

CLASS BIBLE

Storm Seeker

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURES

CHAMPIONS OF VALOR (3.5)

BERRONAR VALKYRIE (PALADIN)

Berronar's Valkyries are female dwarf paladins of the goddess Berronar Truesilver. They study tactics and charge into battle to save male dwarf warriors.

Their special powers help them look after their allies and punish oathbreakers.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Berronar Valkyrie paladin substitution level, a character must be a female dwarf, have Berronar as her patron deity, and be about to take her 3rd, 4th, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Berronar Valkyrie paladin substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Berronar Valkyrie substitution levels.

Everbright Blessing (Su): Starting at 3rd level, a Valkyrie's armor, shield, and primary weapon are treated as if they had the everbright special ability; they shine like polished silver, they are immune to acid and rust attacks, and the armor provides her with resistance to acid 5.

This ability only applies to the items the Valkyrie is wearing; if the items are removed or dropped, they lose this property until she picks them up again.

This benefit replaces the divine health class feature gained by a standard paladin at 3rd level.

Valiant Rescue (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a Valkyrie gains a special ability to charge into harm's way to protect an ally.

A Valkyrie can charge into melee with a creature that threatens one of her allies and still make a full attack with a single melee weapon rather than a single attack.

During this charge she acts as if she had the Mobility feat; if she is mounted, this bonus also applies to her mount.

A Valkyrie can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Charisma modifier.

This benefit replaces the turn undead class feature gained by a standard paladin at 4th level.

Binding Oath (Su): At 6th level, a Valkyrie gains the ability to magically link two willing individuals making an oath (or a legal agreement).

This link has two effects.

First, it informs both parties and the Valkyrie instantly if the oath is broken in any way.

Second, the individual who breaks the oath is fatigued for one day per paladin level of the Valkyrie at the time of the oath-binding.

A Valkyrie can bind an oath once per week as a full-round action.

For every three paladin levels gained thereafter, the Valkyrie can use this ability one extra time per week (2/week at 9th level, 3/week at 12th level, and so forth).

This benefit replaces the remove disease class feature gained by a standard paladin at 6th level.

A Berronar Valkyrie who selects this substitution level never gains the remove disease ability.

Touch of Fatigue (Sp): Beginning at 6th level, a Valkyrie can use touch of fatigue at will.

This ability is normally used to admonish those about to stray from their promises or to punish those guilty of minor infractions.

The save DC against this spell-like ability is 10 + the Valkyrie's Charisma modifier.

TABLE 2-2: BERRONAR VALKYRIE
SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Everbright blessing
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Valiant rescue
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Binding oath, touch of fatigue

BROKEN ONE (MONK)

These kind and enduring monks dedicated to Ilmater are focused on defending the faithful and temples of the Broken God while acting as agents of punishment against those who would cruelly harm others.

They combine the skills of healer and hunter in the service of their deity.

They often assist other servants of the Triad when injustices against the innocent have occurred.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Broken One substitution level, a character must have Ilmater as her patron deity and be about to take her 3rd, 6th, or 7th level of monk.

CLASS SKILLS

Broken One substitution levels have the class skills of the standard monk class plus Heal and Survival.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Broken One substitution levels.

Lay on Hands (Su): At 3rd level, a Broken One can gain the ability to heal wounds with her touch (see the paladin class feature, page 44 of the Player's Handbook).

If the character has a Charisma score of 11 or lower, she can heal a number of points of damage each day equal to her monk class level.

This benefit replaces the still mind class feature gained by a standard monk.

Tenacious Tracker (Su): Beginning at 6th level, a Broken One gains the ability to follow the trail of those cruel enough to torture and maim others. She receives Track as a bonus feat. She gains a +10 competence bonus on Survival checks made to track those with Loviatar as a patron deity. Furthermore, whenever she physically touches the flesh of one who has been injured within the previous hour by someone who has Loviatar as his patron deity, she receives a clear mental image of that person's true appearance. This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard monk at 6th level.

Slow Fall (Ex): A Broken One's slow fall ability is identical to a standard monk's ability at 6th level.

Locate Creature (Sp): Starting at 7th level, a Broken One can use locate creature once per day, but only when attempting to find a creature that has Loviatar as a patron deity. Her caster level is equal to her class level. This benefit replaces the wholeness of body class feature gained by a standard monk at 7th level.

TABLE 2-3:
BROKEN ONE SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Lay on hands
6th	+4	+5	+5	+5	Tenacious tracker, slow fall 30 ft.
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	Locate creature

CLAW OF THE SUN AND THE ANKH (PALADIN)

The first Mulhorandi order of paladins to worship a god other than Osiris, the Claw of the Sun and the Ankh serves Horus-Re.

Its fearless and fanatical soldiers are dedicated to energetically pursuing the evil minions of Set, relentlessly destroying them and their foul plans whenever they are found.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Claw of the Sun and The Ankh substitution level, a character must have Horus-Re as his patron deity and be about to take his 1st, 6th, or 12th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Claw of the Sun and the Ankh substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Claw of the Sun and the Ankh substitution levels.

Bird of Prey (Su): Beginning at 1st level, once per day a Claw of the Sun and the Ankh can pay homage to his god by taking on aspects of a hawk.

His hands turn into claws that deal 1d4 points of damage; the attacks deal extra damage equal to one-half his paladin level to evil creatures.

These attacks are considered magic, good-aligned weapons for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction. The paladin is considered to be proficient with these natural weapons while using this form. This transformation lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + his Charisma modifier.

At 5th level, and every five levels thereafter, a Claw of the Sun and the Ankh can use this ability one extra time per day.

This benefit replaces the smite evil class feature gained by a standard paladin.

A Claw of the Sun and the Ankh never gains any smite evil attacks at later levels.

Smite Minions of Set (Su): A Claw of the Sun and the Ankh is tasked with eliminating members of the church of Set. Starting at 6th level he can use a melee attack to attempt to smite a creature that has Set as its patron deity.

This otherwise functions as the paladin's normal smite evil class feature.

A Claw of the Sun and the Ankh can use this smite attack once per day, plus one extra time per day for every three levels gained beyond 6th.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's remove disease class feature.

A Claw of the Sun and the Ankh who selects this substitution level never gains the remove disease ability.

Horus-Re's Glory (Su): Starting at 12th level, a Claw's armor shines brightly (as the daylight spell).

This illumination can be suppressed or resumed at will with a standard action.

This benefit replaces the 3rd-level spell slot gained by a standard paladin at 12th level.

From this point forward, a Claw of the Sun and the Ankh who selects this substitution level can prepare one less 3rd-level paladin spell than normal.

TABLE 2-4: CLAW OF THE SUN AND THE ANKH SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, bird of prey, detect evil
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Smite minions of Set
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Horus-Re's glory

CRESCENT MOON KNIGHT (PALADIN)

These unusual paladins of the Order of the Crescent Moon serve either Clangeddin Silverbeard or Selûne.

The order was founded by an alliance between humans and dwarves to defeat marauding lycanthropes; now, the descendants of the founders teach old family skills and pass heirlooms to the next generation of defenders.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Crescent Moon Knight paladin substitution level, a character must have Clangeddin Silverbeard or Selûne as his patron deity, be related to or a close friend of one of the founding families, and be about to take his 4th, 6th, or 10th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Crescent Moon Knight paladin substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin plus Knowledge (local Impiltur).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Crescent Moon Knight substitution levels.

Favored Enemy (Ex): At 4th level, a Knight gains lycanthropes as a favored enemy, just as if he were a 1st-level ranger.

Unlike standard ranger favored enemies, which are organized by monster type, the Knight's favored enemy bonuses apply to all lycanthropes regardless of type (for example, the bonuses apply against a human werewolf and a hill giant dire wereboar).

This benefit replaces the turn undead class feature gained by a standard paladin at 4th level.

Cure Lycanthropy (Su): Starting at 6th level, a Knight becomes versed in the methods of curing lycanthropy. A Knight counts as a 12th-level cleric for the purpose of curing lycanthropy within 3 days of a lycanthrope's attack. A Knight can use his remove disease spell-like ability as if it were break enchantment or remove curse to cure a lycanthrope on the nights of the full moon.

Battlesong (Su): Once per day starting at 10th level, a Knight can begin an inspiring battle song as a standard action.

This song functions like a bard's inspire courage ability, using the Knight's paladin level minus 4 as his bard level. For example, a 10th-level paladin who selects this substitution level would receive a +1 morale bonus on the relevant rolls, while an 18th-level paladin would receive a +3 morale bonus.

A Knight need not have any ranks in Perform to use this class feature.

This benefit replaces the 2nd-level spell slot gained by a standard paladin at 10th level.

From this point forward, a Crescent Moon Knight who selects this substitution level can prepare one less 2nd-level paladin spell than normal.

TABLE 2-5: CRESCENT MOON KNIGHT SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Favored enemy lycanthropes +2
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Remove disease, cure lycanthropy
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Battlesong

DARK MOON DISCIPLE (MONK)

The Monks of the Dark Moon are sorcerer-monks who have dedicated their bodies, minds, and souls to Shar, the Lady of Loss.

Because they deal with shadows and the Shadow Weave, they have developed special powers to take advantage of their connection to Shar.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Dark Moon Disciple substitution level, a character must be a member of the Monks of the Dark Moon sect, have Shar as her patron deity, and be about to take her 3rd, 7th, or 12th level of monk.

CLASS SKILLS

A Dark Moon Disciple has the same selection of class skills as a standard monk does.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the Dark Moon Disciple substitution levels.

Darkvision (Ex): At 3rd level, a Dark Moon Disciple gains darkvision with a range of 60 feet.

This benefit replaces the still mind class feature that the standard monk gains at 3rd level.

Shadow Blend (Su): In any conditions other than full daylight, a 7th-level Dark Moon Disciple can disappear into the shadows, gaining total concealment.

Artificial light does not negate this ability, though a daylight spell does.

This benefit replaces the wholeness of body class feature that the standard monk gains at 7th level.

Walk the Shadows (Su): At 12th level, a Dark Moon Disciple can jump from shadow to shadow.

This ability works like the dimension door spell, except that the Dark Moon Disciple can leave and arrive only in areas of shadowy illumination.

The caster level equals the character's monk level, and Dark Moon Disciple substitution levels count as monk levels for this purpose.

This ability is usable once per day.

This benefit replaces the abundant step class feature that a standard monk gains at 12th level.

DARK MOON DISCIPLE SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Flurry of Blows Attack Bonus	Unarmed
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save			Base Damage*	AC Bonus	Unarmed Speed Bonus
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Darkvision	+0/+0	1d6	+0	+10 ft.
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	Shadow blend	+4/+4	1d8	+1	+20 ft.
12th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Slow fall 60 ft., walk the shadows	+9/+9/+9/+4	2d6	+3	+40 ft.

DARKSONG KNIGHT (FIGHTER)

The Darksong Knights are elite soldiers of Eilistraee who further her many causes and hunt the yochlol, the demonic servants of the Spider Queen.

They develop an intricate, dancelike style of swordplay and special powers to defeat their demonic enemies.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Darksong Knight substitution level, a character must have Eilistraee as her patron deity and be about to take her 2nd, 6th, or 8th level of fighter.

CLASS SKILLS

Darksong Knight substitution levels have the class skills of the standard fighter class plus Perform (dance).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Darksong Knight substitution levels.

Bonus Feat: A Darksong Knight's choice of bonus feats is identical to a standard fighter's bonus feats.

Dancing Feint (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a Darksong Knight can use her Perform (dance) skill to feint in combat as if it were the Bluff skill.

Favored Enemy (Ex): At 4th level, a Darksong Knight gains yochlols as a favored enemy, just as if she were a 1st-level ranger.

Unlike standard ranger favored enemies, which are classified by monster type, the Knight's favored enemy bonuses apply only to yochlols, not all kinds of demons.

Combat Dancing (Ex): At 8th level, a Darksong Knight with at least 5 ranks in Perform (dance) gains a +2 dodge bonus against attacks of opportunity.

If she uses Spring Attack, she gains a +2 circumstance bonus on the attack roll made as part of the maneuver.

TABLE 2-6:
DARKSONG KNIGHT SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Bonus feat, dancing feint
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Bonus feat, favored enemy yochlols +2
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Bonus feat, combat dancing

DUKAR (WIZARD)

These wizards of a dwindling order protect the tenuous peace under the Sea of Fallen Stars, working quietly and secretly to achieve their goals and rebuild their numbers. Many of their powers stem from living coral implanted under the skin of their hands.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Dukar substitution level, a character must be about to take his 5th, 10th, or 15th level of wizard.

The first time a character takes a Dukar substitution level, he must undergo a secret Dukar ritual that implants the living coral under the skin of his palms (see Dukar hand coral, page 63).

The coral does not interfere with using his hands in any way.

If the Dukar somehow loses this coral, he loses his coral-related powers, but if he is implanted again he immediately regains his full abilities.

CLASS SKILLS

Dukar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard wizard class plus Swim.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Dukar substitution levels.

Bonus Spells (Ex): There are four Dukar orders, each with two associated schools of magic.

Upon taking his first Dukar substitution level, a Dukar chooses one order and can never change it thereafter (similar to choosing a wizard specialty school).

Each time a Dukar substitution level is taken, a Dukar adds two spells to his spell book; these must be from one or both of his order's associated schools of magic (either one from each or both from the same).

A specialist wizard Dukar is not restricted to choosing these bonus spells from his school of specialization, but he cannot use them to acquire spells from his prohibited school (therefore, choosing an order that studies one of your prohibited schools is normally a bad choice).

The orders are as follows.

Order	Color	Schools of Magic
Jhimar*	Red	Enchantment, evocation
Kupav	Blue	Aburation, transmutation
Maalirn	Green	Conjuration, divination
Numos	White	Illusion, necromancy

*The order of Jhimar was destroyed centuries ago and its knowledge and traditions are lost.

This class feature replaces the standard wizard's ability to add two spells to his spellbook each time he gains a wizard level.

Coral Claw (Ex): At 5th level, a Dukar can extend the coral under his skin to form sharp spikes on his hand, giving him a claw attack that deals 1d4 points of damage.

The Dukar is automatically proficient in the coral weapon and can extend or retract the coral as a swift action.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat normally gained by a 5th-level wizard.

Coral Power: At 10th and 15th level, a Dukar learns how to use his implanted coral in different ways.

Each time this ability is gained, a Dukar chooses one ability from the following choices.

Each ability can be taken twice, with increasing effect.

Acid (Ex): A Dukar adds 1d4 points of acid damage to all claw attacks (including those made with his coral claw; see above).

The acid quickly decays and cannot be stored for later use. A Dukar and his gear are not harmed by his own coral's acid.

This ability functions automatically, though a Dukar can suspend or resume this ability as a free action.

If a Dukar selects the ability a second time, the acid damage increases to 1d8 points.

Armor (Ex): Three times per day as a standard action, a Dukar can make his coral extend hard growths across his skin, giving him a +1 enhancement bonus to his natural armor bonus to AC.

These growths crumble to dust after 10 minutes.

If a Dukar selects this ability a second time, the enhancement bonus to his natural armor increases to +2.

Color Spray (Sp): A Dukar's coral gains the ability to glow intensely in confusing patterns.

At will as a standard action, a Dukar can use this light as a color spray effect.

Using this ability requires the Dukar to have one hand free, uncovered, and able to make gestures.

The save DC of this ability is Intelligence-based.

If a Dukar takes this ability a second time, the save DC of this ability increases by 2.

Wound Transfer (Su): A Dukar's coral develops the ability to transfer life energy by touch from him to another creature, healing its wounds at the expense of his own health.

Each use of this ability heals the target of 1d6 points of damage and deals a like amount of damage to the Dukar.

If a Dukar chooses this ability a second time, he heals the target of 2d6 points of damage and takes a like amount of damage per use.

This ability can never provide a target more hit points than its full normal total +10.

Any hit points gained beyond its normal maximum are treated as temporary hit points that last for up to 1 hour.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat normally gained by a 10th- or 15th-level wizard.

TABLE 2-7:
DUKAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack	Fort	Ref	Will
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Coral claw, bonus spells
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Coral power, bonus spells
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Coral power, bonus spells

ETERNAL ORDER (PALADIN)

The primary duty of the Knights of the Eternal Order—Kelemvor's main order of paladins—is to hunt and destroy powerful undead.

They develop powerful undead-fighting powers by sacrificing other paladin abilities.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take an Eternal Order substitution level, a character must have Kelemvor as her patron deity and be about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Eternal Order substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Eternal Order substitution levels.

Corpsestrike (Su): An Eternal Order paladin can, as a swift action, surround her weapon with a visible gray aura of holy power that sheds light equal to a candle.

Any weapon so affected can ignore any damage reduction (other than DR #/epic) possessed by an undead creature, regardless of its source.

This aura lasts for a number of minutes equal to the paladin's class level.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's smite evil class feature.

Any time an Eternal Order paladin would later gain an extra smite evil attempt (such as at 5th level), she can instead use this ability one extra time per day.

Undead Knowledge (Ex): Each time an Eternal Order substitution level is taken, the character gains a cumulative +2 competence bonus on Knowledge (religion) checks concerning undead.

Eternal Vigor (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, an Eternal Order paladin can ignore the effects of negative levels bestowed upon her by an undead creature.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's divine health class feature.

Greater Turning (Su): At 6th level, an Eternal Order paladin gains the ability to perform a greater turning once per day in place of a regular turning, just as if she had access to the Sun domain.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's remove disease class feature normally gained at 6th level.

At any level where a standard paladin gains an extra daily use of remove disease, an Eternal Order paladin instead gains another daily use of her greater turning ability.

TABLE 2-8:
ETERNAL ORDER SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect evil , corpsestrike 1/day, undead knowledge
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of courage, eternal vigor, undead knowledge
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Greater turning, undead knowledge

FANGSHIELDS BARBARIAN (BARBARIAN)

Barbarians of the Fangshields have few worries about traps, because they spend most of their time in their home territory rather than crawling through dungeons. They train their bodies to their physical peak so they can be the shock troops of the organization, relying on their speed and strength to decimate enemy creatures quickly. Other monsters can fight in formation against massed enemies, but the Fangshields barbarians are skilled at charging opposing monsters and battering them with a few powerful hits.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Fangshields barbarian substitution level, a character must be a nonhumanoid creature about to take his 3rd, 5th, or 7th level of barbarian.

CLASS SKILLS

Fangshields barbarian substitution levels have the class skills of the standard barbarian class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Fangshields barbarian substitution levels.

Fast Charge (Ex): At 3rd level, a Fangshields barbarian gains a 10-foot enhancement bonus to his speed when he charges.

This applies to any type of movement the barbarian uses. This benefit replaces the trap sense class feature gained by a standard barbarian at 3rd level.

At any level where a standard barbarian gains a bonus to trap sense (6th, 9th, 12th, 15th, and 18th), a Fangshields barbarian instead increases the enhancement bonus to his charge speed by 10 feet.

Awesome Charge (Ex): At 5th level, a charging Fangshields barbarian in a rage can make an attack at the end of the charge as if he had the Awesome Blow feat (see page 303 of the Monster Manual), even if he does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

(Normally, Awesome Blow requires a standard action; this is a specific exception to that rule).

This benefit replaces the improved uncanny dodge class feature gained by a standard barbarian at 5th level.

Raging Vigor (Ex): At 7th level, a Fangshields barbarian gains the ability to direct his force of will inward, causing his injured body to heal itself.

As a standard action, he can spend one of his daily uses of rage to heal damage equal to twice his Hit Dice.

He can even use this ability if he is already raging.

This benefit replaces the standard barbarian's damage reduction gained at 7th level.

Instead, the Fangshields barbarian gains damage reduction 1/- at 10th level, and his damage reduction is treated as 1 point lower than normal from that point forward.

TABLE 2-9: FANGSHIELDS BARBARIAN SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Fast charge (+10 ft.)
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Awesome charge
7th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Raging vigor

FANGSHIELDS DRUID (DRUID)

Druids of the Fangshields are the healers and nurturers of the group, acting on behalf of their more monstrous allies who cannot interact with "civilized" humanoids without causing fear and panic.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Fangshields druid substitution level, a character must be a nonhumanoid creature about to take her 4th, 5th, or 7th level of druid.

CLASS SKILLS

Fangshields druid substitution levels have the class skills of the standard druid class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Fangshields druid substitution levels.

Spontaneous Curing (Su): At 4th level, a Fangshields druid can spontaneously convert prepared druid spells of 1st level or higher into cure light wounds spells, just as a cleric can.

Unlike a cleric, she cannot convert her prepared spells into any cure spell, just cure light wounds, nor can she apply metamagic feats to these spontaneously cast spells.

This benefit replaces the resist nature's lure class ability gained by a standard druid at 4th level.

Wild Shape Hands (Su): At 5th level, a Fangshields druid can use her wild shape ability to create simple dexterous hands if she doesn't have them already.

For example, a giant eagle, lammasu, or unicorn could use wild shape to change her feet, paws, or hooves into hands that work as well as human hands.

These hands lose any natural attacks they previously possessed, but otherwise still function like their original shape (a unicorn could walk or run at normal speed on her hoof-hands, for example).

She can make this change whenever she uses her wild shape, even when she assumes another form.

For example, a unicorn druid could take the form of a wolf with functional paw-hands.

This benefit is in addition to the standard druid's wild shape ability.

Wild Shape (Humanoid) (Su): At 7th level, a Fangshields druid can use her wild shape ability to assume a Medium humanoid form.

The humanoid form can resemble a human, dwarf, elf, or other Medium humanoid as the druid desires and has the appropriate racial traits for that race (according to the polymorph spell).

This ability is typically used by a druid to interact with humanoid settlements without drawing too much attention to herself.

However, the humanoid form retains some of a Fangshields druid's original monstrous appearance, much like how a lycanthrope in hybrid form has humanoid and animal features, resulting in a -4 penalty on Disguise checks made to pass as a humanoid.

The hybrid form can speak as well as a true humanoid, though the change of form does not give the druid knowledge of that form's language (a druid in the form of an elf wouldn't automatically know how to speak Elven, but could use her elf-mouth to speak any languages she did know).

Example: A giant eagle could wild shape into a humanlike humanoid, but she would resemble an eagle-human hybrid (much like an avoral guardinal); a treant taking the form of an elf hybrid would look like a tall elf with barklike skin and leaves in her hair (much like a dryad).

This benefit replaces the third use of wild shape per day gained by a standard druid at 8th level.

From this point forward, a Fangshields druid has one less daily use of wild shape than normal.

TABLE 2-10: FANGSHIELDS DRUID SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Spontaneous curing
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Wild shape hands
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Wild shape (humanoid)

FANGSHIELDS RANGER (RANGER)

Rangers of the Fangshields use their skills to patrol the wildlands, as well as to spy on and hunt evil creatures.

However, some of the standard ranger class features are useless to creatures that lack hands to use manufactured weapons.

Fangshields rangers learn other abilities to take advantage of their nonhumanoid anatomy, helping them become dangerous leaders of beasts and animals.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Fangshields ranger substitution level, a character must be a nonhumanoid creature about to take his 2nd, 4th, or 5th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Fangshields ranger substitution levels have the class skills of the standard ranger class plus Diplomacy.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Fangshields ranger substitution levels.

Combat Style (Ex): Often lacking hands, Fangshields rangers have a third option for their combat style: natural attacks.

If a ranger selects this combat style, at 2nd level he gains Multiattack (if he has more than one kind of natural attack) or Improved Natural Attack (if he has only one kind of natural attack) as a bonus feat.

At 6th level, a ranger with this combat style gains Weapon Focus for any one of his natural attack types.

At 11th level, a ranger with this combat option gains Weapon Focus for a second of his natural weapons, or Greater Weapon Focus for his natural weapon if he has only one kind.

A Fangshields ranger need not meet any of the normal prerequisites for these bonus feats.

Animal Companion (Ex): A Fangshields ranger uses the normal ranger animal companion rules, but because he is beastlike himself, he has a stronger bond with the animal. The ranger's effective druid level is treated as one-half his ranger level +2.

Lion and the Unicorn (Ex): At 5th level, a Fangshields ranger chooses an affinity for Nobanion or Lurue, even if he already has a patron deity (this doesn't cause a religious conflict).

If he chooses Nobanion, he gets a +1 sacred bonus to AC during the day; if he chooses Lurue, he gets a +1 sacred bonus to AC during the night.

He gets the benefit of this ability whether or not he is outside or knows the time of day.

This ability doesn't apply on a plane other than the Material Plane.

This benefit replaces the second favored enemy class feature gained by a standard ranger at 5th level.

TABLE 2-11: FANGSHIELDS RANGER SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Combat style
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Animal companion
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	Lion and the Unicorn

GOLDEN CUP (PALADIN)

Paladins who are members of the Order of the Golden Cup serve Ilmater and have dedicated themselves to healing the sick and weak and protecting the innocent.

Peaceful counterparts to the Companions of the Noble Heart (see page 100), they don't shy away from combating evil, but they allow their companions to actively hunt it down while they focus on protecting those who can't protect themselves.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Golden Cup substitution level, a character must have Ilmater as her patron deity and be about to take her 3rd, 4th, or 10th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Golden Cup substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Golden Cup substitution levels.

Defend the Weak (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a Golden Cup paladin can protect nearby allies in combat.

If she uses Combat Expertise, fights defensively, or uses the total defense action, she can grant the dodge bonus to AC from these actions to any single creature standing adjacent to her in addition to herself.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's aura of courage class feature.

Shield Other (Sp): Beginning at 4th level, a Golden Cup paladin can use shield other as a spell-like ability.

She needs no focus for this ability, but she must be able to touch the character.

She can use this ability a number of times per day equal to her Charisma bonus (minimum 1/day), though she can't affect more than one target simultaneously (a second use ends the duration of any previous use).

Her caster level is equal to her paladin level.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's turn undead class feature.

Expanded Healing (Su): Beginning at 10th level, a Golden Cup paladin can treat her paladin level as three higher than normal for the purpose of determining the maximum amount of healing she can bestow with her lay on hands ability per day.

She can also treat her caster level as three higher than normal for the purpose of any conjuration (healing) spell she casts.

This benefit replaces the third daily use of the smite evil ability gained by a standard paladin at 10th level.

From this point forward, she has one less daily use of smite evil than normal.

TABLE 2-12:
GOLDEN CUP SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Defend the weak
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Shield other
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Expanded healing

GOLDEN HANDS OF VERGADAIN (ROGUE)

The Golden Hands of Vergadain defend the interests of the dwarves, particularly in areas of commerce and trade.

Furthermore, the members of this organization work to eliminate threats to dwarven commercial ventures and recover goods stolen from dwarf merchants.

The training provided by the Golden Hands helps members track foes of the dwarves and deal with them appropriately.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Golden Hands substitution level, a character must be a dwarf, a member of the Golden Hands of Vergadain, and about to take his 2nd, 3rd, or 6th level of rogue.

CLASS SKILLS

A Golden Hand of Vergadain has the same selection of class skills as a standard rogue does, plus Survival.

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the Golden Hands substitution levels.

Favored Enemy (Ex): A Golden Hand of Vergadain can choose any organization in Faerûn that opposes dwarves as a favored enemy, in the same way that a ranger chooses favored enemies.

The Golden Hand gains a +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls against recognized members of the chosen organization, and a +2 bonus on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Survival checks when using these skills against such individuals.

This ability cannot be used to "detect" members of the chosen organization, and it applies only against actual members.

Thus, the Golden Hand cannot simply declare someone a member to gain the bonuses.

This benefit replaces the +1 bonus on Reflex saves that a standard rogue gains at 2nd level.

From this point forward, the Golden Hand's Reflex save modifier is 1 point lower than that of a standard rogue.

Track (@@): A Golden Hand of Vergadain gains Track as a bonus feat.

This benefit replaces the trap sense class feature that a standard rogue gains at 3rd level.

Any time thereafter that the Golden Hand would normally gain an increase in the trap sense ability, he gains a +1 bonus on any check made to track instead.

Urban Tracking (Ex): A Golden Hand of Vergadain can use the Gather Information skill to track targets in an urban setting.

The tracking DCs and results are the same, but the skill used is different.

This benefit replaces the +1 base attack bonus that a standard rogue gains at 6th level.

From this point forward, the Golden Hand's base attack bonus is 1 point lower than that of a standard rogue.

GOLDEN HANDS SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
2nd	+1	+0	+2	+0	Evasion, favored enemy
3rd	+2	+1	+3*	+1	Sneak attack +2d6, track
6th	+3	+2	+4*	+2	Urban tracking

*These values are each lowered by 1 if the character has also taken the 2nd Golden Hand substitution level.

GOLDEN LION (PALADIN)

The Order of the Golden Lion serves Torm and was created specifically to serve the Penance of Duty accepted by those of his faith.

Members of the order are a varied bunch but united in their devotion and strength of purpose. They develop special powers to defend good temples, defeat Faerûnian evils, and repair damage to the Weave. Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Golden Lion paladin substitution level, a character must have Torm as her patron deity, maintain the appearance of her armor and helm in accordance with the standards of the order, and be about to take her 1st, 4th, or 6th level of paladin.

Furthermore, as part of an ongoing atonement for their church's hostilities toward other good churches in the years preceding the Time of Troubles, the Golden Lions pledge to help rebuild and defend these churches.

Once per month each Golden Lion must perform a quest for or spend a day defending a good temple of another faith. The Golden Lion must follow orders from this temple as if they came from her own temple, but can disregard any order that conflicts with her own faith or that would certainly result in her death (the good faiths involved understand the boundaries of the Penance of Duty and won't ask for things they wouldn't ask of their own champions of the faith).

CLASS SKILLS

Golden Lion substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Golden Lion substitution levels.

Detect Magic (Sp): A Golden Lion can use a detect magic effect at will.

Her caster level is equal to her paladin level.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's detect evil ability.

Enemy of Strife (Su): Golden Lions are tasked with eliminating the Zhentarim and the churches of Bane and Cyric.

Beginning at 4th level, any smite evil attack used against a member of one of these groups (or a creature created or conjured by a member of one of these groups) automatically ignores any miss chance from concealment and overcomes damage reduction as if it were made with a good-aligned weapon.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's ability to turn undead.

Restore the Weave (Sp): At 6th level, once per day a Golden Lion can repair a 5-foot cube of dead magic or wild magic area, returning it to its normal function.

This ability only works if the paladin stands in an area of normal Weave that is adjacent to the damaged area (in other words, it cannot create an "island" of normal Weave within a damaged area).

Slowly but surely, the Golden Lions can repair large problem areas.

This spell-like ability is the equivalent of a 3rd-level spell.

This benefit replaces the remove disease class feature gained by a standard paladin at 6th level.

At any level where a standard paladin gains an extra daily use of remove disease, a Golden Lion can instead gain another daily use of her restore the Weave ability.

TABLE 2-13:
GOLDEN LION SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect magic , smite evil 1/day
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Enemy of strife
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Restore the Weave

HARMONIOUS KNIGHT (PALADIN)

Paladins of the Harmonious Order, called Harmonious Knights, serve Milil and do good works in his name, though they tend to be egotistical and overly sure of themselves.

Milil grants paladins of this order musical abilities to complement their fighting.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Harmonious Knight substitution level, a character must have Milil as his patron deity and be about to take his 1st, 6th, or 9th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

A Harmonious Knight adds Perform to the standard paladin's list of class skills.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the Harmonious Knight substitution levels.

Inspire Courage (Su): A Harmonious Knight can use songs to inspire courage in his allies and himself.

As a standard action, he can sing rallying or inspiring war songs that grant all allies that hear him a +1 morale bonus on attack and damage rolls.

This effect lasts as long as the Harmonious Knight sings, and for 5 rounds afterward.

This ability is usable once per day per paladin level, and Harmonious Knight substitution levels count as paladin levels for this purpose.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's detect evil ability.

Inspire Competence (Su): A 6th-level Harmonious Knight with at least 4 ranks in Perform can use singing to help an ally (but not himself) succeed at a task.

The ally must be within 30 feet and able to see and hear the Harmonious Knight.

The ally gains a +2 competence bonus on skill checks made with a particular skill as long as she continues to hear the Harmonious Knight's singing (maximum 2 minutes).

Inspire competence is a mind-affecting ability and is usable once per day.

This benefit replaces the remove disease ability that the standard paladin gains at 6th level.

From this point onward, the character has one fewer weekly uses of remove disease than a normal paladin of his level does.

Inspire Greatness (Su): A 9th-level Harmonious Knight with at least 5 ranks in Perform can sing to inspire greatness in himself or one chosen ally as a standard action.

The effect lasts for as long as the ally hears the Harmonious Knight sing and for 5 rounds thereafter.

The affected ally gains 2 bonus Hit Dice (d10s), the commensurate number of temporary hit points (applying the target's Constitution modifier, if any, to both extra Hit Dice), a +2 competence bonus on attack rolls, and a +1 competence bonus on Fortitude saves.

The bonus Hit Dice count as regular Hit Dice for determining the effect of spells such as sleep.

HARMONIOUS KNIGHT SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, inspire courage, smite evil 1/day	—	—	—	—
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Inspire competence	1	—	—	—
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	Inspire greatness	1	0	—	—

HIGH ONE WARRIOR–WIZARD (WIZARD)

Some paladins of Azuth belong to the Order of the Swords of the High One.

These rare warriors must progress as paladins before studying wizardry fulltime, since they cannot multiclass freely.

This dual focus fuses their paladin training with their wizardry.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a level of High One warrior-wizard, a character must be a member of the Swords of the High One, have at least two paladin levels, and be about to take her 2nd, 4th, or 5th level of wizard.

CLASS SKILLS

High One warrior-wizards have all the class skills that a standard wizard does, plus Diplomacy, Handle Animal, Heal, and Ride.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the High One warrior-wizard substitution levels.

Wizardly Smiting (Su): At 2nd level, a High One warrior-wizard can smite evil as a paladin (see page 44 of the Player's Handbook).

Her wizard levels stack with her paladin levels for the purpose of determining how many times per day she can use this ability.

This benefit replaces the 1st-level spell that a standard wizard gains at 2nd level.

From this point forward, the character has one fewer 1st-level spells that she can prepare per day than a standard wizard does.

Inspire greatness is a mind-affecting ability and is usable once per day.

This benefit replaces the second weekly use of remove disease that the standard paladin gains at 9th level.

From this point onward, the Harmonious Knight gains another daily use of inspire greatness or inspire competence (if he took the 6th Harmonious Knight level) instead of each additional weekly use of remove disease that he would otherwise have gained.

Reduce Armor Hindrances (Ex): The High One warrior-wizard's training in spellcasting allows her to ignore some of the hindrances of armor.

The arcane spell failure chance imposed by her armor is reduced by 20% (minimum 0%).

Thus, she can wear light armor without penalty, or medium or heavy armor with reduced penalties.

This benefit replaces the 2nd-level spell that a standard wizard gains at 4th level.

From this point forward, the character has one fewer 2nd-level spells that she can prepare per day than a standard wizard does.

Familiar Mount: If a High One warrior-wizard has access to a special mount based on her paladin levels, this creature gains the characteristics of a familiar as well as those of a paladin mount.

The High One warrior-wizard must dismiss her familiar (if she has one) to gain this benefit, but she takes no penalties for doing so.

She then uses her wizard level to determine the natural armor bonus, Intelligence, and special abilities that her familiar should have and applies those to her special paladin mount.

Her High One warrior-wizard levels count as wizard levels for this purpose.

The mount's natural armor bonuses from both sources stack, and it gains the greater of the two Intelligence scores. Thus, the mount has all the abilities of a special mount appropriate to the character's paladin level and a familiar appropriate to her wizard level.

Bonuses of the same type do not stack, except as noted above, and the mount cannot gain the same ability twice; it takes the better version to which it is entitled.

The High One warrior-wizard does not lose experience points if the familiar mount is killed because she can summon a new one according to the rules given for paladins.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat that a standard wizard gains at 5th level.

HIGH ONE WARRIOR-WIZARD SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Spells Per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Wizardly smiting	4	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Reduce armor hindrances	4	3*	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Familiar mount	4	3*	2*	1	—	—	—	—	—	—

*These values could be reduced by 1 if the High One warrior-wizard took the previous substitution levels.

HIN DISCIPLE (MONK)

Halfling monks of the Hin Fist are trained to use a foe's size against it.

Their fighting style emphasizes bringing down larger foes and evading their attacks.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Hin Disciple substitution level, a character must be a halfling member of the Hin Fist order and be about to take his 1st, 6th, or 9th level of monk.

CLASS SKILLS

A Hin Disciple has the same selection of class skills as a standard monk does.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the Hin Disciple substitution levels.

Bonus Feats: At 1st level, a Hin Disciple monk may choose either Underfoot Combat or Stunning Fist as a bonus feat, instead of Improved Grapple.

At 2nd level, he can choose between Improved Trip and Combat Reflexes as a bonus feat.

He need not meet the prerequisites for these feats.

The Hin Disciple does not gain a bonus feat at 6th level.

Underfoot Combat: You can move into or through a space occupied by a Large or larger foe without provoking attacks of opportunity.

While you are in a square occupied by a Large or larger creature, you gain a +4 cover bonus to AC against all attacks, even those made by the creature whose space you occupy. Blur of Motion (Ex): A 6th-level Hin Disciple with at least 5 ranks in Tumble can use the total defense option and still make a single attack in the same round.

Blur of motion is a full-round action that can be used only against Large or larger foes.

This benefit replaces the choice of bonus feats that a standard monk gains at 6th level.

The Harder They Fall (Ex): A 9th-level Hin Disciple monk who has taken Improved Trip may grant allies some of that feat's benefit.

When the Hin Disciple trips a foe whose square he occupies, every ally within melee reach of the downed foe may immediately make a single attack at its full attack bonus on that opponent.

Each ally also gains the +4 bonus on attack rolls for attacking a prone foe.

This attack is made on the Hin Disciple's turn and does not count against the number of attacks that the allies can make on their own turns.

No combination of feats or abilities can grant a second attack by any ally during the Hin Disciple's turn.

This benefit replaces the standard monk's improved evasion ability.

Furthermore, the Hin Disciple may never gain improved evasion from any class in the future.

HIN DISCIPLE SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Flurry of Blows Attack Bonus	Unarmed	AC Bonus	Unarmed
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save			Base Damage*		Speed Bonus
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Bonus feat,	-2/-2 flurry of blows, improved unarmed strike	1d4	+0	+0 ft.
6th	+4	+5	+5	+5	Blur of motion, slow fall 30 ft.	+3/+3	1d6	+1	+20 ft.
9th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	The harder they fall	+6/+6/+1	1d8	+1	+30 ft.

*Base damage is for Small monks, since only Small monks qualify for these levels.

HOLY JUDGE (PALADIN)

This group of Tyr-worshipping paladins is focused primarily on its god's lawful aspects.

The Holy Judges hunt and punish criminals and lawbreakers, and they have a fervent hatred for devils, which they see as a terrible perversion of a lawful society.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Holy Judge substitution level, a character must have Tyr as her patron deity and be about to take her 1st, 4th, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Holy Judge substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class plus Knowledge (the planes).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Holy Judge substitution levels.

Favored Enemy (Ex): At 1st level, a Holy Judge gains devils as a favored enemy, just as if he were a 1st-level ranger. Unlike standard ranger favored enemies, which are classified by monster type, a Holy Judge's favored enemy bonuses apply only to devils, not all kinds of evil outsiders. At 5th level, and every five levels thereafter, the bonus granted by the Holy Judge's favored enemy class feature improves by 2.

This increase has no effect on any other favored enemies the Holy Judge might have.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's smite evil class feature.

Censure Devil (Su): A Holy Judge on his home plane can utter words of censuring that can daze a devil within 30 feet.

The devil must succeed on a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 paladin level + Cha modifier) or be dazed for 1 round.

A Holy Judge can use this ability a number of times per day equal to three + his Charisma modifier.

Zone of Truth (Sp): A Holy Judge can use a zone of truth effect once per week, using his paladin level as his caster level.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin remove disease class feature.

If the Holy Judge would later gain an extra weekly use of remove disease, he instead gains an extra weekly use of zone of truth.

TABLE 2-14:
HOLY JUDGE SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect evil , favored enemy devils +2
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Censure devil
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Zone of truth 1/week

LION LEGIONNAIRE (PALADIN)

The mighty wemic paladins of Nobanion are called the Legion of Lions; they are small in number but great in their bravery.

Unlike most of Lord Firemane's wemic followers, they travel outside the Shaar in search of evil, and partly because of their efforts Nobanion's faith has attracted humanoid followers.

Though most Lion Legionnaires are wemics, a small number are humanoids, and at least one lammasu is a member of this elite group.

Rather than traditional paladin abilities, they develop powers relating to Nobanion's strengths and tactics.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Lion Legionnaire substitution level, a character must have Nobanion as his patron deity and be about to take his 3rd, 4th, or 5th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Lion Legionnaire substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class plus Knowledge (nature).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Lion Legionnaire substitution levels.

Firemane Aura (Su): Once per day a Lion Legionnaire can create an aura of holy flame around his body.

As this ability activates, the paladin's hair or mane (if any) momentarily turns into a brilliant golden flame.

Any evil creature striking a Lion Legionnaire with a natural weapon, or a melee weapon that is not a reach weapon, takes damage equal to the Legionnaire's paladin level.

Half of this damage is fire damage, but the other half results directly from divine power and is therefore not subject to being reduced by resistance to fire.

This aura lasts for 1 minute.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's aura of courage class feature.

Wild Fighting (Su): Lion Legionnaires develop a fighting style that gives them extra attacks at the cost of accuracy.

As a free action, a Lion Legionnaire can enter a state of wild fighting for 1 round.

During this round, a Legionnaire can make one extra attack with any one melee weapon (including natural weapons), but all attacks made during the round (including the extra attack) take a -2 penalty.

A Lion Legionnaire must use a full attack action to benefit from wild fighting.

A Lion Legionnaire can use this ability a number of times per day equal to three + his Charisma modifier.

This benefit replaces the turn undead class feature gained by a standard paladin at 4th level.

Flying Lion (Su): At 5th level, a Lion Legionnaire gains the ability to grow eagle's wings, as Nobanion himself sometimes does in battle.

Once per day as a full-round action, the Legionnaire grows feathered wings appropriate to the size of his body.

The wings remain for up to 10 minutes per paladin level, though he can dismiss them as a free action.

He can fly with the wings at his normal land speed, with poor maneuverability.

Nonleonine creatures who use this ability temporarily gain a lionlike appearance while it is used (catlike eyes, a thick mane of hair, and larger teeth).

This benefit replaces the special mount class feature gained by a standard paladin at 5th level (Nobanion's wemic paladins have no need for a quadruped mount to carry them into battle).

TABLE 2-15:
LION LEGIONNAIRE SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Firemane aura
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Wild fighting
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Smite evil 2/day, flying lion

MYSTIC FIRE KNIGHT (PALADIN)

The Knights of the Mystic Fire serve Mystra by guarding her temples and questing for lost magical troves. They develop increased ability to use magic, counter hostile magic, and defeat enemy spellcasters.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Mystic Fire Knight substitution level, a character must have Mystra as her patron deity and be about to take her 4th, 5th, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Mystic Fire Knight substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin plus Knowledge (arcana) and Spellcraft.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Mystic Fire Knight substitution levels.

Bonus Spell (Su): At 4th level, a Mystic Fire Knight gains a bonus 1st-level paladin spell slot as if from a high Wisdom score.

At 8th level, she gains a bonus 2nd-level paladin spell slot, at 11th level she gains a bonus 3rd-level paladin spell slot, and at 14th level she gains a bonus 4th-level paladin spell slot.

This benefit replaces the turn undead class feature gained by a standard paladin at 4th level.

Improved Spellcasting (Ex): When casting paladin spells, a Mystic Fire Knight can treat her caster level as equal to one-half her paladin level +2.

If she also has arcane spellcasting ability from another class, she can add her caster level from that class to this value to determine her paladin caster level.

Smite Evil (Su): In addition to the normal effect, when a Mystic Fire Knight of 5th level or higher hits a creature with her smite evil attack, that creature finds it temporarily difficult to cast spells or use spell completion or spell trigger items.

For 1 round, any attempt to complete one of these actions requires a successful Concentration check (DC 10 + paladin's level + Cha modifier + spell level); failure means that the action fails.

If a spell was being cast, the spell or spell slot is lost; if a magic item was being activated, the attempt merely fails. Multiple smite evil hits on the same creature don't have a cumulative effect.

This class feature augments, but does not replace, the standard paladin's smite evil class feature.

Spellshatter (Su): Once per day starting at 6th level, a Mystic Fire Knight can choose to deliver a targeted greater dispel magic effect with a melee attack.

The decision to use this ability must be made before the attack is rolled; if the attack misses, the effect is wasted. If the attack hits, treat this as if the Mystic Fire Knight had cast a targeted greater dispel magic on the creature struck, using her paladin level (plus any arcane caster level she might have from another class) as her caster level, up to a maximum of +20.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's remove disease class feature.

If the Mystic Fire Knight would later gain an extra weekly use of remove disease, she instead gains an extra daily use of spellshatter.

TABLE 2—16: MYSTIC FIRE KNIGHT SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack	Fort	Ref	Will
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Bonus spell, improved spellcasting
5th	+5	+5	+1	+1	Smite evil 2/day, special mount
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Spellshatter

NOBLE HEART (PALADIN)

The Companions of the Noble Heart are aggressive knights in the service of Ilmater who have dedicated themselves to eliminating the evil of those who are known to enjoy the torturing and suffering of others.

In particular, they oppose members of the church of Loviatar and destroy them and their temples whenever possible.

When servants of the other members of the Triad crusade against Loviatar's servants, Noble Heart knights often join with them.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Noble Heart substitution level, a character must have Ilmater as her patron deity and be about to take her 3rd, 4th, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Noble Heart substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class plus Survival.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Noble Heart substitution levels.

Tenacious Tracker (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a Noble Heart paladin gains the ability to follow the trail of those cruel enough to torture and maim others.

She receives Track as a bonus feat.

She gains a +10 competence bonus on Survival checks made to track those who have Loviatar as a patron deity. Furthermore, whenever she physically touches the flesh of one who has been injured within the previous hour by someone who has Loviatar as his patron deity, she receives a clear mental image of that person's true appearance. This benefit replaces the standard paladin's divine health class feature.

Sunder the Sadistic (Su): At 4th level, a Noble Heart paladin gains the ability to reduce to rubble objects and structures dedicated to evil.

Whenever she attacks an object owned by a character who has Loviatar as a patron deity, or an object that is part of a temple or other structure dedicated to Loviatar, she can ignore the object's hardness.

She can also use her smite evil class ability against such objects as if they were evil creatures.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's ability to turn undead.

Delay Poison (Sp): The enemies of the Noble Heart paladin frequently employ poison in their efforts to spread evil and cruelty.

Starting at 6th level, a Noble Heart paladin can use a delay poison effect once per week using her paladin level as her caster level.

This benefit replaces the remove disease class feature gained by a standard paladin.

If she would later gain extra weekly uses of remove disease, the Noble Heart paladin instead gains extra weekly uses of delay poison.

TABLE 2-17:
NOBLE HEART SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of courage, tenacious tracker
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Sunder the sadistic
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Delay poison 1/week

PHOENIX DISCIPLE (MONK)

The Disciples of the Phoenix are unusual lawful good Kossuthan monks.

They are extremely disciplined and take some of their beliefs to painful extremes.

Obsessed with the power of fire to purify, they have developed strange monk abilities based on that concept.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Phoenix Disciple substitution level, a character must be lawful good, have Kossuth as his patron deity, and be about to take his 1st, 3rd, or 12th level of monk.

CLASS SKILLS

Phoenix Disciple substitution levels have the class skills of the standard monk class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Phoenix Disciple substitution levels.

Purifying Flame (Su): A Phoenix Disciple can transform his ki into purifying fire.

Once per round, a Phoenix Disciple can add 1d6 points of fire damage to any unarmed strike.

The decision to use this ability must be made before the attack is rolled; if the attack misses, the power is wasted.

A Phoenix Disciple can use this ability a number of times per day equal to his monk level.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard 1st-level monk.

Resistance to Fire (Ex): At 3rd level, a Phoenix Disciple develops a minor tolerance for fire.

He gains resistance to fire 5.

This benefit replaces the still mind class feature gained by a standard monk at 3rd level.

Fire Stride (Sp): At 12th level, a Phoenix Disciple gains the ability to use a fire stride effect (see page 69 of the FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting) once per day, using his monk level as his caster level.

This benefit replaces the abundant step class feature gained by a standard monk at 12th level.

TABLE 2-18:
PHOENIX DISCIPLE SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Flurry of blows, purifying flame, unarmed strike
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Resistance to fire
12th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Fire stride, slow fall 60 ft.

PURPLE STAFF (CLERIC)

The Followers of the Purple Staff are a group of divine spellcasters trying to create a benign theocracy in the eastern part of the Dragon Coast.

These clerics carry a great deal of political power within the borders of the so-called "Holy Realm" and use their magic to aid the citizens of their new land.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Purple Staff substitution level, a character must have Chauntea, Helm, Lathander, Nobanion, Selûne, or Sune as his patron deity and be about to take his 4th, 6th, or 9th level of cleric.

CLASS SKILLS

Purple Staff substitution levels have the class skills of the standard cleric class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Purple Staff substitution levels.

Spontaneous Faith Healing (Su): At 4th level, a Purple Staff cleric gains the ability to spontaneously convert prepared cleric spells of 1st level or higher to cast faith healing in the same way she can convert them to cure spells.

Armed with this power, a Purple Staff cleric is easily able to deal with even the most severe injuries that common folk might suffer.

This class feature replaces the 2nd-level spell slot gained by a standard cleric at 4th level.

From this point forward, a Purple Staff cleric has one less 2nd-level spell slot than normal.

Imbue with Spell Ability (Sp): At 6th level, a Purple Staff cleric can use an imbue with spell ability effect to imbue a creature with a single 0- or 1st-level spell she has prepared. She can use this ability a number of times per day equal to one-half her class level.

With this power, an adventuring Purple Staff cleric can leave nonspellcaster lieutenants in town to act on her behalf in emergencies or to spread out her spells to help defend a larger area (though she is not limited to these purposes, of course).

This class feature replaces the 3rd-level spell slot gained by a standard cleric at 6th level.

From this point forward, a Purple Staff cleric has one less 3rd-level spell slot than normal.

Turn Invader (Su): At 9th level, a Purple Staff cleric is so devoted to protecting his homeland that he can use his ability to turn undead to frighten enemies of the Holy Realm.

When standing within the borders of his country, he can turn hostile monsters or enemies of the Holy Realm as a good-aligned cleric turns undead.

He cannot destroy such creatures outright using this ability.

TABLE 2-19:
PURPLE STAFF SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Spontaneous faith healing
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Imbue with spell ability
9th	+6/+11	+6	+3	+6	Turn invader

RED FALCON (PALADIN)

Members of the Order of the Red Falcon serve the Red Knight and have earned fame in Tethyr for their heroics. They have a reputation for being excellent military tacticians, and even their followers are a cut above the norm.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Red Falcon substitution level, a character must have the Red Knight as her patron deity and be about to take her 2nd, 4th, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Red Falcon substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class plus Knowledge (history).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Red Falcon substitution levels.

Brilliant Strategy (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, a Red Falcon can draw upon her instinct for battle to give her an amazing ability to predict the imminent actions of her enemies and her best options for taking advantage of those actions.

Activating this ability is an immediate action; it grants her an insight bonus to AC equal to her Charisma bonus (if any) for 1 round.

A Red Falcon can use this ability a number of times per day equal to one-half her class level.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's divine grace class feature.

Expanded Spell List: At 4th level, a Red Falcon adds augury (2nd level), deathwatch (1st level), and status (2nd level) to her paladin spell list.

Military Knowledge (Ex): Each time a Red Falcon substitution level is taken, the character gains a cumulative +2 competence bonus on Knowledge checks concerning military history or strategy.

Turn Undead (Su): A Red Falcon is not as skilled at turning undead as a normal paladin.

She can only use this ability a number of times per day equal to her Charisma modifier.

Spontaneous Extend Spell (Su): At 6th level, once per day a Red Falcon can cast one of her spells as if she had prepared it with the Extend Spell feat.

Doing this does not require a higher-level slot or increase the casting time for the spell.

This class feature replaces the 1st-level spell slot normally gained at 6th level.

From this point forward, a Red Falcon has one less 1st-level paladin spell slot than normal.

Trained Militia: At 6th level, due to her leadership and skill at war, all cohorts and followers of the Red Falcon are treated as if they had Martial Weapon Proficiency in a single weapon of the Red Falcon's choice.

This benefit remains as long as the cohorts and followers remain in her service and as long as she meets with them at least once a month to refresh their training.

If more than a month goes by without such a meeting, the cohorts and followers lose this proficiency until she has the opportunity to train them again.

A Red Falcon can grant different weapon proficiencies to different cohorts and followers (they don't all have to gain longsword proficiency, for example).

TABLE 2-20: RED FALCON PALADIN
SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Brilliant strategy, lay on hands, military knowledge
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Expanded spell list, military knowledge, turn undead
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Military knowledge, remove disease 1/week, spontaneous extend spell, trained militia

RUBY ROSE KNIGHT (PALADIN)

Members of Sune's order of paladins, the Sisters and Brothers of the Ruby Rose, are known for their charm, beauty, and aversion to ugliness and evil.

They use the power of love to destroy evil and hideous things, and they draw strength from their many romances.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Ruby Rose Knight substitution level, a character must have Sune as her patron and be about to take her 3rd, 6th, or 12th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Ruby Rose Knight substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class plus Bluff and Perform (dance, oratory, sing, and string instruments).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Ruby Rose Knight substitution levels.

Enduring Personality (Su): A 3rd-level Ruby Rose Knight is immune to any effect that would deal Charisma damage or Charisma drain.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's divine health class feature.

Expanded Spell List: At 3rd level, a Ruby Rose Knight adds love bite (see page 56) to her paladin spell list (even though she can't actually cast the spell herself until at least 4th level).

Heroism (Sp): At 6th level, a Ruby Rose Knight can use a heroism effect once per week, using her class level as her caster level.

She can't use this spell-like ability on herself, only on another creature.

This benefit replaces the remove disease class feature gained by a standard paladin.

If she would later gain extra weekly uses of remove disease, a Ruby Rose Knight instead gains extra weekly uses of heroism.

Heroic Rapture (Su): At 12th level, once per day a Ruby Rose Knight can spend a full-round action embracing another creature to grant it great bravery.

The affected creature gains a +4 morale bonus on attack rolls, saves, and skill checks, immunity to fear effects, and a number of temporary hit points equal to the Ruby Rose Knight's paladin level.

The effect lasts for 1 minute.

This benefit replaces the 3rd-level spell slot gained by a standard paladin at 12th level.

From this point on, a Ruby Rose Knight has one less 3rd-level spell slot than normal.

TABLE 2-21: RUBY ROSE KNIGHT PALADIN SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of courage, enduring personality, expanded spell list
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Heroism 1/week
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Heroic rapture

SHADOW CLOAK KNIGHT SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		1st	2nd	3rd	4th
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Favored enemy	0	—	—	—
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Hide in plain sight	1	—	—	—
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	One with the darkness	1	0	—	—

SHADOW SWORD (RANGER)

Rangers of the Knights of the Shadow Sword patrol Myth Drannor and attempt to rid it of the evils living there.

SHADOW CLOAK KNIGHT (PALADIN)

For many decades, the gnome paladins belonging to the Knights of the Shadow Cloak have worked to eliminate evil humanoids.

To minimize the possibility of retaliation against gnome communities, they have developed ways to work in secret. Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Shadow Cloak Knight substitution level, a character must be a gnome, a member of the Knights of the Shadow Cloak, and about to take her 4th, 6th, or 9th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

A Shadow Cloak Knight has the same class skills as a standard paladin does, plus Hide and Move Silently. Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the Shadow Cloak Knight substitution levels.

Favored Enemy (Ex): A Shadow Cloak Knight paladin trains to fight the gnomes' traditional enemies and learns special tactics to defeat them.

She gains humanoids as her favored enemy type and can choose any of the humanoid subtypes indicated for rangers on page 47 of the Player's Handbook.

The Shadow Cloak Knight gains a +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls against her favored enemy and a +2 bonus on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Survival checks when using these skills against creatures of this type.

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): A 6th-level Shadow Cloak Knight can use her Hide skill even when she has nothing to hide behind, or when she is being observed.

To do so, she must be within 10 feet of any area of shadowy illumination in which she could hide, or in the dark.

She cannot hide in her own shadow, and she can hide in the shadow of a creature only if it is Large or larger.

She cannot use a creature's own shadow to hide from it.

One with the Darkness (Sp): Once per day, a Shadow Cloak Knight paladin can become invisible, as if using the 2nd level sorcerer/wizard spell invisibility.

Caster level equals paladin level, and Shadow Cloak Knight substitution levels count as paladin levels for this purpose.

They use their stealth and spell-power to aid the fighters of their order.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Shadow Sword substitution level, a character must have Shaundakul as his patron and be about to take his 3rd, 6th, or 8th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Shadow Sword substitution levels have the class skills of the standard ranger class plus Knowledge (history).

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Shadow Sword substitution levels.

Walk in Silence (Su): At 3rd level, a Shadow Sword gains the ability to move with amazing silence, receiving a +5 circumstance bonus on Move Silently checks for 1 round. The ranger activates this ability with a swift action and can use it a number of times per day equal to one-half his ranger level.

This ability only functions if the ranger is wearing light or no armor and carrying no more than a light load.

This benefit replaces the Endurance bonus feat gained by a standard ranger at 3rd level.

Bane Weapon (Su): At 6th level, a Shadow Sword learns how to temporarily turn any weapon he wields into a bane weapon (see page 224 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

Activating this ability requires a full-round action, at which point the ranger must choose the type (and subtype, if appropriate) of creature against which the bane special ability will apply.

This choice must match a creature type (and subtype) of one of the ranger's favored enemies.

The effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to one-half the ranger's class level, and can be used a number of times per day equal to one + his Wisdom modifier (minimum 1/day). The bane ability only functions while the weapon is in the ranger's hands.

The ranger can have no more than one weapon affected by this class feature at any time, nor can any weapon benefit from more than one application of this class feature (in either case, a second use immediately ends any previous effect).

This benefit replaces the improved combat style class feature normally gained at 6th level.

If a Shadow Sword ranger later gains combat style mastery, he instead gains improved combat style.

Portal Analysis (Su): At 8th level, a Shadow Sword gains the ability to sense portals and manipulate them in strange ways.

He automatically detects any portal within 10 feet and can thereafter study any portal within 10 feet as if using analyze portal (see page 66 of the FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting).

If he is able to activate the portal, once per day the Shadow Sword can enter it as if using the portal well spell (see page 56).

This benefit replaces the swift tracker class feature gained by a standard ranger at 8th level.

TABLE 2-22:
SHADOW SWORD SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Walk in silence
6th	+6	+5	+5	+1	Bane weapon
8th	+8/+3	+6	+6	+2	Portal analysis

SHOOTING STAR (RANGER)

Rangers of the Order of the Shooting Star (see Knights of the Mystic Fire, page 102) serve Mystra by scouting, spying, and dealing with fiends and monstrosities created by magical experimentation.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Shooting Star substitution level, a character must have Mystra as her patron deity and be about to take her 3rd, 4th, or 8th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Shooting Star substitution levels have the class skills of the standard ranger class plus Knowledge (arcana) and Spellcraft.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Shooting Star ranger substitution levels.

Weavespeak (Sp): Because the members of this order need to report their findings over long distances, starting at 3rd level a Shooting Star develops the power to use the Weave itself to transmit short messages.

Once per day the character can transmit a message of twenty-five words or less to the nearest cleric, paladin, or ranger of Mystra (the Shooting Star can't choose the recipient).

This ability only functions where the Weave is active, and it cannot jump planar boundaries; the ranger knows if either condition would prevent the message from reaching its target.

It is otherwise the equivalent of a sending spell.

This benefit replaces the Endurance bonus feat gained by a standard ranger at 3rd level.

Bonus Spells (Su): At 4th level, a Shooting Star gains a bonus 1st-level ranger spell slot as if from a high Wisdom score.

At 8th level she gains a bonus 2nd-level ranger spell slot, at 11th level she gains a bonus 3rd-level ranger spell slot, and at 14th level she gains a bonus 4th-level ranger spell slot.

This benefit replaces the animal companion class feature gained by a standard ranger at 4th level.

Improved Spellcasting (Ex): When casting ranger spells, a Shooting Star can treat her caster level as equal to one-half her ranger level +2.

If she also has arcane spellcasting ability from another class, she can add her caster level from that class to this value to determine her caster level.

Expanded Spell List: At 8th level, a Shooting Star adds see invisibility (2nd level) and word of recall (4th level) to her ranger spell list.

This replaces the standard ranger's swift tracker class feature.

TABLE 2-23:
SHOOTING STAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack	Fort	Ref	Will
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Weavespeak
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Bonus spells, improved spellcasting
8th	+8/+3	+6	+6	+2	Bonus spells, expanded spell list
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+7	+3	Bonus spells
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+9	+4	Bonus spells

VIGILANT EYE OF HELM (PALADIN)

This paladin order of Helm is growing rapidly and impressing the common folk with its members' humility and self-sacrifice.

The Vigilant Eyes of Helm defend the innocent from threats and develop special ways of recognizing danger and protecting others.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Vigilant Eye substitution level, a character must have Helm as her patron deity and be about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 4th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Vigilant Eye substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Vigilant Eye substitution levels.

Know Greatest Enemy (Su): A Vigilant Eye automatically knows which enemy in her presence is the most powerful (in game terms, which enemy has the highest CR).

This benefit applies only to enemies that she can see that are within 60 feet of her.

She does not need to use an action to know this, and this sense updates automatically if current foes leave or die or if new opponents arrive.

She doesn't know why the most powerful enemy is such (for example, she wouldn't know that the most powerful orc in a patrol was a 3rd-level barbarian), just that it is so.

She doesn't know exactly how tough this enemy is, but does know if that enemy is significantly more powerful than her (in game terms, if its CR is 4 or more above her effective character level).

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's detect evil class feature.

Expanded Spell List: A Vigilant Eye adds see invisibility (2nd level) to her paladin spell list.

Vigilant Aid (Su): Starting at 3rd level, when a Vigilant Eye uses the aid another special attack in melee combat to give an ally a bonus to his AC, she only has to spend a move action rather than a standard action.

She can use more than one aid another special attack in a single round, but no ally can be aided more than once per round in this fashion.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's divine health class feature.

Awesome Smite (Su): At 4th level, a Vigilant Eye gains the ability to repel enemies with powerful holy power.

As a standard action, she can spend a daily smite evil attempt and strike an evil creature as if she had the Awesome Blow feat (see page 303 of the Monster Manual), even if she does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

Note that the paladin doesn't also gain the normal benefit of smite evil.

She is treated as if one size category larger than normal for determining which creatures she can affect with this ability.

If she accidentally uses this ability against a creature that isn't evil, she deals normal damage but the Awesome Blow effect is not triggered, and it still counts as one of her daily uses of smite evil.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's turn undead class feature.

TABLE 2-24:
VIGILANT EYE SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack	Fort	Ref	Will
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, expanded spell list, know greatest enemy, smite evil 1/day
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of courage, vigilant aid
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Awesome smite

WARY SWORDKNIGHT (PALADIN)

Members of Arvoreen's Marchers kept halfling villages safe during Tethyr's Interregnum; the Wary Swordknights are the paladins of the order, and are known for their martial prowess and vigilant nature.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Wary Swordknight substitution level, a character must be a halfling, have Arvoreen as her patron deity, and be about to take her 3rd, 4th, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Wary Swordknight substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin plus Listen and Spot.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the Wary Swordknight substitution levels.

Tougher than Small (Ex): When a Wary Swordknight is subject to a size modifier or special size modifier for an opposed check (such as during grapple checks, bull rush attempts, and trip attempts), she is treated as one size larger if doing so is advantageous to her.

A Wary Swordknight is also considered to be one size larger when determining whether a creature's special attacks based on size (such as improved grab or swallow whole) can affect her.

The benefits of this class feature stack with effects that change her size category.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's aura of courage class feature.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 4th level, a Swordknight gains uncanny dodge (as the barbarian class feature of the same name).

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's turn undead class feature.

Haste (Sp): At 6th level, a Swordknight becomes able to use a haste effect on herself once per day.

Her caster level for this ability is equal to one-half her paladin level.

This benefit replaces the 1st-level spell slot gained at 6th level, as well as the remove disease class feature normally gained at 6th level.

From this point forward, a Wary Swordknight has one less weekly use of remove disease than normal.

TABLE 2-25: WARY SWORDKNIGHT SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Divine health, tougher than small
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Uncanny dodge
6th	+6	+5	+2	+2	Haste (self) 1/day

WAYWARD WARDEN (PALADIN)

Wayward Warden paladins dedicate their lives to defending halfling communities and trade caravans. Because they use both stealth and honorable confrontation to achieve their goals, paladins in this organization train in abilities that use the sneakiness of their companions to the group's advantage.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

WAYWARD WARDEN SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		1st	2nd	3rd	4th
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Distracting presence, divine health	0	—	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Special mount, use your allies	0	—	—	—
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Commanding presence	1	1	—	—

ZHENTARIM SOLDIER (FIGHTER)

The Zhentarim work across Faerûn to bring other realms under their influence and eventual control.

To that end, Zhentarim Soldiers learn that intimidation is as effective for coercing the masses as physical force is.

Hit Die: d10.

To take a Wayward Warden substitution level, a character must be a halfling, a member of the Wayward Wardens organization, and about to take her 3rd, 5th, or 10th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

A Wayward Warden has the same class skills as a standard paladin does.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the Wayward Warden substitution levels.

Distracting Presence (Su): When confronting evil, a Wayward Warden can focus the attention of her foes on herself, causing each of them to take a -4 penalty on Spot and Listen checks while she is present.

This benefit replaces the aura of courage class feature gained by a standard paladin at 3rd level.

Use Your Allies (Ex): When a Wayward Warden is flanking a foe at least one size category larger than herself, she deals an extra +1d6 points of damage on every attack.

This extra damage applies even if the foe cannot be flanked or is immune to flanking, but it does not apply when the foe is simply denied its Dexterity bonus.

Use your allies is otherwise the same as the rogue sneak attack ability (see page 50 in the Player's Handbook).

This benefit replaces the second daily use of smite evil that a standard paladin gains at 5th level.

From this point onward, she has one fewer daily use of smite evil than a standard paladin does.

Commanding Presence (Su): A 10th-level Wayward Warden can influence the battlefield with her very presence.

Once per day, as a standard action, she can grant her allies (but not herself) a competence bonus on attack rolls equal to her Charisma bonus (maximum +5).

Only allies within 60 feet of the Wayward Warden that can see and hear her are eligible to receive this bonus.

It lasts for 1 round per paladin level that the character possesses, and Wayward Warden substitution levels count as paladin levels for this purpose.

This benefit replaces the 3rd daily use of the smite evil ability that a standard paladin gains at 10th level.

From this point forward, she has one fewer daily use of smite evil than a normal paladin does, or two fewer uses if she also took the 5th-level Wayward Warden substitution level.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a Zhentarim Soldier substitution level, a character must be a member of the Zhentarim and about to take his 3rd, 5th, or 9th level of fighter.

CLASS SKILLS

A Zhentarim Soldier fighter has the same selection of class skills as a standard fighter does, plus Bluff and Diplomacy.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the Zhentarim Soldier substitution levels.

Bonus Feat: A Zhentarim Soldier gains Skill Focus (Intimidation) as a bonus feat at 3rd level.

Extended Intimidation (Ex): A target successfully intimidated by a 5th-level Zhentarim Soldier suffers lasting effects.

Instead of ending when the Zhentarim Soldier leaves, as is normal for the Intimidate skill, the intimidation effect lasts for 24 hours after his departure.

Thereafter, the target's attitude toward the Zhentarim Soldier shifts to unfriendly, but a lingering fear remains. Whenever the Zhentarim Soldier returns to someone he has previously intimidated, he gains a +4 bonus on his Intimidate check to re-establish the effect.

Swift Demoralization (Ex): A 9th-level Zhentarim Soldier can use the demoralize opponent aspect of the Intimidate skill as a swift action rather than as a standard action.

ZHENTARIM SOLDIER SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Bonus feat
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Extended intimidation
9th	+9	+6	+3	+3	Swift demoralization

CITYSCAPE (3.5)

CITY SOUL (DRUID)

The most powerful druids can transform themselves into elementals, representatives of the building blocks of reality itself.

A few urban druids, truly taken with the nature and order of the city, prefer more mundane forms.

Class: Druid.

Level: 16th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the wild shape (elemental) ability, or later improvements to that class feature.

Benefit: At 16th level, the druid can use her wild shape (or city-shape) ability to become a Small, Medium, or Large animated object (MM 13) once per day.

These forms are in addition to her normal wild shape uses. In addition to the normal effects of wild shape, she gains all the animated object's extraordinary abilities, as well as many traits of the construct type (low-light vision, darkvision to 60 feet, and immunity to critical hits, poison, disease, paralysis, and stunning).

The precise form must be an object common to the city environment, such as a wagon, a statue, or the like.

(Talk to your DM in advance to determine what sorts of forms are available and what are off-limits).

The druid can assume the form of an animated object twice per day at 18th level, and three times per day at 20th level.

At 20th level, she can use this ability to turn into a Huge animated object.

Special: The Natural Spell feat functions with city soul just as it does standard wild shape.

CITY-SHAPE (DRUID)

The ability to transform into an animal is the hallmark of the druid, so much so that even many urban druids choose to retain it.

Some, however, prefer the ability to blend and maneuver within the streets of the city, sacrificing size for a wider range of forms.

Class: Druid.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain all the aspects of standard wild shape (except for the ability to wild shape into an elemental at high levels, which remains unchanged) ability.

She can do this once a day to start with, but the frequency of her wild shapes increases as per the standard druid advancement chart.

At 8th level, the druid does not gain the ability to transform into Large animals.

Instead, she may transform into Small and Medium vermin, as well as animals.

At 11th level, the druid gains the ability to transform into Tiny animals and vermin.

At 12th level, the druid does not gain the ability to transform into plant creatures.

Instead, she may transform into an animal- or vermin-based swarm, so long as it fits within her standard wild shaping Hit Die limits.

At 15th level, the druid does not gain the ability to transform into Huge animals.

Instead, she gains the ability to transform into Large animals and vermin.

Special: The Natural Spell feat functions with city-shape just as it does standard wild shape.

CROWD-WALKER (DRUID, RANGER)

Certain individuals are comfortable among the throngs of citizens in even the most densely packed city.

They know how to maneuver deftly through such environs without impediment.

Class: Druid or ranger.

Level: 2nd (druid) or 7th (ranger).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain woodland stride.

Benefit: When moving through a crowd, the crowd-walker moves at her normal rate, rather than requiring two squares of movement for every square as is normal.

In addition, light debris does not impede her movement, and she treats heavy debris as light debris.

Any other sort of rough terrain impedes her normally, however.

FEROCITY (BARBARIAN)

Where most barbarians define themselves by nigh-unstoppable rage, a few streetfighters and urban warriors have mastered different techniques.

By working up a surge of adrenaline, they hit just as hard, and substantially faster, than their counterparts, while dodging the inevitable counterattack.

Class: Barbarian.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain rage, or any later improvements to that class feature, nor do you gain indomitable will.

Benefit: Once per day, the barbarian can enter a state of adrenaline-fueled fury, increasing both his physical might and his reaction time.

He temporarily gains a +4 bonus to Strength and a +4 bonus to Dexterity, but he takes a -2 penalty on ranged attack rolls beyond short range (30 feet).

He can enter this state as an immediate action, even when flat-footed at the start of combat, so he may apply the enhanced Dexterity modifier to his initiative check.

While in a state of ferocity, the barbarian cannot use any Charisma- or Intelligence-based skills (except for Intimidate), the Concentration skill, or any abilities that require patience or concentration, nor can he cast spells or activate magic items that require a command word, a spell trigger (such as a wand), or spell completion (such as a scroll) to function.

He can use any feat he has except item creation feats and metamagic feats.

Ferocity lasts for a number of rounds equal to 4 + his Constitution modifier (if positive).

The barbarian may prematurely end his state of ferocity.

At the end of ferocity, he loses the ferocity modifiers and restrictions and become sickened (-2 on all attack rolls, weapon damage rolls, saving throws, skill checks, and ability checks) for the duration of the current encounter (unless he is a 17th-level barbarian, at which point this limitation no longer applies).

Abilities that normally render him immune to being sickened (such as the Strong Stomach feat, Cityscape 64) reduce the penalties to -1, but do not remove them entirely.

The barbarian can invoke ferocity only once per encounter.

At 1st level he can use this ability once per day.

At 4th level and every four levels thereafter, he can use it one additional time per day (to a maximum of six times per day at 20th level).

Greater Ferocity: At 11th level, his bonuses to Strength and Dexterity during ferocity each increase to +6.

In addition, the duration of his ferocity increases to 5 + your Constitution modifier (if positive).

Shifting Stance: At 14th level, while in a state of ferocity, he gains a +1 dodge bonus to Armor Class and Reflex saves.

In addition, while in a state of ferocity, the barbarian can stand from prone as a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

If a foe that threatens him has a base attack bonus that is 4 points or more higher than his barbarian level, however, she gains an attack of opportunity as normal.

(These abilities replace indomitable will).

Relentless Ferocity: At 17th level, the duration of his ferocity increases to 6 + his Constitution modifier (if positive), and he no longer become sickened at the end of his ferocity.

In addition, the dodge bonus granted by his shifting stance ability becomes +2.

Unstoppable Ferocity: At 20th level, the barbarian's bonuses to Strength and Dexterity during ferocity each increase to +8.

GO TO GROUND (DRUID, SCOUT)

Just as most druids and scouts have an almost supernatural ability to avoid being tracked in the wild, so too have others learned to blend in so fully with the urban throng that nobody remembers their passage.

Class: Druid or scout.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain trackless step.

Benefit: When you choose to "lay low", you become all but impossible to find without magical means.

All attempts to find you with Urban Tracking (Cityscape 64) simply fail outright.

HIDDEN STALKER (RANGER, SCOUT)

For those who know how to use them, the ever-shifting concealment of the throng and the back alleys of the city provide just as much opportunity for stealth as the shadows of the trees or the early morning fog.

Class: Ranger or scout.

Level: 13th (ranger) or 8th (scout).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the camouflage ability, and your hide in plain sight ability (gained at higher levels) is modified.

Benefit: Upon first gaining this ability, the hidden stalker no longer takes a -5 penalty on Hide checks when moving faster than half speed, nor does she take the standard -10 penalty when attempting to hide during a brief distraction. In addition, the presence of other people within 5 feet is considered sufficient cover for her to hide, making it easy for her to vanish into a crowd.

At the second level of this ability, the hidden stalker gains hide in plain sight, but this ability functions in any urban environment, rather than only in natural environments as written.

IRON CONSTITUTION (DRUID)

Natives to the worst and filthiest areas of the city have to contend with stench and illnesses of a sort rarely found in the wild, yet some have become so inured that they are all but immune.

Class: Druid.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain resist nature's lure.

Benefit: The druid gains Strong Stomach (Cityscape 64) as a bonus feat, even if she does not meet the prerequisites.

If she already has this feat, she may instead choose any feat for which she does meet the prerequisites.

In addition, the druid gains a +2 bonus on saves against disease.

RIPOSTE (SCOUT)

While most scouts rely on mobility to overcome their opponents, some focus instead on taking advantage of the openings their foes provide in combat when making their own attacks.

Class: Scout.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain skirmish or any later improvements to that class feature.

Ability: Any time the scout attacks a foe that has made a melee or ranged weapon attack against her within the past round (whether or not the attack hit you), her attack deals an extra 1d6 points of damage. This extra damage increases by 1d6 for every four levels gained above 1st (2d6 at 5th, 3d6 at 9th, 4d6 at 13th, and 5d6 at 17th). This extra damage applies only against living creatures that have a discernable anatomy. Undead, constructs, oozes, plants, incorporeal creatures, and creatures immune to extra damage from critical hits are not vulnerable to this additional damage. The scout must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach such a spot. She can apply this extra damage to ranged attacks, but only if the target is within 30 feet. At 3rd level, the scout gains a +1 competence bonus to Armor Class against any creature to which she has dealt riposte damage, as described above. This bonus lasts until the start of her next turn. If she deals riposte damage to more than one creature in a round, she gains this bonus against all of them; it is not limited to a single foe. This bonus improves by 1 for every four levels gained above 3rd (+2 at 7th, +3 at 11th, +4 at 15th, and +5 at 19th level). The scout loses this ability when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

RIVAL ORGANIZATION (RANGER)

A few urban rangers, devoted to a particular organization, guild, or church, prefer to focus their studies and their efforts against a rival group, instead of a specific race. Class: Ranger.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain favored enemy or any later improvements to that class feature.

Benefit: At 1st level, the ranger chooses one particular organization that he has studied in depth. This could be a guild, a noble house, a church, or any similar specifically defined entity.

(See Chapter 3: Politics and Power in Cityscape for definitions and samples of these groups).

Due to his knowledge of how the organization operates, he gains a +2 bonus on Bluff, Intimidate, Gather Information, Knowledge (local), and Sense Motive checks made against, or pertaining to, members of that organization.

Likewise, due to his heightened awareness around these individuals, he gains a +2 bonus to Armor Class against members of this group.

At 5th level and every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, and 20th level), the ranger may select an additional rival organization.

In addition, at each such interval, the bonus against any one rival organization (including the one just selected, if so desired) increases by 2.

ROOF-DWELLER (BARBARIAN)

Those who grow up on the streets of the city are often equally at home above the streets, where the rooftops provide an unseen highway.

Class: Barbarian.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain fast movement.

Benefit: The barbarian gains Roofwalker (Cityscape 63) as a bonus feat, even if he does not meet the prerequisites. Additionally, as of 6th level, he need not meet the prerequisites for the Roof-Jumper feat (Cityscape 62) if he chooses to take it, though it is not a bonus feat; the barbarian must still spend a feat slot to acquire it.

SKILLED CITY-DWELLER (VARIOUS)

The various wilderness-oriented skills are valuable indeed, but make less sense—and may prove less useful—for an urban character.

Class: Any class that has one or more of the “skills replaced”, as listed below, on its list of class skills.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the “skills replaced” as listed below.

Skilled City-Dweller

Skill Gained	Skill Replaced
Gather Information	Handle Animal
Knowledge (local)	Knowledge (nature)
Sense Motive	Survival
Tumble	Ride

Benefit: The skilled city-dweller gains one or more skills as class skills, at the expense of other skills.

If she does not have the proper skill to lose, she cannot gain the skill it grants as an urban benefit.

Note that she need not swap out all these skills.

A skilled city-dweller may pick and choose, but she cannot later change her mind.

STAND FAST (PALADIN)

While most paladins enjoy the companionship of a summoned mount, those who live amidst large populations often prefer to devote their energies toward protecting those around them and defending the city from outside threats.

Class: Paladin.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain a special mount.

Benefit: Starting at 5th level, a paladin may use the following two abilities, once per day each, as an immediate action.

At 11th level, she may use each ability twice per day, and at 18th level she may use each ability three times per day.

? Add the paladin’s divine grace (Charisma modifier) on the saving throw of all allies within 20 feet.

She must add this bonus on the same save for each of them; thus, she could add to everyone’s Reflex save, or everyone’s Will save, but she could not grant some a bonus on Reflex and others a bonus on Will.

She does not gain any bonus for using this ability, but neither does she lose her own divine grace bonus.

This bonus lasts for 1 round.

? Add the paladin's divine grace (Charisma modifier) on any roll she makes to resist a bull rush, disarm, grapple, sunder, or trip attack.

She cannot use this ability when she is making such an attack; it is defensive only.

STREETFIGHTER (BARBARIAN)

The ability to take a blow is valuable, but on the violent and crowded streets of the city, the winner of a brawl or a duel is often the one who can hit hardest and fastest.

Class: Barbarian.

Level: 7th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain damage reduction at 7th level, or any of the improvements to damage reduction at higher levels.

Benefit: The barbarian gains the ability to swiftly bring the fight to his foe and to hit him hard.

