are affected by her Intelligence, most ability increases should go there.

Dexterity and Constitution are reasonable second options since they improve her defensive capabilities.

Other Options: Superior Initiative makes a fine choice for the wu jen, who believes in striking first.

Improved Metamagic is good for the wu jen who employs many such feats.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: The epic wu jen's caster level is equal to her class level.

The wu jen's number of spells per day does not increase after 20th level.

Each time the wu jen achieves a new level, she learns two new spells of any spell level that she can cast (according to her new level).

Spell Secret: Every three levels after 18th, the epic wu jen may select one additional spell known to her to become modified as listed for this ability.

She must choose an additional taboo each time she learns a spell secret.

Bonus Feats: The epic wu jen gains a bonus feat (selected from the list of epic wu jen feats) every three levels after 20th.

Epic Wu Jen Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spell Secret (see New Epic Feats), Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Spell, Superior Initiative, Tenacious Magic.

EPIC WU JEN

Level	Special
21	Spell secret
22	—
23	Bonus feat
24	Spell secret
25	—
26	Bonus feat
27	Spell secret
28	—
29	Bonus feat
30	Spell secret

EXPANDED PSIONICS HANDBOOK (3.5)

PSION

To the epic psion, inner knowledge is literally power, and the quest for the expansion of hidden psionic abilities is never-ending.

Ever more potent psionic power and even the creation of psionic artifacts are hallmarks of the epic psion.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Powers: The psion's manifester level is equal to his class level.

The psion's base power points do not increase after 20th level.

Each time the psion attains a new level, he learns two new powers of any level or levels that he can manifest.

Psicrystal: The epic psion's psicrystal, if he has one, continues to increase in power.

At every odd-numbered level higher than 20th (21st, 23rd, and so on) the psicrystal's natural armor bonus and Intelligence each increase by 1.

The psicrystal's power resistance is equal to the master's level + 5.

At 21st level and again every ten levels higher than 21st, the psicrystal gains the benefit of the Psicrystal Power epic feat for a power of its master's choice.

Bonus Feats: The epic psion gains a bonus feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

PSYCHIC WARRIOR

The epic psychic warrior is a perfect meld of mental strength and martial prowess.

All fear her psionically enhanced weapon.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Powers: The psychic warrior's manifester level is equal to her class level.

The psychic warrior's base power points do not increase after 20th level.

The epic psychic warrior gains one new power of any level that she can manifest at every even-numbered level she attains higher than 20th (22nd, 24th, 26th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic psychic warrior gains a bonus feat at 21st level and every three levels higher than 21st (24th, 27th, and so on).

SOULKNIFE

The epic soulknife is adept at channeling the entirety of his psychic might into the creation of an increasingly potent blade of mental energy.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Mind Blade: At 25th level and every five levels thereafter, the soulknife gains an additional +1 enhancement bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls (+6 at 25th, +7 at 30th, and so on).

Mind Blade Enhancement: The epic soulknife's mind blade gains additional powers as the soulknife gains epic levels.

At 22nd level and every four levels thereafter, the soulknife can improve the value of the weapon special abilities on his mind blade by 1 (+5 equivalent bonus at 22nd, +6 at 26th, and so on).

As noted in the soulknife class description, reassigning qualities still takes 8 hours of concentration.

Psychic Strike: The epic soulknife's psychic strike progression continues past 20th level, continuing to grant an additional die (d8) of damage every four levels higher than 19th (+6d8 at 23rd, +7d8 at 27th, and so on).

Bonus Feats: The epic soulknife gains a bonus psionic feat every three levels higher than 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

WILDER

The epic wilder's powers become even more volatile and unpredictable.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Powers: The epic wilder's manifester level is equal to her class level.

The wilder's power points and powers known do not increase after 20th level (except through the use of epic feats).

Wild Surge: The epic wilder's wild surge continues to increase after 20th level.

At 23rd level and every four levels higher than 23rd, the wild surge continues to gain an additional +1 boost to manifester level when used (+7 at 23rd, +8 at 27th, and so on).

Surging Euphoria: The wilder's surging euphoria progression continues past 20th level.

At 28th level and every eight levels higher than 28th, the morale bonus on her attack rolls, damage rolls, and saving throws increases by 1 (+4 at 28th, +5 at 36th, and so on).

Volatile Mind: The epic wilder's volatile mind ability continues to increase.

At 21st level and every four levels higher than 21st, the penalty assessed against telepathy powers manifested on the wilder is increased by 1 power point (5 points at 21st, 6 points at 25th, and so on).

MAGIC OF INCARNUM (3.5)

INCARNATE

Standing as an exemplar of her principles, the epic incarnate wields moral or ethical forces as weapons in his struggle against those who oppose his alignment.

Hit Die: d6.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Incarnum Radiance: The epic incarnate can use this ability one additional time per day for every five levels he attains beyond 18th level (5/day at 23rd level, 6/day at 28th level, and so on.).

The sacred bonus granted improves by 1 (for good or lawful incarnates), by 2 (for evil incarnates), or +10 feet (for chaotic incarnates) for every five levels above 20th.

Rapid Meldshaping: The epic incarnate can use this ability one additional time per day for every six levels he attains beyond 17th level (4/day at 23rd level, 5/day at 29th level, and so on.).

Meldshaping: The epic incarnate does not gain any additional soulmelds, essentia, or chakra binds after 20th level.

His meldshaper level continues to increase, however.

Bonus Feats: The epic incarnate gains a bonus feat every two levels higher than 20th (22nd, 24th, and so on).

SOULBORN

The epic soulborn is a mighty champion of her chosen alignment, shaping her soulmelds for maximum martial capability.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Smite Opposition: The epic soulborn can use this ability one additional time per day for every five levels she attains beyond 20th (6/day at 25th level, 7/day at 30th level, and so on.).

Share Incarnum Defense: The epic soulborn can use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels she attains beyond 17th (4/day at 21st level, 5/day at 25th level, and so on.).

Meldshaping: The epic soulborn does not gain any additional soulmelds, essentia, or chakra binds after 20th level.

Her meldshaper level continues to increase by one for every two levels of soulborn gained.

Bonus Feats: The epic soulborn gains a bonus feat every three levels after 20th (23rd, 26th, and so on).

TOTEMIST

The epic totemist is a fierce warrior of nature, though some more rightfully compare him to a force of nature itself.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Rebind Totem Soulmeld: The epic totemist can use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels he attains beyond 20th (5/day at 24th, 6/day at 28th, and so on.).

Meldshaping: The epic totemist does not gain any additional soulmelds, essentia, or chakra binds after 20th level.

His meldshaper level continues to increase, however.

Bonus Feats: The epic totemist gains a bonus feat every two levels after 20th (22nd, 24th, and so on).

PLAYER'S GUIDE TO FAERÛN (3.5)

EYE OF HORUS-RE

The epic eye of Horus-Re is the embodiment of light and his deity's devotion to battling evil.

An epic eye of Horus-Re should concentrate on his ability to wreak havoc on undead and other evil creatures by focusing on epic feats such as Positive Energy Aura, Chosen Weapon Specialization, and Planar Turning.

He is always happy to improve his spellcasting as well, with feats such as Divine Spell Penetration, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Bonus Domain, Spontaneous Domain Access, and feats that improve his use of metamagic.

A good selection of defensive feats, such as Epic Devotion and Armor Skin, is also useful.

The epic eye of Horus-Re should increase his Wisdom as much as possible, though he also needs Charisma for turning undead.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic eye of Horus-Re's caster level increases by 1 for every level higher than 10th.

His spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level, unless the sum of the class levels contributing to his caster level equals 20 or less.

Positive Energy Burst: The DC for this ability increases by 1 for every two levels higher than 10th.

Bonus Feats: The epic eye of Horus-Re gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every two levels higher than 10th.

He must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Eye of Horus-Re Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Chosen Weapon Specialization*, Divine Spell Penetration*, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell*, Epic Devotion*, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

* New epic feat; see page 135.

TABLE 5-1:
THE EPIC EYE OF HORUS-RE

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	Bonus feat
13th	—
14th	Bonus feat
15th	—
16th	Bonus feat
17th	—
18th	Bonus feat
19th	—
20th	Bonus feat

HAMMER OF MORADIN

The epic hammer of Moradin is a mighty champion of the dwarf race—the very image of his deity on the battlefield. An epic hammer of Moradin has a dual focus: He should improve his spellcasting ability on a regular basis while also augmenting his sheer combat prowess.

The Chosen Weapon Specialization feat makes use of his religious devotion, while a whole array of combat feats from Epic Weapon Focus to Overwhelming Critical can increase his effectiveness in battle.

Divine Spell Penetration, Epic Devotion, and Improved Alignment-Based Casting highlight his role as a champion of law and good.

Armor Skin, Damage Reduction, Epic Endurance, and Epic Toughness suit the dwarven idiom as well.

Strength, Wisdom, and Constitution are all important to the epic hammer of Moradin, and not necessarily in that order.

Better attacks, better spells, better hit points—he needs them all, so he should try to increase these three abilities nearly evenly.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic hammer of Moradin's caster level increases by 1 for every two levels higher than 10th.

His spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level unless the sum of the class levels contributing to his caster level equals 20 or less.

Bonus Feats: The epic hammer of Moradin gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every two levels higher than 10th.

He must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Hammer of Moradin Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Bonus Domain, Chosen Weapon Specialization*, Damage Reduction, Devastating Critical, Divine Spell Penetration*, Enhance Spell, Epic Devotion*, Epic Endurance, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Aura of Courage, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Improved Whirlwind Attack, Legendary Commander, Overwhelming Critical, Penetrate Damage Reduction, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Domain Access, Superior Initiative, Widen Aura of Courage.

* New epic feat; see page 135.

TABLE 5-2:

THE EPIC HAMMER OF MORADIN

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	Bonus feat
13th	—
14th	Bonus feat
15th	—
16th	Bonus feat
17th	—
18th	Bonus feat
19th	—
20th	Bonus feat

HATHRAN

As far as outsiders know, there are no hathrans above the rank of othlor among the Witches of Rashemen.

But the outsiders are wrong.

Those few hathrans who exceed this level of power keep their identities secret and often disappear from public view. They may continue to work from behind the scenes, but more likely they travel incognito to distant lands or planes of existence in search of greater knowledge.

The epic hathran has perhaps the widest array of bonus feats available to any class.

Her choice of feats depends largely on her spellcasting preference (arcane or divine).

Former clerics might select Bonus Domain or Improved Alignment-Based Casting, while hathrans who were once arcane spellcasters probably lean toward improving their metamagic capabilities.

Regardless of a hathran's background, general feats such as Epic Spell Focus and Epic Spell Penetration come in very handy, and she can't go wrong with Improved Spell Capacity.

An epic hathran should focus on increasing the ability score that controls her spellcasting, whether that is Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma.

Since hathrans are multiclass spellcasters, an occasional bump to her secondary spellcasting ability score is a reasonable second choice.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic hathran's caster level increases by 1 for every level higher than 10th.

Her spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level.

Universal Spirit Magic: The epic hathran gains one additional use per day of this ability for every three levels higher than 9th (four times per day at 12th level, five times per day at 15th level, and six times per day at 18th level).

Bonus Feats: The epic hathran gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every two levels higher than 10th.

She must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Hathran Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Enhance Spell, Epic Leadership, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Scribe Epic Scroll, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

TABLE 5-3: THE EPIC HATHRAN

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	Bonus feat, universal spirit magic 4/day
13th	—
14th	Bonus feat
15th	Universal spirit magic 5/day
16th	Bonus feat
17th	—
18th	Bonus feat, universal spirit magic 6/day
19th	—
20th	Bonus feat

INCANTATRIX

The epic incantatrix is even more solitary than the typical representative of the prestige class.

Improved Metamagic further augments the incantatrix's prodigious metamagic abilities, and its benefit stacks with that provided by her class ability of the same name. Any of the epic metamagic feats (such as Improved Heighten Spell) are also likely to come in handy for her. The epic incantatrix should focus her ability score increases on the ability that controls her spellcasting (typically Intelligence or Charisma).

Beyond that, either Dexterity or Constitution is a fine choice.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic incantatrix's caster level increases by 1 for every level higher than 10th.

Her spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level unless the sum of the class levels contributing to her caster level equals 20 or less.

Instant Metamagic (Su): The incantatrix gains one additional use per day of her instant metamagic ability for every two levels higher than 9th.

Thus, she can use it three times per day at 11th level, four times per day at 13th level, five times per day at 15th level, six times per day at 17th level, and seven times per day at 19th level.

Bonus Feats: The epic incantatrix gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every three levels higher than 10th.

She must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Incantatrix Bonus Feat List: Augmented Alchemy, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Effect*, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell*, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Will, Familiar Spell, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Cooperative Metamagic*, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Snatch Spell*, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Master Staff, Master Wand, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Knowledge, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

* New epic feat; see page 135.

TABLE 5—4: THE EPIC INCANTATRIX

Class Level	Special
11th	Instant metamagic 3/day
12th	—
13th	Bonus feat, instant metamagic 4/day
14th	—
15th	Instant metamagic 5/day
16th	Bonus feat
17th	Instant metamagic 6/day
18th	—
19th	Bonus feat, instant metamagic 7/day
20th	—

JUSTICIAR OF TYR

A champion of law first and good second, the epic justiciar of Tyr is very similar to the epic paladin—a champion of righteousness and justice whose sword brings woe to the wicked.

The epic justiciar of Tyr's faith powers her combat prowess. Axiomatic Strike is the logical outgrowth of her smite anarchy ability, and Great Smiting improves that ability as well.

Chosen Weapon Specialization is another good combat feat for the epic justiciar, and both Epic Leadership and Legendary Commander suit this paragon of justice well. Charisma, Strength, and Wisdom are all good choices for ability score increases.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic justiciar of Tyr's caster level increases by 1 for every level higher than 10th.

Her spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level unless the sum of the class levels contributing to her caster level equals 20 or less.

Smite Anarchy (Su): The epic justiciar of Tyr gains one additional use per day of her smite anarchy ability for every five levels higher than 10th.

Thus, she can use it four times per day at 15th level and five times per day at 20th level.

Bonus Feats: The epic justiciar of Tyr gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every three levels higher than 9th.

She must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Justiciar of Tyr Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Axiomatic Strike*, Chosen Weapon Specialization*, Devastating Critical, Epic Leadership, Epic Prowess, Epic Reputation, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Great Smiting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Spell Capacity, Legendary Commander, Overwhelming Critical, Perfect Health, Permanent Emanation, Spontaneous Spell.

* New epic feat; see page 135.

TABLE 5—5:

THE EPIC JUSTICIAR OF TYR

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	—
13th	Bonus feat
14th	—
15th	Smite anarchy 4/day
16th	Bonus feat
17th	—
18th	—
19th	Bonus feat
20th	Smite anarchy 5/day

MONK OF THE LONG DEATH

Shrouded in an aura of death, the epic monk of the long death has achieved a level of peace with the concept of death that most mortals will never find.

Epic monks of the long death have most of the same options available to them as standard monks do, including a variety of ways to improve their unarmed combat ability, superior defenses, and speed.

Monks of the long death who come from different backgrounds should consult the epic paths for their other classes for more options.

A monk of the long death needs to keep improving most of his ability scores.

Since his death attack relies on his Intelligence score, Charisma is the only ability score that he shouldn't care too much about.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Death Attack: The save DC for this ability increases by 1 for every two levels higher than 10th.

Deathguard: The epic monk of the long death's bonus on saving throws against death effects increases by 1 for every two levels higher than 9th (to +6 at 11th level, +7 at 13th level, +8 at 15th level, +9 at 17th level, and +10 at 19th level).

Bonus Feats: The epic monk of the long death gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every four levels higher than 10th.

He must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Monk of the Long Death Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Blinding Speed, Damage Reduction, Energy Resistance, Epic Prowess, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Fast Healing, Improved Combat Reflexes, Keen Strike, Legendary Climber, Legendary Wrestler, Self-Concealment, Shattering Strike, Superior Initiative, Vortal Strike.

TABLE 5-6:

THE EPIC MONK OF THE LONG DEATH

Class Level	Special
11th	Deathguard +6
12th	—
13th	Deathguard +7
14th	Bonus feat
15th	Deathguard +8
16th	—
17th	Deathguard +9
18th	Bonus feat
19th	Deathguard +10
20th	—

MORNINGLORD OF LATHANDER

Shining with the rosy light of dawn, the epic morninglord of Lathander is a ray of hope in a dark and dangerous world.

Much like clerics, epic morninglords should concentrate on improving their spellcasting, their turning ability, and their healing talents.

Because they are highly creative people, many epic morninglords take Epic Skill Focus (Craft or Perform).

An epic morninglord should improve her Wisdom for spellcasting and her Charisma for turning.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic morninglord of Lathander's caster level increases by 1 for every level higher than 10th.

Her spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level unless the sum of the class levels contributing to her caster level equals 20 or less.

Greater Turning: The epic morninglord of Lathander gains one additional use per day of this ability for every four levels higher than 9th.

Thus, she can use it three times per day at 13th level and four times per day at 17th level.

Bonus Feats: The epic morninglord of Lathander gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every three levels higher than 10th.

She must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Morninglord of Lathander Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Chosen Weapon Specialization*, Divine Spell Penetration*, Enhance Spell, Epic Counterspell*, Epic Devotion*, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Planar Turning, Positive Energy Aura, Spectral Strike, Spell Stowaway, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

* New epic feat; see page 135.

TABLE 5-7:

THE EPIC MORNINGLORD OF LATHANDER

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	—
13th	Greater turning 3/day, bonus feat
14th	—
15th	—
16th	Bonus feat
17th	Greater turning 4/day
18th	—
19th	Bonus feat
20th	—

RUNECASTER

Epic runecasters are particularly common among the dwarves and giants, who originated this form of magic. A runecaster of epic level is likely a legend among his people, and the power of his runes is beyond comparison.

The epic runecaster should pick up Inscribe Epic Rune (new feat; see page 135) as soon as possible. Beyond that, any feat that makes his spellcasting more powerful is a good choice, from Enhance Spell to Improved Metamagic to Spell Stowaway.

Epic Toughness is a good choice for epic runecasters who want to emulate their dwarf or giant teachers.

Players could also work with their DMs to create rune-based epic feats that mimic metamagic feats.

If the epic runecaster's divine spellcasting relies on Wisdom, that's the best choice for his ability score increases.

Constitution is a solid second choice, since many runecasters take pride in their physical toughness.

Hit Die: d8.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic runecaster's divine caster level increases by 1 for every level higher than 10th.

His spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level.

Rune Craft: The epic runecaster's bonus on Craft checks made to inscribe runes increases by 1 for every three levels higher than 10th (to +4 at 13th level, +5 at 16th level, and +6 at 19th level).

Rune Power: For runes created by the runecaster, the save DC for all attempts to erase, dispel, or disable the rune, and for caster level checks made to overcome the spell resistance of a target, increases by 1 for every three levels higher than 9th (to +4 at 12th level, +5 at 15th level, and +6 at 18th level).

Crafting Epic Runes: An epic runecaster can't create a rune with a spell level above 10th or an effective caster level above 20th without using the Inscribe Epic Rune feat.

Bonus Feats: The epic runecaster gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every three levels higher than 10th.

He must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Runecaster Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quicken Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Bonus Domain, Chosen Weapon Specialization*, Divine Spell Penetration*, Efficient Item Creation, Enhance Spell, Epic Devotion*, Epic Skill Focus (Craft [any]), Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Epic Toughness, Ignore Material Components, Improved Alignment-Based Casting, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Inscribe Epic Rune*, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spell Opportunity, Spell Stowaway, Spontaneous Domain Access, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

* New epic feat; see page 135.

TABLE 5—8: THE EPIC RUNECASTER

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	Rune power +4
13th	Bonus feat, rune craft +4
14th	—
15th	Rune power +5
16th	Bonus feat, rune craft +5
17th	—
18th	Rune power +6
19th	Bonus feat, rune craft +6
20th	—

SHAARYAN HUNTER

The epic Shaaryan hunter is one with her mount. She is a rider, tracker, and survivalist of unrivaled skill.

An epic Shaaryan hunter should focus on feats related to riding and archery, which are her two greatest strengths.

Legendary Rider and Skill Focus (Ride) improve her riding ability and help her make Ride checks at high DCs for tasks such as attacking while hanging down alongside her mount.

Combat Archery, Distant Shot, Improved Manyshot, Swarm of Arrows, and Uncanny Accuracy all improve her prowess with a bow.

The Shaaryan hunter should improve her Dexterity regularly.

Constitution should be her second focus for ability score increases.

Hit Die: d10.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

Ride Bonus: The epic Shaaryan hunter's competence bonus on Ride checks increases by 2 for every three levels higher than 10th (to +10 at 13th level, +12 at 15th level, and +14 at 18th level).

Bonus Feats: The epic Shaaryan hunter gains a bonus feat, selected from the list below, for every three levels higher than 10th.

She must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Shaaryan Hunter Bonus Feat List: Armor Skin, Blinding Speed, Combat Archery, Distant Shot, Epic Endurance, Epic Prowess, Epic Skill Focus, Epic Speed, Epic Toughness, Epic Weapon Focus, Fast Healing, Improved Manyshot, Legendary Rider, Legendary Tracker, Swarm of Arrows, Uncanny Accuracy.

TABLE 5-9: THE EPIC SHAABYAN HUNTER

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	—
13th	Bonus feat, Ride bonus +10
14th	—
15th	—
16th	Bonus feat, Ride bonus +12
17th	—
18th	—
19th	Bonus feat, Ride bonus +14
20th	—

SHADOW ADEPT

The benefits of the Shadow Weave are as potent as they are tempting.

A rare few who follow this path attain epic levels, and those who know their names dare mention them only in whispers—and even then only in bright daylight.

As a spellcaster, an epic shadow adept should focus on gaining feats that bolster his spellcasting power, such as the ever-popular Improved Spell Capacity.

Epic Spell Focus, particularly in enchantment, illusion, or necromancy, also serves him well.

Improved Low-Light Vision boosts the epic shadow adept's visual acuity in the shadowy conditions he loves.

An epic shadow adept who is satisfied with his spellcasting prowess might consider picking up feats that accentuate his other abilities.

If he has the prerequisites, Self-Concealment fits in well with the shadow adept's motif.

Spectral Strike is another interesting choice for shadow adepts who were clerics before embracing the Shadow Weave.

As with any epic spellcaster, an epic shadow adept should improve the ability score that controls his spellcasting.

Other than that, Dexterity is a good choice, particularly if he typically goes without armor.

Hit Die: d4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

Spells: The epic shadow adept's caster level increases by 1 for every level higher than 10th.

His spells per day and spells known do not increase after 10th level.

Shadow Defense: The epic shadow adept's profane bonus on saves against spells from the schools of enchantment, illusion, and necromancy, as well as spells with the darkness descriptor, increases by 1 for every three levels higher than 9th (to +4 at 12th level, +5 at 15th level, and +6 at 18th level).

Bonus Feats: The epic shadow adept gains a bonus feat (selected from the list below) for every four levels higher than 10th.

He must meet any prerequisites for a feat in order to select it.

Epic Shadow Adept Bonus Feat List: Automatic Quickened Spell, Automatic Silent Spell, Automatic Still Spell, Enhance Spell, Epic Spell Focus, Epic Spell Penetration, Epic Spellcasting, Ignore Material Components, Improved Combat Casting, Improved Heighten Spell, Improved Low-

Light Vision, Improved Metamagic, Improved Spell Capacity, Intensify Spell, Multispell, Permanent Emanation, Spectral Strike, Spell Knowledge, Spell Opportunity, Spontaneous Spell, Tenacious Magic.

TABLE 5-10: THE EPIC SHADOW ADEPT

Class Level	Special
11th	—
12th	Shadow defense +4
13th	—
14th	Bonus feat
15th	Shadow defense +5
16th	—
17th	—
18th	Bonus feat, shadow defense +6
19th	—
20th	—

PARAGON CLASSES

RACES OF THE DRAGON (3.5)

KOBOLD

Kobolds are reptilian humanoids that embrace hard work as the inescapable standard of their daily lives.

They exist to facilitate the mining operations that inevitably sustain their lair without devoting a thought to personal ambition or desire.

Workers that challenge this time-honored fate rebel by excelling in all aspects of kobold life rather than simply specializing in one profession.

These are the kobold paragons of a tribe, willfully motivated athletes of productivity.

Adventures: Kobold paragons are not unlike dragons in their pursuit of treasure.

Kobold paragons are a little more discerning, however, in that they value singular items of power more than hordes of gold.

They will even travel farther away from their lair than most other kobolds, seeking magical jewelry above all else.

As natural sorcerers, kobold paragons are more than equipped to handle monstrous encounters, shoring up their physical weaknesses with arcane might.

Characteristics: Kobold paragons are equal part creative intuition and draconic ferocity.

When kobold paragons spearhead a plan, they do so with remarkable forethought, whether designing a trap, laying out a mine, or looking for the weaknesses of a hated opponent.

When there is no time to prepare for a fight, kobold paragons unleash the draconic side of their personality, a primitive impulse that is forever clawing to the surface, eager to taste the blood of their enemies.

Alignment: Kobold paragons are constantly trying to rise above their tribal instincts of loyalty.

They are not trying to abandon their roots, but to make decisions as individuals (a foreign concept in kobold culture).

While kobolds are normally lawful evil, kobold paragons are not bound by this cultural disposition.

Despite their best efforts, even good-aligned kobold paragons cannot stop themselves from devising painfully sadistic traps in their spare time.

Religion: Kobold paragons generally rationalize their actions in the name of Kurtulmak, who suffered greatly at the hands of Garl Glittergold, or embrace Io, who follows a more open-minded and less racially charged path.

With Kurtulmak, kobold paragons are polarized against every other race.

With Io, kobolds seek objectivity as an ideal, allowing them to socialize more with other races.

A kobold paragon can also express their piety through devoted service to their lair.

Background: A kobold paragon attains their position by excelling in every field of kobold expertise.

Where most lair-bound kobolds are directed into one profession, kobold paragons must become equally skilled at sorcery, trapfinding, and trapmaking.

This kind of behavior is usually discouraged, as tribal leaders prefer the kobolds of their lair to be obedient, specialized workers.

A kobold paragon must therefore work four times as hard to attain their distinction.

Races: Kobolds despise gnomes, distrust dwarves and fey, and generally hold every other race in contempt.

Kobold paragons are different in that they can suspend their racial antipathy to gather information about enemies, rather than automatically attacking their foes.

Feeling isolated in the world, kobolds are outwardly defensive towards other creatures.

These feelings can diminish as kobold paragons spend more time with other humanoids.

Other Classes: Kobold paragons relate to rogues and sorcerers more readily than any other classes, as they share the most in common with their trapmaking and spellcasting abilities.

Kobold paragons tend to be more alert and productive around clerics, being accustomed to such figures in positions of leadership.

Kobold paragons regard the melee classes with due respect because they usually lack the strength to become effective fighters.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Kobold paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines the effectiveness of a kobold paragon's spellcasting ability and is useful when attempting deceptions and collecting information.

Dexterity is always an asset to kobold paragons, increasing their accuracy when making ranged attacks and aiding them in melee combat (after taking the Weapon Finesse feat).

Constitution makes kobold paragons better able to withstand the physical dangers of adventuring.

Alignment: Any, although predominantly lawful and evil.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier): Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Dex), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), and Swim (Str).

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the kobold paragon class. Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The kobold paragon is proficient with all simple weapons, plus the heavy pick and light pick.

Kobold paragons are also proficient with light armor.

Kobold paragons treat the dire pick (see Complete Warrior, p.157) as a martial weapon that can be wielded two-handed as a simple weapon.

Manual Expertise (Ex): A kobold paragon may add his class level as a racial bonus on Craft (trapmaking), Profession (mining), and Search checks.

Tunnel Defense (Ex): At 1st level, a kobold paragon uses confined spaces to their advantage in melee combat.

A kobold paragon is treated as a Medium opponent when using or resisting any special attack (for example, bull rush, disarm, grapple) but only when fighting in a location no wider than their combat space (5 ft. wide). In addition, a kobold paragon retains their Dexterity bonus to AC even if caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker in these confined conditions. If a kobold paragon has uncanny dodge from a different class, the character automatically gains the benefits of improved uncanny dodge, but only when fighting in confined conditions (as above). Improved Darkvision (Ex): At 2nd level, a kobold paragon's darkvision range increases by 30 feet. No Light Sensitivity: At 2nd level, a kobold paragon loses their race's light sensitivity.

Spells Per Day: At 2nd and 3rd-level, a kobold paragon gains new spells per day and spells known as if the character had also gained a level in sorcerer. The kobold paragon does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (familiar abilities, and so on). This essentially means that the character adds the level of kobold paragon to their level in sorcerer, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly. If a kobold paragon has no levels in sorcerer, this class feature has no effect. Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a kobold paragon's Charisma score increases by 2 points.

Table: The Kobold Paragon

Hit Die: d6

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells Per Day
1	+0	+0	+2	+2	Manual expertise, tunnel defense	-
2	+1	+0	+3	+3	Improved darkvision (+30 ft.), no light sensitivity	+1 sorcerer level
3	+2	+1	+3	+3	Ability boost (Cha +2)	+1 sorcerer level

UNEARTHED ARCANA (3.5)

SUBRACES AND PARAGON CLASSES

As a general rule, a member of a subrace can take levels in the standard race's paragon class unless a specific paragon class exists for the subrace. For example, aquatic elves, gray elves, wild elves, and wood elves may all advance as elf paragons, but drow elves may not, because drow have a separate paragon class (assuming the DM uses the drow paragon class given here). If the DM wanted to further differentiate the elven subraces by creating a paragon class for one or more of the subraces, those subraces could not then take levels of elf paragon.

PARAGON CLASSES IN YOUR GAME

Like many of the variants in this book, racial paragons can be a powerful tool for shaping a campaign world or play experience. Including racial paragons in a campaign is as easy as allowing players to advance in the classes or designing NPCs with class levels from the appropriate paragon class. However, this variant can be more than just another long list of possible classes. By allowing different subsets of the racial paragon classes to be present in your game, you can shape which races are the most influential or numerous in the campaign.

For example, in a setting in which elves and dwarves have all but died out, the traditions of their racial paragon classes might have been lost. In the same campaign, however, humans, half-orcs, and halflings all thrive, and powerful NPCs of these races might frequently have a level or two in the appropriate paragon class.

DROW

Separated from the rest of the elven people by a legacy of deceit, betrayal, and evil, the drow are easily one of the most dangerous of the humanoid races.

When deciding whether to create new paragon classes for subraces in your game, consider how different the subrace is from the main race. For instance, the gray elf is very similar to the standard (high) elf, but both the wild elf and wood elf receive a penalty to Intelligence, suggesting that the elf paragon's Intelligence increase at 3rd level might not be appropriate for those races. The forest gnome is very similar to the standard (rock) gnome, but the svirfneblin is so different (including a +3 level adjustment) that it probably deserves its own paragon class.

Furthermore, the prevalence of racial paragons can reflect the importance of racial issues. In campaigns where tensions run high between the civilized races, each race is more likely to have a large number of racial paragons among its members. As the cause of expanding humanity's borders into the wilderness becomes more and more important to the race, more human paragons come to the fore—while halflings in the same campaign, content and secure with their lot in life, turn to other classes and pursuits less tied to the goals of their race.

You might choose to create your own racial paragon classes. When creating a racial paragon class for a race with a level adjustment of +1 or higher (such as drow or half-dragon), it's acceptable for the class to be a little better than a paragon class for a race with a level adjustment of +0. In general, the benefits of a race with a level adjustment tend to decrease in value as the character gains levels, and an above-average paragon class can help that race maintain its edge.

Most drow paragons embody all their race's evil nature and delight in calculated cruelty, but some manage to pull away from this dark path, instead embodying the potential that all elves share for beauty, grace, and martial skill. Drow society is full of intrigue and fierce competition.

Even the most able drow paragons can do little more to advance their race than to strive against the machinations of other powerful drow.

When they succeed in breaking away from drow culture and its cruel influence, however, good-aligned drow paragons can be the most able and successful members of their race.

Adventures: Drow paragons adventure for one of two reasons.

Those of an evil bent adventure to increase their own personal power, by acquiring wealth and powerful magic items or by improving their combat skills.

Those few drow paragons with less selfish motives adventure to remove themselves from the influence of their race's harsh and cruel society.

These latter drow paragons are the ones most likely to be seen in the company of other races.

Characteristics: Drow paragons are typically more reserved than other members of their race.

Drow paragons consider themselves the elite of drow society, although they are careful about sharing these viewpoints with the powerful priestesses that hold sway over most aspects of drow culture.

If anything, drow paragons are even more secretive and devious than average members of their race, and their success in such dangerous society emphasizes their ability to navigate treacherous social environments and manipulate the actions of others.

It is said that the day a drow stops scheming is the day of her death.

Alignment: The vast majority of drow, including most drow paragons, are unrelentingly evil.

However, the few good-aligned drow who survive their formative years are actually quite likely to gain levels in the drow paragon class.

This makes good-aligned drow paragons more frequent than good drow of other classes, but still nowhere near as common as evil-aligned drow paragons.

Religion: Much of drow culture is dominated by religion, and the powerful priestesses who rule drow society see drow paragons as tools—more skilled than other ambitious drow, perhaps, but no more inherently valuable.

This outlook chafes against the drow paragon's own belief that she is the elite of her race.

As a result, drow paragons are unlikely to follow religion of any kind when removed from the direct influence of the drow priestesses.

Background: Drow paragons learn their skills just as other drow do: by succeeding where weaker drow fail.

Drow paragons build their skills among the hidden dangers of the subterranean realms and in a society where the powerful freely prey upon the weak.

Regardless of alignment or other abilities, drow paragons are all forced at some point to make a decision about their race's cruel and ever-present religion.

Those drow paragons who choose to follow the tenets of the evil priestesses often rise to become deadly lieutenants, carrying out the will of the matriarchs.

The few who reject the priestesses' teachings must do so quietly and covertly, biding their time until they can escape the influence of other drow.

Races: Most drow paragons have little use for members of the other races, viewing them only as potential prey or slaves.

Good-aligned drow paragons, however, see the merits of interracial cooperation.

These paragons seek out adventurers of other races, often coming to relate more to the societies of their adventuring companions than to their own culture.

Other Classes: Drow paragons see members of other classes as tools.

They value a broad skill set in those with whom they associate, provided they can control the actions of these associates when the need arises.

Drow paragons are willing to work with anyone they can manipulate to their own ends.

That said, drow paragons often see fighters as ideal companions because they combine great martial proficiency with physical prowess, while at the same time they are typically incapable of matching the drow's stealth and subtlety—ensuring that the drow paragon can gain the upper hand whenever desired.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Drow paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Drow paragons favor fighting from ambush, making Dexterity important for its role in sneaking and striking with ranged weapons.

Wisdom helps in detecting a potential foe before the foe detects the drow in turn.

Strength is also important due to its obvious role in melee combat.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The drow paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).
Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the drow paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Drow paragons are proficient with all simple weapons, rapiers, longswords, and hand crossbows, and with light armor.

Spells per Day: At 1st and 3rd level, a female drow paragon gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in cleric.

A male drow paragon instead gains new spells per day as if he had gained a level of wizard.

The paragon does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (bonus metamagic feats, and so on).

This essentially means that the character adds the level of drow paragon to her level in cleric or wizard, then determines spells per day and caster level accordingly.

If the drow paragon is female and has no levels in cleric, or is male and has no levels in wizard, this class feature has no effect.

Improved Spell-Like Abilities: At 1st level, a drow paragon gains one additional daily use of each of her innate spell-like abilities.

Improved Darkvision (Ex): At 2nd level, a drow paragon's darkvision range increases by 30 feet.

Light Sensitivity (Ex): A 2nd-level drow paragon's light blindness is lessened to light sensitivity.

Instead of being blinded by bright light, she is merely dazzled in bright sunlight or within the radius of a daylight spell.

TABLE 1–8: THE DROW PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Improved spell-like abilities	+1 level of cleric or wizard
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Improved darkvision (+30 ft.), light sensitivity	—
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Ability boost (Dex +2)	+1 level of cleric or wizard

DWARF

Known for their skill in warfare, their ability to withstand physical and magical punishment, and their great love of stone and stonework, dwarves grow as strong as their mountain homes.

Dwarf paragons exemplify this strength, gaining a deeper intuitive understanding of stone and stonework, building upon their already proven toughness, and promoting the crafts and strengths of their people whenever possible.

Dwarf paragons are doughty warriors, and powerful paragons often take the lead in battles as well as diplomatic engagements.

Adventures: Dwarf paragons stand at the forefront of their people, ready to defend or promote the interests of their race through word and deed.

Although they are as disparate a group as the members of any character class, most dwarf paragons undertake adventure freely, as long as it does not threaten or endanger a dwarven community.

Characteristics: Dwarf paragons are tough, skilled warriors who are most at home when deep underground.

Because of their martial focus, dwarf fighters and paladins are likely to become paragons, although many clerics also find that their race's innate abilities and interests blend well with their divine training, and they frequently take levels in dwarf paragon as well.

Because of their race's ability with weaponsmithing and other crafts, dwarf paragons are likely to look down upon weapons and gear made by members of other races.

Alignment: Dwarf paragons can be of any alignment, but their interest in the success of their communities and their ingrained sense of dwarven honor ensures that many act in a lawful and good manner.

Neutral dwarf paragons are found more frequently in areas where relations with other good races have become strained, or where the different races focus more on the interests of their people than on morality.

Religion: Religion is an important part of many dwarven communities, and thus dwarf paragons often exemplify this aspect of dwarven life as they exemplify all others.

Many dwarf paragons are also clerics of dwarven deities, and the two philosophies support and reinforce each other.

Background: Although many dwarf paragons grow into their power in the hearts of strong and strident dwarven communities, some rise from areas where dwarves have been oppressed or even defeated.

Whatever their origins, dwarf paragons are tough, determined folk who seek out specialized training and master complex tasks to further the aims of their people.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a dwarf paragon's Dexterity score increases by 2 points.

Dwarf paragons are often descended from heroes of older generations, and these individuals may seek to honor their ancestors' memory through deeds of their own.

Races: Dwarf paragons are all dwarves, of course, and like other racial paragons, their actions and efforts are motivated primarily by the interests of their people. Despite their focus on their own race's innate abilities, they remain surprisingly open to adventuring with members of other races.

In most cases, it is practicality that drives a paragon more than anything else—once a dwarf paragon has decided on a course of action, he uses whatever and whomever is at hand to accomplish the task.

Dwarf paragons, like other members of their race, consider the building of trust and friendship a long, slow task that cannot be rushed.

Although it might take a hundred years or more to earn a dwarf paragon's complete trust, dwarf paragons are by no means a suspicious lot.

Other Classes: In general, the reactions of a dwarf paragon are governed more by how an individual or race interacts with the dwarven community than by class or personal training—but some general attitudes are common to most dwarf paragons.

Dwarf paragons generally get along well with dwarf fighters, paladins, and clerics, although they appreciate anyone who is willing to work in the best interests of the dwarven people.

Dwarf paragons see wizards and sorcerers as important allies in the defense and promotion of the dwarven people, but powerful spellcasters of any kind can pose a threat to an entire community, making dwarf paragons wary of their power.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Dwarf paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is important for dwarf paragons because they often serve as defenders of their people and emphasize their own martial training.

Constitution is important not only to a dwarf paragon's ability to stay on his feet in battle, but also because physical toughness is a hallmark of the dwarf race.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The dwarf paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Survival (Wis).
Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the dwarf paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Dwarf paragons are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with light, medium, and heavy armor, and with shields (but not with tower shields).

Craft Expertise (Ex): A dwarf paragon may add his class level as a racial bonus on all Craft checks related to stone or metal items.

Improved Stonecunning (Ex): At 1st level, a dwarf paragon's racial bonus on Search checks to notice unusual stonework increases to +4.

The range at which he receives an automatic Search check for coming near an example of unusual stonework increases to 20 feet.

Also, he can intuit where true north lies in relation to himself (as if he had 5 ranks in Survival) whenever underground.

Improved Darkvision (Ex): At 2nd level, a dwarf paragon's darkvision range increases by 30 feet.

Save Bonus (Ex): A 2nd-level dwarf paragon's racial bonus on saves against poison and against spells and spell-like effects increases by 1.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a dwarf paragon's Constitution score increases by 2 points.

TABLE 1-9: THE DWARF PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Craft expertise, improved stonecunning
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Improved darkvision (+30 ft.), save bonus
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Ability boost (Con +2)

ELF

Accomplished with both spell and blade, elves move through the world at a pace removed from that of shorter-lived races.

Long-standing champions of good, the elf race is storied beyond telling and peopled by heroes beyond counting.

As mighty as the elf race can be, it is not often that elves turn to warfare or combat, preferring instead the paths of poetry, dance, song, and lore.

With their long life spans and many talents, elves excel in numerous areas and classes, but a few exemplify to an even greater degree the complex and powerful nature of their race.

Adventures: Elf paragons retreat from the world less readily than most elves, seeing much of the nature of the elf race in the form and shape of the world.

They enjoy travel and interaction with other races, learning as much about themselves in the process as they do about those they meet.

Elf paragons are aware that voluntary isolation from other good-aligned races poses a great danger to the elven race—although such self-absorption lessens the pain and frustration involved in dealing with other races, it leaves an elven community vulnerable to stagnation and decline.

Characteristics: Elf paragons are curious, patient, and, when roused to action, deadly.

They are swift and stealthy and have amazingly acute senses, allowing them to react far faster than opponents might expect.

Their aptitude in both stealth and weapons makes them excellent at attacking from ambush, and their propensity to take rogue and ranger levels in addition to their paragon levels accentuates these strengths.

Alignment: Elf paragons can be of any alignment, but most are neutral good.

They see the world as a place of harmony, a place that can provide bounty to all those willing to live in peace—so long as society is not pushed to extremes of law or anarchy.

Religion: Although elves as a whole can be as religious as members of any other race, elf paragons rarely concentrate on religion.

Instead, they focus their attention and devotion on the mortal members of their race.

Background: Most elf paragons come into their abilities through a strong love of their people and the work of an influential mentor.

Although this mentor may be of any class, it is often the lorekeepers and wizards of the elf race who seek to foster the skills of fledgling elf paragons, knowing that one young elf turning to the path of the paragon can benefit the race for nearly a thousand years.

Races: Elf paragons are, for the most part, open and gracious when dealing with members of other races.

Even if she secretly looks down on shorter-lived and less gifted folk, an elf paragon knows that other races can offer her the one thing that most elves lack: a sense of urgency.

As an elf paragon grows in power, she becomes more and more apt to look upon members of other races as curiosities to be studied rather than as peers—but she remains gracious and trusting, striving to learn how the virtues of other races might benefit the elf race.

Other Classes: Like most racial paragons, elf paragons tend to think more in terms of relations with other races than they do about interactions with other classes.

Elf paragons relate best to characters who revere nature or seek to live in harmony with the world around them.

They find common philosophical ground with monks and common cause with many paladins, but they are most comfortable around wizards, rangers, and druids.

Although elves are as religious as any other race, elf paragons often mistrust clerics' reliance on divine guidance, and heavily armored warriors have an approach to combat that elf paragons sometimes have a hard time appreciating.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Elf paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Agility and physical grace are hallmarks of the elf race, and a high Dexterity score helps an elf paragon avoid blows in combat and make more accurate ranged attacks.

Dexterity can even (after the selection of the Weapon Finesse feat) aid in melee combat.

A high Intelligence score allows an elf paragon to access a broader selection of skills, and a high Wisdom is important for some of the class's most important class skills.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The elf paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually)

(Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str). Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the elf paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Elf paragons are proficient with all simple weapons, rapiers, longswords, shortbows, and longbows.

Elf paragons are proficient with light armor, but not with shields.

Spells per Day: At 2nd and 3rd level, an elf paragon gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in wizard. She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (bonus metamagic feats, and so on).

This essentially means that she adds the level of elf paragon to her level in wizard, then determines spells per day and caster level accordingly.

If an elf paragon has no levels in wizard, this class feature has no effect.

Elfsight (Ex): An elf paragon has exceptional visual acuity. Her racial bonus on Search and Spot checks increases to +4. In addition, an elf paragon's low-light vision increases in range, allowing her to see three times as far as a human in starlight, moonlight, torchlight, and similar conditions of poor illumination.

Resist Enchantments (Ex): An elf paragon's racial bonus on saves against enchantment spells or effects increases by 2.

Weapon Focus (Ex): At 2nd level, an elf paragon gains Weapon Focus as a bonus feat.

This feat must apply to either the rapier, longsword, shortsword, shortbow, longbow, composite shortbow, or composite longbow.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, an elf paragon's Intelligence score increases by 2 points.

TABLE 1-10: THE ELF PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Elfsight, resist enchantments	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Weapon Focus	+1 level of wizard
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Ability boost (Int +2)	+1 level of wizard

GNOME

Curious, intelligent, and likable, gnomes move easily through the societies and communities of other races. They enjoy a strong sense of loyalty to clan as well as the pull of new experiences offered by adventure.

While these sometimes opposing motivations get some adventuring gnomes into trouble with family and clan, gnome paragons successfully blend both aspects of their race's nature.

They serve as an example to others of how to promote and protect their community and clan while at the same time constantly searching the world for new and interesting opportunities.

Adventures: Gnome paragons adventure for the sake of discovery.

They are curious and social individuals who can balance the demands of clan life with the joys of travel.

Many gnome paragons blend their love of adventure with their duties to their clans by traveling and adventuring only during the summer months, returning in the autumn to their homes with news and skills learned during their travels.

Characteristics: Personable and curious, gnome paragons get along well in most communities, and they often provide a lively diversion wherever they go.

Socially adept enough to know when their questions are wearing thin on their companions, gnome paragons nonetheless share their race's propensity for long strings of seemingly unrelated questions.

This lighthearted behavior does not make them silly or weak, however; they are calm and likable in most situations, but determined and sometimes ruthless when protecting their friends and communities.

Alignment: Gnome paragons are almost always good-aligned, with an equal balance of neutrality and chaos represented among the class.

Religion: Seldom religious themselves, gnome paragons are curious about religion and sincerely interested in the traditions of others.

Those gnome paragons who do follow the teachings of one deity almost always worship a deity of knowledge or travel, the two disciplines that appeal most to the paragon's inquisitive nature.

Background: Gnome paragons have incredibly varied backgrounds, much more so than the paragons of any other race except humans.

They travel unusual and individual paths toward achieving their status as paragons, and most do so without realizing it. Burgeoning gnome paragons are so involved in the nature of their race and the love of new experience that they seldom realize they champion and demonstrate the greatest virtues of gnomekind.

Races: Gnome paragons, like many other gnomes, prefer the company of dwarves over that of other races—but they enjoy social interaction with nearly any race.

Gnome paragons are sincerely interested in experiencing what other races have to offer, making their company appealing to all but the most reclusive or staid individuals.

Gnome paragons are even willing to interact with monstrous creatures, and good-aligned individuals from normally evil races find themselves welcome in gnome communities due to the efforts of gnome paragons.

Other Classes: Gnome paragons enjoy adventuring with members of any class.

They benefit greatly from fighting beside or behind a larger, stronger melee combatant.

They are adept in social situations that many classes find taxing.

And they provide minor spellcasting support that benefits many combinations of allies.

Gnome paragons even get along well with the paragons of other races, finding the magnified characteristics of racial paragons both entertaining and instructive.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Gnome paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines the effectiveness of a gnome paragon's limited spellcasting ability, and it is important to the social skills in which the class excels.

Dexterity can help gnome paragons survive combat with larger, stronger foes, and help make them more effective as ranged combatants, while Constitution can make them more able to withstand the physical dangers of adventuring.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The gnome paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the gnome paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Gnome paragons are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor.

Spells per Day: At 2nd and 3rd level, a gnome paragon gains new spells per day and spells known as if he had also gained a level in bard.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (bard class features, and so on). This essentially means that he adds the level of gnome paragon to his level in bard, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

If a gnome paragon has no levels in bard, this class feature has no effect.

Illusion Aptitude (Ex): A gnome paragon may add his class level to his caster level to determine the effects of any illusion spells he casts, including those gained as innate abilities of the gnome race.

This bonus stacks with the extra spellcasting levels gained from the gnome paragon's spells per day entry (see above). For example, a 2nd-level wizard/3rd-level gnome paragon's caster level is 2nd for most wizard spells but 5th for wizard spells of the illusion school (and 4th for his innate spell-like abilities dancing lights, ghost sound, and prestidigitation).

A 3rd-level bard/2nd-level gnome paragon's caster level is 5th for most bard spells but 7th for bard spells of the illusion school.

This increased caster level affects only spells that the character can cast; it does not give him access to higher-level spells or more spells per day.

Keen Senses (Ex): A gnome paragon's racial bonus on Listen checks and Craft (alchemy) checks increases to +4.

Mirror Image (Sp): At 2nd level, a gnome paragon gains the ability to cast mirror image once per day as a spell-like ability with a caster level equal to his gnome paragon level.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a gnome paragon's Charisma score increases by 2 points.

TABLE 1-11: THE GNOME PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Illusion aptitude, keen senses	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Mirror image	+1 level of bard
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Ability boost (Cha +2)	+1 level of bard

HALF-DRAGON

Half-dragons are a diverse lot.

Their dragon parents differ in attitudes and abilities depending on their kind, and the magical nature of dragons means that their other parent can be nearly anything. This diversity might seem to preclude the idea of a half-dragon paragon, but the overwhelming strength of the dragon heritage makes such paragons possible.

Half-dragon paragons are defined in large part by the nature of their dragon parent, making a half-gold dragon much different from a half-red dragon—although both are gifted with extraordinary physical abilities and force of personality.

Adventures: Half-dragon paragons adventure for the obvious reasons of gaining wealth, power, or the other trappings of worldly success.

Some are motivated to adventure to gain stature in their dragon parents' eyes or (in the case of many chromatic half-dragons) to gain the power necessary to protect themselves from their powerful dragon parents.

Metallic half-dragons might be motivated to adventure to fulfill some noble quest or to undertake some journey of self-discovery, but chromatic half-dragons typically adventure for more selfish reasons.

Characteristics: Half-dragons have an innate self-confidence that borders on arrogance—or crosses that border.

Many individuals, of course, manage to rein in their arrogance around other races.

Half-dragons follow the nature of their dragon parents much more often than that of their other parent, being kind or cruel as their dragon parent would be.

Alignment: A half-dragon paragon generally follows the precepts and beliefs of her dragon parent, adopting the alignment and beliefs typical of that dragon parent's kind. There are those who rebel against their dragon parents and their parents' alignments, though.

Instances of this behavior are more common among chromatic half-dragon paragons—but the evil dragons are often keen to destroy rebellious offspring.

As a result, half-dragon paragons with unexpected alignments are rare among both metallic and chromatic varieties.

Religion: Half-dragon paragons rarely gravitate to religion; they're simply too self-involved to study the tenets of an organized religion.

Many metallic half-dragons have no trouble making common cause with good-aligned clerics, however, and those who multiclass as paladins find that their noble natures blend well with the religion behind the paladin's code.

Chromatic half-dragons, however, take a different tack, and many have benefited from the adulation of cults of lesser creatures dedicated to the worship of dragons.

Whether they believe in their own divinity or not, evil dragons and half-dragons have no trouble duping and using those they see as beneath themselves.

Background: Strife and tragedy haunts chromatic half-dragon paragons just as love and a powerful protective presence shelters most metallic half-dragon paragons.

A half-dragon paragon masters the skills of combat and adventuring out of necessity: Chromatic half-dragons must do so to gain some measure of protection or usefulness in the eyes of their powerful and cruel parents, and metallic half-dragons must do so to ensure that they do not become a vehicle through which others can take advantage of their noble parents.

Races: Just as it dominates many other aspects of their lives, the innate confidence of half-dragon paragons shapes their view of other races.

Half-dragons have a grudging respect for any who achieve greatness or prove themselves capable.

But they maintain, to one degree or another, that anything that one can accomplish could be more easily accomplished if one were a half-dragon.

Other Classes: Because half-dragon paragons are blessed with substantial physical prowess, they tend to favor martial classes for multiclass options, and they have a higher regard for those who stand toe-to-toe with their enemies than for those who strike from afar.

Although they admit that spellcasters can indeed grow mighty, they scoff at sorcerers, who owe their abilities to a mere trace of dragon ancestry.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Half-dragon paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is important to half-dragon paragons because of its role in combat.

Charisma is important because many half-dragon paragons also have minor sorcerous spellcasting ability, and Wisdom and Charisma are both important for many half-dragon paragon class skills.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d12.

CLASS SKILLS

The half-dragon paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

In addition, each half-dragon paragon gains class skills based on its parent dragon type:

Black: Hide (Dex), Move Silently (Dex), and Swim (Str).

Blue: Bluff (Cha), Hide (Dex), and Spellcraft (Int).

Brass: Bluff (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), and Survival (Wis).

Bronze: Disguise (Cha), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Copper: Bluff (Cha), Hide (Dex), and Jump (Str).

Gold: Disguise (Cha), Heal (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Green: Bluff (Cha), Hide (Dex), and Move Silently (Dex).

Red: Appraise (Int), Bluff (Cha), and Jump (Str).

Silver: Bluff (Cha), Jump (Str), and Perform (Cha).

White: Hide (Dex), Move Silently (Dex), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the half-dragon paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Half-dragon paragons gain no proficiency with any weapons or armor.

Sorcerous Blood (Ex): A character's half-dragon paragon levels stack with sorcerer levels for purposes of determining the caster level of arcane spells granted through sorcerer levels.

For example, a 2nd-level sorcerer/3rd-level half-dragon paragon's caster level is 5th for the spells she can cast as a sorcerer.

This increased caster level affects only spells that the character can cast; it does not give her access to higher-level spells or more spells per day.

Natural Armor Increase (Ex): At 2nd level, a half-dragon paragon's natural armor bonus improves by 1.

Breath Weapon (Su): At 3rd level, a half-dragon paragon can use her innate breath weapon three times per day (but only once every 1d4 rounds).

TABLE 1-12: THE HALF-DRAGON PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Sorcerous blood
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Natural armor increase
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Breath weapon 3/day

HALF-ELF

Although their mixed heritage rarely leaves half-elves embittered, many can find it difficult to call any community home.

Humans and elves move through the world at very different paces and have extremely divergent tastes and habits, and neither quite fits a half-elf's innate preferences and attitudes.

Half-elf paragons are those half-elves who reconcile these two sides of their nature and create an outlook that is wholly their own.

Adventures: Half-elf paragons turn to adventuring for many reasons.

Like members of any other class, many half-elf paragons adventure out of a simple desire for wealth, fame, or personal power.

Because they are less attached to their communities than any other racial paragons (except perhaps for half-orcs), half-elf paragons rarely adventure to defend a home or further the interests of their race as a whole—instead, they often turn to adventuring as a means of finding their own place in the world.

Characteristics: Half-elf paragons are a strange blend of curiosity and introspection.

Half-elf paragons share the adaptable and inventive nature of their human parents with the refined senses and penchant for long, careful thought of their elf parents.

Half-elf paragons are accomplished in both combat and stealth, and one often fills the role of scout or sentry in an adventuring party.

Although it might seem to some that half-elf paragons lack focus, it is in a half-elf paragon's nature to fit her skills to the job at hand—and it is precisely her blend of skills that makes her capable of overcoming a wide array of challenges.

Alignment: Half-elf paragons can be of any alignment, but most are chaotic and many are good.

Freedom appeals to half-elves—perhaps, because they seldom have firm roots in a community, they find free choice and an open mind appealing.

Although a half-elf's mixed ancestry is occasionally the result of an evil act, most half-elves exhibit the better aspects of their parent races' natures.

Religion: Half-elf paragons tend to have extreme views on religion.

Many shy away from it, seeking clerics and other servants of the gods only when need arises.

A few gravitate toward religion, devoting themselves to a specific deity, an entire pantheon, or a philosophy.

Such individuals find, in religion, the sense of belonging and purpose they don't get from their communities.

Half-elf paragons who are drawn to religion often follow a deity of travel or freedom, finding the road and its endless challenges a compelling change from their homes.

Background: The background of most half-elves, paragons included, tends to be one of extremes.

Either a half-elf finds unusual acceptance and peace throughout her life, or she finds herself faced with near-constant upheaval and turmoil.

Whatever their individual circumstances, adult half-elves rarely have strong ties to a place or community, and many choose a life of adventure and travel.

Races: Half-elf paragons are reserved in their views on other races.

They get along well with members of most races, but the two races to which they are closest—humans and elves—are also the two most likely to provoke strong feelings from a half-elf paragon.

Events in an individual half-elf paragon's life are likely to shape attitudes about one or the other of those races—usually for ill.

Other Classes: Half-elf paragons are among the most open-minded adventurers to be found.

They value the skills of other classes equally, although their elven heritage gives them a slight preference for wizards and rangers.

Because half-elf paragons often multiclass as rogues and rangers, they share some of the predilections of those classes, valuing less subtle companions when battle is joined but occasionally finding them a nuisance when stealth is called for.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Half-elf paragons have the following game statistics.

TABLE 1-13: THE HALF-ELF PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Bonus feat, divided ancestry, elven vision	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Persuasion	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Ability boost (+2)	—

Abilities: Equally adept at melee and ranged combat, half-elf paragons benefit from high Strength and high Dexterity scores.

Wisdom and Charisma, because of their importance to the half-elf paragon's most useful class skills, are also valuable to the class.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The half-elf paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the half-elf paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Half-elf paragons are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor.

Spells per Day: At 2nd level, a half-elf paragon gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class she belonged to before adding the level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (bonus metamagic or item creation feats, bard or assassin abilities, and so on).

This essentially means that she adds the level of half-elf paragon to the level in the spellcasting class, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before she became a half-elf paragon, she must decide to which class she adds the level of half-elf paragon.

If a half-elf paragon has no levels in a spellcasting class, this class feature has no effect.

Bonus Feat (Ex): At 1st level, a half-elf paragon gains a bonus feat.

The character must meet the feat's prerequisites normally.

Divided Ancestry (Ex): Unlike other racial paragons, half-elves can take levels in more than one racial paragon class.

After gaining at least one level as a half-elf paragon, a character can take either elf paragon levels or human paragon levels (but not both).

Elven Vision (Ex): At 1st level, a half-elf paragon's visual acuity improves to match that of an elf's.

A half-elf paragon's racial bonus on Search and Spot checks increases to +2.

Persuasion (Ex): A 2nd level half-elf paragon's racial bonus on Diplomacy and Gather Information checks increases to +3.

She gains a +2 racial bonus on all other Charisma-based skills.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a half-elf paragon increases one ability score of her choice by 2 points.

HOUSE RULE: SKILLED HALF-ELVES

In my campaign, I wanted to make half-elves more attractive as a character option. Thus, half-elf characters get +1 skill point per level (or +4 skill points at 1st level) just as humans do, thanks to their human heritage. The human bonus feat remains unique to that race, ensuring that the human race still has an appeal to players.

—Andrew Finch

HALFLING

Clever and capable, halfling paragons love travel, and they embody the curiosity and easygoing ways of the halfling people.

Despite their curiosity and good-natured outlook, halfling paragons are the most capable members of their race. They are survivors, cunning and resourceful enough to survive in a world filled with large, dangerous creatures. When halfling paragons travel through communities and countries populated by other races, they are quick to make friends and often end up at the center of traveling or adventuring groups.

Adventures: Filled with the wanderlust of the halfling race, halfling paragons see adventuring as a natural extension of their travels through the world.

In fact, it's unlikely that a halfling paragon thinks of herself as being on an adventure at any time, even in the middle of a trap-filled dungeon.

For a character with a lust for excitement and discovery, what could be a more natural place to visit than a dungeon or ancient ruin?

Occasionally halfling paragons embody the worst of their race's characteristics, using their stealth abilities and their natural cunning to steal from other races—races they consider dupes and fools.

Characteristics: Exasperated adventuring companions claim that halfling paragons invented curiosity.

With their small size and uncanny stealth, halfling paragons can go nearly anywhere undetected.

Remaining undetected, however, is rarely any fun.

Halfling paragons enjoy the benefits of their small size, and many secretly wonder how bigger races can ever do anything quietly.

Alignment: Most halfling paragons are chaotic good.

They love freedom, and their approach to life is in many ways carefree and unpredictable.

While most halflings tend toward neutrality over chaos, a halfling paragon embodies the race's curiosity and love of travel.

Religion: Halfling paragons favor a variety of deities.

Some flit from religion to religion carelessly; they find new ideas compelling and often investigate the tenets of one religion for a while before moving on to another.

In this way, halfling paragons amass a few scattered bits of philosophy culled from several different religions into their own happy amalgam.

Halfling paragons who remain dedicated to one deity or philosophy almost always multiclass as clerics devoted to a god of travel.

Background: A halfling paragon learns her skills while traveling with her clan.

Although she may be born to a nomadic people, even the clan's travel eventually seems too infrequent, the pace too slow.

The wanderlust of the halfling race flows through her, and eventually she sets off on her own, outpacing the slow-moving wagons of her people.

Many halfling paragons multiclass as rogues or rangers, and their skills develop while sneaking around in large cities or stalking game through deep wilderness.

Races: Halfling paragons travel, and they never seem to tire of it.

Because they spend so much time in the communities of other races, they strive to get along well with everyone.

They are adept, as most halflings are, at fitting into the communities of others, although they rarely stay long.

Halfling paragons enjoy a mixed lot of traveling companions—too many members of just one race makes for boring company.

Although open-minded in the extreme, halfling paragons can occasionally find dwarves too dour and serious for their tastes.

Halfling paragons particularly enjoy the company of gnomes.

Other Classes: Halfling paragons regard other classes with a mixture of relief and frustration.

They are happy to stand behind fighters and members of other physically powerful classes when monsters charge up to do battle, and they are grateful when a spellcaster's abilities help them sneak past an opponent or heal their wounds.

But few classes can match the halfling paragon's capability for stealth, and more often than not it is members of those other classes that get the halfling paragon into a fight in the first place.

Halfling paragons get along best with other stealthy characters, particularly rogues and rangers, and many multiclass between the two classes.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Halfling paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Dexterity is important to halfling paragons because it helps them avoid the attacks of larger foes and increases their accuracy with thrown weapons and slings, their favorite forms of attack.

Because halfling paragons value skill and subtlety, a high Intelligence can help them a great deal.

Charisma is important to many of the halfling paragon's class skills.

Alignment: Any, although most favor neutrality.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The halfling paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the halfling paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Halfling paragons are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor.

Athletic Prowess (Ex): At 1st level, a halfling paragon's racial bonus on Climb, Jump, and Move Silently checks improves to +3.

Save Bonus (Ex): A 1st-level halfling paragon's racial bonus on all saving throws increases by 1.

Thrown Weapon Mastery (Ex): At 2nd level, a halfling paragon gains a +2 bonus on damage rolls when using a thrown weapon or a sling.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a halfling paragon's Dexterity score increases by 2 points.

TABLE 1-15: THE HALFLING PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Athletic prowess, save bonus
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Thrown weapon mastery
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Ability boost (Dex +2)

HALF-ORC

Half-orc paragons differ from other racial paragons in that they rarely have large populations of other half-orcs promoting and supporting their views of their race. Rather, most half-orc paragons find the strength to champion their heritage by overcoming the challenges of a unique and sometimes isolating background.

Powerful warriors, half-orc paragons combine the innate ferocity of their orc heritage with the quick thinking and adaptability of humanity.

Adventures: Half-orc paragons adventure to see the world, look for a home, search for fame and power, or simply wander for wandering's sake.

With fewer connections to their race as a whole than other racial paragons, half-orc paragons are likely to remain active adventurers for long periods of time.

Successful half-orc paragon adventurers often attract others of their race.

These like-minded half-orcs seek acceptance in the half-orc paragon's community, seek to become adventuring companions, or simply want to be followers.

Characteristics: Half-orc paragons are as mixed in outlook as they are in ancestry.

Most half-orc paragons come to identify strongly with one or the other of their parent races, and see themselves as the bridge between that race and other half-orcs.

Many view themselves as gifted with strength and opportunities beyond those of either of their parent races.

Alignment: Half-orc paragons, like most orcs and half-orcs, tend toward a chaotic outlook.

Some half-orc paragons give in to bitterness caused by the difficulties they encounter in communities of other races, but most look beyond that, drawing strength of character from the inequities they face.

Religion: Half-orc paragons rarely have strong religious views.

Although they respect the obvious power of the deities and their clerics, few half-orc paragons feel the call of a higher power—perhaps because they sit so clearly between two numerous and powerful races.

Background: Most half-orc paragons become champions of their race because they endure unusual circumstances involving both humans and orcs.

Many who are born in areas of great conflict between the two races feel the constant pull of a mixed heritage.

Often, it is travel away from such areas that crystallizes the paragon's view of his own race, allowing him to see the value and virtue in his own abilities and outlook.

Races: Half-orc paragons face challenges wherever they turn, for many races look on them with suspicion or view their orcish parentage as a taint.

Most half-orc paragons form close friendships with only a few individuals.

Because it is usually difficult for a half-orc to find friendship and trust, even among those of their own kind, half-orc paragons are all the more loyal to those who do become their close friends.

Other Classes: Half-orc paragons understand the harsh life and ferocity of barbarians, particularly those paragons who hail from regions populated by barbarian tribes.

Half-orc paragons admire classes that are proficient in battle, considering the practiced skills of a fighter and the woods lore of the ranger equally valid choices for a warrior. Although half-orc paragons can admire the effects of powerful spells wielded by clerics, wizards, and other spellcasters, they often look on members of such classes with suspicion or even contempt, seeing magic as little more than a cover for physical weakness.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Half-orc paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is important to half-orc paragons because of its role in combat, and several half-orc paragon skills are based on Strength.

Dexterity and Constitution are valued because of their roles in combat, and a high Constitution also allows a half-orc paragon to rage for longer periods of time.

Alignment: Any, although predominantly chaotic.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The half-orc paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the half-orc paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Half-orc paragons are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with light armor and medium armor.

Divided Ancestry (Ex): Unlike other racial paragons, half-orcs can take levels in more than one racial paragon class.

After gaining at least one level as a half-orc paragon, a character can take either orc paragon levels or human paragon levels (but not both).

Monstrous Mien (Ex): Half-orc paragons can channel their innate ferocity, resulting in a +4 racial bonus on Intimidate checks.

Rage (Ex): At 2nd level, a half-orc paragon comes to understand and draw upon the natural ferocity that courses through his blood.

He gains the ability to fly into a screaming blood frenzy once per day (or one additional time per day, if he already has a rage ability).

The effect of this ability is identical with the effect of a barbarian's rage (see page 25 of the Player's Handbook).

If a half-orc paragon has improved rage abilities (such as the barbarian class features greater rage, indomitable will, tireless rage, or mighty rage), those improvements apply to the rage ability granted by the half-orc paragon class as well. Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a half-orc paragon's Strength score increases by 2 points.

TABLE 1-14: THE HALF-ORC PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Divided ancestry, monstrous mien
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Rage 1/day
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Ability boost (Str +2)

HUMAN

Human inventors, explorers, and others who push the boundaries of knowledge and experience may become human paragons.

They turn adversity into opportunity by finding new ways to apply their skills, discovering new techniques to solve problems, and challenging entropy by constantly seeking out ventures they have not yet mastered.

Humans, and the paragons who rise from among them, balance strength with agility and temper intellect with intuition.

Adventures: Adventure occupies much of a human paragon's time.

Whether impulsive or carefully studious, a human paragon searches almost constantly for the new and unexplored.

Few, however, think of themselves as pioneers or inventors.

They see themselves as naturally curious, deeming the intelligent and unusual way in which they use their skills to be the norm rather than an exception.

Curiosity and wanderlust are easily the two most common motivations for undertaking adventures, but human paragons may find themselves on adventures as a result of a quest or some other necessary duty.

Characteristics: Human paragons are inventiveness personified.

They are adaptable and capable of using their skills in a broad variety of situations.

Perhaps because they are capable in such a wide range of situations, human paragons tend to dislike repetition and crave variety.

They seldom pass up a chance to indulge in a new experience, and a new challenge is much more likely to excite them than a lingering goal.

If human paragons have a downfall, it is that they see themselves capable of overcoming any challenge or inventing a solution for any problem.

When asked who would be best for a task, a human paragon almost always chooses himself—not out of overconfidence or egotism, but because he has learned through success after success that when backed into a corner, he'll almost always find a way out.

Alignment: Human paragons have few tendencies in alignment.

Perhaps more are attracted to chaos over law, although those who become devoted to a religion or cause seem to gravitate toward lawful deities or philosophies.

Religion: Humans are as varied in their beliefs as they are in every other aspect of their lives, and human paragons are no exception.

Many human paragons dabble in religion, learning a bit of one doctrine, following another deity for a brief time, and so on.

Although these individuals seldom stay with one belief system for long, they become quite well versed in religion over time.

While it's more common to find human paragons with only these surface attachments to religion, some human paragons develop a passion for worship that fuses seamlessly with their views of humanity, resulting in zealotry.

In almost every case, these human paragons follow lawful deities and multiclass as clerics or paladins.

Background: Although there is no single common background for human paragons, many share some common characteristics.

They often arise from situations in which they have many opportunities to learn, either from parents, an accepting community, or even a monastery filled with learned monks and clerics.

Races: Human paragons are open and accepting, embodying the best aspects of humanity's flexibility and tolerance.

Human paragons usually delight in poking gentle fun at the foibles of other races, finding their extremes of behavior amusing.

They also find much to admire in other races, including the stoic fortitude of the dwarves, the beauty and grace of the elves, and the curiosity and inventiveness of the halflings. In truth, human paragons are closer in attitude to halflings than any other race—both suffer (or benefit) from more than a touch of wanderlust.

Other Classes: Human paragons are widely accepting of other classes.

They value the presence of fighters, rangers, and other skilled combatants, knowing that they are more likely to survive a battle when teamed with such characters.

They also understand the value of knowledge, and they regard spellcasters with a bit of awe.

Rogues and bards, closest in ability (if not in spirit) to human paragons, usually have skills that overlap the paragon's in several areas, allowing the paragon to diversify his learning rather than become overly specialized.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Human paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Skilled and quick to adapt, human paragons benefit from a high Intelligence.

But they are also often at the forefront of humanity's wars, making Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution important for their respective roles in combat.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The human paragon can choose any ten skills as class skills. (Knowledge skills must be selected individually).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

(Does not include the human's bonus skill point at each level).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the human paragon.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Human paragons are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor. In addition, a human paragon is proficient with any one martial weapon of his choice.

Spells per Day: At 2nd and 3rd level, a human paragon gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class he belonged to before adding the level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (bonus metamagic or item creation feats, bard or assassin abilities, and so on).

This essentially means that he adds the level of human paragon to the level in the spellcasting class, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before he became a human paragon, he must decide to which class he adds each level of human paragon.

If a human paragon has no levels in a spellcasting class, this class feature has no effect.

Adaptive Learning (Ex): At 1st level, a human paragon can designate any one of his human paragon class skills as an adaptive skill.

This skill is treated as a class skill in all respects for all classes that character has levels in, both current and future. For example, if a human paragon chooses Spot as an adaptive skill, he treats Spot as a class skill for all future class levels he gains, even if it is not normally a class skill for the class in question.

Bonus Feat (Ex): At 2nd level, a human paragon gains a bonus feat.

Due to the varied talents and adaptable nature of humans, this feat can be any feat for which the human paragon is qualified (he is not restricted to a special list of bonus feats). The character must meet the prerequisites for the bonus feat normally.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a human paragon increases one ability score of his choice by 2 points.

TABLE 1-16: THE HUMAN PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Adaptive learning	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Bonus feat	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Ability boost (+2)	+1 level of existing class

ORC

Aggressive, brutal, and often at odds with the other humanoid races, orcs view war and hatred as their right. They have a deep and nearly endless enmity for elves and dwarves, having battled both races for countless generations.

Like members of other paragon classes, orc paragons embody the best of their race, combining the strength and confidence of their people with intelligent observation and a willingness to temper risk with calculation.

Adventures: Orcs undertake adventures for many reasons, although most do so to gain wealth or power.

For orcs, “adventuring” often means raiding the cities and towns of other humanoid races, rather than exploring lost tombs or slaying powerful monsters.

Despite this tendency, orcs can occasionally be found accompanying small groups of adventurers on quests of great significance.

Some find their own culture stifling, and wish to rise above its cruel savagery, while others seek to learn the fighting techniques of other races to grow mighty themselves, hoping to become a champion of the orc race.

Characteristics: Mean and foul-tempered, orcs have many characteristics that other humanoid races find offensive or repulsive.

Most orcs are savage and cruel.

Orc paragons, however, temper this behavior with keener powers of observation and a slightly more tolerant view of other races and cultures.

Orc paragons are much more curious than other members of their race, and many come to see learning as the key to advancing the orc cause.

Alignment: Orc paragons are nearly always chaotic, but a rare few see a greater future for orcs as a race if they can become more orderly and organized.

These orc paragons, arguably the most forward-thinking members of their warlike race, favor neutral alignments.

Religion: Although orcs as a race tend to follow the teachings of brutal and savage deities or worship powerful evil creatures, orc paragons are seldom deeply religious. Those who rise to leadership positions in their tribes don't hesitate to use religious beliefs as a tool to shape the tribe members to their desired ends, but they rarely possess strong beliefs themselves.

The exceptions to this general statement can be extremely dangerous, however, and sometimes raise great hosts in the name of some powerful orc god.

Background: Orc paragons gain their skills in the crucible that is orc culture.

They prove their strength by defeating lesser members of their tribes and often earn leadership positions within their culture.

Nearly all orc paragons eventually seek knowledge and skills from cultures beyond their own, striving to bring more potent forms of combat and more sophisticated knowledge back to their tribes.

Races: Orc paragons, like other orcs, hate and detest elves and dwarves above all other races.

Orcs rarely view other races as anything more than potential prey for their raids and wars, but when necessary, orc paragons can suppress their aggressive nature and get along with other races.

Other Classes: Orc paragons respect those with strength and physical power, especially barbarians and fighters. Rangers are more often opponents of orc paragons than allies, but even so the two classes share a grudging respect for each other's skills and martial proficiency.

Orc paragons care little for arcane spellcasters, but quickly learn to value powerful wizards and sorcerers capable of taking down multiple foes with a single spell.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Orc paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is important to orc paragons because of its role in combat, and several orc paragon skills are based on Strength.

Dexterity and Constitution are also important to an orc paragon's capability for combat.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The orc paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the orc paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Orc paragons are proficient with all simple and martial weapons and with light and medium armor.

Improved Darkvision (Ex): At 1st level, an orc paragon's darkvision range increases by 30 feet.

No Light Sensitivity: An orc paragon loses his race's light sensitivity at 1st level.

Elf Slayer (Ex): A 2nd-level orc paragon learns to channel his hatred of the elven race.

He gains a +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls against elves.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, an orc paragon's Strength score increases by 2 points.

TABLE 1-17: THE ORC PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Improved darkvision (+30 ft.), no light sensitivity
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Elf slayer
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Ability boost (Str +2)

TIEFLING

Tieflings are humans with traces of fiendish ancestry.

Although tieflings are not as powerful or as potent as full-fledged half-fiends, their touch of fiendish blood does grant them significant bonuses to their physical and mental abilities as well as some minor resistances and spell-like abilities.

Although a few tieflings manage to overcome their ancestry and remain good and trustworthy individuals, most tieflings follow the dark urges tugging at them, becoming selfish, cruel, and evil as they mature.

Tiefling paragons, both good and evil, are those who most successfully come to terms with their family's history.

The good ones see themselves as rising above their ancestry, while the evil ones embrace its power.

Adventures: Tiefling paragons undertake adventures for the usual reasons of gaining wealth, prestige, or power.

Evil tieflings, in particular, adventure to fulfill selfish desires—to gain powerful magic or find lost knowledge that will give them an advantage in some conflict.

Good tiefling paragons typically adventure to prove their worth to a community, to stick with the few close companions they have managed to find, or simply to get away from the press of civilization.

Characteristics: Tiefling paragons are stealthy, deceptive, and often selfish.

Trusted by few, they in turn trust no one, knowing that, no matter their behavior, they'll likely be suspected of wrongdoing as soon as any problem arises in the community.

Because of such hard lessons in dealing with other races, tiefling paragons are suspicious of kindness and almost never trust that a member of another race will remain loyal or friendly once the tiefling's ancestry is known.

Many tiefling paragons, even those who aren't truly evil, have an appetite for cruelty that is difficult to suppress.

Alignment: Almost all tiefling paragons are evil.

Those that are not must constantly struggle against thoughts of violence and corruption, seldom knowing the peace that many other good-aligned creatures take for granted.

Religion: Most tiefling paragons steer clear of religion, knowing that many followers of good deities see it as their duty to expose or attack tieflings.

Evil tiefling paragons involved with evil cults (typically dedicated to powerful fiends of some kind) are an exception.

Background: Tiefling paragons learn their skills while slipping quietly through the societies of other races.

They frequently multiclass as rogues, and often have similar backgrounds.

A lucky few tiefling paragons have mentors and opportunities to learn in comfortable environments, but the vast majority must overcome the prejudices of those who fear the tiefling's ancestry, learning their skills among criminals and in back alleys.

Tiefling paragons do not see themselves as fellows or champions of their race.

Instead, if evil, they see themselves as champions of evil and representatives of their fiendish forefathers.

Good tiefling paragons seek to absolve themselves of the reputation imposed upon them by their ancestry.

Races: Tiefling paragons have widely differing attitudes about the humanoid races, depending on alignment and their experiences in the communities of different races.

Although they can get along in many societies, tiefling paragons prefer large human cities, where it's generally easier to conceal their ancestry.

Tiefling paragons rarely have time for dwarves, mostly because dwarves are likely to be suspicious and critical of the tiefling's presence.

Conversely, they empathize with the prejudice and difficulties that half-orcs face in many civilized communities and can form friendships based on this shared perspective.

Other Classes: Tiefling paragons are happy to work with members of other classes, provided that the tiefling can manipulate events to her own ends, make off with choice treasure at opportune moments, or gather information for later use.

Evil tieflings, naturally, avoid the company of paladins, but those tieflings who have dedicated themselves to good actually prefer the company of holy warriors, knowing that a paladin's word will go a long way toward assuring others that the tiefling can be trusted.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Tiefling paragons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Because they tend to favor light armor, agile combat styles, and stealth whenever possible, Dexterity is extremely important to tiefling paragons.

A high Intelligence grants the tiefling paragon access to more skills at each level, and a high Constitution helps compensate for the Hit Die lost because of the tiefling's level adjustment.

Although tieflings take a racial penalty to Charisma, a good score in this ability can help those tiefling paragons who wish to conceal their nature from others and gain acceptance whenever their true nature becomes known.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The tiefling paragon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Craft (Int), Disguise (Cha), Hide (Dex), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), and Spot (Wis).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the tiefling paragon class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Tiefling paragons are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor.

Improved Resistance (Ex): At 1st level, one of a tiefling paragon's natural resistances to energy (fire, cold, or electricity) improves from 5 to 10.

The character can choose which of her three resistances improves, but once she makes this choice it can never be altered.

Darkness (Sp): At 2nd level, a tiefling paragon can use her darkness spell-like ability three times per day.

Skill Bonus (Ex): A 2nd-level tiefling paragon's racial bonus on Bluff and Hide checks improves to +4.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 3rd level, a tiefling paragon's Dexterity score increases by 2 points.

TABLE 1-18: THE TIEFLING PARAGON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Improved resistance
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	Darkness , skill bonus
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Ability boost (Dex +2)

PRESTIGE CLASSES

BOOK OF EXALTED DEEDS (3.5)

ANOINTED KNIGHT

The anointed knight is a holy soldier who has taken great pains to learn the intricacies of alchemy in order to become a more capable combatant.

Armed with an ancestral weapon, she searches for obscure lore, consults with alchemists and sages, and communes with the powers of good.

Her unquenchable thirst for knowledge is matched only by her extraordinary combat prowess.

An anointed knight crafts and draws power from magically created oils.

By anointing herself with these oils, she unlocks new supernatural powers within her being.

She also coats her ancestral weapon with special oils that bestow additional qualities upon the weapon.

Anointed knights are typically paladins or fighters with one or more wizard or cleric levels.

Occasionally, an anointed knight emerges from the ranks of single-class wizards, sorcerers, clerics, or bards.

Regardless of their backgrounds, anointed knights often form bonds of friendship with knowledgeable arcane spellcasters who might benefit from their combat puissance.

Anointed knights also ally themselves with angels, eladrins, and other forces of good.

They believe in crusades against evil and enjoy taking the fight to evildoers wherever they may reside.

They oppose the warriors of darkness (as described in the Book of Vile Darkness), and the one trait they share with their evil counterparts is a lack of subtlety.

An anointed knight would much rather go head-to-head with her enemies than work behind the scenes or try to organize any form of passive resistance.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an anointed knight, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Craft (alchemy) 5 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 3 ranks, Spellcraft 3 ranks.

Feats: Ancestral Relic.

CLASS SKILLS

The anointed knight's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (alchemy) (Int), Heal (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Ride (Dex), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the anointed knight prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: An anointed knight is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all types of armor, and shields.

Anoint Self (Su): An anointed knight concocts a magic oil with which to anoint herself, at a cost of 100 gp (for alchemical components).

She can make only one dose of the oil each time this class feature is gained (at 1st, 4th, 7th, and 10th level).

Creating the oil takes 1 hour.

Applying the oil is a ceremony that takes 8 hours.

Once the oil is applied, the anointed knight permanently gains a new supernatural ability chosen from the accompanying list.

Level + Cha Modifier	Ability/Effect
2 or lower	Holy Sight: The knight gains the Alertness feat.
3–4	Celestial Strategy: The knight gains the Combat Reflexes feat.
5–6	Unbroken Flesh: The knight gains damage reduction 3/–.
7–8	Divine Clarity: The knight's Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma score improves by 1.
9	Call to Battle: Three times per day, the knight gains an extra +3 bonus on her attack roll when charging.
10	Deep Strike: Three times per day, on a successful attack, the knight deals an extra 2d6 points of damage.
11+	Inspired Strike: Three times per day, the knight can take a single extra attack at her highest attack bonus as a free action.

Her level plus Charisma modifier determines the choices available to her (the highest-numbered choice possible, or any lower one).

An anointed knight cannot choose an ability more than once, nor can she replace one ability with another once the choice is made.

Anoint Ancestral Weapon (Su): An anointed knight concocts a magic oil with which to coat her ancestral weapon, at a cost of 100 gp (for alchemical components). She can make only one dose of the oil each time this class feature is gained (at 2nd, 5th, and 8th level).

If the oil is applied to a weapon other than the anointed knight's ancestral weapon, nothing happens and the oil is wasted.

Creating the oil takes 1 hour.

Applying the oil is a ceremony that takes 8 hours.

Once the oil is applied, the ancestral weapon permanently gains a new supernatural ability chosen from the accompanying list.

Level + Cha Modifier	Ability/Effect
3 or lower	Good Weapon: The ancestral weapon deals 1d6 points of damage per round to any evil creature that holds or wields it. The weapon also becomes a good-aligned weapon.
4–6	Sunder Resistance: The ancestral weapon gains 10 points of hardness.
7–8	Unicorn's Blood: Any evil creature wounded by the weapon must make a DC 17 Fortitude save or suffer the weakening effects of unicorn blood. ¹
9	Impervious: The ancestral weapon gains an extra 50 hp.
10+	Sentience: The ancestral weapon becomes an intelligent item, with the same alignment as the knight. ²

¹ See Ravages and Afflictions in Chapter 3: Exalted Equipment.

² The weapon gains the following mental ability scores (assigned as the knight sees fit): 14, 14, 10. The weapon also gains the power of speech, 120-ft. vision and hearing, and two lesser powers (rolled randomly). See Intelligent Items in the Dungeon Master's Guide.

The knight's level plus Charisma modifier determines the choices available to her (the highest-numbered choice possible, or any lower one).

An anointed knight cannot choose an ability more than once, nor can she replace one ability with another once the choice is made.

Bonus Feat: At 3rd level, and again at 6th and 9th level, the anointed knight gains a bonus feat.

This feat must be drawn from the following feats, and the knight must meet all the prerequisites for it: Blind-Fight, Cleave, Combat Expertise, Combat Reflexes, Diehard, Dodge, Endurance, Exalted Smite*, Great Cleave, Holy Subdual*, Improved Bull Rush, Improved Disarm, Improved Feint, Improved Overrun, Improved Sunder, Improved Trip, Mobility, Power Attack, Sanctify Martial Strike*, Sanctify Weapon*, Spring Attack, Subduing Strike*, Whirlwind Attack.

* New feat described in Chapter 4 of this book.

TABLE 5–1: THE ANOINTED KNIGHT

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Anoint self
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Anoint ancestral weapon
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Bonus feat
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Anoint self
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	Anoint ancestral weapon
6th	+6	+5	+2	+5	Bonus feat
7th	+7	+5	+2	+5	Anoint self
8th	+8	+6	+2	+6	Anoint ancestral weapon
9th	+9	+6	+3	+6	Bonus feat
10th	+10	+7	+3	+7	Anoint self

APOSTLE OF PEACE

In a world where conflict usually means violence, where good and evil meet regularly on the field of battle, where might too often makes right and power is measured in gold pieces, the apostle of peace is a lone voice crying in the wilderness, calling for a change of heart.

Having completely forsworn violence in any form, the apostle of peace is an advocate for nonviolent resolution of conflict.

He is a powerful font of divine magic, but his spells are all aimed toward healing, calming hostility, and aiding his allies.

Members of all classes can qualify to become apostles of peace, though barbarians, fighters, and rogues have difficulty meeting the skill prerequisites and are usually too oriented toward martial exploits to be interested.

Clerics, bards, and druids often develop pacifistic philosophies and gravitate toward this class, but any character can experience a conversion of sorts and become an apostle of peace.

Apostles of peace are usually solitary wanderers or even hermits.

Many nonplayer character (NPC) apostles are far removed from the violent struggles of the adventuring life, but may serve as resources of knowledge, spells, or spiritual guidance for adventuring PCs.

Apostle of peace PCs are unusual but not impossible; see Waging Peace in Chapter 2 for advice about using such characters in the game.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an apostle of peace, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Base Save Bonuses: Will +5.

Skills: Concentration 10 ranks, Diplomacy 6 ranks.

Feats: Sacred Vow, Vow of Nonviolence, Vow of Peace, Vow of Poverty.

CLASS SKILLS

The apostle of peace's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Handle Animal (Wis), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language (none), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the apostle of peace prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Apostles of peace gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

As part of their sacred vows, apostles of peace forswear the use of armor, though they may wear magic items that protect them (such as a ring of protection or bracers of armor).

An apostle of peace who wears any armor is unable to cast apostle of peace spells or use any of his supernatural class abilities while doing so and for 24 hours thereafter.

Spells: An apostle of peace has the ability to cast a number of divine spells.

To cast an apostle of peace spell, the apostle must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so an apostle with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Apostle of peace bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the apostle of peace's Wisdom modifier.

When the apostle of peace gets 0 spells per day of a given spell level (for instance, 2nd-level spells for a 2nd-level apostle), he gains only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Wisdom score for that spell level.

The apostle of peace's spell list appears below.

An apostle of peace prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does.

To determine the caster level of an apostle of peace, add the character's apostle levels to one-half of his caster levels in other spellcasting classes.

Spontaneous Casting: An apostle of peace can channel stored spell energy into healing spells that the apostle did not prepare ahead of time.

An apostle can "lose" any prepared apostle spell in order to cast any cure spell of the same spell level or lower (a cure spell is any spell with "cure" in its name).

Turn Undead (Su): An apostle of peace can turn undead as a good cleric of his apostle of peace level would.

If he is also a cleric (or paladin), he adds his apostle levels to his effective cleric levels to determine his turning capability.

Pacifying Touch (Su): At 2nd level, an apostle of peace gains the ability to pacify hostile or angry creatures by touch.

The effect is similar to the calm emotions spell.

The apostle can affect only a single target with each use of the ability, and must touch the target.

A touched creature receives no saving throw and spell resistance does not apply.

The pacifying touch does not suppress positive emotions, just anger, rage, and hostility.

The apostle of peace can make a level check as if casting dispel magic, using his character level as his caster level, to dispel certain mind-affecting spells affecting the target. The pacifying touch can only dispel spells that incite violent emotions in the target, such as fear or rage.

Censure Fiends (Su): A 4th-level apostle of peace can censure fiends, much as good clerics turn undead.

Channeling holy power from the celestial planes, he can make demons, devils, and other outsiders with the evil subtype recoil.

Make a Charisma check for the apostle and consult Table 8–9 in the Player's Handbook, using the apostle's character level to determine the most powerful fiend he can censure. Roll 2d6 + the apostle of peace's level + his Charisma modifier for censuring damage.

Using both the apostle's character level and his class level in this manner means that he is more likely to affect a single powerful fiend, but unlikely to censure more than one of them.

A censured fiend is stunned by the apostle's holy power for 1d4+1 rounds.

If an apostle of peace attacks a censured fiend, the stunning ends immediately and the fiend can act normally on its next turn.

If the apostle of peace's character level is at least twice the fiend's Hit Dice, he banishes the affected fiend back to its home plane.

An apostle of peace can make a number of censuring attempts per day equal to 3 + his Charisma modifier.

These attempts are separate from any attempts to turn undead.

APOSTLE OF PEACE SPELL LIST

Apostles of peace choose their spells from the following list:

0 Level: create water, cure minor wounds, detect magic, detect poison, guidance, light, mending, purify food and drink, read magic, resistance, virtue.

1st Level: bless, bless water, command, comprehend languages, cure light wounds, detect evil, detect undead, endure elements, entropic shield, *eyes of the avoral, invisibility to undead, obscuring mist, protection from evil, *ray of hope, remove fear, sanctuary, shield of faith, *vision of heaven.

2nd Level: aid, augury, bear's endurance, calm emotions, consecrate, cure moderate wounds, delay poison, eagle's splendor, *ease pain, enthrall, *glorious apparel, lesser restoration, make whole, owl's wisdom, remove paralysis, resist energy, shield other, silence, status, *yoke of mercy, zone of truth.

3rd Level: *blessed sight, create food and water, cure serious wounds, dispel magic, helping hand, invisibility purge, magic circle against evil, magic vestment, meld into stone, prayer, protection from energy, *refreshment, remove blindness/deafness, remove curse, remove disease, *remove nausea, water breathing, water walk, wind wall.

4th Level: air walk, *blood of the martyr, control water, cure critical wounds, death ward, discern lies, dismissal, divination, freedom of movement, good hope, *greater status, imbue with spell ability, *lesser aspect of the deity, lesser planar ally, neutralize poison, remove fatigue*, repel vermin, restoration, sending, spell immunity, sustain*, tongues.

5th Level: atonement, break enchantment, commune, mass cure light wounds, dispel evil, energetic healing*, greater command, hallow, mark of justice, plane shift, raise dead, sacred guardian*, scrying, spell resistance, symbol of sleep, true seeing, wall of stone.

6th Level: antilife shell, aspect of the deity*, banishment, mass bear's endurance, celestial blood*, mass cure moderate wounds, mass eagle's splendor, forbiddance, geas/quest, greater dispel magic, heal, heroes' feast, mass owl's wisdom, planar ally, symbol of persuasion, wind walk, word of recall.

7th Level: bastion of good*, control weather, ethereal jaunt, greater restoration, greater scrying, mass cure serious wounds, refuge, regenerate, repulsion, resurrection, shield of the archons*.

8th Level: antimagic field, discern location, greater planar ally, holy aura, mass cure critical wounds.

9th Level: astral projection, end to strife*, etherealness, gate, greater aspect of the deity*, mass heal, miracle, true resurrection.

* New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-2: THE APOSTLE OF PEACE

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Turn undead	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	Pacifying touch	5	3	0	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+3	+3	+3	Censure fiends	5	3	1	0	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+4	+4	+4		6	3	2	1	0	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+4	+4	+4	6	3	3	2	1	0	—	—	—
6th	+3	+5	+5	+5	6	3	3	3	2	1	0	—	—
7th	+3	+5	+5	+5	6	4	3	3	3	2	1	0	—
8th	+4	+6	+6	+6	6	4	4	3	3	3	2	1	0
9th	+4	+6	+6	+6	6	5	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	0
10th	+5	+7	+7	+7	6	5	5	4	4	4	4	3	2	1

BELOVED OF VALARIAN

The beloved of Valarian (also called Valarian's beloved) are women who have foresworn the love of mortals to dedicate themselves entirely to the unicorn deity Valarian, thus fostering a close bond with unicorns.

They normally come from the ranks of exalted rangers or druids, although there have been paladins and even fighters who have chosen this path.

Most of Valarian's beloved are humans, elves, and half-elves, but halflings, gnomes, and dwarves are not prohibited.

A beloved of Valarian is a solitary being, shunning civilization.

She retreats to the woods where she maintains few contacts with the outside world.

Because she champions the cause of good, she calls upon their animal allies to help repel invaders should evil invade her forest refuge.

Her relationship with the unicorn is nothing less than a partnership forged in light.

She has a closer emotional bond to her mount than she does with her own family members.

Just as she relies on the unicorn, the unicorn relies on her to help keep its mysteries safe.

All of Valarian's beloved must be chaste and must dedicate herself wholly both to good and her unicorn companion. Should a beloved of Valarian ever willingly couple with a mortal, the unicorn leaves her company without hard feelings or regret.

Because of the solitary existence these women must endure, it is rare (but not unheard of) for Valarian's beloved to join ranks with others.

They prefer the companionship of paladins but associate with any good characters during times of trouble.

Under no circumstances will one of Valarian's beloved agree to join with an evil character, and she barely tolerates neutral characters.

The beloved of Valarian and their unicorn companions may leave their forest sanctuaries should they be needed to fight evil.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a beloved of Valarian, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Gender: Female.

Alignment: Any good.

Base Attack Bonus: +7.

Skills: Knowledge (nature) 5 ranks, Ride 10 ranks.

Feats: Mounted Combat, Sacred Vow, Vow of Chastity.

Special: Before she can become a beloved of Valarian, the character must meditate at a druid's grove and fast until she saves the life of an animal in danger.

Should she fail to survive or aid an animal, she does not meet her unicorn companion and cannot advance in this class.

CLASS SKILLS

The beloved of Valarian's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), and Survival (Wis). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the beloved of Valarian prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A beloved of Valarian is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, light armor, and small shields.

Spells: A beloved of Valarian has the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a beloved of Valarian spell, the beloved must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a beloved of Valarian with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Beloved of Valarian bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the beloved's Wisdom modifier.

When the beloved of Valarian gets 0 spells of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 1st level beloved of Valarian), she gets only the bonus spells she would be entitled to based on her Wisdom score for that spell level. The beloved of Valarian's spell list appears below.

A beloved of Valarian prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though a beloved cannot spontaneously cast cure spells).

Call Unicorn (Su): A beloved of Valarian can call a unicorn to her side.

See the Monster Manual for the unicorn's statistics.

The unicorn appears instantly and serves the character for life, provided she remains chaste and of good alignment.

The unicorn may be dismissed at any time, although a character cannot call another until she gains a level in the beloved of Valarian class.

If the unicorn should die before its rider, the character may call another unicorn companion when she gains a new level in this class.

A beloved of Valarian can have no more than one unicorn companion at any given time.

A beloved of Valarian can assign her unicorn companion to undertake different types of tasks.

Particularly useful as a mount, the unicorn typically will not undergo a quest or otherwise take on complex burdens without the supervision of the beloved of Valarian.

Telepathic Bond (Su): A beloved of Valarian can communicate telepathically with her unicorn companion.

This bond remains in effect unless the character is separated from her unicorn by a number of miles equal to 100 + the beloved's character level.

At 6th level, a Valarian's beloved can communicate telepathically with any animal native to her unicorn companion's home forest.

Timelessness (Su): Unicorns age very slowly, living for thousands of years.

As long as she remains faithful to Valarian and has a unicorn companion serving her, a beloved of Valarian ages just as slowly, the aging process essentially halted.

Ethereal Jaunt (Sp): At 2nd level, once per day, a beloved of Valarian and her equipment may become ethereal, as the ethereal jaunt spell cast by a sorcerer of the beloved's character level.

If the beloved of Valarian is astride her unicorn companion, it is also affected by this ability.

However, if the beloved of Valarian dismounts or the two otherwise become separated before the ethereal jaunt expires, the unicorn companion instantly returns to the Material Plane.

Forest Dweller (Ex): Time spent in the forest alters a beloved of Valarian's physiology at 3rd level.

She gains a +2 racial bonus on Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Survival checks.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a beloved of Valarian can react to danger before her senses would normally allow her to do so.

She retains her Dexterity bonus to AC even when caught flat-footed.

If the beloved of Valarian already has uncanny dodge from a different class (rogue, for example), she gains improved uncanny dodge instead; she cannot be flanked except by a rogue who has at least four more rogue levels than she has in this prestige class.

As long as the beloved of Valarian is riding her unicorn companion, it gains the benefit of this ability as well.

Call Celestial Charger (Su): At 6th level, a beloved of Valarian can call a celestial unicorn—also known as a celestial charger—to her side.

See the Unicorn entry in the Monster Manual for the celestial charger's statistics.

If the beloved of Valarian already has a unicorn companion, Valarian transforms it into a celestial charger instead of sending his beloved a new companion.

Nature's Understanding (Ex): At 7th level, a beloved of Valarian gains a +2 insight bonus on Handle Animal, Knowledge (nature), and Survival checks.

Holy Smite (Sp): Starting at 8th level, once per day, a beloved of Valarian can cast holy smite as a cleric of her class level. She may choose to deal nonlethal damage instead of lethal damage with the holy smite.

Wood Repulsion (Su): Weapons partially or wholly fashioned from wood have a harder time striking a beloved of Valarian, as though deflected by some invisible barrier. Attacks made with such weapons take a -2 penalty.

As long as the beloved of Valarian is riding her unicorn companion, it gains the benefit of this ability as well.

Mass Baleful Polymorph (Sp): At 10th level, once per day, a beloved of Valarian can cast a special version of the baleful polymorph spell that affects all evil creatures within 30 feet of her (as a 10th-level druid).

Affected creatures are transformed into harmless Diminutive mammals (rabbits, squirrels, or the like) or Fine vermin (nonthreatening spiders, centipedes, or the like). All affected creatures are transformed into the same type of creature.

See the baleful polymorph spell description in the Player's Handbook for details.

BELOVED OF VALARIAN SPELL LIST

Valarian's beloved choose their spells from the following list:

1st level: calm animals, charm animal, cure light wounds, delay poison, detect poison, detect snares and pits, entangle, *eyes of the avoral, longstrider, pass without trace, speak with animals, summon nature's ally I.

2nd level: barkskin, cure moderate wounds, eagle's splendor, *ease pain, hold animal, lesser restoration, owl's wisdom, *remove addiction, shield other, summon nature's ally II, zone of truth.

3rd level: cure serious wounds, darkvision, discern lies, *heart's ease, neutralize poison, remove disease, summon nature's ally III, water walk.

4th level: *blinding beauty, commune with nature, cure critical wounds, dispel evil, freedom of movement, nondetection, restoration, *spear of Valarian, summon nature's ally IV.

* New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-3: THE BELOVED OF VALARIAN

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	—Spells per Day—
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Call unicorn, telepathic bond, timelessness	0	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Ethereal jaunt	1	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Forest dweller	1	0	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Uncanny dodge	1	1	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1		1	1	0	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Call celestial charger	1	1	1	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Nature's understanding	2	1	1	0
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Holy smite	2	1	1	1
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Wood repulsion	2	2	1	1
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Mass baleful polymorph	2	2	2	1

CELESTIAL MYSTIC

The mysteries of the seventh mounting heaven, the celestial layer of Chronias, are unplumbed even by the archons who inhabit Celestia's lower layers.

Tales say that those who enter have their inherent goodness magnified until their essence joins with Celestia itself.

From their homes and studies on the Material Plane, celestial mystics strive to attain this ultimate unity with the perfect good.

By contemplating the mystery of the Illuminated Heaven, they believe that they become more pure, more good, and more perfect.

As they improve themselves, they become suited—after long effort and much meditation—to ascend to the seventh heaven and find what they describe as simultaneously a perfect extinction and a perfect immortality, a oneness with the highest good in all the planes.

The path of the celestial mystic is esoteric and mysterious, and appeals most commonly to wizards and other characters with an academic interest in the planes, particularly the upper planes, their denizens, and the fabric of reality itself.

Clerics, sorcerers, and monks are often drawn to the class as well.

Barbarians, druids, fighters, rangers, and rogues rarely have the interest or discipline to follow the demanding contemplative path of the celestial mystic.

Celestial mystics are often loners, poring over cryptic manuscripts and practicing their meditative techniques. However, they have a strong ethic of involvement in the world even as they seek to transform it, and strive to live out their increasing goodness by helping the weak and helpless.

Thus, they are often found as part of adventuring groups (made up of similarly high-minded individuals) or otherwise actively involved in fighting evil or promoting good.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a celestial mystic, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 4 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 4 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 6 ranks, Spellcraft 6 ranks.

Feats: Servant of the Heavens, Sacred Vow, Vow of Abstinence.

Spells: Able to cast 4th-level spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The celestial mystic's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the celestial mystic prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Celestial mystics gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Blessing of the Silver Heaven (Su): A 1st-level celestial mystic gains electricity resistance 10 and a +2 sacred bonus on saving throws against disease, poison, and petrification. In addition, a magic circle against evil effect always surrounds the mystic, identical with the spell cast by a cleric whose level equals the celestial mystic's character level.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At 2nd level, and each level thereafter, a celestial mystic gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class he belonged to before adding the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a celestial mystic, he must decide to which class he adds the new level for purposes of determining spells per day.

Celestial Spells: Once he reaches 2nd level, a celestial mystic can cast spells as if he were an archon.

Specifically, the mystic can cast any spell described in Chapter 6 that has a celestial or archon component, as long as he can otherwise cast the spell (it appears on his spell list, it is of a level of spells that he can cast, and he has a sufficient ability score to cast spells of that level).

He does not gain any other celestial qualities.

For instance, he is not immune to the blast of a trumpet archon.

Blessing of the Golden Heaven (Su): A celestial mystic of 3rd level or higher is immune to death spells and magical death effects.

Blessing of the Pearly Heaven (Su): A 5th-level celestial mystic retains his Dexterity bonus to AC regardless of being caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker. In addition, a celestial mystic may make a mystical knowledge check with a bonus equal to his class level + his Intelligence modifier to see whether he knows some relevant information about legendary people, places, or items.

 If he has 5 or more ranks in Knowledge (history), he gains a +2 bonus on this check.
 Otherwise this works as a bardic knowledge check.
 Blessing of the Crystal Heaven (Su): At 7th level, a celestial mystic can cure his own wounds.
 He can cure up to three times his class level in hit points each day, and he can spread this healing out among several uses.
 In addition, he gains immunity to disease and poison, and a +2 sacred bonus on saving throws against Enchantment spells and effects.
 Blessing of the Platinum Heaven (Su): At 8th level, a celestial mystic gains the ability to channel spell energy into a bolt of holy power.
 The bolt is a ranged touch attack with long range (400 ft. + 40 ft./class level) and deals 4d6 points of damage plus 1d6 points of damage per level of the spell channeled to create the effect.

For example, a celestial mystic who channels a 7th-level spell into holy power deals 11d6 points of damage to the target if the bolt hits.
 Blessing of the Glittering Heaven (Su): At 9th level, a celestial mystic gains spell resistance 20 and damage reduction 10/unholy.
 Blessing of the Illuminated Heaven (Su): A 10th-level celestial mystic is surrounded by an aura of positive energy to a radius of 10 feet.
 Within that emanation, life flourishes: colors are brighter, fires are hotter, noises are louder, and sensations are more intense.
 (This effect is purely sensory; game effects such as energy damage are not affected).
 All living creatures within the aura, including the celestial mystic, gain fast healing 2 as an extraordinary ability as long as they remain there.
 No undead creature with fewer than 10 HD can enter the aura, and those brought into it act as if they had been turned.
 Undead with 10 HD or more can enter the aura unharmed, but they do not gain fast healing.

TABLE 5-4: THE CELESTIAL MYSTIC

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Blessing of the Silver Heaven	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Celestial spells	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Blessing of the Golden Heaven	+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4		+1 level of existing class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Blessing of the Pearly Heaven	+1 level of existing class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5		+1 level of existing class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Blessing of the Crystal Heaven	+1 level of existing class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Blessing of the Platinum Heaven	+1 level of existing class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Blessing of the Glittering Heaven	+1 level of existing class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Blessing of the Illuminated Heaven	+1 level of existing class

CHAMPION OF GWYNHARWYF

Gwynharwyf is the celestial patron of barbarians, the model for how rage and righteousness can coexist in a single being.

Her champions are mortal barbarians who strive to emulate her sublime balance of fury and reserve, using their rage to smite implacably evil foes while retaining their focus on good, with its demands for mercy and respect for life. They are among the fiercest warriors for the cause of good on the Material Plane, armed with spells they can actually cast while raging, iron-willed resistance to compulsions, and eladrinlike resistance to attacks in addition to their fearsome rage.

Champions of Gwynharwyf must have at least one level of barbarian in order to meet the requirements to enter the class, and most champions are single-classed barbarians. Sometimes, a fighter/barbarian or ranger/barbarian becomes a champion of Gwynharwyf, but members of other classes do not usually pursue this course. Most champions of Gwynharwyf are wandering adventurers of some sort.

Some are guerilla fighters in evil kingdoms, working to overthrow tyrants and liberate oppressed peoples. Others are dungeon delvers, seeking to exterminate monstrous aberrations and vile creations from the face of the earth.

Still others stalk city streets, sniffing out diabolical cults and their evil masters.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a champion of Gwynharwyf, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Chaotic good.

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Skills: Intimidate 9 ranks.

Feats: Knight of Stars, Righteous Wrath.

CLASS SKILLS

The champion of Gwynharwyf's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Ride (Dex), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.
 Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the champion of Gwynharwyf prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Champions of Gwynharwyf gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells: A champion of Gwynharwyf has the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a champion of Gwynharwyf spell, the champion must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a champion of Gwynharwyf with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Champion of Gwynharwyf bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the champion's Wisdom modifier.

When the champion gets 0 spells of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 1st level champion of Gwynharwyf), she gets only the bonus spells she would be entitled to based on her Wisdom score for that spell level.

The champion of Gwynharwyf's spell list appears below. A champion of Gwynharwyf prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though a champion cannot spontaneously cast cure spells).

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, a champion of Gwynharwyf can use detect evil, as the spell.

She can use this ability even while raging.

Rage (Ex): A champion of Gwynharwyf adds her class levels to her barbarian levels to determine how often she can rage and when she gains the greater rage, tireless rage, and mighty rage barbarian class abilities.

She does not gain or improve any other barbarian class abilities.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a champion of Gwynharwyf may attempt to smite evil with one normal melee attack.

She adds her Charisma bonus to her attack roll and deals 1 extra point of damage per champion of Gwynharwyf level. If she accidentally smites a creature that is not evil, the smite has no effect but the ability is still used up for that day.

A 5th-level champion of Gwynharwyf can smite evil twice per day.

At 9th level, she can use this ability three times per day.

Divine Grace (Su): A 2nd-level champion of Gwynharwyf gains a bonus equal to her Charisma bonus on all saving throws.

Furious Casting (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a champion of Gwynharwyf can cast her champion spells even while raging.

If she has another spellcasting class, she cannot cast spells from that class while raging, only the spells that she gains from her champion levels.

Damage Reduction (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a champion of Gwynharwyf gains the ability to shrug off some amount of injury from each blow or attack.

Subtract 2 from the damage the champion takes each time she is dealt damage from a weapon or natural attack.

At 6th level, and every 2 levels thereafter, this damage reduction rises by 1 point.

Damage reduction can reduce damage to 0 but not below 0.

Resist Enchantment (Su): At 3rd level, a champion of Gwynharwyf gains a +2 morale bonus on all saving throws against Enchantment spells or effects.

Fearsome Fury (Su): At 4th level, a champion of Gwynharwyf can strike terror into the hearts of her foes while she rages.

When she enters a rage, she makes an Intimidate check. Any enemy that comes within 30 feet of her while she is raging must make a Will save against a DC equal to her Intimidate check result.

Those who fail become shaken for 1d4+1 rounds or the duration of the rage, whichever is longer.

Energy Resistance (Su): At 5th level, a champion of Gwynharwyf grows closer to her eladrin patrons, gaining acid, cold, and electricity resistance 5.

This resistance increases to 10 at 10th level.

Immune to Charm and Compulsion (Ex): A 7th-level champion of Gwynharwyf is completely immune to charm and compulsion spells.

CHAMPION OF GWYNHARWYF SPELL LIST

Champions of Gwynharwyf choose their spells from the following list:

1st Level: bleed, bleed weapon, cure light wounds, detect poison, detect undead, divine favor, *divine sacrifice, endure elements, lesser restoration, magic weapon, protection from evil, read magic, remove fear, resistance, virtue.

2nd Level: bull's strength, delay poison, eagle's splendor, owl's wisdom, remove paralysis, resist energy, shield other, *warcry.

3rd Level: *blessed sight, cure moderate wounds, daylight, discern lies, dispel magic, magic circle against evil, prayer, remove blindness/deafness, remove curse.

4th Level: *blood of the martyr, break enchantment, cure serious wounds, death ward, dispel evil, freedom of movement, *glory of the martyr, holy sword, neutralize poison, restoration, *sword of conscience.

* New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-5: THE CHAMPION OF GWYNHARWYF

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Detect evil , rage , smite evil 1/day	0	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Divine grace , furious casting	1	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Damage reduction 2/—, resist enchantment	1	0	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Fearsome fury	1	1	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Energy resistance 5, smite evil 2/day	1	1	0	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Damage reduction 3/—	1	1	1	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Immune to charm and compulsion	2	1	1	0
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Damage reduction 4/—	2	1	1	1
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Smite evil 3/day	2	2	1	1
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Damage reduction 5/—, energy resistance 10	2	2	2	1

DEFENDER OF SEALTIEL

Sealtiel is the celestial paragon who serves as patron of defenders—those who protect the weak from the depredations of the strong, fight off the forces of evil when they assault the good, and defend the ideals of goodness and truth from evil deception and lies.

His mortal champions are the defenders of Sealtiel, a knightly order sworn to uphold those ideals.

While the fists of Raziel take the fight against evil onto evil's home ground, the defenders of Sealtiel remain at home, guarding against evil's counterassault.

Most defenders of Sealtiel are paladins, fighters, and rangers.

Occasionally clerics or monks (often multiclass cleric/fighters or the like) adopt the class as well, and even more rarely, fighter/rogues take up Sealtiel's cause.

Arcane spellcasters rarely find the class appealing.

The wandering life of an adventurer does not easily suit most defenders of Sealtiel, who prefer to stay in civilized regions to protect people.

Sometimes, however, a defender of Sealtiel takes on the role of a bodyguard for an important or holy person, and travels with that person wherever necessity leads.

Player character defenders could easily fall into that category, or feature prominently in a campaign that revolved around the defense of a city or citadel.

NPC defenders are usually found in sedentary roles such as these.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a defender of Sealtiel, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Base Attack Bonus: +7.

Skills: Listen 5 ranks.

Feats: Diehard, Endurance, Servant of the Heavens.

CLASS SKILLS

The defender of Sealtiel's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Craft (Int), Listen (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the defender of Sealtiel prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Defenders of Sealtiel gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Defensive Stance (Ex): When he needs to, a defender of Sealtiel can become a stalwart bastion of defense.

In this defensive stance, a defender gains phenomenal strength and durability, but he cannot move from the spot he is defending.

He gains +2 to Strength, +4 to Constitution, a +2 resistance bonus on all saves, and a +4 dodge bonus to AC.

The increase in Constitution increases the defender of Sealtiel's hit points by 2 points per level, but these hit points go away at the end of the defensive stance when the Constitution score drops back 4 points.

These extra hit points are not lost first the way temporary hit points are.

While in a defensive stance, a defender cannot use skills or abilities that would require him to shift his position, such as Move Silently or Jump.

A defensive stance lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + the character's (newly improved) Constitution modifier.

A defender may end his defensive stance voluntarily prior to this limit.

At the end of the defensive stance, the defender is winded and takes a -2 penalty to Strength for the duration of that encounter.

A defender can only use his defensive stance a certain number of times per day as determined by his level.

Using the defensive stance takes no time itself, but a defender can only do so during his action.

(A defender can't, for example, use the stance when struck down by an arrow in order to get the extra hit points from the increased Constitution).

Shield of Faith (Sp): A defender of Sealtiel can use shield of faith, as the spell, three times per day.

His effective caster level is his defender level.

Magic Circle (Su): A defender of Sealtiel who is 2nd level or higher is constantly surrounded by an effect that duplicates the magic circle against evil spell as cast by a cleric of his defender level.

Shield Other (Sp): A 2nd-level defender of Sealtiel can use shield other, as the spell, once per day.

His effective caster level is his defender level.

Blood of the Martyr (Sp): A 4th-level defender of Sealtiel can use blood of the martyr^{*}, as the spell, once per day.

His effective caster level is his defender level.

Protective Aura (Sp): A 6th-level defender of Sealtiel can use protective aura, as the spell, once per day.

The effect overlaps (does not stack with) his constant magic circle against evil.

His effective caster level is his defender level.

At 10th level, a defender can use this ability three times per day.

Glory of the Martyr (Sp): An 8th-level defender of Sealtiel can use glory of the martyr^{*}, as the spell, once per day.

His effective caster level is his defender level.

* New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-6: THE DEFENDER OF SEALTIEL

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Defensive stance 1/day, shield of faith
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Magic circle , shield other
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Defensive stance 2/day
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Blood of the martyr
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	Defensive stance 3/day
6th	+6	+5	+2	+5	Protective aura 1/day
7th	+7	+5	+2	+5	Defensive stance 4/day
8th	+8	+6	+2	+6	Glory of the martyr
9th	+9	+6	+3	+6	Defensive stance 5/day
10th	+10	+7	+3	+7	Protective aura 3/day

EMISSARY OF BARACHIEL

Ruler of the first heaven of Celestia, Barachiel is patron of lawful good heralds and messengers.

He is charged with the defense of Celestia and the promulgation of law and goodness on the Material Plane, and his emissaries help him carry out this latter mission. The emissaries of Barachiel are peacemakers, diplomats, and evangelists, as well as staunch opponents of evil and corruption.

Emissaries of Barachiel are often clerics, paladins, or even rogues, but members of almost every other class sometimes take up Barachiel's mission as well.

Centers of population are the natural habitat of most emissaries of Barachiel, whose primary purpose involves encouraging people toward lawful good behavior. Some emissaries, however, gravitate toward real challenges: preaching Barachiel's cause among traditionally hostile or evil humanoids, from lizardfolk to orcs.

The fact that some of these emissaries even survive is testament to their power and conviction.

While few emissaries have the fortitude to work for long among evil humanoids, many others make shorter forays into hostile territory; most player character (PC) emissaries would fall into this category.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an emissary of Barachiel, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Skills: Diplomacy 8 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 4 ranks.

Feats: Servant of the Heavens, Words of Creation.

CLASS SKILLS

The emissary of Barachiel's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language, Spellcraft (Int), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the emissary of Barachiel prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Emissaries of Barachiel gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells: An emissary of Barachiel has the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast an emissary of Barachiel spell, the emissary must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so an emissary with a Charisma of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Emissary of Barachiel bonus spells are based on Charisma, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the emissary's Charisma modifier.

When the emissary gets 0 spells of a given level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 1st-level emissary of Barachiel), he gets only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Charisma score for that spell level. The emissary's spell list appears below.

An emissary of Barachiel casts spells just as a bard does, except that his spells are divine and not arcane.

TABLE 5-8: EMISSARY OF BARACHIEL SPELLS KNOWN

Level	—Spells Known—
	1	2	3	4
1st	2 ¹	—	—	—
2nd	3	—	—	—
3rd	3	2 ¹	—	—
4th	4	3	—	—
5th	4	3	2 ¹	—
6th	4	4	3	—
7th	4	4	3	2 ¹
8th	4	4	4	3
9th	4	4	4	3
10th	4	4	4	4

¹ Provided the emissary has sufficient Charisma to have a bonus spell of this level.

Calling (Su): An emissary of Barachiel's most fundamental ability is the power to issue a celestial call, stirring the conscience of those who hear it.

An emissary can use this ability once per day per class level, spending a full-round action to issue the call.

Humanoid creatures within 30 feet of the emissary are potentially affected.

The emissary makes a Diplomacy check, and the result is the DC for affected creatures' Will saving throws.

Creatures that fail their saves suffer effects that depend on their alignment, as follows:

Alignment	Effect
Lawful good	Inspired
Neutral good or chaotic good	Blessed
Lawful neutral	Enthralled
Neutral or chaotic neutral	Enthralled, disheartened
Any evil	Stunned, demoralized

Inspired: Affected creatures receive a +2 morale bonus on attack rolls, saving throws, skill and ability checks, and weapon damage rolls for 10 minutes.

Blessed: Affected creatures receive a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls and on saving throws against fear effects for 10 minutes.

Enthralled: Affected creatures act as if subject to an enthral spell for as long as you continue to speak and for 1d3 rounds thereafter.

For the duration of the effect and for 1 day afterward, affected creatures take a -1 penalty on Will saves related to redemption (see Chapter 2).

Disheartened: Affected creatures take a -1 penalty on attack rolls, saving throws, skill checks, and ability checks for 10 minutes.

Stunned: Affected creatures are stunned for 1 round.

Demoralized: Affected creatures take a -2 penalty on attack rolls, saving throws, skill checks, ability checks, and weapon damage rolls for 10 minutes (including the 1 round during which they are stunned).

Using any manifestation of the calling class ability requires the use of the Words of Creation and deals 3d4 points of nonlethal damage to the emissary.

Calling is an Enchantment (Compulsion) [Language-Dependent, Mind-Affecting] effect.

Conversion (Su): A 3rd-level emissary of Barachiel can use his calling ability to facilitate actual conversion of nongood humanoids.

Doing so counts as a use of the calling class ability (see above) for the day, and the initial effects of the calling are the same—except that the emissary takes 5d4 points of nonlethal damage instead of 3d4.

When the initial effects are over, however, all creatures that were subject to any effect of the calling (except lawful good creatures) must make another saving throw.

Creatures who fail begin acting as though their alignment were one step closer to good.

Lawful evil creatures act lawful neutral, neutral evil creatures act neutral, and chaotic evil creatures act chaotic neutral.

Lawful neutral and neutral good creatures act lawful good. True neutral and chaotic good creatures act neutral good, and chaotic neutral creatures act chaotic good.

Creatures affected by this temporary alignment shift can make new saving throws each day for a total of seven days. If the emissary is not present at the time a creature makes its save, it receives a +1 circumstance bonus on the saving throw, and this bonus increases by 1 for each additional saving throw for which the emissary is not present.

During these seven days, an affected creature is immune to any other conversion effect, from the same emissary or a different one.

During this time, the alignment shift can be reversed with a break enchantment spell, but the caster must succeed on a caster level check against a DC equal to the emissary's original Diplomacy check result.

Also during this time, an atonement spell can make the alignment shift permanent, preventing the creature from making any additional saving throws.

If a creature fails seven saving throws after the initial saving throw against the calling, the alignment change is permanent.

At this point, the creature can change alignment again, either through another conversion effect, or voluntarily (in a gradual manner, as alignment change normally works—the creature cannot simply decide to be evil again).

Sustenance (Su): At 5th level, an emissary of Barachiel can help to keep good creatures good.

As a use of his calling ability, he can produce one of the following effects:

- Duplicate the effects of an atonement spell.
- Reverse any magical alignment change (such as that produced by a helm of opposite alignment or a morality undone spell).
- Dispel a charm or compulsion effect cast by an evil creature upon a good target, by making a dispel check (1d20 + character level against a DC of 11 + evil caster's level).

These effects require the emissary of Barachiel to touch the target creature.

EMISSARY OF BARACHIEL SPELL LIST

Emissaries of Barachiel choose their spells from the following list: 1st Level: *charm person, comprehend languages, cure light wounds, hypnotism, magic mouth, message, protection from chaos/evil, ray of hope, sanctuary, sleep, ventriloquism.

2nd Level: *animal messenger, blindness/deafness, blur, calm emotions, cat's grace, cure moderate wounds, detect thoughts, elation, enthrall, eagle's splendor, fox's cunning, glitterdust, hold person, hypnotic pattern, silence, suggestion, tongues, whispering wind.

3rd Level: *charm monster, clairaudience/clairvoyance, cure serious wounds, daylight, deep slumber, dispel magic, good hope, haste, lesser geas, refreshment, remove curse, scrying, see invisibility.

4th Level: atonement, break enchantment, cure critical wounds, dream, heaven's trumpet, heroic valor, hold monster, sending.

* New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-7: THE EMISSARY OF BARACHIEL

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Calling	0	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3		1	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Conversion	2	0	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4		3	1	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Sustenance	3	2	0	—
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5		3	3	1	—
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5		3	3	2	0
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6		3	3	3	1
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6		3	3	3	2
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7		3	3	3	3

EXALTED ARCANIST

Tales say that sorcerers gain their innate magical ability from draconic blood, and many sorcerers (especially kobold sorcerers) loudly champion this legend.

Aasimar sorcerers, meanwhile, smile to themselves, knowing that dragons are not the only source of spontaneous arcane power.

Among both sorcerers and bards, some trace the source of their power back to celestial influence, either bloodline or simply favor.

These are the exalted arcanists, spontaneous spellcasters who gain access to spells that channel celestial energy.

Only characters who spontaneously cast arcane spells can become exalted arcanists, which means that in most campaigns the class is limited to sorcerers and bards.

Exalted arcanists are very often adventurers, using the power they consider a gift to the purpose for which it was intended: to help combat evil.

They gravitate to places where their ability to cover a battlefield with holy smite spells is useful, so they are rarely found in cities or placid villages.

They frequently join forces with other exalted adventurers, much less frequently with other exalted arcanists.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an exalted arcanist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.
 Base Save Bonuses: Will +5.
 Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 9 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 4 ranks.
 Feats: Consecrate Spell, Purify Spell.
 Spells: Able to spontaneously cast 3rd-level arcane spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The exalted arcanist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the exalted arcanist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Exalted arcanists gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Exalted Spell List: An exalted arcanist gains access to spells that do not normally appear on arcane spellcasters' spell lists.

The exalted arcanist's spell list additions appear below.

At 1st level, an exalted arcanist adds the spells of up to 3rd level to her spell list, and each additional exalted arcanist level grants her access to two more spell levels on the spell list.

She does not automatically know these spells, but can choose them as spells known.

Spell Knowledge (Ex): At 1st level, an exalted arcanist learns two new arcane spells of any level up to the maximum spell level she can cast.

These can be spells from her normal spell list or from the exalted spell list that appears below.

She does not gain any extra spell slots at this level.

Faster Consecrate (Ex): At 2nd level, an exalted arcanist can spontaneously cast spells with the Consecrate Spell feat without extending the spells' casting time.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each exalted arcanist level after the first, the character gains new spells per day and spells known as if she had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (bardic music abilities, improved familiar abilities, and so on), though she does retain the ability to exchange spells known with every even-numbered equivalent sorcerer or bard level.

If the character had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming an exalted arcanist, she must decide to which class she adds each exalted arcanist level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Bonus Exalted Feat: At 3rd level, and again at 5th level, an exalted arcanist gains a bonus feat.

This feat must be chosen from the exalted feats that appear in Chapter 4.

Faster Purify (Ex): At 4th level, an exalted arcanist can spontaneously cast spells with the Purify Spell feat without extending the spells' casting time.

Sanctified Spells: A 5th-level exalted arcanist can use sanctified spells as though they were among her spells known.