? At 7th level, the critical threat range of any charge attack he makes, or any attack he makes against a flat-footed foe, increases by 1.

(Thus, a greataxe would threaten a critical hit on a roll of 19 or 20).

This ability stacks with the Improved Critical feat or the keen weapon enhancement.

? At 10th level, the barbarian can make a single turn, up to 90 degrees, during a charge.

? At 13th level, the barbarian can charge through squares occupied by his allies or by noncombatants.

? At 16th level, the barbarian can move up to four times his speed when making a charge attack, rather than double.

? At 19th level, the barbarian acquires a "cleaving charge". If he drops an opponent on a charge attack, and he has at least 10 feet of movement remaining, he can immediately make a new charge attack against a second foe.

If he drops that foe and still has movement remaining, he can charge a third, and so on until he either fails to drop a foe, or runs out of movement.

All the other standard rules for a charge attack still apply, including the fact that he must have at least 10 feet of distance to make the charge.

? Even if he somehow gains the ability to make multiple attacks on a charge (such as with the lion's charge spell from the Spell Compendium), he must drop the foe on the first attack to use this ability.

Similarly, he cannot use this ability and Cleave or Great Cleave in the same round.

URBAN COMPANION (DRUID, RANGER)

The fearsome animal companions who accompany some casters in the wild are indeed a boon in combat, but a hulking wolf or creeping tiger is out of place in an urban environment.

Some characters believe that small and subtle is of greater value than massive and mighty.

Class: Druid or ranger.

Level: 1st (druid) or 4th (ranger).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain an animal companion.

Benefit: The character gains the companionship of a smaller but far more intelligent creature than she otherwise would have.

This is identical to the sorcerer's ability to summon a familiar (PH 52), including all benefits granted and gained by the familiar, except as noted below.

Her functional level for determining the abilities of the companion is equal to her druid level or one-half her ranger level.

? She does not lose experience points if her urban companion is slain, and she requires only 24 hours to replace one who is lost.

? Her urban companion has total hit points equal to 3/4 her own hit points, rather than half as per a familiar.

? The urban companion gains the ability to speak with other animals of its kind when she has an effective master level of 1st, rather than 7th.

? When she reaches an effective master level of 7th, she can speak with animals of her companion's kind, as per speak with animals.

This is a supernatural ability that functions constantly, and it requires only a free action to reactivate if somehow dispelled.

URBAN SENSE (DRUID)

Druids native to the sprawling city master a widely differing range of skills than their wilderness-based counterparts.

Class: Druid.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain nature sense.

Benefit: She gains a +2 bonus on Knowledge (local) checks and Sense Motive checks.

URBAN TRACKER (RANGER)

Many rangers of the city learn to hunt people down through interrogation and questioning, since following tracks is often all but impossible on the busy streets.

Class: Ranger.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain Track as a bonus feat.

Benefit: He gains Urban Tracking (Cityscape 64) as a bonus feat.

VOICE OF THE CITY (DRUID, RANGER, SPIRIT SHAMAN)

For some, the ability to make oneself understood in the midst of any culture is of far greater value than the ability to influence the beasts of the wild.

Class: Druid, ranger, or spirit shaman.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain wild empathy.

Benefit: Through a combination of body language, tone, and expression, the voice of the city can make herself understood by those who do not speak her language, and she can interpret their meaning the same way.

Simple concepts that can be conveyed in a few words (such as “Help!” or “Drop your weapon!”) can be conveyed automatically.

More complex concepts require her to make a roll: d20 + her class level + either her Wisdom modifier (if trying to understand someone else) or Charisma modifier (if trying to make someone else understand her).

Roll each only once per conversation.

If she fails, she cannot try to communicate with that specific individual via this ability until she has gained a level.

(Thus, it is possible, if she succeeds in one roll but fails in the other, to hold a conversation where she can understand the other speaker but he cannot understand you, or vice-versa).

The DC of the roll depends on creature type and how closely the individual’s language is related to any of her own.

The ability works most effectively with other humanoids.

In this case, if the individual’s language uses the same alphabet as any language she knows, the DC is 20.

If it does not, the DC is 30.

(See Speak Language, PH 82, for this information).

The above DCs increase by 5 if the speaker is a fey, giant, or monstrous humanoid; they increase by 10 if the speaker is an elemental.

If the other individual is of any other creature type, she cannot communicate via this ability.

If the speaker is deliberately trying to make himself understood, the voice of the city gains a +2 circumstance bonus on this roll.

If she is attempting to interpret his speech from outside normal conversational distance (such as eavesdropping), she takes a –4 penalty on this roll.

In addition, she gains Speak Language as a class skill.

COMPLETE CHAMPION (3.5)

BARBARIAN

Barbarians who follow a spiritual path are often tied at some deep level to the wildlands that gave them birth. Such characters feel a kinship with the spirits of nature—especially animal spirits—and draw their power from these essences.

Divine barbarians are viewed with awe and sometimes fear by their tribes, and some such characters are considered holy people in the absence of any organized religion.

SPIRITUAL TOTEM

Choose a spiritual totem: bear, eagle, fox, lion, or wolf.

Once you do so, you are forever bound to that animal spirit. Your connection grants you special abilities based on the totem you have chosen (or that has chosen you, as some see it).

The DM can add more totems to the above list as desired, using those presented here as guidelines.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the fast movement class feature.

Benefit: You gain one of the abilities described below, depending on the chosen totem.

Each of these effects is a supernatural ability.

Bear Totem: The mighty bear is known for her crushing embrace, if you adopt her as your spiritual totem, you gain the improved grab ability (MM 310).

Eagle Totem: The eagle can see clearly over great distances and often notices details that are not obvious.

If you embrace him as your spiritual totem, you gain a +4 bonus on Search and Spot checks.

Fox Totem: The cunning fox uses stealth to gain the upper hand.

Should you choose her as your spiritual totem, you gain a +4 bonus on Hide and Move Silently checks.

Lion Totem: Regal and intimidating, the powerful lion is a symbol of nobility among the races of the wild.

By selecting him as your spiritual totem, you gain the pounce ability (MM 313).

Wolf Totem: The wolf is a loyal ally who uses pack tactics to subdue her foes.

If you choose her as your spiritual totem, you gain an additional +2 bonus on attack rolls when flanking an opponent.

TOTEM MANIFESTATION

As the bond between you and your totem grows closer, the spirit of your chosen animal reveals itself more strongly.

Level: 7th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the damage reduction class feature, including all damage reduction increases gained at higher levels of the barbarian class.

Benefit: When you select this ability, your connection to your spiritual totem intensifies.

If you have not yet chosen a spiritual totem, you must do so now, but you gain only those abilities described here, not those for the spiritual totem alternative class feature.

Each of these effects is a supernatural ability.

Bear Totem: The powerful bear rewards your loyalty.

If you choose her as your spiritual totem, you gain 1 extra hit point per barbarian level.

Eagle Totem: The keen-eyed eagle grants you low-light vision if you adopt him as your spiritual totem.

If you have previously chosen the eagle as your spiritual totem, the bonus on Search and Spot checks increases by 1 at each level at which your damage reduction would increase (10th, 13th, 16th, and 19th levels).

Fox Totem: The quick fox grants you a +1 dodge bonus to Armor Class if you choose her as your spiritual totem.

This bonus increases by 1 at each level at which your damage reduction would increase (10th, 13th, 16th, and 19th levels).

Any condition that causes you to lose your Dexterity bonus to Armor Class (if any) also negates this dodge bonus.

Lion Totem: If you select the lion as your spiritual totem, he rewards you with the ability to loose a powerful and intimidating roar.

When you roar, every creature within a 30-foot radius must succeed on a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 your barbarian level + your Str modifier) or be shaken for a number of rounds equal to your barbarian level.

This ability can be used once per day, and you gain an additional use per day at each level at which your damage reduction would increase (10th, 13th, 16th, and 19th levels).

Wolf Totem: The wolf is an intelligent hunter who can track her prey with uncanny accuracy and insight. If you choose her as your spiritual totem, you gain Track as a bonus feat.

In addition, you gain a +2 sacred bonus on Survival checks.

VIEW THE SPIRIT WORLD

Your link to the divine gives you an uncanny insight into the intricacies of the spirit world.

This unique perception lets you expand your senses into realms that few mortals can perceive.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the improved uncanny dodge class feature.

Benefit: Once per day, you can peer into the spirit world for a number of rounds equal to one-half your barbarian level (rounded down).

While doing so, you gain darkvision out to 60 feet, can see invisible creatures, and gain a +2 bonus on Search and Spot checks.

This is a supernatural ability.

BARD

You use music to entertain, to enlighten, and to boost the morale and abilities of those around you.

By using your special insight into the divine, you can tap into the very essence of the universe, bringing forth positive energy and channeling it to your allies through your songs.

Those who listen to your music become more capable of healing others and recovering from injury themselves.

HEALING HYMN

When you play your healing hymn, your allies can cast curative spells more effectively.

Furthermore, everyone around you feels rejuvenated and more fully rested when your hymn becomes a lullaby.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the fascinate bardic music ability.

Benefit: If you have 3 or more ranks in a Perform skill, you can use your music or poetics to create an area conducive to healing.

To be affected, an ally must be able to see and hear you perform.

The effect lasts as long as you continue performing and for 5 rounds thereafter.

An affected ally who casts any conjuration (healing) spell gains a +1 sacred (if you're good or neutral) or profane (if you're evil) bonus on the roll for each rank you have in the Perform skill.

This ability has no effect on spells cast from wands, scrolls, or other magic items.

In addition, if you use this ability for 1 full minute before you and your allies retire for the night, everyone in the group heals naturally as if he had completed 24 hours of bed rest (thus recovering twice his character level in hit points).

If the music is interrupted, the magic of the song is lost. Either use of healing hymn counts as one daily use of your bardic music ability.

This is a spell-like ability.

HYMN OF FORTIFICATION

By singing praises to the holy powers, you can cloak yourself or an ally in a protective sheath of sound.

This effect protects the subject from supernatural creatures, as well as their malign powers.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the inspire competence bardic music ability.

Benefit: If you are a 3rd-level or higher bard with 6 or more ranks in Perform (oratory) or Perform (sing), you can grant protection from supernatural creatures.

This effect fortifies you or a single chosen ally within 30 feet against mental control and attacks from evil-aligned or summoned creatures.

In most respects, hymn of fortification mirrors the effects of the protection from evil spell.

If you wish to protect an ally with this ability, the two of you must be able to see and hear each other.

The effect lasts as long as you concentrate, up to a maximum of 2 minutes.

Each use of hymn of fortification counts as one daily use of your bardic music ability.

This is a spell-like ability.

CLERIC

Many clerics have a special gift for healing, but you have found ways to use that gift more precisely.

In your hands, no positive energy is ever wasted, and your touch provides the gift of healing to those around you.

POOL OF HEALING

By sacrificing some of your personal power, you permanently establish a link to the Positive Energy Plane through your deity or belief system.

The energy you draw from that plane obeys your direct command, and you can dispense it in the form of healing with a simple touch.

Level: 7th.

Replaces: To select this class feature, you must permanently sacrifice one of your 4th-level spell slots.

Benefit: You establish a pool of positive energy that you can use to heal yourself or others.

This pool contains enough positive energy to heal an amount of damage equal to $5 \times (1 + \text{your divine caster level})$ hit points per day.

You can dole it out with a touch, expending as much or as little of the pool at a time as you wish in much the same way as a paladin does with her lay on hands ability.

The pool automatically replenishes every time you prepare spells for the day.

You can also deal out this positive energy with a melee touch attack against any creature vulnerable to positive energy (such as undead), damaging it as if you had cast a cure spell upon it.

Example: Jozan, a 7th-level cleric of Pelor, gives up one of his 4th-level spell slots to set up his pool of healing. Every day, he can heal up to $5 \times (1 + 7) = 40$ points of damage, or deal that amount of damage to creatures powered by negative energy, or use the energy for a combination of those effects, up to the maximum available. At 10th level, he can heal up to 55 points of damage using this ability.

Pool of healing is a spell-like ability.

FIGHTER

Not all those who take up arms in the name of their faith are clerics or paladins.

Many are ordinary fighters, knights, and mercenaries who have placed their souls in the hands of the almighty gods. Few who fight on the front lines are unbelievers, and those with true faith can perform astounding feats of bravery in the names of their deities.

ALIGNED STRIKE

As a holy warrior, you can channel your faith into your attacks.

Level: 4th or any even-numbered higher level.

Replaces: This benefit replaces one of your fighter bonus feats.

Benefit: As a free action, you can orient your weapon along one alignment component that you possess.

For example, if you are chaotic good, you can make your weapon either chaotic- or good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

This effect lasts until you choose to end it or change it (as a free action) to the other alignment component, or until you no longer wield the weapon.

Ammunition or a thrown weapon affected by this ability remains aligned until it either strikes a target or misses.

Aligned strike is a supernatural ability.

ARMOR OF GOD

Your belief protects you from attacks.

Level: 8th or any even-numbered higher level.

Replaces: This benefit replaces one of your fighter bonus feats.

Benefit: As an immediate action, you can reduce your base Will save to +0 and gain a bonus to your Armor Class equal to the amount of the reduction.

This effect lasts until the beginning of your next turn.

Armor of god is a supernatural ability.

RESOLUTE

Your faith bolsters your resolve, allowing you to stand firm against all foes.

Level: Any even-numbered level.

Replaces: This benefit replaces one of your fighter bonus feats.

Benefit: As an immediate action, you can reduce your base attack bonus by one-half and gain a bonus on your Will save equal to the amount of the reduction.

This effect lasts until the end of your next action.

This is a supernatural ability.

MONK

A monk treats her body as her temple, subscribing to her own ascetic code or to that of her order.

Though the path of the monk is spiritual in nature, and some monasteries are tied to churches, most monks distance themselves from the sectarian pursuits of the various divine orders.

Those who shift their focus from the perfection of their bodies and minds toward the service of a deity gain a new clarity of spirit.

HOLY STRIKE

Your fists and monk weapons gain the power of your beliefs and can strike your opponents for extra damage.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the ki strike (magic) class feature.

Benefit: When you hit an evil creature with your unarmed strike attack or with a monk melee weapon, your attack is considered good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction and deals an extra 1d6 points of damage. Holy strike is a supernatural ability.

Special: Evil monks can select this ability, but their attacks are considered evil-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

PRAYERFUL MEDITATION

Your religious convictions protect you from the spells and magical abilities of those who oppose your beliefs.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the still mind class feature.

Benefit: Your adherence to a religious path has developed in you a resistance to antithetical magic.

You gain a +2 bonus on saving throws against spells and effects from chaotic-aligned creatures and creatures with a moral (good/evil) alignment component opposite to yours.

This is a supernatural ability.

PALADIN

Clerics serve as priests, healers, and evangelists for their religions, while paladins are their deities' armed champions, imbued with some magical ability.

Some paladins, though, dedicate themselves more directly to serving their deity through strength of arms.

HOLY WARRIOR

By giving up your spellcasting ability, you gain access to bonus feats much as a fighter does.

This choice does not, however, close you off from divine influence—in fact, several of these feats actually increase your divine power.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: To select this class feature, you must sacrifice your spellcasting ability.

Benefit: You no longer gain spells as a paladin, but you can now select a bonus feat at 4th, 8th, 11th, and 14th levels.

You can select any feat from the following list for which you meet the prerequisites: any divine feat (see page 53), Cleave, Extra Smiting, Extra Turning, Great Cleave, Improved Smiting, Mounted Combat, Mounted Archery, Power Attack, Ride-By Attack, Skill Focus (Ride), Spirited Charge, and Trample.

This is an extraordinary ability.

Special: A paladin who selects this path can no longer use scrolls, wands, or other magic items that require access to a spell list, unless she has another spellcasting class that grants access to the appropriate spells.

UNDERDARK KNIGHT

If you dedicate yourself to overcoming evil in the Underdark, you might find little use for the paladin's most prized ally, the special mount.

By giving up the ability to call this devoted creature, you become a more mobile and effective fighter underground.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the special mount class feature.

Benefit: Whenever you are underground, you can draw upon the earth to gain the following abilities.

At 5th level, your base speed increases by 10 feet, and you gain a +2 circumstance bonus on Balance, Climb, and Jump checks.

You also gain low-light vision that functions as long as you remain underground.

If you already had low-light vision, you instead gain darkvision out to 60 feet while underground; if you already had darkvision, add 30 feet to its range.

At 7th level, you can use spike stones once per day, as the spell (caster level equals your paladin level).

At 12th level, you gain the earth glide extraordinary ability, which enables you to move through stone, dirt, or almost any other sort of earth except metal as easily as a fish moves through water (MM 98).

If you end your movement inside earth or stone, however, you begin to suffocate (DMG 304).

At 15th level, you can use dimension door, as the spell, once per day for every five paladin levels you possess (caster level equals your paladin level).

You must begin and end any such movement in contact with stone or earth.

RANGER

While all rangers are attuned to nature, not all seek intimate contact with the divine.

Some find that intense weapon training lets them defend their natural domains more effectively.

CHAMPION OF THE WILD

By surrendering your spellcasting ability, you focus your energies on becoming a weapon master.

You gain access to bonus feats such as a fighter does, but focused on your mastery of your chosen combat style.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: To select this class feature, you must sacrifice your spellcasting ability.

Benefit: You no longer gain spells as a ranger, but you can now select a bonus feat at 4th, 8th, 11th, and 14th levels.

You can choose any feat from the following list for which you meet the prerequisites: Blind-Fight, Combat Expertise, Eyes in the Back of Your Head, Improved Disarm, Improved Favored Enemy, Improved Feint, and Improved Trip, as well as from one of the following lists, depending on your combat style.

Archery: Far Shot, Improved Precise Shot, Improved Rapid Shot, Manyshot, Point Blank Shot, Precise Shot, Ranged Disarm, Ranged Pin, Ranged Sunder, Sharp-Shooting and Shot on the Run.

Two-Weapon Combat: Greater Two-Weapon Defense, Greater Two-Weapon Fighting, Improved Two-Weapon Defense, Improved Two-Weapon Fighting, Two-Weapon Defense, Weapon Finesse.

Special: A ranger who selects this path can no longer use scrolls, wands, or other magic items that require access to a spell list, unless he has another spellcasting class that grants access to the appropriate spells.

SPIRITUAL CONNECTION

You learn to speak with the spirits of the wild places. Although this ability does not automatically make such spirits well-disposed toward you, it does provide several benefits.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the wild empathy class feature.

Benefit: You can use speak with animals and speak with plants, as the spells (caster level equals your ranger level).

You can use any combination of these effects up to three times per day.

SPIRITUAL GUIDE

You are befriended by a spiritual guide that speaks to you and aids you as long as you remain in the wilderness.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the animal companion class feature.

Benefit: You gain a spiritual guide.

As long as you remain in natural surroundings (including underground caverns), this guide is a constant companion. Once you enter any civilized area larger than a hamlet, however, your spiritual guide leaves your side, returning only when you return to the wilds.

Although it cannot protect you from harm, your spiritual guide can warn you of impending danger.

As long as your spiritual guide is with you, you gain a divine bonus equal to one-quarter your ranger level (rounded down) on Handle Animal, Knowledge (nature), Listen, Search, Spot, and Survival checks.

In addition, you can use commune with nature, as the spell, once per day (caster level equals your ranger level).

You can also prepare and cast this spell normally from your ranger spell list.

ROGUE

Few characters are more secular in nature than rogues.

But when one of these masters of subterfuge devotes herself to a religion, she looks for ways to turn her assets toward her cause.

ANTIQUARIAN

You are incredibly knowledgeable about artifacts, relics, and antiques—especially those that are religious in nature.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the trapfinding class feature.

Benefit: When examining divine items and religious relics, you gain a bonus equal to your Wisdom modifier on all Appraise checks as an extraordinary ability.

In addition, if you examine a magic item created using a spell from the cleric or paladin list, or an item with special religious significance, you can attempt a Knowledge (religion) check (DC 10 + the item's caster level) to identify it exactly as a spell-like ability.

This works like the identify spell (caster level equals your rogue level) but requires no material component.

You can use this ability on only one item per day.

DEATH'S RUIN

You can channel the power of your faith when making sneak attacks against undead.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the trap sense class feature, including trap sense bonuses gained at higher levels of the rogue class.

Benefit: You can make sneak attacks against undead creatures.

However, you roll only one-half your normal sneak attack dice (rounded down) when determining bonus damage for such attacks.

This is a supernatural ability.

FRIEND'S EVASION

By giving up one of your high-level special abilities, you've learned to protect others by using your own skills and abilities.

Levels: 10th, 13th, 16th, or 19th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces improved evasion as one of the rogue's special ability choices.

Benefit: When you select friend's evasion as a special ability, every ally adjacent to you gains evasion. This is an extraordinary ability.

HOLY STALKER

When you give up one of your high-level special abilities, you gain a link to divine power that helps you destroy undead.

This divine energy comes to you through your religious beliefs but is tied to your own natural abilities in subterfuge.

Levels: 10th, 13th, 16th, or 19th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces crippling strike as one of the rogue's special ability choices.

Only non-evil rogues can select this class feature.

Benefit: When you select holy stalker as a special ability, you can channel positive energy into your sneak attacks to damage undead creatures.

When you successfully damage an undead creature in a situation in which you would normally apply sneak attack damage, you add 2 points of positive energy damage per sneak attack die you would normally roll.

However, you still cannot roll sneak attack dice against the creature.

This is a supernatural ability.

SORCERER

Some believe that sorcerers gain their link to arcane energy through draconic heritage.

If true, such a connection might seem to cut off divine influence, but perhaps it actually helps a sorcerer open a channel to a new reservoir of energy.

DIVINE COMPANION

By sacrificing a possible link to an earthly creature, you gain the ability to store arcane energy in a divine reservoir that takes the form of a spirit creature.

Linked to you through your own life essence, this divine companion can then transform that energy into beneficial effects.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the summon familiar class feature.

Benefit: You can spend 100 gp to perform a ritual dedicated to the deity of your choice and summon forth a spirit creature to aid you in your adventures.

This creature is both invisible and intangible, but it provides you with real benefits.

The divine companion stores arcane energy and redirects it to you according to your level and your needs.

To fill this reservoir, you must cast one or more targeted spells at this creature.

A spell so cast does not produce its normal effect; the companion simply absorbs the spell's energy.

It can store a number of spell levels equal to your arcane caster level.

You can cast spells into it at any time, but after you rest and recover your spell slots for the day, the divine companion loses any stored energy.

The divine companion exists outside reality and cannot be affected by spells, spell-like abilities, or any sort of antimagic effect or dispel check.

It cannot, however, release its arcane energy within an antimagic field or similar effect.

It uses your caster level for any checks required, and when it releases arcane energy, the level of the effect created equals the number of spell levels released.

The divine companion can release its stored spell energy in either of the following ways, at your command.

You can use each effect as often as you wish, until the companion's stored energy is depleted.

Healing (Su): As a standard action, you can order your divine companion to convert the energy it has stored into healing power.

This is the equivalent of a conjuration (healing) spell.

This effect heals you for 1d6 points of damage per stored spell level, or as many levels as you designate (up to the maximum currently stored).

Shielding (Su): As a swift action, you can order the creature to convert the energy it has stored into protecting you.

This is the equivalent of an abjuration spell that provides you with a deflection bonus to AC and a resistance bonus on saves each equal to the number of stored spell levels, or as many levels as you designate (up to the maximum currently stored).

This effect lasts for 1 round per arcane caster level you possess.

DOMAIN ACCESS

Your depth of belief allows you to channel divine power the way a cleric does.

By doing so, you gain access to a single cleric domain.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: To gain this benefit, you do not learn a new 1st-level sorcerer spell and a new 2nd-level sorcerer spell at 5th level.

From now on, you know one less sorcerer spell that you can cast at each subsequent level (not counting the domain spells from this alternative class feature).

Benefit: Choose one cleric domain.

If you worship a specific deity, the domain you choose must be one to which your deity grants access.

You gain the granted power of the chosen domain.

In addition, you can cast one domain spell of each spell level available to you per day from that domain.

WIZARD

It is a little-known fact that wizards can also gain power from their faith.

Though the majority of their power is drawn from formula and rote, some wizards enhance their spells with a touch of the divine.

Divine wizards combine their religious devotion with their discipline in the arcane arts.

DOMAIN GRANTED POWER

So great are the extent of your study and the depth of your faith that you can call upon the power of one of your deity's domains.

Level: 5th, 10th, 15th, or 20th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a wizard at 5th, 10th, 15th, or 20th level.

Benefit: Choose one cleric domain.

If you worship a specific deity, the domain you choose must be one to which your deity grants access. You now can use that domain's granted power as a cleric does, but you do not gain access to its spells or extra spell slots.

Special: If you take levels in a class that grants you a domain choice (such as cleric), you gain the full benefits of the domain in addition to the other domains available to you from that class.

SPONTANEOUS DIVINATION

You can use your connection to the divine to inquire about mysteries beyond mortal ken.

Level: 5th, 10th, 15th, or 20th.

Replaces: This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a wizard at 5th, 10th, 15th, or 20th level.

Benefit: You can spontaneously cast any spell of the divination school by sacrificing a prepared spell of equal or greater level.

For example, if you suddenly have need of the 2nd-level spell locate object, you can sacrifice a prepared 2nd-level spell (such as mirror image) or any prepared spell of a higher level to cast it on the spot.

COMPLETE MAGE (3.5)

ARCANE HUNTER (RANGER)

Rangers learn to track and hunt creatures of a certain type when choosing a favored enemy.

Some rangers concern themselves less with what a creature is, and more with what it does.

These rangers learn to identify signs of the arcane and make it their business to combat those who use arcane magic in opposition to their goals.

Class: Ranger.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: At 1st level, you do not select a favored enemy from Table 3–14 in the Player's Handbook.

At 5th, 10th, 15th, and 20th level, you can choose favored enemies as normal.

Benefit: At 1st level, you gain favored enemy (arcanists).

This feature works just like the favored enemy ability (PH 47).

The bonuses granted apply to any character capable of casting arcane spells or using invocations (but not other spell-like abilities).

ARCANE STUNT (SWASHBUCKLER)

Every swashbuckler relies on her agility and quick wit to get her out of scrapes.

Some take this a step farther, learning magical tricks that boost their mobility or defense.

Class: Swashbuckler (see Complete Warrior).

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You lose the grace class feature and all later improvements to that ability.

Benefit: Choose one of the following spells: blur, expeditious retreat, feather fall, jump, or spider climb.

You can use that spell-like ability as a swift action (or, in the case of feather fall, as an immediate action); the duration of the spell is reduced to 1 round.

Your caster level is equal to your swashbuckler level.

At 11th level, you can choose a second spell-like ability from the list above, and the benefit gained from both of these spell-like abilities lasts for 2 rounds.

At 20th level, you can choose a third spell-like ability, and the benefit of each one lasts for 3 rounds.

You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 1 + your Int modifier (minimum 1/day).

Regardless of the number of arcane stunts you possess, the same total daily limit applies to their use—that is, each day, an 11th-level swashbuckler with an Intelligence of 14 could use one of his spell-like abilities three times or one ability twice and the other once.

ARMORED MAGE (FIGHTER)

Rare is the fighter who hasn't envied the wizard's bag of magical tricks.

Although even the most basic arcane spell remains beyond a fighter's abilities, those who aspire to such talents can, with practice, learn to cast simple arcane spells while wearing light armor.

On its own, this alternative feature grants little benefit to a single-classed fighter; only in conjunction with one or more levels of sorcerer, wizard, or a similar arcane spellcasting class does this ability come into play.

Class: Fighter.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You lose proficiency with medium armor and heavy armor.

Benefit: Choose one arcane spellcasting class, such as sorcerer.

You can avoid any chance of arcane spell failure for spells gained from this class as long as you restrict yourself to light armor and light shields.

This training does not extend to any other form of armor or shields, nor does this ability apply to spells gained from other spellcasting classes.

This benefit applies only to spells of a level equal to or lower than your fighter class level + 1.

CURSE BREAKER (PALADIN)

Most paladins use their divinely granted powers to combat diseases that plague their allies.

Paladins with an interest in the arcane—particularly those who battle necromancers—sometimes prefer to learn to counteract the effects of magical curses.

Class: Paladin.

Level: 6th.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You do not gain the remove disease spell-like ability or any later improvement of that ability.

Benefit: At 6th level, you can produce a remove curse effect, as the spell, once per week.

You can use this ability one additional time per week for every three levels beyond 6th (twice per week at 9th, three times at 12th, and so forth).

Beginning at 12th level, you can spend two of your weekly uses to produce a break enchantment effect, as the spell.

These are spell-like abilities.

DIVINE COUNTERSPELL (CLERIC, PALADIN)

Although the ability to turn undead is arguably a defining cleric characteristic, some clerics (and paladins) find that they can be even more effective crusaders by opposing evil spellcasters.

The ability to negate an enemy spellcasters magic grants a character an unexpected edge.

Class: Cleric or paladin.

Level: 1st (cleric) or 4th (paladin).

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You do not gain the ability to turn or rebuke undead.

Benefit: You gain the supernatural ability to counter another spellcaster's magic through pure force of will.

This ability functions just as if you were using dispel magic to counter the spell, except that you add your cleric level (instead of your caster level) to the d20 roll.

You don't need to identify the spell the opposing spellcaster is casting to make the attempt.

If you don't have a cleric level, use your effective cleric level for the purpose of turning undead.

For example, a paladin would normally turn undead as a cleric of three levels lower; her effective cleric level for counterspelling is equal to her paladin level - 3.

You can attempt to counterspell a number of times per day equal to 1 + your Cha modifier.

A character with 5 or more ranks in Knowledge (arcana) gets a +2 bonus on counterspelling attempts when using this ability.

DIVINE MAGICIAN (CLERIC)

Deities influence the world through the divine spells they grant their worshippers.

Some clerics, however, choose to explore magical powers beyond those commonly provided by the gods.

By giving up some of their divine power, these clerics gain access to spells normally beyond their abilities.

This class feature can be chosen only once.

Class: Cleric.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You gain only one domain (including spells and granted power) at 1st level, rather than two.

Benefit: You can add one 1st-level abjuration, divination, or necromancy wizard spell to your cleric spell list.

Each time you gain the ability to cast a new level of cleric spells, you can add a single wizard spell of the same level from one of those schools to your cleric spell list.

ELEMENTAL COMPANION (DRUID)

Every druid reveres nature, but some pay more respect to the fundamental building blocks of the natural world than to its flora and fauna.

By forgoing her bond with the animal kingdom, a druid can instead take on an elemental creature as her companion.

Class: Druid.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (the planes) 1 rank, Speak Language (Auran, Terran, Ignan, or Aquan).

Replaces: You do not gain an animal companion, nor do you gain wild empathy.

Benefit: You gain the companionship of a Small elemental (air, earth, fire, or water; your choice).

You must speak the language of your chosen elemental companion (Auran, Terran, Ignan, or Aquan, respectively).

Your elemental companion has the normal statistics of an elemental of its kind.

It does not gain any extra HD, natural armor adjustment, Strength or Dexterity adjustment, or extra tricks (it is intelligent enough to follow your spoken commands and thus needs no tricks).

It gains all other special abilities normally granted to an animal companion, with the exception of Multiattack.

At 4th level, your elemental grows into a Medium elemental of the same kind.

Its statistics change appropriately.

At 10th level, you can choose for your elemental companion to grow to a Large elemental of the same kind, with the appropriate changes to its statistics.

If you choose for your elemental to remain Medium, it instead gains 2 HD, +2 Strength, +2 Constitution, and damage reduction 5/-.

At 16th level, you can choose for your elemental companion to grow to a Huge elemental of the same kind, with the appropriate changes to its statistics.

If you choose for your elemental to remain at its current size, it instead gains an additional +4 HD, +4 Strength, +4 Constitution, and damage reduction 5/-.

All these benefits stack with existing statistics except for the damage reduction.

FOCUSED SPECIALIST (WIZARD)

Every wizard who calls himself a specialist takes pride in wielding his preferred form of magic.

Those who are exceptionally pure of purpose take this specialization to an entirely new level, disdaining breadth of skill in favor of even greater focus.

Class: Wizard.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: You must be a specialist wizard.

Replaces: You lose one spell slot from each level of wizard spells you can cast.

If you later gain the ability to cast higher-level wizard spells, you lose one spell slot from each new level of spells you can cast.

You must also choose another prohibited school of magic, which can't be divination.

Benefit: You can prepare two additional spells of your specialty school per spell level each day.

These extra spells are in addition to those normally granted to a specialist wizard.

This benefit doesn't apply to spells gained from classes other than wizard.

SOULWARP STRIKE (MONK)

The traditional monk seeks balance in body, mind, and soul, and through this equilibrium gains various combat talents.

A monk who learns the secret of the soulwarp strike masters an arcane talent of necromancy that infects her enemy's ki, producing an effect akin to terrible sickness.

Class: Monk.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You do not gain the monk bonus feat normally acquired at 1st level.

Benefit: You know how to channel necromantic energy into your unarmed strikes.

You must declare that you are using this ability before you make your attack roll (thus, a failed attack roll ruins the attempt).

In addition to dealing its normal damage, your unarmed strike renders any living creature nauseated for 1 round, or sickened for 1 round if it succeeds on a Fortitude save (DC 10 + 1/2 your character level + your Wis modifier).

You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to your monk level, and no more than once per round.

Creatures immune to necromancy effects (such as constructs) are unaffected by this ability.

SPELL REFLECTION (MONK, RANGER, ROGUE, SCOUT)

Many masters of stealth share the signature talent to avoid explosive blasts of magical energy.

It takes only a little training, however, to twist this defensive flair into the ability to reflect magical attacks back upon their creator.

Class: Monk, ranger, rogue, or scout.

Level: 2nd (monk or rogue), 5th (scout), or 9th (ranger).

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You do not gain evasion.

(If you would later gain improved evasion as a special ability, you gain evasion instead).

Benefit: You gain the supernatural ability to reflect magical attacks back on their caster.

If an enemy misses with a spell or spell-like ability aimed at you, you can use an immediate action to redirect the effect back at its originator.

The spell or ability attacks the original caster (who makes a new attack roll using the same modifier as the original attack).

If it hits, the caster is subject to the normal effect of the spell or ability.

For example, if a 3rd-level wizard missed you with a scorching ray, you could use an immediate action to redirect the ray back to the wizard.

The wizard would immediately make a new ranged attack roll (using the same modifier) against his own touch AC; if the attack succeeds, the scorching ray deals its normal damage to the wizard.

This effect applies only to spells and spell-like abilities that require an attack roll.

Other spells and spell-like abilities that affect a target aren't subject to this reflection.

If a single spell or ability misses you more than once at the same time (such as scorching ray cast by a high-level caster), you can redirect each portion of the spell that missed.

Using the example above, if you were missed by two of the three rays from an 11th-level wizard's scorching ray spell, you could redirect only those two rays (but not the one that hit).

You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 1 + your Dex modifier (minimum 1/day).

SPELL SENSE (BARBARIAN, ROGUE)

Most barbarians and rogues have a preternatural awareness of danger, whether the threat of a nearby invisible attacker or the hidden peril of a spear trap.

Some, however, fine-tune this ability to focus on magical attacks, granting them the ability to dodge the orbs, rays, and eldritch blasts of their enemies.

Class: Barbarian or rogue.

Level: 3rd.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: You do not gain the trap sense class feature (or any later improvements to that class feature).

Benefit: Beginning at 3rd level, you gain a +1 dodge bonus to your AC against spells and spell-like abilities.

This bonus increases by 1 for every three barbarian or rogue levels thereafter (to +2 at 6th level, +3 at 9th level, and so on to a maximum of +6 at 18th level).

This is an extraordinary ability.

SPELLBREAKER SONG (BARD)

Bards pride themselves on being masters of language and sound.

A rare few learn to use their voices to interfere with enemy spellcasters, twisting word and sound to defeat spells before they are cast.

Class: Bard.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank, Perform (any) 3 ranks.

Replaces: You do not gain the countersong bardic music ability.

Benefit: You can use your music or poetics to interfere with spells that have verbal components.

Doing this costs one daily use of your bardic music ability and requires a standard action to start.

Enemy spellcasters within 30 feet of you take a 20% spell failure chance when casting any spell that has a verbal component (as if they were deafened).

You can maintain your spellbreaker song for 3 rounds.

This ability follows all the other appropriate rules for bardic music.

STALWART SORCERER (SORCERER)

Most sorcerers hide behind walls of steel, slinging spells at enemies safely distant.

You have no patience for such cowards and prefer to be near the front line.

Your breadth of magical knowledge might not compare with those craven weaklings, but you are proud to dive into the fray alongside the fighter.

If you play a sorcerer with this alternative class feature, consider taking at least one level of fighter and selecting the armored mage alternative class feature (see page 32).

Class: Sorcerer.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: Knowledge (arcana) 1 rank.

Replaces: Reduce by one the number of sorcerer spells known for your highest spell level (to a minimum of one).

As a 1st-level character, you have one 1st-level spell known rather than two.

When you would gain a second known spell from a higher level, apply this penalty to the new spell level but remove it from the lower level.

For example, at 5th level, you reduce your 2nd-level spells known from two to one but you gain the previously unavailable 1st-level spell (increasing your 1st-level spells known from three to four).

Benefit: You gain extra hit points equal to two times your sorcerer class level.

Every time you advance a level, you gain another 2 extra hit points.

(So, at 1st level you have 2 extra hit points, at 2nd level you have 4 extra hit points, and so on).

You also gain the Martial Weapon Proficiency feat for a melee weapon of your choice, as well as Weapon Focus with that weapon.

COMPLETE WARRIOR (3.5)

PALADIN

This variant paladin gains all the normal class features of the paladin, with the following changes and additions:

Spells: The paladin does not gain the ability to cast divine spells.

Blessed Weapon (Su): Any melee weapon wielded by a paladin of 6th level or higher is treated as good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

Divine Might (Su): At 11th level and higher, the paladin can use a standard action to add a +4 bonus to her Strength, Wisdom, or Charisma score.

This ability may be used once per day, and its effect lasts for 1 minute per class level.

Tend to Mount (Su): A paladin of 13th level or higher who uses her lay on hands ability to heal her mount cures 5 points of damage per point of healing spent.

In addition, the paladin may use her lay on hands ability to end any one of the following adverse conditions affecting her mount, at the cost of 5 points of healing per condition unless otherwise noted: ability damage (costs 1 point per ability point restored), blinded, confused, dazed, dazzled, deafened, diseased, exhausted, fatigued, feebleminded, insanity, nauseated, sickened, stunned, or poisoned.

The paladin can remove adverse conditions at the same time that she heals damage, but any points of healing spent to end adverse conditions don't also cure hit point damage.

Holy Sword (Sp): At 16th level, a paladin gains the ability to use holy sword once per day, as a caster whose level is equal to one-half the paladin's class level.

RANGER

The variant ranger gains all the normal class features of the ranger, with the following changes and additions.

Spells: The ranger does not gain the ability to cast divine spells.

Fast Movement (Ex): At 6th level, the ranger's base land speed increases by 10 feet.

This benefit applies only when he is wearing no armor, light armor, or medium armor and not carrying a heavy load.

Nature's Blessing (Su): At 11th level and higher, the ranger can use a standard action to add a +4 bonus to his Constitution, Dexterity, or Wisdom score.

This ability may be used once per day, and its effect lasts for 1 minute per class level.

Healing Touch (Sp): Once per day, a ranger of 13th level or higher can use either neutralize poison or remove disease, as a caster whose level is equal to one-half the ranger's class level.

Freedom of Movement (Sp): A ranger of 16th level or higher can use freedom of movement on himself once per day, as a caster whose level is equal to one-half the ranger's class level.

DRAGON MAGIC (3.5)

ASPECT OF THE DRAGON (DRUID)

Most druids revere animals as emblems of the natural world, but a few consider dragons even more deserving of their attention.

Those who feel this way show their respect by mimicking physical or mental aspects of dragonkind instead of taking the forms of lesser creatures.

Class: Druid.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: It you select this class feature, you do not gain wild shape (or any later improvements to that class feature, except for the ability to wild shape into an elemental).

Benefit: You can take on aspects of dragonkind.

Taking on one or more aspects is a swift action, and the effect lasts for 1 hour or until you dismiss it (a free action). The various aspects are described below.

At 5th level, you can have only one aspect in effect at a time.

At 8th level, you can take on up to two aspects simultaneously.

At 11th level, you can take on up to three aspects simultaneously.

At 15th level, the limit increases to its maximum of four simultaneous aspects.

Each aspect taken on counts as one daily use of the ability (see below).

Multiple versions of the same aspect don't stack.

At 5th level, you can use this ability once per day.

You gain additional uses per day at the same rate that you would normally gain uses of wild shape (from two per day at 6th level up to six per day at 18th level).

You are considered proficient with any natural attacks granted by the aspect, and you retain all your special abilities (unless the aspect specifically replaces them, such as the claws of the dragon aspect replacing your own claw attack, if you have one).

Breath of the Dragon: You can breathe a 30-foot cone of fire as a standard action.

The cone deals 1d6 points of damage per two druid levels; a successful Reflex save ($10 + 1/2$ your druid level + your Con modifier) halves this damage.

Each time you breathe, you must wait 1d4 rounds before you can use this breath weapon again.

Claws of the Dragon: You gain a +4 bonus to Strength, and your hands grow claws that can be used as primary natural attacks.

Each claw deals a certain amount of damage (1d6 points if you are Medium, 1d4 if you are Small, and 1d8 if you are Large) plus your Strength modifier.

These claws are treated as magic weapons for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

Heart of the Dragon: You gain a +4 bonus to Constitution and immunity to paralysis.

Mind of the Dragon: You gain a +4 bonus to Wisdom, darkvision out to 60 feet, low-light vision, and immunity to sleep effects.

Wings of the Dragon: You grow draconic wings that allow you to fly at your land speed with good maneuverability. You can't fly if you are wearing heavy armor or carrying a heavy load.

BREATHSTEALER (ROGUE)

Rogues are among the best dragon hunters in the world, and they have developed a special attack to counter the powerful signature ability of these great beasts.

Any rogue who expects to face dragons is advised to select this class feature.

Class: Rogue.

Level: 10th, 13th, 16th, or 19th.

(You can choose this alternative class feature at any of the given levels).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the standard rogue's special ability granted at that level.

Benefit: If you deliver a sneak attack against a dragon, you can choose to sacrifice two or more dice of extra damage that you would normally deal to delay the creature's next use of its breath weapon.

The delay is a number of rounds equal to 1/2 the number of dice sacrificed.

If the dragon is currently recharging its breath weapon, this delay replaces the normal recharge time (usually once every 1d4 rounds) if it is longer.

Multiple uses of this ability don't stack: use only the longer delay.

A dragon immune to extra damage from critical hits or sneak attacks is immune to this ability.

DRACONIC FIST (MONK)

Monks who follow the Way of the Draconic Fist seek to harness their inner ki just as dragons harness their innate magical ability.

While you give up versatility in combat, the ability to add energy to your unarmed strikes makes them more potent against a wide range of foes.

Class: Monk.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the standard monk's bonus feat at 1st level.

Benefit: When you select this class feature, choose one energy type from among acid, cold, electricity, or fire.

As a swift action, you can choose for your next unarmed attack made in this round to deal an extra 1d6 points of damage of the chosen energy type.

This extra damage improves to 2d6 points at 5th level, and by another 1d6 points every five levels thereafter.

You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to your class level.

DRAGONSCALE HUSK (VARIOUS)

Any warrior knows that skill in battle isn't enough; you must also guard against the attacks of your enemies.

A well-forged suit of armor can mean the difference between life and death, but a warrior whose very body is his armor has an immediate advantage.

Those who have the blood of dragons running in their veins can gain this benefit.

Class: Any standard class that grants proficiency in heavy armor, such as fighter or paladin.

Level: 1st (unless the class grants proficiency in heavy armor at a level other than 1st, in which case this feature can be taken only at that level).

Special Requirement: You must be of the dragonblood subtype (see page 4) to select this alternative class feature.

As long as you gain the dragonblood subtype at the same level that you would gain heavy armor proficiency, you can select this class feature, even if you would normally choose class features before selecting the option that grants you the subtype.

For example, a 1st-level human fighter who takes Dragontouched (see page 18) as one of his 1st-level feats could also select this class feature.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain proficiency with any kind of armor.

If you would later gain some form of armor proficiency (such as by multiclassing or taking a feat), you can choose at that time to gain that proficiency, but you then lose this class feature.

If you already have proficiency with any kind of armor, you must lose that proficiency in order to select this class feature.

Benefit: You gain the extraordinary ability to grow a thick, scaly hide that protects you like armor.

The dragonscale husk resembles the scales of a dragon of your choice (selected when you gain the class feature).

The husk requires 8 hours to grow, but this process can take place at night while you are sleeping.

Your scaled hide grants you a bonus to your Armor Class equal to 6 + 1/3 your class level in the class that granted you heavy armor proficiency (+7 bonus to AC at 3rd level, +8 bonus to AC at 6th level, and so on, up to a maximum +12 bonus to AC at 18th level).

Multiple classes that grant this proficiency stack for determining the dragonscale husk's total bonus.

This bonus doesn't stack with any feat, racial trait, or other special ability that would grant you a bonus to Armor Class.

In addition, as you attain higher levels, your husk grants you increasing resistance to acid, cold, electricity- and fire.

You gain resistance 5 at 5th level, resistance 10 at 10th level, resistance 15 at 15th level, and resistance 20 at 20th level.

Your dragonscale husk is treated as medium armor for the purpose of determining your speed and whether you can use class features or other special abilities.

It allows a maximum Dexterity bonus to Armor Class of +2 and has an armor check penalty of -4.

You can sleep in your husk without penalty.

You cannot wear any other armor while your husk is present.

Your husk isn't treated as armor for the purpose of being affected by spells or other abilities.

You can't grant it an enhancement bonus with magic vestment, nor can you imbue it with special properties, as you could a normal suit of armor.

You can't take off your dragonscale husk, but you can choose to shed it.

Doing this requires 10 minutes of concentration and results in your sloughing off a pile of scales that crumble to dust if handled.

DRAKKEN FAMILIAR (HEXBLADE, SORCERER, WIZARD)

Arcane spellcasters, even those who don't claim the blood of dragons as their own, often have a special link with dragonkind.

One manifestation of this link is the caster's familiar, which can take on draconic characteristics.

Class: Hexblade (see Complete Warrior), sorcerer, or wizard.

Level: 4th (hexblade) or 1st (sorcerer or wizard).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, your familiar does not gain all the benefits normally accorded to a familiar.

See below to determine which alternative benefits it gains, and which standard benefits these replace.

Benefit: Your familiar is a drakken version of a normal animal (see the sidebar on page 107).

It gains the dragonblood subtype and all the benefits of being a familiar, except as described below.

When your familiar would normally gain the ability to deliver touch spells, it gains a breath weapon instead.

This breath is a 15-foot cone of fire, usable once per hour, that deals a number of points of damage equal to 1d6 + twice your class level (levels of different classes that are entitled to familiars stack for this purpose).

A successful Reflex save ($10 + 1/2$ your total class levels for determining the familiar's abilities) halves the damage dealt.

When your familiar would normally gain the ability to speak with animals of its kind, it instead gains the ability to speak with creatures of the dragon type.

DRAKKENSTEED MOUNT (PALADIN)

Paladins who revere dragons or draconic deities, though few in number, sometimes summon dragon-descended beasts known as drakkensteeds (see page 113) to serve as their special mounts.

Unlike a standard warhorse, unicorn, or other special mount used by paladins, drakkensteeds are more than just outstanding members of mundane races—they are nearly legendary beasts seen by few and mastered by even fewer.

Class: Paladin.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: It you select this class feature, you do not gain the standard paladin's special mount.

Benefit: You gain the service of a loyal drakkensteed.

It functions in all ways as any other special mount gained by a paladin (including advancing its statistics, gaining special abilities, and so forth), except that it can't command animals.

FAVORED OF BAHAMUT/FAVORED OF TIAMAT (FAVORED SOUL)

Although humanoid worshipers of draconic gods are unusual, their numbers are growing.

No one knows whether these deities have taken an active hand in gifting lesser creatures with divine blessings, or whether the ranks of the faithful swell only by chance.

Either way, those who serve Bahamut or Tiamat as divine emissaries can manifest draconic abilities and sorcerous powers, much to the surprise of their enemies.

Class: Favored soul (see Complete Divine).

Level: 3rd.

Special Requirement: You must be devoted to either Bahamut or Tiamat to select this class feature.

Replaces: It you select this class feature, you do not gain the Weapon Focus feat with your deity's favored weapon at 3rd level, and you do not gain the Weapon Specialization feat with your deity's favored weapon at 12th level.

Furthermore, other class features gained at later levels change, as described below.

Benefit: You grow claws that deal damage (1d6 points if you are Medium, 1d4 if you are Small, and 1d8 if you are Large).

As a full attack, you can make one primary natural attack with each of your two extremities, or you can make one secondary natural attack with one claw when attacking with a melee weapon.

The claws are treated as magic weapons for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

In addition, you can choose a sorcerer spell (rather than a cleric spell) as your newly learned 1st-level spell.

As long as the spell remains on your list of spells known, you can treat it as being on your class spell list for all purposes.

You also gain the Dragontouched feat (page 18) as a bonus feat.

At 12th level, you can learn one additional sorcerer spell as if it were a cleric spell.

This spell can be one of your newly learned 5th- or 6th-level spells, or you can use your ability to replace an existing known spell with a new sorcerer spell.

At 17th level, instead of growing batlike or feathered wings, you grow draconic wings that resemble those of your deity.

At 20th level, instead of gaining damage reduction 10/silver or 10/cold iron, you gain damage reduction 10/epic.

INSPIRE AWE (BARD)

Though occasionally derided as the "weak cousin" of the sorcerer, a bard can tap into a fragment of the same draconic power that fuels sorcerer magic.

A bard who learns this ability no longer inspires courage in his allies, but instead creates fear in those who oppose him.

Class: Bard.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain inspire courage (or any later improvements to that class feature).

Benefit: A bard with 3 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use song or poetics to inspire awe in his enemies, rendering them shaken.

To be affected, an enemy must be within 30 feet and be able to hear the bard perform.

The effect lasts for as long as the enemy hears the bard perform and for 1 round thereafter.

Each enemy can attempt a Will save to negate the effect; the DC is equal to the bard's Perform check result.

Regardless of the success or failure of the save, no creature can be affected by inspire awe more than once in a 24-hour period.

Inspire awe is a mind-affecting fear effect.

At 8th level, the range of this effect extends to 60 feet.

At 14th level, the effect lasts for 5 rounds after the enemy can no longer hear the bard perform.

At 20th level, any enemy who fails to save becomes frightened for 1 round, then shaken for the remainder of the duration.

PHYNXKIN COMPANION (DRUID, RANGER)

A druid or ranger who adventures in regions rich with draconic influence can gain an alternative animal companion, a phynxkin (see page 116), that serves him as loyally as any other animal companion would.

Class: Druid or ranger.

Level: 1st (druid) or 4th (ranger).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you give up your standard choice of animal companion, and your animal companion does not gain all benefits normally accorded to it (see below).

Benefit: You gain a phynxkin as an animal companion. Treat it as an animal for the purpose of determining the effects of your skills, feats, spells, and other abilities.

When your phynxkin would normally gain the devotion special quality, both you and the phynxkin instead gain immunity to fear effects, but only while you are within 30 feet of each other.

When your effective druid level for determining your animal companion's abilities reaches 7th, you can replace your animal companion with a dire phynxkin animal companion (see page 117).

Doing this reduces your effective druid level for determining its abilities by six.

REBUKE DRAGONS (CLERIC, PALADIN)

Though the destruction (or control) of undead is common to many divinely oriented characters, the deities also recognize the ancient power of the dragons as a primal force.

Some reward their followers with the ability to instill such creatures with awe or command them as minions.

Class: Cleric or paladin.

Level: 1st (cleric) or 4th (paladin).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the ability to turn or rebuke undead.

Benefit: You channel divine energy to rebuke (awe) or command (control) dragons.

This ability functions as an evil cleric rebuking undead. It is more difficult to rebuke or command dragons that share your moral or ethical bent.

Any dragon that shares one alignment component with you is treated as having turn resistance +2 against this ability.

Any dragon that shares both alignment components with you is treated as having turn resistance +4 against this ability.

You can also use this ability to bolster a dragon against an attempt by another creature to use its own rebuke dragons ability (the same way an evil cleric can bolster undead against turning).

To bolster a dragon, you must share at least one alignment component with the dragon.

An attempt to rebuke dragons counts as an attempt to turn or rebuke undead for the purpose of qualifying for or activating divine feats, or for using other abilities that require you to expend a use of your turn or rebuke ability.

SHAMANIC INVOCATION (DRAGON SHAMAN)

Most dragon shamans channel the raw power of dragonkind through their auras and breath weapons. Some, thanks to a stronger spiritual link to their totem, learn a more advanced method of wielding draconic power: the invocations normally associated with dragonfire adepts (see page 24).

Though they never display the range and skill of dragonfire adepts, the shamans enjoy the versatility of the invocations.

Class: Dragon shaman (see Player's Handbook II).

Level: 5th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not learn a new draconic aura at 5th level (and can never know more than six draconic auras, at 9th level and higher).

Benefit: You learn one of the least draconic invocations (see page 78) available to dragonfire adepts.

Using this invocation follows all the standard rules applicable to dragonfire adepts, except that you ignore any arcane spell failure chance.

Your caster level for the invocation is equal to your dragon shaman level minus four.

UNCANNY BRAVERY (BARBARIAN, ROGUE)

Many barbarian tribes revere dragons, while others see them as akin to natural disasters.

Regardless, some barbarians learn to steel themselves against the bloodcurdling fear that these great beasts can create in weak-minded targets.

This ability also benefits rogues who try to plunder dragon hoards.

Although they hope to complete the task without awakening the dragon, only the truly stupid fail to plan for such a possibility.

Class: Barbarian or rogue.

Level: 5th (barbarian) or 8th (rogue).

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain improved uncanny dodge.

Benefit: You are immune to the frightful presence of dragons.

You gain a +4 morale bonus on saving throws against all other forms of fear.

DROW OF THE UNDERDARK (3.5)

BARD

When adventurers think of drow arcanists, they picture the horrifically deadly drow wizards or the demonically imbued warlocks.

The bard would almost certainly beat the bottom of the list of arcane classes associated with the drow.

What surface-dwellers fail to realize, however, is that the drow have an ancient bardic tradition—one that transforms the traveling entertainer, trickster, and storyteller of the surface into one of the most horrific taskmasters and assassins of the Underdark.

DEADLY KNOWLEDGE

Drow bards do not travel the world, and thus do not gain the broad range of understanding other bards have.

Instead, they study a means of death-dealing normally associated with other classes.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the standard bard's bardic knowledge ability.

In addition, you can use your bardic music one fewer time per day than other bards (minimum 1).

Benefit: You are trained in the use of poison.

You never risk poisoning yourself when applying poison to a weapon.

CLERIC

Everything you do, everything you are, is devoted heart and soul to Lolth: to spreading her power across the Underdark, and, of course, to cementing your own base of power among the drow.

How better to honor the Weaver of Webs, after all, than to ensure that so potent and loyal a servant as yourself can direct her minions?

MASTER OF SPIDERS

Spiders—the favored of Lolth and the totems of your race—respond to your call, bowing before you as they do before the divine mistress you both serve.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the standard cleric's ability to turn or rebuke undead.

Benefit: You can rebuke or command vermin as an evil cleric rebukes or commands undead.

When commanding spiders, you gain a +4 bonus to your effective turning level.

This ability otherwise works exactly as rebuke undead.

You can use this ability in place of turn or rebuke undead for the purpose of qualifying for divine feats.

DRUID

Druids are rare among drow communities.

Most drow spellcasters pursue either the faith of Lolth or one of a variety of arcane paths.

However, a rare few exist who seek a different, more natural connection between themselves and their subterranean environment.

Drow druids forgo the ability to assume animal forms, preferring the shape of their revered totem: the spider.

SPIDER SHAPE

After extensive indoctrination by drow priestesses, you use wild shape to assume the form of vermin.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the ability to wild shape into an animal at 5th level.

Benefit: Beginning at 5th level, you can turn yourself into any Small or Medium monstrous spider.

You are not mindless, and thus do not gain immunity to mind-affecting spells and abilities.

You can take the shape of a Large monstrous spider at 8th level, a Tiny monstrous spider at 11th level, and a Huge monstrous spider at 15th level.

This class feature otherwise functions as the normal wild shape ability.

It doesn't affect your ability to wild shape into plant creatures or elementals (gained at 12th and 16th level, as normal).

Special: Because they have a stronger connection to scorpions than to spiders, drow in the EBERRON campaign setting who select this alternative class feature instead gain the ability to wild shape into monstrous scorpions.

FAVORED SOUL

Viewed with a combination of awe and jealous hatred by other drow, the favored souls of Lolth hold substantial power in their society, but also occupy a truly precarious position.

As Lolth's "elite", favored souls are expected, even more than others, to be able to defend themselves and their positions from other drow who seek to take them.

Otherwise, they clearly weren't worthy after all, were they?

Favored souls often compete with clerics for positions in the priesthood and other high offices.

SENSE PREY

The Weaver of Webs has graced you with the predatory senses of her favored minions.

Although you are no longer as resistant to damage as other favored souls, it is almost impossible for the enemy to hide from you.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: if you select this class feature, you do not gain the standard favored soul's energy resistance at 5th, 10th, and 15th level.

Benefit: Three times per day, you can use a standard action to gain tremorsense (MM 316) out to of 5 feet for 1 round per class level.

This is a supernatural ability.

At 10th level your tremorsense extends to 20 feet, and at 15th level to 30 feet.

FIGHTER

Drow fighters strike fast and melt away before their opponents have a chance to mount a counterattack.

Rather than using heavy armor or picking feats that emphasize direct assaults, drow fighters employ techniques that exploit their natural advantages.

In exchange for a fighter's access to heavy armor, a drow fighter gains strong first-strike capability.

HIT-AND-RUN TACTICS

The drow specialize in guerrilla warfare, picking off their foes with poisoned bolts and slipping away into the darkness.

Each attack wears their opponents down, until their numbers are so reduced that the drow can sweep in and capture them.

If you select the hit-and-run tactics class feature, you sacrifice some AC, but make up for the loss with improved reflexes and accuracy when attacking unsuspecting foes.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: By selecting the hit-and-run alternative class feature, you give up proficiency with heavy armor and tower shields, even if you already have those proficiencies from another class.

You can't gain either of these proficiencies by multiclassing later, but you can gain them by selecting the appropriate feats.

Benefit: At 1st level, you gain a +2 bonus on initiative checks.

In addition, when attacking a flat-footed opponent within 30 feet, you can add your Dexterity bonus (if any) as a competence bonus on weapon damage rolls.

ROGUE

Rogues are common in drow society, fewer in number only than clerics and wizards.

They are silent killers, spies, and informants.

It falls to them to gather intelligence about rival houses and to eliminate challengers within the hierarchy.

For these tasks, drow rogues cultivate the ability to safely utilize poison.

POISON USE

Poison is used widely in drow society.

For the dark elves, it is a vital tool in the race for survival.

From the popular drow sleep poison to the bevy of spider venoms extracted from Lolth's favored creatures, drow have mastered a variety of toxins that wreak havoc with their opponents' bodies.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the trapfinding ability gained at 1st level.

Benefit: You are trained in the use of poison.

You are never at risk of accidentally poisoning yourself when applying poison to a weapon.

SWASHBUCKLER

The drow swashbucklers fills an interesting niche in dark elf society.

Their culture of treachery and betrayal offers opportunities for those with wit and skill to rise far.

For drow, the swashbuckler class is usually a male pursuit, and well-born sons of the great houses are the most likely to cultivate the abilities this class offers.

A rare few drow swashbucklers are renegades: outcasts from drow society, bucking the traditions and loyalties to the matriarchs to seek their own fortunes.

Drow swashbucklers give up some of their mobility across difficult terrain to gain a more tactical understanding of movement.

SWIFT AND DEADLY

A drow swashbuckler who wields two weapons gains the ability to better maneuver around his opponents.

Level: 7th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain Acrobatic Charge at 7th level.

Benefit: When wielding two weapons, if you hit at least once with each weapon in the same round, you can take a 5-foot step as a swift action.

This doesn't count against your normal limit of one 5-foot step per round, and you can use this ability even if you've already moved in the round.

WARLOCK

Warlocks among the drow occupy an oddly dichotomous position.

They have strong links to the Abyss and to Lolth, but those ties more directly bind them to Lolth's servants—her demons—than to the Spider Queen herself.

Thus, although warlocks can occupy positions of power and even become priestesses, drow expect them to be serving the church and the great houses rather than running them.

VENOMOUS BLOOD

The fluids within your body become like the venom of the spiders themselves.

Those who would feast upon your flesh have cause to be sorry, and the poison within renders you resistant to poisons from without.

Level: 8th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the standard warlock's fiendish resilience at 8th, 13th, and 18th level.

Benefit: At 8th level, you gain a +5 bonus on saves against poison.

At 13th level, your blood becomes poisonous.

Any creature that damages you with a bite attack, or that swallows you whole, is exposed to this poison (contact; Fort DC to + 1/2 your warlock level + Cha modifier; 1d3 Str/1d3 Str).

You are immune to your own poisonous blood.

At 18th level, you can bring the poison of your blood to the surface of your hand and apply it to a held weapon or to your next eldritch blast.

It requires a move action to manifest and apply the poison, and you can do so three times per day.

In this more concentrated form, initial and secondary damage are 1d6 Strength each.

The poison lasts until you make an attack with the weapon or eldritch blast or until the start of your next turn, whichever comes first.

Applying the poison to your eldritch blast doesn't prevent you from applying eldritch essence or blast shape invocations as normal.

WIZARD

Wizards are among the most feared and admired nondivine members of drow society.

Despite their innate resistance to magic, the drow have great respect for both the spells and the knowledge available to these masters of the arcane arts.

Although they are not directly tied to Lolth in the way divine casters and warlocks are, their devotion to the Spider Queen and indeed, their very upbringing within society—has led to the development of race-specific wizard traits.

ABYSSAL SPECIALIST

Most wizards who choose to specialize do so in a specific school.

Many drow wizards instead focus on a variety of spells closely linked to the powers and objectives of the Weaver of Webs.

The basic mechanic for specialization is the same, but the specifics differ.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you cannot specialize in a school of magic, and you lose the ability to cast spells from a prohibited school.

You must select one school of magic to serve as your prohibited school, and you can never cast spells from it or use spell completion and spell trigger devices connected to it, as per normal specialist rules.

You may not select divination as your prohibited school.

Benefit: You are considered specialized, but not in a specific school.

Rather, you gain all the benefits of specialization with a group of spells that includes all those of the following subschools and/or descriptors: chaotic, compulsion, darkness, evil, and fear.

You gain all the standard benefits of specialization as applied to this group of spells, as though it were a school unto itself.

DUNGEONSCAPE (3.5)

BARBARIAN

Your purpose in the dungeon is to fight, plain and simple. With your fast movement and melee prowess, you can reach trouble before it can get to your comrades.

In close quarters, where tactical movement is important, Combat Reflexes can be advantageous.

If you set up a blocking position in a 10-footwide hallway, no enemy can get past you easily.

As always, Power Attack and Cleave are your friends.

Your uncanny dodge and trap sense abilities help you avoid surprise dangers, and damage reduction lets you endure more blows than most.

Consequently, a party stuck without a rogue (or similar character) might depend on you to take care of traps—simply because you'll get hurt less if you fail.

When the party is faced with obstacles, your high Strength allows you to move aside heavy objects, break down doors, and so forth.

You can use Power Attack to help bust through inanimate objects more quickly.

If you need an extra edge to accomplish such a task (especially if you're in a hurry), it might even be worth expending a use of your rage to get the job done.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: TRAPKILLER

You have a knack for avoiding and disabling traps.

Your keen instincts help you avoid danger, while your great strength enables you to disrupt dangerous devices.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain the trap sense ability.

Benefit: Beginning at 3rd level, you gain trapfinding; see the rogue class feature, PH 50), except that you can use Survival instead of Search to locate traps.

However, you take a –5 penalty on such checks because of your comparative unfamiliarity with the mechanisms and triggers involved.

Once you find a mechanical trap, you can attempt to disarm it by making an attack roll.

You succeed if the result exceeds the Disable Device DC of that trap.

Only traps with moving mechanisms or gears (such as shifting floor panels, dropping portcullis gates, or arrow traps) can be disarmed in this manner; simple pitfalls and most magic traps have no mechanism to be so disrupted.

You must be able to reach the trap with a melee attack to make a disarm attempt.

If you fail to disarm the trap, you automatically spring it.

BARD

You are the expert at solving peculiar problems.

Bardic knowledge can give you information about the dungeon's purpose or origin as a whole, the secret answer to an ancient riddle, or the name and powers of a magic item.

If the party gets stuck, give bardic knowledge a try.

The legend lore spell can supplement this ability.

Your bardic music has many useful functions, so you shouldn't waste it on situations that aren't truly dangerous.

Don't underestimate the inspire competence ability, though; it improves crucial skill checks, especially Disable Device and Climb, when poor rolls can mean serious trouble.

For your spell selections, focus on utility spells and those that mislead opponents.

Light, know direction, animate rope, detect secret doors, gaseous form, dimension door, freedom of movement, shadow walk, and find the path make navigation and movement smooth.

Illusion spells, even simple ones such as ghost sound, can trick enemies who are unaware of your presence.

Even your cantrips have wide utility: Detect magic can sort the treasure hoard, mage hand can grab a set of keys from a hook or drop a rock on a trap's trigger plate, mending can fix a damaged coil of rope, and open/close can crack a door or trapped chest from a safe distance.

Don't skimp on your cure spells—you'll need them.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: LORE SONG

Bardic music serves many purposes, aiding your allies or manipulating your enemies.

You have refined your performance of another group of bardic songs, full of lost knowledge, obscure lore, and relevant anecdotes.

These lore songs inspire you to come up with new solutions to difficult problems.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain the bardic knowledge ability.

Benefit: Once per day, as an immediate action, you can gain a +4 insight bonus on a single attack, check, or save.

You gain one additional daily use of this ability at every odd-numbered bard level (3rd, 5th, and so on).

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: MIMICKING SONG

You use your bardic music to create background noise consistent with your adventuring environment, shielding the sounds made by yourself and your adventuring party as you move through dangerous areas.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain the countersong bardic music ability.

Benefit: Mimicking song is a spell-like ability that requires you to have 3 or more ranks in a Perform skill.

Using mimicking song counts as one of your daily uses of bardic music.

You grant a +2 bonus on the Move Silently check of all allies within 30 feet (including yourself).

This bonus increases by 2 for every five bard levels you have (to a maximum bonus of +10 at 20th level).

This effect lasts as long as you continue performing.

CLERIC

In the dungeon, as elsewhere, your main function is to heal and protect.

Your healing spells make you one of the most essential members of a dungeoneering party.

Your defensive spells also keep your party out of danger.

Putting ranks in the Heal skill can improve your ability to salve your companions' wounds, as can the Sacred Healing and Sacred Purification feats from Players Handbook II.

And of course, you are the party's bastion against undead attack.

Choose domains that play to your strengths such as Healing or Protection) or that overcome dungeon difficulties.

The Travel domain can negate obstacles, and the Sun domain gives you some extra offensive magic and more power to face undead-infested dungeons.

You are also a competent melee combatant who can support the fighter or barbarian in your party.

You might instead choose to reinforce this role, enhancing your fighting ability with combat-focused feats such as Weapon Focus or Divine Armor (PH2 88).

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: DIVINE RESTORATION

When you or your teammates lose your strength in the middle of a dungeon, you can't always "call it a day" and rest.

You can restore the party's hit points by trading spells for healing magic, but other setbacks besides physical injury might impede your progress: insidious disease, vermin poison, or noxious fumes.

By focusing your divine purpose, you can restore your party's lost abilities.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you sacrifice one of your domain granted powers.

Benefit: At 3rd level, select one of your chosen cleric domains.

You can still select and cast spells from that domain list, but you no longer can use the domain's granted power.

Instead, you gain the ability to spontaneously cast lesser restoration, restoration, or greater restoration by sacrificing a prepared spell of the same level.

For example, Jozan is 3rd level and selects this alternate class feature.

He had chosen the Healing and Protection domains at 1st level.

He gives up the Healing domain granted power.

He no longer casts healing spells at +1 caster level, but he can sacrifice a prepared 2nd-level spell to spontaneously cast lesser restoration.

At 7th level, he'll be able to sacrifice a 4th-level spell to cast restoration, and at 13th level, a 7th-level spell to cast greater restoration.

Special: When spontaneously casting a restoration spell, you must still expend the required components.

DRUID

Like the cleric, your purpose in the dungeon is to heal and support.

Your nature-based abilities that depend on vegetation or being outdoors won't help here, so focus on healing and enhancement spells such as barkskin, bull's strength, and greater magic fang (which works either on yourself in wild shape or on your animal companion).

Spells that facilitate dungeon movement are worthwhile, including spider climb, warp wood, air walk, control water, and freedom of movement, and offensive spells such as call lightning can be powerful even in close quarters underground.

At low levels, bypassing obstacles can be difficult.

You can command an animal companion or creature summoned with a summon nature's ally spell (assuming you can communicate with it) to perform a trick that will assist you.

For example, a badger could burrow under a door, an eagle could carry a grappling hook to a high ledge, or a monkey could crawl through a narrow passage and lift a latch.

By taking a wild shape, especially the elemental forms available to you at higher levels, you can navigate unusual terrain yourself and overcome obstacles the others cannot. Make sure to select the Natural Spell feat so you can use your magic while in wild shape.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: ROOT WALKER

You are a child of the underworld.

While other druids dwell in lush forests and rolling fields, you tend to the mushroom tangles and lichen beds that lie beneath their feet.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain any of the following abilities: wild empathy at 1st level, woodland stride at 2nd level, and resist nature's lure at 4th level.

Benefit: At 1st level, you gain vermin empathy.

This ability functions just like wild empathy (PH 35) except that you can improve the attitude of vermin instead of animals, even though vermin are usually nonintelligent.

At 2nd level, you gain the ability to move over stone, rock, and earthen debris at your full speed without taking damage or suffering any other impairment.

This ability functions only with natural surfaces.

Magically altered surfaces, such as those created by soften earth and stone or spike stones, affect you normally. At 4th level, you gain resistance to the powers of creatures most abhorrent to nature. You gain a +4 bonus on saving throws against the spell-like abilities of aberrations.

FIGHTER

Your role in the dungeon is to fight strategically, protecting the weaker members of the party by holding off enemies. Ranged attacks are certainly possible in larger chambers, but your greatest strength is holding the line in melee. Focus your feats on those that enhance melee combat in tight spaces where movement is limited, such as Combat Reflexes, Cleave and Great Cleave, or Whirlwind Attack. Setting up tactical “pinch points”, as mentioned in the barbarian’s entry above, will let you deliver more pain than usual.

The Vexing Flanker feat (PH2 85) makes a flanking position even more deadly against enemies.

If you’re worried about being caught in the dark, Blind-Fight can be useful.

Your Strength-based skills (Climb and Jump) are vital in the dungeon, allowing you to cross or exploit obstructing terrain.

Unless you specialize in light armor and Dexterity-based combat, you’ll need maximum ranks to make up for your armor check penalty.

Aside from these considerations, your function isn’t much different from that in other situations.

A blade is a blade in the dungeon or in the wilderness.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: DUNGEON CRASHER

Survival in a dungeon requires more than skill at arms and a stout shield.

Traps, hazards, falling portcullises, and other threats can pose as much danger as an enraged troll.

But you cannot help your impetuous nature.

When others might move ahead cautiously and search for traps and other hidden dangers, you charge forward, ignoring the traps you set off and splintering doors and obstacles.

Level: 2nd.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain the fighter bonus feats at 2nd level and at 6th level.

Benefit: You excel at overwhelming traps, smashing through doors, and pushing aside your enemies.

At 2nd level, you gain a +2 competence bonus on saves and to your Armor Class when attacked by traps.

You also gain a +5 bonus on Strength checks to break a door, wall, or similar obstacle.

In addition, you gain a special benefit when making a bull rush.

If you force an opponent to move into a wall or other solid object, he stops as normal.

However, your momentum crushes him against it, dealing an amount of bludgeoning damage equal to 4d6 points + twice your Strength bonus (if any).

At 6th level, the bonuses when dealing with traps increase to +4, and the bonus on Strength checks to break objects increases to +10.

The damage you deal when bull rushing an opponent into a wall increases to 8d6 points three times your Strength bonus.

MONK

You are the party member most able to bypass dungeon obstacles, and you also provide combat support. Your varied class skills, substantial skill points, and lack of reliance on armor make you ideally suited to focusing on essential dungeoneering skills.

Climb, Hide, Jump, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Tumble are all good choices; depending on your ability scores, either dominate in one area or select a balanced array.

In combat, use your great mobility to set up flanking positions for other characters (especially the rogue).

The Tumble skill can protect you from attacks of opportunity and allow you to move about the battlefield safely.

The Acrobatic Strike feat (PH2 71) makes tumbling even more worthwhile.

For your bonus feats, Combat Reflexes and Improved Trip are useful selections: Knock foes prone, then slam them as they try to rise or crawl away.

Your other class features have broad utility in the dungeon, especially slow fall and immunity to disease and poison.

At higher levels, the abundant step ability lets you bypass most obstacles with ease.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: STANDING JUMP

While most monks gain a fluid grace that allows them to move with astounding speed, you have learned how to focus your energy and expel it in one quick burst.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, your fast movement ability is reduced.

You gain a +10-foot enhancement bonus to speed at 12th level and another +10-foot bonus at 18th level.

Benefit: At 3rd level, you can make a standing long jump with ease.

The check DCs for your long jumps do not require a 20-foot running start and do not double when you leap from a standing position.

At 6th level, you apply this skill to high jumps.

The check DCs for your high jumps do not double when you leap from a standing position.

You lose these benefits when wearing armor (even light armor) or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: WALL WALKER

You have the uncanny ability to travel along vertical surfaces for a short time.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain the slow fall ability.

Benefit: Beginning at 4th level, as a move action, you can run up or down a vertical surface a total distance of 20 feet without making a Climb check.

You add 10 feet to this distance at 6th level and every two levels thereafter, up to your maximum speed.

You can use this ability only once per round (so you can’t make a double move up or down a wall).

If you do not reach the top of the vertical surface or find a suitable hand- or foothold, you must make a Climb check appropriate to the surface.

If you succeed on the check, you can use this ability again in the next round.

Otherwise, you fall or make no progress, as determined by the check result.

You can't use this ability to traverse a ceiling or overhang.

PALADIN

Your purpose in the dungeon is to fight and guard against evil.

The typical dungeon is full of wicked creatures and magic. Your detect evil and smite evil abilities are more likely to come into play in a dungeon than elsewhere.

Take advantage of detect evil whenever possible to prevent surprise and give the advantage to you instead of to your adversaries.

Use your smite cautiously—don't waste it on a weaker being if you suspect greater evil lies ahead.

Lay on hands provides all-important healing and can give the cleric a chance to use offensive or support spells.

If you encounter undead that are particularly hard to hit, using lay on hands as a touch attack can more effectively damage them and conserve your party's resources.

Divine health protects you from diseases that can debilitate a party.

When facing creatures or environmental hazards that can cause disease, stay in front to protect your companions.

Your ability to use remove disease at 6th level lets you do even more.

For your spell selection, gauge the party's overall capability to deal with damage, disease, and other ill effects.

If they can easily handle those problems, pick spells that grant combat bonuses, such as bless, bull's strength, prayer, and holy sword.

If not, cure and restoration spells, delay poison, shield other, remove curse, and neutralize poison might be better choices. Don't bring your mount into the dungeon.

Few dungeons are constructed to allow a horse or other large creature to pass, especially with the added height of a rider, so a mount is usually only a hindrance (and faces unnecessary danger).

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: DIVINE SPIRIT

Most paladins form a special relationship with a celestial mount that aids them in battle.

You, however, spend most of your time fighting below the ground or in enclosed spaces, where a mount is of little use. Instead, you have forged a bond with celestial spirits whose aid you can call upon when needed.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain the special mount ability.

Benefit: Upon reaching 5th level, you can call upon your deity for aid in the form of a celestial spirit.

Using this ability is a standard action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

See below for detailed spirit descriptions and rules.

Your paladin level determines which kinds of celestial spirits answer your summons.

Paladin Level	Spirit Summoned
5th–10th	Spirit of healing
11th–15th	Spirit of combat
16th–19th	Spirit of heroism
20th+	Spirit of the fallen

You can summon the spirit available at your current level as well as any that became available at lower levels.

The following entries describe how each of the different spirits function.

Unless otherwise specified, all spirits share some characteristics, as set out below.

- A spirit occupies a 5-foot square on the battle map.
- When summoned, a spirit appears on the battlefield within 30 feet of you.

You can use a free action to have it move once per round.

The spirit has a land speed of 30 feet.

- All spirits are insubstantial and transparent.

Any creature can move through them normally, and they do not block line of sight or line of effect.

- A spirit cannot attack or be attacked.

It is not undead and cannot be turned.

It is subject to dispel magic, dismissal, or banishment as if it were a summoned creature, using your paladin level as the caster level.

- If you lose line of sight to a spirit, it disappears immediately.

- Each spirit available to you can be summoned once per day.

- A spirit remains for a number of rounds equal to your paladin level, until it is dismissed, or until special conditions in the spirit's description are met.

Spirit of Healing: This spirit increases your ability to heal damage dealt to you or your allies.

When summoned, it can heal an amount of damage equal to twice the amount you can heal using your lay on hands ability.

To use its healing ability, you or an ally must begin or end your turn in the same square as the spirit.

That character can then use a standard action to transfer some or all of the hit points from the spirit to herself.

Once the spirit has used all its healing ability, it dissipates.

Spirit of Combat: This spirit enhances combat ability.

Whenever an ally (including yourself) is adjacent to the spirit of combat or occupying its space, that character gains holy fervor.

Holy fervor grants a +1 sacred bonus on attacks and damage rolls for every four paladin levels you possess (up to a maximum of +5 at 20th level).

In addition, affected characters' weapons are treated as good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

Spirit of Heroism: This spirit automatically occupies your space and does not leave until dismissed or dispelled, or the duration of the summoning ends.

You gain DR 10/–.

In addition, you gain the benefit of the Diehard feat (even if you do not meet the prerequisite) and can use your lay on hands ability as a free action once per round instead of as a standard action.

Spirit of the Fallen: While you or any of your allies are adjacent to this spirit, it grants fast healing 10 to those characters.

If an affected character's hit points drop to 0 or fewer while within 30 feet of this spirit, it revives that character at the start of his next turn, allowing him to take his action as normal.

The character heals an amount of damage equal to twice your paladin level, though if his hit points are still at -10 or below, he still dies.

The spirit can use its revive ability once per round.

A spirit of the fallen cannot revive creatures whose bodies have been destroyed (such as by a disintegrate spell), nor can it reverse the effects of bodily changes, such as from flesh to stone or baleful polymorph, or other effects that slay a character without dealing damage.

RANGER

Even in the dungeon, you excel at scouting and also provide combat support.

Your Track bonus feat lets you find enemies who don't want to be found, so max out your Survival skill to help with the difficult task of tracking creatures over dungeons' stone surfaces.

Most of the essential dungeon skills (see the sidebar on page 42) are in your class skill list, so you can become an ideal dungeoneer.

Hide and Move Silently provide much-needed stealth.

If the party has no rogue, focus on skills that will let you fill a similar role, and consider the Nimble Fingers feat to compensate for not having Disable Device and Open Lock as class skills.

When selecting a favored enemy, try to anticipate creature types that are more prevalent in dungeons, such as aberrations, monstrous humanoids, evil outsiders, undead, or vermin.

Dungeoneering need not make archery a bad choice of combat style.

Sometimes a situation will simply not leave enough room to move into melee, making archery a powerful alternative even in cramped quarters.

Take Point Blank Shot and Precise Shot to nullify the disadvantages posed by small rooms and narrow corridors. As with the druid, if you have an animal companion, select a creature with a special mode of movement, such as a badger, eagle, or owl.

For your spells, stick with choices that work in a dungeon. Detect snares and pits, jump, pass without trace, freedom of movement, and commune with nature speed travel and facilitate stealth even if you're not outdoors.

Barkskin, bear's endurance, and other ability boosters support your party with combat advantages.

Remove disease and freedom of movement can deal with setbacks.

If your party is short on healing, make sure to prepare plenty of cure spells.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: TRAP EXPERT

Many rangers journey across the wild lands of the surface, but you are trained to descend deep into the earth. Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain the Track feat at 1st level or the swift tracker ability at 8th level.

Benefit: You gain the trapfinding ability of the rogue. In addition, you gain Disable Device as a class skill.

You can use the Search skill to locate traps with a DC higher than 20, and you can use Disable Device to bypass a trap or disarm magic traps.

See the rogue class feature (PH 50).

ROGUE

Your purpose in the dungeon is, frankly, to do everything. You are the skill expert, and the rest of your party relies on your expertise.

Other characters probably do not have Disable Device, Knowledge (dungeoneering), and Open Lock, so make sure you have plenty of ranks in those skills.

Increase your stealth with Hide and Move Silently, both for setting up sneak attacks and because you'll often be ahead of the party, looking for traps—max out your Search skill as well.

Balance and Tumble help avoid the (literal) pitfalls of dungeon delving.

You are the best character to disarm traps.

Your class skills and special abilities let you deal with most traps easily.

Don't forget to purchase a set of thieves' tools (preferably masterwork) and a 10-foot pole or other reaching device to test traps from a distance.

In combat, sneak attacks are your specialty.

With Tumble, you can move through a crowd of creatures to set up flanking opportunities.

The Acrobatic Strike and Combat Acrobat feats (both in Player's Handbook II) provide attack bonuses and reduce movement penalties while you are tumbling.

Combat Reflexes, Mobility, and Spring Attack all increase your combat options.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: QUICK FINGERS

Sometimes only a few seconds make the difference between stopping the descent of a spiked ceiling and coming to a messy end.

Through countless hours of practice, you have learned to make quick work of traps.

But this speed comes at a price.

Because you focus on disarming traps, you react more slowly when a trap activates.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain trap sense +1 at 3rd level.

Instead, you gain trap sense +1 at 6th level, with an additional increase of +1 every four levels thereafter (to a maximum of +4 at 18th level).

Benefit: When you use Disable Device to disarm a trap, the time required to perform the check is reduced.

Use the following table in place of the one on page 72 of the Player's Handbook.

Device	Time	Disable Device DC
Simple	1 move action	10
Tricky	1 standard action	15
Difficult	1 full-round action	20
Wicked	1d4 rounds	25+

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: PENETRATING STRIKE

Creatures that have immunity to extra damage from sneak attacks are a bane to rogues everywhere. Particularly in ancient tombs where undead are common, rogues must rely on their wits to survive. You have spent a significant amount of time studying this problem and have learned ways to harm even such resilient opponents.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain trap sense.

Benefit: whenever you flank a creature that is immune to extra damage from sneak attacks, you still deal extra damage equal to half your normal sneak attack dice.

This benefit does not apply against creatures that cannot be flanked, nor against foes that are otherwise denied their Dexterity bonus to AC or flat-footed but not flanked.

SORCERER

In the dungeon, as elsewhere, you are the blaster. With a limited spell selection, you're better off focusing on damage-dealing spells—especially those that take advantage of confined space—than trying to plan for contingencies.

Burning hands, flaming sphere, fireball, lightning bolt, cloudkill, and chain lightning work best when enemies are close together (and prove the point that your party members shouldn't travel in a tight pack).

Also consider force and sonic spells, and those that ignore spell resistance (as many conjuration spells do), so you have the best chance of dealing maximum damage to any sort of enemy.

A few movement-enhancing spells, such as fly and dimension door are certainly worth learning.

For 0-level spells, light is always good, mage hand and open/close can test for traps, ghost sound can trick sentries, and arcane mark helps you find your way in mazes. Concentration, Knowledge (arcana), and Spellcraft are your most useful class skills.

If you have some points left to spend, consider cross-class skills that are useful in the dungeon, especially Spot.

When it comes to feats, Combat Casting will keep you from losing spells in a sticky situation, and Spell Focus (evocation) improves your offensive capability.

Be careful about area spells that can harm your own party members; consider Sculpt Spell (Complete Arcane 83) to leave safe spaces when you don't have the opportunity to target your effects perfectly.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: SPELL SHIELD

As a powerful spellcaster, you're likely to attract the attention of powerful opponents, and your teammates can't always protect you.

Spell shield lets you use your spells' energy to offset damage that might otherwise kill you.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain a familiar.

Benefit: By achieving oneness with the magical energy from which you draw your power, you make it part of your life force.

As an immediate action when you take damage from any source, you can attempt to sacrifice spell energy instead of losing hit points.

Expend a spell slot as if you had cast a spell of that level.

Then, make a Concentration check with a DC equal to 15 + the level of the sacrificed spell.

If you succeed, you ignore an amount of damage equal to five times the level of the spell slot you gave up.

If you fail, you still lose the spell, but the magical energy fails to negate any of the damage.

For example, Hennes finds himself in the way of a black dragon's breath.

Although he succeeded on his saving throw he is still going to take 22 points of acid damage.

As a 7th-level sorcerer, Hennes can sacrifice a spell of up to 3rd level.

He chooses a 3rd-level spell, so the DC of his Concentration check is 18.

Hennes gets a result of 22 and magically negates 15 points of the acid damage, taking only 7 points.

Special: You can attempt to deflect damage as often as you wish, but you can make only one attempt per round.

Special: If an attack's damage has multiple sources (such as that of a flaming sword, which deals both weapon damage and fire damage), you must choose which source to negate.

Special: If an attack must deal damage to have a secondary effect (such as poison from a snake's bite), negating all the damage also prevents the secondary effect.

WIZARD

Your role in the dungeon is to understand and overcome. Decipher Script, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (dungeoneering), Knowledge (history), and Spellcraft all give you access to lore others might not have.

It's a good idea to coordinate with other arcane casters and Knowledge specialists (especially bards) to avoid needless duplication of expertise.

For feats, Combat Casting is always a good choice, and your high number of bonus feats lets you focus on useful metamagic or item creation.

Your choice of spells depends largely on what type of dungeon you enter.

You should always have some basic combat spells available, such as mage armor, magic missile, and fireball.

For the rest, pick utility spells, including illusions to trick guards, ways to escape dangerous conditions (such as feather fall), movement enhancers (fly, dimension door), and finders of hidden hazards and benefits (detect secret doors, arcane eye). Dispel magic negates many sorts of hazards.

As you proceed through a dungeon, you can adapt your spell selections accordingly.

It can be worthwhile to leave a spell slot or two open to allow emergency preparation for a specific situation, and the Alacrity Cogitation feat (Complete Mage 37) lets you do it on the fly.

You can use Scribe Scroll to prepare utility spells such as knock, detect secret doors, rope trick, and gaseous form ahead of time, leaving space for more offensive power.

The XP cost for scribing low-level spells is minimal, and the flexibility it allows is well worth the price.

Wands of useful low-level spells, such as detect magic, feather fall, and mage armor, are also handy.

ALTERNATIVE CLASS FEATURE: WIZARD OF SUN AND MOON

You have attuned yourself to the motions of the cosmos. The sun does more than mark off the day as it travels across the sky.

It alters the magic you command and the spells available to you.

When in the sun's warm embrace, you can cast one set of spells.

When you journey into the dark, or when the moon hangs in the sky, you gain access to a second set of spells.

This alternative class feature does not give you more spells to cast; it gives you more to prepare and choose from.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you do not gain a familiar.

Benefit: You can designate one slot per spell level above 0 as the union of sun and moon.

When you prepare your spells, you can prepare two spells for one or more of these slots.

Designate one of the two as a spell of the moon and the other as a spell of the sun.

You can cast the moon spell only if you are underground or aboveground during the night, and you can cast the sun spell only when you are aboveground during daylight hours.

If you cast one of these paired spells, it takes effect normally, but you no longer can use that spell slot to cast the spell from the opposite environment.

For example, Mialee is a 5th-level wizard with Intelligence 16.

She selects this class option and prepares her spells for the day as follows.

In the list, a superscript M denotes a spell of the moon, which can be cast only underground, or at night aboveground, and a superscript S denotes a spell of the sun, which can be cast only aboveground in daylight.

3rd—daylight^M, displacement, suggestion

2nd—blur, mirror image^M, scorching ray, Tasha's hideous laughter^S

1st—animate rope^S, hypnotism, magic missile, magic weapon^M, sleep

0—acid splash, daze, read magic, resistance

If Mialee casts daylight while underground, she marks that spell plus its environmentally opposite spell of the same level (in this case, displacement) off her list of prepared spells.

EXEMPLARS OF EVIL (3.5)

BLASPHEMOUS INCANTATION (CLERIC)

Not all evil deities or fiendish powers are concerned with undead.

Some grant their mortal servants the ability to channel their unholy will in the form of a blasphemous incantation.

Class: Cleric.

Level: 1st (cleric).

Special Requirement: To select this class feature, you must be evil.

If your alignment changes to something other than evil, you lose access to this class feature until your alignment is restored to evil.

Replaces: If you select this alternative class feature, you lose the ability to rebuke undead.

Benefit: You can call upon your evil master to smite your enemies.

All good creatures within 30 feet must succeed on Fortitude saves (DC 10 + 1/2 your caster level + your Cha modifier) or become sickened for a number of rounds equal to your Charisma modifier (minimum 1 round).

You can utter a blasphemous incantation a number of times per day equal to 3 + your Cha modifier.

If you have 5 or more ranks in Knowledge (religion), the DC of the Fortitude save increases by 2.

Blasphemous incantation is a supernatural ability.

CELESTIAL SLAYER (RANGER)

Rangers specialize in hunting and defeating certain sorts of foes.

Sometimes, a ranger's choice of enemy—as well as his single-minded pursuit of that enemy's destruction—draws the dread attention of evil entities from the Lower Planes. The character becomes better able to resist and combat the forces of good, at the expense of his soul.

Class: Ranger.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: To select this alternative class feature, you must be evil.

If your alignment changes to something other than evil, you lose access to this class feature until your alignment is restored to evil.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain wild empathy, animal companion, or woodland stride.

Benefit: You gain spell resistance equal to 10 + your class level against spells and spell-like effects that have the good descriptor.

In addition, when you roll to confirm a critical hit against a creature of the good subtype, you gain a +4 competence bonus on the roll.

FAVORED OF THE FIENDS (FAVORED SOUL)

Cultists of archdevils and demon princes are uncommon and secretive, but they are a potent force for evil in the world.

On occasion, when a servant proves his devotion to his vile masters, he undergoes a profound transformation.

Class: Favored soul (Complete Divine page 6).

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the Weapon Focus feat at 3rd level, nor do you gain the Weapon Specialization feat at 12th level.

Benefit: Your nails lengthen into ragged claws and your teeth extend into sharp fangs, dealing damage as indicated on the following table.

Size	Bite Damage	Claw Damage
Fine	1	—
Diminutive	1d2	1
Tiny	1d3	1d2
Small	1d4	1d3
Medium	1d6	1d4
Large	1d8	1d6
Huge	2d6	1d8
Gargantuan	3d6	2d6
Colossal	4d6	3d6

Your claws are your primary natural weapons. When you are not wielding a weapon, you can use your claws when making an attack action. When making a full attack, you can use both claws and your bite. When wielding a weapon, you can use the weapon as your primary attack and your bite as a natural secondary attack. In addition, if you have a free hand, you can also attack with a claw as an extra natural secondary attack. Your natural attacks count as if they were evil-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

FEIGN DEATH (MONK, RANGER, ROGUE)

A clever villain has many contingencies in place, so that if a plan goes awry, he can beat a hasty retreat. In exchange for some ability to evade damage, he can enter a state that is indistinguishable from death. Class: Monk, ranger, or rogue. Level: 2nd (monk or rogue) or 9th (ranger). Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the evasion ability. If your class would grant you improved evasion at a higher level, you instead gain evasion. Benefit: As an immediate action, you can enter a catatonic state in which you appear to be dead. While feigning death, you cannot see or feel anything, but you retain the ability to smell, hear, and otherwise follow what is going on around you. While under the effect of this ability, you are immune to all mind-affecting spells and abilities, poison, sleep, paralysis, stunning, disease, ability drain, negative levels, and death effects. Attempts to resuscitate you, such as raise dead or reincarnation, automatically fail, though resurrection and true resurrection immediately end your feign death ability. Spells and other effects that assess your current condition, such as status and deathwatch, indicate that you are dead. However, a character who succeeds on a Heal check (DC 15 + 1/2 your level + your Con modifier) can discern that you are actually alive. You can remain in the catatonic state indefinitely, though you still require food, water, and air. Emerging from feigned death is a standard action.

INSPIRE HATRED (BARD)

Motivated by a desire to spread havoc and sow discord, some villainous bards abandon the techniques that inspire heroes to greatness.

Instead, they prey upon secret longings and buried frustrations to awaken the hate that resides in mortal hearts.

Class: Bard.

Level: 9th.

Special Requirement: You must have 12 ranks in a Perform skill to use this ability.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the bardic music ability to inspire greatness.

Benefit: You can use music, poetics, or fiery oratory to evoke hatred in a single living creature within 30 feet that has an Intelligence score of 3 or higher.

For every three levels you attain beyond 9th, you can target one additional creature with a single use of this ability (two creatures at 12th level, three at 15th, four at 18th, and so on).

To inspire hatred, you must sing, speak, or perform, and the target must hear you.

The target is entitled to a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 your bard level + your Cha modifier) to resist this mind-affecting ability.

The effect lasts for as long as the target hears you and for 5 additional rounds thereafter.

An affected creature develops an unreasoning hatred of another creature that you indicate.

The affected creature attacks the object of its hate as directed, to the exclusion of other opponents.

If the affected creature is attacked, it can defend itself as normal, but as soon as possible, it resumes attacking the object of its hate.

Creatures compelled to attack an ally can attempt a new Will save each round to break free from this supernatural effect.

INVISIBLE FIST (MONK)

Monks who follow the Path of the Invisible Fist learn to harness their ki to conceal themselves from detection. With further training, these monks learn to blink between the Material Plane and the Ethereal Plane.

To gain this versatility, they sacrifice their ability to escape unscathed from area effects.

Class: Monk.

Level: 2nd.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the evasion ability, nor do you gain improved evasion at 9th level.

Benefit: As an immediate action, you can become invisible for 1 round.

You must wait 3 rounds before you can use this ability again.

At 9th level, as an immediate action, you can use blink, as the spell, for a number of rounds equal to your Wisdom modifier (minimum 1 round).

You must wait 3 rounds before you can use this ability again.

Invisible fist is a supernatural ability.

MIMIC (ROGUE)

Many villains specialize in avoiding detection so that they can work behind the scenes to achieve their nefarious goals.

To this end, they spend a fair amount of time developing techniques to mask their appearance, at the expense of their normal training in foiling traps.

Class: Rogue.

Level: 1st, 3rd, 6th, 9th, 12th, 15th, and 18th.

Special Requirement: You must have a Charisma of 12 or higher to select this alternative class feature.

Replaces: If you select this feature, you do not gain the trapfinding ability.

Benefit: Once per day, you can use disguise self as a caster whose level equals your class level.

At 3rd level and every three levels thereafter, you can reduce your bonus on trap sense by 1 to gain an additional use of mimic.

At your discretion, when using disguise self, you can spend two uses of the spell-like ability to produce the effect as a swift action rather than a standard action.

SPONTANEOUS AFFLICTION (DRUID)

Druids who give up their rapport with most wild creatures can call upon the assistance of nature's smallest beings.

Such characters punish those who would despoil the wilderness by infecting them with a mild illness.

Class: Druid.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the ability to spontaneously convert prepared spells into summon nature's ally spells.

Benefit: You can transform the stored energy of a spell you have prepared and use it to weaken your enemies.

To use spontaneous affliction, you must spend a standard action and sacrifice a prepared spell.

All humanoid within 30 feet of you must succeed on a Fortitude save (DC 10 + 1/2 your class level + your Cha modifier) or become sickened for a number of rounds equal to the level of the spell sacrificed.

UNHOLY FURY (BARBARIAN)

When a barbarian taps into his buried anger, he unleashes his wrath and turns into a brutal killing machine.

Although many barbarians learn to control this violence, some exult in it, reveling in the slaughter they create.

Class: Barbarian.

Level: 1st.

Special Requirement: To select this alternative class feature, you must be chaotic evil.

If your alignment changes to anything else, this ability reverts to the standard rage ability until your alignment is restored to chaotic evil.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the barbarian's standard fast movement ability.

Benefit: Once during a rage, you can unleash your unholy fury to smite a nonchaotic evil creature.

You add your Charisma bonus to your attack roll and deal an extra 1 point of damage per barbarian level.

If you accidentally use this ability against a creature that is chaotic evil, the smite has no effect, but the ability is still used up for the duration of your rage.

MAGIC OF INCARNUM (3.5)

BARBARIAN

The duskling's savage nature lends itself well to life as a barbarian.

She channels incarnum to enhance her speed and defense, relying on her race's natural link to this mystical energy rather than pure physical prowess.

Though not quite as tough as a typical barbarian, she makes up for this with her ferocious determination and powers of incarnum.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a duskling barbarian substitution level, a character must be a duskling about to take her 1st, 7th, or 11th level of barbarian.

CLASS SKILLS

Duskling barbarian substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard barbarian class, plus Knowledge (the planes).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the duskling barbarian racial substitution levels.

Incarnum Speed (Su): A duskling barbarian can channel incarnum to dramatically improve her land speed and her ability to react to danger.

Every point of essentia invested in this class feature increases the character's base land speed by 10 feet, but only while wearing medium, light, or no armor and not carrying a heavy load.

This is an enhancement bonus, and thus does not stack with a duskling's racial ability to increase her speed.

A duskling barbarian also gains an insight bonus on initiative checks equal to twice the invested essentia.

This benefit replaces a standard barbarian's fast movement class feature gained at 1st level.

Incarnum Defense (Su): At 7th level, a duskling barbarian gains the ability to use incarnum to protect herself against damage.

Investing a point of essentia in this class feature grants damage reduction 1/- and 1 point of resistance to all types of energy (acid, cold, electricity, fire, and sonic); every additional point of essentia invested increases this damage reduction and resistance to energy by 1.

This benefit replaces a standard barbarian's damage reduction class feature gained at 7th level.

A duskling barbarian who selects this substitution level never gains damage reduction from her barbarian class levels.

Incarnum Rage (Su): Beginning at 11th level, when a duskling barbarian enters a rage, she gains 2 points of essentia.

This essentia disappears when the rage ends.

This benefit replaces a standard barbarian's greater rage class feature gained at 11th level.

If a duskling barbarian would later gain the mighty rage class feature, she instead gains greater rage.

TABLE 3–6: DUSKLING BARBARIAN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Illiteracy, rage 1/day, incarnum speed
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Incarnum defense
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Incarnum rage

CLERIC

An azurin cleric dedicates herself not only to a deity or pantheon, but also to the power of incarnum.

Just as most azurins cleave to polarized alignments, azurin clerics take extreme positions on morals and ethics. Azurin clerics prefer to battle foes opposed to their alignment, and work best with other incarnum-wielding characters.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take an azurin cleric substitution level, a character must be an azurin about to take her 1st, 4th, or 9th level of cleric.

CLASS SKILLS

Azurin cleric substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard cleric class, plus Knowledge (the planes). Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the azurin cleric racial substitution levels.

Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells: An azurin cleric who selects any azurin cleric substitution level loses the ability to cast any spells of an alignment that doesn't match her own.

For example, a chaotic good azurin cleric can't cast evil or lawful spells.

This restriction replaces the standard cleric restriction regarding what alignment of spells the cleric can cast.

Channel Incarnum (Su): An azurin cleric channels incarnum rather than mere positive or negative energy. Once per round as a free action, an azurin cleric can grant herself bonus essentia equal to her Charisma bonus or one-half her cleric level (whichever is lower), minimum 1. This essentia lasts for 1 round.

The character can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Charisma modifier.

This benefit replaces a standard cleric's ability to turn or rebuke undead gained at 1st level.

An azurin cleric can use this ability in place of turn or rebuke undead to qualify for any divine feat, and can spend daily uses of this feat to power divine feats as if they were daily uses of turn or rebuke undead (though doing so requires a standard action rather than a free action unless the feat states otherwise).

Soultouched Weapon (Su): Beginning at 4th level, an azurin cleric can use incarnum to imbue her weapon with the power of her soul's convictions.

This requires a move action and grants a single held melee weapon an alignment for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

The alignment chosen must be part of the azurin cleric's alignment; for example, a chaotic good azurin cleric could choose to make her weapon chaotic or good, but not lawful or evil.

A neutral azurin cleric gains no benefit from this class feature.

While this ability is in effect, an azurin cleric can also invest essentia in the affected weapon.

The weapon gains an insight bonus equal to the invested essentia on damage rolls against creatures whose alignment includes a component opposed to the chosen alignment.

For example, a good weapon would deal an extra 1 point of damage per point of invested essentia against evil creatures (whether lawful evil, neutral evil, or chaotic evil).

The effects of this ability last for a number of rounds equal to 3 + one-half her class level.

An azurin cleric can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Charisma modifier.

This benefit replaces the 2nd-level spell slot gained by a standard cleric at 4th level.

From this point forward, the number of 2nd-level spell slots possessed by an azurin cleric is reduced by one.

Distribute Incarnum (Su): A 9th-level azurin cleric can enhance the essentia pools of nearby allies by distributing free-flowing incarnum in the environment.

This requires the cleric to sacrifice a cleric spell of 5th level or higher (a standard action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity) and grants all allies (including herself) within 30 feet bonus essentia equal to the spell's level. All affected characters can immediately invest this essentia without spending an action (though currently invested essentia may not be shifted).

The essentia lasts until the end of the cleric's next turn.

If an ally has no essentia pool, she can instead choose to heal 1 hp of damage per point of essentia that would be granted.

This applies equally to all living and undead creatures, regardless of whether the cleric would normally spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells.

This benefit replaces a standard cleric's ability to spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells of 5th level and above.

TABLE 3–5: AZURIN CLERIC RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Channel incarnum	As standard cleric
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Soultouched weapon	See text
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Distribute incarnum	As standard cleric

INCARNATE

An aasimar incarnate sees himself as a representative of his celestial forebears and a defender of his mortal kin.

More martially minded than most incarnates, an aasimar who takes up this mantle is a stalwart champion of the weak and downtrodden.

He embodies good as much as any creature (short of an angel) can, which manifests itself in his method of shaping and wielding incarnum.

An aasimar incarnate's number of soulmelds, total essentia, and chakra binds are as detailed on Table 2–2: The Incarnate.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take an aasimar incarnate substitution level, a character must be a neutral good aasimar about to take his 1st, 3rd, or 7th level of incarnate.

CLASS SKILLS

Aasimar incarnate substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard incarnate class, plus Diplomacy.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the aasimar incarnate racial substitution levels.

Martial Weapon: An aasimar incarnate trains for combat more rigorously than a traditional incarnate.

At 1st level, he can select any martial melee weapon and gain the Martial Weapon Proficiency and Weapon Focus feats with that weapon.

Aasimar incarnates tend to select the warhammer (since this is the weapon created by the good incarnum weapon soulmeld).

This benefit does not replace any incarnate class feature.

Incarnum Radiance (Su): An aasimar incarnate recognizes that strong defense is not the only tool required against the forces of evil—one must be able to strike true against the foes of good.

In addition to the normal effect of the incarnum radiance, while it is active the incarnate's natural and weapon attacks are treated as good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

If he has the incarnate weapon soulmeld shaped (see page 72), that weapon deals an extra 1d6 points of damage to creatures with the evil subtype while the incarnum radiance is active.

An aasimar incarnate cannot grant his allies this additional benefit with the share incarnum radiance class feature.

This benefit augments, but does not replace, the standard incarnate's incarnum radiance class feature.

Share Incarnum Radiance (Su): An aasimar incarnate, despite his strong dedication to good, recognizes that not all creatures have the moral fortitude to stand strongly against evil.

Whenever he chooses to share the effect of his incarnum radiance with nearby allies, he can grant its benefit to any nonevil ally (rather than just any good ally).

He must make this choice at the time the radiance is activated.

An aasimar incarnate cannot share the good alignment of his attacks (see Incarnum Radiance, above) with allies.

This benefit augments, but does not replace, the standard incarnate's share incarnum radiance class feature.

TABLE 3–4: AASIMAR INCARNATE RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Meldshaping
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Aura, detect opposition, martial weapon	As standard incarnate
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Expanded soulmeld capacity +1, incarnum radiance 1/day	As standard incarnate
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Share incarnum radiance	As standard incarnate

INCARNATE

A gnome incarnate is a righteous and cunning servant of the cause of good.

Often dedicated to Garl Glittergold, the god of gnomes, a gnome incarnate is a living testament to the traditions of the race.

His link to the souls of gnomes past, present, and future gives the gnome incarnate a special place of honor among their people, which he holds quite sacred.

A gnome incarnate's number of soulmelds, total essentia, and chakra binds are as detailed on Table 2–2: The Incarnate.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a gnome incarnate substitution level, a character must be a neutral good gnome about to take his 1st, 2nd, or 7th level of incarnate.

CLASS SKILLS

Gnome incarnate substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard incarnate class, plus Hide.

Gnome incarnates recognize the value in not being seen, whether as part of an ambush or simply to evade an enemy's detection.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the gnome incarnate racial substitution levels.

Racial Defense (Su): A gnome incarnate serves on the front line of defense for his village or town.

He relies on the knowledge of the souls within him to guide him in battling his people's most dangerous foes.

A gnome incarnate gains an insight bonus on damage rolls made against kobolds, goblinoids, and giants equal to one-half the number of soulmelds he has shaped.

If at least one other gnome ally is within 30 feet and visible to the incarnate, this insight bonus instead equals the number of soulmelds shaped.

This benefit replaces the standard incarnate's detect opposition class feature gained at 1st level.

Detect Thoughts (Sp): A gnome incarnate recognizes that foreknowledge of an enemy's plans makes the best tool for battle.

As long as a soulmeld is bound to his crown chakra, he can use detect thoughts once per day.

The save DC is equal to 12 + his Cha modifier, and his caster level is equal to his meldshaper level.

This benefit does not replace any class feature.

Share Incarnum Radiance (Su): A gnome incarnate can share some of his race's natural talents with his allies.

Whenever he shares his incarnum radiance with allies, his allies gain a +4 dodge bonus to AC against giants, in addition to the normal benefit of the incarnum radiance.

If the creature already has a racial trait that grants a dodge bonus to AC against giants (such as a dwarf or gnome), this bonus does not stack with that benefit—only the better bonus applies.

This benefit augments, but does not replace, the standard incarnate's share incarnum radiance class feature.

TABLE 3-9: GNOME INCARNATE RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Meldshaping
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Aura, racial defense	As standard incarnate
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Chakra bind (crown), detect thoughts	As standard incarnate
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Share incarnum radiance	As standard incarnate

INCARNATE

Whereas most tieflings feel trapped between their mortal and fiendish heritages, the tiefling incarnate has no problem in balancing these two parts of herself. Indeed, she embraces both her mortal soul and her infernal blood.

Despite being a native outsider, she forges a strong bond with her mortal heritage, as represented by her use of incarnum.

At the same time, her fiendish nature is well displayed by her incarnum-fueled abilities.

A tiefling incarnate's number of soulmelds, total essentia, and chakra binds are as detailed on Table 2-2: The Incarnate.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a tiefling incarnate substitution level, a character must be a neutral evil tiefling about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 7th level of incarnate.

CLASS SKILLS

Tiefling incarnate substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard incarnate class, plus Bluff and Hide. Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the tiefling incarnate racial substitution levels.

See in Darkness (Su): A tiefling incarnate's natural tendency toward living in shadow manifests itself as an uncanny ability to see through such gloom.

If she has a shaped soulmeld that occupies her brow chakra, she can see normally in magical darkness, such as that created by a darkness spell.

This benefit does not replace any incarnate class feature.

Incarnum Radiance (Su): A tiefling incarnate's incarnum radiance class feature functions normally, with one addition.

As long as the tiefling is not within an area of bright illumination (that is, as long as she is in darkness or shadowy illumination), she gains concealment (20% miss chance), even against creatures able to see normally in such conditions.

This benefit augments, but does not replace, a standard incarnate's incarnum radiance class feature.

Telepathy (Su): A tiefling incarnate can mingle the soul energy of mortals with her fiendish mind to grant her the ability to communicate telepathically with any other creature within 100 feet that has a language (see page 316 of the Monster Manual).

This ability only functions as long as a tiefling incarnate has a soulmeld bound to her crown chakra.

This benefit replaces a standard incarnate's share incarnum radiance class feature gained at 7th level.

TABLE 3-13: TIEFLING INCARNATE RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Meldshaping
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Aura, detect opposition, see in darkness	As standard incarnate
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Expanded soulmeld capacity +1, incarnum radiance 1/day	As standard incarnate
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Telepathy	As standard incarnate

MONK

A skarn monk takes his race's dedication to "perfection of form" to great extremes, tuning his body, mind, and soul to extraordinary purity.

As part of this perfection, he learns to channel incarnum to achieve various effects and also gains the ability to use his arm spines with tremendous effectiveness.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a skarn monk substitution level, a character must be a skarn about to take his 1st, 5th, or 10th level of monk.

CLASS SKILLS

Skarn monk substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard monk class, plus Intimidate.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the skarn monk racial substitution levels.

Spine Strike (Ex): For all purposes related to monk class features, a skarn monk can treat his arm-spine attack as if it were an unarmed strike.

This includes using it as part of a flurry of blows, ki strike, and the increased damage dealt by arm spines as the skarn monk gains levels (1d8 at 4th level, 1d10 at 8th level, and so forth).

This benefit replaces a standard monk's unarmed strike class feature gained at 1st level.

Defensive Insight (Su): As a skarn monk becomes more in tune with the soul energy flowing through his body, he learns to rely on this insight to aid his defense.

Beginning at 5th level, a skarn monk gains a +1 insight bonus to AC for every point of essentia invested in this class feature.

Insight bonuses to AC apply at all times, even against touch attacks or when a skarn monk is flatfooted, immobilized, or helpless.

Wearing armor, carrying a shield, or carrying a medium or heavy load has no effect on this AC bonus.

A skarn monk gains 1 point of essentia at 5th level.

This benefit replaces a standard monk's AC bonus gained at 5th level and improved every five levels thereafter.

(A skarn monk still adds his Wisdom bonus to his AC).

Shape Soulmeld (Su): A skarn monk's perfection of body and soul is so strong that at 10th level, he gains the ability to shape a single soulmeld (as long as he has a Constitution score of 11 or higher).

A skarn monk can shape this soulmeld each day, following the normal rules for meldshaping (see page 49).

This soulmeld must be chosen from the soulborn class list.

A skarn monk's meldshaper level is equal to one-half his monk level.

The save DC (if any) for the soulmeld is equal to 10 + invested essentia + his Wis modifier.

This benefit replaces a standard monk's ki strike (lawful) class feature gained at 10th level.

Chakra Bind (Arms): A skarn monk can bind a soulmeld (see above) to his arms chakra, following the normal rules for chakra binds (see page 51).

TABLE 3–12: SKARN MONK RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Bonus feat, flurry of blows, spine strike
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Purity of body, defensive insight
10th	+7/+2	+7	+7	+7	Slow fall 50 ft., shape soulmeld, chakra bind (arms)

RROGUE

A rilkan rogue is typically a silver-tongued trickster or charlatan, or perhaps simply a charismatic daredevil. She relies on personality and passion for adventure to win the day.

Despite her considerable talents of interaction and deception, though, she is quite capable of holding her own in a fight—all the better to survive the anger of a deceived merchant or a spurned suitor.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a rilkan rogue substitution level, a character must be a rilkan about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 10th level of rogue.

CLASS SKILLS

Rilkan rogue substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard rogue class, plus Speak Language.

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the rilkan rogue racial substitution levels.

Improved Flanking (Ex): A rilkan rogue who is flanking an opponent gains a +4 bonus on attacks instead of a +2 bonus on attacks.

Any other rilkans flanking the same opponent also benefit from this improved bonus.

Other, nonrilkan characters flanking with the rilkan rogue don't gain this increased bonus.

This benefit replaces a standard rogue's sneak attack ability gained at 1st level.

Instead, a rilkan rogue gains sneak attack at 3rd level and reduces the extra damage dice indicated by 1d6.

Bardic Knowledge (Ex): A rilkan rogue picks up a lot of stray knowledge while interacting with others.

Starting at 3rd level, she can make a special bardic knowledge check with a bonus equal to her rogue level plus her Intelligence modifier to see whether she knows some relevant information about local notable people, legendary items, or significant places.

This is otherwise identical to the bard's class feature of the same name (see page 28 of the Player's Handbook).

This benefit replaces the standard rogue's trap sense class feature gained at 3rd level.

A rilkan rogue who selects this substitution feature never gains trap sense from her rogue levels.

Bonus Feat: At 3rd level, a rilkan rogue selects one of the following feats as a bonus feat: Deceitful, Diligent, Investigator, Negotiator, or Persuasive.

Fortunate Reflexes (Ex): A rilkan rogue enjoys living life on the edge, taking risks that other rogues might avoid.

Beginning at 10th level, a rilkan rogue can choose to reroll any failed Reflex save.

The rogue must take the result of the reroll, even if it's worse than the original roll.

If the original roll is a natural 1, the rilkan rogue can't use this ability.

This benefit replaces the standard rogue's special ability gained at 10th level.

Furthermore, a rilkan rogue forever forfeits the ability to gain improved evasion as a rogue class feature.

(She can still gain improved evasion from some other source).

TABLE 3-11: RILKAN ROGUE RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Trapfinding, improved flanking
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Sneak attack +1d6, bardic knowledge, bonus feat
10th	+7+2	+3	+7	+3	Fortunate reflexes

SOULBORN

A dwarf soulborn has a strong link to the souls of his ancestors and gains special benefits from their knowledge. Unlike most soulborns, the dwarf soulborn pays particular homage to a deity—in this case, Moradin Soulforger, the god of the dwarves.

Believing that incarnum is a precious gift from Moradin, a dwarf soulborn prefers to wield the same weapon as his deity and is rewarded for this choice.

A dwarf soulborn's number of soulmelds, total essentia, and chakra binds are as detailed on Table 2-3: The Soulborn.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a dwarf soulborn substitution level, a character must be a lawful good dwarf about to take his 1st, 3rd, or 9th level of soulborn.

CLASS SKILLS

Dwarf soulborn substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard soulborn class, plus Knowledge (dungeoneering).

Dwarf soulborns display an uncanny ability to recognize and identify the denizens and hazards encountered below the surface of the world.

TABLE 3-7: DWARF SOULBORN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Meldshaping
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura, smite opposition 1/day	As standard soulborn
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Stoneborn insight	As standard soulborn
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	Share incarnum defense 1/day	As standard soulborn

SOULBORN

To those who do not recognize her special gift, an elf soulborn might appear unnaturally tranquil and patient. Her special contact with the souls of her people perpetually reminds her of the value of a long-term outlook.

Even if she fails in her tasks, she knows that her soul will inform those who come after her of what has come before. As befits their heritage, they tend to be keen-eyed archers.

An elf soulborn's number of soulmelds, total essentia, and chakra binds are as detailed on Table 2-3: The Soulborn.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take an elf soulborn substitution level, a character must be a chaotic good elf about to take her 1st, 2nd, or 7th level of soulborn.

CLASS SKILLS

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the dwarf soulborn racial substitution levels.

Smite Opposition (Su): A dwarf soulborn can deliver smite attacks just as a normal soulborn.

However, if he delivers the smite with a warhammer, he can increase the bonus on the attack roll by 1 (as if his Charisma were 2 points higher).

This ability reflects his innate link to the Hammer of Souls wielded by Moradin.

This effect augments, but does not replace, a standard soulborn's ability to smite opposition.

Stoneborn Insight: A dwarf soulborn's channeling of incarnum invests him with the insights of his ancestors, both in matters of stoneworking and combat.

This ability takes the form of an insight bonus equal to the number of soulmelds he has shaped on the following checks and rolls.

- Appraise and Craft checks regarding stone or metal.
- Search checks related to his stonemaking racial trait (see page 15 of the Player's Handbook).
- Damage rolls made against orcs, goblinoids, or giants.

This benefit replaces the standard soulborn's bonus feat gained at 3rd level.

Share Incarnum Defense (Su): Moradin recognizes that a dwarf soulborn is one of the god's champions in the world and a faithful servant of the dwarf people.

As such, he is rewarded with greater ability to bolster his dwarf allies.

A dwarf soulborn can share his incarnum defense with any dwarf within 30 feet that he can see as a free action (rather than by touch as a standard action).

This benefit augments, but does not replace, the standard soulborn's share incarnum defense class feature.

Elf soulborn substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard soulborn class, plus Search and Spot.

Regardless of her other talents, an elf soulborn tends to keep her powers of vision strong as a measure of respect for her ancestors.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the elf soulborn racial substitution levels.

Smite Opposition (Su): An elf soulborn's link to the master archers of her race allows her to charge her bow attacks with the power of incarnum.

She can deliver smite attacks just as a normal soulborn.

However, she can deliver this smite attack with either an arrow fired from a bow or with a melee attack (unlike the normal smite opposition attack, which can only be delivered with a melee attack).

The foe to be smited must be within 30 feet of her to deliver the smite attack by an arrow. This effect augments, but does not replace, the standard soulborn's ability to smite opposition. Incarnum Defense (Su): The incarnum that fuses to an elf soulborn's being changes her mind and body as well. This manifests at 2nd level, when her eyes become solid orbs of deep forest green, with no visible pupil or iris. She gains immunity to enchantment (charm) effects. This benefit augments, but does not replace, the standard soulborn's incarnum defense class feature.

Vigilance of the Ancestors (Ex): As a side effect of channeling incarnum, an elf soulborn benefits from the inherent vigilance of her people. The range of her low-light vision improves to triple normal human sight. Whenever a soulmeld occupies an elf soulborn's brow chakra, she gains improved visual acuity. She gains an insight bonus on Search and Spot checks equal to twice the invested essentia. If a soulmeld is actually bound to her brow chakra, the range increment of any bow she uses increases by one-half. This benefit replaces the standard soulborn's bonus feat gained at 7th level.

TABLE 3-8: ELF SOULBORN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Meldshaping
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura, smite opposition 1/day	As standard soulborn
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Incarnum defense	As standard soulborn
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Vigilance of the ancestors	As standard soulborn

TOTEMIST

A halfling totemist is a bit of an outsider, even among her own people.

She tends to avoid social interaction with other people, preferring instead the quiet solitude of her spiritual link with the souls of the beast world.

When she or her people are threatened, however, she becomes a fierce defender.

Though not as physically tough as a typical totemist, the halfling is more athletic and agile than others of her class. A half ling totemist's number of soulmelds, total essentia, and chakra binds are as detailed on Table 2-4: The Totemist.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a half ling totemist substitution level, a character must be a half ling about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 8th level of totemist.

CLASS SKILLS

Halfling totemist substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard totemist class, plus Climb, Hide, Jump, and Move Silently.

A typical half ling totemist is athletic and stealthy, much like the beasts whose powers she shares.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the halfling totemist racial substitution levels.

Low-Light Vision (Su): A halfling totemist manifests some of the physical nature of the wild beasts whose souls she channels.

As long as any soulmeld occupies her brow chakra, she gains low-light vision, enabling her to see twice as far as a human in starlight, moonlight, torchlight, and similar conditions of shadowy illumination.

This benefit does not replace any class feature.

Wild Vigor (Su): A half ling totemist draws on the power of nature to gain minor physical benefits, depending on the soulmelds that she has shaped.

If she has a soulmeld occupying her arms chakra, she gains a +2 competence bonus on Swim checks.

If she has a soulmeld occupying her feet chakra, she gains a +2 competence bonus on Jump checks.

If she has a soulmeld occupying her hands chakra, she gains a +2 competence bonus on Climb checks.

This benefit replaces the standard totemist's totem's protection class feature gained at 3rd level.

Fast Movement (Ex): Like the beasts of the world, a halfling totemist can dart quickly across the battlefield.

Her land speed is faster than the normal for her race by 10 feet.

This benefit applies only when she is wearing no armor or light armor and carrying no more than a light load.

This is otherwise identical to the barbarian's fast movement class feature (see page 25 of the Player's Handbook).

This benefit replaces a standard totemist's ability to rebind a totem soulmeld gained at 8th level.

A halfling totemist instead gains that class feature at 12th level, and thereafter the number of times per day she can use that ability is reduced by one.

TABLE 3-10: HALFLING TOTEMIST RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Meldshaping
1st	+0	+2	+2	+0	Wild empathy, illiteracy, low-light vision	As standard totemist
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+1	Wild vigor	As standard totemist
8th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+2	Fast movement	As standard totemist

MASTERS OF THE WILD

(3.0)

INTIMIDATION RULES (BARBARIAN)

It's an unfortunate fact that the barbarian, regardless of his might, can still fail to intimidate foes who are cowed by the stylish bard or the magnetic sorcerer.

The two optional rules presented here are designed to make the barbarian a bit more frightening.

These rules work whether the barbarian is raging or not, though rage does increase their effectiveness.

Raging Intimidation: A raging barbarian gains a +4 bonus to both his Strength and his Constitution scores.

This variant also grants him a +4 morale bonus on his Intimidate checks.

After all, when a barbarian begins to scream and froth at the mouth, just about anyone is a little more likely to do what he says.

Intimidation through Strength: Sometimes it's appropriate to change the key ability score of a particular skill.

While Intimidation is usually a function of Charisma, this rule allows the barbarian to apply his Strength modifier rather than his Charisma modifier to Intimidate checks.

This assumes, of course, that he accompanies such attempts with appropriate displays of might, such as breaking objects or showing off impressive muscles.

A barbarian who is raging is even better at intimidation because of his increased Strength score.

URBAN RANGER (RANGER)

The Player's Handbook describes rangers as forest denizens who can use the natural camouflage of the woods to advantage.

Soveliss, girded in his tree-trunk-brown studded leather, is ready at a moment's notice to disappear among the trees.

This is a fine lifestyle for the majority of rangers, but some prefer to stalk foes through other terrain.

The urban ranger is the king of the streets, capable of tracking a foe through a marketplace or across a castle parapet.

To play an urban ranger, use the rules from the ranger class description in Chapter 3 of the Player's Handbook.

Every rule mentioned there also applies to an urban ranger. With your DM's permission, however, you can adopt a few modifications designed to make your character more effective in the unorthodox urban terrain.

- Make the following class skill switches: Animal Empathy for Gather Information and Knowledge (nature) for Knowledge (local).

Saying goodbye to an exclusive class skill is hard, but you need as many ranks in Gather Information and Knowledge (local) as you can get.

- Trade the Track feat for the Shadow feat (see Chapter 2). This gives you an edge in following someone through city streets.

Also, you might want to adopt the special use of the Hide skill called Tail Someone, as described in Chapter 2.

- Take an organization or culture rather than a creature type as a favored enemy.

For example, you might choose the Knights of the Hart, which would allow you to use your favored enemy bonuses against elves and humans who belong to that organization, but not against other elves and humans.

Be sure to make such a choice in concert with your DM, or you could end up with a favored enemy you never encounter.

- Swap out a few ranger spells for bard spells of equal level. Here are some trades to consider: detect snares and pits for detect secret doors, speak with animals for message, speak with plants for detect thoughts, plant growth for phantom steed, and tree stride for dimension door.

You might want to see if your DM would let you trade for spells from different class lists as well, though you're unlikely to get chain lightning out of the deal.

An urban ranger who wants to adopt a prestige class might consider the watch detective, the foe hunter, or the bloodhound (see Chapter 5).

All those focus on improving the ranger's best attributes without advancing the naturalistic aspect of the class.

Below are statistics for an urban ranger created with these variant rules: the dwarven constable Sergeant Reginald Fitz-Louis and his trusty mastiff, Baskerville.

VARIANT FAVORED ENEMY RULES

Some favored enemy choices have significantly less utility than others—namely outsiders and those types that are immune to critical hits.

The variant rules presented here make these choices more appealing.

As with all variant rules, a player wishing to utilize these must first get the DM's consent.

Favoring Subtypes of Outsiders: In this variant, the ranger can choose a subtype of outsider as a favored enemy.

The available options are air, chaotic, earth, evil, fire, good, lawful, water, and no subtype.

A ranger who chooses chaotic outsiders, for example, gains favored enemy bonuses against chaos beasts, demons, djinn, ghaeles (a type of celestial), lillends, slaadi, and titans, whereas one who chooses outsiders with no subtype gains bonuses against aasimars, half-celestials, half-fiends, jann, ravid, and tieflings.

When choosing among these options, consider your ranger's alignment and the conditions in which he normally adventures.

Favoring Subraces of Your Own Race: A good or neutral ranger cannot select his own race as a favored enemy, but his enemies can, which is disconcerting.

In this variant, a ranger can select a subrace of his own race as a favored enemy.

Generally, the DM should allow this only when it corresponds to deep divisions within that race.

For example, a high elf could select drow, but not gray elves.

Similarly, hill dwarves might select derro or duergar, but not deep dwarves.

Half-orcs (especially if raised among humans) could choose orcs.

This variant also allows the ranger to choose others of his own race who come from a hostile country as a favored enemy.

Defensive Favored Enemy Bonuses: A ranger using this variant gains his favored enemy bonus on Hide and Move Silently checks instead of on damage, Bluff checks, and Sense Motive checks against a particular favored enemy. Also, he can use his favored enemy bonus as a dodge bonus as if using the Dodge feat.

(That is, each round he must designate one favored enemy opponent against whom the AC bonus applies, and he gains no bonus when flatfooted).

The ranger retains his other bonuses on Listen, Spot, and Wilderness Lore checks.

Once you choose this option for a particular favored enemy, you may not reverse the decision.

This variant is recommended for rangers who choose constructs, elementals, oozes, plants, or undead as favored enemies, though other members of the class may find it useful as well.

WILD SHAPE UPDATE (DRUID)

“They tickle and itch, but you get used to feathers. Never quite get used to the eggs, though.”

—The druid Kelliana of Blue Tribe

Wild shape is one of the druid's most useful and flexible class features.

The following version of this ability supersedes the one presented in the Player's Handbook.

WILD SHAPE

At 5th level, a druid gains the spell-like ability to turn herself into a Small or Medium-size animal (but not a dire animal or a legendary animal) and back again once per day. The druid may adopt only one animal form per use of this ability.

The creatures available as wild shape forms include some giant animals (as described in Appendix I of the Monster Manual) but not beasts, magical beasts, or anything with a type other than animal.

The druid may use wild shape to become a dog or a giant lizard, for example, but not an owlbear.

The form chosen must be that of an animal she is familiar with.

For example, a druid who has never been outside a temperate forest could not become a polar bear.

The druid can freely designate the new form's minor physical qualities (such as fur, feather, or skin color and texture) within the normal ranges for an animal of that kind.

The new form's significant physical qualities (such as height, weight, and gender) are also under her control but must fall within the norms for the animal's species.

The druid is effectively disguised as an average member of the new form's species, gaining a +10 bonus on her Disguise checks as long as she maintains the form.

This change of form never disorients the druid.

Upon changing to an animal form, she regains lost hit points as if she had rested for a day, though this healing does not restore temporary ability damage or provide any other benefits of resting for a day, and changing back does not heal her further.

If slain, the druid reverts to her original form, though she remains dead.

When the change occurs, the druid's equipment, if any, melds into her new form and becomes nonfunctional.

Material components and focuses melded in this way cannot be used to cast spells.

When the druid reverts to her true form, any objects previously melded into the animal form reappear in the same locations they previously were and are once again functional.

Any new items the druid wore in animal form (such as a saddle, rider, or halter) fall off and land at her feet; any that she carried in a body part common to both forms (mouth, hands, or the like) at the time of reversion are still held in the same way.

The druid acquires the physical and natural abilities of the creature whose form she has taken while retaining her own mind.

Physical abilities include size as well as Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution scores.

Natural abilities include armor, natural weapons (such as claws, bite, or gore), sensory abilities (such as low-light vision), and similar gross physical qualities (presence or absence of wings or gills, number of extremities, and so forth).

Natural abilities also include mundane movement capabilities, such as walking, swimming, and flying with wings.

The druid also gains all the racial bonuses and feats of the animal form selected.

She does not gain any supernatural or spell-like abilities (such as breath weapons or gaze attacks) of her new form, but does gain all the form's extraordinary abilities.

All these alterations last until the wild shape ends.

The druid's new scores and faculties are average ones for the species into which she has transformed.

She cannot, for example, turn herself into a wolf with a Strength of 20.

Likewise, she cannot change into a bigger or more powerful version of a creature (or a smaller or weaker version).

The druid retains her own Intelligence, Wisdom, and Charisma scores, level and classes, hit points (despite any change in her Constitution score), alignment, base attack bonus, and base save bonuses.

(New Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution scores may affect final attack and save bonuses).

The druid also retains her own type (for example, humanoid), extraordinary abilities, and spell-like abilities, but not her supernatural abilities.

She loses her ability to speak while in animal form because she is limited to the sounds that a normal, untrained animal can make.

(The normal sound a wild parrot makes is a squawk, so changing to this form does not permit speech).

Though the druid retains any spells she previously carried, her new form may not permit her to use them.

Unless the chosen form is one with prehensile hands (such as a monkey or an ape) or some other manipulative appendage, the druid may not be able to manipulate material components and focuses for spells—even if those are not melded into her new form.

Likewise, her lack of a humanlike voice means she cannot cast spells with verbal components or activate command word items.

In the same manner, the lack of appropriate appendages may prevent her from using manufactured weapons and magic items.

If the usability of a particular spell or item is in doubt, the DM makes the decision.

The druid can use this ability more times per day at 6th, 7th, 10th, 14th, and 18th level, as noted on Table 3–8 in the Player's Handbook.

In addition, she gains the ability to take the shape of a Large animal at 8th level, a Tiny animal at 11th level, and a Huge animal at 15th level.

At 12th level and beyond, she can take the form of a dire animal.

At 16th level, the druid may use wild shape to change into a Small, Medium-size, or Large elemental (air, earth, fire, or water) once per day.

She gains all the elemental's special attacks and special qualities when she does so, regardless of ability type (that is, she gains the supernatural and spell-like abilities of the elemental as well as extraordinary ones).

She also gains the elemental's feats and racial skill bonuses for as long as she maintains the wild shape while retaining her own creature type (humanoid in most cases).

At 18th level, she can assume elemental form three times per day.

ORIENTAL ADVENTURES (3.0)

BARBARIAN

As described in the Player's Handbook, barbarians are outsiders—and this is no less true in the lands of Oriental Adventures.

Barbarian characters in Rokugan might include certain Unicorn clan warriors, Yabanjin from the cold northern steppes, Ujik-hai from the lands of the Burning Sands, or nezumi “bushi”.

In other campaign settings, steppe nomads, jungle-dwelling tribes, and wild korobokurus are all barbarians. Whatever their origins, barbarians are likely to use strange weapons, wear outlandish clothing and armor, speak foreign languages, and fumble through the rigid and ritualized formalities of “civilized” culture.

Adventures: As described in the Player's Handbook, adventuring is the best way for a barbarian character—whatever his origin—to find a place in civilized society. Though few barbarians will ever earn the recognition of a daimyo or any kind of social status, with an adventuring party a barbarian can feel like an equal among samurai and shugenjas.

For some barbarians, that is enough; others quest after the impossible, hoping by the greatness of their deeds to win a place among the nobility.

Background: Barbarians, by definition, come from cultures outside the centers of civilization.

Barbarian adventurers often find their way to the kingdoms and empires because of hard times in their home lands, such as famine or invasion.

In Rokugan, Unicorn clan barbarians may wander the Empire simply because they love to travel, and find themselves drawn into adventure after adventure along the way.

Races: In Rokugan, humans of the Unicorn clan, humans from foreign lands, and nezumi are the most likely races to adopt the barbarian class.

In addition to these barbarian peoples, goblins and ogres of the Shadowlands may be barbarians.

In other campaign settings, korobokurus are often barbarians, while most other barbarians are human.

Other Classes: In Rokugan, Unicorn clan barbarians consider themselves to be samurai, and view themselves with the same haughty pride that the samurai do, regarding only shugenjas as near-equals.

Other barbarians, and all barbarians in other campaign settings, either look up to the noble samurai and shugenjas, or regard them as weaklings softened by the comforts of civilization.

Barbarians are most comfortable with rangers, who often share their rough edges, or rogues.

Though most barbarian societies include sorcerers, shamans, or adepts, barbarians generally mistrust shugenjas and other spellcasters until they've proven themselves worthy of trust.

Game Rule Information: As described in the Player's Handbook.

In Rokugan, barbarians often wear armor and use weapons and other equipment that is not native to the civilized Empire.

Use the normal equipment tables in the Player's Handbook for such gear.

FIGHTER

Fighters in Oriental Adventures are experienced soldiers, bandit leaders, battle-hardened mercenaries, grasping warlords—any trained warrior who, for reasons of personal honor or lowly birth, does not live up to the high standards of the samurai.

The code of bushido does not apply to ordinary fighters. Ronin are fighters, as are many professional soldiers.

In Rokugan, even some clan samurai—particularly Scorpions who have no use for bushido—are fighters as well.

Adventures: Most fighters adventure for the sake of acquiring power and wealth.

A few hope to follow the example of the famous Rokugani ronin Ginawa (now Akodo Ginawa), who saved Emperor Toturi during the Battle at Oblivion's Gate and was rewarded with an honored place among the clans.

Background: Ronins fall into two categories: “Clan ronins” are members of the great clans who have fallen out of favor with their lord.

The most common reason for this is somehow allowing the lord to die—either in battle or under an assassin's blade.

Clan ronins cling to the hope of regaining their lost honor. “True ronins” have never belonged to one of the clans, usually coming from a ronin family.

Other fighters in Rokugan include some Scorpion bushi, who usually do not meet the alignment restriction of the samurai class, and mercenaries, including many members of the Yoritomo family.

Fighters in other campaign settings generally follow the guidelines in the Player's Handbook.

Races: In Rokugan, humans are the most common fighters, but nezumi and Shadowlands creatures can become fighters as well.

A ratling fighter is unusually well trained for his species, and may have studied with a Crab samurai, for example. In other campaign settings, members of all races may be fighters.

Most hengeyokai fighters are crabs, dogs, foxes, raccoon dogs, or rats in their animal form, and they tend to be tough, with a wild fighting style.

Korobokuru fighters represent the elite of their military (most korobokurus are barbarians).

Spirit folk fighters come from a variety of backgrounds, like humans.

Vanara fighters usually rely on speed over brute strength, but they show tremendous bravery and loyalty in battle.

Other Classes: While honorable samurai in Rokugan might look down upon ordinary fighters, fighters may share that disdain.

Bushido is a crutch, some fighters believe, and they put little faith in those whose lives are dictated by its constraints.

Fighters associate more often with rogues and sorcerers than with samurai and shugenjas.

In other campaign settings, fighters recognize the need for support in the realms of magic and stealth, and work well with shamans, wu jen, rogues, and monks.

Game Rule Information: As described in the Player's Handbook, with the following addition.

Bonus Feats: Prone Attack and Superior Expertise (both described in Chapter 4 of this book) are added to the list of fighter bonus feats.

MONK

Monasteries where monk characters are trained in the spiritual and martial arts are far more common in Oriental Adventures than in the world described in the Player's Handbook.

Adventures: Monk adventurers are common, since their beliefs and lifestyle lend themselves to activity in the world.

While some monks devote their time and energy to training samurai in clan dojos, teaching the scriptures in secluded monasteries, or striving to perfect themselves in isolation, many others take their lessons and practice on the road, finding promising students among the ranks of adventurers and even ronin.

After all, who has more need of the teachings of enlightenment than those who are on the front line of the battle against darkness?

And what good is the perfection of discipline if it does not hold up when tested in the real world?

Background: As described in the Player's Handbook, monks usually receive their training either in a monastery or under the mentorship of an individual sensei.

People from all walks of life may find training in monasteries—foundlings or orphans who are raised by the monks, heimin or hinin peasants, samurai nobles, retired generals, spirit folk and hengeyokai, and even the rare ratling, korobokuru, or vanara all may dedicate their lives to enlightenment and learn the spiritual and physical disciplines of a monk.

Whatever their social or racial origin, monks devote their whole loyalty to the path of enlightenment, claiming kinship only with other monks, not with clan or family.

In the Celestial Order of Rokugan's society, monks are equal to the farmer heimins, whatever their birth.

The monks of Rokugan are vigilant champions of enlightenment, opponents of the darkness—whether that darkness is manifested in the Shadowlands or in simple ignorance.

Since the Battle of Oblivion's Gate, the monks of Rokugan have come to realize that their philosophy of withdrawal from the world was not sufficient to protect the world from darkness, and they have adopted a more aggressive strategy of teaching the clans the truths of the Tao.

As a result, the ranks of the monks are swelling, and many samurai and shugenjas are learning at least the basic teachings of Shinsei.

Races: In Rokugan, most monks are human, and a large number are drawn from the Dragon clan.

Nonhuman monks are extremely rare exceptions to the general rule that monasteries are a human establishment.

In other campaign settings, the near-human races (hengeyokai and spirit folk) are much more likely to adopt the monk class than the more wild-natured korobokuru, nezumi, or vanaras.

The nonhuman races do not have monasteries of their own, but train and study in human communities or with a human sensei.

Other Classes: In Rokugan, although monks tend to have different goals and values than members of other classes, they believe that they have an obligation to teach and work among the broader population of the Empire.

They may sometimes approach the task with condescension, but in general they recognize the importance of nonmonks in defending Rokugan from the evil that has nearly destroyed it in the past.

They teach them so that all the people of Rokugan might become enlightened, the better to resist the darkness.

In other campaign settings, monks recognize their interdependence on other characters and tend to cooperate well with members of all other classes.

Game Rule Information: Except as noted below, monks in Oriental Adventures conform to the rules given in the Player's Handbook.

Class Skills: Knowledge (religion) is a class skill for monks. Weapon Proficiency: Monks are proficient with the following weapons: butterfly sword, club, crossbow (light or heavy), dagger, javelin, jitte, kama, nunchaku, quarterstaff, sai, shuriken, and tonfa.

Monks can use any of the following weapons with their unarmed base attack bonus: butterfly sword, club, jitte, kama, lajatang, nekode, nunchaku, quarterstaff, sai, three-section staff, and tonfa.

Bonus Feats: At 1st, 2nd, and 6th level, a monk can sacrifice a class ability (stunning attack at 1st, Deflect Arrows at 2nd, or Improved Trip at 6th) in order to gain a different bonus martial arts feat.

The monk can choose any feat listed on Table 6–1: Martial Arts Feats, but she must meet all the prerequisites for the feat she selects.

This bonus feat can help a monk qualify for mastery of a martial arts style.

Multiclass Monks: Monks in Oriental Adventures can multiclass and freely return to the monk class.

RANGER

Often called scouts or trackers, rangers in Oriental Adventures are warriors with an uncanny connection to the earth and an equally uncanny dedication to warfare against a chosen enemy.

The archetypal ranger in Rokugan is the Hiruma scout: a Crab samurai who knows the Shadowlands like the back of his hand and fights its evil denizens with unmatched skill and ferocity.

Adventures: Rangers may be among the most “adventurous” characters in Oriental Adventures, at least as adventuring is generally understood in DUNGEONS & DRAGONS.

Rangers are more likely than any other character to venture into the wilderness for the express purpose of killing monsters.

Also, they work with armies of samurai and warriors, leading them through dangerous terrain and scouting out enemy positions.

Background: Among the Crab clan of Rokugan, the skills of rangers are taught in a formal school, which prides itself on being an integral part of the Empire’s defense against the Shadowlands.

Other rangers undergo more informal training, often under the guidance of a mentor or parent.

Races: In Rokugan, rangers are most commonly found among the Crab (particularly the Hiruma family and its scout school), the Unicorn, and the nezumi.

In other campaign settings, nonhumans often make excellent rangers, due to their close connection with the natural and spirit worlds.

Hengeyokai rangers are often cats, cranes, foxes, hares, monkeys, raccoon dogs, rats, or sparrows in their animal form, and they use the concealment and natural abilities of that form to their advantage in scouting and spying.

Korobokuru rangers are excellent trackers, and they feel a close kinship with the nature spirits around their homes.

Spirit folk rangers are at home in natural surroundings and bring a variety of special abilities to bear to increase their effectiveness.

Vanara rangers use great stealth and agility to make themselves effective scouts and deadly foes of their favored enemies.

Other Classes: In Rokugan, most human rangers view themselves as samurai, regarding other samurai as equals, shugenjas nearly that well, and other classes as somewhere far below their station.

All rangers tend to be pragmatic enough, however, to value the contributions of any member of an adventuring party, no matter their station, and cooperate as equals in an adventuring party, even if social equality is out of the question.

Game Rule Information: As described in the Player’s Handbook.

Although rangers can fight with two weapons, few rangers in Rokugan do so.

ROGUE

From lower-class street thieves and highway bandits to scheming courtiers and nobles, rogues are common but often nearly invisible in Oriental Adventures.

Some appear in far less roguish guises: as officials, diplomats, and envoys (most such characters, however, have the expert or aristocrat NPC classes).

Rogues in Oriental Adventures are no easier to categorize than their standard counterparts, for they are at least as varied in their skills, roles, and backgrounds.

Adventures: Rogues adventure for a wide variety of reasons, but underlying them all is a common thread: Rogues adventure because it serves their personal goals.

Whether those goals are as base as self-advancement and power or as complex as a Scorpion’s web of loyalties, rogues’ own desires usually spur them into adventure.

Background: Most rogues are self-taught or learn their skills under a shady mentor in a life on the street.

The schools of the Scorpion clan of Rokugan, however—including the Bayushi samurai school and particularly the secretive Shosuro school—specifically train their students in rogue abilities, skills, and techniques.

Scorpion clan rogues, naturally, maintain a high degree of loyalty to each other, while other rogues typically do not trust other rogues any more than absolutely necessary.

Races: Scrounging nezumi are perhaps the quintessential rogues of Rokugan.

Among humans, Scorpions and lower-class peasants and outcasts are the most common rogues.

Rogues are common among the races of the Shadowlands as well.

In other campaign settings, hengeyokai rogues range from stealthy cat and rat burglars to brutish raccoon dog bandits.

Spirit folk rogues are typically those who feel alienated from human society because of their spirit ancestry.

Vanara rogues are not usually criminally inclined, but their limitless curiosity often gets them into trouble.

Other Classes: Rogues prefer to be in control of any given situation.

At one extreme, this manifests as a desire to make their own decisions and not be accountable to a leader figure. Rogues with this philosophy work well with anyone who does not try to boss them around.

At the other extreme are rogues who seek to manipulate others to their own advantage.

Given that preference, these rogues are happy to work with members of other classes—as long as those others can be tricked or coerced into doing what the rogue wants them to do.

Fanatical devotees of bushido, like most samurai, can be a problem if they are too smart or strong-willed, and monks with their rigid ways of thinking are difficult to manipulate as well.

In general, rogues enjoy working with rangers, ronins, and even barbarians.

Game Rule Information: As described in the Player’s Handbook, except as noted below.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Rogues are proficient with the blowgun, crossbow (hand or light), dagger, punching dagger, dart, kama, light mace, ninja-to, nunchaku, composite shortbow, shortsword, tonfa, and wakizashi. Medium-size rogues are also proficient with the club, heavy crossbow, heavy mace, morningstar, and quarterstaff.

SORCERER

Sorcerers in Rokugan are arcane spellcasters who cast nonelemental magic.

These sorcerers include the feared and reviled blood sorcerers called maho-tsukai, as well as nezumi shamans and outlanders such as Yabanjin and Ujik-hai (see the barbarian class entry).

Like barbarians, most sorcerers are outsiders in Rokugan—though maho-tsukai may try to pass as normal shugenjas. In other campaign settings, sorcerers are virtually indistinguishable from wu jen in the minds of most people. Like the sorcerers described in the Player's Handbook, many sorcerers claim descent from dragons (the dragons described in this book, not the dragons of the Monster Manual).

Adventures: Most sorcerers adventure in order to acquire greater magical power.

A blood sorcerer might search for scrolls penned by the greatest maho-tsukai of history, the undead sorcerer Iuchiban.

A nezumi or outlander sorcerer might adventure for the same reason a barbarian character does: to fit in, either with an adventuring party or in Rokugan's broader society.

Alignment: Blood sorcerers are universally evil.

Other sorcerers tend toward chaos, and few sorcerers care enough about others to be good.

Many sorcerers are true neutral.

Background: Like barbarians, sorcerers (even blood sorcerers) are outsiders in Rokugan, where magic is ritualized and controlled by the shugenjas.

Outlander and nezumi sorcerers usually feel that their powers have chosen them, rather than the other way around, and feel a burden and responsibility to use them properly.

Such characters are usually trained by older shamans and sorcerers in their tribe or pack.

Blood sorcerers, on the other hand, seek out magical power for power's sake, and corrupt their souls and bodies to acquire it.

They learn the rituals of their power from banned scrolls and hidden texts, or even from the oni of the Shadowlands.

Races: Humans from foreign lands and nezumi are the most likely of the common races to become sorcerers.

Blood sorcerers are always human, and they may come from any clan—particularly the Phoenix and Unicorn. Shadowlands creatures, including goblins and ogres, may also be sorcerers.

Other Classes: By reputation, sorcerers are feared and shunned by members of most other classes.

Most sorcerers don't mind at all—they use the fear and respect of others to help them accomplish their own goals. Occasionally, a sorcerer may choose to associate with others and develop personal relationships with them.

Game Rule Information: As described in the Player's Handbook.

Sorcerers can use either the wizard/sorcerer spell list from the Player's Handbook or the wu jen spell list in Chapter 7. To cast the most powerful forms of maho (blood magic), which relies on drawing blood to power spells, blood sorcerers must adopt the maho-tsukai prestige class, described in Chapter 12.

PLANAR HANDBOOK (3.5)

BARBARIAN

Barbarians who strike beyond their homeland sometimes find that they go far indeed.

Barbarians have no trouble with the dangers, the miles, and the wonders that traveling entails, and planar travel, while more grand, offers a barbarian a chance to refine his abilities with extraplanar enemies in mind.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a barbarian planar substitution level, a character must be about to take his 3rd, 7th, or 11th level of barbarian.

CLASS SKILLS

Barbarian planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard barbarian class plus Knowledge (the planes) (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the barbarian's planar substitution levels.

Portal Sense (Su): The barbarian's raw instincts provide him with a supernatural sense concerning portals, planar breaches, and other passages between planes.

A barbarian who takes the 3rd-level planar substitution level instantly becomes aware of any portal within 30 feet of his location, even if such a portal is normally invisible.

In a sense, the barbarian seems to "sniff" out the portal.

If the barbarian spends a few rounds "sniffing" around (taking a standard action each round to do so), he learns additional information about the portal (the rounds spent analyzing the portal need not be consecutive):

Round 1: Whether the portal is one-way or two-way.

Round 2: Any special circumstances governing the portal's use, such as knowing that it can be activated only at specific times of the day (but not what those times are) or if a special key or command word is needed to activate the portal (but not what that key or command word is).

Round 3: A brief sense of the area the portal leads to; essentially, the barbarian gains as much information as if he were allowed to see the portal's destination for 10 seconds, without the benefit of any other sense or analysis.

This benefit replaces the trap sense class feature gained by a standard barbarian at 3rd level.

From now on, whenever the barbarian gains a standard barbarian level that grants an improvement to his trap sense, he gains the indicated bonus minus 1 (trap sense +1 at 6th level, trap sense +2 at 9th level, and so on).

Planar Damage Reduction (Ex): The barbarian toughens his body against injuries perpetrated by unnatural creatures.

A barbarian who takes the 7th-level planar substitution level gains the ability to shrug off some additional amount of injury from each blow or attack made by an outsider or extraplanar creature.

Subtract 2 points from the damage the barbarian takes each time he is dealt damage from a weapon or a natural attack made by an outsider or extraplanar creature.

In effect, this benefit grants damage reduction 2/– against the attacks of outsiders or extraplanar creatures.

This benefit replaces the damage reduction 1/- gained by a standard barbarian at 7th level.

From now on, whenever the barbarian gains a standard barbarian level that grants an improvement to his damage reduction, he gains the indicated amount minus 1 (1/- at 10th level, 2/- at 13th level, and so on).

However, the planar damage reduction value stacks with the barbarian's damage reduction against attacks from outsiders or extraplanar creatures.

For example, a 10th-level barbarian would have damage reduction 3/- against outsiders and extraplanar creatures, but damage reduction 1/- against all other creatures.

Menacing Rage (Su): The barbarian gains an especially potent fury against unnatural creatures not native to the Material Plane.

A barbarian who takes the 11th-level planar substitution level generates an intangible aura of danger whenever he rages.

This aura weakens hostile outsiders and creatures with the extraplanar subtype within 20 feet.

Any outsider or extraplanar creature within that area must attempt a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 barbarian's class level + barbarian's Con modifier).

Those who fail the saving throw take a -2 penalty on attack rolls, checks, and saves against the barbarian for 24 hours. This is a mind-affecting ability.

A creature that makes its initial save is not affected by that same barbarian's menacing rage for 24 hours.

This benefit replaces the greater rage class feature gained by a standard barbarian at 11th level.

If the barbarian later qualifies for the mighty rage class feature, he gains greater rage instead.

TABLE 2-1: BARBARIAN PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Portal sense
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Planar damage reduction
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Menacing rage

BARD

Some hold that if one had the eyes to see, the world would be revealed as a symphony of celestial music, each theme playing out its part on the stage of reality.

For some bards, this intuition is true.

When they let the scales slip from their eyes, they see the underlying overture of music that connects all levels of reality.

With this knowledge, they gain some ability to add refrains of their own choosing.

This fine-tuning bypasses spellcasting and directly affects what others see as reality.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a bard planar substitution level, a character must be about to take his 3rd, 6th, or 12th level of bard.

CLASS SKILLS

Bard planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard bard class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the bard's planar substitution levels.

Each benefit takes the place of one of the standard bardic music abilities and costs one daily use of bardic music.

Planar Inspiration (Su): A bard of 3rd level or higher with 6 or more ranks in a Perform skill who selects this planar substitution benefit can use his music or poetics to protect his allies from the alignment traits of a plane.

The bard must perform for a full minute, spending a standard action to concentrate on his performance each round.

At the end of the performance, he makes a Perform check (DC 15 for mild alignment traits, or DC 25 for strong alignment traits).

The bard can't take 10 on this check.

Success indicates that the bard and each ally within 30 feet who heard the bard perform for the full minute don't take the normal penalty on checks made on planes whose alignments differ from their own (see Alignment Traits, page 149 of the Dungeon Master's Guide) for 24 hours. This is a mind-affecting ability.

This benefit replaces the inspire competence bardic music ability gained by a standard bard at 3rd level.

Portal Dissonance (Su): A bard of 6th level or higher with 9 or more ranks in a Perform skill who selects this planar substitution benefit can use music or poetics to influence intraplanar and extraplanar portals, moderate or severe planar breaches, and other discrete passages between planes (complete planar breaches cannot be affected). The portal, breach, or other qualifying passage to be affected must be centered within 60 feet.

The bard must know about the portal.

Each round of the performance, he attempts a DC 20 Perform check.

The bard can't take 10 on this check.

Success indicates that the bard can redirect the portal destination to the mouth of any other active portal or breach he has personally traveled through in the past 30 days.

Redirection automatically fails if the portal chosen as the temporary endpoint is no longer active.

Only creatures and objects are affected by redirection, not traits (which leak through planar breaches).

Creatures that enter the portal from the bard's side of the portal, or creatures that would otherwise arrive at the bard's location through the portal, instead arrive at the endpoint of another portal chosen by the bard this round.

The portal to which the bard redirects travelers continues to connect to its original destination; if a redirected creature attempts to go back through the bard-influenced portal, it doesn't return to the bard's location, but instead to that portal's natural endpoint.

The bard may keep up the dissonance for 10 consecutive rounds (this counts as one of the bard's bardic music uses per day).

This benefit replaces the suggestion bardic music ability gained by a standard bard at 6th level.

If the bard later qualifies for the mass suggestion bardic music ability, he gains the suggestion ability instead.

Planar Discordance (Su): A bard of 12th level or higher with 15 or more ranks in a Perform skill who selects this planar substitution benefit can attempt to create a minor planar breach (as the precipitate breach spell in Chapter 5).

The bard must perform for 1 full minute, spending a standard action each round to concentrate on the performance.

At the end of the performance, the minor breach comes into existence with an onset time of 1d4 rounds, as indicated by the precipitate breach spell description. If the bard has further uses of his bardic music ability for the day, he may attempt to exacerbate the breach further, as described in the spell description.

This benefit replaces the song of freedom bardic music ability gained by a standard bard at 12th level.

TABLE 2-2: BARD PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Planar inspiration
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Portal dissonance
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8	Planar discordance

CLERIC

Clerics who focus on the planes trade their ability to turn undead for control over extraplanar creatures.

Outsiders view skilled planar clerics with awe or fear.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a cleric planar substitution level, a character must be about to take his 4th, 7th, or 11th level of cleric.

CLASS SKILLS

Cleric planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard cleric class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the cleric's planar substitution levels.

Planar Dismissal (Su): By selecting this planar substitution benefit at 4th level, a cleric trades away some of his power over undead creatures to gain the ability to dismiss a summoned extraplanar creature (such as a fiendish wolf brought by a summon monster II spell) by channeling the power of his faith through his holy (or unholy) symbol.

To attempt this, the cleric spends a turn/rebuke attempt and makes a level check (1d20 + cleric level) against a DC of 11 + the caster level of the summoner.

If the summoning creature doesn't have a caster level, use its Hit Dice instead.

The cleric gets a +2 bonus on this check if the summoned creature's alignment has at least one component opposed to his own (for instance, a lawful good cleric gets a +2 bonus if the creature's alignment includes either the chaotic or evil component, while a lawful neutral cleric gains the bonus only against chaotic summoned creatures).

Success indicates that the summoned creature is returned to its home plane.

Each attempt affects only a single creature, chosen by the cleric, that is within 60 feet and visible to the cleric.

A cleric can't dismiss a summoned creature whose Hit Dice exceed his caster level + his Cha modifier.

A cleric who selects this planar substitution benefit reduces his cleric level by three for the purpose of turning undead.

For example, a 4th-level cleric with the planar dismissal ability turns undead as a 1st-level cleric.

Planar Domain: A 7th-level cleric whose alignment is other than neutral can give up the two domains that he gained as a 1st-level cleric in exchange for a planar domain that matches his alignment (see Table 2-3: Planar Domains). The cleric need not worship a deity listed as one of the typical deities for the domain.

A neutral cleric can't select a planar domain.

The cleric immediately loses the granted powers of his exchanged domains.

Skills that were treated as class skills due to a granted power are treated as cross-class skills for this and all future cleric class levels (though the cleric doesn't lose any skill ranks for skill points already spent from previous levels).

He can no longer fill domain spell slots with domain spells from the exchanged domains.

In return, the cleric gains a planar domain that matches his alignment, gains its granted power, and from now on may fill his domain spell slots with the spells appropriate to that domain.

See Chapter 5: Spells for more information on planar domains.

TABLE 2-3: PLANAR DOMAINS

Domain	Required Alignment
Abyss	Chaotic evil
Arborea	Chaotic good
Baator	Lawful evil
Celestia	Lawful good
Elysium	Neutral good
Hades	Neutral evil
Limbo	Chaotic neutral
Mechanus	Lawful neutral

Planar Banishment (Su): By selecting this planar substitution benefit at 11th level, a cleric trades away his ability to spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells of 6th level or higher in order to gain the ability to banish extraplanar creatures from his home plane.

The cleric can "lose" any prepared spell of 6th level or higher that is not a domain spell in order to cast banishment. (If the cleric loses a spell of 7th level or higher, calculate the save DC as if the banishment spell had been heightened to that level).

TABLE 2-4: CLERIC PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Planar dismissal
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Planar domain
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Planar banishment

DRUID

The forces of nature, both subtle and grand, are manifestations of a deeper reality, where cosmic spheres revolve about each other in an awesome celestial dance. That dance generates the energy behind the fury of a storm, the brilliant sun, and even the vitality of life. The druid who understands the ecological connections between the seen and unseen is more capable, more knowledgeable, and more tuned into the events that move in all realms of existence.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a druid planar substitution level, a character must be about to take his 4th, 9th, or 13th level of druid.

CLASS SKILLS

Druid planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard druid class plus Knowledge (the planes) (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the druid's planar substitution levels.

Resist Extraplanar Might (Ex): A 4th-level druid who selects this planar substitution benefit gains a +2 bonus on saving throws against the spell-like abilities of outsiders.

This benefit replaces the resist nature's lure class feature gained by a standard druid at 4th level.

Planar Tolerance (Ex): A planar druid of 9th level or higher becomes attuned to the nature of the planes she visits and gains immunity to their natural planar effects.

Any effect that would be negated by the planar tolerance spell (see page 103) is negated by this druid ability.

Unlike the spell, this ability affects only the druid herself. This benefit replaces the immunity to venom class feature gained by a standard druid at 9th level.

Counter Summoning (Su): Some druids who walk the planes come to believe that excessive summoning of extraplanar creatures constitutes an abuse of the planes themselves, and they learn to deal with this problem at the source.

A planar druid of 13th level or higher can ready a standard action to counter a summon monster spell or any spell-like ability that summons an extraplanar creature.

This ability functions exactly as a counterspell using dispel magic, except that the druid need not cast a spell to make the attempt.

The druid must make a caster level check against a DC of 11 + the opponent's caster level (if the opponent does not have a caster level for its summoning ability, use its Hit Dice instead).

Success indicates that the spell or spell-like ability is countered.

This benefit replaces the a thousand faces class feature gained by a standard druid at 13th level.

TABLE 2-5: DRUID PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Resist extraplanar might
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Planar tolerance
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Counter summoning

FIGHTER

Planar travelers often have some fighting skill.

Those devoting a substantial amount of time and effort to the pursuit of planar puissance gain additional powers and tactics useful against planar foes.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a fighter planar substitution level, a character must be about to take his 4th, 8th, or 12th level of fighter.

CLASS SKILLS

Fighter planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard fighter class plus Knowledge (the planes).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the fighter's planar substitution levels.

Planar Study (Ex): At 4th level, a planar fighter learns the secrets of combating foes encountered on the planes.

He gains a +2 bonus on all weapon damage rolls against elementals, outsiders, and creatures that would have the extraplanar subtype while on the Material Plane (such as a fiendish dire wolf).

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard fighter at 4th level.

Align Puissance (Su): Once per day, for a number of rounds equal to his fighter class level, a planar fighter of 8th level or higher can use a standard action to align himself so that any weapon he wields is aligned good, evil, lawful, or chaotic, as he chooses.

A weapon that is aligned can overcome the damage reduction of certain creatures, usually outsiders of the opposite alignment.

This ability has no effect on a weapon that already has an alignment, such as a holy sword.

It affects all other weapons wielded by the fighter, but not his unarmed strikes or natural weapons.

The ability comes from the fighter, not the weapon, so if he subsequently gives away or loses the weapon, it does not remain aligned.

Likewise, while the fighter is under the effect of this ability, any weapon he picks up acts as if aligned in the manner he activated.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard fighter at 8th level.

Aura of Stability (Su): As a standard action, a planar fighter of 12th level or higher can activate a dimensional anchor effect (see page 221 of the Player's Handbook) on himself with a duration of a number of rounds equal to his class level.

In addition, anyone with whom he is grappling is likewise affected by the dimensional anchor ability while they are grappling.

Spell resistance applies, and the caster level of the ability equals the fighter's class level.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard fighter at 12th level.

TABLE 2-6: FIGHTER PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Planar study
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Align puissance
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Aura of stability

MONK

Monks who travel the planes do so for a wide variety of reasons, ranging from seeking to restore an ancient artifact to their temple to a much more general quest for enlightenment.