EXALTED ARCANIST SPELL LIST

Exalted arcanists choose their spells from the following list or from their normal spell list: 1st Level: *bless, vision of heaven 2nd Level: consecrate, zone of truth 3rd Level: helping hand, searing light 4th Level: *holy smite, lesser aspect of the deity, *lesser planar ally, sword of conscience 5th Level: *crown of flame, *hallow, heavenly lightning, mark of justice 6th Level: *aspect of the deity, *bolt of glory, planar ally 7th Level: *heavenly lightning storm, *holy word, righteous smite 8th Level: greater planar ally, holy aura 9th Level: *greater aspect of the deity * New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-9: THE EXALTED ARCANIST

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Exalted spell list (3rd), spell knowledge	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Exalted spell list (5th), faster consecrate	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Bonus exalted feat, exalted spell list (7th)	+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Exalted spell list (9th), faster purify	+1 level of existing class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Bonus exalted feat, sanctified spells	+1 level of existing class

FIST OF RAZIEL

The fists of Raziël represent a knightly order dedicated to the celestial patron of holy warfare against evil.

Its members include large numbers of paladins, as well as lawful good clerics, fighters, rangers, and occasionally warriors.

While Sealtiel champions those who defend good communities from evil assault, Raziël's crusaders lead the charge against evil wherever it is found.

Smiting evil is their mission and their specialty.

To become a fist of Raziël, a character must already possess some degree of divine spellcasting ability, so members of the class generally begin as paladins or clerics, less often as fighter/clerics or ranger/clerics.

Perhaps strangely, the order includes a number of ex-barbarians who first multiclassed as clerics and then adopted the fist of Raziël prestige class.

These ferocious warriors seem to be drawn to Raziël's crusading creed.

The fists of Raziël are an elite, ordered, and disciplined fighting force.

To make best use of their power, however, they typically serve as leaders or advisors to adventuring parties, military strike teams, or the armies of good kingdoms, working with members of other classes instead of with each other.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a Fist of Raziël, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Skills: Diplomacy 5 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 5 ranks.

Feats: Power Attack, Servant of the Heavens.

Spells: Able to cast divine favor.

CLASS SKILLS

The fist of Raziel's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Sense Motive (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the fist of Raziel prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A fist of Raziel is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all types of armor, and shields (except tower shields).

Magic Circle (Su): A 1st-level fist of Raziel is constantly surrounded by a magic circle against evil effect, as the spell cast by a cleric of the fist's character level.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a fist of Raziel may attempt to smite evil with one normal melee attack.

She adds her Charisma bonus to her attack roll and deals 1 extra point of damage per class level.

If she accidentally smites a creature that is not evil, the smite has no effect but it is still used up for that day.

She can use this ability more times per day as she advances in level, as shown on Table 5–10.

If the fist of Raziel has paladin levels as well, add the daily uses from her fist of Raziel levels to the daily uses from her paladin levels.

Her damage bonus equals her fist of Raziel class level plus her paladin class level.

This ability does not stack with the smite ability granted by the Destruction domain.

In addition to the basic function of smiting evil, a fist of Raziel gains special abilities that operate whenever she smites.

Good-Aligned: At 1st level, whenever a fist of Raziel smites evil, her weapon is considered good-aligned for purposes of overcoming damage reduction, as if she had the Exalted Smite feat.

Confirming: At 3rd level, whenever a fist of Raziel smites evil, all critical rolls are automatically successful (so every threat is a critical hit).

This works even if the weapon has a magical effect related to critical hits, unlike the similar effect of the bless weapon spell.

Holy: At 5th level, whenever a fist of Raziel smites evil, her weapon is considered holy, dealing an extra 2d6 points of damage against evil creatures.

This additional damage stacks with the extra damage she deals from the smite.

However, it does not stack with the benefit of the Sanctify Martial Strike feat or with the extra damage dealt by a weapon with the holy weapon property.

Fiendsmite: At 7th level, whenever a fist of Raziel smites evil, her weapon deals an extra 2d8 points of damage against evil outsiders and evil undead, instead of the +2d6 normally dealt by a holy weapon.

If she also has the Exalted Smite feat, this damage is still doubled.

Chain: At 9th level, whenever a fist of Raziel smites evil, bolts of holy power erupt from the target creature and strike up to 5 additional evil targets within 30 feet, chosen by the fist of Raziel.

Targets take 2d6 points of damage, or 2d8 if they are evil outsiders or evil undead.

A successful Reflex save (DC 15 + the fist of Raziel's Cha modifier) reduces the damage by half.

Spells per Day: Starting at 2nd level, and at each level thereafter, a fist of Raziel gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level. She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, improved special mount, and so on). If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a fist of Raziel, she must decide to which class she adds each fist of Raziel level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Sanctify Martial Strike: At 4th level, a fist of Raziel gains the Sanctify Martial Strike feat as a bonus feat.

Sunder Evil Item (Su): At 6th level, whenever a fist of Raziel attacks an object that is evil (such as an unholy sword or a darkskull) or an evil construct (such as a retriever), she deals double damage.

This does not stack with the benefits of the Great Sunder feat.

Holy Martial Strike (Su): Any weapon that a 10th-level fist of Raziel wields is treated as a holy weapon, dealing an extra 2d6 points of damage to evil creatures, even when she is not smiting evil.

This additional damage does not stack with the benefit of the Sanctify Martial Strike feat or with the extra damage dealt by a weapon with the holy weapon property.

TABLE 5–10: THE FIST OF RAZIEL

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Magic circle, smite evil 1/day (good-aligned)	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0		+1 level of existing class
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Smite evil 2/day (confirming)	+1 level of existing class
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Sanctify Martial Strike	+1 level of existing class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Smite evil 3/day (holy)	+1 level of existing class
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Sunder evil item	+1 level of existing class
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Smite evil 4/day (fiendsmite)	+1 level of existing class
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2		+1 level of existing class
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Smite evil 5/day (chain)	+1 level of existing class
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Holy martial strike	+1 level of existing class

INITIATE OF PISTIS SOPHIA

Pistis Sophia is the monk of the Celestial Hebdomad, a contemplative, mystic, and ascetic patron for those who follow similar spiritual paths.

The path of her initiates requires great sacrifices (in the form of at least three sacred vows), but brings great rewards of spiritual power.

All initiates of Pistis Sophia have at least several monk levels before joining the order of initiates.

Most often, they are single-classed monks.

Occasionally, characters of other classes undergo a sort of conversion, forswearing their reliance on weapons and armor, multiclassing as monks, and later adopting the initiate prestige class.

Of the tiny number of characters who take this course, most were paladins before taking on their monastic vows.

Initiates of Pistis Sophia are members of spiritual communities sharing a common life.

They are not restricted to their monasteries by any means, and many do adventure to put their spiritual devotions into concrete practice.

However, when not actively fighting the forces of evil, they are more often found in their monasteries than in cities or towns.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an initiate of Pistis Sophia, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Base Save Bonuses: Fort +5, Ref +5, Will +5.

Skills: Concentration 9 ranks.

Feats: Sacred Vow, Sanctify Ki Strike, Servant of the Heavens.

CLASS SKILLS

The initiate of Pistis Sophia's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the Initiate of Pistis Sophia prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Initiates of Pistis Sophia gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

They suffer the same penalties for wearing armor that monks do.

Fist of the Heavens: A 1st-level initiate of Pistis Sophia gains the Fist of the Heavens feat as a bonus feat, even if she does not have the prerequisite Wisdom score.

Monk Abilities: An initiate of Pistis Sophia adds her initiate levels to her monk levels to determine her AC bonus, her unarmed strike damage, the penalty she takes when using a flurry of blows, her speed, and her ki strike.

She does not gain any other benefits of advancing monk levels, however.

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, an initiate of Pistis Sophia of 2nd level or higher can use detect evil, as the spell.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, an initiate of Pistis Sophia may attempt to smite evil with one normal unarmed strike. She adds a +4 bonus to her attack roll and deals 1 extra point of damage per class level.

If she accidentally smites a creature that is not evil, the smite has no effect but it is still used up for that day.

At 5th level, an initiate of Pistis Sophia can use this ability twice per day, and at 8th level she can use it three times per day.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 3rd level, an initiate of Pistis Sophia can react to danger before her senses would normally allow her to do so.

She retains her Dexterity bonus to AC even when flatfooted.

Electricity Resistance (Ex): As she advances in her celestial disciplines, an initiate of Pistis Sophia grows to share the natural immunity to electricity possessed by the archons. She gains electricity resistance 5 at 4th level, and electricity resistance 10 at 7th level.

Sacred Vow: At 4th level, and again at 7th level and 10th level, an initiate of Pistis Sophia gains a bonus feat selected from the following list: Vow of Abstinence, Vow of Chastity, Vow of Nonviolence, Vow of Obedience, Vow of Poverty, or Vow of Purity.

Improved Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 6th level, an initiate of Pistis Sophia cannot be flanked except by a rogue at least 4 levels higher than her character level.

Improved Evasion (Ex): At 9th level, an initiate of Pistis Sophia takes no damage on a successful saving throw against attacks that allow a Reflex save for half damage, and she only takes half damage on a failed save.

Improved Evasion (Ex): When subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, a 9th level initiate of Pistis Sophia takes no damage if she makes a successful saving throw and half damage if the saving throw fails.

Celestial Transformation (Ex): When she reaches 10th level, an initiate of Pistis Sophia transcends her mortal origins and becomes a creature of the heavens.

Her type changes to outsider (native), and she gains damage reduction 10/unholy.

TABLE 5–11: THE INITIATE OF PISTIS SOPHIA

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Fist of the Heavens, monk abilities
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	Detect evil, smite evil 1/day
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Uncanny dodge
4th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Electricity resistance 5, sacred vow
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Smite evil 2/day
6th	+4	+5	+5	+5	Improved uncanny dodge
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	Electricity resistance 10, sacred vow
8th	+6	+6	+6	+6	Smite evil 3/day
9th	+6	+6	+6	+6	Improved evasion
10th	+7	+7	+7	+7	Celestial transformation, sacred vow

LION OF TALISID

The undisputed ruler of the guardinals, Talisid the Celestial Lion is an enormously powerful force for good—and good alone, undiluted by concerns of law or chaos.

He is also a mighty druid, and his mortal and guardinal champions are druids and rangers who share both his fierce hatred of evil and his passionate love of the natural world and its creatures.

Called the lions of Talisid, these protectors of nature and champions of good emulate their celestial patron in more concrete ways: adopting feline animal companions, assuming great cat forms with their wild shape ability, and eventually roaring like a leonal.

Druids and rangers most commonly become lions of Talisid, and only a character with an animal companion can enter the class.

Multiclass druid/rangers also commonly adopt the class, and less commonly, fighter/druids or cleric/rangers.

Like their guardinal patron, lions of Talisid usually work alone or in small groups of close companions, rarely with other lions.

NPC lions of Talisid can be found wandering the wilderness, fighting any who would defile the natural world with evil.

They are particularly concerned with areas where some evil presence corrupts nature itself, manifesting evil weather and vile corrupted creatures.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a lion of Talisid, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Neutral good.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Knowledge (nature) 9 ranks, Survival 9 ranks.

Feats: Favored of the Companions.

Spells: Able to cast summon nature's ally II.

Special: The character must have an animal companion as a class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

The lion of Talisid's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Listen (Wis), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Ride (Dex), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the lion of Talisid prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Lions of Talisid gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Animal Companion (Ex): A lion of Talisid can add his lion of Talisid levels to his effective druid level (his actual druid level or one-half his ranger level) to determine the capabilities of his animal companion.

Lion's Courage (Ex): A lion of Talisid is immune to fear (magical or otherwise) and gains a +4 sacred bonus on Will saves against other mind-affecting spells and effects.

Spells per Day: At each level, a lion of Talisid gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a lion of Talisid, the player must decide to which class to add each lion of Talisid level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Scent (Ex): At 2nd level, a lion of Talisid gains the scent special quality.

He can detect approaching enemies, sniff out hidden foes, and track by sense of smell.

Wild Shape (Su): At 3rd level, a lion of Talisid gains the ability to turn himself into any Small or Medium animal and back again once per day.

This works exactly as the druid's wild shape ability.

Lions of Talisid prefer the shape of great cats (cheetahs or leopards at lower levels), but are not limited to such forms.

The lion of Talisid can use this ability more times per day at 4th, 5th, and 8th level, as noted on Table 5–12.

In addition, he gains the ability to take the shape of a Large animal at 6th level, and a Tiny animal at 9th level.

A lion of Talisid who is also a druid can add his lion of Talisid level –2 to his druid levels to determine his wild shape ability.

For example, an 8th-level druid/6th-level lion of Talisid can wild shape as a 12th-level druid, and can thus assume plant forms as well as Large and Tiny animal forms, and can use this ability 4 times per day.

Exalted Companion: At 4th level, a lion of Talisid gains the Exalted Companion feat as a bonus feat.

Lion's Pounce (Ex): At 5th level, a lion of Talisid can make a full attack at the end of a charge.

Lion's Swiftmess (Ex): When he reaches 7th level, a lion of Talisid can act as if under the effects of a haste spell for a total of 1 round per class level per day.

These rounds need not be consecutive.

Leonal's Roar (Su): Three times a day, a 10th-level lion of Talisid can issue a roar that duplicates the effects of the leonal's roar spell (new spell described in Chapter 6 of this book).

The saving throw DC is 20 + the lion of Talisid's Charisma modifier.

TABLE 5-12: THE LION OF TALISID

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Animal companion, lion's courage	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Scent	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Wild shape (1/day)	+1 level of existing class
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Exalted Companion, wild shape (2/day)	+1 level of existing class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Lion's pounce, wild shape (3/day)	+1 level of existing class
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Wild shape (Large)	+1 level of existing class
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Lion's swiftness	+1 level of existing class
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	Wild shape (4/day)	+1 level of existing class
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	Wild shape (Tiny)	+1 level of existing class
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Leonal's roar	+1 level of existing class

PROPHET OF ERATHAOL

The prophet of Erathaol is a seer and visionary, a medium of the heavenly will, pronouncing judgment on corruption and evil in the world, speaking words of comfort to the oppressed and downtrodden, and announcing the work of the archons in the world.

She channels celestial spirits and allows them to use her body for their purposes on the Material Plane. Insofar as these celestials have knowledge of future events, the prophet may speak authoritatively about events to come, but her primary focus is on changing the present world into a better world for the future, a place where law and good might reign supreme.

Most prophets of Erathaol are clerics, either servants of a lawful good deity such as Heironeous or Moradin or proponents of lawful good ideals without particular attention to a specific deity.

However, the gift of prophecy is notoriously indiscriminate, and members of all spellcasting classes occasionally find themselves speaking on behalf of the heavens.

Prophets of Erathaol are not the oracles that people consult when they want to know whether to launch a business enterprise, start a war, or win someone's favor—too often prophets give answers that people don't really want to hear. Lawful good kings do sometimes take on prophets as advisors, but even the most well-intentioned ruler has a hard time following a true prophet's advice all the time. Most prophets, with no one seeking out their words, make themselves a nuisance in palaces, in marketplaces, or on city streets, proclaiming celestial judgment to whoever listens.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a prophet of Erathaol, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 5 ranks, Spellcraft 10 ranks.

Feats: Sacred Vow, Servant of the Heavens, Spell Focus (Divination), Vow of Chastity.

Spells: Able to cast 4th-level arcane or divine spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The prophet of Erathaol's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge

(the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the prophet of Erathaol prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Prophets of Erathaol gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Ecstasy (Su): Once per day per class level, a prophet of Erathaol can enter an ecstatic state, allowing a celestial to seize control of her mind and speech.

This is sort of a lesser version of channeling celestials (as described in Chapter 2), in which the prophet simply becomes helpless for 1 round while a celestial speaks through her.

What the celestial says (and who it is) is entirely up to the DM, though it is always at least tangentially relevant to whatever matter is at hand.

As a rule of thumb, this ability can have one of the following effects:

- any Knowledge check (with a bonus equal to the prophet's character level +5)
- a bardic knowledge check (with a bonus equal to the prophet's character level +5)
- a divination spell
- a detect evil spell
- an enthral spell (the prophet can continue speaking on her own after the 1 round of ecstasy, continuing the effect)
- a good hope spell
- an atonement spell
- like a phylactery of faithfulness, allowing the prophet to identify evil creatures and avoid evil acts
- if the prophet sacrifices 500 XP, a commune spell

Unfortunately, at the instant a prophet of Erathaol cedes control of her mind and invites a celestial to take it, she is vulnerable to possession by less beneficent spirits.

If a fiend or ghost capable of possession is in ethereal form, within 30 feet of the prophet, and not flat-footed when a prophet enters her ecstasy, the creature can attempt to possess her immediately.

The prophet takes a -2 penalty on her Will save to resist the possession, and if she fails she is not aware of the creature's presence in her body.

The creature prevents a celestial from entering, and might pretend to be the celestial, speaking as the prophet's companions expect.

If the creature chooses not to make its presence known in this way, it seems as though the ecstasy simply fails. Spells per Day/Spells Known: At 2nd level, and at each level thereafter, a prophet of Erathaol gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class she belonged to before adding the prestige class. She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a prophet of Erathaol, she must decide to which class she adds each prophet level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

TABLE 5-13: THE PROPHET OF ERATHAOL

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Ecstasy	—
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3		+1 level of existing class
3rd	+1	+3	+3	+3		+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+4	+4	+4		+1 level of existing class
5th	+2	+4	+4	+4		+1 level of existing class
6th	+3	+5	+5	+5		+1 level of existing class
7th	+3	+5	+5	+5		+1 level of existing class
8th	+4	+6	+6	+6		+1 level of existing class
9th	+4	+6	+6	+6		+1 level of existing class
10th	+5	+7	+7	+7		+1 level of existing class

RISEN MARTYR

Characters driven by revenge, greed, or other base desires may return from death as ghosts, revenants, or other undead.

By contrast, a risen martyr is an exalted character who continues in his earthly existence after his martyrdom, rather than entering the ranks of the petitioners on the celestial planes, in order to finish some unfulfilled task. Within a short time of his martyrdom (usually 1d4+1 days), a risen martyr returns in a spiritual body to complete the holy task that led to his martyrdom. (See Heroic Sacrifice in Chapter 2 for more about martyrdom).

In general, a character who is actively involved in an adventure that involves an exalted goal, and who is martyred for the sake of that purpose, has a sufficient holy purpose to return as a risen martyr. Appropriate holy purposes for a risen martyr might include aiding in the downfall of an evil tyrant or villain, locating a relic or holy artifact in order to stave off a great evil, or defending a city from a plague of ghosts. The goal need not be extremely short-term, and might even be the focus of a whole campaign.

However, a risen martyr's time on the Material Plane is limited.

Risen martyrs are very rare, and they actually appear as player characters more often than as NPCs, simply because player characters are generally the ones who pursue the most important and holy quests that can lead to a risen martyr's existence.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a risen martyr, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Base Save Bonuses: Fort +2, Ref +2, Will +2.

Skills: Any one skill 9 ranks, Speak Language (Celestial).

Feats: Nimbus of Light, any one other exalted feat.

Special: The character must have suffered martyrdom (see Chapter 2) and must not have been returned to life. As a special feature of this prestige class, the character rises with the abilities of a 0-level risen martyr added to the character's previous abilities.

When the character earns enough experience points to advance another level, he must become a 1st-level risen martyr.

CLASS SKILLS

The risen martyr's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the risen martyr prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Risen martyrs gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spiritual Body (Ex): When a martyr rises as a 0-level risen martyr, he takes on a corporeal spirit form.

His creature type changes to deathless (see Chapter 8: Monsters), and he gains the features and traits of the deathless type.

Deathless creatures have no Constitution score, and the risen martyr rerolls his hit points using d12s instead of his previous racial and class-based Hit Dice.

A risen martyr's spiritual body is formed of solid, spiritual flesh and is neither ghostly nor incorporeal.

His ability scores remain unchanged (except for his Constitution score), and all his other characteristics remain the same except that he is no longer a living creature.

Charisma Score Increase: At 1st level, a risen martyr's Charisma score increases by +2.

At 5th level, it increases by an extra +2.

Deflection Bonus (Su): A 1st-level risen martyr gains a deflection bonus to Armor Class equal to his Charisma bonus.

Holy Purpose (Ex): A 1st-level risen martyr receives a +1 sacred bonus on all attack rolls, damage rolls, ability checks, and skill checks that are directly related to the fulfillment of his purpose.

This bonus increases to +2 at 3rd level, and increases by an extra +1 every 3 levels thereafter.

Bless (Sp): Three times per day, a risen martyr of at least 2nd level can use bless, as the spell.

Magic Circle Against Evil (Su): At 2nd level, a risen martyr is continually surrounded by a protective aura that functions as a magic circle against evil spell.

Daylight (Su): At will as a free action, a 3rd level risen martyr can use daylight, as the spell.

Acid Immunity (Ex): At 4th level, a risen martyr gains immunity to acid.

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, a risen martyr of at least 4th level can detect evil, as the spell.

Protective Aura (Su): At 5th level, the risen martyr's magic circle against evil is replaced by an effect that duplicates the protective aura spell.

Shield Other (Sp): A 6th-level risen martyr can use shield other, as the spell, three times per day.

Celestial Brilliance (Sp): A 7th-level risen martyr can use celestial brilliance, as the spell, once per day.

Cold Immunity (Ex): A 7th-level risen martyr gains immunity to cold.

Holy Aura (Su): At 8th level, the risen martyr's protective aura is supplemented by an effect that duplicates the holy aura spell.

The holy aura protects only the risen martyr, while his protective aura continues to protect allies within 10 feet as well as himself.

Electricity Immunity (Ex): At 9th level, a risen martyr gains immunity to electricity.

Perfection (Su): A 10th-level risen martyr is as close to celestial perfection as a mortal creature can be.

He is considered a celestial for the purpose of any spell or effect that has special effects on celestials.

If he is lawful, he is also considered an archon.

If he is chaotic, he is also considered an eladrin.

If he is neutral, he is also considered a guardinal.

If he is a spellcaster, he can cast spells that have the Celestial, Archon, Guardinal, or Eladrin components, as appropriate.

Final Ascension: When a 10th-level risen martyr has earned enough experience points to gain his next level, his perfected, spiritual body is taken whole into the upper planes.

A risen martyr cannot advance in any class other than risen martyr in order to delay his final ascension.

Once he rises and adopts this prestige class, he must continue to gain risen martyr levels and no levels in any other class.

Code of Conduct: A risen martyr who willfully performs an evil act is immediately destroyed and goes to face his judgment on the Upper Planes.

TABLE 5-14: THE RISEN MARTYR

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
0	+0	+0	+0	+2	Spiritual body
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Charisma score increase, deflection, holy purpose +1
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Bless , magic circle against evil
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Daylight , holy purpose +2
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Acid immunity, detect evil
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Charisma score increase, protective aura
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Holy purpose +3, shield other
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Celestial brilliance , cold immunity
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Holy aura
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Electricity immunity, holy purpose +4
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Perfection, final ascension

SENTINEL OF BHARRAI

Respect for the power of nature, the desire to further the ends of good, and the resolve to destroy evil are the core beliefs of the sentinels of Bharrai, strong-willed spellcasters who venerate "The Great Bear of Elysium".

Their initiates hail primarily from the ranks of wizards, although sorcerers, druids, and clerics may also become sentinels.

Sentinels of Bharrai put the needs of others before their own, and they value stalwart companionship and loyalty above all.

This is an important aspect of their loose organization, which sometimes calls members to sacrifice their lives to ensure the survival of Bharrai's ideals.

Because of their loyalty and commitment to good, sentinels of Bharrai have a good reputation among adventurers and are highly sought after as adventuring companions.

The sentinels of Bharrai hold nature as the ultimate force for good.

Though lightning may kill trees and hurricanes may destroy small villages, the lightning ignites fires that cleanse the forest of rotting foliage and the hurricane teaches how to better fortify a shelter.

Sentinels of Bharrai appreciate nature in all its forms, from the tranquil beauty of an undisturbed forest to the ferocious wrath of a tornado.

They also harness the power of nature to cast down evil.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a sentinel of Bharrai, a character must fulfill the following criteria:

Alignment: Any good.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 8 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 8 ranks, Spellcraft 8 ranks.

Feats: Sacred Vow, Vow of Obedience.

CLASS SKILLS

The sentinel of Bharrai's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Concentration (Con), Decipher Script (Int, exclusive skill), Gather Information (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Read/Write Language, Speak Language, Spellcraft (Int), Survival (Wis), and Use Magic Device (Cha, exclusive skill). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the sentinel of Bharrai prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sentinels of Bharrai gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level, a sentinel of Bharrai gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class she belonged to before adding the prestige class. She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

If the character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a sentinel of Bharrai, she must decide to which class she adds each sentinel level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Nature-Friendly Spells (Su): Starting at 1st level, a sentinel of Bharrai can change the composition of any energy-based spell he casts to something that is not destructive to nature. The spell must have the acid, cold, electricity, or fire subtype, and the sentinel of Bharrai may choose to deal nonlethal damage instead of lethal damage against animals and plants that are either targeted or otherwise affected by the spell.

Track: A 1st-level sentinel of Bharrai gains the Track feat as a bonus feat.

Energy Resistance 10 (Ex): A sentinel of Bharrai is resistant to certain forces of nature and the damage they wreak.

At 2nd level, and again at 4th level, 6th level, and 8th level, a sentinel of Bharrai chooses a specific type of energy—acid, cold, electricity, or fire—and gains resistance 10 against the selected energy type.

Bear Shape (Su): At 3rd level, the sentinel of Bharrai gains the ability to turn himself into a black bear, brown bear, or polar bear (and back again).

The selected bear form's Hit Dice cannot exceed the sentinel of Bharrai's character level.

This ability functions as the polymorph spell, except as noted here.

Changing form is a standard action and doesn't provoke attacks of opportunity.

The sentinel of Bharrai may assume bear form (and change back) at will and may remain in bear form as long as he wishes.

The sentinel of Bharrai retains the ability to speak while in bear form and may communicate with other bears.

Quickened Call Lightning (Sp): At 3rd level, a sentinel of Bharrai can cast a quickened call lightning spell once per day, as though using the Quicken Spell feat.

Use the sentinel of Bharrai's character level to determine the number of lightning bolts and the spell's duration.

Nature's Veil (Su): At 5th level, as a standard action, the sentinel of Bharrai can attempt to hide in the outdoors.

The sentinel of Bharrai must be standing within 10 feet of natural terrain that includes features such as trees, sand dunes, mounds of snow, large rocks, tall grasses, or thickets. The sentinel of Bharrai gains a +10 insight bonus on his Hide check under these circumstances.

Dire Bear Shape (Su): At 7th level, a sentinel of Bharrai can turn himself into a dire bear and back again.

This ability is otherwise the same as the bear form ability gained at 3rd level.

Ursinal's Touch (Su): A sentinel of Bharrai gains great healing powers at 7th level.

This ability works just like the paladin's lay on hands ability, except that the sentinel of Bharrai can heal as much damage per day as his own undamaged hit point total.

Cavalry of Dire Bears (Sp): Once per week beginning at 9th level, a sentinel of Bharrai may call 1d6 dire bears with maximum hit points (147 hp each) to aid him in battle.

The dire bears appear instantly and remain until the battle has ended, at which point they disperse into the wild.

If a dire bear falls in battle, the animal's corpse remains, and the sentinel of Bharrai is expected to use whatever parts of the animal he can (such as the meat, skin, and bones) and commit the rest to the earth.

Failing to properly honor a fallen dire bear results in a 20% cumulative chance that the animals do not come the next time they are called.

This ability works only on the Material Plane and on good-aligned outer planes.

Quickened Lightning Storm (Sp): At 10th level, a sentinel of Bharrai can cast a quickened lightning storm spell once per day, as though using the Quicken Spell feat.

Use the sentinel of Bharrai's character level to determine the number of lightning bolts and the spell's duration.

TABLE 5-15: THE SENTINEL OF BHARRAI

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Nature-friendly spells, Track	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Energy resistance 10 (choose type)	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Bear shape, quickened call lightning 1/day	+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Energy resistance 10 (choose type)	+1 level of existing class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Nature's veil	+1 level of existing class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Energy resistance 10 (choose type)	+1 level of existing class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Dire bear shape, ursinal's touch	+1 level of existing class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Energy resistance 10 (choose type)	+1 level of existing class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Cavalry of dire bears 1/week	+1 level of existing class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Quickened lightning storm 1/day	+1 level of existing class

SKYLORD

An elf crusader, the skylord uses his kinship with creatures of the sky and the power of the winds to fight evil.

His ties with the elven community are generally loose at best, since he sees much more urgency in the day-to-day events of the world.

This point of view is often lost on the elven lords who would prefer to insulate themselves from the affairs of the shorter-lived races.

Elves who become skylords often come from the ranks of barbarians, fighters, druids, and rangers.

Soaring above the world of men, the skylord observes all.

From such a vantage point, the skylord learns to appreciate the beauty of the world below, ply the winds, and use the rage of storms to his advantage.

He can quickly disappear by cloaking himself in clouds to avoid his foes.

During a battle, his presence inspires confidence in all airborne allies who fight at his side.

The skylord often serves as an aerial scout, watching the movements of evil armies and studying areas not easily reached by land.

He is also a courier, conveying messages across great distances much more quickly than would otherwise be possible without the use of magic.

The skylord truly shines when evil bears its ugly head in the sky, but when necessary, he is a capable fighter indoors or underground.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a skylord, a character must fulfill the following criteria:

Alignment: Any good.

Race: Elf or half-elf.

Base Attack Bonus: +7.

Skills: Handle Animal 10 ranks, Ride 10 ranks.

Feats: Mounted Combat, either Mounted Archery or Ride-By Attack, one exalted feat.

Special: The character must spend 1 week living and meditating atop a mountain.

CLASS SKILLS

The skylord's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Ride (Dex), Spot (Wis), and Survival (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the skylord prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A skylord is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all types of armor, and shields.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At every second level, a skylord gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class he belonged to before adding the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, hit points beyond those he receives from the prestige class, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a skylord, he must decide to which class he adds the new level for purposes of determining spells per day.

Call Flying Mount (Su): At 1st level as a full-round action, the skylord can call a flying mount to serve in his crusade against evil.

This mount can be a celestial giant eagle, celestial giant owl, or celestial pegasus (consult the Skylord's Mounts sidebar for details).

SKYLORD'S MOUNTS

A skylord's mount is superior to a normal creature of its kind and has special powers, as described below.

Skylord Level	Bonus HD	Natural Armor Adj.	Str Adj.	Special
1st–3rd	+2	+4	+1	Empathic link, share spells, improved natural attacks
4th–6th	+4	+6	+2	Improved fly speed, deadly charge +2d6
7th–9th	+6	+8	+3	Spell resistance, immunities
10th	+8	+10	+4	Bonus feat

Skylord's Mount Basics: Use the base statistics for a creature of the mount's kind (see Sample Skylord's Mounts sidebar, below), but make changes to take into account the attributes and characteristics summarized on the table and described below.

Bonus HD: Extra 10-sided (d10) Hit Dice, each of which gains a Constitution modifier, as normal. Extra Hit Dice improve the mount's base attack bonus, base save bonuses, and celestial creature special qualities (damage reduction, energy resistance, and spell resistance). A mount's base attack bonus is equal to that of a fighter of a level equal to the mount's Hit Dice. A mount has good Fortitude and Reflex saves (treat it as a character whose level equals the mount's HD). The mount doesn't gain any extra skills or feats for bonus Hit Dice.

Natural Armor Adj.: The number on the table is an improvement to the mount's existing natural armor bonus.

Str Adj.: Add this value to the mount's Strength score.

Empathic Link (Su): A skylord has an empathic link with his mount out to a distance of up to 1 mile. The skylord cannot see through the mount's eyes, but they can communicate empathically. Because of this empathic link, the skylord has the same connection to an item or place that his mount does, just as with a master and his familiar (see Familiars in the Player's Handbook).

Share Spells: At the skylord's option, he may have any spell (but not any spell-like ability) he casts on himself also affect his mount. The mount must be within 5 feet at the time of casting to receive the benefit. If the spell or effect has a duration other than instantaneous, it stops affecting the mount if it moves farther than 5 feet away and will not affect the mount again even if it returns to the skylord before the duration expires. Additionally, the skylord may cast a spell with a target of "You" on his mount (as a touch range spell) instead of on himself. A skylord and his mount can share spells even if the spells normally do not affect magical beasts.

Improved Natural Attacks: The damage dealt by each of the mount's natural attacks increases by one step. For example, a giant eagle mount with this ability would roll 1d8 instead of 1d6 for claw damage and 1d10 instead of 1d8 for bite damage.

Improved Fly Speed (Ex): The mount's fly speed increases by 10 feet.

Deadly Charge (Ex): The skylord's mount deals an extra 2d6 points of damage on a successful attack made during a charge.

Spell Resistance (Su): A mount's spell resistance equals the skylord's character level + 5.

Immunities (Su): A skylord's mount is immune to hold, paralysis, sleep, charms, and compulsions.

The mount remains with the skylord until it is slain or dismissed.

Bonus Feat: The mount gains one of the following feats as a bonus feat, provided it meets the prerequisites for the feat: Flyby Attack, Hover, Multiattack, or Wingover.

SAMPLE SKYLORD'S MOUNTS

These values are for normal creatures of the appropriate kinds; they do not include the modifications given on the table above.

Celestial Giant Eagle: CR 4; Large magical beast; HD 4d10+4; hp 26; Init +3; Spd 10 ft., fly 80 ft. (average); AC 15, touch 12, flat-footed 12 (–1 size, +3 Dex, +3 natural); Base Atk +4; Grp +12; Atk +7 melee (1d6+4, claw); Full Atk +7 melee (1d6+4, 2 claws) and +2 melee (1d8+2, bite); Space/Reach 10 ft./5 ft.; SA smite evil; SQ acid resistance 5, cold resistance 5, damage reduction 5/magic, darkvision 60 ft., electricity resistance 5, low-light vision, evasion, spell resistance 9; SV Fort +5, Ref +7, Will +3; AL NG or as skylord; Str 18, Dex 17, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 14, Cha 10.

Skills and Feats: Knowledge (nature) +2, Listen +6, Sense Motive +4, Spot +15, Survival +3; Alertness, Flyby Attack.

Evasion (Ex): If the giant eagle is exposed to any effect that normally allows it to attempt a Reflex saving throw for half damage, it takes no damage with a successful saving throw.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a celestial giant eagle can make a normal attack to deal extra damage equal to its HD total against an evil foe.

Celestial Giant Owl: CR 4; Large magical beast; HD 4d10+4; hp 26; Init +3; Spd 10 ft., fly 70 ft. (average); AC 15, touch 12, flat-footed 12 (–1 size, +3 Dex, +3 natural); Base Atk +4; Grp +12; Atk +7 melee (1d6+4, claw); Full Atk +7 melee (1d6+4, 2 claws) and +2 melee (1d8+2, bite); Space/Reach 10 ft./5 ft.; SA smite evil; SQ acid resistance 5, cold resistance 5, damage reduction 5/magic, darkvision 60 ft., electricity resistance 5, spell resistance 9, superior low-light vision; SV Fort +5, Ref +7, Will +3; AL NG or as skylord; Str 18, Dex 17, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 14, Cha 10.

Skills and Feats: Knowledge (nature) +2, Listen +17, Move Silently +8 (+16 when in flight), Spot +10; Alertness, Wingover.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a celestial giant owl can make a normal attack to deal extra damage equal to its HD total against an evil foe.

Superior Low-Light Vision (Ex): The giant owl can see five times as far as a human in dim light.

Celestial Pegasus: CR 4; Large magical beast; HD 4d10+12; hp 34; Init +2; Spd 60 ft., fly 120 ft. (average); AC 14, touch 11, flat-footed 12 (–1 size, +2 Dex, +3 natural); Base Atk +4; Grp +12; Atk +7 melee (1d6+4, hoof); Full Atk +7 melee (1d6+4, 2 hooves) and +2 melee (1d3+2, bite); Space/Reach 10 ft./5 ft.; SA smite evil; SQ acid resistance 5, cold resistance 5, damage reduction 5/magic, darkvision 60 ft., electricity resistance 5, low-light vision, scent, spell-like abilities, spell resistance 9; SV Fort +7, Ref +6, Will +4; AL CG or as skylord; Str 18, Dex 15, Con 16, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 13.

Skills and Feats: Diplomacy +3, Listen +8, Sense Motive +9, Spot +8; Flyby Attack, Iron Will.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a celestial pegasus can make a normal attack to deal extra damage equal to its HD total against an evil foe.

Spell-Like Abilities: At will, a pegasus can detect good and detect evil within a 60-yard radius, as the spells from a 5th-level caster.

It requires food and rest, and the skylord is responsible for tending to its needs.

Calling a mount is a conjuration (calling) effect.

If the mount dies, the skylord can either have the mount raised from the dead or call another mount. The skylord may only call a replacement mount after living and meditating atop a mountain for 1 week.

Eyes of the Eagle (Ex): A skylord has the keen eyesight of an eagle.

While airborne, a skylord receives a +4 insight bonus on Spot checks.

Ride the Wind (Ex): At 2nd level, a skylord becomes a master of the winds, guiding his mount through them with ease.

While riding a flying mount, the skylord's penalties on ranged attacks in windy conditions are reduced by 2 (no penalty in strong winds, -2 penalty in severe winds). The skylord can make ranged attacks in windstorms, albeit at a -4 penalty.

In hurricanes, the ranged attack penalty increases to -8. Neither the skylord nor his mount take penalties on Listen checks in windstorms and hurricanes.

Both the skylord and his mount can move normally in severe winds and windstorms (instead of being checked), and hurricane winds reduce the flying speed of the skylord's mount by half.

Improved Mounted Combat (Ex): At 3rd level, a skylord's skill at mounted combat improves, enabling him to better protect his mount. This ability works as the Mounted Combat feat, except that the skylord's Ride check receives a +2 bonus. The bonus improves to +4 at 5th level, +6 at 7th level, and +8 at 9th level.

Deadly Charge (Ex): At 4th level, a skylord deals an extra 2d6 points of damage on a successful attack made during a charge. The skylord must be riding a flying mount to deal the extra damage.

Storm Kinship (Su): At 6th level, a skylord is less likely to lose his bearings in a storm. He retains full visibility during rains and storms and does not take the usual penalties on Search, Spot, and Listen checks (see Weather in the Dungeon Master's Guide). This ability is not imparted to the skylord's mount.

Summon Tempest (Sp): At 10th level, once per week, the skylord can summon a tempest (as described on page 193 of the Monster Manual II). This ability is otherwise similar to the summon monster I spell. Use the skylord's character level to determine the effect's range and duration.

TABLE 5-16: THE SKYLORD

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Call flying mount, eyes of the eagle	—
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Ride the wind	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Improved mounted combat +2	—
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Deadly charge	+1 level of existing class
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	Improved mounted combat +4	—
6th	+6	+5	+5	+2	Storm kinship	+1 level of existing class
7th	+7	+5	+5	+2	Improved mounted combat +6	—
8th	+8	+6	+6	+2		+1 level of existing class
9th	+9	+6	+6	+3	Improved mounted combat +8	—
10th	+10	+7	+7	+3	Summon tempest	+1 level of existing class

SLAYER OF DOMIEL

Assassins, of course, are evil by their nature and the nature of what they do: committing murder for money is a completely evil act.

However, sometimes the skill set of an assassin is required for more noble purposes.

Claiming the power of the paragon archon Domiel, the slayers of Domiel are a disciplined, secretive order of stealthy spies and—when the need arises—assassins who serve the cause of law and good.

Rather than relying entirely on stealth and poison, the slayers of Domiel use supernatural means to dispatch evil foes.

Rogues most commonly become slayers of Domiel. On very rare occasions, the order accepts former assassins who have repented and atoned for their past evil deeds and wish to become slayers.

Some slayers also have monk, fighter, or even paladin levels.

Sorcerer/rogues and cleric/rogues are also found among their numbers.

Slayers of Domiel often work closely with other lawful good characters, but not often with other slayers.

Every slayer has a superior in the order responsible for mentoring, training, and supervising her progress, but some slayers go for months between meetings with their superiors.

Few slayers know of more than one or two other slayers besides their mentors.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a slayer of Domiel, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Skills: Hide 8 ranks, Move Silently 8 ranks.

Feats: Sanctify Martial Strike, Servant of the Heavens.

Special: Sneak attack +3d6, evasion class ability.

CLASS SKILLS

The slayer of Domiel's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Tumble (Dex), Use Magic Device (Cha), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the slayer of Domiel prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Slayers of Domiel gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells: A slayer of Domiel has the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a slayer of Domiel spell, the slayer must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a slayer of Domiel with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Slayer of Domiel bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the slayer's Wisdom modifier.

When the slayer of Domiel gets 0 spells of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 1st level slayer of Domiel), she gets only the bonus spells she would be entitled to based on her Wisdom score for that spell level. The slayer of Domiel's spell list appears below.

A slayer of Domiel prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though a slayer cannot spontaneously cast cure spells).

Death Touch (Su): A slayer of Domiel can slay living evil opponents with a single touch.

She must succeed on a melee touch attack against the target.

When she touches, she rolls 1d6 per slayer level.

If the total at least equals the target's current hit points, it dies.

This is a death effect, and it has no effect on nonevil creatures.

A slayer of Domiel can use this ability more often as she increases in levels, as shown on Table 5-17.

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, as the spell of the same name.

Sneak Attack (Ex): If a slayer of Domiel can catch an opponent when he is unable to defend himself effectively from her attack, she can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Any time a slayer's target would be denied his Dexterity bonus to AC (whether the target actually has a Dexterity bonus or not), the slayer's attack deals an extra 1d6 points of damage at 1st level and an additional 1d6 at every two slayer levels thereafter (3rd, 5th, 7th, and 9th).

Should a slayer of Domiel score a critical hit with a sneak attack, this extra damage is not multiplied.

It takes precision and penetration to hit a vital spot, so ranged attacks can only count as sneak attacks if the target is within 30 feet.

With a sap or an unarmed strike, a slayer of Domiel can make a sneak attack that deals nonlethal damage instead of lethal damage.

She cannot use a weapon that deals lethal damage to deal nonlethal damage in a sneak attack, not even with the usual -4 penalty, because she must make optimal use of her weapon in order to execute the sneak attack.

A slayer of Domiel can only sneak attack living creatures with discernible anatomies—undead, constructs, oozes, plants, and incorporeal creatures lack vital areas to attack. Any creature that is immune to critical hits is not vulnerable to sneak attacks.

The slayer must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach such a spot. A slayer of Domiel cannot sneak attack while striking a creature with concealment or striking the limbs of a creature whose vitals are beyond reach.

If a slayer of Domiel gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as rogue levels), the extra damage stacks.

Divine Grace (Su): A 2nd-level slayer of Domiel applies her Charisma bonus as a bonus on all saving throws.

Improved Evasion (Ex): At 6th level, a slayer of Domiel's evasion ability improves.

When subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, the slayer takes no damage if she makes a successful saving throw and half damage if the saving throw fails.

SLAYER OF DOMIEL SPELL LIST

Slayers of Domiel choose their spells from the following list:

1st Level: bless weapon, change self, deathwatch, divine favor, ghost sound, obscuring mist, spider climb, vision of heaven.*

2nd Level: alter self, darkness, gentle repose, pass without trace.

3rd Level: *blessed sight, deeper darkness, invisibility, misdirection, nondetection, speak with dead.

4th Level: death ward, dimension door, freedom of movement, holy sword, greater invisibility, sword of conscience.*

* New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-17: THE SLAYER OF DOMIEL

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Death touch 1/day, detect evil sneak attack +1d6	0	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Divine grace	1	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Sneak attack +2d6	1	0	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Death touch 2/day	1	1	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Sneak attack +3d6	1	1	0	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Improved evasion	1	1	1	—
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	Sneak attack +4d6	2	1	1	0
8th	+6	+2	+6	+2	Death touch 3/day	2	1	1	1
9th	+6	+3	+6	+3	Sneak attack +5d6	2	2	1	1
10th	+7	+3	+7	+3	Death touch 4/day	2	2	2	1

STALKER OF KHARASH

Kharash, one of the Five Companions of Talisid, is the greatest of the wolflike lupinal guardinals.

As a fierce opponent of evil, Kharash acts as patron to those who use stealth to track and hunt evildoers.

The stalkers of Kharash are a loose-knit order of rangers, rogues, and other characters devoted to fighting evil under Kharash's patronage.

Rangers predominate among the stalkers, bringing a combination of stealth and martial prowess to the class at the outset.

Rogues also commonly adopt the class, and bards occasionally take it up.

Few other characters, except multiclass rangers or rogues, can meet the skill requirements to become stalkers.

Stalkers of Kharash prefer to work in small groups such as adventuring parties.

Some prefer the company of other stealthy characters, while others enjoy working as a scout for a group of normal, noisy characters.

Whether PCs or NPCs, stalkers are usually found in the wilderness, wherever evil foes can be found.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a stalker of Kharash, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Neutral good.

Skills: Hide 8 ranks, Move Silently 8 ranks.

Feats: Alertness, Favored of the Companions, Track.

CLASS SKILLS

The stalker of Kharash's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the stalker of Kharash prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A stalker of Kharash is proficient with all martial weapons, but no armor or shield.

Spells per Day: Starting at 1st level, and at each stalker of Kharash level thereafter, the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in the ranger class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved favored enemies and so on).

If the character had no ranger levels before becoming a 1st-level stalker of Kharash, he gains the spellcasting ability of a 1st-level ranger—that is, no spellcasting ability—when he takes his first stalker level.

When he becomes a 4th-level stalker, he gains spellcasting ability (as a 4th-level ranger) assuming his Wisdom score is high enough to grant him a bonus 1st-level spell.

A stalker of Kharash's caster level is one-half the sum of his ranger levels and his stalker levels.

Scent of Evil (Su): A stalker of Kharash has an unusual ability that combines the scent special quality with the detect evil spell.

The stalker can detect evil opponents within 30 feet by their scent of evil.

If the opponent is upwind, the range increases to 60 feet; if downwind, it drops to 15 feet.

A strong aura of evil (an evil outsider or evil cleric of 5–10 HD, an evil elemental or undead of 10–21 HD, an evil creature of 25–54 HD, or an evil magic item or spell with a caster level of 10–21) can be detected at twice these ranges.

An overwhelming aura of evil (an evil outsider or evil cleric with 11 HD or more, an evil elemental or undead with 22 HD or more, an evil creature with 55 HD or more, or an evil magic item or spell with a caster level of 22 or higher) can be detected at triple normal range.

When the stalker detects a scent, the exact location is not revealed—only its presence somewhere within range.

The stalker can take a move action to note the direction of the scent.

Whenever the creature comes within 5 feet of the source, the stalker knows the source's location.

Favored Enemy—Evil (Ex): At 2nd level, a stalker of Kharash gains evil creatures of all kinds as a favored enemies.

He gains a +1 bonus on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Survival checks when using these skills against evil creatures.

He also gains a +1 bonus on weapon damage rolls against evil creatures.

This bonus stacks with any other favored enemy bonus the stalker might have, such as from the ranger class.

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): When a stalker of Kharash reaches 4th level, he can use the Hide skill even while being observed.

With at least one-quarter cover or one-quarter concealment, the stalker can hide from view.

Track Evil (Su): A 5th-level stalker can use the Track feat to track an evil creature by its lingering evil aura, making a Wisdom (or Survival) check to find or follow a track.

The typical DC for a fresh trail is 10 (no matter what kind of surface holds the scent).

The DC for tracking a normal aura increases by 2 every 10 minutes, for tracking a strong aura by 2 every hour, and for tracking an overwhelming aura by 2 every day.

This ability otherwise follows the rules for the Track feat.

The stalker can ignore the effects of surface conditions and poor visibility.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a 6th-level stalker of Kharash may attempt to smite evil with one normal unarmed strike.

He adds a +4 bonus to his attack roll and deals 1 extra point of damage per class level.

This bonus damage stacks with favored enemy bonuses.

If he accidentally smites a creature that is not evil, the smite has no effect but it is still used up for that day.

At 8th level, a stalker of Kharash can use this ability twice per day, and at 10th level he can use it three times per day.

TABLE 5-18: THE STALKER OF KHARASH

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+0	+2	+0	Scent of evil	+1 level of ranger
2nd	+2	+0	+3	+0	Favored enemy—evil	+1 level of ranger
3rd	+3	+1	+3	+1		+1 level of ranger
4th	+4	+1	+4	+1	Hide in plain sight	+1 level of ranger
5th	+5	+1	+4	+1	Track evil	+1 level of ranger
6th	+6	+2	+5	+2	Smite evil 1/day	+1 level of ranger
7th	+7	+2	+5	+2		+1 level of ranger
8th	+8	+2	+6	+2	Smite evil 2/day	+1 level of ranger
9th	+9	+3	+6	+3		+1 level of ranger
10th	+10	+3	+7	+3	Smite evil 3/day	+1 level of ranger

SWANMAY

Swanmays are members of a secretive order sworn to protect wilderness areas from evil.

Their most distinctive feature is their ability to adopt the form of a swan, which they use primarily for mobility. The order accepts only women who are committed to the cause of good and who already possess a strong affinity for the natural world.

Only druids and rangers can become swanmays.

It is very rare for even multiclass characters to join the swanmay order.

Swanmays often live in communal lodges near bodies of water secluded in deep forests.

On the rare occasions when they travel beyond their woods to adventure, it is to oppose an evil force that threatens the larger wilderness.

They are very secretive, and avoid revealing their true nature even to adventuring companions.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a swanmay, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Gender: Female.

Alignment: Any good.

Skills: Knowledge (nature) 8 ranks, Speak Language (Sylvan), Survival 8 ranks.

Feats: Sacred Vow, Vow of Purity.

Spells: Able to cast speak with animals.

Special: The character must have the wild empathy class feature.

Special: Knowingly or not, a character must perform a great service for another swanmay before she can join the order.

CLASS SKILLS

The swanmay's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the swanmay prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Swanmays gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Shifting (Su): The hallmark of the swanmay is the ability to assume the form of a swan.

She can assume this form and return to her normal form once per day at 1st level.

This is identical to the druid's wild shape ability, except that the swanmay can only assume the form of a swan.

The swanmay can use this ability more times per day at 2nd, 3rd, 6th, and 10th level, as noted on Table 5-19.

Swan: CR 1/3; Small Animal; HD 1d8; hp 4; Init +2; Spd 10 ft., fly 60 ft. (average); AC 14 (+1 size, +2 Dex, +1 natural), touch 13, flat-footed 12; Atk +1 melee (1d3-1, 2 slams) and -4 melee (1d2-1, bite); SQ damage reduction 5/cold iron; AL N; SV Fort +2, Ref +4, Will +1; Str 8, Dex 15, Con 10, Int 2, Wis 12, Cha 6.

Skills and Feats: Listen +7, Spot +3; Alertness.

Damage Reduction (Ex): While in swan form, a swanmay gains damage reduction 5/cold iron.

Spell Resistance (Ex): A swanmay has spell resistance equal to 12 + her swanmay level.

Wild Empathy (Ex): A swanmay adds her class level to her druid or ranger level when making a wild empathy check. In addition, at 4th level she gains a +2 bonus on wild empathy checks.

This bonus increases to +4 at 8th level and +6 at 10th level.

Spells per Day: Starting at 2nd level, and at each swanmay level thereafter, the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in either druid or ranger, whichever class she belonged to before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If the character was both a druid and a ranger before becoming a swanmay, she must decide to which class she adds each swanmay level for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Favored Enemy (Ex): At 2nd level, a swanmay gains a favored enemy.

This works just like the ranger's favored enemy ability, and if the swanmay has one or more favored enemies already, the bonus against one of her favored enemies increases as if she had just gained another favored enemy from her ranger class.

The swanmay does not choose this favored enemy herself; rather, each order of swanmays has its own favored enemy, typically related to a group that frequently threatens their home region.

Low-Light Vision (Su): At 3rd level, a swanmay gains low-light vision.

Charm Person (Sp): At 4th level, a swanmay can use charm person, as the spell, three times per day.

Her caster level is equal to her swanmay level, and the saving throw DC is equal to 13 + her Charisma modifier.

Speak With Animals (Sp): At 5th level, a swanmay can use Speak With Animals, as the spell, at will.
Her caster level is equal to her swanmay level.
Speak With Plants (Sp): At 6th level, a swanmay can use Speak With Plants, as the spell, at will.
Her caster level is equal to her swanmay level.
Charm Monster (Sp): At 7th level, a swanmay can use Charm Monster, as the spell, two times per day.

Her caster level is equal to her swanmay level, and the saving throw DC is equal to 15 + her Charisma modifier.
Fey Transformation (Ex): At 10th level, a swanmay's type changes to fey.
Additionally, she gains damage reduction 10/cold iron, regardless of whether she is in humanoid form or swan form.

TABLE 5-19: THE SWANMAY

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Shifting 1/day, spell resistance, wild empathy	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Shifting 2/day, favored enemy	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Shifting 3/day, low-light vision	+1 level of existing class
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Charm person 3/day, wild empathy +2	+1 level of existing class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Speak with animals	+1 level of existing class
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Shifting 4/day, Speak with plants	+1 level of existing class
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Charm monster 2/day	+1 level of existing class
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Wild empathy +4	+1 level of existing class
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3		+1 level of existing class
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Shifting 5/day, wild empathy +6, fey transformation	+1 level of existing class

SWORD OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

The call of exalted deeds does not exclude the path of the warrior.

Though few in number, warriors of every stripe devote themselves to good, choosing a higher calling than their fellows.

Even among paladins, some pursue a commitment to righteousness and purity that exceeds the norm, truly exalting them above their peers.

These men and women are called swords of righteousness. The sword of righteousness prestige class is simply a way for a martially oriented character—typically a paladin, fighter, ranger, barbarian, monk, or even rogue—to gain more exalted feats at the cost of a slightly slower progression in his or her basic class.

It is not intended as a lifelong career path, just a sidetrack allowing such a character to focus for a short while on the trappings of righteousness.

Spellcasting characters (bards, clerics, druids, sorcerers, and wizards) tend toward the wonderworker prestige class to accomplish the same goal.

No organization binds swords of righteousness together, though they are often found operating in the churches of good deities, good-aligned knightly orders, and other existing organizations dedicated to virtuous causes.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a sword of righteousness, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Feats: Either Favored of the Companions, Knight of Stars, or Servant of the Heavens, plus one additional exalted feat.

CLASS SKILLS

The sword of righteousness's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.
Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the sword of righteousness prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Swords of righteousness gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Bonus Exalted Feat: At every level, a sword of righteousness gets a bonus exalted feat.

These bonus feats must be drawn from among those identified as exalted feats in Chapter 4: Feats.

Multiclass Note: Paladins and lawful good monks may multiclass as swords of righteousness and freely return to their original class without hindrance or penalty.

The sword of righteousness levels need not be taken all at once.

TABLE 5-20: THE SWORD OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Bonus exalted feat
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Bonus exalted feat
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Bonus exalted feat

TROUBADOUR OF STARS

With the exception of Gwynharwyf, who holds her barbarian champions in special regard, the various lords and knights of the eladrin Court of Stars do not sponsor individual orders of followers.

Rather, as a group they offer their patronage to certain mortal bards, granting them the ability to channel their celestial music through their mortal voices and instruments.

These blessed bards are the troubadours of stars, gifted musicians and champions of good.

Only a character who spontaneously casts arcane spells can become a troubadour of stars.

Bards are the most common, but a very few sorcerers take up the eladrins' mantle as well.

Troubadours of stars tend to wander alone, or as part of a small band, traveling far and wide across the mortal world. They strive to bring hope to the hopeless and freedom to those oppressed or enslaved by tyrants.

Whenever one troubadour encounters another on her travels, the two exchange stories and news before continuing on their separate ways.

They are duty-bound to help each other in times of need, but rarely seek out extensive contact with others of their order.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a troubadour of stars, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Chaotic good.

Skills: Perform 6 ranks.

Feats: Knight of Stars.

Spells: Able to spontaneously cast 4th-level arcane spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The troubadour of stars' class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Speak Language, Spellcraft (Int), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the troubadour of stars prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Troubadours of stars gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Bardic Music: A troubadour of stars adds her class level to her bard level, if any, to determine what bardic music abilities she can use and how often she can use them.

In addition, her troubadour levels stack with her bard levels for purposes of determining the bonus granted by her bestow courage ability.

A troubadour of stars with no bard levels gains bardic music abilities as a bard of her class level.

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, as the spell.

Holy Cacophony (Su): A 2nd-level troubadour of stars with 8 or more ranks in Perform can, as an extra bardic music effect, create a song of discordant notes that hampers evil creatures.

Any evil creature within 30 feet of the troubadour must make a successful Concentration check (DC 15 + spell level) in order to cast a spell or use a spell-like ability.

Using the Words of Creation with this ability increases the save DC to 20 + spell level and deals 8d4 points of nonlethal damage to the troubadour.

Holy cacophony is a sonic, mind-affecting ability.

Celestial Spells: Once she reaches 2nd level, a troubadour of stars can cast spells as if she were an eladrin.

Specifically, the troubadour can learn and cast any spell described in Chapter 6 that has a celestial or eladrin component, as long as she can otherwise cast the spell (it appears on her spell list, it is of a level of spells that she can cast, and she has a sufficient ability score to cast spells of that level).

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each even-numbered troubadour of stars level, the character gains new spells per day and spells known as if she had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

The class must spontaneously cast spells (as a sorcerer or bard does).

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (bardic music abilities, improved familiar abilities, and so on).

If the character had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a troubadour of stars, she must decide to which class she adds each troubadour level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Starmantle (Sp): At 3rd level, a troubadour of stars gains the ability to use starmantle, as the spell (see Chapter 6), once per day.

Her caster level is equal to her character level.

Song of Hope (Su): A 5th-level troubadour of stars with 11 or more ranks in Perform can, as an additional bardic music effect, inspire powerful hope in her allies.

Good-aligned creatures within 30 feet of the troubadour who are her allies gain a +2 morale bonus on saving throws, attack rolls, ability checks, skill checks, and weapon damage rolls, as if affected by the good hope spell.

In addition, affected creatures gain a new saving throw against any fear effect, despair effect (such as the crushing despair spell), or similar mind-affecting condition, excluding charm person, dominate person, and similar spells.

An affected creature may use the troubadour's Perform check result in place of her saving throw if, after rolling the saving throw, the Perform check result proves to be better. Using the Words of Creation with this ability increases the morale bonus to +4 and deals 11d4 points of nonlethal damage to the troubadour.

Song of hope is a sonic, mind-affecting ability.

Sanctified Spells: A 6th-level troubadour of stars can use sanctified spells as though they were among her spells known.

Eladrin Form (Sp): At 7th level, a troubadour of stars gains the ability to use eladrin form, as the spell (see Chapter 6), once per day.

Her caster level is equal to her class level.

Celestial Symphony (Su): A 9th-level troubadour of stars with 15 or more ranks in Perform can, as an additional bardic music effect, create an effect that duplicates the holy word spell.

Nongood creatures within 30 feet of the troubadour are affected as though by the spell.

The troubadour's caster level is equal to her class level. Using the Words of Creation with this effect grants the troubadour a +4 bonus on her caster level check to overcome spell resistance and deals 15d4 points of nonlethal damage to the troubadour.

Celestial symphony is a sonic effect.

Celestial Ascension (Ex): At 10th level, a troubadour of stars is so attuned to the ways of the eladrins that she becomes a magical creature.

Her type changes to outsider (native) and she gains damage reduction 10/unholy.

Unlike other outsiders, the troubadour can still be brought back from the dead.

TABLE 5-21: THE TROUBADOUR OF STARS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Bardic music, detect evil	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Holy cacophony, celestial spells	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Starmantle	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4		+1 level of existing class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Song of hope	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Sanctified spells	+1 level of existing class
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Eladrin form	—
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6		+1 level of existing class
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Celestial symphony	—
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Celestial ascension	+1 level of existing class

VASSAL OF BAHAMUT

Most of Bahamut's emissaries and champions are dutiful and mighty metallic dragons.

Occasionally, however, Bahamut finds a nondraconic champion whose reverence of good dragons is unshakable, and whose hatred of evil dragons rivals that of the purest gold dragons—a force of good so strong that Bahamut feels moved to offer this champion a place in his court.

A vassal of Bahamut is a devout, nondraconic champion in the service of the Dragon King.

Vassals of Bahamut are most often paladins, although fighters, rangers, and barbarians can become vassals as well. The road to becoming a Vassal of Bahamut often begins with the character undertaking a quest for a good-aligned dragon, and then assisting good dragons over a period of time.

If the champion worships Bahamut and proves himself worthy by defeating a red dragon in combat, Bahamut sends his avatar or some other emissary to offer her the opportunity to become a vassal.

If the character declines, Bahamut takes no offense, allowing plenty of time for the character to reconsider. Vassals of Bahamut often work with other exalted characters, particularly groups who frequently oppose evil dragons and other servants of Tiamat, the evil dragon queen.

A vassal of Bahamut even deigns to cooperate with neutral characters on missions against evil dragons, although he might belittle them for their lack of convictions.

The only time a vassal of Bahamut works with evil characters is if he is infiltrating their group and trying to bring down an evil dragon or one of Tiamat's agents.

Because vassals of Bahamut are few in number and widespread, it is highly unlikely that two vassals of Bahamut ever meet face-to-face.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a vassal of Bahamut, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Base Attack Bonus: +7.

Skills: Craft (armorsmithing) 5 ranks, Diplomacy 5 ranks.

Feats: Sacred Vow, Vow of Obedience.

Special: The character must have single-handedly slain a juvenile (or older) red dragon.

CLASS SKILLS

The vassal of Bahamut's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (armorsmithing) (Int), Craft (weaponsmithing) (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (nobility and royalty) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Ride (Dex), and Sense Motive (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.
Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the vassal of Bahamut prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A champion of Bahamut is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all types of armor, and shields (except tower shields).

Imperious Aura (Ex): Good dragons are naturally well-disposed toward a vassal of Bahamut, while evil dragons are cowed by his presence.

The vassal of Bahamut gains a bonus equal to his class level on all Charisma-based skill checks made against dragons and dragon-type creatures (such as wyverns).

Platinum Armor: A vassal of Bahamut is granted the ability to create platinum scale mail.

The vassal starts with scales from a slain juvenile (or older) red dragon and works them for 2 days per character level.

During this time, the vassal must not engage in any other activities other than eating and sleeping.

At the end of this period, the red dragon scales transform into glistening platinum scales.

The finished masterwork suit of armor weighs 25 pounds and confers a +8 armor bonus.

Its other properties are as a masterwork chain shirt (+4 max Dex bonus, -1 armor check penalty, 20% arcane spell failure chance, no speed reduction).

Only the vassal of Bahamut may wear the platinum armor, which instantly corrodes and turns to powder if donned by another creature.

The vassal can replace a lost suit using scales from a slain juvenile (or older) red dragon, as noted above, but can craft no more than one such suit at a time.

The vassal's platinum armor may be enhanced using standard item creation feats.

Dragon Senses (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a vassal of Bahamut can see four times as well as a human in low-light conditions and twice as well as a human in normal light.

He also gains darkvision out to 120 feet.

Shared Trove: At 2nd, 5th, and 8th level, a vassal of Bahamut receives a modest lump sum reward for his loyal service.

The reward magically appears before the vassal—a mound of platinum coins delivered straight from Bahamut's celestial treasure vault.

The number of platinum pieces equals $100 \times$ the vassal of Bahamut's character level.

The vassal may spend the money more or less as he sees fit, provided the expenditure serves a good or righteous cause. If the money is spent frivolously or unwisely, Bahamut sends a loyal representative (usually a gold dragon in an alternate form) to demand repayment.

Spending the money to improve one's personal equipment is neither frivolous nor unwise.

Spells: Beginning at 2nd level, a vassal of Bahamut gains the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the vassal must have a Wisdom score of at least $10 +$ the spell's level, so a vassal with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Vassal of Bahamut bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of $10 +$ spell level $+$ the vassal's Wisdom bonus.

When the vassal gets 0 spells of a given level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 2nd-level vassal of Bahamut), he gets only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Wisdom score for that spell.

The vassal of Bahamut's spell list appears below.

A vassal of Bahamut prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though a beloved cannot spontaneously cast cure spells).

Bonus Feat: At 3rd level, and again at 6th and 9th level, a vassal of Bahamut gains a bonus feat.

This feat must be drawn from the following list, and the vassal must meet all the prerequisites for the feat: Blind-Fight, Cleave, Combat Reflexes, Exalted Smite*, Gift of Faith*, Gift of Grace*, Great Cleave, Great Fortitude, Hands of a Healer*, Holy Radiance*, Improved Bull Rush, Improved Overrun, Improved Sunder, Iron Will, Lightning Reflexes, Negotiator, Nemesis*, Nimbus of Light*, Persuasive, Power Attack, Righteous Wrath*, Sanctify Weapon*, Weapon Focus.

* New feat described in Chapter 4 of this book.

Dragonwrack (Su): Evil dragons that strike a vassal of Bahamut or are struck by him suffer grievous wounds. At 4th level, a vassal of Bahamut deals $+2d6$ points of damage with each successful melee attack made against an evil creature of the dragon type.

Furthermore, any such creature that strikes the vassal with a natural weapon or melee weapon takes $1d6$ points of damage.

In both cases, half of the extra damage is permanent hit point drain.

A dragon that survives a battle against a vassal of Bahamut often bears terrible scars from the permanent drain of hit points.

Only a wish or miracle spell can restore hit points drained permanently by a vassal's dragonwrack ability.

At 7th level, the vassal deals $+3d6$ points of damage to evil dragons, and a dragon that strikes the vassal takes $1d6$ points of damage.

Again, in both cases, half of this damage is permanent drain.

At 10th level, the damage increases to $+4d6$ points and $2d6$ points, respectively.

VASSAL OF BAHAMUT SPELL LIST

Vassals of Bahamut choose their spells from the following list:

1st Level: bless, bless weapon, divine favor, endure elements, *lantern light, protection against evil, shield of faith.

2nd Level: align weapon, bear's endurance, bull's strength, change self, resist energy, shield other, undetachable alignment.

3rd Level: discern lies, magic circle against evil, protection from energy, *refreshment, searing light.

4th Level: dispel evil, divination, divine power, holy sword, tongues.

* New spell described in Chapter 6 of this book.

TABLE 5-22: THE VASSAL OF BAHAMUT

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Imperious aura, platinum armor	—	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Dragon senses, shared trove	0	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Bonus feat	1	0	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Dragonwrack (+2d6/1d6)	1	1	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Shared trove	1	1	0	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Bonus feat	1	1	1	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Dragonwrack (+3d6/1d6)	2	1	1	0
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Shared trove	2	2	1	1
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Bonus feat	2	2	1	1
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Dragonwrack (+4d6/2d6)	2	2	2	1

WONDERWORKER

Among spellcasters of all kinds, some are so devoted to the cause of good that they sacrifice some of their spellcasting ability in order to grow closer to the ideal of goodness they revere.

These are wonderworkers, practitioners of arcane or divine magic (or even psionics) whose righteousness and purity sets them apart from others—even from other good clerics. Like the sword of righteousness prestige class, the wonderworker class allows a spellcasting or psionic character to gain more exalted feats at the cost of a slightly slower spell progression.

Bards, clerics, druids, sorcerers, wizards, psions, and psychic warriors can all adopt this class, while more martially oriented characters generally choose the sword of righteousness class to accomplish the same goal.

No organization unites wonderworkers, though they are often found operating in the churches of good deities, good-aligned guilds or colleges, and other existing organizations devoted to virtuous causes.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a wonderworker, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Base Save Bonus: Will +5.

Feats: One exalted feat, plus either Favored of the Companions, Knight of Stars, or Servant of the Heavens. Spells: Able to cast 3rd-level arcane or divine spells, or to manifest 3rd-level psionic powers.

CLASS SKILLS

The wonderworker's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the wonderworker prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wonderworkers gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Bonus Exalted Feat: At every level, a wonderworker gets a bonus exalted feat.

These bonus feats must be drawn from among those identified as exalted feats in Chapter 4: Feats.

Bonus Spells per Day: For each level of wonderworker that a spellcasting character attains, he gains bonus spells to the number of spells per day he normally casts.

These bonus spells can be added to whatever levels of spells the wonderworker can currently cast, but no more than one can be added to the character's highest current spell level.

Arcane spellcasters (bards, sorcerers, and wizards) receive fewer bonus spells than divine spellcasters (clerics and druids), as shown on the table above.

For example, a 9th-level cleric who takes a single level in wonderworker can give himself one bonus 5th-level spell (his highest as a 9th-level cleric), and one bonus spell in one other level, 0 through 4th.

A 9th-level wizard who takes a level in wonderworker gains only one bonus spell, which she can give herself in any level, 0 through 5th.

A psion who adopts the wonderworker class receives bonus power points/day equal to one-half of the sum of his psion level and his wonderworker level.

A psychic warrior/wonderworker receives bonus power points/day equal to one-third of the sum of her psychic warrior level and her wonderworker level.

If a wonderworker has two spellcasting or psionic classes already, he must give the bonus spell or power points to a class in which he can cast at least 3rd-level spells or manifest at least 3rd-level powers.

If more than one class meets that requirement, he must choose which previous class gains the bonus.

He cannot split bonus spells or power points between two different spellcasting or psionic classes.

For example, a 5th-level cleric/5th-level wizard takes one level of wonderworker.

He can either take 2 bonus cleric spells or 1 bonus wizard spell, but he cannot take 1 of each.

Once a wonderworker has chosen how to apply his bonus spells or power points, they cannot be shifted.

TABLE 5-23: THE WONDERWORKER

Level	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special	Bonus Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save		Arcane	Divine
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Bonus exalted feat	1	2
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Bonus exalted feat	2	3
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Bonus exalted feat	1	2

BOOK OF VILE DARKNESS (3.0)

CANCER MAGE

Scurrying about in sewers, back alleys, and abandoned buildings, the cancer mage feeds upon the corpse of society.

The cancer mage hides in the darkness where no one wants to look, digging through trash long forgotten.

Cancer mages are some of the most disgusting individuals a character is ever likely to meet, for they revel in filth, disease, and decay.

They usually have their own foul goals, sometimes venerating deities of disease or corruption and other times spreading disease for its own sake.

Cancer mages use their power to equip themselves with a deadly array of weapons, but these are not the weapons of a warrior.

The cancer mage strikes from darkness.

He makes quick, poisonous attacks and then retreats, allowing his contaminated wounds to fester and hopefully kill his victims slowly.

Rogues, rangers, druids, and clerics are most likely to become cancer mages.

Rats, insects, worms, and diseases are the cancer mage's allies.

Cancer mages sometimes work in horrible, hidden societies of the disease-ridden underclass, such as beggars and thieves.

Sometimes they enjoy the company of assassins or vermin lords.

They hate good-aligned clerics and paladins—particularly paladins—with a burning passion.

Occasionally, an intelligent monster such as a troglodyte or a medusa will become a cancer mage, but these creatures are ostracized even by their own kind.

One might imagine, however, that an otuygh or vermin such as giant maggots and cockroaches would not mind the company of a cancer mage.

The most obvious allies of the cancer mage are undead creatures.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a cancer mage, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Save Bonus: Fort +5.

Skills: Heal 3 ranks, Hide 6 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 2 ranks, Move Silently 6 ranks.

Feats: Great Fortitude, Poison Immunity, Toughness.

Special: The cancer mage must have fallen victim to the ravages of a disease and must have taken damage from a poison.

CLASS SKILLS

The cancer mage's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Pick Pocket (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the cancer mage prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Cancer mages are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Sneak Attack (Ex): If a cancer mage can catch an opponent when she is unable to defend herself effectively from his attack, he can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Basically, any time the cancer mage's target would be denied her Dexterity bonus to AC (whether she actually has a Dexterity bonus or not), the cancer mage's attack deals +1d6 points of damage.

This extra damage increases by +1d6 points every four levels (+2d6 at 5th level and +3d6 at 9th level).

Should the cancer mage score a critical hit with a sneak attack, this extra damage is not multiplied.

It takes precision and penetration to hit a vital spot, so ranged attacks can only count as sneak attacks if the target is 30 feet away or less.

With a sap or an unarmed strike, a cancer mage can make a sneak attack that deals subdual damage instead of normal damage.

He cannot use a weapon that deals normal damage to deal subdual damage in a sneak attack, not even with the usual –

4 penalty, because he must make optimal use of his weapon in order to execute the sneak attack.

A cancer mage can only sneak attack a living creature with a discernible anatomy—undead, constructs, oozes, plants, and incorporeal creatures lack vital areas to attack.

Additionally, any creature immune to critical hits is similarly immune to sneak attacks.

Also, the cancer mage must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach a vital spot.

A cancer mage cannot sneak attack while striking at a creature with concealment or by striking the limbs of a creature whose vitals are beyond reach.

If a cancer mage gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as rogue levels), the bonuses to damage stack.

Disease Host (Ex): At 1st level, a cancer mage suffers no ill effects of diseases, except for purely cosmetic ones such as boils, pockmarks, watery eyes, blackened skin, hair loss, foul smell, and so on.

The cancer mage becomes a carrier of every disease he encounters, though he remains immune to most of their effects.

However, the cancer mage takes 1d6 points of damage per caster level if someone casts a cure disease spell or effect on him (he can make a Fortitude save to try to resist the effect).

Furthermore, if the cancer mage has a cancerous companion (see below), he loses all abilities gained from the companion for 1d10 days after being the subject of a cure disease spell.

Contagion (Sp): Beginning at 2nd level, the touch of a cancer mage carries a contagion spell once per day per class level. The DC for the target's saving throw is 13 + the cancer mage's Wisdom modifier.

Cancerous Companion (Ex): At 2nd level, a cancer grows within the cancer mage, forming a large tumor.

This cancerous growth gains intelligence and a personality distinct from the cancer mage.

The companion and the cancer mage can communicate telepathically.

When needed, the cancerous companion uses the cancer mage's scores for saves, ability scores other than Intelligence, and so forth.

The cancerous companion gains abilities as the cancer mage gains levels.

Cancer Mage Level	Companion Int	Ability
2nd	6	Blindsight 30 feet.
3rd	7	Can use a spell or spell-like ability of the cancer mage on its own as a standard action once per day, requiring no action on the part of the cancer mage.
4th	8	Can warn the cancer mage of danger, granting him the evasion ability.
5th	9	Can warn the cancer mage of danger, granting him the uncanny dodge (Dex bonus to AC) ability.
6th	10	Mind-affecting spells and effects have a 50% chance of affecting the companion rather than the cancer mage.
7th	11	Can use a spell or spell-like ability of the cancer mage on its own as a standard action three times per day, requiring no action on the part of the cancer mage.
8th	12	Can warn the cancer mage of danger, granting him the uncanny dodge (can't be flanked) ability.
9th	13	Can form a 1-ft. tendril of flesh capable of making touch attacks, including the cancer mage's contagion and poison spell-like abilities.
10th	14	Blindsight 60 feet.

Tatterdemalion (Ex): Gathering scraps of clothing and old, discarded rags, a 3rd-level cancer mage is able to make such articles into light armor with the following stats: armor bonus +4, maximum Dex bonus +5, armor check penalty –1, arcane spell failure 15%, speed 30 ft./20 ft., weight 20 lb.

Only a 3rd-level or higher cancer mage can wear this armor and gain these benefits; other wearers treat it as padded armor.

This armor is considered masterwork quality and can be fashioned into magic armor.

Poison (Sp): Once per day per class level beginning at 3rd level, the touch of a cancer mage carries a poison spell. The DC for the target's saving throw is 14 + the cancer mage's Wisdom modifier.

Children of the Night (Su): A 4th-level cancer mage commands the lesser creatures of the world and can call forth a swarm of 2d6 Small monstrous spiders or a pack of 4d8 dire rats or a swarm of 10d10 bats, once per day, as a standard action.

These creatures arrive in 2d6 rounds and serve the cancer mage (understanding his mental commands) for up to 10 minutes per class level.

Viral Agent (Su): At 5th level, a cancer mage befriends a disease or virus that infests his body.

He supernaturally enhances a disease, making it smarter by giving it a point of his own Intelligence.

He establishes a telepathic link with the disease that functions at a range of one mile per class level of the cancer mage.

The cancer mage can then attempt to infect a target with his viral agent, using his contagion ability.

If successful, the viral agent can tell the cancer mage telepathically what its host experiences.

In all other respects, the viral agent is a normal disease; if the victim fights it off or a cure disease spell is used, the disease and the viral agent die.

The cancer mage regains his Intelligence point 24 hours after the viral agent dies.

The cancer mage can create as many viral agents as he is willing to devote Intelligence points toward.

Infected Wound (Ex): Once per day per class level beginning at 6th level, a cancer mage can infect his foe with an infectious taint after making a successful melee attack.

The foe takes 1 point of Constitution damage and must make a Fortitude save (DC 10 + cancer mage's class level + cancer mage's Wis modifier) 1 hour later or take a further 1d6 points of Constitution damage.

Insect Plague (Sp): At 7th level, a cancer mage invokes insect plague once per day as a cleric of his class level.

Insect Armor (Su): By allowing insects and worms to crawl over his body, a 7th-level cancer mage gains a +4 natural armor bonus.

The cancer mage cannot wear armor heavier than light armor and keep this benefit, however.

Viral Ally (Su): In a fashion similar to the viral agent ability, a cancer mage of 8th level or higher can create a viral ally by devoting 3 points of Intelligence to a disease or virus in his system.

The cancer mage can then bestow his viral ally upon a humanoid victim using his contagion ability, and the viral ally can communicate telepathically with the cancer mage. The viral ally (and thus the cancer mage) controls its host as surely as with a dominate person spell, although the host gets no separate saving throw to avoid the dominate person effect. The viral ally is a normal disease, however, and the victim can fight it off with successful Fortitude saves or a cure disease spell, either of which kills the viral ally.

The cancer mage regains his missing Intelligence points 24 hours later.

A cancer mage can create as many viral allies as he is willing to devote Intelligence points toward.

Disease Form (Su): At 10th level, a cancer mage gains the ability to transform into a disease once per day. (This ability also affects up to 100 pounds of gear the cancer mage is carrying, plus tattered demilion armor, insect armor, and a cancerous companion).

As a disease, the cancer mage is intangible and invisible to standard methods of observation, even blindsight.

Creatures with the scent ability note a foulness in the air. The cancer mage cannot move, except with the wind (if any), or within a host.

The cancer mage may adopt his disease form as a standard action, attempting to infect a living creature within 100 feet.

A potential victim must succeed at a Fortitude save (DC 20) to avoid being infected with the cancer mage.

Any creature that comes within 10 feet of a cancer mage in disease form is subject to the saving throw to resist infection as well.

Once inside an infected host, the cancer mage deals 1d3 points of Constitution damage per day after a 24-hour incubation period.

The victim has no way of knowing that the cancer mage is anything other than a normal illness.

The cancer mage travels with the victim, aware of whatever the victim is aware of.

A number of times per day equal to the cancer mage's Charisma bonus, the cancer mage can attempt to force the victim to take one round's worth of actions of the cancer mage's choosing; a successful Will save (DC 18 + cancer mage's Wis modifier) allows the victim to resist this.

While controlling his victim, the cancer mage has access to all skills, feats, spells, and special abilities of the host, plus any of his own that he can use in his disembodied state.

The cancer mage can leave his host at any time, allowing the victim to recover normally.

The victim can also attempt to force the cancer mage out by making Fortitude saves as if the cancer mage were a normal disease.

Heal checks help the victim as they would normally.

A cure disease spell kills the cancer mage if he fails a Fortitude save (calculating the save DC as for spells of the same level).

Even if the cancer mage succeeds at the saving throw, he is forced to reassume his material form adjacent to the victim.

A cancer mage can remain in disease form as long as he desires, or he can return to his natural form and be done with the disease form for that day.

While in disease form, the cancer mage does not need to eat, sleep, or drink, and he does not age.

A cancer mage could remain dormant in a room for a hundred years, then take his material form or infect a new victim.

Table 5-1: The Cancer Mage

Class Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+0	Sneak attack +1d6, disease host
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+0	Contagion, cancerous companion
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+1	Tatterdemalion, poison
4th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Children of the night
5th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Sneak attack +2d6, viral agent
6th	+4	+5	+5	+2	Infected wound
7th	+5	+5	+5	+2	Insect plague, insect armor
8th	+6	+6	+6	+2	Viral ally
9th	+6	+6	+6	+3	Sneak attack +3d6
10th	+7	+7	+7	+3	Disease form

DEMONOLOGIST

A demonologist is a mortal who has devoted his life to the study of demons.

He is practiced in dealing with them, fighting them, and using them for his own gain.

He even gains some demon abilities due to his studies and devotion to the fiends of the Abyss.

Demonologists are always evil, although they might not think of themselves as such.

No character can get so close to the mind of utter corruption and come away unchanged.

Most demonologists were once wizards or sorcerers, although bards who delve into evil lore also frequently meet the requirements of the class.

Demonologists see themselves as researchers and keepers of lore that most people cannot handle.

Thus, they often sequester themselves away in libraries of dark knowledge.

They attempt to deal with demons on an equal footing—an extremely dangerous undertaking—and rarely interact with mortals.

When demonologists see the need, they emerge from their studies and use their dark powers to take or do what they want; then they return to their books and summoning circles.

PCs might come into conflict with a demonologist who is after some rare bit of lore or a magic item that they possess. Or the characters might need the help of a demonologist if they are planning to fight demons and need aid or information.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a demonologist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Chaotic evil.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 4 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 8 ranks.

Feats: Evil Brand, Sacrificial Mastery, Malign Spell Focus.

Special: Must be able to cast at least six arcane spells of the Conjuration school, one of which must be at least 3rd level.

CLASS SKILLS

The demonologist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Decipher Script (Int), Forgery (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Ride (Dex), Scry (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the demonologist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Demonologists are proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells: Beginning at 1st level, a demonologist gains the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells.

To cast a spell, the demonologist must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a demonologist with a Charisma of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Demonologist bonus spells are based on Charisma, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + Charisma modifier.

The demonologist's spell list appears below; a demonologist has access to any spell on the list and need not prepare those spells ahead of time, just like a sorcerer.

A demonologist casts spells just as a sorcerer does.

Charm Demon (Sp): A 1st-level demonologist can attempt to charm a chaotic evil outsider, as described in the charm person spell, once per day.

The demon does not get to use its spell resistance, though it can make a saving throw as normal (DC 11 + demonologist's Cha modifier).

Quasit Familiar (Ex): A 2nd-level demonologist gains a quasit as a familiar, whether he wants it or not.

If the demonologist already has a familiar, the quasit devours it and takes its place, but the character suffers no experience point loss.

The quasit is treated as a normal familiar, using the class level of the demonologist as the master's level (see the Familiars section in Chapter 3 of the Player's Handbook for familiar abilities).

Summoning Mastery (Su): When a demonologist of 3rd level or higher casts a summon monster spell, it is treated as the equivalent spell of two levels higher for purposes of summoning chaotic evil creatures.

For example, a demonologist refers to the summon monster IV list for chaotic evil outsiders when casting summon monster II.

At 6th level, the demonologist refers to the summoning list three levels higher than the one for the summon monster spell he is casting.

At 9th level, the demonologist refers to the list four levels higher.

Resistances (Su): A demonologist who reaches 4th level gains acid resistance 10, cold resistance 10, fire resistance 10, and electricity resistance 20.

Poison Immunity (Ex): A 5th-level demonologist is immune to poison.

Hold Demon (Sp): A 7th-level demonologist can attempt to hold a chaotic evil outsider, as described in the hold person spell, once per day.

The demon does not get to use its spell resistance, though it can make a saving throw as normal (DC 12 + demonologist's Cha modifier).

Telepathy (Su): An 8th-level demonologist can communicate telepathically with any creature within 100 feet that has a language, just as a tanar'ri can.

Dominate Demon (Sp): A 10th-level demonologist can attempt to dominate a chaotic evil outsider, as described in the dominate person spell, once per day.

The demon does not get its spell resistance, but it can make a saving throw as normal (DC 15 + demonologist's Cha modifier).

DEMONOLOGIST SPELL LIST

Demonologists choose their spells from the following list.

1st Level: bane, demonflesh, doom, protection from evil, protection from good, spores of the vrock, summon monster I, unnerving gaze.

2nd Level: bestow curse, dance of ruin.

demoncall, magic circle against evil, magic circle against good, protection from elements, stunning screech, summon monster II.

3rd Level: abyssal might, call dretch horde, corrupt summons, demon wings, dread word, dimensional anchor, lesser planar binding, summon monster III.

4th Level: bestow greater curse, call nightmare, cloud of the achaierai, dismissal, impotent possessor, imprison possessor, planar binding, summon monster IV.

Table 5-2: The Demonologist

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Charm demon	1	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Quasit familiar	1	1	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Summoning mastery +2	2	1	1	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Resistances	2	2	1	1
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Poison immunity	3	2	2	1
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Summoning mastery +3	3	3	2	2
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Hold demon	3	3	3	2
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Telepathy	4	3	3	3
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Summoning mastery +4	4	4	3	3
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Dominate demon	4	4	4	3

DIABOLIST

The diabolist is one who has thrown in her lot with the forces of hell.

Unlike the disciples of Asmodeus or other archdevils, the diabolist is not a servant of a specific powerful fiend, but instead is usually a mortal being who has seen the dark path as a means to gaining great power.

She does not serve devils—she wants to be one.

Diabolists are usually wizards, but sorcerers, clerics, and sometimes bards seek such devilry.

Diabolists usually develop a particular hatred for paladins and bland contempt for nonspellcasters.

Diabolists are often loners, but they occasionally work in sinister cabals.

They usually seek political power as well as magical power.

Diabolists often use their dire power to intimidate and destroy their enemies.

Because of their diabolism power, they are particularly skilled at dealing with good foes, and they focus their power on good-aligned characters when possible.

It is common for a diabolist to have devils working with her, but it is just as likely to find her with legions of undead, well-paid mercenaries, or fanatical cultists.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a diabolist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful evil.

Base Save Bonus: Will +5.

Skills: Bluff 3 ranks, Intimidate 3 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 8 ranks.

Feats: Evil Brand, Corrupt Spell.

Special: Must be able to cast shriveling.

Special: The character must offer her soul—but not necessarily her loyalty—to the forces of hell in exchange for power.

When the diabolist dies (permanently), her soul becomes the possession of a powerful devil.

The devil uses the soul as it sees fit.

CLASS SKILLS

The diabolist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Scry (Int), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the diabolist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Diabolists are proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells: When a diabolist attains 1st level, and at every level after that, the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, hit points beyond those received from the prestige class, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

This essentially means that she adds the new level of diabolist to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

For example, if Lady Mandrake, a 9th-level sorcerer, gains a level in diabolist, she gains new spells as if she had risen to 10th level in sorcerer, but uses the other diabolist aspects of level progression such as base attack bonus and save bonuses.

If she next gains a level of sorcerer, making her a 10th-level sorcerer/1st-level diabolist, she gains spells as if she had risen to 11th level as a sorcerer.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before she became a diabolist, she must decide to which class she adds the level of diabolist.

Diabolism (Ex): A diabolist can choose to grant one of her spells greater magical power once per day plus one additional time for every three class levels.

Any spell the diabolist casts that affects a target or area (one that does not include herself) gains the evil descriptor and deals +1d6 points of unholy damage to any good character affected by the spell.

For example, a fireball cast by a 6th-level wizard/1st-level diabolist deals 7d6 points of fire damage and 1d6 points of unholy damage.

A hold person spell cast by the same diabolist holds a humanoid target motionless and deals 1d6 points of unholy damage if the target is good.

At 5th level, the unholy damage increases to +2d6 points.

At 10th level, the unholy damage increases to +3d6 points.

Imp Familiar (Ex): A 2nd-level diabolist gains an imp as a familiar, whether she wants it or not.

If the diabolist already has a familiar, the imp devours it and takes its place.

The imp is treated as a normal familiar, using the class level of the diabolist as the wizard's level (see the Familiars section in Chapter 3 of the Player's Handbook for familiar abilities).

Vile Diabolism (Ex): An 8th-level diabolist can use her diabolism power to deal half the normal amount of extra unholy damage as vile damage (see Chapter 2 for an explanation of vile damage).

For example, a fireball cast by a 6th-level wizard/8th-level diabolist deals 10d6 points of fire damage and 2d6 points of unholy damage.

If the diabolist then rolls a 7 for the 2d6 points of unholy damage, she can (if she chooses) convert the unholy damage into 3 points of vile damage instead.

Table 5-3: The Diabolist

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells Per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Diabolism +1d6	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Imp familiar	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3		+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4		+1 level of existing class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Diabolism +2d6	+1 level of existing class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5		+1 level of existing class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5		+1 level of existing class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Vile diabolism	+1 level of existing class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6		+1 level of existing class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Diabolism +3d6	+1 level of existing class

DISCIPLE OF ASMODEUS

"Merciless lord of the Ninth Hell, keeper of all things forbidden and unknown, master of all you encounter, Asmodeus, I call on your dread name."

—Gilliard DeRosan

The disciple of Asmodeus is a lordly, domineering sort who craves unlimited power.

He is ruthless in his pursuits and uncaring of any who might get in his way.

He uses his power and influence to learn secrets, which in turn gain him more power, manipulate and command others, and enhance his own physical aspect.

Spellcasters (arcane or divine) often make the best disciples of Asmodeus.

Disciples of Asmodeus are a part of a large but secretive organization that crisscrosses most of civilized society.

Their hierarchy is rigid, with power-hungry members continually moving up and down the ranks.

The disciples of Asmodeus seek nothing less than world domination.

As such, their dread master often rewards them with the service of some minor devils or undead.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a disciple of Asmodeus, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful evil or neutral evil.

Skills: Bluff 4 ranks, Diplomacy 5 ranks, Sense Motive 4 ranks.

Feats: Disciple of Darkness, Evil Brand, Leadership.

Special: The sect of Asmodeus initiates its disciples in a horrific rite that involves the sacrifice of an intelligent being.

The sacrifice must be of someone with royal blood or of similar political significance.

CLASS SKILLS

The disciple of Asmodeus's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Innuendo (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (any) (Int), Listen (Wis), Scry (Int), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the disciple of Asmodeus prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Disciples of Asmodeus are proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells: When a disciple of Asmodeus attains 1st level, and at every other level after that, the character gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, hit points beyond those received from the prestige class, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

This essentially means that he adds the new level of disciple of Asmodeus to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly. For example, if Ulthanc, an 8th-level wizard, gains a level in disciple of Asmodeus, he gains new spells as if he had risen to 9th level in wizard, but uses the other disciple of Asmodeus aspects of level progression such as base attack bonus and save bonus.

If he next gains a level of wizard, making him a 9th-level wizard/1st-level disciple of Asmodeus, he gains spells as if he had risen to 10th level as a wizard.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before he became a disciple of Asmodeus, he must decide to which class he adds the level of disciple of Asmodeus.

Charm (Sp): Once per day, a disciple of Asmodeus can produce an effect identical to that of a charm person spell cast by a spellcaster of his effective caster level.

Learn Secret (Ex): Through trickery, deceit, and sometimes even intimidation, a disciple of Asmodeus can learn secrets otherwise unattainable.

At 1st level, the disciple can make a Gather Information check once per week with a +10 competency bonus.

For every two levels beyond 1st level, the disciple of Asmodeus can use this ability one more time per week (twice at 3rd level, three times at 5th level, and so on) until 9th level, when the disciple of Asmodeus can use the ability once per day.

Command (Sp): Once per day, a 2nd-level disciple of Asmodeus can produce an effect identical to that of a command spell cast by a spellcaster of his effective caster level.

Summon Hellcat (Sp): A 4th-level disciple of Asmodeus can summon 1 hellcat once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a spellcaster of his effective caster level.

A 9th-level disciple of Asmodeus gains the ability to summon 1d4 hellcats once per day.

Evil Authority (Sp): Once per day, at the command of a disciple of Asmodeus of 6th level or higher, all evil-aligned creatures within 50 feet that have fewer Hit Dice than the disciple must succeed at a Will saving throw (DC 10 + disciple's class level + disciple's Cha bonus) or recognize the disciple as their superior.

Affected creatures do not attack the disciple of Asmodeus and do as he commands as though affected by a mass suggestion spell.

This mind-affecting ability lasts for 24 hours.

Summon Major Devil (Sp): Once per week, a 8th-level disciple of Asmodeus can produce an effect identical to that of a greater planar ally spell to call a devil and work out a bargain for aid.

Greater Command (Sp): Once per day, a 9th-level disciple of Asmodeus can produce an effect identical to that of a greater command spell cast by a spellcaster of his effective caster level.

Dread Might (Ex): Drawing some of Asmodeus's power into himself, the disciple gains a permanent +2 divine bonus to Armor Class and on saving throws and attack rolls.

Table 5-4: The Disciple of Asmodeus

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells Per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Charm, learn secret	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Command	—
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Learn secret 2/week	+1 level of existing class
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Summon hellcat	—
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Learn secret 3/week	+1 level of existing class
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Evil authority	—
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Learn secret 4/week	+1 level of existing class
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6	Summon major devil	—
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6	Greater command, learn secret 1/day	+1 level of existing class
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	Dread might	+1 level of existing class

DISCIPLE OF BAALZEBUL

"Lord of the Flies!

Lord of the Lies!

Baalzebul, with your sly skill, your dark power—you are the master of my soul!"

—Israkahn the Liar

The disciple of Baalzebul is a liar, a cheat, and a thief.

She is more likely to kill a paladin while he sleeps than face him in direct combat.

She uses deceit and trickery to get what she wants, betraying even her family or closest friends to achieve her goals.

Her abilities make her an astute prevaricator and a sneaky backstabber, but she can wield her lord's powerful influence with everything from devils to flies if she needs to.

Rogues, assassins, bards, and sometimes rangers become disciples of Baalzebul.

Clerics of evil also adopt the class occasionally, if they are particularly taken with Baalzebul.

Disciples of Baalzebul rarely have allies.

They use and manipulate others but eventually betray them.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a disciple of Baalzebul, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Skills: Bluff 10 ranks, Diplomacy 4 ranks, Gather Information 4 ranks.

Feats: Disciple of Darkness.

Special: The sect of Baalzebul initiates new disciples in a terrible ritual that involves the sacrifice of an intelligent being.

The ritual must take place in the home of the sacrificial victim.

CLASS SKILLS

The disciple of Baalzebul's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Wis), Balance (Dex), Climb

(Str), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Innuendo (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Pick Pocket (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), and Use Magic Device (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the disciple of Baalzebul prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Disciples of Baalzebul are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, all light armors, but no shields.

Tongue of the Devil (Ex): A disciple of Baalzebul can speak with eloquence and believability, even when telling boldfaced lies, by using her cunning as well as her charm. When making Bluff checks, a disciple of Baalzebul adds her Intelligence modifier as well as her Charisma modifier to determine her check result.

Sneak Attack: If a disciple of Baalzebul of 2nd level or higher can catch an opponent when he is unable to defend himself effectively from her attack, she can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Basically, any time the disciple's target would be denied his Dexterity bonus to AC (whether he actually has a Dexterity bonus or not), the disciple's attack deals +1d6 points of damage.

This extra damage increases by +1d6 points every third level afterward (+2d6 at 5th level, +3d6 at 8th level).

Should the disciple score a critical hit with a sneak attack, this extra damage is not multiplied.

It takes precision and penetration to hit a vital spot, so ranged attacks can only count as sneak attacks if the target is 30 feet away or less.

With a sap or an unarmed strike, a disciple of Baalzebul can make a sneak attack that deals subdual damage instead of normal damage.

She cannot use a weapon that deals normal damage to deal subdual damage in a sneak attack, not even with the usual -4 penalty, because she must make optimal use of her weapon in order to execute the sneak attack.

A disciple of Baalzebul can only sneak attack a living creatures with a discernible anatomy—undead, constructs, oozes, plants, and incorporeal creatures lack vital areas to attack.

Additionally, any creature immune to critical hits is similarly immune to sneak attacks.

Also, the disciple of Baalzebul must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach a vital spot.

The disciple cannot sneak attack while striking at a creature with concealment or by striking the limbs of a creature whose vitals are beyond reach.

If a disciple of Baalzebul gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as rogue levels), the bonuses to damage stack.

Suggestion (Sp): Once per day, a 3rd-level disciple of Baalzebul can produce an effect identical to that of a suggestion spell.

The DC to resist the disciple's entreaties is 10 + disciple's class level + disciple's Cha bonus.

Summon Osyluth (Sp): A 4th-level disciple of Baalzebul can summon 1 osyluth once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Insect Plague (Sp): Once per day, a 6th-level disciple of Baalzebul can produce an effect identical to that of a insect plague spell cast by a 15th-level spellcaster.

The insects summoned are always biting flies.

Beguiling Nature (Sp): Every other day, a 7th-level disciple of Baalzebul can produce an effect identical to the mass charm spell, with a Will save DC of 10 + disciple's class level + disciple's Cha bonus.

Summon Cornugon (Sp): A 9th-level disciple of Baalzebul can summon 1 cornugon once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

King of Lies (Ex): A 10th-level disciple of Baalzebul gains a +4 inherent bonus to Charisma.

Table 5-5: The Disciple of Baalzebul

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Tongue of the devil
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Sneak attack +1d6
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Suggestion
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Summon osyluth
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Sneak attack +2d6
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Insect plague
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Beguiling nature
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Sneak attack +3d6
9th	+7	+3	+6	+6	Summon cornugon
10th	+8	+3	+7	+7	King of lies

DISCIPLE OF DISPATER

"Locked in an iron fortress within an iron city in the festering iron pit of Dis, Lord Dispater is master of all he surveys!"

—Ustyhrin-ja

The disciple of Dispater is a warlike general of evil.

He is defensive-minded and eager to have others fight for him.

When he must fight, he does so on his terms and on his chosen battleground.

Disciples of Dispater verge on paranoia and are thus distrustful of everyone.

They have mystical power over iron that allows them to grant themselves even greater abilities in battle.

Fighters, rangers, and rogues become disciples of Dispater, and clerics affiliated with the archdevil also adopt the class.

They are mighty soldiers, dealing terrible damage with their iron swords or axes.

Disciples of Dispater have few true allies, although they frequently employ mercenaries and other underlings.

All disciples of Dispater have some sort of headquarters that they make as defensible as they can.

High-level disciples of the archdevil command great fortresses and their own armies.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a disciple of Dispater, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Feats: Disciple of Darkness, Expertise, Power Attack.
Special: Dispaters sect initiates new disciples in a terrible ritual that involves the sacrifice of an intelligent being atop an altar made of iron.

The ritual must take place in the presence of an erinyes, who reports back to Dispater afterward.

CLASS SKILLS

The disciple of Dispater's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Innuendo (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), and Spot (Wis). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the disciple of Dispater prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Disciples of Dispater are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Device Lore (Ex): A disciple of Dispater can find traps made mostly of metal just as a rogue can.

Furthermore, he gains a +2 competency bonus on Disable Device checks against devices made mostly of metal.

Iron Hews (Su): Once per day per point of Constitution bonus, a 2nd-level disciple of Dispater may add a +3 divine bonus on damage from attacks made that round.

Rusting Grasp (Sp): Once per day, a 3rd-level disciple of Dispater can produce an effect identical to that of the rusting grasp spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Iron Power (Ex): When using an iron or steel weapon, a 4th-level disciple of Dispater gains a +1 insight bonus on attack and damage rolls.

Furthermore, his threat range is doubled as if he were using a keen weapon.

At 8th level, the insight bonus improves to +2, and the threat range triples.

This ability does not stack with the keen weapon quality, but it does stack with the Improved Critical feat.

Summon Erinyes (Sp): A 5th-level disciple of Dispater can summon 1 erinyes once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

A 9th-level disciple of Dispater can summon 1d4 erinyes once per day.

Greater Iron Hews (Su): Once per day per point of Constitution bonus, a 6th-level disciple of Dispater may add a +6 divine bonus on damage from attacks made that round. While this bonus does not stack with the iron hews ability, the abilities are separate: A disciple of Dispater with a Constitution bonus of +3 can use each ability three times per day.

Ironskin (Sp): Once per day, a 7th-level disciple of Dispater can produce an effect identical to that of the stoneskin spell cast by a 15th-level caster upon himself only.

Iron Body (Sp): Once per day, a 10th-level disciple of Dispater can produce an effect identical to that of an iron body spell cast by a 18th-level caster.

Table 5-6: The Disciple of Dispater

Class Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+2	+2	Device lore
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Iron hews
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+3	Rusting grasp
4th	+4	+4	+4	+4	Iron power +1
5th	+5	+4	+4	+4	Summon erinyes
6th	+6	+5	+5	+5	Greater iron hews
7th	+7	+5	+5	+5	Ironskin
8th	+8	+6	+6	+6	Iron power +2
9th	+9	+6	+6	+6	—
10th	+10	+7	+7	+7	Iron body

DISCIPLE OF MAMMON

"Almighty Mammon, lord of lust and king of covetousness, I call upon your great might to get what I want.

I prostrate myself before you and your relentless power.

Bring me my heart's desire."

—Zbavra the Witch-Queen

The disciple of Mammon takes what she wants any way she can.

She is quick to betray her friends and allies to get ahead, and she will put herself in an embarrassing or awkward position if it ultimately leads to what she wants.

The disciple of Mammon has no honor, no shame, and no scruples.

Her abilities help her not only to lie, cheat, and steal, but also to avoid danger at the expense of others.

Evil rogues and bards sometimes become disciples of Mammon, particularly those who are more interested in stealing than killing.

Disciples of Mammon generally operate alone.

Although they might join a guild or operate with allies, disciples of Mammon betray their companions so quickly that they soon develop a poor reputation.

For this reason, among others, Mammon's disciples are often on the move, one step ahead of those they have betrayed, cheated, and robbed.

Goblinoid creatures are sometimes drawn to the service of Mammon—as is the occasional evil dragon (usually one that deals with the outside world, not a remain-in-its-lair sort of dragon).

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a disciple of Mammon, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Appraise 6 ranks, Open Lock 4 ranks, Pick Pocket 4 ranks.

Feats: Disciple of Darkness.

Special: The character must go through a disgusting and humiliating sexual ritual and betray her closest friend to an evil end before she can properly serve her new master.

CLASS SKILLS

The disciple of Mammon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Forgery (Int), Hide (Dex), Innuendo (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (any) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Pick Pocket (Dex), Profession (any) (Wis), Search (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.
Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the disciple of Mammon prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Disciples of Mammon are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, but no type of armor or shields.

Lie (Su): A disciple of Mammon gains a +4 competence bonus on Bluff checks and spell resistance of 11 + disciple level against spells that reveal falsehood, such as zone of truth and discern lies, even when spell resistance is normally not allowed (such as with discern lies).

Cheat (Sp): Once per day per class level, a disciple of Mammon can produce an effect identical to that of a cheat spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Thief (Ex): A 3rd-level disciple of Mammon gains a +4 competence bonus on Pick Pocket and Open Lock checks.

Steal (Sp): A 3rd-level disciple of Mammon can call a single unattended object weighing no more than 5 pounds to her as if using telekinesis.

This functions as the spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Divert Attack (Ex): Three times per day, a 4th-level disciple of Mammon can maneuver events so that an opponent's melee attack meant for her is actually directed at another character within the attacker's reach.

The new target must also be a foe of the attacker.

If there is no such foe within reach, the maneuver fails.

Summon Osyluth (Sp): A 5th-level disciple of Mammon can summon 1 osyluth once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Take Object (Ex): A 6th-level disciple of Mammon gains a +4 competence bonus on attempts to disarm a foe, and she draws no attacks of opportunity for making an attempt unarmed.

Enhance Value (Ex): By careful, slight modifications, a 7th-level disciple of Mammon can increase the value of a nonmagical item of value, such as a gem, an art object, or a piece of equipment.

The disciple spends 1 hour performing these modifications and then makes an Appraise check, increasing the value of the object by 1% per point of the check result.

A disciple of Mammon cannot enhance something with a readily obvious value, such as a coin, and she cannot enhance the same object twice.

Divert Spell (Ex): Once per day, an 8th-level disciple of Mammon can maneuver events so that an opponent's spell targeted on her is actually targeted at another instead. The new target must be within range and must also be a foe of the attacker.

If there is no such foe within reach, the maneuver fails.

Nondetection (Sp): A 9th-level disciple of Mammon can constantly produce an effect identical to a nondetection spell cast by an 18th-level caster.

This ability cannot be dispelled, but it can be suppressed.

Summon Gelugon (Sp): A 10th-level disciple of Mammon can summon 1 gelugon once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by an 18th-level caster.

Table 5–7: The Disciple of Mammon

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+0	+2	+2	Lie
2nd	+2	+0	+3	+3	Cheat
3rd	+3	+1	+3	+3	Thief, steal
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Divert attack
5th	+4	+1	+4	+4	Summon osyluth
6th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Take object
7th	+6	+2	+5	+5	Enhance value
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Divert spell
9th	+7	+3	+6	+6	Nondetection
10th	+8	+3	+7	+7	Summon gelugon

DISCIPLE OF MEPHISTOPHELES

"Mephistopheles, Lord of Hellfire and Duke of Brimstone, I call upon you in your fiery elegance.

I pledge myself to you, rightful King of Hell.

One day your dark power will reign supreme."

—Nhagruul, hellfire master

The disciple of Mephistopheles wields hellfire as his weapon, striking down all who oppose him.

He focuses on all things fire-related, as is fitting with the preoccupation of the archdevil he serves.

Clerics, wizards, and sorcerers are the most frequent converts to Mephistopheles, although virtually any class can learn to wield the deadly power of hellfire.

Disciples of Mephistopheles are equally comfortable alone or in gatherings: covens of evil schemers and destructive megalomaniacs.

Although the company of devils is pleasant, disciples of Mephistopheles just as frequently find themselves among hell hounds, salamanders, and other evil fire creatures.

Fire giants often attempt to become disciples of Mephistopheles.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a disciple of Mephistopheles, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Feats: Disciple of Darkness, Evil Brand.

Special: The sect of Mephistopheles welcomes new disciples with a terrible ritual that involves the sacrifice of an intelligent being in magical fire.

CLASS SKILLS

The disciple of Mephistopheles's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Innuendo (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (any) (Wis), Ride (Dex), Scry (Int), Search (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.
Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the disciple of Mephistopheles prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Disciples of Mephistopheles are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Hellfire Grasp (Su): A disciple of Mephistopheles can deal 1d6 points of fire damage as a touch attack at will.

This damage is added to damage dealt by other unarmed attacks.

Fire Adept (Su): A disciple of Mephistopheles who can cast spells gains a +1 bonus to caster level when casting a spell with the fire descriptor.

Fire Resistance (Su): At 2nd level, a disciple of Mephistopheles gains fire resistance 10.

At 6th level, this becomes fire resistance 20.

Hellfire Blast (Su): A 3rd-level disciple of Mephistopheles can release a gout of hellfire from his hand at will, dealing 4d6 points of fire damage as a ranged touch attack.

The range for this attack is 30 feet.

Flare (Sp): Once per day per class level, a disciple of Mephistopheles can produce an effect identical to that of a flare spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Summon Hamatula (Sp): A 5th-level disciple of Mephistopheles can summon 1 hamatula once per day. This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

A 9th-level disciple can summon 1d4 hamatulas once per day.

Hellfire (Sp): Three times per day, a 6th-level disciple of Mephistopheles can produce an effect identical to that of a hellfire spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Fire Shield (Sp): Twice per day, a 7th-level disciple of Mephistopheles can produce an effect identical to that of a fire shield spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Hellfire Storm (Sp): Twice per day, an 8th-level disciple of Mephistopheles can produce an effect identical to that of the hellfire storm spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Body of Flame (Su): A 10th-level disciple of Mephistopheles can transform his body into flame for up to 10 minutes once per day.

He gains fire immunity and damage reduction 30/+1, and anyone he touches must succeed at a Reflex save (DC 15) or catch fire.

The flame burns for 1d4 rounds (see Catching on Fire in Chapter 3 of the DUNGEON MASTER's Guide).

A burning creature can take a move-equivalent action to put out the flame.

Creatures hitting a disciple of Mephistopheles with natural weapons or unarmed attacks take 2d6 points of fire damage and also catch fire unless they succeed at a Reflex save (DC 15).

Table 5–8: The Disciple of Mephistopheles

Class Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+2	+2	Hellfire grasp, fire adept
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Fire resistance 10
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+3	Hellfire blast
4th	+4	+4	+4	+4	Flare
5th	+5	+4	+4	+4	Summon hamatula
6th	+6	+5	+5	+5	Hellfire, fire resistance 20
7th	+7	+5	+5	+5	Fire shield
8th	+8	+6	+6	+6	Hellfire storm
9th	+9	+6	+6	+6	—
10th	+10	+7	+7	+7	Body of flame

LIFEDRINKER

Amid the ranks of the undead, the vampires are some of the most feared creatures that stalk the night.

Yet even those cursed with vampirism have those that they respect and fear.

One such secretive group has many names, but most often they are called lifedrinks.

Lifedrinks are vampires who have been undead for a very long time, honing their evil abilities to the fullest.

They focus on their inherent ability to feed upon the living. Vampire wizards, sorcerers, and clerics make the best lifedrinks, for the primary ability of the lifedrinker is to turn life energy and blood stolen from another into magical power.

Like most vampires, lifedrinks are likely to have a host of charmed guardians, vampire spawn, and other servants. They often keep a small number of living beings to feed upon, referring to the captives as their “cattle”.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a lifedrinker, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 6 ranks, Spellcraft 6 ranks.

Special: Must be a vampire.

CLASS SKILLS

The lifedrinker's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Hide (Dex), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (any) (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the lifedrinker prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A lifedrinker is proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Lifewell (Ex): A lifedrinker stores the life energy that it steals in a reservoir within itself called a lifewell.

From this lifewell, the lifedrinker draws the power needed to use their its abilities.

A lifedrinker gains lifewell points by bestowing negative levels and by dealing Constitution drain.

Each negative level bestowed by the vampire's energy drain ability grants 2 lifewell points.

Each point of Constitution drained grants 1 lifewell point.

The lifewell of a lifedrinker can hold a maximum of 3 points per lifedrinker level.

Lifewell points gained when the lifewell is already full are wasted.

A lifedrinker with 0 lifewell points must succeed at a Will saving throw (DC 20) or go temporarily insane, attacking any living creature within sight until the lifewell has at least 1 point per lifedrinker level.

A successful saving throw means that the lifedrinker need not make a saving throw against this temporary insanity until one week has passed—and even then only if the lifewell has remained at 0 points throughout the week.

Invigorate (Ex): A lifedrinker can spend 1 lifewell point to gain 1d6 temporary hit points.

These hit points last 24 hours, and while they do not stack with those granted by other sources of temporary hit points, they do stack with more hit points gained from the invigorate ability, so a lifedrinker may spend multiple lifewell points to gain more temporary hit points.

No more lifewell points may be spent on this ability in any given day than the lifedrinker has levels.

Spell Boost (Empower) (Ex): If a lifedrinker of 2nd level or higher casts spells, it may spend 4 lifewell points to empower a spell as if using the Empower Spell feat. The spell slot and level of the spell do not change.

Spell Boost (Heighten) (Ex): If a lifedrinker of 3rd level or higher casts spells, it may spend a variable number of lifewell points to heighten a spell as if using the Heighten Spell feat.

For every 2 lifewell points devoted to the spell boost, the spell's effective level is treated as one higher for purposes of save DC and other effects.

For example, if a lifedrinker spends 4 lifewell points to boost a fireball spell, the spell is treated as a 5th-level spell when calculating the Reflex save DC, and the boosted fireball can penetrate a minor globe of invulnerability, which a 3rd-level fireball cannot.

The spell slot and level of the spell do not change.

Special Attack Boost (Empower) (Ex): A 4th-level lifedrinker can spend 4 lifewell points to empower a special attack, increasing its variable, numeric effects by a factor of 1.5.

The special attack is empowered for one use only.

For example, a lifedrinker empowering its blood drain ability would drain 1d3 points of Constitution, multiplied by 1.5.

A lifedrinker could also use this ability to summon more creatures using the children of the night ability it gains as a vampire.

Some lifedrinkers might have other special abilities that they can use with this ability; a sea hag vampire lifedrinker, for example, could use this to empower her horrific appearance.

Blood Servant (Ex): By spending 10 lifewell points, a 5th-level lifedrinker can call forth a lesser planar ally (evil only), as per the spell of the same name.

The ally automatically serves the lifedrinker for 24 hours.

Boost Defenses (Ex): At 5th level, a lifedrinker can spend 8 lifewell points to add +2 to its natural armor bonus and turn resistance, add +10 to its cold resistance and electricity resistance, and increase its damage reduction to 20/+2.

The effects last for 24 hours.

Spell Boost (Maximize) (Ex): If a lifedrinker of 6th level or higher casts spells, it can spend 6 lifewell points to maximize a spell as if using the Maximize Spell feat.

The spell slot and level of the spell do not change.

Greater Blood Drain (Ex): At 7th level, a lifedrinker's blood drain ability now deals 1d6 points of Constitution drain.

Special Attack Boost (Maximize) (Ex): A lifedrinker of 7th level or higher can spend 6 lifewell points to maximize all variable, numeric effects of a special attack.

The special attack is maximized for one use only.

A lifedrinker using this ability to maximize its greater blood drain ability, for example, would deal 6 points of Constitution drain.

A lifedrinker could also use this ability to summon the maximum number of creatures using the children of the night ability it gains as a vampire.

Some lifedrinkers might have other special abilities that they can boost in a similar fashion.

Spell Boost (Quicken) (Ex): If a lifedrinker of 8th level or higher casts spells, it can spend 8 lifewell points to quicken one of its spells, as if using the Quicken Spell feat.

The spell slot and level of the spell do not change.

Greater Invigorate (Ex): Whenever a 9th-level lifedrinker uses its invigorate ability, it gains a +1 enhancement bonus to Strength for each lifewell point spent.

If multiple lifewell points are spent at the same time, the bonus is correspondingly larger.

A lifedrinker that spends 10 lifewell points all at once on invigorate gains 10d6 temporary hit points and a +10 enhancement bonus to Strength.

But if the lifedrinker spends 5 lifewell points in one round and 5 more points in the next, it has 10d6 temporary hit points but only a +5 enhancement bonus to Strength.

The bonus to Strength lasts for 24 hours.

Blood Revel (Ex): Once a 10th-level lifedrinker drains any blood from a victim, it can choose to enter a state called a blood revel as a free action at the beginning of its next turn and remain in that state for 10 rounds.

In this state, the lifedrinker gains a +4 profane bonus to Strength, its damage reduction increases to 25/+3, its fast healing increases to 10 points per round, and it may ignore its weakness toward garlic, mirrors, holy symbols, and running water, as well as its vulnerability to sunlight.

However, during the blood revel, the lifedrinker cannot flee from a living foe, and must attack physically every round.

A hasted lifedrinker in a blood revel could use its extra partial action to cast a spell as long as it also made a melee attack that round.

A blood revel ends when the lifedrinker chooses it to end, when 10 rounds are over, or when no living foes can be reached by a full attack, a move and an attack, or a charge. When the blood revel ends, the lifedrinker must reach its coffin home within 2 hours or be utterly destroyed, as if it were reduced to 0 hit points.

It must remain in its coffin for as long as it was in its revel, plus the amount of time it took to reach its coffin.

Table 5-9: The Lifedrinker

Class Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Lifewell, invigorate
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	Spell boost (empower)
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Spell boost (heighten), special attack boost (empower)
4th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Special attack boost (heighten)
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Blood servant, boost defenses
6th	+4	+5	+5	+5	Spell boost (maximize)
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	Greater blood drain, special attack boost (maximize)
8th	+6	+6	+6	+6	Spell boost (quicken)
9th	+6	+6	+6	+6	Greater invigorate
10th	+7	+7	+7	+7	Blood revel

MORTAL HUNTER

Although fiends prize the souls of mortals tempted to evil, sometimes a mortal must simply be slain.

Such a mortal, often an obstacle to a powerful fiend's evil schemes, finds herself the target of a mortal hunter. Mortal hunters are fiends that specialize in killing mortals. For purposes of this prestige class, "mortal" is a term meaning any creature not of the outsider, undead, construct, or fey types.

To practice their hunting skills, fiends capture mortals and drag them to their infernal realms where they are freed, then tracked and killed.

A mortal hunter is not only good at tracking and killing mortals, but it learns to use mortal skins to form disguises so that it can infiltrate mortal societies and trick individuals, drawing them into traps.

If a mortal hunter has a character class, it is often ranger or fighter.

Mortal hunters usually work alone, but sometimes have lesser fiends to use as shock troops or to help spring ambushes and traps.

They occasionally use hounds—howlers, displacer beasts, hell hounds, or similar creatures—in their hunts.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a mortal hunter, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Type: Any outsider.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Move Silently 3 ranks, Speak Language (Common), Wilderness Lore 5 ranks.

Feats: Alertness, Mortalbane, Track.

CLASS SKILLS

The mortal hunter's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Disguise (Cha), Hide (Dex), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), and Wilderness Lore (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the mortal hunter prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Mortal hunters are proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells: A mortal hunter gains the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells.

To cast a spell, the mortal hunter must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a mortal hunter with a Charisma of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Mortal hunter bonus spells are based on Charisma, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + Cha modifier.

When Table 5–10 shows 0 spells of a given level, such as 0 1st-level spells at 1st level, the mortal hunter gets only bonus spells.

A mortal hunter without a bonus spell for that level cannot yet cast a spell of that level.

The mortal hunter's spell list appears below; it has access to any spell on the list and need not prepare those spells ahead of time, just as a sorcerer.

A mortal hunter casts spells just as a sorcerer does.

Mortal Hunting (Ex): A mortal hunter gains a bonus against mortals due to its extensive study of them and training in the proper combat techniques.

The mortal hunter gains a +1 bonus on attack and damage rolls against mortals and the same bonus on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Wilderness Lore checks when using these skills against mortals.

The damage bonus applies to ranged weapons only against targets within 30 feet (the mortal hunter cannot strike with deadly accuracy beyond that range).

The bonus does not apply to damage against creatures that are immune to critical hits.

At 3rd, 6th, and 9th level, the mortal hunter's bonus associated with mortals goes up by +1.

This bonus stacks with a ranger's favored enemy bonus.

Mortal Skin (Su): By magically grafting bits of mortal flesh to its own body, a mortal hunter gains the ability at 1st level to transform (as the polymorph self spell) into any humanoid mortal form.

At 5th level, a mortal hunter can polymorph into any mortal form except that of a dragon.

At 8th level, any mortal form can be adopted.

If the flesh used is from the exact individual being imitated, the duration is permanent.

If the flesh is from a being of the same type as the form adopted, the duration is 1 hour.

If the flesh is not the same type as the form adopted, the duration is 10 minutes.

In all cases, the mortal hunter can dismiss the ability as a standard action.

Otherwise, this ability works as the polymorph self spell, and the mortal hunter can call upon it once per day.

Detect Mortals (Su): A 2nd-level mortal hunter can use detect mortals at will.

This ability duplicates the effect of detect undead cast by a 15th-level caster, except that mortals are detected.

Boost Spell-Like Ability: At 2nd level, a mortal hunter gains this feat as a bonus feat.

Smite Mortals (Su): Once per day, a mortal hunter of 4th level or higher may attempt to smite mortals with one normal melee attack.

It adds its Wisdom modifier (if positive) to its attack roll and deals 2 extra points of damage per class level; for example, an 8th-level mortal hunter armed with a longsword would deal 1d8+16 points of damage, plus 3 points of damage for its mortal hunting ability, plus any additional bonuses for high Strength or magical effects.

If the mortal hunter accidentally smites a creature that is not a mortal, the smite has no effect but is still used up for that day.

Spurn Mortal Magic (Su): A 5th-level mortal hunter applies its Wisdom modifier (if positive) as an additional bonus on all saving throws against spells and spell-like abilities used by mortals.

Will saving throws thus add double the normal Wisdom modifier.

Claws of the Overfiend (Ex): At 7th level, the damage dealt by all of the mortal hunter's natural attacks increases by one step.

Use the table in the Size Increases section in the introduction of the Monster Manual to determine the proper die increase.

For example, a bite that deals 1d6+2 points of damage now deals 1d8+2 points of damage.

Mortalbane Shout (Su): An 8th-level mortal hunter can, once per day, give a shout that stuns for 1 round all mortals within 50 feet who fail a Fortitude save (DC 10 + Charisma bonus + class levels).

Slay Mortal (Su): A 10th-level mortal hunter can attempt to slay a mortal with its touch once per day.

If the mortal hunter succeeds at a melee touch attack, the mortal must make a Fortitude saving throw (DC 10 + class level + mortal hunter's Cha modifier) or die instantly.

MORTAL HUNTER SPELL LIST

Mortal hunters choose their spells from the following list.

1st Level: cause fear, charm person, detect good, heartache, protection from good, sleep, unnerving gaze.

2nd Level: detect thoughts, evil eye, hold person, magic circle against good, see invisibility, web, wither limb.

3rd Level: flesh ripper, mirror sending, nondetection, scrying, suggestion, vile lance, wrack.

4th Level: arcane eye, call dretch horde, locate creature, morality undone, phantasmal killer, resonating resistance.

Table 5–10: The Mortal Hunter

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Mortal hunting +1, mortal skin (any humanoid)	0	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Detect mortals, Boost Spell-Like Ability	1	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Mortal hunting +2	1	0	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Smite mortals	1	1	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Spurn mortal magic, mortal skin (any nondragon)	1	1	0	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Mortal hunting +3	1	1	1	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Claws of the overfiend	2	1	1	0
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Mortalbane shout	2	1	1	1
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Mortal hunting +4	2	2	1	1
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Slay mortal, mortal skin (any)	2	2	2	1

SOUL EATER

Bane of all living creatures, the soul eater is a monstrous being that feeds on the very essence of life force.

Twisted and evil—even by the standards of creatures such as beholders, lamias, and mind flayers—the soul eater is feared by all creatures that live.

Soul eaters are often confused with vampires or other undead, but they are decidedly alive, making their actions all the more heinous.

Evil creatures such as the aforementioned beholders, lamias, and mind flayers become soul eaters, as do destrachans, yuan-ti, trolls, harpies, and medusas.

The occasional giant or dragon finds the path of the soul eater too tempting to resist.

It is even possible for good-aligned creatures such as lammasus and unicorns to turn evil and become soul eaters.

Soul eaters always work alone, although they may have enthralled or enslaved servants.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a soul eater, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Type: Any living nonhumanoid (monstrous humanoid is acceptable).

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 2 ranks.

Feats: Alertness, Weapon Focus (claw or other natural weapon).

Special: Soul eaters are usually created against their will. Sometimes, the emissary of an evil god or a powerful fiend approaches a monster on the verge of death.

In exchange for continued life, the creature must feed on souls thereafter.

More rarely, a creature desiring the ability to feed on souls undergoes a forbidden, profane ritual that allows it to become a soul eater.

CLASS SKILLS

The soul eater's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (any) (Wis), Search (Int), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the soul eater prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Soul eaters are proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Energy Drain (Su): A soul eater gains the ability to drain energy, bestowing negative levels upon its victims.

Beginning at 1st level, the touch of a soul eater bestows one negative level on its target.

At 7th level, the soul eater bestows two negative levels with a touch.

Soul Strength (Su): When a 2nd-level soul eater uses its energy drain ability, it gains a +4 enhancement bonus to Strength for 24 hours.

Soul Blast (Su): When a 3rd-level soul eater uses its energy drain ability, it may project a 100-foot ray of force that deals 1d6 points of damage per soul eater level against one target.

The target is allowed a Reflex saving throw to avoid the damage (DC 10 + soul eater's class level + soul eater's Cha bonus).

This supernatural ability can be used once per day, and only on a day when the soul eater has drained levels.

Soul Enhancement (Su): When a 4th-level soul eater uses its energy drain ability, it gains a +2 enhancement bonus on all saving throws, ability checks, and skill checks for 24 hours.

This bonus stacks with any enhancement bonuses gained to ability scores that apply to saves or checks.

Soul Endurance (Su): When a 5th-level soul eater uses its energy drain ability, it gains a +4 enhancement bonus to Constitution for 24 hours.

Soul Radiance (Su): If a 6th-level soul eater completely drains a creature of energy, it may adopt the creature's soul radiance, taking the victim's form, appearance, and abilities (as the shapechange spell) for 24 hours.