The magnificent diversity of the planes lead many monks to adventure, and few return to quiet monastic study without having spent at least some time exploring. Living out a classic paradox, most find both more and less than they anticipate.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a monk planar substitution level, a character must be about to take her 5th, 13th, or 16th level of monk.

CLASS SKILLS

Monk planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard monk class plus Knowledge (the planes) (Int).
Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the monk's planar substitution levels.

Resistant Body (Ex): At 5th level, a planar monk successfully hardens her body against one type of energy (acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic), gaining resistance 5. This benefit replaces the purity of body class feature gained by a standard monk at 5th level.

Axiomatic Soul (Ex): At 13th level, a planar monk gains spell resistance equal to her class level +15.

This spell resistance applies only to effects generated by chaotic outsiders.

This benefit replaces the diamond soul class feature gained by a standard monk at 13th level.

Ki Strike (Su): At 16th level, a planar monk's unarmed attacks are treated as cold iron weapons for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

This benefit replaces the ki strike (adamantine) class feature gained by a standard monk at 16th level.

TABLE 2-7: MONK PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Flurry of Blows Attack Bonus	Unarmed Damage	AC Bonus	Unarmored Speed Bonus
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Resistant body	+2/+2	1d8	+1	+10 ft.
13th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Axiomatic soul	+9/+9/+9/+4	2d6	+2	+40 ft.
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	Ki strike (cold iron), slow fall (80 ft.)	+12/+12/+12/+7/+2	2d8	+3	+50 ft.

PALADIN

Dedicated to upholding law, promoting good, and serving as an example for others in the name of their god, paladins seem to live their lives as an effort to carry a tiny bit of their deity's plane wherever they go.

If they have done their jobs well, spending time on the plane in question will be like coming home, and bringing that same sense of beneficial transformation to other planes will be a worthwhile challenge for a truly worthy champion.

Better than members of any other class, paladins can be agents who embody the tenets of an entire plane of existence.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a paladin planar substitution level, a character must be about to take her 4th, 6th, or 10th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Paladin planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class plus Knowledge (the planes) (Int).
Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the paladin's planar substitution levels.

Smite Evil Outsider (Su): A planar paladin of 4th level or higher can attempt to smite an evil outsider with one normal melee attack.

She adds her Charisma bonus (if any) to the damage dealt by the attack.

In addition, the attack is treated as good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

If the paladin accidentally smites a creature that is not an evil outsider, the smite has no effect, but the ability is still used up.

A paladin may use this ability a number of times per day equal to 1 + her Cha modifier (minimum 1).

If the paladin is on a plane that is both good-aligned and lawful-aligned (such as the Seven Mounting Heavens of Celestia), she also adds her Charisma bonus (if any) to the attack roll.

A planar paladin can use smite evil and smite evil outsider on the same attack, and the bonuses stack.

This benefit replaces the ability to turn undead gained by a standard paladin at 4th level.

Celestial Mount: A paladin who chooses this planar substitution benefit at 6th level may apply the celestial template (see page 31 of the Monster Manual) to her special mount.

The mount gains darkvision out to 60 feet, spell resistance equal to its Hit Dice + 5 (maximum 25), and resistance to acid, cold, and electricity 5 (or resistance 10 if it has 8 or more Hit Dice).

If the mount has 4 or more Hit Dice, it also gains damage reduction (5/magic for Hit Dice 4 to 11, or 10/magic for Hit Dice 12 or more), and its natural weapons are treated as magic weapons for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

It also gains a smite evil attack, allowing it to deal extra damage once per day equal to its Hit Dice (maximum +20) with a single melee attack against an evil foe.

This benefit replaces the remove disease class feature gained by a standard paladin at 6th level.

From now on, whenever the paladin gains a standard paladin level that allows her to use remove disease more frequently, she gains the indicated number of uses per week minus 1 (1/week at 9th level, 2/week at 12th level, and so on).

Alignment Purity (Ex): A 10th-level paladin who chooses this planar substitution benefit can ignore the penalty to Intelligence-, Wisdom-, and/or Charisma-based checks that she would normally take when on a plane that is chaotic- or evil-aligned.

Her spirit and determination are so pure that she effectively brings her own planar alignment traits wherever she goes.

This ability only affects the paladin, not any other allies or foes in her vicinity.

This benefit replaces the ability to smite evil three times per day gained by a standard paladin at 10th level.

From now on, whenever the paladin gains a standard paladin level that allows her to smite evil more frequently, she gains the indicated number of uses per day minus 1 (3/day at 15th level, 4/day at 20th level, and so on).

TABLE 2-8: PALADIN PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Smite evil outsider
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Celestial mount
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Alignment purity

RANGER

Rangers from the Material Plane stalk and protect forests and hills, and the same is true for rangers who live on other planes.

Of course, they may be crystal forests and hills of flame, but the deep personal connection and dedication remain exactly the same.

Whatever the nature of a planar ranger's chosen home, he is as comfortable there as a noble is upon his throne.

He can sense trouble on the wind, glean details of recent events from a single footprint, and know the habits of the local flora and fauna the way a mother bear knows her cubs.
Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a ranger planar substitution level, a character must be about to take her 4th, 8th, or 13th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Ranger planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard ranger class plus Knowledge (the planes) (Int).
Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the ranger's planar substitution levels.

Planar Animal Companion (Ex): At 4th level, a planar ranger can select a celestial or fiendish animal as his animal companion.

Doing this reduces the ranger's effective druid level by one. For example, a 4th-level planar ranger (with an effective druid level of 1st) can select an animal from the normal list of potential companions.

When he reaches 8th level, that companion would gain the bonus Hit Dice and other special abilities granted to the animal companion of a 3rd-level druid.

He can't select a celestial leopard or fiendish wolverine until he reaches 10th level (effective druid level 4th).

Unlike a typical animal companion, the planar animal companion is a magical beast.

However, the ranger (and only the ranger) can still affect it with his spells as if it were an animal.

To gain a celestial companion, a ranger must have a nonevil alignment.

To gain a fiendish companion, a ranger must have a nongood alignment.

If the ranger's alignment changes to one that is ineligible for the companion, the companion either turns on the ranger or leaves at its earliest convenience, depending on its natural tendencies.

Portal Intuition (Ex): At 8th level, a planar ranger becomes an expert at tracking quarry across planes and through various portals and breaches.

When examining a portal, the ranger may attempt to determine to which plane the portal leads.

To do this, he must succeed on both a DC 20 Survival check and a DC 20 Knowledge (the planes) check.

The ranger can also use this ability to determine whether or not a planar breach occurred within 20 feet of a particular spot within the last 24 hours.

To do this, he must succeed on a DC 20 Search check.

If the ranger determines that a breach did occur in the area, he may then use this ability to ascertain where it led.

This benefit replaces the swift tracker class feature gained by a standard ranger at 8th level.

Planar Tracking (Sp): Once per day, a ranger who chooses this substitution benefit can use plane shift as a spell-like ability (with a caster level equal to his class level) in order to follow his quarry.

He must be tracking a favored enemy, and he must be at the spot where the creature traveled from one plane to another.

Unlike with the plane shift spell, the ranger has no chance of deviation from the intended destination.

He and anyone he brings with him arrives in the exact spot that his quarry did.

Spells that prevent planar travel (such as dimensional lock) affect this ability as they would any casting of plane shift.

The ranger does not automatically pick up his quarry's trail when he arrives on the new plane.

He must use his Track feat to find the creature's tracks and pick up the hunt.

But he has the advantage of knowing that his target definitely passed that way.

This benefit replaces the camouflage class feature gained by a standard ranger at 13th level.

TABLE 2-9: RANGER PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Planar animal companion
8th	+8/+3	+6	+6	+2	Portal intuition
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+8	+4	Planar tracking

ROGUE

The only thing more varied and unpredictable than a rogue's intentions are the infinite planes of reality.

No matter what a rogue wants to do, no matter what treasure or information or experience she seeks, it can be found somewhere on the planes.

A rogue who spends her life exploring the twisting realities and the gossamer walls that separate them comes away with a unique insight into the way the cosmos functions.

She may not have a scholar's ability to understand it, nor a poet's skill to describe it, but the rogue has something eminently more useful—she knows the loopholes built into the laws of reality and how to bend them ever so slightly to her advantage.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a rogue planar substitution level, a character must be about to take her 6th, 10th, or 16th level of rogue.

CLASS SKILLS

Rogue planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard rogue class plus Knowledge (the planes) (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the rogue's planar substitution levels.

Breach Sense (Ex): A 6th-level planar rogue gains an intuitive sense that alerts her of the imminent opening of a nearby conduit between the planes.

She automatically detects the activation of any portal or the opening of any planar breach within 30 feet of her, as well as any spell or effect that crosses over or through the planes (such as summon monster, teleport, or plane shift) used within 30 feet of her.

The rogue may immediately attempt a DC 25 Spot check to pinpoint the exact location of the portal, breach, or effect, as long as she has line of sight to it.

For example, a planar rogue would detect a demon teleporting to a spot within 30 feet of her, and with a DC 25 Spot check could even pinpoint the precise location where the demon appeared (though she would lose this precision as soon as the demon moved).

This benefit replaces the improvement to the trap sense class feature gained by a standard rogue at 6th level.

From now on, whenever the rogue gains a standard rogue level that grants an improvement to her trap sense, she gains the indicated bonus minus 1 (trap sense +2 at 9th level, trap sense +3 at 12th level, and so on).

Slip the Bonds (Su): A rogue who chooses this substitution benefit at 10th level knows how to slip momentarily into the periphery of the plane she is on.

Once per day as a free action, she can turn ethereal for a single round.

This benefit replaces the special ability gained by a standard rogue at 10th level.

Blink (Sp): By 16th level, a planar rogue's understanding of how to skirt the periphery of a plane is such that she can use a blink effect on herself once per day.

This effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to 1/2 her rogue level (rounded down).

This benefit replaces the special ability gained by a standard rogue at 16th level.

TABLE 2-10: ROGUE PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Breach sense
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+3	Slip the bonds
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	Blink

SORCERER

Though many claim a sorcerer's power derives from draconic heritage, a few sorcerers believe that their arcane prowess comes from an even purer source—the planes themselves.

It isn't uncommon to see sorcerers traveling the multiverse in search of support for this belief.

Unlike other spellcasters, the sorcerer has a limited ability to customize his talents for planar adventuring.

With a small list of spells known, the sorcerer who wishes to adapt to life on the planes must choose his tools wisely. Even so, the wide variety of challenges awaiting the planar sorcerer demands a slightly more adaptable approach to spellcasting.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a sorcerer planar substitution level, a character must be about to take her 5th, 9th, or 13th level of sorcerer.

CLASS SKILLS

Sorcerer planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard sorcerer class plus Knowledge (the planes) (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the sorcerer's planar substitution levels.

Force-Charged Energy (Su): At 5th level, a planar sorcerer can lace his spells with pure force, the better to affect the various energy-resistant elementals and outsiders he faces. At the sorcerer's option, half of the energy damage dealt by a spell he casts is replaced by force damage.

This effect can be applied to any spell that deals acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic damage.

The maximum spell level to which a planar sorcerer can apply this effect is one lower than the highest level of sorcerer spell that he can cast.

For instance, a 5th-level planar sorcerer can apply this effect to 0-level and 1st-level sorcerer spells, while an 18th-level planar sorcerer can apply it to spells of up to 8th level. This benefit replaces the ability to learn a new 2nd-level spell gained by a standard sorcerer at 5th level.

From now on, the sorcerer's number of 2nd-level spells known at any class level is one less than the value shown on Table 3-17, page 54 of the Player's Handbook.

Extraplanar Spell Penetration (Ex): A 9th-level planar sorcerer can imbue his spells with the ability to penetrate the spell resistance of extraplanar creatures more readily.

Three times per day, for 1 round each time, the sorcerer can add his Charisma bonus to all his caster level checks made to overcome the spell resistance of extraplanar creatures.

This benefit replaces the ability to learn a new 4th-level spell gained by a standard sorcerer at 9th level.

From now on, the sorcerer's number of 4th-level spells known at any class level is one less than the value shown on Table 3-17, page 54 of the Player's Handbook.

Spontaneous Planar Summoning (Su): A 13th-level planar sorcerer learns to summon extraplanar creatures spontaneously.

When he chooses this planar substitution benefit, a sorcerer selects one of the following categories: elementals (creatures of the elemental type), celestial creatures (creatures with the celestial template), or fiendish creatures (creatures with the fiendish template).

He can use any spell slot to spontaneously cast a summon monster spell of the same level, but he can use that spell to summon only creatures of the selected category.

For example, a 13th-level sorcerer who chose elementals could use one of his 6th-level spell slots to cast summon monster VI.

He could use that spell to summon a single Large elemental, or 1d3 Medium elementals (from the 5th-level summoning list).

He could not use the spell to summon creatures that weren't elementals.

This benefit replaces the ability to learn a new 6th-level spell gained by a standard sorcerer at 13th level.

From now on, the sorcerer's number of 6th-level spells known at any class level is one less than the value shown on Table 3-17, page 54 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 2-11: SORCERER PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Force-charged energy
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Extraplanar spell penetration
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	Spontaneous planar summoning

WIZARD

While other spellcasters may have a vested interest in a particular planar viewpoint, the wizard prefers a more open policy toward the planes.

To a wizard, the planes represent knowledge and power, and the wizard who can learn the secrets of the planes without regard to those planes' alignments or other traits is a true master of magic.

More so than many other classes, the wizard already has the ability to customize her abilities with an eye to the planes, simply through the spells she learns and prepares each day. If a wizard learns plane shift and planar tolerance, then the caster is self-customized to adventure on the planes.

But the planar wizard goes a step beyond this adaptation, learning to channel the pure power of the planes themselves in her spells.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a wizard planar substitution level, a character must be about to take her 6th, 10th, or 14th level of wizard.

CLASS SKILLS

Wizard planar substitution levels have the class skills of the standard wizard class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are features of the wizard's planar substitution levels.

Unimpeded Magic (Su): A 6th-level planar wizard learns to overcome planar impediments to her spellcasting.

When casting a wizard spell that would normally be impeded because of a plane's magic traits (such as a fire spell on the Elemental Plane of Water), the spell functions normally without need for a Spellcraft check.

This benefit replaces the 3rd-level spell slot gained by a standard wizard at 6th level.

From now on, the wizard can prepare one less 3rd-level wizard spell than indicated on Table 3-18, page 55 of the Player's Handbook.

Planar Spellcasting (Su): A 10th-level planar wizard learns to channel planar energy through her spells.

Upon gaining this ability, the wizard chooses to make her spells anarchic (chaotic), axiomatic (lawful), celestial (good), or fiendish (evil).

Her spells gain the indicated alignment descriptor.

The wizard can choose any of the four options, regardless of her own alignment.

Against creatures of the opposed alignment, she gains a +1 bonus on caster level checks made to overcome spell resistance, and her spell save DCs are increased by 1.

If she casts a spell that normally has the same alignment descriptor that she would apply, or whenever she casts a spell on a plane with an alignment trait that matches the alignment she chose, the bonuses increase to +2.

These effects apply only to the character's wizard spells; any spellcasting ability gained from another class functions normally.

For example, the spells of a wizard choosing to cast fiendish spells gain the evil descriptor.

She gains a +1 bonus on caster level checks to overcome the spell resistance of good-aligned creatures, and good-aligned creatures attempting to save against her spells do so against a DC that is 1 higher than normal.

If she casts a spell that would normally be an evil spell (such as contagion), or if she casts any spell on an evil-aligned plane (such as the Abyss or the Nine Hells), these values would increase by 2 instead of by 1.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard wizard at 10th level, as well as the two spells a standard 10th-level wizard learns for free.

Enhanced Magic (Su): A 14th-level planar wizard learns how to channel the essence of a specific plane's enhanced magic trait through her spells.

Upon gaining this ability, the wizard must choose a specific plane that she has visited (other than the Material Plane).

Three times per day, the wizard may spend a standard action to channel that plane's magical essence.

The next spell she casts (if cast within 1 minute) is enhanced as if she were casting it on that plane, applying any magic traits normal to that plane.

This ability doesn't apply any other planar magic traits to the wizard's spells, such as wild magic or impeded magic.

For example, a planar wizard who chose to channel the essence of the Elemental Plane of Fire would maximize and enlarge the next spell she cast after activating this ability (as if she had applied the Maximize Spell and Enlarge Spell meta magic feats, but without adjusting the spell slot used), as long as that spell has the fire descriptor.

This benefit replaces the 7th-level spell slot gained by a standard wizard at 14th level.

From now on, the wizard can prepare one less 7th-level wizard spell than indicated on Table 3-18, page 55 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 2-12: WIZARD PLANAR SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save	Special
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Unimpeded magic
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Planar spellcasting
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	Enhanced magic

PLAYER'S HANDBOOK 2

(3.5)

BARBARIAN

All stand in awe at the berserker fury you tap at will, enhancing your strength and toughness at the expense of reason.

But what do cultured people know of the frozen wastes or hellish jungles that forged your earliest experiences? The cruel vicissitudes of growing up "savage" were normal to you.

When your older brother was lost on a bear hunt one day, and your younger sister died of disease in the howling dark late one night, how could you know that in other places, they might not have had to die?

These and other experiences marked you, and you stand apart from those born into the comforts of civilization.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Gladiator, Mariner, Tribal Origin.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Challenger, Explorer, Mercenary, Orphan, Renegade, Savage, Seeker, Simple Soul, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or both of the following character themes could apply to you.

Fearless: You are made of stern stuff.

You're not foolish, but you're not afraid to test your mettle and resourcefulness against any foe.

If you are told a foe is beyond your ability to defeat, you need more evidence than merely the claim.

You do not boast, but make bold statements that echo your experiences and resolve.

Once you are actually embroiled in a conflict, you prefer a quick, urgent battle cry.

A battle cry is a yell intended to rally your allies while putting fear into the hearts of enemies.

See the Barbarian Battlecries sidebar and create a few of your own battlecries tailored to your experience.

"Fear cannot thwart my will."

"I braved the deadly glacier's darkest, coldest crevasse [disease-rotted deep jungle] for three days—this trial cannot compare with that feat."

"If you fear to cross swords with the foe, pray for a quick death, for you'll never find fulfillment in this life."

"It is in hours such as these that heroes are born!"

"Fear breeds fear!"

Tattooed: Your flesh is scribed with one or more pictures or symbols that signify your connection with the ancient principles of your barbarian past.

One or more of the following tattoos adorn your body.

Arrowhead: You wear this simple pointed tattoo on your forehead.

You believe that it lends you alertness in your dealings, both in combat and in your perception of the lies others tell you.

Most people are certainly distracted by it.

Bear: Across your chest is tattooed a mighty bear, whose inexhaustible strength is your strength, and whose capacity to keep fighting even when sorely wounded is a quality you also possess.

Butterfly: This stylistically rendered winged thing is (you claim) a butterfly, and you tell all who admire it that it signifies everlasting life.

Circle: This tattooed open circle (or hoop) is the universal symbol of wholeness, female power, and infinity.

If you are female, you have this emblem tattooed on your forehead, and all who see it know that you are an avatar of the feminine spirit.

Crossed Swords: The weapons you choose to wield say a lot about you, but they gain greater significance when their representations are tattooed upon your flesh.

Such tattoos are tokens of good luck, and as long as they are visible, you know that you cannot suffer lasting defeat.

Demon: By tattooing a demonic image on your chest (instead of a bear), you indicate to others that you have no love for piety, show no mercy to your enemies, and don't care the least bit for propriety.

Dragon Scales: Your cheeks are tattooed with radiant dragon scales, which indicate the position of authority that was yours prior to your leaving your savage land, or the chieftom that awaits you when you one day return to forge a mighty barbarian horde.

Lightning: Jagged lines scribed down your lower jaw and neck represent bolts of swift lightning, and you believe their presence lends you swiftness of pace and possibly of thought.

Mask: In lieu of other facial tattoos, you've chosen to cover your face with a single tattoo representing a fierce animal or monster, a nature spirit, or an ancestor.

Your tribal shaman convinced you that the application of such a painful and encompassing (and disfiguring!) tattoo would allow you to more easily contact the spirit world and gain the power of the spirit or animal represented by the mask.

Alternatively, you were shunned or cast out by your tribe. The tattoo covering your face forever marks you as an outcast to your tribe, unworthy to associate with the people of your birth.

Naga: Instead of snakes spiraling up your arms, you have tattooed human-headed nagas!

The nagas represent anarchy and indicate to others who understand the symbol that you follow no law but your own, civilization be damned.

Snake: Tattooed snakes coil around your upper arms, simple but colorful.

Their heads point toward your head, imparting their wisdom to you in spirit, if not in voice.

Spider: On the palm of one of your hands, hidden in normal dealings with strangers, the tattoo of a night-dark spider lurks with five of its legs extending up onto the undersides of your fingers.

To you (and others familiar with the symbology), the spider represents trickery and even death, though others might say treachery instead of trickery.

When engaged in trickery (or treachery), it is your habit to reveal your open palm to the victim of your trick (or double-cross) as the nature of your action becomes apparent to them.

Sun Rays: On the backs of your hands are tattooed the long rays of the golden sun.

Just like you can count on the sun rising daily, people can count on you, as this tattoo signifies.

Toad: You believe that this minor tattoo you wear on one shoulder helps protect you from witchcraft, evil spells, and demonic influences.

BERSERKER STRENGTH

The decision of when to rage is one of the toughest faced by a barbarian.

Selecting the berserker strength class feature in place of rage removes the need for this often complicated tactical decision, replacing it with an automatically activated boost to your combat prowess and durability.

In short, when the going gets tough, you get tougher.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain rage (or any later improvements to that class feature).

Benefit: Whenever your current hit point total is below 5 × your barbarian level, your berserker strength automatically activates.

You gain a +4 bonus to your Strength score, a +2 bonus on saves, damage reduction 2/–, and a –2 penalty to your AC. The damage reduction granted by berserker strength stacks with any similar kind of damage reduction.

There is no limit to the number of times per day your berserker strength can activate.

While berserker strength is active, you have the same limitation on actions as a barbarian in rage (PH 25).

You cannot voluntarily end your berserker strength, although you automatically drop out of it while unconscious, helpless, or (most likely) when you receive healing to bring your current hit points above the threshold.

At 11th level (or if you would gain the greater rage class feature from any class), your berserker strength improves instead.

The bonus to your Strength score improves to +6, your bonus on saves improves to +3, and you gain damage reduction 3/– (or your existing damage reduction of the same kind improves by 3).

At 20th level (or if you would gain the mighty rage class feature from any class), your berserker strength instead improves again.

The bonus to your Strength score improves to +8, your bonus on saves improves to +4, and you gain damage reduction 4/– (or your existing damage reduction of the same kind improves by 4).

Any effect that would normally apply only during your rage applies whenever your berserker strength is active.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Destroyer

Half-Orc Barbarian

Ability Scores: Str 17, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 8, Wis 12, Cha 6.

Skills: Climb, Jump, Swim.

Feat: Power Attack.

Weapons: Greataxe (1d12/×3), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 9 gp.

Package 2: The Hunter

Elf Barbarian

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 16, Con 10, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Handle Animal, Listen, Survival.

Feat: Track.

Weapons: Battleaxe (1d8/×3), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/19–20, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC), heavy steel shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 1 gp.

Package 3: The Whirlwind

Human Barbarian

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 15, Con 13, Int 10, Wis 12, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Intimidate, Jump, Listen, Swim.

Feat: Two-Weapon Fighting, Weapon Focus (kukri).

Weapons: Two kukris (1d4/18–20), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 4 gp.

BARD

You roam the bright kingdoms and less savory regions of the world alike, amassing lore, negotiating tricky deals, scouting, gambling, spying, relaying messages, and telling epic stories.

You work magic with your music, influencing the hearts and minds of both friends and foes.

In the end, the best stories end up being about you.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Drifter, Mariner, Noble Scion.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Daredevil, Explorer, Innocent, Mercenary, Orphan, Rebel, Renegade, Royalty, Trickster, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Military Historian: This character theme requires you to have at least one rank in Knowledge (history).

You are a student of conflict, an expert on the subject of the famous battles between prehistoric tribes, ancient militaries, and modern armies between kings and necromancers.

Now and then, you regale your friends with snippets of these histories.

You find it all so interesting that you know everyone else would feel the same way, if only they were exposed to the sagas.

"We could learn something from the Battle of Rakdar, fought three hundred years ago.

When the army of King Yria encountered an allied army of eight kings at Rakdar, it was utterly decimated by the much larger force. King Yria learned the value of alliances then."

"The Battle of Ceschremi sent ten thousand warriors to their graves, because reinforcements didn't arrive when Emperor Drezzar ordered.

Over the years, his generals had taken the money meant to keep reinforcements at the ready and instead bought fine mansions for themselves in the countryside.

Those were later burned by the Ceschremi army, which advanced unopposed."

Negotiator: In some groups, your diplomatic skills will exceed those of all your friends.

To be a good negotiator, you must be fair, but stern.

While the Diplomacy skill provides the mechanical resolution of a scene, DMs enjoy hearing the gist of your negotiating points as a precursor to attempting the skill check.

Really, it's all about the "spin".

With the proper spin, even a three-day-dead orc can be made to sound enticing.

For example, if you are attempting to explain to a city official why your group was responsible for so much destruction in a recent street altercation, you might say:

"Your honor, consider the devastation that would have otherwise been wrought.

Consider the buildings unburnt, lives saved, and money still safely in coffers precisely because of our actions!"

On the other hand, if you are trying to trade in an unneeded magic weapon for some other trifle that you or a friend would prefer, try:

"Your eyes miss nothing, madam, but of course you couldn't know that this blade was once the boyhood dagger of the playwright Isheuan.

Indeed, his honeyed words are a delight to all.

And this blade was grasped in that same hand that also takes so ably to the pen.

Consider its value now!"

Riddlemaster: You absorb stories, but you collect riddles.

A good riddle is a treasure in itself, and "a thorough knowledge of riddles keeps the intellect flexible and sharp", as you are fond of saying.

More than that, a knowledge of riddles can prove useful in negotiations with certain enigmatic beasts, prideful kings, or any foe whose conceit compels it to agree to test of riddles to resolve a dispute.

Every bard knows at least a few riddles.

Beyond these beginning few, you are constantly on the lookout for more, whether through research in dusty tomes, or by riddling with strangers and friends, ally or foe, even when there is nothing at stake.

In this way, you are able to collect ever more riddles for your growing repertoire.

You are also adroit at creating your own riddles.

How To Write A Riddle: Use three rules when writing a riddle.

- 1) Pick an word or phrase as the answer to your riddle.
- 2) Turn the word or phrase over and over in your head, free-associating and making note of any unusual or off-the-wall idea that comes to mind.
- 3) Come up with clues about these ideas you've just generated.

Put it all together, tidy it up, and you might have just created a riddle that will last the ages.

Spy: Even if you don't have a commission, you can play up the fact that you might be working under official authority—after all, you've (supposedly) done so in the past.

Purchase a leather-bound journal (in game), and keep copious notes about all your surroundings, exploits, and the doings of your acquaintances.

At some later point, your habits could reveal an important clue that was missed earlier.

To prevent anyone else from gleaning the same information, you keep this journal in a cipher.

Ciphers: A cipher is a way to record information in such a way that it is obscured to those without special knowledge. In most cases, this special knowledge is a key (for simple ciphers) that provides the necessary insight for rearranging letters into their proper order or otherwise rendering a message legible.

If you end up actually acting as a spy for a merchant guild, temple, or other organization, you can pass a note every few sessions to the DM using a simple cipher—assuming the DM aids you in this endeavor.

One of the simplest ciphers replaces each letter of the alphabet with a different letter that is a certain number of letters away.

For instance, if the cipher is "letter +1" (replace each letter with the one that follows it in the alphabet), then the message "J bn b tqz", when decrypted, reads "I am a spy".
Storyteller: You are a repository of stories both ancient and contemporary.

From the wealth of stories at your disposal, the lessons of history and adages of past bards and sages are at your fingertips.

Use this knowledge to your advantage when you wish to influence an ally's (or foe's) opinion about something, such as a plan of action or a proposed agreement.

By preceding your point with a reference to a story (real or made up), you lend additional weight to the point you make immediately afterward.

Most sentient creatures feel the pressure of precedent of others' past experience on a similar matter, even if you've invented the story on the spot (as long as they don't know you're making it up).

Of course, it's better if you actually have a story, or a piece of history told as a story, in mind before you attempt this tactic.

For example, when confronted with a particular thorny problem, especially if you see a solution, stroke your chin and say:

"This reminds me of the time Prince Voltred tried to enter his falcon in the archery contest.

Funny thing about that..."

Or, when you disagree with a conclusion, try:

"The slave Medricar thought the same thing, when he once escaped his master to live in the forest.

He figured he could survive on the wild herbs and honey he would find.

Good thing he changed his mind..."

Or, when you believe not enough forethought has gone into an ally's proposed course of action:

"Might work, yes, but you remember Darvn, who rushed into the Cave of the Yellow Skull?"

If he had just watched a little longer, he'd have seen the giant sleeping behind the stone."

BARDIC KNACK

Wandering bards learn more mundane skills and less esoteric knowledge on their travels.

If you select this class feature, you have done a little bit of everything; maybe you spent a few months as a wilderness guide, and you also had a cousin in an ambassador's retinue who regaled you with tales of courtly intrigue.

The bardic knack class feature makes you more capable of accomplishing simple tasks with a wide variety of skills. You don't need to dabble in noncritical skills (unless you want to be considered trained in their use), freeing up your skill points to focus on a small range of crucial skills.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain bardic knowledge.

Benefit: When making any skill check, you can use 1/2 your bard level (rounded up) in place of the number of ranks you have in the skill (even if that number is 0).

For example, a 5th-level bard would have the equivalent of 3 ranks in Appraise, Balance, Bluff, and so on (but only for the purpose of making skill checks).

You can't take 10 on checks when you use bardic knack (to take 10 you have to use your actual ranks).

If the skill doesn't allow untrained checks, you must have at least 1 actual rank to attempt the check.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Controller

Half-Elf Bard

Ability Scores: Str 10, Dex 14, Con 13, Int 12, Wis 8, Cha 15.

Skills: Bluff, Diplomacy, Disguise, Gather Information, Knowledge (local), Perform, Sense Motive.

Languages: Common, Elven, Celestial.

Feat: Skill Focus (Perform).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8/19–20), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Common musical instrument, spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 9 gp.

Spells Known: 0—detect magic, lullaby, mage hand, prestidigitation.

Package 2: The Problem Solver

Gnome Bard

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 10, Int 12, Wis 13, Cha 15.

Skills: Bluff, Concentration, Craft (alchemy), Listen, Perform, Spellcraft, Use Magic Device.

Languages: Common, Gnome, Goblin.

Feat: Arcane Flourish*.

Weapons: Longsword (1d6/19–20), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d4/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC), Other Gear: Common musical instrument, spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 4 gp.

Spells Known: 0—dancing lights, detect magic, mage hand, read magic.

Package 3: The Vanguard

Human Bard

Ability Scores: Str 10, Dex 14, Con 13, Int 12, Wis 8, Cha 15.

Skills: Concentration, Diplomacy, Escape Artist, Listen, Perform, Spot, Tumble.

Languages: Common, Draconic.

Feats: Combat Expertise, Still Spell.

Weapons: Rapier (1d6/18–20), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC), light wooden shield (+1 AC, 5% arcane spell failure).

Other Gear: Common musical instrument, spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 22 gp.

Spells Known: 0—detect magic, ghost sound, light, message.

CLERIC

You are a representative of an almighty deity's authority in the mortal world.

You give thanks daily to the good fortune that put you in such an enviable position.

You know firsthand that the places of natural beauty, the structure of societies, and even existential cosmic laws would falter and perhaps collapse altogether without divine influence and intervention.

However, deities work through agencies other than mere divine decree.

In fact, gods prefer to work through intermediaries such as you when possible.

You use the power of your deity to make your god's will manifest.

In doing so, your lot improves, as you are raised slowly up in the eyes of the deity you serve with each deed you accomplish in your god's name.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Ascetic, Noble Scion.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Companion, Crusader, Innocent, Leader, Martyr, Orphan, Prophet, Royalty, Sage, Seeker, Simple Soul, Theorist.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Giver of Blessings: Since you are an instrument of your deity's will, you often find yourself (along with your companions) in tight spaces.

In such circumstances, it is customary for you to bless yourself and your companions with your god's beneficence immediately prior to taking desperate action.

Keeping such blessings to a minimum number of words is a good idea, given that you are usually only moved to give a blessing when circumstances are dire.

You are partial to one or more of the following blessings (substituting your deity's name for Pelor):

"Refresh and gladden our spirits.

Purify our hearts.

Illumine our powers.

We lay our hope in Pelor's hands."

"Bless us, oh Pelor, and these thy weapons which we are about to deploy in thy name, through your beneficence."

"We humbly beseech you from the bottom of our hearts to succor us in our necessity."

Missionary: You believe without question that others would benefit by conversion to the worship of your deity. You have taken it upon yourself to be a propagator of your religion, and draw upon one of the following methods of proselytization.

Conversion through Exhortation: You are a strident evangelist who exhorts others to consider your deity's worship at every opportunity.

For instance, whenever you heal a companion, you murmur:

"Through Pelor's grace, be healed.

If your belief were greater, how much greater would the relief from your wounds be?"

On the other hand, when smiting enemies, you scream (regardless of whether your friends have yet converted):

"When you cross me, you cross the great god Pelor and earn his wrath, and the wrath of all his disciples!"

Conversion by Example: You never exhort your companions to convert, but instead serve your deity lovingly and well. You heal your companions at need, smite enemies, and accomplish other duties required by the company you keep.

After months of showing how the grace of Pelor helps you through example, you are ready to choose your moment. At some point your aid, healing prayer, or other good work will come at just the precise moment to save or renew one of your companions.

This is the time to whisper persuasively in his or her ear: "Consider what Pelor has done for you—it is through his aid that I have aided you.

If you say so now, I will tell you more of Pelor later."

In this way, you can slowly bring one or more of your companions into the fold.

Prayerful: You know that maintaining the channels of communication between yourself and your deity is necessary, not just when your god grants your spells, but all day through.

However, the adventuring life being what it is, your prayers are short and sweet, and you drop them into conversation when possible.

For instance, whenever you make a particularly forceful assertion, you append one of the following phrases (substituting your deity's name for Pelor):

"...as Pelor's grace demands."

"...just as Pelor sweeps aside foes."

"...so that Pelor may smile upon us."

"...in Pelor's name, let it be so."

"...in this we ask Pelor's aid."

"...and in so doing we will be instruments of Pelor's peace."

"...and in this we shall have Pelor's divine aid."

"...for behold, Pelor has smiled on us from the very beginning."

"...and may all sin in Pelor's eyes be washed from our souls, so that our purposes are pure."

Sermonizer: You are familiar with the trials and travails of your deity, especially if your god or one of his saints or other associated entities was forced to undergo a great trial to reach a higher spiritual understanding or vision.

You are given to dropping in bits and pieces of this story prior to expressing your point.

You hope that by being made aware of holy example, your companions will see the wisdom of your words.

For instance, you might say as part of your arguments (substituting your deity's name for Pelor):

"...but as the One Hundred Writs of Pelor tell us..."

"...lest we suffer as Pelor suffered in his many trials..."

"...but even the purest hearts can fall."

Remember Eyria, the devoted paladin of Pelor?

Renowned for her piety and courage, she was slain in battle with a death knight, but in her destruction she was victorious.

"...long before you were born and long after you've become but dust, Pelor's disciples will continue their good works and see to it that Pelor's will is accomplished."

Soldier of Divinity: You stand a little closer to the paladin ideal than other clerics.

You disdain blessings and prayers, and you avoid healing your compatriots except in the direst of circumstances. Instead, you select your spells, feats, and magic items so that your deity's divine grace directly infuses your strength at arms and defense.

If you pray for just the right combination of aid, your ability to fight your god's battles comes close to equaling any warrior's combat ability, and in some cases exceeds those capabilities.

Of course, being a soldier of your deity doesn't mean that you can't be prayerful (see above), though your pleas to your god take on a much more military context:

"Move, infidel, or feel divine wrath."

"Kill them all, Pelor commands it!"

SPONTANEOUS DOMAIN CASTING

After a while, clerics can start looking very similar.

Even with a variety of domains to choose from, domain spells take up such a small portion of the average cleric's repertoire that they don't have much effect on the overall feel of the character.

With spontaneous domain casting, though, your domain choice becomes a more important element of your character.

You won't be able to provide as much healing to your party as a typical cleric, but the ability to prepare cure or inflict spells in your domain spell slots keeps you from falling too far behind in that area.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the ability to spontaneously convert prepared spells into cure or inflict spells.

Benefit: You can convert stored spell energy into the spells of one of your domains.

Pick one of your two domains.

You can "lose" any prepared spell (other than a domain spell) to cast any spell of the same level or lower on that domain list.

Your choice is permanent unless an alignment change, deity change, or other dramatic event leaves you incapable of accessing the domain.

In addition, when preparing spells you can choose to fill any or all of your domain spell slots with either cure or inflict spells (depending on whether you would normally convert prepared spells to cure or inflict spells) of the same level.

Example: Crucius is a cleric of Heironeous with the Good and War domains.

At 1st level, he chooses to spontaneously cast War domain spells.

Thereafter, he can lose a prepared 1st-level spell to cast magic weapon, a prepared 2nd-level spell to cast spiritual weapon (or magic weapon), and so on.

Furthermore, in each domain spell slot he can prepare a spell from the Good domain, a spell from the War domain, or a cure spell of the same level.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Defender

Dwarf Cleric of Moradin

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 8, Con 16, Int 10, Wis 15, Cha 11.

Skills: Concentration, Knowledge (religion).

Feat: Improved Turning.

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d8/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, wooden holy symbol, 2 gp.

Class Features: Channels positive energy; Good and Protection domains.

Spells Prepared: 1st—command, *protection from evil*D, shield of faith; 0—detect magic, light, resistance.

D: Domain spell.

Package 2: The Destroyer

Half-Orc Cleric of Heironeous

Ability Scores: Str 16, Dex 10, Con 12, Int 6, Wis 15, Cha 11.

Skill: Concentration.

Feats: Divine Justice*, Martial Weapon Proficiency (longsword), Weapon Focus (longsword).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8/19–20), 2 javelins (1d6, 20 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, wooden holy symbol, 5 gp.

Class Features: Channels positive energy; Good and War (longsword) domains.

Spells Prepared: 1st—*bles*s, divine favor, *magic weapon*D; 0—guidance, resistance, virtue.

D: Domain spell.

Package 3: The Healer

Human Cleric of Pelor

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 8, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 15, Cha 13.

Skills: Concentration, Diplomacy, Heal.

Feats: Combat Casting, Sacred Healing*.

Weapons: Longspear (1d8/×3), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d8/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, wooden holy symbol, 12 gp.

Class Features: Channels positive energy; Healing and Sun domains.

Spells Prepared: 1st—endure elements, protection from evil, sanctuary; 0—detect magic, detect poison, light.

D: Domain spell.

DRUID

Your secret instruction occurred in caves and forests sacred to life.

You learned clandestine verses, the names of stars and constellations, the cycle of the seasons, sacred songs, formulas for prayers and incantations, rules of divination and magic, and the language of animals.

To this day, you still learn; as a druid, you are a lifelong student of the natural world.

Why isn't everyone?

After witnessing the fury of a storm, the splendor of the setting sun, and the spirit-cleansing power of a grove of aspen trees, only the most stonehearted would not be moved to protect and conserve them, and what's more, rejoice and cherish the slow-growing, natural elements of the world that form the foundation of everything else. Without the web of sun, rain, growth, death, and rebirth in nature, the vaunted civilizations of men, elves, dwarves, and other creatures would crumble like dust.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Ascetic, Farm Hand, Tribal Origin.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Crusader, Explorer, Innocent, Martyr, Orphan, Prophet, Renegade, Sage, Savage, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Conservationist: You espouse a philosophy you like to call the "conservation ethic".

The conservation ethic promotes the measured use, allotment, and protection of natural lands and waters.

You employ your ethic as an aid in your efforts to sustain the natural world: its forests, lakes, seas, and all the strange and wondrous creatures that live within it.

In order to engender a similar ethic in your companions and others that you meet, you offer poetic references to nature when traveling, when first seeing a new vista, or when you otherwise deem appropriate:

"Spend a heartbeat and notice every waving leaf, every tendril of mist in the dark woods, and every humming insect."

"The deer, the wolf, the oak, the fish, and the great birds are our fellows, and they can be wronged, just as you can be wronged."

"An unchecked and untempered appetite will devour green plains and leave behind only a barren wasteland."

"What soul can't find peace and spiritual renewal in the forlorn cry of the whippoorwill or the arguments of the frogs around a pond at night?"

"Whatever happens to the wild places, the pure waters, and the teeming beasts soon happens to us."

An invisible web connects all things."

Friend of Animals: Small and relatively defenseless animals have no greater friend than you.

While you know that nature is not merciful, and that the weak and old are destined to be food for young, strong predators, you also know that mercy can selectively apply to nature.

To this end you know by sight dozens, if not hundreds, of individual small animals such as birds, gophers, and rabbits. You don't bore your humanoid companions with all the names you've given all the little creatures that you recognize, unless asked.

You always carry with you a small bag in which you keep crumbs, old bones, jerky, grain, thistle, or other treats that animals enjoy, and leave them as small offerings when convenient.

"See that one?"

Hawks rarely live as long as Shrieker.

He's a tough old bird."

"Sometimes my friends find me around the campfire at night, and tell me stories of their day."

Hunter: You are displeased when those who should know better exploit nature.

But you retain a burning hatred for those things that are nature's bane by virtue of their mere existence; you hate that which is unnatural, including aberrations (such as beholders and carrion crawlers) and undead (such as zombies and vampires).

From time to time, you lead raids against such creatures, especially when they encroach on natural wonders and lands that you revere.

Even while such creatures are still contained, it is better to excise them before they can cause damage to the natural world, rather than wait for the damage to happen as it inevitably will.

Undead in particular have no connection to nature—they exist apart from it, a mockery of the normal cycles of life.

Nature cries out each moment they are suffered to exist.

"Those not of creation deserve no part in it."

"This aberration's body must be displayed as a warning to the others."

Judge: You are the guardian of unwritten ancient laws inspired by nature.

As someone with such knowledge, you believe you have the power to judge those who have sinned against the natural order.

When you judge, you can sentence the malefactor to be excommunicated from sacred groves, the deep woods, and all other places where nature still reigns supreme.

To the extent you are able to communicate your judgments to other druids, wild animals, treants, and other creatures of the wild, your judgments stand.

Of course, the easiest way to ensure your judgment is to take matters into your own hands against those who have sinned most heinously (such as undead, through their mere existence).

In most cases, other druids are willing to abide by your judgments, if you show through your actions that you are willing to abide by theirs.

However, no civilized court of law, whether a council of village elders or a king's tribunal, recognizes the right of druids and their judgments.

That's all right with you—neither do you recognize their right over sovereign nature.

"Primeval justice is the first arbiter and final authority."

"The laws of man pale before the law of nature."

Philosopher: Nature is red in tooth and claw, regardless of what the sentimental philosophies of so-called civilization might claim.

To truly cherish all life, you embrace the fact that bad things and good are all part of the evolving environment. When events unfold that seem initially bad or ruinous, you philosophically attempt to provide perspective to your companions.

"In the landscape of spring, there is neither better nor worse. The flowering branches grow naturally, some long, some short."
"Nature's tranquility comes like a fresh wind that blows away cares like autumn leaves."

"There are no sermons in stones. It is easier to get a spark out of a stone than a moral."
"We cannot command nature except by obeying her."
"Nature teaches us to either adapt or perish."

Teacher: Unlike many druids, who can come across as sullen and rough (albeit steadfast in their beliefs), you enjoy teaching others just why it is so important that nature have a protector such as yourself.

After all, it is not obvious to the casual observer that life exists only through a subtle connection and deep interaction with all other living things.

Think about it—where does the food you eat come from?

We eat meat, and we eat greens.

If we kill all the meat animals, or the land where the animals graze, what are you going to eat?

If we build over all the farms with sprawling cities, who is going to grow your potatoes and barley?"

"There is power in nature apart from what magic or resources we can extract from it.

Sure, a grove of trees will build a house—but it can also house a spirit."

"Consider the herders and shepherds who conserve their cattle and sheep from season to season, extracting milk, wool, and even meat while ensuring the health of the overall herd.

It is no different with the plains, forests, and lakes.

We need to be tree stewards, grass shepherds, and lake wardens if we want to continue to enjoy the bounty nature provides year after year."

Star Watcher: You spend so much time in the wild that you recognize the stars and constellations of the night sky as easily as you note the smell of flame on the wind or the spoor of a mountain cat about to give birth.

You know the various epicycles and positions of the celestial bodies, but more important, you hold that your knowledge of the positions of stars, comets, moons, and planets is useful in understanding, interpreting, and organizing knowledge about what has come before, what's going on now, and what will one day come to pass.

You like to say to your companions concerning your predilection for the stars: "...by looking up I see downward".

In addition, you make a point to see the stars at least once a week, and more often if possible.

If you are prevented from seeing the open sky, you at least have your personally constructed star chart, a scroll of paper on which you've inked the various stars, planets, and other celestial bodies important to you.

You can while away long hours poring over your charts and drawing complicated designs meant to unleash your intuitive side, so that visions of the future might become clear.

"I saw a comet once that was part of no star chart I had studied. I named it after my secret desire."

"The stars are wise beyond all else.

They looked on as this world formed, and they'll look on after this world has run through its history to the end."

SPONTANEOUS REJUVENATION

By selecting the spontaneous rejuvenation alternative class feature, you can provide the party with plenty of healing without trampling on the cleric's role.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the ability to spontaneously convert prepared spells into summon nature's ally spells.

Benefit: You can transform the stored energy of a spell you have prepared to invigorate you and your allies.

To use spontaneous rejuvenation, you must spend a standard action and sacrifice a prepared spell.

All allies within 30 feet of you (including yourself) gain fast healing for 3 rounds.

The fast healing amount is equal to the spell's level.

For example, if you sacrifice remove disease, a 3rd-level spell, each ally gains fast healing 3 for 3 rounds.

The fast healing granted by this class feature doesn't stack with itself or with fast healing from other sources.

SHAPESHIFT

Taking the shapeshift alternative class feature means you can focus on your actions in combat (rather than worrying about your animal companion) while still unleashing nature's fury upon your foes.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain an animal companion at 1st level, nor do you gain the wild shape class feature at 5th level (or any variation of that class feature at later levels, such as the ability to wild shape into an elemental at 16th level).

Benefit: You can shapeshift at will into powerful animal or nature-oriented forms.

Each time you use this ability, you can choose the exact look that your shapeshifted form takes.

Druids pick animals from the terrain and climate they're most familiar with.

For example, a druid from a jungle might adopt the form of a black panther when in predator form, while one from the taiga might shapeshift into a white wolf.

The two forms look different, but functionally they're identical.

This is a supernatural ability.

It requires only a swift action to shapeshift.

If you are capable of taking more than one form, you can shapeshift directly between two forms without returning to your normal form.

There's no limit to the number of times per day you can change forms, nor to the amount of time you can spend in a shapeshifted form.

You retain your normal Hit Dice, hit points, base attack bonus, base saving throw bonuses, and skill ranks regardless of your form.

You also retain your normal ability scores, though each form grants a bonus to your Strength score.

You keep all extraordinary, supernatural, and spell-like special attacks and qualities of your normal form, except for those requiring a body part your new form does not have.

All your held, carried, or worn gear melds into your new form and becomes nonfunctional until you return to your normal form.

You cannot speak in shapeshifted form, and your limbs lack the precision required to wield a weapon or perform tasks requiring fine manipulation.

You can't cast spells or activate magic items while in shapeshifted form, even if you have the Natural Spell feat or other ability that would allow you to cast spells while wild shaped.

Unless otherwise noted in the descriptions below, you retain your size and space when you adopt a new form.

You always retain your type and subtypes, regardless of the nature of the form assumed.

You don't gain any special attacks or qualities while shapeshifted except as described below.

When you shapeshift into a form other than your own, you gain natural weapons (and reach with those weapons) as described below.

These natural weapons gain an enhancement bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls equal to 1/4 your druid level, and at 4th level and higher they are treated as magic weapons for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction. The damage dice given are for Medium druids; smaller or larger druids should adjust those values according to the table on page 28 of the Dungeon Master's Guide.

If knocked unconscious or slain in shapeshifted form, you revert to your original form.

Predator Form: This form, traditionally that of a wolf, panther, or other predatory mammal, is the first one a shapeshifting druid learns.

While in predator form, you gain a primary bite attack that deals 1d6 points of damage.

You have the reach of a long creature of your size (5 feet for Small or Medium).

You gain a +4 enhancement bonus to Strength, and your natural armor bonus improves by 4.

Your base land speed becomes 50 feet.

At 4th level, you gain Mobility as a bonus feat whenever you are in predator form (even if you don't meet the prerequisites).

Aerial Form: At 5th level, you can shapeshift into a flying creature.

Traditionally resembling an eagle, vulture, or bat, the aerial form enables fast travel and the ability to soar out of harm's way.

While in aerial form, you gain a primary talon attack that deals 1d6 points of damage.

You have the reach of a long creature of your size (5 feet for Small or Medium).

You gain a +2 enhancement bonus to Strength and a +2 enhancement bonus on Reflex saves, and your natural armor bonus improves by 2.

You gain a fly speed of 40 feet (good maneuverability).

At 7th level, you gain Flyby Attack as a bonus feat whenever you are in aerial form.

Ferocious Slayer Form: At 8th level, you can shapeshift into a large and fierce predatory form, such as a tiger, brown bear, or dire wolf.

While in ferocious slayer form, you gain a primary bite attack that deals 1d8 points of damage and two secondary claw attacks that each deal 1d6 points of damage.

Your size increases by one category (to a maximum of Colossal), and you have the reach of a long creature of your size (5 feet for Medium or Large).

You gain a +8 enhancement bonus to Strength and a +4 enhancement bonus on Fortitude saves, and your natural armor bonus improves by 8.

Your base land speed changes to 40 feet.

At 10th level, you gain Improved Critical (bite) and Improved Critical (claw) as bonus feats whenever you are in ferocious slayer form.

Forest Avenger Form: At 12th level, you can take the form of a massive plantlike creature, similar to a shambling mound or a treant.

(Druids not native to forest terrains typically rename this form to fit their environment).

While in forest avenger form, you gain a pair of primary slam attacks that deal 1d8 points of damage each.

Your size increases by one category (to a maximum of Colossal) and you have the reach of a tall creature of your size (5 feet for Medium, 10 feet for Large).

You gain a +12 enhancement bonus to Strength and a +4 enhancement bonus on Fortitude and Will saves, and your natural armor bonus improves by 12.

Your base land speed becomes 20 feet.

You gain damage reduction 5/slashing while in forest avenger form.

At 14th level, you gain Improved Overrun as a bonus feat while in forest avenger form (even if you don't meet the normal prerequisites).

Elemental Fury Form: At 16th level, you can shapeshift into a giant form of air, earth, fire, or water (your choice each time you shapeshift).

While in elemental fury form, you gain a pair of primary slam attacks that deal 2d6 points of damage each.

Your size increases by two categories (to a maximum of Colossal), and you have the reach of a tall creature of your size (10 feet for Large, 15 feet for Huge).

You gain a +16 enhancement bonus to Strength and a +4 enhancement bonus on Fortitude, Reflex, and Will saves, and your natural armor bonus improves by 16.

You do not gain any new modes of movement in elemental fury form, nor does your base land speed change.

You gain immunity to extra damage from critical hits while in elemental form.

You also gain immunity to an energy type related to the element chosen (air = electricity, earth = acid, fire = fire, water = cold).

You don't need to breathe while in elemental fury form.

At 18th level, you gain Great Cleave as a bonus feat while in elemental fury form (even if you don't meet the normal prerequisites).

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Beastmaster

Halfling Druid

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 14, Int 8, Wis 15, Cha 13.

Skills: Handle Animal, Ride, Survival.

Languages: Common, Druidic, Halfling.

Feat: Animal Affinity.

Weapons: Longspear (1d6/x3), sling with 20 bullets (1d3, 50 ft.).

Armor: Hide (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 9 gp, 8 sp.

Class Feature: Riding dog animal companion.

Spells Prepared: 1st—cure light wounds, Speak with animals; 0—cure minor wounds (2), detect magic.

Package 2: The Feral Beast

Elf Druid

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 14, Con 12, Int 8, Wis 15, Cha 10.

Skills: Listen, Spot, Survival.

Languages: Common, Druidic, Elven.

Feat: Alertness.

Weapon: Spear (1d8/x3), sling with 20 bullets (1d4, 50 ft.).

Armor: Hide (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 12 gp, 8 sp.

Class Feature: Hawk animal companion.

Spells Prepared: 1st—cure light wounds, longstrider; 0—cure minor wounds, know direction, light.

Package 3: The Warden

Human Druid

Ability Scores: Str 10, Dex 12, Con 14, Int 8, Wis 15, Cha 13.

Skills: Concentration, Knowledge (nature), Spot, Survival.

Languages: Common, Druidic.

Feats: Augment Summoning, Spell Focus (conjuration).

Weapons: Scimitar (1d6/18–20), sling with 20 bullets (1d4, 50 ft.).

Armor: Leather (+2 AC), light wooden shield (+1 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 1 gp, 8 sp.

Class Feature: Wolf animal companion.

Spells Prepared: 1st—cure light wounds, entangle; 0—cure minor wounds, detect magic, flare.

ANIMAL COMPANIONS

The list below is a compilation of all terrestrial animals eligible to be chosen as animal companions, organized by minimum druid level required. Apply the parenthetical adjustment to the druid's level for purposes of determining the companion's characteristics and special abilities.

If the campaign takes place wholly or partly in an aquatic environment, consult Stormwrack for a list of additional appropriate animal companions.

1st Level

Badger
Brixashulty^{†RW}
Camel
Caribou^F
Chordevoc^{†RW}
Climbdog^{AE}
Dire rat
Dog
Dog, riding
Eagle
Hawk
Horse, light
Horse, heavy
Jackal^S
Owl
Pony
Serval^F
Snake, Small viper
Snake, Medium viper
Swindlespitter^{M3}
Vulture^S
Wolf
†Halfling druids only

4th Level (-3)

Ape
Axebeak^{AE}
Badger, dire
Bat, dire
Bear, black
Bison
Boar
Brixashulty^{†RW}
Cheetah
Chordevoc^{†RW}
Fleshrazer^S
Hawk, dire^{††M2, RW5}
Jackal, dire^S
Leopard
Lizard, monitor
Snake, constrictor
Snake, Large viper
Toad, dire^{M2}
Weasel, dire
Wolverine
†Nonhalfling druids only
††Raptoran druids only

7th Level (-6)

Ape, dire
Ankylosaurus, cave^{MH}
Bear, brown
Boar, dire
Crocodile, giant
Deinonychus
Eagle, dire^{RS}
Hawk, dire^{††M2, RW5}
Lion
Megaloceros^F
Protoceratops^S
Rhinoceros
Snake, Huge viper
Terror bird^{FF}
Tiger
Wolf, dire
Wolverine, dire
††Nonraptoran druids only
10th Level (-9)
Allosaurus^{M2, AS}
Bear, polar
Bloodstriker^{M3}
Glyptodon^F

Hippopotamus^S
Horse, dire^{M2}
Lion, dire
Megaraptor
Puma, dire^S
Snake, dire^{M2}
Snake, giant constrictor
Tiger, saber-toothed^F
Tortoise, dire^S
Triceratops, cave^{MH}
Tyrannosaurus, cave^{MH}
Vulture, dire^S

13th Level (-12)

Ankylosaurus^{M2, AS} Bear, dire
Diprotodon^S
Elephant
Elk, dire^{M2}
Fhorge^{FF}
Lizard, giant banded^S

16th Level (-15)

Bear, dire polar^F
Elephant, dire^{M2}
Hippopotamus, dire^S

Indricothere^{FF}
Mammoth, woolly^{†*}
Mastodon^{M3}
Mastodon, grizzly^{M2}
Megatherium^{FF}
Quetzalcoatlus^{M2, AS}
Rhinoceros, dire^{FF}
Tiger, dire
Triceratops
Tyrannosaurus

*Listed in previous source as available at a different level.

A: See D&D v.3.5 Accessory Update for new statistics
AE: Arms & Equipment Guide

F: Frostburn

FF: Fiend Folio

M2: Monster Manual II

M3: Monster Manual III

MH: Miniatures Handbook

RS: Races of Stone

RW: Races of the Wild

S: Sandstorm

FAVORED SOUL

You are a free agent of your deity, unfettered by the strictures of a clerical hierarchy.

You wander from place to place, wielding your power to advance the causes you deem worthy in the eyes of your god, or else you choose a great crusade against that which offends your deity, requiring a lifelong commitment and unswerving purpose.

While the cleric comes to his power through study and discipline, you are the recipient of a great gift—or, as some perceive it, a terrible curse.

How you wield the divine power burning in your heart is up to you.

This class appears in the Complete Divine supplement.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Ascetic, Drifter, Noble Scion.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Companion, Crusader, Innocent, Martyr, Prophet, Seeker, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Mystic: You aspire to the divine in every aspect of your life. The difficulties and dangers around you are only temporary; you keep your eyes firmly fixed on matters of the spirit, which are all that truly matter.

You have little interest in wealth, fame, or creature comforts, since these things are transitory too.

Instead, you seek enlightenment, understanding, and spiritual growth.

Some might see you as oblivious or irrational, but those are unfair characterizations.

You simply have the ability to look past fear, pain, and suffering to the eternal rewards that will surely follow. You possess moral and physical courage in abundance, because you do not fear death or injury. You don't go out of your way to get hurt or killed, of course, but there is no point in fearing pain or death when you know that your spirit will survive. While your comrades might not always appreciate your detachment from matters of the physical world, you are compassionate (or careful, at least, if you are evil) and fearless. Nothing discourages you. Seek out adventures for the right reasons—aiding others, gaining knowledge, advancing the cause of your deity, or (if you are not good) hardening your soul and accruing power for the day when you leave your fleshly existence behind. Monetary gain for its own sake interests you little, but the growth you experience in taking on any challenging experience—such as recovering an ancient treasure—means that you do not necessarily spurn your companions' quests for material gain. When circumstances permit, contemplate decisions carefully. You are not given to hasty action or impetuosity. Even in combat, you remain calm and deliberate. Speak slowly and thoughtfully; avoid undue excitement. When you encourage your friends, remind them that very little in the world around them has the power to do them true and lasting injury. "Courage, friends; all this has happened before, and will happen again." "Pain is illusory! It exists only in the mind." "True strength lies within." "Death is a doorway, nothing more. Fear it not." Prophet: The hand of a deity is upon you, and you are not always in control of your words or actions. From time to time you give yourself over completely to the will of your deity, and say or do things that you had no intention of saying or doing. Driven by impulses you cannot control or understand, you might be capable of astonishing acts of courage or awful treachery—it all depends on the whim of your deity. When you play a prophetic character, you do not surrender control of your character to the Dungeon Master. However, you should ask your DM to look for the occasional opportunity to communicate unusual information through your character's words or actions. When confronting an evil lord, your comrades might be inclined to guard their words and avoid a fight in the middle of his castle—but the prophet might suddenly blaze forth with a ringing condemnation of the lord's secret wickedness, possibly enumerating crimes you and the other players had no direct knowledge of beforehand. Even if your Dungeon Master does not provide you with ex cathedra material for the game session, you should listen to your intuition. Don't watch your words and don't rethink impetuous actions. Take these impulses as signs that your character is caught in the grip of her deity, and let the chips fall where they may.

Work with your Dungeon Master to create a few interesting prophecies for the campaign. The best prophecies are ones that can come true in unexpected ways.

"The third moon draws nigh; beware!"

"One of you will fall tonight."

"We shall triumph, and yet we shall fail."

"I cannot see all that follows from the deeds of this day."

Scourge of Unbelievers: You are your deity's chosen instrument of vengeance, punishment, and righteous wrath.

It falls to you to defend the innocent and harry the iniquitous.

You are driven, never able to rest as long as your deity's enemies remain at large.

Since you have an inclusive view of who might be considered an enemy of your deity, that means you rarely rest at all.

Examine your deity's alignment, description, and dogma or credo and create a list of the creatures or people you need to smite first.

Anybody not on that list is irrelevant...unless, of course, they can be recruited as allies in your ongoing crusade.

When your adventures pit you against foes that your deity has no special distaste for, you chafe for the opportunity to finish up and return to what's truly important: bringing the wrath of your deity down upon his or her enemies.

You are frequently inspired to scream or snarl imprecations, letting your foes know exactly who you are and exactly why you are punishing them.

"Pelor's light will sear you, spawn of darkness!"

"Pelor commands your destruction, infidel!"

"Naught shall avail you against the might of Pelor, demon!"

I will hurl you screaming back into the Abyss!"

DEITY'S FAVOR

The favored soul enjoys the flexibility of spontaneous spellcasting, but her limited spell selection can hinder her ability to provide the healing expected from a divine caster. Choosing the deity's favor class feature means you'll be a bit less potent in combat, but lets you use the spells you're already casting to help you and your allies last longer in a fight.

Favored souls who choose this option should expect a lot of requests for support spells such as bless, bull's strength, and prayer, but remember that your cure spells gain this benefit as well.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the deity's weapon focus or deity's weapon specialization class features (you still gain proficiency with your deity's favored weapon).

Benefit: Beginning at 3rd level, whenever you cast a favored soul spell, you can choose any one ally affected by that spell (including yourself) to gain temporary hit points equal to three times the spell's level.

These temporary hit points last for up to 1 minute per level of the spell.

If the spell would also grant temporary hit points, use only the larger value and its duration.

If you use this ability on a creature that is still under the effect of a previous use, the new temporary hit points overlap (do not stack with) the temporary hit points the creature had remaining.

Beginning at 12th level, you can choose to grant these temporary hit points to any number of allies affected by the spell.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Defender

Dwarf Favored Soul of Moradin

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 10, Con 14, Int 8, Wis 15, Cha 12.

Skills: Concentration.

Feat: Shield Specialization* (heavy).

Weapon: Warhammer (1d8/×3), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 31 gp.

Package 2: The Healer

Halfling Favored Soul of Yondalla

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 12, Con 12, Int 8, Wis 15, Cha 13.

Skills: Heal.

Feat: Spontaneous Healer (Complete Divine).

Weapons: Short sword (1d4/19–20), five javelins (1d4, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 33 gp.

Package 3: The Vanguard

Human Favored Soul of Kord

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 10, Con 12, Int 8, Wis 15, Cha 13.

Skills: Concentration, Diplomacy.

Feats: Combat Casting, Combat Focus*.

Weapons: Greatsword (1d12/19–20), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit.

FIGHTER

You are an adventuring opportunist, willing to go wherever the next fight leads you.

You'll take up quests, you'll accept commissions, and you'll even consider taking on leadership roles, as long as you can practice your warrior's craft.

You know fighting—none know it better.

Other combatants with exotic martial styles or those who mix spells with swords obscure what is most important—who's the best?

Who can put their sword in an enemy's guts first?

You, that's who.

You are a straight-up, no-nonsense person, and you know the value of your hard-won, long practiced skills.

While you take great risks in hopes of receiving an equally big payout, for you the thrill of combat is at least as compelling as the loot at adventure's end.

The alternative class features presented here provide alternatives to the traditional full attack routine.

The fighter who takes one or more of these options seeks the flexibility to alter his tactics based on the situation he faces.

Against a foe that has a high AC or damage reduction, trading less useful second, third, or fourth attacks for tangible benefits represents a significant boon to the fighter.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Gladiator, Guttersnipe, Noble Scion, Soldier.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Challenger, Companion, Leader, Martyr, Mercenary, Orphan, Rebel, Renegade, Royalty, Seeker, Simple Soul, Strategist, Theorist.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Comrade in Arms: In a fight, your best weapons are your friends.

Your skill in arms can get you only so far, but without a friend to screen attacks while you drink down a potion of curing and an ally with whom you can flank a monster, your ability to win in the face of any odds would be greatly diminished.

Though you're not ordinarily a sentimental person, the bonds of warfare link you with your companions, and you consider them brothers and sisters to a significant degree. You regularly put yourself in harm's way for their sake, and you like to believe they'd do the same for you.

"We can take them if we work as a team!"

"I'll charge straight in—you take the left flank, and you the right. And how about some archery to distract them?"

Formally Trained: Unlike many fighters, you have a special pedigree—your skill in the craft comes from formal training in an academy.

Your academy training imparted to you all the right-of-way rules in regard to attacks and defenses, should you ever be called upon to fight in a noble tournament, as opposed to the desperate battles below the ground in which you usually find yourself embroiled.

You know all the proper terms for swordsmanship, and know that all blades fall into four major categories: foils, epees, sabers, and longswords (which are either one- or two-handed affairs).

Your knowledge of all the specializations and names of the thousands of blade types is nearly encyclopedic, especially with regard to the more obscure types of blades utilized by swordsmen of distant countries.

While this knowledge has little practical application, you do enjoy showing it off to your companions.

"The difference between the bokuto, a wooden training sword, and the suburito is actually very small—the suburito is slightly heavier."

"The dao is like a saber—but the dao lacks a hand guard, which somewhat limits your options in a fight."

"If it's a sword, it has a tip, a blade, a fuller, and a hilt made up of the guard, grip, and pommel."

"A fuller?"

A fuller is a rounded groove on the flat side of a blade.

Although sometimes called 'blood grooves', their purpose is really to lighten the blade."

"Kukri is actually pronounced khu-khoo-ree."

Practice Makes Perfect: For you, daily exercise is more than something to get your blood running—you see it as a requirement of your craft.

With first light, you're up doing pushups, stomach crunches, running in place, and then the all-important swordplay, whether with a comrade or practicing forms on your own.

Afterward, you spend time oiling your equipment against rust and sun, and of course give your blade a little time with the whetstone.

You certainly won't go more than a week without your practice, and you prefer a daily regimen.

Self-Taught: Your academy was the street, and your craft is unpolished but well tested.

You don't know and don't care for all the "jargon" a few who claim to be warriors spout.

You know swords, you know bows—you know how to use them, who cares what they're called?

The information doesn't help you in a fight, and it might get you killed if you worry too much about the cutting edge versus the thrusting tip and the rest of that sort of nonsense.

"I know swords—that's all I need."

"I knew a fellow who liked to talk fancy, just like you.

He's dead now."

ELUSIVE ATTACK

You know that the key to winning any fight is not getting hit, so you trade offensive power for a steadier defense.

Level: 6th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the fighter bonus feat at 6th level.

Benefit: At 6th level, you master a technique of combining offense and defense.

As a full-round action, make one attack at your highest base attack bonus.

Until the start of your next turn, you gain a +2 dodge bonus to AC.

This bonus improves to +4 at 11th level and to +6 at 16th level.

COUNTERATTACK

Every offensive move creates an opening for a counterattack, and you know how to exploit this facet of combat to its fullest.

Level: 12th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the fighter bonus feat at 12th level.

Benefit: At 12th level, you learn to hold back some of your offensive prowess to enable a potent counterattack.

As a full-round action, make one melee attack at your highest base attack bonus.

At any time before the start of your next turn, you can use an immediate action to make a melee attack (using your highest base attack bonus) against an enemy that attacks you in melee.

OVERPOWERING ATTACK

You never waste time wounding your opponent, instead concentrating on delivering one solid strike.

Level: 16th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the fighter bonus feat at 16th level.

Benefit: At 16th level, you can focus your attention in combat to deliver a single deadly attack.

As a full-round action, make one attack at your highest base attack bonus.

That attack deals double damage, as do any other attacks you make before the start of your next turn.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Archer

Elf Fighter

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 15, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 12, Cha 8.

Skills: Jump, Spot (cc).

Feats: Point Blank Shot, Precise Shot.

Weapons: Spear (1d8/×3), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.), longbow with 40 arrows (1d8/×3, 100 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 4 gp.

Package 2: The Defender

Dwarf Fighter

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 13, Con 16, Int 10, Wis 12, Cha 6.

Skills: Craft (weaponsmithing), Intimidate.

Feats: Iron Will, Weapon Focus (dwarven waraxe).

Weapon: Dwarven waraxe (1d10/×3), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy steel shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 4 gp.

Package 3: The Destroyer

Human Fighter

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 10, Wis 12, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Intimidate, Jump.

Feats: Cleave, Power Attack, Weapon Focus (greatsword).

Weapons: Greatsword (2d6/19–20), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 4 gp.

HEXBLADE

Nothing fazes you.

Like the warlock, you are a son of darkness, gifted with powers that others find unnerving (at best) or outright evil (the usual case).

Your adventures carry you far and wide, because you rarely find it easy to stay in the same place for long.

Sooner or later the whispers and guarded glances begin again, and it is time to move on.

No one understands your powers, and most people you meet wonder exactly how you're going to stab them in the back when you finally show your true colors.

Hexblades have a bad reputation in many quarters, but whether you're the exception or the rule is up to you.

This class appears in the Complete Warrior supplement.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Drifter, Gutter snipe, Soldier.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Daredevil, Mercenary, Orphan, Rebel, Renegade, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Darkhunter: Sometimes evil is the best weapon to wield against evil.

You are a grim and dark avenger, using your baleful abilities to hunt down and slay villains and monsters more evil than yourself.

Even if your methods and motivations are not particularly pure, who can question your results?

As a sworn enemy of evil, you do not hesitate before taking on a quest to destroy or drive off even the most horrible monster.

You commit to the hunt with little expectation of reward. But once you've chosen an enemy to defeat, you'll stop at nothing to come out on top.

Bargain away your orc captives to the mind flayers to gain passage through their territory to the place where your true adversary lairs?

No problem.

Sanitize an outbreak of lycanthropy by killing all the bitten villagers?

It's hard, but necessary.

You rarely indulge in cruelty or excess, but you can be a remorseless foe indeed.

You are absolutely convinced that you are the only person who really knows what's going on in most situations.

Cut off people who talk too much, before they waste more of your time.

Don't bother to tell people what you are going to do, and never explain your actions afterward.

Your companions don't have the stomach for the work at hand, so it would be better if they didn't get in your way or question your methods.

You can always find new allies.

Darkhunters are silent, nameless figures who do not deign to speak to their foes—or their allies, for that matter.

When they do, they tend to be terse, grim, and blunt.

"Enough talk.

Now it's time to die."

"Go home, bar your door, and ignore anything you hear outside from sundown to sunup.

You may live to see the dawn."

"Do not follow me.

I will kill anyone who does."

"I've seen worse."

Sellsword: You are a sword for hire—nothing more, nothing less.

You judge the worthiness of a cause by the amount of money it can put in your pocket.

While you always look out for number one, you do recognize the value of loyalty to your comrades—you don't have many friends in this world, so it's smart to stay on the good side of the few you have.

Since your powers are poorly understood, you go to some lengths to hide them from people you don't know.

Let them think you're simply a fighter, or perhaps a fighter-sorcerer.

Witch-hunts, sinister rumors, and ugly accusations are all bad for business.

Besides, it's useful to keep a few tricks up your sleeve; you never know when a surprise hex might be the only way to save your skin.

You rarely get worked up over the opposition, because to you, it's all business.

Ogres rampaging through the province?

You can fix that.

Demons murdering the priests of Pelor?

You'll adjust your rates and take your best shot at stopping them.

You need a record for reliability and success if you're going to make any real money.

Others might view you as cold or heartless, but you know that it's wisest to avoid emotional entanglements.

You can't stand it when people start acting against their self-interest in the name of a nebulous "cause", and you detest deal-breakers.

When dealing with potential employers, look them right in the eye and state your terms.

"What's in it for me?"

"I'm not getting paid to do that."

"The dragon wasn't in the contract.

If you want the dragon taken care of, you're going to have to up your offer."

"Nothing personal.

It's just business."

"Sounds like you have a real problem.

It's going to cost you."

Tormented Champion: Dark powers manipulate you.

People you love get hurt, causes you support founder and collapse, and places you visit fall into ruin.

You have been marked for a tortured and restless existence, and your fate is to be a harbinger of doom and woe.

You swing from morose depression to desperate acts of blazing anger.

Most of the time, you struggle with despondency and gloom.

Make dark pronouncements and dire predictions about things you observe, and point out flaws in your allies' plans.

Sometimes you are moved to rail against your fate and lash out with blind, unreasoning anger at whatever obstacle or foe frustrates you.

You might leap headlong into a throng of enemies, heedless of your safety.

Or you might shake your fist at the gods and curse them bitterly.

"The vampire's been watching us the whole time.

We're doing exactly what he wants."

"Some of us aren't getting out of this alive."

"You'll get halfway across, the rope will break, and you'll fall into the river there and be swept away into some black, airless cavern where you'll die trying to claw your way through cold, hard stone."

"Is that all you've got?"

DARK COMPANION

By mixing arcane spells with martial talents, the hexblade blurs the traditional line between fighter and sorcerer.

Replacing the familiar—a link to traditional forms of arcane magic—with a unique fighting companion helps establish the hexblade's difference from the sorcerer.

In combat, a dark companion functions like a floating hex that you can place upon your foes.

By weakening the defenses of enemies, your dark companion makes your spells and attacks (and those of your allies) more powerful.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain a familiar.

Benefit: At 4th level, you can create an illusory companion resembling a panther, spun from the darkness of the night.

Doing so takes 24 hours and uses up magic materials that cost 100 gp.

Once created, your dark companion stands with you in battle, hindering your enemies' defenses.

Any enemy adjacent to your dark companion takes a –2 penalty on its saves and to its AC.

Your companion's speed is equal to yours (including all modes of movement you possess) and it acts during your turn each round.

It follows your mental commands perfectly—in effect, it is merely an extension of your will.

Your dark companion has no real substance, and thus can't attack or otherwise affect creatures or objects.

It occupies a 5-foot space.

Even though any creature can enter a dark companion's 5-foot space without restriction, it must occupy its own space in order to have any effect on enemies.

It is immune to any damage or other effects that might harm creatures, though it can be dispelled or suppressed just like a spell effect.

Your dark companion is treated as a spell whose level is equal to 1/4 your hexblade level.

If it is dispelled, it automatically reforms at your side 24 hours later.

A dark companion can't create flanking situations, nor does it provoke attacks of opportunity from movement, because enemies automatically recognize it as an illusion. If it is more than 120 feet from you at the start of your turn, or if you ever lose line of effect to it, it instantly reappears adjacent to you.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Defender

Gnome Hexblade

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 14.

Skills: Bluff, Spellcraft.

Feat: Armor Proficiency (medium).

Weapons: Greatsword (1d8/19–20), short bow with 20 arrows (1d4/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 4 gp.

Package 2: The Destroyer

Human Hexblade

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 13, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 14.

Skills: Concentration, Intimidate, Spellcraft.

Feat: Power Attack, Cleave.

Weapons: Greataxe (1d12/×3), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 10 gp.

Package 3: The Skirmisher

Elf Hexblade

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 15, Con 10, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 14.

Skills: Diplomacy, Knowledge (arcana).

Feat: Dodge.

Weapons: Glaive (1d10/×3), warhammer (1d8/×3), longbow with 20 arrows (1d8/×3, 100 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 14 gp.

MARSHAL

War is your true calling.

You follow the shrill ring of steel on steel and the harsh cries of the carrion birds, for it is on the battlefield that you demonstrate your true worth.

When the specter of war is far away, you take service with a strong lord, state, or cause, training other warriors and preparing your warband for the day when battle finally comes to the land in which you reside.

Or, if that does not suit you, you search out combat wherever it awaits—perhaps you skirmish against orc raiders threatening the kingdom's frontier, fight for a rebellious duke who is trying to throw off the king's rule in his lands, or travel abroad to far and exotic lands in search of a battle worthy of your talents.

When you take up the haphazard career of an adventurer, you're only passing the time until something big comes along.

This class appears in the Miniatures Handbook supplement. Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Mariner, Noble Scion, Soldier.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Challenger, Crusader, Leader, Mercenary, Royalty, Strategist, Theorist.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or both of the following character themes could apply to you.

Black Knight: You are a hero of the first rank, a bold and inspiring leader of men—but you do not want to be recognized.

Knights entering the lists sometimes cover their heraldic devices with sable cloths to keep their identities a secret; you likewise do not display the emblems you have won, and adopt a simple nom de guerre so that no one will know who you are.

Decide why you desire anonymity.

You could be a noble of high birth, expected to spend your days engaged in statecraft instead of roaming the land as a nameless adventurer.

You adopt your guise so that you will be free to aid people with the point of your sword instead of wasting time with the intrigues of the court.

You might have a fearsome enemy that you cannot defeat, and so you remain hidden so that the people around you will not become the victims of your adversary.

Or perhaps you are actually infamous, known for a terrible defeat on a distant battlefield.

You carry the guilt of hundreds of lost lives, even though you might not have ever had any chance to triumph.

If your DM agrees, you are a member of the nobility.

Design your house's heraldic insignia and motto, so that you can describe what you reveal when you finally choose to unmask your shield.

Since you are trying to remain mostly anonymous, you don't view it as your role to be the bold and inspiring leader of your party.

Instead, you are satisfied to be a stalwart comrade and loyal follower, using your abilities to help your friends defeat their foes.

You do your best to avoid the spotlight and give credit to your allies for your successes.

"I may have struck the last blow, but the troll was dead on its feet by then.

Miale's fireball made all the difference."

"Valor is its own reward."

"I was there, certainly, and I suppose I played a small part.

But my companions deserve the credit for defeating the dragon."

"Give my share to the temple of St. Cuthbert."

"Who I am is not important.

What is important is that the werewolf has been slain.

Your town should be safe now."

Leader of the Company: A marshal combines personal charisma, leadership, and tactical acumen like no other character.

You are a born leader, the equal of a paladin.

Everyone expects flowery speech from the bard or persuasive words from the sorcerer, but the marshal and the paladin are heroes that warriors want to follow.

You possess sincerity, purpose, and valor, and your potent auras allow you to manifest these virtues for your allies.

Not only are you a skilled diplomat, but you are the absolute best choice for the job of battle commander.

Since you can easily change the benefit your aura provides, it behooves your allies to follow your lead.

They'll do better in the fight if they take actions that make use of your aura.

For example, if you choose the minor auras over the top or master of opportunity, you provide a real incentive for your friends to charge or move past enemies to reach the foe you want them to fight.

When you use your auras this way, say something inspirational!

You should strongly consider the Leadership feat if you are roleplaying a marshal of this type.

If the other players at the table don't listen to you, at least your cohort or followers will.

"Ignore the lizardfolk!

The druid is our true foe!"

"Surround the gray render and strike from the flank!

That is the quickest path to victory!"

"Stand your ground here, and let the orcs come to us!

We'll cut them down as they climb the rampart!"

"Follow me!

Now is the time to strike!"

ADRENALINE BOOST

As a marshal, you make everyone on your team more effective at what they do.

While the traditional marshal accomplishes some of that by improving his allies' mobility, by choosing adrenaline boost you instead to take on some of the cleric's ability to bolster the health of your allies.

It's particularly effective in rallying injured comrades, making it a good ability to save until things start looking grim.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the grant move action class feature.

Benefit: Starting at 4th level, you can exhort your allies to discover a reservoir of energy they didn't think they had.

Once per day, as a standard action, you can grant temporary hit points equal to your marshal level to any or all of your allies within 30 feet (but not to yourself).

If the ally's current hit point total is no more than half his full normal hit points, the number of temporary hit points granted to that character is doubled (to twice your marshal level).

This ability only affects allies with an Intelligence score of 3 or higher who can hear you and understand your language.

The temporary hit points last for up to 1 minute per marshal level.

At 8th level, you can use this ability twice per day.

You can use it three times per day at 12th level, four times per day at 16th level, and five times per day at 20th level.

If you use this ability on a creature that is still under the effect of a previous use, the new temporary hit points overlap (do not stack with) the temporary hit points the creature had remaining.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Defender

Dwarf Marshal

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 8, Wis 10, Cha 13.

Skills: Intimidate, Listen, Spot.

Feat: Shield Specialization (heavy).

Weapons: Dwarfven waraxe (1d10/x3), warhammer (1d8/x3), 5 javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 6 gp.