Soul Agility (Su): When an 8th-level soul eater uses its energy drain ability, it gains a +4 enhancement bonus to Dexterity for 24 hours.

Soul Slave (Su): If a 9th-level soul eater completely drains a creature of energy, the victim becomes a wight under the command of the soul eater.

Soul Power (Su): After a 10th-level soul eater has drained energy, all spell-like and supernatural abilities gain a +2 profane bonus to their saving throw DC for 24 hours.

Further, any and all spell-like or supernatural abilities the soul eater possesses may be used twice as often as normal during that 24-hour period.

For example, if an aboleth soul eater drains energy, it may use its enslave power six times per day rather than three times per day.

Table 5–11: The Soul Eater

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+2	+2	Energy drain 1
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Soul strength
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+3	Soul blast
4th	+4	+4	+4	+4	Soul enhancement
5th	+5	+4	+4	+4	Soul endurance
6th	+6	+5	+5	+5	Soul radiance
7th	+7	+5	+5	+5	Energy drain 2
8th	+8	+6	+6	+6	Soul agility
9th	+9	+6	+6	+6	Soul slave
10th	+10	+7	+7	+7	Soul power

THRALL OF DEMOGORGON

“The dual-lived, dual-willed prince of the Abyss, master of the mysterious and king of the deviants, Demogorgon, you are my lord!”

—Qill

The thrall of Demogorgon is a perversion of his race—and a madman.

He seeks out the morbid and the bizarre, and he thrives on the chaotic nature of mutation and deformity.

In the service of his terrible master, he attempts to spread dissent, madness, and conflict.

He works to topple that which provides order and pervert that which is true.

Multiclass characters make the best thralls of Demogorgon, because he appreciates their versatility.

A thrall of Demogorgon usually works alone, and his greatest enemies are often other thralls of Demogorgon, although he hates all other demon prince thralls as well.

Other enemies include good-aligned characters and creatures—actually, thralls of Demogorgon despise everyone.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a thrall of Demogorgon, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Chaotic evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 2 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 2 ranks, Knowledge (any other) 2 ranks.

Feats: Willing Deformity, Thrall to Demon.

Special: Must be able to cast 1st-level spells or make sneak attacks.

Special: A thrall of Demogorgon is initiated in a horrific rite that involves the sacrifice of an intelligent being dedicated to Demogorgon.

This ceremony must take place on unhallowed ground, at night, in the presence of a demon.

CLASS SKILLS

The thrall of Demogorgon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (any) (Int), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (any) (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the thrall of Demogorgon prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A thrall of Demogorgon is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Bonus Feat or Spells: When a thrall of Demogorgon attains 1st, 4th, 7th, and 10th level, the character gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class, or else he gains a bonus feat of his choice.

If the thrall chooses +1 spellcasting level, he does not gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, hit points beyond those received from the prestige class, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting. This essentially means that he adds the new level to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before he became a thrall of Demogorgon, he must decide to which class he adds the level for purposes of determining spells per day.

A thrall of Demogorgon is free to choose the bonus feat at one opportunity and the spellcasting level the next time the decision arises, or vice versa.

Characters who are not spellcasters must choose the bonus feat.

Scaly Flesh (Ex): A 1st-level thrall of Demogorgon gains dark scaly flesh, which provides a +1 natural armor bonus. At every three levels beyond 1st (4th, 7th, and 10th), this bonus increases by +1.

The bonus from scaly flesh stacks with that of natural armor derived from creature type (if the thrall of Demogorgon is a lizardfolk or troglodyte, for example), but not from magical sources such as an amulet of natural armor.

Hypnosis (Sp): Once per day, a thrall of Demogorgon can produce an effect identical to that of the hypnotism spell, except that it functions as a gaze attack with a range of 30 feet.

The Will save DC to resist the effect is 10 + thrall's class level + thrall's Cha modifier.

Touch of Fear (Sp): Three times per day, a thrall of Demogorgon of 2nd level or higher can use an effect identical to that of the cause fear spell.

The Will save DC to negate the fear is 10 + class level + Cha modifier.

Reaching Touch (Su): Three times per day, a 3rd-level thrall of Demogorgon can cause his arms to stretch unnaturally like tentacles, providing him an extra 5 feet of reach for 1 round.

Dual Actions (Su): Twice per day, a 4th-level thrall of Demogorgon can take two full rounds' worth of actions in the same round.

Summon Demon (Sp): A 5th-level thrall of Demogorgon can summon a demon of 5 HD or less once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Once per day, a 9th-level thrall of Demogorgon can summon a demon of 10 HD or less.

Rotting Touch (Sp): Three times per day, a thrall of Demogorgon can deal 1d6 points of Constitution damage as a touch attack.

Two Personas (Ex): An 8th-level thrall of Demogorgon goes a little insane, if he is not already mad.

The thrall develops a multiple personality disorder that has the side effect of allowing the character to multiclass freely with no experience point penalties.

Death Touch (Sp): At 8th level, a thrall of Demogorgon can use an effect identical to that of a slay living spell once per day.

The Fortitude save DC to avoid death is 10 + class level + Cha modifier.

Demogorgon's Will (Sp): A 10th-level thrall of Demogorgon can call upon the power of his master and be granted a limited wish spell once per day.

The use of this ability requires 3 full rounds devoted to entreaties and prayers to Demogorgon before the limited wish is granted.

The thrall must pay the experience point cost and provide any needed material components.

Table 5-12: The Thrall of Demogorgon

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells Per Day/Spells Known
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Scaly flesh +1, hypnosis	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Touch of fear	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Reaching touch	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Dual actions, scaly flesh +2	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Summon minor demon	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Rotting touch	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Scaly flesh +3	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Two personas, death touch	—
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Summon major demon	—
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Demogorgon's will, scaly flesh +4	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class

THRALL OF GRAZ'ZT

"The dark man, the shadow king, the ebony skinned master of all things that revel in the night, oh master Graz'zt, spare me your wrath and grant me your favor!"

—Besmal

The thrall of Graz'zt is a sinister, conniving, and thoroughly evil master of arcane lore and dark secrets.

She uses her charm and guile to learn things that she should never know—a sort of seductive loremaster who depends on subterfuge, not study.

A loremaster spends her days in a library learning secrets, but a thrall of Graz'zt steals, seduces, or tricks them from others.

Wizards, sorcerers, clerics, and bards make excellent thralls of Graz'zt, although sorcerers are clearly the best of them all.

Graz'zt is the dark man that some sorcerers learn their initial spells from without even knowing it.

Thralls of Graz'zt often work in cabals.

These sinister, secretive organizations sometimes work alongside rogues or assassins to manage the criminal underworld of an entire community or even an entire kingdom.

The lust for power of a thrall of Graz'zt knows no bounds.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a thrall of Graz'zt, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 5 ranks, Bluff 2 ranks, Diplomacy 2 ranks.

Feats: Thrall to Demon, Violate Spell.

Special: Must be able to cast 3rd-level spells with the evil descriptor.

Special: Graz'zt's followers initiate new thralls in a horrific rite that involves the sacrifice of an intelligent being.

This rite must be performed within an area of magical darkness under the influence of a desecrate or unhallow spell.

CLASS SKILLS

The thrall of Graz'zt's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Innuendo (Wis), Knowledge (any) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Perform (Cha), Pick Pocket (Dex), Scry (Int), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the thrall of Graz'zt prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Thralls of Graz'zt are proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells: When a thrall of Graz'zt gains 1st level, and every two levels after that (plus 10th level), the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, hit points beyond those received from the prestige class, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

This essentially means that she adds the new level of thrall of Graz'zt to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

For example, if Kalleyis, an 8th-level wizard, gains a level in thrall of Graz'zt, she gains new spells as if she had risen to 9th level in wizard, but uses the other thrall of Graz'zt aspects of level progression such as base attack bonus and save bonus.

If she next gains a level of wizard, making her a 9th-level wizard/1st-level thrall of Graz'zt, she gains spells as if she had risen to 10th-level wizard.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before she became a thrall of Graz'zt, she must decide to which class she adds the level of thrall of Graz'zt.

Charm (Sp): A thrall of Graz'zt can produce an effect identical to that of a charm person spell cast by a caster of the thrall of Graz'zt's class level.

Spell Betrayal (Su): When casting a damage-dealing spell at a target or targets denied their Dexterity bonus, a thrall of Graz'zt of 2nd level or higher can increase the amount of damage dealt.

A 2nd-level thrall, for example, adds +1d6 points of damage to a spell cast against flatfooted targets.

Graz'zt grants this ability in the hope that the thrall will convince her enemies that she is their friend, then betray them with a surprise magical attack.

The damage increase goes up by +1d6 for every two levels beyond 2nd, to +5d6 at 10th level.

Dark Charisma (Ex): At 3rd level, a thrall of Graz'zt can add an enhancement bonus on certain Charisma-based skill checks.

The bonus is +1 at 3rd level, +2 at 5th level, and +3 at 7th level.

The bonus improves Animal Empathy, Diplomacy, Bluff, Gather Information, Handle Animal, and Perform checks when dealing with evil creatures.

Summon Demon (Sp): A 4th-level thrall of Graz'zt can summon a demon of 5 HD or less once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

A 9th-level thrall of Graz'zt can summon a demon of 10 HD or less once per day.

Spellstrike (Su): If a thrall of Graz'zt casts a damaging spell upon a target or targets threatened in melee (and thus distracted), the thrall can add half of the spell betrayal bonus (round down) to the damage dealt.

Thus, a 6th-level or 7th-level thrall of Graz'zt deals an additional +1d6 points of damage with a spell against threatened targets.

At 8th level and higher, this bonus damage increases to +2d6 points.

Table 5–13: The Thrall of Graz'zt

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells Per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Charm	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Spell betrayal +1d6	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Dark Charisma +1	+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Spell betrayal +2d6, summon minor demon	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Dark Charisma +2	+1 level of existing class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Spell betrayal +3d6, spellstrike +1d6	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Dark Charisma +3	+1 level of existing class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Spell betrayal +4d6, spellstrike +2d6	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Summon major demon	+1 level of existing class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Spell betrayal +5d6	+1 level of existing class

THRALL OF JUIBLEX

"All hail the dark, whispered master, patron of pestilence, and father of slime, Juiblex the unspeakable!"

—Duvamil

The thrall of Juiblex is as disgusting an individual as one may ever encounter.

Oozing a horrible slime and surrounded by a nauseating stench, these thralls have no place in normal society, although the more powerful ones can disguise their form to slip among civilized people.

Fighters and barbarians sometimes become thralls of Juiblex, and clerics who favor the demon prince also take the prestige class.

A thrall of Juiblex usually operates alone, for no one can stand to be near it except for undead, oozes, and possibly cancer mages.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a thrall of Juiblex, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Save Bonus: Fort +6.

Skills: Escape Artist 5 ranks.

Feats: Thrall to Demon, Willing Deformity.

Special: Must have been polymorphed or experienced some sort of shapechanging experience.

Special: The thrall of Juiblex is initiated in a horrific rite that involves the sacrifice of an intelligent being.

At least three oozes, slimes, or puddings must be present for the ritual.

The victim of the sacrificial ritual must be dissolved in acid.

CLASS SKILLS

The thrall of Juiblex's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), and Spot (Wis). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the thrall of Juiblex prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A thrall of Juiblex is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Sickening Slime (Ex): A thrall of Juiblex can secrete a smelly slime that coats its body in a thin layer.

Anyone within 5 feet must make a Fortitude saving throw (DC 10 + the thrall's class level + Constitution bonus) or take a -1 circumstance penalty on attack rolls and skill checks, due to the outrageous odor of the slime layer.

Corrosive Touch (Ex): Three times per day, a thrall of Juiblex of 2nd level or higher can secrete a caustic slime on its hand that deals 2d6 points of damage.

Once it is secreted, the thrall can make an attack to get the corrosive slime to damage a foe, dealing normal unarmed damage as well as the damage from the slime.

Because of the corrosive slime, this attack is not considered unarmed and does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

Summon Ooze (Sp): At 3rd level, a thrall of Juiblex can summon a patch of green slime, a gray ooze, an ochre jelly, or a gelatinous cube as the summon monster spell with his thrall level as the caster level.

Contagion (Su): Once per day, a thrall of Juiblex can spread a disease, as the contagion spell (caster level 10th).

Alter Self (Su): At 4th level, a thrall of Juiblex's form becomes somewhat transitory and amorphous.

It can change its appearance and form at will, as the alter self spell cast by a 4th-level caster.

Summon Demon (Sp): A 5th-level thrall of Juiblex can summon a demon of 5 HD or less once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

A 9th-level thrall of Juiblex can summon a demon of 10 HD or less once per day.

Corrosive Spew (Ex): At 6th level, a thrall of Juiblex can spit a gout of caustic goo in a line 5 feet wide and 30 feet long once per day.

The corrosive spew deals 8d6 points of acid damage to anyone in its path, with a Reflex saving throw (DC 10 + thrall's class level + thrall's Con bonus) for half damage.

Summon Pudding (Sp): At 7th level, a thrall of Juiblex can summon a black pudding as if it had cast a summon monster spell with its thrall level as the caster level.

Polymorph Self (Su): An 8th-level thrall of Juiblex's form is more amorphous than ever.

It can change its appearance and form at will, as the polymorph self spell cast by an 8th-level caster.

No Discernible Anatomy (Ex): At 10th level, a thrall of Juiblex's form is so amorphous that it no longer need worry about being affected by critical hits, sneak attacks, damage from poison, paralysis, or stunning.

However, potions no longer affect the thrall either.

Table 5-14: The Thrall of Juiblex

Class Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+2	+2	Sickening slime
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Corrosive touch
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+3	Summon ooze
4th	+4	+4	+4	+4	Contagion, alter self
5th	+5	+4	+4	+4	Summon minor demon
6th	+6	+5	+5	+5	Corrosive spew
7th	+7	+5	+5	+5	Summon pudding
8th	+8	+6	+6	+6	Polymorph self
9th	+9	+6	+6	+6	Summon major demon
10th	+10	+7	+7	+7	No discernible anatomy

THRALL OF ORCUS

"Bloated goat prince of undeath, master of vampires and lord of specters, Orcus, grant me your crushing might and the deadly power of your skull-headed wand!"

—Quah-Nomag the Skull-King

The thrall of Orcus has devoted herself to the demon prince of undeath.

In his service, she becomes a tool of misery, murder, and revenge.

She revels in the company of the undead, preferring their decaying touch to that of living flesh.

Clerics, wizards, and sorcerers make the best thralls of Orcus, although bards, blackguards, and various multiclass characters also join his demonic ranks occasionally.

Thralls of Orcus often work in small groups.

These cabals of necromancers and necrophiliacs consort with undead creatures and demons to form small cells of depraved evil hidden amid bustling cities and quiet villages.

Thralls of Orcus hate and war against the thralls of Demogorgon and Graz'zt.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a thrall of Orcus, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 2 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 2 ranks.

Feats: Lichloved, Thrall to Demon.

Special: Must be able to cast a spell of the Necromancy school.

Special: The sacrifice of an intelligent being is the centerpiece of the horrific rite that initiates a new thrall of Orcus.

This ritual takes place in complete darkness atop an altar made of at least thirty skulls.

CLASS SKILLS

The thrall of Orcus's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (any) (Int), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int), and Spot (Wis). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the thrall of Orcus prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A thrall of Orcus is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Bonus Feat or Spells: When a thrall of Orcus attains 1st, 4th, 7th, and 10th level, the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class, or else she gains a bonus feat of her choice.

If the thrall chooses +1 spellcasting level, she does not gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, hit points beyond those received from the prestige class, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting. This essentially means that she adds the new level to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before she became a thrall of Orcus, she must decide to which class she adds the level for purposes of determining spells per day.

A thrall of Orcus is free to choose the bonus feat at one opportunity and the spellcasting level the next time the decision arises, or vice versa.

Characters who are not spellcasters must choose the bonus feat.

Carion Stench (Ex): A thrall of Orcus, when desired, emits a terrible smell in a 10-foot radius.

Living creatures in the radius (excluding the thrall) must succeed at a Fortitude save (DC 10 + thrall's class level + thrall's Con modifier) or take a -2 penalty on all attack rolls, weapon damage rolls, saving throws, skill checks, and ability checks for 1 round per class level of the thrall of Orcus.

Furthermore, mindless undead creatures within the radius of the stench believe the thrall of Orcus to be undead.

Touch of Fear (Sp): Three times per day, a 2nd-level thrall of Orcus can produce an effect identical to that of the cause fear spell cast by a 10th-level caster.

Demon Wings (Su): Once per day, a 3rd-level thrall of Orcus can bring forth massive black wings from his back. These wings allow the thrall to fly at his normal land speed with average maneuverability.

The demon wings last for up to 1 hour and are dismissible with a standard action.

At 7th level, the thrall can use his demon wings at will, and they last as long as needed.

Massive Girth/Skeletal Visage (Su): At 4th level, a thrall of Orcus must choose to become obese like her dread master or gaunt like an undead creature.

Depending on the choice, the thrall gains the Deformity (obese) or Deformity (gaunt) feat as a bonus feat.

Summon Undead (Sp): Once per day, a 5th-level thrall of Orcus can summon 1d4 ghouls, 1d3 shadows, 1 wight, or 1 wraith as the summon monster spell cast by a caster of her class level.

At 9th level, the thrall can summon 1d3 mummies, 1 spectre, 1 mohrg, 1 vampire, or 1 ghost instead.

If she chooses a vampire or a ghost, its character level is one less than the thrall's class level.

Pallor of Death (Su): A 6th-level thrall of Orcus can adopt the appearance of a humanoid undead creature of her choosing as if she had cast the alter self spell.

While in this form, the thrall has an aura of fear (as the fear spell cast by a 6th-level caster) that affects only living nonoutsiders within 25 feet.

Pallor of death lasts for 1 minute per class level and can be used once per day.

Death Touch (Sp): An 8th-level thrall of Orcus can force a living creature hit with a touch attack to attempt a Fortitude save (DC 10 + thrall's class level + thrall's Cha bonus).

If the target fails its save, it dies.

Summon Nightwing (Sp): A 10th-level thrall of Orcus can summon 1 nightwing once per week, as the summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Table 5-15: The Thrall of Orcus

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells Per Day/Spells Known
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Carion stench	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Touch of fear	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Demon wings	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Massive girth/skeletal visage	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	Summon minor undead	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+5	Pallor of death	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+5	Demon wings (at will)	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class
8th	+8	+6	+2	+6	Death touch	—
9th	+9	+6	+3	+6	Summon major undead	—
10th	+10	+7	+3	+7	Summon nightwing	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing class

UR-PRIEST

Ur-priests despise gods.

However, a small number of them have learned to tap into divine power and use it for their own needs without praying to or worshipping a god.

Instead, each day they go into a trance and mentally steal the power that gods normally channel to devout clerics.

Ur-priests are canny and cunning, never stealing too much power from any one god, but instead metaphysically slipping in, drawing out the power they need for their spells, and slipping out again.

They learn to be resilient toward divine power and creative with the energies that they steal.

The greatest ur-priest commands the level of power of the most powerful cleric, although she does not have the cleric's variety of spellcasting options.

A member of any class can become an ur-priest, even—and in fact, especially—an ex-cleric.

Ur-priests frequently work alone, although they occasionally find partnerships with members of other classes useful.

They do not congregate into anything resembling temples, for they fear that too many of them in one place might draw unwanted divine attention.

And of course they rarely associate with clerics or any other divine spellcasters, whom they see as lackeys and who view them as abominations.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an ur-priest, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Save Bonus: Fort +3, Will +3.

Skills: Bluff 6 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 5 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 8 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 5 ranks, Spellcraft 8 ranks.

Feats: Iron Will, Malign Spell Focus.

Special: The character must have no ability to cast divine spells.

If that ability was previously possessed (as with an ex-cleric), the ability must be forever forsaken.

Special: The character must be trained by another ur-priest.

CLASS SKILLS

The ur-priest's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the ur-priest prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: An ur-priest is proficient with simple weapons, but not with armor or shields.

Spells: An ur-priest gains the ability to cast a number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the ur-priest must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so an ur-priest with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Ur-priest bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + Wisdom modifier.

When Table 5–16 indicates 0 spells of a given level, such as 0 2nd-level spells at 2nd level, the ur-priest gets only bonus spells.

An ur-priest without a bonus spell for that level cannot yet cast a spell of that level.

The ur-priest's spell list is identical to the cleric's spell list.

An ur-priest has access to any spell on the list and prepares those spells as a cleric, except that she does not pray for spells, she just takes them.

An ur-priest casts spells as a cleric does, except that unlike a cleric, she does not have the ability to spontaneously cast inflict or cure spells, nor does she have domain spells or associated domain granted powers.

She does not have restrictions on spells with alignments. To determine the caster level of an ur-priest, add the character's ur-priest levels to one-half of her levels in other spellcasting classes.

(Any levels gained in the cleric class by an ex-cleric don't count).

Rebuke Undead: Like an evil cleric, an ur-priest of 2nd level or higher can rebuke undead.

She uses her ur-priest level as the cleric level for determining success and damage (see Turn and Rebuke Undead in Chapter 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Divine Spell Resistance (Su): At 4th level, an ur-priest gains spell resistance 15, but only against divine spells and the spell-like abilities of outsiders.

At 8th level, the ur-priest's spell resistance increases to 20.

Siphon Spell Power (Ex): Because they steal whatever power they can, ur-priests learn to manipulate their energy in ways that confound other casters.

A 6th-level ur-priest can temporarily sacrifice two (or more) lower-level spell slots and use those slots to prepare a higher-level spell.

The higher-level spell must be of a level the ur-priest can cast.

Only one exchange of this sort can be made each day.

The levels of the lower-level slots are totaled, then reduced to three-quarters (round down) to determine the level of the extra higher-level spell slot.

For example, an ur-priest who sacrifices a 3rd-level spell and a 5th-level spell can use that spell slot to prepare an additional 6th-level spell ($3 + 5 = 8$, and $8 \times 3/4 = 6$).

Steal Spell-Like Ability (Su): The most powerful ur-priests can use the same techniques that siphon off the gods' spell power to steal the spell-like abilities of another creature.

Once each day, when a creature with spell-like abilities is within 50 feet of a 10th-level ur-priest, the ur-priest can choose one of the spell-like abilities of the creature to steal for herself.

The ur-priest can use the spell-like ability as often as the creature can, or three times per day, whichever is less.

The ur-priest uses the ability as the creature does with regard to caster level and save DCs.

This ability only lasts 24 hours.

The creature with the spell-like ability does not lose the ability when the ur-priest steals it.

If the ur-priest tries to steal a spell-like ability that the creature doesn't have, or tries to steal an ability that is supernatural rather than spell-like, the attempt automatically fails.

For example, if an ur-priest is near a noble salamander, she can steal fireball and use it three times that day or steal dispel magic and use it once that day.

If she is near a pit fiend, she could steal teleport without error (self plus 50 pounds of objects only) and use it three times per day, because the pit fiend can do it at will.

She could even steal the pit fiend's wish ability, but because a pit fiend can only use wish once per year, the ur-priest would be similarly limited.

She could not steal that power again from any creature for one year.

Table 5-16: The Ur-Priest

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	—	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Rebuke undead	5	3	0	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	—	5	3	1	0	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Divine SR 15	6	3	2	1	0	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	—	6	3	3	2	1	0	—	—	—
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Siphon spell power	6	3	3	3	2	1	0	—	—
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	—	6	4	3	3	3	2	1	0	—
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6	Divine SR 20	6	4	4	3	3	3	2	1	0
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6	—	6	5	4	4	4	4	3	2	1
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	Steal spell-like ability	6	5	5	4	4	4	4	3	2

VERMIN LORD

The skittering of multiple legs across the floor, the droning of wings—these phenomena mark the passing of a vermin lord.

This unthinkable entity prefers the caress of the crawling legs of an insect or the fluttering wings of a fly more than the touch of another person.

The vermin lord offers itself as a host for all manner of parasitic organisms and insects that feed on its body.

It not only allows the infestation, it revels in it.

Clerics and druids comprise the majority of the vermin lord ranks; some cleric/rogues are present as well.

Many monstrous vermin lords, such as drider clerics, exist. Humanoid vermin lords work with monsters such as driders, phase spiders, and other creatures associated with vermin.

Otherwise, they operate alone, for most other humanoids will have nothing to do with them.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a vermin lord, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Skills: Hide 3 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 2 ranks, Move Silently 3 ranks.

Feats: Verminfriend.

Special: Must be able to cast the giant vermin spell.

Special: The vermin lord must be ordained by an intelligent evil creature with a physical resemblance to vermin—a drider, chasme, gelugon, aranea, bebilith, phase spider, evil formian, or similar creature.

The ordaining creature must be intelligent enough to communicate with the vermin lord-to-be.

Of course, such a creature will demand service or payment in return.

CLASS SKILLS

The vermin lord's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Hide (Dex), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Pick Pocket (Dex), Search (Int), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the vermin lord prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A vermin lord is proficient with no weapons, armor, or shields.

Spells: When a vermin lord attains 1st level and every two levels after that (plus 10th level), the character gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, hit points beyond those received from the prestige class, and so on), except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

This essentially means that he adds the new level of vermin lord to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

For example, if Silican, an 8th-level wizard, gains a level in vermin lord, he gains new spells as if he had risen to 9th level in wizard, but uses the other vermin lord aspects of level progression such as attack bonus and save bonus.

If he next gains a level of wizard, making him a 9th-level wizard/1st-level vermin lord, he gains spells as if he had risen to 10th-level wizard.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before he became a vermin lord, he must decide to which class he adds the level of vermin lord.

Chitin (Ex): A vermin lord gains a +1 natural armor bonus to Armor Class from the chitinous plates that begin to grow on his flesh.

Every three levels beyond 1st, this bonus increases by +1.

Vermin Servant: A vermin lord gains a servant in the form of a vermin of up to 1 HD.

This servant is treated as a familiar; its intelligence increases, and it is considered a magical beast (see the Familiars section in Chapter 3 of the Player's Handbook).

The vermin servant is in addition to any familiar the character may already have.

A vermin lord gains additional vermin servants at higher levels.

At 5th level, the vermin servant gained can be of up to 4 HD.

At 9th level, the vermin servant may be of up to 16 HD.

Blood Drain (Su): A 2nd-level vermin lord can grow insectoid mandibles at will.

He can use these mandibles to make a bite attack that deals 1 point of damage.

Furthermore, the vermin lord can attempt to start a grapple, provoking no attack of opportunity.

If successful, the mandibles automatically deal 2d6 points of damage each round as they suck blood from the victim.

The blood drain ability only works on living creatures.

Spider Hand (Sp): Once per day, a 3rd-level vermin lord can produce an effect identical to that of a spider hand spell cast at his effective caster level.

Swarm Armor (Su): Each day, a 4th-level vermin lord automatically summons a swarm of insects, spiders, or scorpions that cover his flesh when he regains his spells. These insects absorb up to 10 points of damage from any damaging attack (weapons or spells).

The insects die off when they absorb such attacks, and a total of up to 5 points per vermin lord level can be absorbed per day.

Thus, a 7th-level vermin lord's swarm armor can absorb up to 35 points of damage, although no more than 10 points from any one attack.

If a vermin lord is already wearing armor, the swarm armor has no effect.

Wings of the Vermin (Su): A vermin lord of 5th level or higher can sprout massive, buzzing insectoid wings from his back once per day.

With these wings, he can fly at his normal land speed with average maneuverability for 1 hour.

The vermin lord can carry his normal carrying capacity, and greater burdens affect his speed as they would affect his land speed.

It is impossible to move silently with these wings.

Spider Legs (Sp): Once per day, a 6th-level vermin lord can produce an effect identical to that of a spider legs spell cast at his effective caster level.

Spew Vermin (Sp): Once per day, a 7th-level vermin lord is able to spray out a swarm of vermin from his mouth, as a breath weapon in a 30-foot cone.

Anyone in this area takes 1d6 points of damage per vermin lord level, with a successful Reflex save reducing the damage by half (DC 10 + vermin lord's class level + vermin lord's Con bonus).

The vermin then remain as if a summon swarm spell had been cast at the vermin lord's class level.

The vermin are under the command of the vermin lord.

Poison (Ex): In a vermin lord of 8th level or higher, the mandibles gained from the blood drain ability now carry a natural venom that deals 1 point of Strength damage with each successful bite attack and 1 point of Strength damage 1 minute later.

The Fortitude save DC to resist the poison is 10 + vermin lord's class level + vermin lord's Con modifier.

Hivemind (Su): A 10th-level vermin lord can form the impetus to create a hivemind (see Hivemind in Chapter 2). The hivemind must include the vermin lord, although he counts as only a single individual and his Intelligence and Charisma scores are unaffected.

However, he controls the hivemind, gains the insight bonuses, and can take advantage of the spellcasting abilities of the hivemind if enough individuals are present.

The vermin lord's vermin servant can also join the hivemind if the vermin lord wishes.

Table 5-17: The Vermin Lord

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells Per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Chitin +1, vermin servant 1 HD	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Blood drain	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Spider hand	+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Chitin +2, swarm armor	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Wings of the vermin, vermin servant 4 HD	+1 level of existing class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Spider legs	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Chitin +3, spew vermin	+1 level of existing class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Poison, pincer claws	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Vermin servant 16 HD	+1 level of existing class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Chitin +4, hivemind	+1 level of existing class

WARRIOR OF DARKNESS

The warrior of darkness, sometimes called the dark knight, is a practitioner of black magic.

He studies the dark arts and learns the terrible secrets involved with evil rituals and spells.

However, he does not cast spells himself.

Instead, he uses his arcane knowledge to make himself a more formidable combatant.

Evil fighters, often those with a few levels of wizard or sorcerer, sometimes become warriors of darkness.

Less frequently, warriors of darkness come from the ranks of single-classed wizards or sorcerers, or bards, rangers, and even clerics.

Warriors of darkness often keep to themselves, although they sometimes ally themselves with evil sorcerers or wizards.

Other times, they employ small groups of evil humanoid such as orcs, gnolls, and bugbears to aid them and guard their dark sanctums.

They dream of power and conquest through violence and bloodshed.

A warrior of darkness is not usually subtle, nor is he barbaric.

Instead, he is a chilling compromise of physical might and intelligent sophistication.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a warrior of darkness, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Alchemy 3 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 3 ranks, Speak Language (Abyssal) or Speak Language (Infernal), Spellcraft 1 rank.

Feats: Iron Will.

Special: The character must endure a week of painful and scarring black magic rituals performed in solitude, the secrets of which take months to study and research successfully.

CLASS SKILLS

The warrior of darkness's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Move Silently (Dex), Ride (Dex), Scry (Int), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the warrior of darkness prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A warrior of darkness is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Black Magic Oil (Su): A warrior of darkness can use his forbidden arcane arts to create a magic oil that he anoints himself with.

An individual warrior of darkness makes oil that works only on him, and he can only make one dose of the oil each time this class feature is gained (at 1st, 4th, 7th, and 10th level).

When he attains an appropriate level, the warrior of darkness creates a new black magic oil and anoints himself with it.

Class Level + Cha Modifier	Ability/Effect
2 or lower	Dweller in darkness; character gains the Blind-Fight feat.
3-4	Demonic celerity; character gains the Combat Reflexes feat.
5-6	Ensorcelled flesh; character's natural armor bonus improves by +1.
7-8	Hellpower; character gains +1 inherent bonus to Str, Con, or Dex.
9	Rapid step; character gains inherent +10 ft. bonus to speed.
10	Unholy strike; character gains the ability to deal +2d6 damage against good creatures 3/day.
11 or higher	Malign fury; character can take a full attack action in conjunction with a move or move-equivalent action, usable 3 rounds per day.

He then chooses from the above list of supernatural abilities to imbue within himself permanently, picking a choice available to him based on his class level and Charisma modifier (the highest-numbered choice possible, or any lower one).

A warrior of darkness cannot choose an ability more than once.

Darkling Weapon (Su): With 3 rounds of preparation (involving rituals and alchemical substances that cost 50 gp), a warrior of darkness can imbue any weapon with a +1 enhancement bonus on attack and damage rolls.

If the weapon already has an enhancement bonus, the warrior of darkness can instead imbue the weapon with any magical special quality that is the equivalent of a +1 bonus (see Chapter 8 of the DUNGEON MASTER's Guide for a list of weapon qualities).

The bonus or special quality only functions when the weapon is in the hands of the warrior of darkness, and it lasts 1 hour per warrior of darkness level.

The warrior can imbue only one special quality in a weapon at a time.

Black Magic Elixir (Su): At 3rd level, a warrior of darkness can use his knowledge of black magic and alchemy to create a magical elixir that he then imbibes.

An individual warrior of darkness makes elixir that works only on him, and he can only make one dose of the elixir each time this class feature is gained (at 3rd, 6th, and 9th level).

When he creates an elixir, the warrior of darkness chooses from the following list of supernatural abilities to imbue within himself permanently, picking a choice available to him based on his class level and Charisma modifier.

Class Level + Cha Modifier	Ability/Effect
3 or lower	Violent knowledge; character gains bonus feat from list below.
4-6	Aura of evil; character gains +1 deflection bonus to Armor Class.
7-8	Inner hellpower; character gains +1 inherent bonus to Int, Wis, or Cha.
9	Dark senses; character gains the tremorsense ability (can sense location of anything within 60 feet that is in contact with the ground).
10 or higher	Demonic wings; character can use the spell demon wings 1/day cast at the character's warrior of darkness level.

Violent Knowledge Feat List: Ambidexterity, Bull Rush, Cleave, Deflect Arrows, Dodge, Exotic Weapon Proficiency, Expertise, Far Shot, Great Cleave, Improved Critical*, Improved Disarm, Improved Initiative, Improved Trip, Improved Two-Weapon Fighting, Improved Unarmed Strike, Mobility, Mounted Archery, Mounted Combat, Point Blank Shot, Power Attack, Precise Shot, Quick Draw, Rapid Shot, Ride-By Attack, Shot on the Run, Spirited Charge, Spring Attack, Stunning Fist, Sunder, Trample, Two-Weapon Fighting, Weapon Finesse*, Weapon Focus*, Weapon Specialization*, Whirlwind Attack.

A character can select feats marked with an asterisk (*) more than once, but it must be for a different weapon each time. Characters must still meet all prerequisites for a feat, including ability scores and base attack bonus (see Chapter 5 of the Player's Handbook for descriptions of feats and their prerequisites).

No ability other than violent knowledge may be chosen more than once.

Scarred Flesh (Su): Through ritual scarification, a 5th-level warrior of darkness gains damage reduction 5/+3.

Repellent Flesh (Su): Through ritual, obscene tattooing, an 8th-level warrior of darkness gains spell resistance 20.

Table 5-18: The Warrior of Darkness

Class Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Black magic oil
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Darkling weapon
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Black magic elixir
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Black magic oil
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	Scarred flesh
6th	+6	+5	+2	+5	Black magic elixir
7th	+7	+5	+2	+5	Black magic oil
8th	+8	+6	+2	+6	Repellent flesh
9th	+9	+6	+3	+6	Black magic elixir
10th	+10	+7	+3	+7	Black magic oil

CHAMPIONS OF RUIN (3.5)

BLACK BLOOD CULTIST

"The power of the beasts is undeniable."

—Zert of the Wild Brothers

Worse things than wolves and orcs hunt the dark forests of the North.

The beastly lycanthropes known as the People of the Black Blood venerate Malar with bloody rites that claim hundreds of human, elf, and dwarf lives every year.

Black Blood cultists, worshipers of these lycanthropic horrors, are drawn from the totemic barbarian tribes scattered across the northern lands.

They exhibit fearsome powers drawn from the veneration of the tainted animal spirits of their masters.

That their reverence for the lycanthropes goes unrewarded does not matter to the unfettered spirits of the cultists—they rage for their cruel masters and bring death to those who are not touched by the Beastlord's terrible power.

BECOMING A BLACK BLOOD CULTIST

Most Black Blood cultists come from an Uthgardt barbarian tribe that has fallen under the sway of a Malar-worshipping chieftain.

Still, there are cultists dedicated to Malarite lycanthrope tribes in other parts of Faerûn—notably near the High Forest, in northern Cormanthor, and in Chult.

Some barbaric nature is necessary to the pursuit of the cult's powers, and barbarian/rangers are especially potent candidates.

Druids rarely want to sacrifice their studies to become worshipers of abominations, but some find the savage nature of the cultist to be an irresistible draw.

Strength (for savage attacks), Wisdom (for tracking prey), and Constitution (to survive deadly melee combat) are key abilities for a Black Blood cultist.

Hit Die: d12.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Chaotic evil, chaotic neutral, or neutral evil

Skills: Knowledge (nature) 2 ranks, Survival 8 ranks Feats:

Improved Unarmed Strike, Track.

Special: Ability to rage.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level): Climb, Handle Animal, Hide, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (nature), Listen, Move Silently, Search, Spot, Survival, Swim.

CLASS FEATURES

Black Blood cultists are savage fighters whose natural attacks become more fearsome as they increase in level.

Feral Rage (Ex): Black Blood cultist class levels stack with barbarian levels for purposes of determining your rage ability.

Thus, an 8th-level barbarian/4th-level Black Blood cultist can use greater rage four times per day, just as a 12th-level barbarian could.

Black Blood cultists strengthen their fingers and toughen their nails with special training.

As a result, when raging, you gain two claw attacks at your highest base attack bonus.

Each claw deals 1d6 points of damage plus your Strength modifier.

You can use a one-handed weapon and a claw, but when doing so the claw counts as a secondary weapon (adding only half your Strength bonus to damage, and with a –5 modifier on the attack roll).

At 3rd level, you gain a bite attack when raging in addition to your two claw attacks.

The claws are still your primary weapons and the bite is your secondary weapon.

The bite deals 1d4 points of damage plus half your Strength modifier.

You can use a two-handed weapon with your bite as a secondary attack, or you can use a one-handed weapon with your claw and bite as secondary attacks.

At 6th level and higher, whenever you hit with both of your claw attacks during a rage, you rend your opponent's flesh, automatically dealing double claw damage in addition to normal damage.

Damage Reduction (Ex): At 4th level and at 9th level, you gain damage reduction, which stacks with damage reduction from other sources.

Silvered weapons ignore the damage reduction granted by levels in this prestige class.

Improved Grapple: At 2nd level, you gain the Improved Grapple feat even if you do not meet the prerequisites for it.

Scent (Ex): At 4th level, you gain the scent ability.

Stranglehold: At 5th level, you learn to snap the necks of fallen enemies, allowing you to administer a coup de grace with your bite attack as a move action.

Improved Natural Attacks: At 7th level, your natural attacks become even more deadly.

Your claw attacks now deal 1d8 points of damage and your bite attack deals 1d6 points.

Savage Grapple: Starting at 8th level, you deal damage as if you had hit with all your natural weapons (including rend, if you are raging) on a successful grapple check.

Feral Form: By 10th level, you have gained great control over your bestial nature.

You can now use your claw, bite, and rend attacks even when you are not raging.

PLAYING A BLACK BLOOD CULTIST

You feel most alive when you are far away from the shackles of civilization.

The beast burns inside you, and you strive to unleash it as often as possible.

You look to the People of the Black Blood as paragons of your ideal—beasts in humanoid form, the best of both worlds combined into a savage package.

Your shaman guides your spirit through its transformation, and he is your connection to the animal inside.

The most important things in your life are your territory and your tribe, wherever and whoever that might be.

You are quick to react to danger, instantly attacking with a fury unmatched by any civilized being.

Threats are best dealt with swiftly—kill or be killed.

The righteous transformations you subject your body to are scars of honor, seen and respected by the animals of the forest and the beasts that rule over them.

Civilization holds nothing for you, and you do not share the fears of civilized creatures.

Death, hunger, and loss are all a part of the natural order, one which you are committed to protect.

Combat: While most barbarians prefer blades and clubs in combat, you would rather rend the flesh of your enemies with your own natural weapons.

Your teeth can tear as big a hole in your prey as an axe or sword.

You are quick to react, closing immediately with the first enemy to dare draw steel against you.

Isolate that enemy, put him on the ground, and rip out his throat before moving on to the next.

Melee combat is where you are most comfortable.

An enemy that has ranged weapons is best avoided and ambushed, although a frontal assault, if quick enough, can take such an opponent by surprise.

You've learned that it is difficult for such a foe to aim an arrow while your claws threaten to rip it limb from limb. By 3rd level, your melee combat skills have begun to reach their peak.

You can make three attacks per round without even wielding a weapon, and you are a dangerous grappler while raging.

Your damage reduction allows you to absorb blows from a grappled foe's allies as your claws and bite deal their damage.

If you are working with a pack or other allies, your stealth can help you flank your enemies while they engage in combat with the rest of the characters.

A feral Black Blood cultist charging out of nowhere is often enough to force even the most stalwart foes into all-out flight.

As you advance in level, your ability to both absorb and dish out damage in melee combat increases.

Your rend ability makes it very difficult for any foe to grapple with you for more than a couple of rounds, while your increased control over your abilities make you a dangerous foe whether or not you have flown into a rage. You have the skills to track most foes, and to hide from those who are tracking you.

Advancement: Black Blood cultists can be found all over Faerûn; wherever the Malar-worshipping lycanthropes hold sway, humans, elves, and others look to them as the avengers of the natural world.

It is most common for Black Blood cultists to be reared in the tribe or cult, thereby continuing the tradition of their forebears.

A tribe always takes care of its young, even after the parents have been killed or otherwise lost.

These young grow up alongside the other tribe members with no stigma attached, and often grow stronger because of their independence.

Tribal Black Blood cultists are often the most savage, since they have trained from a young age in nothing but the ways of the beast.

Those not born to such barbaric ways might come to a tribal shaman in search of spiritual and physical fulfillment.

These supplicants sometimes succumb to the harsh, bloody rituals inflicted upon them by the tribe to test their mettle, but others survive the tests and emerge harder and more savage than before.

Almost universally, such trials include an individual hunt during which the seeker must track and slay a great beast to show that he has the favor of the Beastlord.

The most severe of these trials unleash the hunter in Black Blood lands, meaning he must not only slay his quarry but avoid the retribution of the native lycanthropes as well. Those who survive are inducted into the tribe in a blood rite.

Training in the arts of the Black Blood cultist can be the most dangerous undertaking in a character's life.

He toughens his body against blows by crawling through thorny brambles, clawing and biting on trees, and jumping from great heights until his bones break and heal time and time again.

Using specially prepared ointments, he toughens and thickens his nails until his fingers are like claws. Many cultists file their teeth to sharp points.

Resources: Black Blood cultists can often count on plenty of aid from other tribe members when they find themselves in trouble.

Of course, weak members who ask for aid too often run the risk of being abandoned or shunned by the tribe, left to fend for themselves in the most dangerous of territories. Black Blood cultists often eschew material goods, gold, and the fineries of civilized life; most of what they need they either make or take.

A tribe's leader recognizes that valuable magic items can be of help to the tribe, but using too many such items can weigh heavily on a tribe member's reputation as a beast of nature.

When you do seek out magic items, you should look for magical protections that reduce the number of wounds you take in combat.

Enhanced armor is helpful, but items such as cloaks of displacement are even better, since they can negate hits from more powerful creatures more easily.

Items that boost the effectiveness of your natural attacks are good choices as well; several members of the elf tribe in Cormanthor have silver and adamantine claws with magic fang spells woven into them.

BLACK BLOOD CULTISTS IN THE WORLD

Black Blood cultists tend to be territorial predators—they are not going to run rampant over a region or the campaign world.

They have been known to attack towns or groups in retribution for some crime committed against them or their home, but for the most part they are localized.

Tribes are led by shamans—usually druids or sorcerers—and almost all follow a sort of totemic religion, while still venerating gods such as Malar and Talona.

Characters who make enemies of a tribe of Black Blood cultists can expect to be hunted until the day they die, while those who befriend a tribe and travel with them are likely to witness brutality on levels they could never have imagined.

Organization: The Black Blood cultists found across Faerûn are some of Malar's most fanatic followers.

Much like the lycanthropes they worship, the different cultist tribes are independent entities with little or no contact with others like them.

Each tribe has a relationship with the People of the Black Blood in its area, although lycanthropes usually pay the cultists little attention.

They do recognize the cultists' devotion to Malar and to nature, however, and so they let them roam their tribal lands where no others are allowed.

A tribe's relationship with those around it differs by region. The Chultans have very little civilization around them, and so they focus more on their worship of the region's werabats and of Malar than on bringing down defilers. The barbarians of the North are nomadic, wandering the region around the Night Trees in search of enemy tribes and caravans, which represent the civilized peoples they revile.

The elf cultists of Cormanthor concern themselves with stopping the spread of the drow, who tend to rape the lands they inhabit in order to feed their evergrowing numbers. As mentioned, tribes of Black Blood cultists are often ruled by a sorcerer or druid who claims to be an intermediary between the tribe, the lycanthropes, and the animal spirits they worship.

Clerics of Malar rarely spend much time with these groups, who often prefer to train their bodies rather than engage in sacred hunts.

Thus, it falls to other “holy men” to guide the barbarians in the ways of the beast.

It is not for power alone that a shaman guides a tribe of Black Blood cultists.

Often these individuals have had personal interactions with the Malarite lycanthropes that inspire their devotion. Sometimes they have barely survived such an encounter, and other times they have witnessed the lycanthropes meting out nature’s justice to trespassers and defilers.

Malarite clerics sometimes encourage the formation of a tribe as a way to gain a weapon against those who would oppose the Beastlord’s hunts.

Whatever the reason for a tribe’s formation, the lands in which the barbarians roam becomes deadly to those who live in opposition to the natural world.

Cultists spend most of their time training their bodies to be killing machines, and the rest of the time worshipping Malar, Talona, or local animal gods to whom they build totems and shrines.

While they do not ritually hunt as often as a Malarite, the tradition of the individual hunt goes far beyond initiation into the tribe.

Technically only tribal hunts are required, including those targeted against the instruments of civilization, but individual hunting is a major determinant of prestige within the tribe.

Large game such as dire animals and dinosaurs is the most prestigious of all targets, and even the children of a tribe can take down a wild boar.

It is not unknown for an entire tribe to be destroyed, either by lycanthropes fed up with the tribe’s intrusion upon their hunting grounds, or by heroes from a nearby city who are determined to put an end to the hunting and bloodshed.

Sometimes a cultist will find cause to leave his tribe; a tribesman might also be shunned for some act that sets him apart, or for reasons of tribal politics, power, and control. At other times, a renegade cultist might seek a new pack, or might fall in with adventurers who can handle—or exploit—his animalistic temperament and bloodthirsty rages.

NPC REACTIONS

Very few people ever live to tell of an encounter with a tribe of Black Blood cultists, much less an individual member.

Those that do speak only of an inhuman lust for blood and a hatred for all life.

The cultists are the enemies of all civilized creatures, whether they are found in towns, forts, or even below the earth.

They have as little love for the civilizations of the Underdark as they do for those above ground.

One known Black Blood cult has formed in the Underdark, where a tribe of grimlocks worships a pack of werabats and hunt drow and duergar in the dark tunnels.

BLACK BLOOD CULTIST LORE

Characters with Knowledge (local Chult, the Dalelands, or the Silver Marches) can research the People of the Black Blood or the Black Blood cultists.

The most relevant information will come from victims, who are often afflicted with terrible wounds as a result of their meeting with or investigation of a tribe.

Lycanthropes in disguise might intentionally mislead a character in order to draw them into a deadly ambush in tribal territory.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: “They look like animals, they worship animals, they are animals”.

DC 15: “A pack of shapechangers lives in this area; how the barbarians have survived so long among them is anybody’s guess”.

DC 20: The character picks up information about a hidden route through the cultists’ lands, or a secret hideaway from which the characters could safely gather information about or strike out at the tribe.

DC 30: A character who tracks down this much information about a local tribe can get lore about a lycanthrope that might be sympathetic to the characters, some background information on the shaman of the tribe, or similar information that can help the characters defeat the barbarians more easily.

Most locals know of at least the existence of a local tribe of animal worshipers who rampage from time to time.

The DM should assign a DC between 15 and 25, depending on the nature and recent activities of the tribe in question.

Gaining an audience with a tribal chieftain is difficult, if not impossible, for anyone that is not close to nature (rangers, druids, barbarians, etc.).

Even if an audience is granted, the chieftain might arrange a hunt or a run-in with some of the local lycanthropes to test the characters and determine Malar’s will in the matter.

BLACK BLOOD CULTISTS IN THE GAME

Characters who wander into tribal lands unaware of the danger that lies therein are in for a big surprise.

Even if the characters defeat an initial hunting party, or slay a lycanthrope who has been stalking them, they will then be hunted to the edges of the tribe’s territory, or perhaps farther.

If the characters can evade the hunt for an extended period of time, the chieftain is likely to call off the hunt and go back to his normal activities.

A player who loves the barbaric aspect of combat and doesn’t mind putting his character in harm’s way in order to cause grievous, personal wounds to his opponents will love this prestige class.

The natural attacks of a Black Blood cultist make the character much more than just a fighter with a boost to Strength and Constitution.

Adaptation: Black Blood cultists could be adapted to any pack of lycanthropes or beast god in your campaign.

Alternatively, they could worship a similar group of animallike monsters, such as the desmodu (see Savage Species page 218).

Encounters: Any encounter with a Black Blood cultist is likely to be deadly for one side or the other.

The savage barbarians will not flee combat, and will continue to tear into their opponents until one or the other is dead.

There is little chance of negotiation with the leader of such a tribe, whose loyalties are to his tribe, his territory, and his bestial lords and gods.

TABLE 3—1: THE BLACK BLOOD CULTIST

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+0	Feral rage (claws), damage reduction 1/silver
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+0	Improved grapple
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+1	Feral rage (bite)
4th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Scent, DR 3/silver
5th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Stranglehold
6th	+4	+5	+5	+2	Feral rage (rend)
7th	+5	+5	+5	+2	Improved natural attacks
8th	+6	+6	+6	+2	Savage grapple
9th	+6	+6	+6	+3	DR 5/silver
10th	+7	+7	+7	+3	Feral form

JUSTICE OF WEALD AND WOE

"Make no mistake.

If you harm my people or my land, I will hunt you down like a dog and make you curse the hour of your birth."

—Talias Senterune, Justice of the Suldusk cell of the Eldreth Veluuthra

The justice of weald and woe is the go-to person when something unsavory—usually involving the removal of humans—needs doing.

When the foes of the elves are well protected physically, magically, and politically—and the grand lords and ladies dare not sully their hands with the dirty necessities of preserving the heart of elvendom from human encroachment—it is to you, the justice of weald and woe, that they turn.

With your bow in hand and the power of nature at your command, you strike, a silent, unseen sniper, solving problems a score of diplomats couldn't solve in a hundred years—then melt back into the forest before what is left of the enemy's forces even knows you were there.

BECOMING A JUSTICE OF WEALD AND WOE

As hunters of men, individuals already skilled in the hunt find themselves drawn to this class.

Stealth, skill in making bows and arrows, and knowledge of the forest are the foundation upon which the class is built. Rangers are particularly well suited to become justices, as are rogues, whose sneak attack damage stacks with the sneak attack damage gained from this class.

Although spellcasting ability is not a prerequisite, you will begin to learn to cast spells that draw upon the divine power of nature itself.

Druids can become justices, but one will always be less skilled in archery than his ranger and rogue colleagues, and his druid skills will never be as powerful as they would have had he remained a druid.

Hit Die: d8.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Skills: Craft (bowmaking) 8 ranks, Hide 8 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 4 ranks, Move Silently 8 ranks, Survival 8 ranks.

Feats: Point Blank Shot, Weapon Focus (longbow).

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Bluff, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Disguise, Escape Artist, Gather Information, Handle Animal, Hide, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (local), Knowledge (nature), Knowledge (religion), Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, Survival, Swim, Tumble.

CLASS FEATURES

As they gain in level, justices learn the skills they will need to become the silent snipers of the forest, able to infiltrate an enemy camp in the guise of an animal or fire unseen from a concealed position.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You gain no proficiency with any weapon, armor, or shield.

Spellcasting: You gain spells according to the tables above. You do not gain new spells in any other spellcasting classes that you might have had before you took this prestige class, but you can still cast spells from your previous class.

You can only choose spells from the justice spell list; justices use their Wisdom modifier for calculating bonus spells and spell DCs.

JUSTICE SPELLS PER DAY

Level	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	0	—	—	—
2nd	1	—	—	—
3rd	2	0	—	—
4th	3	1	—	—
5th	3	2	0	—
6th	3	3	1	—
7th	3	3	2	0
8th	3	3	3	1
9th	3	3	3	2
10th	3	3	3	3

JUSTICE SPELLS KNOWN

Level	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	2 ¹	—	—	—
2nd	3	—	—	—
3rd	3	2 ¹	—	—
4th	4	3	—	—
5th	4	3	2 ¹	—
6th	4	4	3	—
7th	4	4	3	2 ¹
8th	4	4	4	3
9th	4	4	4	3
10th	4	4	4	4

¹ Provided the character has sufficient Intelligence to have a bonus spell of this level.

Bonus Feats: At 2nd and 8th levels, you gain a bonus archery feat.

When you gain a new bonus feat, you must choose from the following list: Deflect Arrows, Far Shot, Improved Critical (longbow), Improved Precise Shot, Manyshot, Mounted Archery, Precise Shot, Rapid Shot, Shot on the Run, Snatch Arrows, Weapon Specialization (longbow only), Greater Weapon Focus (longbow only), Greater Weapon Specialization (longbow only).

You must meet all prerequisites for a bonus feat.

Use your justice level when determining whether you meet a prerequisite of a minimum fighter level.

For example, a ranger 8/justice 8 would meet the requirement for Greater Weapon Focus (fighter level 8th), but not Greater Weapon Specialization (fighter level 12th). Woodland Stride (Ex): At 2nd level, you can move through any sort of undergrowth, as the druid ability described on page 36 of the Player's Handbook.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 3rd and 7th level, you deal an extra 1d6 points of damage when striking an opponent when the opponent is denied a Dexterity bonus to armor class, such as when it is surprised and flat-footed, or when you attack from a flanking position, as the sneak attack ability of rogues.

Your damage dice stack with any sneak attack damage dice you might have gained from a previous class.

Lucky Shot (Su): Once per day as a free action, you can gain a +10 insight bonus to one attack roll with your longbow. You must declare the use of this ability before rolling the die.

Trackless Step (Ex): At 4th level and higher, you leave no trail in natural surroundings and cannot be tracked. You can leave a trail on purpose if you so desire.

Poison Use (Ex): At 5th level, you learn to create and/or extract natural poisons and apply them to your weapons without any danger of harming yourself.

Steady Hand (Ex): At 6th level, you become able to fire your personal longbow in melee combat without provoking attacks of opportunity.

You only gain the benefit of this special ability when wearing light or no armor.

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): At 9th level, you gain the ability to hide in plain sight, as the ranger ability described on page 48 of the Player's Handbook.

Death Attack (Ex): At 10th level, you gain the ability to study your victim for 3 rounds and then make a sneak attack with a longbow that, if it successfully deals damage, has the additional effect of possibly either paralyzing or killing the target (your choice).

While studying the victim, you can undertake other actions so long as your attention stays focused on the target and the target does not detect you or recognize you as an enemy.

If the victim of such an attack fails a Fortitude save (DC 20 + your Int modifier) against the kill effect, it dies.

If the saving throw fails against the paralysis effect, the target is rendered helpless and unable to act for 1d6+10 rounds.

If the target's saving throw succeeds, the attack is just a normal sneak attack.

Once you have completed the 3 rounds of study, you must make the death attack within the next 3 rounds.

If a death attack is attempted and fails (the victim makes her save) or if you do not launch the attack within 3 rounds of completing the study, 3 new rounds of study are required before you can attempt another death attack.

Poison Immunity (Ex): At 10th level, you gain immunity to all natural poisons and animal venoms.

This ability differs from the druid ability of the same name, in that it only applies to poisons derived from natural plants or fungi, or from animal or vermin venoms, not to all poisons, such as venoms from celestial animals or outsiders, or poisons derived from minerals or magic.

JUSTICE OF WEALD AND WOE SPELL LIST

1st—camouflage, detect snares and pits, endure elements, faerie fire, hide from animals, jump, longstrider, obscuring mist, pass without trace, *woodwisp arrow.

2nd—barkskin, *brilliant energy arrow, cat's grace, fog cloud, snare, *spellslayer arrow, speak with plants, spider climb, tree shape.

3rd—*arrowsplit, *darkflame arrow, darkvision, meld into stone, *serpent arrow, spike growth, water breathing, wind wall.

4th—*bloodfreeze arrow, *doublestrike arrow, freedom of movement, poison, scrying, *shadow arrow, spike stones, tree stride.

* New spell described in Chapter 2.

PLAYING A JUSTICE OF WEALD AND WOE

You serve two critical roles in elf culture.

You are the sniper sent to harass the enemy's forces within their own encampment or stronghold, and you are the punisher sent to the furthest ends of Toril to execute judgment against those who harm the elves or their interests.

You are a skilled hunter and a master of using your surroundings to disguise your movement.

Your skill with the longbow is unparalleled, and you mix martial skill with magical ability to both mask your passage and make your arrows more damaging, frightening, and deadly.

You are patient and cautious, yet relentless in pursuit of your goals.

The class originated within the Eldreth Veluuthra, an elven nationalist organization dedicated to the destruction of humankind, to deal with adventurers seeking to exploit the ruins of Myth Rhynn.

Since that time, the group's training has spread throughout the organization as a whole.

Within the organization, you often work alone or in concert with several other specialists whose skills compliment one another.

Your missions frequently take you outside the boundaries of acceptable warfare as you are called upon to spread terror among humans or eliminate political leaders whose policies lead to human encroachment into elven forests.

Combat: Your longbow is your best friend; like a part of your arm, it never leaves your hand.

Your arrows are like thoughts given form, speeding to do your will.

Nature is your ally, hiding your passage, covering your steps, guarding your back, and creating arrows that terrify and slay.

Your best technique is to fire from a position of concealment, surprising your opponents.

When working within a party, you operate best from the shadows.

Do not be afraid to fire into melee; surprise and flank attacks are your best tactics.

Although at 6th level you gain the ability to use your longbow in melee combat, you prefer to let the brawny ones do the slugging—you are a bringer of swift, silent death from afar.

Your enemies grow frustrated and begin to believe it is the forest itself that opposes them, or that a battalion of elves lies hidden in the wood, when it is only you, flitting from tree to tree, crawling through the tall grass like a snake, always striking from the flank, catching your opponents flat-footed.

Mix your spells and extraordinary abilities with your uncanny longbow skill to drive fear into their hearts.

Your lucky shot, death attack, and poison use abilities allow you to assassinate difficult, even heavily armored foes and leave little evidence of the manner of their death.

As you are taught from the first day of your training, a single arrow, properly placed, is often more effective than a storm of bolts.

Advancement: The Eldreth Veluuthra carefully recruits prospective justices from the ranks of rangers and rogues already serving the cause, individuals who have already proven their ability to follow orders without suffering from any moral qualms.

They seek individuals with superb longbow and survival skills who show promise (though not necessarily current skill) as spellcasters.

These are sent to train with rangers and druids who are themselves students of the ice lich Lossarwyn (see page 83).

Your first missions as a justice are often as a longbow specialist working in concert with other skilled individuals, including rogues, rangers, sorcerers, druids and wizards. If combat begins, your job is to harass the enemy leaders and spellcasters with your arrows.

You spend most of your time training with experienced rangers and druids, who put you through your magical and mundane paces, though you are also required to make extensive study of the behavior of your enemies so that you can exploit their weaknesses and your strengths.

You should learn to handle animals, especially poisonous snakes, since they become useful to you at later levels.

Finally, you undergo a thorough indoctrination in elven culture so that, when the time comes for swift deeds on behalf of your people, your hand will not falter.

As you advance in skill, you will be called on more and more often to use your skills as a spy and a hunter of men—thus you will need to concentrate on those abilities that will best serve your missions.

As a gatherer of information, you will need disguise and concealment skills, plus the ability to escape dangerous situations.

A cloak of elvenkind and boots of elvenkind are indispensable pieces of your wardrobe.

As a hunter, you will need tracking ability as well as the skills of a spy, since your quarry might take you into the stronghold of those you intend to slay.

Even the best bow wears out over time, so you will need to continue to improve your Craft skill to make better weapons.

You might even want to invest in the Craft Magic Arms and Armor feat so that you can craft your own magic weapons, such as arrows of slaying.

At the very highest levels, you are almost exclusively an assassin—the number of arrows in your quiver is a mark of your skill.

By this time, you most often train alone, since few have the skill to teach you.

You also begin to teach others your skills.

Resources: This prestige class was born from the Eldreth Veluuthra because of its special needs, and the Eldreth Veluuthra remains the primary source of justice training.

Here, you can always find rangers and druids sympathetic to your cause who are willing to teach you their secrets.

The organization also provides employment in organizational activities after you have completed a mission, as well as quests and missions needing the special combination of abilities that can only be found in a party of adventurers.

Finally, with its connections to the elf aristocracy, the organization can sometimes provide cover, protection, and an alibi after you have completed a mission that might have agents of a slain human king hot upon your trail and screaming for your blood (but only if you are extraordinarily careless).

Just don't abuse their hospitality.

JUSTICES IN THE WORLD

Justices provide a refreshing alternative to the high-and-mighty, "shining beacon of goodness" image of most elves in the game.

A justice of weald and woe makes an excellent recurring foe for a group of PCs that have stomped upon a few elven toes at some point in their career.

If you have a justice in the game, provide plenty of elf-related ties to your adventures to keep the character active. Justices live for the one-on-one encounter, the chess match of wits in impossible terrain against a worthy foe, such as an opposed ranger or assassin.

The justice is a primarily a man-killer, not a dragon-slayer.

Organization: Justices are loners, as far as others of their kind are concerned.

Whenever two justices meet, friction is likely to result, since all justices are extraordinarily jealous of their abilities and secrets, and there is always the chance that the justice sitting across the table from you has been sent by your last employer to prevent you from talking.

However, like all hunters, justices sometimes come together to tell elaborate lies about their exploits, or to show off their trophies.

Because their missions sometimes overlap, justices and Evereskan tomb guardians sometimes cooperate—but more often compete—for the glory of bringing tomb defilers to justice.

This has, on occasion, led to open conflict between individuals, and at least one remarkable friendship.

Tylore Beneshare was a ranger who was recruited into the Eldreth Veluuthra and eventually began her training as a Justice.

Her political and historical advisor was Ganethra Elderwand, a tomb guardian with whom she spent many an argumentative hour while sharing the responsibility of guarding a three-thousand-year-old tomb north of Evereska.

While Tylore was on a mission to ambush a Zhentarim trade caravan in the Anauroch, human adventurers from Waterdeep broke into the tomb.

Their wizard, a member of the Arcane Brotherhood, summoned a demon that nearly killed Ganethra.

When Ganethra healed, he set out alone to restore his honor, recover the artifacts stolen from the tomb, and punish the thieves.

Tylore arrived a month after Ganethra left but was able to track him by the trail of bodies he had left behind.

Finally, she caught up with Ganethra outside the wizard's tower at the edge of the Ardeep Forest, where she convinced him to give up his insane plan to infiltrate the tower and slay the wizard in his conjuring chamber. Instead, they lay in wait on the road leading to the tower, and when the wizard's wife rode past accompanied by her bodyguard, Tylore dropped her from the saddle with a single arrow, while Ganethra battled and slew the bodyguard.

Tylore then restrained one of the horses, and they slung both bodies across the saddle and sent it on its way.

In a rage, the wizard stormed from his tower and descended on the forest with his servants.

But long had the Eldreth Veluuthra cell of the Ardeep sought a chance to eliminate this human wizard and regain the treasures he had stolen from the elven ruins in their forest; coordinating with them, Tylore set up an ambush in which all but one of the wizard's servants was slain.

Sorely wounded, the wizard teleported to safety, only to discover his tower already occupied by the Eldreth Veluuthra.

Hunted through the halls he had once considered his stronghold, he was finally slain in his conjuring chamber by Ganethra.

NPC REACTIONS

Because they strongly believe that the end justifies the means and will gladly slay innocents if doing so strikes a blow against a hated enemy, justices are often reviled within normal elven culture.

They are a political liability of the worst kind.

Nevertheless, they are an effective weapon, and one not to be tossed aside lightly.

Elaborate measures are used to maintain plausible deniability.

The enemies of the elves are the enemies of the justices. Therefore, they have many enemies, both good and evil. Where one elf might see a competitor or an adversary, a justice sees an enemy to be destroyed.

JUSTICES IN THE GAME

Because of their inherent racist attitude, justices affiliated with the Eldreth Veluuthra might be difficult to work into a group of PCs that includes humans.

Some greater mission must be involved.

Anywhere that elven interests are at stake is a good place to insert a justice into the campaign.

Adaptation: Justices fit fairly well into other game worlds, but you might need to design an organization that both motivates them and gives them support.

They would swiftly be hunted down and destroyed by their fellow elves without some sort of political protection.

Encounters: The justices of weald and woe are swift, silent bringers of death to all who would subvert elven culture—especially humans.

Justices are implacable foes driven by an almost fanatic desire to crush those deemed to be an enemy of the people, using whatever means are necessary to do so.

ARROW SPELLS

A number of new spells have come out of the justice training.

Designed by the ice lich Lossarwyn, these spells expand upon the justice's already formidable archery portfolio.

These spells are listed in the justice of weald and woe spell list (above) and are detailed in Chapter 2.

TABLE 3-2:

THE JUSTICE OF WEALD AND WOE

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+3	+3	+0	Spells
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+1	Bonus feat, woodland stride
3rd	+2	+4	+4	+1	Sneak attack +1d6
4th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Lucky shot, trackless step
5th	+3	+5	+5	+1	Poison use
6th	+4	+5	+5	+2	Steady hand
7th	+5	+6	+6	+2	Sneak attack +2d6
8th	+6	+6	+6	+2	Bonus feat
9th	+6	+7	+7	+3	Hide in plain sight
10th	+7	+7	+7	+3	Death attack, immunity to poison

NIGHT MASK DEATHBRINGER

"The winds of change have blown into Westgate, and I am like a whisper on that wind.

The city does as I bid, as my masters bid, but all it feels is my cool kiss gently guiding its withered will."

—Emuin Nightshade

The deathbringers are the phantoms of Westgate, able to walk among mortal men during the light of day but possessed of some of undead's most ghastly powers. They are not truly undead beings, but hybrids bred to go where the masters of the Night Masks cannot tread. As a deathbringer, you stalk the shadows of Westgate and beyond in search of ways to empower yourself and your guild.

You have tasted the kiss of death, and the fear it brought you never quite leaves the back of your mind.

BECOMING A NIGHT MASK DEATHBRINGER

Night Mask deathbringers are highly trained members of the Westgate thieves' guild who have caught the favorable attention of the vampires in charge of the organization. They undergo a gruesome ceremony involving the drinking of their own blood from the veins of a vampire lord, which changes them into monsters capable of the most vile and depraved acts.

Rogues have the easiest time qualifying for this prestige class; other classes generally must stray from their primary training to achieve the necessary requirements.

Dexterity (for stealth), Wisdom (for perception), and Charisma (for more powerful special abilities) are key abilities for a Night Mask deathbringer.

Hit Die: d6.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any evil.

Skills: Hide 8 ranks, Knowledge (local) 3 ranks, Move Silently 8 ranks.

Feat: Great Fortitude.

Special: Evasion and uncanny dodge class features.

CLASS SKILLS

(8 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Bluff, Climb, Craft, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Disable Device, Disguise, Escape Artist, Forgery, Gather Information, Hide, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (local), Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Perform, Profession, Search, Sense Motive, Sleight of Hand, Spot, Swim, Tumble, Use Magic Device, Use Rope.

CLASS FEATURES

As they increase in level, Night Mask deathbringers gain more of the powers their undead masters possess, increasing their deadliness and skill.

Creature of Darkness (Ex): Animals can sense the death in you, causing them to fear your presence.

As a result, all animals except for bats, rats, and wolves have their initial attitudes moved down one category when you first approach them.

In addition, you take a –2 penalty on all Ride checks due to the beast's inherent nervousness at your presence.

Hesitating Stare (Su): Deathbringers can force their opponents to confront their own mortality with but a glance.

This ability can be activated once per day at any time, even when you are surprised.

You cast a glance at any foe within 30 feet, who must then make a successful Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 your class level + Cha modifier) or be stunned for 1 round.

You can use this ability twice per day at 4th level and higher, three times per day at 7th level and higher, and four times per day at 10th level.

Light Sensitivity (Ex): In sunlight or bright magical light (such as a daylight spell), a deathbringer is dazzled.

Spider Climb (Sp): Starting at 1st level, you can act as if you were under the influence of a spider climb spell (caster level equals your deathbringer class level).

You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to your Charisma modifier, minimum one.

Feral Senses: At 2nd level, you gain low-light vision—the ability to see twice as far as a human in starlight, moonlight, torchlight, or similar conditions of poor illumination.

You retain the ability to distinguish color and detail under these conditions.

At 7th level, you gain darkvision out to 60 feet.

Speak with Creatures of the Night (Ex): When you reach 3rd level, you can speak with rats, bats, and wolves as if you were under the influence of a speak with animals spell.

This ability does nothing to affect the attitude of such creatures.

Ghost Step (Su): Once per day starting at 3rd level, you can make yourself invisible for 1 round.

This is a swift action (something you can do as a free action once per round) that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

You can use this ability twice per day at 6th level and higher, and three times per day at 9th level and higher.

Lesser Blood Bond (Su): One of the deathbringer's most insidious powers, this ability helps you break down the will of her enemies.

To use this ability, a deathbringer of 4th level or higher must get the target to drink three drops of her blood.

She can do this by hiding the blood in food or drink, or by pinning the target for 1 round and bleeding directly into his mouth.

Once this condition has been fulfilled, the deathbringer can cause a charm person effect to come over the target by speaking directly to him.

The words used are unimportant, only that the deathbringer wills the target to be friendly to him.

The caster level of the effect equals the deathbringer's class level, and the DC to resist the effect equals 10 + the deathbringer's class level + Cha modifier.

You can have a number of outstanding blood bonds, active or not, equal to your Charisma modifier.

Should you exceed this limit, the oldest blood bond becomes inactive.

Sneak Attack (Ex): At 4th level and higher, you deal extra damage when you catch a foe flat-footed or flank a foe, as the rogue class feature described on page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

Sneak-attack dice attained from multiple sources stack.

Improved Evasion (Ex): At 5th level, your pseudo-vampiric celerity grants you supernatural reflexes.

You now take no damage on a successful Reflex saving throw against area attacks and half damage on a failed save.

You do not gain the benefit of this ability if you are helpless.

Slippery Mind (Su): When you attain 6th level, your mind is only partly mortal, allowing you to shrug off mental attacks and compulsions more easily than others.

Any time you are affected by an enchantment spell or effect and you fail your saving throw, you can attempt the save again 1 round later at the same DC.

You only get one extra chance to succeed per effect.

Greater Blood Bond (Su): This ability, acquired at 10th level, works just like lesser blood bond, except the target comes under the influence of a dominate person spell rather than charm person.

A deathbringer can have a number of outstanding blood bonds, active or not, equal to her Charisma modifier.

Should she exceed this limit, the oldest blood bond becomes inactive.

PLAYING A NIGHT MASK DEATHBRINGER

You are a master of night's dark shadows, a deadly whisper whose passing leaves blood and destruction.

Killing and robbing were not enough for you, however; you craved power, and the lords of the Night Masks were willing to share it with you—for a price.

You must serve their wicked ends, and sacrifice a little of your humanity in the process.

You can now come and go as you please, and the secrets of the night are yours to use for whatever purpose stokes the fires of your corrupted mind.

The night is your time; it is when you are at your most confident and most deadly.

Still, your masters expect you to carry out missions in daylight as well, something they themselves are incapable of doing without great risk.

While the sun is deadly to them, to you it is merely an inconvenience.

Still, this minor hindrance is the price of a power that you never could have achieved on your own.

Combat: You prefer to strike from the shadows, where your powers are at their greatest.

Setting ambushes is your tactic of choice, using your ability to speak with inconspicuous creatures and climbing where others might fall.

Open combat does not serve you well, especially under the brightness of the sun.

Your skills are best utilized in quick combat, with your enemy on the ground before he ever knew what hit him.

When combat drags out and surprise tactics are no longer on your side, use skills such as Hide and Tumble as well as your ghost step ability to leave combat and prepare another ambush.

Leaving your foes bleeding and confused is sometimes better than leaving them dead.

By 4th level you are able to better spring surprise attacks on your foes, using your abilities to become invisible and to see better in conditions of low light.

Since your sneak attack damage does not increase at the same rate as a rogue's, you must rely even more on ambush tactics as your level increases.

For this purpose, you must improve your Bluff and Hide skills, allowing you to attack from the darkness and then retreat there again, even after you have exhausted your uses of ghost step for the day.

At higher levels you can use your hesitating stare to stun opponents, making them vulnerable to your deadly sneak attacks.

Your slippery mind and improved evasion abilities allow you to remain in close combat for longer than you could previously, and your ability to quietly slip out of combat when things turn against you has peaked.

You are still not a combat master, but you can hold your own against almost any single opponent, and you have the tools to leave multiple foes scratching their heads or grasping their bloodied throats.

Advancement: Deathbringers are recruited from among the Night Masks' most shadowy and ambitious operatives.

Taking such rogues into their inner circle accomplishes two goals for the vampires: It keeps the ambitious close to them where they can monitor any treacherous plans, and it gives them loyal operatives who can operate above ground during the daylight hours.

Occasionally a prospect from outside the guild is turned into a deathbringer.

On at least one occasion a rogue who managed to pierce the vampires' inner sanctum was captured and, rather than facing a long, torturous death, agreed to become an agent of the Night Masks.

To become inducted into the deathbringer clan is to know fear and pain as you have never experienced it.

The vampires have a ritual that involves bloodletting, mental domination, and phantasms from the deepest part of the subconscious.

Once this ritual has been completed, a piece of the deathbringer's mortality has been replaced with the horror of living death.

While this experience does not make her an undead creature, she has to live with a measure of the suffering such creatures face.

Once the ritual is complete, the deathbringer is now officially a part of the guild's highest order.

While no special privileges are granted because of this, deathbringers do hold greater weight in the eyes of the guild's leaders.

Most Night Mask operatives will defer to a deathbringer in matters of guild business, and they are often trusted with the most delicate and lucrative jobs.

Unless they are on a mission for one of their vampire lords, deathbringers are granted no rights to petition them for aid or advice.

Sometimes the vampires instruct more experienced deathbringers on how to use their newfound abilities, but most of the time they assume their creations are smart enough to figure things out on their own.

Resources: Night Mask deathbringers work in service to the guild, and they will ask for help whenever necessary. A particularly powerful enemy or dangerous situation might bring a swarm of deathbringers down upon it, usually spelling doom for whoever has warranted such attention.

Information flows freely between the deathbringers, and there is no inherent competition for the attention of their masters.

Of course, some deathbringers are more ambitious than others, but personal rivalries are more often the cause of such conflicts than ambition.

You should seek magic items that increase both your stealth and speed.

A ring of jumping allows you to prowl the rooftops, and shadow armor makes you effectively invisible against the darkness of night.

Charisma-enhancing items make some of your special abilities even more effective, as well as facilitating access to those you wish to see drink your blood.

NIGHT MASK DEATHBRINGERS IN THE WORLD

Night Mask deathbringers make terrible foes for any group of PCs, because deathbringers can sow seeds of distrust between even the most stalwart companions.

Any characters who are active and successful in or near the city of Westgate will eventually run across a deathbringer, whether they know it or not.

Westgate is the deathbringers' city, and they want to know about any potential threats or allies that come inside its walls.

A deathbringer can even act as a character's first introduction to the Night Masks guild, and potentially bring him inside to work for the guild.

If the PCs are looking for a contact in Westgate's underworld, they could not do much better than one of Orbakh's pseudo-vampiric minions (for more information on Orbakh, see page 41 of Lords of Darkness).

Organization: The deathbringers are a special arm of the Night Masks thieves' guild.

Most of the time they are left to their own devices, using their extraordinary powers to further the assets and position of the guild.

Occasionally, the vampires at the center of the guild's power structure command one or more deathbringers to see to an important bit of guild business.

Daytime meetings and ambushes are typical of the missions to be assigned, as are those with more far-reaching goals such as the exploration of a ruin, or contact with an ally outside Westgate or along the Dragon Coast.

The deathbringers are like a plague across Westgate, one that often extends across the Dragonmere into Sembia, and south into Turmish and Amn.

Its individual agents have spread out across the lands that interest the Night Masks and their masters.

One deathbringer, a sorcerer/rogue named Ciodaru Arexis, has risen to such power that he now commands the respect of all the others.

Little do they know that Ciodaru is actually a disguised illithid, working under a special arrangement with Orbakh. Although he is bestowed with no more power than any other deathbringer, his knowledge of the city's power structures and the intrigues he has woven throughout them means that nothing goes on in the city without his knowledge.

Ciodaru has control of the Purple Lady Festhall, the closest thing to a central meeting hall the guild maintains.

A complex underneath the inn leads to a temple of Talona, where victims, kidnapped from parties at the festhall, are taken for experimentation with new diseases and poisons. The priests of the temple provide Ciodaru with an elixir that dulls the horror permeating the minds of all those who have undergone the deathbringer transformation; his success is partly attributable to the mental clarity he gets from the elixir, so no one outside of himself, the inn's owner, and the temple priests knows of this secret arrangement.

Westgate has a reputation as a city where anything can be bought for a price.

This atmosphere lends itself extremely well to the Night Masks' business concerns, and even more so for its most shadowy operatives—the deathbringers.

Deathbringers are active day and night, looking for new opportunities to bring wealth and power to the guild.

During the day, most of their activities include scouting locations and talking to their contacts in order to stay current with the new faces in town.

Everything changes in Westgate at night.

The smartest law-abiding citizens stay off the streets, where robbers and worse lurk in every shadow.

Deathbringers swarm from their hidden holes and hideaways as soon as the sun falls, ready to implement their plans and attack their enemies from the shadows.

The “phantoms of Westgate” are rarely out to simply rob someone of their purse—they stalk likely targets for a blood bond and investigate their background; they track powerful adventurers who have come into town without “registering” with the guild; and they assassinate merchants and nobles who have proven troublesome to their undead masters. Of course, the deathbringers are not without their enemies in Westgate and beyond.

Chief among them are the Five Souls of the Dead, a group of Kelemvorites who are committed to rooting out the vampiric lords of the Night Masks.

Since Orbakh and the Court of Night Masters rarely venture out into the city, the Five Souls have focused their efforts on the bastard creations known as the deathbringers.

The Kelemvorites have already destroyed three deathbringers since coming to Westgate, and they are on the trail of at least two more.

Ciodaru has managed to maneuver them into his sphere so that he can keep tabs on them, but until he is ready to confront them outright, he is forced to impede their information gathering as best he can from the shadows.

NPC REACTIONS

The Night Masks are an accepted, if not welcome, part of the Westgate culture and landscape.

In some parts of town, guild members can talk freely about their association without care, while in others such flaunting is looked down upon.

One thing is for certain, though—the authorities have long since given up trying to control the guild and its activities. Those who find themselves on the guild's good side welcome its members into their establishments, might give them preferential treatment or minor discounts on goods, and won't betray their confidence for too little coin.

Those who find themselves at odds with the guild quickly find that they must hire mercenaries to guard them and their businesses against guild activities.

One might even attract the attention of a deathbringer, at which point all the mercenaries in the world might not be enough protection.

Although they do not identify themselves as anything but ordinary guild thieves, deathbringers have an aura about them that clearly differentiates them from other individuals.

This leads to stronger reactions in both cases, with guild-friendly NPCs being even friendlier toward deathbringers, and those with reason to fear or loathe the guild reacting strongly in the opposite direction.

NIGHTMASK DEATHBRINGER LORE

Characters with Knowledge (local Westgate) can research the deathbringers or the Night Masks.

Investigating a deathbringer by name is certain to pique the guild's curiosity, while trying to find information on the guild itself is certain to warrant a personal visit, possibly from a deathbringer if the inquiring character is powerful or influential.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: “The Night Masks have free rein in Westgate.

They likely already know more about you than you do about them”.

DC 15: “The Night Mask assassins are the greatest in all of Faerûn.

I hear they can either kill you or bring you under their control.

I'm not sure which one's worse”.

DC 20: “There is a group called the Five Souls of the Dead that knows more about the Night Masks than anyone else in the city”.

DC 30: A character with this level of success can find a particular deathbringer, and will also learn that the individual is somehow connected to the city's vampire lords.

NIGHTMASK DEATHBRINGERS IN THE GAME

The deathbringers could be a thorn in your characters' sides for quite some time before being discovered.

If the characters go to Westgate and seek a high-level audience with the Night Masks, a deathbringer would likely be their first contact.

Players who love stealth, assassination, and unusual abilities will be attracted to the deathbringer class for its combination of these elements.

The discovery of new abilities at each level should be enough motivation to keep a character loyal to his vampiric masters, even if he must occasionally make personal sacrifices to them.

Adaptation: The deathbringers fit perfectly into their role as elite agents of Westgate's vampire lords.

They could be former captured adversaries or specially selected lieutenants.

Encounters: Unless the characters have boldly demanded an audience with the lords of the Night Masks (or otherwise caught their attention), their first encounter with a deathbringer is likely to be short and bloody.

If they manage to kill the deathbringer, this act would probably bring the full wrath of the Night Masks upon them very quickly.

TABLE 3-3: THE NIGHT MASK DEATHBRINGER

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Creature of darkness, hesitating stare 1/day, light sensitivity, spider climb
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Feral senses (low-light vision)
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Speak with creatures of the night, ghost step 1/day
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Hesitating stare 2/day, lesser blood bond, sneak attack +1d6
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Improved evasion
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Slippery mind, ghost step 2/day
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	Hesitating stare 3/day, feral senses (darkvision)
8th	+6	+2	+6	+2	Sneak attack +2d6
9th	+6	+3	+6	+3	Ghost step 3/day
10th	+7	+3	+7	+3	Hesitating stare 4/day, greater blood bond

SHADE HUNTER

"The return of Netheril can only mean great danger for Faerûn. I must find that which they have come seeking, so that I can use it first."

—Daggerdale Thren, shade hunter

The shade hunter is a breed of adventurer who lives for the thrill of finding lost treasure, defeating ancient traps, and surviving deadly curses laid by the priests of dead gods.

Part historian, part loremaster, and part graverobber, these artifact hunters will go anywhere and risk anything to acquire the next big score to add to their hoards.

Netherese artifacts have always held a particular fascination for anyone interested in history and ancient arcana, and the return of the Shadovar and the floating City of Shade above Anauroch has created a frenzy of related activity all across Faerûn.

The recent damage dealt to Shade's mythal by five of Faerûn's most powerful mages has caused the city's leaders to seek out ancient stores of Netherese magic in hopes that something will be able to repair it—and opportunistic treasure hunters have not been far behind them.

BECOMING A SHADE HUNTER

Shade hunters come from all backgrounds, but a love of adventure and history as well as a total disregard for personal safety are traits common to them all.

Most hail from the northern regions—the Dalelands, the Western Heartlands, the North, and the Moonsea being most common—around which the ancient empire of Netheril had the most contact and influence.

The freewheeling style of the class, as well as the need for stealth and "technical expertise", best suits rogues and rangers, but occasionally a curious bard will find the lure of undiscovered caches of magic and lore irresistible; other classes find the wide range of skills and knowledge a shade hunter needs to be too demanding.

Intelligence (for skill acquisition and spells), Dexterity (for evading traps), and Wisdom (for following tracks) are key abilities for a shade hunter.

Hit Die: d8.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any evil.

Skills: Climb 4 ranks, Decipher Script 4 ranks, Disable Device 5 ranks, Jump 4 ranks, Knowledge (dungeoneering) 6 ranks, Knowledge (history) 2 ranks, Search 8 ranks, Speak

Language (Netherese), Survival 6 ranks, Use Magic Device 5 ranks.

Feat: Track.

Special: Shades as a favored enemy, trapfinding class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

(8 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Climb, Concentration, Decipher Script, Disable Device, Disguise, Gather Information, Hide, Jump, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (dungeoneering), Knowledge (geography), Knowledge (history), Knowledge (local), Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Profession, Ride, Search, Spot, Survival, Swim, Tumble, Use Magic Device, Use Rope.

CLASS FEATURES

Shade hunters have become amazingly adept at navigating the dungeons in which the ancient magic of Netheril is often found.

They also develop special techniques for fighting the rightful heirs to this long lost treasure.

Spellcasting: When you take up this class, you gain the ability to cast a number of arcane spells.

To cast a spell, you must have an Intelligence score of 10 + the spell's level.

Your bonus spells are based on Intelligence, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + your Intelligence bonus.

When you get 0 spells per day, you gain only the bonus spells you would be entitled to based on your intelligence score for that spell level.

You cast spells just as a sorcerer does.

Upon reaching 6th level, and at every even-numbered level after that, you can choose to learn a new spell in place of one you already know.

The new spell's level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level shade hunter spell you can cast.

Trap Sense (Ex): Your expertise with dungeons gives you an intuitive sense that alerts you to danger from traps, providing you with a +1 bonus on Reflex saves made to avoid traps and a +1 dodge bonus to AC against attacks made by traps.

These bonuses increase by 1 every other level, up to +5 at 9th level.

Trap sense bonuses gained from multiple sources stack.

Tricks of the Trade (Ex): The experiences and dangers that you have encountered in your travels begin to coalesce into a practical body of knowledge when you enter the shade hunter class.

This knowledge grants you a bonus equal to your class level that can be used each day to augment ability checks, skill checks, or attack rolls.

The points of bonus do not need to be applied to the same roll, and you can divide them up however you like throughout the day.

You must decide whether or not to use a bonus, and if so how large the bonus will be, before you roll the die.

For example, a 3rd-level shade hunter has a total bonus of +3 to distribute throughout the day.

If he finds himself in mortal combat, he could apply the entire bonus to a single attack roll, hoping to fell his enemy.

Alternatively, he could apply a +1 bonus to an Open Lock check, then another +1 to a Spot check later that day, and his final +1 bonus to a Strength check to dislodge a coffer from its resting place.

Low-Light Vision (Ex): At 2nd level, you gain low-light vision.

If you already have low-light vision, its effective distance is doubled, so you can now see four times as far as a human in conditions of low light.

Sense Ancient Magic (Su): Starting at 2nd level, you can detect the magical aura radiated by items of Netherese creation.

This ability functions like detect magic, except that it is always active unless you consciously suppress it, and it can only detect the auras of magic items that have been in the same location for at least one hundred years.

Expert Packer: Starting at 3rd level, you have learned how to get every last bit of utility out of your backpack, belt, and bandoleer.

Reduce the weight of your gear by 10% for purposes of figuring your load.

Sneak Attack (Ex): At 4th level and higher, you deal extra damage when you catch a foe flat-footed or flank a foe, as the rogue class feature described on page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

Sneak-attack dice attained from multiple sources stack.

Tools of the Trade: By 4th level, you have picked up so many knickknacks and strange tools on your travels that you've lost track of everything you own.

Once per day, you can "find" any mundane piece of equipment (other than weapons or armor) worth up to 10 gp per class level somewhere on your person, having forgotten completely about it.

When you do so, you must subtract an equivalent amount of gold (or other treasure—gems, jewelry, art, etc.) from your savings.

If you do not have enough gold to cover the cost of the item you want, you might not find the item with this ability.

Darkvision (Ex): At 5th level, you gain darkvision out to 60 feet.

If you already have darkvision, its effective distance extends by an additional 60 feet instead.

Special Ability (Ex): At 6th level, you can choose one of the following rogue special abilities: defensive roll, improved evasion, or skill mastery (see Player's Handbook page 51).

Locate Ancient Magic (Su): When you reach 7th level, your ability to sense the lost magic of Netheril has grown stronger.

You can now locate any magic items that have been in the same location for at least one hundred years as if you had cast a locate object spell and were familiar with the items in question.

Activating this ability is a standard action, and you can locate multiple auras by concentrating for continuous rounds.

Improved Favored Enemy (Ex): Starting at 8th level, your favored enemy bonuses against shades increase by 2.

No other favored enemy bonuses can be increased with this ability.

Blindsight (Ex): At 10th level your ability to function in the deepest, darkest dungeons grants you the ability to sense your surroundings using every available sensory input.

You gain blindsight out to 30 feet.

SHADE HUNTER SPELL LIST

Shade hunters choose their spells from the following list:

1st—camouflage, delay poison, detect snares and pits, identify, jump, longstrider, pass without trace, read magic, surefoot.

2nd—bear's endurance, bull's strength, cat's grace, cure moderate wounds, detect metals and minerals, make whole, snare.

3rd—continual flame, daylight, locate object, neutralize poison, obscure object, remove disease.

4th—commune with nature, dispel magic, freedom of movement, nondetection, remove curse, stone shape.

PLAYING A SHADE HUNTER

You can't wait for the next big score!

The joy that some people feel at the birth of a first child or the kiss of a new bride is yours only when you uncover a stash of Netherese gold or ancient magic.

Even research can be exciting when it's leading you to the "X" on the treasure map, and you'll gladly travel across the continent to hunt down a parchment or tome that has information you need.

The only thing you like better than learning about the things you are passionate about is actually utilizing what you know in the field.

You love the smell of oiled locks and old poison on rusty spikes, and you love the look on your enemies' faces as you snatch the prize right out from under them.

Whatever loot you manage to pry from the cold, dead fingers of its former Netherese owner is added to your hoard, especially if it is an item that can help you on your next foray.

Your adventures cause you to cross paths with shades and other beings from the floating city as well as treasure hunters of all stripes.

You are sometimes willing to work with others as long as you benefit from the transaction, but you worry that revealing too much information might lose you a prize you have so long sought.

Still, your constant run-ins with powerful shades have taught you the wisdom of sharing combat techniques and lore about your common enemy with other shade hunters. Silverymoon, Llorck, and Dagger Falls are popular sites to meet and trade with other treasure hunters, the first for its amazing historical and arcane resources, and the latter two for their proximity to the majority of ancient Netherese lands.

The lands in between are referred to by your colleagues as either the ancient lands or the shadow triangle, depending on their disposition.

Combat: Exploring inevitably brings you face to face with some of the deadliest traps and monsters on the planet—but you're a researcher and seeker first, and a fighter second.

You are at your best when attacking from an ambush, which means you must be ready for your enemies when they come.

Keen senses help you, but preparation is the key to your survival.

You have researched the areas into which you travel, and you always pack a surprise or two for the region's deadliest denizens.

When sneaking and ambush don't work, you are still fairly proficient with bow and blade, at least enough to cover your retreat or to find the right method of attack.

When you travel without companions, it's best to hire some outside muscle to help carry the spoils of your search as well as help you stay alive.

Your sneak attack ability makes it that much more effective for you to fight in a group, and such tactics help spread out the damage your foes can cause.

As an inveterate traveler and explorer, you have run across a wide variety of weapons and tools created to help defend oneself from harm.

Quirky items such as thunderstones and tanglefoot bags can provide not-so-obvious solutions to tough problems, including creatures that are determined to keep a Netherese hoard intact for another thousand years.

You find a new use for an old item just about every time you enter a dungeon, and cataloging these tricks has helped you survive your dangerous occupation.

Your fighting abilities suffer the most for your studies, and the more knowledgeable you become about Netherese history and the dungeons where it can be found, the less formidable you are with your sword.

Against incredibly powerful foes (except for shades, which you excel at fighting) it is even more important to strike first from the shadows and flee before suffering retaliation. You've accumulated quite a bag of tricks, and you shouldn't be afraid to use its contents to escape from a desperate situation.

Traveling with allies at this point becomes almost a necessity—unless you have enough gold to hire the most loyal followers money can buy.

Advancement: Scholars and adventurers from all across Faerûn travel to the lands surrounding Anauroch to research and seek out the ancient mysteries of Netheril. Anyone who grew up in those regions, however, has heard the local tales and legends of the fallen Netherese almost from the time that they are born.

It is not hard for the ancient empire to get under one's skin, with this fascination—or obsession—perhaps even leading to a career devoted to unearthing its secrets.

Some take the path of scholar, attending the finest schools of Waterdeep and Silverymoon, while others set out at the first opportunity to carve adventure from the remnants of a dead society.

Those who do quickly find that they are not alone in their pursuit of Netheril's artifacts and legacy.

At some point in time, every shade hunter is drawn to leave his books to experience firsthand the majesty of Netheril—inevitably leading to confrontations with shades and other explorers who are seeking the same things.

The Shadovar are particularly possessive over what they consider their rightful legacy, and will attempt to destroy anyone who stands in their way.

This fact leads many treasure hunters to practice techniques to help them combat the shades and their mighty powers, the pursuit of which is not far off from their normal studies.

Most shade hunters acquire and commission strange tools and equipment based on their experiences in the field, but no matter how much a shade hunter can learn from books and teachers, Netheril's trapmakers and arcanists still have a few surprises left for those who would seek their ancient knowledge.

It can be difficult for a shade hunter to limit his studies to the essentials, since he finds so many skills and talents necessary for survival.

His tricks of the trade ability allows him to spread his skill points around a little more than a dedicated rogue or ranger, because he has a pool of available bonus points to make up for a deficiency in ranks.

Since he relies on skills as an integral part of his activities, even combat, it can be a good idea to use feats to bolster these skills.

Feats that grant bonuses to multiple skills are best, for the reasons stated above.

Feats that help him avoid combat and damage, such as Dodge and Mobility, are almost always preferable to those that increase his combat capabilities.

Resources: Resourcefulness is a hallmark of shade hunters, and they seem to have contacts in every city from Waterdeep to Hillsfar.

They can sometimes get information or advice from fellow shade hunters, or from local rangers who don't mind seeing the Shadovar take a hit.

Real information about possible hoards, Shadovar dig sites, and other related info are guarded by shade hunters, however, and will rarely if ever be traded or given up without significant persuasion.

It is considered good etiquette to share general tips about dungeoneering, however.

New and useful tools are described or displayed, and might even be loaned for copying from time to time.

Techniques for climbing, bypassing traps, and stalking monsters are also good conversation between shade hunters, even ones that consider themselves rivals.

With their focus on lost magic, it is no wonder that shade hunters employ quite a bit of magic themselves.

Items that aid stealth such as cloaks of elvenkind and rings of invisibility are popular, as are those that allow for a quick getaway in times of trouble.

Boots of striding and springing are almost an essential tool, allowing for quick movement and providing the ability to jump over chasms, pit traps, and other obstacles.

SHADE HUNTERS IN THE WORLD

Shade hunters travel the northern reaches of Faerûn in search of artifacts and lore from the ancient civilization of Netheril.

They regularly interact with remnants of the most magical society the world has ever seen, and often spread this knowledge, intentionally or not, to Faerûn's living mages. They provide a convenient foil to the shades, who are now scouring their ancestral lands for magic that will help them reestablish the Netherese empire and make the lands inhabitable again.

Although they might be doing the countries of Faerûn a favor by denying power to the shades, their motives fall well short of being altruistic.

Most shade hunters believe that the Shadovar have returned for a purpose, and they want to find out why so they can wield the power first.

Organization: Shade hunters are a diverse and independent lot.

When they are doing research or training in a city, they are likely to help one another and pass along information not directly related to a recent find.

There is a camaraderie between them born of their mutual fascination with history, Netherese lore, and the thrill of the hunt.

They tend to frequent the same haunts in cities across Faerûn, from libraries in Silverymoon to taverns in Waterdeep and brothels and thieves' guilds in Mulmaster.

They hope to pick up some tidbit of information from fellow shade hunters—even if they aren't forthcoming about their recent activities, a glimpse of a book paged through or map examined might provide valuable clues.

As the nights wear on, they gather to drink and share stories and lore.

Even bitter rivals engage in these sorts of meets, although their storytelling is often competitive or meant to dredge up the failures and embarrassments their rivals have suffered in the past.

Aside from doing research and swapping stories in taverns, shade hunters busy themselves preparing for the inevitable journeys that will, they hope, lead them to the riches of Netheril.

If other shade hunters or treasure seekers know a shade hunter is preparing to leave, that individual must often take precautions against being followed.

A favorite tactic of the half-elf Cantius Valer is to hire a lookalike to leave town the day before he sets out, causing would-be trackers to head in the opposite direction while he leaves town undetected, usually under cover of night.

Once a shade hunter sets out, he doesn't turn back for any reason other than to save his hide.

He will stay in the field for as long as necessary, turning over every stone in search of the secret hoard he knows is there.

When he finds a hoard that has already been claimed or runs into a shade dig site, a shade hunter acts proactively to recover the treasure he believes is rightly his.

He will use guerrilla tactics against a dig site, attempting to disrupt the operation enough to drive the shades away.

If fresh tracks lead away from a site, a shade hunter will follow them and ambush those who beat him to the punch.

As in all situations, however, should things turn sour, retreat is an easy option.

NPC REACTIONS

It's hard to miss a group of adventurers coming into town—they spend gold like water, usually make a mess of the place, and have a penchant for uncovering trouble where there was none before.

Shade hunters are no different, although they tend to look for trouble outside town rather than in the middle of it.

Still, they are a sight to see, with their overstuffed backpacks and jangling bandoleers, and they always bring interesting tales and items to delight children and tavern patrons alike.

Shade hunters are often seen as aloof and distracted because they are often lost in thought about a recent exploit or future endeavor.

They are often excellent storytellers, however, and have picked up a millennium's worth of legends to recount. Shades, obviously, have a very strong dislike of shade hunters.

Rival artifact hunters and treasure seekers can be jealous at times, but all such individuals share a kinship that allows them to overcome petty rivalries quite easily.

Merchants and arcanists love shade hunters for the stories and strange objects they bring back from their adventures, but town leaders often fear the evil that such explorers often dredge up in their wake.

More than once, a shade hunter has unwittingly unleashed some demon or other trapped terror, only to skip town before he even realizes what devastation he has caused.

SHADE HUNTER LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (local Anauroch, Dalelands, High Forest, the North, Shadovar, Silver Marches, or Western Heartlands) can research Netheril and the shade hunters.

A character with contacts among any adventuring shades can get quite a bit of information, and asking around at libraries and arcane shops can prove fruitful as well.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: "Treasure hunters come through here all the time. Give the inn down the road a try; the tavernkeeper used to be one himself".

DC 15: "They don't so much as hate the shades as they want their power.

Find a shade dig site, and you'll find a shade hunter lurking nearby".

DC 20: The character hears about a shade hunter that has been in town for some time preparing for a journey, or they are put on the trail of one who left not too long ago.

DC 30: At this point the character gains information about specific shade hunters, shade operatives who might be seeking to assassinate a hunter, or even uncover a hidden cache of equipment, maps, and plans that was left behind by a shade hunter who never returned from his last journey.

SHADE HUNTERS IN THE GAME

Shade hunters can be anywhere you want them, even outside the normal areas of exploration.

After all, the sources of ancient Netherese lore are not confined to the northern regions, they are just concentrated there.

Shade hunters can be used as an excellent source of knowledge and lore, and might even lead characters to old dungeons that have long since been "cleared of anything of interest".

These dungeon experts can play the role of mentor to a rogue, ranger, or even a bard, and can provide specialized equipment from all over the world.

Whether used as a mentor, a sage, or a fence, a shade hunter is a fun and intriguing personality to interact with.

Players who enjoy the challenge of dungeons filled with traps and gold will enjoy playing a shade hunter, as will those who crave the power of ancient Netheril.

Those who prefer skill use to combat will be well served by the class as well.

Adaptation: Shade hunters could be hunting the descendants and magic of any lost empire in your world.

Encounters: Shade hunters generally shy away from combat unless they are trapped or their enemy has a treasure they covet.

When they do fight, they are liable to call upon all sorts of dirty tricks in order to win the day.

TABLE 3-4: THE SHADE HUNTER

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+0	Trap sense +1, tricks of the trade
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+0	Low-light vision, sense ancient magic
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+1	Trap sense +2, expert packer
4th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Sneak attack +1d6, tools of the trade
5th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Trap sense +3, darkvision 60 ft.
6th	+4	+5	+5	+2	Special ability
7th	+5	+5	+5	+2	Trap sense +4, locate ancient magic
8th	+6	+6	+6	+2	Sneak attack +2d6, improved favored enemy
9th	+6	+6	+6	+3	Trap sense +5
10th	+7	+7	+7	+3	Blindsight 30 ft.

THAYAN GLADIATOR

"I've wielded every weapon man and dwarf have invented, but nothing compares to these."

—Elak, minotaur gladiator, while cleaning the gore of his last opponent off his horns

Popular and skillful gladiators fill the arenas of Faerûn from Calimshan to the Dragon Coast, but the brutal Thayan gladiators are the best of the best.

Thayans see the misery of humans day in and day out, so they demand more out of their entertainment.

The slave pits of the Red Wizards and the tharchions (the civil rulers in Thay) are filled with monsters and humanoids from around the realms—the sharper the claws and the longer the horns, the better.

Minotaurs and lizardfolk from the Thayan plateau, yuan-ti from the Jungles of Chult, wemics and gnolls from the Shaar—all of these creatures fight in the arenas of Thay's cities.

The greatest and most vicious of these fighters are sometimes pulled out of the pits to serve a Red Wizard or other powerful master; the weak are left to fight and die.

BECOMING A THAYAN GLADIATOR

Thayan gladiators are taken from all over Faerûn by slavers who know the captives will fetch a high price on the plateau.

Some, however, enter the gladiatorial contests voluntarily, either to avoid work they find frustrating or demeaning or to attempt to win a better life as a Red Wizard's guard or an adventurer.

For creatures of a more savage nature, the arena might be the only place where they can revel in their true nature without being killed on the spot for their transgressions.

Most gladiators are fighters or barbarians, although a few levels in rogue can grant additional mobility and teach them dirty tricks.

Strength (for brutalizing opponents), Dexterity (for avoiding blows), and Constitution (for withstanding assaults) are key abilities for a Thayan gladiator.

Hit Die: d12.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Feats: Toughness, Weapon Focus (natural weapon).

Special: Must possess at least one natural weapon.

Special: Must undergo a ritual developed by the Zulkir of Transmutation that grants the class its abilities.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Bluff, Climb, Intimidate, Jump, Sense Motive, Spot.

CLASS FEATURES

Thayan gladiators train to kill quickly and efficiently with their natural weapons.

Improved Natural Attack: When you enter this class, choose one of your natural weapons to gain the benefits of the Improved Natural Attack feat.

The natural weapon you choose is affected by the rest of the abilities you gain through advancing in this class.

Study Opponent (Ex): You prefer to circle your opponents before engaging them in melee, searching them for weaknesses and noting the way their bodies move.

You can study any opponent within 30 feet as a standard action for a number of rounds equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum 1 round).

For each round you study, you gain a +1 bonus on attack rolls and AC during the round that you first engage them in melee combat.

Improved Critical: At 2nd level, your improved natural attack gains the benefit of the Improved Critical feat.

Natural Armor: Beginning at 2nd level, your natural armor improves by 1 point to help you withstand the awesome blows of your gladiatorial opponents.

At 5th and 8th levels, your natural armor improves by an additional point.

Stunning Critical (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, any time you make a successful critical hit with your chosen natural weapon, your enemy must succeed on a Fortitude save (DC 15 + your Str modifier) or be stunned for 1 round.

Silver Strike (Ex): At 3rd level, attacks from your chosen natural weapon overcome damage reduction as if they were silvered weapons.

Natural Weapon Focus (Ex): At 4th level, you gain the ability to make an additional strike at a -5 penalty with your chosen natural weapon when you use a full attack action.

Imbue Natural Weapon (Su): At 5th level, your chosen natural weapon gains a special ability as if it were a magic weapon.

Choose one special ability from the following list and apply it to your natural weapon(s): flaming, frost, ghost touch, shock, or thundering.

At 10th level, the ritual you underwent upon becoming a Thayan gladiator grants you a final power from the following list to apply to your chosen natural weapon: anarchic*, axiomatic*, disruption, flaming burst, icy burst, shocking burst, speed, unholy, or wounding.

* In order to choose one of these, the Thayan gladiator's alignment must match the appropriate ability (the character must be chaotic to choose anarchic or lawful to choose axiomatic).

 The effect of this ability stacks with the additional attack gained from the natural weapon focus ability (see above).

Adamantine Strike (Ex): At 6th level, attacks from your chosen natural weapon overcome damage reduction as if they were adamantite weapons.

Savage Strike (Ex): At 7th level, the critical multiplier for your chosen natural weapon increases by one. Thus, if you had a critical multiplier of $\times 2$, it would become $\times 3$; if it was already $\times 3$, it becomes $\times 4$.

Natural Weapon Mastery (Ex): Starting at 8th level, the extra attack you gain from natural weapon focus is at your highest base attack bonus.

Magic Strike (Ex): At 9th level and higher, attacks from your chosen natural weapon overcome damage reduction as if they were magic weapons.

PLAYING A THAYAN GLADIATOR

You have become a finely honed killing machine, spraying the blood of your opponents across the dirt floors of arenas from Eltabbar to Surthay.

Not surprisingly, you want to escape slavery—it chafes at you as roughly as the collar they place around your neck—but as long as you are someone else's property, you might as well enjoy it as best you can.

Occasionally one of your comrades gets his freedom, or as close to it as you could dream, and this hope gives you the strength you need to fend off the vicious creatures they pit you against when Arena Day rolls around.

Your master also uses you as a political and social weapon, since a successful gladiatorial stable can open many doors in Thayan society—and bankrupt rival owners as well.

Regardless, the attention is good, and occasionally you are invited to leave the pits and mingle with the men in red. They show you off like a trophy, and marvel at the cold stare that you give them as they analyze your flesh and bone.

Losing in the pits means death, and that is a fate you are not ready to accept.

Your ultimate goal is escape, or at least to be set free from the pits to once again taste the open air.

The most successful gladiators become the personal guard of the red-clad wizards and scheming bureaucrats who own the fighting stables.

You have learned to either love or hate the one who owns you, and while the latter emotion might be more satisfying, it is the former that leads to freedom.

You look up at the minotaur guardian in the Red Wizard's box, as he looks down on the pits where he once fought, and you dream that one day it could be you up there in his place.

Combat: You cut a more imposing figure on the battlefield than an average member of your race.

You are larger, stronger, and faster than most, and your natural weapons have developed into intimidating tools that frighten your opponents.

Ranged combat is not your forte, although you are not quick to close with an enemy that might have an advantage on you.

You prefer to circle for a bit first, gauging your opponent's strengths and, more important, his weaknesses.

Once you enter combat, you do not break off.

You look for the quickest way to get your hands around your opponent's throat, to claw, bite, or gore him until he cannot rise from the arena floor.

You do not always fight alone in the arena, and you can appreciate the benefits of having an ally at your side.

If you are a rogue, you should look to maximize your sneak attack opportunities by pouring skill points into Tumble, allowing you to more easily flank opponents when a friend is nearby.

Focusing all your attacks on a single opponent allows you to minimize the dangers you face in the arena.

Power Attack and Weapon Specialization help you in this regard, while Cleave can grant you extra attacks when you most need them.

One thing you have learned in the arena, however, is never to turn your back on your friends; they might just be waiting for the opportunity to settle an old score.

As your skills peak, you are able to make powerful strikes that stun opponents who, because they pose no threat, allow you to focus your attention elsewhere—perhaps at the yuan-ti attempting to turn your flank.

Just don't get caught between two enraged opponents, or your fighting days will quickly come to a bloody end.

Advancement: Thayan gladiators are taken from all across Faerûn and brought to the plateau to be used as slaves.

They might not make it into the pits directly, being used for physical labor or muscle for a while before being sent to train as a gladiator.

In some cases it is the savage nature of a slave that forces his master to keep him in the dungeons.

Once there, the gladiator is put in a cage, sometimes with creatures of the same race, depending on their temperament.

This is where he stays until his first Arena Day, when the gladiators are armed as their masters see fit and sent out to fight.

This day, called the "bleeding", is an important one for the gladiators, although most do not know it.

Those who survive their bleeding are given their own cells and offered equipment and training facilities.

The quality and nature of such boons varies from arena to arena, and owners can provide supplemental equipment to their fighters as they desire.

Some owners prefer to fully equip their fighters, providing whatever weapons and armor they need to win the day on the arena floor.

These are the most competitive owners, often politically motivated tharchions or successful merchants with leadership aspirations.

They want to see their stable of fighters triumph over all comers, and often wager large amounts of gold, magic, or favors on the outcome of the battles.

Gladiators with a generous master are in a tricky situation—the more successful they are, the more lavish the gifts are likely to be, but the chances for freedom under these circumstances diminish with each victory.

Once you start down the path of the Thayan gladiator, there is no turning back.

The training you undergo turns your body into a weapon more deadly than any sword, spear, or axe.

You can never be disarmed, and you no longer rely on the craftsmanship and magic of others to increase your power.

You can enchant your body in ways that no others can—and in a land ruled by powerful wizards, that can make you more valuable than gold.

Resources: As mentioned, a slave's owner often provides him with the necessary tools to be successful in the arenas. This is doubly true for those gladiators who have been withdrawn from the fights to serve their masters elsewhere; a tharchion or Red Wizard using a gladiator as a bodyguard or loyal treasure seeker has every reason to make sure such servants are well equipped.

Nearly any mundane item will be readily available to you should you require it, and magical goods can be procured with little trouble.

Thay is a land of magicians and merchants, brimming with anything an adventurer might need.

Your natural weaponry is sufficient to overcome almost any enemy, so when you seek out magic items you should look for protective items such as magical armor or amulets of natural armor.

A cloak of displacement or ring of blur is a good investment that can keep you safe from enemies with even more fearsome physical attacks than your own, although you don't encounter such foes very often.

There is generally little time for potions in your line of work, but having a healing potion or two handy for times when arena medics can't get to you will be to your advantage.

THAYAN GLADIATORS IN THE WORLD

Thayan gladiators are among the most fearsome bodyguards and adventurers in Faerûn.

They have been conditioned to serve their masters faithfully and to enjoy the art of combat to an almost sadistic point.

When not fighting in the pits of Thay, they can be found accompanying Red Wizards and other important Thayan luminaries both inside their country as well as on trips to cities far and wide.

When a Red Wizard is assigned to a distant enclave, he often takes some or all of his gladiators, for personal safety and to present an intimidating front to any who would think of attacking the enclave.

Organization: Gladiatorial contests are among the most popular entertainments in Thay.

The downtrodden population never passes up a chance to watch even more aggrieved souls battle each other in the pits.

The games also offer those with less power than a zulkir and less influence than a tharchion an opportunity to compete in the politics of Thay.

An apprentice red wizard or merchant can actually elevate his status by building a successful stable of fighters and then wagering on the outcome of the fights.

Of course, the tharchions still have an advantage in these dealings—they control the nature of each fight, and can introduce elements to tip the advantage in their favor.

Such underhanded tactics are a time-honored tradition in Thay, and no competitor begrudges his host these little games.

Gladiators who are incredibly successful, or who show a determined will above and beyond their fellows, are often chosen by the zulkirs to be the recipients of magical experiments designed to improve their prowess inside the arena.

Their strong bodies and weak minds are a perfect combination for the arcane rituals performed by the Red Wizards.

Indeed, some of the rituals created ages ago by Druxus Rhym, the zulkir of Transmutation, to bestow upon the first Thayan gladiator his amazing powers, are still in use. Ever since that time, the most successful gladiatorial stables have paid for their most promising fighters to undergo the ritual that will (hopefully) allow them to grow into fearsome beasts.

When they are first captured, potential gladiators are beaten, told they will be killed, and generally mistreated. Those that are not shaken by this initiation are the most apt to survive.

Once he has proven himself in the arena, however, things change quite rapidly—he is moved to a private cell and given food, water, and the opportunity to bathe and dress his wounds.

Most gladiatorial stables have their own healers, and while many of these are not clerics, their skills keep the gladiators fresh and healthy for the next fight.

Gladiators that do not show signs of rebelliousness are often granted access to weapons and armor as well.

In their down time, the gladiators that aren't caged up mill about underneath the arena, either training or spending leisure time with cards, dice, and other games.

Friendships among gladiators are rare, however, since they could be pitted against one another at any time.

One enterprising merchant named Varouk Pital uses the arena as a method to train treasure hunters, who he sends out after rumored artifacts and valuables.

He treats his gladiators well, so that when he offers them their freedom they will work for him with no hard feelings.

So far his gambit has been successful, and he hasn't had to defend himself against a grudge-holding slave.

His mercantile interests have more than doubled since he started participating in the games, and this bounty is well defended by his stable of former gladiators.

That's not to say he hasn't lost any valuables along the way—some of his fighters never return, and entire groups have been lost to traps and monsters while searching for lost gold.

NPC REACTIONS

The common folk of Thay love to either cheer or jeer the Thayan gladiators.

On the one hand, they are seemingly in even a worse position than the craftsmen and laborers that fill the stands. The gladiators are fighting for their lives on an almost daily basis, and most of them are beasts to begin with.

On the other hand, gladiators are a source of amusement for those who rarely find any joy in their everyday lives. Some of the gladiators and stables decorate themselves and their equipment with bright colors, feathers, or other distinctive garb, allowing spectators to wager on their favorite team or fighters.

When they are encountered outside the arena—a rarity unless they are free—gladiators are typically greeted by awe and fear.

Sometimes a stable will be paraded through town on its way into the arena, and on the way out again if they were particularly victorious.

During these parades the crowd often throws either rotten fruit or tokens of respect at the gladiators, who are either chained together or visible in barred cages atop horse-drawn carts.

A rival stable might attempt to assassinate gladiators during these parades; when this happens, the streets are littered with the bodies of those who were caught in the storm of swords, claws, and blood.

THAYAN GLADIATOR LORE

Characters with Knowledge (local Thay) can research the Thayan gladiators and the arenas they fight in.

They can get basic information of the fights from fans by combing the streets and taverns, while more detailed information will have to come from a gladiator or the owner of a stable.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs. DC 10: "The gladiators are the most privileged (poorest) class of slaves in Thay.

They get treated the best (worst), have the most (least) freedom, and often (never) win their freedom".

DC 15: "There is more than meets the eye to the gladiators. Their owners use them to settle feuds, curry favor, and gain the upper hand in the constant political maneuverings that are a part of the daily life of Thay".

DC 20: The character learns of a secret entrance to the arena dungeons, or learns the location of an upcoming secret meeting between free gladiators.

DC 30: A character who tracks down this much information about the local gladiatorial scene could learn of a plot by the local tharchion to kill a hated rival's prized gladiator, a planned breakout that could cause the deaths of dozens of innocents, or the secret identity of a Harper agent that has infiltrated the ranks of a red wizard's stable.

THAYAN GLADIATORS IN THE GAME

The characters could be visiting a Thayan city on Arena Day, or be there to see a parade of gladiators come into or leave the city.

The characters might be contacted by one of a gladiator's comrades, who needs help to spring the fighter from the dungeons, or an escaped gladiator might look to join up with a party that can successfully smuggle him out of Thay before he is tracked down.

Players who like monstrous characters will particularly enjoy this class, since it allows them to take their character's natural advantages and make them more powerful and interesting.

The ability to add weapon qualities to natural attacks offers the chance to make a unique PC that will be remembered long after the campaign is over.

Adaptation: Any world with monstrous characters and an oppressive society with gladiatorial games could have developed the rituals to make their fighters more impressive and exciting.

It helps if the society in question can tolerate free monstrous humanoids wandering the streets and serving as bodyguards and enforcers.

Encounters: Thayan gladiators are not trusting, and they intimidate others to get what they want.

Meeting a band of stalwart adventurers that refuse to take any lip from the gladiator might be enough to provoke combat—or a respectful interest.

TABLE 3—5: THE THAYAN GLADIATOR

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Improved natural attack, study opponent
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Improved critical, natural armor +1
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Stunning critical, silver strike
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Natural weapon focus
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Imbue natural weapon, natural armor +2
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Adamantine strike
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Savage strike
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Natural armor +3, natural weapon mastery
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Magic strike
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Imbue natural weapon

THRALL OF ELTAB

The thrall of Eltab has embraced the dark legacies of ancient Narfell.

He works to bring the lands once claimed by the Nentyarch of Narfell under the rule of Eltab, in hopes of achieving a position of some power as the demon lord's lieutenant.

Thralls of Eltab often work in small groups, usually led by a demon the group has found and liberated from a binding dating back to the waning days of Narfell.

A few thralls of Eltab are solitary individuals, traitors within an organization hated by Eltab who seek to betray their fellows for personal gain.

More than a few Red Wizard conjurers have heeded the whispers of Eltab and serve as the demon lord's eyes and ears within the ruling hierarchy of Thay.

BECOMING A THRALL OF ELTAB

Clerics and thaumaturgists are most commonly found as thralls of Eltab, for their spells lend themselves toward working with demons, unlike Nar demonbinders, sorcerers, and wizards, whose spells lean toward binding and commanding demons, a practice Eltab detests. Barbarians, blackguards, fighters, rangers, and rogues also make good thralls of Eltab, for their combat abilities blend naturally with the abilities of this class.

Hit Die: d8.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Chaotic evil.

Language: Abyssal.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 4 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 8 ranks.

Feats: Deformity (Clawed Hands), Thrall to Demon, Willing Deformity.

Special: Must have released a bound or otherwise imprisoned demon without demanding any assurances or anything in return.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int Modifier): Bluff, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Hide, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Listen, Move Silently, Profession, Search, Sense Motive, Spot, Swim, Use Rope.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the thrall of Eltab prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A thrall of Eltab is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Bonus Feat or Spells: When a thrall of Eltab attains 1st, 4th, 7th, and 10th level, the character gains new spells per day as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class, or else he gains a bonus feat of his choice.

If the thrall chooses +1 spellcasting level, he does not gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

This essentially means that he adds the new level to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day, spells known, and caster level accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before he became a thrall of Eltab, he must decide to which class he adds the level for purposes of determining spells per day.

A thrall of Eltab is free to choose the bonus feat at one opportunity and the spellcasting level the next time the decision arises, or vice versa.

Characters who are not spellcasters must choose the bonus feat.

Bone Spurs (Ex): A 1st-level thrall of Eltab gains a profusion of sharp bone spurs emerging from his skull, which provide a gore attack.

If the thrall does not already have this attack form, use the appropriate damage value from the table below.

Size	Damage	Size	Damage
Fine	—	Large	1d8
Diminutive	1	Huge	2d6
Tiny	1d2	Gargantuan	2d8
Small	1d4	Colossal	4d6
Medium	1d6

TABLE 7-1: THE THRALL OF ELTAB

Level	Base				Special	Bonus Feat or Spells
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Bone spurs, scaly flesh +1	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Touch of fear	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Burrow	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Scaly flesh +2	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Summon minor demon	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Demoncyst jump	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Scaly flesh +3	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing spellcasting class
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Immunity to electricity	—
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Summon major demon	—
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Death gaze , scaly flesh +4	Bonus feat or +1 level of existing spellcasting class

VENGEANCE KNIGHT

"You've crossed my employers, and I'm here to make you pay."

Creatures that have other kinds of gore attacks retain their old damage values or use the appropriate value from the table below, whichever is better.

Scaly Flesh (Ex): A 1st-level thrall of Eltab gains dark red, scaly flesh, which provides a +1 natural armor bonus. At every three levels beyond 1st (4th, 7th, and 10th), this bonus increases by 1.

The bonus from scaly flesh stacks with that of natural armor derived from creature type (if the thrall of Eltab is a lizardfolk or troglodyte, for example), but not from magical sources such as an amulet of natural armor.

Touch of Fear (Sp): Three times per day, a 2nd-level thrall of Eltab can produce an effect identical to that of the cause fear spell cast by a 10th-level caster.

Burrow (Ex): A 3rd-level thrall of Eltab can burrow at a speed of 10 feet.

If the creature can already burrow, this speed does not stack.

Summon Demon (Sp): A 5th-level thrall of Eltab can summon a demon of 5 HD or less once per day.

This functions as a summon monster spell cast by a 15th-level caster.

Once per day, a 9th-level thrall of Eltab can summon a demon of 10 HD or less.

Demoncyst Jump (Sp): Once per day, a 6th-level thrall of Eltab can produce an effect identical to that of a teleport spell cast by a 10th-level caster.

This ability can be employed only within a demoncyst, and the target must lie within another demoncyst.

Off-target results arrive in the desired demoncyst, but not at the desired location.

Similar area results lead to a randomly chosen demoncyst, somewhere in eastern Faerûn.

Mishaps deposit the thrall of Eltab on the 248th layer of the Abyss.

Death Gaze (Su): At 10th level, a thrall of Eltab gains a gaze attack: death, 30 feet, Fortitude DC 10 + thrall's class level + thrall's Cha bonus negates.

The save is Charisma-based.

If the target fails its save, it dies.

—Kade Steele of Athkatla, a vengeance knight
Vengeance knights roam the Lands of Intrigue in search of those who have committed acts of treachery against their employers, the Knights of the Shield.

As a vengeance knight, you are a master of steel, as comfortable in your heavy plate armor as others are in courtly vestments or adventuring clothes. The sword is your weapon of choice, and you use it well to intimidate and eliminate the enemies of the Knights. Vengeance knights often wear fearsome helmets or emblazon their armor with symbols that strike fear into the hearts of their enemies before steel is even drawn.

BECOMING A VENGEANCE KNIGHT

Vengeance knights are specially trained warriors who have pledged their service to the Knights of the Shield, a group of politicians and merchants with influence in governments from Athkatla to Calimport.

They are a special breed of enforcers used by the organization to cow their enemies into compliance. Fighters most often become vengeance knights, but blackguards and former paladins also make good fits because of their heavy armor use, horsemanship, and martial prowess.

Strength (for melee combat), Constitution (for staying power), and Charisma (for intimidation) are key abilities for a vengeance knight.

Hit Die: d10.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Lawful evil, lawful neutral, or neutral evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Intimidate 6 ranks, Ride 4 ranks, Sense Motive 2 ranks.

Feats: Iron Will, Weapon Focus (any sword).

Special: Proficiency with heavy armor and heavy shields.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Climb, Craft, Gather Information, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (local), Ride, Search, Sense Motive, Spot.

CLASS FEATURES

As they increase in level, vengeance knights become more and more effective in the use of their armor and in dealing damage to those who have hurt them.

Armor Training (Ex): As a vengeance knight, you always wear the heaviest armor available to you, and thus you learn to wear it more effectively through training.

Your armor check penalty imposed by heavy armor and shields for all skills except Swim is reduced by 1, and you can don your armor as if you had help (although you still require a servant to help you don half-plate or full plate).

At 6th level, your armor check penalty for armor is reduced by 3, and you can make a DC 15 Constitution check to avoid being fatigued from sleeping in your armor.

In addition, you take only half the normal movement penalty for wearing heavy armor.

At 10th level, you have truly mastered the art of wearing heavy armor.

You can now sleep in your armor without penalty, and your armor check penalties for armor are reduced by 5.

In addition, you can don half-plate or plate mail without assistance, although it takes twice the indicated time.

Bringer of Vengeance (Ex): As an agent for the Knights of the Shield, you are often called upon to avenge some slight or to send a message to an enemy of the organization.

Whenever you have a specific target, you gain the indicated bonus on Intimidate, Search, Sense Motive, and Spot checks when using these skills against your target.

In addition, you gain the indicated bonus on all attack rolls and damage rolls against the target.

Counterstrike (Ex): Vengeance knights visit pain upon those who would hurt them.

As a result, you gain the indicated bonus on all melee attack rolls and damage rolls against any creature that damaged you in the previous round.

This bonus stacks with that from your bringer of vengeance ability.

Improved Shield Bash: At 2nd level, you gain the Improved Shield Bash feat, even if you do not meet the prerequisites.

Bonus Feat: At 3rd and 9th levels, you can choose a bonus feat from the fighter's bonus feat list.

Arcane Backlash (Su): Any time you successfully save against any arcane spell when you are the spell's only target, the original caster takes the indicated amount of nonlethal damage as you lash the energies of his failed spell back at him.

PLAYING A VENGEANCE KNIGHT

You were a cruel warrior before, but the Knights of the Shield have taught you to control and focus your cruelty toward their own ends.

When you walk into a new town, you know that you are the most dangerous person there.

Other people are there simply to give you information and get out of your way.

You relish your reputation as a juggernaut, and you will never stop until your job is done.

The Knights of the Shield (see page 150 of Lords of Darkness for more information on this organization) employ as many vengeance knights as possible at any one time.

Vengeance knights are stationed throughout Tethyr, Amn, and Calimshan so that their masters' revenge can be carried out swiftly, and in some cases by more than one agent.

Recruits are gathered from the Knights' pool of informants and enforcers, a few of whom are granted access deeper within the organization by virtue of their talent and temperament.

The individual members of the Knights of the Shield each have in their control a small number of vengeance knights, who are sometimes used for purposes outside the purview of the group as a whole.

This is not to say that all such knights are not available to the whole membership; the relationship is more like that of a mentor and a student than a master and a servant.

Combat: Vengeance knights are masters of melee combat, using their single-mindedness to harry an opponent until he is down before moving on to the next one.

Your comfort and mobility in heavy armor gives you a defensive advantage over your foes, and your awesome blows can take down many foes with a single stroke.

If you can engage your enemies on horseback, all the better, since your improved ability to ride in heavy armor makes it easier to utilize the bonus you receive against grounded enemies.

Many vengeance knights focus on feats such as Power Attack and Cleave to better improve their melee power, while others focus on mounted feats such as Mounted Combat and Ride-By Attack.

Vengeance knights who bear a shield often use feats such as Improved Shield Bash and Shield Charge to give them a surprising weapon in their arsenal should they ever find themselves without their favorite weapon.

As you gain levels and your opponents get tougher, you must focus on feats that maximize your damage potential, such as Power Critical and Spirited Charge. Great Cleave is useful for taking down multiple weaker foes, but feats such as Improved Sunder will help you get rid of the most powerful foes first, a task you relish. Since you deal maximum damage to opponents that strike you, it is essential that you are able to take hits. It's more advantageous to square off against a single opponent rather than many, even though doing that often pits you against the most dangerous foes on the battlefield. Things are the same for you at higher levels. You should continue to increase your damage potential with feats such as Improved Critical. Acquiring magic items that improve your Will save is important to maximize your arcane backlash ability, and magic armor is a must. The more powers you can bestow upon your armor, the more feared and unstoppable you will become. Advancement: Vengeance knights are drawn from among the most capable warriors that work for the Knights of the Shield. Most often these individuals do not know for whom they truly work—the Knights do not always wish their motivations and plans to be traced back to them. Regardless, an invitation to become a vengeance knight is one not to be taken lightly. The Knights are offer a chance for a character to become larger than life, a sanctioned bully with the power and resources to force weaker beings to do his bidding. The initial offer generally consists of a place to live and train in the techniques of heavy armor and devastating melee combat. Several recruits often train together, living in a common area that has all manner of equipment and facilities available for their use. During this time, the Knights also gauge the recruits' psychological makeup and their willingness to serve. They feed them information and misinformation that serves to confuse the identities of their employers and their true motivations. This is done so that the vengeance knights come around to seeing their employers in a favorable light and their cause as just; this makes it much easier to inspire the hatred and zealotry necessary to create single-minded instruments of terror. Once a vengeance knight has been properly prepared, he is sent out into Faerûn as the voice and presence of the Knights of the Shield. You should keep your Intimidate and Sense Motive skills polished as you advance in level. Intimidating a foe or informant is the most important aspect of a vengeance knight's job, and keeping the local population in check can help prevent attempts to get rid of the character. Also, you should try to raise your Strength score whenever possible. If you have not taken Weapon Specialization, it is worth an extra level of fighter or two to do so before entering the vengeance knight class. Resources: Vengeance knights are arrogant fighters, and they don't like help.

When a vengeance knight is on a mission for the Knights of the Shield, he considers it his personal duty to intimidate, shake down, or murder his target. If another vengeance knight is sent for the same purpose, the two might openly clash. A vengeance knight might bring his friends along for support, but he insists on doing the killing himself. That said, vengeance knights working the same territory (both stationed in Darromar, for instance) will assist each other with information or specialized gear for missions on which they do not conflict. A vengeance knight's sword and armor are his most prized possessions. They allow him to carry out his duties in the most brutal and direct fashion, and are the core of his combat capability. Since a vengeance knight must never flinch from confrontation, he should focus on purchasing enhancement bonuses and special qualities for his armor as quickly as possible. Spell and energy resistances are good for neutralizing enemy spellcasters, while fortification provides protection against the lucky shots of his inferior opponents. Shields can similarly be upgraded, but focusing on shield-specific enhancements such as arrow deflection is a better idea.

VENGEANCE KNIGHTS IN THE WORLD

The vengeance knights are a prestigious arm of the Knights of the Shield, for whom each knight works solely. They are not so much a group as a conglomeration of individuals with similar training who perform missions for individual members of the larger organization. The Knights of the Shield are a clandestine group with mercantile and political interests all around the lands of Amn, Calimshan, and Tethyr. Individual members take "ownership" of a vengeance knight, whom they can then dispatch at their whim to cajole stubborn merchants or eliminate particularly troublesome enemies. While the Knights of the Shield are subtle in their machinations, their vengeance knights take great pride in being forthright and direct when carrying out their duties. Organization: Every vengeance knight is linked to a particular member of the Knights of the Shield, known as his patron. A patron has little authority over another member's vengeance knight, and cannot call him away from his duties, or even force him to obey commands. A patron might "loan" his vengeance knight to another patron for a short period of time in exchange for another favor. Vengeance knights are often played against one another as proxies in internal power plays within the Knights of the Shield. One might be manipulated into embarrassing his patron, a situation that often leads to the death of the vengeance knight in order for the patron to save face. Patrons use their vengeance knights for a variety of purposes. The most common use is the shakedown of a politically troublesome enemy, usually either a popular but unaffiliated candidate or an out-of-control ally. Merchants who do not play by the Knights' rules are also often targeted, although this turn of events can lead to larger issues if the Runden or Shadow Thieves have business with the individual.

Sometimes a public assassination or severe beating can be an effective tool, even if the target has nothing to do with the issue at hand.

Although every vengeance knight serves a patron, he is not required to always be at his patron's beck and call.

Most vengeance knights are released into an area that coincides with their patron's interests, and then left to their own devices until they are needed.

Vengeance knights are powerful enough that they often hire themselves out to other wealthy patrons, although their allegiance always lies first with the Knights of the Shield.

Some find a group of allies with complementary skills to adventure with, taking treasure from humanoid strongholds or exploring ancient catacombs and abandoned ruins.

Not all vengeance knights are active in this way, however. At least one is known to reside in a villa in Riatavin, where he indulges in a variety of pleasures in between assignments.

He is a popular guest among the city's younger nobles, most of whom are far removed from the trade and politics that make up the knight's unpleasant business.

This vengeance knight, Korben Slade, is known as The Rigar, a nickname derived from a popular leisure game played in Amn, of which Korben is a master.

The Rigar was already an experienced adventurer when he was offered a position within the Knights of the Shield.

His past earnings were enough to set him up in relative luxury while he awaited assignments, and his stipend as a vengeance knight covers some of his more exotic expenses. His villa features all manner of exotic creatures from around Faerûn, as well as several monsters he collected during his adventuring days.

He sometimes uses these monsters to intimidate those who have displeased his patron.

As stated, The Rigar prefers to spend his time among the young nobles of the city.

The fact that his business sometimes puts him at odds with the area's older merchants and politicians makes him wary of forming friendships among that group.

His parties are always well stocked with the finest food and drink, and he even invites an associate of his to bring the pleasures of Sharess to the gatherings.

The young nobles, in turn, look up to The Rigar and constantly question him about his adventures.

He embellishes his tales enough to keep his audience interested, and never seems to run out of fodder for his stories.

A quick tour of the more exotic monsters in his villa confirms his more outlandish yarns, and the monsters' keeper, a wily, one-eyed half-orc named Crill who used to travel with The Rigar, throws in his own reminiscences from time to time.

Korben Slade is a powerfully built man; his arms are as big as an ogre's, and he stands almost six and a half feet tall.

He wears only half-plate armor when called to duty, a personal touch that adds to his mystique.

His black-bladed longsword only leaves its sheath when blood is going to be spilled, a last resort in The Rigar's mind.

He knows that his presence is tolerated in Riatavin partially because he keeps the young nobles out of trouble, so he prefers to conduct his business through intimidation rather than bloodshed.

Some of the other vengeance knights look upon The Rigar in disgust, believing him to be an indolent who sullies their ranks with his hedonistic lifestyle and aversion to bloodshed.

None of the other knights have taken action against him—if for no other reason than that he is among the most powerful of them—but words have flown on more than one occasion, and Slade's patron has been questioned by other members of the Knights of the Shield from time to time.

While no formal code binds the knights, The Rigar's death would provoke action by his patron, leading to the death of whoever perpetrated the act.

NPC REACTIONS

When a vengeance knight appears, everyone knows something bad is going to happen.

Even those who are not familiar with the knight's line of work cannot ignore his battle gear and grim determination. Easily cowed members of the local populace will be immediately friendly to the knight, while those with whom the knight might have business will be indifferent or even hostile as they try to keep the knight at bay.

Savvy tavernkeepers and merchants know that they can freely overcharge a vengeance knight, whose single-minded drive makes no price unpayable, and no price hike likely noticed.

Local authorities are rarely happy to see a vengeance knight show up in their jurisdiction.

It's bad enough when adventurers come blowing through, bringing trouble more often than not, but a vengeance knight makes trouble that doesn't end when he leaves.

Since the knights target successful merchants and politicians, the stir a visit causes tends to linger for days or even weeks, and can mean the loss of one of a community's most beloved or beneficial citizens.

VENGEANCE KNIGHT LORE

Characters with Knowledge (local Amn, Calimshan, or Tethyr) can research the vengeance knights or the Knights of the Shield.

An encounter with a vengeance knight is sure to make the characters curious, whether or not they are his intended targets.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: "It is an unwise man who crosses the Knights of the Shield".

DC 15: "The Knights of the Shield have specialized enforcers, called vengeance knights, who wreak havoc upon their foes".

DC 20: "Each vengeance knight has a patron within the Knights of the Shield.

The easiest way to get to a knight might be through his patron, and vice versa".

DC 30: A character with this level of contacts can find a particular vengeance knight, and will also know the knight's patron within the larger organization.

VENGEANCE KNIGHTS IN THE GAME

A vengeance knight can enter the game either during one of his missions or as a foreboding character present in a new location.

If on a mission, the knight could enter a domain familiar to the characters, perhaps being sighted at their favorite inn. The chance to become a vengeance knight should appeal to players who like to be a part of larger organizations, as well as those who like to throw their muscle around.

A vengeance knight's duties to his patron should only occasionally interfere with the goals of the character's party, but they can serve as excellent tools for the DM to provide adventure hooks that interest the other characters as well.

Adaptation: Any group could employ specially trained enforcers.

The class is especially appropriate for political and mercantile groups, but could also include thieves' and wizards' guilds, slavers, or even brutal governments.

Encounters: The appearance of a vengeance knight could signal trouble for the PCs, or it could simply be a chance encounter as the knight moves on toward another unlucky soul.

Vengeance knights are not shy about gathering information, so it is quite likely that the PCs will become involved, in one way or another.

TABLE 3—6: THE VENGEANCE KNIGHT

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Armor training, bringer of vengeance +1
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Counterstrike +1, Improved Shield Bash
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Bonus feat
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Arcane backlash 1d6
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Bringer of vengeance +2
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Improved armor training
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Arcane backlash 2d6
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Counterstrike +2
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Bonus feat, bringer of vengeance +3
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Arcane backlash 3d6, superior armor training

CHAMPIONS OF VALOR (3.5)

KNIGHT OF THE FLYING HUNT

"Yes, the glass armor and the pegasus are impressive; but it's what I do with them that keeps Nimbral safe from the likes of you."

—Baltir Merivolst, Knight Commander

Fireside tales of noble knights astride graceful winged horses, wearing armor of glass, have enchanted listeners across Faerûn for years.

All who hear of such breathtaking imagery are fascinated with thoughts of donning their own suit of magic armor, climbing atop a snowy white pegasus, and taking to the skies in defense of goodness.

The stories are a pale imitation of the true glory of the Knights of the Flying Hunt.

Defenders of Nimbral, protectors of the island realm's quiet, simple folk, noble soldiers answering to the powerful but mysterious Nimbral Lords—the Knights of the Flying Hunt epitomize valor and grace in word, deed, and bearing.

BECOMING A KNIGHT OF THE FLYING HUNT

Most characters become a Knight of the Flying Hunt after taking at least seven levels in fighter or ranger.

A few clerics or paladins manage to master the prerequisites necessary to join the ranks, but they are rare because of their religious affiliations, something that the folk of Nimbral frown upon.

Few other core classes obtain the military training necessary to qualify.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Race: Human or half-moon elf.

Base Attack Bonus: +7.

Skills: Handle Animal 8 ranks, Ride 8 ranks.

Feats: Favored in Guild (Knights of the Flying Hunt), Mounted Combat, Weapon Focus (lance).

Alignment: Lawful good, neutral good, or lawful neutral.

Special: Native or permanent resident of Nimbral.

Special: Membership in the Knights of the Flying Hunt.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Diplomacy, Handle Animal, Intimidate, Jump, Ride, Search, Spot, Swim.

CLASS FEATURES

As a Knight of the Flying Hunt, you become an expert at mounted combat, utilizing a host of skills and maneuvers to defeat your enemies, while at the same time gaining more powerful enhancements to your special glass armor.

Armor Proficiency: You gain proficiency in light, medium, and heavy armor.

Flying Hunt Armor: At 1st level, you are considered a novice, and you receive a suit of flying hunt armor (see page 65) from the Nimbral Lords.

This armor is attuned to you and can never be used by another.

If this suit of armor is lost or destroyed, the Nimbral Lords will replace it, though you must pay the gp cost normally required to create the armor.

Pegasus Mount: At 1st level, you receive a trained pegasus to serve you in your defense of Nimbral.

The mount remains with you until it is slain or dismissed. It requires food and rest, and you are responsible for tending to its needs.

When riding this mount, you gain a competence bonus on Ride checks equal to your class level.

If the mount dies, you can have it raised from the dead (at the normal cost) or obtain another mount.

You can only obtain a replacement after living and meditating among the trained pegasi of the Knights for one week.

Armored Ease (Ex): You learn to adapt your movements to the restrictive nature of armor.

Beginning at 2nd level, you can lessen the armor check penalty of any armor with which you are proficient by 2 (minimum 0).

At 7th level, this reduction improves to 4 (minimum 0).

Bonus Feat: At 4th level, and again at 8th level, you gain a bonus feat, which must be selected from the following list: Animal Affinity, Greater Weapon Focus (lance), Greater Weapon Specialization (lance), Ride-By Attack, Skill Focus (Ride), Spirited Charge, Trample, Weapon Specialization (lance).

You must meet the normal prerequisites in order to select any of these feats.

Storm Armor: At 5th level, you are considered a full Knight and your flying hunt armor is further enhanced by the Nimbral Lords to become storm armor (see page 69).

This armor is attuned to you and can never be used by another.

If this suit of armor is lost or destroyed, the Nimbral Lords will replace it, though you must pay the gp cost normally required to create the armor.

Greater Storm Armor: At 10th level, you are recognized by the Knights as an excellent and experienced leader.

For your loyal service and outstanding performance, the Nimbral Lords bestow another enhancement upon your storm armor, making it greater storm armor.

You can choose any one of the following effects and add it to your armor at no charge: arrow deflection (as the shield special ability); fortification (light); magic missile (3/day, CL 7th); mirror image (1/day; CL 10th); spell resistance 13; or water walk (as a ring of water walking).

Alternatively, you can choose a different armor special ability (with a price of up to 30,000 gp or a base price modifier of up to +3 bonus) and add it to your armor at only 75% of the normal market price.

Either way, this addition requires the normal amount of time required to improve the item, which likely means that you must turn over your storm armor to the Nimbral Lords for a number of days or weeks.

If this suit of armor is lost or destroyed, the Lords will replace it, though you must pay the gp cost normally required to create the armor.

PLAYING A KNIGHT OF THE FLYING HUNT

You're all about honor and duty to the people of Nimbral, and you have dedicated your life to defending them from the dangers of the wider world.

You are noble and perhaps a bit arrogant, but that's all right; you're a member of one of the most elite organizations in all of Faerûn.

Your fellow knights are like brothers to you, and you'd give your life to save one, but then you could say the same about a Nimbrese citizen, too.

You serve the Nimbral Lords and respect their commands because you've seen the wisdom in their actions time and time again.

You support the Nimbral Heralds by enforcing their laws and edicts, and you respect the opinions of those Knights who have been serving for longer than you.

They all speak from experience, and you value that experience and in turn pass it on to the newer members.

COMBAT

Your armor and your mount are as much a part of you as your arms and legs.

Without them, you feel naked, incomplete.

With them, you feel like you own the skies over Nimbral, and that nothing can stop you from defending its forests from monstrous beasts or evil antagonists.

With the special talents that come from being a member of this class, you take the fight straight to your enemies, relying on your superior riding ability and skill at arms to overwhelm your opponents.

If you face a foe that seems more than a match for you individually, you call in the reinforcements to help you out. With your companions joining in the fight, the group will take full advantage of a combination of flanking attacks and flyby charges to deal serious pain to enemies.

When necessary, you can dismount to engage in hand-to-hand combat with foes, but you prefer the advantages you gain from fighting in the saddle.

ADVANCEMENT

Many want to become Knights of the Flying Hunt, but few are permitted the honor.

In addition to necessarily being a citizen of Nimbral, you must exhibit a keen sense of military cunning, demonstrating skill at arms as well as battlefield tactics. While not strictly required, you are more likely to be chosen to join if you have traveled away from Nimbral for a time, seeing the wider world and learning a bit of its ways. Through this travel, you not only learn what dangers lurk on distant shores that might arrive on your own, but you also determine how you measure up in combat.

You spend your days serving in the Knights, taking your turn at watch and keeping an eye on the entire island realm along with your companions.

When you first start out, you learn to trust the guidance and wisdom of the older, more experienced Knights, and your service might be limited to smaller dangers such as eliminating a wild beast that has wandered too far out of the forest.

After you get some seasoning of your own, you instinctively know how formidable your enemies can be and are not hesitant to call in reinforcements.

You train with your brothers in arms in the skies above your lands, swooping through the mountain peaks and high valleys as you master maneuvers unique to aerial combat.

When you are at rest, you enjoy spending time in your own home, which can start out as merely a humble house but should grow in time into a great castle with beholden farms surrounding it.

As you continue to serve with the Knights, your deeds and brave exploits are likely to catch the eyes of the Nimbral Lords, who will eventually grant your armor and weapons extra powers.

This is always considered a great honor in addition to a boon to combat, and Knights who have been in service for many years sometimes wear armor with powerful and varied enchantments.

You know that if you serve long and faithfully, the Nimbral Lords will see fit to grant you similar benefits.

RESOURCES

In addition to the obvious equipment you receive upon joining the group—your special armor and your loyal steed—you'll definitely be able to acquire other items as a member of the Knights.

An exotic military saddle is not only necessary, but worthwhile.

Beyond your gear, being a member of the Knights of the Flying Hunt means you have the support and assistance of all the rest of the members in your endeavors.

And, if you are wounded or suffer other mysterious or magical maladies in defense of Nimbral and its folk, healing and restorative magic are available to you at any time without cost.

KNIGHTS OF THE FLYING HUNT IN THE WORLD

"Thank the gods the Knights guard our shores. Otherwise, we would all be slaves at some Calishite pasha's oasis by now."

—Felmirgo Lasperk, Nimbrese merchant

The Knights of the Flying Hunt are one of the iconic images of Faerûn.

Whether you are running a campaign based on or near Nimbral or not, the mystery and excitement of having such a prestigious group of individuals appear in the midst of your characters' activities is unmatched.

The Knights can be an unexpected boon in a difficult situation anywhere in Faerûn.

Conversely, if the characters are becoming tainted in matters they should not—particularly pirating and/or slavery—an appearance by the Knights with a thoughtful warning may be in order.

If you choose to steer your campaign in the direction of Nimbral itself, no visit to the island realm would be complete without an encounter with the famed Knights of the Flying Hunt.

DAILY LIFE

The daily life a Knight of the Flying Hunt is divided between obligations to the defense of the island and obligations to his homestead.

Every knight is expected to serve on a standard patrol that covers a limited area near his home every other day.

(A patrol consists of three to six Knights working one of three time slots—morning, late afternoon, and night).

In addition, a knight is expected to join a larger Hunt consisting of up to forty Knights that sweeps out over the entire island and the coastal waters surrounding it.

When a Knight of the Flying Hunt is not on duty, he is most likely managing his estate.

A Knight is expected to establish a dwelling befitting his station, a structure in keeping with his level of stature among the citizens (and providing them with acceptable protection from forest predators).

At low levels, he might have an estate that's nothing more than a modest manor house, but by the time he reaches senior status, anything less than an impressive walled fortress is considered beneath him.

Once he has constructed such an abode, the Knight is often found there, tending to the issues that need his regular attention.

Such concerns include providing protection to the tenants who farm the land around his abode, maintaining the physical structures of both his own castle and that of the community based around it, settling disputes between locals, and collecting a portion of their crops for his storerooms.

When a Knight is away (either on patrol or for a more extended time on personal matters), he employs a host of assistants and servants to take care of the majority of such matters.

Beyond serving as a defense force for the realm at large and as a protector of his personal demesne, a Knight serves as a peacekeeper and an enforcer of the laws on behalf of the Nimbral Lords as well as the Nimbral Heralds—the mouthpieces of the Nimbral Lords, who deliver warnings and guidance pertaining to Nimbrese laws, issue judgments, and determine the truth of disputes.

NOTABLES

Perhaps one of the boldest and most well known (relatively speaking) Knights of the Flying Hunt is Baltir Merivolst, a Commander Knight who led the expedition to the Nelanther Isles to deal with a horde of pirate ships in the Year of the Shield (1367 DR).

Little beyond his name is even rumored to be known beyond Nimbral's own shores, but within the Summer Land, he is revered as a fearless yet sensible soldier, a true leader of men.

His battle prowess is legendary even among the other Knights, and his armor is said to bear more enchantments than that of any other Knight in service.

Despite his formidable nature, Baltir often takes newly accepted novices under his proverbial wing to teach them both skills and patience and to coax the very best out of them.

He understands that the future security of the Knights as an organization is dependent upon maintaining the high level of quality of training he himself has known during his rise.

ORGANIZATION

The Knights of the Flying Hunt operate in a very informal way, recognizing leadership qualities through action and experience rather than definitive rank.

The Knights maintain three ranks: Commander, Knight, and novice.

Commanders lead patrols and hunts by virtue of experience, but they wield power very much as "first among equals" rather than brook-no-disobedience authority figures.

Onlookers can immediately identify novices by their nonglowing "practice suits" of armor, but Commanders wear neither special badge nor identification.

It is the Nimbral Lords who decide matters of promotion, and they do so by virtue of the enchantments placed upon the Knights' armor.

As in almost any organization, rivalries exist among the Knights.

Certain individuals might simply not get along with others, or one might not enjoy another Knight's personality or opinions—but seldom does this sort of contention grow into true animosity or conflict.

Once in a while, two neighboring Knights might compete over lands or markets for their farms' crops, but such conflicts are usually resolved peacefully.

More often than not, patrols are arranged so that the antagonists rarely meet.

Only occasionally do individual Knights carry their rivalry further than a few choice comments.

NPC REACTIONS

Witnessing a Flying Hunt is such a rare and wondrous event that few people know how to react when they are privileged enough to see one.

Most find the experience awe-inspiring and a bit unnerving.

Those who have heard the tales of the Knights of Nimbral and recognize the truth in the sight either cheer mightily (if of decent character) or run for cover (if they have reason to believe the Knights are there to visit destruction upon them).

Few react with indifference.

The Knights have no true foes, though many Calimshan-based slavers might beg to differ.

Because of the unyielding attitudes and staunch defense of the Nimbran coastline against predatory ships, pirates and slavers hold a special animosity toward the Knights and, indeed, all of Nimbral.

Regardless of this hatred, wise ship captains steer clear of the Summer Land, because they know how formidable the Knights can be when roused.

KNIGHTS OF THE FLYING HUNT LORE

On mainland Faerûn, characters with Gather Information or Knowledge (nobility and royalty) can research the Knights of the Flying Hunt to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs (some of which is presented as false rumors initially and disproved later).

DC 10: The Knights of the Flying Hunt are pegasus-riding, glass-armor wearing offspring of fell women and hags who dwell on a misty isle far beyond the jungles of Chult.

DC 15: The Knights of the Flying Hunt are noble lords who defend their island realm of Nimbral from all comers; they answer in turn to the strange and mysterious Nimbral Lords, powerful but insane wizards constantly under the sway of illusions.

DC 20: The Knights of the Flying Hunt are actually a peaceful group that protects the folk of Nimbral from pirates and slavers.

Folk are welcome to visit Nimbral so long as they are willing to obey the laws of the land.

The Nimbrese are descendants of Halruaans who left that country many years ago on skyships.

DC 30: The Knights of the Flying Hunt, led by a fierce and proud Commander named Baltir Merivolst, attacked and destroyed numerous slaving and pirate ships in the Nelanther isles several years ago in retaliation for incursions into Nimbral's waters.

On Nimbral itself, characters with Gather Information or Knowledge (local) can research the Knights of the Flying Hunt to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: The Knights of the Flying Hunt are all wealthy landowners who serve the Nimbral Lords in exchange for their magical armor and weapons.

DC 15: The Knights operate in regular patrols and work with the Nimbral Heralds to keep the peace and enforce the laws.

DC 20: The Knights and Heralds can communicate mentally with the Nimbral Lords, who guide them to trouble spots quickly and accurately.

DC 30: The armor the Knights wear is crafted specifically for each member; no one else can wear it.

KNIGHTS OF THE FLYING HUNT IN THE GAME

You can introduce a Knight of the Flying Hunt into a campaign in a couple of ways.

Any Knight or group of Knights could appear somewhere on the mainland of Faerûn—particularly if the PCs are in the extreme southern regions of the Wild Coast and Halruaa—perhaps on a long-range mission similar to the one in 1367 DR against the pirates of the Nelanther Isles. The characters might find an opportunity to interact with the Knights, aiding or opposing them in whatever business they are undertaking.

If the relationship between the characters and the Knights is favorable in the end, perhaps they receive an invitation to visit Nimbral itself.

Alternatively, a character in the campaign could hail from Nimbral, perhaps a young and wide-eyed youth hoping someday to return to the Summer Lands to take a position with the Knights, but only after traveling abroad and gaining experience of the wider world.

Such a character might have a parent or older sibling who is a Knight.

The character in question might also be on the run from the Knights, who have come to mainland Faerûn to track him down.

Lastly, a campaign set in or near Nimbral will almost certainly see the Knights of the Flying Hunt put into play. If a character in your campaign actually becomes a Knight of Nimbral, then you have numerous ways to keep the adventuring fresh for that PC and his companions.

The Nimbral Lords might have need of one of their best to undertake unusual missions to other parts of the world in search of information, lost artifacts, escaped and fleeing enemies, and so forth.

Or perhaps all the characters are Knights and are working their way up the ranks, earning the respect of their brethren and perhaps the animosity of political rivals while they help deal with the various trials of defending the island.

ADAPTATION

Though the Knights of the Flying Hunt are a remarkably iconic group, it is not difficult to adjust them for different purposes within your own campaign.

Any organization that makes use of knights mounted on aerial steeds is a good target for such an adaptation.

Perhaps the pegasi become hippogriffs or giant eagles.

The special armor is replaced by more traditional accoutrements, but the special abilities and perks of the class levels could certainly remain the same.

NEW ITEM: HURLCLUB

Hurlclubs are greatclubs modified and specially weighted for throwing.

They are identical to greatclubs in every way (including proficiency and all feats or other abilities related to using a greatclub) except that they cost 10 gp and have a range increment of 5 feet.

Throwing a hurlclub requires two hands.

Despite tavern tales to the contrary, a hurlclub doesn't return to its thrower; however, some Knights attach long chains to their hurlclubs to prevent losing them (add 1 gp to cost).

Once thrown, an attached hurlclub applies a –1 penalty to its user's AC and on Strength- and Dexterity-based ability checks and skill checks until it is pulled back in.

Reeling in and picking up a thrown hurlclub is a full-round action that provokes attacks of opportunity.

TABLE 4—1: THE KNIGHT OF THE FLYING HUNT HIT DIE: d10

Class	Base				Special
	Attack	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Bonus	Save	Save	Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Armor proficiency, flying hunt armor , pegasus mount
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Armored case (2)
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Bonus feat
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	Storm armor
6th	+6	+5	+2	+5	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+5	Armored case (4)
8th	+8	+6	+2	+6	Bonus feat
9th	+9	+6	+3	+6	—
10th	+10	+7	+3	+7	Greater storm armor

KNIGHT OF THE WEAVE

“The Weave is the lifeblood of Faerûn, and I would sacrifice my own life if it meant she would persevere.”

—Elos Crownsilver, Guardian of the Weave

Over a dozen deities have worshipers who are paladins, promoting law and good across Faerûn, but it is the Weave itself that empowers and strengthens the Knights of the Weave.

Distinct from the worship of Mystra, members of this mystic order of sacred defenders cherish the Weave like a fine wine, knowing that its existence enriches all of Faerûn. They drink deeply of its power, use that energy to extend its reach, and utterly smash those who would hurt the object of their love.

Their power comes from pure magic, and unlike typical paladins, their power is arcane rather than divine. Over time they become imbued with the power of the Weave, capable of unleashing magic in its raw form.

BECOMING A KNIGHT OF THE WEAVE

Most Knights of the Weave come from the ranks of the Guardians of the Weave (see page 82), the church of Mystra, or the church of Azuth.

A few characters become knights on their own, usually after witnessing some event that reveals the beauty, power, and fragility of magic in the world.

Fighters and paladins are the most likely to become knights, and some bards and sorcerers who are willing to sacrifice some of their spell power are also aspirants to the knighthood.

Knights must have a basic understanding of magic whether or not they are spellcasters, and some knowledge of the history of the world and how magic shaped it is necessary as well.

Strength (for melee attacks) and Charisma (for spellcasting) are key abilities for Knights of the Weave.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any non-evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5 or ability to spontaneously cast 3rd-level arcane spells.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank, Knowledge (history) 1 rank, Spellcraft 1 rank.

Oath to the Weave: A knight must swear to defend the Weave at all costs, sacrificing his own life to preserve it if necessary.

Special: Cannot be a Shadow Weave user.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Intimidate, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (history), Profession, Spellcraft, Spot, Use Magic Device.

CLASS FEATURES

Knights of the Weave cast arcane spells and learn how to tap into the raw power of the Weave.

A knight's caster level for his spell-like abilities is equal to his class level.

Detect Magic (Sp): At 1st level, you gain the ability to use detect magic at will.

Read Magic (Sp): At 1st level, you gain the ability to use read magic at will.

Spellcasting: Knights of the Weave cast arcane spells like a sorcerer (you use your Charisma score to determine bonus spells per day, save DCs, and so on).

Refer to Table 4–3 to determine your spells known and spells per day.

TABLE 4—3: KNIGHT OF THE WEAVE SPELLS PER DAY AND SPELLS KNOWN

Level	— Spells per Day and Spells Known —
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th
1st	2	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	2	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	3	2	—	—	—	—
4th	3	2	—	—	—	—
5th	4	3	2	—	—	—
6th	4	3	2	2	—	—
7th	4	4	3	2	2	—
8th	4	4	3	3	2	2
9th	4	4	4	3	3	2
10th	4	4	4	3	3	3

You incur the normal arcane spell failure chance for wearing armor (but see Armored Caster, below).

Your caster level for your knight spells is equal to your knight class level plus any other arcane caster levels you may have.

This class's spellcasting progression allows you to quickly approach the highest-level spells available to a single-class spellcaster of your character level, but you will always know fewer spells and be able to cast fewer spells per day than a single-class spellcaster.

Armored Caster (Ex): Normally, armor of any type interferes with an arcane spellcaster's gestures, which can cause his spells to fail (if those spells have somatic components).

At 2nd level, you become more attuned to the Weave and can cast your arcane spells while wearing light armor without incurring the normal arcane spell failure chance. If you wear medium or heavy armor or carry a shield, you incur an arcane spell failure chance if the spell has a somatic component.

At 8th level and higher, you can cast your arcane spells in light or medium armor without incurring arcane spell failure.

Casting in heavy armor or with a shield still incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance.

Fast Metamagic (Ex): At 4th level you become able to channel extra magic into an arcane spell to employ metamagic feats more efficiently.

When spontaneously casting an arcane spell (such as a sorcerer spell or a knight spell) with one or more metamagic effects applied to it, you can expend an extra spell slot to cast the spell without increasing its casting time (as normal for applying metamagic to a spontaneously cast spell).

The extra spell slot must equal or exceed the spell slot used to cast the metamagic-affected spell, but need not be from the same spellcasting class.

For example, if you wanted to apply your Silent Spell metamagic feat to a magic missile spell, you would normally cast the spell as a full-round action.

If you expended an extra spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you could cast the silent magic missile as a standard action instead.

You could even quicken the magic missile spell, but you would have to expend a 5th-level or higher spell slot.

This ability doesn't let you apply a metamagic effect if you don't already have the appropriate feat.

Spellfire (Su): While you are not a natural user of spellfire, your connection to the Weave gives you a limited ability to channel raw magical energy as if you were born with this talent.

You cannot absorb spells targeted at you, nor can you store spellfire energy for later use, but you can use your own arcane spell energy to heal (or later, to blast).

Starting at 6th level, you can convert your available arcane spells (from any class) to healing spellfire.

You can convert a single arcane spell slot or prepared arcane spell as a standard action to heal a target by touch, restoring 2 hit points per spell level expended for this purpose.

At 10th level, you can also convert your arcane spells into spellfire blasts that deal damage.

As a standard action, you can convert a single arcane spell slot or prepared arcane spell into a ranged touch attack (maximum range 400 feet), dealing 1d6 points of spellfire damage per spell level expended, Reflex DC 20 half.

Spellfire damage is half fire damage and half raw magical power; creatures with immunity or resistance to fire apply this effect only to half the damage.

See page 56 of the FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting for more details on this ability.

Multiclassing: A paladin who takes levels in Knight of the Weave can still take levels in paladin.

KNIGHT OF THE WEAVE SPELL LIST

Knights of the Weave choose their spells from the following list.

1st Level—bleed, bleed weapon, charm person, command, comprehend languages, cure light wounds, divine favor, lesser restoration, mage armor, magic missile, magic weapon, read magic, shield.

2nd Level—arcane lock, bear's endurance, bull's strength, cat's grace, darkvision, delay poison, eagle's splendor, resist energy, see invisibility, shield other.

3rd Level—arcane sight, cure moderate wounds, Darsson's potion, daylight, dispel magic, fly, forceward, greater magic weapon, phantom steed, remove curse.

4th Level—break enchantment, cure serious wounds, death ward, lesser globe of invulnerability, mark of justice, neutralize poison, restoration.

5th Level—cure critical wounds, dimension door, disrupting weapon, Mordenkainen's faithful hound, spell resistance, true seeing.

6th Level—banishment, greater dispel magic, teleport.

PLAYING A KNIGHT OF THE WEAVE

Nothing is more important to you than magic's continued existence.

You love the feel of magic flowing through you, whether in casting a spell, using a magic item, or channeling the raw power of magic.

You see dead magic areas as the Weave's missing limbs and wild magic areas as dangerous cancers within the Weave's body.

Nothing gives you more joy than seeing the light die in the eyes of an evil spellcaster.

You wake up in the middle of the night in a cold sweat at the thought of something like Karsus's Folly ever happening again.

The Weave is your friend, your lover, your armor, and your bright shining sword.

The Shadow Weave is a deliberate violation of something you cherish, and you'd love nothing better than to burn its taint from all of Faerûn with a storm of searing blue-white spellfire.

There are few Knights of the Weave, no more than two score, and while they do not have an organized code of conduct, they recognize each others as kindred spirits working for a common purpose.

Regardless of alignment, religion, or country of origin, the knights understand the love and respect that each of them has for magic, and they go out of their way to avoid conflict within their ranks.

Many are associated with the Guardians of the Weave, and perhaps in time they will organize themselves as the military arm of that group, much as various churches have orders of knights focused on protecting their interests with necessary violence.

Even those knights not involved with the Guardians respect them, and the Guardians see the knights as their champions.

COMBAT

Although you study powerful magic, most of what you know relates to enhancing your fighting abilities and, as with a paladin, your place is in the thick of battle.

Because at first you have difficulty casting spells in armor, you should use spells to boost your abilities beforehand or in the aftermath of battle.

At 2nd level you can wear light armor, and a magic chain shirt or mithral chainmail lets you mix spell and sword freely.

By 6th level, you add spellfire to the mix, giving you a way to heal yourself safely in combat.

At 8th level, you can wear medium armor, and most knights locate or buy mithral full plate armor to give them the best melee protection that at the same time allows them full use of all their abilities.

At 10th level, your ability to unleash destructive spellfire using your own spell energy means that you can unleash devastating bolts of pure magic at any time.

You work well with others in combat by taking the paladin's role of front-line warrior supported by magic.

In an emergency you even have offensive and countering spells of your own.

Though you're never as good at blasting enemies as a sorcerer or a wizard is, your abilities give you a chance to interfere with enemy spellcasting long enough to allow your allies to end the fight.

Because at lower levels you're more likely to use lighter armor, you can fit in easily with sneaky characters, and your spells can augment your and their abilities in those areas.

At high level you're best off using your spells to increase your ability to deal melee damage, reserving a few spell slots for unexpected opportunities.

Your spellfire reaches its highest utility at 10th level, but avoid the temptation to use up all your spell slots for this purpose—you never know when you might need a key true seeing or teleport spell.

ADVANCEMENT

Any knight can teach a qualified person how to begin attuning himself to the right parts of the Weave.

Some potential knights discover the necessary information by accident or research, but most who would become knights meet an existing knight at some point in their travels.

A qualified person is one who shows an interest in magic, has at least a rudimentary knowledge of the Weave and its history, and is dedicated enough to swear an oath to protect it with his life.

Many aspiring knights swear this oath in front of another knight, but that is not necessary—the Weave itself bears witness to the oath.

Training is an informal matter and does not require active tutelage by another knight.

The new knight instinctively (or by studying subtle shifts in the pattern of the Weave) understands what sort of meditation, practice, or study is required to progress as a knight.

Sometimes this preparation entails fasting for several days near a dead magic area or trying to cast spells on the fringe of a wild magic area.

Another knight might train by studying lore on pools of radiance in a Mystran library or meditating on the shore of a sea to recognize how the ebb and flow of the tides mirrors the shifting strands of the Weave.

In between experiencing these revelations, the knight continues to practice his spellcasting and fighting and keeps an ear to the ground for news of things needing his attention.

Each knight feels a pull from a slightly different part of the Weave, guiding what spells he develops in his mind and the role he adopts among the knights.

Some avenging or crusading knights choose aggressive magic, believing the best defense is a good offense.

Others see themselves as protectors and learn metamagic, counterspelling, and ways of repairing damage to fragile parts of the Weave.

Yet others try to become personifications of magic, using their knowledge to augment their own abilities or even create items that boost them further.

Though a wizard might suggest learning a little bit of everything to be ready for all situations, that approach rarely fits the typical knight's mentality; most knights focus their magic in a specific area, relying on their physical prowess and versatile spellfire to make up for any specific lack of spell knowledge.

RESOURCES

Since the order is rare and its members few in number, knights are usually more than willing to help each other in times of need, whether by lending a magic item, casting a helpful spell, or even joining a quest for a short time.

The last occurrence is particularly common if two knights have very different and complementary skill sets.

One thing knights are always generous with is knowledge; they keep no secrets from each other when it comes to protecting the Weave.

The knights have friendly relations with the Guardians of the Weave as well as the churches of Mystra and Azuth (and to a lesser extent Savras) and can sometimes get aid (particularly healing magic) from those groups.

Since a knight's armor choices are initially limited because of the risk of spellcasting failure, some knights use bracers of armor in their early journeys, but once you gain the ability to cast safely in armor you will likely switch to conventional armor (including mithral armor) for better protection, and to fool enemies into thinking you are without spells.

Knights tend to face many spellcasters and magical monsters, so armor that provides energy resistance or spell resistance is commonly seen among powerful knights.

Like paladins, knights usually carry magic weapons; their favorite choices are those with the speed, spellblade, and spell storing special abilities (as well as dispelling weapons for knights who don't have the ability to cast dispel magic).

Some knights see their role as the light against shadow and the shield against darkness.

For them to carry out this role, they must be able to recognize the enemy.

The Detect Shadow Weave User feat, (see page 28) enables a Knight of the Weave (or any other character) to gain this ability.

Some knights discover this feat through independent study, and others learn it from a mentor knight or an ally from an organization such as the Guardians of the Weave.

KNIGHTS OF THE WEAVE IN THE WORLD

"I once saw a Knight of the Weave teleport alone into a Cult of the Dragon stronghold.

When we arrived an hour later, the cultists were nothing but spellfire-burned ash, and the knight was already halfway across Faerûn investigating rumors of a Shadow Mage.

I've never seen one of our paladins do anything like that."

—Toromil the Brightflame, arcane devotee of Mystra

Knights of the Weave have a long reach but lack the overt power to destroy their enemies outright. This means they must take a more strategic role or use small-scale forays to accomplish their goals. This makes them perfect for adventuring parties, either as PCs, cohorts, or potential employers. They can't topple the Zhentarim or the Red Wizards on their own, but they know a lot and (at higher levels) are very mobile through the use of teleportation magic, making them a great resource for explaining the back story of an adventure, pointing the PCs in the right direction, or showing up just when the PCs need them most. Their focus on combat and arcane spells make them similar to a paladin but without the religious trappings, and their ability to cast spells in armor is an intriguing choice for a player wanting to play a battle mage (and is willing to sacrifice versatility and higher-level spells for the fun of getting their hands dirty).

DAILY LIFE

On a day-to-day basis a knight is searching for threats to the Weave, lost magic he can discover, lore to learn, and receptive minds to teach about respecting the Weave. Many knights are loners and are often mistaken for paladins (which can be confusing when one insists he can't cure diseases but can break curses) and engage in paladinlike activities when they sense the Weave wants them to do so.

Knights can be leaders, but most of them lead by example rather than by giving orders.

They respect considerate spellcasters, and knights in leadership positions tend to quickly earn the loyalty of any spellcasters in the area for their attentiveness and honest desire to hear a qualified opinion.

ORGANIZATION

The knights have no official leader, but the most experienced knight alive today is Janos the Lichbreaker, mentor to at least three other knights.

He is greatly respected for his knowledge, power, and ability to teach others about their path.

Janos is very concerned about the Shadow Weave, and in particular the activities of the residents of Shade.

He spends most of his time in the lands near Anauroch, digging for news of their activities and hoping against hope that none of the shades are planning to revive ancient Netherese spellcasting secrets that might damage or disrupt the Weave in some way.

He doesn't force his agenda on others but welcomes help when it is offered, and usually at least one knight assists him at any particular time.

The knights do not have any official ranks, though they observe each other's progress and comment when one of them demonstrates a new ability.

Fast metamagic, spellfire, heavier armor, and teleporting are benchmarks of the knighthood, and the knights are developing an informal series of nicknames (often subtly humorous) that can eventually become a series of recognized titles if the knighthood grows large enough to merit such distinctions.

For example, a knight seen rapidly casting spells silently might earn the nickname "Spellwhisper", and someday "Spellwhisper" could become a title in the organization, especially if the original Spellwhisper makes a good name for himself among the others.

An unusual friendly rivalry exists between the paladins of magic (serving Azuth and Mystra) and the knights. Some of the paladins are slightly offended that the knights focus on the Weave rather than the goddess and make a point of demonstrating their advantages compared to the knights (such as being able to smite evil).

The knights respond by pointing out that they acknowledge Mystra's ties to the Weave—they are the one and the same, after all—but they focus on the part they can touch; they then show off their own power with a dazzling display of powerful magic and spellfire, a feat no paladin can match.

The knights don't have any serious rivalries within their organization, since they recognize that different opinions (like spells of different schools of magic) are natural, and while they may oppose each other at times, these differences are not worth fighting about.

For example, the knights think the rivalries between the various Thayan wizard factions are absurd and a waste of time, but are glad those rivalries keep the Red Wizards from spending all their efforts outside Thay.

This is not to say that the knights don't argue, but they're usually happy to let a matter drop and go their separate ways, expecting not to see their verbal sparring partner for a year or more.

NPC REACTIONS

Most people outside of the knighthood, churches of Mystra and Azuth, and the Guardians of the Weave have a hard time distinguishing the knights from paladins of Mystra and Azuth.

Thus, they're treated with friendliness and respect for their power and devotion, and people know that the "paladins" are willing to help in any way they can.

Evil individuals and groups have the same problem as other folks—most can't tell the knights from regular paladins.

This offers the knights a measure of protection, because they're in the shadow of a larger group, but also makes them a target for those who have a vendetta against paladins as a whole.

The Cult of the Dragon and the church of Shar are the only groups that have a good understanding of what makes a knight different; the Cult is too busy with its own mad plans to worry about a subset of Mystra's holy soldiers, and the Sharrans are usually more concerned about torturing and killing Mystra's and Selúne's priests to concern themselves with the paladins.

These attitudes will probably change as the knighthood grows and develops a more distinct identity.

The knights dislike the Cult and the Sharrans as well as the Zhentarim and most of the Red Wizards, but as they know they can't deal with the entire organization at once they save their anger for individuals rather than making systematic attempts on the group as a whole.

KNIGHTS OF THE WEAVE LORE

Characters with Knowledge (arcana) can research the Knights of the Weave to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs. DC 10: The Knights of the Weave are a knightly order of Mystra.

DC 15: The knights are skilled warriors who study magic. They are not paladins, though they often act like them.

DC 20: The knights use arcane magic rather than divine magic, and some even learn how to create spellfire.

They know less magic than a true mage but can hold their own against an opponent of similar power. The knights revere the Weave itself rather than the goddess Mystra.

Characters can use Knowledge (religion) or bardic knowledge to discover the above information, but the DCs are 5 higher.

KNIGHTS OF THE WEAVE IN THE GAME

Because the knights are such a small order, it is entirely possible that in your game they are relatively new and are just now making a name for themselves in the world. They are also somewhat reclusive, so it may be that the order has been around for a while but has been working in secret, or people have mistaken its members for paladins of magic deities.

This class is perfect for fighter-type characters who want to use some of the more powerful spells without the serious drawbacks of multiclassing as a sorcerer or wizard. It's also good for players who want something a little different from a standard class, or who want their characters to have abilities similar to those of a paladin but without the lawful good alignment requirement.

ADAPTATION

The Knights of the Weave can easily be adapted to serve as followers of Azuth or as a true military order supported by the Mystran church.

If you're willing to alter the alignment requirements and spell list, you could create different splinter knight-hoods for each magic deity, making each group slightly more specialized and unique.

Azuth's knights would learn more direct-attack spells and metaspell effects, Savras's would study more divination, and Velsharoon's would gain access to necromancy.

TABLE 4-2: THE KNIGHT OF THE WEAVE
HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Detect magic, read magic, spellcasting
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Armored caster (light)
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Fast metamagic
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Spellfire (healing)
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	—
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	Armored caster (medium)
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	—
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Spellfire (blasting)

MOONSEA SKYSENTINEL

"Nothing makes me feel better than soaring over the landscape, keeping an eye out for Zhent dangers.

Except maybe for knocking a Zhentarim skymage out of his saddle, of course."

—Joatra Stelmar, Moonsea skysentinel

Moonsea skysentinels are the eyes in the sky for the Knights of the North, scouting the landscape, looking for evidence of Zhentarim activity.

They employ trained dire hawks as swift aerial mounts and a variety of combat tactics that allow them to swoop in, strike enemies quickly, and race away again before reinforcements can arrive.

Whether spying on a caravan flying the banner of the Black Network, delivering battle orders to a Knight raiding party, or hunting and dueling one of the hated Zhentarim skymages, a Moonsea skysentinel is the light cavalry of the Knights' forces.

BECOMING A MOONSEA SKYSENTINEL

Characters who want to become Moonsea skysentinels most often follow the path of the martial classes or druid because of the combination of skills and feats necessary to gain admittance.

Occasionally a rogue or cleric can become a Moonsea skysentinel, though such characters need additional levels to gain the necessary ranks in the required skills.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Handle Animal 8 ranks, Ride 8 ranks.

Feats: Mounted Combat.

Special: Membership in the Knights of the North.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Climb, Craft, Handle Animal, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (geography), Ride, Spot.

CLASS FEATURES

The Moonsea skysentinel's class features make you particularly adept at aerial combat and scouting, while at the same time resistant to magical attacks from your hated foes, the Zhentarim skymages.

The combination of offensive specialties and defensive protections make you particularly handy at quick strikes against ground-based foes with little risk to yourself.

Dire Hawk Steed: As a Moonsea skysentinel, you gain a trained dire hawk of Large size as your personal mount.

The dire hawk serves you loyally, carrying you into combat or fighting at your side.

The dire hawk has maximum hit points but is otherwise a normal specimen of its size.

See page 122 for this creature's statistics block.

Your dire hawk steed gains 1 HD for every three class levels you gain beyond 1st (increasing to 10 HD at 4th, to 11 HD at 7th, and to 12 HD at 10th).

Each time it gains a Hit Die, its natural armor bonus and Strength score each improve by 2 (in addition to the normal improvements gained with added Hit Dice, such as skill points, feats, and ability score improvements).

A dire hawk steed can't be used as an animal companion.

Magical Defense (Ex): Your training in resisting the deadly spells cast by Zhentarim skymages manifests as a bonus on saving throws against spells and spell-like abilities for both you and your mount.

This bonus is +1 starting at 1st level, and it increases to +2 at 4th level, +3 at 7th level, and +4 at 10th level.

The ability only functions while you are mounted on your dire hawk steed.

Shield (Sp): Upon reaching 2nd level, you gain an innate ability to withstand incoming attacks from your enemies.

Once per day you can use a shield effect.

Your caster level is equal to your class level.

If you are mounted on your dire hawk, the spell affects both you and your mount, but if you dismount your dire hawk loses the benefit.

You can use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained above 2nd.

Spell Turning (Sp): Starting at 3rd level, you can use a spell turning effect as an immediate action; the duration is 1 round or until expended.

If you are mounted on your dire hawk, the spell affects both you and your mount (and you share a common pool of spell levels affected), but if you dismount your dire hawk loses the benefit.

You can use this ability once per day at 3rd level, and one additional time per day for every three levels gained above 3rd.

PLAYING A MOONSEA SKYSENTINEL

You hate the Black Network, especially those loathsome Zhentarim skymages, and you've decided to do something about it.

You and your bird like nothing better than taking to the skies and hunting for Zhents.

When the morning is cold and crisp, and your breath frosts in the breeze, that's when you feel most alive, ready to work.

Winging your way across the foothills or open plains of the Moonsea, you almost dare a skymage to show his ugly face—just so you can watch his look of horror when you send him plummeting.

You serve as both scout and cavalry for the rest of the Knights of the North.

Mounted on your trained dire hawk, you have the ability to race from one corner of the region to the other, delivering messages, scouting enemy movement, and guarding the skies to protect your companions.

They may be on the ground, raiding a caravan or attacking a Zhent envoy, but you're the one watching their backs.

COMBAT

Lightly equipped to travel fast, you don't like getting into frontal assaults.

Instead, you prefer to rely on your swift mount to get the drop on your ground-based enemies, coming in fast and leaving them wondering where you went.

Ranged weapons are your best tactic, and with your innate defensive abilities, you can avoid similar attacks, making it easy for you to circle the fight and rain death from above.

In the air, you have a good chance to deliver some hefty damage upon a Zhentarim skymage while enjoying a certain degree of protection from his spells.

As you gain more experience, your dire hawk can become a lethal force in its own right, and aerial battles against a skymage and its mount become spectacular—and deadly—displays.

ADVANCEMENT

You were already halfway to becoming a Moonsea skysentinel when you joined up with the Knights of the North.

After you showed what you could do on the ground, the Knights saw the potential in you to take to the skies for your joint cause.

You are a precious and rare breed—there aren't more than a handful of skysentinels in existence.

You and your companions know how much the rest of the Knights depend on you—and the cost not only to yourself but to the group as a whole if you get killed or incapacitated.

At first, your superiors will want you to take it slow.

They use you on simple missions, delivering messages, scouting caravan locations, or occasionally doing some point work for the Knights' own caravans.

Until you get comfortable in the saddle, they don't want you to risk yourself unduly.

After all, you're hard to replace.

Once you start to get some battle experience, though, you can start tangling with the Zhent scum more regularly.

Your first fight with a Zhentarim skymage will be unlike anything you've experienced before.

Remember that you have to deal with him quickly, before he can use his magic to good effect.

Once you start gaining levels as a Moonsea skysentinel, you're going to need to make some choices about your combat specialties.

Your dire hawk is a powerful weapon in its own right, so the bonus feats you select determine how you put your mount to good use.

Your style of fighting must be predicated on what you know how to do with Mounted Combat and its related feats.

RESOURCES

Because you're a member of the Knights of the North, you have access to a wide range of specialty gear for yourself and your mount.

Spend the extra coin on a combat saddle and the other equipment to help you in battles—the extra price is worth it.

Also make sure you have the best bow you can, and get a spare; when you drop your weapon from 2,000 feet above the plains, you can't pick it up again.

The Black Network may be large and powerful, but it has many enemies.

You can usually find someone in the Moonsea region who is sympathetic to your cause, able to provide you with spare equipment or a place to hide in a pinch.

The Knights of the North maintain lots of supply caches all over the area, too, and you can draw on those when the need arises.

MOONSEA SKYSENTINELS IN THE WORLD

"I wouldn't be here if it weren't for the skysentinels watching my back.

They've warned me of Zhentarim traps more times than I can count."

—Lidrin Garneteye, Knight of the North

The Moonsea skysentinel is a paramount counterpart to the Zhentarim skymage.

One offsets the other.

If you have a campaign based around disrupting the foul deeds of the Black Network, particularly involving the activities of the Knights of the North, then the Moonsea skysentinel should be available to even the playing field.

DAILY LIFE

As with all the Knights of the North, the life of a Moonsea skysentinel is hard.

Often on the run from pursuing Zhentarim forces, a skysentinel lives day to day, enjoying the moments when airborne the most.

When he's not on a mission, he's often hiding in some roosting spot in the hills and lower mountains of the region.

Like the rest of the Knights, a skysentinel has dedicated his life to righting the wrongs inflicted on the common folk by the Black Network, and he works tirelessly to see that goal met.

There is no other life for him.

As with any airborne branch of a military organization, the Moonsea skysentinels are a breed apart.

They keep to themselves, seeing their roles as both more dangerous and more glorious than that of the common foot soldier.

In the case of the Knights of the North, the skysentinels respect their ground-based counterparts and would do anything to keep disaster from befalling them, but a skysentinel sees himself as the daredevil hero who swoops in and turns the tide, saving his friends' hides time and time again.

NOTABLES

Although she was not one of the original members of the Knights of the North, Joatra Stelmar was the first member recruited by the Knights to aid them in their cause.

A druid who had a great rapport with several dire hawks nesting in the Dragonspine Mountains, she took to flying on the back of one as a means of surveying the range where she lived.

She despised the Zhentarim skymages who sometimes flew into her territory, and she never missed an opportunity to send one careening to his death.

It was only a few years ago that Joatra came to the aid of a small group of Knights who had gotten caught in a trap laid for them by the Black Network.

Swooping in and catching the Zhents off guard, she was able to turn the tide of the skirmish.

Though reluctant at first to form a permanent relationship with the Knights, Joatra eventually agreed to facilitate bringing Knights with the right temperament together with dire hawks, helping them form a bond, and training them in the art of aerial warfare.

Now, though she would likely cringe at the appellation, the Knights consider Joatra to be their master skysentinel.

ORGANIZATION

All the other Knights of the North who train as Moonsea skysentinels answer to both Joatra Stelmar and to the leadership of the organization as a whole.

Beyond that, there are too few skysentinels in existence to organize them further.

Instead, an unspoken understanding exists among all the skysentinels that the most experienced among them will take on the most dangerous tasks, and the others accept lesser assignments until they have proven themselves.

Joatra doesn't attempt to involve herself in the military decisions of the Knights.

Her only agenda is to see to it that the dire hawks are treated well and not put into undue danger.

She understands the need for risk; her knowledge of the Black Network is sufficient to accept that sacrifices must sometimes be made to thwart their schemes.

But she won't see birds pushed beyond their limits or sent on suicide missions without very good cause.

If at any point Joatra believes a Moonsea skysentinel is being unnecessarily reckless with or unkind to his or her dire hawk, she will ground that individual until amends are made.

The other Knights never question her decisions in these matters, both because they value her contributions to their cause too much and because they recognize that she knows what she is doing.

Reparations can be as mild as an apology to both Joatra and the bird in question or as severe as permanent removal from the skysentinels.

NPC REACTIONS

Folk who don't know about the skysentinels (and few do who are not directly in alliance with or opposed to them) are usually amazed, frightened, and suspicious of these warriors from the sky.

They have seen plenty of evidence or heard plenty of anecdotal stories of flying Zhentarim skymages, and those encounters have never ended well.

Thus, unless they are given ample cause to change their views, people are most likely to be unfriendly or even hostile in attitude.

On the other hand, most folk who have been rescued from Zhent brutality by a Moonsea skysentinel appreciate both the nobility and risk involved in serving as one, and they tend to applaud the skysentinel's efforts and show a friendly or even helpful disposition.

There are a few who understand the good intentions of the skysentinels but fear the repercussions of aiding them, and those folk exhibit unfriendly or (rarely) hostile behavior, as well.

Of course, the members of the Black Network hate the Knights of the North and want them destroyed.

Zhentarm skymages find the Moonsea skysentinels particularly loathsome and take every opportunity to attack them, hoping to slay both rider and bird.

Each group's members harbor a special enmity for the other and almost never back down from a potential fight (unless their present business is of paramount importance, and any delay or failure to deliver could be disastrous).

MOONSEA SKYSENTINELS LORE

Characters can use Knowledge (local Moonsea) or Gather Information to learn more about the Moonsea skysentinels or a specific member.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: The Moonsea skysentinels are terrors from the sky, wreaking havoc on all trade in the Moonsea region.

DC 15: The Moonsea skysentinels work with the Knights of the North to combat the machinations of the Zhentarim, riding huge birds into battle.

DC 20: The Moonsea skysentinels are an elite corps of scouts, flying on dire hawks and dueling with Zhentarim skymages.

They hide out in secret aeries in the mountains and are hard to track down.

The Knights of the North secretly recruit members who show promise and teach them to become skysentinels.

DC 30: A successful check reveals specific places in the various cities of the Moonsea area, as well as Sembia, Cormyr, and the Dalelands, where someone can make it known that he or she would like to be contacted by Knight recruiters.

This information could include the name of someone to ask for, though there will always be twists and turns and false dead-ends to the information trail.

The Knights are very cautious, wary individuals who don't want to be exposed.

MOONSEA SKYSENTINELS IN THE GAME

Any campaign you might be running that takes the characters into or near the Moonsea region is a prime opportunity to utilize the Moonsea skysentinels. Whether the PCs are simply traveling through with a caravan, or they have clashed with the Zhentarim already and wound up in an ongoing struggle, they are likely to encounter a group of Knights of the North accompanied by at least a single skysentinel.

If events align to allow one or more characters to join the Knights of the North, it is feasible that at least one of those members will be interested in becoming a skysentinel. Even if the characters aren't recruited or turn down the opportunity, they can on occasion aid a Knight (and by extension, a skysentinel) or join forces with some to further a common cause.

Any player character who becomes a Moonsea skysentinel will find plenty to do in an ongoing anti-Zhentarim campaign.

As a skysentinel, the character can serve as the spy or scout for a strike team made up of the rest of the characters in the party.

Alternatively, with a smaller group of players, all of them could become skysentinels and fly missions as a team, relying on their disparity of skills and talents to still function as a well-rounded party.

Setting up a large rivalry with a notable Zhentarim skymage, someone who can serve as an ongoing adversary and torment and thwart the characters as they advance in level, can give you plenty of adventure ideas.

ADAPTATION

Of course, the Moonsea skysentinel concept doesn't have to be limited to the Knights of the North.

If you are running a campaign in another area of Faerûn (or in another campaign setting altogether), you can easily adapt the class to function as the aerial corps for a military or paramilitary organization.

Alternatively, the skysentinels could just as easily be a solo act, a group of like-minded combatants who serve their own purposes and don't answer to anyone else. They could even be a part of a city watch.

TABLE 4-4: THE MOONSEA SKYSENTINEL
HIT DIE: d8

Base
Class	Attack	Fort	Ref	Will	Special
Level	Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Dirge hawk steed, magical defense +1
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Shield 1/day
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Spell turning 1/day
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Magical defense +2
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Shield 2/day
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Spell turning 2/day
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Magical defense +3
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Shield 3/day
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Spell turning 3/day
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Magical defense +4

TRIADIC KNIGHT

"We are few, but our resolve can break the spine of any fiend."

—Haelimbrar, Triadic Knight and Servant of the Lords of Imphras II

Triadic knights are holy warriors who worship the Triad of Tyr, Torm, and Ilmater.

Triadic knights trace their history back to the Fiend Wars of Impiltur (729–732 DR), when the three churches joined forces to proclaim the Triad Crusade, but they no longer comprise a single order of paladins.

Triadic knights believe that to truly embody the virtues of a paladin, one must draw on the strengths of all three gods. Through courage and perseverance, Triadic knights seek justice for all.

BECOMING A TRIADIC KNIGHT

Paladins, cleric/paladins, and clerics most commonly become Triadic knights, although many multiclass combinations including clerics and paladins are represented or have served in the past among the ranks of the Triad's holy warriors.

Depending on your base spellcasting class(es), you'll find Wisdom and/or Charisma remains your most valuable ability score.

Melee combat-oriented characters should emphasize Strength and Constitution, while those specializing in unarmed combat should focus on Dexterity and Strength, and then Constitution.

Spellcasters are best served by emphasizing their primary mental attribute to maximize the number of bonus spells they can cast.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Patron Deity: Ilmater, Torm, and/or Tyr.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Feats: Initiate of Ilmater, Initiate of Torm (see page 31), or Initiate of Tyr; plus Endurance.

Skills: Knowledge (local) 4 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 4 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 2 ranks.

Special: Aura of good class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Handle Animal, Heal, Knowledge (local, nobility and royalty, the planes, religion), Profession, Ride, Sense Motive.

CLASS FEATURES

The Triadic knight's class features combine elements of the paladin with defensive abilities that allow him to remain at full fighting strength even when faced with adverse conditions.

Spellcasting: At each new Triadic knight level other than 1st or 7th, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class you belonged to before adding the prestige class.

You do not, however, gain all the benefits a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a Triadic knight, you must decide to which class you add the new level for purposes of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Aura of Good (Ex): Your Triadic knight levels stack with other class levels that grant this ability for the purpose of determining the power of your aura of good.

Special Mount (Sp): As a Triadic knight, you gain the service of an unusually intelligent, strong, and loyal steed. See the paladin class feature, page 44 of the Player's Handbook.

Levels of Triadic knight stack with other class levels in classes that grant this feature for the purpose of determining the special mount's abilities.

Hands of Ilmater (Su): At 2nd level and higher, you can no longer become nauseated or sickened.

Shield Other (Sp): Starting at 3rd level, you can use a shield other effect once per day; your caster level is equal to twice your class level.

Triadic knights often call this ability "martyr's embrace".

Eyes of Tyr (Su): At 4th level and higher, you can no longer become dazzled or blinded (except by physical damage to your eyes).

Discern Lies (Sp): At 5th level, you become able to use a discern lies effect once per day; your caster level is equal to twice your class level.

Triadic knights often call this ability "judge's insight".

Smite Evil (Su): Beginning at 5th level, you can smite evil once per day.

See the paladin class feature, page 44 of the Player's Handbook.

If you already have this ability from another class, your Triadic knight class levels stack with that class's levels for the purpose of determining the extra damage dealt.

For example, a 5th-level paladin/4th-level Triadic knight would deal an extra 9 points of damage with each successful smite evil attempt.

Smite evil attempts per day gained from multiple sources stack.

Heart of Torm (Su): At 6th level, you gain immunity to fear.

Shout (Sp): At 7th level, you can use shout once per day; your caster level is equal to twice your class level.

Triadic knights often call this ability "lion's roar".

Threefold Smite (Su): At 7th level, you can combine three smite evil attempts in a single attack.

Doing this costs you three of your daily smite evil attempts; if you don't have at least three such attempts remaining, you can't use this ability.

Making a threefold smite requires a full-round action and triples the bonus on damage rolls (but not on attack rolls) normally applied with a smite evil attack.

For example, a 5th-level paladin/7th-level Triadic knight would deal an extra 36 points of damage (three times his effective smite evil level of 12th).

PLAYING A TRIADIC KNIGHT

You are brave, persevering, and honorable at all times, embodying the traits of all three members of the Triad. You exhibit more flexibility than most clerics and paladins of lawful good deities, since you are able to see better than most that sometimes justice must be tempered by mercy, that suffering must be alleviated through courage, or that obedience must give way to what is right.

You serve the churches of Tyr, Torm, and Ilmater and respect the commands of their leaders; as you see it, members of each group have a unique perspective on living a valorous, honorable life.

COMBAT

You belong in the front line of any combat, fighting hand-to-hand with the champion or leader of your foes.

Your spells and abilities allow you to shrug off the lingering effects of most evil magic and keep going.

As you grow in power, your ability to embrace the suffering of others, ferret out the truth, and roar in the face of danger make you a natural leader and an inspirational example for others.

Your ability to smite is your greatest weapon, and when you reach the pinnacle of your power, you can dispatch powerful creatures of evil with a single blow.

ADVANCEMENT

Becoming a Triadic knight requires dedicating yourself not to one god, but to three.

You must spend time studying the dogma of all three faiths and understanding how each church's teachings strengthens the other two.

Although it is not strictly required, you are more likely to be chosen to join the knighthood if you exhibit great valor in three separate quests, each one serving one of the three churches of the Triad.

At first, your superiors will want you to rotate among the three faiths, serving the needs of each church individually.

As you become seasoned, however, they will expect you to identify specific weaknesses of each individual faith and bring your understanding of the rest of the Triad's teaching to bear, thus strengthening all three faiths.

As you continue to serve the Triad, you will be expected to become a leader of the Triad Crusade, which will continue until every last fiend is banished from Faerûn.

You will be expected to seek out denizens of the Lower Planes who lurk in Abeir-Toril's darkest shadows and muster the resources of the Triad's three churches to ensure their defeat.

RESOURCES

As a Triadic knight, you are part of a respected knighthood of champions, the living embodiment of the teachings of three gods.

You can expect a warm welcome in good-aligned human realms, much like that accorded a paladin.

As a champion of three faiths that are closely allied, you can draw on the resources of all three churches.

Spend coin on armor and weapons that will benefit you in battle.

Avail yourself of cold iron and silvered weapons effective against demons and devils, and seek out powerful magic weapons with bane (evil outsider), holy, and/or thundering properties.

In the Old Empires of Mulhorand, Unther, and Chessenta, and in nonhuman realms, Triadic knights are not widely known.

However, members of like-minded churches (such as those discussed in the Adaptation section, below) are likely to give you aid if so requested; to them, a paladinlike knight who is open-minded about the teachings of multiple lawful and good gods is a refreshing change from most dogmatic holy warriors.

TRIADIC KNIGHTS IN THE WORLD

"I met a mighty warrior on the road.

Her sword was shattered, her face was scarred, and she carried with her a bloody saddle.

I offered her a ride in my cart, but she graciously declined, saying that she had to walk the path Ilmater had set before her.

Within her eyes burned a fire the likes of which I've never seen.

This warrior, I imagined, had fought horrors that would crush the spirit of any common man."

—Arrath Darcylon, the Wandering Bard

Triadic knights are found throughout western and central Faerûn in churches and religious orders that embrace the worship of the three gods of the Triad. They play much the same role as paladins of Tyr, Torm, and Ilmater.

ORGANIZATION

Although Triadic knights once comprised a single order of paladins, Impiltur's Order of the Triad, a slim majority of Triadic knights now are independent agents, acting as lone paladins or clerics who have embraced the worship of three like-minded gods with little resistance from members of the individual faiths.

Other Triadic knights join one of the many knights orders dedicated to Torm, Tyr, or Ilmater.

The largest concentrations of Triadic knights are found in Impiltur, as leading members of the Knights of Imphras II; in Tethyr, as leading members of the Knights Kuldar of Barakmordin; and in Calimshan, where they venerate Anachtyr in lieu of Tyr, as leading members of the Janessar. Further details on the Knights of Imphras II are found in Chapter 3.

NPC REACTIONS

Most people regard paladins with a mixture of awe and guilt, amazed by their bravery and honor, but fearful that they are being secretly "judged".

Others simply hate them or view them with admiration.

Triadic knights are viewed much the same way as paladins, with similar varied reactions.

Few observers recognizing the implications of a paladin archetype embracing three largely united but subtly different dogmas.

TRIADIC KNIGHTS LORE

Characters with Knowledge (history) or Knowledge (religion) can research Triadic knights and find information on the Triad Crusade and its aftermath. When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following material, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: Triadic knights embrace the worship of Tyr, Torm, and Ilmater, known collectively as the Triad.

DC 15: Triadic knights can be found in large numbers as members of the Knights Kuldar in Barakmordin and as members of the Knights of Imphras II in Impiltur.

DC 20: Triadic knights came to prominence during the Triad Crusade, called by the churches of Tyr, Torm, and Ilmater in the wake of the Weeping War (711–714 YK) to defend Old Impiltur against an invasion of newly released fiends.

DC 30: Characters who achieve this level of success can learn important details about specific Triadic knights in your campaign.

TRIADIC KNIGHTS IN THE GAME

Triadic knights play much the same role as paladins, acting as shining knights who fight on behalf of the forces of law and good.

However, they show more resiliency than is typical for paladins, drawing on the three tenets of perseverance, courage, and justice to give them amazing strength in the face of impossible odds.

It's easy to introduce a Triadic knight into an ongoing campaign.

If your campaign includes a paladin who venerates Tyr, Torm, or Ilmater, any challenge that forces him to draw on the strengths of another god of the Triad might result in a revelation that leads him to embrace all three gods of the Triad.

This prestige class appeals to gamers who enjoy role-playing paladins but who seek a more complicated belief set for the paladin to adhere to.

Triadic knights must balance between the teachings of the three gods, which share common goals but differ in the specifics of how to achieve such goals.

For example, a Triadic knight must weigh the merits of mercy versus duty versus justice when deciding on the fate of a captured prisoner who seemingly repents of his crimes at the last minute.

ADAPTATION

The Triadic knight is a fairly specific class that unites the differences of three lawful good gods.

This class can be adapted to worshipers of other pantheons with a strong focus on the twin tenets of law and good.

For example, a dwarf variant of this class could be created that venerated Clangeddin Silverbeard, Gorm Gulthyn, and Moradin, emphasizing the three tenets of bravery, watchfulness, and protection.

A Mulhorandi variant of this class could be created that venerated Horus-Re, Osiris, and Thoth, emphasizing the three tenets of knowledge, justice, and life.

TABLE 4–5: THE TRIADIC KNIGHT HIT DIE: d10

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, special mount	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Hands of Ilmater	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Shield other	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Eyes of Tyr	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Discern lies , smite evil 1/day	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Heart of Torm	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Sbout , threefold smite	—

CITY OF SPLENDORS

WATERDEEP (3.5)

GRAY HAND ENFORCER

"Come here, little demon, and stop tormenting the nice townsfolk...I will squash you like a bug."

—Harshnag the Grim

Gray Hand enforcers are highly trained members of the Gray Hands, Waterdeep's elite, high-powered fighting force.

They answer only to the Lords of Waterdeep and are selected for their ability to deal quickly with enemies of unusual personal power.

Through rigorous training, Gray Hand enforcers gain the ability to shrug off physical damage and magical attacks alike.

BECOMING A GRAY HAND ENFORCER

Barbarians, fighters, and rangers most commonly become Gray Hand enforcers, although members of all classes and many races (particularly monstrous humanoids and giants) have served among the ranks of the Gray Hands.

The most important requirement of a Gray Hand enforcer is the ability to deal damage, followed closely by the ability to take large amounts of damage.

Melee-oriented characters should emphasize Strength and Constitution, while those specializing in ranged or sneak attacks should focus on Dexterity and Constitution, and then Strength.

Spellcasters are best served by emphasizing their primary mental attribute to maximize the number of bonus spells they can cast.

Spellcasters should also focus on Constitution to improve their hit points as well as Dexterity and Wisdom to improve their saving throws.

Hit Die: d10.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any nonevil.

Skills: Intimidate 5 ranks.

Feats: Endurance, Toughness, and either Power Attack or Empower Spell.

Special: Base attack bonus +7 or ability to cast 4th-level spells.

Special: Must be a member of the Gray Hands (see page 37).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Climb, Concentration, Escape Artist, Heal, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (local), Listen, Ride, Spellcraft, Spot, Swim, Tumble, Use Magic Device, and Use Rope.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the Gray Hand enforcer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Gray Hand enforcers gain no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Spellcasting: A Gray Hand enforcer continues training in magic.

At every Gray Hand enforcer level beyond 1st, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class you belonged to before adding the prestige class.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a Gray Hand enforcer, you must decide to which class you add the new level for purposes of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Damage Reduction (Ex): At 1st level, a Gray Hand enforcer gains damage reduction.

Subtract 1 from the damage you take each time you are dealt damage from a weapon or natural attack.

Damage reduction can reduce damage to 0 but not below 0. This ability improves to damage reduction 2/- at 3rd level, and damage reduction 3/- at 5th level.

Gray Hand Token: All Gray Hand enforcers are given a small token, usually a clasp, ring, or brooch in the shape of a human hand, fingers together and palm out.

Civic officials of Waterdeep (including Lords, magistrates, and Watch and Guard officers) know the token by sight.

You gain a +5 bonus on any Charisma-based skill checks made against an officer or official of Waterdeep if you show the token.

A bearer of the token may not be arrested or hindered in Waterdeep unless the arresting official is a Lord, magistrate, or civilar of the Guard or Watch.

Dragonward Strike (Su): By calling upon the power of Ahghairon's dragonward, the Gray Hand enforcer can launch a mighty attack.

Beginning at 2nd level, you can make a single melee attack with a +4 bonus on the attack roll and a bonus on the damage roll equal to your Gray Hand enforcer level.

You must declare the strike before making the attack.

Instead of using the dragonward strike to make a melee attack, you can empower a single spell as if you had applied the Empower Spell feat.

You do not have to prepare the spell as an empowered spell ahead of time, and this does not increase the level of the spell.

You can use a dragonward strike once per day, or two times per day beginning at 4th level.

In either case, the dragonward strike is only usable within 10 miles of Waterdeep, since it relies on proximity to Ahghairon's spell.

Spell Resistance (Ex): At 4th level, you gain spell resistance equal to 5 + your character level.

For example, as a fighter 10/Gray Hand enforcer 4, you would have spell resistance 19.

Lords' Boon (Su): At 5th level, you gain the ability to heal your own wounds.

You can heal 20 hit points each day.

You can use the healing all at once, or spread it out among several uses.

PLAYING A GRAY HAND ENFORCER

You are tough as nails and every bit as dangerous as your reputation suggests.

You have earned the trust of Waterdeep's leaders at great personal risk, and you have little fear of death.

You have no time for moral niceties or negotiation; you trust the Lords to call you in only when right is on your side and complete annihilation of the enemy is the only remaining resort.

You are fiercely loyal to the City of Splendors, allowing no one to besmirch the name or reputation of your great city.

COMBAT

Gray Hand enforcers must deal out large amounts of damage quickly, regardless of the consequences to the surrounding area.

Gray Hand enforcers are also incredibly tough, able to withstand large numbers of dangerous attacks without flinching or falling.

For spellcasters, evocation and summoning spells are two quick ways to take out a foe.

Abjuration spells are also important, as they allow members of your team to fight longer.

Avoid divination spells (if it moves, kill it—nothing else matters), illusions (if your reputation doesn't scare your foe, nothing will), and enchantments (if it was susceptible to reason, you wouldn't be needed).

For melee combatants, make sure you can always get to your foe (missile weapons or the ability to run, climb, jump, or fly) and when you do, deal large amounts of damage (big, powerful weapons with large threat ranges or critical multipliers).

ADVANCEMENT

You want to acquire spells and magic items that enable you to survive the sorts of fights for which the Gray Hands are famous.

Anything else is secondary.

If you survive, you will inevitably advance.

RESOURCES

The Gray Hands are an elite organization, fully backed by Waterdeep's treasury.

Don't worry about collateral damage in service to the Lords; destruction of private property is never your concern.

If you need a weapon or suit of armor, the Watchful Order of Magists & Protectors would be happy to fabricate such for you as quickly as they can.

You must still pay for personal armaments, but simply having the ear of the city's most powerful spellcasters is helpful enough.

GRAY HAND ENFORCERS IN THE WORLD

The Gray Hands are the elite strike force in the employ of the Lords of Waterdeep.

When called upon, they battle fearlessly against any threat to the City of Splendors.

The Gray Hands organization is described in detail on page 37.

NPC REACTIONS

Gray Hand enforcers are an unknown quantity outside the City of Splendors.

In Waterdeep, the Gray Hands have acquired a fearsome reputation.

Word that the members of the Gray Hands have been spotted is enough to send most Waterdhavians fleeing, as any battle involving Gray Hand enforcers is likely to result in a lot of collateral damage and civilian casualties.

GRAY HAND ENFORCER LORE

The Gray Hands are well known in the City of Splendors, although their exact role in service to the Lords is the subject of some confusion.

Characters who succeed on a Knowledge (local Waterdeep) check can learn the following information, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: The Lords of Waterdeep are served by an elite team of adventurers, known as the Gray Hands.

DC 15: The Gray Hands are dispatched only when the City Watch or City Guard cannot handle a problem.

If you see a large frost giant heading your way, get out of the area as fast as you can.

DC 20: The leader of the Gray Hands is the ranger Jardwim. He's tough as nails and as inflexible as the Blackstaff.

He figures if the Lords need his merry little band, then things are long past the discussion stage.

Your only hope if you cross the Gray Hands is to surrender or die.

GRAY HAND ENFORCERS IN THE GAME

Any powerful adventurer resident in Waterdeep and loyal to the Lords could be a member of the Gray Hands.

The team is a glorified adventuring band with a low survival rate and a steady influx of new recruits.

This prestige class appeals to gamers who like to battle powerful foes using every resource at their disposal.

It's especially appropriate for a Waterdeep-based campaign where the City of Splendors is under continual threat.

NPC Gray Hand enforcers are always based in Waterdeep, available to defend the City of Splendors in a moment's notice.

ADAPTATION

While the Gray Hands are presented as unique to Waterdeep, there is no reason you could not create similar organizations in other wealthy cities such as Baldur's Gate, Suzail, Tantras, or Telflamm.

TABLE 3—1: THE GRAY HAND ENFORCER

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Damage reduction 1/—, Gray Hand token	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Dragonward strike 1/day	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Damage reduction 2/—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Spell resistance 5 + character level, dragonward strike 2/day	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Damage reduction 3/—, Lords' boon	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

KNIGHT OF THE BLUE MOON

"Observe the waxing and waning of the moon, and watch how the Weave ebbs and flows in response.

'Tis the Daughter of the Moonmaiden responding to the tug of her mother's bosom."

—Xale of the Starry Glen

Knights of the Blue Moon are elite soldiers in the endless battle against the Mistress of the Night.

Their tactics are strictly governed by the phase of the moon, for they are strongest when the moon is full and weakest when the moon is new.

Drawing on Selûne's tidal influence over the Weave, they attack when the moon is waxing and their offensive powers grow strong, and they defend when the moon is waning and their defensive powers move to the fore.

BECOMING A KNIGHT OF THE BLUE MOON

Cleric/sorcerers and paladin/sorcerers make good Knights of the Blue Moon, for they combine a diverse array of spontaneously cast spells with the ability to channel the divine power of their deity.

Cleric/bards and even ex-bard/paladins can also become Knights of the Blue Moon, although they are far less common.

Depending on your base spellcasting class or classes, you'll find that Wisdom or Charisma remains your most valuable ability score.

If you choose to emphasize your capabilities as a sorcerer, you might wish to emphasize your Dexterity as well, allowing you to become a ranged combatant.

Otherwise, the usual mix of Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution are likely to be as important to you as they are to all melee combatants.

Hit Die: d8.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any good.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Concentration 8 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 4 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 4 ranks.

Feats: Craft Magic Arms and Armor, Lunar Magic*, and either Weapon Focus (heavy mace) or Exotic Weapon Proficiency (shuriken).

Spells: Ability to cast arcane spells spontaneously.

Patron Deity: Selûne or Mystra.

Special: Ability to turn undead, membership in the Order of the Blue Moon (see page 44).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Handle Animal, Heal, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (religion), Ride, Profession, Spellcraft, and Survival.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the Knight of the Blue Moon prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Knights of the Blue Moon gain no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Selûne's favored weapon is the heavy mace, which Knights of the Blue Moon refer to as the moon's hand.

Mystra's favored weapon is the shuriken, which Knights of the Blue Moon refer to as whirlstars.

Spellcasting: A Knight of the Blue Moon continues training in magic.

When you gain a level in this class, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class you belonged to before adding the prestige class.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a Knight of the Blue Moon, you must decide to which class you add the new level for purposes of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Moon Blessing (Su): During days and nights of the waning or new moon, you can channel the influence of Selûne over the Weave to reduce the impact of magic directed at you. At the cost of a single attempt to turn undead, you receive a sacred bonus equal to +1 per class level on a single saving throw against a spell or spell-like ability.

Using this ability is an immediate action (see the sidebar on page 80).

During days and nights of the waxing or full moon, you can channel the influence of Selûne over the Weave to increase the impact of magic cast by you.

At the cost of a single attempt to turn undead, you increase the saving throw DC of a single use of a spell or spell-like ability by an amount equal to your class level.

Using this ability is a swift action (see the sidebar on page 80).

Special Mount: At 1st level, you can call a special mount. This ability is identical to the paladin ability of the same name, except the mount will always match your alignment. Levels of paladin and Knight of the Blue Moon stack for purposes of determining the special mount's abilities. In addition, if you do not have a familiar, levels of sorcerer or wizard also stack for purposes of determining the special mount's abilities.

Faerie Fire (Sp): At 2nd level, you can use faerie fire, as the spell, three times per day.

Lunar Sight (Ex): Knights of the Blue Moon of 2nd level and above have low-light vision.

If you already have low-light vision, you instead gain improved low-light vision, which means that you see four times as far as a human in conditions of poor illumination.

Divine Moonlight (Su): At 3rd level, any spell with the light descriptor is heightened by one level, as if you had the Heighten Spell feat.

The spell does not require a spell slot of higher level or require you to prepare such spells in advance.

Selûne's Foresight (Su): At 3rd level, you can tap into the prophetic powers associated with the moon, giving you a +2 insight bonus on initiative rolls.

Weavesight (Sp): At 4th level, you can use arcane sight, as the spell, three times per day.

Moon Kiss (Su): At 5th level, you can channel the silver light of Selûne into weapons or armor you use.

When the moon is waxing or full, at the cost of a single attempt to turn undead, a magic weapon you wield receives the property of brilliant energy for 1 round.

This use of the ability is a swift action (see the sidebar on page 80).

When the moon is waning or new, at the cost of a single attempt to turn undead, armor you wear receives the property of spell resistance (SR 10 + character level) for 1 round.

Using this ability is an immediate action (see the sidebar on page 80).

PLAYING A KNIGHT OF THE BLUE MOON

Although the Lady of Loss can never be defeated, you are a dedicated foe of the forces of darkness, bitterness, and loss, battling the followers of Shar wherever they appear.

Where others see weakness in the endless waning and waxing of the Moonmaiden, you see a way to control the ebb and flow of combat.

Where others are tempted by the dark power of the Shadow Weave, you see hidden power in the tidal fluctuations of the Weave.

You excel at tactics, always seeking to maximize your advantage over your foes.

You see the glass as it is, both half empty and half full, untroubled by temporary setbacks or inclined to rash behavior thanks to unexpected victory.

You live your life in accordance with the heavens, advancing when the signs are favorable and retreating when dire portents beckon.

COMBAT

You live for the chance to battle the followers of Shar, but are careful to pick your time and your battlefield.

You prefer to find a small redoubt and then sally forth for brief periods before retreating and concentrating on defense.

ADVANCEMENT

Qualifying for the Knight of the Blue Moon class requires a significant number of feats and skill points.

Moreover, many multiclass combinations that work well with the class are relatively weak, specializing in neither combat nor spellcasting.

Regardless of how you met the entry requirements, consider the Extra Turning feat and then focus on either spellcasting or combat.

You should choose your spells to give you a good variety of offensive and defensive options at every level.

If you want to multiclass while advancing as a Knight of the Blue Moon, pick one of your base classes and concentrate on it.

Paladins, sorcerers, and wizards are particularly appropriate second classes if you intend to employ your special mount ability to great effect.

RESOURCES

The Order of the Blue Moon is relatively new (less than two decades old) and is concentrated in lands where the church of Shar is powerful.

Although it has little in the way of finances, the churches of Selûne and Mystra do all they can to support the Order in such lands.

In general, a Knight of the Blue Moon can obtain healing (or other spellcasting services) from a cleric of Selûne or Mystra at 25% of the normal cost, and his or her companions can obtain healing at 75% the normal cost.

KNIGHTS OF THE BLUE MOON IN THE WORLD

The Order of the Blue Moon is a religious organization dedicated to Selûne and Mystra.

Based north of Waterdeep, they are a growing presence in the City of Splendors despite tensions with the Mystran clergy in the House of Wonder (§21).

The Order of the Blue Moon is described in detail on page 44.

NPC REACTIONS

The Order of the Blue Moon is a relatively new knightly order in a world that has large numbers of such religious organizations.

Outside the city of Waterdeep, the Order's existence is largely unknown, and thus most NPCs treat it like any other crusading order—with wary regard.

Those that do learn something of the Order in their roles as part of the church hierarchy of Selûne or Mystra are often put off by its perceived heresy of venerating both Selûne and Mystra.

Displays of lunar magic engender great interest among students of the Art, for lunar magic is relatively unknown among those who study the many ways to manipulate the Weave.

KNIGHTS OF THE BLUE MOON LORE

The Order of the Blue Moon is known in the City of Splendors, but most folks think it a knightly order that serves a specific church, like the Order of the Aster.

Characters who succeed on a Knowledge (local Waterdeep) or Knowledge (religion) check can learn the following information, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: The Moonmaiden's temple is defended by the Knights of the Blue Moon, a newly founded religious order.

DC 15: While the Order of the Blue Moon is backed by both the Moonmaiden and the Lady of Mysteries, it has much stronger support from the church of Selûne than it does from the church of Mystra.

DC 20: The Order of the Blue Moon has an isolated chapterhouse on one of the Red Rocks.

KNIGHTS OF THE BLUE MOON IN THE GAME

Given their limited number, the Knights of the Blue Moon rarely act in concert.

They often have to hire adventurers, particularly those with ties to the church of Selûne or the church of Mystra, to complete various missions on behalf of the Order.

Sometimes, a single Knight of the Blue Moon joins with a small company of adventurers to accomplish a goal of the order.

The Knights can even be used as a new weapon against the church of Shar.

The Knight of the Blue Moon prestige class appeals to a player who likes a variety of capabilities and the challenge of making tactical decisions.

The prestige class is appropriate for those who like their characters to fight on the side of right against an endless tide of darkness.

Your adventures don't all need to be consumed with the battle against the Church of Shar.

Just make sure that a variety of tactics will be required over the course of your adventures.

Some should demand aggressive action and others a stout defense.

ADAPTATION

While the Knights of the Blue Moon are dedicated to Selûne and Mystra, deities worshiped chiefly by humans, you can easily change the patrons of the order to Corellon Larethian and Sehanine Moonbow.

Simply change the last feat requirement to Weapon Focus (longsword) or Weapon Focus (quarterstaff).

TABLE 3-2: THE KNIGHT OF THE BLUE MOON

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Moon blessing, special mount	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Faerie fire 3/day, lunar sight	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Divine moonlight, Selune's foresight	+1 level of existing class
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Weavesight 3/day	+1 level of existing class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Moon kiss	+1 level of existing class

MOONSTAR AGENT

"Despite the self-aggrandizing puffery of those windbags at Twilight Hall, the Blackstaff stands, as ever, unbowed.

But then again, that's what makes him so much fun to tease."

—Kyriani Agrivar

Moonstar agents, also known as Teukiir, are members of the Tel Teukiira, a group founded in the Year of the Tankard (1370 DR) by Khelben "Blackstaff" Arunsun when he broke from the Harpers.

Similar in many ways to Those Who Harp, Moonstar agents combine a keen understanding of history with a knack for spying on chosen targets and acquiring powerful artifacts. The group receives the blessings of three deities long favored by the Blackstaff: Mystra, Oghma, and Sehanine Moonbow.

In addition, Khelben and his consort, Laeral Silverhand Arunsun, perform arcane rituals reminiscent of elven high magic on members of the group, giving them special magical abilities.

BECOMING A MOONSTAR AGENT

Bards, bard/rangers, bard/rogues, rogue/sorcerers, and rogue/wizards all make good Moonstar agents, for they combine a wide array of skills with arcane spellcasting ability.

Single-classed sorcerers and wizards, ranger/sorcerers, ranger/wizards, and other bard multiclass options can also become Moonstar agents, although they are less common. Depending on your base arcane spellcasting class, you will find that Intelligence or Charisma remains your most valuable ability score.

You will also find that the art of gathering information, dodging surprise attacks, and manipulating others requires equal parts Dexterity and Charisma.

Hit Die: d6.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Skills: Decipher Script 4 ranks, Gather Information 4 ranks, Knowledge (history) 8 ranks.

Feats: Investigator, Stealthy.

Spells: Ability to cast disguise self and identify.

Special: Bardic knowledge, lore (loremaster class feature or any similar ability), Harper knowledge, or ability to cast legend lore.

Special: Member of the Tel Teukiira (see page 75).

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier): Bluff, Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Disguise, Forgery, Gather Information, Hide, Knowledge (any), Listen, Move Silently, Perform, Profession, Search, Sense Motive, Speak Language, Spellcraft, Spot, Survival, and Use Magic Device.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the Moonstar agent prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Moonstar agents gain no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

Spellcasting: When a new Moonstar agent level is gained, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class you belonged to before adding the prestige class.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained, except for an increased effective level of spellcasting.

This essentially means that you add the level of Moonstar agent to the level of some other spellcasting class you have, then determine spells per day, caster level, and spells known accordingly.

Lore (Ex): Like a bard, a Moonstar agent has a knack for picking up odd bits of knowledge.

This ability works exactly like the bardic knowledge ability of the bard class.

If you have bard levels (or levels in another class with the same ability, such as loremaster or Harper agent), your Moonstar agent levels and bard levels (or levels in the other appropriate class) stack for the purpose of using Moonstar agent knowledge.

Oghma's Insight: As masters of obscure lore, Moonstar agents develop a keen interest in many fields.

You gain Skill Focus in any one Knowledge skill as a bonus feat.

Laeral's Intuition (Sp): At 2nd level, you can use detect thoughts, as the spell, three times per day.

Mystra's Boon (Su): At 3rd level, you gain a +2 sacred bonus on all saving throws against spells.

Khelben's Call (Sp): At 4th level, you can use sending, as the spell, as a standard action once per day.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): When you reach 5th level, you retain your Dexterity bonus to AC (if any) regardless of being caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

(You still lose any Dexterity bonus to AC if immobilized).

If you gain uncanny dodge from a second class, you automatically gain improved uncanny dodge (see Player's Handbook page 50).

EX-MOONSTAR AGENTS

Any Moonstar agent who violates the code of the Tel Teukiira, endangers other Telkiir through negligence or deliberate action, or intentionally turns away from the Tel Teukiira quickly gains a reputation in the organization. Such an individual can no longer progress in the Moonstar agent prestige class.

Furthermore, he can no longer use the supernatural or spell-like abilities of the class.

A petition to Khelben Arunsun, fulfillment of a suitable quest set by the Blackstaff, and an atonement spell from a cleric of a deity chosen by Khelben brings the former Moonstar agent back into good standing. Thereafter, she regains the use of all class abilities and can once again gain levels in the prestige class.

MOONSTARS AND HARPER AGENTS

Characters with levels in the Harper agent prestige class can take levels in the Moonstar agent prestige class without losing any of their Harper agent abilities, and vice versa.

PLAYING A MOONSTAR AGENT

Faerûn is endlessly awash in the sweep of history, and once again the tides of change are rushing forward.

You see the broad strokes of historical experience, placing the complications of today in the context of yesteryear. While time might march inexorably forward, the actions of a few can change the course of history, for weal or woe.

Seek understanding of the context of what you do and the inexorable chain of events your actions precipitate.

Do not worry overmuch regarding the immediate concerns of today, or tomorrow might not dawn.

COMBAT

Your greatest weapons are knowledge of the past and understanding of the present; your skill is in knowing how to use that understanding to your advantage.

Master the Art, but use it wisely, for the ostentatious use of magic will only draw attention to your activities.

Spells of divination and illusion serve to both reveal the actions of your foes and shield your own activities in turn.

Do not attack directly if another hand can be directed to serve the purpose.

Watch from the shadows, emerging only to whisper in the right ear or subtly manipulate a situation.

ADVANCEMENT

You want to acquire spells and magic items that help you gather information and shield your activities from the prying eyes of others.

Spells such as arcane eye, clairaudience/clairvoyance, detect thoughts, and scrying enable you to spy on your foes from afar.

Spells such as comprehend languages, disguise self, invisibility, pass without trace, silence, and tongues enable surreptitious information gathering.

Spells such as analyze dweomer, identify, and legend lore allow you to investigate artifacts, and spells such as message, sending, and whispering wind allow you to communicate with your fellows over long distances.

Skills such as Hide, Gather Information, and Move Silently facilitate your ability to gather information, while Knowledge (arcana) and Knowledge (history) allow you to understand the lost magical lore of ancient civilizations. Bluff, Diplomacy, and Sense Motive allow you to manipulate others for the long-term ends of the Tel Teukiira.

RESOURCES

Although the Tel Teukiira is a young group, it can call upon all the resources of the Blackstaff, not to mention their powerful colleagues.

In practice, this means Moonstar agents have access to the vast magical resources of Blackstaff Tower (C6), albeit only in cases of demonstrable need, and indirect access to the resources of Those Who Harp (primarily through Harpers who are inclined favorably to the Tel Teukiira) and the Lords of Waterdeep (of which Khelben and Kyriani Agrivar are members).

Moonstar agents can employ either Blackstaff Tower or (assuming they have a Teukiir badge) the Silver Safehold as a refuge when needed.

MOONSTAR AGENTS IN THE WORLD

The Tel Teukiira, which translates to “Moonstars” in the common tongue, is a shadowy group of ex-Harpers who broke from Those Who Harp to pursue the mysterious objectives of the Blackstaff.

The Tel Teukiira is described in detail on page 75.

NPC REACTIONS

The Tel Teukiira is a secretive group that few have even heard of.

If a hero is revealed to be a member of the Tel Teukiira, most NPCs would mistake them for Harpers in the service of the ever-meddling Blackstaff.

Most Harpers of the North and the Dalelands remain favorably inclined toward Khelben and any agents who serve in his employ.

In contrast, Harpers closely affiliated with Twilight Hall in Berdusk are likely to view members of the Tel Teukiira as traitors (if they are ex-Harpers) or untrustworthy (if they are revealed to serve the traitorous Blackstaff).

MOONSTAR AGENTS LORE

The Tel Teukiira are well hidden in the City of Splendors because the group works hard to hide its existence, and the bulk of the group’s activities and agents are located in cities across Faerûn.

Characters who succeed on a Gather Information check can learn the following information, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 15: Ever since he resigned from the Lords, the Blackstaff has been assembling a private army of meddlers even worse than Those Who Harp.

DC 25: The Tel Teukiira are behind the fall-off in Zhentarim activity in western Faerûn.

The Blackstaff and his agents made some deal with the tyrant of the Moonsea to divide control of the Realms.

Characters who learn the name “Tel Teukiira” and succeed on a Knowledge (history) check can learn the following information.

DC 25: Amagal’s Tome, an ancient Elven text of early Cormanthor, notes that the Tel Teukiira “will come hidden and in many guises and faces.

They dwell in shadow and speak in omens, yet they shall bring about waking dreams and save us from the Three Threats Who Wait in Darkness, the Prefects, and ourselves”.

Even members of the Tel Teukiira are uncertain as to what this means, although most suspect that Khelben knows and does not say.

MOONSTAR AGENTS IN THE GAME

Most high-ranking Teukiir are not (yet) members of the Moonstar agent prestige class, although new recruits usually take at least one level of the class.

NPC Moonstar agents can be found in small numbers in cities and kingdoms across Faerûn, although the largest concentration of such characters is found in Waterdeep and the North.

The Tel Teukiira works best as a mysterious organization operating behind the scenes.

The Moonstars might be engaged in a silent war in the shadows with an evil group, leaving the PCs to untangle what is going on when they chance upon such activity.

The Tel Teukiira can also act as patrons (or manipulators) of the characters, overtly or indirectly guiding them into new adventures that ultimately serve the Blackstaff's aims. The Tel Teukiira can also be used as foes (at least initially) if the PCs are dispatched by the Harpers of Twilight Hall to uncover the plots of the Blackstaff.

ADAPTATION

While the Tel Teukiira is presented as an offshoot of the Harpers founded and run by the Blackstaff, they can easily be adapted to serve the role of a private army of infiltrators and spies.

By dint of their personal power, many mages across Faerûn believe themselves entitled to manipulate the affairs of their neighbors.

An archmage who succeeds in establishing such a group might assemble a coterie of followers with powers similar to that of the Moonstars.

TABLE 3-3: THE MOONSTAR AGENT

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Lore, Oghma's insight	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Laeral's intuition	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Mystra's boon	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Kbelben's call	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Uncanny dodge	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

SUN SOUL MONK

"Look within for the dawning light of the Morninglord, the twinkling diamonds of the Moonmaiden's raiment, and the shimmering corona of Lady Firehair's beauty. Let it shine forth from your soul, and the Yellow God shall be reborn through you."

—Kadila adh Vitendi

Monks of the Sun Soul Order believe that they each harbor a small fragment of the sun's divine essence, long absent from the Realms.

Brothers and sisters of the Order of the Sun Soul are trained to tap into the "spiritual light" within—a tradition that developed during Amaunator's slow decline—and manifest it externally.

The monks are loosely affiliated with the faiths of Lathander, Selûne, and Sune, and they share many common concerns with those churches.

Staunch opponents of darkness, evil, and chaos, the Sun Soul monks serve as crusaders against churches of evil deities, defenders of the common folk, and protectors of sites sacred to deities of light and good.

BECOMING A SUN SOUL MONK

Monks and monk/paladins make the best Sun Soul monks. They are uniquely suited to the asceticism and discipline of the order.

Cleric/monks are not uncommon among the followers of the Morninglord, but are exceedingly rare among the followers of Selûne and Sune because one-step alignment restrictions require such a character to be either an ex-monk or an ex-cleric.

Clerics, fighters, paladins, rogues, and multiclass combinations thereof occasionally join the order, but their total collective numbers are small.

As with any combat-oriented character, you will find that a high Strength, Constitution, and Dexterity will serve you well.

You will also want a high Wisdom to maximize the use of your "inner fire" combat abilities.

Hit Die: d8.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Lawful good or lawful neutral.

Base Save Bonuses: Will +4.

Skills: Concentration 8 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 4 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 4 ranks.

Languages: Ignan, Loross.

Feats: Athletic, Improved Unarmed Strike, Stunning Fist.

Patron Deity: Lathander, Selûne, or Sune.

Special: Member of the Order of the Sun Soul (see page 41).

CLASS SKILLS

(+ 4 Int modifier per level): Balance, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Knowledge (arcana, history, and religion), Listen, Move Silently, Perform, Profession, Sense Motive, Spot, Swim, and Tumble.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the Sun Soul monk prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sun Soul monks are proficient with all simple weapons, but gain no new proficiency with any armor.

You can treat a light mace as a special monk weapon for the purpose of your flurry of blows ability.

Monk Abilities: Sun Soul monk levels stack with monk levels for purposes of determining flurry of blows, unarmed damage, AC bonus, and unarmored speed bonus (see Table 3-10, page 40 of the Player's Handbook).

Sun Soul (Sp): You gain the ability to radiate magical light, equivalent in effect to a daylight spell with a duration of 1 minute per caster level, once per day per Sun Soul monk level.

You and your clothing are the "object" from which the light emanates.

Your caster level is equal to your combined monk, paladin, and Sun Soul monk levels.

Low-Light Vision (Ex): At 2nd level, you gain low-light vision if you don't already have it.

Sun Soulray (Sp): At 2nd level, you gain the ability to radiate and project a blast of light from an open palm, equivalent in effect to a searing light spell.

Treat the caster level as equivalent to your combined monk, paladin, and Sun Soul monk levels.

At 4th level, you can use this ability two times per day; at 6th level, three times per day; and at 8th level, four times per day.

Flaming Fists (Su): At 3rd level and beyond, you can channel your inner light into your unarmed attacks as a swift action (see page 80), giving them the flaming weapon special ability for a number of rounds equal to your Wisdom bonus (minimum 1).

See the Dungeon Master's Guide, page 224.

At 6th level, you can use this ability two times per day, and you bestow the flaming burst weapon special ability on your unarmed attacks.

At 9th level, you can use this ability three times per day. You can choose to bestow either the flaming burst or brilliant energy weapon special ability on your unarmed attacks.

Abundant Step (Su): At 5th level or higher, you can slip magically between spaces, as if using the spell dimension door, once per day.

Your caster level for this effect is one-half your combined monk and Sun Soul monk levels (rounded down).

Greater Sun Soul (Sp): At 7th level, you gain the ability to wreath yourself in flames, equivalent in effect to a fire shield spell (warm version), once per day.

Treat your caster level as equivalent to your combined monk, paladin, and Sun Soul monk levels.

Darkvision (Ex): At 8th level, you gain darkvision out to 60 feet if you don't already have it.

Sun Soulbeam (Sp): At 10th level, you gain the ability to emit dazzling beams of light, equivalent in effect to a sunbeam spell, once per day.

Treat your caster level as equivalent to your combined monk, paladin, and Sun Soul monk levels.

Tongue of the Sun and Moon (Ex): At 10th level, you can speak with any living creature.

EX-SUN SOUL MONKS

A Sun Soul monk who becomes nonlawful cannot gain new levels as a Sun Soul monk, but retains all Sun Soul monk abilities.

Like a member of any other class, a Sun Soul monk can be a multiclass character, but multiclass Sun Soul monks face a special restriction.

A Sun Soul monk can gain levels in one other class (other than monk) and still progress as a monk or as a Sun Soul monk, as long as long as his combined monk and Sun Soul monk levels exceed all other class levels.

PLAYING A SUN SOUL MONK

You are a dedicated servant of the common man, eschewing ostentatious consumptions of wealth, food, or libation.

You almost never despair, no matter how dark things seem, for you have discovered your spiritual light within.

You see yourself as a custodian of the sun's divinity and the inheritor of an ancient tradition, awaiting the day the sun returns to its proper glory and banishes the spiritual shadow from the world.

COMBAT

You relish unarmed combat, particularly against foes vulnerable to fire, for in such battles you can truly unleash your inner fire.

Thanks to your training, you can also use spell-like abilities that burn your enemies, a potent combination unexpected by most foes.

ADVANCEMENT

Qualifying for the Sun Soul monk class requires a significant commitment of skill points.

As you gain levels, you probably want to catch up in some of the more physical skills, including Balance, Climb, Jump, and Tumble.

Moreover, you might find you have missed out on some combat feats as well.

The order is known for its employment of the Sun School tactical feat; it is suggested that you acquire it as soon as you qualify.

If you want to multiclass as you advance, consider taking levels in monk or paladin.

Many of your abilities stack with levels in these classes, so doing so maximizes your potential.

RESOURCES

Although scattered and somewhat disorganized, the Order of the Sun Soul is known to most regions of Faerûn.

As a result, it should be available to you no matter where you go.

In general, a Sun Soul monk can obtain healing from a cleric of Lathander at 25% of the normal cost, and from a cleric of Selûne or Sune at 50% of the normal cost.

Her companions can obtain healing at 75% of the normal cost.

A Sun Soul monk can obtain free room and board for herself (for any length of stay) and her companions (for one night) at any of the order's monasteries across Faerûn.

SUN SOUL MONKS IN THE WORLD

The Order of the Sun Soul is a monastic order spread across Faerûn.

A monk with controversial beliefs about Amaunator, Lathander, Selûne, and Sune leads the chapter in Waterdeep.

The Order of the Sun Soul is described in detail on page 41.

NPC REACTIONS

The monks who join the Order of the Sun Soul are only one of many monastic and knightly orders found across Faerûn.

Few commoners know much about the differences between these organizations, so Sun Soul monks are treated much as any other nonevil monks; most people admire their single-mindedness of purpose and dedication, but think that they are somewhat aloof.

Members of the church of Lathander welcome Sun Soul monks as allies because the two organizations have fought side by side in many battles against the undead and other forces of evil.

Members of the churches of Selûne and Sune also view the Sun Soul monks as allies, but see the monks' ways as inscrutable and overly rigid.

In Waterdeep, all three churches view the Order of the Sun Soul with suspicion because the local leader of the order has been preaching heresy, although the gods have yet to strike him down for doing so.

SUN SOUL MONK LORE

The Order of the Sun Soul is closely affiliated with the church of Lathander and loosely affiliated with the churches of Selûne and Sune.

Characters who succeed on a Knowledge (religion) check can learn the following information, including the information from lower DCs: DC 10: The Order of the Sun Soul is a widely scattered sect encompassing worshipers of the Morninglord, the Moonmaiden, and Lady Firehair.

DC 15: Monks of the Sun Soul Order are dedicated servants of the common folk, a tradition stretching back many generations.

DC 20: Monks of the Sun Soul Order can visibly manifest their spirits in the form of light or fire.

According to their teachings, everyone harbors a tiny piece of the golden, life-giving sun in his or her soul.

DC 30: The Order of the Sun Soul dates back to the time of Netheril.

The order, once known as the Brotherhood of the Sun, evolved into its current form after the death of Amaunator. The Order of the Sun Soul is not particularly secretive, but a great deal of confusion surrounds its teachings because of its division into three sects, each venerating a different deity.

Even members of the order are often unaware that the order once served the church of Amaunator.

SUN SOUL MONKS IN THE GAME

The Order of the Sun Soul is well suited for PC monks and monk/paladins.

Even if none of the PCs belong to the brotherhood, the order is always seeking out lost Netherese religious lore and individual sects regularly hire adventurers to recover lost texts believed to date back to the order's earliest days. The Sun Soul monk appeals to players who like to roleplay virtuous, athletic characters with a dash of magic, flash, and mystery.

Make sure you provide ample opportunity for the Sun Soul monk to shine in unarmed combat, perhaps by pitting her against a monk of a rival order.

NPC Sun Soul monks typically inhabit monasteries hidden in far-flung wilderness areas but spend much of their time wandering the Realms while serving the common folk. Some members of the order are assigned to prominent temples of Lathander, Selûne, or Sune, and thus they make their home within the major cities of Faerûn.

ADAPTATION

While the Sun Soul monk is presented as loosely affiliated with three churches concerned with the heavens, you could easily adapt the class to other gods.

For example, if the order were affiliated with Auril, you could change the allowed alignments to LN and LE, replace the flaming and flaming burst abilities with frost and icy burst, change fire shield to the chill version, and replace the searing ray ability with shivering touch.

TABLE 3—4: THE SUN SOUL MONK

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Sun soul , monk abilities
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Low-light vision, sun soulray 1/day
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Flaming fists 1/day
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Sun soulray 2/day
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Abundant step
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Flaming fists 2/day, sun soulray 3/day
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Greater sun soul
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Darkvision, sun soulray 4/day
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Flaming fists 3/day
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Sun Soulbeam , tongue of the sun and moon

CITYSCAPE (3.5)

CRIMSON SCOURGE

"Don't worry.

I'll see that the package is delivered unharmed.

Well...mostly unharmed."

—Geddrik the Whip

In the fantasy world as well as the real world, the reach of the law sometimes isn't enough.

When a criminal is on the loose, or a prisoner has escaped, professional bounty hunters offer their services to bring in the fugitive.

Additionally, in some urban fantasy settings, the slave trade is just an accepted fact of life.

And just as a rancher sends herders after stray cattle, so too must a slaver hire specialists to track down and recover lost or escaped slaves.

Whether they are independent crime-fighters assisting the law or grim mercenaries who hunt living property, such trained specialists are called crimson scourges.

These fearsome trackers are known not only for their efficiency, but for their zealous commitment to the task at hand.

Crimson scourges are dedicated—at least to the handsome sums they earn.

BECOMING A CRIMSON SCOURGE

The crimson scourge is a tough and efficient tracker who specializes in dealing painful but ultimately nonlethal wounds.

Scourges hail almost exclusively from the ranks of barbarians, fighters, and rangers, though the occasional dedicated warrior might join their ranks as well.

Druids can qualify almost as quickly, but most find a scourge's work distasteful or unfulfilling.

All other classes either cannot meet the alignment and/or skill requirements, or must reach higher levels before qualifying to become a crimson scourge.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any nongood.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Base Fort Save: +3.
Skills: Gather Information 4 ranks, Handle Animal 8 ranks, Heal 1 rank, Intimidate 3 ranks.
Feats: Urban Tracking (see page 64).

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Bluff, Climb, Craft (trapmaking), Diplomacy, Disable Device, Disguise, Escape Artist, Gather Information, Handle Animal, Hide, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (local), Listen, Move Silently, Ride, Search, Sense Motive, Spot, Survival, Swim, Use Rope.

CLASS FEATURES

A crimson scourge gains abilities that help him track down and subdue sentient beings.

He develops these abilities as he gains levels in his class, and in the process grows increasingly difficult to dissuade from his objectives.

While a crimson scourge is capable of using deceit to recover his quarry—and is trained in disguising his appearance should the need arise—he prefers instead to trade on his fearsome reputation, “encouraging” locals to cooperate with him.

By the time a scourge masters his class, he has become a coldly efficient tracker of human prey.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, light and medium armor, and shields (but not tower shields).

In addition, you can select one of the following as a free weapon proficiency: bolas, net, or whip.

Kid Gloves (Ex): Crimson scourges excel at manipulating the wounds they inflict, causing more or less harm as the situation demands.

If you choose, you can deal nonlethal damage with weapons that normally deal lethal damage, or lethal damage with weapons that normally deal nonlethal damage—both without taking the usual –4 penalty on the attack roll.

Special Dispensation: Crimson scourges do not operate in secrecy unless they have to, so their patrons provide them the freedom to perform their duties.

While operating in any area where bounty hunting is acceptable, a slavers guild has any presence, or you enjoy the patronage of an influential figure, you gain the benefit of the Special Dispensation feat (see page 63), even if you do not meet the prerequisites.

Swift Tracker (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, you can make a Gather Information check when using Urban Tracking every half-hour without taking the usual –5 penalty.

Painful Strike (Ex): At 3rd level, you gain the ability to deal an extra 1d6 points of nonlethal damage when making a melee attack that deals nonlethal damage against an unarmed opponent.

This ability does not function if the opponent has a weapon of any sort in either hand, or if your attack deals lethal damage.

Unarmed foes with the Improved Unarmed Strike feat are still considered unarmed.

This ability never applies to ranged attacks, regardless of the target's proximity to you.

If you score a critical hit with the melee attack, the extra damage from this ability is not multiplied.

This extra damage increases to 2d6 points at 6th level, and to 3d6 at 9th level.

Creatures not subject to nonlethal damage, as well as constructs, oozes, plants, and incorporeal creatures, are not affected by this ability.

Immovable Heart (Ex): Your grim profession hardens your emotions.

Beginning at 4th level, you gain a +2 competence bonus to resist enchantment spells and fear effects.

Improved Disarm: At 5th level, you gain Improved Disarm as a bonus feat, even if you do not meet the prerequisites.

Threaten (Ex): Crimson scourges of at least 7th level are masters at shaking the confidence of their foes.

This ability grants three advantages when you use the Intimidate skill to demoralize an opponent (PH 76).

First, you can attempt to demoralize an opponent as a move action, rather than a standard action.

Second, a successful attempt causes the target to be shaken for a number of rounds equal to your unmodified Strength modifier (minimum 1 round).

Finally, you gain a +2 bonus on any Intimidate check to demoralize an opponent.

Deadened Hide (Ex): Upon reaching 8th level, you become immune to nonlethal damage and to spells or effects that inflict or manipulate pain (DM's discretion).

Smell of Blood (Ex): At the apex of your advancement, you acquire an almost animalistic awareness of the world around you.

You gain the scent ability (MM 314) and a +3 insight bonus on initiative checks.

PLAYING A CRIMSON SCOURGE

You are an unusual creature: someone capable of being stealthy and subtle, but who rarely needs to be.

People like you aren't called “crimson scourges” for nothing.

Your very existence serves as a deterrent against escape.

If you are neutral-aligned, you likely don't deserve much of what's said about you, but it's against your financial interests to set the record straight.

If you're evil, it's probably all true.

Your relationship with your employer is the most important thing for you.

Whether or not your loyalty is genuine, without the safety of your patron, your numerous enemies would not hesitate to pounce.

You prefer to work alone, but sometimes scourges are hired in pairs—nominally for their safety, but mainly to keep tabs on a suspect hunter.

COMBAT

Crimson scourges never shy away from combat, and more often than not they will instigate a fight just to prove a point.

Most of your skills revolve around tracking and disarming (and often humiliating) a single individual.

You're not terribly effective in fights involving multiple foes, so bravado is a large part of your combat ability: If you can intimidate your opponent into backing down, you've won without striking a single blow.

If melee is inevitable, focus on making the most of your abilities.

Strike at unarmed assailants first, to try to take them out of combat quickly, and then move to disarming those who carry weapons so you can do the same to them.

ADVANCEMENT

Unless you are in business for yourself, your advancement potential relies heavily upon a slavers guild or patron organization.

The more successful you are at what you do, the more rapidly you'll advance.

Sometimes an employer or guild sends scourges out in pairs—one junior tracker and one veteran.

Although true friendship between them rarely blooms, the elder usually ends up taking on the role of mentor.

You were already a competent tracker before becoming a true scourge, but you should continue to make hunting skills a priority when the time for skill point allotment arrives.

Before a single blow is landed, your strongest advantages in combat are your reputation and your perceived ability to back up that reputation.

Make sure that Intimidate is as high a priority as Gather Information.

Focus your feat selection on developing tricks of the trade, such as Improved Disarm, Improved Grapple, Improved Initiative, Improved Overrun, Improved Trip, and Improved Sunder.

RESOURCES

Depending on its size and public persona, a slavers guild usually funds its scourges' retrieval efforts...provided it has concrete information on where a target has gone, and it has a good idea of what the operation will cost, if you're a member of the guild and possess the Favored feat, then you're entitled to such aid should you ask for it.

If you are in the employ of a wealthy patron, you can receive some compensation for your expenses, especially if you have performed satisfactory work for that employer before.

Your work often takes you into areas with no guild presence or where slavers are reviled (if you are a hunter of slaves), or into the underworld (if you pursue criminals).

In those environments, you're on your own.

For this reason, be sure to fix the terms of employment before venturing out after a quarry.

CRIMSON SCOURGES IN THE WORLD

"They provide a necessary service, of course.

But I do wish they could be a bit more...discreet."

—Lord Beaumont Richhierre, second-tier magistrate

Crimson scourges are suitable for almost any city.

They can appear in areas with little to no slave trade, focusing entirely on escaped criminals, or be in the employ of slavers guilds but hunting in areas where escaped slaves have fled.

On occasion, a slavers guild sends a pair of scourges into a town where the trade hasn't yet blossomed.

The scourges quietly investigate factors such as the rich-poor divide, the socioeconomic dynamic, and the attitude of the ruling class toward indentured servitude, evaluating the potential for a new market.

ORGANIZATION

Crimson scourges have little organization unto themselves. Aside from the mentor-student relationship that develops between pairs, they neither want nor need additional complication in their lives.

The only structure that the scourges recognize is an informal system of rank, based upon a combination of achievement and reputation.

The more successful the scourge, and the more fearsome his reputation, the more respect he gains from his peers.

Nonevil scourges also depend on successful retrievals but value independence far more than ferocity; A scourge who can dictate his own terms earns more respect in the eyes of his peers than one known only for intimidating his quarry. Daily life for the average scourge consists of countless hours of training and waiting, interspersed with frenetic bouts of activity.

Scourges have to keep themselves sharp, but unless they're on active assignment, they have little to do but wait.

For this reason, crimson scourges often take assignments as bodyguards or enforcers, serving either the guild or independent parties.

In some cases, a scourge is retained permanently, which provides him or her a steady stream of work.

Nonevil scourges tend to refuse exclusivity arrangements. Only by committing to a job and then leaving immediately upon success can such scourges maintain their objectivity and independence.

NPC REACTIONS

By their very nature, scourges elicit fear and unfriendly suspicion from those they meet.

Other people might still be helpful to a scourge, but out of fear rather than admiration or respect.

Only slavers react to them more favorably than unfriendly, and even they are usually indifferent.

CRIMSON SCOURGE LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (local) or bardic knowledge can research crimson scourges to learn more about them.

When a character makes a successful skill check, the following lore is revealed, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: Slavers guilds and city watches sometimes use fearsome trackers to hunt down fugitive criminals and escaped slaves.

DC 15: These so-called crimson scourges are highly skilled not only in hunting their quarry but in causing pain without dealing lethal injury.

They are known for their callousness.

DC 20: Crimson scourges have a talent for dealing massive amounts of pain to unarmed opponents, and for disarming opponents who might otherwise provide a threat.

The best of them feel no pain at all.

CRIMSON SCOURGES IN THE GAME

The crimson scourge fills a specific enough niche that a DM can easily work the class into a campaign under the assumption that the PCs have simply never heard of the scourges before (especially if none of the PCs have ever been in an area with a slavers guild).

Players who enjoy search-and-recover adventures, as well as those who embrace the challenge of a morally complex character, might be drawn to the crimson scourge class.

As an NPC, a scourge makes an excellent adversary, whether encountered on the trail of a PC who is an escaped slave, or as a threat to an acquaintance or relative of a party member.

ADAPTATION

The crimson scourge is suitable for just about any urban campaign setting.

Even if your setting features no slavers guild, slaves probably exist somewhere.

And as long as there are fugitives, whether criminals on the run or missing property, there will always be crimson scourges to bring them in.

In a setting without slaves, the class might be associated with a variant organization, such as a thieves or assassins guild.

Scourges might even form the retrieval arm of a cult that endorses slavery, in which case every scourge would be a member of the cult.

TABLE 3-3: THE CRIMSON SCOURGE HIT DIE: D10

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Kid gloves, special dispensation
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Swift tracker
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Painful strike +1d6
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Immovable heart
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	Improved disarm
6th	+6	+5	+5	+2	Painful strike +2d6
7th	+7	+5	+5	+2	Threaten
8th	+8	+6	+6	+2	Deadened hide
9th	+9	+6	+6	+3	Painful strike +3d6
10th	+10	+7	+7	+3	Smell of blood

EBONMAR INFILTRATOR

*"In the world of politics, secrets are currency.
In the world of politics, I am a rich, rich man."*

—Thobias Ebonmar, scion and "guide" of House Ebonmar
Secrets are indeed the currency of the world of politics, and few have learned this better than House Ebonmar.

A politically oriented noble bloodline, Ebonmar has mastered the art of learning the most hidden facets of their rivals, while keeping their own dealings quiet and unseen. Their greatest tools in this endeavor are the infiltrators—or "guides" as they are obliquely referred to—who act as spies, saboteurs, and—when necessary—blackmailers of unsurpassed ability on behalf of the house.

BECOMING AN EBONMAR INFILTRATOR

The infiltrator is a master of stealth and deception, an interpreter, and an escape artist.

Few individuals other than bards, rogues, and perhaps ambitious experts can master the wide variety of skills necessary to become an infiltrator.

Monks could manage it, if they're willing to spend a great many skill points on cross-class skills.

All others must either multiclass or wait until much higher levels to become an infiltrator.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Skills: Decipher Script 4 ranks, Hide 8 ranks.

Move Silently 8 ranks.

Search 4 ranks, Sense Motive 4 ranks.

Feats: Any two of the following: Alertness, Deceitful, Investigator, Negotiator, and Stealthy.

Special: Must be a member of House Ebonmar.

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Bluff, Climb, Craft, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Disable Device, Disguise, Escape Artist, Forgery, Gather Information, Hide, Jump, Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Sense Motive, Sleight of Hand, Spot, Tumble.

Use Rope.

CLASS FEATURES

An infiltrator gains abilities focused on both stealth and awareness, augmenting his job as a spy or saboteur.

He slowly builds on this focus until he obtains an almost superhuman ability to observe and interpret the world around him.

Additionally, he trains in the use of specific spells, also designed to aid in his primary goal of gathering secrets. While an infiltrator is certainly capable of using disguise and deceit to obtain his goals, his primary techniques are stealth-based; one has no need to lie when one cannot be seen.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You gain no proficiency with any weapons or armor.

If you are proficient with light armor, you can cast infiltrator spells while wearing light armor without incurring the normal chance for arcane spell failure.

However, like any other arcane spellcaster, an infiltrator wearing medium or heavy armor or using a shield incurs the normal chance of arcane spell failure if the spell in question has a somatic component.

A multiclass infiltrator still incurs the normal chance for arcane spell failure when casting arcane spells received from other classes.

Spells: Starting at 2nd level, you gain the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells.

To cast an infiltrator spell, you must have an Intelligence score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so if you have an Intelligence of 10 or lower, you cannot cast these spells.

Bonus spells are based on Intelligence, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + your Intelligence modifier.

When you get 0 spells per day of a given level (for instance 1st-level spells for 1st level), you gain only the bonus spells to which you would be entitled based on your Intelligence score for that spell level.

Your spell list appears below.

You prepare and cast spells just as a wizard does.

Piercing Insight (Ex): Through strenuous training, you learn to more effectively observe the world surrounding you.

At 1st level, you gain a +1 bonus on Search, Sense Motive, and Spot checks.

These bonuses increase by +1 for every three levels you advance past 1st level in the prestige class (+1 at 1st level, +2 at 4th level, +3 at 7th level, and +4 at 10th level).

Speed Reader (Ex): You have learned to interpret text at a rapid rate.

You can read a single page of text as a full-round action.

This applies even to text read with comprehend languages, or through the use of the Decipher Script spell.

Sneak Attack (Ex): This ability, gained at 2nd level, is like the rogue ability of the same name (PH 50).

The extra damage increases by 1d6 at 5th level and again at 8th level.

If you get a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as rogue levels), the bonuses on damage stack.

Combat Anticipation (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level.

your ability to effectively observe the world around you allows you to respond more swiftly to danger.

You gain a +1 dodge bonus to Armor Class, and a +1 bonus on both Reflex saves and initiative checks.

These bonuses increase to +2 at 6th level.

The bonuses to AC and Reflex saves come in part because you read the intentions of your foe.

Thus, you gain those bonuses only against humanoids, monstrous humanoids, and giants.

Other creatures are too anatomically different for you to easily anticipate their intentions.

This ability functions only when you are wearing light or no armor.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 4th level, you cannot be caught flat-footed and react to danger before your senses would normally allow you to do so.

This ability functions like the barbarian ability of the same name (PH 26).

If you already have uncanny dodge from some other source, you instead gain improved uncanny dodge at this level.

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): Beginning at 8th level, you can use the Hide skill in natural terrain even while being observed.

This ability functions like the ranger ability of the same name (PH 48).