Aura: Force of Will.

Package 2: The Second-Rank Warrior

Elf Marshal

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 15, Con 10, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 15.

Skills: Diplomacy, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot.

Feat: Combat Reflexes.

Weapons: Glaive (1d10/x3), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d8/x3, 100 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 26 gp.

Aura: Master of Tactics.

Package 3: The Vanguard

Human Marshal

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 13, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 15.

Skills: Diplomacy, Intimidate, Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Sense Motive, Spot.

Feats: Battlefield Inspiration (Miniatures Handbook), Improved Initiative.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8/19–20), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy steel shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 20 gp.

Aura: Motivate Dexterity.

MONK

You were introduced to martial techniques in a distant, hard-to-reach monastery.

You first learned the eighteen basic empty-hand techniques.

You learned the "heart-mind-fist" kata, you learned how to swing an eyebrow-height staff, and you finally learned how to deliver the potent cannon punch.

After that, you were ready to begin actual training in the truly deadly martial arts.

Years later you emerged, a champion of your martial style, but still a student seeking continual improvement and perfection through martial discipline.

One day you hope to join the great masters of your art, focusing your ki so precisely that you transcend the mortal realm altogether and partake of immortality.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Ascetic, Gladiator.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Challenger, Companion, Crusader, Innocent, Martyr, Orphan, Prophet, Seeker, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Enlightened One: You follow a meditative way of life considered by some a religion, by others a profound philosophy, and by the uninformed simply a routine.

You regard your constant search for enlightenment as a way of life, work, and an art form.

One of the precepts of your philosophy is "sitting meditation" in which you sit quietly once a day, directing your awareness toward your core and breathing deeply for at least 5 minutes.

As an "enlightened one", you know many parables, called koans, that teach wisdom if considered long enough.

"An enlightened one lived a simple life in a hut at the foot of a mountain.

One evening a thief visited the hut only to discover there was nothing to steal.

The enlightened one caught him and told the rogue, 'You've traveled far to find me, so you should not leave empty-handed.

Here, have my robe as a gift'.

Confused, the thief nevertheless took the robe.

Nude, his eyes on the full moon, the enlightened one said, 'I wish I could have given him this beautiful moon'."

"An enlightened one visited a terminally ill man and asked, 'Shall I lead you on?'

The sick man replied, 'I came here alone and I go alone.

What help could you be?'

The enlightened one answered, 'If you think you really come and go, that is your delusion.

Let me show you the path on which there is no coming and no going'.

These words revealed the true path so clearly that the sick man smiled and passed on."

History Keeper: Every monastery has its own story of origin, describing where it gained its particular style and what ancient master popularized the particular specialized form of martial arts taught there.

Every monastery puts in a claim as the oldest, or alleges to teach the most "pure" form of the martial arts.

You don't fret about it because you know your monastery is actually the oldest and the most authentic.

You like to tell the story of how your monastery learned the secrets of its current style.

"The ancient and legendary master Chandharma founded our temple five hundred years ago, and the monks took him in.

In thanks, Chandharma trained the monks in the original, true forms and katas.

I know the very style that ancient Chandharma once taught my forebears."

"Northern" Stylist: Your monastery taught a particular style of martial arts referred to as the northern style.

This style features long steps, extended postures and wide stances, jumping, kicking, and dramatic acrobatic flourishes.

The northern style is known for a great variety of attack forms.

When you use any one of these forms, you call out the attack name in a strong, confident voice, which steadies you and frightens your enemies with your poise.

"Long Fist!" You use this punch attack to spear past your foe's guard when least expected.

"Tumbling Fist!" A tumbling fist is the strike you make after you've tumbled into the perfect position to strike at your foe.

"Quivering Palm!" This famous strike needs no explanation. Even if you're not powerful enough to use the discipline, the name alone inspires fear in your enemies.

"Red Fist!" Whenever you draw first blood, you like to scream this out, just to unnerve your foe.

"Flood Fist!" When you use a flurry of blows, you are using the famous flood fist, where you seek to overwhelm your foe's defenses under a flood of staggering blows.

"Flower Fist!" This disingenuous, fast and deceptive blow is made whenever you foe is off guard, whether he is surprised, flanked, or otherwise not effectively defending himself.

"Southeastern" Stylist: Your monastery taught a particular style of martial art referred to as the southeastern style.

This style features fists, elbows, shins, feet, and knees to strike at opponents, as well as briefly held grapples that set an opponent up for a particularly egregious elbow or knee attack.

Unlike other martial styles, the southeastern style is specifically designed to incorporate fitness and toughness, which allows a southeastern style fighter the endurance to accept pain and ignore fatigue in a fight.

When you use a southeastern style attack form, you call out the attack name in a strong, confident voice, which steadies you and frightens your enemies with your poise.

"Kao Dode!" As part of an attack, you jump and bring your knee up into your opponent's stomach, side, or if low enough, your opponent's head.

"Kao Loi!" You spring up off one leg and switch in midair to strike with the knee of the other leg.

This confusing strike is dramatic when successful.

"Kao Tone!" The simplest knee strike, you simply bring one knee up directly into your foe's stomach, side, or head (if low enough).

Sometimes this is aided if you grab your foe by the head and jerk him forward at the same time.

"Southern" Stylist: Your monastery taught a particular style of martial art referred to as the southern style.

This style features short steps and close fighting, with arms close to the chest, elbows held low and ready to offer protection against blows to the stomach or sides.

Most important, the southern style is distinguished by five animals.

When you use any one of these styles, you call out the animal you are emulating in a strong, confident voice, which steadies you and frightens your enemies with your poise.

"Tiger!" You emulate the tiger to express qualities of fearlessness and aggression.

The tiger attacks in a straight line.

When you charge, you are emulating the tiger, the most aggressive of the five "southern" animals.

"Crane!" You emulate the crane to avoid your enemies' attacks, no matter how they come at you.

When fighting defensively, you are emulating the crane.

"Leopard!" You emulate the leopard to maximize your agility. After all, pound for pound the leopard is one of the strongest animals, and also the fastest.

When you tumble into position to attack your opponents, you are emulating the leopard.

"Snake!" You adopt the fluidity of snakes to better close with your opponents and hurt them from positions they are unready to defend against.

When you grapple an opponent, you imitate the sinuous, fluid motion of the snake.

"Dragon!" You emulate the dragon for a broad array of needs. When you attack under the guise of the dragon, your attacks are strong and hard.

When you make a stunning attack, you are emulating the dragon.

A signature attack is the three-finger claw ("Dragon Claw!")—the index, thumb and middle fingers make hard pinching attacks to your foe's muscles and tendons.

When striking with the dragon claw, you have incredible stunning power because the blow originates in your stomach and hips, then flows up as you rotate forward into the blow, which culminates in the stunning claw.

Staffmaster: While you are adept at closed and open hand styles of martial arts, you are particularly skilled with the use of a long quarterstaff.

Instead of the standard length quarterstaff, you prefer a 7- to 8-foot-long, flexible staff that you refer to as your "flowing water staff" or sometimes your "dragon pole".

Instead of attacking with either end, you usually grasp one end of the staff and use it to make devastating thrust attacks, diversionary "slap" attacks, and to deflect the blows of your foes, letting them slide off your staff like water.

DECISIVE STRIKE

Flurry of blows can be exciting to use—just look at all the attack rolls you can make—but in practice it can lead to a flurry of misses.

The decisive strike alternative class feature turns your typical combat maneuver from a whirl of action into a methodical and devastating attack.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain flurry of blows (or any later improvements to that class feature).

Benefit: As a full-round action, make one attack with an unarmed strike or a special monk weapon, using your highest base attack bonus but taking a –2 penalty on this attack roll.

If the attack hits, it deals double damage (as does any other attack you make before the start of your next turn).

If you use this strike to deliver a stunning attack, increase the save DC to resist the stun by 2.

This is an extraordinary ability.

At 5th level, the penalty on the attack roll lessens to –1, and at 9th level it disappears.

At 11th level, you can make two attacks when using this class feature, though no more than one attack can target a single creature.

Both attacks use your highest base attack bonus.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Defender

Human Monk

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 15, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 14, Cha 8.

Skills: Balance, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, Tumble.

Feats: Combat Focus*, Dodge, Stunning Fist.

Weapon: Unarmed strike (1d6), sling with 10 bullets (1d4, 50 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit (without sunrods), 1 gp, 3 sp.

Package 2: The Destroyer

Half-Orc Monk

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 15, Con 12, Int 8, Wis 14, Cha 6.

Skills: Climb, Jump, Tumble.

Feat: Improved Grapple, Improved Natural Attack, Weapon Focus (unarmed strike).

Weapon: Unarmed strike (1d8), sling with 10 bullets (1d4, 50 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit (without sunrods), 1 gp, 3 sp.

Package 3: The Skirmisher

Elf Monk

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 17, Con 10, Int 10, Wis 14, Cha 8.

Skills: Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Tumble.

Feat: Ability Focus (stunning fist), Stunning Fist.

Weapon: Unarmed strike (1d6), sling with 10 bullets (1d4, 50 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit (without sunrods), 1 gp, 3 sp.

PALADIN

You have power over evil, given you by your glorious, almighty deity.

Your devotion and pure, unwavering desire provides strength that illuminates the darkest souls, saving some and punishing those that can't be redeemed.

Your faith wards you from harm, inoculates you from fear, and gives you the hands of a healer—but your hands are equally dynamic on the hilt of an avenging sword pledged to divinity.

When wizards scheme, you pray.

When dragons roar, you take up your sword, fearless.

When devils from the Hells steal innocent souls, you respond with sacred vengeance and send them fleeing back to the pit whence they came.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Ascetic, Noble Scion, Soldier.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Companion, Crusader, Leader, Martyr, Prophet, Royalty, Strategist.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Bound in Honor: You follow a strict code of honor.

Whenever a situation arises that might touch upon your code, you voice the particular precept of your code, as if part of a prayer to your deity.

In doing so, you hope that others will be inspired by your good example, and perhaps begin to follow parts of the code themselves.

Your code includes two or more of the following principles. You might enunciate additional principles not described here, depending on the deity or cause you serve.

"Before all else, a paladin is faithful."

The faith of a paladin requires no proof—it is a heartfelt knowledge that the goodness you do, or the evil you allow to flourish, is all that you take from this world to the next.

"A paladin's valor is a measure of her faith."

When things begin to go bad, your valor proves itself.

When knocked low, you get up.

You do not run from conflict if it can be won, and most especially, you never leave compatriots to a fight that is yours to win.

Fear is something that only less valorous men and women experience.

"Humility in all things."

You are modest regarding your own importance and always submit to your deity's will.

You know your place, but your place is important.

You are not proud or arrogant, though you challenge the unenlightened with your creed.

"Patience outlasts all."

You understand that it might take your entire life span to make a difference in the world—you don't hurry, you persevere.

You have the god-supported tenacity not to quit your tasks, once taken up.

"Loyalty to true friends, vengeance to betrayers and foes."

You know that strength flows from solidarity, and solidarity only comes when all trust each other.

Defeating the evils that plague the world is possible if all are loyal.

Those who betray loyalty must be dealt with swiftly.

"Benevolence is a balm to all souls."

A paladin is charitable and desires to safeguard others from influences that would destroy their innocence or end their lives.

Benevolence is no less a tool of your deity than your sword. "Integrity is the foundation on which all things of value are built." You adhere to the ethical and moral standards of your deity, acting in all ways as a beacon of truthfulness that others might emulate.

Your character and sense of self relies upon your honesty.

How can one be truthful "to a fault"?

"Mercy for those that deserve mercy."

Sometimes even the righteous can stray from the true path, and thus you must occasionally show compassion.

However, mercy for unrepentant evildoers is tantamount to doing evil yourself.

"Generosity is the left hand of [your deity]."

When you are willing to give of your wealth, or even more important, your time, you show the real strength and depth of your belief in your deity.

Only someone truly comfortable with her faith has the spiritual reserve to be generous.

Chivalrous: You seek to be a paragon of the concepts of justice and morality in behavior between people.

As such, you are brave in battle, loyal to your deity, and willing to sacrifice yourself for that belief (see Bound in Honor, above).

Toward your fellows you are merciful, humble, and courteous.

Most important, you are gracious and gentle to those worthy of high regard, and you might even seek to court someone you admire.

If that person is unavailable and married to someone else, especially if he or she is of higher status, your chivalry leads you into a type of "courtly love".

You dedicate your life to the object of your affection, expressing your appreciation from afar through an intricate system of colors and ribbons worn on behalf of your beloved and favors done in his or her name.

It's an elaborate dance, a game that the players freely enjoy without expectation of commitment.

"For the Lady who has my heart, I dedicate this quest."

"Leave this to me—honor commands that the final blow be mine."

Merciless: Do any deserve mercy?

No.

Leniency and compassion are words used to describe weak dealings toward those who have been judged and found wanting.

This doesn't mean that you seek to kill all those who, in your judgment, are weak and faithless, but it does mean that such creatures do not deserve your respect.

"There is no mercy, there is only judgment."

Moral Philosopher: Moral conduct, morality, and the correctness of moral thought are paramount to you; however, you know that morals vary by culture.

Is one moral code better than another?

Is an ethical code better, or as your brothers and sisters in your order claim, are ethics a mortal-contrived sham that hides the true reach of morals?

You don't know, but you wonder.

"An ethical code establishes tradeoffs toward the greater good, and weighs all the negative and positive results of an action, apart from moral absolutes."

"Thus, decisions are based upon the greatest good for the greatest number."

Reverent: You begin almost every utterance with a reference to your god.

"As the truth of [your deity] tells us..."

"If [your deity] allows..."

"In the name of [your deity], the beneficent, the merciful..."

If you do not begin an utterance with a reference to your deity, you wrap up with one.

"...as [your deity] commands."

"...may [your deity] light and guard me."

"...that all may know the wisdom and majesty of [your deity]."

Zealous: You are a fervent servant of your deity.

You are diligent in your duties, show enthusiasm in performing them on your deity's behalf, and display a powerful interest in anything related to your deity, whether it's support or opposition.

You show your zeal to your friends and foes in one or more of the following ways.

Exultant: You are joyful and proud when you think of your deity, and are given to rejoicing and triumphal shouts.

See the Paladin Battlecries sidebar.

Disciple: You know the history of your deity, and those saints and other people important to your deity.

You know the trials and tribulations of your deity and/or your deity's saints, and you reenact those trials in a yearly ceremony.

Moreover, you dress according to a strict interpretation of any doctrine your deity dispenses.

Missionary: You know with your gut that others would be happier if they worshiped your deity as you do.

To this end you consistently (though not constantly—annoyance isn't a tool of conversion) exhort friends and strangers to convert.

Tattooed: You've shaved your head and proudly display a tattoo of your deity's holy symbol across your brow and naked head.

Tract Giver: You always carry with you several tracts that describe the glories of your deity, and pass these out (or leave them to be found) wherever you think they'll do the most good.

(To this end, you have an arrangement with a printer, or at least a letterist).

You are not a vocal missionary, preferring to work in more subtle ways.

"Consider the benefits that would be yours if you find grace with [your deity]—surety, confidence, and comradeship, at the very least!"

CHARGING SMITE

Despite the glorious vision of a shining knight atop a warhorse charging into combat, the reality in the D&D game is that it's far from easy (and sometimes impossible) to bring a big animal along on your dungeon crawl.

To avoid the drain on time and resources created by a special mount you might not even be able to use, you can select the charging smite alternative class feature instead. You still leap into the fray, taking the fight to the enemy, but you do so in a manner that better matches the typical combat found in a D&D game.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain a special mount.

Benefit: Beginning at 5th level, if you smite evil on a charge attack, you deal an extra 2 points of damage per paladin level to any evil creature you hit (in addition to the normal bonus damage dealt by a smite).

If the charge attack misses, the smite ability is not considered used.

This is a supernatural ability.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Cavalier

Elf Paladin

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 12, Con 12, Int 8, Wis 12, Cha 15.

Skill: Ride.

Feat: Mounted Combat.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8/19–20), lance (1d8/×3), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield.

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, wooden holy symbol, 21 gp.

Package 2: The Destroyer

Dwarf Paladin

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 8, Con 16, Int 10, Wis 12, Cha 13.

Skills: Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Sense Motive.

Feat: Power Attack.

Weapons: Greataxe (1d12/×3), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, wooden holy symbol, 34 gp.

Package 3: The Vanguard

Human Paladin

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 8, Con 14, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 15.

Skills: Diplomacy, Heal, Sense Motive.

Feats: Improved Initiative, Shield Specialization (heavy).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8/19–20), two javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, wooden holy symbol, 10 gp.

RANGER

You travel to places where few others dare to tread.

Relying on a potent combination of stealth, woodcraft, magic, and fighting skill, you are the master of the wilderness.

Where others see a trackless forest, you see an impenetrable refuge.

Where others see a burning desert, you see a deadly trap for enemies you lure within.

Where others see impassable mountains, you see high roads to new lands.

You are the ultimate explorer, self-reliant and adaptable.

No other adventurer comes close to your independence and sheer versatility.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Drifter, Farm Hand, Mariner, Soldier, Tribal Origin.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Explorer, Orphan, Rebel, Renegade, Savage, Seeker, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Bounty Hunter: Unlike other rangers, you are equally at ease in the wilderness or in the cities and towns of humankind.

You hone your woodcraft and tracking skills to use them against other people instead of forest-dwelling monsters. You might be a cold-hearted mercenary, an intrepid tracker, or even an outlaw or highwayman who uses woodcraft to get close to your quarry.

For you, the lore of the wilderness is a tool that you employ for your particular ends.

Your choice of favored enemy makes you more effective at tracking (and defeating) particular quarry, so choose wisely.

It's not unusual for a bounty hunter to choose his own race as a favored enemy—not because you're a misanthropic killer, but simply because you want to be especially good at following villains who happen to be of your race through the wilderness.

Keep a record of each quarry you stalk over the course of your career, and preferably a trophy or souvenir from each success.

Show off your trophies and boast a little about your victories when you have the chance.

You want word to get around about who you are and what you do, so that villains who find you on their trail will be more likely to panic, slip up, and make a fatal mistake.

"The price is 100 gold—no less, no more."

"Only one bounty has ever escaped me—so far."

"I keep a constant eye out, just in case."

Driven Avenger: When you were a child, your town was burned to the ground by orcs, or displacer beasts devoured your family, or a dragon hunted your tribe to extinction. Whatever the tragedy, you have been left with an endless thirst for vengeance against the monster or monsters that ruined your life.

The monsters responsible for your loss are at the top of your list of favored enemies.

Your back-story prominently features a tragic loss at the hands, claws, talons, or fangs of these monsters.

Create a suitable tale of woe and suffering, and write it down—you'll tell it over and over again to anyone who asks.

In any situation or challenge you confront, look for signs that your mortal enemies are somehow involved.

For example, if drow enslaved your village, you should suspect drow involvement in almost any problem you encounter.

"The drow are behind this."

"You'll see."

"Only drow attack with such precision."

"I didn't like the way that innkeeper was watching us."

"I bet he's secretly in league with the drow, spying on us for them!"

"The only good drow is a dead drow."

Master of Beasts: You have allies everywhere you go.

The birds and beasts are your friends, and even the fiercest creatures suffer your presence.

While your animal companions do not help you in battle like the druid's help her, you value them for more than their fighting skill.

Animals give you senses that you otherwise would not possess, allow you to keep watch over vast areas without being seen, and can carry messages over great distances.

Avoid fighting naturally occurring animals if possible.

Instead of killing a cave-dwelling brown bear in your path, see if you can lure it away from its lair or merely frighten it off.

Sometimes you have to resort to lethal methods to fight off dangerous animals, but there is no honor in such a battle; you should help your companions to avoid encounters of this sort instead of killing animals that are only acting as their nature dictates.

It's not unusual for a ranger of this sort to be uncomfortable around other people.

Keep your thoughts to yourself, and don't use two words when one will do.
People are cruel and deceitful, but you can always trust an animal to act in accordance with its nature.
When you have to interact with humanoids, stay short and to the point, and speak bluntly.
When you can, use animal metaphors to make your point.
"If you hope to catch Drethaas, you must run like the deer all day and through the night.
Can you keep up with me?"
"The ogre is licking its wounds in its den.
Now we can finish the monster."
"We have his scent now.
He won't get away."
"I have the eyes of an eagle.
No orc will pass by this place unseen."
Wayfinder: You live for the opportunity to tread new lands and see things no one has seen before.
You measure yourself against the raw power of nature by crossing unfordable rivers, climbing impassable mountains, and mastering uncrossable deserts.
The lure of treasure and the challenge of fearsome foes serve only as excuses for you to head out on your next journey.
Before you die, you want to see more of the world than anyone before you has seen.
You are restless and uneasy in times of idleness.
You chafe at long delays, because when you're waiting for something to happen you're stuck in one spot.
Urge your companions to push on another mile, venture into just one more room, or at least give you a chance to scout just over the next hill before stopping for the night.
Keep a journal of your travels, noting the weather, the creatures you encountered, the places you visited, and the spot where you camped for each night.
Overland travel is your special area of expertise, so make sure you voice your opinion when the party debates the question of how to move from one place to another.
If your friends are wise, they'll listen to you.
Because you are widely traveled and interested in a variety of things, you naturally relate new experiences to things you've seen or done before.
"This cave's a little bit like that second chamber in the Caverns of Creeping Shadows.
You remember, the one with the weird green-glowing fungus-balls and the gricks?
Do you think we might find gricks here too?"
"Let's find a safer place to cross.
In my experience, this is just the sort of mountain stream that will batter you to pieces and carry you over a waterfall if you fall in.
I don't want to have to go looking for your body."
"This desert's got nothing on the Anvil of Searing Pain.
Now that was a desert."
"Careful!
I'll bet you these orcs are headhunters, like those Blood Moon warriors we ran into a few months back.
Look, they've got kukris just like those Blood Moon orcs."

DISTRACTING ATTACK

A ranger's animal companion isn't nearly as tough as a druid's, and thus works best as a scout or occasional flanker in combat.

If your ranger would prefer to avoid the hassle of taking care of an animal companion, you can get some of the same benefit with the distracting attack alternative class feature. Though not as effective as an actual flanker, the ability to spread out your attacks to affect multiple enemies is a nice side effect.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain an animal companion.

Benefit: Beginning at 4th level, whenever you hit an enemy with a weapon attack (whether melee or ranged), that enemy is considered flanked by you for the purpose of adjudicating your allies' attacks.

For example, if your rogue ally attacked that enemy, not only would she gain a +2 bonus on her melee attack roll but she could also add her sneak attack damage to a successful melee attack.

This flanked condition lasts until either the enemy is attacked by one of your allies or until the start of your next turn, whichever comes first.

This is an extraordinary ability.

This ability has no effect on creatures that can't be flanked.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Archer

Elf Ranger

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 17, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, Survival.

Feat: Point Blank Shot, Track.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8/19–20), longbow with 20 arrows (1d8/×3, 100 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 19 gp.

Package 2: The Hunter

Half-Elf Ranger

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 15, Con 14, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 8.

Skills: Hide, Knowledge (nature), Listen, Move Silently, Spot, Survival.

Feat: Alertness, Track.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8/19–20), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.), longbow with 20 arrows (1d8/×3, 100 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 17 gp.

Package 3: The Skirmisher

Human Ranger

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 15, Con 14, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Heal, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Spot, Survival.

Feats: Dodge, Mobility, Track.

Weapon: Longsword (1d8/19–20), short sword (1d6/19–20), 3 javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 5 gp.

DO ONE JOB, AND DO IT WELL

While rangers have a lot of skill points to spend, you will find that it's just not possible to maximize your skill ranks in all the things that rangers do. Depending on your particular character theme, you might need to prioritize your skill purchases as follows.

Bounty Hunter: Craft (trapmaking), Ride, Search, Survival, Use Rope. Survival is the most important of these for a tracker.

ROGUE

The world owes you a living.

You are the ultimate opportunist, keeping your eyes open for the next big chance to come your way.

Fortune favors the bold, and while you might not always fight with noteworthy valor, you certainly have the boldest of aspirations.

You are a trickster, a rapsallion, a scoundrel.

You don't fight fair, and if you can help it, you don't fight at all.

Stealth, guile, and daring are your weapons.

Why fight when another act of daring—such as an impossible climb or a brazen bluff—might serve to help you pass an obstacle and deliver the prize into your hands?

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Drifter, Guttersnipe, Mariner.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Challenger, Daredevil, Explorer, Mercenary, Orphan, Rebel, Renegade, Simple Soul, Strategist, Trickster, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Braggart: You have a true gift for self-aggrandizement and letting your mouth run away from you.

Sometimes this can lead to trouble, but let's face it: Anyone as clever, quick, and good-looking as you should be renowned for her deeds, and shouldn't knuckle under in the face of so-called authority.

If some jumped-up constable or high so-called noble doesn't like the way you carry yourself, it's his problem, not yours.

He probably wishes he had half your charm and style.

Take every opportunity to insult, belittle, and deride your enemies.

What better way to show off your wit and inventiveness, while entertaining your friends?

Don't let a combat pass without a quip.

"Are you trying to kill me with your axe or your breath, you malodorous fiend?"

"Hey, you dried-up old husk of a wizard!

You wanted to live forever looking like that?"

"Where's the evil plan?"

Come on, you've got to have an evil plan!

How can you call yourself a crazed cultist if you don't have an evil plan?"

Make sure stories told about your deeds reflect well on you; if part of the story is a little boring or doesn't cast you in a good light, there's no harm in adding some embellishment.

There's no conversation that can't be improved by talking about yourself a little—or a lot.

You're the most interesting person around, after all.

Cross-class skills such as Gather Information and Intimidate can be useful, too.

Driven Avenger: Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot.

Master of Beasts: Handle Animal, Knowledge (nature), Ride.

Wayfinder: Climb, Knowledge (geography), Survival, Swim, Use Rope.

"Was Lord Gerratt there when I stole the Dragon Egg Ruby from under a demilich's skull?"

Did he stand next to me when I faced down the frost giant jarl with nothing but this kukri so that my friends could get away? Then Lord Gerratt can wait a few hours, because I'm not leaving this tavern while the music's still playing and everyone is dancing."

"Yes, yes, that's all very interesting, but let's talk about me."

Above all, maintain your self-confidence!

If you don't believe in yourself, who will?

People exaggerate their troubles, so you should feel free to whittle them back to size.

"Oh, sure I've fought dragons before!

Great big ones, fire-breathing of course, bigger than castles!

They're not so tough."

"They just call it the Tomb of Horrors to scare off the morons.

It's a sham, a put-on!

We'll walk right in and steal every last copper from the place, just you wait and see!"

Common-Born Hero: You view yourself as a champion of the people, fighting against injustice and tyranny with a sly sense of humor, a larcenous streak, and an intuitive grasp of the art of derring-do.

You can't stand to let a bully go unpunished, and most monsters and villains are nothing more than particularly big and scary bullies.

While you are certainly happy to profit from your adventures, you live for the gratitude and appreciation of the common folk.

Returning a stolen treasure to its rightful owner—especially an owner who is otherwise impoverished—is more satisfying than simply enriching yourself.

Even if it's difficult to part with a hard-won prize, you trust that suitable rewards will follow when you do the right thing.

You don't have to give away everything you find, but you should see to it that your successful adventures help as many people as possible.

More so than most other characters, you take an interest in the common people you encounter in your travels.

Keep a list of the minor NPCs you encounter, as well as what they need or what they want.

Ask your DM to provide your character with opportunities to meet and help common folk if these are not a feature of his game.

(DMs will appreciate it if you don't pester them for details on every person in the village, though).

"Madam, why so sad?"

Here, take this gold coin and buy your family a feast!"

"I swear on the blood of my mother, there will be justice in this town!"

Skulk: You're an artist, not a common thief.

You are a bold and daring warrior, but instead of putting your faith in ironmongery and clumsy charges, you seek victory in the shadows.

You have no battle cry or trademark move—you don't want to be seen or heard before you strike.

Some might question your courage, but none can doubt your effectiveness.

Surprise is your biggest asset, so you are a master of skills and talents that let you creep into places where you can take your enemy unaware.

Seek out opportunities to scout out the lay of the land and locate potential enemies without a big, noisy party of adventurers at your heels, giving away your position and waking up every monster in the dungeon.

If you can silently take out a weak or unsuspecting foe on your own, great—but remember, it's your job to avoid giving the villains a chance to strike back.

Make sure you can handle anything you start when your allies aren't at hand.

You are rarely loud or boastful; you know what you can do, and that's the only measure that counts.

You find it easier to speak little and hear much, keeping your opinions to yourself.

When you do voice an opinion, you tend to be terse and offer little or no explanation.

"I'll take care of the sentries."

"Give me ten minutes to get into position before the rest of you storm in."

"Five ogres ahead—two sleeping, three more awake."

"I don't want to leave them behind us."

Specialist: You are a consummate professional.

Master of a set of rare and valuable skills, you view adventures as jobs—nothing more and nothing less.

You don't accompany adventuring parties to test yourself against ferocious monsters or to halt the depredations of murderous villains.

You go along for your fair cut of the loot, and you have no use for the thickheaded heroics of muscle-bound sword swingers or crusading zealots.

If you wind up in a fight, you probably bungled the job.

Rogue specialists come in four basic flavors: lockpicks (who concentrate on Open Lock), trapfinders (who need Search and Disable Device), swindlers (who use Bluff, Disguise, and Gather Information), and acrobats (who rely on Balance, Jump, Climb, and Tumble).

In each case, the key to success is your ability to amass a lot of ranks in key skills other characters are unlikely to duplicate.

Magic can eventually obviate the usefulness of a swindler, lockpick, or acrobat thanks to spells such as charm person or levitate, but trapfinders provide a capability that is very hard to replace.

If you are going to be a specialist, consider being a trapfinder first.

Keep notes on various obstacles you encounter, especially the ones you can't get around or through on your first try. Someday you're going to go back with the right tools (or perhaps a little more training) and defeat each and every one.

You can be opinionated, and you believe that most obstacles can be overcome through the use of your special skills.

You are confident and pragmatic.

"I never met a lock I couldn't open."

"Better let me go first."

Otherwise someone's likely to get killed."

"Hmmpfh."

Goblin-work.

Shoddy."

DISRUPTIVE ATTACK

More than perhaps any other character, a rogue's ability to fully contribute to a fight varies dramatically based on the enemies she faces.

Against a mummy, flesh golem, or shambling mound, the rogue's damage-dealing drops precipitously.

The disruptive attack alternative class feature allows a rogue to be effective in combat against such creatures by making them vulnerable to the attacks of her and her allies.

It's also useful against creatures vulnerable to your sneak attacks, creating interesting tactical decisions for you in such fights.

Level: 4th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain uncanny dodge at 4th level.

Instead, you gain uncanny dodge at 8th level (when you would normally gain improved uncanny dodge).

Benefit: Beginning at 4th level, through careful study you're able to find exploitable flaws in any creature's tactics and defenses.

Whenever you hit a target that is flat-footed against your attack, or whenever you hit a target that you flank, you can choose to sacrifice your sneak attack damage in order to apply a -5 penalty to that creature's AC for 1 round.

Multiple hits on the same target don't stack.

This extraordinary ability works even against creatures normally immune to extra damage from sneak attacks, such as undead.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Archer

Halfling Rogue

Ability Scores: Str 6, Dex 17, Con 12, Int 13, Wis 14, Cha 10.

Skills: Climb, Disable Device, Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Spot, Tumble.

Languages: Common, Goblin, Halfling.

Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Weapon: Morningstar (1d6/×3), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d6/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, thieves' tools, 10 gp.

Package 2: The Duelist

Elf Rogue

Ability Scores: Str 10, Dex 17, Con 10, Int 14, Wis 8, Cha 13.

Skills: Balance, Bluff, Disable Device, Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Spot, Tumble.

Languages: Common, Draconic, Elven, Orc.

Feat: Combat Expertise.

Weapons: Rapier (1d6/18–20), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, thieves' tools, 6 gp.

Package 3: The Explorer

Human Rogue

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 15, Con 12, Int 14, Wis 10, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Disable Device, Gather Information, Hide, Jump, Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Spot, Tumble.

Languages: Common, Goblin, Undercommon.

Feat: Alertness, Combat Reflexes.

Weapons: Longspear (1d8/×3), morningstar (1d8), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d8/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, thieves' tools, 5 gp.

SCOUT

You navigate difficult terrain as easily as a commoner walks down a cobbled lane.

Your natural talent and intensive training forged you into the ideal investigator of both the green wilds and the dark depths.

Where your compatriots find themselves caught on brambles, tripped up on potholes, and wounded by caltrops, you flow, jump, and sweep through all distractions offered by the mute landscape.

Your ability to travel into difficult-to-reach locations complements your ability to evade the eyes of both friend and foe.

You are seen only where and when you choose to be.

Quick, trackless, difficult to pin down, and able to pierce both physical barriers and lightless expanses, you are lethal when you decide to make your presence known, whether in a direct attack or when you make your report to the eager company ready to act on the intelligence you gathered.

This class appears in the Complete Adventurer supplement.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Drifter, Mariner, Soldier.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Daredevil, Explorer, Orphan, Rebel, Renegade, Seeker, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Game Hunter: You eat what you kill, and you're none too fond of fancy meals served in taverns.

To you, hunting animals for food in their proper season, by climate, and factoring in animal diversity is a philosophy and even a way of life.

You'd never eat a spawning fish out of season, and you recoil in disgust at the thought of dining on veal or herded animals.

This means you're kept busy hunting for your sustenance, but luckily you know how to prepare and preserve large catches in ways that ensure you can comfortably eat for a month or more between big hunts.

Of course, you prefer fresh game to preserved, so whenever you can give jerky a rest in favor of quail, squab, or coney, you take time to set up a snare or head into the brush, only to emerge an hour later with your fresh prize in hand.

You are not stingy with freshly caught game, and you know many different ways of preparing your catch.

You cook for your compatriots as much as they'll allow, and you enjoy trying new preparations with natural spices, seasonings, and novel presentations.

"I know a recipe for coney better than anything you'll ever taste in town."

"It's not the season for salmon—don't insult me by trying to serve it."

Military Heritage: You come from a military tradition, having served either in the king's army or in a large, respected mercenary company.

You distinguished yourself, though you never achieved high rank.

On the other hand, you were a noncommissioned officer, and those who outranked you depended upon your scouting expertise.

Because of your military heritage, you are familiar with military jargon, and speak of "flanking maneuvers" and how "strategy is large scale while tactics are small scale".

Moreover, you like to assess all adventuring (and perhaps even social) situations in terms of seven strategic principles that served you well while you were "in service".

"Figuring out the objective is half the battle."

Once you throw out all distracting factors, what are you really hoping to achieve?

"With enough munitions, we can mount a credible offense."

You're not afraid to pay for magic arrows and other high-quality offensive "hardware".

"Without cooperation, we have nothing."

You know the value that teamwork and mutual aid adds to any dangerous situation.

You like to work out tactics ahead of time, and to establish who in the party is responsible for what duty.

"We have to concentrate our attacks!"

It's foolish to scatter attacks across multiple enemies—if members of your party concentrate their attacks on a dangerous foe, that foe would be brought down quicker, and thus unable to deal its own damage as long.

Then, on to the next foe.

"Always look for tactical advantage, then maneuver to reach those positions."

You point out to others in your party where each might be positioned for best possible effect.

See Tactician on page 58 under the warmage character themes.

"Surprise is one of my favorite weapons."

You like to sneak ahead and get the lay of the land before engaging enemies.

"Keep it simple!"

Plans are well and good, but complicated schemes go out the window the moment the first arrow is fired.

Plans that are too involved almost always collapse.

Sniper: You are especially skilled in field craft and marksmanship, allowing you to target selected enemies from concealment at range.

Ideally, you move into a position against a foe unaware of your presence, use as few attacks as possible to down the target, then withdraw without being seen.

Of course, in a conflict when you support a larger party of adventurers, you do not withdraw, but instead rely on your comrades to keep the foe or foes from attacking you directly.

In return, you concentrate your fire against foes most dangerous to your party.

You developed your field skills on your own, or perhaps you were trained in a military detachment of the king's guard or in a special unit fielded by a large mercenary company.

World Traveler: You've seen it all.

Well, you've seen a lot in your travels, and you don't mind audibly comparing the place where you currently find yourself with other places you've allegedly traveled to.

Even when you haven't physically traveled to a locale you like to brag about, you indicate (if pinned down) that you've read all about the locale in question; after all, a scout has to keep on top of these sorts of things.

"The way this tower is laid out reminds me of Tarmind Spire."

Tarmind—the spire was named after the sorcerer who built it—was a demonbinder.

Tarmind Spire was where he caged all the demons he bound.

Anyway, keep an eye out for demons.”

“This waterfall puts me in mind of the Falls of Shandarm.

Those falls plunge a hundred feet in a roaring cascade of white whose thunder can be heard for miles.

Local tribes cast coins, gems, even magic items into it, thinking that their sacrifice will grant them fortune and long life.

I don't know if that's true, but there's a fortune hidden below the cataract.

Maybe we should search the basin here?”

“Whenever I travel through a mine, I think of the Mines of Minwray.

The dwarves found the Minwray mine—they didn't delve it themselves.

It was a great barrow of interconnected passages, following the vein of some mysterious mineral, delved by a vanished race.

By the time the dwarves found it, the mineral was completely exhausted.

But the dwarves expanded the dig, hoping to find some trace of what the mysterious Minwray had mined so assiduously.”

“I hate these deep ravines—did I ever tell you about the Skarvos Ravine?

Twenty miles long and half a mile deep, the ravine shelters a sprawling citadel of crude dark stone in the deepest, darkest root of the fissure.

No one's ever returned from the citadel who explored it, so no one knows what is inside.”

DUNGEON SPECIALIST

The scout's mobility gives her a significant advantage over foes in combat.

While any scout can hold her own in an underground setting, some specifically train for the dark, enclosed spaces found in dungeon environments.

If you select the dungeon specialist alternative class feature, you give up some of your speed to turn the dungeon into a three-dimensional combat environment.

You'll shine in small rooms and tight corridors, though area spells become a bit more dangerous for you.

Level: 3rd.

Replaces: By choosing the dungeon specialist alternative class feature, you give up both fast movement (normally gained at 3rd level and improved at 11th level) and evasion (normally gained at 5th level).

Benefit: At 3rd level, you gain a climb speed equal to one-half your base land speed (rounded down to the next 5-foot increment), and you can attack with a light weapon normally while climbing.

At 11th level, your climb speed improves to equal your base land speed.

Having a climb speed grants you a +8 racial bonus on Climb checks and allows you to take 10 on Climb checks even if rushed or threatened.

You also retain your Dexterity bonus to AC while climbing, and enemies gain no special bonus on attacks against you while you are climbing.

See Movement Modes, MM 311, for more details.

At 5th level, you learn to use confining areas to your advantage.

Whenever you are standing on the ground and adjacent to a wall, you gain a +2 bonus to AC and opponents gain no bonus on their attack rolls when flanking you.

This is an extraordinary ability.

You lose both of these benefits when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Archer

Halfling Scout

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 17, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Disable Device, Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Spot.

Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Weapons: Spear (1d6/×3), dagger (1d3/19–20), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d4/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, thieves' tools, 20 gp.

Package 2: The Hunter

Elf Scout

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 17, Con 10, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 8.

Skills: Disable Device, Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Spot, Survival.

Feat: Track.

Weapons: Spear (1d8/×3), throwing axe (1d6, 10 ft.), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 100 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, thieves' tools, 15 gp.

Package 3: The Skirmisher

Human Scout

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 15, Con 12, Int 10, Wis 13, Cha 8.

Skills: Disable Device, Hide, Jump, Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Spot, Tumble.

Feats: Dodge, Two-Weapon Fighting.

Weapons: Two short swords (1d6/19–20), 5 javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, thieves' tools, 30 gp.

SORCERER

You weave spells like poets compose sonnets.

You require no dusty tomes, no grueling apprenticeships, no protracted study of arcane phenomena—all you need is your inborn talent to wield raw magic.

As a child, you knew you were different from others, and when you uttered your first spontaneous spell, your suspicions were confirmed—sorcery infused your blood! But where did this awesome gift arise from?

Could it be a mere knack, or is it true that you can claim dragons as ancestors?

It might be that your ability to manifest magic through mere force of will is your inheritance from those ancient creatures.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Ascetic, Drifter, Noble Scion.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Companion, Daredevil, Innocent, Mercenary, Orphan, Renegade, Royalty, Sage, Seeker, Simple Soul, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Mysterious Stranger: No one knows the real you, and you prefer to keep it that way.

Though you have allies, and might even have a few friends, your background is a mystery to all.

Of course, in the absence of fact, rumor and legend rush to fill the void.

While you might not actively spread misinformation, it pleases you to hear others tell fantastic stories about where (and how) you were born or raised, your exploits, and the true extent of your powers.

When other characters ask about your background, don't ever give a straight reply.

Dance around the truth, making ominous statements in place of answers.

Let them believe what they would like—and let your actions give them every reason to believe the most fantastic possibilities.

A few ranks of Bluff (and/or cross-class ranks of Intimidate) are particularly useful for pulling off this theme.

In keeping your secrets, it's useful to be able to lie directly to someone's face, or to stare someone in the face until he or she slinks away nervously.

"Many before you have pondered my origin.

Your questions, like those, must remain unanswered...for your own safety."

"You wouldn't be the first to make the mistake of underestimating my power."

Genealogist: You amass oral histories, search records, and seek out family stories to discover the truth about your ancestors and living relatives.

Though your overall goal is to prove that you are indeed descended from dragons, you've acquired a lot of secondary knowledge concerning now-defunct kingdoms, the movement of people across the landscape, great wars and philosophical movements, and other historical curiosities. While still ongoing, your search of your family history has led you to uncover distant cousins and even a few buried family secrets.

For instance, you learned that your great grandfather didn't die in service to the king's guard as everyone believes.

It turns out he shipped to sea with a privateer.

Over the course of decades, he worked to become the captain of his own ship.

You've never been able to discover the final fate of your grandfather's ship, but you are constantly on the lookout for fresh information.

Despite the interesting revelations you discover and the people you now know you can count as distant relatives, your true quest remains: You've never once turned your mind from the thought of your dragon ancestry.

"My grandfather had secrets that no one could have guessed.

I wonder if he had a hidden hoard?"

"You'd do well to learn your own ancestry.

How do you truly know what you are if you don't know from where you've come?"

Misunderstood Rebel: You've never fit in.

No one understands you, and truth to tell, you don't care anymore.

Your dark, brooding clothing, pale features, and much-tattooed flesh is part of who you are, and if people can't accept that, it's their problem, not yours.

Moreover, you relish locations that others find horror-inducing, including necropolises, haunted citadels, and cursed cathedrals.

Though you still draw breath, you feel as if you have something in common with ghosts, vampires, and other humanoid-shaped undead—although none have yet seemed overly interested in doing anything other than attempting to kill you.

You have a knack for writing dark and dismal tales, and whether with pen or out loud, you have composed several stories featuring cursed families, being buried alive, and the fall of cities into hellish rifts.

"Who cares?"

"I wrote a story once about a girl who was dead for a year and never knew it..."

Pretender: This character theme relies on you having taken 1 or more ranks in Bluff.

Your natural charisma leads you into making preposterous, but somehow reasonable-sounding claims regarding a wide variety of topics.

You most effectively use this talent when playing games of chance, especially cards.

For instance, when playing the high-stakes game of three-dragon ante, your ability to bluff effectively is a tactic you've come to rely on when you want to make the other players believe your weak hand is strong, or that your strong hand is weak, depending on how the dragons fall.

However, when you are faced with stressful situations, your propensity to invent answers to hard questions out of whole cloth could get you into trouble at least as often as it helps.

For example, when challenged by guards asking for credentials necessary to allow you and your friends past some threshold, you launch into a song-and-dance meant to distract:

"Well, of course I'd normally give you the countersign, but didn't you get the news?"

Spies are about, invisible, just waiting to overhear someone give the countersign at this entry.

Can you imagine if they learned the countersign?"

Can you imagine if it was because you required me to give it to you now?"

"The Grand Duke sent for me.

Don't give me any claptrap about not knowing who I am or that I am not on the list—the Grand Duke asked for me by name!

If you don't let me past RIGHT now, I can guarantee that when I finally do see the Duke a half-hour from now because you've delayed me, I'll tell him right off I was delayed because of YOU!

WHAT'S YOUR NAME, GUARD?" METAMAGIC SPECIALIST

With a limited selection of spells at his fingertips, it's natural for a sorcerer to turn to metamagic feats to gain flexibility in effects.

If the idea of playing a sorcerer who efficiently twists his spells into new shapes and sizes excites you, the metamagic specialist alternative class feature is the way to go.

Though you must forgo the benefits of a familiar to pursue this path, some sorcerers relish not having to keep track of such a vulnerable accessory.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain a familiar.

Benefit: You can apply metamagic feats that you know to sorcerer spells without increasing the casting time.

This benefit even lets you quicken your sorcerer spells with the Quicken Spell feat.

You can use this class feature a number of times per day equal to 3 + your Int modifier (minimum 1).

This is an extraordinary ability.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Battle Mage

Gnome Sorcerer

Ability Scores: Str 10, Dex 13, Con 16, Int 8, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Concentration.

Feat: Toughness.

Weapon: Spear (1d6/×3), dagger (1d3/19–20, 10 ft.), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d6/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 14 gp.

Spells Known: 1st—mage armor, ray of enfeeblement, shocking grasp; 0—acid splash, daze, detect magic, read magic, touch of fatigue.

Package 2: The Blaster

Halfling Sorcerer

Ability Scores: Str 6, Dex 15, Con 14, Int 12, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Bluff, Concentration, Knowledge (arcana).

Languages: Common, Draconic, Halfling.

Feat: Spell Focus (evocation).

Weapons: Longspear (1d6/×3), dagger (1d3/19–20, 10 ft.), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d6/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 11 gp.

Spells Known: 1st—color spray, magic missile, obscuring mist; 0—acid splash, detect magic, disrupt undead, light, ray of frost.

Package 3: The Infernal Summoner

Human Sorcerer

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 12, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Bluff, Concentration, Knowledge (arcana), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Infernal.

Feats: Infernal Sorcerer Heritage, Infernal Sorcerer Howl.

Weapons: Longspear (1d6/×3), dagger (1d3/19–20, 10 ft.), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d6/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 11 gp.

Spells Known: 1st—grease, mage armor, summon monster I; 0—acid splash, detect magic, daze, message, read magic.

SWASHBUCKLER

You'll do nearly anything on a dare, going so far as to risk your life to prove your panache.

You have a style all your own.

Agile and swift, witty and charming, you are the toast of the town wherever you go, although sometimes your antics earn you the displeasure of authority figures and the annoyance of your more conservative compatriots.

Luckily, you excel both with your swift blade and your equally agile tongue.

You can charm even the most stonehearted long enough to make your getaway.

Seeking fame, praise, and perhaps hoping to right the occasional injustice, you leap into action, glorying in the life of a famous hero.

This class appears in the Complete Adventurer supplement.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Drifter, Gladiator, Mariner, Noble Scion.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Challenger, Daredevil, Rebel, Trickster, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Avenger: Someone wronged you in the past, and you've made it your mission to put that misdeed right and bring justice, or at least vengeance, to bear.

You can be heard frequently muttering the name of the person whom you blame for your present state.

You keep your blade especially sharp, you like to explain to anyone who will listen, so that when the time comes for you to exact justice, your foe's blood will soak the earth. See the Driven Avenger on page 54 under the ranger character themes.

"I keep a special blade as sharp as a dragon's tooth for the final blow I'll strike."

"If justice can't be mine, then I claim vengeance."

Braggart: You are given to making incredible claims and boasts.

See the rogue character theme of the same name on page 56.

Clothes Horse: You dress in conspicuous, flashy clothes. Dun-colored leather, gray, and tan—these are colors for dullards.

You prefer brilliant red, hunter green, navy blue, snowy white, and coal black, but color alone doesn't make the ensemble—it is the fashion!

Though a courtier's outfit will set you back 30 gold pieces, you own several widely different sets.

On the days when you are less likely to soil your clothing in sewer water or in the blood of your foes, you trot out your finest noble outfits, made pricier by your personalized touches.

"Take a care you don't get any of your blood on my new silk doublet, you knave!"

Daredevil: Your audacity sometimes leads you to perform dangerous stunts merely to prove to others that few things are beyond your reach, when you set your mind to them. Sometimes, with enough time and resources, you can rig a stunt so that it looks dangerous to onlookers, but actually includes hidden safety features.

However, your stunts are frequently as dangerous as they appear.

Baiting a Monster: While you are adventuring, sometimes a dangerous beast needs to be lured into a particular location so it can be dealt with more easily, while other times a monster is in too formidable a tactical location to attack. That's when you shine.

You declare straightaway that you're up to baiting the creature so that it'll move in the desired direction.

Invective works, as does a swift attack and retreat, but sometimes you end up snatching a valuable item and running.

"You call that a monster?"

"I've seen more dangerous claws in a barnyard!"

Master Magician: You claim you can endure anything, even being buried alive.

Why, you've gone a full seven days being buried alive in a coffin under 6 feet of earth, or so you claim.

If secretly allowed to make preparations to obtain food (and air), or if you can make a deal with a friend with the right spells to check up on you now and then, you might just take another dare to try eight days!

"It's true, that one time I almost died, but that was just to impress the ladies."

Escapist: You brag that there is no restraint from which you can't free yourself (to employ this character theme, you should have 1 or more ranks in Escape Artist).

Whether manacles, chains, ropes, or other restraint devices, you claim you've never been foiled.

To keep your record safe, you take extensive precautions, including keeping "rigged" sets of manacles and stocks to practice with, and as an extreme, occasionally swallowing a skeleton key good for unlocking many types of manacles and vaults.

When necessary, you can regurgitate the key, though it's an unpleasant process.

"The Tarterian Depths of Carceri couldn't hold me.

Do you think your puny cell has a chance?"

Leaping a Pit: Ten feet?

No problem.

Twenty?

Just as easy.

Your friends know that fissures are your specialty and rarely dare you to span them, although on occasion putting on a little paying show by jumping a horse across a river isn't out of the question.

You take it in stride that it's best to have several extra healing potions on hand during such an event—after all, you've learned that your fame actually increases after a failed attempt if you are terribly injured.

"It's okay...it's not as far across as it looks."

Humorist: Your natural charisma leads you to entertain your friends and larger groups by making them laugh.

You employ a wide variety of tools toward this end, including jokes, relating amusing situations (sometimes with comedic embellishment), or acting the fool.

"What do you do if an orc attacks you with a crossbow?"

Pick up the crossbow and shoot the orc."

"Two orc mercenaries are walking down the street when one collapses.

He doesn't seem to be breathing and his eyes are glazed.

The other rushes up the steps of a nearby temple and finds a cleric.

He gasps: 'My friend is dead!

What can I do?"

The cleric says: 'Calm down, I can help.

First, let's make sure he's dead'.

The orc rushes away, then returns a moment later, cleaning blood off his blade.

He says, 'Okay, now what?"

"At dinner one night, the goblin child cries, 'Mommy, Mommy!

When are we going to have Aunt Gruma for dinner?"

The mother replies, 'Quiet, we haven't even finished your grandmother yet'."

Negotiator: In some groups, your diplomatic skills exceed those of your friends.

See the bard character theme of the same name on page 34.

Pretender: Your natural charisma leads you to make preposterous, but somehow reasonable-sounding claims regarding a wide variety of topics.

See the sorcerer character theme of the same name on page 61.

SHIELD OF BLADES

The typical swashbuckler is best suited to fighting a single foe.

Some, however, practice using a pair of light weapons to fend off attacks from all around them.

The shield of blades alternative class feature is designed for swashbucklers who fight with two weapons.

Though it requires a full attack action to use the ability, the AC bonus applies against all attackers (even invisible ones), unlike the dodge bonus gained by the traditional swashbuckling style.

Level: 5th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the dodge bonus class feature (or its improvements at 10th, 15th, and 20th level).

Benefit: Beginning at 5th level, you become adept at defending yourself when wielding a pair of light weapons. You gain a +2 shield bonus to your AC whenever you attack with at least two light weapons during your turn.

(Despite the name of this class feature, you can use any light weapon to gain the benefit, even unarmed strikes or natural weapons).

This AC bonus lasts until the start of your next turn.

This is an extraordinary ability.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five levels beyond 5th (+3 at 10th level, +4 at 15th level, and +5 at 20th level).

You lose this bonus when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Destroyer

Half-Orc Swashbuckler

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 15, Con 10, Int 12, Wis 8, Cha 10.

Skills: Climb, Escape Artist, Jump, Tumble, Swim.

Languages: Common, Abyssal, Orc.

Feats: Two-Weapon Fighting, Weapon Finesse.

Weapons: Two short swords (1d6/19–20), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 13 gp.

Package 2: The Duelist

Human Swashbuckler

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 15, Con 10, Int 14, Wis 8, Cha 12.

Skills: Balance, Bluff, Diplomacy, Escape Artist, Jump, Sense Motive, Tumble.

Languages: Common, Elven, Goblin.

Feats: Combat Expertise, Weapon Finesse, Weapon Focus (rapier).

Weapons: Rapier (1d6/18–20), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 13 gp.

Package 3: The Skirmisher

Elf Swashbuckler

Ability Scores: Str 13, Dex 17, Con 10, Int 14, Wis 8, Cha 10.

Skills: Balance, Bluff, Climb, Escape Artist, Jump, Tumble.

Languages: Common, Elven, Orc, Sylvan.

Feats: Dodge, Weapon Finesse.

Weapons: Rapier (1d6/18–20), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.), two javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 11 gp.

WARLOCK

You deal with things other people cannot even imagine.

Only through your determination and willpower do you resist being utterly consumed by the dark power you wield. You walk the earth, free to work good or evil with your so-called gift.

But even if you choose to resist evil's lure, it is a struggle you must win each and every day of your life.

Magic is a part of your being in a way that not even the most powerful sorcerer or wizard will ever know.

In your heart burns a strange and terrible font of power, giving you the ability to perform uncanny feats with only a flick of the wrist or a wave of the hand to show for it.

You are capable enough in battle, but your real strength lies in your ability to bedevil and blight your enemies with a variety of noxious curses and sinister tricks.

Few people care to associate with you—but those who do find you to be a capable companion indeed.

This class appears in the Complete Arcane supplement.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Ascetic, Drifter, Gutter snipe.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Challenger, Daredevil, Orphan, Renegade, Strategist, Theorist, Trickster, Wanderer.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Hellion: You are an enfant terrible, a troublemaker who cares nothing for the expectations or sensibilities of the people around you.

You delight in scandalizing those who seek to censure your behavior.

Never apologize for your actions or conceal your true nature.

If the common folk are frightened of warlocks, let them be frightened!

You savor the taste of their fear.

When dealing with the powerful, dispense with etiquette and tact and speak your mind.

You take pleasure in the gasps of shock and daggerlike glances of those who think you're uncouth.

The unwritten rules of discourse and behavior are silly and outmoded anyway, so you flaunt them at every opportunity.

You don't need to be obscene, vile, or gross, but you feel no need to moderate your behavior or watch your words.

"All power is evil.

Haven't you learned that yet?"

"Stand aside, constable!

No one stops me from going where I like and doing what I please!

Or would you prefer to be a toad?"

"You'd like my head on a pike, would you?"

Well, here it is—come take it if you can!

Otherwise, leave me be!"

Possessed: You are a plaything for the sinister powers that created you.

Several different spirits or personas constantly vie for control of your body.

Your own persona rarely loses control outright, but its dominance is shaky enough that other personas can speak, gesture, or even force you to begin various actions before you manage to regain control.

For example, you find yourself leveling your wand of lightning bolt at your ally's back before you drag down your wand hand with your other arm.

You threaten yourself with vile oaths and imprecations.

You might even wake up to find that you are far from the place where you went to sleep, and people tell you that you did and said things you have no memory of.

All in all, you present a profoundly unnerving spectacle.

Make strange, unconnected gestures at the gaming table.

Point a pencil or pen at one of your fellow players, and then suddenly "notice" that your hand is doing something you didn't want it to and pull it down.

Create several distinct voices that argue with each other.

Make sure the other players know what you're doing so they don't have you committed; remember, a little bit of this sort of behavior goes a long way.

When roleplaying a warlock with this trait, you don't have to betray your friends or take actions harmful to yourself or your allies.

But you should certainly say things that are incongruous with the actions you perform.

"I can hold off the ogres, but only if the elf dies first.

No, wait, he's my friend.

Definitely the ogres first."

Reformed: You have done terrible wrongs in your life.

You have mocked the holy, plundered the weak, harried the just, and murdered the innocent.

But now you repent of the evil you inflicted on the world, and earnestly strive to atone for your many crimes.

By turning the powers of darkness against other evildoers, you hope to make amends as best you can.

In your travels, you might encounter those who know of your evil past.

Such people might assume that your reformation is nothing more than a cynical attempt to escape justice, or perhaps a cruel sham designed to provide you with opportunities to indulge in even greater wickedness than before.

In some lands you are reviled, and you walk abroad at no small risk of imprisonment or execution.

In all fairness, you deserve such treatment after what you did.

"I've done...great evil.

Those deeds darkened my soul, and every day I do all I can to erase that stain."

Supernatural Stricture: You are a supernatural creature, and you are subject to laws and strictures that other adventurers never experience.

Others might think of these as superstitions or taboos, but for you they are immutable laws.

For instance, you must choose a random way to go anytime you encounter a crossroads, unless someone tells you the way.

(City streets and dungeon corridors don't usually count as crossroads).

You refuse to enter a home without an invitation.

Domestic animals panic at your approach.

You refuse to set foot on sacred ground, or you cannot look a blue-eyed person in the face.

Whatever your stricture is, it rarely puts your life in danger, but it is occasionally inconveniencing to you, and memorable to anyone who witnesses your odd behavior.

There are three basic ways to handle this sort of limitation in play.

Voluntary Compliance: You observe the stricture through roleplaying alone.

Compliance to Avoid a Penalty: You observe the stricture because violating it would bring about a minor penalty.

Inviolable Law: You are absolutely incapable of defying the stricture.

Ideally, a supernatural stricture should, on rare occasions, force you to choose or avoid an action that most other characters would not give a second thought.

If you get lost at crossroads, you might have to wait for hours at a lonely intersection in the countryside for someone to come along and show you which way to go.

If you make domestic animals panic, you might find it impossible to ride a horse, and thus walk instead of ride when traveling overland.

"I'm sorry, but I may not cross this threshold without an invitation.

Won't you invite me in?"

FIENDISH FLAMEWREATH

By their very nature, a warlock's powers are unusual and unpredictable.

Some warlocks manifest a visible sign of their fiendish prowess, developing the ability to wreath themselves in burning flames to deal damage to attackers.

Giving up your fast healing means you're less capable of bouncing back after a fight, but the deterrence factor of the fiendish flamewreath alternative class feature might result in you taking less damage entirely.

Level: 8th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the fiendish resilience class feature normally gained at 8th level (or the improvements to that class feature gained at 13th and 18th level).

Benefit: Beginning at 8th level, you know the trick of fiendish flamewreath.

Once per day you can immolate yourself in wispy flames that don't hurt you but deal 1d6 points of fire damage to any creature striking you with its body or a handheld weapon.

Creatures wielding weapons with exceptional reach, such as longspears, are not subject to this damage if they attack you.

Activating your fiendish flamewreath is a free action; it lasts for 2 minutes or until you take another free action to end it. The flames provide light equivalent to a torch, but can't be extinguished except by you.

This is a supernatural ability.

At 13th level, your fiendish flamewreath deals 2d6 points of fire damage.

At 18th level, the damage improves to 5d6 points.

STARTING PACKAGES

SUPERNATURAL PENALTIES AND BONUSES

Talk with your DM about whether or not you should be subject to a penalty for breaking a stricture, and if so, what the right sort of penalty should be. Generally, a -1 penalty on caster level or saving throws for 24 hours is not unreasonable for breaking a stricture.

If you are liable to a penalty for your supernatural stricture, you are accepting a penalty that offers no benefit other than an

WARMAGE

Magic's application to warfare is more than an academic's theory—it is your life!

You dream of blasts of devastating magic, spells of steel, and the clarion horn calling the warriors to battle.

The stamp of marching troops is the sound dearest to your ears, though the blast of a fireball ripping through the ranks of massed line of enemies has its place.

You graduated near the top of your class from the war college, where every day you drilled in the dark predawn light, through the heat of the day, until the bugle played its nightly signal that today's training was done.

The magic of war is ingrained in you, and you ache to release it on the battlefield, or in a smaller skirmish where your skills will be all the more visible.

This class appears in the Complete Arcane supplement.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Gladiator, Noble Scion, Soldier.

Package 1: The Blaster

Halfling Warlock

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 13, Int 12, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Concentration, Knowledge (arcana), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Goblin, Halfling.

Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Weapons: Longspear (1d6/x3), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 28 gp.

Invocations: Least—eldritch blast, frightful blast.

Package 2: The Controller

Elf Warlock

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 13, Int 12, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Bluff, Concentration, Intimidate.

Languages: Common, Elven, Orc.

Feat: Necropolis Born (Complete Arcane).

Weapon: Morningstar (1d8).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 29 gp.

Invocations: Least—eldritch blast, miasmic cloud.

Package 3: The Problem Solver

Human Warlock

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 13, Int 12, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Bluff, Concentration, Spellcraft, Use Magic Device.

Languages: Common, Infernal.

Feats: Communicator (Complete Arcane), Skill Focus (Use Magic Device).

Weapons: Longspear (1d8/x3), morningstar (1d8), two daggers (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 20 gp.

Invocations: Least—devil's sight, eldritch blast.

interesting roleplaying hook. To balance this out, you should have a supernatural gift that occasionally provides a modest bonus (+1 bonus on caster level or saving throws for 24 hours). The gift should be something that is not under your control. For example, you might receive the benefit of your gift on the night of the new moon, during a thunderstorm, or when you carry a lock of hair from a man hanged for murder. Work with your DM to create a flavorful and appropriate gift for your warlock.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Challenger, Leader, Royalty, Strategist.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Foul-Tempered: A student of hard knocks, you are given to bouts of abusive or venomous language, though you pepper your speech with choice bits of invective even when you're not blaming a subordinate, censuring a compatriot, or expressing your bitter and deep-seated ill will regarding all that walk on two and four legs.

Though you've been known to swear a blue streak, you've also learned that using foul language is far more effective if rationed—a choice curse or shout at just the right moment has far more impact than a constant stream of epithets...though on occasion the situation calls for just such a string of slurs and imprecations.

You've also found that it helps company unity if you swear mostly at foes and restrain from applying your venomous tongue to your compatriots.

"What are you looking at, cave creeper?"

"Where to, chief?"

"Idiocy drips from the fool's mouth."

Military Heritage, High Rank: You come from a military tradition, having served either in the king's army or in a large, respected mercenary company.

You distinguished yourself and even achieved a reasonably high rank.

When you emerged from your war college you were commissioned as a company grade officer and thus began your service as a lieutenant, but soon advanced to captain. You still proudly wear the rank insignia of a captain, despite having been discharged from the company you originally served.

You wear the insignia as a shoulder patch.

Others who served recognize your insignia, and you recognize theirs.

Because of your military heritage, you are familiar with military jargon and make use of it, as well as elements of military strategy.

See the Military Heritage entry on page 58 under the scout character themes.

Military Historian: This character theme requires you to have at least 1 rank in Knowledge (history).

You are a student of conflict, an expert on the subject of the famous battles between prehistoric tribes, ancient militaries, and modern armies between kings and necromancers.

See the bard character theme of the same name on page 34. Tactician: While a military strategy is an overall plan for a large conflict, tactics are the actual means used to attain a goal in a particular fight.

As someone who achieved the rank of captain, you know effective tactics and like to employ them in a fight, depending on the situation.

Camouflage: When at all possible, you attempt to hide the presence of yourself and your party from potential enemies, hoping to discourage ranged weapon accuracy and targeting until you can close, or even completely hide from an enemy force until you are ready to attack.

"Change into your darkest clothes, and don't forget to rub charcoal across your faces."

Decoy: One of your favorite tactics is the use of a decoy.

Whether a spell that provides the illusion of a powerful heroic ally or a monster in your thrall, or just a loud noise or fabricated conversation, you use a decoy to distract a foe or foes from what is truly important—usually you and your group's true position and strength.

"We need the illusion of dragon charging their line—then we can sneak in around back."

Ambush: When possible, you prefer to attack your foes from concealment when they least expect such an assault.

Good options include striking from dense underbrush or firing ranged weapons from a high position.

"We have to establish a killing ground, position two groups to cut off any escape, and post someone to keep watch so we know when to launch the ambush."

Frontal Assault: Sometimes, the best tactic is a direct, hostile advance toward the foe.

The hope is to overwhelm the enemy with your strength. However, you know that it's rank stupidity to call for a frontal assault against a foe in a fortified position.

"We've run out of options."

Time for a suicide strike...er, frontal assault!"

Pincer Movement: If you are with a group large enough to pull it off, and if you're fighting a foe in numbers large enough for it to matter, you like to employ a tactic called the pincer movement, where you attack the massed flanks of the opponent simultaneously in a pinching motion after your foe has committed forward.

Your forces ideally respond by moving out to surround the foes.

"Surround them, envelop them, don't let any escape!"

Flying Wedge: In some ways like a frontal assault but more refined, a flying wedge is a charge where all your allies are arrayed in a V shape.

You put a bruiser at the point of the V, hoping to breach the foe's line; then the following attackers can widen the gap. This maneuver carries a certain risk: If the foe can slow or pause the wedge, you've given your foe an opportunity to try a pincer movement of its own.

"Beat him down, break the line, bowl them over!"

ECLECTIC LEARNING

Some warmages find the limited range of their spell selection chafing.

These characters yearn for the sorcerer's or wizard's utility spells, such as invisibility, dimension door, or even the humble detect magic.

While you will never have as wide an access to such spells as other arcane casters, the eclectic learning alternative class feature gives you at least a taste of what your fellow arcanists already enjoy (without significantly watering down your battlefield focus).

If you take this option, choose carefully which spells to learn.

Focus on spells that will remain useful as long as possible—while eagle's splendor might seem like a good choice at 6th level, by the time you can afford a good cloak of Charisma you might regret that earlier choice.

Level: 3rd, 6th, 11th, or 16th.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain the advanced learning class feature normally gained at a particular level.

The choice you make at one level has no bearing on the choice you make at a later level—you could choose eclectic learning at 3rd and 6th level, advanced learning at 11th level, and then eclectic learning again at 16th level.

Benefit: At 3rd, 6th, 11th, or 16th level, you can choose to add a new spell to your list that would normally be outside your area of expertise.

The spell must be a sorcerer/wizard spell, but it can be from any school.

The spell is treated as being one level higher than normal (for example, invisibility, a 2nd-level sorcerer/wizard spell, would be treated as a 3rd-level warmage spell for you).

You must be capable of casting spells of the new spell's adjusted level—for instance, you can't choose a 3rd-level sorcerer/wizard spell at 6th level, because the spell is treated as a 4th-level spell for you.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Battle Mage

Gnome Warmage

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 15, Int 12, Wis 8, Cha 15.

Skills: Concentration, Intimidate, Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Gnome, Goblin.

Feat: Battle Caster (Complete Arcane).

Weapon: Longspear (1d6/x3).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit.

Package 2: The Blaster

Human Warmage

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 13, Int 12, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Concentration, Intimidate, Knowledge (arcana), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Draconic.

Feats: Lightning Reflexes, Spell Focus (evocation).

Weapons: Spear (1d8/×3), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d8/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: Leather (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 1 gp.

Package 3: The Sharpshooter

Halfling Warmage

Ability Scores: Str 6, Dex 16, Con 13, Int 12, Wis 10, Cha 15.

Skills: Concentration, Spellcraft, Spot (cc).

Languages: Common, Elven, Halfling.

Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Weapons: Spear (1d8/×3), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d8/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: Leather (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 1 gp.

WIZARD

Given time enough, you hope to discover every secret of magic ever penned.

The arcane secrets of the world excite you like nothing else, and the discovery of a new tome, scroll, or magical treatise makes your heart skip a beat, your face flush, and your breath come quick.

Each new libram of spells you discover is another intellectual fortune, and the anticipation of what you'll find is nearly as satisfying as the actual identification of a spell wholly new to your library.

While you hate leaving your sanctum with its library and arcane equipment that you use to determine the magical secrets of magic items and artifacts, it is good to now and then venture from the laboratory and actually utter the incantations, hexes, and powerful spells that you prepare daily.

The craft you pursue is an art, and like any pursuit, it requires practice.

Suggested Backgrounds (choose one): Artisan, Ascetic, Noble Scion.

Suggested Personality Archetypes (choose one): Agent, Challenger, Crusader, Innocent, Mercenary, Renegade, Royalty, Sage, Seeker, Strategist, Theorist, Trickster.

CHARACTER THEMES

One or more of the following character themes could apply to you.

Doting Master: Your familiar is more than a mere adjunct of your power—it is your companion, friend, and confidant.

Whenever you eat, whether informally, or at an inn or even at a formal party, you always make certain that your familiar samples the best tasting portions of the meal.

You worry about your familiar's ability to stay warm, or at least fashionable, and so you've ordered a few custom pieces of clothing with which to outfit your familiar, including a vest, paw (or talon) gloves, and goggles.

Whether or not your familiar is smart enough to respond, you ask its opinion on weighty matters.

While you are immensely proud of your familiar, you cast a critical eye at the familiars of other wizards and arcanists who keep pets.

You know that your bond with your familiar, and better yet the skill your familiar displays, is a reflection of your worth. "Never mind them, Piggin."

We know we're right, even if they choose not to bow to our superior knowledge of things arcane."

"This pie is succulent!

Come, get a taste, Little Browning!

Where are you?"

"Look there, Tibb."

A raven!

So bedraggled, so thin.

Poor thing looks like it's on its last feathers, doesn't it?"

Evil Curious: You've always told yourself that you merely enjoy magic—who wouldn't?

It's the best thing about living, isn't it?

But you've recently realized that your impulse control might not be what it should when it comes to the discovery of new tomes and items.

No matter how evil the previous owner of the item or tome, you can't help but be curious about the spells within.

However, you also know that true evil is a lure that can cage your mind and will just as effectively as an illithid can, and it can consume all your good works and past accomplishments.

To avoid that fate, you constantly look for items and or spells that might serve as an "insulator" so that you can study evil tomes and items with some amount of spiritual protection.

You've heard that such spells exist, however fallible, and you intend to find them.

"I have safeguards to protect me against any influences beyond my own will!"

"We must understand this if we are going to learn what we need to defeat the threat!"

Knowledgeable: As a master wizard, steeped in the arts arcane, you know a lot about a lot, much of which is esoteric to your comrades unschooled in wizardry.

That is no reason not make regular use of your large and mysterious vocabulary in day-to-day conversation, or to reference various entities of great power and or wizardly significance when you are surprised or otherwise disturbed. You are also familiar with a great many tomes and don't mind referencing them in regular conversation, especially if you claim to have penned a few of your own.

"By the silver scales of the Denebic Water Dragon!"

"Just as the gaze of Shandalfar pierces any murk..."

"If the dread power of the Spell of Utter Ruination could be used as a measure..."

"If I knew the words to the Citrine Wall of Finality, things would be different here, but..."

"This path reminds me of the Twelve Unsolvables of the Demon King Tatharok."

"Oh ho!

You'd argue with the author of The Power of the Wizard—The Earth, The Planes, and the Magical Path to Enlightenment?"

"I don't hold too much with the mysticism infused with the spells discussed in Drawing Down the Moon, or any mysticism, really."

I'm more about the art, not the theory."

“Well, according to what I’ve read in Magical Monsters: A Bestiary of Fearsome Creatures...”

IMMEDIATE MAGIC

Other than having a single additional spell of each spell level, a specialist wizard functions like any other wizard. Your evoker’s fireball spell deals as much damage as that of a conjurer, diviner, or necromancer, and doesn’t look any different.

By taking the immediate magic alternative class feature, you gain a useful trick that sets you apart from other specialists.

Though giving up your familiar is a hardship, it means you have one less thing to worry about in a fight.

Level: 1st.

Replaces: If you select this class feature, you do not gain a familiar.

Benefit: You gain a spell-like ability that reflects your chosen school of magic.

Activating this ability is an immediate action, and you can use this spell-like ability a number of times per day equal to your Intelligence bonus (minimum 1).

Its equivalent spell level is equal to one-half your wizard level (minimum 1st), and the caster level is your wizard level.

The save DC (if any) is equal to 10 + 1/2 your wizard level + your Int modifier.

This is an extraordinary ability.

You can’t activate this ability in response to an attack that you aren’t aware of.

For instance, if an invisible rogue strikes at you, you can’t activate urgent shield to gain a bonus to your AC against the attack.

All effects last until the start of your next turn unless otherwise noted.

To select this ability, you must also choose to specialize in a school of magic.

The spell-like ability gained depends on your specialty (see below).

Urgent Shield (abjuration): You create a temporary shield of force that grants you a +2 shield bonus to AC.

Abrupt Jaunt (conjuration): You teleport up to 10 feet.

You can’t bring along any other creatures.

Glimpse Peril (divination): You get a flash of foresight into the danger lying in your future.

You gain a +2 insight bonus on the next saving throw you make before your next turn.

Instant Daze (enchantment): When an enemy that has HD equal to or less than your wizard level makes a melee attack against you, you can render him dazed (Will negates).

This is a compulsion, mindaffecting ability.

Counterfire (evocation): When a visible enemy within 60 feet targets you with a ranged attack or spell, you can respond with a glowing arrow of force.

This requires a ranged touch attack to hit and deals 1d6 points of damage per three wizard levels.

Both attacks resolve simultaneously (neither can disrupt the other).

Brief Figment (illusion): You create a figment double of yourself (similar to mirror image).

The image lasts until it is struck or until the start of your next turn.

Cursed Glance (necromancy): When a visible enemy within 60 feet targets you with an attack or spell, you can respond with a curse.

If the enemy fails a Will save, he takes a –2 penalty to AC and on saving throws.

Sudden Shift (transmutation): You temporarily change your form to grant yourself a climb, fly, or swim speed equal to your current land speed.

If you activate this ability during your turn, it lasts until the end of that turn; otherwise it lasts until the end of your next turn.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Blaster

Elf Wizard (Evoker)

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 15, Con 12, Int 15, Wis 12, Cha 10.

Skills: Concentration, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (the planes), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Draconic, Elven, Orc.

Feats: Scribe Scroll, Spell Focus (evocation).

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, spellbook, standard adventurer’s kit, 4 gp.

Spells Prepared: 1st—burning hands, magic missile, shield; 0—detect magic, light, ray of frost.

Spellbook: All 0-level spells plus burning hands, mage armor, magic missile, obscuring mist, shield.

Specialty School: Evocation (prohibited schools: enchantment, illusion).

Package 2: The Controller

Gnome Wizard (Enchanter)

Ability Scores: Str 6, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 15, Wis 10, Cha 14.

Skills: Bluff (cc), Concentration, Knowledge (local), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Draconic, Gnome, Goblin.

Feats: Scribe Scroll, Spell Focus (enchantment).

Weapons: Club (1d4), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d6/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, spellbook, standard adventurer’s kit, 3 gp.

Spells Prepared: 1st—charm person, sleep; 0—daze, light, read magic.

Spellbook: All 0-level spells plus charm person, expeditious retreat, silent image, sleep, shield.

Specialty School: Enchantment (prohibited schools: conjuration, necromancy).

Package 3: The Problem Solver

Human Wizard (Diviner)

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 15, Wis 12, Cha 10.

Skills: Concentration, Craft (alchemy), Decipher Script, Knowledge (arcana), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Draconic, Elven.

Feats: Combat Familiar, Grenadier, Scribe Scroll.

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6), dagger (1d4/19–20, 10 ft.), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d8/19–20, 80 ft.).

Armor: None.

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, spellbook, standard adventurer’s kit, 1 gp.

Spells Prepared: 1st—cause fear, comprehend languages, protection from evil; 0—detect magic, light, read magic.

Spellbook: All 0-level spells plus cause fear, comprehend languages, enlarge person, protection from evil, summon monster I.

Specialty School: Divination (prohibited school: evocation).

RACES OF DESTINY (3.5)

BARBARIAN

Most half-orcs are raised in harsh lands, far from civilization.

They tap into their inner anger and power to become devastating berserkers who charge into combat with relish. Those who grew up among orcs are particularly fond of huge, cleaving weapons that can reap terrible destruction. This substitution allows a half-orc barbarian to sacrifice some of his intuitive defenses to become more aggressive in combat.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a half-orc barbarian substitution level, a character must be a half-orc about to take his 2nd, 5th, or 7th level of barbarian.

CLASS SKILLS

Half-orc barbarian substitution levels have the class skills of the standard barbarian class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the half-orc barbarian racial substitution levels.

Reckless Charge (Su): At 2nd level, the half-orc barbarian gains a +4 bonus on attack rolls when making a charge, but takes a -4 penalty to AC.

These values replace the normal bonus and penalty accorded to a charging character.

This benefit replaces the standard barbarian's uncanny dodge ability.

If the barbarian would later gain improved uncanny dodge as a barbarian class feature, he gains uncanny dodge instead.

Insightful Rage (Ex): While raging, a half-orc barbarian of 5th level or higher gains a +4 bonus on Will saves to disbelieve illusion spells.

This benefit replaces the standard barbarian's improved uncanny dodge ability.

Two-Handed Strike (Ex): The half-orc barbarian focuses his combat talents toward massive, two-handed melee weapons.

At 7th level, the half-orc barbarian gains a +2 bonus on damage rolls with any two-handed melee weapon.

This benefit replaces the standard barbarian's damage reduction 1/- gained at 7th level.

From this point forward, the half-orc barbarian's damage reduction is treated as one point less than the noted value (1/- at 10th level, 2/- at 13th level, and so forth).

TABLE 6-5: HALF-ORC BARBARIAN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Reckless charge
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Insightful rage
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Two-handed strike

BARD

Blessed with a smooth grace and demeanor that many find appealing, the half-elf bard is a common sight.

The half-elf bard gives up some of her performance abilities to become more well versed in social interaction and negotiation.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a half-elf bard substitution level, a character must be a half-elf about to take her 1st, 6th, or 8th level of bard.

CLASS SKILLS

Half-elf bard substitution levels have the class skills of the standard bard class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the half-elf bard's racial substitution levels.

Soothing Voice (Su): A 1st-level half-elf bard with 3 or more ranks in Diplomacy can spend one daily use of her bardic music to use a composed, steady voice and reason to calm the emotions in others around her.

This ability works in much the same way as the half-elf bard's fascinate ability, with the following differences.

The creature to be soothed must be within 30 feet of the bard and must be able to understand the language she is speaking.

To use this ability, the half-elf bard makes a Diplomacy check.

Her check result is the DC for each affected creature's Will save against the effect.

On a success, the creature is affected as if by the calm emotions spell.

The effect lasts as long as the creature listens to the bard, although the creature may wander off on its own if there is nothing to keep its interest.

This benefit replaces the standard bard's ability of countersong.

Command (Sp): A 6th-level half-elf bard with at least 9 ranks in Diplomacy may spend one daily use of her bardic music to issue a command (as the spell) to a creature within 30 feet.

Alternatively, the command can affect all creatures that the bard has affected with her soothing voice or fascinate ability.

A Will saving throw (DC 11 + bard's Cha modifier) negates the effect.

This benefit replaces the standard bard's ability of suggestion. Secrets of the Diplomat: At 8th level, a half-elf bard adds the following spells to her spells known: 1st—command; 2nd—zone of truth; 4th—sending.

This benefit replaces the 4th-level spell learned by a standard bard at 8th level.

From now on, the bard knows one fewer 4th-level bard spell than normal (not counting the spells she learned from this substitution feature).

TABLE 6-2: HALF-ELF BARD RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Bardic music, bardic knowledge, fascinate , inspire courage +1, soothing voice	As standard bard
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Command	As standard bard
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+6	Secrets of the diplomat	As standard bard

CITY-BONDED (URBAN SOUL)

Urban souls who desire a deep connection to a specific city may take this substitution level instead of the 10th level of the urban soul prestige class.