Hyper-Awareness (Su): At 9th level, you find your perceptions have grown so highly attuned that they become supernatural.

You gain darkvision out to 30 feet and blindsense out to 5 feet.

Shadow in the Night (Sp): When you reach 10th level, your mastery of stealth has crossed over into the otherworldly.

Once per day, you can become ethereal.

This effect lasts for up to 1 round, plus a number of additional rounds equal to your Intelligence modifier.

This ability otherwise functions as the spell ethereal jaunt.

EBONMAR INFILTRATOR SPELL LIST

Infiltrators choose their spells from the following list.

1st Level: *comprehend languages, detect chaos, detect evil, detect good, detect law, detect magic, detect secret doors, detect weaponry, *disguise self, expeditious retreat, ghost sound, jump, obscuring mist, secret weapon.

2nd Level: cat's grace, darkness, detect thoughts, fox's cunning, illusory script, invisibility, knock, owl's wisdom, pass without trace, spider climb, undetectable alignment.

3rd Level: arcane sight, darkvision, deeper darkness, locate object, misdirection, nondetection, see invisibility, secret page, tongues.

4th Level: arcane eye, clairaudience/clairvoyance, detect scrying, dimension door, freedom of movement, greater invisibility, locate creature, modify memory, scrying.

* New spell described in this book.

PLAYING AN EBONMAR INFILTRATOR

You prefer stealth to swordplay, avoiding a battle to fighting one.

You are direct and driven in your goals to seek out and acquire secrets useful to House Ebonmar.

Everything else is secondary.

You normally prefer to work alone or with a team of others who share your skills, but if you can find companions who will aid you in your cause, you are more than happy to stick with them.

Your relationship with the house is inviolate.

Everything you do, you do for your family and your blood.

Your position within Ebonmar is rather unusual.

As one of their guides, you are well respected, for they know they owe you and your kind much of their success.

Yet you can never personally gain the political prestige that your work provides, for the house cannot afford to place their guides in a public position.

COMBAT

Where possible, avoid direct conflict, using your skills and special abilities to anticipate and escape from your foes.

When battle is inevitable, focus on opponents against whom your special abilities are most effective, leaving creatures such as undead, constructs, and plants for your companions.

Strike from concealment or odd angles, taking advantage of your sneak attack.

Try to use your spells in advance of battle to enhance your companions' abilities as well as your own.

Make liberal use of divinations to determine what you'll be facing, and plan your strategies accordingly.

ADVANCEMENT

Only members of House Ebonmar become infiltrators.

You were likely born into the house, though it's conceivable that you married or were adopted into it.

The house keeps a constant lookout for members who boast the necessary skills to make a good infiltrator.

They observed you for some time before approaching you, watching to ensure that you were not only sufficiently able, but also truly loyal to House Ebonmar and its secrets.

Only when you had alleviated all their concerns did the family leaders ask you to become a guide.

Unearthing secrets and finding leverage on political rivals is now your primary goal.

You remain a member in good standing of the house.

In fact, you likely appear at public functions and gatherings, or perhaps even hold a minor position in the household or the city.

You are not permitted to take on any role that is too public, however—the house must be able to disavow your actions if you are ever caught.

At the same time, people expect members of Ebonmar to seek political power, so you must play the part of behind-the-scenes schemer to some extent.

Your spare time is occupied with training, learning new techniques, and perhaps embarking on unrelated adventures to hone your prowess.

Once you've become an infiltrator, put a good portion of your skill points into stealth-related skills; these are your primary advantage in combat, and your only means of effectively carrying out your primary goals.

Spread your remaining points evenly around your various class skills, making you sufficiently well rounded to understand and acquire information from almost any source.

Focus your feat selections on those that will either improve your various skills or augment your spellcasting abilities.

RESOURCES

Although they will not and cannot be overt about it, the members of House Ebonmar place their aid and resources at your disposal.

If necessary, they can provide funding or equipment for a specific mission, an alibi, bail, or even a means of escape if you are captured or arrested and a safe place to hide.

In no case, however, will the house ever publicly acknowledge the connection between itself and anyone convicted of a crime or exposed as an infiltrator; therefore, it might cut ties with you at any point if you become a liability.

Further, it only supports you when you work for its purposes; don't expect any sort of aid when you're off on unrelated adventures.

EBONMAR INFILTRATORS IN THE WORLD

"Tell you about him?"

I just said that I saw him in my chambers!

Doesn't mean I can tell you the first thing about him!"

—Lord Beaumont Richhierre, second-tier magistrate
Integrating infiltrators into an urban campaign is a fairly easy task.

House Ebonmar can fit into almost any city with ambitious political families.

The Ebonmar "guides" are its primary means of acquiring leverage.

While little evidence exists to prove the house's connection with these illicit activities, its use of infiltrators is something of an open secret.

Thus, any urban campaign that involves political intrigue is a perfect place for an Ebonmar infiltrator.

Even if the PCs prefer not to involve themselves in politics, an infiltrator might go on unrelated quests in order to hone his skills, or perhaps to get out of town for a while after a mission goes awry.

ORGANIZATION

The infiltrators have no organization unique to themselves; they are simply members of House Ebonmar. Within the house, rank equates to age—the older the member, the higher his position.

A council of five patriarchs and matriarchs governs the family; only 3 majority vote among them can strip a member of rank.

Similarly, only the council can send an infiltrator on a mission.

Any other members who want an infiltrator to perform a task must petition the patriarchs and matriarchs first.

Daily life for an infiltrator consists of equal parts high society and secret training.

Like others of the family, they put in appearances at upper-class functions, and perhaps spend a few hours working in a minor governmental office.

Their spare time consists of training to master their unusual abilities.

Individual infiltrators might have their own agendas, but service to the house always comes first.

Failure to abide by this stricture could result in exile from the house—and, if the infiltrator knows too much, perhaps a shallow grave in the deep woods.

House Ebonmar is not an innately evil family (though it has more than its share of evil members), and the Patriarchs do not order such a step lightly, but neither will they risk a disgruntled and estranged member exposing their techniques.

On extremely rare occasions, an infiltrator might accept an outside commission, so long as his actions do not threaten the house or interfere with its plans.

A character seeking an infiltrator need merely drop word of his interest in locations frequented by Ebonmar members, servants, and employees.

It invariably gets back to the infiltrators, who observe the characters in secret for a time.

If they agree to a meeting, the infiltrators simply show up when the characters are in a place that enables them to converse safely.

NPC REACTIONS

Political allies of House Ebonmar greet its members warmly, starting with a friendly attitude (PH 72).

Political enemies are initially unfriendly.

Most others are usually indifferent toward members of the house.

Few people react to the PC specifically as an infiltrator simply because the character is unlikely to publicize his status.

Still, should someone find out, they will likely view the character with some measure of distrust.

If they have heard of the infiltrators, their reaction is one step nearer hostile than it would otherwise be, unless they are a close ally of the house.

INFILTRATOR LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (local) or Knowledge (nobility and royalty) can research the Ebonmar infiltrators to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, the following lore is revealed, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: Ebonmar infiltrators collect secrets and knowledge about political and public figures, for use as leverage or even blackmail.

Everyone knows they work for House Ebonmar, but nobody's been able to do anything about it.

DC 15: The infiltrators are highly skilled in methods of stealth, deception, and information-gathering.

They're very hard to catch, and they are experts at avoiding combat.

DC 20: Infiltrators are capable opponents, able to strike a foe's weak spots.

The greatest among them can see in utter darkness, and even move through solid objects.

EBONMAR INFILTRATORS IN THE GAME

The infiltrators are secretive enough that the DM can easily work them into a campaign under the assumption that they have been active for some time.

Alternatively, the PCs might simply have had no reason to deal with House Ebonmar before, or might only now be entering a city or district where the house is active.

Players who enjoy stealth or political intrigue are most likely to be drawn to the infiltrator.

The prestige class makes an excellent spy (its main purpose) but can also become an effective scout, saboteur, or even assassin.

ADAPTATION

The Ebonmar infiltrator is easy enough to adapt to most campaigns by simply changing its flavor.

The class might be associated with a different political house, or with a guild of thieves or assassins.

It might be a religious cult devoted to a god of thieves or shadows, in which case you might consider making the spells divine rather than arcane.

Alternatively, the class might be associated with a government, representing a cabal of specially trained and mystically enhanced covert operatives.

TABLE 3-1: THE EBONMAR INFILTRATOR

HIT DIE: D6

Base Attack Level	Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Piercing insight +1, speed reader, spells	0	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Sneak attack +1d6	1	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Combat anticipation +1	2	0	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Uncanny dodge, piercing insight +2	3	1	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Sneak attack +2d6	3	2	0	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Combat anticipation +2	3	3	1	—
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	Piercing insight +3	3	3	2	0
8th	+6	+2	+6	+2	Hide in plain sight, sneak attack +3d6	3	3	3	1
9th	+6	+3	+6	+3	Hyper-awareness	3	3	3	2
10th	+7	+3	+7	+3	Piercing insight +4, shadow in the night	3	3	3	3

URBAN SAVANT

“The unprepared city beckons to all manner of evil through its open gates.

I am my city’s preparation.”

—Freilya Stormwind, black vigilante of the League of Eyes
The city has stood for centuries, weathering attacks of every kind—from wild animal incursions to rampaging hordes of raiders to infestations of monstrous vermin.

And for most of that time, one secret society has defended it against all threats: the League of Eyes.

Dedicated to the study of the creatures that prowl the urban jungle, the League of Eyes remains secretive (despite a long history of admiration from a grateful public), training and employing a corps of knowledgeable agents known as urban savants.

The League would be of no use to the city were it not for these educated few, who devote their time to studying the city’s traditional threats and watching for signs of renewed aggression from any source.

Their vigilance and expertise have turned the tide of battle more than once in the past, and will undoubtedly do so again.

BECOMING AN URBAN SAVANT

An urban savant is a scholar at heart, with a voracious appetite for information.

While those of an intellectual bent (particularly bards and wizards) are best suited to the role, urban savants also hail from the ranks of skill-heavy classes such as rangers and rogues.

Knowledge-hungry experts constitute a substantial minority as well.

To meet the Knowledge skill requirements, most others must either multiclass or wait until higher levels to become urban savants.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Skills: 8 ranks in any one, and 2 ranks in each of the other two of the following skills: Knowledge (dungeoneering), Knowledge (local), and Knowledge (nature).

Feats: Favored (League of Eyes or a similar organization).

Special: Bardic knowledge class ability (at DM’s discretion, can be replaced by Knowledge [history] 2 ranks).

Special: Must be a member in good standing of the League of Eyes or a similar organization.

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Bluff, Climb, Concentration, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Hide, Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Listen, Move Silently, Profession, Search, Sense Motive, Speak Language, Spellcraft, Spot, Tumble, Use Magic Device.

CLASS FEATURES

An urban savant gains abilities derived from an ever-increasing knowledge of the urban environment and its traditional threats.

At higher levels, she becomes almost mystically attuned to her surroundings, allowing her to perceive the true nature of her city’s enemies and thus giving her power over them.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You gain no proficiency with any weapons or armor.

You can cast arcane spells while wearing light armor without incurring the normal chance of spell failure, provided you are proficient with light armor.

However, like any other arcane spellcaster, an urban savant wearing medium or heavy armor or using a shield incurs the normal chance of arcane spell failure if the spell in question has a somatic component.

Spellcasting: At each level, you gain new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) and an increase in caster level as if you had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a member of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming an urban savant, you must decide to which class you will add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

If you had no levels in an arcane spellcasting class before acquiring the prestige class level, this class feature confers no advantage.

Urban Savvy: An urban savant is an expert on the local community.

If something has been around for a while, you’ve likely either heard stories about it or had direct contact with it.

You can draw upon this extensive familiarity to gain certain benefits against the following types of creatures: aberrations, animals, humanoids, monstrous humanoids, oozes, and vermin (all of which are commonly found within the urban environment).

The DM can modify this list as needed, replacing any creature type here with any other type appropriate to the campaign, or adding new ones.

The benefits conferred are detailed in the descriptions below.

As you grow in experience, you unearth new uses for your growing urban knowledge.

Using this ability requires you to succeed on an appropriate DC 15 Knowledge check (see the Knowledge skill, PH 78), made as a move action.

To draw upon this knowledge, you must be within 60 feet of a target and must be aware of its presence, though you need not have line of sight.

You cannot take 10 or take 20 on this check, and it cannot be retried.

Each successful check might affect a single target or all creatures of the same sort, depending on the circumstances. Your allies can benefit from your knowledge as well, provided you can communicate with them at the time you are using this ability.

Each of the four varieties of urban knowledge can be invoked only once against any given target or group of like creatures.

Strengths: An urban savant first studies the power of the beings who have had an impact on the city in the past.

With a successful Knowledge check, you learn the general combat capabilities of your target.

Against humanoids, this check confers knowledge of the target's base attack bonus, Armor Class, and combat-related feats.

(The DM is the final arbiter on what constitutes a combat-related feat: the list of fighter bonus feats is recommended as a starting point).

Against nonhumanoids, this check confers knowledge of all the above information plus any special attacks or options, which the DM should describe in brief.

Note that the urban savant's player benefits from this knowledge as related, but obviously the character cannot relate the data to her allies verbatim.

The player must roleplay any information he wishes his character to impart in the game.

Weaknesses: At 4th level, you can draw upon your urban knowledge to learn a foe's weakness in combat.

Against humanoids, a successful Knowledge check reveals the target's Hit Dice, damage reduction (including the means to overcome it, if any), and saving throws.

Against nonhumanoids, it imparts all of the above information plus any special weaknesses the foe might have.

Again, the player must roleplay any information he wishes his character to impart within the game.

Methods: When you reach 7th level, your knowledge of your foes' methods helps direct your attacks more effectively.

With a successful Knowledge check, you grant yourself and your allies a +1d6 bonus on weapon damage rolls against the target for 1 minute.

If you succeed on the check by 10 or more, this bonus increases to +2d6.

If you succeed by 20 or more, this bonus increases to +3d6.

True Nature: The culmination of an urban savant's studies is the ability to grasp the true nature of a target creature.

When you attain 10th level, a successful Knowledge check grants you and all allies within 60 feet a mystic barrier that acts in all respects (including duration) as a protection from chaos/evil/good/law spell, granting a +2 deflection bonus to AC and a +2 resistance bonus on saves against its abilities.

This protection functions regardless of the creature's true alignment (even if neutral), but its effects do not stack with any actual protection or magic circle spells in effect.

Your caster level for the purpose of this ability is equal to your urban savant level.

If you succeed on the check by 10 or more, the bonuses to AC and saves increase to +3.

If you succeed by 20 or more, the bonuses increase to +4.

Urban Empathy (Ex): You can use your knowledge to improve the attitude of creatures you encounter in urban environments.

This ability applies only to animals, humanoids, and monstrous humanoids (oozes and vermin being typically mindless).

At the DM's discretion, this ability could work on certain aberrations as well, though most are too violent and unpredictable for such tactics.

You can choose to substitute the appropriate Knowledge check (local for humanoids or nature for animals and monstrous humanoids) in place of a Diplomacy check to influence the starting attitudes of those you encounter in cities.

If the DM opts to allow use of this ability on aberrations, the substitution would be a Knowledge (dungeoneering) check.

If you prefer, you can make the usual Diplomacy checks for humanoids and monstrous humanoids instead.

Against animals, this ability functions like a druid's wild empathy class feature (PH 35), adding your urban savant level to the check, or you can attempt a Knowledge (nature) check if that is likely to produce a better result.

Continuing Education (Ex): At 3rd level, you gain a +1 insight bonus on Knowledge (dungeoneering), Knowledge (local), and Knowledge (nature) checks.

You gain a similar bonus on all bardic knowledge checks. This bonus increases to +2 at 6th level and +3 at 9th level.

Eyes of the City (Ex): By the time you reach 8th level, your vision has surpassed that of other city-dwelling humans.

You gain low-light vision, allowing you to see twice as far and as clearly as a human in starlight, moonlight, torchlight, and similarly shadowy conditions.

If you already have low-light vision, your existing ability improves, allowing you to see three times as far as a normal human in conditions of shadowy illumination.

Pierce Deception: Upon reaching 8th level, you know intuitively how the city is supposed to look.

While in an urban environment, you can try to see through the deception of any object or creature that might be disguising its true appearance.

Make a DC 20 Knowledge (arcana) check.

If the check succeeds, you know whether or not the target's true appearance has been clouded, but not by what means, nor what its true appearance might be.

If the check succeeds by 10 or more, you know by what means the target's appearance has been altered (through use of the Disguise skill, magic, a natural shapechanging ability, or the like).

If the deception is magical, you can attempt a Spellcraft check (DC 20 + spell level) to determine the spell used.

PLAYING AN URBAN SAVANT

Although you take great pride in your role as defender of your city, you have no illusions about your capabilities in melee combat.

You work best when aiding and guiding the swords of others, not when attempting to swing your own.

You are no stereotypical dusty scholar, but you know that your greatest asset is your brain, not your muscles.

You worked hard to be admitted into the distinguished League of Eyes, so you are loath to do anything that would violate the trust of the organization.

You might enjoy the occasional glory that comes with assisting the watch in beating back some new threat, but knowing that you performed your duty means more than all the fame in the world.

COMBAT

In combat, you primarily support your fellow party members and do not engage in front-line heroics.

If you were a bard before becoming an urban savant, your ability to aid your compatriots is especially powerful. Hang back with the spellcasters, if that's the party's strategy, and use your skills, abilities, and spells (if you have any) to bolster your allies and corrode their foes' defenses. If you began your career as a ranger or rogue, you can play a more direct role in combat—but prepare your allies first.

ADVANCEMENT

Only a certain breed of individual enters the ranks of the urban savants.

An invitation to join is difficult to obtain, even more so than one to enter the League of Eyes itself.

You are primarily a scholar, but you must be willing to place yourself in direct danger.

Even the most passionate and patriotic member of the League thinks twice about taking up this class.

Once you have started down the path of the savant, you should continue to invest a good portion of your skill points on Knowledge skills.

Your learning is your primary advantage (even in combat), and the only means of advancing within your organization. If you are also a spellcaster, consider acquiring new divination spells to aid both you and your fellow members in the pursuit of your collective goals, and parry-support spells to supplement your class abilities.

RESOURCES

Although the League of Eyes is far from wealthy, it can lend some aid and resources.

Since you are already favored within your organization, you can call on many contacts for assistance should the need arise.

In addition, your organization fully funds any mission it assigns to you; such funding typically includes a cash stipend for food and other expenses.

URBAN SAVANTS IN THE WORLD

"If they truly want to help the city, I wonder why they need to remain so secretive.

Don't you?"

—Lord Beaumont Richhierre, second-tier magistrate
Integrating urban savants into an urban campaign is remarkably easy.

Even in a game that has no League of Eyes, the class could represent a similar confederation dedicated to protecting the city.

Even if no organization exists in a campaign to support it, the urban savant (with some adjustment) still functions admirably as a standalone prestige class.

ORGANIZATION

Urban savants belong to the League of Eyes (or a similar organization) and occupy a special role within its ranks. Since its inception, the League has used an internal hierarchy based on title and color.

A member who first joins the League is known as a watcher.

These are the most numerous members in the organization, usually mid-level experts or low-level members of adventuring classes (often bards and wizards).

When a League member has gained sufficient skill to qualify for the urban savant prestige class, her title changes to witness, whether she ultimately adopts the class or not. Witnesses are some of the most educated members in the League; only members of that rank can train others. The highest title within the League is monitor, which is bestowed on only the most influential and learned members of the organization.

A witness who joins the ranks of the urban savants acquires the title of vigilant.

A vigilant who is later promoted to monitor—or, in rarer cases, a monitor who becomes a vigilant late in her career—can add the new title onto her existing one as an honorific, making her a "vigilant monitor".

Color, the second indicator of status within the organization, plays a similar role in differentiating members.

The League's official colors are the same as those on the flag of the city the League protects: for example, vermilion, emerald, and black.

Within the League, each color corresponds to a different area of expertise or focus for the member in question: vermilion for humanoids and monstrous humanoids, emerald for animals and vermin, and black for aberrations and oozes.

Members choose the color that best suits them, creating titles such as "emerald witness" and "black vigilant".

Vigilant monitors, however, are above such distinctions.

NPC REACTIONS

Most residents of the city in which an urban savant dwells react well to her (if they know of her affiliation), starting with a friendly attitude.

Rivals and those with whom the League has clashed start with an unfriendly attitude.

All others begin with an indifferent attitude.

These guidelines notwithstanding, few individuals have the opportunity to react to a PC urban savant specifically as a member of that class, because the League discourages public attention.

Still, word gets around, and a savant who has regularly served with other city defenders soon develops a good reputation.

URBAN SAVANT LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (history), or Knowledge (local) can research the League of Eyes and its urban savants to find out more about them. When a character makes a skill check, the following lore is revealed, including the information from lower DCs DC 10: Rumors of a secret society called the League of Eyes have existed for years.

DC 15: The League is dedicated to the protection of the city and its people.

It uses a specially trained type of scholar known as an urban savant to aid in its work.

DC 20: Urban savants are skilled and knowledgeable, trained to counter the city's traditional threats.

They can turn a clumsy band of untrained warriors into an elite fighting machine by providing information and tactics to overcome specific opponents.

URBAN SAVANTS IN THE GAME

The League and its savants are easy to work into a campaign if the PCs have never been to their city before.

If the party comes from that region, the League's secretive nature makes a fine excuse for the lack of prior knowledge. If the city hasn't faced wide-scale threats of the sort in which the League specializes, it stands to reason that the PCs wouldn't have encountered urban savants. Players who enjoy playing knowledge- or skill-based characters are among the most likely to be drawn to the urban savant, as are those who appreciate the class's devotion to a just cause.

TABLE 3-4: THE URBAN SAVANT HIT DIE: D6

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Urban savvy (strengths)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Urban empathy	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+3	+3	Continuing education +1	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+4	+4	Urban savvy (weaknesses)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+4	+4	Eyes of the city (low-light vision)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+5	+5	Continuing education +2	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+5	+5	Urban savvy (methods)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+6	+6	Eyes of the city (Pierce Deception)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+6	+6	Continuing education +3	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+7	+7	Urban savvy (true nature)	—

COMPLETE ADVENTURER (3.5)

ANIMAL LORD

For an animal lord, a humanoid form is simply an accident of birth.

In spirit, he belongs with the wild pack of wolves, the running herd of horses, or the dancing school of fish. His nearly hairless, two-legged form is a hindrance to being one with his true kind, but it is a hindrance he can overcome.

Each animal lord forms a bond with one group of animals. Apelords, bearlords, birdlords, catlords, horselords, sharklords, snakelords, and wolflords all exist.

Animals in his selected group accept an animal lord as a kindred soul and a leader.

They offer him their support, and he watches over them in turn.

Individual animal lords approach their calling in different ways.

Some are simple defenders of their kind, content to live as part of the natural cycle of predator and prey.

Others, believing that nature's creatures are meant to guard and ultimately improve this world, use their gifts to do good.

Still others lead their animal brothers and sisters down a path of selfishness or vengeance.

Barbarians, rangers, and druids are the most likely characters to adopt this class.

Barbarians prefer the more physically powerful options, including apelord, bearlord, and horselord.

Most of the savant's class abilities function in any surrounding, so players need not worry if the campaign sends their characters away from their home base.

ADAPTATION

Integrating the urban savant into a campaign is a simple matter of adjusting its tone or flavor.

Instead of being associated with the League of Eyes, the class could just as easily be a part of a shadowy government organization or an extension of the city militia.

The prestige class makes a good fit for any setting that includes cities.

Rangers gravitate toward the stealthier selections, such as catlord and wolflord.

Most birdlords are druids with the ability to use wild shape, but druids are equally likely to select any type of animal to bond with.

Some scouts, rogues, and even rare monks find this path rewarding as well.

Among the races, elves and half-elves are the most common examples of animal lords due to their close bond to nature.

A character can choose this prestige class more than once but must select a different group of associated animals and start at 1st level each time.

Levels of different animal lord classes do not stack when determining level-based class features.

Adaptation: Customize this class for your campaign by associating each variety with a specific race or culture.

Sahuagin (malenti) and evil aquatic elves make natural sharklords, for example, while plains-dwelling humans would be most appropriate as horselords.

Eight animal lord types are presented here, but you can easily create others appropriate to your campaign, such as the sewer-dwelling ratlord, the gnoll hyenalord, or even the aquatic squidlord.

Alternatively, you could subdivide existing groups (creating rival tigerlords and lionlords, for example).

Use the examples below as templates when creating a new animal lord.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an animal lord, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Neutral good, lawful neutral, neutral, chaotic neutral, or neutral evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Handle Animal 4 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 2 ranks, 4 ranks in the appropriate skill as follows.

Apelord: Climb; Bearlord: Intimidate; Birdlord: Spot; Catlord: Move Silently; Horselord: Jump; Sharklord: Swim; Snakelord: Escape Artist; Wolflord: Survival.

Feats: Each kind of animal lord must have a specific feat as follows.

Apelord: Toughness; Bearlord: Endurance; Birdlord: Improved Flight†; Catlord: Weapon Finesse; Horselord: Run; Sharklord: Improved Swimming†; Snakelord: Combat Reflexes; Wolflord: Track.

† New feat described on page 110.

CLASS SKILLS

The animal lord's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Escape Artist (Dex), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the animal lord prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Animal lords gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Animal Bond (Ex): An animal lord develops a bond with animals of his selected group (see below).

He gains a +4 bonus on Handle Animal and wild empathy checks made to influence animals from his chosen group. If an animal lord has the animal companion class feature, he adds his animal lord level to his effective druid level for the purpose of determining his animal companion's bonus Hit Dice, special abilities, and so forth.

The eight groups of animals included here, along with examples taken from the Monster Manual, are as follows.

Apelord: ape, baboon, dire ape, monkey.

Bearlord: black bear, brown bear, dire bear, polar bear.

Birdlord: eagle, giant eagle*, giant owl*, hawk, owl, raven.

Catlord: cat, cheetah, dire lion, dire tiger, leopard, lion, tiger.

Horselord: horse (all), pony, warpony.

Sharklord: dire shark, shark (all).

Snakelord: constrictor, giant constrictor, viper (all).

Wolflord: dire wolf, wolf.

* These creatures are included even though they are not of the animal type.

Detect Animals (Sp): Beginning at 1st level, an animal lord can detect the presence of any animals of his selected group at will, as if using detect animals or plants with a caster level equal to his class level.

Wild Empathy (Ex): An animal lord can improve the attitude of an animal.

See the druid class feature, page 35 of the Player's Handbook.

If an animal lord has wild empathy from another class, his levels stack for determining the bonus.

First Totem: At 2nd level, an animal lord gains a +4 bonus on checks made with a specific skill, determined by his selected group as follows.

Apelord: Climb; Bearlord: Intimidate; Birdlord: Spot; Catlord: Move Silently; Horselord: Jump; Sharklord: Swim; Snakelord: Escape Artist; Wolflord: Survival.

Low-Light Vision (Ex): At 2nd level, an animal lord gains low-light vision, allowing him to see twice as far as a human in starlight, moonlight, torchlight, and similar conditions of shadowy illumination.

He retains the ability to distinguish color and detail under these conditions.

If an animal lord already has low-light vision from another source (such as his race), his low-light vision improves, allowing him to see three times as far as a human in conditions of shadowy illumination.

Wild Aspect (Su): At 3rd level and higher, an animal lord can take on an aspect of the animals of his selected group. Assuming a wild aspect is a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity (see Swift Actions and Immediate Actions, page 137).

Unless otherwise noted, the effect lasts for 1 minute per level.

An animal lord can use this ability once per day at 3rd level, plus one additional time per day for every three levels gained after 3rd (twice per day at 6th level and three times per day at 9th level).

When an animal lord reaches 7th level, his wild aspect becomes more powerful, as described below.

If an animal lord has the wild shape ability, he can spend one daily use of wild shape to assume his wild aspect instead (the duration is as normal for the wild aspect).

If an animal lord already has a natural attack of the type gained by his wild aspect, use whichever damage figure is superior while the wild aspect is active.

If an animal lord wields a weapon while using his wild aspect, he can use the natural attacks gained as natural secondary weapons if he uses his weapon as a primary attack, provided they are still available (an apelord couldn't use a secondary claw attack, for example, if he wields a two-handed weapon).

Apelord: An apelord gains two primary claw attacks.

Each claw deals 1d4 points of damage (or 1d3 points for Small apelords).

If an apelord hits an opponent with both claw attacks, he rends the foe for an additional 2d4 points of damage (or 2d3 points for Small apelords), plus 1-1/2 times his Strength bonus.

At 7th level, the claw damage increases to 1d6 points (or 1d4 points for Small apelords) and the rend damage to 2d6 points (or 2d4 points for Small apelords).

Bearlord: A bearlord gains two primary claw attacks.

Each claw deals 1d4 points of damage (or 1d3 points for Small bearlords).

If a bearlord hits with a claw attack, he can attempt to start a grapple as a free action without provoking attacks of opportunity.

The bearlord still follows all the other normal grappling rules.

At 7th level, the claw damage increases to 1d6 points (or 1d4 points for Small bearlords).

Birdlord: A birdlord grows feathery wings, allowing him to fly at his base land speed (average maneuverability).

At 7th level, the duration increases to 10 minutes per level.

Catlord: A catlord gains two primary claw attacks.

Each claw deals 1d4 points of damage (or 1d3 points for Small catlords).

If a catlord charges, he can attack with both claws at the end of his charge.

At 7th level, the claw damage increases to 1d6 points (or 1d4 points for Small catlords).

Horselord: A horselord's speed, as well as the speed of any horse upon which he rides, improves by 10 feet for a duration of 1 hour per level.

At 7th level, the speed increase improves to 20 feet.

Sharklord: A sharklord gains a devastating bite as a primary natural attack.

The bite deals 1d8 points of damage (or 1d6 points for Small sharklords).

A sharklord also gains the ability to breathe water while his wild aspect is active.

At 7th level, the bite damage increases to 2d6 points (or 1d8 points for Small sharklords).

Snakelord: A snakelord gains a poisonous bite as a primary natural attack for 1 round per level.

This bite deals 1d4 points of damage (or 1d3 points for Small snakelords).

The poison's Fortitude save DC is 10 + animal lord level + Con modifier, and it deals initial and secondary damage of 1d3 points of Constitution.

At 7th level, the bite damage increases to 1d6 points (or 1d4 points for Small snakelords), and the initial and secondary poison damage increases to 1d4 points of Constitution.

Wolflord: A wolflord gains the scent ability (see page 314 of the Monster Manual) for 10 minutes per level.

At 7th level, the duration increases to 1 hour per level.

Speak with Animals (Sp): Beginning at 4th level, an animal lord can use speak with animals (as the spell) once per day to converse with animals of his selected group.

Summon Animal (Sp): Beginning at 5th level, an animal lord can summon one or more animals of his selected group once per day.

This ability functions identically to summon nature's ally V, except that an animal lord can summon creatures only from his selected group, as detailed below.

The duration of the effect is 1 minute per class level.

Apelord: 1d3 dire apes or 1d4+1 apes.

Bearlord: 1 polar bear, 1d3 brown bears, or 1d4+1 black bears.

Birdlord: 1d4+1 eagles, giant eagles¹, giant owls¹, hawks, ravens, or owls.

Catlord: 1 dire lion, 1d3 tigers, or 1d4+1 lions.

Horselord: 1d4+1 heavy horses, heavy warhorses, light horses, light warhorses, ponies, or warponies.

Sharklord: 1d3 Huge sharks² or 1d4+1 Large sharks².

Snakelord: 1 giant constrictor snake, 1d3 Huge vipers, or 1d4+1 constrictor snakes or Large vipers.

Wolflord: 1d4+1 dire wolves or wolves.

¹ May be summoned only by nonevil birdlords.

² May be summoned only into an aquatic or watery environment.

Second Totem: At 6th level, an animal lord gains a bonus feat related to his selected group, even if he doesn't meet the prerequisites.

If the animal lord already has the feat, he can choose any other feat for which he meets the prerequisites.

Apelord: Brachiation†; Bearlord: Improved Grapple; Birdlord:

Flyby Attack (see page 303 of the Monster Manual); Catlord:

Lightning Reflexes; Horselord: Trample; Sharklord: Improved

Critical (bite); Snakelord: Improved Initiative; Wolflord:

Improved Trip.

† New feat described on page 106.

Animal Growth (Sp): Once per day, an animal lord of 7th level or higher can use animal growth on a single animal from his selected group as a swift action (see Swift Actions and Immediate Actions, page 137) as a spellcaster of his class level.

This ability otherwise functions just like the spell.

Animal Telepathy (Su): Beginning at 8th level, an animal lord can converse telepathically with any animal of his selected group that he can see within 100 feet.

Third Totem: At 10th level, an animal lord gains a permanent 2-point increase to one of his ability scores, determined by his chosen animal group as follows.

Apelord: +2 Strength; Bearlord: +2 Constitution; Birdlord: +2 Wisdom; Catlord: +2 Dexterity; Horselord: +2 Constitution; Sharklord: +2 Strength; Snakelord: +2 Charisma; Wolflord: +2 Strength.

TABLE 2-2: THE ANIMAL LORD

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Animal bond, detect animals, wild empathy
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	First totem, low-light vision
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Wild aspect 1/day
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Speak with animals
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	Summon animal
6th	+6	+5	+5	+2	Second totem, wild aspect 2/day
7th	+7	+5	+5	+2	Animal growth
8th	+8	+6	+6	+2	Animal telepathy
9th	+9	+6	+6	+3	Wild aspect 3/day
10th	+10	+7	+7	+3	Third totem

BEASTMASTER

A beastmaster feels more at home among the animals of nature than fellow sentient beings.

Over time, these wanderers befriend a wide variety of animals, from mighty dire lions to tiny weasels.

Eventually, a beastmaster takes on aspects of her animal companions, becoming almost as much animal as humanoid.

Druids and rangers are the most common beastmasters, thanks to those characters' natural link with the animal world.

Some barbarians, fighters, or scouts also become beastmasters, particularly those with a strong affinity for nature (such as elves or halflings).

Characters of other classes rarely pursue this path.

NPC beastmasters are typically loners, relying on their animal companions for friendship on their travels.

Good-aligned beastmasters might use their powers to right injustices, even allying themselves with rural villages for a time.

Evil-aligned beastmasters are often openly hostile to civilization, becoming reclusive xenophobes.

Adaptation: Beastmasters could belong to a widespread organization of like-minded individuals, each one dedicated to the bond between humanoid and animal.

Rival factions might arise along alignment lines, or be divided by the choice of animal companions.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a beastmaster, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Handle Animal 8 ranks, Survival 4 ranks.

Feats: Skill Focus (Handle Animal).

CLASS SKILLS

The beastmaster's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Ride (Dex), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the beastmaster prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Beastmasters gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Animal Companion (Ex): A beastmaster gains the service of a loyal animal companion.

See the druid class feature, pages 35–36 of the Player's Handbook.

Treat the beastmaster as a druid whose level is equal to the beastmaster's class level + 3.

A beastmaster can select one of the animals available to a 1st-level druid and then apply the modifications as appropriate for a 4th-level druid's animal companion, or she can select a typical version of one of the animals available to a 4th-level druid.

As a beastmaster gains class levels, her animal companion gains Hit Dice and other special abilities just as a druid's animal companion does.

Use the beastmaster's class level + 3 to determine the animal companion's special abilities.

If a beastmaster already has an animal companion from another class, her beastmaster class levels stack with class levels from all other classes that grant an animal companion.

For example, a 5th-level druid/2nd-level beastmaster would be treated as a 10th-level druid for the purpose of improving the statistics of her animal companion (and which alternative animal companions she could select).

Wild Empathy (Ex): A beastmaster can improve the attitude of an animal.

See the druid class feature, page 35 of the Player's Handbook.

If a beastmaster has wild empathy from another class, her levels stack for determining the bonus.

Alertness: A beastmaster's senses grow keen as she learns some of the tricks of the animal kingdom.

Accordingly, she gains Alertness as a bonus feat at 2nd level.

Speak with Animals (Sp): Starting at 3rd level, a beastmaster can use Speak with animals once per day as the spell cast by a caster of her class level.

She can use this ability twice per day at 6th level and three times per day at 9th level.

Extra Animal Companion (Ex): At 4th level, a beastmaster gains a second animal companion, chosen from the list of animal companions available to a 1st-level druid.

Treat the beastmaster as a druid whose level is equal to the beastmaster's class level – 3 for the purpose of improving the animal companion's statistics (or of selecting an alternative companion at higher levels).

At 7th level, a beastmaster gains a third animal companion, chosen from the list of animal companions available to a 1st-level druid.

Treat the beastmaster as a druid whose level is equal to the beastmaster's class level – 6 for the purpose of improving the animal companion's statistics (or of selecting an alternative companion at higher levels).

At 10th level, a beastmaster gains a fourth animal companion, chosen from the list of animal companions available to a 1st-level druid.

Treat the beastmaster as a druid whose level is equal to the beastmaster's class level – 9 for the purpose of improving the animal companion's statistics (or of selecting an alternative companion at higher levels).

Other class levels in classes that offer an animal companion don't stack for the purpose of determining the power of a beastmaster's additional animal companions, nor do they allow her to choose additional animal companions from the alternative lists.

Low-Light Vision (Ex): At 5th level, a beastmaster gains low-light vision, allowing her to see twice as far as a human in starlight, moonlight, torchlight, and similar conditions of shadowy illumination.

She retains the ability to distinguish color and detail under these conditions.

If she already has low-light vision from another source (such as her race), her low-light vision improves, allowing her to see three times as far as a human in conditions of shadowy illumination.

Scent (Ex): At 8th level, a beastmaster gains the scent ability (see page 314 of the Monster Manual).

TABLE 2-3: THE BEASTMASTER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Animal companion, wild empathy
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Alertness
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Speak with animals 1/day
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Extra animal companion (–3)
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	Low-light vision
6th	+6	+5	+5	+2	Speak with animals 2/day
7th	+7	+5	+5	+2	Extra animal companion (–6)
8th	+8	+6	+6	+2	Scent
9th	+9	+6	+6	+3	Speak with animals 3/day
10th	+10	+7	+7	+3	Extra animal companion (–9)

BLOODHOUND

A bandit king raids caravans on the road.

An ogre pillages farms to the north.

A sorcerer has kidnapped the mayor's son and hidden him somewhere in the marsh—and the soldiers of the king cannot seem to stem the tide.

The terrified citizens have only one choice, and it isn't cheap.

They call in a bloodhound.

A bloodhound tracks down wrongdoers and brings them to whatever justice awaits them.

Low-level bloodhounds depend on their keen senses and careful training to hunt their targets.

As they gain experience, their obsessive determination gives them supernatural abilities that make them nearly unstoppable.

Though some bloodhounds leave calling cards or even brands on their targets, most don't kill their quarry if they can help it.

They prefer instead to subdue their targets and bring them in.

For those of good alignment, this practice satisfies some deeply held belief in the cause of justice.

For neutral and evil bloodhounds, it ensures a steady stream of income from catching the same targets over and over when they break out of jail.

Rangers and barbarians make the best bloodhounds, but rogues, bards, druids, and fighters can also excel in this role. Occasionally, a paladin shoulders the mantle, but never for money.

Most bloodhounds are human, though elves and half-elves sometimes find this lifestyle satisfying.

Some of the best bloodhounds are humanoids such as gnolls, hobgoblins, and bugbears.

Most NPC bloodhounds work for money (usually a lot of it), but some accept jobs for justice, revenge, or enjoyment. When a bloodhound accepts a job, he designates his target as a mark.

Thereafter, he does not abandon the case until it is finished, which occurs when the mark is apprehended or when either the mark or the bloodhound dies.

Adaptation: The easiest way to adapt this class to your own campaign is to tie bloodhounds to one or more organizations of superlative trackers.

The most obvious choice is the Bloodhounds, an organization described in Chapter 6 of this book. But you also might introduce a more localized group of bloodhounds—for example, a group of rangers and bloodhounds sworn to serve a small barony far to the north; funds earned by “the Brennmark Trackers” might be the major income of their tiny homeland.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a bloodhound, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Gather Information 4 ranks, Move Silently 4 ranks, Survival 4 ranks.

Feats: Endurance, Track.

CLASS SKILLS

The bloodhound's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the bloodhound prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Bloodhounds are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with light armor.

Mark (Ex): A bloodhound can target, or mark, an individual humanoid or monstrous humanoid foe to better hunt that enemy.

To do so, the bloodhound must focus on a foe who is present and visible, or on the depiction or description of one who is not, for 10 minutes.

Any interruption ruins the attempt and forces the bloodhound to start the process again.

Once this study is complete, that target is called a mark.

A bloodhound adds his bloodhound level as an insight bonus on all Gather Information, Listen, Search, Spot, and Survival checks made to determine the whereabouts of a mark.

As a bloodhound gains levels, he gains additional abilities that can be used against a mark.

If a bloodhound chooses a new mark before apprehending an existing one, the latter becomes unmarked, and the bloodhound loses experience points equal to the amount he would have earned for defeating that creature.

A bloodhound can choose a mark only once a week.

Initially, a bloodhound can have only one mark at a time.

For every three bloodhound levels gained beyond 1st, a bloodhound can have one additional mark, but only if all the marks are chosen during the same process (see above).

For example, a 4th-level bloodhound could mark two bugbears in the same group of prisoners, or the depictions of a bugbear and a hobgoblin if both were studied at the same time.

If a bloodhound gives up on apprehending any of his marks, all remaining marked creatures become unmarked as described above.

Swift Tracker (Ex): A bloodhound can move at his normal speed while following tracks.

See the ranger class feature, page 48 of the Player's Handbook.

Nonlethal Force (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a bloodhound can use a melee weapon that deals lethal damage to deal nonlethal damage instead without taking the usual –4 penalty on his attack roll.

Ready and Waiting (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, a bloodhound is ready for trickery at all times.

He can ready an action against his mark, even outside of the initiative sequence.

If the mark triggers the bloodhound's readied action at any point within the next 10 minutes, the bloodhound can carry out his readied action as if the two were engaged in combat (as long as the bloodhound is capable of carrying out that action).

If the bloodhound is incapable of carrying out the action—for instance, if he is too far away to strike the mark with a readied melee attack—the readied action is lost.

Bring 'em Back Alive (Ex): At 3rd level and higher, a bloodhound can turn a potentially killing blow into an incapacitating one—all the better to bring a mark back for punishment.

At the bloodhound's option, any melee attack that would reduce a foe to –2 or fewer hit points reduces the foe to –1 hit points instead.

A bloodhound must choose to use this ability immediately upon reducing his foe to –2 or fewer hit points, and before making any other action (or even continuing a full attack). A raging bloodhound can't use this ability.

Tenacious Pursuit (Ex): At 3rd level and above, a bloodhound tracking a mark gains a +4 bonus on Constitution checks made to resist nonlethal damage from a forced march (see page 164 of the Player's Handbook).

In addition, a bloodhound tracking a mark can increase his own speed by 10 feet, up to a maximum value equal to the mark's speed.

This bonus stacks with all other speed increases.

At 6th level, the speed increase improves to 20 feet, and it goes up to 30 feet at 9th level.

Hunter's Dedication (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, a bloodhound adds his Constitution bonus (if any) to Will saves made to resist the special attacks or spells of his mark.

Move Like the Wind (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a bloodhound can move stealthily even at a quick pace.

He no longer takes a -5 penalty on Hide and Move Silently checks when moving at any speed up to his normal speed, and he takes only a -10 penalty (instead of a -20 penalty) on Hide and Move Silently checks when running.

(He takes the normal -20 penalty when attacking or charging).

Crippling Strike (Ex): Starting at 5th level, a bloodhound can deliver strikes against his mark with such precision that each successful attack also deals 2 points of Strength damage to the mark.

A bloodhound can deliver a crippling strike with a melee attack, or with a ranged attack from a distance of up to 30 feet.

See the rogue class feature, page 51 of the Player's Handbook.

Track the Trackless (Su): Starting at 5th level, a bloodhound can track a creature moving under the influence of pass without trace or a similar effect, though he takes a -20 penalty on his Survival checks when doing so.

See Invisibility (Su): This ability, gained at 6th level, functions like a see invisibility spell, except that it is constantly in effect and it reveals only invisible marks.

Shielded Mind (Su): At 6th level, a bloodhound gains spell resistance against divination spells equal to $15 +$ his bloodhound level.

This benefit does not stack with other forms of spell resistance.

Locate Creature (Sp): Once per day, a bloodhound of 7th level or higher can produce an effect identical to that of a locate creature spell with a caster level equal to the bloodhound's character level.

Freedom of Movement (Su): Starting at 8th level, a bloodhound can act normally regardless of magical effects that impede movement, as if he were affected by a freedom of movement spell.

The effect lasts for a total time per day of 1 round per point of Wisdom bonus he possesses (minimum 1 round).

The effect occurs automatically as soon as it is applied, lasts until it runs out or is no longer needed, and can be used multiple times per day (up to the total daily limit of rounds).

The character's caster level is equal to his bloodhound level.

Scent (Ex): At 9th level, a bloodhound gains the scent ability (see page 314 of the Monster Manual).

Find the Path (Sp): A 10th-level bloodhound can use find the path twice per day as the spell.

His caster level is equal to his bloodhound level.

TABLE 2-4: THE BLOODHOUND

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Mark (1), swift tracker
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Nonlethal force, ready and waiting
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Bring 'em back alive, tenacious pursuit (speed +10 ft.)
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Hunter's dedication, mark (2), move like the wind
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	Crippling strike, track the trackless
6th	+6	+5	+5	+2	See invisibility, shielded mind, tenacious pursuit (speed +20 ft.)
7th	+7	+5	+5	+2	Locate creature, mark (3)
8th	+8	+6	+6	+2	Freedom of movement
9th	+9	+6	+6	+3	Scent, tenacious pursuit (speed +30 ft.)
10th	+10	+7	+7	+3	Find the path, mark (4)

DAGGERSPELL MAGE

In a reclusive monastery in the heart of an ancient forest, a varied group of druids and arcane spellcasters train together.

The adherents of this monastery work to perfect a unique fighting and spellcasting style that relies on wielding a pair of daggers at all times.

Some of these students—known as daggerspell mages—blend the fighting style with arcane magic.

Daggerspell mages see the quick movements of their deadly daggers as an attendant part of their spellcasting. These sometimes reclusive figures remain spellcasters first and melee combatants second.

Daggerspell mages, like their colleagues the daggerspell shapers, seek truth and justice, but they define such concepts in the heat of the moment.

Daggerspell mages do not see morality as an absolute, and their ideals are guided by their sense of what is right and fair.

Daggerspell mages are closely related to the daggerspell shapers, the other half of the organization known as the Daggerspell Guardians (see page 167).

Both preserve the work of good folk and balance the concerns of civilized communities against the sanctity of nature, but where a shaper is quiet and calculating, a daggerspell mage is wild and impulsive.

The two halves of the organization work together amicably, but they have decidedly different approaches to most problems.

Almost every daggerspell mage begins his career as a wizard or sorcerer, taking a level or two of rogue after a few successful adventures.

Drawn to the exotic fighting style and balanced ideas of the Daggerspell Guardians, these individuals enjoy the enigmatic reputation and unorthodox techniques of the guild.

Although members of the guild are primarily spellcasters, some follow more complicated multiclass pathways that include fighter or paladin levels.

These characters follow all precepts of the guild, but they are more likely to defend truth with the sharp points of their daggers than with the arcane power of their spells.

Adaptation: Although daggerspell shapers and daggerspell mages are related through their common organization, they need not be used together in every campaign.

The mages, well suited for wizard/rogues of any alignment, could become a deadly group of dagger-and spell-wielding cultists.

Furthermore, in a campaign that includes psionics, the daggerspell mage makes an excellent class for psion/rogues.

Simply change the arcane spellcasting requirement and progression to a similar psionic manifester level requirement and progression, and the daggerspell psion, the third branch of the Daggerspell Guardians, is ready for your campaign.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a daggerspell mage, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonevil.

Skills: Concentration 8 ranks.

Feats: Weapon Focus (dagger), Two-Weapon Fighting.

Special: Arcane caster level 5th.

Special: Sneak attack +1d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The daggerspell mage's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the daggerspell mage prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Daggerspell mages gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Daggercast (Ex): Daggerspell mages seamlessly blend the use of their twin daggers with powerful spellcasting abilities.

A daggerspell mage can cast a spell with somatic and material components even when holding a dagger in each hand.

If a daggerspell mage holds anything other than a dagger, he must have at least one hand free to cast a spell with somatic or material components.

Casting a spell in this way still provokes attacks of opportunity normally.

In addition, a daggerspell mage can deliver a touch spell with a dagger attack (either a melee touch attack or a normal melee attack, but not with a thrown dagger).

Invocation of the Knife (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, daggerspell mages develop a strong mystical connection between their arcane spellcasting abilities and the daggers that they wield.

Whenever a daggerspell mage casts an arcane spell that deals energy damage, he can turn half of the damage dealt by the spell into magic slashing damage rather than energy damage.

Energy resistance does not apply to this damage, but damage reduction might.

This power does not affect a creature's ability to resist the affected spell with a saving throw or spell resistance.

Using this ability does not require an action; its use is part of the action required to cast the affected spell.

Only spells with a duration of instantaneous can be modified by this ability.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: Beginning at 2nd level, a daggerspell mage gains new spells per day at each level (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a daggerspell mage, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a daggerspell mage deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or at any time when the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 6th level and 3d6 points at 9th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

If a daggerspell mage gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Double Daggercast (Ex): As a daggerspell mage advances in level, the connection between his spellcasting abilities and his two-dagger fighting style strengthens.

At 5th level and higher, a mage can hold the charge for one touch spell for each dagger that he is holding in his hands.

He must designate which dagger holds each touch spell at the time the spell is cast.

If one of these daggers leaves the daggerspell mage's hands, the spell immediately discharges harmlessly (unless the dagger is thrown by a mage with the arcane throw ability; see below).

Arcane Infusion (Su): At 7th level and higher, a daggerspell mage can infuse arcane spell power into his daggers, temporarily enabling them to deal extra energy damage.

To use this ability, a mage must lose a prepared arcane spell from memory (or give up a potential spell slot for the day if he casts spells as a sorcerer).

The daggerspell mage chooses one dagger that he is holding and an energy type (fire, cold, or electricity) when this ability is activated.

The chosen dagger deals an extra 1d6 points of damage of the chosen energy type.

This effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to the spell level sacrificed.

Multiple uses of this ability on the same dagger don't stack, even if different energy types are chosen.

If the dagger is thrown, the energy damage applies to that attack, but then the effect immediately dissipates.

Using this ability is a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity (see Swift Actions and Immediate Actions, page 137).

Arcane Throw (Ex): At 8th level and higher, a daggernesspell mage can imbue arcane spell power into his thrown daggers.

The mage can deliver a touch spell with a thrown dagger just as if he were making a melee attack.

If the dagger hits, the touch spell is discharged against the creature or object struck.

If the dagger misses its intended target, the dagger returns to the mage just before his next turn (as if it had the returning special ability; see page 225 of the Dungeon Master's Guide) and retains the spell just as if the mage had missed with a melee attack.

Daggernesspell Flurry (Ex): A 10th-level daggernesspell mage can blend spellcasting with a flurry of dagger attacks.

When using this ability, a daggernesspell mage can quicken one spell as part of a full attack with his daggers.

Doing this has no effect on the spell's effective level.

A daggernesspell mage must make at least one melee attack in any round in which he uses this ability, and he cannot make an attack with anything other than a dagger (although if a spell cast in conjunction with this ability requires an attack roll, he can still make the spell's attack). A daggernesspell mage can use this ability a number of times per day equal to his Dexterity modifier (minimum 1).

TABLE 2-5: THE DAGGERSPELL MAGE

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Daggercast	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Invocation of the knife	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Sneak attack +1d6	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Double daggercast	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Sneak attack +2d6	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Arcane infusion	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Arcane throw	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Sneak attack +3d6	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Daggernesspell flurry	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

DAGGERSPELL SHAPER

In a reclusive monastery in the heart of an ancient forest, a varied group of druids and arcane spellcasters train together.

The adherents of this monastery work to perfect a unique fighting and spellcasting style that relies on wielding a pair of daggers at all times.

Some of these students—known as daggernesspell shapers—blend the fighting style with druid magic, spinning a deadly web of steel in front of them as they perform powerful feats of natural magic, or blending their daggers into the claws and talons of their wild-shaped forms.

Daggernesspell shapers see the precise martial powers of their twin-dagger style and their magic as an extension of one powerful philosophy.

The shapers seek truth in all things, believing that you can separate right from wrong and nature from corruption with the clean slice of a blade.

Although never numerous, shapers are respected as judges, warriors, and defenders of the weak.

Daggernesspell shapers are closely related to the other half of their guild, the daggernesspell mages.

Both preserve the work of good folk and balance the concerns of civilized communities against the sanctity of nature, but where a daggernesspell mage is wild and impulsive, a shaper is quiet and calculating.

The two halves of the Daggernesspell Guardians organization (see page 167) work together amicably, but they have decidedly different approaches to most problems.

Almost every daggernesspell shaper begins her career as a druid, taking a level or two of rogue or scout after a few successful adventures.

These individuals are drawn to the exotic fighting style and balanced ideals of the guild.

Although most daggernesspell shapers are primarily spellcasters, some have more complicated multiclass pathways that include ranger or barbarian levels. These shapers follow all the precepts of the guild, but they are more likely to defend nature with the steel of their daggers than with their spells.

Adaptation: The daggernesspell shapers and their colleagues, the daggernesspell mages, form the two halves of the organization known as the Daggernesspell Guardians. Although normally bound together through the guild, these groups need not be used together in every campaign. The shapers, well suited for druid/rogues of any alignment, can become a drastically different group with just a few changes.

Adding neutral evil as an alignment requirement might change the shapers into a group of dagger-wielding fanatics dedicated to preserving the sanctity of nature by assassinating those who intrude into the wild.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a daggernesspell shaper, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonevil.

Skills: Concentration 8 ranks.

Feats: Weapon Focus (dagger), Two-Weapon Fighting.

Special: Wild shape class feature.

Special: Either sneak attack +1d6 or skirmish +1d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The daggernesspell shaper's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the daggerspell shaper prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Daggerspell shapers gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Daggercast (Ex): Daggerspell shapers seamlessly blend the use of their twin daggers with powerful spellcasting abilities.

A daggerspell shaper can cast a spell with somatic and material components even when holding a dagger in each hand.

If a daggerspell shaper holds anything other than a dagger, she must have at least one hand free to cast a spell with somatic or material components.

Casting a spell in this way still provokes attacks of opportunity normally.

In addition, a daggerspell shaper can deliver a touch spell with a dagger attack (either a melee touch attack or a normal melee attack, but not with a thrown dagger).

Wild Shape (Su): A daggerspell shaper can change into a Small or Medium animal and back again, and can do so more often than most other characters with the wild shape ability.

See the druid class feature, page 37 of the Player's Handbook. This ability lasts for 1 hour per class level or until she changes back.

Levels of the daggerspell shaper prestige class stack with druid levels for the purpose of determining the maximum duration of the wild shape ability; they do not stack for any other purpose (such as the size and type of creature that a shaper can become).

A daggerspell shaper gains one additional daily use of her wild shape ability at 1st level, 5th level, and 10th level.

At 2nd level, a daggerspell shaper becomes able to use her wild shape ability to take the form of a Tiny animal.

At 4th level, she can use wild shape to take the form of a Large animal.

Dagger Claws (Su): When a daggerspell shaper of 2nd level or higher uses wild shape, she adds any magical properties of daggers that she is holding in each hand into the natural attacks of her new form.

The magic of a single dagger affects only the natural attacks made with the corresponding limb in the shaper's animal form, not all her attacks.

For example, a 2nd-level daggerspell shaper holding a +1 flaming dagger in one hand and a +2 keen dagger in the other hand transforms into a leopard.

The daggers affect the claw attacks of her new form as follows: One gains a +1 bonus on attack and damage rolls and also gains the flaming special ability, and the other gains a +2 bonus on attack and damage rolls and also gains the keen special ability.

If the assumed form does not have a claw or slam attack with a limb that corresponds to the druid's natural limbs, this ability has no effect.

The bonuses from this ability last for the duration of the wild shape effect.

When a shaper uses this ability, her natural weapons in animal form overcome damage reduction exactly as do the daggers that she was holding when she transformed.

In the example above, the shaper would be able to overcome a foe's damage reduction as if both of her natural weapons were magic.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: Beginning at 2nd level, a daggerspell shaper gains new spells per day at each level (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If she had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a daggerspell shaper, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a daggerspell shaper deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or at any time when the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 6th level and 3d6 points at 9th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

If a daggerspell shaper gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Fast Wild Shape (Ex): Starting at 7th level, a daggerspell shaper can use her wild shape ability as a move action rather than as a standard action.

Enhanced Wild Shape (Su): Starting at 8th level, a daggerspell shaper can preserve the physical enhancements granted by her equipment even when in wild shape.

Whenever the shaper uses wild shape, she retains any enhancement bonuses to Strength, Dexterity, or Constitution granted by any equipment she wears, even if the equipment can't be worn normally by her new form.

Daggerspell Flurry (Ex): A 10th-level daggerspell shaper can blend spellcasting with a flurry of dagger attacks.

When using this ability, the shaper can quicken one spell as part of a full attack with her daggers.

Doing this has no effect on the spell's effective level.

A daggerspell shaper must make at least one melee attack in any round in which she uses this ability, and she cannot make an attack with anything other than a dagger (although if a spell cast in conjunction with this ability requires an attack roll, she can still make the spell's attack).

A daggerspell shaper can use this ability a number of times per day equal to her Dexterity bonus (minimum 1).

TABLE 2-6: THE DAGGERSPELL SHAPER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Daggercast, wild shape (+1/day)	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Dagger claws, wild shape (Tiny)	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Sneak attack +1d6	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Wild shape (Large)	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Wild shape (+2/day)	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Sneak attack +2d6	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Fast wild shape	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Enhanced wild shape	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Sneak attack +3d6	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Daggerspell flurry, wild shape (+3/day)	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

DREAD PIRATE

Thugs and cutthroats in every port lay claim to the title “pirate”, but actually making a fortune through piracy is no easy task.

A dread pirate, however, has mastered every aspect of larceny on the high seas.

His network of contacts tells him when a particularly valuable cargo is shipping out.

After a flawless ambush at sea, he swings aboard the target ship on a rope, rapier in hand.

Once he and his shipmates have overpowered the prize vessel’s crew, they liberate the cargo and make their escape. Later, the dread pirate meets representatives from the black market in an isolated cove and sells his newly acquired cargo for a handsome profit.

Some dread pirates accomplish their goals through fear, killing indiscriminately and ruling their ships at rapier-point.

Others minimize bloodshed and exhibit a curious sort of chivalry, perhaps realizing that the captain and crew of a prize ship are more likely to surrender if they believe they will live to see port again.

Now and then a dread pirate takes his chivalric streak a step farther and preys only on the ships of enemy nations—or even solely on other pirates.

A dread pirate’s lifestyle is ideal for most rogues, because the job requires a number of skills that other classes don’t have the time or inclination to learn.

However, the class also attracts some spellcasters, who can use magic to conceal their ships or incapacitate a prize vessel’s crew.

Adaptation: The dread pirate prestige class can be used to represent any powerful individual with great nautical skill. A famous admiral and a ruthless but honest privateer might not differ in abilities, but they will certainly differ in outlook and demeanor.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a dread pirate, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Appraise 8 ranks, Profession (sailor) 8 ranks, Swim 4 ranks, Use Rope 4 ranks.

Feats: Quick Draw, Weapon Finesse.

Special: The character must own a ship worth at least 10,000 gp.

The method of acquisition—purchase, force of arms, or skullduggery—makes no difference, as long as he can freely operate it on the high seas.

CLASS SKILLS

The dread pirate’s class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the dread pirate prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Dread pirates are proficient with all simple weapons, with light martial weapons, and with the rapier.

Dread pirates are proficient with light armor but not with shields.

Seamanship (Ex): A dread pirate adds his class level as an insight bonus on all Profession (sailor) checks.

Allies within sight or hearing of a dread pirate add an insight bonus equal to half this number on their Profession (sailor) checks.

Two-Weapon Fighting: A dread pirate wearing light or no armor is treated as having the Two-Weapon Fighting feat, even if he does not have the prerequisites for the feat.

Fearsome Reputation (Ex): By the time he attains 2nd level, a dread pirate has developed a reputation on the high seas.

At this point, he must choose whether to cultivate a reputation as an honorable pirate (avoiding undue bloodshed, honoring flags of truce, and the like) or as a dishonorable pirate (favoring mayhem and dire treatment of prisoners).

An honorable dread pirate gains a +2 circumstance bonus on Diplomacy checks, while a dishonorable one gains a +2 circumstance bonus on Intimidate checks.

This bonus increases to +4 at 6th level and to +6 at 10th level.

In addition, a dread pirate gains other abilities at higher levels based on his chosen reputation.

A dread pirate’s actual activities or alignment need not match his reputation.

However, a radical shift away from his reputation might negate or even reverse that reputation at the DM’s option.

Also, a dread pirate in disguise does not gain any effect granted by his reputation (including the special abilities described below that depend on the dread pirate's reputation).

Rally the Crew (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, an honorable dread pirate can inspire his allies (including himself) to great bravery in combat once per day.

This inspiration grants them a +1 morale bonus on saving throws against charm and fear effects and a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls and weapon damage rolls.

To be affected, an ally must be able to see or hear the dread pirate.

The effect requires a free action to activate and lasts for 1 minute per class level, even if the dread pirate moves out of range or loses consciousness.

This is a mind-affecting ability.

At 7th level, a dread pirate can use this ability twice per day, and the bonus increases to +2.

If a dread pirate has the inspire courage bardic music ability, he can add the morale bonus gained from that ability to the morale bonus gained from this ability to determine the total morale bonus granted.

For example, an 8th-level bard/3rd-level dread pirate would provide a +3 morale bonus on attack rolls and weapon damage rolls.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a dishonorable dread pirate deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or at any time when the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook. The amount of extra damage dealt increases to 2d6 at 7th level.

If a dishonorable dread pirate gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Acrobatic Charge (Ex): A dread pirate of 4th level or higher can charge over difficult terrain that normally slows movement or through the squares occupied by allies blocking his path.

This ability enables him to charge across a cluttered ship's deck, leap down from a higher deck, or swing between two adjacent ships to get to his target.

Depending on the circumstances, he might still need to make appropriate checks (such as Jump, Tumble, or Use Rope checks) to successfully move over the terrain.

Steady Stance (Ex): At 4th level and higher, a dread pirate remains stable on his feet when others have difficulty standing.

He is not considered flat-footed while balancing or climbing, and he adds his class level as a bonus on Balance or Climb checks to remain balancing or climbing when he takes damage.

Luck of the Wind (Ex): Once per day, an honorable dread pirate of 5th level or higher can reroll any failed attack roll, skill check, ability check, or saving throw.

He must take the result of the reroll, even if it's worse than the original roll.

Scourge of the Seas (Ex): Starting at 5th level, a dishonorable dread pirate can instill fear into his enemies.

When the character uses Intimidate to demoralize foes, the attempt affects all enemies within 30 feet who can see and hear him, and the effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to his Charisma modifier (minimum 1 round).

Multiple uses of this ability don't stack.

This is a mind-affecting ability.

Skill Mastery (Ex): At 8th level, a dread pirate becomes supremely confident of his mobility.

He has mastered the skills Balance, Climb, Jump, and Tumble to the extent that he can take 10 with them even under stress.

Fight to the Death (Ex): At 9th level and higher, an honorable dread pirate can inspire his allies to carry on against tremendous odds.

Each ally affected by the dread pirate's rally the crew ability (see above) also gains temporary hit points equal to 10 + the dread pirate's Cha bonus (minimum 10), gains a dodge bonus to Armor Class equal to the dread pirate's Cha bonus (minimum +1), and is treated as having the Diehard feat even if he doesn't meet the prerequisites.

These effects are lost if the dread pirate loses consciousness.

Motivate the Scum (Ex): Once per day, a dishonorable dread pirate of 9th level or higher can motivate his allies by killing a helpless individual.

All allies of the dread pirate who see the act gain a +2 morale bonus on damage rolls.

This effect lasts for 24 hours.

Most dishonorable dread pirates don't care whether the victim is a prisoner or one of their own crew.

In fact, if the slain individual is one of the dread pirate's crew, the morale bonus on damage rolls improves to +4, but the allies also take a -2 penalty on Will saves for the duration of the effect.

Pirate King (Ex): A 10th-level dread pirate's exploits have become so legendary that great numbers of able sailors are willing to sign on as his crew for no compensation other than a share of the booty.

Treat this ability as the equivalent of the Leadership feat, except that only followers (and no cohorts) are gained.

TABLE 2-7: THE DREAD PIRATE

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+0	+2	+0	Seamanship, two-weapon fighting
2nd	+2	+0	+3	+0	Fearsome reputation +2
3rd	+3	+1	+3	+1	Rally the crew +1 (1/day) or sneak attack +1d6
4th	+4	+1	+4	+1	Acrobatic charge, steady stance
5th	+5	+1	+4	+1	Luck of the wind or scourge of the seas
6th	+6	+2	+5	+2	Fearsome reputation +4
7th	+7	+2	+5	+2	Rally the crew +2 (2/day) or sneak attack +2d6
8th	+8	+2	+6	+2	Skill mastery
9th	+9	+3	+6	+3	Fight to the death or motivate the scum
10th	+10	+3	+7	+3	Fearsome reputation +6, pirate king

THE PIRATE CODE

Most pirate codes share a number of elements regarding the proper "etiquette" of piracy. Here are a few ideas that might be appropriate for your dread pirate's personal code:

- Everyone shall obey all orders.
- Everyone shall have a vote in major decisions. (This point is not necessarily limited to honorable dread pirates.)
- Everyone shall have a share of captured food and drink.
- Booty will be shared out as follows: one share to each among the crew; one and one-half shares each to the first mate, master carpenter, and boatswain; and two shares to the captain. (Some honorable captains might accept a smaller

DUNGEON DELVER

In many ways, the dungeon delver is the ultimate adventuring rogue.

He's skilled at moving stealthily through all types of dungeon terrain, detecting and disarming inconvenient traps, bypassing locks, locating treasure, and filching protected items.

Since a dungeon delver frequently works alone, he must learn to think and act independently, relying upon no one but himself.

Even when exploring a dungeon in the company of other adventurers, he often keeps to himself—scouting ahead, disarming traps a safe distance from the group, or seeking treasure while the others are distracted.

The typical dungeon delver has forsaken interaction skills to concentrate on the nuts and bolts of dungeon exploration and treasure retrieval.

Rogues and scouts make excellent dungeon delvers, as do the rare few ninjas and spellthieves who choose to pursue this track.

Multiclass rogue/rangers who favor the darkness of caverns to the light of the sky also make good dungeon delvers.

The best NPC dungeon delvers become legends and are sought after by anyone with a particularly inaccessible treasure to recover.

Some even accept regular stipends from various nobles to leave their treasures alone.

Only the best survive to make names for themselves, however—those who lack the necessary skill and savvy perish anonymously on unsuccessful expeditions, leaving behind their bones for some luckier compatriot to discover.

Adaptation: Some of the most interesting adaptations for the dungeon delver prestige class involve associating it with a certain race.

Although dwarves and gnomes are natural choices because of their ties with underground life, dungeon delvers of less obvious races such as humans, dark elves, and halflings are interesting as well because such characters offer something other than the stereotypical depiction of their race.

The dungeon delver and the nightsong infiltrator (see page 62) also serve as interesting roguelike prestige classes that do not rely on the sneak attack ability and might serve as a model for making similar prestige classes in your own campaign.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a dungeon delver, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

share, but they will take no fewer than one and one-half shares.)

- Anyone not keeping his weapons clean and fit for an engagement shall be cut off from his share, and suffer other punishment as the captain deems fit.
- Anyone who strikes another among the crew shall receive forty lashes across his back.
- Anyone who attempts to desert or keep any secret from the company shall be marooned with one bottle of water and one weapon.
- Anyone who steals from a crewmate shall be marooned or run through. (The latter consequence is more appropriate for dishonorable dread pirates.)

Skills: Climb 10 ranks, Craft (stonemasonry) 5 ranks, Disable Device 10 ranks, Hide 5 ranks, Knowledge (dungeoneering) 5 ranks, Move Silently 5 ranks, Open Lock 10 ranks, Search 10 ranks.

Feats: Alertness, Blind-Fight.

Special: Trapfinding class feature.

Special: The character must survive a great trial underground.

This trial usually takes one of three forms:

- A solo dungeon expedition that earns the character half of the experience points needed for advancement to the next level.

(For example, a 7th-level character must earn 3,500 XP on such a solo run).

The character must complete the venture in one week, though he may leave the dungeon and return as often as desired during that time.

- Survival of a cave-in or other collapse (see page 66 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

- Living for a year without seeing the light of the sun, usually among underground denizens such as the deep dwarves or drow.

CLASS SKILLS

The dungeon delver's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), Use Magic Device (Cha), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the dungeon delver prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Dungeon delvers gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Darkvision (Ex): A dungeon delver's long exposure to pitch-black subterranean surroundings enables him to develop darkvision out to 60 feet.

If the character already has darkvision, the range increases by 30 feet.

Deep Survival (Ex): A dungeon delver's experience in deep, dark places grants him a great familiarity with that world. He adds his class level to Survival checks made in underground environments.

Trap Sense (Ex): A dungeon delver is adept at evading the effects of traps.

See the barbarian class feature, page 26 of the Player's Handbook.

The bonuses rise by 1 for every three additional dungeon delver levels gained (+2 at 4th level, +3 at 7th level, and +4 at 10th level) and stack with similar bonuses granted by other classes.

Reduce (Sp): A dungeon delver frequently finds it necessary to squeeze through narrow crevices, half-collapsed passages, prison bars, and other tight spots that would normally block a character of his size and bulk. Starting at 2nd level, a dungeon delver can use reduce person on himself three times per day (regardless of his creature type).

His caster level is equal to his class level.

Stonecunning (Ex): At 2nd level, a dungeon delver gains the stonecunning ability.

This functions exactly as the dwarf racial trait of the same name (see page 15 of the Player's Handbook), except that the check modifiers are competence bonuses rather than racial bonuses.

If a dungeon delver already has stonecunning because of his race, both sets of bonuses apply.

Augury (Sp): Beginning at 3rd level, a dungeon delver can foretell whether a particular action will bring good or bad results for him in the immediate future.

Once per day, he can use augury as a free action; his caster level is equal to his class level.

He can use this ability one additional time per day for every three additional class levels gained (2/day at 6th level and 3/day at 9th level).

Skill Mastery (Ex): At 3rd level, a dungeon delver becomes so confident in the use of certain skills that he can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

The character selects a number of skills equal to 3 + his Intelligence modifier.

See the rogue class feature, page 51 of the Player's Handbook.

Evasion (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, a dungeon delver can avoid damage from certain attacks with a successful Reflex save.

See the monk class feature, page 41 of the Player's Handbook.

If a dungeon delver already has evasion, he gains improved evasion instead, allowing him to avoid damage from certain attacks with a successful Reflex save and take only half damage on a failed save.

See the monk class feature, page 42 of the Player's Handbook.

Blindsense (Ex): At 5th level, a dungeon delver gains the ability to activate an acute sensitivity to sounds, smells, movement, and other disturbances within 30 feet.

This functions as described on page 306 of the Monster Manual and lasts for 1 minute per class level.

A dungeon delver can use blindsense once per day at 5th level and twice per day at 10th level.

Passwall (Sp): Starting at 6th level, a dungeon delver can use passwall once per day as a caster of his class level.

This ability comes in handy for bypassing small cave-ins or sneaking into vaults.

Find the Path (Sp): Starting at 8th level, a dungeon delver can use find the path twice per day as a caster of his class level.

Typically, a delver uses this to find his way into and out of confounding mazes and dungeons.

He can target only himself with the ability.

Phase Door (Sp): At 9th level, a dungeon delver gains the ability to use phase door once per day as an 18th-level caster.

This ability enables him to bypass cave-ins, walk through dead ends and immovable obstructions, and make quick escapes through walls.

TABLE 2-8: THE DUNGEON DELVER

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+0	Darkvision, deep survival, trap sense +1
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+0	Reduce, stonecunning
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+1	Augury 1/day, skill mastery
4th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Evasion, trap sense +2
5th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Blindsense 1/day
6th	+4	+5	+5	+2	Augury 2/day, passwall
7th	+5	+5	+5	+2	Trap sense +3
8th	+6	+6	+6	+2	Find the path
9th	+6	+6	+6	+3	Augury 3/day, phase door
10th	+7	+7	+7	+3	Blindsense 2/day, trap sense +4

EXEMPLAR

An exemplar is someone who believes that most individuals and creatures possess a wellspring of untapped talent and capability, and that the multiverse would be a better place if only they would all try to live up to their potential.

To her mind, the best way to encourage this behavior in others is to exemplify it herself.

An exemplar focuses her energy on improving the skills she possesses until she is able to perform them with fluidity, grace, and art.

She believes that even the simplest action (such as climbing a tree or building a chair) can be done with such skill and flair as to inspire awe and stimulate a desire for selfbetterment.

No matter what area a particular exemplar excels in, be it walking a tightrope, deciphering forgotten languages, or remembering the names of every archfiend in the Abyss, she performs it with passion and joy.

Bards are the characters most likely to become exemplars, but wizards, rogues, rangers, and druids sometimes choose this path as well.

All of these classes have a fair number of people who believe that their actions can be viewed as art, and like most artists they want to inspire others with their abilities. Clerics, paladins, and monks also choose this prestige class on rare occasions, but their dedication to promoting a philosophy or a higher power sometimes conflicts with the exemplar's belief that the best way to inspire others is simply to be a good role model.

NPC exemplars often are eccentric characters who travel the multiverse, stopping anywhere that catches their interest.

Some might be nobles or members of rich merchant families who use their reputations to open doors at the courts of powerful and influential individuals, hoping that their example will help their hosts become wiser rulers. Other exemplars are mendicants or wandering sages, traveling among the common folk in the hopes of inspiring the people to improve their lots in life.

The great majority of exemplars are just ordinary characters making livings as bakers, blacksmiths, merchants, or even adventurers.

No matter what their jobs, though, at their hearts they are all educators, hoping to improve the multiverse by setting a good example.

Adaptation: The easiest way to customize the exemplar prestige class is to choose one skill that several exemplars specialize in and describe them as a separate class or organization.

The exemplars of the Spot skill, for example, might become the Watchers of Ordoanai, a group of mercenary scouts and bodyguards.

The exemplars of the Tumble skill could be described as the Blue Circle Acrobats, a troupe of performers who work secretly as assassins and use their performance as a front.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an exemplar, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Diplomacy 6 ranks, any other skill 13 ranks.

Feat: Skill Focus (any).

CLASS SKILLS

All skills are class skills for an exemplar.

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the exemplar prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Exemplars gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Skill Artistry (Ex): An exemplar is particularly talented in the use of one of her skills.

Choose one skill in which the exemplar has at least 13 ranks.

She gains a +4 competence bonus on all checks involving that skill.

At 4th, 7th, and 10th levels, an exemplar gains this ability again.

Each time she selects a different skill to receive the +4 competence bonus, provided she has at least 13 ranks in a skill that she has not yet chosen to benefit from this ability. If not, she gains no benefit from the ability until she has 13 ranks in another skill.

She can then immediately apply the benefit of skill artistry to that skill.

Skill Mastery (Ex): An exemplar is so confident in the use of certain skills that she can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

She selects a number of skills equal to 1 + her Int modifier. When making a check with one of these skills, she can take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent her from doing so.

Each time an exemplar gains a class level, she can add another skill to the list of skills with which she has mastery.

Lend Talent (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, an exemplar can lend some of her skill artistry to allies, allowing them to exceed their normal talents.

By accepting a penalty on checks using a skill for which she has selected skill artistry, an exemplar grants a competence bonus on checks with that skill to all allies within 30 feet. The penalty can be any number that does not exceed the exemplar's class level, and the competence bonus is equal to one-half the penalty.

Activating this ability is a full-round action, and the effect lasts for as long as the exemplar remains conscious and within range.

For example, a 4th-level exemplar who has selected skill artistry with Craft (armorsmithing) can accept a -4 penalty on Craft (armorsmithing) checks to grant all allies within 30 feet a +2 competence bonus on Craft (armorsmithing) checks for as long as she remains nearby.

At 8th level, the competence bonus granted by this ability becomes equal to the penalty accepted by the exemplar.

Bonus Feat: At 3rd, 6th, and 9th levels, an exemplar gains a bonus feat, which must be selected from the following list: Acrobatic, Agile, Alertness, Animal Affinity, Athletic, Blind-Fight, Combat Casting, Combat Expertise, Deceitful, Deft Hands, Diligent, Improved Initiative, Improved Swimming†, Investigator, Magical Aptitude, Negotiator, Nimble Fingers, Open Minded†, Persuasive, Self-Sufficient, Skill Focus, Stealthy, Track, or Versatile Performer†.

The exemplar must meet all the prerequisites for the chosen feat.

† New feat described in Chapter 3.

Sustaining Presence (Su): Starting at 4th level, an exemplar knows how to call upon her force of personality to help keep herself alive in tense or dangerous situations.

She adds her Charisma bonus (if any) to her Concentration checks and Fortitude saves.

Persuasive Performance (Ex): Starting at 5th level, an exemplar can use her skill artistry to improve the attitudes of NPCs.

To do this, the NPCs must observe her using one of the skills to which she has applied skill artistry.

Treat this as a Diplomacy check made to influence NPC attitudes (see pages 71–72 of the Player's Handbook), but replace the Diplomacy check with a check using the chosen skill.

The demonstration must be nonthreatening and intended to entertain and amuse the onlookers.

Viewers must be within 30 feet of the exemplar, must be able to see her clearly, and must willingly pay attention to her actions.

This ability requires at least 1 minute to perform, and it can affect a particular creature only once every 24 hours.

Intellectual Agility (Su): Starting at 8th level, an exemplar can channel her intellect to more physical needs.

She adds her Intelligence bonus (if any) to her initiative checks and Reflex saves.

Perfect Self: A 10th-level exemplar has tuned her body with skill to the point that she becomes a magical creature.

Her type changes to outsider (native).

See the monk class feature, page 42 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 2-9: THE EXEMPLAR

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Skill artistry, skill mastery
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Lend talent (one-half penalty)
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Bonus feat
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Skill artistry, sustaining presence
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Persuasive performance
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Bonus feat
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Skill artistry
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6	Intellectual agility, lend talent (equal to penalty)
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6	Bonus feat
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	Perfect self, skill artistry

FOCHLUCAN LYRIST

Warrior, thief, spy, poet, woodland champion—the Fochlucan lyrist is a legendary figure who serves as the herald and teacher to great kings, the champion of the common folk, and the keeper of lore long forgotten elsewhere.

Only the best and brightest are invited to become Fochlucan lyrists, and those who eventually win the approval of the Fochlucan College's masters are remarkable individuals indeed, skilled in swordplay, magic, and diplomacy.

Those who aspire to join the Fochlucan College face a long and difficult road.

The great bards who lead the school choose only individuals who have demonstrated skill at arms and stealth, learning and cleverness, superb talent with the lute and an ear for the stories of old.

Finally, all applicants must first study the lore of the druids, learning the ways of growth and the hidden secrets of nature.

Few indeed can stand up to the rigorous scrutiny of the Fochlucan masters.

Fochlucan lyrists adventure to gain information.

They are spies and rumormongers, ever on the watch for news of events that may upset the balance they seek to preserve.

A lyrist can serve as a diplomat, messenger, or assassin, as needed.

The Fochlucans strongly believe in fostering the careers of other adventurers whose viewpoints align with their own, and many lyrists attach themselves to adventuring companies specifically for the purpose of guiding their comrades to oppose the right enemies and advance the interests of the Fochlucan College.

Adaptation: This class is a fusion of the druid and bard base classes.

An interesting variation would be to adapt the class into a fusion of the druid and ranger base classes.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a Fochlucan lyrist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Decipher Script 7 ranks, Diplomacy 7 ranks, Gather Information 7 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 7 ranks, Perform (string instruments) 13 ranks, Sleight of Hand 7 ranks, Speak Language (Druidic).

Alignment: Neutral good, neutral, chaotic neutral, or neutral evil.

Spells: Ability to cast 1st-level arcane and divine spells.

Special: Bardic knowledge and evasion abilities.

CLASS SKILLS

The Fochlucan lyrist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (any) (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Speak Language (n/a), Spellcraft (Int), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the Fochlucan lyrist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Fochlucan lyrists gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level, a Fochlucan lyrist gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in any one arcane spellcasting class and any one divine spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If she had more than one arcane spellcasting class or divine spellcasting class before becoming a Fochlucan lyrist, she must decide to which class to add each Fochlucan lyrist level for the purpose of determining spells per day, spells known, and overall caster level.

For example, a 2nd-level rogue/5th-level bard/4th-level druid/3rd-level Fochlucan lyrist can cast arcane spells as an 8th-level bard and divine spells as a 7th-level druid.

Bardic Knowledge (Ex): A Fochlucan lyrist can attempt to recall some relevant piece of information about local notable people, legendary items, or noteworthy places.

See the bard class feature, page 28 of the Player's Handbook. She adds her Fochlucan lyrist class level to her bardic knowledge checks, so her bardic knowledge checks have a bonus equal to her bard level + her Fochlucan lyrist level + her Int modifier.

Bardic Music: A Fochlucan lyrist adds her lyrist level to her bard level to determine the number of times per day she can use her bardic music, the bardic music abilities she can employ, and the power of those abilities.

For example, a 2nd-level rogue/5th-level bard/4th-level druid/3rd-level Fochlucan lyrist can use her bardic music eight times per day, can use any bardic music ability an 8th-level bard could use (assuming she meets the Perform skill rank requirements), and is treated as an 8th-level bard for adjudicating the effects of those abilities (such as number of targets, save DC, and so forth).

Unbound: A Fochlucan lyrist's druid oaths are relaxed, allowing her to wear light metal armor with no loss of spellcasting, supernatural, or spell-like abilities.

A lyrist also suffers no experience point penalty for multiclassing.

TABLE 2-10: THE FOCHLUCAN LYRIST

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+1	+0	+2	+2	Bardic knowledge, bardic music, unbound	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2nd	+2	+0	+3	+3	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+3	+1	+3	+3	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+4	+1	+4	+4	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+5	+1	+4	+4	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+6	+2	+5	+5	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+7	+2	+5	+5	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8th	+8	+2	+6	+6	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+9	+3	+6	+6	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10th	+10	+3	+7	+7	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class and +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

FOCHLUCAN BANDORE

In the same vein that most folk consider the Fochlucan College to be the most famous of the bardic colleges, the most well-known and most often encountered of all the famed instruments of the bards is the Fochlucan bandore. (This item and the other instruments of the bards are described in detail in Complete Arcane.)

This three-stringed masterwork lute grants a +2 circumstance bonus on Perform (string instruments) checks and a +1 competence bonus on bardic music checks for countersong, fascinate, and suggestion. The instrument can be played by anyone to produce light once per day. Any character with at least 2 ranks in Perform (string instruments) can use the bandore to cast flare, mending, and message each once per day.

Faint transmutation, faint evocation; CL 3rd; Craft Wondrous Item, flare, light, mending, message, creator must be a bard; Price 1,900 gp; Weight 3 lb.

THE FOCHLUCAN COLLEGE

Perhaps the most famous of the bardic colleges, the Fochlucan College serves as a beacon of learning and diplomacy in a dark and restless land. Many have accused the Fochlucan masters of fomenting intrigues among the nearby kingdoms and using their famed neutrality to conceal the real extent of their meddling and manipulation. By advising mighty rulers and undertaking the tutoring of royal heirs, the Fochlucan bards turn the fate of kingdoms with nothing more than quiet words and whispered secrets.

The Fochlucan College itself is located on the shores of the misty Loch Firrenn, a few miles from the town of Oakenway. The College is a rambling old stone building that resembles something between a minor lord's manor house and a decrepit old monastery. Green ivy covers its walls, and old lanterns hanging from its eaves warm its chill, misty nights with golden light.

No more than a handful of its collegians are present at any given time—the strength of the organization lies in the learning and skill of its individual members, not in any muster of warriors. Members are welcome to stay as long as they like but are expected to contribute to the college's upkeep. The customary donation is 50 gp a month (for itinerant members) or 200 gp a month (for members living on the premises).

A small number of servants keep the College in order and prepare meals, but there are no guards or soldiers. Instead, its defense lies primarily in the reputation and influence of its members. Should trouble come anyway, the College is well defended by the handful of lyrist or guests who happen to be visiting at any given time. In case of serious trouble, the Fochlucans turn to the creatures of the surrounding forest. Through ancient pacts, the sylvan denizens of Loch Firrenn's forests are pledged to defend the bards' house against attack.

The College is governed by the Yew Circle, a small council composed of the five most senior Fochlucans currently enrolled in the order. All five are nominally equal, but if the Circle's opinion is divided on any important matter, the Eldest of the Circle—the Fochlucan who has served the longest in the college—decides the issue. Currently, the Eldest of Fochlucan is Yew Master Hurlich Stennarden, a half-elf who has belonged to the College for better than fifty years. The masters of the Yew Circle rarely meet, since they are not often at the College at the same time.

The Fochlucans are affiliated with several other bardic colleges in neighboring lands, including the College of Mac-Fuirmidh, the Doss School, and the High College of Anstruth, oldest and most knowledgeable of the colleges.

GHOST-FACED KILLER

From out of nothing the specter of death appears, an armored shadow with a brilliant blade held high. In a flash the katana falls, severing life from limb in a bloody arc.

All around, screams of terror and shouts of fear erupt, as quaking hands draw blades to fight the masked murderer. His target dead, the ghost-faced killer walks calmly away as swords and fists pass harmlessly through his nearly transparent body.

Long ago, a persecuted clan of dangerous warriors sought a way to take revenge against their oppressors.

Through sorcery, the spellcasters of the clan beseeched dark spirits to reveal a way that their clan might survive the coming strife and take revenge on the emperor who sought to crush them.

The clan members struck a dark bargain, and the demon-spirits they had contacted provided the clan with a means to the bloody ends they desired.

Donning terrifying masks to hide their identities, warriors of the clan crept into the imperial palace, and through the evil power of the pact they had made, passed invisibly and intangibly into the imperial household and murdered the entire imperial family, plunging the country into bloody civil war once again.

No one ever discovered the clan's honorless actions, and to this day, no one knows what clan the ghost-faced killers came from.

Today ghost-faced killers act as assassins and spies for hire, a mercenary clan that hides behind a guise of open and honorable conduct.

When on a mission, they wear porcelain demon-masks of ghostly white to hide their identities and as a symbol of the pact their clan made with the demon-spirits.

Through training and discipline, ghost-faced killers learn the deadliest and most terrifying ways to attack foes, and through their mystic connection with spirits, ghost-faced killers learn to turn invisible, walk through walls, and even see with the eyes of the spirits themselves.

Most ghost-faced killers begin their careers as rangers or rogues, though ninjas are also common.

Fighters are only slightly less common.

Few monks, barbarians, or members of spellcasting classes choose to become ghost-faced killers, but such characters are not unknown.

NPC ghost-faced killers are members of the Ghost-Faced Killer clan of ninjas.

This clan disguises itself as a normal samurai clan, loyal to the empire but unworthy of notice.

Most of the time a ghost-faced killer simply pursues his responsibilities to the clan and the emperor, but when called by money or the clan daimyo the ghost-faced killer dons the mask that means death for his enemies.

Adaptation: Although the ghost-faced killers are described as a clan of samurai and ninjas, the class can easily lose these aspects of its flavor and become a group of assassins. When introduced as a force for good, the ghost-faced killer prestige class could be used to represent a clan of investigators or spies serving a good-aligned nation or faction.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a ghost-faced killer, a character must fulfill all the following criteria:

Alignment: Any evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Hide 6 ranks, Concentration 4 ranks, Intimidate 8 ranks, Move Silently 6 ranks.

Feats: Improved Initiative, Power Attack.

CLASS SKILLS

The ghost-faced killer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the ghost-faced killer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Ghost-faced killers are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with light armor.

Ghost Step (Su): A ghost-faced killer can become invisible for 1 round once per day.

Using this ability is a swift action (see Swift Actions and Immediate Actions, page 137) that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

A ghost-faced killer can use this ability one additional time per day for every three class levels gained above 1st (2/day at 4th level, 3/day at 7th level, and 4/day at 10th level).

At 6th level, a ghost-faced killer can become ethereal when using ghost step instead of becoming invisible.

Sudden Strike (Ex): If a ghost-faced killer of 2nd level or higher can catch an opponent when she is unable to defend herself effectively from his attack, he can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Whenever a ghost-faced killer's target is denied her Dexterity bonus to Armor Class (if any) against his attack, the ghost-faced killer deals an extra 1d6 points of damage with his attack.

The bonus damage increases by 1d6 every three levels (+2d6 at 5th level, +3d6 at 8th level).

This ability otherwise works like the ninja ability described on page 8.

Frightful Attack (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a ghost-faced killer can panic onlookers and even frighten his victim to death by making a sudden strike attack.

Once per day, a ghost-faced killer can designate a melee sudden strike attack as a frightful attack.

The ghost-faced killer must use his Power Attack feat on the attack and must take a penalty of at least -1 to his attack roll.

If the attack deals damage to the target, the victim must make a Will save (DC 10 + ghost-faced killer's class level + ghost-faced killer's Cha modifier).

If the victim succeeds, she is shaken for 1 round per class level of the ghost-faced killer; if she fails, she instantly dies of fear.

Creatures immune to mind-affecting effects, immune to fear, or with Hit Dice that exceed the ghost-faced killer's character level are immune to this frightful attack.

In addition, all creatures within 30 feet who see the frightful attack (not including the victim, the ghost-faced killer, or the ghost-faced killer's allies) become panicked (if their Hit Dice are less than the ghost-faced killer's class level + his Cha modifier) or shaken (if their Hit Dice equal or exceed the ghost-faced killer's class level + Cha modifier) for 1 round per class level of the ghost-faced killer.

A successful Will save (DC 10 + ghost-faced killer's class level + ghost-faced killer's Cha modifier + damage bonus from Power Attack on the frightful attack) negates this effect.

A ghost-faced killer can use this ability one additional time per day for every three levels gained above 3rd (2/day at 6th level, 3/day at 9th level).

Ghost Sight (Su): Starting at 7th level, a ghost-faced killer can see ethereal and invisible creatures and objects as easily as he sees material creatures and objects.

Frightful Cleave (Su): If a 10th-level ghost-faced killer slays a foe with his frightful attack (either from the damage dealt or because of a failed save against its fear effect), he gets an immediate extra melee attack against another target within reach.

If the new target is flat-footed, this extra attack is also a frightful attack, though it doesn't count against the ghost-faced killer's daily limit of frightful attacks.

This ability otherwise functions exactly as the Cleave feat (see page 92 of the Player's Handbook).

TABLE 2-11: THE GHOST-FACED KILLER

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Ghost step 1/day
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Sudden strike +1d6
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Frightful attack 1/day
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Ghost step 2/day
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Sudden strike +2d6
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Frightful attack 2/day, ghost step (ethereal)
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Ghost sight, ghost step 3/day
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Sudden strike +3d6
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Frightful attack 3/day
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Frightful cleave, ghost step 4/day

HIGHLAND STALKER

The mountains are unforgiving, and the ability to find food at high altitude often means the difference between survival and starvation.

For those who live in such climes, hunters provide not only food but also clothing, shelter, and tools when they bring back animal skins and bones.

The best high-altitude hunters—highland stalkers—are consummate trackers with an instinctive knowledge of their mountainous territories.

Scouts (see page 10) are the most likely candidates to become highland stalkers, but rogues are well represented, and the prestige class attracts a fair number of multiclass barbarians and rangers who qualify.

NPC highland stalkers are found leading teams of four to six other hunters (typically scouts or rangers), often far from the tribe's base camp.

Depending on how the game they're tracking is moving, they might stay away from camp for several days at a time. Adaptation: This prestige class models a mountain warrior who favors stalking enemies and attacking from ambush—similar to the ranger, but with fewer skills and no spellcasting.

Thus, it's easy to adapt for hunters beyond a mountain setting.

A fighter's base attack bonus and the ability to make skirmish attacks is a compelling combination, so you don't need to load the prestige class with many other class features.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a highland stalker, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Listen 8 ranks, Spot 8 ranks, Survival 8 ranks.

Feats: Track.

Special: Skirmish or sneak attack class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

The highland stalker's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), and Survival (Wis).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the highland stalker prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Highland stalkers are proficient with light armor.

They gain no proficiency with any weapon.

Mountain Stride (Ex): A highland stalker can move through scree and dense rubble at her normal speed.

She can also move up steep slopes and stairs at her normal speed.

See pages 89–92 of the Dungeon Master's Guide for descriptions of terrain types.

Skirmish (Ex): A highland stalker relies on mobility to deal extra damage and improve her defense.

Starting at 2nd level, she deals an extra 1d6 points of damage on all attacks during any round in which she moves at least 10 feet.

This extra damage applies only to attacks taken during her turn.

It increases by an additional 1d6 for every four levels gained above 2nd (2d6 at 6th and 3d6 at 10th).

This extra damage only applies against living creatures that have a discernible anatomy.

Undead, constructs, oozes, plants, incorporeal creatures, and creatures immune to extra damage from critical hits are not vulnerable to this extra damage.

A highland stalker must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach such a spot.

Highland stalkers can apply this extra damage to ranged attacks made while skirmishing, but only if the target is within 30 feet.

At 4th level, a highland stalker gains a +1 competence bonus to Armor Class during any round in which she moves at least 10 feet.

The bonus applies as soon as she has moved 10 feet, and lasts until the start of her next turn.

It improves to +2 at 8th level.

A highland stalker loses this ability when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

If she gains the skirmish ability from another class, the bonuses stack.

Swift Tracker (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a highland stalker can move at her normal speed while following tracks.

See the ranger class feature, page 48 of the Player's Handbook.

Surefooted (Ex): Starting at 5th level, a highland stalker is well acquainted with the dangers of mountainous terrain.

She can ignore DC modifiers on Balance, Move Silently, and Tumble checks derived from scree, light rubble, dense rubble, steep slopes, or stairs (see page 89 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

She also does not need to make a DC 10 Balance check when running or charging down a steep slope.

Camouflage (Ex): Beginning at 7th level, a highland stalker can use the Hide skill in any sort of natural terrain.

TABLE 2–12: THE HIGHLAND STALKER

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Mountain stride
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Skirmish (+1d6)
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Swift tracker
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Skirmish (+1d6, +1 AC)
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Surefooted
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Skirmish (+2d6, +1 AC)
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Camouflage
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Skirmish (+2d6, +2 AC)
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	—
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Skirmish (+3d6, +2 AC)

MAESTER

Maesters are the master crafters of the gnome world, combining technical and magical expertise to create incredible marvels.

They specialize in the creation of magic items, bending all their skill and ability toward the construction of items that are their art and livelihood.

Maesters are usually wizards, although sorcerers occasionally take up the class.

Some bards also have been known to become maesters, but typically not until they have spent a number of years adventuring.

NPC maesters rarely stray from their laboratories, which makes them excellent patrons for groups of adventurers.

Maesters often need rare minerals, unusual material components for spells, or other substances for the magic items they create, and it's usually too dangerous to fetch such materials alone.

Maesters often hire bodyguards if they're undertaking a journey, paying their guards with magic items they have built.

Other times, they simply send allies on a journey of acquisition, providing them with as much lore about their mission as possible.

Adaptation: While gnomes are renowned for their magical craftsmanship, they don't have a monopoly on the trade.

This class would be appropriate for a secret organization of item-creating arcanists who are not necessarily gnomes.

If you change the spell requirement to divine spells, it's also a good fit for clerics of deities who are known for their peerless magical craftings, such as Moradin.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a maester, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Race: Gnome.

Skills: Craft (any) 8 ranks, Use Magic Device 4 ranks.

Feats: Any two item creation feats.

Spells: Arcane caster level 5th.

CLASS SKILLS

The maester's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (architecture and engineering) (Int), Spellcraft (Int), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the maester prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Maesters gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Bonus Feats: At 1st and 5th level, a maester receives a bonus item creation feat.

He must meet the prerequisites for this feat.

Quick Crafting (Ex): A maester can craft magic items in half the normal time required (one day per 2,000 gp in the item's base price; minimum one day).

Spells per Day/Spells Known: Beginning at 2nd level, a maester gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If he had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a maester, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Identification (Sp): A maester of 3rd level or higher can determine the magical properties of a magic item by handling it for 1 minute and making a successful Spellcraft check (DC 10 + the item's caster level).

The maester can't take 10 on this check, nor can he retry the check (and thus he can't take 20).

This ability otherwise functions as the identify spell.

TABLE 2-13: THE MAESTER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Bonus feat, quick crafting	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Identification	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

MASTER OF MANY FORMS

A master of many forms has no shape that she calls her own.

Instead, she occupies whatever body is most expedient for her at the time.

While others base their identities largely on their external forms, a master of many forms actually comes closer to her true self through her transformations.

Of necessity, her sense of self is based not on her outward form, but on her soul, which is truly the only constant about her.

It is the inner strength of that soul that enables her to take on any shape and remain herself within.

The path of the master of many forms is ideal for a spellcaster of any race who has experienced shapechanging and yearns for more of it.

Such a character can be a great force for either good or ill in the world.

An evil master of many forms in particular poses a terrible threat, for she can appear anywhere, in any body.

The same opponents may face her again and again, in one shape after another, never realizing that they are actually facing a single enemy.

NPC masters of many forms are typically loners, moving between communities of various creatures as suits their whims.

They sometimes find work as spies or explorers.

The class description presented here is an updated version of the shifter prestige class that originally appeared in Masters of the Wild.

Adaptation: Masters of many forms can be introduced into a campaign in many ways.

They might form an elite group of spies and scouts, they might be high-ranking members of a doppelganger-worshipping cult, or they might be a small group of druids who see beauty and power in all of nature's forms, not just animals and elementals.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a master of many forms, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Feats: Alertness, Endurance.

Special: Wild shape class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

The class skills of the master of many forms (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (any) (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Survival (Wis).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the master of many forms prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Masters of many forms gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Shifter's Speech (Ex): A master of many forms maintains her ability to speak normally (including verbal components of spells) regardless of the form she takes.

Furthermore, she can communicate with other creatures of the same kind while in wild shape, as long as such creatures are normally capable of communicating with each other using natural methods.

Improved Wild Shape (Su): A master of many forms knows how to use her wild shape ability to assume a wider range of forms.

At 1st level, she can assume a humanoid form with wild shape.

She later gains the ability to assume the form of a giant (at 2nd level), a monstrous humanoid (at 3rd level), a fey (at 4th level), a vermin (at 5th level), an aberration (at 6th level), a plant (at 7th level), an ooze (at 8th level), an elemental (at 9th level), and a dragon (at 10th level).

The size limit of the shapes she can assume also increases as she gains levels.

At 2nd level, she can assume the form of a Large creature; at 4th level, a Tiny creature; at 6th level, a Huge creature; at 8th level, a Diminutive creature; and at 10th level, a Gargantuan creature.

A master of many forms also gains one additional daily use of her wild shape ability per class level gained.

Fast Wild Shape (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a master of many forms can use her wild shape ability as a move action, rather than as a standard action.

Extraordinary Wild Shape (Ex): Starting at 7th level, a master of many forms gains the extraordinary special qualities of any form she assumes with wild shape.

Evershifting Form: A 10th-level master of many forms has reached the pinnacle of her shapechanging abilities.

She gains the shapechanger subtype and becomes immune to any transmutation effect unless she is willing to accept it.

In addition, she no longer takes ability penalties for aging and is not subject to magical aging, though any aging penalties she already may have taken remain in place.

Bonuses still accrue, and a master of many forms still dies of old age when her time is up.

TABLE 2-14: THE MASTER OF MANY FORMS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+0	Shifter's speech, improved wild shape (humanoid)
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+0	Improved wild shape (giant; Large)
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+1	Fast wild shape, improved wild shape (monstrous humanoid)
4th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Improved wild shape (fey; Tiny)
5th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Improved wild shape (vermin)
6th	+4	+5	+5	+2	Improved wild shape (aberration; Huge)
7th	+5	+5	+5	+2	Extraordinary wild shape, improved wild shape (plant)
8th	+6	+6	+6	+2	Improved wild shape (ooze; Diminutive)
9th	+6	+6	+6	+3	Improved wild shape (elemental)
10th	+7	+7	+7	+3	Evershifting form, improved wild shape (dragon; Gargantuan)

Galatea, a master of many forms

NIGHTSONG ENFORCER

Throughout the city, even the vilest assassin does not command more respect than the nightsong enforcers. They could be anywhere—they could strike at any time. You cannot escape their uncanny senses.

And worst of all, they often work in elite teams.

The enforcers of the Nightsong Guild (see page 177) focus on the stealth-centered combat training that rogues usually learn; they forgo some of the sleight of hand or fast-talking aspects of being a thief.

However, nightsong enforcers are not mere thugs.

They are deadly opponents who strike from hidden positions and move silently behind their foes.

When in battle, their goal is to eliminate their enemies, not to fight.

Thus, they strike quickly from the shadows.

They do not worry about honor or fighting fair, scoffing at such ideals as childish.

Rogues most often become nightsong enforcers, although bards, fighters, and urban rangers are also known to undertake the class.

On occasion a wizard or sorcerer will endure the intensive training required to join the enforcers' ranks.

When working with others, a nightsong enforcer is the linchpin.

She is the very picture of fidelity when it comes to supporting teammates on a mission.

It is common for an enforcer to lead a team composed of not only other enforcers, but fighters, spellcasters, or rogues.

Adaptation: Although described here as associated with the Nightsong Guild, the nightsong enforcer prestige class could have many different uses in a campaign.

Enforcers could represent the members of an elite criminal organization, a well-funded private security force, or a highly trained branch of a nation's military.

Emphasizing their training and group tactics can greatly shape an encounter or a character based around this prestige class.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a nightsong enforcer, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Hide 10 ranks, Move Silently 10 ranks.

Feats: Improved Initiative.

Special: Evasion class feature.

Special: The character must undergo intensive training and tests with the Nightsong Guild before she can gain the class abilities.

CLASS SKILLS

The nightsong enforcer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex). Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the nightsong enforcer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Nightsong enforcers are not proficient with any weapon.

They are proficient with light armor but not with shields.

Sneak Attack (Ex): A nightsong enforcer deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or any time the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 4th level, 3d6 points at 7th level, and 4d6 points at 10th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook. If a nightsong enforcer gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Teamwork (Ex): Nightsong enforcers are trained to keep a close eye on teammates on a joint mission.

A nightsong enforcer gains a +2 circumstance bonus on Listen and Spot checks to hear and see allies.

At 9th level, a nightsong enforcer's senses are honed so finely that she is aware of the location and status (as with the status spell) of all allies within 100 feet, even if they are not within sight.

Agility Training (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a nightsong enforcer reduces the armor check penalty imposed on her by light armor by 2 (to a minimum of 0).

Skill Teamwork (Ex): At 3rd level and higher, a nightsong enforcer can use her training to improve the skill of those around her.

All allies within 30 feet of the nightsong enforcer gain a +2 competence bonus on Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Listen, Move Silently, and Spot checks.

Allies must be able to see the nightsong enforcer to gain this bonus.

At 7th level, this bonus increases to +4.

Flanking Teamwork (Ex): When a nightsong enforcer of 5th level or higher flanks an opponent, the enforcer and all other allies who threaten the same opponent gain a +1 circumstance bonus on their attack rolls (in addition to the normal flanking bonus, if it applies).

Opportunist (Ex): Once per round, a nightsong enforcer of 6th level or higher can make an attack of opportunity against an opponent who has just been injured in melee by another character.

See the rogue class feature, page 51 of the Player's Handbook.

Improved Evasion (Ex): If a nightsong enforcer of 8th level or higher is exposed to any effect that normally allows her to attempt a Reflex saving throw for half damage, she takes no damage with a successful saving throw and half damage if the saving throw fails.

TABLE 2–15: THE NIGHTSONG ENFORCER

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+0	+2	+0	Sneak attack +1d6, teamwork (hear/see allies)
2nd	+2	+0	+3	+0	Agility training
3rd	+3	+1	+3	+1	Skill teamwork +2
4th	+4	+1	+4	+1	Sneak attack +2d6
5th	+5	+1	+4	+1	Flanking teamwork
6th	+6	+2	+5	+2	Opportunist
7th	+7	+2	+5	+2	Sneak attack +3d6, skill teamwork +4
8th	+8	+2	+6	+2	Improved evasion
9th	+9	+3	+6	+3	Teamwork (status)
10th	+10	+3	+7	+3	Sneak attack +4d6

NIGHTSONG INFILTRATOR

An expert at breaking into “secure” areas, a nightsong infiltrator is the perfect thief and the perfect spy.

Whether she is there to steal gold, information, jewels, or secrets, an infiltrator of the Nightsong Guild (see page 177) is trained to do her job quickly and efficiently.

She practices extensively with locks and traps, focusing on doing her job under pressure and in unfavorable conditions.

For example, nightsong infiltrators train extensively in climbing, since they often have to scale walls and reach high windows.

They have little time to work on combat training and relegate such concerns to their companions, the nightsong enforcers (see the previous prestige class description). Rogues most frequently and most easily become nightsong infiltrators.

Bards, urban rangers, and intelligent fighters can make good members of the class as well.

Rarer, but possible, are spellcasting nightsong infiltrators who use spells to get in and out of places.

Woe to those wishing to protect their valuables from a Nightsong Guild member who can become invisible, walk through walls, or teleport.

Members of the Nightsong Guild rarely work alone.

Usually they operate in teams, often in pairings of a nightsong infiltrator and a nightsong enforcer.

(For a PC nightsong infiltrator, the other team member can be an adventuring ally).

When working as part of a team, a nightsong infiltrator works best as the advance scout and point person, while the other team members take care of threats that she is unable to deal with (guards, mostly).

Adaptation: Like their companions the nightsong enforcers, nightsong infiltrators can easily be used to represent a different group.

Because its members are especially effective in small groups, the nightsong infiltrator prestige class makes an excellent choice for any organization that might form elite teams.

Mercenary groups, intelligence organizations (private or governmental), or criminal groups can be represented by this prestige class with simple changes in the flavor.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a nightsong infiltrator, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Climb 10 ranks, Disable Device 5 ranks, Open Lock 5 ranks, Search 5 ranks.

Feats: Alertness.

Special: Evasion class feature.

Special: The character must undergo intensive training and tests with the Nightsong Guild before she can gain the class abilities.

CLASS SKILLS

The nightsong infiltrator's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), Use Magic Device (Cha), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the nightsong infiltrator prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Nightsong infiltrators gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Teamwork Trap Sense (Ex): A nightsong infiltrator has an intuitive sense that alerts her to danger from traps, giving her a +1 bonus on Reflex saves made to avoid traps and a +1 dodge bonus to Armor Class against attacks made by traps. All allies within 30 feet of the infiltrator also gain these bonuses (even if they already have trap sense from another class feature).

These bonuses increase to +2 at 4th level, to +3 at 7th level, and to +4 at 10th level.

Trapfinding (Ex): A nightsong infiltrator can find, disarm, or bypass traps with a DC of 20 or higher. She can use the Search skill to find, and the Disable Device skill to disarm, magic traps (DC 25 + the level of the spell used to create it).

If her Disable Device result exceeds the trap's DC by 10 or more, she discovers how to bypass the trap without triggering or disarming it.

Steady Stance (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, a nightsong infiltrator remains stable on her feet when others have difficulty standing.

She is not considered flat-footed while balancing or climbing, and she adds her class level as a bonus on Balance or Climb checks to remain balancing or climbing when she takes damage.

Teamwork Infiltration (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a nightsong infiltrator can study a small area (typically up to 10 feet square, such as a doorway or guard post) in order to prepare for infiltrating that area.

If the infiltrator spends 1 hour studying the area from a distance of no more than 60 feet, she gains a +2 competence bonus on Balance, Climb, Disable Device, Hide, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, and Tumble checks attempted in that area for the next 24 hours.

All allies within 30 feet of the infiltrator gain the same bonus in that area.

(The allies need not be present while the infiltrator studies the area).

At 8th level, this bonus increases to +4.

Break Away (Ex): Skilled as she is, a nightsong infiltrator knows the sensibility of falling back from an unwinnable fight.

Starting at 3rd level, she gains a +4 dodge bonus to Armor Class in any round during which she does nothing but move.

A nightsong infiltrator can grant this ability to an ally within 30 feet as a swift action (see Swift Actions and Immediate Actions, page 137).

It lasts for 1 round.

Trackless Step (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a nightsong infiltrator cannot be tracked in natural surroundings. See the druid class feature, page 36 of the Player's Handbook.

At 7th level and higher, a nightsong infiltrator can share this ability with up to one additional ally per class level. Designating an ally for trackless step requires a standard action and lasts for 24 hours or until the infiltrator dismisses the effect (a standard action).

Detect Magic (Sp): Starting at 4th level, a nightsong infiltrator can use detect magic at will.

See the spell, page 219 of the Player's Handbook.

Teamwork Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, a nightsong infiltrator deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or any time the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

Any ally of the infiltrator who is also flanking the infiltrator's opponent deals this extra damage as well. This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 8th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook. If a nightsong infiltrator or her ally gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Defensive Roll (Ex): Starting at 5th level, a nightsong infiltrator can attempt to roll with a potentially lethal blow to take less damage from it than she otherwise would.

See the rogue class feature, page 51 of the Player's Handbook. Grant Move Action (Ex): Starting at 5th level, a nightsong infiltrator can direct and motivate her allies to act immediately.

Once per day, as a standard action, she can grant an extra move action to any or all of her allies within 30 feet (but not herself).

Each of the affected allies takes this extra move action immediately, acting in their current initiative order. This extra action does not affect the allies' initiative count; the round continues normally after the infiltrator's turn is over.

Starting at 9th level, a nightsong infiltrator can use this ability twice per day.

Improved Evasion (Ex): If a nightsong infiltrator of 6th level or higher is exposed to any effect that normally allows her to attempt a Reflex saving throw for half damage, she takes no damage with a successful saving throw and half damage if the saving throw fails.

Skill Mastery (Ex): At 6th level, a nightsong infiltrator has become so confident in the use of certain skills that she can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

When making a Climb, Disable Device, Open Lock, or Search check, she can take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent her from doing so.

Specialized Tools (Ex): After studying an area (see teamwork infiltration, above), a nightsong infiltrator of 6th level or higher can prepare a special tool for a job.

Doing this requires 1 hour, a DC 15 Craft check (the specific type of Craft specialty required is up to the DM; blacksmithing, leatherworking, or woodworking are all likely candidates), and a set of artisan's tools for the Craft skill in question.

The tool prepared by the infiltrator grants a +4 circumstance bonus on all checks made with one of the following skills: Climb, Disable Device, Disguise, Escape Artist, Hide, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, or Sleight of Hand.

This bonus doesn't stack with the circumstance bonus granted by any other set of tools (such as a disguise kit or masterwork thieves' tools).

The tool works only in the studied area, and it works only for 24 hours (though the infiltrator can rebuild the tool by following the same process).

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): A 10th-level nightsong infiltrator can use the Hide skill in natural terrain even while being observed.

See the ranger class feature, page 48 of the Player's

Handbook.

TABLE 2–16: THE NIGHTSONG INFILTRATOR

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Teamwork trap sense +1, trapfinding
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Steady stance, teamwork infiltration +2
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Break away, trackless step (self)
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Detect magic, teamwork sneak attack +1d6, teamwork trap sense +2
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Defensive roll, grant move action 1/day
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Improved evasion, skill mastery, specialized tools
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	Teamwork trap sense +3, trackless step (allies)
8th	+6	+2	+6	+2	Teamwork infiltration +4, teamwork sneak attack +2d6
9th	+6	+3	+6	+3	Grant move action 2/day
10th	+7	+3	+7	+3	Hide in plain sight, teamwork trap sense +4

OLLAM

In Dwarven, the word “ollam” means teacher.

The education of the dwarf people is considered a sacred duty, and those who are considered knowledgeable in dwarf history and legend—and thought to possess above-average common sense—are often called upon to take up the respected role of teacher in the community.

While other cultures might see this as a job for young girls or old men, the dwarves see an ollam as a protector of their cherished culture.

No one in the dwarf community takes that position lightly. An ollam is granted a special position in the temple hierarchy—Moradin gives her spells that allow her not only to delve into the secrets of the universe but also to heal and keep an eye on her charges.

While most ollams are clerics or bards, individuals of other classes are welcomed, as long as they possess the knowledge needed to teach the children properly. NPC ollams are equally likely to be safely ensconced in the heart of a dwarf community, passing on the accumulated lore of their people, or wandering the lands, sharing their knowledge with dwarves and nondwarves alike.

If there's something going on in a dwarf city, you can count on the ollams knowing about it first.

They're uncommonly well connected with each clan and stratum of dwarf society.

Adaptation: One of the functions of the ollam prestige class is to give a few bardlike abilities to nonbards—without giving away so much that the prestige class steals the bard's thunder.

Given different circumstances, it's easy to imagine ollams from other races and cultures.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an ollam, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Race: Dwarf.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Skills: Knowledge (history) 10 ranks, Knowledge (any other) 10 ranks, Perform (oratory) 5 ranks.

CLASS SKILLS

The ollam's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language (n/a), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the ollam prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Ollams are proficient with all simple weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At 2nd, 3rd, and 4th level, an ollam gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If she had more than one spellcasting class before becoming an ollam, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

If an ollam had no levels in a spellcasting class before taking the prestige class, at 2nd level she gains the spellcasting abilities of a cleric whose caster level is one lower than her class level.

Lore (Ex): An ollam has the ability to recall legends or information regarding various topics, just as a bard can with bardic knowledge.

See the bardic knowledge class feature, page 29 of the Player's Handbook.

An ollam adds her class level and her Intelligence modifier to her lore check.

If the character has a similar ability from another class (such as bardic knowledge), her ollam levels stack with class levels from that other class to determine the success of the lore check.

Inspire Competence (Su): An ollam of 3rd level or higher can use oratory to help an ally succeed at a task.

The ally gets a +2 competence bonus on checks with a particular skill.

If the ally is a dwarf, the competence bonus increases to +3.

See the bardic music class feature, page 29 of the Player's Handbook.

If an ollam has the inspire competence bardic music ability, she can expend one daily use of her bardic music to increase the competence bonus to +4 (or +6 if the ally is a dwarf).

Inspire Resilience (Su): From an early age, dwarves learn to approach life with steadfast resolution and endurance.

A 5th-level ollam can spend a standard action to use oratory to tap into this power, granting a single dwarf ally a +4 competence bonus on Constitution checks and Fortitude saves, as well as damage reduction 5/–.

The ally must be within 30 feet and able to see and hear the ollam.

The ollam must also be able to see the ally.

TABLE 2-17: THE OLLAM

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Lore	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Inspire competence	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Inspire resilience	—

SHADOWBANE INQUISITOR

Clad in bone-white armor and wreathed in righteous conviction, shadowbane inquisitors battle incessantly against evil in whatever form it takes.

Every shadowbane inquisitor belongs to a fellowship of religious knights called the Order of Illumination (see page 179).

The order advocates merciless aggression against evil, and its members train to detect and destroy evil creatures and individuals.

Filled with fervor, an inquisitor knows only one solution to an infestation of evil: the sword.

The purifying flame and the clean cut of a holy blade are his tools.

Along with their comrades (as members of the order refer to one another) the shadowbane stalkers, inquisitors find and confront evil wherever it hides.

Unlike shadowbane stalkers, however, inquisitors emphasize purging evil rather than finding it.

Their relentless zeal and their overwhelming belief in their own righteousness allow shadowbane inquisitors to root out evil cleanly, even if it costs the lives of a few good creatures, without the moral doubt that other knights might feel.

The Order of Illumination expounds that it is better to sacrifice a village that hides a powerful demon than it is to risk letting the demon escape or the evil spread.

Although inquisitors remain devoted to the cause of good, this conviction allows them to use their abilities against enemies regardless of their alignment.

Inquisitors must watch shadowbane stalkers carefully to make sure they do not slip into darkness—stalkers are willing to use subterfuge to find evil where it hides, and subtlety and stealth are tools of evil.

This situation occasionally puts the two branches of the Order of Illumination at odds, but the order as a whole remains zealously dedicated to good.

Almost all shadowbane inquisitors were once paladins who took a few levels of rogue to better understand and combat the subtle forces of evil.

This unusual class combination gives the inquisitor a remarkable ability to resist the manipulations of evil creatures and confront them without fear.

The effect lasts for as long as the ollam orates and for 1 minute thereafter.

Allies who are not dwarves instead gain a +2 competence bonus on Constitution checks and Fortitude saves, gain no damage reduction, and are fatigued at the end of the duration.

(Dwarves suffer no ill effect).

Some cleric/rogues become inquisitors, sacrificing their study of divine magic in order to perfect their combat abilities.

Adaptation: Shadowbane inquisitors can easily be added to a campaign as part of a less extreme organization by portraying them as good-aligned detectives with solid combat abilities and distinctive special powers.

Although most martial characters have difficulty participating in detective work or social encounters, the inquisitors shine in both areas.

On the other hand, simply removing the alignment requirement from the class and renaming it to fit a neutral or evil order of knights makes the inquisitor into a much more overt entry class for the blackguard prestige class.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a shadowbane inquisitor, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Base Attack: +5.

Skills: Gather Information 4 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 2 ranks, Sense Motive 8 ranks.

Feats: Power Attack.

Special: Detect evil class feature or ability to cast detect evil as a divine spell.

Special: Turn undead class feature.

Special: Sneak attack class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

The shadowbane inquisitor's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the shadowbane inquisitor prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Shadowbane inquisitors are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

Absolute Conviction (Ex): Should a shadowbane inquisitor's alignment ever change from lawful good for any reason, he may not take additional levels in this prestige class, but he does not lose any class abilities from levels already attained.

Pierce Shadows (Su): A shadowbane inquisitor can spend one of his daily uses of his turn undead ability to shed a holy radiance.

This light brightly illuminates an area in a radius of 20 feet plus 5 feet per class level of the inquisitor.

The light is centered on the inquisitor and sheds no shadowy illumination beyond its border.

This radiance lasts for 10 minutes per inquisitor class level.

Sacred Stealth (Su): Starting at 2nd level, a shadowbane inquisitor can channel some of his divine spell power to become stealthier.

To do this, he must lose a prepared divine spell from memory (or give up a potential spell slot for the day if he casts spells as a sorcerer).

He gains a +4 sacred bonus on Hide and Move Silently checks for a number of minutes equal to his Charisma bonus (if any) plus the level of spell given up in this manner.

At 7th level, the bonus increases to +8.

Using this ability is a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity (see Swift Actions and Immediate Actions, page 137).

Smite (Su): Once per day, a shadowbane inquisitor of 2nd level or higher can attempt to smite a creature that he judges to be corrupt with one normal melee attack.

He adds his Charisma bonus (if any) to his attack roll and deals an extra 1 point of damage per inquisitor class level. Unlike with a paladin's smite evil ability, an inquisitor relies only on his own judgment when determining what creatures to use this ability against.

How an inquisitor uses this ability exemplifies his outlook on the world.

The more suspicious and uncompromising an inquisitor is, the more likely he is to feel that a creature should be struck down.

An inquisitor can use this ability twice per day at 6th level and three times per day at 10th level.

Improved Sunder: At 3rd level, a shadowbane becomes accomplished at shattering the weapons of his foes and tainted magic items.

He gains the Improved Sunder feat as a bonus feat.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, a shadowbane inquisitor deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or any time the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 7th level and 3d6 points at 10th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

If a shadowbane inquisitor gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Merciless Purity (Su): Beginning at 5th level, a shadowbane inquisitor benefits when his enemies perish.

Upon the death of a creature that the inquisitor has designated as corrupt, he gains a +1 sacred bonus on his Fortitude and Reflex saves for the next 24 hours.

An inquisitor designates a creature as corrupt in his eyes by using his smite ability (see above) as part of a melee attack against the creature.

The inquisitor need not kill the creature himself.

An inquisitor can benefit from this ability only once per day; subsequent deaths of creatures that he has designated as corrupt grant no special benefit.

Righteous Fervor (Su): When an inquisitor of 8th level or higher designates a creature as corrupt, he gains a +1 sacred bonus on attack and damage rolls against that creature for the rest of the encounter.

The inquisitor designates a creature as corrupt by using his smite ability (see above) as part of a melee attack against the creature.

This bonus does not apply to the smite attempt itself, only to subsequent attacks against the same creature made in that encounter.

Burning Light (Su): At 9th level and higher, an inquisitor can spend one of his daily uses of his turn undead ability to deal damage to creatures around him.

To do this, he must already have his pierce shadows ability active.

All creatures within the illuminated area (except for the inquisitor) take 4d6 points of damage.

This damage results directly from divine power and is not subject to being reduced by energy resistance.

Using this ability requires a standard action.

Multiclassing Note: A paladin can multiclass as a shadowbane inquisitor without losing his ability to take additional levels of paladin.

In addition, he can multiclass freely between the paladin and rogue classes and may even gain additional rogue levels.

He must still remain lawful good in order to retain his paladin abilities and take paladin levels.

FALLEN INQUISITORS

Like paladins, shadowbane inquisitors occasionally fall into darkness and evil.

The light of self-righteousness burns strongly within an inquisitor, and he never faces the self-doubt or moral dilemmas that heroes of less conviction must deal with.

It is this overwhelming confidence in his own ability to define what is right and wrong, however, that sometimes leads an inquisitor into darkness.

The path of the inquisitor is long and dangerous, and those who complete it are among the most powerful and persistent opponents of evil.

But those who fall, having known the heights of purity, become evil beyond reckoning.

Convinced of their own moral purity, fallen inquisitors pursue their vile agenda without ever feeling doubt, and they are often charismatic enough to draw others into their wicked plans.

Should an inquisitor who also has paladin levels ever gain levels in the blackguard class, his shadowbane inquisitor levels stack with his paladin levels when determining the number of extra abilities that the blackguard gains for having paladin levels.

For example, if a 5th-level paladin/1st-level rogue/5th-level shadowbane inquisitor takes a level of blackguard, he gains extra blackguard class abilities as if he were a fallen paladin of 10th level.

TABLE 2-18: THE SHADOWBANE INQUISITOR

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Absolute conviction, pierce shadows
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Sacred stealth (+4), smite 1/day
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Improved Sunder
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Sneak attack +1d6
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Merciless purity
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Smite 2/day
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Sacred stealth (+8), sneak attack +2d6
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Righteous fervor
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Burning light
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Smite 3/day, sneak attack +3d6

SHADOWBANE STALKER

Those they name as heretics or servants of evil call them zealots.

Those they protect from darkness call them saviors and defenders of the truth.

Whatever their label, shadowbane stalkers rank as some of the most feared individuals wherever they go.

All shadowbane stalkers belong to the Order of Illumination (see page 179), a fellowship of holy knights dedicated to finding and rooting out hidden evil.

The Order of Illumination hunts evil—from liars and petty con artists to mind flayer cabals hidden in the heart of a decadent empire—in its most secret lair, and shadowbane stalkers lead the search.

Although many think it restrictive and insensitive, the Order of Illumination is a powerful force for good.

Shadowbane stalkers do their part to find evil hidden within the midst of civilized areas so that the martial arm of the order, led by the shadowbane inquisitors (see the previous prestige class), can spearhead the attack against the corruption.

Shadowbane stalkers usually work alone or with small groups of independent adventurers, but it is also common for a stalker and an inquisitor to adventure together as partners.

Their skills and abilities complement each other, and they know that the other members of the order are some of the few beings they can trust implicitly.

Almost all shadowbane stalkers are clerics who took a few levels of rogue.

This unorthodox career path gives a character the divine spellcasting power and martial training necessary to deal with powerful and subtle evils, as well as giving her the broad expertise in skills and stealth required to find and ambush the hidden evils that she seeks.

Adaptation: The Order of Illumination might be too zealous for some campaigns.

Its members are so thoroughly dedicated to good that they can sometimes stray into intolerance or unfounded accusations.

But by leaving the game mechanics unchanged and simply removing the flavor elements of zealotry and suspicion, the shadowbane stalkers become a small group of dedicated cleric/rogues who are extremely skilled at finding evil monsters.

This order probably would consist of clerics from several different churches and would welcome characters who have the right skills.

Alternatively, a single shadowbane stalker might run into more than she can handle in the course of an investigation and turn to the PCs for help.

In this way, the shadowbane stalkers could become a steady source of adventure leads and staunch allies as the campaign progresses.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a shadowbane stalker, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Skills: Gather Information 8 ranks, Search 4 ranks, Sense Motive 4 ranks.

Special: Detect evil class feature or ability to cast detect evil as a divine spell.

Special: Sneak attack +1d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The shadowbane stalker's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Disable Device (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Tumble (Dex), Use Magic Device (Cha), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the shadowbane stalker prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Shadowbane stalkers gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: A shadowbane stalker continues training in divine spellcasting as well as learning. At each level gained in the shadowbane stalker class except for 4th and 9th, she gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class she belonged to before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If she had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a shadowbane stalker, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Detect Evil (Sp): A shadowbane stalker can use detect evil at will.

See the spell, page 218 of the Player's Handbook.

Sacred Stealth (Su): A shadowbane stalker can channel some of her divine spellpower to become stealthier.

To do this, she must lose a prepared divine spell from memory (or give up a potential spell slot for the day if she casts spells as a sorcerer).

She gains a +4 sacred bonus on Hide and Move Silently checks for a number of minutes equal to her Charisma bonus (if any) plus the level of spell given up in this manner.

At 7th level, the bonus increases to +8.

Using this ability is a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

Discover Subterfuge (Ex): A shadowbane stalker trains diligently to detect subterfuge and the misdirection of others.

At 2nd level and higher, she gains a +2 competence bonus on Search and Sense Motive checks.

This bonus increases to +4 at 5th level and +6 at 8th level.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a shadowbane stalker deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or any time the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 6th level and 3d6 points at 9th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

If a shadowbane stalker gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Sacred Defense (Su): At 4th level and higher, a shadowbane stalker can channel some of her divine spellpower to help her avoid the attacks of enemies.

To do this, she must lose a prepared divine spell from memory (or give up a potential spell slot for the day if she casts spells as a sorcerer).

The stalker gains a +4 sacred bonus to Armor Class for a number of rounds equal to the level of the divine spell given up in this manner.

Using this ability is a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

Sacred Strike (Su): At 10th level, a shadowbane stalker can channel her divine spellpower to deal extra damage.

To do this, she must lose a prepared divine spell from memory (or give up a potential spell slot for the day if she casts spells as a sorcerer).

The stalker can add an extra 1d6 points of damage per level of the spell lost, up to the number of her sneak attack damage dice.

This ability affects the next attack she makes in the same round that she uses this ability.

Creatures immune to sneak attacks are immune to extra damage from this ability.

If the affected attack misses, the sacred strike is lost with no effect.

Using this ability is a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

TABLE 2-19: THE SHADOWBANE STALKER

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Detect evil , sacred stealth +4	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Discover subterfuge +2	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Sneak attack +1d6	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Sacred defense	—
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Discover subterfuge +4	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Sneak attack +2d6	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Sacred stealth +8	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Discover subterfuge +6	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Sneak attack +3d6	—
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Sacred strike	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

SHADOWMIND

A specter in the thoughts of the unwary, the shadowmind moves through the twisting pathways of the mind as easily as she slides through the dark alleyways of the city.

A shadowmind blends psionic powers and uncanny stealth into an effective whole.

Although they can be capable spies or thieves, shadowminds view themselves as much more.

Shadowminds see their training and psychic powers as an extension of a deep self-examination process that requires the knowledge of the innermost goals and motivations of others.

While a few shadowminds are trained in secret by governments, covert cabals, and the like, most train at a distant monastery.

These ascetics forsake many of the worldly goals they had before joining the shadowmind monastery, instead devoting themselves to peering inside the minds and secrets of others.

The rigorous training stresses the need to see the faults and secrets of others as extensions of the shadowmind's own experiences.

To a shadowmind, enlightenment and true understanding come from using the secret motivations of others as a means of self-awareness.

Most shadowminds begin their careers as psions and later diversify their skills and abilities by taking a level of rogue. Psychic warriors also find the class appealing, although they are more likely to multiclass as a ranger or ninja than as a rogue.

Although wilders can qualify for the class as easily as psions, few wilders become shadowminds.

(For full information about psionic classes and psionic powers, see the Expanded Psionics Handbook).

Adaptation: With their excellent skill selection and steady progression of psionic powers, shadowminds can be recast easily to fill almost any niche.

Simply change the powers that a shadowmind learns for free to match the desired flavor of the class.

Two examples appear below.

The powers noted in the examples replace the shadowmind's 1st-level ability read thoughts, the 3rd-level ability cloud mind, and the 9th-level ability mass cloud mind.
Cerebral infiltrator (psionic spy): 1st—distract, 3rd—forced sense link, 9th—mind probe.

Thought killer (psionic assassin): 1st—conceal thoughts, 3rd—energy stun, 9th—personal mind blank.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a shadowmind, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +3.

Skills: Hide 5 ranks, Move Silently 5 Ranks, Sleight of Hand 3 ranks.

Special: Manifester level 3rd.

Special: Able to manifest concealing amorpha.

CLASS SKILLS

A shadowmind's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Autohypnosis* (Wis), Bluff (Cha), Concentration* (Con), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Psicraft* (Int), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Spot (Wis), and Tumble (Dex).

* New skill or skill use described in the Expanded Psionics Handbook.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the shadowmind prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Shadowminds gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Powers Known: At every level indicated on the accompanying table, a shadowmind gains additional power points per day and access to new discovered powers as if she had also gained a level in whatever psionic manifesting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class. She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If a character had more than one psionic class before becoming a shadowmind, she must decide to which class to add the new level of shadowmind for the purpose of determining power points per day, powers known, and manifest level.

Read Thoughts (Ps): At 1st level, a shadowmind adds read thoughts to her repertoire (if she doesn't already know it). Once per day, she can manifest read thoughts at a reduced power point cost.

The cost of read thoughts is reduced by the shadowmind's class level, to a minimum of 1 power point.

The effect of this power is still restricted by the shadowmind's manifest level.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, a shadowmind deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or any time the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 5th level and 3d6 points at 8th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook. If a shadowmind gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Cloud Mind (Ps): At 3rd level, a shadowmind adds cloud mind to her repertoire (if she doesn't already know it). Once per day, she can manifest cloud mind at a reduced power point cost.

The cost of cloud mind is reduced by the shadowmind's class level, to a minimum of 1 power point.

The effect of this power is still restricted by the shadowmind's manifest level.

Mass Cloud Mind (Ps): At 9th level, a shadowmind adds mass cloud mind to her repertoire (if she doesn't already know it).

Once per day, she can manifest mass cloud mind at a reduced power point cost.

The cost of mass cloud mind is reduced by the shadowmind's level, to a minimum of 1 power point.

The effect of this power is still restricted by the shadowmind's manifest level.

Mind Stab (Su): A 10th-level shadowmind can combine a precise blow with a burst of mental energy, removing her presence from the mind and memory of her victim even as she stabs him.

Once per round as a free action, immediately after successfully dealing sneak attack damage to an opponent, a shadowmind can manifest cloud mind against that opponent.

Manifesting cloud mind in this way uses a reduced power point expenditure as described under the cloud mind ability above.

TABLE 2-20: THE SHADOWMIND

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Powers Known
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Read thoughts	+1 level of existing manifesting class
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Sneak attack +1d6	—
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Cloud mind	+1 level of existing manifesting class
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	—	+1 level of existing manifesting class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Sneak attack +2d6	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	—	+1 level of existing manifesting class
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	—	+1 level of existing manifesting class
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Sneak attack +3d6	—
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Mass cloud mind	+1 level of existing manifesting class
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Mind stab	+1 level of existing manifesting class

SPYMASTER

Some adventurers glory in their reputations—the wider their exploits are known, the happier they are. By contrast, the spymaster prefers to avoid attention.

She does her work quietly and in private, keeping well away from public scrutiny.

To allay suspicions, she often maintains a cover identity by pretending to be a member of some other class—typically the one in which she began her career.

Spymasters are rarely popular, but so long as nation distrusts nation there will be work for those who can gather information that others wish to keep hidden.

Many a ruler who publicly claims to abhor spymasters secretly employs a stable of them, if only to protect his own secrets from the spymasters of other nations.

This set of circumstances, plus the secrecy inherent in the profession of spymaster and its high mortality rate, makes it impossible to determine how many spymasters are active in a setting at any given time.

Rogues make excellent spymasters because of their generous skill allotments and their propensity for sneakiness.

Likewise, rangers have an edge when operating as spymasters in outdoor surroundings.

However, a character of any class can become a spymaster—the more unlikely the combination may seem, the better the cover it provides.

Some wizards and sorcerers use their spell ability as a cover for subterfuge, and some barbarians are far more subtle than they seem.

Spymasters can be of any alignment.

They range from self-serving information brokers who sell their services to the highest bidder to high-minded moles who penetrate and destroy corrupt organizations.

It's important for a spymaster to keep her personal emotions distinct from her professional attachments.

She must be ready to liquidate someone she has come to like without a moment's thought if so ordered.

Betrayal is her business, and her loyalty is always to her mission, not to the people she encounters while carrying it out.

Occasionally, a spymaster may find it expedient to infiltrate an adventuring party heading for the area where her real mission lies.

In such a case, she behaves in all ways as a loyal party member until her goals and those of her companions diverge.

Adaptation: Nearly undetectable and constantly covering their tracks, spymasters are easily included in a campaign as single NPCs or villains.

Spymasters work best on their own or with a small group of adventuring companions of other classes, so incorporating them into a campaign doesn't usually involve creating spymaster-specific organizations.

Rather, spymasters serve as the eyes and ears of many organizations.

Several of the organizations described in Chapter 6 of this book might make use of one or more high-level spymasters to train other members, keep tabs on rival organizations, and undertake special missions not suitable for the talents of their regular members.

Every kingdom has or wants as many spymasters in its employ as possible, and many who have the talent for such work find themselves carefully watched and encouraged by agents of the crown.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a spymaster, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Bluff 8 ranks, Diplomacy 4 ranks, Disguise 8 ranks, Forgery 4 ranks, Gather Information 4 ranks, Sense Motive 4 ranks.

Feat: Skill Focus (Bluff).

CLASS SKILLS

The spymaster's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (local) (Int), Knowledge (nobility and royalty) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Speak Language (n/a), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), Use Magic Device (Cha), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the spymaster prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Spymasters are proficient with all simple and martial weapons and with light and medium armor.

Cover Identity (Ex): A spymaster has one specific cover identity (such as "Murek, the tailor from Sumberton"). While operating in that identity, she gains a +4 circumstance bonus on Disguise checks and a +2 circumstance bonus on Bluff and Gather Information checks.

A spymaster can add an additional cover identity to her repertoire at 4th level and another at 7th level.

Should a spymaster wish to "retire" a cover identity and develop a new one, she must spend one week rigorously practicing subtle vocal intonations and body language before she earns the bonuses.

Cover identities do not in themselves provide the spymaster with additional skills, proficiencies, or class features that others might expect of the professions pretended.

Thus, a spymaster must be careful to choose identities that can withstand ordinary scrutiny.

Undetectable Alignment (Ex): The web of different identities and agendas inside a spymaster's mind makes it impossible for others to detect her alignment by means of any form of divination.

This ability functions like an undetectable alignment spell, except that it is always active.

Quick Change (Ex): By 2nd level, a spymaster has become adept at quickly switching from one identity to another. She now can don a disguise in one-tenth the normal time (1d3 minutes) and don or remove armor in one-half the normal time.

Scrying Defense (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a spymaster adds her class level to Will saves against divination (scrying) spells, as well as to Spot checks made to notice the sensors created by such spells.

Magic Aura (Sp): At 3rd level, a spymaster gains the ability to use Nystul's magic aura at will with a caster level equal to her class level.

Most spymasters use this ability to shield their own magic items from detection.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a spymaster deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or any time the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus. This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 6th level.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook. If a spymaster gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Slippery Mind (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a spymaster has a second chance to wriggle free from any enchantment spells and effects.

See the rogue class feature, page 51 of the Player's Handbook.

Dispel Scrying (Su): At 5th level and higher, a spymaster can dispel a scrying sensor as if casting a targeted greater dispel magic.

Her caster level is equal to her class level + 10.

She can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Intelligence modifier.

Deep Cover (Ex): At 7th level, a spymaster becomes able to quiet her mind and completely immerse herself in her cover identity.

While she operates under deep cover, divination spells detect only information appropriate to her cover identity; they reveal nothing relating to her spymaster persona.

TABLE 2-21: THE SPYMASTER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Cover identity, undetectable alignment
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Quick change, scrying defense
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Magic aura, sneak attack +1d6
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Cover identity, slippery mind
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Dispel scrying
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Sneak attack +2d6
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	Cover identity, deep cover

STREETFIGHTER

Streetfighters have found a place, and even some small amount of fame, among the shadowy and dangerous regions of the world's great cities.

Some leave their homes, putting their skills to the test against dangerous monsters in lost tombs or fighting for sport in front of the nobility, but they always remember the lessons of the streets.

Streetfighters never rest easy.

They have seen violence and depravity to rival any dungeon adventurer, and they have survived because they never let their guard down.

Rather than leaving a streetfighter suspicious or spent, this experience has forged his mind and body into that of a lean, quick-thinking combatant capable of seizing any advantage in battle.

Most streetfighters are fighter/rogues who have had to survive in dangerous urban environments their entire lives. Perhaps the strangest streetfighters are barbarians and rangers who adopt urban environments as their chosen homes.

These wild men and women seek the challenges of the back alleys as a way of testing themselves and their experience in the wider world against the street smarts and tough talk of the city.

Very few spellcasters have the bravado or the melee skill to become streetfighters.

Adaptation: With a few simple changes, the streetfighter prestige class can be used to represent any group of opportunistic fighters.

Just change the description of the class, and it might be associated with a school of gladiatorial training in a city's elite urban patrol.

Adding the Weapon Focus or Weapon Finesse feats to the requirements can also bring about large changes in the feel of the class.

Weapon Focus (dagger) turns a streetfighter into a knife fighter, while Weapon Focus (rapier) makes the class well suited to a school of fencers from an urban environment.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a streetfighter, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Bluff 5 ranks, Intimidate 5 ranks, Knowledge (local) 5 ranks.

Feats: Combat Expertise, Improved Feint.

CLASS SKILLS

The streetfighter's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Disable Device (Int), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (local) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), and Tumble (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the streetfighter prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Streetfighters gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Always Ready (Ex): A streetfighter knows that an attack can come from any quarter, and that an innocuous conversation can turn into a deadly fight in an instant.

Accordingly, he gains a +1 competence bonus on initiative checks.

This bonus increases to +2 at 3rd level and to +3 at 5th level.

Streetwise (Ex): A streetfighter knows how to survive in dangerous urban areas; he gains a +2 competence bonus on Gather Information and Knowledge (local) checks.

Stand Tough (Ex): A streetfighter's toughness has been honed by years of hard living and dirty fighting.

Starting at 2nd level, a streetfighter can stand tough once per day.

When he would be damaged in combat (from a weapon or some other blow, but not from a spell or special ability), he can attempt to shake off the damage.

To do this, he must attempt a Fortitude saving throw against a DC equal to the number of points of damage dealt.

If the save succeeds, he takes no lethal damage from the blow, instead taking nonlethal damage equal to half the amount of damage the blow would have dealt.

If the save fails, he takes damage normally.

A streetfighter need not be aware of the impending attack to use this ability.

Starting at 4th level, a streetfighter can use this ability twice per day.

Sneak Attack (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a streetfighter deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or any time the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

If a streetfighter gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as levels of rogue), the bonuses on damage stack.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 5th level, a streetfighter cannot be caught flat-footed and reacts to danger before his senses would normally allow him to do so.

See the barbarian class feature, page 26 of the Player's Handbook.

If a streetfighter already has uncanny dodge from a different class, he gains improved uncanny dodge instead.

See the barbarian class feature, page 26 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 2-22: THE STREETFIGHTER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Always ready +1, streetwise
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Stand tough 1/day
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Always ready +2, sneak attack +1d6
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Stand tough 2/day
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Always ready +3, uncanny dodge

TEMPEST

A tempest is the point of calm within a whirling barrier of deadly blades.

Poets use colorful terms such as “dancing” to describe the movement of a tempest and her two blades, but mastery of this fighting style is not about dancing, nor is it about impressing anyone—least of all poets.

A tempest focuses on learning the secrets of two-weapon fighting for a single purpose: the destruction of her enemies.

Typically hardy individualists, tempests rarely learn their skills through formal training.

Instead, they master their art through constant application of its disciplines and experimentation on their foes.

Similarly, no matter how famous a tempest becomes, it's rare for one to take on students.

Their art, they say, is one that can be learned but never taught.

This prestige class is open to all classes and races.

Though tempests are rare, every humanoid race has boasted at least a few.

Even members of the smaller races can find the tempest's path appealing.

Elves make nimble, clever tempests whose Dexterity works to their advantage.

Dwarves are the least likely to become tempests, perhaps because they favor heavy armor and heavy weapons, but some do exist.

Adaptation: Elite two-weapon fighters could be trained in many schools and kingdoms.

An interesting way to incorporate tempests into a campaign world involves having several groups of tempests specialize in different pairs of weapons.

Elf war leaders might train to perfect their grace and effectiveness with two short swords, while an exotic group of human warriors might prefer a handaxe and a kukri.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a tempest, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Feats: Dodge, Improved Two-Weapon Fighting, Mobility, Spring Attack, Two-Weapon Fighting.

CLASS SKILLS

The tempest's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Jump (Str), Sleight of Hand (Dex), and Tumble (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the tempest prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Tempests gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Tempest Defense (Ex): When wielding a double weapon or two weapons (not including natural weapons or unarmed strikes), a tempest gains a +1 bonus to Armor Class.

This bonus increases to +2 at 3rd level and +3 at 5th level.

The character loses this ability when fighting in medium or heavy armor.

Ambidexterity (Ex): For a tempest of 2nd level or higher, her attack penalties for fighting with two weapons are lessened by 1 (from -4 to -3, or from -2 to -1 if the off-hand weapon is a light weapon).

At 4th level, the attack penalties are lessened by another 1 (from -3 to -2, or to +0 if the off-hand weapon is a light weapon).

The character loses this ability when fighting in medium or heavy armor.

See Table 8-10: Two-Weapon Fighting Penalties, page 160 of the Player's Handbook.

Two-Weapon Versatility (Ex): When a tempest of 3rd level or higher fights with two weapons, she can apply the effects of certain feats from one weapon to the other weapon as well, as long as those effects can be applied legally.

She can use this ability only with the following feats: Greater Weapon Focus, Greater Weapon Specialization, Improved Critical, Weapon Focus, and Weapon Specialization.

For example, a tempest who wields a longsword and a short sword and who has the Weapon Focus (longsword) feat can apply the effect of Weapon Focus to her short sword as well as to her longsword.

If a tempest already has the feat with both weapons, she gains no additional effect.

Two-Weapon Spring Attack (Ex): When a 5th-level tempest makes a spring attack, she can attack once each with two different weapons as an attack action.

The character loses this ability when fighting in medium or heavy armor.

TABLE 2–23: THE TEMPEST

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Tempest defense +1
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Ambidexterity (–3/–1)
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Tempest defense +2, two-weapon versatility
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Ambidexterity (–2/+0)
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Tempest defense +3, two-weapon spring attack

THIEF-ACROBAT

A thief-acrobat excels in getting in and getting out. If every street-level entrance to the Jewelers' Guildhouse is locked and well guarded, a thief-acrobat simply jumps atop the building from the roof of a nearby inn, throws a grappling hook to the highest minaret, runs up the attached rope to a shuttered window, and quickly picks the lock.

Should a thief-acrobat's escape go awry once she has the goods, her gymnastic combat style keeps her out of harm's way.

Most thief-acrobats are rogues who worked their way up through the ranks of the local thieves guild before learning the second-story trade from more experienced burglars. Characters of other classes—particularly barbarians and illusionists—often find that the acrobatics and climbing skills of the thief-acrobat prestige class complement their abilities nicely.

Adventuring parties often encounter an NPC thief-acrobat in the middle of committing a crime.

Sometimes, however, thief-acrobats hire adventurers to help them with particularly dangerous capers, or even to create diversions while they work.

Adaptation: Guilds of thieves large and small could have an elite cadre of cat burglars and second-story people.

Changing the class's name slightly can have a great impact on how the prestige class is perceived in your game.

Despite its name, members of the thief-acrobat class might have nothing to do with thievery.

Labeling the class "adventuring acrobat" or something similar gives the class a reason to exist that has little to do with high-level burglaries.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a thief-acrobat, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Balance 8 ranks, Climb 8 ranks, Jump 8 ranks, Tumble 8 ranks.

Special: Evasion class feature.

CLASS SKILLS

The thief-acrobat's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Perform (Cha), Search (Int), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the thief-acrobat prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Thief-acrobats are proficient with all simple weapons.

Fast Acrobatics (Ex): A thief-acrobat can avoid the normal penalties for accelerated movement while using her acrobatic talents.

She ignores the normal –5 penalty when making a Balance check while moving at her full normal speed.

She can climb at half her speed as a move action without taking a –5 penalty on her Climb check.

Finally, she can tumble at her full speed without taking the normal –10 penalty on her Tumble check.

Kip Up (Ex): A thief-acrobat can stand up from a prone position as a free action that doesn't provoke attacks of opportunity.

This ability works only if the thief-acrobat wears light or no armor and carries no more than a light load.

Steady Stance (Ex): A thief-acrobat remains stable on her feet when others have difficulty standing.

She is not considered flat-footed while balancing or climbing, and she adds her class level as a bonus on Balance or Climb checks to remain balancing or climbing when she takes damage.

Agile Fighting (Ex): A whirling, spinning thief-acrobat is a devilishly difficult target.

Starting at 2nd level, a thief-acrobat gains a +1 dodge bonus to Armor Class.

When fighting defensively or using total defense, this bonus becomes +2.

At 4th level, these bonuses increase by 1 (to +2 and +3, respectively).

In addition, a thief-acrobat takes no penalty to her Armor Class or on her melee attack rolls when kneeling, sitting, or prone.

This ability works only if a thief-acrobat wears light or no armor and carries no more than a light load.

Slow Fall (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, a thief-acrobat reduces the effective distance of falls by 20 feet.

At 4th level, this improves to reduce the effective distance of falls by 30 feet.

See the monk class feature, page 41 of the Player's Handbook.

If a thief-acrobat has this ability from another class, the distances stack to determine the effective reduction of the falling distance.

Acrobatic Charge (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a thief-acrobat can charge in situations where others cannot.

She can charge over difficult terrain that normally slows movement or through allies blocking her path.

This ability enables her to charge across a cluttered battlefield, leap down from a ledge, or swing across a chasm to get to her target.

Depending on the circumstance, she may still need to make appropriate checks (such as Jump, Tumble, or Use Rope checks) to successfully move over the terrain.

Defensive Roll (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, once per day a thief-acrobat can roll with a potentially lethal blow to take less damage from it than she otherwise would.

See the rogue class feature, page 51 of the Player's Handbook.

At 5th level, a thief-acrobat can use this ability twice per day.

Skill Mastery (Ex): At 4th level, a thief-acrobat has become so confident in the use of certain skills that she can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

When making a Balance, Climb, Jump, or Tumble check, she can take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent her from doing so.
 Improved Evasion (Ex): A 5th-level thief-acrobat can avoid damage from certain attacks with a successful Reflex save and takes only half damage on a failed save.
 See the monk class feature, page 42 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 2–24: THE THIEF-ACROBAT

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Fast acrobatics, kip up, steady stance
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Agile fighting +1/+2, slow fall 20 ft.
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Acrobatic charge, defensive roll 1/day
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Agile fighting +2/+3, skill mastery, slow fall 30 ft.
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Defensive roll 2/day, improved evasion

VIGILANTE

Some vigilantes have suffered personally at the hands of criminals and are bent on revenge. Others have lost loved ones to knives in the alleyway. Still others are atoning for the time they spent on the wrong side of the law. But they all have one thing in common: a burning desire to solve crimes and bring criminals to justice. The vigilante combines magical and mundane investigative techniques to assess a crime scene. He is adept at learning “the word on the street” about a crime, analyzing clues, and identifying likely suspects. Once on the trail, he relentlessly tails, apprehends, and interrogates a suspect until the truth comes out. Many vigilantes work for the local ruler or the city guard; others are independent detectives-for-hire. Some even take to the streets by night to stop crimes in progress—or to keep would-be criminals from striking in the first place. A bard or rogue can quickly pick up the variety of skills a vigilante needs. Rangers find the class appealing because it allows them to engage in urban hunts with criminals as their prey, but they must typically multiclass as bards or rogues to qualify. Some would-be vigilantes add one or more levels of fighter or paladin to aid their combat prowess. An NPC vigilante might turn up just in time to save the player characters from becoming crime victims themselves. However, if they break the law on a vigilante’s home turf, they may find themselves under his unwelcome scrutiny. Adaptation: Although members of this class usually work alone, that need not be the case in every campaign. Any highly trained group of professional adventurers, bounty hunters, or even assassins could include members of the vigilante class, especially if you remove the alignment restriction.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a vigilante, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonevil.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Gather Information 8 ranks, Intimidate 4 ranks, Knowledge (local) 8 ranks, Search 4 ranks, Sense Motive 8 ranks.

Feats: Alertness.

CLASS SKILLS

The vigilante’s class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (local) (Int), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Perform (Cha), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the vigilante prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Vigilantes are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, plus the net. They are not proficient with any type of armor or shields.

Detect Evil (Sp): A vigilante can use detect evil at will. See the spell, page 218 of the Player's Handbook.

Spells per Day: A vigilante has the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells.

To cast a vigilante spell, a vigilante must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell’s level, so if he has a Charisma of 10 or lower, he cannot cast these spells.

Bonus spells are based on Charisma, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the vigilante’s Cha modifier.

When a vigilante gets 0 spells per day of a given level (for instance, 1st-level spells at 1st level), he gains only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Charisma score for that spell level.

The vigilante spell list appears below.

A vigilante casts spells just as a bard does.

A vigilante’s selection of spells is extremely limited.

A vigilante begins play knowing two 1st-level spells of his choice.

At most new vigilante levels, he gains one or more new spells known as indicated on Table 2–25: Vigilante Spells Known.

TABLE 2–26: VIGILANTE SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	2*	—	—	—
2nd	3	—	—	—
3rd	3	2*	—	—
4th	4	3	—	—
5th	4	3	2*	—
6th	4	4	3	—
7th	4	4	3	2*
8th	4	4	4	3
9th	4	4	4	3
10th	4	4	4	4

*Provided the vigilante has a high enough Charisma to have a bonus spell of this level.

(Unlike spells per day, the number of spells a vigilante knows is not affected by his Charisma score).

Upon reaching 6th level, and at every even-numbered level after that, a vigilante can choose to learn a new spell in place of one he already knows.

This works identically to the bard's ability to learn new spells in the place of old ones (see page 28 of the Player's Handbook).

A vigilante's spell list includes all spells from the bard spell list that belong to the following schools: abjuration, divination, illusion, necromancy, and transmutation. The spell list below includes all spells from the Player's Handbook and this book that qualify.

(Treat 0-level bard spells as 1st-level vigilante spells).

Streetwise (Ex): A vigilante knows how to survive in dangerous urban areas.

He gains a +2 competence bonus on Gather Information and Knowledge (local) checks.

At 7th level, this bonus improves to +4.

Smite the Guilty (Su): Starting at 2nd level, a vigilante can attempt to smite someone whom he has personally witnessed committing a crime in his home city.

He can use this ability once per day.

He adds his Charisma bonus (if any) to his melee attack roll and deals an extra 1 point of damage per vigilante level.

The smite attack must occur within three days of the crime; otherwise, the benefits of this ability no longer apply.

A vigilante can use this ability multiple times against the same miscreant and in response to the same incident, so long as all such uses occur within the time limit.

Should a vigilante mistakenly try to punish someone who is not guilty of the crime witnessed, the benefits do not apply, but the attempt still counts against the number allowed per day.

A vigilante can use this ability twice per day at 6th level and three times per day at 10th level.

Quick Search (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a vigilante can search a 5-foot-by-5-foot area or a volume of goods 5 feet on a side as a move action, rather than as a full-round action.

Speak with Dead (Sp): Starting at 4th level, a vigilante can use Speak with Dead once per day.

His caster level equals his class level.

Quick Hide (Ex): At 5th level and higher, a vigilante can use Bluff to create a diversion to hide as a move action, rather than as a standard action.

He gains a +4 bonus on Bluff checks made for this purpose.

Dimensional Anchor (Sp): Starting at 8th level, a vigilante can use dimensional anchor once per day.

His caster level equals his class level.

Mettle (Ex): Starting at 9th level, a vigilante's grim determination allows him to shrug off magical effects that would otherwise harm him.

If a vigilante makes a successful Will or Fortitude saving throw that would normally reduce the spell's effect (such as any spell with a saving throw entry of Will partial or Fortitude half), he instead negates the effect.

An unconscious or sleeping vigilante does not gain the benefit of mettle.

VIGILANTE SPELL LIST

1st Level: accelerated movement†, alarm, animate rope, cause fear, comprehend languages, detect magic, detect secret doors, disguise self, distort speech†, erase, expeditious retreat, swift expeditious retreat†, feather fall, ghost sound, identify, joyful noise†, know direction, mage hand, magic mouth, master's touch†, mending, message, Nystul's magic aura, obscure object, open/close, prestidigitation, read magic, remove fear, resistance, silent image, undetectable alignment, ventriloquism.

2nd Level: alter self, bladeweave†, blindness/deafness, blur, cat's grace, detect thoughts, eagle's splendor, swift fly†, fox's cunning, hypnotic pattern, invisibility, swift invisibility†, iron silence†, locate object, minor image, mirror image, misdirection, pyrotechnics, scare, silence, sonic weapon†, tactical precision†, tongues, whispering wind.

3rd Level: allegro†, blink, clairaudience/clairvoyance, dispel magic, displacement, fear, gaseous form, glibness, haste, illusory script, invisibility sphere, major image, remove curse, screaming, sculpt sound, secret page, see invisibility, slow, speak with animals, speechlink†.

4th Level: break enchantment, detect scrying, freedom of movement, hallucinatory terrain, greater invisibility, legend lore, listening coin†, locate creature, rainbow pattern, repel vermin, shadow conjuration, speak with plants, spectral weapon†, zone of silence.

† New spell described in Chapter 5.

TABLE 2-25: THE VIGILANTE

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Detect evil , streetwise +2	0	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Smite the guilty 1/day	1	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Quick search	2	0	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Speak with dead	3	1	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Quick hide	3	2	0	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Smite the guilty 2/day	3	3	1	—
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Streetwise +4	3	3	20	—
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Dimensional anchor	3	3	31	—
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Mettle	3	3	32	—
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Smite the guilty 3/day	3	3	33	—

VIRTUOSO

The roar of the crowd, the praise of spectators after a truly great performance, the showers of gifts from attractive admirers—why would anyone trade all that for sleeping in the woods or poking around in smelly old dungeons?

The virtuoso leaves creeping down dark corridors and matching wits against deadly traps to others.

His place is on the stage, surrounded by adoring fans.

Fortunately for him, every place he goes becomes a stage, and so long as there's anyone around for him to impress, he's in the spotlight.

The typical virtuoso is outgoing, charismatic, and gregarious.

He loves to be around people and is quick to win friends with his charming manner.

Some might call him a temperamental egomaniac, yet everyone feels a little better in his presence.

Many virtuosos are musicians; others are accomplished dancers or actors.

Still others choose to specialize in obscure and unusual forms of entertainment, such as stage magic or juggling. Bards are most often drawn to this prestige class, although multiclass rogue/sorcerers or rogue/clerics can also excel in it.

Bards tend to perform as musicians or actors, rogues as either dancers or sleight-of-hand artists, sorcerers as stage magicians, and clerics as orators.

Characters of most other classes are either not outgoing enough to enjoy being virtuosos, or they find other outlets for their extroverted tendencies.

Since entertainers are often on the road, an NPC virtuoso can be encountered anywhere, incorporating as much adventuring into his journeys as he wishes.

Because of his talent for winning admirers, he usually remains above suspicion should anything underhanded take place in a town he is visiting on tour.

Adaptation: The virtuoso prestige class can play many different roles in a campaign.

In one world, members of a specific bardic college might all be members of the class.

In another, virtuosos might be dedicated to magic, not music.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a virtuoso, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Diplomacy 4 ranks, Intimidate 4 ranks, Perform (any) 10 ranks.

Spells: Arcane caster level 1st.

CLASS SKILLS

The virtuoso's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Perform (Cha), Spellcraft (Int), and Tumble (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the virtuoso prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Virtuosos gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Bardic Music: Virtuoso levels stack with bard levels for the purpose of determining the virtuoso's daily uses of his bardic music abilities (if any) and the value of the bonus granted by inspire courage (if the virtuoso has that bardic music ability).

For example, a 10th-level bard/4th-level virtuoso could use bardic music fourteen times per day, and his inspire courage ability would grant a +3 morale bonus on the appropriate rolls.

A virtuoso also gains the fascinate bardic music ability, if he doesn't already have it.

He can use his performance to cause one or more creatures to become fascinated with him.

See the bard class feature, page 29 of the Player's Handbook.

Virtuoso Performance (Su): A virtuoso can use his Perform skill to create magical effects on those around him.

He can use this ability once per day per virtuoso level.

He can use any form of performance as part of this ability.

Although many of the names refer to musical performances, a virtuoso isn't actually so limited—for example, an actor could perform a “sustaining soliloquy” or “sustaining dance” rather than a sustaining song.

Each ability requires both a minimum virtuoso level and a minimum number of ranks in any Perform skill to qualify.

If a virtuoso does not have the required number of ranks in at least one Perform skill, he does not gain the virtuoso performance ability until he acquires the needed ranks.

Starting a virtuoso performance effect is a standard action.

Some virtuoso performance abilities require concentration, which means that the virtuoso must take a standard action each round to maintain the ability.

Unlike with bardic music, virtuoso performance doesn't restrict a virtuoso's spellcasting or magic item activation.

If a virtuoso's performance requires sound, a deaf virtuoso has a 20% chance to fail when attempting to use virtuoso performance.

If he fails, the attempt still counts against his daily limit.

If a virtuoso has the bardic music class feature, he can spend two daily uses of bardic music to deliver a virtuoso performance.

Persuasive Song (Ex): A virtuoso with at least 11 ranks in a Perform skill can deliver a performance that sways the attitude of his audience.

Treat this as a Diplomacy check made to influence NPC attitudes (see pages 71–72 of the Player's Handbook), but replace the Diplomacy check with a Perform check.

Viewers must be within 30 feet of the virtuoso, be able to see and hear him clearly, and be willingly paying attention to his actions.

This ability requires at least 10 consecutive rounds of concentration to take effect, and it can affect a particular creature only once per day.

Hostile audience members can't be influenced with this ability.

Sustaining Song (Su): A virtuoso of 3rd level or higher with at least 13 ranks in a Perform skill can sustain his dying allies, assisting their recovery.

Each round that the song continues, all allies within 30 feet of him automatically become stable (if dying) or regain 1 hit point (if stable and between –1 and –9 hit points).

A sustaining song has no effect on enemies or on allies with 0 or more hit points.

A virtuoso can keep up his sustaining song for 5 minutes. This is a mind-affecting ability.

Jarring Song (Su): A virtuoso of 5th level or higher with at least 15 ranks in a Perform skill can inhibit spellcasting. Any enemy within 30 feet attempting to cast a spell during a jarring song must make a Concentration check with a DC equal to the virtuoso's Perform check to avoid losing the spell.

A virtuoso can keep up his jarring song for 10 rounds.

Song of Fury (Su): A virtuoso of 7th level or higher with at least 17 ranks in a Perform skill can use his performance to turn his allies into furious berserkers.

Each ally within 30 feet who can see and hear the virtuoso can choose to enter a rage on her turn.

This functions identically to a barbarian's rage, except that it ends automatically if the virtuoso stops performing.

If the ally already has the ability to rage, she can choose to apply the full effect of her own rage, without spending one of her daily uses of rage.

A virtuoso can't use song of fury on himself.

This is a mind-affecting ability.

Mindbending Melody (Sp): A virtuoso of 9th level or higher with at least 19 ranks in a Perform skill can dominate a humanoid that he has already fascinated.

This ability functions like a dominate person spell with a caster level equal to the virtuoso's class level.

The target can make a Will save (DC 10 + virtuoso's class level + virtuoso's Cha modifier) to negate the effect.

A mindbending melody is a mind-affecting, language-dependent, enchantment (compulsion) ability.

Revealing Melody (Su): A 10th-level virtuoso with at least 20 ranks in a Perform skill can use his performance to reveal all things as they actually are.

All allies within 30 feet who can see and hear the virtuoso's performance are affected as if by a true seeing spell with a caster level equal to the virtuoso's class level.

The effect lasts as long as the virtuoso performs.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: Beginning at 2nd level, a virtuoso gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a virtuoso, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

TABLE 2-27: THE VIRTUOSO

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Bardic music (fascinate), virtuoso performance (persuasive song)	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Virtuoso performance (sustaining song)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Virtuoso performance (jarring song)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Virtuoso performance (song of fury)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Virtuoso performance (mindbending melody)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Virtuoso performance (revealing melody)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

WILD PLAINS OUTRIDER

The wild plains demand constant vigilance from those who wander their spaces.

While moving through such areas, groups of nomads, adventurers, and even armies call upon the services of specially trained outriders.

These scouts and wanderers work tirelessly to keep the plains as safe as such remote places can be.

The many dangers of the plains necessitate trust between mount and rider, and the two must move as one—whether on a week-long trek covering hundreds of miles or in a short, bloody combat against a group of goblins.

The wild plains outriders, a group of powerful rangers and druids who have gathered together to protect the plains and those who cross them, work to perfect this bond between mount and rider.

Joining the wild plains outriders requires a special bond with a mount of some kind, so all outriders must have at least a few levels of druid, ranger, or paladin.

Beyond that requirement, the life of an outrider demands survival, tracking, and combat skills that appeal more to rangers than to members of other classes.

Although barbarians and scouts must multiclass before gaining levels in the outrider prestige class, they often find the class appealing.

Barbarians are drawn to the class because of an outrider's ability to travel great distances with a trusted mount and because of their strong survival skills; scouts find that the outrider's skills and abilities mesh well with their own expertise.

Adaptation: The wild plains outrider prestige class can be tailored easily to fit a specific campaign, race, culture, or organization.

Simply add a minor aspect to the requirements.

For example, specifying that an outrider's animal companion or special mount must have a fly speed and changing the name of the class to the "Skythunder outrider" makes it a better fit for a reclusive but powerful tribe of goblins called the Skythunder tribe.

Similar changes can make the class fit dwarf rangers on dire boars, elf foresters on giant lizards, or human nomads on wild horses.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a wild plains outrider, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Ride 9 ranks.

Feats: Mounted Combat, Track.

Special: Animal companion large enough to serve as a mount, or a paladin's special mount.

CLASS SKILLS

The wild plains outrider's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Handle Animal (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Ride (Dex), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the wild plains outrider prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wild plains outriders gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Animal Companion/Special Mount: A wild plains outrider adds his outrider class levels to his effective druid level (his actual druid level or one-half his ranger level) to determine the capabilities of his animal companion.

Alternatively, he can add his outrider class levels to his effective paladin level to determine the capabilities of his special mount.

However, he can only use one of these abilities.

The choice must be made when the character enters the wild plains outrider class and can never be changed.

Ride Bonus (Ex): A wild plains outrider gains a competence bonus equal to his class level on all Ride checks, as well as on Handle Animal checks made in conjunction with his animal companion mount or special mount.

Wild Plains Stalker (Ex): A wild plains outrider knows how to move a mount stealthily through nearly any terrain.

His mount uses the outrider's skill ranks, rather than its own, to make Hide and Move Silently checks.

The mount still uses its own size, Dexterity, armor check penalty, and other applicable modifiers when making such checks.

Wild Plains Swiftsness (Ex): A wild plains outrider knows how to draw every bit of speed possible from a mount.

At 2nd level and higher, a wild plains outrider (while mounted) increases his mount's base speed by 10 feet.

This increase affects every movement mode the mount has, including fly, climb, and swim speeds.

Wild Plains Offensive (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a wild plains outrider can make a full attack with a melee weapon as long as his mount takes only a single move.

Multiclassing Note: A paladin can multiclass as a wild plains outrider without losing her ability to take additional levels in paladin.

TABLE 2-28: THE WILD PLAINS OUTRIDER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Animal companion/special mount, ride bonus, wild plains stalker
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Wild plains swiftsness
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Wild plains offensive

COMPLETE ARCANES (3.5)

ACOLYTE OF THE SKIN

The temptation of power drives some people to extreme lengths, regardless of the consequences.

Replacing your own skin with that of a living demon is a goal that most couldn't even conceive of, let alone consider. But this ghastly fate is exactly what some spellcasters seek in their desperate quest.

The Ritual of Bonding is a blasphemy that was long ago eradicated from most arcane libraries, but a few barely legible copies—or at least references thereto—survive along with promises of great power.

Spellcasters who happen upon such documents can choose to destroy or ignore the find, but the temptation has already occurred.

Those who give in can eventually stumble upon the complete ritual, usually through extended contact with one or more summoned fiends that are all too eager to share their terrible knowledge.

The Ritual of Bonding is painful and not to be undertaken lightly.

The ritual requires 10 rounds from initiation to completion, and, once begun, nothing can halt its progress.

The fiendish essence consumes the caster's own skin, an agonizing process that deals 1d4 points of damage in each round of the ritual—wise candidates keep some cure potions on hand.

At the end of the rite, the acolyte's skin sports an oily, almost unnoticeable sheen.

However, as he gains additional levels in the prestige class, his skin darkens, sprouts spikes, and gradually gives him a fiendish visage.

The fiendish essence also begins to whisper foul secrets to its wearer, urging him to evil.

(The wearer can accept or ignore this advice according to his temperament).

Acolytes of the skin are ill suited for any position other than one that provides temporal power.

Although NPC acolytes might sometimes serve more powerful evil characters as sinister captains, they would rather be calling the shots.

They prefer to remain safely ensconced in well-defended fortresses of evil, though sometimes an acolyte might lead an expedition to retrieve a rumored tome of evil arcane magic or other artifact of malign power.

Adaptation: Almost any setting can accommodate the notion of those who go to any length to grab power for themselves, even so far as to bind demons to their own flesh.

If your world does not include demons, per se, you could link this class to some other malign force or race of supernatural evil creatures instead of demons.

For instance, an acolyte of the skin could be a scholar who unearths an ancient treatise on the topic of humanoid interspecies blending.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an acolyte of the skin, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nongood.

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 6 ranks.

Spells or Spell-Like Abilities: Caster level 5th.

Special: Must have made peaceful contact with a summoned evil outsider.

Special: Must undergo the Ritual of Bonding (see above).

CLASS SKILLS

The acolyte of the skin's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the acolyte of the skin prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Acolytes of the skin gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each even-numbered level, an acolyte of the skin gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, a bonus feat, and so on).

If he had more than one spellcasting class before becoming an acolyte of the skin, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Wear Fiend (Su): An acolyte of the skin summons the essence of a fiend and wears it like a second skin.

The bonded fiendish skin is for all intents and purposes the character's own.

It increases the acolyte of the skin's natural armor bonus by 1 and grants a +2 inherent bonus to Dexterity.

The acolyte also gains darkvision out to 60 feet.

The DM determines the actual nature of the skin, be it demonic, devilish, or from some other fiendish creature.

Poison (Sp): An acolyte of the skin can use poison once per day as an 8th-level caster.

The save DC is 14 + the acolyte's primary spellcasting ability modifier (Intelligence for wizards, Charisma for sorcerers and warlocks, Wisdom for clerics, and so forth).

At 5th level, an acolyte can use this ability two times per day.

Flame Resistant (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, the fiendish skin binds more tightly, granting an acolyte resistance to fire 10.

Fiendish Glare (Su): From 3rd level on, an acolyte of the skin has the supernatural ability to unnerve opponents with a ferocious glare once per day.

This is not a gaze attack, and the target need not meet the acolyte's eyes or even see the acolyte (although the acolyte must have line of effect to the target).

Glaring is a standard action that affects any creature the acolyte can see within 100 feet.

The target becomes shaken for 10 minutes, and must also attempt a Will save (DC 10 + acolyte's class level + Cha modifier) or be stunned.

The duration of the stun effect depends on the target's hit points:

50 or less	10 rounds
51 to 100	3 rounds
101 to 150	2 rounds
151 or more	1 round

Fiendish glare is a mind-affecting fear effect.

Skin Adaptation (Su): By 5th level, an acolyte's skin and its wearer have grown more comfortable together, as if they had never been separate.

The increase to natural armor granted by the fiendish skin improves to +2, the acolyte gains a +2 inherent bonus to Constitution, and the acolyte's darkvision is effective out to 120 feet.

Cold Resistant (Ex): Beginning at 6th level, an acolyte has resistance to cold 10.

Glare of the Pit (Su): At 7th level and higher, an acolyte has the supernatural ability to produce fiery rays from his eyes.

Once per day as a standard action, he can project two rays (one from each eye) with a range of 100 feet.

Each ray requires a ranged touch attack to hit and deals 8d6 points of fire damage.

The rays can be aimed at two different targets within range, but the target of each ray must be designated simultaneously.

Summon Fiend (Sp): At 9th level, an acolyte learns to draw on another power of his fiendish skin.

If the skin is demonic, once per day he can summon a babau; if devilish, once per day he can summon a chain devil.

The summoned creature does the acolyte's bidding, but it automatically returns whence it came after 1 hour.

A summoned creature cannot use any innate summoning abilities it might have.

An acolyte's caster level for this ability is equal to his spellcaster level.

Fiendish Symbiosis (Ex): At 10th level, the fiendish skin and acolyte become one, and only final death can separate them.

The acolyte's type changes to outsider.

Additionally, an acolyte of this level gains damage reduction 10/good.

Unlike other outsiders, an acolyte can be raised or resurrected.

TABLE 2-2: THE ACOLYTE OF THE SKIN

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Wear fiend, poison 1/day	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Flame resistant	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Fiendish glare	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Skin adaptation, poison 2/day	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Cold resistant	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Glare of the pit	—
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	Summon fiend	—
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Fiendish symbiosis	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

ALIENIST

Alienists deal with powers and entities from terrifyingly remote reaches of space and time.

For them, magical power is the triumph of the mind over the rude boundaries of dimension, distance, and often, sanity.

With knowledge and determination, they pierce the barrier at the edge of time itself.

In the Far Realm, outside time, Herculean minds drift, absorbed in contemplations of madness.

Unspeaking beings whisper terrifying secrets to those who dare communication.

These secrets were not meant for mortals, but the alienist plunges into abysses of chaos and entropy that would blast a weaker mind.

An alienist's mad certainty is sometimes strong enough to sway others to believe in her own future transcendence.

Alienists might, on rare occasions, gather in secluded groups to enact some obscure ritual, but more often they are encountered singly.

NPC alienists sometimes haunt libraries or specialty bookshops in large cities, skulking and mumbling among stacks of rare (and dangerous) volumes.

Adaptation: The inclusion of the alienist in your campaign world, as printed here, requires that you make some basic assumptions about the cosmology of your campaign: Places far worse than Hell exist in the multiverse, and even demons have more in common with characters than the entities that exist outside what is known, a mere glimpse of which can drive the sanity from someone's mind.

If you prefer that demons and devils retain their top seat in the hierarchy of evil, you can adjust this prestige class so that the alienist has congress with demons instead of the nebulous entities of the Far Realm.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an alienist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 8 ranks.

Feat: Augment Summoning.

Spells: Able to cast at least one summoning spell of 3rd level or higher.

Special: Must have made peaceful contact with an alienist or a pseudonatural creature.

CLASS SKILLS

The alienist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Gather Information (Cha),

Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis).
Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the alienist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Alienists gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level, an alienist gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, a bonus feat, and so on).

If she had more than one spellcasting class before becoming an alienist, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Familiar Abilities: Levels of alienist stack with levels of any class that provide access to a familiar.

Add levels from this class and the class that granted access to the familiar together and refer to the table on page 53 of the Player's Handbook to determine the familiar's natural armor, Intelligence, and special abilities.

If a character had levels in multiple classes that grant access to a familiar before becoming an alienist, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining the abilities of her familiar.

This ability does not grant an alienist a familiar if she does not already have one.

Summon Alien: Whenever an alienist would use any summon monster spell to summon a celestial or fiendish creature, she instead summons a pseudonatural version of that creature.

For example, by casting summon monster IV, she could summon a pseudonatural dire wolf.

This adds the pseudonatural template (see page 160) to the summoned creature.

An alienist gives up the ability to summon nonpseudonatural creatures with a summon monster spell.

For instance, the alienist described above couldn't summon a mephit or howler with summon monster IV.

Alien Blessing (Ex): An alienist who attains 2nd level gains a +1 insight bonus on all saving throws, but she permanently loses 2 points of Wisdom.

Metamagic Secret: An alienist listens to the secret voices whispering from beyond time's end, and profits thereby.

At 3rd and again at 7th level, she can choose any metamagic feat as a bonus feat.

Mad Certainty (Ex): At 4th level, an alienist's mad certainty in the power of entities beyond the reach of normal space and time lend her an unnatural fortitude, granting her an additional 3 hit points.

However, constantly dwelling on such beings is mentally corrosive, and the alienist's mind begins to fracture. She now takes a -4 penalty on all Bluff, Diplomacy, and Handle Animal checks made to influence nonpseudonatural creatures.

Pseudonatural Familiar: Beginning at 5th level, an alienist's familiar, if any, gains the pseudonatural template (see page 160) in addition to the powers and abilities normal for a familiar of the appropriate level.

This effect does not replace an existing familiar—the familiar has been slowly taking on pseudonatural aspects as the alienist rises in level, and those characteristics become fully functional at this point.

From now on, the alienist's newly summoned familiars already possess the pseudonatural template.

If an alienist has no familiar, this ability has no effect.

Extra Summoning: From 6th level on, an alienist gains one extra spell slot at her highest spell level.

This slot can be used only for a summon monster spell.

As an alienist becomes able to learn higher-level spells, the extra slot migrates up to the new highest level.

Insane Certainty (Ex): At 8th level, an alienist's mad certainty crystallizes into a truly chilling mania.

She gains an additional 3 hit points, but her mental faculties continue to degrade.

Her penalty on Bluff, Diplomacy, and Handle Animal checks made to influence nonpseudonatural creatures increases to -10.

Timeless Body (Ex): At 9th level, an alienist learns the secret of perpetual youth.

She no longer takes ability penalties for aging and cannot be magically aged (see Table 6-5, page 109 of the Player's Handbook).

Ability score bonuses from aging still accrue, and any penalties the alienist might have already taken remain in place.

An alienist is stolen away by horrible entities when her time is up, and she is never seen again.

Alien Transcendence (Su): A 10th-level alienist, because of long association with alien entities and intense study of insane secrets, transcends her mortal form and becomes an alien creature.

Her type changes to outsider.

Additionally, she gains damage reduction 10/magic and resistance to acid 10 and electricity 10.

Upon achieving alien transcendence, an alienist undergoes a minor physical change, usually growing a small tentacle or other strange feature, such as an extra appendage, organ, eye, or enigmatic lump.

An alienist can hide this abnormality in a robe or hood, but the alien growth is not under the alienist's control and sometimes moves, twitches, opens, or otherwise animates of its own accord.

This applies a -4 penalty on Disguise checks an alienist makes to conceal her true nature.

Anyone who shares an alienist's predilection for study of the Far Realms immediately recognizes her transcendent nature, and she gains a +2 circumstance bonus on all Charisma-based skill checks and ability checks when interacting with such beings.

She gains a +2 circumstance bonus on Intimidate checks involving any other creatures to whom she reveals her abnormal nature.

TABLE 2-3: THE ALIENIST

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Familiar abilities, summon alien	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Alien blessing	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Metamagic secret	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Mad certainty	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Pseudonatural familiar	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Extra summoning	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Metamagic secret	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Insane certainty	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Timeless body	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Alien transcendence	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

ARGENT SAVANT

Of all the energies summoned or shaped by magic, force is perhaps the most pure.

No analog for this power exists in the physical world; it comes into being only through the medium of spells, and therefore represents a perfection of intent that contradicts the imperfection of the everchanging world and its mutable elements.

Sometimes referred to as the "force mage", the argent savant regards spells that evoke or apply magical force as the noblest and most fascinating spells at her disposal, and she seeks to increase her understanding and control of this mystical power at every opportunity.

Most argent savants are evokers or abjurers, or sorcerers who choose a number of force spells as they advance in level.

Without some facility at the manipulation of magical force, a spellcaster cannot embark on the secret studies of the argent savant.

NPC argent savants sometimes join groups that aim to take on a powerful wizard or sorcerer who has protected his domicile with powerful wards of force.

Argent savants of sufficient ability can dissolve the force effects of others.

Adaptation: One way to make the argent savant different is to redirect her focus to the manipulation of energy other than force: acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic.

For instance, a fiery argent savant would gain a +2 competence bonus on attack rolls made with fire spells and a +2 bonus to Armor Class when casting any defensive spells due to a halo of protective flame. Fire spells with a duration longer than instantaneous would last longer, she could subtract her class level from any fire damage she takes, and she could dispel other fire spells.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an argent savant, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 6 ranks, Spellcraft 12 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast at least five spells with the force descriptor, at least one of which must be 5th level or higher.

CLASS SKILLS

The argent savant's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the argent savant prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Argent savants gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level after 1st, an argent savant gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If she had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming an argent savant, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Force Specialization: An argent savant gains a +2 competence bonus on attack rolls made with her force spells.

She also adds a +1 bonus to each die of damage dealt by spells she casts with the force descriptor.

If the force spell doesn't deal damage expressed by dice, she adds only a +1 bonus to the total damage dealt.

For example, a magic missile cast by a 9th-level wizard/1st-level argent savant deals 1d4+2 points of damage per missile.

A 9th-level wizard/4th-level argent savant deals 4d6+7 points of force damage with her Mordenkainen's sword spell. Force Armor (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, an argent savant gains more benefit from defensive force spells than other characters.

If she casts a force spell that provides an armor bonus or a shield bonus to Armor Class, she increases the spell's normal armor bonus by 2.

For example, mage armor normally adds an armor bonus of +4 to the caster's AC, but an argent savant with this ability who casts mage armor adds an armor bonus of +6 to her AC.

Enduring Force (Ex): Force spells cast by an argent savant of 3rd level or higher linger longer than normal, and they are more difficult to counter or dispel.

The duration of a force spell cast by the savant is doubled, as if the Extend Spell feat had been applied to it.

However, the spell's level and casting time are unchanged. The same restrictions that apply to extended spells apply to spells affected by enduring force.

In addition, the DC required to counter or dispel the argent savant's force spells increases by 4.

Ablate Force (Ex): Due to her improved understanding of magical force, an argent savant of 4th level or higher can prevent force damage to herself.

She subtracts her class level from damage dealt by any force spell or effect.

A force spell producing multiple attacks, such as magic missile, is considered a single attack for this purpose; deduct the savant's level from the total damage dealt by the spell, not the damage dealt by each individual missile.

Unbind Force (Su): At 5th level, an argent savant learns how to unweave a force spell or effect and liberate its magical energy.

As a standard action, she can attempt to dispel a single force spell or effect within 60 feet (even those normally immune to dispel magic, such as wall of force).

If she succeeds on a caster level check (DC 11 + opposing caster's level), the force effect is unbound.

This immediately dispels the effect and deals 1d6 points of force damage per level of the dispelled spell to all creatures and objects within 10 feet of the unbound spell.

For example, if an argent savant unbound another caster's wall of force, the liberated spell energy would deal 5d6 points of force damage to anyone within 10 feet of the wall's former location.

TABLE 2-4: THE ARGENT SAVANT

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Force specialization	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Force armor	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Extended force	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Ablate force	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Unbind force	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

BLOOD MAGUS

Death is the ultimate risk that spellcasters, like all adventurers, must contend with.

Some are cut down before they have a chance at true glory; others find true peace only in the afterlife; and others are brought back from death by companions with the powerful magical resources to perform such a miracle.

For a rare few such arcanists, this trip to the great beyond and back brings a new enlightenment—a comprehension of the body and its individual parts that transcends the understanding of those who have not experienced death and returned to tell the tale.

These newly raised spellcasters say that the first sound they hear upon returning to life is the pulse of life-giving blood in their veins.

To these fortunate few, this flow of blood through their veins is sweet music: the sound of life.

They can feel it reenergizing every particle of their form, flushing death away and leaving life in its place.

It is thick and warm, and they greedily embrace it.

Such arcane spellcasters become blood magi: formerly deceased spellcasters who, when returned to life, gain an understanding of their blood's importance, bequeathed by their close call.

They learn to evoke magic from this vital fluid that sustains their lives.

Blood magi cannot be trained, owing to the unusual nature of their enlightenment, and they are most likely to have first been sorcerers.

NPC blood magi are thus rarely, if ever, found in groups. They are more likely to be thinly scattered throughout a region's spellcaster population.

Adaptation: A twist on the blood magus as presented here would be to tie the class to some deity or entity.

Whenever the blood magus works his blood magic, he also gives blood sacrifice to the deity or entity so named, and it is through this bloody patron that the blood magus powers his magic.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a blood magus, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any but lawful good.

Skills: Concentration 4 ranks.

Feat: Great Fortitude, Toughness.

Spells or Spell-Like Abilities: Arcane caster level 5th.

Special: The character must have been killed, then returned to life.

CLASS SKILLS

The blood magus's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Heal (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the blood magus prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Blood magi gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level except 5th and 10th, a blood magus gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a blood magus, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Blood Component (Su): A blood magus can substitute a drop of his own blood for a spell's material components, if any, and in so doing increase the spell's power.

The pinprick or minor knife cut to draw the requisite blood is a free action (just like using material components) that becomes a normal part of casting the spell.

Using this ability deals 1 point of damage to the blood magus but raises the spell's caster level by 1.

Damage reduction, if the character has any, doesn't apply to this damage.

If a spell has a costly material component (greater than 1 gp), the component must still be provided.

If a spell has no material component, a blood magus can still use this ability to enhance a spell if he desires.

Durable Casting (Ex): A blood magus has a knack for being able to concentrate on casting spells and maintaining them despite taking damage while doing so.

For the purpose of making a Concentration check to cast, concentrate on, or direct a spell when he might be distracted by damage, a blood magus subtracts his level from any hit point damage dealt to him by an attack that strikes him during the action (or whenever he is subject to a source of continuous damage, such as Melf's acid arrow).

A blood magus still takes all the damage dealt to him, but the damage is less likely to affect his ability to cast, concentrate on, or direct spells successfully.

For example, a 1st-level blood magus can "ignore" 1 point of damage from each source that damages him while casting a spell for the purpose of determining the DC of his Concentration check to cast successfully.

If struck for 5 points of damage while casting a spell, he must make a Concentration check to successfully cast, but the DC is only 10 + 4 (damage dealt minus 1) + the spell's level.

A 5th-level blood magus could ignore up to 5 points of damage dealt from each source that damages him during casting (and thus wouldn't have to make a Concentration check if struck for 5 points of damage or less).

Because of this ability, damage a blood magus takes from using his blood component and bloodseeking spell special abilities never requires him to make a Concentration check to finish the spell he is casting.

Stanch (Ex): A blood magus automatically becomes stable when his hit points drop below 0.

He still dies if he reaches -10 hit points or lower.

Scarification (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, a blood magus can inscribe spells on his own skin for later use.

This process involves deeply scratching the skin (which deals no damage but often leaves scars).

The scratches remain fresh until the inscribed spell is cast, at which time the wound heals normally.

Effectively, a blood magus gains the Scribe Scroll feat (see page 99 of the Player's Handbook) using an alternative medium.

All rules, XP costs, and expenses that apply to Scribe Scroll also apply to this ability.

Likewise, "reading" a scar follows the same rules as reading a scroll, but only a blood magus can decipher his own scars. One's own skin leaves a limited amount of room to easily inscribe and "read" magical scars.

Thus, a blood magus can have only six of these scars at any one time.

Death Knell (Sp): At 3rd level and higher, a blood magus has the ability to use death knell as the spell once per day.

Blood Draught (Ex): At 4th level, a blood magus learns how to store spells of up to 3rd level in his own blood.

Effectively, he gains the Brew Potion feat (see page 89 of the Player's Handbook) using an alternative medium.

All rules, XP costs, and expenses that apply to Brew Potion also apply to this ability, with the following exceptions.

Once “brewed”, a blood draught remains in circulation within a magus’s body.
The maximum number of draughts he can store at one time is equal to his blood magus level + his Con score, but if he is ever slain, they are all immediately ruined—even if he is subsequently returned to life.
Blood draughts are never accidentally lost through major blood loss or by a blood-draining attack.
To consume a draught, a blood magus pricks his skin, automatically bringing forth the desired effect.
This is a standard action that provokes attacks of opportunity, like drinking a potion.
Another individual can partake of a blood draught (if he or she has a strong stomach) by drinking 1 ounce of the blood magus’s blood as a full-round action.
The blood magus must have an open wound to share the effects of a blood draught with another creature; if he lacks one, the creature can inflict a wound that deals 1 point of damage to the blood magus as part of the action to consume the draught.
A blood magus cannot store his blood in a container to share at a later time.
The blood draught must be drawn fresh from his body, or it loses potency within 1 round.
Homunculus (Su): From 5th level on, a blood magus can use his blood to give life to a new companion creature—a homunculus (see page 154 of the Monster Manual).
A blood magus need not meet any of the given prerequisites to create the homunculus; however, a blood magus must permanently sacrifice 1 hit point as part of the creation process.
The process requires 1 hour.
A blood magus enjoys a stronger than normal link with his homunculus.
By touching the homunculus, a blood magus can transfer his wounds to the creature (up to 1 hp per level with each touch).
This is a standard action that provokes attacks of opportunity.
Each time a blood magus gains a class level, his homunculus advances 1 Hit Die, as described on page 290 of the Monster Manual, and it gains all the normal benefits of its increased Hit Dice (increased base attack bonus, saves, and so on).
The homunculus advances to a maximum of 6 Hit Dice when the blood magus reaches 9th level.
If his homunculus is destroyed, a blood magus takes 2d10 points of damage, as noted in the Monster Manual.
A blood magus’s death results in the death of his homunculus.
A blood magus can have only one homunculus at any given time.
Bloodseeking Spell (Su): Beginning at 6th level, a blood magus can imbue his spells with the ability to draw blood from their targets.
To use this ability, a blood magus must inflict a wound on himself; this is a free action that deals 3 points of damage to the blood magus and becomes a normal part of casting the spell.
Damage reduction, if a blood magus has any, doesn’t apply to this damage.
A bloodseeking spell deals an extra 1d6 points of damage to each target that takes damage from the spell.

This extra damage applies only to spells that deal hit point damage, not to spells that deal ability damage, ability drain, or other kinds of damage.
Constructs, elementals, oozes, plants, undead, and any creatures without blood or a similar substance within their bodies are immune to this effect.
Thicker Than Water (Su): At 7th level and higher, a blood magus’s vital fluids are partially under his control.
When a blood magus is injured, his blood withdraws from the wound, avoiding some damage that he would otherwise take.
This ability gives the blood magus damage reduction 1/bludgeoning.
Awaken Blood (Su): At 8th level and higher, a blood magus can bestow momentary consciousness on an opponent’s blood.
If he hits a foe with a melee touch attack, the opponent’s blood tries to get free of its confinement—all at once.
The pressure disrupts the victim’s tissues, dealing 10d10 points of damage.
This ability is usable only once per day, but a blood magus can try to use it again later in the day if his previous attempt failed.
The effect is instantaneous.
Constructs, elementals, oozes, plants, undead, and any creatures without blood or a similar substance within their bodies are immune to this effect.
Infusion (Ex): Upon reaching 9th level, a blood magus prepares a special one-time distillation of his own blood.
After partaking of the infusion, he gains a 2-point increase to his Constitution score.
Bloodwalk (Su): At 10th level, a blood magus becomes perfectly attuned to the song of blood.
He gains the supernatural ability to transport himself great distances via the blood of living creatures.
Once per day as a standard action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity, he can seamlessly enter any living creature (except an elemental, ooze, plant, undead, or other creature without blood or a similar fluid) whose size equals or exceeds his own and pass any distance to another living creature on the same plane in a single round, regardless of the distance separating the two.
A blood magus merely designates a direction and distance (“a living creature twenty miles due west of here”), and the bloodwalk ability transports him to a destination creature as close as possible to the desired location.
He can’t specify a named individual as the endpoint unless he has previously obtained a sample of that creature’s blood and has it preserved in a vial that he carries.
The entry and destination creatures need not be familiar to the blood magus.
A blood magus cannot use himself as an entry creature.
If an intended entry creature is unwilling, he must make a successful melee touch attack to enter.
(A missed touch attack does not use up the ability for that day).
When exiting a creature, a blood magus chooses an adjacent square in which to appear.
Entering and exiting a creature is painless unless a blood magus wishes otherwise (see below).
In most cases, though, the destination creature finds being the endpoint of a magical portal surprising and quite unsettling.

If he desires, a blood magus can attempt to make a bloody exit from the destination creature. He bursts forth explosively from the creature's body, dealing 10d6 points of damage unless the creature makes a

Fortitude save (DC 10 + blood magus's class level + blood magus's Con modifier). When he makes a bloody exit, a blood magus must succeed on a DC 15 Fortitude save or be stunned for 1 round from the shock of his expulsion.

TABLE 2-5: THE BLOOD MAGUS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+0	Blood component, durable casting, stanch	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+0	Scarification	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+1	Death knell	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+4	+1	+1	Blood draught	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+4	+1	+1	Homunculus	—
6th	+3	+5	+2	+2	Bloodseeking spell	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+5	+2	+2	Thicker than water	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+4	+6	+2	+2	Awaken blood	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+4	+6	+3	+3	Infusion	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+7	+3	+3	Bloodwalk	—

EFFIGY MASTER

Fascinated by the animating force of life itself, the effigy master is an expert in the imitation of true life. Through long study and experimentation, he learns to infuse his creations with a pseudolife far more resilient and vital than that which animates similar creations of other spellcasters. The effigy master brings to life sculptures made of clay, snow, wax, or mud, and uses this ability to create guardians, defenses, and even companions and cohorts. At the same time, the effigy master continues to study the secrets of magic, albeit at a slower pace. Effigy masters are often wizards who seek the knowledge of imparting life to nonliving elements as a means to create loyal minions that don't require much maintenance. Sorcerers also sometimes become effigy masters, although they generally don't pursue the class for long. NPC effigy masters are unusual individuals. Some sell their services to wealthy lords or merchants who desire retinues of absolutely loyal guards who cannot be charmed or bought. Others are experimenters who indulge in the process of creating pseudolife to satisfy their own curiosity and inquisitiveness. A few are bitter and spiteful loners who delight in creating mockeries of the living or seek to attain power by replacing those who have what the effigy master desires. Adaptation: Those who really enjoy the concept of the effigy master might wish the prestige class offered more than five levels of advancement. It would be a simple enough matter to extend the class for five more levels, continuing the implied progression in all areas. This means the class should gain an ability at 7th and 9th levels, at least, and perhaps another ability at 10th level. The 7th-level ability could allow new effigies to be created more cheaply. The 9th-level ability could further improve an effigy's attack, damage, and saving throws by an additional +1. The final ability (in return for not gaining +1 caster level at 10th level) might allow the effigy master to possess an effigy once per day for up to 10 minutes in a manner similar to the magic jar spell.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an effigy master, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Craft (leatherworking, metalworking, or woodworking) 10 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 5 ranks, Spellcraft 5 ranks, Use Magic Device 2 ranks.

Feat: Craft Wondrous Item.

Special: Must have the simulacrum spell on a class spell list, whether or not the character is able to cast it.

CLASS SKILLS

The effigy master's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the effigy master prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Effigy masters gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each class level after 1st, an effigy master gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, a bonus feat, and so on).

If he had more than one spellcasting class before becoming an effigy master, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Craft Effigy (Su): An effigy master can create constructs known as effigies (see page 151).

Unlike other creators, he need not possess the Craft Construct feat to complete this task, nor does he need the feat or ranks in Knowledge (architecture and engineering) to repair an effigy he creates (see page 151 for details on repairing an effigy).

An effigy master can add his class level to his caster level to determine the maximum Hit Dice of effigy that he can create.

Crafting an effigy requires a body to be built from wood, leather, metal, and wire.

This requires a DC 15 Craft (woodworking, leatherworking, or metalworking) check.

The gp and XP required to create the effigy depends on its size, as described on page 155.

Improved Effigy (Ex): An effigy master of 3rd level or higher can improve upon his creations, granting them a permanent +2 competence bonus on attack rolls, damage, and saves.

This requires one day of work and costs 100 gp of supplies per Hit Die of the effigy to be improved, but has no XP cost.

Effigy Link (Su): At 5th level and higher, an effigy master can create a supernatural bond between himself and one of his effigies.

This requires a 1-hour ritual.

Afterward, the effigy master can sense the effigy's condition (as if he had cast status on the effigy), and can scry on the effigy (as if casting the scrying spell) once per day.

Furthermore, an effigy master gains a +1 morale bonus on saving throws and caster level checks as long as he is within 5 feet of his bonded effigy.

An effigy master can be linked to only one effigy at any time.

If the linked effigy is destroyed, or if the effigy master wants to establish a new link, he can create a link to another effigy (and eliminate the old link) by performing the ritual with the new effigy.

TABLE 2-6: THE EFFIGY MASTER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Craft effigy	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Improved effigy	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Effigy link	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

ELEMENTAL SAVANT

Elemental savants study the basic building blocks of existence—air, earth, fire, and water—learning to harness their powers.

Eventually they transcend their mortal forms and become elemental beings.

Elemental savants often begin their careers as individuals intrigued by one or all of the classic elements.

Before they ever take levels in the prestige class, these spellcasters typically find themselves drawn to spells of a particular energy type.

These spellcasters find satisfaction in the unleashed purity of the elemental energy forms, and they become elemental savants to grow closer to the element that becomes their favorite.

Most elemental savants start out as warmages, wizards, or sorcerers, although divine spellcasters are not unknown in the class.

A cleric with the Fire, Water, or Sun domain could also qualify for this prestige class.

NPC elemental savants usually prefer to pursue their studies in solitude or in the company of other elemental savants.

Sometimes groups of them gather in places where an element's majesty and power is on display, such as the flanks of a volcano, an island, or a high, windy mountain. Adaptation: Making a particular element the basis for the theme of a spellcaster's repertoire is an idea that could exist in most any game.

For a twist, you might want to consider elements that go beyond the standard, though this would require some work on the DM's part.

Other elements might include: bone, metal, nether, plasma, and wood, to name a few.

Determining the sort of damage each of these elements does, and how that type of damage interacts with the four recognized types of energy damage (acid, cold, electricity, and fire) is the crux of this design process.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an elemental savant, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 8 ranks, Knowledge (the planes) 4 ranks.

Feat: Energy Substitution (acid, cold, electricity, or fire).

Spells: Able to cast at least three spells that have one of the following descriptors in common: acid, cold, electricity, or fire.

One of the spells must be at least 3rd level.

Special: Must have made peaceful contact with an elemental or outsider that has an elemental subtype (air, earth, fire, or water).

CLASS SKILLS

The elemental savant's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the elemental savant prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Elemental savants gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level except 5th and 10th, an elemental savant gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, a bonus feat, and so on).

If she had more than one spellcasting class before becoming an elemental savant, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Elemental Specialty (Ex): The first step toward transcending mortal form requires an elemental savant to choose her elemental specialty.

Upon entering the class, she must select an element and its associated energy type (air = electricity, earth = acid, fire = fire, or water = cold).

This choice must match the Energy Substitution feat that the savant selected to gain entry to the prestige class.

When the savant casts a spell that normally deals energy damage, its energy descriptor changes to the savant's chosen energy type, and it deals damage of that energy type instead of its normal energy type.

For example, an elemental savant choosing to specialize in fire could still cast meld into stone, and its descriptor would not change because it does not deal energy damage.

However, if she casts Melf's acid arrow, the spell would deal fire damage and have the fire descriptor instead of dealing acid damage and having the acid descriptor.

Resistance to Energy (Ex): As an elemental savant gains levels in this prestige class, she becomes more resistant to the type of energy allied with her chosen element.

At 1st level, she gains resistance 5 against this energy type.

This resistance rises to 10 at 4th level and 20 at 7th level.

Immunity to Sleep (Ex): At 2nd level, as an elemental savant continues to transcend her mortal form, she gains immunity to sleep effects.

Energy Penetration (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, an elemental savant further refines her ability to wield energy associated with her chosen element.

When she casts a spell using that type of energy, she gains a +2 competence bonus on caster level checks (1d20 + caster level) to overcome a creature's spell resistance.

At 8th level, this bonus increases to +4.

These bonuses stack with those granted by the Spell Penetration and Greater Spell Penetration feats.

Energy Focus (Ex): From 5th level on, an elemental savant is better able to manipulate energy associated with her chosen element.

The save DC for any spell with that energy descriptor increases by 1.

At 10th level, these save DCs increase by 1 again (total increase of 2).

These increases are cumulative with those granted by the Spell Focus and Greater Spell Focus feats.

Darkvision (Ex): At 6th level, an elemental savant gains darkvision out to 60 feet.

Immunity to Paralysis and Poison (Ex): As an elemental savant approaches elemental perfection, she gains immunity to paralysis and poison at 9th level.

Elemental Perfection: At 10th level, an elemental savant, through long association with elemental entities and extensive study of their secrets, completely transcends her mortal form to become an elemental creature.

Her type changes to elemental.

She no longer needs to eat, sleep, or breathe (though she must still rest to regain spells).

She gains an elemental creature's immunity to stunning, and she is no longer subject to extra damage from critical hits or flanking.

An elemental savant gains the speed and movement modes, natural attacks, special attacks, and special qualities of a Medium elemental of the type appropriate to her elemental specialty, as noted in the Monster Manual, except that the save DC against her elemental attack form, if any (whirlwind, burn, or vortex) is 20 + her Con modifier.

Upon achieving this state, an elemental savant's appearance undergoes a minor physical change, usually to the skin or eyes.

An earth elemental savant, for example, might acquire gemlike eyes and hard, pebbly skin.

Anyone who shares the elemental savant's predilection for study of her chosen plane immediately recognizes her transcendent nature.

She gains a +2 circumstance bonus on all Charisma-based skill and ability checks when interacting with creatures that share her elemental subtype (air, earth, fire, or water) and with other elemental savants who have chosen her element.

Unlike a normal elemental, an elemental savant retains a soul separate from her body.

She can be raised from the dead as normal for a creature of her previous type.

Energy Immunity (Ex): From 10th level on, an elemental savant gains immunity to the type of energy associated with her chosen element.

TABLE 2-7: THE ELEMENTAL SAVANT

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Elemental specialty, resistance to energy 5	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Immunity to sleep	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Energy penetration +2	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Resistance to energy 10	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Energy focus +1	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Darkvision	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Resistance to energy 20	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Energy penetration +4	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Immunity to paralysis and poison	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Elemental perfection, energy focus +2, energy immunity	—

ENLIGHTENED FIST

Not all monks pursue metaphysical perfection to the exclusion of all other study.

Some monks combine a rigorous discipline of academic study with martial arts and development of the body. For these monks, that study includes the practice of magic and the implementation of certain arcane tricks into their unarmed combat styles.

These enlightened fists master the use of touch spells, creating new forms of combat where their fists strike with blinding speed, phenomenal power, and magical energy. Most enlightened fists are monk/sorcerers or monk/wizards.

Some focus heavily on one class or the other, while others seek to maintain balance between their arcane and physical training.

Enlightened fists are most common in metropolitan settings, where magical training is available and becomes an integral component of the monastic life.

Enlightened fist NPCs often live in communities with ordinary monks, practicing magic primarily as a means of self perfection.

Adaptation: In the world of Eberron, enlightened fists can be found throughout Khorvaire.

They are most common in Aundair, where arcane schools abound.

Some arcane fists could rise from divine backgrounds.

In such cases, the requirements for the class would change from Knowledge (arcana) to Knowledge (religion) and would require the character to be capable of casting 2nd-level divine spells (instead of arcane spells).

However, because divine spells are generally better at improving a character in melee, the caster level progression noted in the table below cannot go unmodified.

Instead of gaining +1 level in spellcasting ability at every level except 1st and 6th, the divine enlightened fist should gain +1 level of existing divine spellcasting class at 2nd, 4th, 6th, 8th, and 10th level only.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an enlightened fist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Concentration 8 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 5 ranks, Spellcraft 5 ranks.

Feats: Combat Casting, Improved Unarmed Strike, Stunning Fist.

Spells or Spell-Like Abilities: Arcane caster level 3rd.

CLASS SKILLS

The enlightened fist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).
Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the enlightened fist.
Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Enlightened fists gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: Except at 1st level and 6th level, an enlightened fist gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If she had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming an enlightened fist, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Ki Strike (Su): An enlightened fist's unarmed attacks are empowered with ki.

Her unarmed attacks are treated as magic weapons for the purpose of dealing damage to creatures with damage reduction.

Monk Abilities: An enlightened fist adds her class level to her monk level to determine her class-based AC bonus, her unarmed damage, her unarmored speed bonus, and the number of daily attempts of her Stunning Fist feat.

If she has no monk levels, she gains the AC bonus, unarmed damage, and unarmored speed bonus of a monk whose level equals her enlightened fist level, but she can't add her Wisdom bonus to her AC.

An enlightened fist does not count her class levels for the purpose of determining when she gains any other monk class features, such as reduced penalties for flurry of blows attack rolls, bonus feats, evasion, or other special abilities.

Fist of Energy (Su): Once per round as a free action, an enlightened fist of 2nd level or higher can spend one of her daily stunning attempts to imbue her unarmed strikes with either electricity or fire.

The enlightened fist chooses the energy type each time she activates.

For 1 round, each of her unarmed strike that hits deals an extra 1d6 points of damage (electricity or fire, depending on the choice).

At 6th level and higher, an enlightened fist can cause her energy-imbued unarmed strikes to burst with flame or lightning on a critical hit.

In addition to dealing an extra 1d6 points of energy damage, her unarmed attacks deal an extra 1d10 points of energy damage on a successful critical hit.

If the enlightened fist's unarmed critical multiplier is $\times 3$, she adds an extra 2d10 points of energy damage instead, and if the multiplier is $\times 4$, she adds an extra 3d10 points of energy damage.

An enlightened fist with monk levels can use this ability to channel energy through wielded monk weapons just as she can through her unarmed attacks.

Arcane Fist (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, an enlightened fist can spend one of her daily stunning attempts to cast and deliver a touch spell as part of an unarmed full attack action.

She can choose to deliver the touch spell with any single unarmed strike attack she makes during the action.

Arcane Rejuvenation (Su): An enlightened fist of 5th level or higher can channel arcane energy to heal her own wounds.

As a standard action, she can sacrifice one of her prepared spells or unused spell slots; doing this heals a number of hit points of damage equal to the spell's level.

Hold Ray (Ex): At 7th level or higher, an enlightened fist can cast any spell that produces a ray effect as a touch spell instead.

The spell's range is reduced to touch, and its Effect entry is replaced with "Target: Creature touched". She can deliver the spell with a touch attack or with a normal attack, and she can hold the charge as with a normal touch spell.

An enlightened fist can combine this ability with arcane fist (see above) to deliver a ray-effect spell as part of an unarmed full attack action.

Diamond Soul (Ex): At 9th level, an enlightened fist gains spell resistance equal to 10 + the total of her monk levels and enlightened fist levels.

Multiclassing Note: A monk who becomes an enlightened fist can continue advancing as a monk.

Furthermore, the character's class levels in any classes that grant arcane spellcasting ability (such as sorcerer or warmage) do not prevent her from continuing to advance as a monk.

TABLE 2-8: THE ENLIGHTENED FIST

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Ki strike (magic), monk abilities	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Fist of energy	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Arcane fist	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Arcane rejuvenation	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Fist of energy (burst)	—
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Hold ray	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Diamond soul	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

FATESPINNER

Some people are lucky; others are not.

A few make their own luck.

A fatespinner (also called a "mage of many fates") has pulled back the curtain of chance, circumstance, and chaos to glimpse a deeper truth: probability.

When one event occurs, innumerable possible ones do not as the universe blindly seeks balance.

Through his newfound understanding, the fatespinner satisfies that blind seeking—with prejudice.

He can increase the probability of events in his favor.

Any arcane spellcaster who has cursed his bad luck is a candidate for this prestige class.

Who has not cast a spell, hoping fervently but impotently for a particular outcome, or sadly noted the astounding luck of an enemy who resists spell after spell?

The fatespinner seeks to apply some control over the seeming vagaries of chance—fortune for himself, misfortune for his foes.

NPC fatespinners are often found in positions of power and authority, as would be expected from those able to directly affect their own destiny.

Others continue to ply the world, honing their abilities and seeking their ultimate fortune.

Adaptation: Adapting this class to other methods of play might include the idea of draining luck from NPCs, and using that drained luck as stored spin.

However, determining the method whereby this luck is drained that doesn't merely allow the fatespinner to always have a method of rejuvenating his spin is tricky.

This effect could potentially be tied to the fickle finger of fate ability; if the fatespinner successfully uses this ability, he gains 1 additional point of spin that he must use within 1 round (he can't store it).

This ability should be usable only once per day.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a fatespinner, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 10 ranks, Profession (gambler) 5 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast 4th-level arcane spells, including at least one divination spell of 1st level or higher.

CLASS SKILLS

The fatespinner's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the fatespinner prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Fatespinners gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level except 5th, a fatespinner gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, a bonus feat, and so on).

If he had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a fatespinner, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Spin Fate (Ex): A mage of many fates understands that "chance" is not as random as many believe it to be, and he can adjust the probability of certain events by applying a force that fatespinners refer to as "spin".

Each day, a fatespinner can use a number of points of spin equal to his fatespinner class level.

As a free action, a fatespinner can use stored spin to boost the save DC of a spell he casts, adding some or all his spin to the DC, on a point-for-point basis.

For instance, a 5th-level wizard/3rd-level fatespinner casting fireball could choose to boost the DC of the spell by 1, 2, or 3 points.

Once he uses up his spin for the day, his ability to tinker with probability in this fashion is also exhausted for the day.

A fatespinner's spin is replenished whenever the character successfully regains his spells for the day (whether through rest, preparation, or prayer).

Fickle Finger of Fate (Ex): On reaching 2nd level, a fatespinner gains the ability to affect the luck of others.

Once per day as an immediate action (see page 86), he can force any other creature—friend or enemy—to reroll a roll that it has just made.

A fatespinner must have line of sight to the creature to be affected.

That creature must abide by the result of the reroll, whether it's higher or lower than the original roll.

Spin Destiny (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a fatespinner more clearly comprehends the matrix of reality and can use accumulated spin to adjust other random events.

The method is identical to increasing a spell's save DC, but the fatespinner can now add spin to any skill check, attack roll, or saving throw that he attempts on a point-for-point basis.

However, the spin utilized comes from the same limited reservoir of karma storage that allows him to adjust the DC of his spells.

He must apply the bonus before making the roll.

Deny Fate (Ex): At 4th level and higher, a fatespinner has a better chance of beating the odds should he ever be rendered unconscious and dying.

Once per day, on the first occasion when a fatespinner must make a check to become stable when dying, the check automatically succeeds.

Other such checks called for later in the same 24-hour period are made normally.

Resist Fate (Ex): A fatespinner of 4th level and above embraces his extraordinary good luck.

Once per day, he can reroll one roll that he has just made. He must abide by the result of the reroll, even if it's worse than the original roll.

Seal Fate (Su): A 5th-level fatespinner can meddle in success and failure, and even life and death, sealing the fate of a friend or foe.

Once per day as a free action, the fatespinner selects a target creature he can see within 30 feet with Hit Dice equal to or less than his.

The creature receives either a -10 penalty or a +10 bonus on its next saving throw, as decided by the fatespinner.

If the selected target has more Hit Dice than the fatespinner, the ability doesn't work but the use for the day is not wasted.

This effect lasts only for 1 round, so if no spell or other effect is brought to bear on the target creature during the round, the creature's fate is no longer sealed.

TABLE 2-9: THE FATESPINNER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Spin fate	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Fickle finger of fate	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Spin destiny	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Deny fate, resist fate	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Seal fate	—

GEOMETER

Runes, glyphs, sigils, and symbols hold great magical power.

The geometer is the master of written magic and spells inscribed within a perfectly rendered diagram.

While other spellcasters must record their spells in pages upon pages of cryptic formulae, the geometer knows that every spell has a perfect geometrical design, a figure whose angles and intersections hint at the secrets hidden in the structure of the multiverse.

Geometers are almost always wizards.

Many specialize in the school of abjuration, since spells of arcane geometry are often among the most potent magical defenses available.

Sorcerers and bards do not prepare spells, and therefore rarely qualify for the class.

In any event, they lack the meticulous and studious inclination to perform magic by scribing painstaking diagrams.

NPCs who take up the geometer class frequently hold meetings in which numerous members of the profession can expound on their latest projects and inform others of their new theories concerning the nature of geometry.

Adaptation: While this prestige class describes a geometer independent of any location, an interesting idea in any campaign that contains a geometer would be the inclusion of a location where a powerful glyph is permanently inscribed in a cliff face or at a mountain's base (or apex). This special glyph, perhaps called the Perfect Geometry, would be important to geometers who learn of it, granting them some additional spell knowledge or versatility with their spells (perhaps, once the Perfect Geometry is visited and traced by a geometer, that geometer learns to cast one more glyph-related spell per day).

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a geometer, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Decipher Script 9 ranks, Disable Device 4 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 9 ranks, Search 4 ranks.

Feat: Scribe Scroll.

Spells: Able to prepare and cast 3rd-level arcane spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The geometer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Disable Device (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the geometer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Geometers gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level, a geometer gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level. He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a geometer, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Glyph of Warding: A geometer adds glyph of warding to his spellbook as a 3rd-level arcane spell. He can prepare and cast the spell just like any other spell he knows.

Spellglyph (Su): A spellglyph is an arcane diagram that substitutes for a specific spell's verbal and material components (if any).

When a geometer casts a prepared spell in conjunction with a spellglyph scribed for that spell, he can cast the spell as if it were affected by the Silent Spell feat. The spellglyph replaces any material components (other than a focus) normally required by the spell. A geometer chooses at the time of casting whether to use a spellglyph.

An expended spellglyph disappears, just like any other material component.

Spellglyphs are normally scribed on parchment, much like scrolls.

Preparing a spellglyph requires 1 hour and the use of rare inks costing 25 gp per spell level.

If the spell normally requires an expensive material component (with a value of more than 1 gp), exotic inks and treatments of equal cost must be used in the preparation of the spellglyph.

Book of Geometry (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, a geometer uses a unique system for recording the details of a spell that drastically reduces the expense of maintaining spellbooks.

Every spell he learns from now on requires only a single page in his spellbook.

It still takes 24 hours to scribe a spell into a spellbook and materials costing 100 gp per page.

A geometer's spellbook is difficult for nongeometers to decipher and use.

The Spellcraft DC to decipher or prepare spells from a geometer's spellbook is increased by 5 for nongeometers (see page 178 of the Player's Handbook).

Sigilsight (Ex): A geometer of 3rd level or higher can use a Search check to find magic traps based on runes, glyphs, sigils, symbols, and other writings as a rogue can. He gains a bonus equal to his caster level on all Search checks to find traps of this sort.

A geometer who merely comes within 10 feet of a magic rune, glyph, sigil, or symbol, or the threshold of danger for such a device, is entitled to make a Search check as if he were actively searching for a magic trap.

Pass Sigil (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a geometer can temporarily negate magical wards based on written symbols, sigils, runes, or glyphs.

As a standard action, a geometer can attempt to pass such a sigil. He must succeed on a level check (DC 6 + the sigil creator's caster level).

If successful, he can suppress the effects of the device for as long as he maintains concentration (which might make it possible for others to pass the sigil safely, too).

A geometer must be able to see the device to be passed.

Powerful Spellglyph (Ex): When a 5th-level geometer prepares a spellglyph for a spell, he knows how to strengthen the spell beyond its normal effects. His caster level is treated as 1 higher for any spell he casts with the use of a spellglyph.

Greater Glyph of Warding: A 5th-level geometer adds greater glyph of warding to his spellbook as a 6th-level arcane spell. He can prepare and cast the spell just like any other spell he knows.

TABLE 2-10: THE GEOMETER

Level	Base Attack	Fort	Ref	Will	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
	Bonus	Save	Save	Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Glyph of warding , draw spellglyph	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Book of geometry	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Sigilsight	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Pass sigil	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Powerful spellglyph, greater glyph of warding	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

GREEN STAR ADEPT

Once each generation, the comet Alhazarde—the legendary Green Star—visits the night skies, a portent of great and terrible events. Beneath its emerald light, kings rise or fall, weird monsters and magical plagues appear to scour the land, and strange and ancient secrets are revealed.

Glorious and sinister auroras glimmer in the dusk for weeks on end, and from time to time shooting stars of burning emerald fall from the sky. These fallen stars are the only known source of starmetal, a rare and precious ore infused with mighty magical power. A Green Star adept is the master of the strange and powerful magic derived from Alhazarde's glittering green starmetal. He travels the land, searching for more of the comet's fallen substance and mastering its eldritch power. Turning his back on the traditional studies of the sorcerer or wizard, he slowly transforms into a living statue of starmetal, gaining immortality and invulnerability at the cost of his own flesh.

At each appearance of the comet, only a handful of adepts can complete the rites necessary to achieve this transformation.

Sorcerers and wizards are most capable of understanding the strange arcana of the mystic comet.

Of the two, wizards are more likely to master the astrological calculations and meticulous observations required to divine the secrets of the Green Star.

Some Green Star adepts, however, come from entirely different origins, having picked up the necessary arcane knowledge along the way.

Such rare individuals might be learned monks or warlocks, sinister rogue/sorcerers, or any other character diligent enough to learn the secrets of the comet Alhazarde.

All Green Star adepts are bitter rivals, since all who follow the path are in constant competition for the rare and precious starmetal required for the transformation.

NPC Green Star adepts never work with each other, often going to great lengths to keep other adepts from learning about news of starmetal finds.

Adaptation: It would be easy to postulate that the base material from which the prestige class derives its name is some other substance, even without changing the abilities derived from the material in any way.

Thus, a practitioner of this prestige class could instead take his powers from quartz, jade, sapphire, iron, black iron, steel, or some other substance known for (among other things) solidity.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a Green Star adept, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Decipher Script 2 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 8 ranks, Knowledge (architecture and engineering) 2 ranks, Knowledge (geography) 2 ranks, Knowledge (history) 2 ranks.

Feat: Combat Casting.

Spells or Spell-Like Abilities: Arcane caster level 1st.

Special: Must acquire a piece of starmetal weighing at least 2 ounces, powder it, and consume it by drinking it in a specially prepared infusion.

This infusion requires arcane reagents costing 1,000 gp and takes one week to prepare.

CLASS SKILLS

The Green Star adept's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (architecture and engineering) (Int), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the Green Star adept prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Green Star adepts gain proficiency with simple weapons.

They gain no proficiency with armor or shields.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At every even-numbered level, a Green Star adept gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a Green Star adept, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Damage Reduction (Ex): The starmetal infusion reinforces the flesh of a Green Star adept, making him resistant to physical blows.

He gains damage reduction 1/adamantine.

Each level thereafter, his damage reduction improves by 1, until by 10th level, he has damage reduction 10/adamantine.

Improved Caster Level (Ex): A Green Star adept adds his class level to his caster level in another arcane spellcasting class to determine his effective spellcaster level.

If the character had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a Green Star adept, the player must decide to which class to add each adept level for this purpose.

For example, a 5th-level wizard/4th-level Green Star adept's caster level would be 9th, due to this ability, but he would only have access to 4th-level spells (5th-level wizard plus two arcane spellcasting class levels from being a 4th-level Green Star adept).

Starmetal Dependency (Ex): A Green Star adept must consume more starmetal to continue his transformation. When he gains a level in this class beyond 1st, he does not gain any of the class features for that level until he performs a special ritual that requires 24 hours, 1 pound of starmetal, and other arcane reagents and materials costing 1,000 gp.

A Green Star adept's base attack bonus, saving throws, skills, and feats or ability score increases are not dependent on this ritual—he fails to gain the special class abilities only until he completes the ritual.

See page 141 for a description of starmetal as a new special material.

Starmetal Rigor (Ex): At 1st level, a Green Star adept's process of transformation has already begun.

His flesh takes on a faint emerald hue, and it becomes denser and stronger as the starmetal infusion takes hold.

A 1st-level adept's Strength score increases by 1, but his Dexterity score drops by 1 (to a minimum of 3).

His natural armor bonus also improves by 1.

When an adept reaches 4th level, his Strength and his natural armor bonus improve by an additional 1 point.

At 7th level, an adept's Strength increases by 2 more, for a total increase of +4, while his Dexterity is reduced by 1 (to a minimum of 3).

His natural armor bonus improves by another 2 points, for a total bonus of +4.

At 10th level, an adept's Strength score increases by 2 more points (total increase of +6) and his Dexterity is reduced by 1 (total reduction of -3, to a minimum of 3).

His natural armor bonus improves by another 2 points, for a total bonus of +6.

Natural Attack (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, a Green Star adept has flesh so dense that his unarmed strikes deal substantial damage.

He gains a slam attack that deals bludgeoning damage equal to a club sized for the character (1d4 for Small adepts, 1d6 for Medium adepts, or 1d8 for Large adepts), plus 1-1/2 times his Strength modifier.

Unnatural Metabolism (Ex): When an adept reaches 2nd level, his starmetal infusion begins to radically alter his metabolism.

He gains a +2 bonus on saving throws against poison, sleep effects, paralysis, stunning, disease, death effects, and necromancy effects.

At 5th level, a Green Star adept's bonus on saving throws against the attack forms listed above increases to +4.

At 8th level, the save bonus increases to +6.

Fortification (Ex): At 3rd level and higher, a Green Star adept has resistance to attacks that affect other living creatures.

When a critical hit or sneak attack is scored on the character, there is a 25% chance that the critical hit or sneak attack is negated and the damage is instead rolled normally.

When an adept reaches 6th level, this ability improves, increasing the chance of negating a critical hit or sneak attack to 50%.

At 9th level, a Green Star adept has a 75% chance to negate a critical hit or sneak attack.

Otherworldly Vision (Ex): At 4th level, a Green Star adept gains darkvision out to 60 feet and low-light vision.

Null Metabolism (Ex): When a Green Star adept reaches 7th level, his transformation approaches completion.

He no longer needs to breathe, eat, or sleep.

He has immunity to inhaled poisons, drowning, suffocation, and sleep effects (although he still must rest 8 hours in order to regain spells).

In addition, an adept of 7th level or higher is no longer subject to fatigue or exhaustion and ignores the effects of these conditions.

Emerald Perfection (Ex): At 10th level, a Green Star adept completes his transformation.

He resembles a perfectly sculpted statue of himself, forged from green starmetal.

His type changes to construct, which brings about the following alterations to his basic nature:

—An adept loses his Constitution score and any hit point adjustment for Constitution.

However, he gains bonus hit points based on his size: +10 hit points for Small, +20 hit points for Medium, or +30 hit points for Large.

—Unlike other constructs, a Green Star adept has no special immunity to mind-affecting effects.

He is essentially a human mind in a magically animated body.

—He gains immunity to poison, paralysis, stunning, disease, extra damage from sneak attacks, death effects, and necromancy effects.

—He no longer heals damage on his own, and receives no benefit from spells or effects that heal living creatures.

However, he can repair himself by means of repair damage spells (see page 120) or his rapid repair ability (see below).

—He is no longer subject to critical hits, nonlethal damage, ability damage, ability drain, or energy drain.

—He gains immunity to any effect that requires a Fortitude save unless it also works on objects, or is harmless.

—He is no longer at risk of death from massive damage, but he is immediately destroyed if reduced to 0 hit points.

However, unlike other constructs, a Green Star adept can be returned from the dead by any means that would have worked on him before his final transformation.

—He no longer takes ability score penalties for aging and cannot be magically aged.

He cannot die of old age and might exist in this form for eons.

Rapid Repair (Ex): A 10th-level Green Star adept repairs 1 point of damage per hour of rest, as long he has at least 1 hit point.

Rapid repair does not allow a Green Star adept to regrow or reattach lost body parts.

TABLE 2-11: THE GREEN STAR ADEPT

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Damage reduction, improved caster level, starmetal dependency, starmetal rigor 1	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Natural attack, unnatural metabolism +2	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Fortification (25%)	—
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Otherworldly vision, starmetal rigor 2	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Unnatural metabolism +4	—
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Fortification (50%)	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Null metabolism, starmetal rigor 4	—
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6	Unnatural metabolism +6	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6	Fortification (75%)	—
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	Emerald perfection, rapid repair, starmetal rigor 6	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

INITIATE OF THE SEVENFOLD VEIL

Colors are imbued with their own magical properties.

Just as exotic substances and mystic words have the power to repel certain creatures, colors also harbor innate properties that can be brought forth by the skilled mage, culminating in the perfection of the prismatic wall or prismatic sphere.

Few spells match the beauty and power of these potent abjurations.

They are perfect defenses, representing a union of magical lore and keen insight into the workings of nature.

A master of defensive magic, the Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil approaches the prismatic barrier by mastering one by one its constituent veils or layers.

Her skillful wardings can deflect many of the most perilous attacks enemy spellcasters or monsters can muster, shielding herself and her companions against harm.

Her keen insight into the ultimate secrets of abjuration also allows her to easily unbind the defenses of others, and in time she learns the most dreadful of magical attacks: the spectacular and lethal kaleidoscopic doom.

Initiates of the Sevenfold Veil are a loose society or fellowship of spellcasters who share this common obsession.

They correspond regularly and meet at odd intervals, interested not only in the lore of their chosen specialty but also in the lore of the physical world and how magic and mundane knowledge intertwine.

Most initiates are wizards, since the careful study of the magical and the mundane appeals more to the wizard's intellect than to the sorcerer's forceful personality.

Initiates of the Sevenfold Veil adventure for much the same reason that wizards do: to increase their knowledge and understanding.

Their warding abilities make them outstanding spell duelists, so many neutral- and good-aligned NPC initiates devote their careers to the defeat of evil spellcasters, aiding folk who have no other defense against a dangerous necromancer or reckless conjurer.

Evil NPC initiates sometimes serve as duelists-for-hire, seeking to entice good wizards into offering some insult or slight in an effort to challenge the marks to lethal spell duels.

Adaptation: One way to adapt this prestige class is to alter the premise of the initiate's focus on color.

Instead of color, an initiate might be attempting to understand a philosophical hierarchy, a text of seven fables, seven words of power, or something else entirely.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 12 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 4 ranks, Spellcraft 12 ranks.

Feats: Greater Spell Focus (abjuration), Spell Focus (abjuration), Skill Focus (Spellcraft).

Spells: Able to cast five abjuration spells, including at least two of 4th level or higher.

CLASS SKILLS

The Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Initiates of the Sevenfold Veil gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level, an Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If she had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming an Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Warding (Sp): An Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil can create a warding.

She can choose one veil she knows (see below) to be imbued in the warding.

A warding lasts for a certain amount of time as indicated in its description, unless it is dismissed (the same way a spell is dismissed; see page 176 of the Player's Handbook).

When she creates a warding, she can choose one of three types.

Personal: This warding is a sphere whose diameter is equal to an initiate's space (5 feet for Small or Medium creatures, 10 feet for Large, and so on) and encapsulates the initiate.

It moves with her, but she cannot force another creature to pass through it (for example, by attempting to grapple an enemy).

If she does force a creature to pass through, the warding has no effect on that creature.

Any creature striking at her with a melee weapon or natural attack is subject to the veil's effect (although creatures using reach weapons are not).

The warding provides concealment to the initiate, but she can see out with no hindrance.

It lasts for 1 minute per level or until dismissed.

Area: An area warding affects an initiate's space and all adjacent squares (a sphere 15 feet in diameter for a Small or Medium initiate, 20 feet in diameter for a Large initiate, and so on).

Any creature who remains adjacent to the initiate gains the benefit of the warding's protection, even if part of its body lies outside the sphere.

Moving out of the warding (stepping away from the initiate) is completely safe, but anyone attempting to enter the warding—even someone who was formerly inside it and left—becomes subject to the effects of the chosen veil.

The warding moves with the initiate, but she cannot force another creature to pass through it (for example, by moving adjacent to an enemy).

If she does force a creature to pass through, the warding has no effect on that creature.

This warding provides concealment to all within from creatures outside, but anyone inside the warding can see out with no hindrance.

It lasts for 1 minute per level or until dismissed.

Wall: This warding takes the form of a wall, up to 10 feet long and 5 feet high per initiate class level.

For example, a 3rd-level Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil could create a warding wall 30 feet long and 15 feet high.

The wall can be made smaller, but it is not otherwise shapeable.

The wall must begin within 30 feet of the initiate, but can extend beyond that distance.

The wall is immobile once created.

An initiate may choose to make crossing through the wall in one direction safe, if she chooses.

In any event, she can pass through her own warding wall with no danger.

This warding provides concealment to creatures on either side.

It lasts for 10 minutes per level or until dismissed.

The save DC for an initiate's warding is equal to 18 + her primary spellcasting ability modifier (Intelligence for wizards, Charisma for sorcerers and bards, and so on).

The spell level equivalent of a warding depends on which veil is integrated into it.

Veils: When an initiate creates a warding, she can choose and imbue the warding with any one veil she knows how to create.

These veils duplicate the layers of a prismatic wall and are described below.

An initiate's caster level for these veils is equal to her arcane spellcaster level.

Red Veil: The first veil an initiate learns is the red veil.

A warding imbued with this veil blocks all nonmagical ranged attacks and missiles.

A creature crossing a red veil takes 20 points of fire damage (Reflex half).

A cone of cold spell or effect destroys a warding with this veil but is negated in the process.

A warding with this veil is the equivalent of a 4th-level spell.

Orange Veil: At 2nd level, an initiate learns the secret of the orange veil.

A warding with this veil halts magical ranged attacks, including spells that conjure missiles (such as Melf's acid arrow) or create rays (such as disintegrate or a beholder's eye rays) but not spells that do not require a ranged attack (such as magic missile).

A creature crossing an orange veil takes 40 points of acid damage (Reflex half).

A gust of wind spell or similar effect destroys the veil but is negated in the process.

A warding with this veil is the equivalent of a 5th-level spell.

Yellow Veil: An initiate of 3rd level or higher can create a yellow veil.

This veil prevents gases or clouds from entering the warded area, and it defeats petrification attacks.

In addition, a character inside a personal or area warding imbued with a yellow veil has immunity to poison introduced from outside the warding (such as from a creature with an envenomed weapon striking through the barrier).

A creature crossing a yellow veil takes 80 points of electricity damage (Reflex half).

A disintegrate spell destroys the veil but is negated in the process.

A warding with this veil is the equivalent of a 6th-level spell.

Green Veil: A 4th-level initiate masters the green veil.

This veil stops the passage of breath weapons.

A creature crossing a green veil must succeed on a Fortitude save or die; on a successful save, the creature takes 1d6 points of Constitution damage.

This veil is a poison effect.

A passwall spell destroys a green veil.

A warding with this veil is the equivalent of a 6th-level spell.

Blue Veil: At 5th level, an initiate learns the blue veil.

This veil blocks all divinations and mind-affecting spells and abilities.

Any creature crossing a blue veil must succeed on a Fortitude save or be petrified.

A magic missile spell destroys a blue veil but is negated by it.

A warding with this is the equivalent of a 6th-level spell.

Indigo Veil: A 6th-level initiate can create the mighty indigo veil.

This veil prevents the passage of all spells or spell-like abilities.

Any creature crossing an indigo veil must succeed on a Will save or become confused, as if by an insanity spell.

A daylight spell negates and is negated by an indigo veil.

A warding with this veil is the equivalent of a 7th-level spell.

Violet Veil: At 7th level, an initiate masters the seventh and final veil: the violet veil.

This barrier destroys all objects and effects that cross it, as if they were disintegrated.

Living creatures passing a violet veil must succeed on a Will save or be shifted to a random place on a random plane (as the plane shift spell).

A violet veil is destroyed by a successful dispel magic spell.

A warding with this veil is the equivalent of an 8th-level spell.

Unimpeachable Abjuration (Ex): An initiate's abjuration spells are particularly difficult to defeat with spells or effects that dispel them.

An initiate can add her class level to the DC to dispel any abjuration spell or effect she creates.

Unanswerable Strike (Ex): Due to her study of magical defenses, an initiate learns how to defeat them more easily.

At 2nd level and higher, she gains a +2 bonus on caster level checks to counter or dispel abjuration spells.

At 6th level, this bonus increases to a +4 bonus.

Reactive Warding (Sp): At 4th level, an initiate learns to create a warding (see above) in response to an attack.

She can raise a warding as an immediate action (see page 86), after an opponent begins an action but before it is completed.

For example, if she sees an enemy warrior charging her, she can raise a warding to protect herself.

The opponent can choose to continue the charge through the warding or can halt outside it.

Double Warding: At 6th level and higher, an initiate can raise two veils at once any time she creates a warding.

This still counts as only one use of her warding ability.

The less powerful effect (progressing from red up through violet) is always considered to be "outside" the more powerful effect, so a double warding consisting of a blue veil and a green veil would subject any creature passing through to the green veil first, followed by the blue veil.

To negate the entire warding, the outermost veil must be negated before the inner veil can be negated.

Kaleidoscopic Doom (Sp): At 7th level, an Initiate of the Sevenfold Veil learns the secret of the awesome kaleidoscopic doom.

Once per day as a standard action, she designates one creature within 60 feet and turns magical effects currently affecting the creature against it.

This effect functions like a targeted greater dispel magic, except that for every spell or effect negated on the target, the effect of one veil (see above) is visited on the victim as if the subject had crossed it.

The veils created around the victim proceed through the spectrum from red to violet, with one veil activated per spell negated.

Thus, a creature with three spells negated would be subject to the effects of the red, orange, and yellow veils.

The subject is still entitled to the normal saving throws allowed by each veil.

This ability is the equivalent of a 9th-level spell.

TABLE 2-12: THE INITIATE OF THE SEVENFOLD VEIL

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Warding 1/day, unimpeachable abjuration, red veil	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Unanswerable strike +2, orange veil	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Warding 2/day, yellow veil	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Reactive warding, green veil	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Warding 3/day, blue veil	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Unanswerable strike +4, double warding, indigo veil	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Kaleidoscopic doom, violet veil, warding 4/day	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

MAGE OF THE ARCANE ORDER

Also called a “guildmage”, a member of this prestige class is a spellcaster who belongs to an academy and guild known as the Arcane Order.

The academy is called the Order in casual conversation, or sometimes just “that college of wizardry”.

It is both a school for fledgling spellcasters and a guild for those of advanced knowledge and power.

The Arcane Order’s charter is twofold.

The group’s first objective is advancing magical knowledge through both ongoing research and archeological investigation of lost arcane disciplines.

A good portion of research is centered around elucidating a “magical grammar” of the great power wielded in ages past, and this research has borne wondrous fruit: metamagic feats.

The second tenet is the support and welfare of the Order’s membership, initially through arcane schooling and later through companionship, resources, boarding, and access to the Spellpool (see the sidebar on page 49).

Although nonwizards can benefit somewhat from what the Order has to offer, its emphasis on wizardry deters most applicants.

In fact, the Order boasts almost no sorcerers, bards, or other characters with significant talent as spontaneous casters.

NPC guildmages often join adventuring companies of nonspellcasters who are not affiliated with the Order.

Thus, they could be encountered anywhere adventure beckons.

However, a guild member in good standing returns when he can to the campus, pays his required dues, and does his part in the upkeep of the Spellpool.

Adaptation: This prestige class can be tweaked by changing the premise of the Spellpool.

Instead of a construct of stored spells that must always be paid back, lest debt be incurred (see below), perhaps the Order managed to subdue and chain a demigod of ancient days below their stronghold.

What the Order members actually do when they call spells from the “Spellpool” is, perhaps unbeknownst to them, slowly draining the essence of this being.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a mage of the Arcane Order, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skill: Knowledge (arcana) 8 ranks.

Feats: Cooperative Spell and any one other metamagic feat.
Spells: Able to prepare and cast 2nd-level arcane spells.
Special: Prospective members must pay an initiation fee of 750 gp.

CLASS SKILLS

The mage of the Arcane Order’s class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Speak Language (n/a), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the mage of the Arcane Order prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Mages of the Arcane Order gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level, a mage of the Arcane Order gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a mage of the Arcane Order, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Guild Member: A “guild-level” mage of the Arcane Order pays monetary dues and accepts various duties in return for member benefits.

The dues are 30 gp per month.

Duties include putting in an appearance on campus at least once every six months and accepting any special commissions handed down by senior members.

A guildmage who falls into arrears on his dues by more than three months has his membership revoked and loses access to the Spellpool.

Reinstating membership is difficult.

However, ex-members do not lose any spells or metamagic feats they had gained while in good standing.

A member in good standing can board at the Arcane Order campus between adventures, paying only 5 sp per day for common-quality meals and lodging.

At his leisure, he can browse the Order’s well-respected library, which is stocked with tomes on both mundane and arcane lore (though no spellbooks are kept here).

Likewise, he can use the Order's common laboratory facilities when creating magic items (although material costs remain out-of-pocket).

Furthermore, he is free to read and post notices to the "job board", a mundane medium whereby fellow members of the Order pass information, advertise their interest in a research topic or adventure, or attempt to sell an interesting oddity, magical or otherwise.

Last but not least, members form professional ties with their fellow wizards, possibly leading to lasting friendships or alliances.

THE SPELLPOOL

A magical reservoir of spell energy is bound into a special matrix in a guarded vault on a sublevel of the Order's headquarters. Using his guild focus, a mage of the Arcane Order can "call" spells from this common resource as needed.

Calling a Spell: Calling a spell from the Spellpool can be done at any distance but requires the caster to have an open, unused spell slot of the appropriate level. Wizards preparing spells for the day decide at that time whether to leave some spell slots open. A spellcaster can call only for a spell of a level that he could normally cast. He can call a number of spells per day whose total levels are equal to or less than half his caster level (round down, minimum one). For example, Tural Edemont, a 5th-level wizard/4th-level mage of the Arcane Order can call one 4th-level spell per day, two 2nd-level spells per day, or any other combination of spells whose levels do not exceed four, assuming he has slots available and his Spellpool debt isn't too high (see below).

When a caster calls a spell, he takes a full-round action to concentrate on his focus (which provokes attacks of opportunity). The spell appears in the caster's mind at the beginning of his next turn and can be used immediately. However, if he does not cast the called spell within a number of minutes equal to his caster level, it fades from his mind as though cast. A wizard cannot learn a called spell, despite its temporary presence in his consciousness, though of course he could later attempt to learn the spell through standard means.

Bonus Metamagic Feat: At 2nd level and again at 9th level, a mage of the Arcane Order gains sudden insight from studying the reconstructed texts of ancient magical grimoires.

He gains a metamagic feat of his choice as a bonus feat.

He must still meet the prerequisites of the feat.

Bonus Language: At 3rd level and again at 6th level, a guildmage's access to the Order's superb library and resources allows him to learn a new language.

New Spell: When a mage of the Arcane Order reaches 5th level, and again at 8th level, a fellow wizard allows the character to copy a spell from his or her spellbook (chosen by the player, subject to the DM's approval).

He does not need to make a Spellcraft check to copy the spell into his own spellbook, although specialist wizards still cannot learn spells from prohibited schools.

Spellcasters who do not use spellbooks gain no benefit from this ability.

Regent: A 10th-level mage of the Arcane Order is awarded the status of regent.

Spellpool (Su): Mages of the Arcane Order can call spells from a common source: the Spellpool.

New members receive a special focus (a trinket chosen by the spellcaster, such as a ring, brooch, scarf, or other portable item) at the time of their initiation.

The focus allows access to the Spellpool and works only for its owner.

If a mage of the Arcane Order loses his focus, he must undergo another initiation.

The range of available spells increases at 4th and 7th levels. See the sidebar below for details.

Spell Availability: Three stages of access to the Spellpool exist. A member first joining the Order gains Spellpool I privileges, which grants access to spells of 1st to 3rd level. Spellpool II allows access to 4th- to 6th-level spells, and Spellpool III grants access to 7th- to 9th-level spells. No 0-level spells are available, but the Spellpool can provide any other spell on the wizard/sorcerer spell list in the Player's Handbook, as well as any additional spells designated by the DM.

Spellpool Debt: Every time a spellcaster calls a spell, he incurs a debt. He must return an "energy packet" to the Spellpool: a spell he has prepared of a level equal level to that of the called spell, or a number of spells whose combined levels equal the level of the called spell. For instance, the Spellpool debt for a 5th-level spell is five levels, which could be paid off with another 5th-level spell or any combination of spells whose levels total five. Returning a spell is a full-round action, like calling a spell, and depletes a prepared spell slot as if the spell had been cast.

The debt must be repaid within a number of days equal to the character's class level; otherwise, the mage's access to the Spellpool is automatically suspended. Once the debt is repaid, a suspended caster immediately regains access to the Spellpool—except that failure to pay off a debt within one year results in a spellcaster's expulsion from the Order. A mage can't run a "positive balance" with the Spellpool, paying off a debt before incurring it.

A regent gains a +2 competence bonus on all Charisma-based interaction checks when dealing with lower-level members of the Order.

The regents set the Arcane Order's rules and policies, meeting each month in the Council of Regents.

A regent must attend six council meetings in one year or be removed from the council and lose his regent status (he loses no other benefits of guild membership, nor does he lose his level in the prestige class).

Enacting new policies or eradicating old ones requires a three-fifths majority vote to pass.

Generally, the council hands out commissions for lower-level mages of the Arcane Order to perform on behalf of the guild.

An individual regent might also head up a special group of lower-level members to accomplish a specific goal, such as investigating a crime committed using magic, undertaking an archeological dig of an ancient site of wizardry, or some other important task.

TABLE 2–13: THE MAGE OF THE ARCANIC ORDER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Guild member, Spellpool I	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Free metamagic feat	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Bonus language	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Spellpool II	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	New spell	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Bonus language	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Spellpool III	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	New spell	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Free metamagic feat	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Regent	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

MASTER TRANSMOGRIFIST

Perhaps none of an arcane spellcaster's mighty powers is so versatile, useful, or spectacular as the ability to change into something else entirely.

The master transmogrifist is a sorcerer or wizard who has chosen to specialize in spells that change his form.

The polymorph spell and other shapechanging transmutations offer the master transmogrifist the ability to become a fearsome juggernaut of physical battle, a swift-flying traveler, or the perfect spy.

Since a character must achieve a significant level of competence as an arcane spellcaster to qualify for this prestige class, virtually all who choose this path are sorcerers or wizards.

Of the two, sorcerers are more often drawn to the spontaneity and inventiveness offered by the polymorph spell and other spells like it.

NPC master transmogrifists delight in demonstrating their prowess with their favorite shapes, and are thus sometimes amenable to putting on a show for powerful kings, wizards, or other transmogrifists.

Adaptation: The favored shape ability already provides structure to this class, but one method to add more is to decide that a given transmogrifist must choose a creature type, such as animal.

A transmogrifist gains his enhanced shapechanging abilities only for shapes he takes of that creature type, though he can still take other shapes, too, depending on the spell he casts.

He just doesn't gain the advantages that accrue from this prestige class while in shapes not of his selected type.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a master transmogrifist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Skills: Bluff 2 ranks, Disguise 5 ranks.

Feat: Eschew Materials.

Spells: Able to cast alter self and polymorph.

CLASS SKILLS

The master transmogrifist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disguise (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the master transmogrifist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Master transmogrifists gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level indicated on Table 2–14, a master transmogrifist gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a master transmogrifist, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Extended Change (Ex): A master transmogrifist gains the benefit of the Extend Spell feat on any transmutation spell he casts to change into one of his favored shapes (see below).

This benefit does not increase the spell's level or casting time, or require any special preparation.

Spells that can benefit from this ability include alter self, polymorph, polymorph any object, and shapechange.

Favored Shape (Su): A master transmogrifist chooses three favored shapes at 1st level.

A favored shape is a specific kind of creature whose form he can assume by means of the polymorph spell.

He cannot choose a creature of his own type (humanoid, most likely) as a favored shape.

For example, an 8th-level human sorcerer/1st-level master transmogrifist might choose pegasus, umber hulk, and bronze dragon as his favored shapes, though because of the Hit Dice restriction, he could become only a very young bronze dragon.

A master transmogrifist gains a number of advantages with his favored shapes, as noted in the following class feature descriptions.

At every odd-numbered level beyond 1st, a master transmogrifist gains one additional favored shape. Thus, he has four at 3rd level, five at 5th level, six at 7th level, and seven at 9th level.

Furthermore, once per master transmogrifist level beyond 1st, a character can choose to lose a previously chosen favored shape and select a replacement.

Manifest Senses (Su): At 2nd level and higher, a master transmogrifist gains the senses of his favored shape when he assumes its form.

Senses include extraordinary special qualities such as blindsense, blindsight, darkvision, low-light vision, scent, and tremorsense.

Battle Mastery (Ex): At 3rd level, a master transmogrist gains a +2 competence bonus on all attack rolls he makes while in one of his favored shapes.

This bonus increases to +4 at 6th level and to +6 at 9th level.

Effortless Change (Ex): At 4th level, a master transmogrist learns how to change his form through a simple act of will.

He can choose to apply the benefits of the Still Spell and Silent Spell feats (even if he doesn't have the feats) to any transmutation spell he casts to change into one of his favored shapes.

This benefit does not increase the spell's level or casting time, or require any special preparation.

Spells that can benefit from this ability include alter self, polymorph, polymorph any object, and shapechange.

Shapechanger (Ex): A master transmogrist acquires the shapechanger subtype at 5th level.

He also gains the ability to remain in an assumed form indefinitely when he casts alter self.

This works exactly like the alter self spell except that the duration is permanent.

In other words, a master transmogrist can remain in the form he assumes as long as he wishes, until either he chooses to dismiss it or the alter self effect is dispelled.

Reflexive Change (Ex): At 7th level and higher, a master transmogrist has the ability to change into a favored shape via a transmutation spell in response to an opponent's action once per day.

If he has an appropriate spell prepared and chooses to use this ability, he can change form as an immediate action (see page 86) in response to the action of another creature.

For example, a master transmogrist might turn into a dragon turtle to gain a high Armor Class against an impending attack, or change into a red dragon to gain immunity to the fire damage of an enemy's fire storm spell. The spell is expended as if the transmogrist had cast it normally, and he remains in his new form until either the spell's duration expires or he dismisses it.

A transmogrist gives up his next action to make a reflexive change.

If a master transmogrist is currently under the effect of a shapechange spell he cast on himself, he can use his reflexive change ability as often as he likes (although never more than once per round).

Each time he uses it, he loses his next action.

Manifest Qualities (Ex): At 8th level and higher, a master transmogrist has all the extraordinary special qualities of any favored shape he assumes.

For example, he could change into a troll to make use of the troll's regeneration ability, or take the form of a green hag to gain spell resistance 18.

Infinite Variety (Su): At 10th level, a master transmogrist gains the ability to create completely imaginary forms when he casts polymorph, polymorph any object, or shapechange on himself.

To create an imaginary form, he chooses one of his favored shapes as a base form.

He can then choose a single aspect of a second monster whose form he could assume using the spell he is casting and add it to the first creature.

His available options include the following.

- Replace the base form's natural armor bonus with that of the second form.
- Add the second form's movement modes.
- Add one of the second form's natural attack types (with the appropriate reach), if the base form doesn't have that attack type already.
- Add an extraordinary special attack of the second form.
- Add an extraordinary special quality of the second form.
- Replace one of the base form's physical ability scores, if both the base form and the second form are the same size category.

For example, if a young red dragon is the base form and a giant octopus is the second, a master transmogrist could add the octopus's eight tentacle rakes (damage 1d4 + Str bonus) to the dragon's available natural attacks.

TABLE 2-14: THE MASTER TRANSMOGRIFIST

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Extended change, favored shape	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Manifest senses	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Battle mastery +2	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Effortless change	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Shapechanger	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Battle mastery +4	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Reflexive change	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Manifest qualities	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Battle mastery +6	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Infinite variety	—

MINDBENDER

Mindbenders seek to control the thoughts and dreams of others.

From an early age, those destined to walk this path learn little tricks of manipulation to get their way.

Later, they turn to spellcasting to enhance their already impressive skills at bluffing, intimidating, and otherwise dealing with people to their own advantage.

Magic holds the promise of complete mental domination, and the mindbender realizes it spectacularly.

Spellcasters who take this prestige class give up a great deal of their caster level advancement, but they instead gain ever-greater abilities to alter and eventually command the will of others.

Anyone who is ready to sacrifice magic for manipulation is a suitable candidate for this prestige class.

Mindbenders do not get on well with one another, as each attempts to assert his control over the rest.

It is not unknown for one mindbender to secretly control another—such is considered the perfect front. Possessing the power to control others' minds doesn't ensure immunity to the same treatment.

Most NPC mindbenders are neutral or evil in alignment. Using magic to enslave the will of others is rarely a good act, especially if the mindbender has no intention of ever compensating his thrall for its involuntary service or releasing it in the future.

NPC mindbenders therefore tend to be found in positions where their enchantment abilities allow them to amass great wealth and influence, ruling small towns or isolated keeps as the power behind the throne, secret masters who brook no rival in their domains.

Adaptation: The most straightforward adaptation of this class is to make it psionic, barring it completely from being taken by arcanists.

In this case, eliminate the spellcasting requirement, and replace it with "Psionics: Able to manifest psionic powers, including at least one telepathy power of 3rd level or higher".

Also, the Spells per Day column on the class table becomes a Powers per Day column.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a mindbender, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nongood.

Skills: Bluff 4 ranks, Diplomacy 4 ranks, Intimidate 4 ranks, Sense Motive 4 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast charm person, use charm person as a spell-like ability, or use the charm invocation.

Spells or Spell-Like Abilities: Arcane caster level 5th.

CLASS SKILLS

The mindbender's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the mindbender prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Mindbenders gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each odd-numbered level, a mindbender gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If he had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a mindbender, he must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Telepathy (Su): A mindbender unlocks one of the most basic elements of his mental craft at 1st level, gaining the ability to communicate telepathically with any creature within 100 feet that has a language.

Skill Boost (Ex): A mindbender is a consummate student of manipulation, be it magical or mundane.

Beginning at 2nd level, he can add 1/2 his class level as a competence bonus on Bluff, Diplomacy, Intimidate, and Sense Motive checks.

Push the Weak Mind (Sp): At 2nd level and higher, a mindbender can influence the actions of a living creature of Large or smaller size once per day.

This ability functions like a suggestion spell, except that the range is 100 feet and the duration is 5 hours plus 1 hour per class level.

The mindbender can communicate the suggested course of action telepathically if he chooses, which allows him to use the effect regardless of the target's language.

A successful Will save (DC 13 + primary spellcasting ability modifier) negates the effect.

(Primary spellcasting ability is Intelligence for wizards, Charisma for sorcerers and warlocks, Wisdom for clerics, and so forth).

A mindbender can use this ability one additional time per day per three class levels gained (two times per day at 5th and three times per day at 8th).

Mindread (Sp): At 3rd level and higher, a mindbender can read the surface thoughts of a living creature within 100 feet.

This is a mind-affecting ability that requires a standard action to use.

The mindbender must be able to see the target; a successful Will save (DC 12 + primary spellcasting ability modifier) negates the effect.