For more information on substitution levels, see Chapter 6. Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The city-bonded substitution level grants the class skills of the urban soul prestige class plus Diplomacy and Sense Motive.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the city-bonded substitution level.

These three substitution benefits replace the 10th-level urban soul's citywalk ability; the character still receives the benefits of the citybred senses and hear the city class features.

City Bond (Su): This class feature offers greater power within your city in exchange for the flexibility to travel. As long as you remain within the boundaries of your chosen city, you do not age.

(If you leave the city, you age normally).

Your class features that depend on your being inside a city function only when you're within the boundaries of your chosen city.

This bond enables you to draw more strongly on the collective strength of the city, even if it's not the largest urban environment.

For the purposes of your class features, your chosen city is considered a metropolis, regardless of its actual size.

If your city's population drops below 5,000 inhabitants, you lose access to your class features until the population grows again.

Intracity Teleport (Sp): You can magically travel between any two points within your city at will.

This class feature functions like the greater teleport spell, except that it requires a full-round action, and both the origin and destination must be within your city.

Urban Renewal (Sp): As a city-bonded urban soul, the cityscape is yours to command.

You gain access to the following spell-like abilities: disintegrate (objects only), stone shape, and wall of stone.

You can use these abilities a total of five times per day, split up however you choose (two disintegrates and three walls of stone, for example).

Your caster level is equal to your urban soul level.

TABLE 5-9: THE CITY-BONDED URBAN SOUL HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
10th	+7	+7	+7	+3	Citybred senses +6, hear the city 2/day, city bond, intracity teleport , urban renewal

DRUID

While most orcs revere their primary deity, Gruumsh, others are drawn to the primal brutality of nature. Half-orc druids are noted for their brute strength and force of will, summoning animals that are more powerful than normal and fighting with impressive physical prowess. Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a half-orc druid substitution level, a character must be a half-orc about to take her 1st, 4th, or 6th level of druid.

CLASS SKILLS

Half-orc druid substitution levels have the class skills of the standard druid class, plus Intimidate.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the half-orc druid racial substitution levels.

Tough Animal Companion (Ex): The half-orc druid tends to attract physically powerful specimens.

Her animal companion gains Toughness as a bonus feat.
Bully Animal (Ex): Beginning at 4th level, when the half-orc druid uses her wild empathy ability, she adds her Strength modifier to the check instead of her Charisma modifier.

This benefit replaces the standard druid's resist nature's lure ability.

Augmented Nature's Allies (Su): Starting at 6th level, any animal summoned by a half-orc druid with a summon nature's ally spell gains a +4 bonus to Strength and Constitution.

These bonuses don't stack with those granted by the Augment Summoning feat.

This benefit replaces the standard druid's ability to use wild shape one additional time per day.

From this point on, the half-orc druid's number of daily wild shapes is reduced by one (2/day at 7th level, 3/day at 10th level, and so on).

TABLE 6-6: HALF-ORC DRUID RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Tough animal companion, nature sense, wild empathy	As standard druid
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Bully animal	As standard druid
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Augmented nature's allies	As standard druid

FIGHTER

Lacking the bonus feat of humans and the high Dexterity of elves, half-elf fighters are not particularly common. Those who do take up a life of the blade often become talkative swashbucklers who blend quick swordplay with a sharp tongue.

They seek to confuse and demoralize foes, rather than overcoming them with brute force.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a half-elf fighter substitution level, a character must be a half-elf about to take her 1st, 2nd, or 6th level of fighter.

CLASS SKILLS

Half-elf fighter substitution levels have the class skills of the standard fighter class, plus Bluff, Diplomacy, and Sense Motive.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the half-elf fighter racial substitution levels.

Blade Focus (Ex): The half-elf fighter focuses his combat talents on fighting with slender blades.

At 1st level, the half-elf fighter gains a +1 bonus on attack rolls with the longsword and rapier.

This bonus does not stack with the bonus from Weapon Focus, but is treated as the equivalent of Weapon Focus for the purposes of qualifying for feats, prestige classes, and so on that require the feat.

For example a half-elf fighter with this ability could take Weapon Specialization (rapier) without selecting Weapon Focus (rapier) as a separate feat.

This benefit replaces the standard fighter's 1st-level bonus feat.

Main-Gauche (Ex): At 2nd level, the half-elf fighter learns how to fight using a dagger in his off-hand in defense as well as offense.

The half-elf fighter is treated as having the Two-Weapon Fighting feat when wielding a longsword or rapier in one hand and a dagger in his other hand.

In addition, the half-elf fighter gains a +1 bonus to AC during any round that fights defensively while wielding weapons in this manner.

This bonus is treated as the equivalent of Two-Weapon Fighting for the purposes of qualifying for feats and prestige classes that require the feat.

This benefit replaces the standard fighter's 2nd-level bonus feat.

Confusing Banter (Ex): The 6th-level half-elf fighter combines defensive tactics with a stream of wordplay aimed at tricking his opponent into letting his guard down. Whenever a half-elf fighter fights defensively, he may attempt a Bluff or Diplomacy check as a free action, opposed by his opponent's Sense Motive check (the opponent may also add his base attack bonus on this check).

If the half-elf fighter wins, he gains a +2 bonus on attack rolls against that creature until the end of his next turn.

This ability only functions against creatures with Intelligence scores of 3 or higher.

It is a language-dependent, mind-affecting ability.

This benefit replaces the standard fighter's 6th-level bonus feat.

TABLE 6-3: HALF-ELF FIGHTER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Blade focus
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Main-gauche
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Confusing banter

PALADIN

At first glance, the concept of a half-orc paladin seems a contradiction in terms.

But those rare half-orcs with the necessary dedication to law and goodness become the most zealous protectors of righteousness.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a half-orc paladin substitution level, a character must be a half-orc about to take his 1st, 3rd, or 6th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Half-orc paladin substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class, except that Diplomacy is dropped and Intimidate is added.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the half-orc paladin racial substitution levels.

Righteous Fury (Ex): A half-orc paladin can fly into a fury of righteous fervor once per day, dealing powerful blows to his enemies.

Entering a righteous fury is a free action.

While in a righteous fury, the half-orc paladin gains a +2 morale bonus on melee weapon damage rolls.

This bonus increases by 1 for every four class levels, to +3 at 4th level, +4 at 8th level, up to a maximum of +7 at 20th level.

The half-orc remains in this fury for 1 round plus 1 round per point of Charisma bonus (minimum 1 round).

At 5th level, and at every five class levels thereafter, the half-orc paladin may enter this righteous fury one additional time per day.

This benefit replaces the standard paladin's smite evil ability.

A half-orc paladin who selects this substitution feature never gains any daily uses of smite evil.
 Aura of Awe (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a half-orc paladin is immune to fear (magical or otherwise).
 In addition, evil creatures within 10 feet of the character take a –2 penalty on saves against fear effects (or on checks made to resist his Intimidate attempts).
 This substitution feature replaces the base paladin's aura of courage ability.

Remove Fatigue (Sp): At 6th level, a half-orc paladin can remove the fatigued condition from all allies within a 30-foot burst centered on him.
 (This has no effect on exhausted allies).
 He can use this ability one additional time per week for every three levels after 6th (twice per week at 9th, three times per week at 12th, and so forth).
 This benefit replaces the standard paladin's remove disease ability.
 A half-orc paladin who selects this substitution feature never gains any weekly uses of remove disease.

TABLE 6–7: HALF-ORC PALADIN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect evil , righteous fury 1/day	As standard paladin
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of awe, divine health	As standard paladin
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Remove fatigue 1/week	As standard paladin

RANGER

Not all rangers spend their entire lives in the untamed wilds of the forests and hills. Some half-elves find a mix of rural and urban life to their taste, and temper their wilderness lore with the ability to interact well with a wide range of individuals. The half-elf ranger is the ultimate investigator and bounty hunter. She finds social skills just as important for survival as fighting prowess.
 Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a half-elf ranger substitution level, a character must be a half-elf about to take her 1st, 4th, or 13th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Half-elf ranger substitution levels have the class skills of the standard ranger class, plus Gather Information and Speak Language.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the half-elf ranger racial substitution levels.

Urban Tracking (Ex): The half-elf ranger gains Urban Tracking (see page 154) as a bonus feat.

An 8th-level ranger with Urban Tracking can cut the time required per Gather Information check to 30 minutes without taking the normal –5 penalty on the check. (This benefit augments, but does not replace, the standard 8th-level ranger class feature of swift tracker).

This benefit replaces the Track feat normally gained as a bonus feat by a standard 1st-level ranger.

Street Magic: At 4th level, a half-elf ranger adds the following spells to her class spell list: 1st—comprehend languages, detect secret doors, message; 2nd—detect thoughts, tongues; 3rd—phantom steed; 4th—dimension door.

A ranger who selects this substitution feature loses the following spells from her class spell list: 1st—detect animals or plants, detect snares and pits, entangle, summon nature's ally I; 2nd—snares, speak with plants, summon nature's ally II; 3rd—command plants, diminish plants, plant growth, summon nature's ally II, tree shape; 4th—commune with nature, summon nature's ally IV, tree stride.

Skill Mastery (Ex): At 13th level, a half-elf ranger becomes so certain in the use of certain skills that she can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

Upon gaining this ability, she selects a number of skills equal to 3 + her Intelligence modifier.

When making a skill check with one of these skills, she may take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent her from doing so.

This benefit replaces the standard ranger's camouflage ability.

TABLE 6–4: HALF-ELF RANGER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	1st favored enemy, Urban Tracking, wild empathy	As standard ranger
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Animal companion, street magic	As standard ranger
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+8	+4	Skill mastery	As standard ranger

RACES OF STONE (3.5)

BARBARIAN

The wild, tribal lifestyle of the goliath lends itself naturally to life as a barbarian.

Some goliath barbarians tap into the race's natural connection to the power of the mountains to gain increased strength and durability, but at the cost of some of the barbarian's traditional agility.

The goliath barbarian can choose three racial substitution levels: one at 1st level, one at 5th level, and the last at 7th level.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a goliath barbarian substitution level, a character must be a goliath about to take his 1st, 5th, or 7th level of barbarian.

CLASS SKILLS

Goliath barbarian substitution levels have the class skills of the standard barbarian class plus Knowledge (nature) (Int). Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the goliath barbarian's racial substitution levels.

Mountain Rage (Ex): A goliath barbarian who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level can tap into the mountain's strength to increase his size and power during a rage.

When he rages, his size category increases to Large.

(Although his size category increases by one step, the goliath barbarian's height only increases by a foot or so and his mass only increases by about 30–40%, so his equipment still fits normally).

This change increases the barbarian's space and reach to 10 feet and applies a –1 penalty on attack rolls and to AC.

However, he does not gain additional benefits on weapon size and grapple checks, since he already has them from his powerful build ability.

The goliath barbarian also gains an additional +2 bonus to his Strength when he enters his mountain rage.

Mountain rage replaces the standard barbarian's rage ability, and when a barbarian would normally gain extra uses of the rage ability per day, he instead gains extra uses of the mountain rage ability.

However, the barbarian gains these benefits in addition to the normal benefits and penalties of his rage (+4 Strength, +4 Constitution, +2 on Will saves, and –2 to AC).

The barbarian is also still fatigued for the duration of the encounter when his rage ends.

If the goliath barbarian's rage bonuses improve from other effects (such as greater rage), the extra Strength bonus from mountain rage stacks.

Fortification (Ex): A goliath barbarian who takes the 5th-level racial substitution level develops a tough hide that allows him extra protection against potentially devastating attacks.

When a critical hit or sneak attack is scored on a goliath barbarian with this substitution benefit, there is a 25% chance that the critical hit or sneak attack is negated and damage is instead rolled normally.

This benefit replaces the standard barbarian's improved uncanny dodge ability.

Skin of Stone (Ex): A goliath barbarian who takes the 7th-level racial substitution level gains the ability to shrug off some amount of injury from most attacks.

He gains damage reduction 2/adamantine.

At 10th level, and every three barbarian levels thereafter (13th, 16th, and 19th level), this damage reduction increases by 2 points.

This benefit replaces the standard barbarian's 7th-level damage reduction ability, as well as the damage reduction gained at higher levels.

TABLE 6–7: GOLIATH BARBARIAN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Mountain rage 1/day
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Fortification
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Skin of stone

BAR

Weavers of illusion and subtle masters of the sentient mind, gnome bards focus their talents toward abilities related to their racial strengths.

Their magic includes access to more illusions than other bards can master, and their bardic music is able to inspire or negate fear, as well as bolster allies' minds against outside influence.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a gnome bard substitution level, a character must be a gnome about to take his 1st, 3rd, 6th, or 11th level of bard.

CLASS SKILLS

Gnome bard substitution levels have the class skills of the standard bard class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the gnome bard's racial substitution levels.

Gnome Cantrips: A gnome bard who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level adds the following 0-level spells to his bard spells known: dancing lights, ghost sound, and prestidigitation.

This benefit replaces two of the cantrips a bard normally knows at 1st level.

Thus, a 1st-level gnome bard with this substitution level knows two cantrips of his choice plus the three mentioned here.

Counter Fear (Su): A gnome bard who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level and has 3 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use his music or poetics to counter magical effects that cause fear.

In each round when the bard uses his counter fear ability, he makes a Perform check.

Any ally within 30 feet of the bard (including the bard himself) that is affected by a fear effect can use the bard's Perform check result in place of its saving throw if, after the saving throw is rolled, the Perform check result proves to be higher.

If a creature within range of the counter fear effect is already under the influence of a fear effect, it gains another saving throw against the effect each round it hears the bard perform, but it must use the bard's Perform check result for the save.

Counter fear has no effect against effects that don't allow saves.

The bard can keep up the counter fear ability for 10 rounds. This substitution feature replaces the base bard's countersong bardic music ability.

Inspire Defiance (Su): A gnome bard who takes the 3rd-level racial substitution level and has 6 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use his music or poetics to help his allies (including himself) resist outside control and discern truth from illusion.

To be affected, an ally must be within 30 feet and able to hear the bard perform.

The effect lasts for as long as the ally hears the bard perform and for 5 rounds thereafter.

An affected ally receives a +2 circumstance bonus on saving throws against illusions and mind-affecting spells and effects.

This benefit replaces the standard bard's inspire competence bardic music ability.

Phantasmal Song (Su): A gnome bard who takes the 6th-level racial substitution level and has 9 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use music or poetics to create an eerie melody with phantasmal echoes in the minds of those who hear it.

While the music itself is unsettling, the phantasmal component is downright terrifying, with effects that build as the bard continues to play.

Enemy creatures within 30 feet of the bard who can hear the music become shaken (Will negates; DC 10 + 1/2 bard's level + bard's Cha modifier).

Any creature affected by phantasmal song (that is, who failed the initial Will save) that remains within range and hears the song for at least 3 consecutive rounds becomes frightened instead of shaken.

The effect lasts as long as the bard performs and for 1 round after he stops, or until the affected creature moves more than 30 feet from the gnome bard.

The effects of multiple phantasmal songs do not stack with one another.

Thus, a creature within the area of two phantasmal songs must save against both, but can still only become shaken on the first round even if it fails both saves.

However, a phantasmal song's effect can stack with other fear effects (such as from the cause fear spell).

See page 294 of the Dungeon Master's Guide for more information on fear effects.

Phantasmal song is an illusion (phantasm), mind-affecting fear effect.

This benefit replaces the standard bard's suggestion bardic music ability.

Secrets of Bardic Trickery: A gnome bard who takes the 11th-level racial substitution level adds the following spells to his spells known: 1st—color spray; 2nd—touch of idiocy; 4th—phantasmal killer.

This benefit replaces the standard bard's ability to learn a new 4th-level spell at 11th level and his ability to exchange a spell he knows for a new spell of the same level.

From now on, the gnome bard's number of 4th-level spells known is one fewer than the value shown on Table 3-5, page 28 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 6-4: GNOME BARD RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Bardic music, bardic knowledge, gnome cantrips, counter fear, fascinate , inspire courage +1	Same as bard
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Inspire defiance	Same as bard
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Phantasmal song	Same as bard
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+7	Secrets of bardic trickery	Same as bard

CLERIC

The dwarf cleric dedicates herself to her clan and the forge. She takes an active role in defending her people, often serving on the front lines of a battle.

In exchange for greater martial ability and power when casting spells of the earth, the cleric gives up her ability to turn or rebuke undead and some of her spellcasting prowess.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a dwarf cleric substitution level, a character must be a dwarf about to take her 1st, 4th, or 8th level of cleric.

CLASS SKILLS

Dwarf cleric substitution levels have the class skills of the standard cleric class plus Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the dwarf cleric's racial substitution levels.

Smite Giants (Su): A dwarf cleric who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level can attempt to smite a giant with a melee attack, similar to the way a paladin smites an evil creature.

She adds her Constitution bonus (if any) to her attack roll and deals an extra 1 point of damage per cleric level.

The cleric can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 1 + her Con modifier (minimum once per day).

If the cleric accidentally smites a creature that is not a giant, the smite has no effect but still counts as one of the cleric's daily smite attempts.

This substitution benefit replaces the standard cleric's ability to turn or rebuke undead.

Hammer Specialist (Ex): A dwarf cleric's dedication to the forge-god results in exceptional skill with the warhammer.

A dwarf cleric who takes the 4th-level racial substitution level gains the Martial Weapon Proficiency (warhammer) feat (if she doesn't already have it).

She also gains a +2 bonus on damage rolls when wielding a warhammer in melee.

This racial substitution level is only available to dwarf clerics who follow Moradin (or any other deity whose favored weapon is a warhammer).

This benefit replaces the 2nd-level spell slot gained by a standard cleric at 4th level.

From now on, the cleric can prepare one fewer 2nd-level cleric spell than indicated on Table 3-6, page 31 of the Player's Handbook.

Earthen Spell Power (Ex): A dwarf cleric who takes the 8th-level racial substitution level draws power from the earth when casting certain spells.

When she is in contact with the ground, the cleric's effective caster level when casting spells with the earth descriptor (or any spell from the Earth domain, such as stoneskin) increases by one.

This increase applies when determining level-dependent spell variables and on caster level checks.

This increase stacks with other spell power abilities, such as from the hierophant prestige class.

This benefit replaces the 4th-level spell slot gained by a standard cleric at 8th level.

From now on, the cleric can prepare one fewer 4th-level cleric spell than indicated on Table 3–6, page 31 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 6–1: DWARF CLERIC RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Smite giants
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Hammer specialist
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	Earthen spell power

DRUID

The goliath race venerates nature in its various forms, and druids are the most prominent spellcasters, divine or otherwise, among goliath tribes.

Goliath druids forge particularly strong bonds with the earth and stone of their environment, granting them and their animal companions unusual powers related to elemental earth.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a goliath druid substitution level, a character must be a goliath about to take her 1st, 6th, or 12th level of druid.

CLASS SKILLS

Goliath druid substitution levels have the class skills of the standard druid class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 4 + Int modifier (or four times this quantity as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the goliath druid's racial substitution levels.

Elemental Bond (Ex): A goliath druid who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level forges a bond with the Elemental Plane of Earth, allowing her to summon more or more powerful earth creatures than normal.

When casting a summon nature's ally spell to summon a creature with the earth subtype, the goliath druid may treat the spell as if it were the next-higher-level version of that spell.

This benefit allows her to summon a single more powerful creature than she might otherwise be able to summon, or more of the same type of creature that she could normally summon.

For example, a goliath druid who casts summon nature's ally I could summon a single Small earth elemental (as if she had cast summon nature's ally II).

When casting summon nature's ally V, the druid could summon one Huge earth elemental, one average xorn, 1d3 Large earth elementals, or 1d4+1 Medium earth elementals or minor xorns (as if she had cast summon monster VI).

A goliath druid with this ability who casts summon nature's ally IX can summon two elder earth elementals (instead of one).

A goliath druid who selects this substitution level permanently gives up her ability to summon creatures that have the air, fire, or water subtype.

Earth Companion (Ex): A goliath druid who takes the 6th-level racial substitution level can imbue her animal companion with the power of elemental earth.

The animal companion's Strength increases by 2, and its Dexterity is reduced by 2.

Its natural armor bonus increases by 3.

It gains a burrow speed of 10 feet (or, if it has a burrow speed, that speed increases by 10 feet).

The companion gains the earth mastery extraordinary ability (+1 bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls if both it and its foe touch the ground; if an opponent is airborne or waterborne, the earth companion takes a –4 penalty on attack rolls and damage rolls).

It also gains damage reduction 5/magic as an extraordinary ability.

The companion's type doesn't change, but it gains the earth subtype.

If a goliath druid replaces her animal companion with a new one, she can apply this effect to the new companion, but only if the reduction in her effective druid level reduction would not make the new companion unavailable to her.

The previous companion loses the special abilities when it leaves the druid.

For the purpose of determining her animal companion's bonus Hit Dice, special abilities, and so on, the effective level of the goliath druid who selects this substitution level is reduced by three, per the Alternate Animal Companions table on page 36 of the Player's Handbook.

Wild Shape (Earth) (Su): A goliath druid who takes the 12th-level racial substitution level can use her wild shape ability to change into an earth elemental with the same size restriction as for animal forms.

The druid's maximum HD limit when taking earth elemental form (either with this ability or with her wild shape [elemental] ability gained at 16th level) is equal to her druid level +1.

This benefit replaces the standard druid's 12th-level wild shape (plant) ability.

TABLE 6–8: GOLIATH DRUID RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Animal companion, elemental bond, nature sense, wild empathy	same as druid
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Earth companion, wild shape 2/day	same as druid
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Wild shape (earth)	same as druid

FIGHTER

The prototypical image of dwarfhood is the heavily armored fighter.

Many dwarves pursue this class, and most multiclass dwarves have at least a single level of fighter to augment their abilities.

The dwarf fighter gives up versatility to specialize in the arts of war most needed in dwarf communities.

He focuses on traditional fighting styles and takes advantage of the dwarf's lack of mobility.

Hit Die: d12.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a dwarf fighter substitution level, a character must be a dwarf about to take his 1st, 2nd, or 8th level of fighter.

CLASS SKILLS

Dwarf fighter substitution levels have the class skills of the standard fighter class plus Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the dwarf fighter's racial substitution levels.

Axe Focus (Ex): A dwarf fighter who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level focuses his combat talents on axe-fighting.

He gains a +1 bonus on attack rolls with the following weapons: battleaxe, dwarven waraxe, greataxe, handaxe, throwing axe, and the axe head of a dwarven urgrosh.

(At the DM's option, this bonus might also apply to the new axe-related weapons featured in Chapter 7).

This bonus does not stack with the bonus from Weapon Focus, but it is treated as the equivalent of Weapon Focus for the purpose of qualifying for feats, prestige classes, and anything else that requires that feat.

For example, a dwarf fighter with this ability could take Weapon Specialization (battleaxe) without selecting Weapon Focus (battleaxe) as a separate feat.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard 1st-level fighter.

Racial Foes (Ex): A dwarf fighter who takes the 2nd-level racial substitution level specializes in battling his race's common enemies.

He gains a +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls against orcs, goblinoids, and giants.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard 2nd-level fighter.

Heavy Armor Expertise (Ex): A dwarf fighter who takes the 8th-level racial substitution level becomes as one with his heavy armor.

When wearing heavy armor, he gains a +1 bonus to his AC. This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard 8th-level fighter.

TABLE 6-2: DWARF FIGHTER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Axe focus
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Racial foes
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Heavy armor expertise

ILLUSIONIST

Gnomes are inherently drawn to the magic of illusion, and most gnome wizards choose to specialize in that school.

As a gnome illusionist advances in level, her intimate familiarity with illusions allows her to cast certain illusion spells more easily than other wizards, to cast illusions that last longer than normal, and to make her spells harder to detect and dispel.

These abilities make gnome illusionists the subtlest of all their kind and—some would argue—the most effective.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a gnome illusionist substitution level, a character must be a gnome about to take her 1st, 5th, or 10th level of illusionist.

CLASS SKILLS

Gnome illusionist substitution levels have the class skills of the standard wizard class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the gnome illusionist's racial substitution levels.

Gnome Illusion Spells: A gnome illusionist who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level uses her wizard level as the caster level for her racial spell-like abilities.

In addition, she can prepare and cast the following illusion spells at the indicated spell level, rather than at their normal spell level: 0 level: silent image, ventriloquism 1st level: Leomund's trap, minor image 2nd level: illusory script, major image 3rd level: illusory wall 4th level: persistent image 5th level: programmed image

In exchange for this benefit, a gnome illusionist must choose one of the following schools of magic from which she can cast spells (in other words, one that she has not given up access to as the price for specializing in illusion): evocation, transmutation, or conjuration.

The gnome illusionist's effective caster level for spells of this school is equal to her actual caster level minus one.

At 1st level, she cannot cast any spells from the selected school.

Extended Illusions (Su): A gnome illusionist who takes the 5th-level racial substitution level gains the ability to create illusions that last longer than normal.

When she casts any illusion spell that has a duration other than instantaneous, the duration of the spell is doubled.

A spell with a duration of concentration lasts for the duration of the illusionist's concentration plus 1d4 rounds.

A spell with a duration of concentration plus a certain increment of time lasts for the duration of the illusionist's concentration plus double that increment of time.

Thus, a mirror image spell cast by a 10th-level gnome illusionist lasts for 20 minutes, a silent image spell lasts for the duration of the caster's concentration plus 1d4 rounds, a minor image spell lasts for the duration of the caster's concentration plus 4 rounds, and a mirage arcana lasts for the duration of her concentration plus 20 hours.

This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard wizard at 5th level, as well as the two spells a standard 5th-level wizard learns for free.

Insidious Illusions (Su): A gnome illusionist who takes the 10th-level racial substitution level can cast illusion spells that are harder for other creatures to detect or pierce.

When any creature employs a divination spell, spell-like ability, or magic item (such as detect magic or true seeing) that would detect or pierce an illusion spell cast by the gnome illusionist, that creature must make a caster level check (DC 11 + the gnome illusionist's caster level) to successfully detect or pierce the illusion.

The detecting creature can check only once for each divination spell or effect used, no matter how many of the gnome illusionist's illusion spells are operating in an area. This benefit replaces the bonus feat gained by a standard wizard at 10th level, as well as the two spells a standard 10th-level wizard learns for free.

TABLE 6-5: GNOME ILLUSIONIST RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Gnome illusion spells	Same as illusionist
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Extended illusions	Same as illusionist
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Insidious illusions	Same as illusionist

RANGER

Hampered to some extent by her size, the gnome ranger learns to play off her other strengths.

By embracing her connection to burrowing animals, the gnome ranger can attract an animal companion that can support her in combat.

Against her favored enemies, she favors tactics of stealth more than interaction, and she truly shines when she chooses the traditional foes of her race as favored enemies. Her magic likewise draws on her racial abilities, allowing her to cast illusions unavailable to most rangers.

The combination of these abilities makes the gnome ranger a fearsome ambusher who fights with the ferocity of the badger.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a gnome ranger substitution level, a character must be a gnome about to take her 1st, 4th, or 8th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Gnome ranger substitution levels have the class skills of the standard ranger class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the gnome ranger's racial substitution levels.

Gnome Favored Enemy (Ex): A gnome ranger who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level may select a type of creature from among those given on Table 3-14: Ranger Favored Enemies, page 47 of the Player's Handbook.

Due to her extensive study of her chosen type of foe and training in the proper techniques for combating such creatures, she gains a +2 bonus on Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Survival checks when using these skills against creatures of this type.

Likewise, she gets a +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls against such creatures.

If the gnome ranger chooses humanoid (goblinoid), humanoid (reptilian), or giant as her favored enemy, both bonuses rise to +3.

At 5th level and every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, and 20th level), the ranger may select an additional favored enemy from those given on the table.

In addition, at each such interval, the bonus against any one favored enemy (including the one just selected, if so desired) increases by 2.

For example a 5th-level gnome ranger has two favored enemies; against one she gains a +4 bonus on Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Survival checks and weapon damage rolls, and against the other she has a +2 bonus.

At 10th level, she has three favored enemies, and she gains an additional +2 bonus, which she can allocate to the bonus against any one of her three favored enemies.

Thus her bonuses could be either +4, +4, +2 or +6, +2, +2.

If the gnome ranger selected humanoid (goblinoid), humanoid (reptilian), or giant as one of her favored enemies, the bonus on Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Survival checks and weapon damage rolls increases by 3 instead of 2.

If the ranger chooses humanoids or outsiders as a favored enemy, she must also choose an associated subtype, as indicated on the table on page 47 of the Player's Handbook.

If a specific creature falls into more than one category of favored enemy (for instance, devils are both evil outsiders and lawful outsiders), the ranger's bonuses do not stack; she simply uses whichever bonus is higher.

See the Monster Manual for more information on types of creatures.

This benefit replaces the standard ranger's 1st-level favored enemy class feature.

Burrowing Animal Companion (Ex): If a gnome ranger takes the 4th-level racial substitution level and chooses a badger, dire badger, or wolverine as her animal companion (or any other mammalian animal with a burrowing speed), her effective druid level equals 1/2 her ranger level + 3, instead of 1/2 her ranger level.

(If she chooses a dire badger or a wolverine, her effective druid level is still reduced by 3, per the Alternate Animal Companions table on page 36 of the Player's Handbook).

In addition, she can use her racial speak with animals ability to speak with her animal companion at will.

This benefit replaces the standard ranger's ability to share spells with her animal companion.

Gnome Ranger Spells: A gnome ranger who takes the 8th-level racial substitution level adds blur, invisibility, and misdirection to the list of 2nd-level ranger spells she can prepare and cast.

These spells replace barkskin, snare, and wind wall on the ranger spell list.

Although she cannot cast them yet, she also adds greater invisibility and phantasmal killer to her list of 4th-level ranger spells.

These spells replace commune with nature and tree stride on the ranger spell list.

TABLE 6-6: GNOME RANGER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Gnome favored enemy, Track, wild empathy	Same as ranger
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Burrowing animal companion	Same as ranger
8th	+8/+3	+6	+6	+2	Gnome ranger spells	Same as ranger

ROGUE

Although the ponderous goliath might seem ill suited to the stealthy life of a rogue, tribes rely on rogue scouts to help them survive in their hostile environments. Goliath rogues embrace their people's toughness and durability in exchange for some of the rogue's traditional agility.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a goliath rogue substitution level, a character must be a goliath about to take her 2nd, 3rd, or 8th level of rogue.

CLASS SKILLS

Goliath rogue substitution levels have the class skills of the standard rogue class plus Survival (Wis).

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the goliath rogue's racial substitution levels.

Mettle of Mountains (Ex): A goliath rogue who takes the 2nd-level racial substitution level has durability that allows her to shrug off magical effects that would otherwise harm her.

She gains a +4 bonus on her Fortitude saves.

If the goliath rogue makes a successful Fortitude saving throw that would normally reduce a spell's effect, she suffers no effect from the spell at all.

Only those spells with a Saving Throw entry of "Fortitude partial", "Fortitude half", or similar entries can be negated through this ability.

If the goliath rogue later gains improved evasion as a rogue special ability, her mettle of mountains ability improves instead.

Now, while she still suffers no effect on a successful Fortitude saving throw against a spell or ability as described above, a failed Fortitude save results in the effect that a successful Fortitude save would normally bring about.

For instance, a goliath rogue would take no damage from a disintegrate spell if she succeeded on her Fortitude save, and would only take 5d6 points of damage if she failed the save. This benefit replaces the standard rogue's 2nd-level evasion ability.

Wild Sense (Ex): A goliath rogue who takes the 3rd-level racial substitution level becomes more in tune with her natural surroundings.

She gains a +1 bonus on Knowledge (nature) checks and Survival checks in aboveground natural environments.

This bonus increases to +2 when the goliath rogue reaches 6th level, to +3 when she reaches 9th level, to +4 when she reaches 12th level, to +5 at 15th level, and to +6 at 18th level.

This benefit replaces the standard rogue's 3rd-level trap sense ability, as well as the higher-level improvements of the ability.

Fortification (Ex): A goliath rogue who takes the 8th-level racial substitution level develops a tough hide that allows her extra protection against potentially devastating attacks. When a critical hit or sneak attack is scored on a goliath rogue with this substitution benefit, there is a 25% chance that the critical hit or sneak attack is negated and damage is instead rolled normally.

This benefit replaces the standard rogue's 8th-level improved uncanny dodge ability.

TABLE 6-9: GOLIATH ROGUE RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Mettle of mountains
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Sneak attack +2d6, wild sense +1
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+2	Fortification

SORCERER

In most dwarf communities, sorcerers are relatively rare. Dwarves don't tend to have the force of personality required for top-notch sorcerers; thus they often prefer wizardry instead.

However, a dwarf sorcerer can tap into other reservoirs of power—including the very earth itself—to enhance his arcane aptitude.

To do this, he gives up some of his versatility, but the power gained is substantial.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a dwarf sorcerer substitution level, a character must be a dwarf about to take his 1st, 5th, or 9th level of sorcerer.

CLASS SKILLS

Dwarf sorcerer substitution levels have the class skills of the standard sorcerer class plus Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the dwarf sorcerer's racial substitution levels.

Arcane Earthbond (Su): A dwarf sorcerer who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level can draw power and support from an arcane bond he forges with the earth.

Doing so takes 24 hours and uses up magic materials that cost 100 gp.

The arcane earthbond ability grants a dwarf sorcerer the Alertness feat whenever he is in contact with the ground. He also enjoys damage reduction 1/adamantine when in contact with the ground.

This benefit replaces the standard sorcerer's ability to gain a familiar.

If the dwarf gains a familiar from another class (such as wizard), his sorcerer levels don't stack to determine the familiar's abilities.

Power of Stone (Su): A dwarf sorcerer who takes the 5th-level racial substitution level learns to channel his spell power through the earth.

As long as both he and his target are touching the ground, the range of any spell he casts that targets or affects that creature or object is increased by 50%, and the save DC for the spell increases by 1.

If the spell targets multiple creatures or objects, all the targets must be touching the ground for the sorcerer to gain the benefits of this ability.

This benefit replaces the standard sorcerer's ability to learn a new 2nd-level spell at 5th level.

From now on, the dwarf sorcerer's number of 2nd-level spells known is one fewer than the value shown on Table 3-17, page 54 of the Player's Handbook.

Earth Meditation (Ex): A dwarf sorcerer who takes the 9th-level racial substitution level learns to focus his meditations on the quiet power of the earth beneath him.

If the dwarf sorcerer spends his 8 hours of rest and 15 minutes of concentration to prepare spells while in contact with the ground, he can add his Constitution bonus (if any) to his Charisma score to determine his bonus sorcerer spell slots.

This benefit replaces the standard sorcerer's ability to learn a new 4th-level spell at 9th level.

From now on, the dwarf sorcerer's number of 4th-level spells known is one fewer than the value shown on Table 3-17, page 54 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 6-3: DWARF SORCERER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Arcane earthbond
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Power of stone
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Earth meditation

RACES OF THE DRAGON (3.5)

BARD

Despite their inclination for sorcery, spellscapes make excellent bards, exploiting their racial affinity for arcane magic and superior charm.

However, knowledge of arcane mysteries remains an important part of a spellscale bard's abilities.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a spellscale bard substitution level, a character must be a spellscale about to take his 1st, 3rd, or 6th level of bard.

CLASS SKILLS

Spellscale bard substitution levels have the class skills of the standard bard class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the spellscale bard racial substitution levels.

Draconic Bardic Knowledge (Ex): A spellscale bard has special interest in events, items, and individuals important to dragons.

Upon taking the 1st-level racial substitution level, a spellscale bard's keen interest in dragon lore grants him a +5 competence bonus on any bardic knowledge check related to dragons, so long as he maintains a number of ranks in Knowledge (arcana) equal to or greater than his bard class level.

Inspire Arcana (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a spellscale bard can spend one daily use of bardic music to make a single allied arcane spellcaster more powerful.

To use this ability, a spellscale bard must have 3 or more ranks in Perform and a number of ranks in Knowledge (arcana) equal to or greater than his bard class level.

The ally must be within 30 feet of and able to see and hear the spellscale bard, and the bard must be able to see the ally. As long as the chosen arcane spellcaster continues to hear the bard's performance, she casts her arcane spells with a +1 bonus to her caster level.

The effect lasts as long as the spellscale bard concentrates, up to a maximum of 2 minutes.

A bard can't inspire arcana upon himself.

Inspire arcana is a mindaffecting ability.

This substitution feature replaces the standard bard's inspire competence class feature.

Superior Suggestion (Sp): A spellscale bard who takes the 6th-level racial substitution level draws on his knowledge of his sorcerous ancestors to enhance his suggestion ability. So long as he maintains a number of ranks in Knowledge (arcana) equal to or greater than his bard class level, a spellscale bard gains a +2 bonus on the save DC whenever he uses his suggestion bardic music ability.

This substitution feature augments the standard bard's suggestion class feature, and it replaces the 2nd-level spell slot gained by a standard bard at 6th level.

From 6th level on, a spellscale bard who takes this substitution level can cast one less 2nd-level spell per day than shown on Table 3-4 (PH 27).

TABLE 6-12: SPELLSCALE BARD RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Spellcasting
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Bardic music, draconic bardic knowledge, countersong, fascinate , inspire courage +1	Same as bard
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Inspire arcana	Same as bard
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Superior suggestion	One less 2nd-level spell; see text

CLERIC

Dragonblood creatures are naturally inclined toward arcane magic.

Some hear the call of a deity, however, and become clerics instead.

Dragonblood clerics focus on the elemental affinities of their draconic bloodline.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a dragonblood cleric substitution level, a character must have the dragonblood subtype and be about to take her 1st, 5th, or 9th level of cleric.

CLASS SKILLS

Dragonblood cleric substitution levels have the class skills of the standard cleric class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the dragonblood cleric racial substitution levels.

Notes: The following substitution level class features require the dragonblood cleric to select one energy type from among acid, cold, electricity, fire, and sonic.

The energy type must be the same for all these substitution features.

A half-dragon who takes one or more of these substitution levels must choose the energy type that matches her breath weapon (if possible).

If a half-dragon cleric's breath weapon doesn't have an energy type, she can choose any energy type so long as it is the same for all substitution level class features.

A dragonblood cleric who doesn't take the 1st-level racial substitution level can expend turn undead uses in place of turn energy uses if she takes the 5th- or 9th-level racial substitution levels.

Turn Energy (Su): Starting at 1st level, a dragonblood cleric can channel the elemental power of dragons to grant her and her allies protection from energy a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Charisma modifier.

Using this ability is a standard action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

The cleric and all allies within 30 feet gain temporary immunity to the specified energy type.

Each protected ally remains immune until the effect protects him from 5 points of energy damage per cleric level, after which the effect is discharged for that ally.

If it is not discharged, the benefit of the effect fades after 1 minute per cleric level.

The cleric can exclude herself and any allies she chooses from the effect.

Turn energy overlaps and does not stack with the effect of the resist energy spell.

If a character is warded by both this effect and resist energy, this effect absorbs damage until it is discharged.

Turn energy stacks with the effect of the protection from energy spell.

This substitution level class feature replaces the standard cleric's turn or rebuke undead class feature.

For a dragonblood cleric, turn energy counts as turn or rebuke undead for the purpose of meeting prerequisites for feats, prestige classes, and so on.

Energy Barrier (Su): A dragonblood cleric who takes the 5th-level racial substitution level can expend one of her turn energy (or turn undead) uses for the day to create a wall of energy.

This ability functions like the benefit of the Exhaled Barrier feat (see page 101), except as noted below.

Any creature passing through the wall takes 1d6 points of energy damage per two cleric levels the dragonblood cleric possesses.

If the cleric creates the wall so that it appears where creatures are, each creature takes damage as if passing through the wall.

Either way, a successful Reflex save (DC 10 + 1/2 the cleric's class level + her Con modifier) halves this damage.

This substitution feature replaces the 3rd-level spell slot gained by a standard cleric at 5th level.

From 5th level on, a dragonblood cleric who takes this substitution level can prepare one less 3rd-level spell per day than shown on Table 3-6 (PH 31).

Energy Sustenance (Su): A dragonblood cleric who takes the 9th-level racial substitution level can expend one of her turn energy (or turn undead) uses for the day to gain the benefit of energy sustenance.

The energy type selected for this ability can now heal the cleric.

To use energy sustenance, the cleric expends a turn energy use as an immediate action when she is subjected to an attack that deals energy damage of the specified type.

If she does so, she heals 1 point of damage for every 3 points of damage the attack would otherwise deal.

If the amount of healing would cause the cleric to exceed her full normal hit points, she gains any excess as temporary hit points that last for up to 1 hour.

When a dragonblood cleric uses this ability, she willingly fails any saving throw against the incoming energy effect.

This substitution feature replaces the 5th-level spell slot gained by a standard cleric at 9th level.

From 9th level on, a dragonblood cleric who takes this substitution level can prepare one less 5th-level spell per day than shown on Table 3-6 (PH 31).

TABLE 6-6: DRAGONBLOOD CLERIC RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Turn energy	Same as cleric
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Energy barrier	One less 3rd-level spell; see text
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Energy sustenance	One less 5th-level spell; see text

FIGHTER

Kobold fighters train to master the use of the spear, the traditional weapon of kobolds.

They forego learning how to use some armor in exchange for learning to dodge attacks.

Kobold fighters exercise arduously throughout their careers, striving to overcome some of the physical deficiencies they inherit as kobolds.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a kobold fighter substitution level, a character must be a kobold about to take his 1st, 2nd, or 4th level of fighter.

CLASS SKILLS

Kobold fighter substitution levels have the class skills of the standard fighter class, plus Profession (miner) and Search.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the kobold fighter racial substitution levels.

Spear Focus (Ex): A 1st-level kobold fighter focuses his combat talents on spear fighting.

He gains a +1 bonus on attack rolls with the following weapons: longspear, shortspear, and spear.

At the DM's option, this bonus might also apply to other spearlike weapons.

This bonus does not stack with the bonus from Weapon Focus, but it is treated as the equivalent of Weapon Focus for qualifying for feats, prestige classes, and anything else that requires that feat.

A kobold fighter who has this ability could take Weapon Specialization (spear) without selecting Weapon Focus (spear) as a separate feat.

This substitution feature replaces the standard fighter's 1st-level bonus feat and medium armor proficiency.

Dodge (Ex): A kobold fighter who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level gains Dodge as a bonus feat.

This substitution feature replaces the standard fighter's heavy armor proficiency.

Constitution Boost (Ex): At 2nd level, a kobold fighter increases his Constitution score by 2 points.

This substitution feature replaces the standard fighter's bonus feat gained at 2nd level.

Strength Boost (Ex): A kobold fighter who takes the 4th-level racial substitution level increases his Strength score by 2 points.

This substitution feature replaces the standard fighter's bonus feat gained at 4th level.

TABLE 6-9: KOBOLD FIGHTER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Spear focus, Dodge
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Constitution boost (Con +2)
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Strength boost (Str +2)

PALADIN

Lawful good dragonborn often become paladins.

The class is in harmony with their dedicated nature to sanctify themselves through honorable service in the Dragonfall War.

Many of the paladin's abilities make a dragonborn character extraordinarily well suited for fighting the spawn of Tiamat.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

A dragonborn paladin normally takes substitution levels at 1st level and when she would take her 4th and 5th paladin levels.

However, a paladin who becomes a dragonborn later in her career can choose to retroactively take any or all dragonborn paladin substitution levels as replacements for class levels she has already gained.

CLASS SKILLS

Dragonborn paladin substitution levels have the class skills of the standard paladin class, plus Knowledge (arcana).

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the dragonborn paladin racial substitution levels.

Detect Dragonblood (Sp): A 1st-level dragonborn paladin can use detect dragonblood at will.

This is a divination effect similar to a detect evil spell, except that it detects dragonblood creatures of any alignment.

A dragonborn paladin can scan a 60-degree arc each round.

By concentrating for 1 round, she knows if any dragonblood creatures are within the arc; concentrating for 2 rounds reveals the exact number of such creatures; and concentrating for 3 rounds reveals their exact locations.

This ability is the equivalent of a 2nd-level spell.

This substitution feature replaces the standard paladin's detect evil class feature.

Bahamut's Blessing (Su): At 4th level, a dragonborn paladin who uses her smite evil ability against evil dragons and dragonbloods gains an additional +2 bonus on the attack roll.

She also deals 1 extra point of damage per two paladin levels.

For example, a 13th-level dragonborn paladin with a 20 Strength and armed with a +2 longsword deals 1d8+26 points of damage when using smite evil against an evil dragonblood (+13 from normal smite evil, +6 from Bahamut's blessing, +5 from Str, and +2 from the longsword).

This substitution feature replaces the standard paladin's turn undead ability.

Fearless Special Mount (Sp): A 5th-level dragonborn paladin's special mount is immune to the frightful presence of dragons, in addition to having the standard qualities of a special mount.

This substitution feature replaces the improvement in base attack bonus normally gained by a 5th-level paladin.

From 5th level on, a dragonborn paladin's base attack bonus is 1 lower than that of a standard paladin of her level.

TABLE 6–8: DRAGONBORN PALADIN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect dragonblood , smite evil 1/day	Same as paladin
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Bahamut's blessing	Same as paladin
5th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Fearless special mount, smite evil 2/day	Same as paladin

RANGER

Kobold rangers are not deterred by their size, forging lifelong relationships with their preferred dire weasel companions, who more than make up for their masters' physical shortcomings.

A kobold ranger is a sentinel for her tribe, riding the fringes of her lands in search of enemies and threats. Nothing slows a kobold ranger in pursuit of prey.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a kobold ranger substitution level, a character must be a kobold about to take her 1st, 4th, or 7th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Kobold ranger substitution levels have the class skills of the standard ranger class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the kobold ranger racial substitution levels.

Kobold Favored Enemy (Ex): A kobold ranger who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level gains the normal ranger favored enemy bonus on checks and damage rolls, but the skills affected by the bonus are Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Survival instead of those given for the standard ranger.

If a kobold ranger selects fey, humanoid (dwarf), or humanoid (gnome) as her favored enemy, she gains a +3 bonus against the chosen creature type instead of the standard +2.

Bonuses against such creatures also increase by 3 every time the kobold ranger gains a new favored enemy, instead of the standard +2 increase.

This substitution feature replaces but is otherwise identical to the standard ranger's favored enemy class feature (PH 47).

Dire Weasel Companion (Ex): A kobold ranger who takes the 4th-level racial substitution level gains a dire weasel animal companion.

This ability functions like the druid's animal companion ability, treating the kobold ranger's effective druid level as half her ranger level, instead of half her ranger level –3. A kobold ranger cannot select from an alternative list of animal companions; she is restricted to choosing a dire weasel as her animal companion.

This substitution feature replaces the standard ranger's animal companion class feature.

A kobold ranger who takes this substitution level gains Track as a bonus feat and the wild empathy ability (PH 47), just as a standard ranger does.

Kobold Ranger Spells: A kobold ranger who takes the 4th-level racial substitution level replaces certain spells on her ranger spell list with kobold alternatives.

For 1st-level ranger spells, *steal size replaces entangle.

A kobold ranger also exchanges the 2nd-level ranger spells speak with plants and spike growth for *local tremor and soften earth and stone.

She replaces the 3rd-level ranger spells command plants, diminish plants, plant growth, and tree shape with meld into stone, spike stones, stone shape, and stoneskin.

Stone tell replaces the 4th-level ranger spell tree stride.

* New spells described in Chapter 7.

Subterranean Stride (Ex): A kobold ranger who takes the 7th-level racial substitution level can move across dense rubble or natural stone floors at her normal speed, ignoring any effects related to terrain (DMG 60).

However, a rock surface that is enchanted or magically manipulated to impede motion still affects her.

This substitution feature replaces the standard ranger's woodland stride class feature.

TABLE 6–10: KOBOLD RANGER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Kobold favored enemy, Track, wild empathy	Same as ranger
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Dire weasel companion, kobold ranger spells	Same as ranger
7th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+2	Subterranean stride	Same as ranger

ROGUE

Kobold rogues pride themselves on their comprehensive understanding of trap dynamics.

Trapmaking is an art, a passion, and a racial pastime.

Many kobolds dabble in trapmaking, and kobold rogues who do so gain additional insights into dealing with such devices.

Kobold rogues are notoriously cowardly and fragile, however, and greatly prefer stealth and retreat over face-to-face conflict.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a kobold rogue substitution level, a character must be a kobold about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 8th level of rogue.

CLASS SKILLS

Kobold rogue substitution levels have the class skills of the standard rogue class, plus Knowledge (dungeoneering).

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the kobold rogue racial substitution levels.

Rapid Retreat (Ex): A kobold rogue who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level gains the ability to retreat quickly from dangerous situations.

Any time a kobold rogue with this substitution feature uses the withdraw action, she gains a 5-foot bonus to her speed.

Shrewd Trapfinding (Ex): Starting at 1st level, each time a kobold rogue takes a substitution level, she gains a cumulative +2 competence bonus on Search checks to find traps and on Disable Device checks to disarm traps.

This bonus is lost if the kobold rogue does not have a number of ranks in Craft (trapmaking) equal to or greater than her rogue class level.

This substitution feature alters but does not replace the standard rogue's trapfinding class feature.

Improved Trap Sense (Ex): At 3rd level, a kobold rogue gains an intuitive sense that alerts her to danger from traps. This is the same as the rogue's trap sense class feature, except that the bonus granted on Reflex saves and to AC is +2 instead of +1.

A kobold rogue's trap sense continues to improve at the normal rate (to +3 at 6th level, +4 at 9th, and so on).

This extra bonus is lost, reducing the kobold rogue's trap sense bonus to the normal rogue value if the kobold rogue does not have a number of ranks in Craft (trapmaking) equal to or greater than her rogue class level.

This substitution feature augments the standard rogue's trap sense class feature.

Evasive Skitter (Ex): A kobold rogue who takes the 8th-level racial substitution level gains the ability to move out of the area of dangerous spells and effects.

A kobold rogue who succeeds on a Reflex save against a spell or effect gains the normal benefit for the successful save, and she can choose to move out of the area of the spell or effect.

She must take the shortest path available to her, and she can't move farther than her speed.

If more than one path of equal distance is available, she can choose which path to use.

If no such path is available, the kobold rogue can't use this ability.

This movement provokes attacks of opportunity as normal for movement.

Example: A kobold rogue with a speed of 30 feet is within the area of a fireball spell.

She successfully saves against the spell, so she takes no damage from the blast and can move out of the spell's area by the shortest route available.

This substitution feature replaces the standard 8th-level rogue's improved uncanny dodge class feature.

TABLE 6-11: KOBOLD ROGUE RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Rapid retreat, shrewd trapfinding +2, sneak attack +1d6
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Improved trap sense +2, shrewd trapfinding +4, sneak attack +2d6
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+2	Evasive skitter, shrewd trapfinding +6

SORCERER

Kobolds, spellscales, and the members of other dragonblood races tap into their innate draconic talents to achieve greater heights of sorcerous power.

Forgoing any pretense of mundane pursuits, a dragonblood sorcerer explores new approaches to casting arcane spells.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a dragonblood sorcerer substitution level, a character must have the dragonblood subtype and be about to take his 1st, 4th, or 7th level of sorcerer.

CLASS SKILLS

Dragonblood sorcerer substitution levels have the class skills of the standard sorcerer class, minus Craft and Profession, plus Use Magic Device.

In addition, a dragonblood sorcerer who takes the 1st-level racial substitution level gains a class skill from his Draconic Heritage feat.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the dragonblood sorcerer racial substitution levels.

Arcane Insight (Ex): A 1st-level dragonblood sorcerer's racial talent with magic grants him keen insights into arcane mysteries.

Each time he selects a dragonblood sorcerer substitution level, he gains a cumulative +2 insight bonus on Knowledge (arcana) checks.

Draconic Heritage: A 1st-level dragonblood sorcerer gains Draconic Heritage as a bonus feat.

This substitution feature replaces the standard sorcerer's familiar class feature.

Spell-Like Ability: A dragonblood sorcerer who takes the 4th-level racial substitution level gains the ability to transform a sorcerer spell he knows into a spell-like ability.

A spell chosen for this ability can't have a costly material component, an XP cost, or any sort of focus, and it can't be a spell of the highest level the sorcerer can cast.

The chosen spell is removed from the sorcerer's list of spells known, reducing his number of known spells of that level by one, and the sorcerer loses one spell slot of that spell level—as well as one spell slot from the next higher level of spells he is able to cast.

In return for those two spell slots, he gains the ability to use the chosen spell as a spell-like ability three times per day, using his sorcerer level as the caster level.

Each time a dragonblood sorcerer who has this substitution level feature gains access to a new spell level, he can exchange the spell chosen for this ability for a new one.

He returns the previously chosen spell to his list of spells known and regains both lost spell slots.

He then chooses a new spell, subject to the limitations given above.

He loses that spell from his spells known list along with one spell slot of the newly chosen spell's level and a spell slot one level higher than the chosen spell.

Bonus Spells Known: A dragonblood sorcerer who takes the 7th-level racial substitution level adds four spells to his list of known sorcerer spells.

The spells added depend on the dragonblood sorcerer's alignment or draconic heritage. A dragonblood sorcerer who is good-aligned must choose the good list of known spells, and vice versa. One descended from a particular kind of dragon is treated as if he shared that dragon's alignment for the purpose of this substitution feature, regardless of his own alignment. For example, a half-red dragon sorcerer, or a sorcerer with Draconic Heritage (red dragon), is treated as evil-aligned for determining which bonus spells known he gains. Dragonblood sorcerers who are neither good nor evil and have no distinct draconic heritage can choose which set of spells to add.

If a dragonblood sorcerer already knows any of the listed spells, he can pick another spell that a sorcerer would ordinarily have available at that same level.
Evil: 1st—charm person; 2nd—darkness, resist energy; 3rd—suggestion.
Good: 1st—bless; 2nd—fog cloud, resist energy; 3rd—fly.
 The chosen list of spells known replaces the normal additions to the sorcerer's list of spells known (one 1st-level spell, one 2nd-level spell, one 3rd-level spell) gained at 7th level.

TABLE 6-7: DRAGONBLOOD SORCERER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Arcane insight +2, Draconic Heritage	Same as sorcerer
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Arcane insight +4, spell-like ability	See text
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Arcane insight +6, bonus spells known	See text

RACES OF THE WILD (3.5)

CLERIC

The raptoran cleric gains extra powers from his dedication to the pact made between his race and the denizens of the Elemental Plane of Air.

While not as combat-oriented as a typical cleric, a raptoran cleric can bring powerful servants of air to do his bidding. Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a raptoran cleric substitution level, a character must be a raptoran about to take his 1st, 3rd, or 7th level of cleric. A raptoran cleric must have selected either the Air domain (see page 185 of the Player's Handbook) or the Sky domain (see page 174 of this book) to select a raptoran cleric substitution level.

CLASS SKILLS

Raptoran cleric substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard cleric class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the raptoran cleric's racial substitution levels.

Air Mastery (Ex): Beginning at 1st level, airborne creatures take a -1 penalty on attack and damage rolls against a raptoran cleric.

This substitution feature replaces the standard cleric's heavy armor proficiency gained at 1st level.

Empathy of the Winds (Ex): A 1st-level raptoran cleric gains a strong bond with air and its denizens.

He learns Auran as a bonus language (in addition to the languages available to him because of his race and the Speak Language skill).

He gains a +4 circumstance bonus on Diplomacy checks made to interact with natives of the Elemental Plane of Air.

If he has the ability to bolster air creatures (such as from the Air domain), he gains a +4 bonus on turning checks made to do so. Allied air elementals within 60 feet of the cleric gain a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls. Air Summoning Talent (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a raptoran cleric can summon certain creatures of air more easily than other clerics can. Add the following monsters to the list of creatures that the cleric can summon with the appropriate summon monster spell:

Summon monster II: Small air elemental

Summon monster III: Air mephit

Summon monster IV: Medium air elemental

Summon monster V: Large air elemental

Summon monster VI: Huge air elemental

Summon monster VII: Greater air elemental

Summon monster VIII: Elder air elemental

This substitution feature removes all spells with the earth descriptor from the standard cleric's spell list.

If a spell would only have the earth descriptor due to a particular version of the spell (such as a summon monster spell used to summon an earth elemental), the spell remains on the cleric's spell list but the version with the earth descriptor cannot be cast.

Open the Wind-Gate (Ex): A 7th-level raptoran cleric can use the planar ally spells to call a more powerful air elemental than would normally be allowed.

The cleric can call an 8 HD Large air elemental with lesser planar ally, a single 16 HD Huge air elemental (or two 8 HD Large air elementals) with planar ally, or a single 24 HD elder air elemental (or multiple Large and/or Huge air elementals totaling 24 HD) with greater planar ally.

The costs associated with these spells remain the same. However, if any of the called air elementals die while in the service of the cleric, the cleric loses access to this ability for seven days and takes a -1 penalty on attack rolls, saves, and checks during that period.

This substitution feature replaces the standard cleric's ability to call creatures other than air elementals with the various planar ally spells.

TABLE 6-8: RAPTORAN CLERIC RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

HIT DIE: D6

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Air mastery, empathy of the winds, turn or rebuke undead	As standard cleric
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Air summoning talent	As standard cleric
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Open the wind-gate	As standard cleric

DRUID

The halfling druid often follows a more pragmatic approach in exploring his link to the natural world.

He gives up some of his innate ability to summon allies, while strengthening his bond with his animal companion (which is commonly used as a mount by the otherwise slow-moving halfling).

His expanded skill selection allows him to serve as a capable scout.

Hit Die: d8.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a halfling druid substitution level, a character must be a halfling about to take his 1st, 5th, or 13th level of druid.

CLASS SKILLS

Halfling druid substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard druid class, plus Climb, Hide, Jump, and Move Silently.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the halfling druid's racial substitution levels.

Spontaneous Casting: Halfling druids often use their animal companions as mounts, and they have developed a method of enhancing their animal companions' mobility and defenses by channeling their own spell energy.

A halfling druid can channel stored spell energy into specific spells that he hasn't prepared ahead of time.

He can "lose" a prepared spell to cast any spell from the following list of the same level or lower, but he may only target himself or his animal companion with the spell (if it has a target).

For example, a halfling druid who has prepared call lightning (a 3rd-level spell) may lose call lightning to cast protection from energy, spider climb, or jump, but may only target himself or his animal companion with the spell. (A halfling druid's ability to share spells with his animal companion works normally with these spells).

1st: jump

2nd: spider climb

3rd: protection from energy

4th: freedom of movement

5th: tree stride

6th: summon nature's ally VI

7th: summon nature's ally VII

8th: summon nature's ally VIII

9th: summon nature's ally IX

This substitution feature replaces the standard druid's ability of spontaneous casting.

Enhanced Link (Ex): In addition to the normal benefits gained by the druid's link to his animal companion, a halfling druid gains a +4 circumstance bonus on all Ride checks made in conjunction with his animal companion. He takes no penalty for riding his animal companion without a saddle.

In addition, as long as the halfling druid rides his animal companion, his animal companion shares the druid's woodland stride and trackless step class features (assuming the druid has these class features).

This substitution feature augments, but does not replace, the standard druid's link class feature (described on page 36 of the Player's Handbook).

Undersized Wild Shape (Su): A halfling druid's Small size limits his wild shape ability (including his elemental wild shape and any other wild shape options he gains from feats or other special abilities), reducing them by one size category.

However, he can use his wild shape ability one additional time per day (2/day at 5th level, 3/day at 6th, 4/day at 7th, and so forth).

At 5th level, a halfling druid gains the ability to turn himself into any Tiny or Small animal.

He gains wild shape (Medium) at 8th level, wild shape (Diminutive) at 11th level, and wild shape (Large) at 15th level.

At 16th level, he gains the ability to use wild shape to transform into a Tiny, Small, or Medium elemental; he can transform into a Large elemental at 20th level.

This class feature is otherwise identical to the standard druid's wild shape ability.

This substitution feature replaces the standard druid's wild shape ability.

Camouflage (Ex): A halfling druid of 13th level or higher can use the Hide skill in any sort of natural terrain, even if the terrain doesn't grant cover or concealment.

This substitution feature replaces the standard druid's a thousand faces class feature.

TABLE 6-5: HALFLING DRUID RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Animal companion, enhanced link, nature sense, spontaneous casting, wild empathy	As standard druid
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Undersized wild shape (2/day)	As standard druid
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Camouflage	As standard druid

FIGHTER

The raptoran fighter is a sentinel of the skies, swooping on foes and bringing death from above.

A raptoran fighter gives up some of her versatility and defensive prowess, but gains significant airborne advantages.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a raptoran fighter substitution level, a character must be a raptoran about to take her 1st, 4th, or 8th level of fighter.

CLASS SKILLS

Raptoran fighter substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard fighter class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the raptoran fighter's racial substitution levels.

Encumbered Flight (Ex): A 1st-level raptoran fighter can glide while carrying a medium load.

When the character gains flight after undertaking her Walk of the Four Winds, she can fly while carrying a medium load.

This substitution feature replaces the standard fighter's heavy armor proficiency gained at 1st level.

Airborne Strike (Ex): A 4th-level raptoran fighter gains the ability to use superior positioning to deal extra damage in melee.

Whenever the raptoran is flying and higher than her opponent, she gains a +2 bonus on melee weapon damage rolls.

This substitution feature replaces the standard fighter's bonus feat gained at 4th level.

Fast Flight (Ex): An 8th-level raptoran fighter's glide and fly speeds are 10 feet faster than the norm for her race.

Fast flight is considered a racial bonus to speed, so it stacks with enhancement bonuses from spells and magic items.

This substitution feature replaces the standard fighter's bonus feat gained at 8th level.

TABLE 6-9: RAPTORAN FIGHTER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

HIT DIE: d10

Level	Base				Special
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Encumbered flight, bonus feat
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Airborne strike
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Fast flight

MONK

Monk seems a counterintuitive selection for the halfling at first glance, since the halfling incurs significant penalties to her ability to deal damage in melee because of her Small size.

A halfling monk, however, can learn to focus on mobility and eventually even neutralize some of the larger creatures' advantages over her.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a halfling monk substitution level, a character must be a halfling about to take her 1st, 2nd, or 7th level of monk.

A halfling monk who selects any racial substitution level for her monk class can freely multiclass between the monk and rogue classes.

CLASS SKILLS

Halfling monk substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard monk class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 6 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the halfling monk's racial substitution levels.

Skirmish (Ex): A halfling monk relies on mobility to deal extra damage and improve her defense.

At 1st level, a halfling monk deals an extra 1d6 points of damage on all attacks during any round in which she moves at least 10 feet.

The extra damage applies only to attacks made with unarmed strikes or special monk weapons (that is, the weapons a normal monk can use as part of a flurry of blows; see page 40 of the Player's Handbook), and only on attacks taken during the monk's turn.

This bonus increases to an extra 2d6 points of damage at 11th level.

The extra damage only applies against a living creature with a discernible anatomy.

Undead, constructs, oozes, plants, incorporeal creatures, and creatures immune to extra damage from critical hits are not vulnerable to this additional damage.

The monk must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach such a spot. Halfling monks can apply this additional damage to ranged attacks made while skirmishing, but only if the target is within 30 feet.

At 5th level, the monk also gains a +1 competence bonus to Armor Class during any round in which she moves at least 10 feet.

The bonus applies as soon as the monk has moved 10 feet, and lasts until the start of her next turn.

This bonus improves to +2 at 15th level.

The monk loses this ability when wearing armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

This substitution feature replaces the standard monk's flurry of blows ability.

A halfling monk who selects this substitution level gains no benefit from any feature that improves or augments the flurry of blows class feature (such as the 11th-level monk's greater flurry ability).

Bonus Feat: At 2nd level, a halfling monk gains Weapon Finesse as a bonus feat.

This substitution feature replaces the standard monk's bonus feat gained at 2nd level.

Size Matters Not (Ex): At 7th level, a halfling monk learns to neutralize some of the natural advantage gained by particularly large opponents.

A halfling monk with Improved Grapple gains a +4 bonus on grapple checks made against opponents at least two size categories larger than herself.

This is in addition to the +4 bonus granted by the feat.

A halfling monk with Stunning Fist gains a +4 bonus on her stunning fist DC for stunning attacks made against opponents at least two size categories larger than herself.

This substitution feature replaces the standard monk's wholeness of body ability gained at 7th level.

TABLE 6-6: HALFLING MONK RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Hit Die: D6
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		Unarmed Damage	AC Bonus	Unarmored Speed Bonus
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Bonus feat, skirmish, unarmed strike	1d4	+0	+0 ft.
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	Weapon Finesse, evasion	1d4	+0	+0 ft.
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	Size matters not	1d6	+1	+20 ft.

PALADIN

Though elves typically tend toward chaos and freedom over law and order, an elf paladin can become a beacon of righteousness.

He gives up some of his single-minded dedication in exchange for abilities that work well with his racial aptitudes.

Hit Die: d10.

REQUIREMENTS

To take an elf paladin substitution level, a character must be an elf about to take his 1st, 3rd, or 5th level of paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

Elf paladin substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard paladin class, plus Survival.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the elf paladin's racial substitution levels.

Ranged Smite Evil (Su): An elf paladin can only deliver his smite evil attacks with a longbow (or composite longbow) or shortbow (or composite shortbow).

The target must be within 30 feet for the paladin to use this ability.

This ability otherwise functions identically to the normal smite evil class feature described on page 44 of the Player's Handbook.

This substitution feature replaces the standard paladin's class feature of smite evil.

At each level at which the paladin would normally gain an additional daily use of smite evil, the elf paladin instead gains a daily use of ranged smite evil.

Aura of Freedom (Su): A 3rd-level elf paladin radiates an aura that helps his allies resist effects that would influence their minds.

Each ally within 10 feet of him gains a +4 morale bonus on saving throws against enchantment effects.

This ability functions while the paladin is conscious, but not if he is unconscious or dead.

This substitution feature replaces the standard paladin's ability of aura of courage.

Unicorn Mount (Sp): A 5th-level elf paladin gains the service of a unicorn to serve him in his crusade against evil. This ability is identical to the paladin's special mount class feature, except that the paladin is treated as six levels lower than normal for the purpose of determining the mount's bonus HD, natural armor adjustment, and Strength adjustment (but not other special abilities).

The unicorn serves as a loyal steed regardless of the paladin's gender.

For example, an elf paladin's unicorn mount doesn't gain the adjusted statistics of a 5th-level paladin's mount (+2 HD, +4 natural armor adjustment, and +1 Strength adjustment—see page 45 of the Player's Handbook) until the paladin is 11th level.

It gains the other special abilities of a paladin's mount at the normal levels (empathic link, improved evasion, share spells, and share saving throws at 5th level, improved speed at 8th level, command at 11th level, and spell resistance at 15th level).

The unicorn mount may only use its command ability on horses, ponies, donkeys, and mules.

This substitution feature replaces the standard paladin's class feature of special mount.

TABLE 6-2: ELF PALADIN RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect evil, ranged smite evil 1/day	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of freedom, divine health	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Ranged smite evil 2/day, unicorn mount	As standard paladin

HIT DIE: D10

RANGER

The elf ranger combines sylvan grace with deadly skill, moving effortlessly through the wilds in search of his prey. He isn't quite as tough as a typical ranger but enjoys extra bonuses against his race's favored enemies and can befriend a powerful elven hound.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take an elf ranger substitution level, a character must be an elf about to take his 1st, 4th, or 10th level of ranger.

CLASS SKILLS

Elf ranger substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard ranger class, plus Balance.

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the elf ranger's racial substitution levels.

Elf Favored Enemy (Ex): An elf ranger's favored enemy ability grants him a +2 bonus on Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Survival checks used against creatures of the chosen type, and a +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls against such creatures.

If the elf ranger chooses humanoid (orc), undead, or "servants of Lolth" as his favored enemy, these bonuses rise to +3.

"Servants of Lolth" includes drow, monstrous spiders of all sizes, and driders; this is an addition to the normal list of options for a ranger's favored enemy found on page 47 of the Player's Handbook.

This substitution feature replaces the standard ranger's 1st-level favored enemy class feature.

This substitution feature also affects the elf ranger's later improvements to his favored enemy ability.

Each time an elf ranger gains a new favored enemy, he can increase the bonus for one favored enemy by 2, or by 3 if he chooses to increase his bonus against orcs, undead, or the servants of Lolth.

Elven Hound Companion (Ex): A 4th-level elf ranger can select an elven hound (see page 189) as his animal companion, even though the creature is a magical beast. For the purpose of any of the ranger's spells that affect animals, as well as his use of Handle Animal or wild empathy on the companion, the elven hound is treated as an animal.

Strongheart Slayer (Ex): A 10th-level elf ranger gains a +4 morale bonus on Will saves against the spells and spell-like abilities of drow and driders, and a +4 morale bonus on Fortitude saves against the poison of monstrous spiders. This substitution feature replaces the standard ranger's 10th-level third favored enemy class feature, as well as the additional +2 (or +3) bonus against an existing favored enemy.

The elf ranger instead gains his third favored enemy at 15th level.

TABLE 6-3: ELF RANGER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	Elf favored enemy, Track, wild empathy	—
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Elven hound companion	As standard ranger
10th	+10/+5	+7	+7	+3	Strongheart slayer	As standard ranger

HIT DIE: d6

ROGUE

A halfling takes to life as a rogue as if born to it—a claim with which many other races would readily agree.

A halfling rogue gives up some of her prowess in melee combat in exchange for increased talent with thrown weapons and an extra touch of halfling luck.

Hit Die: d6.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a halfling rogue substitution level, a character must be a halfling about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 10th level of rogue.

CLASS SKILLS

Halfling rogue substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard rogue class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 8 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the halfling rogue's racial substitution levels.

Ranged Sneak Attack (Ex): A halfling rogue is particularly talented at delivering sneak attacks with slings and thrown weapons.

Whenever a halfling rogue delivers a ranged sneak attack with a thrown weapon or sling, she deals an extra 1d6 points of damage.

However, her melee sneak attack damage is reduced by 1d6 (0 points of damage at 1st level, an extra 1d6 points at 3rd level, an extra 2d6 points at 5th level, and so forth, to a maximum of an extra 9d6 points at 19th level).

This ability doesn't give the halfling rogue the ability to deal sneak attack damage to creatures she otherwise couldn't affect (whether due to their anatomy, concealment, range, or any other reason).

This substitution feature augments, but does not replace, the standard rogue's sneak attack ability.

Thief's Luck (Ex): At 3rd level, a halfling rogue gains a second chance against certain dangers.

She can reroll any Reflex save she has just rolled.

If she chooses to use this ability (which must be decided before the result of the original save is known), she must abide by the second roll.

She may use this ability once per day at 3rd level and one additional time per day for every three levels gained thereafter.

She can't use this ability more than once per round.

This substitution feature replaces the standard rogue's ability of trap sense.

A halfling rogue with this substitution feature never gains trap sense from rogue levels.

Sniping Mastery (Ex): A halfling rogue who has hidden at least 10 feet away from her target can make one or more ranged attacks, then immediately hide again as a free action.

She takes only a -10 penalty on her Hide check to do so (rather than the normal -20; see page 76 of the Player's Handbook).

This substitution feature replaces the standard rogue's special ability gained at 10th level.

TABLE 6-7: HALFLING ROGUE RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

HIT DIE: D6

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Ranged sneak attack +1d6, melee sneak attack +0, trapfinding
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Ranged sneak attack +2d6, melee sneak attack +1d6, thief's luck
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+3	Sniping mastery

SORCERER

The raptoran sorcerer has an almost instinctive command of the magical forces required to manipulate the air beneath his wings.

He loses some versatility in spellcasting but gains the ability to cast additional air-based spells and even the service of an elemental familiar.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take a raptoran sorcerer substitution level, a character must be a raptoran about to take his 1st, 5th, or 11th level of sorcerer.

CLASS SKILLS

Raptoran sorcerer substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard sorcerer class.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the raptoran sorcerer's racial substitution levels.

Air Magic: The following spells are considered to be on a raptoran sorcerer's class spell list (and thus may be selected as known spells at the appropriate levels):

4th level: air walk

5th level: control winds

7th level: wind walk

8th level: whirlwind

A raptoran sorcerer gains this class feature if he selects any of the indicated raptoran sorcerer substitution levels (1st, 5th, or 11th).

Elemental Familiar (Ex): A 1st-level raptoran sorcerer can obtain a Small air elemental as a familiar.

The elemental's hit points are equal to its normal hit points or one half its master's hit points, whichever are greater.

The elemental familiar does not gain the ability to speak with animals.

This familiar otherwise functions identically to the standard sorcerer's familiar ability.

This substitution feature replaces the standard sorcerer's familiar ability gained at 1st level.

Command the Winds: A 5th-level raptoran sorcerer adds gust of wind, whispering wind, and wind wall to his list of spells known.

Wind wall is henceforth treated as a 2nd-level spell for the raptoran sorcerer.

This substitution feature replaces the standard sorcerer's ability to learn a new 2nd-level spell at 5th level.

From this point on, the raptoran sorcerer's number of 2nd-level spells known (not including the gust of wind, whispering wind, and wind wall spells) is one less than the value shown on Table 3-17, page 54 of the Player's Handbook.

Spell on the Wing (Ex): When airborne and casting a spell with a casting time of 1 standard action or less, a raptoran sorcerer of 11th level or higher can move both before and after spellcasting, provided that his total distance moved is not greater than his speed.

This substitution feature replaces the standard sorcerer's ability to learn a new 5th-level spell at 11th level.

From this point on, the raptoran sorcerer's number of 5th-level spells known is one less than the value shown on Table 3-17, page 54 of the Player's Handbook.

TABLE 6-10: RAPTORAN SORCERER RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

HIT DIE: D4

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Air magic, elemental familiar	As standard sorcerer
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Air magic, command the winds	As standard sorcerer
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Air magic, spell on the wing	As standard sorcerer

WIZARD

Elves are naturally enthralled by the study of magic, and many of history's most famous wizards were elves.

Elf wizards typically prefer a general approach to magic, recognizing the value in versatility.

Hit Die: d4.

REQUIREMENTS

To take an elf wizard substitution level, a character must be an elf about to take her 1st, 3rd, or 5th level of wizard.

CLASS SKILLS

Elf wizard substitution levels grant the same class skills as the standard wizard class, plus Search.

Skill Points at Each Level: 2 + Int modifier (or four times this number as a beginning character).

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are features of the elf wizard's racial substitution levels.

Generalist Wizardry: A 1st-level elf wizard begins play with one extra 1st-level spell in her spellbook.

At each new wizard level, she gains one extra spell of any spell level that she can cast.

This represents the additional elven insight and experience with arcane magic.

The elf wizard may also prepare one additional spell of her highest spell level each day.

Unlike the specialist wizard ability, this spell may be of any school.

This substitution feature replaces the standard wizard's ability to specialize in a school of magic.

Natural Link (Su): At 3rd level, an elf wizard's link to her familiar strengthens.

The bonus on skill checks, saves, or hit points granted by the familiar doubles.

For example, the cat familiar of an elf wizard grants a +6 bonus on Move Silently checks (rather than +3), a weasel familiar grants a +4 bonus on Reflex saves (rather than +2), and a toad familiar grants +6 hit points (rather than +3).

This increase only applies when the familiar is within arm's reach of the wizard; when the creature is farther away than that, the normal bonus applies (unless the familiar is more than one mile away, in which case no bonus applies, as described on page 52 in the Player's Handbook).

This substitution feature replaces the standard wizard familiar's ability to deliver touch spells (normally gained by the familiar of a 3rd-level wizard) and the familiar's ability to speak with animals of its kind (normally gained by the familiar of a 7th-level wizard).

If the wizard's familiar already has either of these abilities (for instance, if the character is a multiclass sorcerer/wizard), it loses those abilities when the wizard selects this substitution level.

Bonus Feat: At 5th level, an elf wizard gains a bonus feat, chosen from the following list: Defensive Archery, Far Shot, Point Blank Shot, Precise Shot, Rapid Shot, or Weapon Focus (longbow/composite longbow or shortbow/composite shortbow only).

The wizard must still meet all prerequisites for a bonus feat. This substitution feature replaces the standard wizard's bonus feat gained at 5th level.

TABLE 6-4: ELF WIZARD RACIAL SUBSTITUTION LEVELS

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Generalist wizardry, summon familiar, Scribe Scroll	As standard wizard
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Natural link	As standard wizard
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat	As standard wizard

HIT DIE: D4

SANDSTORM (3.5)

BARBARIAN

Barbarians are common in the waste, where survival often comes down to having a few basic skills and the ability to outrun or outfight predators.

In very few waste locales is any kind of law enforced—aside from tribal codes and customs—so barbarians are perfectly at home.

This variant barbarian gains all the class features of the standard barbarian, except as noted below.

Wastelands Trap Sense (Su): At 3rd level, a waste barbarian adds the bonus from his trap sense class feature to Reflex saves made against natural hazards of the wastes, as well as to his Armor Class against attacks made by natural hazards. Hazards of the wastes include dangers such as lava pools, slipsand, softsand, and other terrain features (see Chapter 1).

This ability replaces the benefits a standard barbarian receives from having trap sense.

Bonus Feat: A 5th-level waste barbarian gains a bonus feat, which must be drawn from the following list: Blazing Berserker†, Endurance, Great Fortitude, Heat Endurance†, Improved Heat Endurance†, Judged by Aurifar†, Sand skimmer†, Scorpion's Resolve†, and Self-Sufficient.

A wasteland barbarian must meet all the prerequisites for a bonus feat in order to select it.

This ability replaces the standard barbarian's improved uncanny dodge ability.

† New feat described later in this chapter.

Wastelands Damage Reduction (Su): A waste barbarian toughens his body against injuries dealt by the rigors of the wastes.

At 8th level, a wasteland barbarian gains damage reduction 1/– against wasteland creatures and hazards.

This benefit stacks with the barbarian's normal damage reduction.

This benefit replaces the standard barbarian's third daily use of the rage ability gained at 8th level.

From this point forward, the waste barbarian can rage one less time per day than indicated on Table 3-3: The Barbarian, page 25 of the Player's Handbook.

CLERIC

Clerics are a necessity in waste societies, both because of their healing magic and their ability to protect large groups from the environment with spells such as control weather, create water, endure elements, heroes' feast, and resist energy.

A number of deities hold sway over the waste, and their interests sometimes overlap or compete with those of more widely worshiped deities who share their domains (such as Sun or Fire).

Deities who oversee precious resources, and those responsible for the harmful aspects of the desert climate, receive special reverence.

Table 2-5 provides a list of deities with a connection to the waste, along with their alignments, domains, and favored weapons.

TABLE 2-5: DEITIES OF THE WASTELAND

Deity	Alignment	Domains	Favored Weapon
Al-Ishtus	NE	Animal, Death, Destruction, Evil, War	Whip
Aurifar	N	Fire, Luck, Summer [†] , Sun, Travel	Heavy spiked shield
Azul	LE	Evil, Law, Plant, Thirst [†] , Water	Whip
Haku	CG	Air, Chaos, Good, Protection, Travel	Scimitar
Joramy	NG	Destruction, Fire, War	Quarterstaff
Kikanuti	NG	Earth, Good, Magic, Protection, Plant, Summer [†]	Clay pot (mace)
Set	CE	Air, Chaos, Destruction, Evil, Strength	Spear
Solanil	NG	Animal, Good, Healing, Protection, Summer [†] , Travel, Water	Quarterstaff
Tem-Et-Nu	LN	Knowledge, Magic, Nobility [†] , Travel, War	Kama
Zoser	CN	Air, Chaos, Destruction, Sand [†] , Summer [†]	Spiked chain

† New domain described in Chapter 5.

The table isn't intended to be a desert pantheon, but it is a survey of possible desert deities. You should ask your DM which deities are available for your character.

DEITIES OF THE WASTE

Just as the waste is harsh and unforgiving, so too are many of its deities—though a few can be helpful and even generous.

Al-Ishtus claims dominion over desert-dwelling vermin, such as the scorpion, and monstrous humanoid raiders and marauders of the waste.

His followers make offerings of bloody gems and jewelry to appease him.

His symbol is a scorpion with its tail raised to strike, and his clerics often dip the point of their holy symbol's tail in scorpion venom for use against unsuspecting opponents. Venom plays a major part in the worship of Al-Ishtus.

In fact, disputes between members of his cult are frequently solved by having each one stung repeatedly by a scorpion until one or the other dies.

The survivor is declared the winner of the dispute.