Creatures of animal intelligence (Int 1 or 2) have only simple, instinctual thoughts.

Maintaining the effect requires concentration; the maximum duration is 10 minutes.

The ability can penetrate barriers, but 1 foot of stone, 1 inch of common metal, a thin sheet of lead, or 3 feet of wood or dirt blocks it.

This effect is the equivalent of a 2nd-level spell.

A mindbender can use this ability two times per day at 3rd level and four times per day at 7th level.

Eternal Charm (Sp): At 4th level and higher, a mindbender can charm any single Large or smaller living creature within 100 feet (as charm monster) once per day.

A successful Will save (DC 14 + primary spellcasting ability modifier) negates the effect.

The duration is permanent; however, a mindbender can have only one creature so charmed at any given time.

If he attempts to use this power on a creature while he has another so charmed, the first charm is automatically broken (regardless of the success of the second attempt).

The effect is also broken if a mindbender or one of his allies injures the target.

Dispel magic has no effect on an eternal charm, though break enchantment frees the victim (treat the mindbender's caster level as 5 + his class level for this purpose).

At 6th level and higher, a mindbender can have up to two creatures affected by this power at any given time; if he attempts to charm a third, the previous victim under his influence the longest is freed.

At 8th level, he can control up to three creatures with this ability, and at 10th level up to four creatures.

Enchantment Spell Power (Ex): At 6th level and higher, a mindbender casts more powerful enchantment spells: He adds 2 to his caster level when casting any enchantment spell.

This increase improves to 4 at 10th level.

Dominate (Sp): At 7th level, a mindbender becomes able to dominate any single living Large or smaller creature within 100 feet (as dominate monster) once per day.

A successful Will save (DC 19 + primary spellcasting ability modifier) negates the effect.

The duration is 24 hours.

Thrall (Su): At 10th level, a mindbender's mental mastery reaches its pinnacle.

He can choose to make the duration of his dominate ability (see above) permanent, but only on one target at a time.

If a mindbender chooses to dominate another creature and make that effect permanent, the previous thrall is freed from the effect.

TABLE 2-15: THE MINDBENDER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Telepathy	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Push the weak mind 1/day, skill boost	—
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Mindread 2/day	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Eternal charm (1)	—
5th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Push the weak mind 2/day	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Enchantment spell power +2, eternal charm (2)	—
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Dominate, mindread 4/day	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+4	+6	+2	+6	Eternal charm (3), push the weak mind 3/day	—
9th	+4	+6	+3	+6	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Enchantment spell power +4, eternal charm (4), thrall	—

SEEKER OF THE SONG

Beyond magic, beyond sound, beyond good or evil, lies music so profound and powerful that even deities quake at its sound.

This primal music—of unknown origin and with no limit to its power—is incomprehensible to the mortal ear.

To some who hear a fragment of this music, it becomes beauty incarnate, and they devote their lives to its discovery.

These seekers wield the power of music in ways that amaze even the most skilled bards.

United only by their quest, seekers of the song have incredibly diverse goals and motivations.

Some black-hearted seekers know that this primal music is power, and they lust after it in hopes of turning it against their many enemies.

Others search for the music to bring joy and peace.

Most have more moderate aspirations and seek the music because it moves them.

Regardless of their goals, seekers of the song rarely work against one another—each hoping that another seeker will uncover another piece of the primal music and share it with the rest.

The song never leaves a seeker, and its power can have strange effects on their souls.

Some retire from society, seeking the silence of distant monasteries or mountaintops from which to better concentrate on the music they once heard.

Others remain unchanged to outward appearances, yet the music remains in the back of their minds at all times.

Some talk to any who will listen about the importance and beauty of the primal music, while others cannot seem to find the words to express what this music means to them or to the world.

Every seeker of the song must have at least one bard level, but beyond that, their stories and careers differ wildly.

Many begin their adventuring careers as bards, drawn to music from their earliest days.

Others come to the class after adventuring as fighters, rogues, clerics, or members of other classes for most of their careers, with little idea that the primal music will become their chosen path.

Although at least a few seekers emerge from every class, few wizards or sorcerers take up the pursuit; members of these classes are more likely to devote themselves to traditional spellcasting rather than the strange pull of the primal music.

Adaptation: The seeker of the song prestige class presents a powerful new set of bardic abilities, going far beyond the basic bardic music ability presented in the Player's Handbook.

Many campaigns can benefit from exploring this facet of the game, but a DM might not want to introduce the idea of primal music into a campaign's cosmology.

In this case, the seekers of the song might become the disciples of a distant bardic college.

The college is extreme in the eyes of other bards: They discard the notion of bards as wanderers and gatherers of diverse skills, and instead focus on music as a force of magic to the exclusion of all else.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a seeker of the song, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 13 ranks, Perform (any one) 13 ranks.

Feat: Skill Focus (Perform [any one]).

Special: Bardic music ability.

Special: Must have been exposed to the primal music by hearing another seeker of the song use a seeker music ability.

CLASS SKILLS

The seeker of the song's class skills (and they key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int),

Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), and Swim (Str).
Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the seeker of the song prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Seekers of the song gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Rapture of the Song (Su): A seeker of the song is so in tune with the power of the primal music that she gains special insight, physical fortitude, and resistance to magic while in the throes of her song.

A seeker gains a +2 insight bonus to Armor Class whenever she uses her bardic music ability, seeker music, or a similar ability.

At 4th level and higher, a seeker also gains a +2 insight bonus on saving throws whenever she uses her bardic music ability, seeker music, or a similar ability.

At 7th level and higher, a seeker also gains damage reduction 2/- whenever she uses her bardic music ability, seeker music, or a similar ability.

At 10th level, a seeker gains these abilities and also acts as though affected by a freedom of movement spell whenever she uses her bardic music ability, seeker music, or a similar ability.

Seeker Music: A seeker of the song can use music or poetics to produce magical effects.

Seeker music follows the same rules as bardic music (see page 29 of the Player's Handbook).

Each use of seeker music costs one daily use of bardic music to activate.

Seeker of the song levels stack with bard levels for purposes of determining how many daily uses of bardic music and seeker music the character has.

Some seeker music effects include a secondary effect, called a refrain.

In any round when a seeker concentrates on a seeker music effect and expends another use of bardic music, she can activate the refrain associated with that seeker music effect. Using a refrain is a swift action (see page 86) that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

The original effects of the song do not end; the seeker can maintain the song and activate the refrain simultaneously.

Burning Melody (Su): A seeker of the song with 14 or more ranks in a Perform skill can gather a glimmer of the power of the primal music and gain some control over fire through this music.

While a seeker sings this song, she and all of her allies within 30 feet who can hear her gain resistance to fire 15. An ally benefits from this effect for as long as it can hear the seeker sing.

Burning Melody, Refrain: When she uses the refrain with her burning melody, a seeker shoots a 30-foot cone of fire from her fingertips.

The cone deals 6d6 points of fire damage to creatures in its area.

A successful Reflex save (DC 10 + the seeker's ranks in the Perform skill) halves the damage.

Song of Unmaking (Su): At 2nd level and higher, a seeker with 15 or more ranks in a Perform skill can turn a fragment of the primal music's power against constructs. She can expend a use of bardic music and make a Perform check to deal 1d8 points of damage per seeker level to all constructs within a 30-foot burst of the seeker (no save).

Dirge of Frozen Loss (Su): A seeker of the song of 3rd level or higher with 16 or more ranks in a Perform skill can gather the power of the primal music to gain control over cold energy through this music.

While a seeker sings this song, she and all of her allies within 30 feet who can hear her gain resistance to cold 15. An ally benefits from this effect for as long as it can hear the seeker sing.

Dirge of Frozen Loss, Refrain: When she uses the refrain with her dirge of frozen loss, a seeker shoots a 60-foot line of cold energy from her fingertips.

The line deals 10d6 points of cold damage to any creature it hits and causes any creature damaged by it to become fatigued.

A successful Fortitude save (DC 10 + the seeker's ranks in the Perform skill) halves the damage and negates the fatigue.

Song of Life (Su): A seeker of the song of 4th level or higher with 17 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use fragments of the primal music to protect and heal her allies.

While a seeker sings this song, she and all of her allies within 30 feet who can hear her gain immunity to poison and disease.

An ally benefits from this effect for as long as it can hear the seeker sing.

Song of Life, Refrain: When she uses the refrain with her dirge of frozen loss, a seeker can make a Perform check to heal a living creature of an amount of hit point damage equal to the check result (up to the creature's full normal hit point total).

She must touch the affected ally to use this ability.

The touch is a standard action, although activating the refrain is still a swift action.

The refrain has no effect on undead or nonliving creatures.

Anthem of Thunder and Pain (Su): A seeker of the song of 5th level or higher with 18 or more ranks in a Perform skill can gather the power of the primal music and gain some control over electrical energy through this music.

While a seeker sings this song, she and all of her allies within 30 feet who can hear her gain resistance to electricity 15.

An ally benefits from this effect for as long as it can hear the seeker sing.

Anthem of Thunder and Pain, Refrain: When she uses the refrain with her anthem of thunder and pain, a seeker shoots a ray of electricity from her fingertips.

The ray has a range of 20 feet and requires a ranged touch attack to hit.

The ray deals 10d6 points of electricity damage to a creature it hits.

The seeker can then cause the electricity to arc to additional foes, all of whom must be within 20 feet of the first creature struck.

Each secondary ray requires another ranged touch attack to hit and deals half as much damage as the initial ray.

A seeker can create one secondary ray for every three seeker class levels (one when the song becomes available at 5th level, two at 6th level, and three at 9th level).

No creature can be affected by more than one arc in a single round.

Hymn of Spelldeath (Su): A seeker of the song of 6th level or higher with 19 or more ranks in a Perform skill can turn the power of the primal music against magic effects.

Any creature that can hear the seeker perform must make a Concentration check opposed by the seeker's Perform check in order to cast a spell.

If the Concentration check fails, the spell is lost and has no effect.

If the Concentration check succeeds, the spell is cast as normal.

A hymn of spelldeath is a mind-affecting ability.

Hymn of Spelldeath, Refrain: When she uses the refrain with her hymn of spelldeath, a seeker can attempt to dispel magic.

This ability works just like the area version of dispel magic, except the effect is centered on the seeker.

At her option, a seeker can exclude herself and her allies from this effect, but the effect must still be centered on her. The seeker makes a level check just as if she were a spellcaster using the dispel magic spell, using the total of her bard levels and seeker of the song levels as her modifier for the check.

Ballad of Agony Reborn (Su): A seeker of the song of 7th level or higher with 20 or more ranks in a Perform skill can gather the power of the primal music to gain control over acid energy through this music.

While a seeker sings this song, she and all of her allies within 30 feet who can hear her gain resistance to acid 15. An ally benefits from this effect for as long as it can hear the seeker sing.

Ballad of Agony Reborn, Refrain: When she uses the refrain with her ballad of agony reborn, a seeker shoots a ray of acid from her fingertips.

The ray has a range of 60 feet and requires a ranged touch attack to hit.

The ray deals 10d6 points of acid damage to a creature it hits, and another 10d6 points of acid damage 1 round later.

Aria of Everywhere (Sp): A seeker of the song of 8th level or higher with 21 or more ranks in a Perform skill can pull the power of the primal music into herself and move short distances instantaneously.

She can expend a use of bardic music or seeker music to instantly transport herself to any other spot within 25 feet + 5 feet/level.

This ability otherwise functions as the dimension door spell, except that the seeker can't bring along additional creatures with this ability.

Dirge of Songdeath (Su): A seeker of the song of 9th level or higher with 22 or more ranks in a Perform skill can gather the power of the primal music to gain control over sonic energy through this music.

While a seeker sings this song, she and all of her allies within 30 feet who can hear her gain resistance to sonic 15. An ally benefits from this effect for as long as it can hear the seeker sing.

In addition, as long as the seeker is singing a dirge of songdeath, other creatures within 30 feet cannot easily use bardic music, seeker music, or similar abilities.

To use such an ability, a creature within the area must make a Perform check opposed by the seeker's Perform check.

If the check is successful, the creature can use the ability as desired.

If the check fails, the ability has no effect, but a daily use of the music ability must be expended normally.

Dirge of Songdeath, Refrain: When she uses the refrain with her hymn of spelldeath, a seeker shoots a ray of sonic energy from her fingertips.

The ray has a range of 60 feet and requires a ranged touch attack to hit.

The ray deals 15d6 points of sonic damage to a creature it hits.

Note of Solitude (Su): Upon reaching 10th level, a seeker of the song with 23 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use the power of the primal music to temporarily sever some creatures' tie with other planes.

Extraplanar creatures within 60 feet of a seeker who activates this ability must make a Will saving throw (DC 10 + the seeker's ranks in the Perform skill).

Creatures affected by this ability get a bonus on this saving throw equal to their Hit Dice.

Any creature that fails this saving throw is instantly sent to its home plane.

Unlike other musical abilities and affects, a note of solitude has a duration of instantaneous and cannot be maintained, though the seeker can activate it again on subsequent rounds by spending additional uses of bardic music or seeker music.

Combine Songs (Ex): A seeker of the song of 2nd level or higher can combine two types of bardic music or seeker music to provide the benefits of both.

The seeker chooses two music abilities and activates both using the same standard action.

If either or both require concentration, the seeker can maintain concentration on both by using one standard action each round to concentrate.

The normal stacking rules for bonus types apply to music abilities combined with this ability.

Subvocalize (Ex): At 5th level and higher, a seeker of the song can begin a new bardic music or seeker music song as a swift action (see page 86).

A seeker can use this ability only if he already has one (and only one) bardic music or seeker music ability already active.

A seeker can use this ability in conjunction with the combine songs ability to start a second song and then maintain both as a standard action each round (as per the combine songs ability).

EX-SEEKERS OF THE SONG

Like a member of any other prestige class, a seeker of the song can take levels in other classes after entering the seeker of the song class, but seekers of the song face a special restriction.

A seeker of the song who gains a level in any other class after having gained his first seeker level can never again raise her seeker of the song level, though she retains the seeker abilities she has already earned.

The path of the seeker demands constant attention and devotion.

If a character adopts this prestige class, she must pursue it to the exclusion of all other careers.

Once she has turned from the path, she can never return.

TABLE 2-16: THE SEEKER OF THE SONG

Level	Base				Special	Seeker Music
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Rapture of the song (+2 AC), seeker music	Burning melody
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Combine songs	Song of unmaking
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3		Dirge of frozen loss
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Rapture of the song (+2 saves)	Song of life
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Subvocalize	Anthem of thunder and pain
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5		Hymn of spelldeath
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Rapture of the song (DR 2/-)	Ballad of agony reborn
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6		Aria of everywhere
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6		Dirge of songdeath
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	Rapture of the song (freedom of movement)	Hymn of revealing

SUBLIME CHORD

Music is not just a pleasant sound; it is also the expression of mathematical relationships fraught with significance. A member of the sublime chord prestige class sees music, even the powerful music of a skilled bard, as nothing more than a stepping-stone to true universal insight into the legendary song of creation heard at the dawn of time. Music and magic are actually one and the same, and an astute student who unravels the riddles of meter and pitch simultaneously reveals hidden secrets of great power. All sublime chords must have some foundation in the bard's art, since bardic music is the first step in mastering the power of the First Song.

However, music is only one tool for understanding the infinite; a sublime chord must also study mathematics and the precise movements of the stars and planets in which the music of the spheres is evident.

In exchange for abandoning her continuing study of bardic music, a sublime chord instead masters a number of spells far more powerful than most bards can ever use.

While most sublime chords receive the majority of their training as bards, a small number of sorcerers and wizards are drawn to this class, enticed by the notion of an ultimate truth linking the power of song and the power of magic. Sublime chords are often drawn to colleges, universities, and other gatherings of learned folk.

In some places, such as the Starry Lyceum in the city of Osterhaven, they gather in small circles of musical scholars. The Starry Lyceum is dedicated to the pursuit and preservation of knowledge, and its members are known for their efforts to recover lost secrets and prevent the fading of ancient songs and star-taught wisdom.

Ostensibly neutral in the affairs of the world, the sublime chords of the Lyceum make their learning and lore available to all who seek it—a policy that often runs counter to those who would seek to govern or dominate other people by fostering ignorance.

NPC sublime chords are encountered in much the same variety of adventures and roles in which one finds NPC bards.

They blur the line between bard and wizard, and are often mistaken for mages who wield mysterious song-based magic.

As scholars without peer, NPC sublime chords are especially interested in recovering lost lore and exploring arcane mysteries, and they often join adventuring parties with similar interests.

Adaptation: The Starry Lyceum can serve as the focal point for the inclusion of this prestige class.

However, this organization is more than a group; it is really a way of life.

Its members are scholars, bards, and mages in search of fundamental truth and dedicated to the preservation of knowledge.

In your campaign, you can easily substitute any similar college for the Starry Lyceum.

For example, in the FORGOTTEN REALMS® setting, the scribes of Candlekeep or the Vault of Sages in Silvermoon would serve quite well in place of the Lyceum for any sublime chord characters.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a sublime chord, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 13 ranks, Listen 13 ranks, Perform (any) 10 ranks, Profession (astrologer) 6 ranks, Spellcraft 6 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast 3rd-level arcane spells.

Special: Bardic music ability.

CLASS SKILLS

The sublime chord's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Speak Language (n/a), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the sublime chord prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sublime chords gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

As with bard spells, the somatic components for a sublime chord's spells do not incur an arcane spell failure chance as normal for arcane spells if the sublime chord is wearing light armor.

Spells per Day: A sublime chord has the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells, all of 4th level or higher.

To cast a sublime chord spell, a character must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so if she has a Charisma of 13 or lower, she cannot cast any sublime chord spells.

Bonus spells are based on Charisma, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the sublime chord's Cha modifier.

A sublime chord can choose spells from the sorcerer/wizard spell list or the bard spell list; if a spell appears on both lists at different levels, she uses the bard version of the spell.

A sublime chord's caster level for both her sublime chord spells and the spells she gains from other arcane spellcasting classes is determined by adding her sublime chord level to her level in another arcane spellcasting class. If she had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a sublime chord, she must choose to which class to add her sublime chord levels for the purpose of determining her sublime chord spellcaster level.

A sublime chord prepares and casts spells just as a sorcerer does, including the ability to replace a known sublime chord spell with a new spell at every even-numbered class level beginning at 4th.

TABLE 2-17: SUBLIME CHORD SPELLS KNOWN

Level	4th	5th	Spells Known
			6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	3	1	—	—	—	—
2nd	4	2	—	—	—	—
3rd	4	2	1	—	—	—
4th	4	3	2	—	—	—
5th	4	3	2	1	—	—
6th	4	4	3	2	—	—
7th	4	4	3	2	1	—
8th	4	4	4	3	2	—
9th	4	4	4	3	2	1
10th	4	4	4	4	3	2

Bardic Knowledge: A sublime chord continues to collect the odd bits of lore and knowledge that bards acquire. She can add her sublime chord class level to her bardic knowledge checks, so her bardic knowledge checks have a bonus equal to her bard level + her sublime chord level + her Int modifier.

Bardic Music: A sublime chord expands her repertoire of bardic music to encompass new songs or poetics of strange and wondrous power.

These effects function just as the bardic music effects described in the Player's Handbook.

Each use of a sublime chord song expends one daily use of the character's bardic music ability.

A sublime chord adds one-half her class level (rounded down) to her bard level to determine her number of daily uses of bardic music.

Song of Arcane Power (Su): A sublime chord of 2nd level or higher with 12 or more ranks in a Perform skill learns how to use her bardic music to assist her spellcasting.

As a move action, she can prepare to cast a spell by giving voice to the song of power.

TABLE 2-18: THE SUBLIME CHORD

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Bardic lore, bardic music	2	1	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Song of arcane power	2	2	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	—	3	2	1	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	3	3	2	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	3	3	2	1	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Song of timelessness	4	3	3	2	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	4	4	3	2	1	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	—	4	4	3	3	2	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	4	4	4	3	2	1
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Song of cosmic fire	5	4	4	3	3	2

The next spell she casts gains a bonus to its caster level based on the result of the sublime chord's Perform check:

Perform Check Result	Caster Level Increase
9 or lower	+0
10 to 19	+1
20 to 29	+2
30 or higher	+4

The spell to be enhanced by the song of arcane power must be cast by the end of the sublime chord's next turn, or else the song fades with no effect (other than consuming a bardic music use).

Song of Timelessness (Su): A sublime chord of 6th level or higher with 16 or more ranks in a Perform skill knows the song of timelessness.

As a standard action, she can envelop a single creature within 60 feet in a field of timelessness, provided she has line of effect to the target (see page 176 of the Player's Handbook).

The subject is entitled to a Will save (DC 10 + sublime chord level + Cha modifier) to negate the effect.

If the subject fails its save, it is frozen in a shimmering aura of timelessness and can take no actions.

However, no force can affect it—weapons cannot reach it, spells that target it automatically fail, and if the ground it is standing on is somehow taken away, it would not even begin to fall.

A sublime chord can keep her target frozen in time for as long as she maintains the power by continuing to perform, up to a maximum of 1 minute per level.

When she stops performing, the subject immediately returns to normal.

As far as the creature is concerned, no time seems to have passed.

Song of Cosmic Fire (Su): A 10th-level sublime chord with 20 or more ranks in a Perform skill learns the song of cosmic fire.

Using this ability costs a sublime chord two of her daily uses of bardic music.

The song of cosmic fire creates a 20-foot-radius spread of fire anywhere within 100 feet of the sublime chord (provided she has line of effect to the fire's point of origin). Creatures in the area take damage equal to the sublime chord's Perform check result.

All affected creatures are entitled to a Reflex save (DC 10 + sublime chord level + Cha modifier) for half damage.

SUEL ARCANAMACH

The ancient Suel Empire was known for the great and terrible power wielded by its mighty archmages. Suloise sorcerers delved deep into arcane lore that other folk avoided, unearthing many dark and dangerous secrets in the process.

The Suel Empire was ruled by noble families headed by mages of unsurpassed power, and the countless rivalries and vendettas between these families led to the rise of an elite school of combat training: the way of the arcanamach. Conditioned for loyalty, determination, and absolute obedience, arcanamachs were skillful warriors who studied arcane magic for the express purpose of learning how to slay powerful wizards.

In the days of the Suel Empire, the arcanamachs were guards for their archmage masters, serving the greatest Suel wizards with sword and spell.

They were also assassins and spies trained to slay powerful wizards of rival families, as well as defend the wizards of their own families.

In hundreds of secret duels of spell and steel, arcanamachs practiced their arts against others of their kind, learning their skills from hidden arcanamach academies.

While the Suel Empire is long dead, the tradition of the arcanamach still survives in a rare set of magical tomes: the Grimoire Arcanamacha.

No academies for these warrior-wizards remain, but a skilled swordsman who studies from the Grimoire Arcanamacha—or who learns from a master who has studied the Grimoire—can unlock many secrets of stealth, alertness, mental fortitude, and combative spellcasting. While the arcanamachs formerly existed as elite guards and agents for powerful wizards, those who follow the tradition in the modern day retain no special allegiance to other arcanists.

Suel arcanamach NPCs are spies and assassins, secretive individuals who excel at using stealth, spells, and swordplay to achieve their goals.

Some are dedicated mage-slayers who make a career out of destroying other spellcasters.

Adaptation: The notion of an elite order of warrior-mages is not restricted to the Greyhawk setting.

You can easily adapt the arcanamach to your own campaign, even if you do not play in Greyhawk.

In the FORGOTTEN REALMS setting, the arcanamach can be a student of the elite warrior traditions of the Empire of Netheril, the Imaskari Empire, or even the realms of Jhaamdath or Mulhorand.

Simply change the language requirement to an appropriate dead language for the empire in question (Loross, Roushoum, Thorass, or Mulhorandi), and the class should work well with no further modification.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a Suel arcanamach, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +6.

Skills: Concentration 4 ranks, Jump 4 ranks, Spellcraft 5 ranks, Tumble 4 ranks.

Feats: Combat Casting, Iron Will.

Language: Ancient Suloise.

Special: Must be proficient with at least four martial or exotic weapons.

Special: Must read the Grimoire Arcanamacha, or study with a willing instructor who has done so.

Reading the Grimoire requires one full week of uninterrupted study, and the ability to read Ancient Suloise.

Learning from a willing instructor requires four weeks of training.

CLASS SKILLS

The Suel arcanamach's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the Suel arcanamach prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Suel arcanamachs gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Armor of any type interferes with an arcanamach's movements, which can cause spells with somatic components to fail (but see Ignore Spell Failure Chance, below).

Spells per Day: A Suel arcanamach has the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells.

To cast a Suel arcanamach spell, he must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so if he has a Charisma of 10 or lower, he cannot cast these spells.

Bonus spells are based on Charisma, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + his Cha modifier.

When he gets 0 spells per day of a given level (for instance, 1st-level spells for 1st level), he gains only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Charisma score for that spell level.

He has access to any spell of the abjuration, divination, illusion, and transmutation schools on the sorcerer/wizard spell list.

He casts spells just as a sorcerer does, including the ability to replace a known Suel arcanamach spell with a new spell at every even-numbered class level beginning at 4th.

TABLE 2-19: SUEL ARCANAMACH SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
1st	1	—	—	—	—
2nd	2	1*	—	—	—
3rd	2	2	—	—	—
4th	2	2	1*	—	—
5th	3	2	2	—	—
6th	3	3	2	1*	—
7th	3	3	2	2	—
8th	4	3	3	2	1*
9th	4	4	3	2	2
10th	4	4	3	3	2

*Provided the arcanamach has a high enough Charisma score to have a bonus spell of this level.

Ignore Spell Failure Chance (Ex): A Suel arcanamach's practice at merging spellcasting and swordplay results in a reduction in the arcane spell failure chance associated with using armor or shields.

This reduction starts at 5% at 1st level and increases by 5% every three levels thereafter.

The arcanamach subtracts the given percentage value from his total spell failure chance, if any.

For example, a 1st-level arcanamach wearing a mithral shirt has a spell failure chance of 5%, not 10%.

This ability only functions when the character casts a Suel arcanamach spell.

Tenacious Spells (Ex): An arcanamach's Suel arcanamach spells are particularly difficult to dispel; add 6 to the DC required to dispel the character's arcanamach spells.

Dispelling Strike (Su): Once per day, a Suel arcanamach of 2nd level or higher can attempt a dispelling strike with one normal melee attack.

If he hits, he deals normal damage, and the victim is subject to a targeted greater dispel magic.

The arcanamach's dispel check is 1d20 + class level + 6.

If a Suel arcanamach makes a dispelling strike against a creature with no spells or effects to dispel, the dispelling strike has no effect, but the ability is used up for that day.

At 6th level, an arcanamach can use this power two times per day, and at 10th level he can use it three times per day.

Extended Spellstrength (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a Suel arcanamach knows how to extend the duration of spells that he casts on himself.

The duration of any of his Suel arcanamach spells with which he targets himself is doubled, as if affected by the Extend Spell feat (but without any adjustment to the spell's effective level or casting time).

For instance, a bull's strength spell cast by a 3rd-level Suel arcanamach on himself has a duration of 6 minutes rather than 3 minutes.

Spells that target multiple targets are affected by this power, but only the arcanamach gains the extended duration.

For example, a 5th-level arcanamach who casts haste would be hastened for 10 rounds, while his allies would gain the effect only for the normal 5-round duration.

Spells that do not have a Target entry are unaffected by this power even if the arcanamach is the only one affected.

TABLE 2-20: THE SUEL ARCANAMACH

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Ignore spell failure chance 5%, tenacious spells	1	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Dispelling strike 1/day	1	0	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Extended spellstrength	2	1	—	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Ignore spell failure chance 10%	2	2	0	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	—	3	2	1	—	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Dispelling strike 2/day	3	3	2	0	—
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Ignore spell failure chance 15%	3	3	2	1	—
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	—	4	3	3	2	0
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	—	4	4	3	2	1
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Dispelling strike 3/day, ignore spell failure chance 20%	4	4	3	3	2

WAYFARER GUIDE

The wayfarer guide focuses on honing her skill at instantaneous magical transportation.

Unlike spellcasters of other prestigious associations, a wayfarer guide need not devote years of her life to the art of teleportation nor focus her attention overmuch on the pursuit of perfection.

Still, she learns secrets of the trade that are available only through employment with the Wayfarers Union.

The Union is, at its heart, a transportation service that specialty spellcasters provide for those willing to pay.

Most wayfarer guides are wizards or sorcerers, though a few clerics with access to the Travel domain have been known to pursue this class.

Such characters typically have a level or two in bard, ranger, or wizard to meet the Knowledge requirements more quickly. Wayfarers Union offices are generally found in large cities, staffed by wayfarer guides who offer a variety of standard services.

Particularly qualified NPC wayfarer guides, called "danger wayfarers", are sometimes available to teleport bold clients into dangerous locales, though the price is commensurately higher.

Adaptation: This prestige class is quick and to the point. However, even wayfarers have their disputes.

Perhaps in your campaign no single Wayfarers Union exists.

Instead, many splintered groups each claim particular areas of geography as theirs, and they bitterly contest the "illegal" transportation of goods or travelers in their territory by other groups.

Those who can smuggle goods or travelers into areas held by opposing wayfarers or state-sanctioned wayfarers would become probable in such a campaign.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a wayfarer guide, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 10 ranks, Knowledge (geography) 10 ranks.

Spell: Able to cast teleport.

Special: A prospective wayfarer guide must join the Wayfarers Union (although she can later quit without losing previously acquired levels).

CLASS SKILLS

The wayfarer guide's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge

(all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Speak Language (n/a), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the wayfarer guide prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wayfarer guides gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At 1st and 3rd level, a wayfarer guide gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, a bonus feat, and so on).

If she had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a wayfarer guide, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Enhanced Capacity (Ex): A wayfarer guide can transport material more efficiently.

When casting any spell with the teleportation descriptor that allows other willing creatures to be brought along, a wayfarer guide can bring along one additional Medium touched willing creature (carrying gear or objects up to its maximum load) per class level, subject to the same restrictions given in the teleport spell description.

For example, a 9th-level wizard/2nd-level wayfarer guide can bring up to five other Medium or smaller creatures with her (instead of the normal limit of three creatures for an 11th-level caster).

Improved Range (Ex): A wayfarer guide can travel greater distances when teleporting.

When the character casts any spell with the teleportation descriptor, the maximum distance covered by the spell increases by 50%.

For example, a 9th-level wizard/1st-level wayfarer guide can teleport up to 1,500 miles with a single teleport spell (instead of the normal limit of 1,000 miles for a 10th-level caster).

Extra Teleportation: Beginning at 2nd level, a wayfarer guide gains an extra 5th-level spell slot, which can be used only for a teleport spell.

Enhanced Accuracy (Ex): At 3rd level and higher, a wayfarer guide becomes more skilled at arriving on target. When casting any spell with the teleportation descriptor that includes a random chance for determining the actual destination (such as teleport), a wayfarer guide can roll twice and choose the result she wants.

TABLE 2-21: THE WAYFARER GUIDE

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Enhanced capacity, improved range	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Extra teleportation	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Enhanced accuracy	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

WILD MAGE

Magic is one of the most capricious and unpredictable of all natural or supernatural forces in the universe.

Attempts to codify spellcasting through arcane formulas, or to impose order on magic through the force of will, are essentially pointless—or so wild mages believe.

Instead, those who would truly master magic must forget what they know and abandon their willful control of the arcane.

Within this paradox lies the awesome power of wild magic.

The wild mage aspires to cast spells without structure.

By taking the risk of substituting an element of randomness, she gives up the safe predictability of other arcane spellcasters.

This risk allows for the potential of power greater than other casters can hope for.

Of course, she also risks the potential for less power, but what is magic if not risky?

Chaos is strong, and her magic often carries her to heights of power that other casters cannot reach—but chaos is also fickle, and her spells sometimes fall short of her expectations.

In addition, from time to time her spells unfold in spectacular wild surges that might prove catastrophic to the wild mage and her companions.

The wild mage accepts this as the price of her convictions.

Sorcerers are naturally intrigued by the study of wild magic.

The act of unchaining their spells from the safeguards and controls built into these time-honored formulas appeals to many of them.

One might suppose that few wizards would be drawn to the spontaneity and unpredictability of wild magic, but in fact many wizards do become wild mages, seeking to explore and harness the power of chaos.

Wild mages tend to be solitary innovators.

They have little contact with their fellow spellcasters, since wild mages can't really learn from them.

Rumors persist of a secretive Prismatic Cabal of wild mages who cloister themselves within the depths of Limbo to experience the power of chaos firsthand.

Capricious and powerful, NPC wild mages act much like chaotic sorcerers and wizards.

Some are heroes who join parties crusading against tyranny and evil, while others are villains who revel in the chaos of destruction and disaster.

A few wild mages (generally not good-aligned ones) believe that the power of their magic increases as the amount of chaos and uncertainty in the world around them rises, and therefore they bend their efforts toward instigating catastrophes of all kinds.

Adaptation: A twist on this class might include the concept that wild mages do not so much exploit instabilities in the magic as create those instabilities themselves with their skewed technique.

The proliferation of such casting could possibly lead to geographic or ecological consequences that are strange at the least, or, at worst, stepping stones to disaster.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a wild mage, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any chaotic.

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 4 ranks, Spellcraft 8 ranks, Use Magic Device 4 ranks.

Feats: Magical Aptitude, any metamagic feat.

Spells or Spell-Like Abilities: Arcane caster level 1st.

CLASS SKILLS

The wild mage's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the wild mage prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wild mages gain no proficiency with any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each level, a wild mage gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in an arcane spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (such as the bonus feat sometimes gained by a wizard).

If she had more than one arcane spellcasting class before becoming a wild mage, she must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Wild Magic: A wild mage casts spells differently from any other arcane spellcaster.

She reduces her caster level by 3 for all spells she casts from now on.

However, every time she casts a spell, her use of wild magic adds 1d6 to her adjusted caster level.

For example, an 8th-level sorcerer/1st-level wild mage has a base caster level of 6th, not 9th, but her actual caster level varies from 7th to 12th for every spell she casts.

Caster level affects all level-based variables of a spell, including spell penetration checks.

Random Deflector (Su): At 2nd level and higher, a wild mage has the ability to protect herself from certain attacks with this ability.

Using this ability is an immediate action (see page 86), which means that a wild mage activates it when it is not her turn.

When activated, the random deflector lasts until the beginning of the wild mage's next turn.

The random deflector redirects ranged attacks, ranged touch attacks, and individually targeted spells (spells designating the wild mage as the sole target, but not area spells striking an area in which she happens to be the sole target) so that they instead attack or affect a random target within 20 feet of the wild mage.

A wild mage includes herself and her allies among the possible new targets.

Any creature targeted by a deflected attack is attacked or affected normally, so an attack roll is made normally against the new target's AC, the new target receives a saving throw if a spell or effect allows one, and so on.

A wild mage can use this ability once per day at 2nd level, two times per day at 5th level, and three times per day at 8th level.

Student of Chaos (Ex): Whenever a wild mage of 3rd level or higher uses a magic item that offers a randomly determined effect (such as a bag of tricks or rod of wonder), she can roll twice and choose between the two results.

If a random roll is made only once to determine the nature or contents of a device (for example, a robe of useful items or an iron flask), a wild mage gains no special advantage.

Chaotic Mind (Su): When a wild mage reaches 6th level, the power of chaos infuses her mind.

She gains immunity to confusion and insanity spells and effects, and she is shielded by a continuous nondetection effect (as the spell).

Reckless Dweomer (Su): At 9th level and higher, a wild mage knows how to spontaneously convert her own spell energy into random, unpredictable results.

As a standard action, she can eliminate a prepared spell or spell slot of at least 1st level to create an effect similar to that of activating a rod of wonder.

The character's student of chaos ability (see above) applies when she uses her reckless dweomer ability.

See page 237 of the Dungeon Master's Guide for details on the rod of wonder.

Wildstrike (Sp): At 10th level, a wild mage gains the ability to make a wildstrike once per day.

A wildstrike affects a single creature within 60 feet, surrounding the creature in an aura of shimmering rainbow colors for 2d6 rounds.

Spell resistance applies, but the target receives no saving throw.

While a wildstrike is in effect, there is a 50% chance each time the affected creature casts a spell or uses a spell-like ability that its intended action fails.

Instead, the creature rolls as if it had activated a rod of wonder (see page 237 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

TABLE 2-22: THE WILD MAGE

Level	Base Attack		Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
	Bonus	Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Wild magic	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Random deflector 1/day	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+3	+1	Student of chaos	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+4	+1	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+4	+1	Random deflector 2/day	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+5	+2	Chaotic mind	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+5	+2	—	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+6	+2	Random deflector 3/day	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+6	+3	Reckless dweomer	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+7	+3	Wildstrike	+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class

WILD MAGES IN FAERÛN

Wild mages are particularly adept at exploiting zones of wild magic, and they are much less likely to experience deleterious effects while casting spells within wild magic zones. Wild mages can roll twice on Table 2-1: Wild Magic Effects in Chapter 2 of the FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting and choose the preferred result. For example, a wild mage who rolls a result of 37 (nothing happens) and a result of 57 (spell functions normally) would choose the second result.

COMPLETE CHAMPION (3.5)

FIST OF THE FOREST

"To be one with the wild, you must become wild yourself. It's only natural."

—Sorag, Warden of the Green

For some among the Guardians of the Green (see page 68), the pursuit of an animalistic lifestyle is a form of asceticism. A feral disposition seems to come naturally to others. In either case, the result is a powerful defender of nature: the fist of the forest.

BECOMING A FIST OF THE FOREST

Though the two classes seem to have little in common, the paths of the monk and the barbarian often converge in the fist of the forest.

Monks and other disciplined characters seek heightened connections with nature through a primal devotion to its defense.

Barbarians and other wild characters seem to simply end up on this path if they are fated for it.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skills: Handle Animal 4 ranks, Survival 4 ranks.

Feats: Great Fortitude, Improved Unarmed Strike, Power Attack.

Special: Must gain approval as a fist of the forest by the leaders of a band of Guardians of the Green, then adopt the lifestyle of an animal (see Primal Living, below).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Climb, Handle Animal, Intimidate, Jump, Listen, Move Silently, Sense Motive, Spot, Survival, Swim.

CLASS FEATURES

You are skilled at hunting and killing with your bare hands. You defend the forest by channeling raw, bestial might through your own being, using either disciplined focus or primal ferocity.

AC Bonus (Ex): While unarmored, you gain a bonus to your Armor Class equal to your Constitution bonus (if any).

See the monk class feature (PH 40).

Fast Movement (Ex): Your base land speed is faster than the norm for your race.

See the barbarian class feature (PH 25).

If you already have fast movement from another class, the bonuses to your speed stack.

Feral Trance (Su): Once per day, you can enter a feral battle trance.

While you are in this state, the raw power of the beast flows through you.

Your hands and feet become clawlike (destroying any shoes on gloves you are wearing), and your teeth lengthen and grow pointed.

For the duration of the trance, you gain a +4 bonus to Dexterity and a +2 bonus on damage rolls with your unarmed strikes.

You can also make one bite attack per round at your highest attack bonus whenever you attack as a full-round action.

The damage for this attack is 1d6 + your Str modifier, regardless of your size.

A feral trance lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + your Con modifier.

While in a trance, you cannot perform certain actions, and afterward you are fatigued.

These restrictions are the same as those for the barbarian's rage class feature (PH 25–26).

If you have the ability to enter a rage, you can do so while in a feral trance, using your increased Constitution score to determine the duration of both effects.

At 3rd level, you can use this ability twice per day.

Primal Living (Ex): To maintain your bestial powers, you must live like a wild animal.

You must sleep in natural environments, never inside buildings, unless forced by circumstances.

Furthermore, you cannot purchase food—you must obtain it by hunting, gathering, begging, or stealing.

Some fists of the forest even give up speech, the use of fire and tools, and all possessions, but such extremes are not required.

In any month in which you buy food or voluntarily sleep indoors more than three times, all your fist of the forest class features cease to function until you have spent thirty consecutive days living like an animal once more, or until a fellow Guardian of the Green casts atonement on you.

Unarmed Damage (Ex): Your unarmed attacks deal more damage than usual.

At 1st level, you deal 1d8 points of damage with each unarmed strike.

When you attain 3rd level, this damage increases to 1d10 points.

See the monk class feature (PH 41).

If your unarmed attack already deals this amount of damage, increase the base damage to the next step indicated on the monk class table.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 2nd level, you cannot be caught flat-footed, and you react to danger before your senses would normally allow you to do so.

See the barbarian class feature (PH 26).

If you already have uncanny dodge from another class, you instead gain improved uncanny dodge.

Untamed Strike (Su): On attaining 2nd level, you can channel the untamed power of nature when you attack.

Your unarmed strikes are treated as magic weapons; see the monk's ki strike class feature (PH 41).

If your unarmed strikes are already magical, they instead are treated as lesser ghost touch weapons.

They deal full damage against incorporeal creatures 50% of the time and half damage the rest of the time.

Scent (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, you gain the supernatural ability to detect approaching enemies, sniff out hidden foes, and track by sense of smell.

This ability otherwise functions like the extraordinary ability of the same name (MM 314).

PLAYING A FIST OF THE FOREST

Living like an animal gives you a clear understanding of and sympathy for natural living things, and association with the Guardians of the Green gives you purpose and direction.

Your personality, however, is your own.

Depending on your character's background and the band to which you belong, you can be as erudite or savage, as disciplined or unruly, as you see fit.

COMBAT

Your most powerful attacks are your unarmed strikes, so you should charge into the thick of battle as quickly as possible.

Save your feral trance ability until the middle of a fight, so that you don't end up fatigued while your enemies are still attacking.

TABLE 2–2: THE FIST OF THE FOREST

HIT DIE: d10

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Unarmed Damage ¹
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	AC bonus, fast movement, feral trance 1/day, primal living	1d8
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Uncanny dodge, untamed strike	1d8
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Feral trance 2/day, scent	1d10

¹ The value shown is for Medium characters. Use the monk class table (PH 41) for Small or Large fists of the forest.

FOREST REEVE

"Most trees can't defend themselves. That's why we do it for them."

—Denon, Knight of the Green

Forest reeves are chosen by the Guardians of the Green to patrol local wilderness areas to check for dangers and humanoid activities that could be harmful to the land.

The forest reeve's job is to defend the forest whenever he can, and to inform the Guardians of the Green when more force becomes necessary.

BECOMING A FOREST REEVE

Rangers and barbarians are the most likely characters to take up the mantle of the forest reeve, but members of this prestige class can come from a wide variety of backgrounds. A forest reeve is chosen more for his devotion to the wilderness than for any specific skill he possesses.

The Guardians of the Green want to be certain that anyone they choose for such a post can be trusted never to shirk his duties to the forest.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Knowledge (nature) 2 ranks, Listen 4 ranks, Spot 4 ranks, Survival 6 ranks.

Feats: Endurance, Track.

Special: Must be chosen as a forest reeve by the leaders of a band of Guardians of the Green, then serve a six-month apprenticeship to a Guardian of the Green who has at least three forest reeve levels.

This requirement can be waived if the would-be forest reeve performs an extraordinary service for the Guardians of the Green.

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Climb, Craft, Handle Animal, Heal, Hide, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (geography), Knowledge (nature), Listen, Move Silently, Search, Spot, Survival, Swim, Use Rope.

CLASS FEATURES

As a forest reeve, you patrol the forest and defend it from harm, and the earth itself supports your efforts.

You also serve as an advance scout for the Guardians of the Green and aid them in battle when necessary.

Earth's Defender (Su): Once per day as a move action you can channel nature's power through your body and into any one weapon you wield, making it temporarily magical for 1 minute/character level you possess.

When you attain 1st level, this ability grants your weapon a temporary +1 bonus.

The value of this bonus increases to +2 when you attain 3rd level and to +3 when you attain 5th level.

This ability can be used while you wield a magic weapon, but its effects do not stack with the weapon's existing bonus (if any).

Fast Movement (Ex): Your base land speed is 10 feet faster than the norm for your race.

See the barbarian class feature (PH 25).

If you have fast movement from another source, the benefits stack.

Nature's Rejuvenation (Sp): Once per day, you can channel the rejuvenating power of nature to restore and invigorate yourself.

If you spend 1 full minute in direct physical contact with a living plant or fertile ground, you are affected as if by your choice of any one of the following spells: bear's endurance, cure moderate wounds, or lesser restoration (caster level equals your character level).

You can use this power only on yourself.

At 3rd level, you can use this ability twice per day, and at 5th level, you can use it three times per day.

Woodland Stride (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, you can move through natural overgrown areas at normal speed without damage.

See the druid class feature (PH 36).

If you already have woodland stride, you gain a +10-foot bonus to your land speed.

Swift Tracker (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, you can move at your normal speed while following tracks.

See the ranger class feature (PH 48).

If you have swift tracker from another source, the penalties are lessened by an additional 5 feet.

Camouflage (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, you can use the Hide skill in any sort of natural terrain, even while being observed.

Whispers of the Forest (Su): When you attain 5th level, the plants, trees, and rocks begin to speak to you bringing you news wherever you are.

Once per day, these voices of the forest give you a short answer to any simple question you pose pertaining to current events in a wilderness area on your land mass.

Questions about distant lands require 1 minute per mile of distance to answer.

At the DM's discretion, when the forest deems an issue particularly important, the whispers bring you news without your request.

PLAYING A FOREST REEVE

Like all Guardians of the Green, forest reeves vary widely in attitude.

But the one ideal you all share is an undying love for the earth.

More intense, even, than a parent's love for a child, this passion brings out a fierce protectiveness in you.

In fact, you would die to defend your forest home, without question, should it become necessary.

COMBAT

Though skilled at all forms of combat, you are particular adept at guerrilla warfare—tracking enemies to their lair ambushing them while they sleep, or engaging in other surreptitious tactics.

Between fast movement and woodland stride, you can usually escape through the forest before your enemies know what hit them.

TABLE 2-3: THE FOREST REEVE HIT DIE: D10

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+0	+2	+0	Earth's defender +1, fast movement, nature's rejuvenation 1/day
2nd	+2	+0	+3	+0	Woodland stride
3rd	+3	+1	+3	+1	Earth's defender +2, nature's rejuvenation 2/day, swift tracker
4th	+4	+1	+4	+1	Camouflage
5th	+5	+1	+4	+1	Earth's defender +3, nature's rejuvenation 3/day, whispers of the forest

HOLT WARDEN

"It never ceases to amaze me how wise trees can become simply by standing still for years at a time.

No matter how long I study and ponder and fight, I will never be their equal."

—Hasayla, holt warden

Holt wardens are the highest spiritual leaders in the Guardians of the Green (see page 68).

They provide the religious inspiration for the organization's ongoing struggles, and the Guardians of the Green choose their leaders from this august circle.

BECOMING A HOLT WARDEN

Among the standard classes, those most likely to pursue the path of holt warden are druids and clerics of Ehlonna or Obad-Hai.

Druids appreciate a holt warden's spiritual connection with the earth—particularly with plants and trees—while clerics pursue this path to find a more intimate communion with nature and its mysteries.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any neutral.

Skills: Knowledge (nature) 8 ranks, Survival 4 ranks.

Spellcasting: Able to cast 3rd-level divine spells, including the three lowest-level spells of the Plant domain.

Special: Must be chosen as a holt warden by the leaders of a band of Guardians of the Green, then serve a one-year apprenticeship to a Guardian of the Green who has at least five holt warden levels.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Handle Animal, Heal, Hide, Knowledge (nature), Knowledge (religion), Listen, Move Silently, Spellcraft, Spot, Survival.

CLASS FEATURES

As a holt warden, you draw on the inherent spiritual power of nature and make that power accessible to the larger spiritual community.

Above all else, you are a spiritual seeker and guide.

Spellcasting: At each level, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a holt warden, you must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Nature Sense (Ex): You gain a +2 bonus on Knowledge (nature) and Survival checks.

If you already have nature sense, the bonuses double.

Plant Affinity (Ex): You are magically attuned to plants.

If you prepare your spells in advance and do not have the spontaneous casting ability (as the cleric and druid spellcasting feature, see PH 32 and 35), you can now spontaneously trade prepared spells for spells of an equal or lower level from the Plant domain.

If you do have a spontaneous casting ability, you can exchange that one for the ability to cast spontaneously from the Plant domain.

Once you make that decision, it cannot be reversed.

If you do not already have bonus domain spells, you now gain bonus spells from the Plant domain (see the cleric spellcasting feature, PH 32) as if you were a cleric with access to that domain.

If you already have domain spells, they are unaffected by this power.

Rebuke Plants (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, you can channel the power of your faith through your holy symbol to rebuke or command plant creatures as though you were a cleric of your holt warden level rebuking undead.

See the cleric class feature rebuke undead (PH 33), and the Plant Domain granted power (PH 188).

Woodland Stride (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, you can move through natural overgrown areas at normal speed without damage.

See the druid class feature (PH 36).

If you already have woodland stride, you gain a +10 bonus to your land speed.

Earth's Communion (Sp): At 3rd level, you learn to heal and replenish yourself and others by communing with the earth once per day.

At the end of 10 full minutes of concentration (as the skill), you are affected as if by a heal spell (PH 239).

If you so choose, you can allow others to sit with you in a circle, holding hands, during your communion.

In that case, you can choose to divide the hit points and other benefits provided by your communion among the people in the circle.

You can divide hit points as if you were using the paladin class feature lay on hands (PH 44).

Each other benefit of the heal spell can affect only one person in the circle, at your direction.

Thus, only one person can be cured of blindness, and so forth.

You do not gain the advantages of any healing benefits that you distribute to others.

You can use this ability twice per day at 5th level, three times per day at 7th level, and four times per day at 9th level.

Trackless Step (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, you cannot be tracked in natural surroundings.

See the druid class feature (PH 36).

If you already have trackless step, you instead gain a +4 bonus on Hide and Move Silently checks while in natural surroundings.

Venom Immunity (Ex): At 5th level, you gain immunity to all poisons.

Whispers of the Forest (Su): When you attain 6th level, the plants, trees, and rocks begin to speak to you, bringing you news wherever you are.

Once per day for every three holt warden levels you possess, the voices of the forest give you a short answer to any simple question you pose pertaining to current events in any wilderness area on your land mass.

Questions about distant lands require 1 minute per mile of distance to answer.

At the DM's discretion, when the forest deems an issue particularly important, the whispers bring you news without your request.

When you attain 10th level, the spiritual energy of the forest can give you insights into other beings as well.

Once per day, you can ask the voices of the forest about a single creature.

For the rest of that day, you gain a +8 insight bonus on all Bluff, Diplomacy, Intimidate, and Sense Motive checks pertaining to that creature.

Again, at the DM's discretion, the forest might occasionally volunteer information about a person or creature, but only if it considers the being remarkable in some way.

Web of Life (Sp): At 7th level, you can lead your community in spiritual union with the interconnected web of all life.

Once per day, when you sing, chant, or speak inspiringly for at least 1 full minute, every living creature that hears your voice gains a +2 bonus to Wisdom for the next 1d4 hours.

In addition, each divine spellcaster who hears you, including yourself, gains back 1d4 levels of spells (up to four 1st-level spells, two 2nd-level spells, one 3rd-level and one 1st-level, or one 4th-level spell).

These regained spells must be spells you've cast since you last prepared spells.

No spellcaster can be affected by this spell-regaining ability more than once per day, even if it is activated by multiple holt wardens.

Timeless Body (Ex): Beginning at 9th level, you no longer age.

See the druid class feature (PH 37).

If you already have timeless body, you can choose an extra feat instead.

PLAYING A HOLT WARDEN

As a holt warden, you might be a militant fanatic, a bohemian revolutionary, a naive idealist, or even a vengeful terrorist.

But whatever else you may be, you are, first and foremost, the guardian and guide of all the living creatures around you.

The Guardians of the Green are all servants and defenders of nature, and it is you who must guide, aid, and inspire them to continue with their work.

COMBAT

Your abilities put you in an ideal position to coordinate the combat tactics of those around you.

Before combat begins, assess the capabilities of the party or band with which you will be fighting.

If they need more ranged support, prepare spells that can deal damage at a distance.

If they fall short in melee, support them with summoning spells, healing, magical augmentations to their abilities, or means of sabotaging their opponents.

As a spiritual leader, you aren't likely to fight alone, so match your tactics to the strengths and weaknesses of your allies.

TABLE 2-4: THE HOLT WARDEN HIT DIE: D6

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Nature sense, plant affinity	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Rebuke plants, woodland stride	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Earth's communion 1/day, trackless step	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Earth's communion 2/day, venom immunity	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Whispers of the forest (news)	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Earth's communion 3/day, web of life	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	Earth's communion 4/day, timeless body	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Whispers of the forest (insights)	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

MYTHIC EXEMPLAR

"Nobody today can match the great heroes of the epic past.

But by following closely in their footsteps, perhaps we can come close!"

—Mikolai Laziros, mythic exemplar

Few are as devoted to history as the Disciples of Legend, and none among that august group are as committed to their paragons as the mythic exemplars. True followers—even worshipers—of the Six from Shadow (see page 65), the mythic exemplars model their skills, their attitudes, and even their lives after those fabled heroes.

BECOMING A MYTHIC EXEMPLAR

Because the mythic exemplar prestige class offers a number of “paths”, each modeled on one of the Six from Shadow, it is open to a wide variety of entrants.

It is best suited to clerics, fighters, marshals, rangers, rogues, and wizards.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Skills: Knowledge (history) 3 ranks, plus any one of the following: Diplomacy 7 ranks, Intimidate 7 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 7 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 7 ranks, or Move Silently 7 ranks.

Special: Any one of the following: base attack bonus +5, able to cast 3rd-level spells, sneak attack +2d6, or ability to grant allies a bonus on attack rolls, saves, or checks as an extraordinary ability.

Special: Must be a member of the Disciples of Legend.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level): Craft, Knowledge (history), Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Knowledge (religion), Listen, Profession, Ride, and Spot.

Special: You can also add four class skills from one prior class to your mythic exemplar skill list.

CLASS FEATURES

The class features of the mythic exemplar vary greatly based on which of the Six from Shadow you choose to follow.

You exchange the more general abilities of your previous class for specific, mystical replacements.

Thus, while you might lack some of the abilities of a character of your former class at the same level, your dedication to your heroic patron allows you to surpass the abilities of such a character under the proper conditions.

Spellcasting: At 2nd, 4th, 6th, and 8th level, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a mythic exemplar, you must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

If your paragon is Imdastri or Ktolemagne, you gain additional levels of spellcasting ability through the archetype advancement class features (see below).

Paragon’s Path: Upon becoming a mythic exemplar, you must choose one of the legendary Six from Shadow upon whom to model your skills and abilities.

Your choices are the clever Dardallion, the faithful Imdastri, the all-knowing Ktolemagne, the inexorable Orsos, the noble and inspirational Sir Reikhardt, and the mighty Sunyartra.

Once made, your choice cannot be changed.

Save Bonus (Ex): At 1st level, you gain a +1 bonus on a saving throw determined by your paragon, as given on the following table.

Patron	Saving Throw
Dardallion	Reflex
Imdastri	Will
Ktolemagne	Will
Orsos	Fortitude
Reikhardt	Will
Sunyartra	Fortitude

This bonus increases by 1 at every odd-numbered level up to 7th.

Paragon’s Gift, Least (Su): At 2nd level, you gain the first of several supernatural abilities that allow you to channel the spirit and skills of your paragon.

Unless otherwise noted, each paragon’s gift (least, lesser, greater, and supreme) requires a swift action to invoke, lasts for a number of rounds equal to your mythic exemplar level, is usable once per day, and has a caster level equal to your mythic exemplar level.

Dardallion: You gain a +5 insight bonus on Disable Device, Hide, Move Silently, and Open Lock checks.

Imdastri: As an immediate action, you can reroll one attack roll, save, or check per day, as if using the granted power of the Luck domain (PH 187).

This effect occurs instantaneously.

Ktolemagne: You gain a +5 sacred bonus on Concentration, Decipher Script, Knowledge (arcana), and Spellcraft checks.

Orsos: You gain a +20-foot insight bonus to your base speed.

Reikhardt: You can use inspire courage as a bard of your mythic exemplar level.

If you already have this ability, your mythic exemplar levels stack with levels of the class that provided it for the purpose of determining its effects.

Sunyartra: The critical threat range of one weapon you wield increases by 1.

This increase stacks with those from other sources, such as the keen weapon property or the Improved Critical feat.

Archetype Advancement (Ex): At 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 9th levels, you gain a class exemplar feature that builds on those of your paragon.

If your archetype advancement grants bonus feats, you must meet all the normal prerequisites for your selections, unless otherwise noted.

Dardallion: You gain sneak attack.

See the rogue class feature (PH 50).

You gain another 1d6 points of sneak attack damage each time you select this feature.

Imdastri: You gain +1 level of an existing divine spellcasting class.

Ktolemagne: You gain +1 level of an existing arcane spellcasting class.

Orsos: You gain bonuses against the favored enemies of Orsos.

At each of these levels, you gain a +2 favored enemy bonus against either aberrations or chaotic outsiders (your choice).

You need not choose the same enemy each time.

This bonus stacks with any favored enemy bonuses you might already possess.

Reikhardt: You gain +1 level of a class-based extraordinary ability to grant bonuses to allies (such as a marshal's auras).

Sunyartra: You gain a +1 bonus on all opposed Strength checks (such as those made on bull rushes or trip attacks), as well as all Strength-based skill checks.

Paragon's Gift, Lesser (Su): At 4th level, you gain a new supernatural ability that you can use once per day, according to your paragon as given on the following table.

Paragon	Ability
Dardallion	+4 insight bonus to Dexterity
Imdastri	+4 insight bonus to Wisdom
Ktolemagne	+4 insight bonus to Intelligence
Orsos	+4 insight bonus to Constitution
Reikhardt	+4 insight bonus to Charisma
Sunyartra	+4 insight bonus to Strength

This ability follows all the guidelines for least paragon's gift (above), unless otherwise noted.

If you choose, you can forgo your daily use of this ability for an extra use of the least gift.

Paragon's Gift, Greater (Su): At 6th level, you gain a new supernatural ability that you can use once per day.

This ability follows all the guidelines for least paragon's gift (above), unless otherwise noted.

If you choose, you can forgo your daily use of this ability for an extra use of your least or lesser gift.

Dardallion: You can use blink, as the spell.

Imdastri: As an immediate action, you can invoke temporary immunity to mind-affecting spells and abilities.

This immunity does not extend to effects whose caster level exceeds your character level by 4 or more.

Ktolemagne: You can use identify, as the spell, except that the casting time is 1 minute, and you need no material component.

Orsos: You gain a +4 bonus to your natural armor bonus.

Reikhardt: You can use inspire greatness as a bard of your mythic exemplar level.

If you already have this ability, your mythic exemplar levels stack with levels of the class that provided it for the purpose of determining its effects.

Sunyartra: You can use haste, as the spell, on yourself only.

Paragon's Gift, Supreme (Su): At 8th level, you gain a new supernatural ability that you can use once per day.

This ability follows all the guidelines for least paragon's gift (above), unless otherwise noted.

If you choose, you can forgo your daily use of this ability for an extra use of your least, lesser, or greater gift.

Dardallion: You can use greater invisibility, as the spell, on yourself only.

Imdastri: As an immediate action, you can invoke temporary immunity to necromantic and death effects.

This immunity does not extend to effects whose caster level exceeds your character level by 4 or more.

Ktolemagne: You gain temporary spell resistance equal to 10 + your arcane caster level.

Orsos: You can use air walk, as the spell, on yourself only.

Reikhardt: You can use dominate person, as the spell.

Sunyartra: You can use divine power, as the spell.

Ability Boost (Ex): At 10th level, one of your ability score permanently increases by 2, according to your paragon given on the following table.

Paragon	Ability Score
Dardallion	Dexterity
Imdastri	Wisdom
Ktolemagne	Intelligence
Orsos	Constitution
Reikhardt	Charisma
Sunyartra	Strength

Embody Paragon (Su): When you reach 10th level, you truly embody every physical and spiritual concept that your paragon stood for.

Unless otherwise noted, the ability you gain is permanent and constant, as long as you remain conscious.

If it is suppressed, you can raise the effect again as a swift action.

Dardallion: You can turn incorporeal (DMG 294) for up to 1 minute per day.

This duration need not be used all at one and can be divided into intervals as short as 1 round.

Shifting to or from incorporeality requires a move action.

Imdastri: You can "lose" a prepared divine spell in exchange for a spell of lower level from the Luck, Protection, or Strength domains, much as a good cleric can spontaneously cast cure spells.

You do not gain the domain power or the ability to prepare these spells as domain spells.

Ktolemagne: You can "lose" a prepared arcane spell in exchange for any divination spell of lower level that is already in your spellbook.

Orsos: You gain a +4 bonus on any saves or rolls made to resist fatigue and exhaustion.

In addition, you are under permanent freedom of movement effect, unless the spell level of the impeding effect exceeds your character level Reikhardt: Select either Fortitude or Will saves.

From this point on, you (and all allies within 60 feet) gain a circumstance bonus equal to your Charisma modifier on this saving throw.

Once made, this choice cannot be changed.

In addition, for 10 rounds per day, you can grant yourself and each ally within 60 feet damage reduction 2/-.

This benefit does not stack with any other damage reduction you or your allies possess.

This ability requires a swift action to activate.

Sunyartra: You can ignore 15 points of damage reduction (except epic) when attacking foes, and 15 points of hardness when striking inanimate objects.

PLAYING A MYTHIC EXEMPLAR

You are utterly devoted to following the example set by your paragon.

You travel the world adventuring with your comrades, just like the Six from Shadow did, always honing your abilities in the hopes that one day you might be half as skilled as they.

Emulating your paragon is not your only concern—like other adventurers, you have goals to reach, loved ones to protect, and new lands to explore.

But you do it all in homage to your paragon, and you do it just the way you believe that hero would have.

You are among the most respected of the Disciples of Legend, and you see your fellows in the organization as seekers of the truth who simply haven't yet matched your dedication.

You might think of the group as your "alma mater" and spend little time with it.

COMBAT

Your tactics on the battlefield depend largely on your paragon and prior classes.

Consider not only your paragon's abilities, but also his or her attitudes.

Dardallion was infamous for constant movement, tumbling past opponents, flanking for a few moments, and then shifting to a new foe.

Imdastri did not merely stand back to heal her allies; she stood at the forefront, casting spells to impede the enemy's ability to fight.

Ktolemagne hurled fireballs with the best of them, but he preferred to gather intelligence, using his divinations to pinpoint enemies' weaknesses and anticipate their tactics, then chose spells to take advantage of what he had learned. Orsos seemed unstoppable, wading through ranks of minor foes and taking what wounds were necessary to reach his intended target.

Reikhardt used his powers to augment his allies, but he always commanded from the front, wielding sword and lance.

And the mighty Sunyartra allowed her greataxe and brutish figure to lull the enemy into thinking her dull and foolish, only to cut them down with a combination of mighty strikes and brilliantly precise tactics.

Remember all this information when designing your own fighting style because it isn't sufficient that you merely share the abilities of your paragon; you should strive to match him or her in every way.

ADVANCEMENT

Once you joined the Disciples of Legend, your leaders swiftly recognized your devotion to one of the Six from Shadow.

So when they offered you the opportunity to emulate your chosen paragon in new and specific ways, you leapt at the chance.

You have only just begun your quest to become worthy of your paragon, and a lifetime of striving still lies ahead of you.

You have no illusions that you will ever be the equal of your paragon; you hope only to lead a life that echoes that of your hero, and to have others say that you did honor to your paragon's name.

The choices you make after becoming a mythic exemplar depend, again, on your abilities and your paragon.

Select feats based on a combination of what you feel can most improve your own abilities, and what brings you closer to your paragon.

If you are a true exemplar, these choices may often be one and the same.

RESOURCES

While you are indeed the epitome of the Disciples of Legend, you can count on little more than moral support from them.

The organization is not a rich one, and its limited resources are devoted to unearthing more of the history of the Six from Shadow and other mythic heroes.

Indeed, it is far more likely that you might be asked to adventure in support of the organization than that it can afford to support your endeavors, except as noted above.

TABLE 2-5: THE MYTHIC EXEMPLAR HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+0	Paragon's path, save bonus +1	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+0	Least paragon's gift	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+1	Archetype advancement, save bonus +2	+1 level of existing spellcasting class (Imdastri or Ktolemagne only)
4th	+3	+1	+1	+1	Lesser paragon's gift	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+1	+1	Archetype advancement, save bonus +3	+1 level of existing spellcasting class (Imdastri or Ktolemagne only)
6th	+4	+2	+2	+2	Greater paragon's gift	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+2	+2	Archetype advancement, save bonus +4	+1 level of existing spellcasting class (Imdastri or Ktolemagne only)
8th	+6	+2	+2	+2	Supreme paragon's gift	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+3	+3	Archetype advancement	+1 level of existing spellcasting class (Imdastri or Ktolemagne only)
10th	+7	+3	+3	+3	Ability boost, embody paragon	—

THE MARSHAL'S AURAS

Players familiar with Miniatures Handbook should recognize the effects from the mythic exemplar's list of minor and major auras. The benefits of these abilities do not stack with those provided by similar auras, but neither do such effects count against the number of auras a marshal can use at once.

ORDAINED CHAMPION

"You will yield to the might of Hextor—or you will yield to mine!"

—Salan Roka, ordained champion of Hextor
 Steeped in a tradition older than most religions, the ordained champions stride through the chaotic fog of violence and bloodshed.

Driven by a zealous devotion to Herald of Hell, and to war itself—these harbingers of death and destruction are schooled in techniques of divine magic that enhance their combat capabilities far beyond those of mere soldiers.

The ordained champion is an ancient creation of Hextor, so old that it predates the final schism between the Herald of Hell and his half-brother, Heironeous the Invincible.

Although ordained champions are known primarily as servants of Hextor, some tiny fraction do indeed serve the Invincible One instead.

Heironeous's ordained champions are treated and act much like his paladins; thus, the details presented here for organization and attitude apply primarily to Hextor's champions.

BECOMING AN ORDAINED CHAMPION

Clerics make the best and most effective ordained champions.

Paladins and paladins of tyranny, as well as favored soul and shugenjas, occasionally follow this path as well.

None but the cleric can receive the full benefit of the prestige class, however.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any lawful, neutral good, or neutral evil.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 7 ranks.

Feat: Weapon Focus with deity's favored weapon.

Spellcasting: Able to cast magic weapon as a divine spell.

Special: Must worship Hextor or Heironeous.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Craft, Heal, Intimidate, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Knowledge (religion), Knowledge (the planes), Profession, Ride, Spellcraft.

CLASS FEATURES

Your entire being is devoted to war—war in the name of your deity, war in the name of your favored cause, even war in the name of war itself.

Your focus on warfare has slowed your spellcasting advancement, but the wide variety of martial powers you have gained has more than made up for that lack.

Spellcasting: At 2nd, 3rd, and 5th level, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming an ordained champion, you must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Bonus Domain: If you are a cleric, you gain the War domain as a third domain.

If you already have the War domain, you can instead choose any other domain granted by your deity as your third domain.

If you have no cleric levels, you can add the War domain spells to your class spell list, but you do not gain its domain ability or any extra spell slots for domain spells.

Combat Feats: You can permanently sacrifice one or two of your domain granted powers to acquire an equal number of feats from the list of fighter bonus feats, as long as you meet the prerequisites' for them.

You may not sacrifice your War domain ability for this purpose.

You must choose whether or not to make this exchange when you first become an ordained champion, and you cannot later change your mind.

Continued Advancement: levels in ordained champion stack with levels of other appropriate classes for the purpose of turning or rebuking undead, and for all level-dependent domain granted powers.

Modified Spontaneous Casting (Ex): If you have cleric levels, you lose the ability to spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells.

Instead, you can swap out previously prepared cleric spells for any spells of equal or lower level from the War domain.

This alteration applies even to levels you gain as a cleric after becoming an ordained champion.

If you are not a cleric, modified spontaneous casting does not apply to you, even if you can spontaneously cast some other kind of spell, such as summon nature's ally.

Diehard: At 2nd level, you gain Diehard as a bonus feat, even if you lack the prerequisites.

If you already have Diehard, you can select any other feat for which you meet the prerequisites as your bonus feat.

Smite (Su): At 2nd level, you can spend one daily use of your turn/rebuke undead ability as a swift action to turn your next melee attack into a smite.

You gain a bonus equal to your Charisma modifier on attack rolls, and you deal extra damage equal to your total effective turning or rebuking level.

Your smite attack is not limited by alignment or race; you can attempt to smite any foe.

Except as noted here, this ability functions like the paladin's smite evil ability (PH 44).

Channel Spell (Sp): At 3rd level, you can channel any spell you have available to cast into your melee weapon.

Doing so requires a move action and uses up a prepared spell or spell slot just as if you had cast the spell.

The channeled spell affects the next target you successfully attack with that weapon, though saving throws and spell resistance still apply normally.

Even if the spell normally affects an area or is a ray, it still affects only the target in this case.

On a successful hit, the spell is discharged from the weapon, which can then hold another spell.

You can channel your spells into only one weapon at a time. A spell channeled into a weapon is lost if not used within 8 hours.

Divine Bulwark (Sp): At 3rd level, you can sacrifice a prepared spell or spell slot as a swift action to gain damage reduction.

The value of the damage reduction equals 1 + spell level sacrificed, and it can be overcome by a chaotic-aligned strike.

Thus, a 3rd-level ordained champion who sacrificed a flame strike spell would gain damage reduction 6/chaotic for 3 rounds.

The damage reduction gained from multiple uses of this ability does not stack.

This protection lasts for a number of rounds equal to your ordained champion level.

Fist of the Gods (Sp): At 4th level, you can sacrifice a prepared spell or spell slot as a swift action to deal extra damage.

Doing so grants you a bonus equal to 1 + spell level sacrificed on your damage rolls for melee attacks.

This benefit lasts for a number of rounds equal to your ordained champion level.

Rapid Spontaneous Casting (Ex): When you attain 4th level, any spell from the War domain that you spontaneously cast requires only a swift action if its normal casting time is no more than 1 standard action, or a standard action if its normal casting time is 1 full-round action.

A spontaneous spell that you modify with a metamagic feat requires only its normal casting time rather than the extra time such a spell normally requires.

Holy Warrior (Sp): At 5th level, you can spend one daily use of your turn/rebuke undead ability as a swift action to bring your Wisdom into play in combat.

For 5 rounds after you activate this ability, you can use your Wisdom modifier in place of your Strength modifier on attack rolls and damage rolls.

War Caster (Ex): At 5th level, you gain a +2 bonus to your effective caster level when casting spells that appear on the War domain spell list.

PLAYING AN ORDAINED CHAMPION

You are fanatically devoted to your deity, but of equal importance is your devotion to war itself, because only in the chaos of combat can your skill and faith truly shine. Only on the field of battle is your commitment truly tested, and only there can you prove your true worth to your church and deity.

You need not be mindlessly or randomly violent (though some of Hextor's neutral evil champions fit that description quite well), nor do you necessarily believe in fighting without just cause.

You do firmly believe, however, that hesitation or regret in the face of necessary war is weakness, and that certain enemies are unworthy of either negotiation or compromise.

While you are considered a champion of the church of Hextor, you do not necessarily fight only on its behalf—in fact, you might be totally opposed to Hextor's ways. Many ordained champions, particularly those of lawful neutral alignment, fight for various nations and factions, or even hire themselves out as mercenaries to causes of which they approve.

As long as you wage war—any war—you honor your deity.

COMBAT

Although you might be a potent spellcaster, you see yourself first and foremost as a melee combatant.

If you have sufficient time to prepare, you are the equal of any fighter or barbarian on the battlefield.

Between your class abilities and the spells to which you have access, you can even exceed the combat prowess of those martial classes for a short time.

You are far less potent if caught unawares, however, so be sure you have contingency plans in place.

Your ability to cast spontaneously from the War domain means you can fill your spell slots with utilitarian magic without sacrificing your martial abilities.

ADVANCEMENT

You were a follower of Hextor (or Heironeous) before becoming an ordained champion.

While you pursued your former career, the upper echelons of the church took note of your martial aptitude and approached you for special training and assignment.

You have now become one of the greatest of your deity's warriors.

You have been relieved of many of your duties as a cleric (or other holy servant) because as a champion, your entire responsibility consists of standing victorious on the field of battle.

You might be a mercenary, an adventurer, or a crusader for your deity, but regardless, your life now consists only of war and training for war.

Now that you're an ordained champion, you have some tough choices to make.

Your spellcasting is based on Wisdom, and at high levels you can temporarily use your Wisdom modifier to gain melee bonuses, but you shouldn't ignore Strength. And since you lack the hit points of other martial characters, keeping your Constitution high is vital. Because of the bonus feats you gained from the prestige class, you can devote your other feat slots to improving spellcasting or increasing the number of turn/rebuke attempts you can make per day, all of which enhance your battlefield effectiveness.

RESOURCES

The church of Hextor expects you to acquire what you need on your own.

You might purchase equipment from the church, or from your employer if you serve as a mercenary, but you are highly unlikely to gain it for free.

If you are an ordained champion of Heironeous, you can expect the same sort of resources that his paladins have.

ORDAINED CHAMPIONS IN THE WORLD

"Ordained champions are as disciplined and faithful as any cleric, and as potent as any paladin, if only their choice of patrons made them worthy of respect, rather than hatred and fear!"

—Jozan, cleric of Pelor

The ordained champions serve as both lone adventurers and military leaders, so you can introduce them to your campaign in almost any martial capacity.

While the most obvious choice is to introduce an ordained champion as an active member of Hextor's church, remember that such characters often participate in conflicts that have no direct bearing on their faith.

An ordained champion serving as a mercenary captain, for example, need not even be an adversary for the PCs.

Alternatively, you could introduce an ordained champion of Heironeous first, though doing so can dilute the notion that such champions are incredibly rare.

ORGANIZATION

Ordained champions have no organization of their own. Most serve in the church of Hextor to some extent, but their positions vary greatly based on the needs and hierarchies of the individual sects.

They usually serve as officers, though Hextor's high priests still outrank them.

In more secular groups, such as mercenary or adventuring companies, ordained champions normally seek positions of high authority or status, but again, their success in such endeavors depends on the circumstances.

The ordained champions of Heironeous are much more tightly tied to his church than the champions of Hextor are to theirs.

Because of their low numbers, Heironeous's champions cannot afford to be without staunch allies.

AFFILIATION SPECIFICS

The following affiliation details are designed for ordained champions of Hextor.

Criterion	Affiliation Score Modifier
One-Time
Character level	1/2 levels
Has actively battled any other church (except that of Heironeous)	+2
Has actively battled the church of Heironeous	+4
Holds officer rank in a military unit or organization in addition to the Church of Hextor	+1
Holds priestly rank in the Church of Hextor in addition to position and duties as an ordained champion	+2
Lawful evil	+1
Nonlawful	-1
Multiple Use
Is instrumental in a great military victory	+4
Is instrumental in a great military defeat	-6

Rank	Affiliation Score	Titles: Benefits and Duties
0	3 or lower	None.
1	4–10	Soldier of Hextor: Entitled to living quarters, healing, and training. You must obey the orders of any higher-ranked member of Hextor's church and spend at least 50% of your time acting on the church's behalf.
2	11–20	Master of War: Maintains contacts and spies. You must obey the orders of any higher-ranked member of Hextor's church and spend at least 40% of your time acting on the church's behalf.
3	21–29	Blooded Officer: Entitled to supplies and equipment. You must obey the orders of any higher-ranked member of Hextor's church and spend at least 30% of your time acting on the church's behalf.
4	30 or higher	General of Hell: Can call together a cadre of loyal soldiers. You must obey the orders of any higher-ranked member of Hextor's church and spend at least 20% of your time acting on the church's behalf.

If you are instead playing one of the rare ordained champions of Heironeous, use what follows as a model, but change the specifics where appropriate.

ORDAINED CHAMPION BENEFITS

Typically, an ordained champion represents a specific branch of Hextor's church.

As a member of that church, he has certain duties to perform in exchange for benefits.

Higher-ranked ordained champions are granted more leeway to choose their own tasks and trusted to ensure that their actions advance the cause of war; those of lower rank must spend much more of their time on quests or in battles assigned by the church.

Soldier of Hextor: At this rank, you might choose to dwell in the barracks of Hextor's various institutions.

The accommodations are truly spartan and not especially comfortable, but they are secure and free to members.

You also have access to trainers and practice grounds, and Hextor's priests aid willing to heal any injuries you incur in the service of the Herald of Hell.

Master of War: By the time you attain this rank, you have begun to gain the trust of your superiors.

You have access to the church's network of information, which helps you to choose military targets and enemies ripe for conquest.

This benefit manifests as a +4 circumstance bonus on all Gather Information and Knowledge checks made to determine the relative military strength of a faction, group, or nation, as well as its martial interests and any particular weaknesses in its defenses.

Blooded Officer: While Hextor expects his soldiers to be self-sufficient, you have access to a certain amount of aid upon attaining this level of prestige in the church.

You can buy military equipment—including magic weapons and mundane but rare items such as siege engines—for 75% of the list price.

In addition, the circumstance bonus on Gather Information and Knowledge checks that you gained at the previous rank increases to +8.

General of Hell: Once per year, you can gather other soldiers of Hextor under your command for any military operation or activity.

You gain the benefits of the Leadership feat (DMG 106), except that the followers you acquire are all soldiers in Hextor's church, and they remain with you only for the duration of a single endeavor (up to 2 months at most).

These soldiers are in addition to any followers you might have from the Leadership feat and are tracked separately in all ways.

In addition, the circumstance bonus on Gather Information and Knowledge checks that you gained as a master of war increases to +12.

NPC REACTIONS

Most people don't see an "ordained champion" when they look at one; they simply see a holy warrior of Hextor or Heironeous.

Their reactions vary accordingly, based on how they view those deities and their churches.

In most civilized lands, an NPC's attitude is one step nearer helpful for followers of Heironeous and one step nearer hostile for followers of Hextor, but individual alignment and religious beliefs can alter this reaction.

ORDAINED CHAMPION LORE

Characters who have ranks in Knowledge (religion) can research the ordained champions to learn more about them.

When a character succeeds on a skill check, the following lore is revealed, including the information from lower DCs.
DC 10: Ordained champions are unholy warriors of Hextor, combining the features of clerics and blackguards.

DC 15: These warriors seem filled with divine energy. They can cast spells of war or fill their attacks with unholy strength and power the way clerics can heal the injured or banish undead.

DC 20: Their ability to imbue their attacks with divine energy allows them to smite like a paladin, but with a much wider range of targets, or to ensure that every blow they land inflicts maximum injury.

They're rarer than hen's teeth, and supposedly not all of them worship Hextor.

Heironeous has a few among his flock as well.

The ordained champions are well known among Hextor's clergy.

Simply asking around in a church of the Herald of Hell produces directions to the nearest known member of the prestige class—assuming that the priests are convinced the character has good reason for looking.

ORDAINED CHAMPIONS IN THE GAME

As noted above, ordained champions can be potent adversaries, but they need not be enemies of the PCs. A member of this prestige class could serve as an officer or mercenary on the same side of a conflict as the PCs. A lawful neutral ordained champion might even share some goals with non-evil PCs, though he may have to fight an uphill battle to gain their trust. In most instances, PC ordained champions should either be lawful neutral in alignment, or devoted to Heironeous rather than Hextor.

The prestige class should appeal to players who like combining divine and martial skills but want an alternative to the paladin without as much emphasis on spellcasting as the cleric.

ADAPTATION

Although the ordained champion is designed primarily as a follower of Hextor, it can easily be altered to fit into the church of any martial deity of any alignment. Simply adjust some of the flavor text and the alignment requirements accordingly. In the FORGOTTEN REALMS campaign setting, the Red Knight, Tempus, and Tyr are appropriate deities for the class; while Dol Arrah, Dol Dorn, and the Mockery serve the purpose well in the EBERRON campaign setting.

TABLE 2–6: THE ORDAINED CHAMPION HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Bonus domain, combat feats, continued advancement, modified spontaneous casting	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Diehard, smite	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Channel spell, divine bulwark	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Fist of the gods, rapid spontaneous casting	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	Holy warrior, war caster	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

PARAGNOSTIC APOSTLE

“If knowledge is power, omniscience is omnipotence. When we understand the nature of the world, we become its masters.”

—Pallavarta Santalieri, Master of the Unturned Page
The Paragnostic apostles are the most devoted of the Paragnostic Assembly (see page 72)—the most erudite of a sect dedicated, mind and soul, to the acquisition of knowledge. These eminent scholars use the secrets they’ve learned to augment their spells, and to shape the world around them in ways that other casters cannot. Knowledge is indeed power and the Paragnostic apostle understands that power better than most.

BECOMING A PARAGNOSTIC APOSTLE

Wizards, clerics, and archivists are best suited to this prestige class because of their skills and spellcasting progressions.

However, bards, druids, sorcerers, favored souls, and warlocks sometimes follow this path as well.

A high Intelligence score is essential because of the Knowledge skills required.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 5 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 5 ranks, Knowledge (any other) 5 ranks.

Spellcasting: Able to cast 3rd-level spells or use spell-like abilities of equivalent level.

Special: Must be a member of the Paragnostic Assembly.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Profession, Search, Speak Language, Spellcraft, Spot.

CLASS FEATURES

You have mastered the art of modifying your magic based on what you know.

With the proper application of your Knowledge skills, you can raise the potency of your spellcasting.

Spellcasting: At each level, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level. You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a Paragnostic apostle, you must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Holy Texts (Ex): Because of your study of sacred writings, your Paragnostic apostle levels stack with other class levels for the purpose of turning or rebuking undead and level-dependent domain abilities.

You do not gain such abilities if you do not already have them, however.

Knowledge Is Power (Ex): At each level, you gain a spellcasting enhancement based on your Knowledge skills. Each time you gain this feature, choose one of the following abilities for which you meet the skill-based prerequisites.

Although you can choose some of these abilities multiple times (as indicated in the descriptions), you may not select the same one twice in a row, and the minimum required skill rank increases by 2 for each subsequent selection of the same ability.

These benefits apply to warlock invocations as well as spells, where applicable.

Accurate Retort: You gain a +1 circumstance bonus on your ranged attack roll with every ray spell that you aim at a creature with a natural armor bonus.

(Knowledge [arcana] 8 ranks).

Backhanded Attack: If you successfully hit with an attack that deals hit point or ability score damage and requires a saving throw against an additional, nondamaging effect (such as a warlock's beshadowed blast or the orb of acid spell, add 1 to the DC of the saving throw.

(Knowledge [arcana] 6 ranks).

Call of Worlds: Each creature you summon with a conjuration (summoning) spell gains the fast healing ability.

The damage healed per round begins at 2 hit points and increases by 1 for every three caster levels (maximum +5 at 15th caster level).

(Knowledge [the planes] 6 ranks).

Discern Weakness: Choose one creature type or subtype from the ranger's favored enemy list (PH 47).

If you have 8 ranks in the appropriate Knowledge skill (such as Knowledge [arcana] for dragons, or Knowledge [nature] for humanoids), the save DC of every spell that you target on a creature of that type increases by 1.

You can select this ability multiple times, choosing a different creature type each time.

Divine Understanding: Choose one clerical domain.

For the purpose of this ability, you can choose any domain, whether or not your deity offers it.

Your effective caster level increases by 1 when you cast spells that appear on that domain's spell list.

You can select this ability multiple times, choosing a different domain each time.

(Knowledge [religion] 5 ranks).

Energy Supremacy: Choose an energy type from the following list: acid, cold, electricity, fire.

Your effective caster level increases by 1 when you cast spells of that energy type.

You can select this ability multiple times, choosing a different energy type each time.

(Knowledge [the planes] 5 ranks).

Manifest Ethos: Choose one non-neutral aspect of your own alignment (chaos, evil, good, or law).

When you cast an energy-based offensive spell against a creature with an opposing alignment component (chaos/law or good/evil), one-half the hit point damage dealt is pure divine power instead of its normal energy type, and thus not subject to reduction by energy resistance or immunity.

You can select this ability multiple times, assuming that your alignment permits it, choosing a different aspect of your alignment each time.

(Knowledge [religion] 8 ranks or [the planes] 10 ranks).

Mind over Body: Your effective caster level increases by 1 when you cast conjuration (healing) spells or transmutation spells that grant ability bonuses or penalties.

(Knowledge [nature or religion] 7 ranks).

Mind over Matter: Whenever you cast a spell that creates a solid object, its hardness and hit points each increase by 2. When you cast a spell that provides an armor bonus, that bonus to AC also increases by 2.

(Knowledge [architecture and engineering] 5 ranks).

Mortal Coil: Your effective caster level increases by 1 when you cast spells that physically change the subject's form (such as alter self, enlarge person, or baleful polymorph).

(Knowledge [nature] 6 ranks).

Noble Presence: Whenever you cast a charm spell, or a compulsion that affects the subject's emotions but not specific actions (such as good hope or rage, but not dominate person), the save DC increases by 1.

(Knowledge [nobility and royalty] 5 ranks).

Penetrating Insight: You gain a +1 bonus on caster level checks made to overcome spell resistance, or to successfully dispel another caster's spell.

(Knowledge [arcana] 9 ranks).

See through the Veil: Whenever you cast a necromantic spell that targets undead, the save DC increases by 1.

In addition, your effective turning level increases by 2, if you possess the ability to turn or rebuke undead.

(Knowledge [religion] 7 ranks).

Spatial Awareness: Your effective caster level increases by 1 when you cast conjuration (teleportation) spells.

Furthermore, the subject of any spell that increases base movement rate or grants a new type of movement gains an additional 10 feet to the designated speed.

(Knowledge [geography] 5 ranks).

Lore (Ex): You can recall legends or information regarding various topics, just like a bard can with bardic knowledge.

To use this ability, make a lore check (1d20 + twice your Paragnostical apostle level + your Int modifier).

Success grants you the same result as a bardic knowledge check would.

If you have the bardic knowledge or lore ability from another class, your levels in those classes stack with your Paragnostical apostle levels for the purpose of this check.

PLAYING A PARAGNOSTIC APOSTLE

Knowledge is the most important prize in the universe. What you know defines what you are, and what you might learn defines what you can become.

Even when other objectives are at the forefront of your endeavors, the acquisition of new secrets and new understanding continues to drive you.

An ancient text is far more valuable to you than gold, and forgotten spells interest you not merely for their power, but for what they can tell you about those who scribed them. Use your knowledge to aid your allies, and do not worry about seeming haughty or superior—information was meant to be shared, and any who are threatened by it simply lack the will to accomplish what you have.

As a Paragnostical apostle, you are a combination high priest and headmaster who represents the heart and soul of the Paragnostical Assembly.

You answer when your superiors need you, but you also have the right to all the support and resources they can offer.

Share any new secrets you learn with your colleagues, so that no knowledge can ever be lost again.

COMBAT

Stand behind the front lines and cast your spells from the rear.

If you were a wizard or sorcerer before becoming a Paragnostical apostle, you're likely accustomed to such tactics, but if you were a cleric, don't give in to your inclination to stand beside the fighters—such tactics are no longer as viable for you as they once were.

When given the choice, focus on the foes against whom your specific class abilities are most effective, but don't be afraid to make use of your spells where appropriate—they are no less useful against other opponents than they ever were.

In other words, focus is advisable, but don't become so determined to confront specific foes that you ignore the good you can do against others.

ADVANCEMENT

The Paragnostic apostles are the elite of the Paragnostic Assembly.

They do not openly ask other members to join their ranks, though individual apostles might have subtly recommended that you do so.

Only members who express an interest and prove themselves sufficiently capable can become Paragnostic apostles, and you managed both.

More than a researcher, more than an adventurer, you have now combined both into a single package, becoming a traveling and spellcasting seeker of secrets.

You might devote your abilities to other goals as well, but while you do so, you are casting about for new information to absorb and to add to the Paragnostic Assembly's archives. Although you place most of your skill points into Knowledge skills—not merely for the sake of your class abilities, but also to represent the learning you achieve as you advance—you shouldn't completely ignore your other skills.

Search and Spot are useful for finding new secrets to learn, and Spellcraft and Concentration are no less important for you than they are for other spellcasters.

And consider boosting your Intelligence at least once.

TABLE 2-7: THE PARAGNOSTIC APOSTLE HIT DIE: D4

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Holy texts, knowledge is power, lore	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Knowledge is power	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Knowledge is power	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Knowledge is power	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Knowledge is power	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

PARAGNOSTIC INITIATE

"Magic is only one kind of knowledge."

—Auleric the Swift, Paragnostic initiate

Not all who follow the precepts of the Paragnostic Assembly (see page 72) are spellcasters.

Melee fighters, archers, and practitioners of mundane skills can also join the eternal hunt for knowledge.

Paragnostic initiates, as the most devoted of these seekers are known, are no less dedicated to the hunt for secrets than are the apostles.

Initiates, however, tend to focus less on magic and more on other aspects of the world.

By combining their knowledge with their other abilities, they learn new ways to apply their skills and can even augment the beneficial magics that others cast upon them.

BECOMING A PARAGNOSTIC INITIATE

Rogues, scouts, and swashbucklers are the most common candidates for the Paragnostic initiate prestige class because of their mobility and access to skills.

Fighters and rangers are far from uncommon, however.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 2 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 2 ranks, Knowledge (any other) 2 ranks.

Special: Base attack bonus +4 or Tumble 7 ranks.

Special: Must be a member of the Paragnostic Assembly.

CLASS SKILLS

Even if it's not your primary casting ability, an extra skill point per level adds up.

RESOURCES

The libraries and sages of the Paragnostic Assembly can aid you in researching any topic imaginable.

If you're a wizard, you can find almost any arcane spell known in the organization's libraries or purchase spells from its members (subject, as always, to DM approval). You aren't likely to get a reduction of price, but at least you know that you can find such spells, and perhaps you can trade for some of your own.

Similarly, minor magic items such as potions, scrolls, and some wands can be purchased from the Paragnostic Assembly's members or its chapterhouses.

The organization doesn't often provide more potent items, but if you are seeking a particular secret on its behalf, its leaders might provide magic items to aid you in that endeavor, on the understanding that anything not used up will be returned.

Such items may be worth no more than 25% of the standard value for a character of your level.

(6 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Climb, Craft, Decipher Script, Jump, Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Listen, Profession, Search, Speak Language, Spot, Tumble.

CLASS FEATURES

The abilities you gain from this prestige class are designed to enhance the spellcasting of others as well as expand your own combat options.

Assist Casting (Ex): You can assist an ally with spellcasting if you have a number of ranks in the appropriate Knowledge skill equal to the level of the spell being cast (minimum 1).

The table below defines the required skills for each type of ally.

Ally Assisted	Knowledge Skill
Arcane caster	Knowledge (arcana)
Cleric or paladin	Knowledge (religion)
Druid or ranger	Knowledge (nature)

The type of assistance you can render varies with your level. Penetration: Once per round as an immediate action, you can grant an adjacent allied spellcaster a +1 bonus on caster level checks made to overcome spell resistance.

Target: At 2nd level, you automatically aid any allied spellcasters in targeting a foe with which you are engaged in melee.

Your ally does not take the standard -4 penalty for targeting that foe with a ranged attack spell, though the penalty remains in effect normally if other allies are engaged with that foe.

In addition, you do not provide a cover bonus for that foe against any allied spellcasters.

Furthermore, any foe you threaten takes a -1 penalty on Reflex saving throws against spells cast by your allies (but not by you).

Distraction: At 3rd level, you gain the ability to protect an allied spellcaster with whom you are flanking an opponent. As long as you maintain the flanking arrangement, your ally can cast spells without drawing attacks of opportunity from the flanked creature.

Other activities that draw attacks of opportunity do so as normal.

Tactical Combat (Ex): At each level you attain in this class, you gain an ability to enhance your fighting prowess or to influence magical effects cast upon you, based on your Knowledge skills.

Each time you gain this feature, choose one of the following abilities for which you meet the skill-based prerequisites.

Although you can choose some of these abilities multiple times (as indicated in the descriptions), you may not select the same one twice in a row, and the minimum required skill rank increases by 2 for each subsequent selection of the same ability.

Avoid Energy: Choose an energy type from among acid, cold, electricity, and fire.

You gain a +2 bonus on all saving throws made against spells that deal damage of that energy type.

You can select this ability multiple times, choosing a different energy type each time.

(Knowledge [the planes] 4 ranks).

Break Point: Each of your melee attacks deals an extra 2 points of damage against inanimate objects and constructs.

(Knowledge [architecture and engineering] 4 ranks).

Deadly Strike: You gain a +2 bonus on attack rolls made to confirm critical hits.

(Knowledge [nature] 4 ranks).

Discern Weakness: Choose one creature type from the ranger's favored enemy list (PH 47).

Provided that you have at least 5 ranks in the appropriate Knowledge skill (Knowledge [arcana] for dragons, Knowledge [nature] for humanoids, and so forth), you gain a +2 bonus on attack rolls against creatures of that type.

You can select this ability multiple times, choosing a different creature type each time.

(Knowledge [varies] 5 ranks).

Mystical Augmentation: Choose one clerical domain.

The effective caster level of any spell in that domain cast upon you by someone else increases by 1, if you so choose at the time of casting.

(Knowledge [religion] 4 ranks).

Physical Augmentation: Choose one of your physical ability scores (Strength, Dexterity, or Constitution).

When any spell that applies a bonus or penalty to this score is cast upon you by someone else, any bonus granted increases by 2, and any penalty imposed is reduced by 2 (minimum penalty 1).

You can select this ability multiple times, choosing a different ability score each time.

(Knowledge [nature] 6 ranks).

Resist Ethos: You gain a +2 bonus on all saving throws against negative energy-based spells, and against spells with an alignment subtype opposed to one or both aspects of your own alignment (law/chaos or good/evil).

(Knowledge [religion or the planes] 5).

Spell Disrupter: Any spellcaster flanked by you and an ally cannot cast defensively to avoid attacks of opportunity and is aware of this limitation.

(Knowledge [arcana] 6).

PLAYING A PARAGNOSTIC INITIATE

You are no less a seeker of knowledge than the Paragnostic apostles are; you simply do not focus on magic as the central facet of that knowledge.

Even when you adventure for other purposes, you are constantly alert for new knowledge, be it ways to augment your own abilities or simply information that you can bring back to the Paragnostic Assembly.

You lack the authority of the Paragnostic apostles because you are considered less of a spiritual leader.

However, you are still a central member of the Paragnostic Assembly, respected by all who would delve into the secret past.

COMBAT

Whether you're a front-line fighter or a mobile flanker, you find yourself engaged in melee far more often than your apostle counterparts do.

Work out tactical maneuvers in advance with the others in your party, so that you can make the best possible use of your abilities to aid allies.

If you have a handful of strategies and procedures preplanned, you can implement them far more swiftly and effectively than you could on the fly.

ADVANCEMENT

Though you lacked the skills required to become a Paragnostic apostle, you were no less anxious to advance your learning and meld your abilities with the knowledge you had gained from membership in the Paragnostic Assembly.

Petitioning to learn the secrets of the Paragnostic initiate was the only logical choice, and the organization was happy to instruct you.

Now you spend much of your time traveling and adventuring in search of lost lore.

Because you need not research the arcane to advance your spellcasting ability, you spend less time in the organization's chapterhouses than many of the apostles do.

Thus, while the apostles are often seen as the primary figures of the Paragnostic Assembly, it falls on you and your fellows to do at least as much work on the group's behalf.

As you advance, focus heavily on your Knowledge skills, as well as the other class skills that you do not have access to from other classes.

You have only three chances to benefit from this skill list, so don't waste them.

You might want to consider increasing your Intelligence, if the opportunity arises, for the same reason.

RESOURCES

Like the Paragnostic apostle, you have the full library and resources of the Paragnostic Assembly's chapterhouses available to you.

While you're less likely to need access to arcane spells, you can still benefit from the organization's research libraries, as well as the occasional loan of magic items to help acquire specific lore.

TABLE 2–8: THE PARAGNOSTIC INITIATE
HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Assist casting (penetration), tactical combat
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Assist casting (target), tactical combat
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Assist casting (distraction), tactical combat

SANCTIFIED ONE

“I come in the name of the Brawler, and no evil shall stand against me!”

—Tarrana, sanctified one of Kord

The cleric, the paladin, the priest, and the holy warrior—all these are classic divine hero archetypes.

Whatever differences they may have, all divine heroes owe their power to deities or to their faith and devote themselves to the service of powers beyond the mortal plane.

But not all deities have paladins as their martial champions, or clerics as their most iconic servants.

In some cases, the sanctified one fills both roles.

BECOMING A SANCTIFIED ONE

Among the many roles that deities fill in the world, the role of patron is among the most important.

Every deity has its own portfolio and its own agenda, and each rewards faithful service differently.

A sanctified one epitomizes the ideals of her own specific deity.

Although any deity can sponsor a sanctified one, these holy servants most often serve deities who lack any other obvious champions.

Few serve deities who attract mostly lawful good worshipers, for example, since paladins typically function as the champions of such faiths.

Sanctified ones, on the other hand, fill the role of champion for churches without other obvious choices—typically Ehlonna, Kord, Olidammara, and Wee Jas.

Unlike members of most other divine prestige classes, sanctified ones often come from backgrounds other than clerical.

A sanctified one might have been a wizard, a rogue, or a fighter before becoming a champion of her religion.

To become a sanctified one, a character must be of the same alignment as her deity—a restriction even more stringent than those governing clerics and paladins.

Furthermore, a deity who favors a particular character class most often draws its sanctified ones from that class.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Alignment: Must match that of deity chosen.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 6 ranks.

Special: Must complete a sanctification ritual performed by a priest or other authority of the chosen deity’s church.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Diplomacy, Intimidate, Knowledge (religion), Perform, Sense Motive.

CLASS FEATURES

As a sanctified one, you gain class features that build upon strengths valued by your deity.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: If you are not already proficient with the chosen weapon of your deity, you gain that proficiency now.

You gain no other armor or weapon proficiencies.

Spellcasting: At 2nd and 4th level, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a sanctified one, you must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Additional Class Skills (Ex): Upon becoming a sanctified one, you gain the additional class skills specified for your deity in the accompanying table.

Sanctified Ability: At 1st, 3rd, and 5th level, you can choose a sanctified ability corresponding to your deity from the accompanying table.

Sanctified abilities can be extraordinary, spell-like, or supernatural, as designated in their individual descriptions. If a sanctified ability is followed by an asterisk (*), you can select it as many times as you wish.

Each time you choose it, the number of times per day that you can use that ability increases by one.

Sanctified Blessing: At 5th level, you receive a sanctified blessing based on your deity’s powers and portfolio, as given on the accompanying table.

SANCTIFIED ONE ABILITIES

The abilities to which you have access as a sanctified one are summarized on the accompanying table and described below, in the order they appear on the table.

Ehlonna: As a sanctified one of Ehlonna, you gain abilities relating to light, life, and nature.

Light of Life (Su): Once per day as a standard action, you can call upon Ehlonna’s light to create a consecrated area.

This effect works like the consecrate spell, except that the effect is mobile and centered upon you.

In addition, you are treated as an altar of Ehlonna for the purpose of determining the bonuses granted.

This effect lasts for 10 minutes.

Nature’s Bounty (Sp): Once per day, you can use heroes’ feast (caster level equals 6 + your sanctified one level).

Instead of producing tables and chairs, however, this ability produces blankets and pallets more suited to an outdoor setting.

Nature’s Holding (Sp): Once per day, by touching a plant or a natural earth or stone surface, you create an opening to an extradimensional space similar to that created by a rope trick spell.

When you and your allies enter this space and close the “door”, no evidence of the opening exists on the outside.

The space remains for 12 hours or until the last creature exits, whichever comes first.

Summon Nature’s Mount (Sp): Once per day as a swift action, you can summon either a unicorn or a griffon (your choice) to serve as your mount.

For each sanctified one level you possess, the creature gains 2 Hit Dice and a +2 sacred bonus to its AC.

The mount is immune to fear effects, and it remains for 1 hour or until slain.

You gain a +5 bonus on Ride checks while riding this creature.

Fast Healing (Su): Once per day as an immediate action, you can gain fast healing 5, which lasts for 10 rounds.

Kord: As a sanctified one of Kord, you gain abilities relating to strength and chaos.

Chaos Warp (Su): Once per day, you can completely ignore all damage from one critical hit scored against you, as well as any effects relating to it.

Holy Fire (Su): Whenever you cast a spell with the fire subtype, you can choose to change all the fire damage it deals into raw divine damage that is treated as good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction. This choice must be made at the time of casting.

Luck of Battle (Ex): Once per day, you can choose to roll twice for any roll normally requiring 1d20 and use the higher of the two results.

Sanctified Strength (Su): Once per day, you can apply twice your sanctified one level as a sacred bonus to your Strength for 1 round.

Blessing of Kord (Su): At dawn every day, you can choose one of the following blessings of Kord, which lasts for 24 hours: +2 bonus to Strength, +2 luck bonus on all saves, or +10-foot bonus to speed.

You cannot change this blessing until the next day.

Olidammara: As a sanctified one of Olidammara, you gain abilities relating to luck and stealth.

Chaos Luck (Su): Once per day as an immediate action, you can grant yourself and each of your allies within 30 feet the evasion ability for 1 round.

Any recipient of this benefit who already has evasion gains improved evasion instead.

Any recipient who already has improved evasion gains no further benefit.

Good Catch (Ex): Whenever you make a Disable Device check, you can choose to roll a second time before learning the result of your check.

If you do so, you must use the result of your second attempt.

Not in the Face (Ex): Once per day as an immediate action, you can apply your base Reflex save as a bonus to your Armor Class for 1 minute.

Whenever you are denied your Dexterity bonus, you lose this bonus as well.

Rogues' Blessing (Su): If you have the sneak attack ability, you gain an extra 1d8 points of sneak attack damage for every two sanctified one levels you possess.

Fast Talk (Sp): Once per combat encounter, you can make a Diplomacy check as an immediate action to prevent an enemy within 10 feet from attacking you.

The foe must be attempting an attack against you at the time you use this ability.

If your Diplomacy check result exceeds your opponent's Sense Motive check result by at least 1 for every 3 points of base attack bonus the enemy character possesses, he decides not to attack you (or anyone else) this round.

In subsequent rounds, he attacks you only if you attack him first or are the only opponent within sight.

If your Diplomacy check fails, the opponent attacks normally, and you cannot use this ability again during this combat encounter.

Wee Jas: As a sanctified one of Wee Jas, you gain abilities relating to death, law, and spellcasting.

Armor of Law (Su): If you have an armor bonus (permanent or temporary), it increases by an amount equal to your class level.

If you have no armor bonus, you can increase your shield bonus instead.

If you have neither, you gain no benefit.

Death's Cloak (Su): Once per day as a swift action, you can render yourself immune to poison, magic sleep effects, paralysis, stunning, disease, and death effects for 1 minute.

Sanctified Fall (Su): If you are reduced to -1 or fewer hit points, or even killed outright by a death effect, you can use an immediate action to either cast a spell or make a single attack.

For this action only, you can increase either your effective caster level or your bonus on attack rolls (your decision) by an amount equal to your sanctified one level.

Sanctified Spell (Ex): Once per day, you can increase your effective caster level by an amount equal to your Intelligence bonus (if any) for 1 round.

Ruby Spell (Sp): Choose a spell that you can cast from the highest level to which you have access.

You can now use this spell as a spell-like ability once per day.

Doing so requires no material components, unless those components have a gold piece cost equal to 100 gp or more. You can also still cast this spell normally as part of your normal spell repertoire.

Each time you gain a new spellcasting level, you can either retain this spell as a spell-like ability or choose a different one from the highest level you can cast.

AFFILIATION SPECIFICS

The following affiliation details are designed for sanctified ones of Kord.

Criterion	Affiliation Score Modifier
One-Time
Character level	1/2 levels
Strength 13 or higher	+1
Has the Athletic feat	+1
Has the Endurance feat	+1
Has a Strength penalty	- 2 × penalty
Multiple Use
Wins an athletic competition	+1/4 opponent's CR
Completes a mission or adventure requiring great Strength or stamina (scaling a mountain, swimming a channel, or the like)	+4
Refuses a personal challenge	-1
Is defeated in an athletic competition	-2

Rank	Affiliation Score	Titles: Benefits and Duties
0	3 or lower	None.
1	4–10	Suppliant: Entitled to living quarters, healing, and training. You must serve or guard the church for at least 60 days each year (see below).
2	11–20	Competitor: Gain a +2 bonus on Strength checks and Strength-based skill checks.
3	21–29	Master: Gain a +2 bonus on opposed checks made to resolve grapple, trip, and overrun attempts.
4	30 or higher	Paragon: Use greater heroism (self only) as a spell-like ability once per day (caster level equals your character level).

If you are playing a sanctified one dedicated to a different deity, use what follows as a model, but change the specifics where appropriate.

SANCTIFIED ONE OF KORD BENEFITS

Though you have no separate organization, you are entitled to a variety of benefits based on your service to your deity and church.

If you have a rank of 1 or higher, you can live in a barracks attached to a temple of Kord if you wish.

If you do so, you have access to the attached gymnasiums as well (see the Kord entry in Deities and Demigods).

Suppliant: At this rank, you can stay in the guest quarters at any temple to Kord for as long as you wish.

In addition, you receive free healing for any injury you suffer in Kord's service.

If you are injured while acting on your own, you can receive one free 3rd-level or lower cure spell each day.

If you choose these benefits, you also must serve the church for at least 60 days each year, guarding a temple or other church property, training other champions, or undertaking quests.

Your days of service need not be continuous.

Competitor: By the time you attain this rank, you have achieved a degree of renown among worshippers of your deity.

Because you are regularly called upon to perform missions for your church, you gain a +2 bonus on Strength checks and Strength-based skill checks.

Master: Your increasing focus on combat in the name of Kord has earned you a +2 bonus on opposed checks to resolve grapple, trip, and overrun attempts.

Paragon: As the representative of Kord on earth, you are entitled to use greater heroism as a spell-like ability once per day (caster level equals your character level).

This ability is usable on yourself only.

PLAYING A SANCTIFIED ONE

As a sanctified one, you strive to live up to the moral, ethical, and religious code of your church.

Because you are the personification of your deity's best attributes on the Material Plane, it's important to act in accordance with your patron's wishes at all times.

Since accepting the mantle of sanctified one, you have conducted a thorough study of your deity's major characteristics, domains, portfolio, and general philosophy, and you try to behave in a manner consistent with those principles at all times.

Chapter 1 of this book discusses in detail how followers of the various religions tend to act and what they value.

You, however, take these guidelines as law and attempt to live every moment of your life as your deity's direct representative on the Material Plane.

You have no problem working with the followers of other religions, or even those who worship no deity at all.

While you might (or might not) be an evangelist, you understand that getting out and adventuring in your patron's name is the best service you can render.

As a living example of your deity's greatness, you can truly showcase the divine power of your religion.

You also recognize that your deity has particular allies and enemies within the divine pantheon.

As a sanctified one, you try to keep the churches of friendly deities close and prevent the churches of rival deities from gaining power at your patron's expense.

Meeting this goal often means working with people outside your religion and forging new friendships with them.

Those who share even part of your religious philosophy are on the right track, even though their paths occasionally diverge from yours.

COMBAT

Although your deity might or might not be focused on combat, you are an adventuring hero—a champion of your deity.

Thus, to a greater or lesser extent, you are expected to use your abilities in combat to defeat your foes.

You might do so in an entirely different way than another sanctified one, depending upon your gifts.

The following archetypes describe your combat philosophy, depending upon the deity you worship.

Storm of Blades (Kord): As a sanctified one of Kord, you leap into the center of the fight, hacking your way toward your most dangerous foes first.

You prefer to draw attention away from your allies, depending on your deity-granted abilities to protect you while you strike at the heart of the foe.

If you came from a fighting class, you probably possess good armor or exceptional speed in combat, so you trust in those defenses to help you avoid the most damaging blows. Use your luck of battle ability to avoid damaging magic, saving your chaos warp ability to help you avoid devastating critical hits from strong opponents with exceptional weapons.

When you reach your enemy, use your sanctified strength to deal extra damage with a single blow.

Nature's Protector (Ehlonna): The abilities Ehlonna has granted you are geared toward readying your allies for a fight and healing them afterward.

Thus, you usually concentrate on protecting and heartening warriors, though you do keep a few surprises in store for complacent enemies.

Whenever possible, use summon nature's mount to achieve battlefield supremacy, since it lets you stay out of range of your most powerful enemies and use ranged spells or attacks to harass them.

When possible, dart in to rescue wavering comrades, either pulling them from the press or healing them on the spot, depending on the resources you have available.

A Knife in the Dark (Olidammara): You aren't a battlefield hero.

As a sanctified one of Olidammara, you have no need to prove your valor—only to win.

Though some might call you a coward, you know how to use your wits and abilities to keep yourself alive and free on the battlefield.

Your not in the face and fast talk abilities make you difficult to hit, and you can save many lives at a time with your chaos luck ability.

In general, you make yourself innocuous on the battlefield, hoping to deliver a devastating strike—or even a timely distraction—at just the right moment.

Deathspell (Wee Jas): Though you depend heavily on your spells, you aren't a blast-away type of spellcaster.

As a sanctified one of Wee Jas, you prefer to use your powers to influence minds—and sometimes bodies as well. Your resistance to death effects makes you the ideal person to confront wayward undead, and your armor of law protects you from overzealous foes that don't know any better than to attack a servant of Death.

When the time is right, your sanctified spell ability can deliver an unexpected, deliberate magical punch, thereby providing Wee Jas with more company in the netherworld.

ADVANCEMENT

When you chose to devote yourself wholly to your deity, you had to earn the trust and respect of your church's authorities.

You began to study your deity and the church's dogma in earnest and take on any missions the church leaders felt they could entrust to you.

In short, you began to serve as a champion of your deity well before you formally took on the mantle of sanctified one.

When you finally did, the entire congregation knew your reputation and looked up to you as your deity's chosen representative.

But your work has only begun.

Because you might very well be the only sanctified one your church has in the area, you strive harder to advance. You are welcomed into most organizations sponsored by your deity, but you must be careful not to focus too heavily on one aspect of your religion at the expense of another. For example, if you worship Kord, you certainly value strength, but it would be too easy to concentrate on refining your physical strength at the expense of the other tenets of your religion.

Try to choose feats that complement your class features and take advantage of your strengths.

Worry less about covering up your weaknesses; after all, you are only a mortal.

If you worship Wee Jas, take feats that improve your spellcasting ability and skills that increase your knowledge so that you can gain a better understanding of the workings of death.

As a follower of Ehlonna, you should work toward becoming more in tune with nature by learning feats that connect you with the strengths of animals, plants, and the elements.

You must also continue to increase your knowledge of nature and its enemies.

RESOURCES

As a sanctified one of your chosen deity, you can expect respect, recognition, and even assistance from followers of your religion and those of allied faiths.

Your church's clergy and congregation trust you as your deity's representative on the Material Plane.

If you need healing, spellcasting, or other resources, you have a right to expect the local church or any nearby worshipers to provide such, even if you cannot offer compensation immediately.

But being a sanctified one is a double-edged sword. When asked for assistance by your church or an ally, you cannot reasonably refuse unless undertaking the requested task would keep you from performing a greater service for your deity.

Even then, you should try to work out a means of accomplishing both tasks to prove yourself worthy of your deity's trust.

You do not expect to go without compensation for your services—indeed, it would be disrespectful for a church not to ensure that its sanctified ones were fully equipped. However, you never demand more than those in need can afford.

Furthermore, when you receive “loans” of services or goods, you repay them quickly and with interest.

Because of such behavior, you are recognized throughout the world as a pillar of your religion and few—even the nonreligious—are disrespectful to you.

Your foes might also treat you with awe, sometimes targeting you more heavily than they otherwise would.

But you are a champion, so you can withstand your enemies better than most.

SANCTIFIED ONES IN THE WORLD

“They're just as committed as paladins—and just as fanatical!”

—Lars Bentforth, Woldsdown peasant

Sanctified ones are lone champions of their religious beliefs.

While they gain the respect of those around them, they also find themselves segregated from their fellow worshipers.

At times, sanctified ones can come across as too perfect, or too intense.

Even those who worship “relaxed” deities such as Olidammara often make others around them feel inadequate or without purpose.

Such reactions stem from the fact that sanctified ones don't just believe—they know.

First and foremost, members of this prestige class are adventurers.

However, their patron deities have given them abilities that enable them to go forth and advance divine agendas in the world.

Few sanctified ones spend their time in large temples or holy places protected by cities or fortresses.

Most often, they are out in the wild, mingling with the desperate and the hopeless.

Nevertheless, they are seldom out of touch with their churches, and they are always on call when the church leaders are in need of heroes.

Sanctified ones simply never get to enjoy the fruits of their labors for long.

In an adventuring party, a sanctified one often serves a support role because she feels more comfortable helping others succeed than drawing the glory to herself.

Such an attitude might seem odd to others, especially since sanctified ones draw so much attention from their foes, but it makes sense to the holy champion.

She knows that someday the foes sent against her will succeed in destroying her, but she plans to go down fighting and if possible keep her comrades alive and fighting.

So while a sanctified one might either draw fire or stand back and heal, she doesn't use her party members as ammunition or fodder for her enemies' swords.

Rather, she willingly plays the role her deity has chosen for her.

ORGANIZATION

Sanctified ones have no organization of their own, both because they are so few in number and because they tend not to bond with characters outside their ranks.

And while sanctified ones of different religions might work together, they are too committed to the tenets of their individual beliefs to share any common organizational philosophy or structure.

Thus, sanctified ones often find themselves on the outside looking in, serving the causes in which they so fervently believe but isolated from their fellows.

However, each sanctified one automatically belongs to at least one organization—her church.

She might also join another organization within that church—perhaps one run by members of a different prestige class.

But many prestige classes with religious strictures are too narrow in focus for a sanctified one.

Such a character isn't interested in just one aspect of her deity's portfolio; she wants to promote the whole package.

NPC REACTIONS

People fortunate enough to meet a sanctified one of their own church often treat her as a hero.

They see her as someone their children should look up to and someone they themselves should venerate, but a measure of desperation is often intermingled with this hero worship.

People have heard that sanctified ones go only where their church needs them, and that they settle where the fire is hottest.

Thus, common folk revere sanctified ones but hope they are simply passing through, looking for trouble in some faraway land.

Such NPCs usually begin any interaction as helpful, or at worst friendly.

Clerics react to a sanctified one of their own faith in similar ways.

Most see her as a devoted follower of their religion, welcome her into their sanctuaries, and share news, food, and problems with her.

Church leaders—be they lay persons, actual clerics, or other divine casters—recognize their deity in the face of the sanctified one and see her presence as a blessing.

But they too worry about trouble.

Why is the sanctified one there?

What does the god need done?

How is her mission going to affect the church, the congregation, and the clergy?

Nevertheless, devout clerics are helpful to sanctified ones on almost any occasion.

A few clerics, however, disdain and even envy sanctified ones.

Some such individuals come from fringe sects or overly structured temples in which rote has replaced belief in the hearts of the worshipers, and others have a slightly different alignment from their deity.

In such cases, the cleric may view the sanctified one as too stratified, or too intensely devoted to a “narrow-minded view” of the deity.

This situation isn't as unusual as it might seem—plenty of clerics of Kord are neutral good, and few of them appreciate hearing a “hero” of the religion espousing the importance of chaos, individuality, and luck.

Such clergy members sometimes mutter against the sanctified one and can, if left unchecked, turn her from a visiting hero into a harbinger of doom in the minds of the worshipers.

Envious clergy might appear to be helpful in initial interactions, but turn out to be unfriendly or even hostile toward the sanctified one in the long run.

But the true enemies of the sanctified one are the foes of her religion.

Worshipers of evil deities put even higher prices on the heads of sanctified ones than on those of known paladins because they rightly see a strike against such a hero as a strike against the religion she represents and the deity she worships.

A sanctified one who lingers too long in one place has more to worry about than mutterings of envious clergy; she runs a very real risk of assassination or a strike by her religion's enemies.

Enemies of the sanctified one's church are always hostile toward the champion herself.

Most non-evil members of other religions see sanctified ones as powerful adventurers and seldom treat them much differently than they would a high-level paladin or cleric—usually friendly, though occasionally indifferent.

This attitude can be a relief when the sanctified one simply wants to rest in a place where her deity isn't worshiped.

But when the deity calls again, she must ride!

SANCTIFIED ONE LORE

Characters who have ranks in Knowledge (religion) can research sanctified ones to learn more about them.

When a character succeeds on a skill check, the following lore is revealed, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: A sanctified one is a servant of [deity's name] and has achieved a strong connection to her faith.

DC 15: A sanctified one almost certainly has at least one special power granted by her deity.

DC 20: A sanctified one of [deity's name] can use one or more of the following abilities: [special abilities].

DC 30: Characters who achieve this level of success can learn important details about the sanctified ones in your campaign, including notable individuals, the areas where they operate, and the kinds of activities they undertake. Since sanctified ones don't have their own special organization, the best way for a character to approach membership in this prestige class is to find a devout clergy member (usually a cleric) of the appropriate religion and ask about champions of the deity.

Several attempts might be required to gain the appropriate information.

Almost every member of any organized religion has heard of sanctified ones, but few have ever actually met one.

Alternatively, when a character completes quests in the name of a deity, she might be approached by a high-level cleric or even a sanctified one and offered the opportunity to participate in the initiation rites.

SANCTIFIED ONES IN THE GAME

If you wish to add sanctified ones to your game, you should probably include more detailed information about religion as background for adventuring.

Religion is a great motivator for adventuring in the D&D game, and the quest to become a sanctified one is a process characters can begin at any level.

You can introduce sanctified ones as NPC heroes when your PCs attain the appropriate character levels.

Because of their general attitudes, they make terrific NPCs—they seldom feel the need to “grab the glory”, and they would rather help others achieve success than be lauded for doing it all themselves.

A sanctified one wants others to become heroes, especially if doing so links their names to the worship of the right deity.

When a player evinces interest in devoting his character to a deity, introduce the concept of the sanctified one as a goal and allow the PC to work toward it.

luckily, most of the PC's goals probably match those of any other adventurer—namely, defeat evil and become more powerful.

Multiple aspiring sanctified ones in the same party can make for a fun and interesting group.

Adaptation This section presents four examples of sanctified ones using deities from the core D&D game. You can adapt these to other campaign settings by matching up first portfolios and domains, and then alignment.

You might need to swap out one or two powers, but fortunately, most of the powers clearly link to specific domains.

If you wish to create your own sanctified one for a different deity, start with the following basic guidelines.

- The deity probably doesn't have any other “mainstream” champions, such as paladins or members of a notable prestige class.

A religion that already has paladins is less likely to need a sanctified one.

This rule doesn't always apply, but it's a good guideline.

- The sanctified one is a five-level prestige class for a reason.

The deities chosen are usually patrons of other classes, and obviously so.

A patron deity of druids wants its followers to be druids.

Allowing them to deviate for five levels and gain some appropriate abilities is fine, but any greater investment in another class actually steers the sanctified one away from the deity's patronage.

- The sanctified one's abilities should involve some small amount of choice.

Even though these characters are supposed to follow their religions' ideals, no one mortal could possibly do justice to all of them.

So build a short list with more choices than a character could possibly take, and see where the concept goes from there.

TABLE 2-9: THE SANCTIFIED ONE HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Additional class skills, sanctified ability	—
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Sanctified ability	—
4th	+3	+4	+4	+4	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Sanctified blessing, sanctified ability	—

SANCTIFIED ONE ABILITIES AND BLESSINGS

Deity	Additional Class Skills	Sanctified Abilities	Sanctified Blessing
Ehlonna (NG)	Knowledge (nature), Search, Survival	Light of life*, nature's bounty, nature's holding, summon nature's mount*	Fast healing 5
Kord (CG)	Climb, Jump, Knowledge (dungeoneering)	Chaos warp*, holy fire, luck of battle*, sanctified strength*	Blessing of Kord
Olidammara (CN)	Appraise, Knowledge (dungeoneering), Move Silently	Chaos luck*, good catch, not in the face*, rogues' blessing	Fast talk
Wee Jas (LN)	Decipher Script, Knowledge (arcana), Spellcraft	Armor of law, death's cloak*, sanctified fall, sanctified spell*	Ruby spell

WHY NO EVIL SANCTIFIED ONES?

The deities of evil have their champions too, but such individuals share few characteristics with sanctified ones. Even the lawful neutral worshipers of Wee Jas and the chaotic neutral followers of Olidammara sometimes work together toward a common goal, but evil characters can seldom manage viable alliances.

Aside from the fact that evil sanctified ones would usually be NPCs by default, the evil deities often prefer to reshape the world, and their worshipers, in their own images without much of a common bond. An evil champion of Erythnul would find less in common with a champion of Gruumsh than you might think, even though both deities are chaotic evil. Sanctified ones, on the other hand, are unified by their single-minded devotion to their deities, and even those of differing philosophies and alignments can work together for extended periods of time. Evil champions tend to betray each other frequently, and no underlying bond exists between them.

SHADOWSPY

"Perhaps you see it as a curse that I must deny myself the light of the Shining One so that his enemies might be exposed and destroyed.

But it is my honor and duty to make such a sacrifice, and in truth, I see the gifts of the Shining One as proof that I am still within his sight, despite the shadows that cling to me."

—Saera, Shadow Knight of Pelor

Shadowspies are the covert arm of Pelor's Shadow Guard (see page 75).

Members of this subject work individually or in small groups to locate hidden sources of evil.

Although they often lead double lives, masquerading as normal folk who are simply trying to get by, shadowspies never forget their duty to their deity, to their church, and to the multitude of innocents who unknowingly depend on them.

BECOMING A SHADOWSPY

Only priests and paladins of Pelor with the proper skills and demeanor are permitted to join the shadowspies. The vast majority of shadowspies are drawn from the shadowstrikers (page 108), though it is not unheard of for ordinary priests of Pelor to be inducted as shadowspies. Clerics or paladins with levels in bard, monk, ranger, or rogue are ideal candidates because they have the stealthy skills to use the shadows as a tool against the forces of darkness.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any good.

Skills: Gather Information 6 ranks, Hide 6 ranks, Move Silently 6 ranks.

Feat: Good Devotion, Healing Devotion, Strength Devotion, or Sun Devotion.

Spellcasting: Able to cast 1st-level divine spells.

Special: Must be a cleric or paladin of Pelor.

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level): Balance, Bluff, Climb, Concentration, Decipher Script, Disguise, Escape Artist, Forgery, Gather Information, Hide, Jump, Knowledge (local), Knowledge (religion), Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Sense Motive, Speak Language, Spot, Tumble.

CLASS FEATURES

The abilities you gain as a Shadowspy of Pelor allow you to seek out sources of wickedness that are all too often hidden from view.

You gain the ability to blend into the throngs around you, create shadows to mask your presence by manipulating light, make your thoughts impossible to read, and force even the most corrupt persons to speak the truth in your presence.

Spellcasting: At each even-numbered level, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a Shadowspy, you must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Aura of Anonymity (Su): You leave few impressions upon those you meet, and even fewer upon those unexceptional souls you pass in the street.

When you are walking in a crowd often or more individuals, you gain a divine bonus equal to your Shadowspy level on Disguise and Hide checks.

Radiance of Pelor (Su): Pelor has granted you the power to enhance sources of light so that they shine as brightly as the sun.

As a swift action, you can augment any or all light sources within 60 feet (including torches, lamps, lanterns, and campfires, as well as objects that are the target of a light spell and magic weapons that glow).

The range of any light source so affected doubles, and the effect lasts a number of hours equal to your Shadowspy level, or until the light source is extinguished, whichever occurs first.

This ability can be used a number of times per day equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum once).

Bonus Feat: At 2nd level and every 3rd level thereafter, you can select a bonus feat for which you meet the prerequisites from the following list: Acrobatic, Alertness, Athletic, Combat Casting, Deceitful, Extra Turning, Improved Turning, Investigator, Good Devotion (see page 58), Persuasive, Stealthy.

Immunity to Blindness (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, you cannot be blinded by magical effects, spells, or bright light. Physical barriers to sight, such as blindfolds and solid objects, still prevent you from seeing.

Additionally, any wounds that cause the destruction of your eyes still blind you.