Al-Ishtus appears either as an old man in vermin-infested rags or as a scorpion ranging from Tiny to Colossal size.

Aurifar, the Caliph of the Sky, is the deity of the midday sun who deigns to let lesser deities bear his litter to his throne each morning, then back to his resting place each evening.

Stern, unyielding Aurifar rules the skies during the hottest part of the day, passing judgment on all in his sight, deciding who lives or dies.

Typically worshiped by fire giants, efreet, and other fire creatures, Aurifar appears as a glowing ball of light and unbearable heat.

He can also take the form of a mute giant who carries this ball of light and heat (from which his divine voice speaks).

His symbol is a golden disc polished to a mirrorlike sheen. Aurifar and his servants are implacable enemies of the undead.

Azul is worshiped among the people of the waste as a deity of rain.

Waste-dwellers seek Azul's favor so that they have enough water.

Azul's typical worshipers are druids, peasants, and travelers setting out across the burning lands.

His symbol is a jagged red line enclosing drops of water, and he appears as a plump, smiling youth with scrubbed cheeks wearing a simple, white gown.

A pool, often formed from a natural spring, always rests at the heart of a temple dedicated to Azul, and priests and soldiers fiercely guard this holy of holies.

Azul demands blood sacrifice in return for his blessings, and angering him always brings terrible drought.

Thus, each spring, the priests drown someone to satisfy the deity, while a small sacrificial animal is typically offered before a caravan departs for the waste.

Azul's most fanatical followers belong to the fierce desert nomads, who fall upon unwary travelers, taking slaves to sacrifice or use as labor for building more temples.

Haku, known as Master of the Desert Wind, is the patron of waste nomads.

He represents the free spirit of the wanderer, as well as the wild nature of the desert whirlwinds.

His worshipers include rangers, travelers, and beings of the air.

Haku's symbol is a stylized gust of wind.

He appears as a nomadic human with a noble, haughty manner, dressed in flowing robes and headgear and carrying a bright scimitar.

Many waste adventurers are followers of Haku, and caravan leaders pay him homage for his power over travel.

Joramy embodies the fury and beauty of volcanoes.

She is not only passionate and a lover of argument for argument's sake, but also good-natured and the champion of those devoted to a cause.

Her holy symbol is a volcano.

Her worshipers are often revolutionaries and charismatic leaders.

Joramy is one of the deities of the GREYHAWK setting and is detailed further in the Living Greyhawk Gazetteer.

Kikanuti is the principal deity of the bhukas, who revere her as the source of all life and their protector in the time before the Emergence.

The great cavern below the earth, from which the bhukas claim they and all other people first emerged, is thought of as her womb, and the Upper World is her hearth, where she warms and nurtures her children.

Her symbol is a tall clay pot painted with a stylized bird.

She appears in many forms, embodied in the ritual masks worn by bhuka dancers, but most commonly as a bhuka woman with braids of corn ears, wearing a brightly painted tunic.

She is cordial with Haku, who embodies some aspects of the migration that scattered her children across the waste. Maglubiyet, the patron deity of brutal goblinoids, is her sworn enemy.

She considers him an enslaver of his people, keeping them beneath the earth and blind to the full joy of living.

For his part, Maglubiyet wishes to seize Kikanuti's power over the fertility of the earth and extend his dominion.

Goblinoid tribes in the mountains bordering waste areas often raid bhuka territory, forcing those people to retreat into ever more inaccessible terrain.

Set is a jealous and evil deity.

A being of pure chaos and evil, Set appears as a powerful man with a bestial head resembling a donkey, with a curved snout and upright, square-tipped ears.

He also has a long, forked tail.

He sometimes appears in animal form as a hunting dog, a hippopotamus, or a wild boar.

His symbol is a coiled cobra.

Set opposes everything the good deities of the waste represent.

Power hungry and bitter at his lack of recognition by most waste-dwellers, Set instructs his followers to bide their time.

Most lurk in hidden temples, plotting mischief against any waste-dweller that catches their eye.

Followers of Set frequently try to cause pain and anguish for other temples, or any settlements with a strong religious foundation.

Solanil is the deity responsible for the existence of oases. She protects those who survive the rigors of the wastes by journeying from oasis to oasis, and her worshipers propitiate her by burying the seeds of fruit-bearing plants and trees in her oases.

Druids and rangers pay homage to Solanil, as do groups of monks and most janni.

Her symbol is a pool of water at the base of a date tree.

When she shows herself to mortals, she appears as a beautiful woman of middle years with a warm smile and either a basket of fresh fruit or a jug of cool water.

Her most devout worshipers make pilgrimages across the waste, ensuring that those who enjoy her hospitality are not squandering her gifts by taking more than they can use.

Although they are generally a peaceful lot, clerics of Solanil have been known to stir up the people who rely on her oases to punish those who misuse such gifts.

Tem-Et-Nu, the deity of rivers, is the primary matron of the pantheon of the plains folk.

She is the bringer of life (in the form of water) and the provider of wealth (the commerce that shipping brings), as well as the means to victory (by carrying the armies of the plains folk swiftly into battle).

Sorcerers and wizards of the plains folk revere her for her amazing intellect, and bards tell of her beauty and nobility. She is always depicted as a shapely woman with the head of a hippopotamus (her sacred animal).

Tem-Et-Nu is a demanding deity, and those attacked by hippopotami are said to have incurred her wrath.

Many such survivors take up roles of service in one of Tem-Et-Nu's temples, repaying the debt of a life spared.

Zoser is an unpredictable being whose heart rejoices in the wild dance of desert whirlwinds.

Although he is not evil, he is heedless of the devastation his storms wreak.

Dervishes (see the Complete Warrior supplement) are his most devoted followers, imitating his capricious might in their deadly battle dances.

Travelers in the waste also pay homage to Zoser in hopes that he pass them by.

His symbol is a stylized drawing of a tornado.

He most often appears as a towering whirlwind, dark with dust, in whose depths a vague humanoid outline can be seen.

Sometimes he instead takes the form of a lone traveler, cloaked in sand-colored robes that flutter around him even when the air is calm.

Temples to Zoser take the form of tall spires, usually natural pinnacles or buttes, with an open-air altar at the very tip.

Priests scatter incense and colored dust on the wind while worshipers chant songs of praise and dance frenziedly—it is not uncommon for an overenthusiastic worshiper to fall from a spire.

Zoser and Haku share many of the same aspects, but their relationship is cool.

DESERT PANTHEONS

If you want an Egyptian-themed campaign, consider the following pantheon, adapted from Deities and Demigods.

TABLE 2-6: EGYPTIAN DEITIES

Deity	Alignment	Domains	Favored Weapon
Re-Horakhty	LG	Good, Law, Sun, War	Khopesh
Anubis	LN	Law, Magic, Repose [†]	Mace
Apep	NE	Evil, Fire, Sand [†]	Heavy pick
Bast	CG	Chaos, Destruction, Protection, Strength, War	Spiked gauntlet
Hathor	NG	Protection, Good, Luck	Longsword
Imhotep	NG	Earth, Healing, Knowledge, Rune [†]	Quarterstaff
Isis	NG	Good, Magic, Protection, Water	Quarterstaff
Nephthys	CG	Chaos, Good, Protection, Repose [†]	Mace
Osiris	LG	Air, Earth, Good, Law, Plant, Repose [†]	Light flail
Ptah	LN	Knowledge, Law, Travel	Mace
Set	CE	Air, Chaos, Destruction, Evil, Strength	Spear
Sobek	LE	Animal, Evil, Water	Shortspear
Thoth	N	Knowledge, Magic, Rune [†]	Quarterstaff

[†] New domain described in Chapter 5.

The following Babylonian-inspired deities might also be useful in a desert campaign.

TABLE 2-7: BABYLONIAN DEITIES

Deity	Alignment	Domains	Favored Weapon
Anu	LN	Air, Knowledge, Law, Protection	Mace
Anshar	NE	Evil, Magic, Trickery	Dagger
Dahak	CE	Chaos, Death, Evil	Scimitar
Druaga	LE	Evil, Law, Trickery	Mace
Enlil	NG	Good, Luck, War	Heavy pick
Enki	LN	Earth, Magic, Water	Mace
Gilgamesh	NG	Good, Strength, Travel, War	Mace
Girru	LG	Fire, Good, Law, Magic	Morningstar
Ishtar	N	Magic, Strength, Summer†, War	Light flail
Ki	N	Animal, Luck, Plant	Quarterstaff
Marduk	LN	Air, Law, Protection	Net
Nanna-Sin	CG	Chaos, Luck, Good	Battleaxe
Nergal	NE	Death, Earth, Evil	Longsword
Utu	CG	Chaos, Fire, Good, Sun	Scimitar

† New domain described in Chapter 5.

DRUID

Druids are common in the waste, experts at living in harmony with that harsh environment. Some druids seek to help their people survive and prosper through careful use of the waste's resources, while others

WASTELAND ANIMAL COMPANIONS

Any of the following animals are appropriate for a wasteland druid to select as an animal companion at 1st level: bat, camel, chuckwalla (treat as lizard), coyote (treat as dog), donkey, hawk, horned lizard (see page 194), hyena, moon owl (treat as owl), serval (see page 194), snake (Tiny or Small viper), tressym (from the FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting), or vulture (see page 195). Druids of sufficiently high level can also choose the following animal companions, applying the indicated adjustment to the druid's level (in parentheses) to determine the companion's characteristics and special features.

4th level or Higher (Level -3)

Crocodile*
Dire bat
Lizard, monitor
Peccary (treat as boar)
Puma (treat as leopard)
Snake, Large viper
Dire toad* (Monster Manual II)

7th Level or Higher (Level -6)

Crocodile, giant*
Deinonychus (dinosaur)
Dire hawk (Monster Manual II)

specialize in turning the already inhospitable climate against intruders.

Wasteland druids select their animal companions from among those mentioned in the Wasteland Animal Companions sidebar.

This variant druid gains all the class features of the standard druid, except as noted below.

Sandskimmer: At 2nd level, a wasteland druid gains Sand skimmer as a bonus feat.

This benefit replaces the standard druid's woodland stride class feature.

Heat Endurance: At 4th level, a wasteland druid gains Heat Endurance (see page 50) as a bonus feat.

If she already has Heat Endurance, the druid gains Improved Heat Endurance instead and need not meet the prerequisites for that feat.

This benefit replaces the standard druid's resist nature's lure class feature.

Wild Shape (Waste Vermin) (Su): Beginning at 10th level, a wasteland druid can use her wild shape ability to assume the form of a Small to Large vermin found in the waste environment, such as a brine swimmer (see page 195), giant ant lion (see page 196), giant termite (see page 197), monstrous scorpion, or monstrous spider.

This ability otherwise follows all the rules for wild shape found on page 36 of the Player's Handbook, and the druid can assume additional larger sizes of vermin as her level increases.

This benefit replaces the standard druid's increase fourth daily use of the wild shape ability gained at 10th level.

From this point forward, the waste druid can use wild shape one less time per day than indicated on Table 3-8: The Druid, page 35 of the Player's Handbook.

Dire peccary (treat as dire boar)
Protoceratops (dinosaur)†
Rhinoceros
Snake, Huge viper

10th Level or Higher (Level -9)

Dire puma†
Dire snake (Monster Manual II)
Dire tortoise†
Dire vulture†
Hippopotamus†‡

13th Level or Higher (level -12)

Diprotodon†
Elephant
Giant banded lizard†

16th Level or Higher (level -15)

Dire elephant (Monster Manual II)
Roc
Dire rhinoceros (Fiend Folio)
Triceratops (dinosaur)

† New creature described in Chapter 6.

* Available only in an aquatic environment, such as a river.

PALADIN

Even the waste has need of heroes pledged steadfastly to a holy creed.

Paladins native to the waste may choose to use a diprotodon (see page 148) or a war camel (see page 193) as a special mount.

RANGER

Rangers of the waste are fierce protectors of their homeland.

They are masters of desert camouflage and have adapted weaponry and tactics that mimic those of creatures that share their environment.

Desert nomads are most likely to produce rangers, with a wandering lifestyle that prepares them well for the role. Wasteland rangers select their animal companions from among those mentioned in the Wasteland Animal Companions sidebar.

This variant ranger gains all the normal class features of the ranger, with the changes below.

Heat Endurance: At 3rd level, a wasteland ranger gains Heat Endurance (see page 50) as a bonus feat.

If he already has Heat Endurance, the ranger gains Improved Heat Endurance instead and need not meet the prerequisites for that feat.

This benefit replaces the standard ranger's Endurance bonus feat.

Sandskimmer: At 7th level, a wasteland ranger gains Sandskimmer as a bonus feat.

This benefit replaces the standard ranger's woodland stride class feature.

Waste Hunter (Ex): At 10th level, a wasteland ranger chooses a specific kind of favored enemy native to the waste from among the types or subtypes he has already chosen.

UNIQUE SPELLS

The bard, paladin, and ranger spell lists in the Player's Handbook (as well as similar lists in other books) contain a number of spells that don't appear on other classes' spell lists. In general, any character who enters one of these prestige classes should gain access to spells unique to that class's spell list from the

MULTICLASSING AND VARIANT CLASSES

Multiclassing between variants of the same class is a tricky subject, and the DM has to make rulings based on what is appropriate for his campaign. In cases where a single class offers a variety of paths (such as the totem barbarian or the monk fighting styles), the easiest solution is simply to bar multiclassing between different versions of the same class (just as a character can't multiclass between different versions of specialist wizards). For variants that are wholly separate from the character class—such as the bardic sage or the urban ranger—multiclassing, even into multiple variants of the same class, is probably okay. Identical class features should stack if gained

(For example, he could choose dunewinders if he has magical beasts as a favored enemy).

He gains an additional +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls, and on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Survival checks against creatures of this kind.

In addition, the ranger gains a +2 bonus on saves against the chosen creature's special abilities and damage reduction 2/– against its physical attacks.

This benefit replaces the new favored enemy gained at 10th level by a standard ranger, but the waste ranger's bonuses against previously selected favored enemies increase as if he had gained a new favored enemy.

SORCERER

Sorcerers of the waste often fulfill the role of shamans among the more savage people.

Many have the blood of brass dragons in their veins, giving them bronze complexions and blazing eyes.

Familiar: Sorcerers in waste regions can summon different familiars than those in more temperate climates.

In addition to the familiars described in the Player's Handbook, a waste sorcerer can summon a horned lizard (see page 194) as a familiar.

A horned lizard familiar gives its master a +2 bonus on Will saves.

WIZARD

Wizards of the waste usually specialize in fire magic, and many have either the Searing Spell metamagic feat or the Drift Magic feat (both described in the next section).

Wizards are usually found only among literate people.

Familiar: As described for the sorcerer class, wizards in the waste can select the horned lizard as a familiar.

UNEARTHED ARCANA (3.5)

Player's Handbook, at the same levels indicated for the standard class. At the DM's discretion, spells unique to that class's spell list found in other books may also be available, but on a case-by-case basis. The DM may require such spells to be researched or learned specifically by the character, rather than simply making them freely available.

from multiple versions of the same class (except for spellcasting, which is always separate).

In any case, only the first version of a favored class is treated as favored; a halfling rogue/wizard who later begins gaining levels in the wilderness rogue variant class can't treat both the rogue and wilderness rogue classes as favored, only the class gained first (in this case, rogue). Under no circumstances does spellcasting ability from multiple classes (even variants of the same class) stack. A character with levels of bard and levels of bardic sage has two separate caster levels and two separate sets of spells per day, even though the classes are very similar.

HOUSE RULE: SPONTANEOUS DOMAIN CASTING

Rather than allowing a cleric to prepare one spell each day from either of his domains, allow the cleric to spontaneously cast any domain spell in place of a prepared spell of the same level or lower.

This functions identically with the cleric's ability to spontaneously cast cure spells. The cleric "loses" a prepared spell to cast either one of his domain spells of the same level or lower.

This house rule reduces a cleric's overall spell power by one spell per spell level, and makes his choice of domains much more significant. A cleric of Kord who selects the Chaos and Luck domains seems a very different spellcaster from one who selects the Good and Strength domains.

If you use this variant, the Healing domain loses much of its appeal, since six of the nine spells associated with that domain are cure spells and thus available for spontaneous casting by all clerics who channel positive energy. (To a lesser extent, this variant diminishes the value of the Destruction domain, but since only three of that domain's spells are inflict spells, the effect is much less severe.) Consider granting clerics who select the Healing domain the ability to use d12s instead of d8s when casting cure spells. Thus, such a cleric's cure light wounds spell would cure 1d12 damage +1/level, and his caster level is treated as one higher than normal thanks to the granted power.

BEHIND THE CURTAIN: SPONTANEOUS CASTING

This option trades versatility—one of the divine spellcaster's strengths—for sheer spellcasting power (much like the difference between sorcerers and wizards). Since the cleric and druid spell lists depend on versatility of effect, particularly defensive or utilitarian spells, the spontaneous-casting divine caster is allowed to know more spells per spell level than the sorcerer (by adding domain spells or summon nature's ally spells on the list of spells known). No longer is the divine caster the character who can come up with any effect under the sun; instead, he becomes a much more specialized member of the adventuring group.

HOUSE RULE: DRUID DOMAINS

In my campaign, each druid may choose a single domain from the following list: Air, Animal, Earth, Fire, Plant, Sun, and Water. The druid gains a bonus spell of each spell level, which may be used only to prepare a domain spell of that level (or of a lower level, if affected by a metamagic feat). The druid also gains the domain's granted power, except as noted below.

ABJURER

Masters of protective magic, abjurers can fill many roles in a campaign, from bodyguard to battlemage to adventurer. Although it lacks offensive options, the school of abjuration provides some of the most effective combat spells in the game.

An evoker or transmuter might find it easier to bring down large groups of foes, but an abjurer is far more likely to bring herself and her companions through a fight alive. In a campaign with a high degree of intrigue or political machinations, the protective abilities of an abjurer can guard against foes both obvious and unexpected, and rival groups of abjurers, all with slightly different powers, might vie for prominence among each nation's schemers and courtiers.

In combat-heavy campaigns, realms might employ abjuration specialists to protect against the battle magic of their rivals, and in any campaign, adventurers might come

Alternatively, you can simply eliminate the normal cleric's ability to spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells. This makes the selection of the Healing domain (or the Destruction domain, for evil clerics) into an extraordinarily powerful choice, but simultaneously places a dramatic limitation on the average cleric's ability to heal damage. If you use this option, you might want to allow a cleric of any good deity to select the Healing domain as one of his domains.

For example, a 1st-level cleric of Obad-Hai has selected access to the domains of Air and Animal. He may cast one 1st-level spell for being a 1st-level cleric, plus one 1st-level bonus spell because of his 15 Wisdom. Instead of preparing one domain spell (either obscuring mist or calm animals) each day, he may spontaneously cast obscuring mist or calm animals in place of either or both of his prepared 1st-level spells. He does not prepare domain spells. If this cleric had chosen the Earth and Plant domains, he could spontaneously cast magic stone or entangle in place of either or both of his prepared 1st-level spells.

If you use the Druid Domains house rule described elsewhere in this chapter, you could allow such characters to use these same spontaneous casting rules (either in addition to or in exchange for the existing druid ability to spontaneously cast summon nature's ally spells).

—Andy Collins

This variant has the secondary effect of individualizing the divine casters in your game, since no two characters choose to learn the same set of spells. With only a limited number of spells known from which to choose, characters must make tough choices each time they gain new spells known. For instance, is it more important that a 4th-level cleric learn cure moderate wounds—particularly if he already knows cure light wounds—or bear's endurance? Should your druid learn resist energy as a 2nd-level spell, or should she wait until she gains access to 3rd-level spells and learn protection from energy instead? The cleric's choice of domains becomes crucial, because those areas form the backbone of his available spells.

Druids who select the Animal domain or the Plant domain gain Skill Focus (Knowledge [nature]), since Knowledge (nature) is already a class skill for druids.

A druid who chooses the Sun domain gains the ability to turn undead 1/day as a cleric of her level, and cannot perform a greater turning.

—Andrew Finch

to rely on the skills of an abjurer to protect against the dangers of dungeon and wilderness.

Resistance to Energy (Su): Once per day, an abjurer using this variant can create a mystical shield that grants herself or any one creature that she touches limited protection against a chosen energy type (acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic).

The affected creature gains resistance equal to 5 plus one-half the abjurer's class level against the chosen energy type. Activating this ability is a standard action.

Once activated, the protection lasts for 1 hour.

This protection overlaps with (and does not stack with) the effects of spells such as resist energy.

An abjurer using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Aura of Protection (Ex): Once per day, a 5th-level abjurer using this variant can generate a protective aura that shields against both physical and magical attacks.

When the abjurer generates this field, she gains a deflection bonus to her Armor Class and a resistance bonus on all saving throws equal to her Intelligence modifier. This ability requires a standard action to activate, and each use protects against only one attack or spell.

Once activated, the protective aura lasts for 1 minute or until the abjurer is attacked or required to make a saving throw, whichever comes first.

An abjurer using this variant can use this ability one additional time per day for every five class levels gained above 5th.

An abjurer using this variant does not gain bonus feats for advancing as a wizard.

Spontaneous Dispelling (Ex): At 5th level, an abjurer using this variant gains the ability to spontaneously cast the spell dispel magic.

This ability is similar to the cleric's ability to spontaneously cast cure spells, with a few exceptions.

The abjurer can "lose" four or more levels of prepared spells to cast dispel magic.

The prepared spells can be of any level or combination of levels as long as the total spell levels add up to four or more (0-level spells don't count).

For example, an abjurer using this variant could lose two 2nd-level spells or one 1st-level spell and one 3rd-level spell to cast dispel magic.

At 11th level, an abjurer can "lose" seven or more levels of prepared spells to spontaneously cast greater dispel magic.

An abjurer using this variant can use it in conjunction with a readied action to use dispel magic or greater dispel magic as a counterspell.

An abjurer using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

ASPECT OF NATURE (DRUID)

Instead of taking animal form, a druid with this variant form of wild shape takes on one or more aspects of nature when she uses her wild shape ability.

At 5th level, a druid may take on one aspect from those described below.

At 8th level, the druid can take on up to two aspects simultaneously.

At 11th level, she can take up on to three aspects simultaneously, and at 15th level the limit increases to its maximum of four simultaneous aspects.

(Some aspects can only be combined with certain other aspects, as indicated in their descriptions).

Each aspect taken on counts as one daily use of the druid's wild shape ability.

Multiple versions of the same aspect don't stack.

Taking on one or more aspects is a standard action (which does not provoke attacks of opportunity), and the effect lasts for 1 minute per druid level.

Some aspects, as noted in their descriptions, have a minimum druid level as a prerequisite.

A druid may take on one aspect per day for every daily use of wild shape she is entitled to.

For instance, a 5th-level druid could normally use wild shape once per day, so she could assume an aspect once per day.

A 10th-level druid could take on four aspects per day and can choose to take on two aspects simultaneously (which would use up two of the druid's daily uses).

Unless otherwise noted in an aspect's description, a druid who assumes an aspect of nature retains her own type and subtype(s), keeps her extraordinary, supernatural, or spell-like abilities, and retains her ability to communicate and cast spells.

She is considered proficient with any natural attacks granted by the aspect.

Agility: The druid gains a +8 bonus to Dexterity but takes a -4 penalty to Strength.

Prerequisite: Druid level 8th.

Aquatic: The druid grows gills, enabling her to breathe underwater (while retaining her ability to breathe air).

Webbing between her fingers and her toes grants her a swim speed of 40 feet (or 30 feet if wearing medium or heavy armor or carrying a medium or heavy load) and a +8 bonus on her Swim checks.

Elemental Air: The druid's body becomes gaseous (as the gaseous form spell, except that she can fly at a speed of 100 feet with perfect maneuverability and doesn't lose her supernatural abilities while in this form).

While in this form, the druid has immunity to poison, sleep, paralysis, and stunning, as well as any other immunities provided by the gaseous form spell.

The druid cannot cast spells while this aspect is in effect.

She can't combine this aspect with any other aspect except for agility and endurance.

Prerequisite: Druid level 16th.

Elemental Earth: The druid's body becomes stony and rocklike.

While in this form, the druid has immunity to poison, sleep, paralysis, and stunning.

She gains a slam attack that deals bludgeoning damage equal to a morningstar of the druid's size (1d8 for Medium druids, 1d6 for Small druids).

Her natural armor bonus becomes +8 (replacing any other natural armor bonus the druid has, though enhancement bonuses to natural armor still apply normally).

She also gains damage reduction 10/magic.

The druid cannot cast spells while this aspect is in effect.

She can't combine this aspect with any other aspect except for endurance and vigor.

Prerequisite: Druid level 16th.

Elemental Fire: The druid's body bursts into flame.

While in this form, the druid has immunity to fire, poison, sleep, paralysis, and stunning.

In addition, any creature struck by the druid in melee (whether with a weapon, unarmed attack, or natural weapon) takes an extra 1d6 points of fire damage and must succeed on a Reflex save or catch fire for 1d4 rounds (see Catching on Fire, page 303 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

The save DC is 10 + 1/2 druid level + druid's Con modifier.

Creatures hitting the druid with natural weapons or unarmed attacks while this aspect is in effect take 1d6 points of fire damage and also catch fire unless they succeed on the Reflex save noted above.

The druid also gains damage reduction 10/magic.

The druid cannot cast spells while this aspect is in effect.

She can't combine this aspect with any other aspect except for agility and endurance.

Prerequisite: Druid level 16th.

Elemental Water: The druid's body becomes semi-fluid.

While in this form, the druid gains a +10 bonus on Escape Artist checks, resistance to fire 10, and immunity to poison, sleep, paralysis, and stunning.

She gains a swim speed of 90 feet and a +8 bonus on her Swim checks.

Her touch puts out torches, campfires, exposed lanterns, and other open flames of nonmagical origin if these are Large or smaller.

The druid can dispel magical fire she touches as if she had cast greater dispel magic on it.

She also gains damage reduction 10/magic.

The druid cannot cast spells while this aspect is in effect.

She can't combine this aspect with any other aspect except for endurance and vigor.

Prerequisite: Druid level 16th.

Endurance: The druid gains a +4 bonus to Constitution.

Prerequisite: Druid level 8th.

Flight: The druid grows wings (feathery or batlike, at her option) that enable her to fly at a speed of 40 feet with average maneuverability (or 30 feet if wearing medium or heavy armor or carrying a medium or heavy load).

Plant: The druid's body becomes plantlike.

While in this form, the druid gains a +10 bonus on Hide checks made in areas of forest, overgrowth, or similar terrain.

She gains immunity to poison, sleep, paralysis, and stunning.

She gains a slam attack that deals bludgeoning damage equal to a light mace of the druid's size (1d6 for Medium druids, 1d4 for Small druids).

Her natural armor bonus becomes +4 (replacing any other natural armor bonus the druid has, though enhancement bonuses to natural armor still apply normally).

She can't combine this aspect with any other aspect except for vigor.

Prerequisite: Druid level 12th.

Poison: The druid gains a bite attack that deals bludgeoning, piercing, and slashing damage equal to a dagger of the druid's size (1d4 for a Medium druid, or 1d3 for a Small druid).

In addition, the bite delivers a toxic venom (Fortitude save DC 10 + 1/2 druid's level + druid's Con modifier; initial and secondary damage 1d6 Con).

Scent: The druid gains the scent ability, as described on page 314 of the Monster Manual.

Speed: The druid gains a +30-foot enhancement bonus to her base land speed.

Tooth and Claw: The druid gains a primary bite attack (at her full base attack bonus) and two secondary claw attacks (at her base attack bonus -5 and adding only half her Strength bonus on damage rolls).

The bite attack deals bludgeoning, piercing, and slashing damage equal to a short sword of the druid's size (1d6 for a Medium druid, or 1d4 for a Small druid), while the claws deal piercing and slashing damage equal to a dagger of the druid's size (1d4 for a Medium druid, or 1d3 for a Small druid).

Vigor: The druid gains a +8 bonus to Strength but takes a -4 penalty to Dexterity.

Prerequisite: Druid level 8th.

BARBARIAN

A barbarian who prefers crafty hunting over pure ferocity might choose to exchange his rage ability for certain ranger class features.

Gain: Favored enemy (as ranger); archery combat style, improved archery combat style, and archery combat style mastery (as ranger).

Lose: Rage, greater rage, indomitable will, tireless rage, mighty rage.

BARD

A rare bard might display a special link to nature and the mysterious world of the fey.

Such characters tend to be more aloof and less inspiring than standard bards.

Gain: Animal companion (as druid), nature sense (as druid), resist nature's lure (as druid), wild empathy (as druid).

Lose: Bardic knowledge, inspire courage, inspire competence, inspire greatness, inspire heroics.

BARDIC SAGE (BARD)

The bardic sage focuses his efforts on learning, research, and the power of knowledge.

Alignment: The bardic sage must be neutral good, neutral, or neutral evil.

The true pursuit of knowledge cares little for ethical extremes.

A bardic sage who becomes chaotic or lawful cannot progress in levels as a bardic sage, though he retains all his bardic sage abilities.

Base Save Bonuses: The bardic sage has good Will saves, but has poor Fortitude and Reflex saves.

CLASS FEATURES

The bardic sage has all the standard bard class features, except as noted below.

Spellcasting: A bardic sage learns and casts spells as a normal bard, with a few exceptions.

In addition to the normal number of spells known, a bardic sage knows one divination spell of each spell level he is capable of casting.

For example, a 1st-level bardic sage knows four 0-level bard spells plus one 0-level bard spell of the divination school (such as detect magic, know direction, or read magic).

The bardic sage's number of spells per day does not change. To learn or cast a spell, a bardic sage must have an Intelligence score (not Charisma score) equal to at least 10 + the spell level.

All other spellcasting factors, including bonus spells and save DCs, are still determined using the bardic sage's Charisma score.

Add the following spells to the bardic sage's class spell list: 1st—detect chaos/evil/good/law; 2nd—zone of truth; 3rd—arcane sight; 4th—analyze dweomer (lowered from 6th), sending; 5th—contact other plane, greater scrying (lowered from 6th); 6th—true seeing, vision.

Bardic Knowledge: A bardic sage gains a +2 bonus on all bardic knowledge checks.

Bardic Music: A bardic sage's powers of inspiration are not as persistent as those of a traditional bard.

His ability to inspire courage, inspire greatness, or inspire heroics lasts only 3 rounds after the ally can no longer hear the bardic sage sing, rather than the normal 5 rounds.

BATTLE SORCERER (SORCERER)

The battle sorcerer is no weak arcanist, hiding behind the fighters.

Instead, she is a capable physical combatant who mixes magical prowess with fighting skill.

Hit Die: d8.

Base Attack Bonus: The battle sorcerer uses the base attack bonus progression of the cleric.

Class Skills: Remove Bluff from the battle sorcerer's class skill list.

Add Intimidate to the battle sorcerer's class skill list.

CLASS FEATURES

The battle sorcerer has all the standard sorcerer class features, except as noted below.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: At 1st level, a battle sorcerer gains proficiency with any light or one-handed martial weapon of the character's choice.

She also gains proficiency with light armor.

Spellcasting: A battle sorcerer can cast sorcerer spells derived from her class levels of battle sorcerer while in light armor without the normal arcane spell failure chance. A battle sorcerer has fewer daily spell slots than a standard sorcerer.

Subtract one spell per day from each spell level on Table 3-16: The Sorcerer, page 52 of the Player's Handbook (to a minimum of zero spells per day).

For example, a 1st-level battle sorcerer may cast four 0-level spells and two 1st-level spells per day (plus bonus spells, if any).

A battle sorcerer knows fewer spells per spell level than a standard sorcerer.

Subtract one spell known from each spell level on Table 3-17: Sorcerer Spells Known, page 54 of the Player's Handbook (to a minimum of one spell per spell level).

For example, a 4th-level battle sorcerer knows five 0-level spells, two 1st-level spells, and one 2nd-level spell.

When she reaches 5th level, the battle sorcerer learns one additional 1st-level spell, but doesn't learn an additional 2nd-level spell (since two minus one is one).

CLERIC

Some clerics prefer to be champions of good (or evil), standing at the forefront of the battle against the enemy.

Gain: Smite evil, if the cleric would normally channel positive energy, or smite good, if the cleric would normally channel negative energy (as paladin); aura of courage (as paladin).

Loss: Turn undead.

CLOISTERED CLERIC (CLERIC)

The cloistered cleric spends more time than other clerics in study and prayer and less in martial training.

He gives up some of the cleric's combat prowess in exchange for greater skill access and a wider range of spells devoted to knowledge (and the protection of knowledge).

Most cloistered clerics are nonchaotic, since they believe that a disciplined lifestyle lends itself better to learning.

Hit Die: The cloistered cleric uses a d6 for his Hit Die (and has hit points at 1st level equal to 6 + Con modifier).

Base Attack Bonus: The cloistered cleric's lack of martial training means that he uses the poor base attack bonus.

Class Skills: The cloistered cleric's class skill list includes Decipher Script, Speak Language, and all Knowledge skills (from the Knowledge domain, see below).

The cloistered cleric gains skill points per level equal to 6 + Int modifier (and has this number $\times 4$ at 1st level).

CLASS FEATURES

The cloistered cleric has all the standard cleric class features, except as noted below.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Cloistered clerics are proficient with simple weapons and with light armor.

Lore (Ex): Thanks to long hours of study, a cloistered cleric has a wide range of stray knowledge.

This ability is identical to the bard's bardic knowledge class feature, using the cloistered cleric's class level in place of the bard level.

Deity, Domains, and Domain Spells: Most cloistered clerics worship deities associated with knowledge and learning, including (but not necessarily limited to) Boccob, Vecna, and Wee Jas.

Other deities who might have cloistered clerics among their clergy include Corellon Larethian, Moradin, Pelor, and Yondalla.

In addition to any domains selected from his deity's list, a cloistered cleric automatically gains Knowledge as a bonus domain (even if Knowledge is not normally available to clerics of that deity).

He gains the Knowledge domain granted power and may select his bonus domain spell from the Knowledge domain or from one of his two regular domains.

Spellcasting: Add the following spells to the cloistered cleric's class spell list: 0—message; 1st—erase, identify, unseen servant; 2nd—fox's cunning; 3rd—illusory script, secret page, tongues (reduced from 4th level); 4th—detect scrying; 6th—analyze dweomer; 7th—sequester; 9th—vision.

CONJURER

One of the most versatile schools of magic, conjuration offers its disciples an effective solution to nearly any task: Simply summon the appropriate monster and let it solve the problem.

In combat, high-level conjurers fight from behind wave after wave of summoned foes, and in most battles they simply direct their summoned allies into the conflict.

In addition to these vaunted summoning powers, conjuration provides effective combat spells and access to teleportation magic.

While virtually any campaign can benefit from rival groups of conjurers serving diverse agendas, conjurers are particularly effective in combat-heavy campaigns. Campaigns that feature a great deal of long-distance travel or travel between planes also benefit from including diverse groups of conjurers, because their specialty facilitates travel and encourages a thorough understanding of the creatures of the Outer Planes.

Rapid Summoning (Ex): Any time a conjurer using this variant casts a summon monster spell, its casting time is 1 standard action rather than 1 full round.

(Creatures so summoned can only take a standard action in the round they are summoned).

Conjurers using this variant gain the normal benefits from enhancing a summon monster spell with the Quicken Spell feat.

A conjurer using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Enhanced Summoning (Ex): At 1st level, a conjurer using this variant gains the Augmented Summoning feat for free instead of the Scribe Scroll feat.

At 5th level, the conjurer's summoned creatures become particularly tough to dispel.

Add 2 to the DC of any caster level check made to dispel the conjurer's summoned creatures.

At 15th level, this addition to the DC increases to 4.

At 10th level, the conjurer's summoned creatures gain an additional +2 bonus to Strength and Constitution.

At 20th level, these bonuses increase to +4.

These bonuses stack with those granted by the Augmented Summoning feat.

A conjurer using this variant does not gain bonus feats for advancing as a wizard.

Spontaneous Summoning (Ex): Conjurers using this variant can "lose" a prepared spell to cast any summon monster spell of a lower level.

For example, a conjurer who has prepared greater invisibility (a 4th-level spell) may lose that spell to cast summon monster I, summon monster II, or summon monster III.

A conjurer using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

Note: Since conjurers using this variant obviously summon monsters frequently, the DM should require the conjurer's player to prepare simple record sheets ahead of time for each monster that the character commonly summons.

It is also important to emphasize speedy play on the part of the conjurer and his summoned monsters.

DIVINE BARD (BARD)

Not all bards are arcanists; some derive their special powers from a divine tradition.

In many primitive cultures, the divine bard takes the place of the cleric or the adept as the guide of the people's religious beliefs.

CLASS FEATURES

The divine bard has all the standard bard class features, except as noted below.

Spellcasting: A divine bard learns and casts spells as a normal bard, with some minor exceptions.

A divine bard's spells are divine spells, not arcane spells.

To learn or cast a spell, a divine bard must have a Wisdom score (not Charisma score) equal to at least 10 + the spell level.

All other spellcasting factors, including bonus spells and save DCs, are still determined using the bardic sage's Charisma score.

Like druids, paladins, and rangers, divine bards need not designate a specific deity as the source of their spells.

However, a divine bard can't cast spells of an alignment that doesn't match his.

Thus, divine bards cannot cast lawful spells (since bards can't be lawful).

Neutral divine bards can't cast any spells associated with an alignment (and are thus relatively rare).

Add the following spells to the divine bard's class spell list: 0—create water, cure minor wounds; 1st—detect evil/good/law, protection from evil/good/law; 2nd—consecrate, desecrate, gentle repose; 3rd—magic circle against evil/good/law, prayer; 4th—remove disease, speak with dead, sending; 5th—divination, restoration; 6th—commune, hallow, unhallow, raise dead.

DIVINER

Seekers of knowledge, hoarders of lore, and master spies, diviners are perhaps the most underrated specialist wizards. Because they must give up access to only one other school of magic, they are also the most versatile specialists.

More than any other specialists, diviners excel at gathering information, and an adventuring party that includes a diviner is much more likely to prepare properly for an adventure.

Many campaigns benefit from featuring more than one type of divination specialist, and diviners can play important parts in any game revolving around information gathering.

Campaigns that feature mysteries and detective-style adventures, themes of prophecy and oracles, or large amounts of social interaction and espionage all make excellent forums for a diviner's powers.

In campaigns that feature variant diviners with different class abilities, one simple way to add more variety is to make each distinct group of specialists experts in and proponents of a different form of divination.

In game terms, this divergence is represented by altering the material components for some divination spells.

For example, one group of diviners might favor osteomancy and require a collection of bones to use as components for their spells.

Enhanced Awareness (Ex): A diviner using this variant adds Sense Motive to her list of class skills.

In addition, she gains minor benefits when casting certain divination spells.

She needs only to study an item for 10 minutes (rather than 1 hour) when casting identify.

An arcane eye cast by the diviner travels at 20 feet per round when studying its surroundings (rather than 10 feet per round).

Add +1 to the saving throw DCs of the character's divination spells.

(This bonus stacks with the bonus from the Spell Focus and Greater Spell Focus feats).

A diviner using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Bonus Feat List: A diviner using this variant gradually grows in awareness and perceptive ability, but at the expense of her metamagic capabilities.

The diviner may not select a metamagic feat as a wizard bonus feat (that is, those feats gained at 5th, 10th, 15th, and 20th level).

However, the following feats are added to the list of bonus feats available to her at those levels: Alertness, Blind-Fight, Improved Initiative, Lightning Reflexes, and Skill Focus (Spot, Listen, or Sense Motive only).

Prescience (Ex): Gifted with extraordinary insight and perceptive abilities, a diviner using this variant can add an insight bonus equal to her Intelligence modifier to any attack roll, saving throw, skill check, or level check she makes.

The diviner can use this ability once per day, plus one additional time per day for every five class levels attained.

Using this ability is a free action that can be taken out of turn if needed, but the character must choose to use this ability before the die roll is made.

A diviner using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

DOMAIN WIZARD (WIZARD)

A wizard who uses the arcane domain system (called a domain wizard) selects a specific arcane domain of spells, much like a cleric selects a pair of domains associated with his deity.

A domain wizard cannot also be a specialist wizard; in exchange for the versatility given up by specializing in a domain instead of an entire school, the domain wizard casts her chosen spells with increased power.

Some of the arcane domains described below have the same name as a divine domain.

Regardless of any apparent similarity, these domains have no connection to one another.

CLASS FEATURES

The domain wizard has all the standard wizard class features, except as noted below.

Arcane Domain: At 1st level, a domain wizard selects an arcane domain from those listed below.

(At the DM's discretion, the player might create an alternatively themed domain instead).

Once selected, the domain may never be changed.

A domain wizard automatically adds each new domain spell to her list of known spells as soon as she becomes able to cast it.

These spells do not count against her two new spells known per wizard level.

A domain wizard casts spells from her chosen domain (regardless of whether the spell was prepared as a domain spell or a normal spell) as a caster one level higher than her normal level.

This bonus applies only to the spells listed for the domain, not all spells of the school or subtype whose name matches the domain name.

In some cases, an arcane domain includes spells not normally on the wizard's class spell list.

These spells are treated as being on the character's class spell list (and thus she can use wands or arcane scrolls that hold those spells, or even prepare those spells in her normal wizard spell slots).

Spellcasting: A domain wizard prepares and casts spells like a normal wizard.

However, a domain wizard gains one bonus spell per spell level, which must be filled with the spell from that level of the domain spell list (or with a lower-level domain spell that has been altered with a metamagic feat).

No Prohibited Schools: Unlike a specialist wizard, a domain wizard need not select any prohibited schools or domains. All wizard spells are available to her to learn.

ABJURATION DOMAIN

0—resistance; 1st—shield; 2nd—resist energy; 3rd—dispel magic; 4th—remove curse; 5th—Mordenkainen's private sanctum; 6th—greater dispel magic; 7th—banishment; 8th—mind blank; 9th—prismatic sphere.

ANTIMAGIC DOMAIN

0—detect magic; 1st—protection from chaos/evil/good/law; 2nd—obscure object; 3rd—dispel magic; 4th—minor globe of invulnerability; 5th—break enchantment; 6th—antimagic field;

7th—spell turning; 8th—protection from spells; 9th—Mordenkainen's disjunction.

BATTLE DOMAIN

0—daze; 1st—true strike; 2nd—protection from arrows; 3rd—greater magic weapon; 4th—fire shield; 5th—Bigby's interposing hand; 6th—Tenser's transformation; 7th—power word blind; 8th—moment of prescience; 9th—time stop.

COLD DOMAIN

0—ray of frost; 1st—chill touch; 2nd—chill metal (as 2nd-level druid spell); 3rd—sleet storm; 4th—wall of ice; 5th—cone of cold; 6th—Otiluke's freezing sphere; 7th—delayed blast frostball (as delayed blast fireball, but deals cold damage instead of fire damage); 8th—polar ray; 9th—comet swarm (as meteor swarm, but deals cold damage instead of fire damage).

CONJURATION DOMAIN

0—acid splash; 1st—mage armor; 2nd—web; 3rd—stinking cloud; 4th—summon monster IV; 5th—wall of stone; 6th—acid fog; 7th—summon monster VII; 8th—maze; 9th—gate.

DIVINATION DOMAIN

0—detect magic; 1st—detect secret doors; 2nd—see invisibility; 3rd—arcane sight; 4th—arcane eye; 5th—prying eyes; 6th—true seeing; 7th—greater arcane sight; 8th—discern location; 9th—foresight.

ENCHANTMENT DOMAIN

0—daze; 1st—charm person; 2nd—Tasha's hideous laughter; 3rd—suggestion; 4th—confusion; 5th—hold monster; 6th—greater heroism; 7th—insanity; 8th—mass charm monster; 9th—dominate monster.

EVOCATION DOMAIN

0—light; 1st—magic missile; 2nd—flaming sphere; 3rd—lightning bolt; 4th—shout; 5th—wall of force; 6th—Bigby's forceful hand; 7th—Mordenkainen's sword; 8th—Otiluke's telekinetic sphere; 9th—Bigby's crushing hand.

FIRE DOMAIN

0—flare; 1st—burning hands; 2nd—scorching ray; 3rd—fireball; 4th—wall of fire; 5th—cone of fire (as cone of cold, but deals fire damage instead of cold damage); 6th—summon monster VI (fire creatures only); 7th—delayed blast fireball; 8th—incendiary cloud; 9th—meteor swarm.

ILLUSION DOMAIN

0—ghost sound; 1st—disguise self; 2nd—invisibility; 3rd—major image; 4th—phantasmal killer; 5th—shadow evocation; 6th—mislead; 7th—mass invisibility; 8th—scintillating pattern; 9th—shades.

NECROMANCY DOMAIN

0—disrupt undead; 1st—ray of enfeeblement; 2nd—false life; 3rd—vampiric touch; 4th—fear; 5th—waves of fatigue; 6th—circle of death; 7th—control undead; 8th—horrid wilting; 9th—energy drain.

STORM DOMAIN

0—ray of frost; 1st—obscuring mist (as 1st-level cleric spell); 2nd—gust of wind; 3rd—lightning bolt; 4th—ice storm; 5th—control winds (as 5th-level druid spell); 6th—chain lightning; 7th—control weather; 8th—whirlwind (as 8th-level druid spell); 9th—storm of vengeance (as 9th-level cleric spell).

TRANSMUTATION DOMAIN

0—mage hand; 1st—expeditious retreat; 2nd—levitate; 3rd—haste; 4th—polymorph; 5th—baleful polymorph; 6th—disintegrate; 7th—reverse gravity; 8th—iron body; 9th—shapechange.

DRUID

The druid might choose to give up her wild shape ability in exchange for becoming a swift and deadly hunter.

Gain: Bonus to Armor Class when unarmored (as monk, including Wisdom bonus to AC), fast movement (as monk), favored enemy (as ranger), swift tracker (as ranger), Track feat (as ranger).

Lose: Armor and shield proficiency, wild shape (all versions).

DRUIDIC AVENGER (DRUID)

The druidic avenger channels her inner fury to wreak vengeance upon those who injure the natural world.

This comes at a price, however, since the avenger must give up some of her own sensitivity to nature.

Class Skills: Add Intimidate to the avenger's list of class skills.

Eliminate Diplomacy from the avenger's list of class skills.

CLASS FEATURES

The druidic avenger has all the standard druid class features, except as noted below.

Animal Companion: An avenger does not gain the service of an animal companion.

Fast Movement (Ex): A druidic avenger's base land speed is faster than the norm for her race by 10 feet.

This ability is identical to the barbarian ability of the same name.

Rage (Ex): An avenger can enter a furious rage, identical to that of a barbarian.

An avenger can use this ability once per day at 1st level, and one additional time per day for every five levels above 1st.

An avenger does not gain the greater rage, indomitable will, or mighty rage abilities.

Spontaneous Casting: An avenger cannot channel stored spell energy into summoning spells.

Tireless Rage (Ex): At 17th level and higher, an avenger no longer becomes fatigued at the end of her rage.

Wild Empathy: A druidic avenger takes a -4 penalty on wild empathy checks.

ENCHANTER

Charmer, schemer, deceiver, pacifist: An enchanter can be all these and more.

As a practitioner of one of the most subtle schools of magic, an enchanter might charm a guard into opening a well-defended gate that fifty warriors couldn't take by force.

Good-aligned enchanters use their powers to seek out truth and encourage others onto the path of good, while their evil counterparts bend others' minds at their whim and gather personal power as rapidly as possible.

Campaigns that feature a large amount of social scenarios, political intrigue, or investigation benefit greatly from the inclusion of variant enchanters.

These spellcasters, skilled in the manipulation of others and capable of concealing their own identities, make excellent villains and manipulators, or even investigators skilled at using magic to draw the truth out of opponents.

Players and DMs alike should also consider the ramifications that enchantment spells and similar effects have on a game world.

Is casting charm person legal?

Do most of the campaign's inhabitants know that enchantment effects exist?

Are there folk remedies that supposedly provide protection against enchantment effects?

Do they actually work?

Having ready answers to these and similar questions not only adds consistency to the game, but also clarifies and highlights the role of the enchanter.

Cohort: Upon reaching 6th level, an enchanter using this variant gains the service of a loyal cohort of the player's choice (with the DM's approval).

The cohort is a 4th-level character when first gained; after that point, follow the normal rules described in the Leadership feat (page 106 of the Dungeon Master's Guide) to determine the cohort's level, but treat the enchanter's level as being two lower than normal.

The enchanter doesn't gain any followers from this ability. If the enchanter selects the Leadership feat, he attracts followers as normal, the penalty to the enchanter's effective level is eliminated, and the enchanter automatically qualifies for the "special power" modifier to his Leadership score.

An enchanter using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Social Proficiency (Ex): Enchanters using this variant are as proficient at manipulating others through mundane means as they are at influencing their minds magically.

Add the following skills to the character's list of wizard class skills: Bluff, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Intimidate, and Sense Motive.

The enchanter also gains a +2 competence bonus on checks involving one of these skills (player's choice) every five levels (5th, 10th, 15th, and 20th).

This bonus can only be applied once to each skill.

An enchanter using this variant does not gain bonus feats for advancing as a wizard.

Extended Enchantment (Su): Enchanters using this variant ensnare the minds of others more easily with their magic, and as a result their enchantment spells last longer than those cast by other spellcasters.

Once per day, plus one additional time per two class levels gained above 1st, an enchanter using this variant can cast a spell from the enchantment school as if it were enhanced by the Extend Spell metamagic feat.

This enhancement does not affect the spell's level.

This ability cannot be used to extend a spell with a duration of concentration, instantaneous, or permanent.

An enchanter using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

EVOKER

Masters of the raw power of magical energy, evokers can turn the tide of a battle with a single powerful spell, leveling groups of foes faster than any other practitioner of magic.

Where some wizards focus on careful spell preparation and protective spells to survive combat encounters, evokers simply blast away with powerful energy attacks.

Their prodigious offensive abilities ensure that evokers become the center of an adventuring group's battle plan.

130

Campaigns that include large numbers of wizards aligned to different nations are particularly suitable for variant evokers, since each nation develops unique cadres of evokers to serve in battle.

Groups of militant evokers marching in unison with more conventional groups can change the tide of nearly any battle.

In addition, campaigns that include themes of primal energy, raw nature, or extreme elemental conditions can all benefit from introducing evokers with variant abilities. Evokers in these sorts of campaigns might explore the raw essence of magic, struggling to harness its energies in new and unique ways.

Energy Affinity (Ex): Evokers using this variant must choose an energy type (acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic). This choice is made upon character creation and cannot be altered thereafter.

Any time the character casts an evocation spell with the chosen energy type, she casts the spell as if her caster level were one higher (affecting range, duration, damage, caster level checks, and any other factor influenced by caster level).

An evoker using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Energy Substitution (Ex): An evoker of 5th level or higher using this variant can substitute energy of one type for another.

When casting a spell that has an energy descriptor (acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic), the evoker can change the energy descriptor and the spell's effects to energy of a different type.

Using this ability is a free action that must be declared before the spell is cast.

The evoker can use this ability once per day for each five class levels he has attained (1/day at 5th, 2/day at 10th, and so on).

An evoker using this variant does not gain bonus feats for advancing as a wizard.

Overcome Resistance (Ex): The energy spells of an evoker using this variant can ignore some or all of a target's resistance to energy.

Using this ability is a free action that must be announced before the evoker casts the spell to be affected.

Every creature affected by the spell is treated as if its resistance to the spell's energy type was 10 points lower, to a minimum of 0.

(This lowered resistance applies only to this spell; other effects with the same energy descriptor must get through the creature's normal resistance).

The overcome resistance ability does not give the affected spell any ability to affect creatures with immunity to the spell's energy type, nor does the affected spell have any additional effect on creatures that do not have resistance to energy.

An evoker may use this ability one time per day, plus one additional time per day for every two class levels attained beyond 1st (2/day at 3rd, 3/day at 5th, and so forth).

An evoker using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

FAVORED ENVIRONMENT (RANGER)

Instead of selecting a type of creature against which to apply a bonus on certain skills and damage rolls, the ranger selects a specific natural environment and gains bonuses when in that environment.

At 1st level, a ranger may select a natural environment from among those given on Table 2–3: Ranger Favored Environments.

TABLE 2–3: RANGER FAVORED ENVIRONMENTS

Environment	Examples
Aquatic	sea, ocean (on or under water)
Desert, cold	tundra
Desert, temperate or warm	badlands, sandy desert
Forest, cold or temperate	forest
Forest, warm	jungle
Hills	rugged terrain up to 2,000 feet elevation
Marsh	bog, moor, swamp
Mountain	rugged terrain above 2,000 feet elevation
Plains	farmland, grassland, steppe, prairie
Underground	dungeons, caverns

Due to the ranger's experience in that environment, he gains a +2 bonus on Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Spot, and Survival checks when using these skills in that environment.

He also gains the same bonus on Knowledge (nature) checks made in association with that environment (or on Knowledge [dungeoneering] checks made in association with underground environments, if the ranger has selected underground as a favored environment).

At 5th level and every five levels thereafter (at 10th, 15th, and 20th level), the ranger may select an additional favored environment from those given on the table and gains an identical bonus on the appropriate skill checks in that environment.

In addition, at each such interval, the bonuses in any one favored environment (including the one just selected, if so desired) increase by 2.

For example, a 5th-level ranger has two favored environments.

In one he has a +4 bonus on the appropriate skill checks, and in the other he has a +2 bonus.

At 10th level, he has three favored environments, and he gains an additional +2 bonus, which he can allocate to any of his three favored environments.

Thus, his bonuses could be either +4, +4, and +2 or +6, +2, and +2.

If the ranger chooses desert or forest, he must also choose a climate type, as indicated on the table (either "cold" or "temperate or warm" for desert, or "cold or temperate" or "warm" for forest).

The DM may rule that a ranger can't select an environment that he has never visited.

FIGHTER

Some fighters prefer stealth and cunning over martial skill. This variant can also be combined with the thug variant described earlier in this chapter.

Gain: Sneak attack (as rogue).

Lose: Bonus feats.

FIGHTING STYLES (MONK)

In literature and lore, the combat styles and aptitudes of a monk depend greatly on where (or by whom) she was trained.

The monk in the Player's Handbook, however, presents only a relatively limited variety of options to personalize your monk.

A 1st-level monk (regardless of character level) may select one of the fighting styles described below.

By selecting one of these fighting styles, she dictates which bonus feats she gains at 1st, 2nd, and 6th level (when a monk normally gains one of two bonus feats, as given in the Player's Handbook).

In addition, at 1st level she gets a +2 bonus on checks involving a skill of her selection (in exchange for the freedom of choice she gives up by preselecting her bonus feats).

Finally, she gains a bonus ability at 6th level if she has met the listed prerequisites by that time.

If the character hasn't yet met the prerequisites, she doesn't gain the bonus ability, even if she meets the prerequisites at some later time.

These fighting styles serve a variety of purposes in a campaign.

Each one might symbolize a different monastery, creating a rivalry (friendly or unfriendly) between their students.

Perhaps a specific master teaches each style only to a few select students, meaning that a monk must prove herself worthy before pursuing the training.

Or maybe each monk simply chooses her own way in life, styling herself after great martial artists of the past.

A monk can abandon her fighting style by selecting a different bonus feat at 2nd or 6th level; however, if she does so, she loses the bonus on skill checks gained at 1st level and never gains the bonus ability of the fighting style (even if she meets the prerequisites).

COBRA STRIKE

Monks of the Cobra Strike School specialize in agility and defense.

By making herself hard to pin down, the Cobra Strike monk forces the enemy to fight on her terms.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Escape Artist.

1st-Level Feat: Dodge.

2nd-Level Feat: Mobility.

6th-Level Feat: Spring Attack.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: The dodge bonus to Armor Class granted by your Dodge feat increases to +2.

Prerequisites: Balance 4 ranks, Escape Artist 9 ranks.

DENYING STANCE

The Denying Stance monk seeks to neutralize the opponent's maneuvers, thwarting him at every turn until he becomes so frustrated that he makes a crucial error.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Tumble.

1st-Level Feat: Improved Grapple.

2nd-Level Feat: Combat Reflexes.

6th-Level Feat: Improved Disarm.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: When fighting defensively or using the Combat Expertise feat, you gain a +2 bonus on grapple checks and disarm attempts.

Prerequisites: Tumble 9 ranks, Combat Expertise.

HAND AND FOOT

Students of the Hand and Foot style learn to use their appendages for both offense and defense.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Balance.

1st-Level Feat: Stunning Fist.

2nd-Level Feat: Deflect Arrows.

6th-Level Feat: Improved Trip.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: You gain a +2 bonus on attacks of opportunity made against an opponent attempting to bull rush or trip you, and a +4 bonus on Dexterity or Strength checks to avoid being tripped or bull rushed.

Prerequisites: Balance 9 ranks, Tumble 4 ranks.

INVISIBLE EYE

Monks of the Invisible Eye rely on their senses, particularly hearing, to aid them in combat.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Listen.

1st-Level Feat: Combat Reflexes.

2nd-Level Feat: Lightning Reflexes.

6th-Level Feat: Blind-Fight.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: When unarmed and fighting defensively, using Combat Expertise, or using the total defense action, increase the dodge bonus to Armor Class that you gain from using that tactic by 1.

Prerequisites: Listen 9 ranks, Agile.

OVERWHELMING ATTACK

A monk trained in the Overwhelming Attack style always presses the advantage, preferring a showy display of all-out offense to any form of defense.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Intimidate.

1st-Level Feat: Power Attack.

2nd-Level Feat: Improved Bull Rush.

6th-Level Feat: Improved Overrun.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: If you have used Intimidate to demoralize your opponent at any time within the previous 10 rounds, you gain a +4 bonus on Strength checks made to bull rush or overrun that opponent.

Prerequisites: Intimidate 4 ranks, Perform (dance) 4 ranks.

PASSIVE WAY

The Passive Way focuses on making your opponent overreach himself or underestimate your skill.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Bluff.

1st-Level Feat: Combat Expertise.

2nd-Level Feat: Improved Trip.

6th-Level Feat: Improved Feint.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: You gain a +4 bonus on Strength checks made to trip an opponent who is denied his Dexterity bonus to Armor Class.

Prerequisites: Bluff 4 ranks, Sense Motive 4 ranks, Skill Focus (Bluff).

SLEEPING TIGER

The Sleeping Tiger style mixes smooth motions with powerful strikes.

It favors a quick, first-strike approach, preferably from a position of ambush.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Hide.

1st-Level Feat: Weapon Finesse.

2nd-Level Feat: Improved Initiative.

6th-Level Feat: Improved Sunder.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: Once per round, when an opponent would be denied his Dexterity bonus to Armor Class, the monk deals an extra 1d6 points of damage with a melee attack made with a light weapon.

Any creature immune to sneak attacks is immune to this ability.

Prerequisites: Hide 9 ranks, Power Attack.

UNDYING WAY

Monks of the Undying Way believe in patience above all else.

They work to outlast their opponents by means of superior endurance.

1st-Level Skill Bonus: Concentration.

1st-Level Feat: Toughness.

2nd-Level Feat: Endurance.

6th-Level Feat: Diehard.

6th-Level Bonus Ability: When fighting defensively, using Combat Expertise, or using the total defense action, the monk gains damage reduction 2/–.

Prerequisites: Concentration 9 ranks.

FREEDOM, SLAUGHTER, AND TYRANNY (PALADIN)

The three paladin variants presented here demonstrate examples of alternative-alignment paladins.

Each one follows a specific code of conduct tailored to its specific alignment.

The paladin of freedom is chaotic good, dedicated to liberty and free thought.

The paladin of tyranny is the opposite, a lawful evil villain bent on dominating those weaker than she.

The paladin of slaughter is a brutal champion of chaos and evil who leaves only destruction trailing in his wake.

(If you use these versions of the paladin class, you might consider designating the standard paladin in the Player's Handbook as the "paladin of honor" to differentiate it from the variants).

These paladin variants aren't meant to be unique classes in and of themselves, but rather alignment-based variations of the paladin.

They have the same Hit Die, skill points per level, weapon and armor proficiencies, and spells per day as the standard paladin in the Player's Handbook.

Their class skill lists are nearly identical, with exceptions noted below.

Their spellcasting functions identically to that of the standard paladin (though their spell lists are somewhat different).

When a class feature has the same name as a paladin class feature, it functions the same as the one described in the Player's Handbook.

PALADIN OF FREEDOM CLASS FEATURES

The paladin of freedom has all the standard paladin class features, except as noted below.

Class Skills: Replace Diplomacy with Bluff on the class skill list.

Aura of Resolve (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a paladin of freedom is immune to compulsion effects.

Each ally within 10 feet of him gains a +4 morale bonus on saving throws against compulsion effects.

This ability otherwise functions identically to the paladin's aura of courage class feature.

Spellcasting: Remove the following spells from the paladin's spell list: death ward, discern lies, dispel chaos, magic circle against chaos, protection from chaos.

Add the following spells to the paladin's spell list: 1st—protection from law; 3rd—magic circle against law, remove curse; 4th—dispel law, freedom of movement.

Code of Conduct: A paladin of freedom must be of chaotic good alignment and loses all class abilities if he ever willingly commits an evil act.

Additionally, a paladin of freedom's code requires that he respect individual liberty, help those in need (provided they do not use the help for lawful or evil ends), and punish those who threaten or curtail personal liberty.

Associates: While he may adventure with characters of any good or neutral alignment, a paladin of freedom will never knowingly associate with evil characters (except on some sort of undercover mission), nor will he continue an association with someone who consistently offends his moral code.

A paladin of freedom may accept only henchmen, followers, or cohorts who are chaotic good.

PALADIN OF SLAUGHTER CLASS FEATURES

The paladin of slaughter has all the standard paladin class features, except as noted below.

Class Skills: Replace Diplomacy with Intimidate on the class skill list.

Aura of Evil (Ex): The power of a paladin of slaughter's aura of evil (see the detect evil spell) is equal to her paladin of slaughter level, just as with the aura of a cleric of an evil deity.

Detect Good (Sp): At will, a paladin of slaughter can use detect good, as the spell.

Smite Good (Su): Once per day, a paladin of slaughter may attempt to smite good with one normal melee attack.

This ability is otherwise identical to the standard paladin's ability to smite evil, including increased daily uses as the paladin of slaughter gains class levels.

Deadly Touch (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a paladin of slaughter can cause wounds with a successful touch attack. Each day she can deal a total number of hit points of damage equal to her paladin level × her Charisma bonus.

An opponent subjected to this attack can make a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 paladin level + paladin's Cha modifier) to halve the damage dealt.

Alternatively, a paladin of slaughter can use any or all of this power to cure damage to undead creatures, just as an inflict wounds spell does.

This power otherwise functions identically to the paladin's lay on hands ability.

Debilitating Aura (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a paladin of slaughter radiates a malign aura that causes enemies within 10 feet of her to take a –1 penalty to Armor Class.

This ability otherwise functions identically to the paladin's aura of courage class feature.

Rebuke Undead (Su): A paladin of slaughter rebukes undead rather than turning undead.

Cause Disease (Sp): A paladin of slaughter can inflict disease with her touch (as the contagion spell) a number of times per week that a standard paladin of her level would normally be able to remove disease.

Spellcasting: Replace the standard paladin's spell list with the following spell list: 1st—bane, cause fear, corrupt weapon, create water, curse water, detect poison, detect undead, divine favor, endure elements, inflict light wounds, magic weapon, protection from good, protection from law, read magic, resistance, virtue; 2nd—bull's strength, cure light wounds, darkness, delay poison, eagle's splendor, inflict moderate wounds, owl's wisdom, resist energy, undetectable alignment; 3rd—blindness/deafness, cure moderate wounds, deeper darkness, dispel magic, greater magic weapon, heal mount, prayer, inflict serious wounds, magic circle against good/law; 4th—break enchantment, cure serious wounds, dispel good, dispel law, inflict critical wounds, poison, unholy sword.

Code of Conduct: A paladin of slaughter must be of chaotic evil alignment and loses all class abilities if she ever willingly commits a good act.

Additionally, a paladin of slaughter's code requires that she disrespect all authority figures who have not proven their physical superiority to her, refuse help to those in need, and sow destruction and death at all opportunities.

Associates: While she may adventure with characters of any evil or neutral alignment, a paladin of slaughter will never knowingly associate with good characters, nor will she continue an association with someone who consistently offends her moral code.

A paladin of tyranny may accept only henchmen, followers, and cohorts who are chaotic evil.

PALADIN OF TYRANNY CLASS FEATURES

The paladin of tyranny has all the standard paladin class features, except as noted below.

Aura of Evil (Ex): The power of a paladin of tyranny's aura of evil (see the detect evil spell) is equal to his paladin of tyranny level, just as with the aura of a cleric of an evil deity.

Detect Good (Sp): At will, a paladin of tyranny can use detect good, as the spell.

Smite Good (Su): Once per day, a paladin of tyranny may attempt to smite good with one normal melee attack.

This ability is otherwise identical to the standard paladin's ability to smite evil, including increased daily uses as the paladin of tyranny gains class levels.

Deadly Touch (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a paladin of tyranny can cause wounds with a successful touch attack.

Each day she can deal a total number of hit points of damage equal to her paladin level \times her Charisma bonus.

An opponent subjected to this attack can make a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 paladin level + paladin's Cha modifier) to halve the damage dealt.

Alternatively, a paladin of tyranny can use any or all of this power to cure damage to undead creatures, just as an inflict wounds spell does.

This power otherwise functions identically to the paladin's lay on hands ability.

Aura of Despair (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a paladin of tyranny radiates a malign aura that causes enemies within 10 feet of him to take a -2 penalty on all saving throws. This ability otherwise functions identically to the paladin's aura of courage class feature.

Rebuke Undead (Su): A paladin of tyranny rebukes undead rather than turning undead.

Cause Disease (Sp): A paladin of tyranny can inflict disease with his touch (as the contagion spell) a number of times per week that a standard paladin of her level would normally be able to remove disease.

Spellcasting: Replace the paladin's spell list with the following spell list: 1st—bane, corrupt weapon, create water, curse water, detect poison, detect undead, divine favor, doom, endure elements, inflict light wounds, magic weapon, protection from chaos, protection from good, read magic, resistance, virtue; 2nd—bull's strength, cure light wounds, darkness, delay poison, eagle's splendor, hold person, inflict moderate wounds, owl's wisdom, resist energy, undetectable alignment; 3rd—bestow curse, cure moderate wounds, deeper darkness, discern lies, dispel magic, greater magic weapon, heal mount, prayer, inflict serious wounds, magic circle against chaos/good; 4th—break enchantment, cure serious wounds, dispel chaos, dispel good, dominate person, inflict critical wounds, unholy sword.

Code of Conduct: A paladin of tyranny must be of lawful evil alignment and loses all class abilities if he ever willingly commits a good act.

Additionally, a paladin of tyranny's code requires that he respect authority figures as long as they have the strength to rule over the weak, act with discipline (not engaging in random slaughter, keeping firm control over those beneath his station, and so forth), help only those who help him maintain or improve his status, and punish those who challenge authority (unless, of course, such challengers prove more worthy to hold that authority).

Associates: While he may adventure with characters of any evil or neutral alignment, a paladin of tyranny will never knowingly associate with good characters unless it serves his needs, nor will he continue an association with someone who consistently offends his moral code.

A paladin of tyranny may accept henchmen and followers of any alignment, but may only accept cohorts who are lawful evil.

TABLE 2-1: VARIANT PALADIN CLASS FEATURES

Level	Freedom	Tyranny	Slaughter
1st	Aura of good, detect evil , smite evil 1/day	Aura of evil, detect good , smite good 1/day	Aura of evil, detect good , smite good 1/day
2nd	Divine grace, lay on hands	Divine grace, deadly touch	Divine grace, deadly touch
3rd	Aura of resolve, divine health	Aura of despair, divine health	Debilitating aura, divine health
4th	Turn undead	Rebuke undead	Rebuke undead
5th	Smite evil 2/day, special mount	Smite good 2/day, special mount	Smite good 2/day, special mount
6th	Remove disease 1/week	Cause disease 1/week	Cause disease 1/week
7th	—	—	—
8th	—	—	—
9th	Remove disease 2/week	Cause disease 2/week	Cause disease 2/week
10th	Smite evil 3/day	Smite good 3/day	Smite good 3/day
11th	—	—	—
12th	Remove disease 3/week	Cause disease 3/week	Cause disease 3/week
13th	—	—	—
14th	—	—	—
15th	Remove disease 4/week, smite evil 4/day	Cause disease 4/week, smite good 4/day	Cause disease 4/week, smite good 4/day
16th	—	—	—
17th	—	—	—
18th	Remove disease 5/week	Cause disease 5/week	Cause disease 5/week
19th	—	—	—
20th	Smite evil 5/day	Smite good 5/day	Smite good 5/day

ILLUSIONIST

Illusionists control their surroundings by shaping, distorting, and deceiving the perceptions of others. To some their abilities seem weak, because they only distort and disguise rather than effecting true change, but those affected by an illusionist's spells know better, understanding that their own senses can be turned against them at any time.

Campaigns that deal in deception or that have a high level of social interaction, a fair number of mystery adventures, or even simply suspicious players can benefit from the introduction of variant illusionists.

Campaigns featuring multiple types of variant illusionists might give each group or variant an even more distinctive flavor by making each the master of a particular subset of illusion spells.

Illusionists from one nation might, for example, have the chains of disbelief variant ability and favor phantasms, while the illusionist thieves of the Guild of Shadows might have the shadow shaper variant ability and favor glamers and shadow magic.

Chains of Disbelief (Ex): Even if a viewer disbelieves an illusion created by an illusionist using this variant and communicates the details of the illusion to other creatures, those other creatures do not receive the normal +4 bonus on their saving throws to disbelieve the illusion.

Furthermore, even when presented with incontrovertible proof that the illusion isn't real, creatures must still succeed on a Will saving throw to see objects or creatures that the illusion obscures, although they get a +10 bonus on the saving throw.

An illusionist using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Shadow Shaper: An illusionist using this variant has a special bond with the Plane of Shadow, and gains several special abilities as he advances in level.

At 1st level, Hide is treated as a class skill for the illusionist.

At 5th level, the illusionist may add his Intelligence modifier (in addition to his Dexterity modifier) to his Hide skill checks.

At 10th level, the illusionist's illusions become infused with shadow stuff from the Plane of Shadow, making them more realistic and more likely to fool the senses.

The save DCs of the illusionist's illusion spells increase by +1.

This benefit stacks with similar bonuses, such as from Spell Focus.

At 15th level, the illusionist can hide in plain sight (as the ranger ability, except that the illusionist need not be in natural terrain).

At 20th level, the illusionist gains the ability to blend into shadows.

In any condition of illumination that would normally grant the illusionist concealment, he instead gains total concealment (as if he were invisible).

An illusionist using this variant does not gain bonus feats for advancing as a wizard.

Illusion Mastery (Ex): An illusionist using this variant automatically adds two illusion spells to his spellbook every time he gains a level that grants access to a new spell level. Furthermore, any time the illusionist learns a new illusion spell, he treats that spell as if he had mastered it with the Spell Mastery feat.

An illusionist using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

LEVEL CHECK (CLERIC)

The standard rules for turning undead allow a cleric to affect a relatively narrow band of undead (up to 4 HD greater than his cleric level).

This makes many undead creatures "off limits" for this iconic power of the cleric.

This variant changes the cleric's turning check into a battle of personality strength, representing it by a level check that also takes into account the opponents' Charisma scores.

When turning undead using this variant, the cleric makes a turning check against the closest creature first, followed by a separate check against the next closest, and so on.

When two or more creatures are equally close, the creature with the lowest number of Hit Dice is affected first (if it's still a tie, the character chooses which is affected first).

Creatures more than 60 feet away cannot be turned.

A turning check is a level check to which the character also adds his Charisma modifier.

(Use the character's effective turning level, which is equal to class level for a cleric or class level -3 for a paladin).

The DC is 10 + the creature's Hit Dice + its turn resistance (if any) + its Charisma modifier.

(To speed play, the DM can add a "Turn DC" score to the statistics block of each undead creature).

If you use this variant, some creatures' turn resistance should be increased to keep them from being too easy to turn.

Any creature with turn resistance of +4 or higher should gain an additional +2 to its turn resistance.

Creatures with turn resistance of +3 or lower need no change.

If the check fails, the creature is unaffected.

Its Hit Dice do not count against the total number of creatures the character can turn (see below).

If the character succeeds on the check, the affected creature stands frozen in place for 1 round, just as if it were paralyzed (though this affects even creatures with immunity to paralysis).

On each succeeding turn, the character may take a standard action to concentrate on the effect, prolonging the effective paralysis for an additional round.

(This doesn't count as a turn attempt, and affects all undead creatures that the character has "paralyzed" in this manner).

The character may concentrate on this effect for a maximum of 10 consecutive rounds, after which the undead creature can act normally.

If a creature affected in this way is attacked or takes damage, the effect is broken and the creature may act normally beginning on its next turn.

(The character's proximity to the creature has no effect).

This effect is the same whether the character channels positive or negative energy.

If the character's check beats the DC by 5 or more, he may instead turn the creature (if he channels positive energy) or rebuke it (if he channels negative energy).

If the creature has Hit Dice equal to one-half the character's effective cleric level or less, the turning attempt automatically succeeds, and he does not have to make a check (the creature's Hit Dice still count against the maximum).

Furthermore, such undead are automatically destroyed (if the character channels positive energy) or commanded (if he channels negative energy).

The character makes checks against each eligible creature until he has affected the maximum Hit Dice worth of creatures, or there are no more eligible creatures.

He can affect a number of Hit Dice of creatures equal to three × his effective cleric level on any one turning attempt. For example, a 4th-level cleric (or 7th-level paladin) can affect up to 12 HD worth of creatures, which could mean two creatures with 6 HD each, four creatures with 3 HD each, or any other combination that adds up to 12 HD.

An evil cleric can instead channel negative energy to bolster undead or to dispel a turning effect.

In either case, the cleric makes a normal turning check (if attempting to dispel a turning effect, add the turning cleric's Charisma modifier to the DC of the evil cleric's turning check).

If the cleric successfully rebukes the undead, the undead gain turn resistance +2 (if he was attempting to bolster them) or are no longer turned (if he was attempting to dispel the turning effect).

For example, Jozan, a 3rd-level cleric, faces three ghouls and a ghost.

Jozan can turn up to 9 HD of creatures.

Two of the ghouls are 10 feet and 15 feet away, respectively.

The third ghoul and the ghost are both 20 feet away.

His turning attempts affect the closest ghouls first, then the farthest ghoul, and then the ghost.

Jozan makes the first turning check.

A ghoul has 2 HD, but it also has +2 turn resistance, so it is treated as a 4 HD creature.

After adding the ghoul's +1 Charisma modifier, the turning check DC is 15.

Jozan rolls a 12, which, with his three cleric levels and +1 Charisma modifier, gives him a result of 16, so the nearest ghoul is halted in place.

(If Jozan wants to maintain the effect, he'll have to continue to concentrate on it in later rounds).

He has successfully turned 4 HD worth of creatures, leaving him with 5 HD.

This is enough to affect another ghoul, so he makes another turning check against the next closest ghoul.

Jozan rolls a 6 against the second ghoul, for a result of 10, so the ghoul is unaffected.

Against the third ghoul, his roll is 16 for a result of 20, which beats the DC by at least 5, so Jozan can turn the ghoul if he wishes to do so.

Since he knows he can't affect the ghost on this turning attempt—it has 4 HD and +2 turn resistance, and Jozan has only 1 HD of turning left—he chooses to paralyze the third ghoul rather than sending it scurrying back into its burrow where it can gather more allies.

(Even if Jozan had failed to affect the third ghoul, he would only have 5 HD left—not enough to affect the ghost thanks to its +2 turn resistance).

On his next turn, Jozan can choose to continue holding the ghouls in place or, if his allies have already destroyed the three ghouls, use another turning attempt against the ghost (which requires a DC 19 turning check).

MONK

A monk might choose to give up some of her mobility in exchange for the ability to withstand attacks.

Gain: Damage reduction (as barbarian).

Lose: Enhancement bonus to unarmored speed, bonus to Armor Class when unarmored (retain Wisdom bonus to AC when unarmored).

NECROMANCER

Wrapped in mystery and burdened by reputations of evil, necromancers control dangerous energies that rob the living of strength and grant unlife to the dead.

The most powerful necromancers command dangerous undead minions and threaten towns, cities, and sometimes even entire kingdoms with their power.

Although necromancers make excellent villains and nemeses for a group of adventurers, neutral- and good-aligned necromancers who view themselves as the shepherds of the living and guardians of the dead can also prove valuable allies.

Campaigns that include evil necromancers or groups of undead as antagonists can benefit from the inclusion of variant necromancers.

Rival groups of necromancers might view certain types of undead as the only true or “pure” undead and all others as evils that must be destroyed, with each group disagreeing on which types are which.

Other factions or groups might have an innate loathing for undead raised by any but themselves.

Skeletal Minion: A 1st-level necromancer using this variant can begin play with an undead minion (a human warrior skeleton, as described on page 226 of the Monster Manual). Obtaining this minion takes 24 hours and uses up magical materials that cost 100 gp.

This creature is a loyal servant that follows the necromancer’s commands and accompanies her on adventures if desired.

If the skeletal minion is destroyed, the necromancer suffers no ill effects and may replace it by performing a ceremony identical to the one that allowed her to obtain her first servant.

At 1st level, the skeleton is completely typical, but it gains power as the necromancer gains levels.

The skeleton has a number of Hit Dice equal to the necromancer’s class level.

Add one-half the necromancer’s class level to the skeleton’s natural armor bonus.

Add one-third of the necromancer’s class level to the skeleton’s Strength and Dexterity scores.

A necromancer using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Undead Apotheosis (Ex): As a necromancer using this variant progresses in levels, she gains some of the qualities that typify undead creatures.

At 5th level, the necromancer gains a +2 bonus on all saving throws made to resist sleep, stun, paralysis, poison, or disease.

This bonus increases to +4 at 15th level.

At 10th level, the necromancer gains a +4 bonus on saving throws made to resist ability damage, ability drain, or energy drain.

At 20th level, the necromancer gains 25% resistance to critical hits, as the light fortification armor special ability described on page 219 of the Dungeon Master’s Guide.

A necromancer using this variant does not gain bonus feats for advancing as a wizard.

Enhanced Undead (Ex): Any time a necromancer using this variant creates an undead creature (such as with animate dead, create undead, or create greater undead), all undead creatures created gain a +4 enhancement bonus to Strength and Dexterity, and two additional hit points per Hit Die. This ability does not affect the number or Hit Dice of animated creatures that the necromancer can create or control.

A necromancer using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

PALADIN

The paladin who takes an active role in hunting her foul enemies must give up her defensive powers.

Gain: Favored enemy (as ranger; may only select aberrations, dragons, giants, monstrous humanoids, evil outsiders, or undead).

Lose: Lay on hands, turn undead, remove disease.

PLANAR BANISHMENT (CLERIC)

Instead of channeling energy to turn or rebuke undead, with this variant a cleric can channel energy to banish outsiders.

Make a turning check as normal.

The result indicates the most powerful outsider affected (treat an outsider as having Hit Dice equal to its Hit Dice + its Cha modifier, if any).

If the roll is high enough to let the cleric affect at least some outsiders within 60 feet, roll 2d6 + cleric’s class level + cleric’s Cha modifier for turning damage.

That’s how many total Hit Dice of outsiders the cleric affects.

Any outsider affected by the turning attempt is banished back to its home plane.

(If it is already on its home plane, there is no effect).

Even if it has the ability to travel between planes, it cannot do so for 10 rounds (1 minute).

If the cleric has twice as many levels (or more) as the outsider has effective Hit Dice, he destroys any outsiders that he would normally banish.

If the cleric would normally turn or destroy undead, he has the ability to banish or destroy evil outsiders (that is, outsiders with the evil subtype, as defined by the Monster Manual).

Characters who would normally rebuke or command undead instead gain the ability to banish or destroy good outsiders.

As an additional option, the DM might allow clerics worshipping a lawful deity to banish or destroy chaotic outsiders, while clerics worshipping a chaotic deity could banish or destroy lawful outsiders.

This ability would replace the ability to banish or destroy good or evil outsiders.