Veil of Pelor (Sp): When you attain 3rd level, your motives and morality become almost impossible to determine. As an immediate action, you can use undetected alignment, as the spell (caster level equals your character level).

This ability is usable at will.

Personal Eclipse (Su): Beginning at 4th level, you can manipulate the direction and intensity of light.

By redirecting and dimming ambient illumination, you can cast shadows around your body to better conceal your presence.

Doing so grants you a circumstance bonus equal to one-half your Shadowspy level on Hide checks.

This ability can be used at will but is effective only in areas where light is present.

Truth of the Light (Sp): When you attain 6th level, creatures in your company find it difficult to tell deliberate untruths.

At will, you can use zone of truth, as the spell (caster level equals your character level).

You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to your Shadowspy level.

Blinding Light (Su): At 7th level, you learn to blind nearby foes with a brief but intense flash of light.

Twice per day, you can project a beam of light from your palm in a cone-shaped burst with a range of 15 feet.

Any creature in the area that fails a Reflex save (DC 10 + Shadowspy level + Wis modifier) is blinded for 1d6 rounds. Sightless creatures are not affected by this ability.

Sun's Revelation (Su): At 8th level, you become adept at detecting untruths spoken in your presence.

At will, you can use discern lies, as the spell (caster level equals your character level).

Hide in Plain Sight (Su): Beginning at 9th level, you can use the Hide skill even while being observed, as long as you are in a sunlit location.

See the ranger class feature (PH 48).

Vision of Pelor (Su): At 10th level, you can see through even the most potent illusions.

Three times per day, you can use true seeing at will, as the spell (caster level equals your character level).

PLAYING A SHADOWSPY

Unlike shadowstrikers, you are understated and subdued, and you often work alone.

Though you felt a bit lonely on your missions at first, you came to realize that Pelor watches over you constantly, whether or not the shadows mask you from mortal sight. To succeed as a Shadowspy, you must be entirely self-reliant.

Unlike the shadowstrikers, you have no cell to fall back on for support, and you can't call upon the church for aid unless the circumstances are particularly dire.

The self-reliance you have gained out of necessity might make you seem smug to others, but you prefer quiet confidence to vociferous bombast.

COMBAT

Fighting toe-to-toe is for shadowstrikers.

You rarely enter combat unless it is on your own terms.

Like so many of your enemies, you depend on the shadows to hide your movements and provide you with ample opportunities for ambush and evasion.

Your assigned tasks rarely involve direct confrontation, though you are more than capable of defending yourself as long as the conflict is not protracted.

You prefer, however, to strike quickly and from hiding, then slip away before your enemies can retaliate.

Given the opportunity, you like to prepare an exit corridor by seeding it with snares, traps, and bolt holes from which you can launch ambushes.

Doing so allows you to send groups of enemies scrambling in the wrong direction while you double back to make your escape.

TABLE 2-10: THE SHADOWSPY HIT DIE: D6

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Aura of anonymity, radiance of Pelor	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Bonus feat, immunity to blindness	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Veil of Pelor	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Personal eclipse	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Bonus feat	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Truth of the light	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Blinding light	—
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	Bonus feat, sun's revelation	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Hide in plain sight	—
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Vision of Pelor	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

SHADOWSTRIKER

"Horrible cults, terrible demons, and the shambling remains of creatures long dead—I have seen them all, and my bright blade has given me the strength to do what is right.

Though the shadows may blind you, they can also open your eyes to the realization that our plight is dire—more so than we might at first admit."

—Peadrin, Shadowstriker of Pelor

The elite group known as the shadowstrikers is the military arm of Pelor's Shadow Guard.

Its members make little attempt to hide their presence because they prefer to stand as constant reminders to the minions of evil and decay that divine consequences await their vile actions.

BECOMING A SHADOWSTRIKER

Shadowstrikers come from all walks of life.

Most are drawn from the clerics and paladins who serve in the ranks of either Heironeous or Pelor, though any member of either church with strong faith and a needed skill—regardless of vocation—is welcome to apply.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Alignment: Any good.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 2 ranks.

Feat: Good Devotion, Healing Devotion, Law Devotion, Strength Devotion, Sun Devotion, or War Devotion Class Skills (2 + Int modifier per level): Climb, Diplomacy, Handle Animal, Heal, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (religion), Ride, Search, Sense Motive, Spot.

CLASS FEATURES

You are a weapon of Pelor given humanoid form.

As a Shadowstriker, you have learned to channel your faith into a well-honed weapon and become especially proficient at dealing with undead creatures.

Badge of Office (Ex): Upon your induction into the shadowstrickers, you were given a special holy symbol combining the symbols of Heironeous and Pelor. This item is crafted from gold, inlaid with platinum lightning motifs, and encrusted with sunstones. In areas where the Church of Heironeous or the Church of Pelor holds political power, this badge allows you access to prohibited areas and gives you the right to detain and question suspects in the pursuit of your deity's will.

Luminous Weapon (Su): You can imbue your melee weapon with the power of the Shining One. When you do so, your weapon glows as if affected by a light spell and gains a bonus equal to twice your Shadowstriker level on damage rolls against evil and/or undead creatures. You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum once), and the effect lasts for 10 rounds.

Smite Evil (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, you can smite evil once per day (see the paladin class feature, PH 44).

Smite evil attempts/day attained from multiple sources stack.

Sun's Blessing (Su): When you reach 2nd level, you can cause your weapon to flare with the fires of the sun. As long as the sun's blessing remains upon your luminous weapon, it deals an extra 1d6 points of fire damage. Additionally, the blinding light spilling from the weapon counts as a daylight spell for the duration of the effect. The sun's blessing can be used once per day, and the effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to your Shadowstriker level.

You can gain an additional use per day of this ability for each daily turn attempt, smite evil attempt, or spell slot (if you are a spontaneous caster) that you sacrifice.

Surge of Piety (Su): When you attain 3rd level as a Shadowstriker, your touch becomes infused with positive energy.

Any undead creature that touches you (by hitting you in melee or for any other reason) is shaken for 1 round or until it is no longer in physical contact with you—even if it normally can't be affected by this condition.

Once per day as a full-round action, you can channel this energy into a single burst of positive energy, which manifests as a flash of bright, warm sunlight.

In addition to functioning as a consecrate spell, this wave of energy deals 1d8 points of positive energy damage to every undead creature within 30 feet (no save).

You can increase the damage this effect deals by 1d8 points (maximum +5d8) for each daily turn attempt, smite evil attempt, or spell slot (if you are a spontaneous caster) that you sacrifice.

PLAYING A SHADOWSTRIKER

As a Shadowstriker, you are one of Pelor's elite soldiers. You and your fellows enjoy an esprit du corps that other religious orders rarely exhibit, due in part to the fact that Shadowstriker cells are composed primarily of laypersons brought together by their common faith in your two patron deities.

The forces of evil cannot long stand before such a zealous and devoted group—indeed, when you are with the other members of your cell, you are unstoppable and capable of accomplishing any goal.

Even when you are alone, you are a force to be reckoned with, and you don't mind letting others know it.

COMBAT

When engaging enemies in combat, your best option is your luminous weapon ability, which increases the damage you deal.

At 2nd level, you can pair this ability with sun's blessing, which adds a significant amount of fire damage to your attacks.

If you use these two abilities in conjunction with smite evil, you can easily lay fiendish foes low with a few well-placed blows.

Since your damage-enhancing abilities are usable only in hand-to-hand combat, however, you must be prepared to close for melee with your enemies.

TABLE 2–11: THE SHADOWSTRIKER HIT DIE: D10

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Badge of office, luminous weapon
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Smite evil 1/day, sun's blessing
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Surge of piety

SQUIRE OF LEGEND

"Behind every legend stand the folks who had to do the real work."

—Ezria Birrinsdottir, squire to Mikolai Laziros

Not everyone who reveres the Six from Shadow (see page 65) desires to shape her entire life around her chosen paragon.

Some wish only for a slight taste of their hero's abilities, others simply recognize that no champion can stand alone. The Six from Shadow could not have defeated Tharizdun's cult without the efforts of the thousands who fell beside them.

It is this philosophy that the squire of legend embraces. Whether she seeks to stand behind heroes such as the mythic exemplars, propping them up and aiding them in their quests, or simply to honor her favored paragon without following in his footsteps, she is a hero in her own right, skilled beyond her humble title.

BECOMING A SQUIRE OF LEGEND

Like the mythic exemplar, the squire of legend devotes herself to a single path based on a chosen patron, but her abilities are much less rigidly defined by that path.

Thus, a broader array of characters can benefit from this prestige class.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Skills: Knowledge (history) 3 ranks and any one of the following: Diplomacy 7 ranks, Intimidate 7 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 7 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 7 ranks, or Move Silently 7 ranks.

Special: Must be a member of the Disciples of Legend.

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level): Appraise, Bluff, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Escape Artist, Gather Information, Handle Animal, Heal, Jump, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Knowledge (religion), Listen, Perform, Ride, Search, Sense Motive, Spot, Swim.

CLASS FEATURES

Your class features vary according to your paragon, but are all oriented toward aiding and bolstering your allies.

You know that when a hero falls, when a knight is unhorsed, or when a champion surrenders to despair, it is up to his squire to set him right. Thus, your allies know they can always count on you when the day is darkest.

Spellcasting: At 2nd and 3rd level, you gain new spells per day and an increase in caster level (and spells known, if applicable) as if you had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which you belonged before adding the prestige class level.

You do not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If you had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a squire of legend, you must decide to which class to add each level for the purpose of determining spells per day, caster level, and spells known.

Paragon's Path: Upon becoming a squire of legend, you must choose one of the legendary Six from Shadow after whom to model your skills and abilities.

Once made, your choice cannot be changed.

Save Bonus (Ex): At 1st level, you gain a +1 bonus on a saving throw determined by your paragon, as given on the following table.

Patron	Saving Throw
Dardallion	Reflex
Imdastri	Will
Ktolemagne	Will
Orsos	Fortitude
Reikhardt	Will
Sunyartra	Fortitude

This bonus increases to +2 when you attain 3rd level.

Squire's Burden, Least (Su): You gain the first of several supernatural abilities that let you use the skills of your chosen paragon to aid others.

Unless otherwise noted, each paragon's gift (least, lesser, and greater) requires a swift action to invoke, lasts for a number of rounds equal to twice your squire of legend level, is usable once per day, and has a caster level equal to three times your squire of legend level.

When the description of a squire's burden ability specifies an ally, it means only an ally; you cannot use the effect on yourself unless so stated.

Dardallion: You can grant yourself and one ally flanking bonuses against a foe that both of you threaten, even if you are not properly positioned to flank.

The bonus persists as long as you both threaten that enemy.

Imdastri: You can use sanctuary, as the spell.

Ktolemagne: You can use comprehend languages, as the spell.

Orsos: You can use speak with animals, as the spell.

Reikhardt: You can grant one ally within 30 feet the ability to take an immediate action of a specified type out of turn. If you invoke this ability as a swift action, the ally can take a 5-foot step.

If you invoke it as a move action, she can take a move action.

If you invoke it as a standard action, she can take a standard action.

Sunyartra: As an immediate action, you can negate a single critical hit against one ally within 30 feet.

The ally still takes normal damage from the hit.

Squire's Burden, Lesser (Su): At 2nd level, you gain a new supernatural ability that you can use once per day.

This ability follows all the guidelines for least squire's burden (above), unless otherwise noted.

If you choose, you can forgo your daily use of this ability for an extra use of your least squire's burden.

Dardallion: As an immediate action, you can grant one ally within 30 feet the opportunity to reroll a saving throw, skill check, or ability check.

Imdastri: You can use shield other, as the spell.

The effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to three times your squire of legend level.

Ktolemagne: You can use see invisibility, as the spell.

The effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to three times your squire of legend level.

Orsos: You can use lesser restoration, as the spell.

Reikhardt: You can grant an ally within 30 feet a second use of an extraordinary or supernatural ability normally usable only once per day.

If you gain a second daily use of this ability, you cannot use it twice in one day on the same ally.

Sunyartra: You can use true strike, as the spell, but only on a single ally within 30 feet.

Faithful Companion (Ex): At 3rd level, you learn to place yourself between an ally and harm.

If you and an ally within 5 feet are both subject to an area spell or effect that allows a Reflex save for partial damage, you can grant your ally a bonus on her saving throw by taking a penalty of equivalent magnitude on your own.

The value of the bonus and penalty can be any amount up to the value of your base Reflex saving throw.

You must decide to invoke this ability before either you or your ally has attempted the saving throw.

Squire's Burden, Greater (Su): At 3rd level, you gain a new supernatural ability you can use once per day.

It follows all the guidelines for least squire's burden, above. If you choose, you can forgo your daily use of this ability for an extra use of the least or lesser squire's burden.

Dardallion: You can grant one ally within 30 feet the ability to move through threatened areas without provoking attacks of opportunity for 2 rounds.

Other actions, such as casting in a threatened area, still provoke attacks of opportunity as normal.

Imdastri: You can grant one ally within 30 feet immunity to one of the following effects for a number of rounds equal to three times your squire of legend level: disease, exhaustion, fatigue, mind-affecting spells and abilities, negative levels, or poison.

You choose the effect when you activate this ability.

Ktolemagne: As a swift action, you can take over concentrating to maintain an ally's spell or spell-like ability, allowing her to take other actions.

Once you have assumed control of an effect, you cannot give it back.

Orsos: You can grant one ally within 30 feet energy resistance 10 to an energy type of your choice for a number of rounds equal to three times your squire of legend level.

Reikhardt: When an ally within 30 feet of you uses an extraordinary, spell-like, or supernatural ability that affects all allies within a given number of feet, you can use an immediate action to extend its range and duration by 50%.

Sunyartra: As an immediate action, you can grant one ally within 30 feet the opportunity to reroll an attack roll or critical hit confirmation roll.

PLAYING A SQUIRE OF LEGEND

You follow in the footsteps of a legend, but you embrace your legendary hero's influence to a lesser degree than some others do.

You don't honor your hero any less than your comrades do—you simply choose not to devote your entire life to following that person's example.

You are more firmly devoted to the notion that a true hero aids her comrades rather than seeking glory for herself. Whether you accompany a Disciple of Legend or simply team up with an ally for adventuring, your primary concern is to ensure that your heroic comrade survives to complete the task at hand.

You are content with a smaller share of fame and glory; it is enough to know that your comrade could not have succeeded without you.

The Disciples of Legend accord you respect, but not to the same degree as they do the mythic exemplars.

They honor the assistance you provide and your commitment to the precepts of the Six from Shadow, but even they—like so many others—tend to give more credit to the flashier heroes and underestimate the contributions of those who stand behind.

So far this attitude has not disturbed you unduly, since you have been content with your own contributions, but someday you might become one of those few squires who have quit the organization in disgust.

COMBAT

Becoming a squire of legend does not fundamentally change what you are.

The benefits you can gain from this prestige class are somewhat limited because of its short progression, so your combat tactics depend largely on your levels in other classes.

Thus, if you're a heavy fighter, you should still stand in the front line, and if you're a wizard, you should still cast from the rear.

Even so, however, you realize perhaps better than most that adventuring and combat are group activities.

Your class abilities are designed to aid your comrades, bolstering them in battle, granting them new or improved tactical options, or simply helping them survive.

Thus, you must stay close to your allies so that your gifts are available on a moment's notice.

ADVANCEMENT

You are slightly less fanatical about the Six from Shadow than those who strive to become mythic exemplars.

You respect them well enough, but you prefer to follow their example in a general sense, rather than specifically.

You have also come to realize that while those worthies are the best known of all the brave souls who fought the Mad God's cult, their victory would have been impossible without the assistance of the hundreds of unnamed and unremembered heroes who died beside them.

Though you are still a member of the Disciples of Legend, you sometimes choose to go off on your own and offer your assistance to other allies.

You do not chase glory; rather, you seek out situations in which your talents can do the most good.

The Disciples of Legend offer you additional training and access to written records of the Six from Shadow, but given your limited advancement possibilities within the organization, these benefits might not be enough to entice you to stay for the rest of your career.

RESOURCES

The Disciples of Legend have few resources to offer beyond a research library and moral support.

When it comes to monetary or magical acquisitions, you're on your own.

TABLE 2–12: THE SQUIRE OF LEGEND

HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+0	+0	+0	+0	Least squire's burden, paragon's path, save bonus +1	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+0	Lesser squire's burden	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+1	Faithful companion, greater squire's burden, save bonus +2	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

NPC SQUIRES OF LEGEND

NPC squires of legend probably seem like a dream come true to PCs playing under DMs who allow the Leadership feat. But be careful about allowing a mythic exemplar PC to "acquire" an NPC squire permanently. In general, the Disciples of Legend encourage squires to work with mythic exemplars, but they are more likely to assign an NPC squire on a mission-by-mission basis only. That way, the PC doesn't get a squire of legend permanently for the cost of one feat.

COMPLETE DIVINE (3.5)

BLACK FLAME ZEALOT

The Order of the Black Flame is the hidden blade of their faith, a secret society of holy slayers devoted to the worship of a dark deity of fire and destruction.

Trained in unholy rites, the black flame zealots use stealth, divine magic, and the zeal of fanaticism to destroy those who have given offense to their god.

Even great rulers are not above the deity's wrath, since the Order is a sanctioned and respected means for the wealthy and powerful to pursue vendettas.

Clerics and particularly devout rogues or fighters most often become black flame zealots.

A small number of the order's members are high-ranking clerics who keep an eye open for fellow devotees who seem like suitable candidates.

Adaptation: The black flame zealot works best with any nongood patron deity with the Fire domain, such as Pyremius (see page XX) or Kossuth from the Forgotten Realms.

It's also relatively straightforward to open the prestige class to any character with access to the Fire and Destruction (or Death) domains.

This prestige class is part of a secret society, so you'll want to figure out what the Order of the Black Flame's agenda is in your campaign.

Finally, this prestige class is an example of a profession similar to that of an assassin that doesn't mandate its members be evil (although some certainly are).

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a black flame zealot, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nongood.

Skills: Hide 8 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 8 ranks, Move Silently 8 ranks.

Feats: Exotic Weapon Proficiency (kukri), Iron Will.

Spells: Able to cast 2nd-level divine spells.

Special: Sneak attack damage +1d6.

The character must worship the deity to whom the order is dedicated, and the character must slay an enemy of the faith for no other reason than to join the Order of the Black Flame.

CLASS SKILLS

The black flame zealot's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the black flame zealot prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Black flame zealots gain no proficiency in any weapon or armor.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each even-numbered black flame zealot level, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class level.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or destroying undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a black flame zealot, the player must decide to which class to add each black flame zealot level for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Death Attack (Ex): As the assassin ability described on page 180 of the Dungeon Master's Guide, except that black flame zealots do not have the option of paralyzing their targets.

If a black flame zealot has this class feature from another class (such as assassin), he may add black flame zealot class levels together with the class levels of such other classes to calculate the save DC of his death attack.

Zealous Heart (Su): A black flame zealot is immune to fear, magical or otherwise.

Unlike a paladin's aura of courage, this confers no special benefits on his companions.

Poison Use (Ex): At 2nd level, a black flame zealot gains the ability to use poison safely, as the assassin ability.

Sneak Attack (Ex): When he reaches 3rd, 6th, and 9th level, a black flame zealot deals additional sneak attack damage, as the rogue ability.

Since the black flame zealot gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as rogue levels), the bonuses to damage stack.

Fateful Stride (Sp): Once per day at 5th level and higher, a black flame zealot can take a single step and pass through obstacles or distance as the spell dimension door.

The zealot's caster level is equal to half his character level.

Sacred Flame (Su): Beginning at 6th level, at will, a black flame zealot can command a single melee weapon in his possession to burn with a black, deadly fire.

The weapon gains the flaming ability, dealing 1d6 points of fire damage per successful attack in addition to its normal weapon damage.

Once per day, as a free action the black flame zealot can instead bestow the flaming burst property on a weapon in his possession for 1 minute.

Unholy Immolation (Su): When a black flame zealot reaches 10th level, any creature killed by his death attack or sneak attack is immediately and utterly consumed by unholy fire.

The only way to restore life to a being slain in this manner is to use true resurrection, or a carefully worded wish spell followed by resurrection, or miracle.

TABLE 2-2: THE BLACK FLAME ZEALOT

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Death attack, zealous heart	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Poison use	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Sneak attack +1d6	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Fateful stride	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Sneak attack +2d6	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Sacred flame	—
8th	+6	+2	+6	+6	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+6	+6	Sneak attack +3d6	—
10th	+7	+3	+7	+7	Unholy immolation	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

ZEALOT, A BLACK FLAME ZEALOT

BLIGHTER

When a druid turns away from the land, the land turns away from her.

Some ex-druids make peace with this change; others seek to restore the bond.

A few, however, actually embrace their disconnection from nature and become forces of destruction.

These few, called blighters, bring desolation wherever they tread.

A blighter gains her spellcasting ability by stripping the earth of life.

A swath of deforested land always marks her path through the wilderness.

The vast majority of blighters are nomadic loners constantly in search of green lands to destroy.

Some are grim; others laugh at the destruction they wreak. Almost all, however, are friendless and mad.

What puts them over the edge is the knowledge that nature gets the last laugh: To gain their spells, they must seek out the richest forests of the land, even if it's only to destroy them.

Thus, even though they've turned away from nature, they must constantly return to it.

Only human ex-druids seem attracted in any number to the blighter's path.

Legends say that a few elven druids have also turned to destruction over the millennia—a terrifying prospect given how much land they could destroy in their long lifetimes.

Adaptation: In many ways, the blighter is to the druid what the blackguard is to the paladin.

While it's likely that blighters are loners, you could also develop a secret cult of blighters devoted to ruining the world's ecology.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify as a blighter, a character must fulfill the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nongood.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Special: The character must be an ex-druid previously capable of casting 3rd-level druid spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The blighter's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (any) (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Profession (herbalist) (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the blighter prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Blighters gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Spells per Day: Since blighters are ex-druids, they lose their druid spellcasting abilities.

However, they gain access to new, more destructive spells. At each blighter level, the character gains spells per day according to Table 2–3.

She must choose her spells from the blighter spell list, below.

The blighter's caster level is equal to her blighter level plus her druid level.

To cast a blighter spell, a blighter must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a blighter with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Blighter bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the blighter's Wisdom modifier.

When the blighter gets 0 spells per day of a given level (for instance 2nd-level spells for a 2nd-level blighter), she gains only the bonus spells she would be entitled to based on her Wisdom score for that spell level.

The blighter's spell list appears below.

A blighter has access to any spell on the list and can freely choose which to prepare, just as a druid.

A blighter prepares and casts spells just as a druid does (though a blighter cannot spontaneously cast summon spells).

The blighter gains access to her daily spells through deforestation (see below).

If she goes more than 24 hours without deforesting a wooded area, she cannot cast spells until she does so.

The default divine focus for any spell cast by a blighter is a desiccated sprig of holly or mistletoe.

Any material component for a blighter's spell must have been dead for at least a day before use.

Deforestation (Sp): A blighter can kill all nonsentient plant life within a radius of 20 feet per blighter level as a full-round action once per day.

If a potentially affected plant is under the control of another (such as a druid's liveoak or a dryad's home tree), the controller can make a Fortitude save (DC 10 + blighter level + blighter's Wis modifier) to keep it alive.

Affected plants immediately cease photosynthesis, root tapping, and all other methods of sustenance.

Like picked flowers, they appear vibrant for several hours, but within a day, they turn brown and wither.

Except for plants selected by a controller, nothing can grow in a deforested area until it has a hallow spell cast upon it and it is reseeded.

Deforestation enables a blighter to cast her daily allotment of spells.

This ability works in any terrain, but deforesting a sandy desert, ice floe, or other environment with only sparse vegetation does not empower the character to cast spells.

Blightfire (Su): Starting at 2nd level, as a standard action, a blighter can unleash a scorching blast of fire.

This effect deals 5d6 points of fire damage to all creatures within 10 feet (Reflex half; save DC is 10 + blighter's class level + blighter's Wis modifier) and ignites flammable objects it touches.

Blighters delight in starting wildfires and often use this ability to do so.

Sustenance (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, a blighter no longer needs food or water to survive.

Undead Wild Shape (Sp): At 3rd level, the blighter gains a version of the wild shape ability.

Undead wild shape functions like the druid's wild shape ability, except that the blighter adds the skeleton template to the animal form he chooses to transform into.

The blighter's animal form is altered as follows:

—Type changes to undead.

—Natural armor bonus is +0 (Tiny animal), +1 (Small), +2 (Medium or Large), or +3 (Huge).

—+2 Dexterity, no Constitution score.

—Immunity to cold.

—Damage reduction 5/bludgeoning.

The blighter gains one extra use per day of this ability at every even blighter level after 3rd.

In addition, she gains the ability to take the shape of a Large skeletal animal at 5th level and a Huge skeletal animal at 9th level.

Speak with Dead Animal (Sp): Starting at 4th level, a blighter can converse with dead animals.

This ability functions like a Speak with Dead spell cast by a cleric of a level equal to the total of the character's druid and blighter levels, except that it affects only corpses of animal creatures.

It is usable once per day.

Contagious Touch (Su): At 5th level and higher, a blighter can produce an effect like that of a contagious touch spell once per day.

She gains one extra use per day of this ability for every two additional blighter levels she acquires.

Animate Dead Animal (Sp): This ability, gained at 6th level, functions like an animate dead spell, except that it affects only corpses of animal creatures and requires no material component.

It is usable once per day.

Unbond (Sp): Beginning at 8th level, a blighter can temporarily separate a bonded animal or magical beast (such as an animal companion, familiar, or mount) from its master once per day.

The target creature must be within 40 feet of both its master and the blighter.

If the master fails a Will save (DC 10 + blighter level + blighter's Wis modifier), the bond terminates as if the servitor had died, though this does not cause experience loss in the case of a familiar.

Normally hostile creatures attack their masters but are otherwise unaffected.

The bond returns after 1 minute per blighter level, restoring all benefits.

Alternatively, the master can regain the servitor through the normal methods of acquisition.

Plague (Su): At 10th level and higher, a blighter can spread disease over a large area.

This ability functions like the contagious touch ability, except that no attack roll is required and it affects all targets the blighter designates within a 20-foot radius.

Plague is usable once per day.

BLIGHTER SPELL LIST

Blighters choose their spells from the following list.

0 Level: detect magic, detect poison, flare, ghost sound, inflict minor wounds, read magic, touch of fatigue.

1st Level: bane, burning hands, curse water, *decomposition, detect undead, doom, endure elements, inflict light wounds, invisibility to animals, ray of enfeeblement.

2nd Level: chill metal, chill touch, darkness, death knell, fire trap, flaming sphere, heat metal, inflict moderate wounds, produce flame, resist elements, warp wood.

3rd Level: contagion, deeper darkness, desecrate, diminish plants, dispel magic, inflict serious wounds, poison, protection from elements, stinking cloud, vampiric touch.

4th Level: animate dead, antiplant shell, blight, death ward, flame strike, inflict critical wounds, *languor, repel vermin, rusting grasp, transmute mud to rock, transmute rock to mud, unhallow, wall of fire.

5th Level: antilife shell, *contagious touch, create undead, harm, forbiddance, repel wood, waves of fatigue.

6th Level: acid fog, antipathy, circle of death, finger of death, fireseeds, greater dispel magic, harm.

7th Level: control undead, control weather, earthquake, firestorm, *miasma, repel metal or stone, repulsion.

8th Level: horrid wilting, mind blank, shambler, waves of exhaustion.

9th Level: antipathy, foresight, implosion, incendiary cloud, storm of vengeance.

* New spell described in Chapter 7 of this book.

TABLE 2-3: THE BLIGHTER

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Deforestation	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Blightfire , sustenance	5	3	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Undead wild shape 1/day	5	3	1	0	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Speak with dead animal , undead wild shape 2/day	6	3	2	1	0	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Contagious touch 1/day, undead wild shape (Large)	6	3	3	2	1	0	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Animate dead animal , undead wild shape 3/day	6	3	3	3	2	1	0	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Contagious touch 2/day	6	4	3	3	3	2	1	0	—	—
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	Unbond , undead wild shape 4/day	6	4	4	3	3	3	2	1	0	—
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	Contagious touch 3/day, undead wild shape (Huge)	6	5	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	0
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Plague , undead wild shape 5/day	6	5	5	4	4	4	4	3	2	1

CHURCH INQUISITOR

While many champions of good are dedicated to fighting forces of evil that are external to them and their church—as clerics and paladins of Heironeous are devoted to destroying followers of Hextor—the church inquisitor is at least as concerned about evil and corruption within.

When greed eats away at a church hierarchy, when devils infiltrate a knightly order and seduce its leaders to evil, when high clerics succumb to evil enchantments and fall from the path of their deities, it is usually a church inquisitor who uncovers this kind of taint and cuts it away. Church inquisitors specialize in divination (to seek out evil and corruption) and abjuration (to protect themselves and others from evil magic).

They are most often drawn from the clerics or paladins of a lawful church or order.

Members of other classes usually find it difficult to meet the requirements of the prestige class, and rarely have the incentive to do so.

Player characters might encounter NPC church inquisitors if they are involved in a lawful church or order—perhaps even as subjects of the inquisitor's investigations.

Church inquisitors are particularly likely to appear after incidents involving demons or devils, since they combat the widespread corruption these creatures tend to leave in their wake.

Adaptation: As written, this prestige class isn't specific to a deity or organization—but in your campaign it certainly could be.

Perhaps a particular church has an "Order of the Watchful Eye" that functions as an internal-affairs department for the paladins and clerics in other orders.

Or a theocracy might have an FBI-style organization full of church inquisitors that investigate demon-spawned crimes across the nation.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a church inquisitor, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Lawful good or lawful neutral.

Base Save Bonus: Will +3.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 4 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 4 ranks, Spellcraft 4 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast zone of truth as a divine spell.

Special: Must be a member of a lawful good church or religious order, and must have already uncovered some corruption within that organization.

CLASS SKILLS

The church inquisitor's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (local) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Spot (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the church inquisitor prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Church inquisitors gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Detect Evil (Sp): A church inquisitor can use detect evil at will as a spell-like ability.

Inquisition Domain: Upon adopting the church inquisitor class, a character gains access to the Inquisition domain, described in Chapter 7: Domains and Spells.

The character gains the granted power associated with the domain (a +4 bonus on dispel checks) and can choose the spells in that domain as his daily domain spells.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: A church inquisitor continues advancing in divine spellcasting ability as well as learning the skills of inquisition.

Thus, when a new church inquisitor level is gained, the character gains new divine spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in whatever divine spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, more frequent remove disease, and so on).

This means that he adds the level of church inquisitor to the level of another divine spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day accordingly.

If a character had more than one divine spellcasting class before he became a church inquisitor, the player must decide which class to assign each level of church inquisitor for the purpose of determining divine spells per day and spells known.

Immune to Charms (Ex): A church inquisitor of 2nd level or higher is immune to all enchantment (charm) spells and effects.

Pierce Illusion (Su): At 3rd level, the church inquisitor gains the supernatural ability to penetrate illusions and disguises at will.

Whenever an inquisitor sees an illusion or disguise spell of any sort, he immediately makes a Will save to see through it.

The inquisitor need not interact with or touch the illusion, visual contact is enough to give the Will save.

Pierce Disguise (Ex): The inquisitor has a +4 competence bonus on Spot checks against the Disguise skill.

Immune to Compulsions (Ex): A church inquisitor of 5th level or higher is immune to all compulsion spells and effects.

Force Shapechange (Su): A church inquisitor of 6th level or higher can force a creature into its natural form.

The church inquisitor must make a successful melee touch attack against the creature.

If the attack is successful, the church inquisitor makes a caster level check as if casting dispel magic against the shapechanging effect.

The church inquisitor's +4 bonus on dispel checks (the Inquisition domain granted power) applies to this check. This ability undoes the effect of alter self, polymorph, shapechange, and alternate form abilities, whether exceptional, spell-like, or supernatural in nature.

The affected creature cannot change its shape again for 1d6 rounds.

The church inquisitor can use this ability at will.

Immunity to Possession (Ex): A church inquisitor of 8th level or higher has immunity to magic jar, soul bind, trap the soul, a ghost's malevolence ability, and all other spells or effects that displace or replace a character's life force.

The character can still travel to the planes via astral projection, if so desired.

Discern Lies (Sp): A church inquisitor of 9th level or higher can use discern lies as a spell-like ability three times per day.

Learn the Truth (Su): By touching a creature that has lied to him, a church inquisitor of 10th level or higher can force the creature to tell the truth.

The creature can make a Will save (DC 10 + the church inquisitor's level + the church inquisitor's Cha modifier) to resist this mindaffecting compulsion effect.

If the saving throw fails, the creature must speak the true version of the lie it uttered.

The church inquisitor can use this ability 3 times/day.

TABLE 2-4: THE CHURCH INQUISITOR

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	0	0	+2	Detect evil , Inquisition domain	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2nd	+1	0	0	+3	Immune to charms	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Pierce illusion	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Pierce disguise	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Immune to compulsions	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Force shapechange	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6	Immunity to possession	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6	Discern lies	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	Learn the truth	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

CONSECRATED HARRIER

The consecrated harrier acts as a bounty hunter for her religion or organization.

Where church inquisitors hunt evil and corruption within a church and other champions of good fight external forces of evil in general, a consecrated harrier hunts blasphemers, heretics, and those who betray or attack the church directly.

For instance, a consecrated harrier might accept a mission to track down and kill an ogre that defiled a shrine, or to bring a heretic before the heads of her church.

The mission is always related to either a single, specific offense of blasphemy or defilement, or to the source of a heresy.

The church assigns missions or targets as needed.

Hunting specific enemies of a church requires many of the skills possessed by bounty hunters.

While the consecrated harrier deals with her targets capably once she finds them, she must find them first.

The consecrated harrier must be subtle and clever, as well as strong in her faith.

Because her foes may have spells and magical abilities of their own, she must be strong-willed and prepared to properly deal with such.

Paladins and clerics often make good consecrated harriers because of their high Charisma scores.

Rangers are equally desirable because of their superior tracking abilities.

Rogues often possess the subtlety and conversational skills to locate their targets.

A consecrated harrier can be difficult for others to spot. She uses her skills, spells, and abilities to mask her nature until she can confront her target.

Most consecrated harriers appear to be genial, pleasant people who always have a joke or a story to tell.

This facade masks their true, implacable nature, allowing them to gather clues without arousing interest or suspicion.

Particularly powerful or well-protected foes attract small groups of consecrated harriers who work with other classes to reach and confront their targets.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a consecrated harrier, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Disguise 5 ranks, Gather Information 5 ranks.

Feat: Track.

Special: The candidate must accept an assignment from her church to locate and destroy some specific, individual enemy of the church.

A character who fails must wait a year and a day before applying again.

If she succeeds, the church accepts her as a consecrated harrier and she may gain levels in the class.

CLASS SKILLS

The consecrated harrier's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (local) (Int), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the consecrated harrier prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Consecrated harriers gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Spells per Day: A consecrated harrier gains the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the consecrated harrier must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a consecrated harrier with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast spells.

Consecrated harrier bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + Wis modifier.

When the consecrated harrier gets 0 spells of a given level (for instance 0 1st-level spells at 1st level), the harrier gets only the bonus spells she would be entitled to based on her Wisdom score for that spell level.

The consecrated harrier uses the ranger spell list, with the following additions: 1st—animate rope, calm emotions, command, disguise self, doom; 2nd—charm person, daylight, detect thoughts, hold person; 3rd—clairaudience/clairvoyance, death ward, discern lies, see invisibility; 4th—dismissal, dominate person, legend lore, mark of justice.

Blessing of Scripture (Su): All consecrated harriers receive a +2 sacred bonus on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Survival checks when in pursuit of their church-assigned target.

If the assigned target is a group, this bonus applies to the group's leader.

They receive the same bonus on weapon (or unarmed) damage rolls against their targets.

This bonus increases to +4 at 5th level, and to +6 at 10th level.

Detect Chaos (Sp): A consecrated harrier can use detect chaos at will as a cleric of equal level.

Sanctified Sight (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a consecrated harrier receives a +4 bonus on all saves against illusions.

Dispel Magic (Sp): A 3rd-level consecrated harrier can use dispel magic as a spell-like ability.

She may add her blessing of scripture bonus on dispel checks when using this spell-like ability.

She may use this ability a number of times per day equal to her Wisdom modifier (minimum 1).

Crushing Despair (Sp): Starting at 4th level, a consecrated harrier can use crushing despair as a spell-like ability.

She may use this ability a number of times per day equal to her Wisdom modifier (minimum 1).

False Vision (Sp): A 6th-level consecrated harrier can use false vision as a spell-like ability.

The effect must be centered on the consecrated harrier.

She may use this ability a number of times per day equal to her Wisdom modifier (minimum 1).

Implacable Hunt (Su): Beginning at 8th level, if the consecrated harrier wounds a target and the target escapes, the consecrated harrier always knows the direction in which her target lies and the approximate distance (within 10% of the total distance) between her and her target.

If the target is within 50 feet, the consecrated harrier can pinpoint the target's precise location.

This ability only works if the consecrated harrier and her target are on the same plane of existence.

Implacable hunt can be used simultaneously against different targets, as long as each of those individual targets is part of a group that is, in total, the harrier's target for her current mission.

Faultless Hunt (Su): At 10th level, a consecrated harrier who establishes an implacable hunt can intensify this to a faultless hunt, enabling her to locate her quarry even across planar boundaries.

Unlike an implacable hunt, which can affect several individuals at the same time, only one faultless hunt against a single individual can be pursued at one time.

For the consecrated harrier to begin a faultless hunt, she must abandon any faultless hunt that she is already conducting.

Code of Conduct: A consecrated harrier must make it known to her target who she is and why she is there at the time of the confrontation.

She cannot sneak attack her target.

She cannot slay her target on a battlefield without the target knowing who she is and why she is there.

Consecrated harriers purposely word the requirements for conducting themselves vaguely, so that an individual consecrated harrier in the field has some flexibility.

Harriers who fail to act according to their code of conduct must undertake an act of atonement before they can add any further levels of this class (see the atonement spell description, page 201 of the Player's Handbook).

Multiclass Note: A paladin who becomes a consecrated harrier may continue advancing as a paladin.

TABLE 2-5: THE CONSECRATED HARRIER

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+0	+0	+2	Blessing of scripture +2, detect chaos	0	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+0	+0	+3	Sanctified sight	1	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+1	+1	+3	Dispel magic	1	0	—	—
4th	+4	+1	+1	+4	Crushing despair	1	1	—	—
5th	+5	+1	+1	+4	Blessing of scripture +4	1	1	0	—
6th	+6	+2	+2	+5	False vision	1	1	1	—
7th	+7	+2	+2	+5	—	2	1	1	0
8th	+8	+2	+2	+6	Implacable hunt	2	1	1	1
9th	+9	+3	+3	+6	—	2	2	1	1
10th	+10	+3	+3	+7	Blessing of scripture +6, faultless hunt	2	2	2	1

CONTEMPLATIVE

For any servant of a deity, no joy is greater than at those rare moments when the presence of her patron deity is a real, tangible force, sending shivers of power through her body and sending her soul soaring.

For some, the taste of this experience is such a powerful attraction that they begin devoting their lives to cultivating it, hoping to attain greater closeness to their deity through a life of contemplation.

Spending hours in prayer and meditation, these devoted followers purify their souls, making them worthy of closer contact with the divine.

While some contemplatives withdraw from the world into private retreats, others remain active, even adventuring, finding that true nearness to their deity comes from living out the deity's will in the world.

In return, they find their minds, bodies, and souls purified, perfected, and finally brought close to union with their deity.

Rather than devoting their lives to a deity, some contemplatives strive to conform themselves to some other abstract principle, such as an alignment.

Their mission is no less divine than that of contemplatives devoted to a deity, and their methods substantially the same.

Many such contemplatives live as itinerant philosophers, teaching their doctrines in schools or in the marketplace as they travel from city to city, hoping to enlighten the masses.

Most contemplatives are clerics, though paladins are also often drawn to the mystic's journey.

Members of other classes rarely have sufficient devotion to a deity or philosophy to choose this course.

An NPC contemplative might be a reclusive hermit, a church leader, or a passionate champion of her deity.

Such a character might have something a group of player characters needs—a holy relic, a bit of sacred lore, or simply a higher-level spell than the clerics in town can cast. Adaptation: Central to this prestige class is the notion of gaining power through meditation and prayer.

Perhaps only certain deities reward their followers in this specific way, or maybe only clerics who don't worship a deity are eligible to become contemplatives because they aren't tied to specific tenets of faith.

Finally, the flavor of this prestige class and the flexibility of the bonus domain class feature make it a good choice if you want a prestige class to represent a change in worship from one deity to another.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a contemplative, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 13 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast 1st-level divine spells.

Special: Must have had direct contact with one's patron deity or a direct servant of that deity, or with an enlightened being embodying the highest principles of an alignment (a solar, for example).

CLASS SKILLS

The contemplative's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the contemplative prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Contemplatives gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: A contemplative who was previously a spellcaster continues to gain access to more powerful divine magic while following the contemplative path.

Thus, when a new contemplative level is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in the spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, more frequent remove disease, and so on).

This essentially means that she adds the level of contemplative to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day accordingly.

For example, if Theresa, an 11th-level cleric, gains a level as a contemplative, she gains new spells as if she had risen to 12th level as a cleric, but uses the other contemplative aspects of level progression such as base attack bonus and save bonus.

If she next gains a level as a cleric, making her a 12th-level cleric/1st-level contemplative, she gains spells as if she had risen to 13th level as a cleric.

If a character had more than one divine spellcasting class before she became a contemplative, the player must decide which class to assign each level of contemplative for the purpose of determining divine spells per day and spells known.

If the contemplative did not previously belong to a divine spellcasting class, she gains the ability to cast divine spells exactly as a cleric of her patron deity.

Her spell progression is the same as that of a cleric.

Bonus Domain: Upon adopting the contemplative class, and again at 6th level, a character gains access to a bonus domain of her choice.

The character can choose any domain made available by her deity or alignment.

The character gains the granted power associated with the domain she chooses, and can select the spells in that domain as her daily domain spells.

Divine Health (Ex): A contemplative has immunity to all diseases, including magical diseases such as mummy rot and lycanthropy.

Slippery Mind (Ex): At 2nd level, a contemplative gains the ability to shrug off magical effects that would otherwise control or compel her.

If a contemplative with resistant mind is affected by an enchantment and fails her saving throw, one round later she can attempt her saving throw again.

She only gets this one extra chance to succeed on her saving throw.

Divine Wholeness (Su): At 3rd level and higher, a contemplative can heal her own wounds, in addition to any other healing ability she may have.

She can heal up to four times her contemplative level in hit points each day, and she can spread this healing out among several uses.

Divine Body (Su): At 5th level, a contemplative becomes immune to poisons of all kinds.

Divine Soul (Su): At 7th level, a contemplative gains spell resistance.

Her spell resistance equals her class level + 15.

In order to affect the contemplative with a spell, a spellcaster must roll the contemplative's spell resistance or higher on 1d20 + the spellcaster's level.

Eternal Body (Ex): After achieving 9th level, a contemplative no longer suffers ability penalties for aging and cannot be magically aged.

(Penalties she has already suffered remain in place).

Bonuses still accrue, and the contemplative still dies of old age when her time is up.

Mystic Union (Su): At 10th level, a contemplative becomes a magical creature.

She is forevermore treated as an outsider (native) rather than a humanoid for the purposes of spells and magical effects.

Additionally, the contemplative gains damage resistance 10/magic.

TABLE 2-6: THE CONTEMPLATIVE

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	0	+2	Bonus domain, divine health	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	0	+3	Slippery mind	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Divine wholeness	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Divine body	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Bonus domain	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Divine soul	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Eternal body	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Mystic union	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

DIVINE CRUSADER

The divine crusader embodies devotion and dedication to a chosen deity.

Even more than a cleric, the divine crusader serves as a symbol of a specific aspect of his deity's portfolio, such as fire, good, knowledge, or war.

They serve as elite godservants, carrying out the deity's will and furthering the deity's aims.

Paladins make good divine crusaders, as do clerics (particularly those of martial-minded deities).

However, characters of many other classes find great spiritual rewards from the path of the divine crusader, including fighters, barbarians, monks, rangers, and rogues. NPC divine crusaders typically work side-by-side with others who share their devotion, such as clerics or other divine crusaders.

They get along well with other crusaders who share the same deity (even if their chosen domains differ), and some even ally themselves with divine crusaders who share a domain but not a deity, though alignments must be similar as well (divine crusaders of Corellon Larethian and Gruumsh don't get along, even if both have chosen the War domain).

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify as a divine crusader, a character must fulfill the following criteria.

Alignment: Must match chosen deity.

Base Attack Bonus: +7.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 2 ranks.

Feat: Weapon Focus (in chosen deity's favored weapon).

CLASS SKILLS

The divine crusader's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Ride (Dex), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The divine crusader gains no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Aura (Ex): The power of a divine crusader's alignment aura (see the detect evil spell on page 218 of the Player's Handbook) is equal to her class level, plus any class levels in other classes that possess such an aura (such as cleric or paladin).

Deity and Domain: Every divine crusader has a chosen deity.

Sample deities are provided on Table 3-7: Deities, page 32 of the Player's Handbook, and also in Chapter 5 of this book. A divine crusader's chosen deity influences her alignment, what magic she can perform, her values, and how others see her.

The character's alignment and her deity's alignment must match exactly.

A divine crusader chooses one domain from among those offered by that deity to his or her clerics and gains the granted power of the domain.

(If the domain granted power includes the addition of a skill or skills to the cleric class skill list, add it to the class skill list for the divine crusader instead).

The divine crusader also gains the ability to cast spells from that domain (see below).

Spells per Day: A divine crusader casts divine spells.

She may only prepare and cast spells from her chosen domain (see above).

Effectively, a divine crusader has a class spell list of only nine spells (one per spell level).

To prepare or cast a spell, a divine crusader must have a Charisma score equal to at least 10 + the spell level.

The difficulty class for a saving throw against a divine crusader's spell is 10 + the spell level + the divine crusader's Cha modifier.

The divine crusader also gets bonus spells based on her Charisma.

A divine crusader prepares and casts spells as a cleric, except that she cannot spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells.

Electricity Resistance (Ex): A divine crusader gains resistance to electricity 5 at 3rd level.

At 9th level, this increases to resistance 10.

Weapon Specialization: At 5th level, a divine crusader gains Weapon Specialization in her deity's favored weapon as a bonus feat.

Acid Resistance (Ex): A divine crusader gains resistance to acid 5 at 6th level.

At 9th level, this increases to resistance 10.

Darkvision (Ex): A 7th-level divine crusader gains darkvision out to 60 feet.

If the divine crusader already has darkvision, the radius of her existing darkvision increases by 30 feet.

Perfect Self: At 10th level, a divine crusader completes her transformation into a creature of the planes.

Her type changes to outsider (native).

As a native outsider, the character can still be raised, reincarnated, or resurrected just as other living creatures can be, and remains native to the Material Plane.

Additionally, the divine crusader gains damage reduction 10/magic.

EX-DIVINE CRUSADERS

A divine crusader whose alignment changes to no longer match her chosen deity's alignment loses all divine crusader spells and abilities. She may not progress any farther in levels as a divine crusader.

She regains her abilities and advancement potential if she atones for her violations (see the atonement spell, page 201 of the Player's Handbook).

An ex-divine crusader cannot change her devotion to a different deity in order to regain abilities and advancement potential.

Once a divine crusader has failed one deity, no other deity trusts the character with these powers.

TABLE 2-7: THE DIVINE CRUSADER

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Aura	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	—	1	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Resistance to electricity 5	2	1	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	—	2	2	1	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Weapon Specialization	3	2	2	1	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Resistance to acid 5	3	3	2	2	1	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Darkvision	3	3	3	2	2	1	0	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	—	3	3	3	3	2	2	1	0	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	Resistance to acid and electricity 10	3	3	3	3	3	2	2	1	0	—	—	—	—
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Perfect self	3	3	3	3	3	3	2	2	1	0	—	—	—

DIVINE ORACLE

Some people call them mad, and certainly some divine oracles are driven insane by the visions they see.

Some people doubt their words; indeed, some divine oracles are destined never to be believed.

Wherever the deities are known to speak to mortals, some mortals hear their voices with a unique clarity and gain insight into the past, the present, and the future by virtue of their unusual status.

Divine oracles are such mortals, blessed—or cursed—by visions from their deities.

All divine oracles are spellcasters, and most were clerics or druids before adopting the divine oracle prestige class.

Whatever their other classes, all divine oracles share a particular devotion to the Divination school of magic, having mastered all available means to catch glimpses of the future.

NPC divine oracles often live in out-of-the-way places, though usually close enough to civilization that people with pressing questions about the future can seek them out to have their questions answered.

They frequently inhabit sacred shrines or ancient temples and rarely take an active part in world affairs.

Adaptation: The divine oracle is designed to work well with both arcane and divine spellcasters; the idea behind the class is that you're getting divine guidance that manifests itself in a number of ways.

But it doesn't have to be that way.

By adjusting the requirements, you could push the class in an arcane or divine direction.

It's also easy to add a requirement that limits it to worshippers of a deity of time, fate, or divination.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a divine oracle, a character must fulfill the following criteria.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 8 ranks.

Feat: Skill Focus (Knowledge [religion]).

Spells: Able to cast at least 2 divination spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The divine oracle's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the divine oracle prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Divine oracles gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: A divine oracle continues advancing in spellcasting ability as well as gaining the abilities of her new class.

Thus, when a new divine oracle level is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, wild shape ability, and so on).

This essentially means that she adds the level of divine oracle to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day accordingly. For example, if Cassandra, a 10th-level cleric, gains a level as a divine oracle, she gains new spells as if she had risen to 11th level as a cleric, but uses the other divine oracle aspects of level progression such as base attack bonus and save bonuses.

If she next gains a level as a cleric, making her an 11th-level cleric/1st-level divine oracle, she gains spells as if she had risen to 12th level as a cleric.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class before she became a divine oracle, the player must decide which class to assign each level of divine oracle for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Oracle Domain: Upon adopting the divine oracle class, the character gains access to the Oracle domain, described in Chapter 7: Domains and Spells.

The character gains the granted power associated with the domain (+2 caster level for divination spells), and can choose the spells in that domain as her daily domain spells.

Scry Bonus (Su): A divine oracle adds a +1 sacred bonus to the save DC of all her divination (scrying) spells.

Prescient Sense (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, if a divine oracle makes a successful Reflex saving throw against an attack that normally inflicts half damage on a successful save (such as a red dragon's fiery breath or a fireball spell), she instead takes no damage, since her prescience allowed her to get out of the way faster.

This form of evasion works no matter what armor the divine oracle wears, unlike the evasion ability used by monks and rogues.

Trap Sense (Ex): At 2nd level, the divine oracle gains an intuitive sense that alerts her to danger from traps, giving her a +1 bonus on Reflex saves made to avoid traps and a +1 dodge bonus to AC against attacks by traps.

This increases to +2 at level 5 and +3 at level 8.

Divination Enhancement (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a divine oracle may roll twice and take the better result when using divination spells such as augury or divination.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a divine oracle gains the ability to react to danger before her senses would normally allow her to do so.

The divine oracle retains her Dexterity modifier to AC (if any) regardless of being caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

(She still loses her Dexterity modifier to AC if immobilized).

Improved Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 6th level and higher, the divine oracle can no longer be flanked, since she can react to opponents on opposite sides of her as easily as she can react to a single attacker.

This defense denies rogues the ability to use flank attacks to sneak attack the divine oracle.

The exception to this defense is when an attacker has at least 4 more rogue levels than the target has divine oracle levels.

If a character already has levels of a class that could gain uncanny dodge, the levels from the classes that grant uncanny dodge stack to determine the minimum level a rogue must be to flank the character.

Immune to Surprise (Ex): At 10th level, the divine oracle's sensitivity to danger is so great that she is never surprised. She can always take a standard action during a surprise round, unless she is physically restrained from doing so. If there is no surprise round then this ability doesn't help.

TABLE 2-8: THE DIVINE ORACLE

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Oracle domain, scry bonus	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Prescient sense, trap sense +1	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Divination enhancement	+1 level of existing class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Uncanny dodge (Dex bonus to AC)	+1 level of existing class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Trap sense +2	+1 level of existing class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Improved uncanny dodge (can't be flanked)	+1 level of existing class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	+1 level of existing class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Trap sense +3	+1 level of existing class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	+1 level of existing class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Immune to surprise	+1 level of existing class

DWEOMERKEEPER

Dweomerkeepers are the shepherds of arcane—priests whose faith grants them an intuitive grasp of the very fabric of magic.

Skilled practitioners of both arcane and divine magic, they seek to explore magical theory and create new spells and magic items.

As the devoted agents of the deities of magic, dweomerkeepers defend against those who seek to warp, twist, or hoard spells, magic items, and arcane lore.

Most dweomerkeepers are cleric/wizards or cleric/sorcerers, although other class combinations—particularly those that include specialist wizard, bard, and ranger—are not unknown.

Dweomerkeepers can be found throughout the land. Some dwell in lonely, isolated towers and are wholly consumed with their magical studies.

Others live in huge cities where all manner of magic can be brought together and shared (willingly or not).

Adaptation: Because the dweomerkeeper prestige class intentionally blurs the border between divine and arcane magic, making it specific to clerics of a deity of magic (such as Boccob or Wee Jas) is a good idea.

It's also easy to tie the dweomerkeeper to a specific group of organization—especially one that includes the first spellcasters to figure out how to convert their arcane spells to divine ones (or vice versa).

Such an organization might be quite secretive, and its members should be loath to tell others how they managed to manipulate the very fabric of magic.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a dweomerkeeper, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 8 ranks, Spellcraft 8 ranks.

Feats: Any item creation feat and any metamagic feat.

Spells: Ability to cast arcane and divine spells.

Domain: Magic.

Special: The candidate must have created at least one magic item, whether of a permanent nature or not.

CLASS SKILLS

A dweomerkeeper's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (any) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.
Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the dweomerkeeper prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Dweomerkeepers gain no proficiency with any weapon, armor, or shield.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: When a new level of dweomerkeeper is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

The level of dweomerkeeper is added to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then spells per day, spells known, and caster level are determined accordingly.

If the character had more than one spellcasting class before she became a dweomerkeeper, the player must decide to which class to add each level of dweomerkeeper for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Mantle of Spells: At 1st level, a dweomerkeeper creates a personal mantle of arcane and/or divine spells.

She chooses one arcane or divine spell that she can cast, and thereafter she can convert prepared spells of that spell's type (arcane or divine) into the chosen spell, so long as the level of the spell to be converted is equal to or greater than that of the chosen spell.

This ability functions just like a good cleric's ability to spontaneously convert prepared spells into cure spells.

At every odd-numbered dweomerkeeper level after 1st, the character chooses another spell to add to her mantle.

Arcane Sight (Su): Upon attaining 2nd level, a dweomerkeeper can use arcane sight at will.

This ability functions like the spell of the same name, except that its duration is concentration.

Supernatural Spell (Su): At 4th level, the dweomerkeeper is so attuned to the fabric of magic that she can manifest spell effects with almost no effort whatsoever.

Once per day as a standard action, she can use any one spell with a casting time of up to 1 standard action as a supernatural ability.

The spell chosen must be one that is currently available to the dweomerkeeper (that is, one that she has prepared or that she knows and has a spell slot of the appropriate level available to cast), but she can decide at the moment of casting to use this ability.

The spell functions as it normally would and is expended normally, but the dweomerkeeper does not require any components, does not provoke attacks of opportunity, and ignores the target's spell resistance, just as if she were using a supernatural ability instead of a spell.

At every even-numbered level after the 4th, the dweomerkeeper gains one additional use of this ability per day.

Cloak of Mysteries (Su): At 10th level, a dweomerkeeper is wrapped in a mantle of ever-flowing magic, and all metamagic feats that she currently knows or learns in the future become easier to use.

The spell level increase for applying a metamagic feat to any spell drops by 1 (minimum +1 level, or +0 level if the feat already has a +0 level adjustment).

For example, a quickened fireball uses a 6th-level slot (+3 levels) instead of the usual 7th-level slot (+4 levels), but a silent fireball still uses a 4th-level slot (+1 level).

A spell affected by the Heighten Spell feat is unaffected by this ability.

THE DWEOMERKEEPER

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Mantle of spells 1	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Arcane sight	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Mantle of spells 2	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Supernatural spell 1/day	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Mantle of spells 3	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Supernatural spell 2/day	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Mantle of spells 4	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Supernatural spell 3/day	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Mantle of spells 5	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Cloak of mysteries, supernatural spell 4/day	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

ENTROPOMANCER

As spellcasters plumb the depths of divine power, some of the most advanced gain attunement to the great nothingness they say lies at the center of the universe. These students use this connection to develop strange powers, sacrificing some of their normal studies.

Doing so retards their progress as spellcasters, but they see their new abilities as worth the cost.

Entropomancers can summon and control a small shard of absolute nothingness similar to a sphere of annihilation, harnessing its power for a variety of magical effects.

Most revel in destruction for its own sake, but some take a more nuanced approach to their terrifying discoveries, trying to understand the power of entropy that it might someday be controlled or even reversed.

Entropomancers generally work in small groups or cabals. Most have patron deities of death, destruction, or fate. NPC entropomancers often form cults that kidnap victims to be sacrificed to the Great Nothingness.

Adaptation: Gods of entropy and insensate destruction (such as Tharizdun, described in Chapter 5) are good choices if you want to tie the entropomancer to worship of a specific deity.

A well-organized group devoted to entropy is pretty weird, but at least it's possible in the short term.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an entropomancer, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nongood.

Skills: Concentration 5 ranks, Knowledge (arcana) 5 ranks.

Feats: Great Fortitude, Magical Aptitude.

Spells: Able to cast 4th-level divine spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The entropomancer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (local) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the entropomancer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Entropomancers gain no proficiency with weapons, armor, or shields of any type.

Shard of Entropy (Su): Twice per day, for a maximum of 1 round per entropomancer level, the character can create a miniature shard of entropy.

The shard is a chunk of absolute blackness, 2 inches across, and can be moved up to 30 feet by the entropomancer as a standard action.

Against objects, the shard deals 3d6 points of damage, bypassing the object's hardness.

Against creatures, the entropomancer must make a ranged touch attack to hit, and if successful the shard deals 3d6 points of damage to the target (Fortitude half, DC 12 + the entropomancer's Wis modifier).

The shard appears in any square adjacent to the entropomancer when it is created, and it can be used to attack on the round it is formed.

The shard of entropy lurches, jumps, and bounces around the square it's in.

Any creature who passes through the shard's square takes damage as if the shard struck him (Fortitude half), as does any creature that's in the same square as the shard at the beginning of the entropomancer's turn.

The entropomancer can move the shard into another square with a move action, or aim it at a specific creature (dealing damage immediately) as a standard action.

At 5th level, the entropomancer can use the shard to create a deeper connection to absolute nothingness.

The shard of entropy deals 5d6 points of damage (Fortitude half, DC 14 + entropomancer's Wis modifier).

At 9th level, the shard of entropy becomes even stronger, dealing 7d6 points of damage (Fortitude half, DC 16 + entropomancer's Wis modifier).

It also exerts an inexorable tug on creatures nearby, pulling them toward the shard.

At the end of the entropomancer's turn, the shard tries to pull creatures within 15 feet closer to it.

This is treated as a bull rush attempt, for which the shard has a +11 bonus.

If the shard wins the opposed check, it bull rushes creatures in a direct line toward its square.

The entropomancer isn't immune to this effect.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: Whenever an even-numbered level in the prestige class is gained, the entropomancer gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class in which he could cast 4th-level divine spells before she added the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained.

If a character had more than one divine spellcasting class in which she could cast 4th-level spells before she became an entropomancer, she must decide to which class she adds each level of entropomancer for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Entropic Field (Su): As a standard action, an entropomancer can surround herself with a field of invisible, entropic energy that lasts for 1 round per entropomancer level. The field extends in a 5-foot per entropomancer level radius, centered on the entropomancer.

All magical healing automatically fails within the entropic field.

It takes the entropomancer a standard action to dismiss the entropic field.

At 5th level, the entropic field becomes strong enough to warp the laws of probability.

Once per round, as a free action, the entropomancer can force a character within the field (including herself) to reroll an attack, save, or check.

The entropomancer demands the reroll after she knows whether the attack, save, or check succeeded or failed, but before the exact consequences have been calculated and applied.

The result of the reroll takes precedence, even if it's worse than the original roll.

At 7th level, the entropic field causes wounds created within it to continue bleeding, dealing an additional 1 point of damage per round thereafter (at the end of the entropomancer's turn) as long as they remain within the entropic field.

A successful Heal check (DC 15) stops the bleeding.

If multiple wounds are suffered, then the creature takes 1 point of damage per wound.

The entropomancer is subject to the bleeding effect.

Control Sphere (Su): The entropomancer has the ability to control a sphere of annihilation (described on page 279 of the Dungeon Master's Guide) as if he were using a talisman of the sphere, and the entropomancer is personally unaffected by a sphere of annihilation, which passes through him as if his square was completely empty.

High-level entropomancers are often obsessed with acquiring spheres of annihilation.

TABLE 2-9: THE ENTROPOMANCER

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Shard of entropy 2/day	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Entropic field 2/day	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Entropic field (reroll), shard of entropy (5d6)	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Entropic field (wounding)	—
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	Shard of entropy (7d6, consuming)	—
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Control sphere	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

EVANGELIST

Evangelists travel the world proclaiming their devotion to a particular deity, pantheon, or religious doctrine.

They seek to convert others to their way of thinking and to spread their word throughout the land.

All races and cultures have evangelists of one type or another.

Most evangelists come from the charismatic laity of a culture.

They do not possess the learning or perhaps temperament to be spellcasting clerics but have found other ways to proselytize.

Those who worship deities often find themselves working in cooperation with clerics of the same faith while those who simply evangelize a particular belief—even one embraced by a deity or pantheon—can find themselves at odds with even those of their own alignment.

An evangelist is often a leader and, in some ways, a loner. Even though his abilities strengthen his allies, he stands apart.

While clerics and even druids can make powerful evangelists, few trade in their spellcasting abilities for the power this prestige class offers.

Bards, naturally charismatic, may find religion and become evangelists.

Rogues can also benefit from this class.

A few paladins, particularly those who seek to convert evil to good (rather than simply destroying evil), may set their feet upon this path.

Gnomes, halflings, and humans tend toward evangelism more than most other races.

The half-races, both half-elves and half-orcs, can find purpose along this path, though it is a strange half-orc that can follow it successfully.

Elves often disdain evangelists and dwarves see them as busybodies or trouble makers.

Good evangelists bolster and strengthen their allies and often see other people as students or even a flock to be educated or guided.

Evil evangelists view others as unenlightened and seek to enforce their will upon others.

While a good evangelist may use his abilities to sway or even convert others to his belief system, those who follow the path of evil tend to intimidate and dominate others.

Adaptation: Bards who revere St. Cuthbert (described in Chapter 5) sometimes become inspiring or terrifying evangelists.

Any deity that inspires particular zealotry in his followers or who sponsors active efforts to increase the size of the faith would make a good patron for an evangelist.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become an evangelist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: An evangelist has the same alignment restrictions as a cleric of a particular deity.

Skills: Bluff 8 ranks, Gather Information 5 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 5 ranks, Perform (oratory) 6 ranks, Sense Motive 5 ranks.

Feats: Negotiator or Persuasive.

CLASS SKILLS

The evangelist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Speak Language (n/a).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the evangelist.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Evangelists gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Great Orator (Su): An evangelist can inspire, protect, and otherwise improve the situation of his allies simply by speaking clearly and being heard.

This ability is similar to the bard's bardic music ability (see page 29 of the Player's Handbook for a complete description) and, indeed, evangelist levels stack with bard levels to determine the strength of known bard songs.

For example, a bard 3/evangelist 5 improves his inspire competence ability, but does not gain any new bard abilities.

He could use bardic music to convert the unfaithful, countersong, fascinate, inspire the righteous, inspire courage +2, inspire dread or inspire hope, but would not gain the inspire competence, inspire greatness, or suggestion abilities.

Alternately, a bard 7/evangelist 1 would be able to use bardic music to countersong, fascinate, inspire competence, inspire courage +2, inspire dread or inspire hope, and suggestion.

Evangelist oratory abilities function in exactly the same manner as bardic music except the evangelist must speak loudly and clearly, rather than sing or play an instrument.

Inspire Dread (Su): An evil evangelist with 9 or more ranks in Perform (oratory) can inspire hopelessness in all enemies within 30 feet.

This ability imposes a -4 penalty on Will saves on all enemies within 30 feet of the evangelist.

Delivering this oratory requires a full-round action to activate and requires concentration each round to continue the effect.

The effect lasts as long as the evangelist speaks and for 3 rounds thereafter.

Inspire dread is a mind-affecting ability.

Inspire Hope (Su): A good or neutral evangelist with 9 or more ranks in Perform (oratory) can inspire spiritual resilience in all allies within 30 feet.

This ability gives the evangelist and all allies who can hear his oratory a +4 sacred bonus on Will saves.

Delivering this oratory requires a full-round action to activate and requires concentration each round to continue the effect.

The effect lasts as long as the evangelist speaks and for three rounds thereafter.

Inspire hope is a mind-affecting ability.

Inflame the Righteous (Su): An evangelist of 3rd level or higher with 11 or more ranks in Perform (oratory) can use this ability to wreath himself and any of his allies within 30 feet in divine flame.

Each beneficiary of this ability gains the benefit of a fire shield spell.

Use the evangelist's level +5 to determine the caster level of the spell.

The damage caused by the spell is, however, purely divine and not subject to a creature's resistance or immunity to fire.

This oratory requires a full-round action to perform and requires concentration each round to continue the effect.

The effect lasts as long as the evangelist speaks and for three rounds thereafter.

Convert the Unfaithful (Su): An evangelist of 5th level with at least 13 ranks in Perform (oratory) may attempt to convert a single enemy within 30 feet.

As a full-round action, the evangelist delivers an impassioned speech on the righteousness of his beliefs to a single enemy, who must attempt a Will save (DC = 10 + class level + Cha mod).

If the creature succeeds, it is shaken for one round.

If the creature fails its saving throw, it converts.

Creatures with an alignment subtype (such as angels and devils) are immune to this ability.

A converted creature is effectively charmed by the evangelist (similar to a charm monster spell).

In addition, a converted creature temporarily assumes the alignment of the evangelist and acts accordingly.

This may mean some of the creature's class abilities, spells, or other abilities are unavailable to it for the duration of the spell (a paladin converted to something other than lawful good, for example, loses her class abilities for the duration).

When the duration elapses, the creature then has a choice: It can continue to act according to its new alignment, or it can shift back.

If the creature chooses to permanently change its alignment to the evangelist's, it acts as if a cleric of the appropriate alignment had cast atonement on it.

If the creature chooses to change back, it must make another saving throw (with the same save DC as before).

If it fails this saving throw its alignment changes back but it needs an atonement spell to gain back any abilities it lost due to its temporary alignment change.

Fast Talk (Ex): At 2nd level, the evangelist knows the right thing to say at the right time.

He may make a rushed Diplomacy check as a full-round action at only a -5 penalty.

Skill Mastery (Ex): At 4th level, the evangelist becomes so certain in the use of certain skills that he can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

Upon gaining this ability, the evangelist selects a number of skills equal to 1 + his Intelligence modifier (minimum of 1) from the following list: Bluff, Diplomacy, Disguise, Intimidate, and Sense Motive.

When making a skill check with one of the selected skills, he may take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent him from doing so.

TABLE 2-10: THE EVANGELIST

Class Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Great orator (inspire dread or inspire hope)
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Fast talk
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Great orator (inflame the righteous)
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Skill mastery
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Great orator (convert the unfaithful)

GEOMANCER

The cleric reaches out to a higher power.

The wizard trusts only in eldritch tomes.

The druid looks to nature for her spells.

To the geomancer, however, all magic is the same.

Geomancy is the art of channeling magical energy from many sources through the land itself.

A geomancer may research like a wizard, pray like a cleric, or sing like a bard, but he casts spells as only a geomancer can.

In the area he calls home (be it high on a mountain, deep in a forest, or even beneath an ocean) he weaves ley lines—powerful connections to the land itself.

The spells he casts through these connections with the earth are reflections of his own strength of will.

As the geomancer progresses, however, the effort of gathering magic through the earth takes a physical toll on him, making him more and more like the land and its creatures.

Only characters with more than one spellcasting class can become geomancers.

The most popular combinations are druid/sorcerer and druid/wizard.

Clerics with arcane spellcasting ability can also qualify; those with access to the Plant or Animal domain are the most likely to consider this path.

A bard or a ranger who picks up a second, more focused spellcasting class can also adopt this lifestyle.

Adaptation: This prestige class is easy to customize by making the spellcasting requirements more specific if you're looking for particular combinations.

And a good way to incorporate the flavor of your world into this class is to create drift choices that mimic the creatures prevalent in your campaign.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify as a geomancer, a character must fulfill the following criteria.

Skills: Knowledge (arcana) 6 ranks, Knowledge (nature) 6 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast 2nd-level arcane spells and 2nd-level divine spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The geomancer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (any) (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Scry (Int), Spellcraft (Int), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the geomancer prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Geomancers gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: At each geomancer level, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which he belonged before adding the prestige class. He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (additional wild shape options, metamagic or item creation feats, or the like).

Since the character had more than one spellcasting class before becoming a geomancer, the player must decide to which class to add each geomancer level for determining spells per day and spells known.

Spell Versatility: At 1st level, the geomancer learns to blend divine and arcane magic.

He still acquires and prepares his spells in the normal manner for his individual spellcasting classes.

When he casts them, however, he can mix or match spellcasting parameters from any of his classes to gain the maximum possible advantage for any spell with a spell level equal to or less than his spell versatility score.

Thus, as a 4th-level geomancer, he can cast any of his 3rd-level or lower sorcerer/wizard spells with no chance of arcane spell failure from armor.

(The druidic prohibition against metal armor still applies to druid/geomancers, however, since this stricture stems from a spiritual oath rather than a practical limitation).

The geomancer may use his Wisdom modifier to set the save DC for arcane spells, or his Charisma or Intelligence modifier (whichever he would normally use for arcane spells) to set the save DC for divine spells.

If a spell requires either an arcane material component or a divine focus, he may use either.

A cleric/geomancer who also has levels of wizard, sorcerer, or bard can spontaneously convert any prepared arcane or divine spell (except a domain spell) of an appropriate level into a cure or inflict spell of equal or lower level, though he must be capable of casting the latter as a cleric.

Drift: The character slowly becomes closer to nature.

At each geomancer level, choose a drift from the appropriate stage (see Drift, below).

Ley Lines: At 2nd level, the geomancer learns to create magical connections with a specific type of terrain.

Choose one of the following terrain types: aquatic, desert, forest, hills, marsh, mountains, or plains.

In that terrain, the geomancer's effective caster level for all spells increases by +1.

At 6th level and again at 10th level, the character may either choose a new terrain in which to receive the benefit (at +1), or increase his effective caster level in a previously chosen terrain by an additional +1.

DRIFT

Drift is a gradual devolution into some other natural form. Those who experience this phenomenon gain attributes of animals and plants as time goes by.

Geomancers experience drift at every level.

As a variant rule, high-level druids who spend all their lives away from civilization may also experience drift at the Dungeon Master's discretion—perhaps once every ten years.

Drift is divided into stages.

You must choose one drift from stage 1 the first time you experience the phenomenon.

Your second drift must also be from stage 1.

Thereafter, you may choose from a higher stage only after you have acquired at least two drifts from the previous stage.

For example, a stage 4 drift may be chosen only after you have at least two stage 1 drifts, two stage 2 drifts, and two stage 3 drifts.

You may, however, choose drifts from stages below your maximum whenever you wish.

For example, you if you have two stage 1 drifts, you may choose a third stage 1 rather than a stage 2, if desired.

Stage 1 drifts have no game effect.

Each drift of stage 2 and beyond grants a permanent extraordinary ability.

Natural attacks allow for Strength bonuses on damage rolls, except in the case of poison and acid.

The damage values given for natural attacks are for Medium creatures.

To adjust for Small or Large creatures, use the following table.

NATURAL WEAPON DAMAGE BY SIZE

Small	Medium	Large
1d2	1d3	1d4
1d3	1d4	1d6
1d4	1d6	1d8
1d6	1d8	2d6
1d6	2d4	2d6

STAGE 1

Leopard spots appear on your body.

You grow a cat's tail.

You sprout feathers (but not wings).

Your eyebrows become green and bushy.

Your hair becomes a tangle of short vines.

Light, downy fur covers your skin.

Your skin turns green and scaly.

Your touch causes flowers to wilt.

Your voice sounds like a dog's, though it is still intelligible.

Zebra stripes appear on your body.

STAGE 2

A small camel's hump grows on your back.

(You can go without water for up to five days).
You grow a coat of white fur like a polar bear's.
(You gain a +8 bonus on Hide checks in snowy areas).
The pads of your feet become sticky, like those of a lizard.
(You gain a +4 bonus on Climb checks).
You become as swift as an elk.
(Your land speed increases by +5 feet).
You become as comely as a dryad.
(You gain a +4 bonus on Diplomacy checks).
You become as graceful as a cat.
(You gain a +4 bonus on Balance checks).
You sprout leaves and become photosynthetic.
(You can subsist on 1 hour/day of sunlight in lieu of food, though you still require the same amount of water as before).
Your blood flows as slowly as tree sap.
The speed at which progressive damage, such as that from wounding or decomposition (see Chapter 7), affects you is halved.

Your eyes become as sharp as a rat's.
(You gain low-light vision).
Your skin adapts like that of an octopus.
(You can change color to blend with your surroundings, gaining a +4 bonus on Hide checks).

STAGE 3

Deer antlers grow from your forehead.
(You gain a gore attack for 1d6 points of damage).
Thorns grow on your body.
(Your unarmed attacks do piercing damage, and those striking you with natural weapons take 1d3 points of piercing damage per successful hit).
You can constrict like a snake.
(You deal 1d3 points of damage with a successful grapple check against a creature of your size category or smaller).
You can spin a web like a spider.
(You can use your web to snare prey as described in the monstrous spider entry in the Monster Manual, but you cannot attack with it).
You sprout fish gills.
(You can breathe both water and air).
Your eyes become as sharp as an eagle's.
(You gain a +4 bonus on Spot checks in daylight).
Your eyes become as sharp as an owl's.
(You gain a +4 bonus on Spot checks in dusk and darkness).
Your fingers grow hawklike talons.
(You gain Weapon Finesse and can make two claw attacks per round for 1d3 points of damage each).
Your mouth extends like a crocodile's.
(You gain a bite attack for 1d6 points of damage).
Your toes grow lionlike claws.
(You can make two rake attacks for 1d4 points of damage each if you gain a hold on your target).

STAGE 4

You grow an acid stinger like that of a giant ant.
(You can sting for 1d4 points of piercing damage + 1d4 points of acid damage).
You can trip like a wolf.
(If you hit with a natural attack, you can attempt to trip your target as a free action; see the Wolf entry, page 283 of the Monster Manual).
You can rage similar to a wolverine.
(If you take damage, you rage as a 1st-level barbarian—see Barbarian entry, page 25 of the Player's Handbook—or gain

+1 effective level of any class you have that grants rage as a class feature, but only for determining the benefits of rage).
You gain a boar's ferocity.
(You continue to fight without penalty even while disabled or dying).

You can grab like a bear.
(You gain the improved grab ability as described on page 310 of the Monster Manual).
You can pounce like a leopard.
(If you leap on a foe in the first round of combat, you can make a full attack action even if you have already taken a move action).
Your hands become as strong as a gorilla's.
(You gain a +2 bonus on Strength checks to break objects).
Your jaw becomes as powerful as a weasel's.
(You can attach to an opponent with a successful bite and inflict 1d3 points of damage per round until unattached. However, you lose your Dexterity bonus to AC while attached).

You can fire an ink cloud as a squid does.
(In water, you can emit a cloud of jet-black ink 10 feet on a side once per minute as a free action; this provides total concealment and those within the cloud suffer the effects of total darkness).

Your nose becomes as sensitive as a hound's.
You gain scent out to a range of 30-ft.
Scent is described on page 314 of the Monster Manual.

STAGE 5

You grow a unicorn horn.
(You gain a +4 bonus on Fortitude saves against poison and a gore attack for 1d8 points of damage).
Feathered or batlike wings grow from your back.
(You gain a fly speed of 60 feet).
You can curl into a spiny ball like a hedgehog.
(When curled, you gain a +4 natural armor bonus to AC, but you may not move or attack.
Curling or uncurling is a standard action).
You are as graceful as a pixie.
(You gain a +2 bonus on Reflex saves).
You gain the tremorsense of an earthworm.
(You can sense anything in contact with the ground within 30 feet of you).
Your canine teeth exude poison.
(If you hit with a bite attack, your target must make a Fortitude save (DC 10 + 1/2 your character level + your Constitution modifier) against poison.
Initial damage is 1d2 points of temporary Dexterity damage; secondary damage is 1d4 points of temporary Dexterity damage).
Your senses become as sharp as a bat's.
You gain blindsense out to 30 feet, as described on page 306 of the Monster Manual.
Your feet extend to elephantine width.
(You gain the trample ability as described in the introduction of the Monster Manual.
Your trample attack does 2d4 points of bludgeoning damage, and the Reflex save DC is 10 + 1/2 your character level + your Strength modifier).
You can move like a cheetah.
(Once per hour, you can take a charge action to move ten times your normal speed).
Your skin becomes tree bark.
(You gain a +1 natural armor bonus to AC).

TABLE 2-11: THE GEOMANCER

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Drift 1, spell versatility 0	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Drift 1, ley lines +1, spell versatility 1	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Drift 2, spell versatility 2	+1 level of existing class
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Drift 2, spell versatility 3	+1 level of existing class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Drift 3, spell versatility 4	+1 level of existing class
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Drift 3, ley lines +2, spell versatility 5	+1 level of existing class
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Drift 4, spell versatility 6	+1 level of existing class
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	Drift 4, spell versatility 7	+1 level of existing class
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	Drift 5, spell versatility 8	+1 level of existing class
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Drift 5, ley lines +3, spell versatility 9	+1 level of existing class

HOLY LIBERATOR

The holy liberator is a holy warrior, a distant cousin of the paladin, who is dedicated to overthrowing tyranny wherever it may be found.

These champions of freedom and equality are strong-willed, independent-minded, and virtuous.

They particularly direct their efforts against lawful evil societies (dictatorships or plutocracies), slaveholders and slave traders, and powerful, corrupt governments, but they also recognize the possibility for tyranny even in a state of anarchy (where strong individuals may impose their will on people weaker than they).

Members of all classes—with the prominent exception of monks—are often drawn to the holy liberator prestige class.

Chaotic good fighters and rangers are natural holy liberators, augmenting their already significant combat abilities with the holy powers of the prestige class.

Many clerics are also drawn to become holy liberators—particularly chaotic clerics of Pelor and certain clerics of Kord.

Many rogues also adopt the holy liberator class, working with stealth and steel for the cause of freedom.

NPC holy liberators are usually loners, though they may organize rebellious forces in a tyrannical nation.

They often have powerful celestial allies, from celestial animals to ghaele eladrins, assisting their cause, but tend to work in a loose network rather than a structured or close association.

Just as holy liberators rarely accept orders from anyone, they are loath to give them, choosing to form alliances and friendships rather than manipulate minions or servants.

Adaptation: In your campaign, holy liberators may wander the planes seeking out slavers to destroy, or they may be the sponsors of a rebellion against a particularly harsh government.

Holy liberators can act much like guerillas, training and exhorting the local populace to resist tyrannical rule.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a holy liberator, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Chaotic good.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Diplomacy 5 ranks, Sense Motive 5 ranks.

Feat: Iron Will.

CLASS SKILLS

The holy liberator's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), and Sense Motive (Wis).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.
Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the holy liberator prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Holy liberators are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Spells per Day: A holy liberator has the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the holy liberator must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a holy liberator with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Holy liberator bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the holy liberator's Wisdom modifier.

When the holy liberator gets 0 spells of a given level, such as 0 1st-level spells at 1st level, he gets only bonus spells. (A holy liberator without a bonus spell for that level cannot yet cast a spell of that level).

The holy liberator uses the paladin spell list, with a few changes.

The holy liberator's spell list does not include any spells with the law descriptor.

The following spells are added to the holy liberator's spell list: 1st—protection from law; 2nd—heroism; 3rd—magic circle against law; 4th—dispel law, freedom of movement.

A holy liberator prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though the liberator cannot spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells).

Aura of Good (Ex): The power of a holy liberator's aura of good (see the detect good spell) is equal to his class level plus his cleric level, if any.

Detect Evil (Sp): The holy liberator can use detect evil as a spell-like ability at will.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a holy liberator may attempt to smite evil with one normal melee attack.

He adds his Charisma modifier (if positive) to his attack roll and deals 1 extra point of damage per class level.

For example, a 9th-level holy liberator armed with a longsword would deal 1d8+9 points of damage, plus any additional bonuses for high Strength or magical effects that normally apply.

If the holy liberator accidentally smites a creature that is not evil, the smite has no effect but it is still used up for that day.

At 5th level, the holy liberator may smite evil twice per day, and at 10th level three times per day.

Remove Fatigue (Su): A holy liberator of 2nd level or higher can eliminate fatigue in any creature he touches. Using this ability is a standard action; the holy liberator may use it a number of times per day equal to 3 + his Charisma modifier.

Aura of Resolve (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, the holy liberator gains immunity to all charm and compulsion effects.

His mind is his own, and no other creature can control his thoughts or actions.

Each ally within 10 feet of him gains a +4 morale bonus on saving throws against charm or compulsion effects.

This ability functions while the holy liberator is conscious, but not if he is unconscious or dead.

Divine Grace (Su): A holy liberator of 4th level or higher applies his Charisma modifier (if positive) as a bonus on all saving throws.

Break Enchantment (Sp): Beginning at 4th level, a holy liberator can use break enchantment once per week.

He can use this ability twice per week at 8th level.

Celestial Companion (Sp): Upon reaching 6th level, a holy liberator gains the service of a celestial companion (a cat, eagle, hawk, warhorse, owl, pony, riding dog, or wolf) to serve him in his struggle against tyranny (see sidebar).

The creature has the celestial template (see page 31 of the Monster Manual).

This creature may willingly act as a guardian (such as a hawk), a helper (such as a cat), or a mount (such as a horse).

Once per day, as a full-round action, a holy liberator may magically call his companion from the celestial realms in which it resides.

The companion immediately appears adjacent to the holy liberator and remains for 2 hours per holy liberator level; it may be dismissed at any time as a free action.

The companion is the same creature each time it is summoned, though the holy liberator may release a particular companion from service (if it has grown too old to join her struggle, for instance).

Each time the companion is called, it appears in full health, regardless of any damage it may have taken previously.

The companion also appears wearing or carrying any gear it had when it was last dismissed (including barding, saddle, and the like for mounts).

Calling the companion is a conjuration (calling) effect. Should the holy liberator's companion die, it immediately disappears, leaving behind any equipment it was carrying.

The liberator may not call another companion for thirty days or until he gains a liberator level, whichever comes first, even if the companion is somehow returned from the dead.

During this thirty-day period, the liberator takes a -1 penalty on attack and weapon damage rolls.

Treat the companion as a special mount for the purpose of spells that specifically affect a paladin's special mount (such as heal mount).

CELESTIAL COMPANION

The holy liberator's celestial companion is superior to a normal animal of its type. It has the celestial template, as described in the Monster Manual. It further gains HD and special abilities based on the holy liberator's character level (see the table).

Character Level	Bonus HD	Natural Armor Adj.	Dex Adj.	Int	Special
12th or less	+2	+1	+1	6	Empathic link, improved evasion, improved speed +10 ft., share saving throws, share spells
13th–15th	+4	+3	+2	7	Speak with holy liberator
16th–18th	+6	+5	+3	8	Blood bond, improved speed +20 ft.
19th–20th	+8	+7	+4	9	Spell resistance

See the Paladin's Mount sidebar in the Player's Handbook for definitions of the terms in this table, except as listed below.

Dex Adj.: Add this figure to the companion's Dexterity score.

Improved Speed (Ex): The mount's speed increases by 10 ft. if its liberator's character level is 15th or lower. If the liberator's character level is 16th or higher, the mount's speed increases by a total of +20 feet.

Blood Bond (Ex): The companion gains a +2 bonus on all attacks, checks, and saves if it witnesses the holy liberator being threatened or harmed.

Spell Resistance (Ex): A companion's spell resistance equals the liberator's class level +10.

Code of Conduct: Holy liberators must be of chaotic good alignment and lose all special class abilities if they ever willingly commit an act of evil.

True to their alignment, holy liberators have no more formalized code of conduct than that.

EX-PALADIN LIBERATORS

It is not altogether uncommon for paladins to slip away from the unswerving path of law in their overriding quest for good and become holy liberators.

For the most part, the ex-paladin who adopts the holy liberator class does not regain any of his lost paladin abilities.

However, the character's paladin levels stack with holy liberator levels for the purpose of determining caster level for holy liberator spells and for determining the power of his smite evil ability.

TABLE 2-12: THE HOLY LIBERATOR

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect evil , smite evil 1/day	0	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Remove fatigue	1	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of resolve	1	0	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Break enchantment 1/week, divine grace	1	1	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Smite evil 2/day	1	1	0	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Celestial companion	1	1	1	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	—	2	1	1	0
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	Break enchantment 2/week	2	1	1	1
9th	+9	+6	+3	+2	—	2	2	1	1
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	Smite evil 3/day	2	2	2	1

HOSPITALER

Hospitalers are a fighting force of necessity, sworn to poverty, obedience, and the defense of those in their care. It is the duty of knights hospitaler to protect people traveling on religious pilgrimages.

Over the years, this single duty has expanded to include the construction and administration of hospitals and refugee facilities.

Most hospitalers are paladins, though rangers, fighter/clerics and even ranger/clerics often join the knights hospitaler as well.

NPC hospitalers often travel in groups, usually with pilgrims on their way to or from a site of particular importance to their faith.

Hospitalers may be found running pilgrim hostels, defending temple hospitals, or standing vigil over religious relics and sites.

They seldom go on quests or adventures except to rescue endangered pilgrims or to recover relics or sites from heretics and unbelievers.

Adaptation: Hospitalers do battle against suffering and pain wherever they find it.

In your campaign, large cities may house masses of beggars who are seen to by itinerant hospitalers.

A small village may also house a hospitaler who serves as a doctor of sorts to those who need his attention.

An entire force of hospitalers may gather together in order to fight an evil dragon and then remain afterwards to care for the local townsfolk injured during the battle.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a hospitaler, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonchaotic.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skills: Handle Animal 5 ranks, Ride 5 ranks.

Feats: Mounted Combat, Ride-By Attack.

Spells: Able to cast 1st-level divine spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The hospitaler's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Ride (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the hospitaler prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Hospitalers gain proficiency with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Lay on Hands (Su): A hospitaler with a Charisma score of 12 or higher can heal wounds by touch.

Each day she can heal a total number of hit points of damage equal to her hospitaler level times her Charisma modifier.

A hospitaler may choose to divide her healing among multiple recipients, and she doesn't have to use it all at once.

Using lay on hands is a standard action.

If the hospitaler has this ability from another class, her levels in those classes stack to determine the total number of hit points of damage she can heal each day.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: A hospitaler continues advancing in divine spellcasting ability as well as learning the skills of the hospitalers.

Thus, when a new hospitaler level is gained (except for 1st, 5th, and 9th levels), the character gains new divine spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had gained a level in the a divine spellcasting class to which she belonged before adding the prestige class level.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, greater damage with the smite evil ability, and so on).

If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before becoming a hospitaler, the player must decide to which class to add each hospitaler level for the purposes of determining spells per day and spells known.

Bonus Feat: At the indicated levels, a hospitaler may take a bonus feat.

These feats are drawn from the feats designated as fighter bonus feats (in the Player's Handbook and elsewhere).

Remove Disease (Sp): Beginning at 3rd level, a hospitaler can use remove disease as a spell-like ability once per week.

At 7th level and higher, she can use this ability twice per week.

Code of Conduct: Hospitalers take an oath of poverty, obedience, and defense of those in their care.

This does not mean that hospitalers live mean, penny-pinching lives.

They share their wealth among themselves and give any excess to their order.

Obedience is not related to character or social rank, but rather to position assigned within the order, and often changes with the situation.

Regardless of their relative ranks, all hospitalers defer to the head of a facility while on the grounds.

Hospitalers must be willing to lay down their lives to protect the pilgrims or hospitaler facilities under their care, but should not do so recklessly.

Multiclass Note: A paladin who becomes a hospitaler may continue advancing as a paladin.

EX-HOSPITALERS

A hospitaler who becomes chaotic, who willfully commits a chaotic act, or who grossly violates the hospitaler code of conduct loses all class features and spells and may not progress in levels as a hospitaler.

She regains her abilities if she atones for her violations (see the atonement spell description, page 201 of the Player's Handbook).

A hospitaler faces a special restriction in multiclassing. A hospitaler who gains a level in a class other than hospitaler or paladin may never again increase her hospitaler level, though she retains all her hospitaler abilities.

The path of the hospitaler, like that of the paladin, requires a constant heart.

Once you have turned off the path, you may never return.

TABLE 2-13: THE HOSPITALER

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Bonus feat, lay on hands	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	—	+1 level of existing divine class
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Remove disease 1/week	+1 level of existing divine class
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	—	+1 level of existing divine class
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Bonus feat	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	—	+1 level of existing divine class
7th	+7	+5	+2	+2	Remove disease 2/week	+1 level of existing divine class
8th	+8	+6	+2	+2	—	+1 level of existing divine class
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Bonus feat	—
10th	+10	+7	+3	+3	—	+1 level of existing divine class

Rowena, a hospitaler

MASTER OF SHROUDS

The master of shrouds is an evil spellcaster who magically seizes control of incorporeal undead and sets them to do his bidding.

These wrathful undead vent their anger at being disturbed by spreading fear and death to all they encounter.

Usually they slay the enemies of their summoner, but sometimes they turn on him, forcing him to either rebuke them or destroy them utterly in order to save himself.

While a master of shrouds does gain some divine spells, his primary tool is the ability to summon incorporeal undead creatures to serve him.

Paladins never become masters of shrouds, though ex-paladins occasionally do so if they turn far enough from their lawful good roots.

Evil clerics are the most likely candidates for masters of shrouds, though druids and rangers may also join the ranks of this prestige class if they can acquire the ability to turn or rebuke undead.

NPC masters of shrouds generally operate in secret, pursuing their evil plans under the cover of darkness. They may work individually or in groups, depending on their alignment.

Masters of shrouds rarely stay in one place for long, and they rarely work in groups larger than four, so as to avoid attracting too much attention from paladins and good clerics.

Adaptation: This prestige class could be made specific to any god of the dead or the spirit world.

In your campaign, you could create an organization that exists solely to train masters of shrouds—perhaps a cabal within the Mortuary Guild or a cult of mind flayer clerics from the Plane of Shadow.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a master of shrouds, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Save Bonus: Will +5.

Spells: Ability to cast divine spells and a spell that appears on the spell list for the Death, Evil, or Protection domain.

Skills: Concentration 10 ranks, Spellcraft 10 ranks.

Other: Ability to command or rebuke undead.

CLASS SKILLS

The master of shrouds's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the master of shrouds prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Masters of shrouds are proficient with all simple weapons, with all types of armor, and with shields.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: When an even-numbered level of master of shrouds is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in a divine spellcasting class to which he belonged before he added the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or rebuking undead, or the like).

The level of master of shrouds is added to the level of whatever other divine spellcasting class the character has, then spells per day, spells known, and caster level are determined accordingly.

If the character had more than one divine spellcasting class before he became a master of shrouds, the player must decide to which class to add each level of master of shrouds for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Summon Undead (Sp): At 1st level, the master of shrouds gains the ability to summon a shadow or allip to fight his enemies.

This ability works like the summon monster I spell, except as follows.

The master of shrouds cannot dismiss the summoned creature, and if it remains after the last enemy is gone or slain, it attacks the master of shrouds unless he successfully rebukes or commands it.

The master of shrouds gains a +4 bonus on turning checks and damage against undead he has summoned.

As the master of shrouds gains additional levels in the prestige class, he can summon undead more frequently, and he gains access to more powerful incorporeal undead.

He can summon two allips or two shadows at 3rd level, two wraiths at 5th level, two spectres at 7th level, or two greater shadows at 9th level.

He may always choose to substitute lower-CR undead for any higher-CR ones that he can summon, but the number summoned does not change.

Extra Turning: The master of shrouds gains Extra Turning as a bonus feat.

Furthermore, his master of shrouds levels stack with his levels in any other classes that can rebuke or destroy undead (such as cleric) for the purpose of determining the parameters of his rebuke or command ability.

THE MASTER OF SHROUDS

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Summon undead	— (allip/shadow) 1/day
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Extra turning	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Summon undead	— (allips/shadows) 2/day
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Summon undead	— (wraiths) 3/day
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Summon undead	— (spectres) 4/day
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6	Summon undead	— (greater shadows) 5/day
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

MOON GUARDIAN

When a werewolf or other evil lycanthrope passes on the curse of lycanthropy, the victim must either find a cure quickly or succumb slowly to the ravaging evil of a bestial nature.

But good or neutral divine spellcasters who have strong connections to their deities or to the divine powers they choose to represent can sometimes use their divine connections to stave off the slide into evil.

Those who succeed are known as moon guardians.

The requirements to become a moon guardian are straightforward, but they're more difficult to meet than they first appear.

The afflicted lycanthrope must pray for succor when he feels the temptation to give in to his newfound bestial urges, but in time, a character who has done so faithfully gains release from the risk of alignment change.

(In game terms, the afflicted lycanthrope PC must stave off an alignment change until he earns enough experience to take a level in moon guardian).

As NPCs, moon guardians often perform quests on behalf of their deities or infiltrate cults of evil lycanthropes in order to destroy them from within.

The occasional evil moon guardian NPC often takes advantage of PCs' assumptions about his alignment, pretending to be good at first, then revealing his true nature at a crucial moment.

Adaptation: This prestige class fills a specific niche by enabling a PC who has become a lycanthrope to continue adventuring.

For your specific campaign, you may want to adjust the entry requirements upward or downward to make it accessible for the relevant PC while still balancing it with the rest of the campaign world.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a moon guardian, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Spells: Ability to cast 3rd-level divine spells.

Other: The candidate must be an afflicted lycanthrope aware of his condition.

CLASS SKILLS

The moon guardian's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Control Shape (Wis), Craft (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), and Spellcraft (Int), plus any skills given in the description of the base animal corresponding to the character's lycanthrope type.

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook and Chapter 6 in the Monster Manual for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the moon guardian prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Moon guardians gain no proficiency with any weapon, armor, or shield.

Natural Spell: At 1st level, the moon guardian gains Natural Spell as a bonus feat if he did not already have it.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: When an even-numbered level of moon guardian is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in whatever divine spellcasting class granted him access to 3rd-level spells before he added the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or rebuking undead, and so on).

The level of moon guardian is added to the level of whatever other divine spellcasting class granted the character access to 3rd-level spells, then spells per day, spells known, and caster level are determined accordingly. If a character had more than one divine spellcasting class that granted access to 3rd-level spells before he became a moon guardian, the player must decide to which class to add each level of moon guardian for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Voluntary Change (Ex): At 1st level, the moon guardian receives the blessing of a deity of the moon.

Unlike other afflicted lycanthropes, he can voluntarily change into animal or hybrid form without immediately and permanently changing alignment to that of his lycanthrope kind.

The moon guardian is still subject to involuntary transformation under the full moon and whenever he takes damage in combat, but a failed Control Shape check under those circumstances doesn't change the character's alignment.

Furthermore, a moon guardian who fails a Control Shape check to resume humanoid form can make another attempt each subsequent round, rather than waiting until dawn.

Rapid Change (Ex): At 3rd level, the moon guardian can make a Control Shape check as a move action rather than a standard action, though he can still change form only once per round.

Instantaneous Change (Ex): At 5th level, the moon guardian can make a Control Shape check as a free action. Furthermore, he can do so in response to another's action, even if it isn't his turn yet.

He can still change form only once per round.

THE MOON GUARDIAN

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Natural spell, voluntary change	—
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0		+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Rapid change	—
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1		+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	Instantaneous change	—

NIGHTCLOAK

Servants of the twisted and perverse deities of evil, nightcloaks delve into forbidden secrets and study evil lore. They are beings of iron will and determination, although that determination is perverse.

Nightcloaks weave webs of intrigue, mental domination, blackmail, and control through the use of illusion, necromancy, and enchantment, yet they are not afraid to smash their toys if doing so suits their purposes.

Cruel and intelligent, they do not fear slipping away from battle only to return and grind their foes to dust at a later time.

Honor is of no consequence to nightcloaks; they do as they please, as long as their actions further their own power and, by extension, that of their divine patrons.

Clerics become nightcloaks more often than characters of any other class.

Many have levels of wizard, sorcerer, bard, or rogue in addition to the class that granted them divine spellcasting ability.

The path of the nightcloak rarely appeals to rangers, even though they too can cast divine spells.

Nightcloaks dwell in communities large and small, often worshipping their evil deities in secret.

Many work to overthrow governments, organize secret cabals, and create false cults to further their ends.

Adaptation: While this prestige class isn't specific to Vecna, it certainly could be tied to a secret organization that supports him, since it's a perfect match in terms of alignment and purpose.

Nightcloaks are also good matches for assassins' guilds, thieves' guilds, secret cults, and conspiracies that rule from the shadows.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a nightcloak, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Neutral evil.

Base Attack Bonus: +3.

Skills: Bluff 2 ranks, Hide 4 ranks, Move Silently 2 ranks, Perform (any) 4 ranks.

Feats: Iron Will, Spell Focus (Enchantment, Illusion, or Necromancy).

Spells: Ability to cast 3rd-level divine spells.

A cleric candidate must have access to the Evil domain.

CLASS SKILLS

The nightcloak's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the nightcloak prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Nightcloaks gain no proficiency with any weapon, armor, or shield.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: When a new level of nightcloak is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class to which she belonged before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of turning or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

The level of nightcloak is added to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then spells per day, spells known, and caster level are determined accordingly.

If the character had more than one spellcasting class before she became a nightcloak, the player must decide to which class to add each level of nightcloak for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Might of Darkness (Ex): At 1st level, a nightcloak casts any spell with the darkness descriptor at +2 caster level.

Eyes of Night (Ex): When the nightcloak reaches 2nd level, her eyes become totally black, granting her darkvision to a 60-foot range.

She can also see through magical darkness to a range of 10 feet with the same black-and-white vision that darkvision provides.

The nightcloak also cannot be blinded by magical effects.

Shadow Talk (Su): At 4th level, a nightcloak gains the ability to communicate mystically through the shadows of the mind.

As a free action, she can whisper short messages to other worshipers of her patron deity, and each such creature within 500 feet hears the message as a whisper in its mind.

Observers can also hear the words if they are close enough to hear the nightcloak's actual whispers (a DC 15 Listen check if the listener is within 10 feet of the nightcloak, +1 per 5 feet beyond that).

Shadow talk is a sonic, language-dependent effect.

True Lies (Sp): Beginning at 5th level, a nightcloak can reach into a creature's mind and modify its memories as if using the 4th-level bard spell modify memory (caster level equals nightcloak's character level; save DC 10 + 1/2 nightcloak's character level + nightcloak's Charisma modifier).

This ability is usable once per day.

Grace of the Dark (Ex): Beginning at 7th level, the nightcloak can use the power of her mind to protect herself.

She adds her Intelligence bonus (if any) to all saving throws.

Minions of Night (Sp): Once per week as a standard action, an 8th-level or higher nightcloak can summon one shadow per nightcloak level she possesses.

The summoned shadows do her bidding for a number of rounds equal to her nightcloak level.

Any shadows they create by draining Strength are likewise under the control of the nightcloak, but they vanish along with the originals when the duration of the effect expires.

The nightcloak can verbally communicate with the shadows as if she knew their language or use her shadow talk ability to communicate with them.

Voice of Ineffable Evil (Sp): At 10th level, a nightcloak can command a creature as though using the dominate monster spell (caster level equals nightcloak's character level).

This ability is usable once per day and lasts for 24 hours unless ended earlier.

Unlike most spell-like abilities, voice of ineffable evil has a verbal component.

THE NIGHTCLOAK

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day/Spells Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Might of darkness	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Eyes of night	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Shadow talk	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	True lies	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Grace of the dark	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	Minions of night	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	—	+1 level of existing spellcasting class
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Voice of ineffable evil	+1 level of existing spellcasting class

PIOUS TEMPLAR

Sworn to the defense of a temple site, the pious templar is a holy warrior blessed by her deity with combat prowess and great endurance.

She bears her deity's favored weapon into battle and fights her deity's enemies without question or hesitation.

In addition to defending the temple itself, a pious templar may be charged with additional duties, including a campaign to attack foes on their own home ground.

Faithful people of all professions can enter the ranks of the pious templars; clerics and paladins are especially likely to do so.

Some temples (such as those of Boccob or Wee Jas) welcome wizards and sorcerers to become pious templars, valuing those characters' ability to use arcane magic combined with the martial training of the pious templar. Likewise, Olidammara's temples are often guarded by rogue/pious templars, who combine combat training with sneak attack tactics.

Ranger/pious templars serve in temples of Ehlonna and Obad-Hai, while barbarian/pious templars are not unknown in temples of Kord or Erythnul.

Only monks, with their own specialized combat training, are unlikely to adopt the pious templar class.

NPC pious templars usually live cloistered in temple buildings or attached quarters.

Adaptation: This prestige class functions best when tied to a specific deity.

If you want to customize the pious templar further, you can modify the spell list to reflect the proclivities of specific gods or create an order within a religion that all pious templars are members of.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a pious templar, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +5.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 4 ranks.

Feats: True Believer*, Weapon Focus (with her deity's favored weapon).

* New feat described in Chapter 3.

CLASS SKILLS

The pious templar's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Heal (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the pious templar prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Pious templars gain no weapon or armor proficiencies.

Mettle (Su): A pious templar's special blessing allows her to shrug off magical effects that would otherwise harm her.

If a pious templar makes a successful Will or Fortitude saving throw that would normally reduce the spell's effect, she suffers no effect from the spell at all.

Only those spells with a Saving Throw entry of "Will partial", "Fortitude half", or similar entries can be negated through this ability.

Spells per Day: A pious templar has the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the pious templar must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a pious templar with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Pious templar bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a DC of 10 + spell level + the pious templar's Wisdom modifier.

When the pious templar gets 0 spells of a given level, such as 0 1st-level spells at 1st level, she gets only bonus spells.

(A pious templar without a bonus spell for that level cannot yet cast a spell of that level).

A pious templar has access to any spell on the list and can freely choose which to prepare, just like a cleric.

A pious templar prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though the pious templar cannot spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells).

A good pious templar (or a neutral pious templar of a good deity) uses the paladin spell list.

An evil pious templar (or a neutral pious templar of an evil deity) uses the blackguard spell list.

A pious templar who is neither good nor evil and whose deity is neither good nor evil can choose to use the paladin or the blackguard spell list.

Once the player makes this choice, it cannot be reversed.

Smite (Su): Once per day, a pious templar of 2nd level or higher may make a single melee attack with a +4 attack bonus and a damage bonus equal to her pious templar level (if she hits).

The pious templar must declare the smite before making the attack.

Starting at 6th level, a pious templar can smite twice per day and at 10th level, three times per day.

If a pious templar has a smite evil or smite ability (for being a paladin or a cleric with the Destruction domain) already, she can use the ability one extra time per day (two extra times at 7th level).

The attack bonus does not increase, but the damage bonus is based on the character's combined level (pious templar level plus cleric or paladin level).

Damage Reduction (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, pious templars have the ability to shrug off some amount of injury from each blow or attack.

A pious templar gains damage reduction 1/—.

At 7th level, this damage reduction rises to 2/—.

Weapon Specialization: At 3rd level, a pious templar gains the Weapon Specialization feat with her deity's favored weapon.

Bonus Feat: At 4th level and again at 8th level, a pious templar gets a bonus feat.

These bonus feats must be drawn from the feats noted as fighter bonus feats in the Player's Handbook and other books.

If a pious templar selects a feat that requires her to apply its effects to a specific weapon (such as Improved Critical), she may only apply that feat to her deity's favored weapon.

TABLE 2-14: THE PIOUS TEMPLAR

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	0	+2	Mettle	0	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	0	+3	Smite 1/day	1	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Damage reduction 1/—, Weapon Specialization	1	0	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Bonus feat	1	1	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	—	1	1	0	—
6th	+6	+5	+2	+5	Smite 2/day	1	1	1	—
7th	+7	+5	+2	+5	Damage reduction 2/—	2	1	1	0
8th	+8	+6	+2	+6	Bonus feat	2	1	1	1
9th	+9	+6	+3	+6	—	2	2	1	1
10th	+10	+7	+3	+7	Smite 3/day	2	2	2	1

RADIANT SERVANT OF PELOR

Pelor teaches demonstrating the strength of good through charity and modesty.

While it seems a contradiction, the point is that the truly strong don't need to prove their power.

Pelor urges his priests and their flocks to perform so many good acts that evil has no room to exist, but he acknowledges that there are times when evil must be defeated in direct confrontation.

The radiant servants of Pelor put this dogma into living practice.

As the name implies, the brothers and sisters of the radiant servants of Pelor are sworn to serve—to minister to the needs of Pelor's followers and good-hearted people everywhere.

While combating evil, particularly undead, is an important part of that service, it is by no means the only part.

Radiant servants of Pelor are healers, counselors, sources of spiritual and (at times) financial support, and protectors. Almost all radiant servants of Pelor spend their prior careers as clerics.

Some are multiclassed cleric/paladins or cleric/rangers, or even the occasional cleric/druid.

NPC radiant servants of Pelor can be found wherever there is human need—in the midst of plague and famine, behind the lines of an army at war, in villages plagued by hauntings, and in cities troubled by crime.

Adaptation: As mentioned in the introduction to the chapter, this prestige class doesn't have to be about Pelor. It works just as well with any god of the sun whose clerics often turn undead, and given the Sun domain's granted power, it'd be a strange sun-god that didn't want his clerics turning undead.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a radiant servant of Pelor, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Neutral good.

Base Save Bonus: Will +5.

Skills: Heal 5 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 9 ranks.

Feat: Extra Turning.

Spells: Able to cast 1st-level divine spells and access to the Sun domain.

Special: Must have Pelor as patron deity.

CLASS SKILLS

The radiant servant of Pelor's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the radiant servant of Pelor prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Radiant servants of Pelor are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all armor, and with shields.

Radiance: When a radiant servant of Pelor casts any spell with the light descriptor, the radius of illumination is doubled, and the spell is treated as if it were one level higher than it actually is for all purposes, including determining whether it can counter or dispel a spell with the darkness descriptor.

Thus, a daylight spell cast by a radiant servant sheds light in a 120-foot radius and is treated as a 4th-level spell, allowing it to counter or dispel any darkness spell of 4th level or lower.

Extra Greater Turning: The radiant servant of Pelor can perform a greater turning (the granted power of the Sun domain) a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Charisma modifier.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: When a new radiant servant of Pelor level is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class he belonged to before he added the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, wild shape ability, and so on).

This essentially means that he adds the level of radiant servant of Pelor to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day and spells known accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class in which he could cast 1st-level divine spells before he became a radiant servant of Pelor, the player must decide which class to assign each level of radiant servant of Pelor for the purpose of determining spells per day.

Turn Undead: A radiant servant of Pelor adds his radiant servant class levels to his cleric levels for all purposes related to turning undead.

Divine Health (Ex): A radiant servant of Pelor who is at least 2nd level is immune to all diseases, including magical diseases such as mummy rot and lycanthropy.

Empower Healing (Ex): When a radiant servant of Pelor of at least 2nd level casts a domain spell from the Healing domain, that spell is affected as though by the Empower Spell feat.

This spell does not use up a higher-level slot.

Aura of Warding (Su): Starting at 3rd level, a radiant servant and all allies within 10 feet of him gain a +2 morale bonus on all Will saving throws.

Bonus Domain: A radiant servant who reaches 5th level is granted another of Pelor's domains as a third cleric domain, or he can choose the Glory or Purification domain.

He can use the granted power of the new domain, and he can choose from the spell lists of three domains when selecting his domain spells for the day.

Maximize Healing (Ex): When a radiant servant of Pelor who is at least 6th level casts a domain spell from the Healing domain that spell is affected as though by the Maximize Spell feat.

The spell does not use up a higher-level slot.

This power supersedes the empower healing ability until the character reaches 10th level.

Positive Energy Burst (Su): As a standard action, a radiant servant of Pelor who is at least 8th level can create a positive energy burst that deals 1d6 points of damage per class level to all undead creatures within 100 feet of the character.

Undead are allowed a Reflex save (DC equal to 10 + the class level of the radiant servant) to avoid half the damage. This supernatural ability uses up two turning attempts.

A radiant servant cannot use this ability if he has fewer than two turning attempts left for the day.

Supreme Healing (Ex): When a radiant servant of Pelor who is at least 10th level casts a domain spell from the Healing domain, that spell is affected as though by both the Empower Spell and the Maximize Spell feats. The spell does not use up a higher-level slot.

TABLE 2–15: THE RADIANT SERVANT OF PELOR

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Extra greater turning, radiance, turn undead	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Divine health, empower healing	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Aura of warding	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Bonus domain	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Maximize healing	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
8th	+6	+6	+2	+6	Positive energy burst	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
9th	+6	+6	+3	+6	—	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class
10th	+7	+7	+3	+7	Supreme healing	+1 level of existing divine spellcasting class

RAINBOW SERVANT

Deep in the jungles lie magically hidden ziggurats where the winged serpents known as couatls teach their secrets to arcane spell casters eager to gain a measure of divine power. Those who have learned what the couatl temples have to offer are known as rainbow servants, because they agree to further the couatl's agenda of virtue and hope no matter how far they stray from the jungle in exchange for the knowledge they've received.

Most rainbow servants are sorcerers and wizards, with the occasional bard making the jungle trek.

More sorcerers than wizards take on the mantle of the rainbow servant, because access to cleric domains is a compelling goal when spells known are otherwise so limited.

Rainbow servants spend much of their time traveling on quests to make right some wrong.

The couatls have a potent information network, so when they appear to direct a rainbow servant, they often have information the forces of evil thought they kept secret. But rainbow servants don't spend every moment at the beck and call of their serpentine masters; the couatls recognize that their servants have agendas of their own.

A rainbow servant needs only be mindful that at any time, a couatl could suddenly appear in her life, describing a terrible evil that must be thwarted.

NPC rainbow servants travel the world—not to mention most of the Outer Planes—fighting evildoers and inspiring hope and mercy wherever they go.

Unless they're traveling incognito, rainbow servants identify themselves with a prominent feathered plume on their headgear.

Rainbow servants who've completed several quests for their couatl benefactors receive a feathered cape of the couatls as a mark of distinction.

Adaptation: The couatl aspect of this prestige class is inextricable from the rest of it, but you could develop similar prestige classes with other good outsiders such as lammasus, eladrins, or archons.

It's also easy to reverse the class's alignment and come up with a similar "striped servant" class connected to the rakshasa, for example.

And the couatl's jungle temples are rich with possibilities for creating your own organization—anything from secretive monks to weird spellcasters to friendly barbarian tribes could be living in the temples or nearby.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a rainbow servant, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any nonevil and nonchaotic.

Skill: Knowledge (arcana) 4 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast 3rd-level arcane spells.

Special: Must find the hidden jungle temples of the couatls.

CLASS SKILLS

The rainbow servant's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the rainbow servant prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Rainbow servants gain no proficiency in weapons or armor.

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, a rainbow servant can use detect evil, as the spell.

Extra Domain: A rainbow servant gains the granted power and spell access of the Good domain at 1st level, the Air domain at 4th level, and the Law domain at 7th level.

The rainbow servant generally uses a multicolored feather of a couatl as her divine focus.

For an explanation of how nonclerics receive domain spells, see the Extra Domains section at the beginning of this chapter.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: When a new rainbow servant level is gained, the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class in which she could cast 3rd-level arcane spells before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, wild shape ability, and so on).

This essentially means that she adds the level of rainbow servant to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class in which she could cast 3rd-level arcane spells before she became a rainbow servant, the player must decide which class to assign each level of rainbow servant for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Grow Wings (Su): Starting at 4th level, a rainbow servant can grow multicolored, feathered wings like that of a couatl.

The wings, which allow flight at a speed of 60 feet with good maneuverability, have a daily duration of 1 minute per rainbow servant level, divided up however the rainbow servant wishes.

It takes a standard action to grow or eliminate the feathered wings.

Restrictive clothing and armor of any kind prevents the wings from growing, and a rainbow servant can't grow wings while grappling.

Detect Chaos (Sp): At will, a rainbow servant of 7th level or higher can use detect chaos, as the spell.

Cleric Spell Access: A 10th-level rainbow servant can learn and cast spells from the cleric list, even if they don't appear on the lists of any spellcasting class he has.

Such spells are cast as divine spells if they don't appear on the sorcerer/wizard or bard spell lists.

This class feature grants access to the spells, but not extra spells per day.

The 10th-level rainbow servant can likewise read scrolls with cleric spells on them and use wands and staffs that contain cleric spells.

Detect Thoughts (Sp): At will, a 10th-level rainbow servant can use detect thoughts, as the spell.

The save DC is Charisma-based.

TABLE 2-16: THE RAINBOW SERVANT

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Detect evil , extra domain (Good)	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	+1 level of arcane spellcasting class
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	—	+1 level of arcane spellcasting class
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Extra domain (Air), grow wings	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	+1 level of arcane spellcasting class
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	+1 level of arcane spellcasting class
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Detect chaos , extra domain (Law)	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	—	+1 level of arcane spellcasting class
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	+1 level of arcane spellcasting class
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Cleric spell access, detect thoughts	—

SACRED EXORCIST

Through elaborate rites that may include dancing, drumming, beating a possessed person on the soles of the feet, liberal use of holy water, or many other means, sacred exorcists hope to drive away the spiritual forces of evil, preventing them from causing harm to the bodies and souls of humanity.

Sacred exorcists are serious about their work and very devoted to their religion.

Not all of them are dour and grim, but most are.

Their determination to combat the forces of evil in the world—along with their special ability to do so—more than makes up for their lack of humor.

Most sacred exorcists are clerics or paladins who are specifically trained by their church for the work they are called to do.

Most churches select only those who have shown a clear dedication to the work of opposing evil outsiders, as well as exemplary faith and devotion.

Occasionally, a wizard qualifies to fill this role in a church that is tolerant toward arcane magic, but members of other classes rarely become sacred exorcists.

NPC sacred exorcists are usually loners who travel from city to city in the service of their church.

As highly specialized professionals, their services are frequently in demand, though few cities would have need for a full-time sacred exorcist.

Adaptation: As written, the prestige class mandates the sanction of a church or order, and it indicates that sacred exorcists are loners.

You could reverse either of those elements; sacred exorcists could function independently of a larger organization (or even be castoffs from the larger church).

Maybe teams of exorcists (with paladin and arcane spellcaster backup) patrol the land, seeking out hidden evil wherever it may gather.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a sacred exorcist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Alignment: Any good.

Skills: Knowledge (the planes) 10 ranks, Knowledge (religion) 7 ranks.

Spells: Able to cast dismissal or dispel evil.

Special: Adopting this prestige class requires the sanction of a church or order that ordains sacred exorcists.

Only characters judged by their church to be exemplary in faith and devotion, strong of will and upright in morality, are made sacred exorcists.

CLASS SKILLS

The sacred exorcist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Heal (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the sacred exorcist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sacred exorcists are proficient with all simple weapons.

They do not gain proficiency with any type of armor or with shields, but usually carry these proficiencies from their previous class.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: A sacred exorcist advances in spellcasting ability as well as learning the skills of exorcism. Thus, when a new sacred exorcist level is gained, the character gains new spells per day as if she had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class she belonged to before she added the prestige class.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, more frequent remove disease, and so on).

This means that she adds the level of sacred exorcist to the level of another spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day accordingly.

For example, if Delliva, an 8th-level cleric, gains a level as a sacred exorcist, she gains new spells as if she had risen to 9th level as a cleric, but uses the other sacred exorcist aspects of level progression such as base attack bonus and save bonuses.

If she next gains a level as a cleric, making her a 9th-level cleric/1st-level sacred exorcist, she gains spells as if she had risen to 10th level as a cleric.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class in which she could cast dismissal or dispel evil before she became a sacred exorcist, the player must decide which class to assign each level of sacred exorcist for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Exorcism (Su): As a full-round action, a sacred exorcist can force a possessing creature or spirit out of the body it inhabits.

To exorcise a possessing creature, the exorcist makes a class level check (also adding her Charisma modifier, if any), against a DC of 10 + the possessing creature's HD + its Charisma modifier (if any).

If the exorcist's result equals or exceeds the DC, she succeeds in forcing the possessor from the body, with the normal results based on its method of possession.

A spirit so exorcised cannot attempt to possess the same victim for 24 hours.

Turn Undead (Su): Sacred exorcists can turn undead as clerics do.

If a sacred exorcist has this ability from another class, her class levels stack to determine her effective turning level.

Resist Possession (Ex): Sacred exorcists of at least 2nd level receive a +4 sacred bonus on their saving throws against magic jar spells or similar abilities (including a ghost's malevolence ability), and a +2 sacred bonus on dispel checks made to dispel such effects.

They also get a +2 sacred bonus on their saving throws against all charm and compulsion spells and effects cast by evil outsiders or undead.

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, a sacred exorcist of at least 2nd level can use detect evil as a spell-like ability.

Chosen Foe (Ex): At 3rd level, a sacred exorcist designates either undead or evil outsiders as her chosen foe.

Extensive study and special training in the proper techniques for combating this foe gives the sacred exorcist a +1 competence bonus on Bluff, Intimidate, Listen, Sense Motive, and Spot checks against the chosen foe, as well as a +1 bonus on caster level checks to overcome any spell resistance of the chosen foe.

At 6th level the bonus increases to +2, and at 9th level it increases to +3.

Dispel Evil (Sp): Beginning at 4th level, a sacred exorcist can use dispel evil as a spell-like ability once per week.

At 7th level, she can use this ability twice per week.

At 10th level, she can use it three times per week.

Consecrated Presence (Su): At 5th level and higher, a sacred exorcist is surrounded by an aura of positive energy that extends 20 feet from her presence.

This aura duplicates the effects of a consecrate spell, but it moves with the sacred exorcist.

If the sacred exorcist enters an area affected by a desecrate spell, both effects are negated while the sacred exorcist remains in the area.

If the sacred exorcist is the target of a desecrate spell, her aura is suppressed for the duration of the desecrate spell.

Holy Aura (Sp): A sacred exorcist of 8th level or higher can use holy aura once per day as a spell-like ability.

TABLE 2-17: THE SACRED EXORCIST

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	0	+2	Exorcism, turn undead	+1 level of existing class
2nd	+1	+0	0	+3	Detect evil, resist possession	+1 level of existing class
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Chosen foe +1	+1 level of existing class
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Dispel evil 1/week	+1 level of existing class
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Consecrated presence	+1 level of existing class
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Chosen foe +2	+1 level of existing class
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Dispel evil 2/week	+1 level of existing class
8th	+6	+2	+2	+6	Holy aura 1/day	+1 level of existing class
9th	+6	+3	+3	+6	Chosen foe +3	+1 level of existing class
10th	+7	+3	+3	+7	Dispel evil 3/week	+1 level of existing class

SACRED FIST

Sacred fists are independent organizations found within many temples.

Their ascetic members have turned their divine magic inward, bringing their bodies and wills into harmony.

Sacred fists have forsworn the use of weapons and heavy armor.

They consider their bodies and minds gifts from their deity, and they believe that not developing those gifts to their fullest potential is a sin.

Spellcasting does not dishonor them or their deity.

Sacred fists are strong in faith, will, and body.

Clerics are excellent candidates for sacred fists orders.

Paladins may also choose to join them, but are seldom comfortable surrendering the trappings of their calling.

Fighters, rogues, bards, and even ex-monks may make good candidates, provided they have enough levels in a class that grants divine spells.

Druids occasionally find the class's combat skills useful, but sorcerers and wizards find little to interest them.

NPC sacred fists are as varied as their faiths.

In general, they travel the land individually, lending their skills to those who need protection or assistance.

While a sacred fist from a temple of Pelor might humbly assist almost anyone who asked, one from Erythnul's faith might help only when it gains him something.

Sacred fists from the temple of Kord tend to be genial brawlers, humble in victory and gracious in defeat.

All sacred fists seek challenges that allow them to further develop their fighting skills.

Adaptation: This prestige class is designed to emphasize a monk who sacrifices her array of supernatural abilities and cast spells instead.

The sacred fists (under that name or another) could be an esoteric order of monks who combine rigorous self-defense training with near-constant prayer.

And if you connect them to a specific nonlawful deity, the sacred fists are a good way to create an exception to the "monks must be lawful" rule.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To qualify to become a sacred fist, a character must fulfill all the following criteria.

Base Attack Bonus: +4.

Skill: Knowledge (religion) 8 ranks.

Feats: Combat Casting, Combat Reflexes, Improved

Unarmed Strike, Stunning Fist.

Spells: Able to cast 1st-level divine spells.

CLASS SKILLS

The sacred fist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Concentration (Con), Escape Artist (Dex), Heal (Wis), Jump (Str), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Tumble (Dex).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the sacred fist prestige class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sacred fists gain no proficiency with any weapons, armor, or shields.

AC Bonus (Ex): A sacred fist is highly trained at dodging blows, and he has a sixth sense that lets him avoid even unanticipated attacks.

When unencumbered and wearing light or no armor, a sacred fist gains a +1 bonus to his AC.

This bonus increases to +2 at 5th level and to +3 at 10th.

This bonus to AC applies even against touch attacks or when the sacred fist is flat-footed.

He loses the bonus when he is immobilized or helpless, when he wears any armor heavier than light armor, when he carries a shield, or when he carries a medium or heavy load.

Spells per Day/Spells Known: When a new sacred fist level is gained, the character gains new spells per day (and spells known, if applicable) as if he had also gained a level in whatever spellcasting class in which he could cast divine spells before he added the prestige class.

He does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, wild shape ability, and so on).

This essentially means that he adds the level of sacred fist to the level of whatever other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day accordingly.

If a character had more than one spellcasting class in which he could cast divine spells before he became a sacred fist, the player must decide which class to assign each level of sacred fist for the purpose of determining spells per day and spells known.

Unarmed Damage (Ex): A sacred fist's class levels stack with his monk levels (if any) for the purpose of determining his unarmed damage.

If a sacred fist doesn't have monk levels prior to becoming a sacred fist, treat him as a monk of the same class level as his sacred fist class level for determining his unarmed damage.

Fast Movement (Ex): At 3rd level, a sacred fist gains an enhancement bonus to his speed, as shown on Table 2-18:

The Sacred Fist.

A sacred fist in medium or heavy armor or carrying a medium or heavy load loses this extra speed.

Sacred Flames (Su): At 4th level, a sacred fist may use a standard action to invoke sacred flames around his hands and feet.

These flames add to the sacred fist's unarmed damage.

The additional damage is equal to the sacred fist's class level plus his Wisdom modifier (if any).

Half the damage is fire damage (round up), and the rest is sacred energy and thus not subject to effects that reduce fire damage.

The sacred flames last 1 minute and can be invoked once per day.

At 8th level, a sacred fist can invoke sacred flames twice per day.

Blindsense (Su): A 6th-level sacred fist gains sensitivity to vibrations, scent, and noise, granting him blindsense out to 10 feet.

Inner Armor (Ex): At 10th level, a sacred fist's inner tranquility protects him from external threats.

He may invoke a +4 sacred bonus to AC, a +4 sacred bonus on all saves, and spell resistance 25 for a number of rounds equal to his Wisdom modifier.

He may use inner armor once per day.

Code of Conduct: A member of a sacred fist order refuses to use any weapon.