If you use this variant, consider allowing clerics who can turn or rebuke elementals (that is, clerics with access to the Air, Earth, Fire, or Water domains) to instead banish elementals of the same element and banish or destroy elementals of the opposing element.

This variant is otherwise identical to turning undead, including limits of daily uses and feats that enhance a cleric’s turning ability.

PLANAR RANGER (RANGER)

The planar ranger roams the multiverse instead of the wilderness, learning the secrets of the elemental planes, the glorious Seven Heavens, and the horrible Abyss.

Class Skills: Eliminate Knowledge (nature) and Knowledge (dungeoneering) from the ranger’s class skill list.

Add Knowledge (the planes) and Speak Language (Abyssal, Aquan, Auran, Celestial, Ignan, Infernal, Terran only) to the class skill list.

CLASS FEATURES

The planar ranger has all the standard ranger class features, except as noted below.

Wild Empathy: A planar ranger takes no penalty on wild empathy checks made to influence magical beasts with the celestial or fiendish templates.

However, he takes a -4 penalty when using this ability against animals.

Animal Companion: A nonevil planar ranger may have a celestial version of a normal animal as his animal companion.

A nongood ranger may have a fiendish version of a normal animal as his animal companion.

Spellcasting: A planar ranger's spellcasting ability is largely unchanged from that of the standard ranger, with one exception: Any ranger spell that normally affects animals also affects celestial or fiendish versions of animals when cast by a planar ranger.

RANGER

A ranger might forgo training in weapon combat in exchange for the ability to take animal form and move swiftly through the woodlands.

Gain: Wild shape (as druid; Small or Medium animals only), fast movement (as barbarian).

Lose: Combat style, improved combat style, combat style mastery.

ROGUE

The rogue who favors martial training over stealth and cunning can profit if she chooses her fights carefully.

Gain: Bonus feats (as fighter).

Lose: Sneak attack.

SAVAGE BARD (BARD)

The savage bard is a warrior at heart, though his arcane powers strike fear into the enemies of his tribe.

Savage bards often multiclass as barbarians to improve their combat prowess.

Alignment: A savage bard must be chaotic in alignment.

A savage bard who becomes nonchaotic cannot progress in levels as a bard, though he retains all his bard abilities.

Base Save Bonuses: A savage bard has good Fortitude and Will saves, but has poor Reflex saves.

Class Skills: A savage bard loses Decipher Script and Speak Language as class skills.

He adds Survival to his list of class skills.

CLASS FEATURES

The savage bard has all the standard bard class features, except as noted below.

Illiteracy: A savage bard is illiterate, just as a barbarian is.

An illiterate savage bard cannot use or scribe scrolls.

Spellcasting: Remove the following spells from the savage bard's class spell list: calm emotions, comprehend languages, detect secret doors, erase, prestidigitation, read magic, sepia snake sigil, summon monster (I through VI).

Add the following spells to the savage bard's class spell list: 1st—calm animals, detect snares and pits, endure elements, summon nature's ally I; 2nd—bull's strength, pass without trace, summon nature's ally II; 3rd—snare, summon nature's ally III; 4th—insect plague, summon nature's ally IV; 5th—commune with nature, summon nature's ally V; 6th—creeping doom, reincarnate, summon nature's ally VI.

SORCERER/WIZARD

A sorcerer or wizard might desire a more durable companion to accompany him on excursions into the wilderness.

Gain: Animal companion (as druid; treat sorcerer or wizard as a druid of half his class level).

Lose: Familiar.

SPECIALIST WIZARD

Because magic plays such an important role in the D&D game, the wizard class offers great opportunities for change when designing a campaign or a character.

The following variants present different versions of the specialist wizards described in the Player's Handbook.

Each variant specialist class gives up one of the standard specialist's class abilities in exchange for a new ability unique to the variant specialist.

Each specialist class has three variants: one that replaces the specialist's summon familiar ability, one that replaces the specialist's bonus spells, and one that replaces the specialist's bonus spell per day from the specialty school. Because each variant requires the loss of an existing ability, you can use more than one of these variants at the same time.

By choosing among the variant abilities presented for each specialist, you can easily customize the way that magic works in a campaign, in a geographic region of a campaign, for a school of magic, or even for a single spellcaster.

Players can easily create unique and interesting characters using these variants.

For example, a campaign might be set up with some or all of the following variants for specialist wizards.

- All abjurers in the campaign have the resistance to energy variant ability because the setting includes a large number of gates to the elemental planes.

- Evokers from the city of Kinhaven all have the overcome resistance ability, but they do not gain additional spells as specialist wizards.

However, other evokers in the campaign gain abilities exactly as described in the Player's Handbook and consider the evokers of Kinhaven a disruptive offshoot of the pure study of magic.

- The students and masters at a college of necromancy from a distant region slowly undergo undead apotheosis instead of gaining bonus feats, but most necromancers in the campaign gain abilities exactly as described in the Player's Handbook.

This difference has led some to feel that the foreign necromancers have a more thorough understanding of the powers of death.

Traditional necromancers have a hard time attracting students, while the foreigners gain several new apprentices each year.

- One conjurer of particular power in the city of Balthak-Ruhl cannot obtain a familiar and instead casts summoning spells exceptionally quickly, as described in the rapid summoning variant ability.

He claims he can teach others to wield magic as he does, but so far he has gathered few students.

In addition to a description of the variant class's abilities, each entry below includes brief suggestions on sample campaigns, adventures, or characters that might benefit from the use of the variant specialists.

These notes are suggestions only, since nearly any campaign can benefit from adding variety to spells and spellcasters.

Although these abilities allow the creation and customization of variant classes, a character cannot, for example, take a few levels of conjurer using the rapid summoning variant and then "multiclass" into regular conjurer levels.

These variants all follow the normal rules for multiclassing by specialist wizards.

SPONTANEOUS DIVINE CASTERS (CLERIC, DRUID)

As a twist on the traditional divine spellcaster, this variant converts the cleric and druid into spontaneous spellcasters. Such characters have a limited number of spells known, as the sorcerer does, though their selection is not quite as limited as the sorcerer's list.

Like other spellcasters, a character using this variant system can cast a certain number of spells per day.

His base daily allotment is the same as a normal cleric's number of spells per day (not including domain spells), plus one spell per day of each spell level he can cast. For instance, a 1st-level cleric using this system can cast four 0-level spells and two 1st-level spells per day.

However, the divine caster's selection of spells known is limited.

At 1st level, the character begins play knowing four 0-level spells and two 1st-level spells of your choice, plus his two 1st-level domain spells (if a cleric) or summon nature's ally I (if a druid).

At each new level in the character's divine spellcasting class, he gains one or more new spells, as indicated on Table 2-2: Spells Known.

TABLE 2-2: SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	5	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	5	3	0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	6	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	6	4	2	0	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	7	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	7	5	3	2	0	—	—	—	—	—
8th	8	5	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
9th	8	5	4	3	2	0	—	—	—	—
10th	9	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
11th	9	5	5	4	3	2	0	—	—	—
12th	9	5	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
13th	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	0	—	—
14th	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
15th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	0	—
16th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
17th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	0
18th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	1
19th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	2
20th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	3

Characters who use this option lose the ability to spontaneously cast cure, inflict, or summon nature's ally spells in place of other spells.

However, each time the character gains a new spell level, he gains one or more bonus spells known to add to his list. A cleric may add his two domain spells to his list of spells known, while a druid may add the appropriate summon nature's ally spell to her list of spells known.

(An entry of 0 on the table indicates that the cleric knows only his domain spells of that level, and the druid knows only the summon nature's ally spell of that level).

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered class level after that, a cleric or druid can choose to learn a new spell in place of one he already knows.

This functions identically to the sorcerer's ability to swap out known spells, except that a cleric may never choose to lose a domain spell and a druid may never choose to lose a summon nature's ally spell.

For example, Jozan the cleric has chosen the domains of Good and Healing, which means that at 1st level, he automatically knows cure light wounds and protection from evil.

In addition, he chooses four spells from the list of 0-level cleric spells (cure minor wounds, detect magic, light, and read magic) and two spells from the list of 1st-level cleric spells (bless and shield of faith).

He now knows four 0-level spells and four 1st-level spells. Another example: At 4th level, Vadiana the druid learns a new 0-level spell and a new 2nd-level spell.

She can also choose to replace one of her 0-level spells known with a different spell of the same level.

She chooses to replace know direction (since Sovelliss has sufficient ranks in Survival to determine true north, this spell isn't as important any more) with detect poison (because Krusk is tired of accidentally eating toxic berries).

THUG (FIGHTER)

The thug is a street fighter, a survivor who learns to mix brute force with a bit of craftiness.

He has most of the fighter's strengths, along with some additional skills to help keep him alive on the mean streets. Despite the name, not all thugs are mere hooligans—many are crafty veterans who use their knowledge of the streets to gain an advantage against their opponents.

Most thugs are nonlawful, though sometimes gangs of thugs with a lawful streak band together.

Class Skills: Add the following skills to the fighter's class skill list: Bluff, Gather Information, Knowledge (local), and Sleight of Hand.

The thug gains skill points per level equal to 4 + Int modifier (and has this number ×4 at 1st level).

CLASS FEATURES

The thug has all the standard fighter class features, except as noted below.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Thugs are proficient with all simple and martial weapons and with light armor.

Bonus Feats: A thug doesn't gain the normal fighter bonus feat at 1st level.

Also, add Urban Tracking (see the sidebar later in this chapter) to the list of fighter bonus feats available to the thug.

TOTEM BARBARIAN (BARBARIAN)

In a barbarian-heavy campaign, you can increase the variation between barbarian characters if each barbarian tribe dedicates itself to a different totem creature, such as the bear or the jaguar.

The choice of a totem must be taken at 1st level, and cannot be changed later except under extreme circumstances (such as the barbarian being adopted by another tribe).

If you use this variant, the barbarian loses one or more of the following standard class features: fast movement, uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge. In place of these abilities, the barbarian gains class features as determined by his totem.

All totems do not necessarily grant abilities at the same levels, nor do they all grant the same number of abilities. These class features are extraordinary abilities unless otherwise indicated.

The list of totems discussed here is by no means exhaustive.

If you prefer to use other totems, you can either substitute the totem name for that of a similar creature (such as changing the Lion Totem to the Tiger Totem) or create a new set of totem abilities, using the information here as a guide.

APE TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the ape totem does not gain the standard fast movement, uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- At 1st level, an ape-totem barbarian gains a climb speed equal to one-half his base land speed (round down to the nearest 5-foot interval).

For instance, a human, elf, half-elf, or half-orc ape-totem barbarian has a climb speed of 15 feet, while a dwarf, gnome, or halfling ape-totem barbarian has a climb speed of 10 feet.

See Movement Modes, page 311 of the Monster Manual for more information on creatures with a climb speed.

- At 2nd level, an ape-totem barbarian gains a +2 bonus on Intimidate checks.

- A 3rd level ape-totem barbarian gains Power Attack as a bonus feat.

- At 5th level, an ape-totem barbarian's climb speed equals his base land speed.

BEAR TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the bear totem does not gain the standard fast movement, uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- A 1st-level bear-totem barbarian gains Toughness as a bonus feat.

- At 2nd level, a bear-totem barbarian gains Improved Grapple as a bonus feat, even if he doesn't meet the normal prerequisites.

- A 3rd-level bear-totem barbarian gains Great Fortitude as a bonus feat.

- Beginning at 5th level, a bear-totem barbarian gains a +4 bonus on grapple checks when raging.

BOAR TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the boar totem does not gain the standard fast movement, uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- When raging, a 1st-level boar-totem barbarian is treated as having the Diehard feat, even if he doesn't meet the normal prerequisites.

- At 3rd level and higher, a boar-totem barbarian's rage lasts for 2 rounds longer than normal.

- Beginning at 7th level, a boar-totem barbarian's damage reduction is 1 point higher than the normal value. Thus, at 7th level, a boar-totem barbarian's damage reduction is 2/–, and it rises by 1 point every three levels thereafter.

DRAGON TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the dragon totem does not gain the standard fast movement, uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- A 1st-level dragon-totem barbarian gains Blind-Fight as a bonus feat.

- At 2nd level, a dragon-totem barbarian gains a +2 bonus on saves against paralysis and sleep effects.

- At 5th level, a dragon-totem barbarian gains the frightful presence ability (see page 309 of the Monster Manual). The save DC is equal to 10 + 1/2 barbarian level + barbarian's Cha modifier.

EAGLE TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the eagle totem does not gain the standard fast movement and trap sense barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- At 1st level, an eagle-totem barbarian's keen vision grants him a +2 bonus on Spot checks.

- An eagle-totem barbarian gains Lightning Reflexes as a bonus feat at 3rd level.

HORSE TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the horse totem does not gain the standard uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- At 2nd level, a horse-totem barbarian gains Run as a bonus feat.

- A 3rd-level horse-totem barbarian gains a +2 bonus on Handle Animal checks made with regard to horses and a +2 bonus on Ride checks made to ride a horse.

- At 5th level, a horse-totem barbarian gains Endurance as a bonus feat.

JAGUAR TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the jaguar totem represents the "standard" barbarian and gains the barbarian class features as described in the Player's Handbook.

LION TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the lion totem does not gain the standard fast movement, uncanny dodge, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- At 1st level, a lion-totem barbarian gains Run as a bonus feat.

- A 2nd-level lion-totem barbarian gains a +2 bonus on Hide checks.

- A 5th-level lion-totem barbarian gains a +2 bonus on damage rolls whenever he charges.

SERPENT TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the serpent totem does not gain the standard fast movement, uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- At 1st level, a serpent-totem barbarian gains a +2 bonus on Fortitude saves against poison.
- A 2nd-level serpent-totem barbarian gains a +2 bonus on Move Silently checks.
- At 3rd level, a serpent-totem barbarian gains Improved Grapple as a bonus feat, even if he doesn't meet the normal prerequisites.
- A serpent-totem barbarian gains Improved Initiative as a bonus feat at 5th level.

WOLF TOTEM CLASS FEATURES

A barbarian dedicated to the wolf totem does not gain the standard uncanny dodge, trap sense, and improved uncanny dodge barbarian class features, and instead gains the following abilities.

- A 2nd-level wolf-totem barbarian gains Improved Trip as a bonus feat, even if he doesn't meet the normal prerequisites.
- A 5th-level wolf-totem barbarian gains Track as a bonus feat.

TRANSMUTER

Masters of change, transmuters are among the most varied and versatile specialists.

Transmutation spells, by their very nature, can change the environment and allow the spellcaster to solve nearly any problem.

This school's utility and variety ensures that nearly any campaign's magic becomes richer with the introduction of variant transmuters.

Campaigns in which the magic system is under going change benefit from introducing variant transmuters. Likewise, campaigns that include an above-average number of magical cultures or a long history of magical sophistication benefit from alternative traditions of transmutation magic.

Enhance Attribute (Ex): Once per day, plus one additional time per five class levels, a transmuter using this variant can add a +2 enhancement bonus to any one of his ability scores.

This bonus lasts for a number of minutes equal to the transmuter's class level.

Using this ability is a free action (and counts as using a quickened spell, so it may only be used once per round).

A transmuter using this variant permanently gives up the ability to obtain a familiar.

Spell Versatility (Ex): A 5th-level transmuter using this variant can adapt magic of other schools to his own style of spellcasting.

For every five class levels that the transmuter gains, he can select one spell of any spell level that he has access to and treat it as if it were a transmutation spell.

This means, for example, that the specialist can learn the spell normally and even prepare it as a bonus spell from the transmutation school.

This spell can even be from a school that he has chosen as a prohibited school.

Once a spell is chosen to be affected by this ability, it cannot be changed.

For example, a transmutation specialist using this variant has selected abjuration and necromancy as his prohibited schools.

At 5th level, he gains access to 3rd-level spells.

He chooses dispel magic and forever after treats dispel magic as if were a transmutation spell.

A transmuter using this variant does not gain bonus feats for advancing as a wizard.

Transmutable Memory (Ex): A transmuter using this variant can alter some of his prepared spells in a short amount of time.

Once per day, the transmuter can give up a number of prepared spell levels (up to a maximum total equal to half his class level) and prepare different spells in their place, as long as the number of newly prepared spell levels is equal to or less than the number of spell levels given up (0-level spells don't count).

For example, a 12th-level transmuter who uses this variant can lose two 1st-level spells and two 2nd-level spells from memory (a total of six spell levels, half the character's class level) and prepare two 3rd-level spells.

Using this ability requires a number of minutes of concentration equal to the number of spell levels given up. If the transmuter's concentration is broken during this time, all spells to be lost are gone and no spells are gained in their place.

A transmuter using this variant does not gain additional spells per day for being a specialist wizard.

URBAN RANGER (RANGER)

The urban ranger stalks the treacherous streets of the city, relying on his knowledge of alleyways and underworld contacts to keep him alive.

Class Skills: Eliminate Knowledge (nature), Knowledge (dungeoneering), and Survival from the ranger's class skill list.

Add Gather Information, Knowledge (local), and Sense Motive to the class skill list.

CLASS FEATURES

The urban ranger has all the standard ranger class features, except as noted below.

Animal Companion: An urban ranger cannot have an animal larger than Medium as his animal companion.

Urban Tracking: An urban ranger does not gain the Track feat at 1st level.

Instead, he gains the Urban Tracking feat (see the sidebar), which allows him to use Gather Information to track down a missing person, suspect, or other individual within a community.

Wild Empathy: An urban ranger adds only one-half his class level to wild empathy checks, reflecting his limited connection with the natural world.

Favored Enemy: At the DM's discretion, an urban ranger may select an organization instead of a creature type as his favored enemy.

For example, a character might select a particular thieves' guild, merchant house, or even the city guard.

The favored enemy bonuses would apply to all members of the chosen organization, regardless of their creature type or subtype.

Spellcasting: The urban ranger's spell list is different from the standard ranger list.

The following spells are eliminated from the urban ranger's spell list: animal messenger, charm animal, detect animals or plants, speak with animals, bear's endurance, hold animal, snare, speak with plants, command plants, diminish plants, plant growth, reduce animal, tree shape, water walk, commune with nature, and tree stride.

In exchange, the urban ranger adds the following spells to his class spell list: 1st—comprehend languages, detect chaos/good/evil/law, detect secret doors, message; 2nd—detect thoughts, knock, locate object, eagle's splendor; 3rd—discern lies, invisibility, speak with dead, tongues; 4th—dimensional anchor, locate creature, Mordenkainen's faithful hound, true seeing.

Woodland Stride: An urban ranger does not gain this ability.

Swift Tracker (Ex): Beginning at 8th level, an urban ranger may make a Gather Information check for his Urban Tracking feat every half hour without taking the normal –5 penalty.

Camouflage: An urban ranger does not gain this ability.

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): An urban ranger can use this ability in any area, whether natural terrain or not.

WHIRLING FRENZY (BARBARIAN)

A barbarian with this variant form of rage doesn't gain the normal bonuses when he enters a rage.

Instead, when a barbarian with whirling frenzy enters a rage, he temporarily gains a +4 bonus to Strength and a +2 dodge bonus to Armor Class and on Reflex saves.

While in a whirling frenzy, the barbarian may make one extra attack in a round at his highest base attack bonus, but this attack takes a –2 penalty, as does each other attack made that round.

This penalty applies for 1 round, so it also affects attacks of opportunity the barbarian might make before his next action.

Whirling frenzy is otherwise identical to the standard barbarian rage in all other ways.

At 11th level (when a standard barbarian gains greater rage), the Strength bonus increases to +6, and the dodge bonus to Armor Class and on Reflex saves increases to +3.

At 20th level (when a standard barbarian gains mighty rage), the Strength bonus increases to +8, and the dodge bonus to Armor Class and on Reflex saves increases to +4.

A barbarian using this variant doesn't gain indomitable will at 14th level.

Instead, he gains evasion, but only while in a whirling frenzy.

A character can't use whirling frenzy at the same time that he uses any other form of rage (or similar ability).

WILDERNESS ROGUE (ROGUE)

The wilderness rogue prefers to put her skills to use in the great outdoors, rather than in cramped alleys and dungeon corridors.

In many ways, she is similar to the traditional ranger, though with less combat savvy and with none of the ranger's divine link to the natural world.

Class Skills: Remove the following rogue class skills from the wilderness rogue's class skill list: Appraise, Diplomacy, Decipher Script, Forgery, and Gather Information.

Add the following skills to the wilderness rogue's class skill list: Handle Animal, Knowledge (geography), Knowledge (nature), Ride, and Survival.

CLASS FEATURES

The wilderness rogue has all the standard rogue class features, except as noted below.

Special Abilities: Add woodland stride (as the 7th-level ranger ability), camouflage (as the 13th-level ranger ability) and hide in plain sight (as the 17th-level ranger ability, requires the rogue to already have the camouflage ability) to the list of special abilities that can be chosen by the wilderness rogue.

WIZARD

Some wizards trade their knowledge of magic and craft to improve their combat prowess.

Gain: Bonus feat list (as fighter; bonus feats gained at 1st level and every five levels as wizard).

Lose: Scribe Scroll, wizard bonus feat list.

BASE CLASSES

COMPLETE ADVENTURER (3.5)

NINJA

Ninjas move through the shadows, striking down the unwary and vanishing again with ease.

Ninjas walk where others cannot.

They blend their training in stealth and assassination with a focused mind.

Their rigorous preparation sharpens their minds and bodies, giving them supernatural abilities of stealth and making them phantoms in the eyes of many.

Although ninjas in battle lack the staying power of martial characters such as fighters or barbarians, they excel at making combat occur on their terms—appearing and disappearing seemingly at a whim.

Historically, ninjas came from clans of assassins and guerrilla warriors in feudal Japan.

In a fantasy setting, they blend a gift for stealth and infiltration with devastating surprise attacks and supernatural means of avoiding blows.

Although the specific abilities of the class differ from those attributed to the historical ninja, they mirror the ninja's fearsome reputation as a spy, assassin, and martial artist.

Adventures: Ninjas adventure for a variety of reasons.

A loyal ninja might adventure at her lord's command, using her abilities of stealth and subterfuge to ferret out his enemies or recover powerful treasures to be used in his service.

A mercenary ninja might seek only treasure and fame, while a more idealistic ninja might seek to thwart a growing evil.

Most ninjas prefer anonymity to fame, and they go out of their way to disguise their profession and abilities.

A rare few, however, revel in the mysterious reputation that surrounds ninjas and their training, making known their abilities and their role in a famous adventuring group.

As ninjas grow in wealth and power, their goals often change, and their ability to uncover secrets and kill stealthily can shape the plans of entire nations.

Rulers both fear and covet the skills of the ninja, and high-level ninjas whose identities are known often find adventures coming to them rather than the converse.

Characteristics: Highly skilled spies and assassins, ninjas can master a broad range of skills and combat techniques. Nearly every ninja perfects the arts of moving quietly and remaining hidden, and her secondary skills define her role in an adventuring party or a community.

Many ninjas hone skills that help them become better spies, mastering the arts of social interaction and disguise. Others take on the role of cat burglars, practicing skills that help them find and bypass traps and locks.

In combat, a ninja can deal out devastating blows if her opponent doesn't know she's there, but she's not quite as adept as a rogue is at delivering such attacks in a prolonged battle.

Ninjas jump and climb farther and faster than members of most other classes, and they are skilled acrobats as well.

Ninjas also receive special training in the use of poisons, and many ninjas employ poisonous weapons in combat.

Even with these impressive skills, a ninja's most dangerous and remarkable powers involve the ability to step briefly into the Ethereal Plane.

By focusing her ki, a ninja can vanish from sight, walk through solid walls, and deal devastating attacks even when not physically present at the scene.

As a ninja advances in level, she can turn this ability to defense, causing blows that would otherwise hit to pass harmlessly through her body.

Alignment: Although ninjas have a reputation as dangerous assassins and deceptive spies, they follow many different philosophies and ideals and can be of any alignment.

For every dangerous mercenary who uses her ninja training to kill for money, an honest and loyal ninja stands guard over a just lord.

Most ninjas follow their own beliefs rather than the dictates of a noble or magistrate, and therefore more ninjas are chaotic than lawful.

Religion: A ninja's religious beliefs follow those of her clan. In a fantasy game, ninjas can follow any god, although most clans devote themselves to deities of stealth or trickery.

Neutral or mercenary ninjas might devote themselves to Olidammara (the god of thieves).

Evil ninjas might revere Nerull (the god of death) or Erythnul (the god of slaughter).

Ninjas who have left or lost their clan follow any deity and often choose not to worship a deity.

Background: Many ninjas come from isolated clans that train in secret.

They spend years perfecting the arts of stealth and subterfuge in distant villages and hidden training camps.

These warriors, whether deployed in the service of an honorable lord or sent to serve as mercenary assassins, carefully conceal their identities and origins.

These ninjas weave complicated webs of disguises, strike only from hiding, and deal through intermediaries whenever possible.

Because of their strong ties to their clan, these ninjas must often put aside personal preferences or goals to serve their lord or clan, but in return they gain the support of a powerful political force and access to the clan's many safe houses and hideouts.

Although most ninjas come from such isolated clans, exceptions exist at every turn.

Some ninjas receive specialized training from a single mentor, perhaps even a retired adventurer who wishes to pass along his skills.

Others train alongside monks and other ascetics in a peaceful monastery.

In some places, far-thinking nobles set up their own ninja training centers.

One of these centers might consist merely of a single teacher with a handful of students; another might be a full-blown ninja school that progresses students through a rigid series of tests, ranks, and trials.

Races: Humans, halflings, half-elves, and half-orcs often have the combination of adaptability and ambition necessary to master the techniques of the ninja.

Elves, both graceful and deadly, rarely become ninjas, but those who do often achieve great fame or notoriety. Such elf ninjas often attain the heights of ninja prowess, shaping the history of many human generations through their daring exploits.

Dwarves and gnomes seldom train as ninjas.

Not only is their social structure too open to shelter hidden clans of ninjas, but their martial instincts run to more straightforward forms of combat.

Other Classes: Ninjas work best with rogues, scouts, or rangers.

Although they appreciate the healing power of clerics and the sheer offensive might of fighters and barbarians, ninjas rely too much on stealth to completely embrace the idea of adventuring with other classes.

Conversely, when traveling or not actively adventuring, ninjas who wish to go unnoticed benefit greatly from the presence of other classes.

The less subtle and more visible her adventuring companions are, the easier it is for a ninja to remain in the background and disguise her own abilities.

Role: Depending on a ninja's skill selection and the mission that her party undertakes, the character's role in the group can vary dramatically.

A ninja practiced in disguise and diplomacy might assume a false identity and act as the group's leader and front person.

A stealthy ninja who has perfected the arts of infiltration might act as a scout or point, while a more cautious ninja might hang back, covering the group's rear.

Whatever a ninja's role during routine dungeon exploration or other adventures, she is a dangerous and unpredictable combatant who can disable foes with poison, seemingly strike from nowhere, and escape almost any situation by using her supernatural abilities.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Ninjas have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Ninjas benefit from a high Dexterity score, since it affects their most important skills, and many of their abilities require that they wear no armor.

A high Dexterity also helps a ninja to act first in initiative and take advantage of her sudden strike ability.

A ninja also appreciates a high Wisdom score, which improves her Armor Class, grants additional uses of her ki powers, and helps her locate foes with skills such as Listen and Spot.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

Starting Gold: 4d4×10 gp.

CLASS SKILLS

A ninja's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

Skill Points at 1st Level: (6 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the ninja.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Ninjas are proficient with all simple weapons, plus the hand crossbow, kama, kukri, nunchaku, sai, shortbow, short sword, shuriken, and siangham.

Ninjas are not proficient with any type of armor or shield. AC Bonus (Ex): A ninja is highly trained at dodging blows, and she has a sixth sense that lets her avoid even unanticipated attacks.

When unarmored and unencumbered, a ninja adds her Wisdom bonus (if any) to her Armor Class.

This ability does not stack with the monk's AC bonus ability (a ninja with levels of monk does not add the bonus twice).

In addition, a ninja gains a +1 bonus to AC at 5th level.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five ninja levels thereafter (+2 at 10th, +3 at 15th, and +4 at 20th level).

These bonuses to AC apply even against touch attacks or when a ninja is flat-footed.

The character loses these bonuses when she is immobilized or helpless, when she wears any armor, when she carries a shield, or when she carries a medium or heavy load.

Ki Power (Su): A ninja can channel her ki to manifest special powers of stealth and mobility.

She can use her ki powers a number of times per day equal to one-half her class level (minimum 1) plus her Wisdom bonus (if any).

Ki powers can be used only if a ninja is wearing no armor and is unencumbered.

As long as a ninja's ki pool isn't empty (that is, as long as she has at least one daily use remaining), she gains a +2 bonus on her Will saves.

A ninja's ki powers are ghost step, ki dodge, ghost strike, greater ki dodge, and ghost walk.

Each power is described under a separate entry below.

Sudden Strike (Ex): If a ninja can catch an opponent when he is unable to defend himself effectively from her attack, she can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Whenever a ninja's target is denied a Dexterity bonus to Armor Class (whether the target actually has a Dexterity bonus or not), the ninja deals an extra 1d6 points of damage with her attack.

This extra damage increases by 1d6 points for every two ninja levels thereafter.

A ninja can't use sudden strike when flanking an opponent unless that opponent is denied its Dexterity bonus to AC.

This damage also applies to ranged attacks against targets up to 30 feet away.

Creatures with concealment, creatures without discernible anatomies, and creatures immune to extra damage from critical hits are all immune to sudden strikes.

A ninja can't make a sudden strike while striking the limbs of a creature whose vitals are out of reach.

A ninja can't use sudden strike to deliver nonlethal damage.

Weapons capable of dealing only nonlethal damage don't deal extra damage when used as part of a sudden strike.

The extra damage from the sudden strike ability stacks with the extra damage from sneak attack whenever both would apply to the same target.

SUDDEN STRIKE AND SNEAK ATTACK

For the purpose of qualifying for feats, prestige classes, and similar options that require a minimum number of sneak attack extra damage dice, treat the ninja's sudden strike ability as the equivalent of sneak attack.

Trapfinding (Ex): A ninja can use the Search skill to locate traps with a DC higher than 20, and she can use Disable Device to bypass a trap or disarm magic traps.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

Ghost Step (Su): Starting at 2nd level, a ninja can spend one daily use of her ki power to become invisible for 1 round. Using this ability is a swift action (see Swift Actions and Immediate Actions, page 137) that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

At 10th level, a ninja can become ethereal when using ghost step instead of becoming invisible.

Poison Use (Ex): At 3rd level and higher, a ninja never risks accidentally poisoning herself when applying poison to a weapon.

Great Leap (Su): At 4th level and higher, a ninja always makes Jump checks as if she were running and had the Run feat, enabling her to make long jumps without a running start and granting a +4 bonus on the jump (see the skill description, page 77 of the Player's Handbook).

This ability can be used only if she is wearing no armor and is carrying no more than a light load.

Acrobatics (Ex): Starting at 6th level, a ninja gains a +2 bonus on Climb, Jump, and Tumble checks.

This bonus increases to +4 at 12th level and +6 at 18th level.

Ki Dodge (Su): At 6th level and higher, a ninja can spend one daily use of her ki power to cause an attack against her to miss when it might otherwise hit.

When a ninja activates this ability, her outline shifts and wavers, granting her concealment (20% miss chance) against all attacks for 1 round.

Using this ability is a swift action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

See invisibility has no effect on concealment granted by the ki dodge ability, but true seeing negates the miss chance.

This concealment does not stack with that caused by other effects that grant concealment or by spells such as blink or displacement.

Speed Climb (Ex): A ninja of 7th level or higher can scramble up or down walls and slopes with great speed.

She can climb at her speed as a move action with no penalty; however, she must begin and end the round on a horizontal surface (such as the ground or a rooftop).

If she does not end her movement on a horizontal surface, she falls, taking falling damage as appropriate for her distance above the ground.

A ninja needs only one free hand to use this ability.

This ability can be used only if a ninja is wearing no armor and is carrying no more than a light load.

Ghost Strike (Su): At 8th level and higher, a ninja can spend one daily use of her ki power to strike incorporeal and ethereal creatures as if they were corporeal.

She also can use this ability to strike foes on the Material Plane normally while ethereal (for example, while using her ghost step ability).

Activating the ghost strike ability is a move action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

It affects the next attack made by the ninja, as long as that attack is made before the end of her next turn.

Improved Poison Use (Ex): Starting at 9th level, a ninja can apply poison to a weapon as a move action.

(Normally, applying a poison is a standard action, like applying an oil).

Evasion (Ex): Beginning at 12th level, a ninja can avoid damage from certain attacks with a successful Reflex save.

(See the monk class feature, page 41 of the Player's Handbook).

A ninja's use of evasion differs slightly from a monk's use in that a ninja can use evasion only if she is wearing no armor and is carrying no more than a light load.

Ghost Mind (Su): At 14th level, a ninja gains a special resistance to spells of the scrying subschool.

To detect or see a ninja with such a spell, the caster must make a caster level check (DC 20 + the ninja's class level).

In the case of scrying spells (such as arcane eye) that scan the ninja's area, a failed check indicates that the spell works but the ninja simply isn't detected.

Scrying attempts targeted specifically at the ninja do not work at all if the check fails.

Ghost Sight (Su): At 16th level and higher, a ninja can see invisible and ethereal creatures as easily as she sees material creatures and objects.

Greater Ki Dodge (Su): Starting at 18th level, a ninja's ki dodge ability grants total concealment (50% miss chance).

Ghost Walk (Su): A 20th-level ninja can spend two daily uses of her ki power to enter the Ethereal Plane for an extended period of time.

This ability functions as the ethereal jaunt spell with a caster level equal to the ninja's class level.

HUMAN NINJA STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None (speed 30 feet).

Weapons: Kama (1d4, light, 2 lb., slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit ×3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

20 shuriken (1d2, range inc. 10 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 7 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Balance	4	Dex	+0
Disable Device	4	Int	+0
Hide	4	Dex	+0
Listen	4	Wis	—
Move Silently	4	Dex	+0
Open Lock	4	Dex	—
Search	4	Int	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Tumble	4	Dex	+0

Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Bonus Feat: Precise Shot.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 1-1: THE NINJA

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	AC Bonus	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	+0	Ki power, sudden strike +1d6, trapfinding
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	+0	Ghost step (invisible)
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	+0	Sudden strike +2d6, poison use
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	+0	Great leap
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	+1	Sudden strike +3d6
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	+1	Acrobatics +2, ki dodge
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	+1	Sudden strike +4d6, speed climb
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+2	+1	Ghost strike
9th	+6/+1	+3	+6	+3	+1	Sudden strike +5d6, improved poison use
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+3	+2	Ghost step (ethereal)
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+3	+2	Sudden strike +6d6
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	+2	Acrobatics +4, evasion
13th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	+2	Sudden strike +7d6
14th	+10/+5	+4	+9	+4	+2	Ghost mind
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+5	+3	Sudden strike +8d6
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	+3	Ghost sight
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	+3	Sudden strike +9d6
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+6	+3	Acrobatics +6, greater ki dodge
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+6	+3	Sudden strike +10d6
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+6	+4	Ghost walk

SCOUT

Any force on the move, whether it's an army or an adventuring group, needs information about what's ahead and what's behind and, more important, time to prepare for battle.

A scout can navigate difficult terrain at good speed, and she specializes in seeing her foe before the opponent ever detects her presence.

In a dungeon or in the wild, a scout is seen only when she wants to be.

Adventures: Scouts adventure for numerous reasons.

Many have a role in a military organization.

Whether serving as outriders for a large army or as foresters for a small border fort, these scouts venture into the wilderness under orders.

Although more common than other scouts, those attached to the military are unlikely to have the time or permission necessary to undertake regular adventures.

Instead, adventuring scouts come from rural villages, having honed their skills over a lifetime of wandering the woods.

Others have left their military service behind and find themselves attracted to the adventuring lifestyle.

Many adventuring scouts begin their careers as guides hired to lead other adventurers through the wilderness. Those who find the excitement and challenge of adventuring to their taste then seek out a group of their own.

Characteristics: A scout has some training in weapons and a unique combat style that favors fast movement and devastating attacks.

She excels in performing during running battles, which allow her to maximize her special fighting techniques and high movement rate.

Although a scout can hold her own in a fight, she's at her best before combat begins, when she can use her powers of stealth and observation to find an enemy and give her companions accurate information about what they face.

The scout is a backcountry expert, exceeding even the ranger's ability to navigate rough terrain and lead a group of companions through the wilderness.

The scout also excels in a dungeon environment, and she can find and disable traps as well as any rogue.

As a scout advances in level, her senses become amazingly acute, and she can eventually operate normally even in total darkness.

Alignment: Scouts can be of any alignment, and a scout's alignment is often shaped more by her personal background than from any training.

The notable exceptions to this are the many scouts who receive their training in a military organization—such scouts are carefully and rigorously taught, and are almost always lawful in alignment.

Outside of military organizations, more scouts are neutral than any other alignment, but every alignment and philosophy is represented within the class.

Religion: Scouts have varied and individual takes on religion, and no single religion stands out as typical of the class.

Scouts occasionally pay homage to deities of nature, but these devotions are more a personal choice on the part of an individual than any outgrowth of their training.

Scouts don't see nature as a force in its own right, and this belief is one of the most profound differences between the scout and the ranger classes.

Where the ranger sees nature as something to be revered and protected, the scout sees it as the terrain over which she must do her job.

Although a scout might love nature for its beauty or for the solitude she can find within it, she'll never draw power from nature the way a ranger does.

Background: Many scouts receive military training and serve for a time as outriders for an army.

They perfect their techniques while trying to spot and hide from large groups of foes.

The crucible of military service turns out tough, independent scouts accustomed to working on their own or in small groups.

Such steady individuals make great additions to adventuring parties, and their expertise is often sought by members of other classes.

Other scouts come from a wide variety of backgrounds. Some train with foresters and rangers serving a rural lord, and others simply grow up among the common folk of the countryside, spending month after month exploring the wild in their leisure time.

Scouts from such diverse backgrounds often take up adventuring to leave their home communities behind. Having exhausted the potential for exploration in their home region, they seek a wider variety of experience and wish to see a broader portion of the world.

Races: Humans make excellent scouts.

Their adaptable nature allows them to perfect a wider variety of skills than most other races, and they make good use of the scout's many abilities.

Elves and halflings are the most naturally gifted scouts; both races have produced nimble scouts with amazing abilities of stealth and observation.

While halflings have more innate talent for sneaking than elves do, the greater speed of elf scouts gives them advantages of their own.

Dwarves and gnomes make respectable underground scouts, and the scout's bonuses to speed offset one of these races' greatest weaknesses.

Combined with the dwarf's knack for operating in areas of earth and stone, scout training can turn dwarves into impressive underground explorers—although most dwarves prefer a more straightforward approach to combat and dislike the skirmish fighting style of the scout.

Other Classes: Scouts work well with members of almost any other class.

Skilled and adaptable, they thrive when they can complement a slower and louder group of adventurers or soldiers.

Scouts move ahead of such a group for brief periods, stealthily checking the next room or forest clearing for foes, and then circling back again to ensure that enemies are not sneaking up on the group from behind.

When combat is joined, however, the group remains as a stable base to which a scout can fall back when pressed.

Clerics, wizards, and others willing to cast spells that enhance a scout's mobility or stealth make her job easier, and are welcome companions in combat as well.

Conversely, a scout also welcomes a group made up entirely of stealthy characters such as rogues, rangers, ninjas, and fellow scouts.

This group moves much more quietly than a normal adventuring party, and it is seldom surprised.

Role: A scout plays several roles in most adventuring groups.

First and foremost, a scout excels at detecting an enemy or creature before being detected herself.

Whether moving well ahead of the group or guarding the rear, a scout is the character most likely to discover a potential threat and be ready to act in combat.

Serving as a backup melee combatant or ranged expert in battle, she provides support for the more straightforward fighters in the group and confuses and distracts the enemy.

A scout's stealth and trapfinding ability make her the natural choice for entering and searching dangerous areas.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Scouts have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Dexterity helps scouts become stealthy and overcome their lack of access to heavy armor.

Wisdom also is important because it affects many skills, especially Spot and Listen, that most scouts consider vital to their ability to survive in the wild and to detect enemies efficiently.

Alignment: Any.

Scouts in military service are usually lawful.

Hit Die: d8.

Starting Gold: 5d4×10 gp.

CLASS SKILLS

A scout's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language (n/a), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

Skill Points at 1st Level: (8 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 8 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the scout.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Scouts are proficient with all simple weapons, plus the handaxe, throwing axe, short sword, and shortbow.

Scouts are proficient with light armor, but not with shields.

Skirmish (Ex): A scout relies on mobility to deal extra damage and improve her defense.

She deals an extra 1d6 points of damage on all attacks she makes during any round in which she moves at least 10 feet.

The extra damage applies only to attacks taken during the scout's turn.

This extra damage increases by 1d6 for every four levels gained above 1st (2d6 at 5th, 3d6 at 9th, 4d6 at 13th, and 5d6 at 17th level).

The extra damage only applies against living creatures that have a discernible anatomy.

Undead, constructs, oozes, plants, incorporeal creatures, and creatures immune to extra damage from critical hits are not vulnerable to this additional damage.

The scout must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach such a spot.

Scouts can apply this extra damage to ranged attacks made while skirmishing, but only if the target is within 30 feet.

At 3rd level, a scout gains a +1 competence bonus to Armor Class during any round in which she moves at least 10 feet.

The bonus applies as soon as the scout has moved 10 feet, and lasts until the start of her next turn.

This bonus improves by 1 for every four levels gained above 3rd (+2 at 7th, +3 at 11th, +4 at 15th, and +5 at 19th level).

A scout loses this ability when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

If she gains the skirmish ability from another class, the bonuses stack.

Trapfinding (Ex): A scout can use the Search skill to locate traps with a DC higher than 20, and she can use Disable Device to bypass a trap or disarm magic traps.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

Battle Fortitude (Ex): At 2nd level, a scout gains a +1 competence bonus on Fortitude saves and initiative checks. This bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and +3 at 20th level.

A scout loses this bonus when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a scout cannot be caught flat-footed and reacts to danger before her senses would normally allow her to do so.

See the barbarian class feature, page 26 of the Player's Handbook.

Fast Movement (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a scout's gains a +10 foot enhancement bonus to her base land speed.

At 11th level, this bonus increases to +20 feet.

See the monk class feature, page 41 of the Player's Handbook.

A scout loses this benefit when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Trackless Step (Ex): Beginning at 3rd level, a scout cannot be tracked in natural surroundings.

See the druid class feature, page 36 of the Player's Handbook.

Bonus Feats: At 4th level and every four levels thereafter (8th, 12th, 16th, and 20th level), a scout gains a bonus feat, which must be selected from the following list: Acrobatic, Agile, Alertness, Athletic, Blind-Fight, Brachiation†, Combat Expertise, Danger Sense†, Dodge, Endurance, Far Shot, Great Fortitude, Hear the Unseen†, Improved Initiative, Improved Swimming†, Iron Will, Lightning Reflexes, Mobility, Point Blank Shot, Precise Shot, Quick Draw, Quick Reconnoiter†, Rapid Reload, Shot on the Run, Skill Focus, Spring Attack, Track.

She must meet all the prerequisites for the feat.

† New feat described in Chapter 3.

Evasion (Ex): Beginning at 5th level, a scout can avoid damage from certain attacks with a successful Reflex save. See the monk class feature, page 41 of the Player's Handbook.

Flawless Stride (Ex): Starting at 6th level, a scout can move through any sort of terrain that slows movement (such as undergrowth, rubble, and similar terrain) at her normal speed and without taking damage or suffering any other impairment.

This ability does not let her move more quickly through terrain that requires a Climb or Swim check to navigate, nor can she move more quickly through terrain or undergrowth that has been magically manipulated to impede motion.

A scout loses this benefit when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Camouflage (Ex): Beginning at 8th level, a scout can use the Hide skill in any sort of natural terrain.

See the ranger class feature, page 48 of the Player's Handbook.

She loses this benefit when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Blindsense (Ex): At 10th level, a scout gains the blindsense ability out to 30 feet.

This ability functions as described on page 306 of the Monster Manual.

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): Beginning at 14th level, a scout can use the Hide skill in natural terrain even while being observed.

See the ranger class feature, page 48 of the Player's Handbook.

A scout loses this benefit when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Free Movement (Ex): At 18th level and higher, a scout can slip out of bonds, grapples, and even the effects of confining spells easily.

This ability duplicates the effect of a freedom of movement spell, except that it is always active.

A scout loses this benefit when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Blindsight (Ex): A 20th-level scout gains the blindsight ability out to 30 feet.

Her senses become so acute that she can maneuver and fight flawlessly even in total darkness.

Invisibility, darkness, and most kinds of concealment are irrelevant, though the scout must have line of effect to a creature or object to discern it.

HALF-ELF SCOUT STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+2 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 feet, 20 lb.).

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 1 lb., light, piercing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 8 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Balance	4	Dex	-1
Climb	4	Str	-1
Hide	4	Dex	-1
Jump	4	Str	-1
Knowledge (nature)	4	Int	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Move Silently	4	Dex	-1
Search	4	Int	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Survival	4	Wis	—
Swim	4	Str	-2

Feat: Track.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 5d4 gp.

TABLE 1-2: THE SCOUT

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Skirmish (+1d6), trapfinding
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Battle fortitude +1, uncanny dodge
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Fast movement +10 ft., skirmish (+1d6, +1 AC), trackless step
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Bonus feat
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Evasion, skirmish (+2d6, +1 AC)
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Flawless stride
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	Skirmish (+2d6, +2 AC)
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+2	Camouflage, bonus feat
9th	+6/+1	+3	+6	+3	Skirmish (+3d6, +2 AC)
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+3	Blindsight 30 ft.
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+3	Battle fortitude +2, fast movement +20 ft., skirmish (+3d6, +3 AC)
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	Bonus feat
13th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	Skirmish (+4d6, +3 AC)
14th	+10/+5	+4	+9	+4	Hide in plain sight
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+5	Skirmish (+4d6, +4 AC)
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	Bonus feat
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	Skirmish (+5d6, +4 AC)
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+6	Free movement
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+6	Skirmish (+5d6, +5 AC)
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+6	Battle fortitude +3, blindsight 30 ft., bonus feat

SPELLTHIEF

Spellthieves use skill and arcane magic to drain the abilities of their opponents and turn their foes' own powers against them.

Spellthieves love the challenges that adventure brings, and they relish finding unique and inventive ways to use their abilities.

Because they have such a wide variety of abilities, spellthieves can adapt themselves to overcome nearly any challenge, but they have neither the overpowering arcane might of wizards nor the brute force of fighters. Spellthieves never cast two spells when one will do, and they excel at using misdirection and deception to overcome seemingly stronger opponents.

Good spellthieves use their skills and magic to entertain themselves, protect those less gifted than themselves, and occasionally serve a cause or nation as a spy.

Evil spellthieves use their versatile skills to trick and deceive, or plague large cities as daring cat burglars.

Adventures: Spellthieves adventure because they love a challenge.

They see each puzzle, trap, or monster as a new way to test their skills.

This does not mean that they are all overconfident. Some are, but many simply have a healthy dose of curiosity and a keen interest in proving their own mastery.

Because they have such versatile abilities, they know they have a chance to overcome nearly any kind of challenge. When confronted with a powerful physical foe, a spellthief often can't help wanting to know whether his stealth and cunning could overcome the foe's brute force.

When confronted with a clever trap, a spellthief can't help wondering whether his speed and skill could overcome the trapmaker's ingenuity and preparation.

Like other characters, spellthieves are attracted to the wealth that adventuring offers.

Living an open, flamboyant (and therefore expensive) lifestyle suits many, if not all, spellthieves, and adventuring offers ready rewards both in gold and fame.

Characteristics: Spellthieves use an intuitive form of arcane magic to enhance their versatile talents.

They have a broad skill selection and are capable of developing several sets of skills.

Many spellthieves emphasize stealth and social abilities, perfecting the ability to surprise and deceive their opponents.

In combat, spellthieves use a combination of precise attacks and spells to steal abilities from their opponents.

At lower levels, a spellthief concentrates on flanking foes and delivering sneak attacks.

As a spellthief progresses in level, his ability to cast spells grows stronger, allowing him to magically augment his modest combat abilities.

A spellthief's most potent ability allows him to temporarily steal spells, spell effects, and even energy resistances from his opponents.

Alignment: Most spellthieves are neutral.

They view the world as a place full of challenges and interesting opportunities and rarely give much thought to morality.

Even spellthieves with genuinely good intentions occasionally get caught up in the challenge of an adventure and fail to see (or decide to intentionally overlook) the moral implications of their actions.

Evil spellthieves are callous and cruel, using their abilities to trick, blackmail, or destroy anyone who has something they want or stands in the way of their personal agenda.

Religion: Most spellthieves prefer to rely on their own wits and skill rather than pay homage to a higher power.

Occasionally, when planning a particularly daring raid, a spellthief makes a one-time offering or prayer to a deity with power over the night or thievery.

Others sometimes seek divine protection before attempting to rob or raid a temple, but even these observances are more a chance for a spellthief to even the odds than a true attempt at devotion.

Some particularly evil spellthieves devote themselves to Vecna (the god of secrets), using their abilities to wrest information from their opponents and exploit them for blackmail or more serious crimes.

Background: Spellthieves come from a wide variety of backgrounds.

Although few places are devoted to the formal training of spellthieves, the ones that exist (usually military academies that train a capable corps of espionage agents) produce especially capable and loyal spellthieves.

These agents of the crown are the exception rather than the rule, however; most spellthieves acquire their training from one or more solitary mentors.

These mentors are often spellthieves of varied backgrounds who wish to pass along their talents to a likely protégé.

Others are rogues or sorcerers who only partially understand their disciple's unique mixture of skills, yet they provide enough guidance and encouragement for a young spellthief to develop his own skills.

Spellthieves from these diverse backgrounds often pride themselves on their blend of skills and magic.

They rarely take levels in other classes, viewing their mixture of abilities as something particularly suited to their talent and personality.

Races: Humans are more likely than members of other races to become spellthieves.

Their flexible nature and varied interests make them well suited to the specialties of the spellthief.

Elves also make excellent spellthieves, benefiting from their natural grace and affinity for arcane magic.

Halflings and gnomes find the spellthief's combination of spellcasting abilities and skill selection a good match for their small size.

Many gnomes, with their affinity for illusion magic, enjoy the versatility offered by the spellthief class, and they often use their combination of stealth and spellcasting to develop a formidable repertoire of practical jokes.

Halflings, on the other hand, usually take advantage of the class's skill selection and stealth abilities, viewing their spells as a way to boost their ability to slip past dangerous traps and monsters.

Neither dwarves nor half-orcs make particularly good spellthieves, since most members of those races prefer physical power over skill or subterfuge.

Dwarves who do become spellthieves often emphasize their ability to find and disable traps to the exclusion of other skills.

Other Classes: Spellthieves work well with members of almost any other class.

Their spells and class skills help them play a variety of roles in an adventuring group.

Because they're not suited to act as front-line melee combatants, they enjoy working with fighters and barbarians more than other classes.

Role: Spellthieves can fill any number of diverse roles in an adventuring group, depending on the skills and abilities of the other members of the party.

They can at times function as a group's expert on arcane magic.

With the right skill selection, a spellthief can act as a group's primary scout and its master of stealth.

Because his abilities overlap with those of arcane spellcasters and rogues, a spellthief might have a hard time finding a niche in a group that already includes one character of each kind.

In such a case, a spellthief usually concentrates on using his spells to augment his class abilities and combat prowess and ends up pairing with the rogue in most endeavors.

The two can scout almost anywhere with little chance of being detected, and their ability to flank an opponent and both deal sneak attack damage makes them a deadly duo in combat.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Spellthieves have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines which spells a spellthief can cast and how hard those spells are to resist.

Dexterity helps him avoid blows in combat despite his light armor.

Spellthieves who prefer melee combat benefit from high Strength or Constitution scores.

Alignment: Any, although many spellthieves tend toward neutrality.

Hit Die: d6.

Starting Gold: 4d4×10 gp.

CLASS SKILLS

A spellthief's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Disable Device (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (local) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Search (Int), Speak Language (n/a), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

Skill Points at 1st Level: (6 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the spellthief.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Spellthieves are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor but not with shields.

Because the somatic components required for spellthief spells are simple, a spellthief can cast spellthief spells while wearing light armor without incurring the normal arcane spell failure chance.

However, a spellthief wearing medium or heavy armor or using a shield incurs a chance of arcane spell failure (see page 123 of the Player's Handbook) if the spell in question has a somatic component (most do).

A multiclass spellthief still incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance for arcane spells received from other classes, including those stolen from arcane casters (see the steal spell ability, below).

Sneak Attack (Ex): A spellthief deals an extra 1d6 points of damage when flanking an opponent or at any time when the target would be denied its Dexterity bonus.

This extra damage applies to ranged attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

It increases to 2d6 points at 5th level, 3d6 points at 9th level, 4d6 points at 13th level, and 5d6 points at 17th level. See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook. If a spellthief gets a sneak attack bonus from another source (such as rogue levels), the bonuses on damage stack.

Steal Spell (Su): A spellthief can siphon spell energy away from his target and use it himself.

A spellthief who hits an opponent with a successful sneak attack can choose to forgo dealing 1d6 points of sneak attack damage and instead steal a spell, or the potential to cast a specific known spell, from his target.

If the target is willing, a spellthief can steal a spell with a touch as a standard action.

The target of a steal spell attack loses one 0-level or 1st-level spell from memory if she prepares spells ahead of time, or one 0-level or 1st-level spell slot if she is a spontaneous caster.

A spontaneous caster also loses the ability to cast the stolen spell for 1 minute.

If the target has no spells prepared (or has no remaining spell slots, if she is a spontaneous caster), this ability has no effect.

A spellthief can choose which spell to steal; otherwise, the DM determines the stolen spell randomly.

If a spellthief tries to steal a spell that isn't available, the stolen spell (or spell slot) is determined randomly from among those the target has available.

For example, a 1st-level spellthief who uses this ability against a 1st-level sorcerer could choose to steal magic missile.

Assuming the sorcerer knew that spell, a successful steal spell attack would eliminate one 1st-level spell slot and temporarily prevent her from casting magic missile.

If the same spellthief stole magic missile from a wizard who had it prepared, the wizard would lose one prepared magic missile spell (but wouldn't lose any other magic missile spells she might also have prepared).

After stealing a spell, a spellthief can cast the spell himself on a subsequent turn.

Treat the spell as if it were cast by the original owner of the spell for the purpose of determining caster level, save DC, and so forth.

A spellthief can cast this spell even if he doesn't have the minimum ability score normally required to cast a spell of that level.

The spellthief must supply the same components (including verbal, somatic, material, XP, and any focus) required for the stolen spell.

Alternatively, a spellthief of 4th level or higher can use the stolen spell power to cast any spellthief spell that he knows of the same level or lower (effectively, this gives the spellthief one free casting of a known spell).

A spellthief must cast a stolen spell (or use its energy to cast one of his own spells) within 1 hour of stealing it; otherwise, the extra spell energy fades harmlessly away.

As a spellthief gains levels, he can choose to steal higher-level spells.

At 4th level, he can steal spells of up to 2nd level, and for every two levels gained after 4th, the maximum spell level stolen increases by one (up to a maximum of 9th-level spells at 18th level).

At any one time, a spellthief can possess a maximum number of stolen spell levels equal to his class level (treat 0-level spells as 1/2 level for this purpose).

For instance, a 4th-level spellthief can have two stolen 2nd-level spells, or one 2nd-level spell and two 1st-level spells, or any other combination of 0-level, 1st-level, and 2nd-level spells totaling four levels.

If he steals a spell that would cause him to exceed this limit, he must choose to lose stolen spells sufficient to reduce his total number of stolen spell levels to no more than his maximum.

A spellthief can't apply metamagic feats or other effects to the stolen spell unless the specific spell stolen was prepared with such an effect.

For example, a spellthief of 6th level or higher could steal a wizard's empowered magic missile, but only if he specifically chose to steal empowered magic missile.

If he chose to steal an unmodified magic missile, he couldn't steal an empowered magic missile, a silent magic missile, or any other metamagic form of the spell.

A spellthief couldn't steal an empowered magic missile from a sorcerer, since the sorcerer applies metamagic effects upon casting and thus has no prepared empowered magic missile spell.

This ability works only against spells.

It has no effect on psionic powers or spell-like abilities (but see the steal spell-like ability class feature, below).

Trapfinding (Ex): A spellthief can use the Search skill to locate traps with a DC higher than 20, and he can use Disable Device to bypass a trap or disarm magic traps.

See the rogue class feature, page 50 of the Player's Handbook.

Detect Magic (Sp): A spellthief of 2nd level or higher can use detect magic a number of times per day equal to his Charisma bonus, if any (minimum 1).

His caster level is equal to his spellthief class level.

Spellgrace (Su): A spellthief of 2nd level or higher gains a +1 competence bonus on his saves against spells.

This bonus improves to +2 at 11th level and to +3 at 20th level.

Steal Spell Effect (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a spellthief can siphon an active spell effect from another creature.

A spellthief who hits an opponent with a sneak attack can choose to forgo dealing 1d6 points of sneak attack damage and instead gain the effect of a single spell affecting the target.

If the target is willing, a spellthief can steal a spell effect with a touch as a standard action.

The spellthief can choose which spell effect to steal; otherwise, the DM determines the stolen spell effect randomly.

If a spellthief tries to steal a spell effect that isn't present, the stolen spell effect is determined randomly from among those currently in effect on the target.

A spellthief can't steal a spell effect if its caster level exceeds his class level + his Charisma modifier.

Upon stealing a spell effect, a spellthief gains the stolen effect (and the original creature loses that effect) for 1 minute per class level (or until the spell's duration expires, whichever comes first).

If the spell effect's duration hasn't expired by this time, the spell effect returns to the creature that originally benefited from it.

A spellthief can steal the effect of a spell only if the spell could be cast on him by the original caster.

For example, a spellthief couldn't gain the effect of an animal growth spell (unless the spellthief is of the animal type) or the effect of a shield spell (since that spell's range is personal).

If a spellthief tries to steal the effect of a spell not allowed to him, the effect is still suppressed on the original target of the spell for 1 minute per spellthief class level.

This ability does not work on spell effects that are immune to dispel magic (such as bestow curse).

Steal Energy Resistance (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a spellthief can siphon off some or all of a target's resistance to an energy type (acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic). A spellthief who hits an opponent with a successful sneak attack can choose to forgo dealing 1d6 points of sneak attack damage and instead temporarily gain resistance 10 to an energy type to which his target is resistant (or immune). If the target is willing, a spellthief can steal energy resistance with a touch as a standard action.

Simultaneously, the target creature's resistance to that energy type is reduced by 10 (to a minimum of 0). A creature with immunity to an energy type retains that immunity.

If his target has more than one type of resistance to energy, a spellthief can choose which kind to steal; otherwise, the DM determines the stolen resistance randomly from among those possessed by the target.

If a spellthief chooses to steal a type of resistance that the target doesn't possess, the stolen type of resistance is determined randomly from those possessed by the target. The resistance a spellthief gains from using this ability lasts for 1 minute.

If the resistance is derived from a temporary effect (such as a spell), the stolen resistance disappears when the effect expires.

A spellthief can use this ability multiple times, but its effects do not stack unless they apply to different types of energy.

For example, throughout a long combat, a spellthief might use this ability to gain resistance to fire and resistance to cold, but he could not use it twice on a creature that is resistant to fire to gain twice as much resistance to fire (nor to reduce the creature's resistance to fire by twice as much). At 11th level, a spellthief can steal resistance 20 to an energy type by using this ability, and at 19th level he can steal resistance 30 to an energy type.

Spells: Beginning at 4th level, a spellthief gains the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells, which are drawn from a subset of the sorcerer/wizard spell list (see below). He can cast any spell he knows without preparing it ahead of time, just as a sorcerer can (see page 54 of the Player's Handbook).

To learn or cast a spell, a spellthief must have a Charisma score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, Cha 12 for 2nd-level spells, and so on). The DC for a saving throw against a spellthief's spell is 10 + spell level + spellthief's Cha modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a spellthief can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-3: The Spellthief.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Charisma score (see Table 1-1, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

When Table 1-3 indicates that a spellthief gets 0 spells per day of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 4th-level spellthief), he gains only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Charisma score for that spell level.

A spellthief's selection of spells is extremely limited.

A spellthief begins play knowing no spells but gains one or more new spells at certain levels, as indicated on Table 1-4: Spellthief Spells Known.

TABLE 1-4: SPELLTHIEF SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	—	—	—	—
2nd	—	—	—	—
3rd	—	—	—	—
4th	2 ¹	—	—	—
5th	2	—	—	—
6th	3	—	—	—
7th	3	—	—	—
8th	4	2 ¹	—	—
9th	4	2	—	—
10th	4	3	—	—
11th	4	3	2 ¹	—
12th	4	4	3	—
13th	4	4	3	—
14th	4	4	4	2 ¹
15th	4	4	4	3
16th	4	4	4	3
17th	5	4	4	4
18th	5	5	4	4
19th	5	5	5	4
20th	5	5	5	5

¹ Provided that the spellthief has sufficient Charisma to have a bonus spell of this level.

(Unlike spells per day, his Charisma does not affect the number of spells he knows; the numbers on Table 1-4 are fixed).

A spellthief can learn any sorcerer/wizard spell from the following schools: abjuration, divination, enchantment, illusion, and transmutation.

No other sorcerer/wizard spells are on the spellthief's class spell list.

Upon reaching 12th level, and at every third spellthief level after that (15th and 18th), a spellthief can choose to learn a new spell in place of one he already knows.

In effect, the spellthief "loses" the old spell in exchange for the new one.

The new spell's level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level spellthief spell that the spellthief can cast.

For instance, upon reaching 12th level, a spellthief could trade in a single 1st-level spell for a different 1st-level spell.

A spellthief can swap only a single spell at any given level, and he must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that he gains new spells known for the level.

At 4th level and higher, a spellthief's caster level for spells is one-half his spellthief level.

Steal Spell-Like Ability (Su): At 5th level and higher, a spellthief can use a sneak attack to temporarily steal a creature's spell-like ability.

A spellthief who hits an opponent with a sneak attack can choose to forgo dealing 1d6 points of sneak attack damage and instead gain one use of one of the target's spell-like abilities.

If the target is willing, a spellthief can steal a spell-like ability with a touch as a standard action.

This spell-like ability can originate from the target's class, race, template, or any other source, and can be of any level up to a maximum of one-third the spellthief's class level.

A spellthief can select a specific spell-like ability to steal; otherwise, the DM chooses the ability at random.

If the ability has a limited number of uses per day, the target must have at least one such use left, or the spellthief can't steal the ability.

If the target can't use its ability at the present time (such as a summoned demon's summon ability), the spellthief can't steal it.

A spellthief can use a stolen spell-like ability once.

For all purposes (caster level, save DC, and so on), treat the spell-like ability as if it were being used by the original possessor of the ability.

A spellthief must use the stolen spell-like ability within 1 minute of acquiring it, or it is lost harmlessly.

Until the spellthief uses the ability (or until the minute elapses), the target cannot use the stolen ability.

Absorb Spell (Su): Beginning at 7th level, if a spellthief makes a successful save against a spell that targets him, he can attempt to absorb the spell energy for later use.

This ability affects only spells that have the spellthief as a target, not effect or area spells.

A spellthief can't absorb a spell of a higher spell level than he could steal with his steal spell ability (see above).

To absorb a spell that targets him, a spellthief must succeed on a level check (1d20 + spellthief class level) against a DC of 10 + the spell's caster level.

Failure indicates that the spell has its normal effect.

Success means that the spellthief suffers no effect from the spell and can cast the spell later (or use its energy to cast one of his own spells known) as if he had stolen the spell with his steal spell ability.

His normal limit of total spell levels stolen still applies.

At 20th level or higher, a spellthief can choose to use the stolen spell energy as an immediate action (see page 137), either to recast the original spell or to cast one of his own spells known using the stolen spell energy.

Arcane Sight (Sp): Beginning at 9th level, a spellthief can use arcane sight as a swift action (see page 137) a number of times per day equal to his Charisma modifier (minimum 1). His caster level is equal to his spellthief class level.

Discover Spells (Ex): A spellthief of 13th level or higher who steals a spell from a spellcaster with his steal spell ability automatically learns the names of all other spells prepared or known by the spellcaster that are of the same spell level as the stolen spell.

This knowledge allows the spellthief to better choose which spells to steal on subsequent attacks.

For example, a 13th-level spellthief who steals disintegrate from an enemy sorcerer would also discover the names of all other 6th-level spells known by that sorcerer.

Steal Spell Resistance (Su): Beginning at 15th level, a spellthief can use a sneak attack to temporarily steal some or all of a creature's spell resistance.

A spellthief who hits an opponent with a sneak attack can choose to forgo 3d6 points of sneak attack damage and instead reduce the target's spell resistance by 5.

The spellthief also gains spell resistance equal to 5 + his class level (up to a maximum value equal to the original spell resistance of the target).

If the target is willing, a spellthief can steal spell resistance with a touch as a standard action.

The stolen spell resistance benefits the spellthief for a number of rounds equal to the spellthief's Charisma modifier (minimum 1 round) and then returns to the target creature.

If the spell resistance is derived from a temporary effect (such as a spell), the stolen spell resistance disappears when the effect elapses.

A spellthief can't use this ability on the same creature again until the creature's stolen spell resistance returns.

HALFLING SPELLTHIEF STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+2 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 20 feet, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Light crossbow (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Spear (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 20 ft., 3 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 6 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Concentration	4	Con	—
Disable Device	4	Int	—
Hide	4	Dex	-1
Knowledge (any one)	4	Wis	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Move Silently	4	Dex	-1
Open Lock	4	Dex	—
Search	4	Int	—
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Tumble	4	Dex	-1

Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Case with 10 bolts.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 1-3: THE SPELLTHIEF

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Sneak attack +1d6, steal spell (0 or 1st), trapfinding	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Detect magic, spellgrace +1, steal spell effect	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Steal energy resistance 10	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Steal spell (2nd)	0	—	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Sneak attack +2d6, steal spell-like ability	0	—	—	—
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	Steal spell (3rd)	1	—	—	—
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Absorb spell	1	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6	Steal spell (4th)	1	0	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6	Arcane sight, sneak attack +3d6	1	0	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7	Steal spell (5th)	1	1	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7	Spellgrace +2, steal energy resistance 20	1	1	0	—
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	Steal spell (6th)	1	1	1	—
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	Discover spells, sneak attack +4d6	1	1	1	—
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9	Steal spell (7th)	2	1	1	0
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9	Steal spell resistance	2	1	1	1
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	Steal spell (8th)	2	2	1	1
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	Sneak attack +5d6	2	2	2	1
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11	Steal spell (9th)	3	2	2	1
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Steal energy resistance 30	3	3	3	2
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Absorb spell (immediate casting), spellgrace +3	3	3	3	3

SPELLTHIEVES AND PSIONICS

A campaign that includes psionic characters, as described in the Expanded Psionics Handbook, would logically have room for psionic-themed spellthieves.

If psionics are common in your game, you have two options. The first is to allow spellthieves to affect both spells and psionic powers. The second is to create a new class, the psithief, that functions identically to the spellthief except that its special abilities affect psionic powers only.

In either case, a spellthief who can affect psionic powers treats psionic powers as if they were spells of the same level, allowing him to steal, absorb, or discover known psionic powers as normal for spells. A spellthief can't augment a stolen power, even if he has power points available of his own. Treat psi-like abilities as spell-like abilities for the purpose of a spellthief's stealing these abilities.

COMPLETE ARCANES (3.5)

WARLOCK

Born of a supernatural bloodline, a warlock seeks to master the perilous magic that suffuses his soul.

Unlike sorcerers or wizards, who approach arcane magic through the medium of spells, a warlock invokes powerful magic through nothing more than an effort of will.

By harnessing his innate magical gift through fearsome determination and force of will, a warlock can perform feats of supernatural stealth, beguile the weak-minded, or scour his foes with blasts of eldritch power.

Adventures: Many warlocks are champions of dark and chaotic powers.

Long ago, they (or in some cases, their ancestors) forged grim pacts with dangerous extraplanar powers, trading portions of their souls in exchange for supernatural power.

While many warlocks have turned away from evil, seeking to undo the wrongs of their former colleagues, they are still chained by the old pacts through which they acquired their powers.

The demand to further the designs of their dark patrons, or to resist them, drives most warlocks to seek the opportunities for power, wealth, and great deeds (for good or ill) offered by adventuring.

Characteristics: Warlocks harbor great reserves of mystical energy.

The font of dark magic burning in their souls makes them resistant to many forms of attack and arms them with dangerous power.

Warlocks do not wield spells, but they do learn to harness their power to perform a small number of specific attacks and tricks called invocations.

Warlocks make up for their lack of versatility by being tougher and more resilient than sorcerers or wizards. Alignment: Warlocks are often chaotic or evil (and more than a few are both).

The powers they serve can be cruel, capricious, and wild, unbound by conventional views of right and wrong.

However, even warlocks who derive their powers from the most sinister of patrons have been known to turn the black powers at their command against evil.

A good-aligned warlock is a grim and fearsome enemy of evil.

All too familiar with the darkness lurking in his heart, he gazes unflinchingly on the evil in others and battles the foulest of foes without fear.

Religion: Warlocks know firsthand the power of supernatural beings, so they do not scorn religion.

Evil warlocks sometimes seek the favor of cruel and bloodthirsty deities, while good warlocks often turn to the worship of noble and true deities for the strength to win the battle raging in their tortured souls.

Background: Warlocks are born, not made.

Some are the descendants of people who trafficked with demons and devils long ago.

Some seek out the dark powers as youths, driven by ambition or the desire for power, but a few blameless individuals are simply marked out by the supernatural forces as conduits and tools.

The exact nature of a warlock's origin is up to the player to decide; just as a sorcerer is not beholden to the magic-wielding ancestor that bequeathed his bloodline with arcane power, a warlock is not bound to follow the source that gifted him with magic.

Warlocks are not half-fiends or tieflings by default (although many creatures of those kinds become some of the most powerful and terrifying representatives of the class).

The mark that the supernatural powers leave on their servants is often a mark in the soul, not the flesh.

In fact, many warlocks are created by nonevil powers—wild or fey forces that can be every bit as dangerous as demons or devils.

Whatever their origin, warlocks are widely feared and misunderstood.

Most are wanderers who rarely stay in one place for long.

Races: Ambitious and often unprincipled, humans are the most likely to seek out the dangerous shortcuts to power that lead to life as warlocks.

Half-orcs are common as warlocks as well, since they often find that the powers that create warlocks do not discriminate against individuals of mixed heritage.

Warlocks of other races are rare at best.

Other Classes: The warlock views sorcerers and wizards as bitter rivals.

He values the strength and cleverness of resourceful fighters and rogues but rarely gets along with clerics or paladins.

Of course, most warlocks understand that it's a bad idea to antagonize their comrades (especially those who hold the key to healing magic), and so they work out an uneasy truce with characters who otherwise might ostracize them.

Role: A warlock serves much the same role in an adventuring party as a sorcerer or wizard would.

He is much more limited in his abilities compared to the spell selection of spellcasters, and he must rely on his eldritch blast in place of the spell power of an arcane caster.

Like a bard, he often fits best in a party that already has another spellcaster or two, since his unique abilities provide him with little magic to use for his companions' benefit.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Warlocks have the following game statistics.

Abilities: A high Charisma score makes a warlock's invocations harder to resist.

High Dexterity is very valuable to a warlock, allowing him to better aim his eldritch blasts, and a good Constitution score is also useful.

Alignment: Any evil or any chaotic.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The warlock's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Disguise (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the warlock.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Warlocks are proficient with all simple weapons.

They are proficient with light armor but not with shields.

Because the somatic components required for warlock invocations are relatively simple, a warlock can use any of his invocations while wearing light armor without incurring the normal arcane spell failure chance.

However, like arcane spellcasters, a warlock wearing medium or heavy armor or using a shield incurs a chance of arcane spell failure (all invocations, including eldritch blast, have a somatic component).

A multiclass warlock still incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance for arcane spells received from levels in other classes.

Invocations: A warlock does not prepare or cast spells as other wielders of arcane magic do.

Instead, he possesses a repertoire of attacks, defenses, and abilities known as invocations that require him to focus the wild energy that suffuses his soul.

A warlock can use any invocation he knows at will, with the following qualifications: A warlock's invocations are spell-like abilities; using an invocation is therefore a standard action that provokes attacks of opportunity.

An invocation can be disrupted, just as a spell can be ruined during casting.

A warlock is entitled to a Concentration check to successfully use an invocation if he is hit by an attack while invoking, just as a spellcaster would be.

A warlock can choose to use an invocation defensively, by making a successful Concentration check, to avoid provoking attacks of opportunity.

A warlock's invocations are subject to spell resistance unless an invocation's description specifically states otherwise.

A warlock's caster level with his invocations is equal to his warlock level.

The save DC for an invocation (if it allows a save) is $10 + \text{equivalent spell level} + \text{the warlock's Charisma modifier}$. Since spell-like abilities are not actually spells, a warlock cannot benefit from the Spell Focus feat.

He can, however, benefit from the Ability Focus feat (see page 303 of the Monster Manual), as well as from feats that emulate metamagic effects for spell-like abilities, such as Quicken Spell-Like Ability and Empower Spell-Like Ability (see pages 303 and 304 of the Monster Manual).

The four grades of invocations, in order of their relative power, are least, lesser, greater, and dark.

A warlock begins with knowledge of one invocation, which must be of the lowest grade (least).

As a warlock gains levels, he learns new invocations, as summarized on Table 1-1 and described below.

A list of available invocations can be found following this class description, and a complete description of each invocation can be found in Chapter 4 of this book.

At any level when a warlock learns a new invocation, he can also replace an invocation he already knows with another invocation of the same or a lower grade.

At 6th level, a warlock can replace a least invocation he knows with a different least invocation (in addition to learning a new invocation, which could be either least or lesser).

At 11th level, a warlock can replace a least or lesser invocation he knows with another invocation of the same or a lower grade (in addition to learning a new invocation, which could be least, lesser, or greater).

At 16th level, a warlock can replace a least, lesser, or greater invocation he knows with another invocation of the same or a lower grade (in addition to learning a new invocation, which could be least, lesser, greater, or dark).

Finally, unlike other spell-like abilities, invocations are subject to arcane spell failure chance as described under Weapon and Armor Proficiency above.

Warlocks can qualify for some prestige classes usually intended for spellcasters; see Warlocks and Prestige Classes, page 18, for details.

Eldritch Blast (Sp): The first ability a warlock learns is eldritch blast.

A warlock attacks his foes with eldritch power, using baleful magical energy to deal damage and sometimes impart other debilitating effects.

An eldritch blast is a ray with a range of 60 feet.

It is a ranged touch attack that affects a single target, allowing no saving throw.

An eldritch blast deals 1d6 points of damage at 1st level and increases in power as the warlock rises in level.

An eldritch blast is the equivalent of a spell whose level is equal to one-half the warlock's class level (round down), with a minimum spell level of 1st and a maximum of 9th when a warlock reaches 18th level or higher.

An eldritch blast is subject to spell resistance, although the Spell Penetration feat and other effects that improve caster level checks to overcome spell resistance also apply to eldritch blast.

An eldritch blast deals half damage to objects.

Metamagic feats cannot improve a warlock's eldritch blast (because it is a spell-like ability, not a spell).

However, the feat Ability Focus (eldritch blast) increases the DC for all saving throws (if any) associated with a warlock's eldritch blast by 2.

See page 303 of the Monster Manual.

Detect Magic (Sp): Beginning at 2nd level, a warlock can use detect magic as the spell at will.

His caster level equals his class level.

Damage Reduction (Su): Fortified by the supernatural power flowing in his body, a warlock becomes resistant to physical attacks at 3rd level and above, gaining damage reduction 1/cold iron.

At 7th level and every four levels thereafter, a warlock's damage reduction improves as shown on Table 1-1.

Deceive Item (Ex): At 4th level and higher, a warlock has the ability to more easily commandeer magic items made for the use of other characters.

When making a Use Magic Device check, a warlock can take 10 even if distracted or threatened.

Fiendish Resilience (Su): Beginning at 8th level, a warlock knows the trick of fiendish resilience.

Once per day, as a free action, he can enter a state that lasts for 2 minutes.

While in this state, the warlock gains fast healing 1.

At 13th level, a warlock's fiendish resilience improves.

When in his fiendish resilience state, he gains fast healing 2 instead.

At 18th level, a warlock's fiendish resilience improves to fast healing 5.

Energy Resistance (Su): At 10th level and higher, a warlock has resistance 5 against any two of the following energy types: acid, cold, electricity, fire, and sonic.

Once the types are chosen, this energy resistance cannot be changed.

At 20th level, a warlock gains resistance 10 against the two selected types of energy.

Imbue Item (Su): A warlock of 12th level or higher can use his supernatural power to create magic items, even if he does not know the spells required to make an item (although he must know the appropriate item creation feat).

He can substitute a Use Magic Device check (DC 15 + spell level for arcane spells or 25 + spell level for divine spells) in place of a required spell he doesn't know or can't cast.

If the check succeeds, the warlock can create the item as if he had cast the required spell.

If it fails, he cannot complete the item.

He does not expend the XP or gp costs for making the item; his progress is simply arrested.

He cannot retry this Use Magic Device check for that spell until he gains a new level.

WARLOCK INVOCATIONS

Warlocks choose the invocations they learn as they gain levels, much like bards or sorcerers choose which spells to learn.

However, a warlock's arcane repertoire is even more limited than that of a sorcerer, and his invocations are spell-like abilities, not spells.

In addition to its grade (least, lesser, greater, or dark), every invocation has a spell level equivalent, which is used in the calculation of save DCs and for other purposes.

A least invocation has a level equivalent of 1st or 2nd; a lesser, 3rd or 4th; a greater, 5th or 6th; and a dark invocation has a level equivalent of 6th or higher (maximum 9th).

The level equivalent for each invocation is given in its description in Chapter 4.

A warlock can dismiss any invocation as a standard action, just as a wizard can dismiss a spell.

Invocations and Eldritch Blast: Eldritch blast is not an invocation, but some invocations provide a warlock with the ability to modify his eldritch blast or add new eldritch attacks.

ELDRITCH ESSENCE INVOCATIONS

Some of a warlock's invocations, such as frightful blast, modify the damage or other effects of the warlock's eldritch blast.

These are called eldritch essence invocations.

Unless noted otherwise, eldritch blasts modified by eldritch essence invocations deal damage normally in addition to imparting the effects described in the invocation description.

A warlock can apply only one eldritch essence invocation to a single eldritch blast, choosing from any of the eldritch essence invocations that he knows.

When a warlock applies an eldritch essence invocation to his eldritch blast, the spell level equivalent of the modified blast is equal to the spell-level of the eldritch blast or of the eldritch essence invocation, whichever is higher.

If a warlock targets a creature with an eldritch essence blast that has immunity to the invocation's effect, it still takes the damage from the blast normally (provided it isn't also immune to the eldritch blast).

A warlock can apply an eldritch essence invocation and a blast shape invocation (see below) to the same blast.

When a warlock uses both kinds of invocations to alter an eldritch blast, the spell level equivalent is equal to the spell level of the eldritch blast, the level of the eldritch essence invocation, or the level of the blast shape invocation, whichever is higher.

Example: Morthos, a 1st-level warlock, decides to make his eldritch blast attack into a frightful blast.

Morthos's eldritch blast is the equivalent of a 1st-level spell, while frightful blast is an effect equivalent to a 2nd-level spell.

His frightful blast is thus the equivalent of a 2nd-level spell.

LEAST ELDRITCH ESSENCE INVOCATIONS

Frightful Blast: Target must make Will save or become shaken.

Sickening Blast: Target must make Fortitude save or become sickened.

LESSER ELDRITCH ESSENCE INVOCATIONS

Beshadowed Blast: Target must make Fortitude save or become blind for 1 round.

Brimstone Blast: Blast deals fire damage and target must make Reflex save or catch fire.

Hellrime Blast: Blast deals cold damage and target must make Fortitude save or take -2 penalty to Dexterity.

GREATER ELDRITCH ESSENCE INVOCATIONS

Bewitching Blast: Target must make Will save or be confused for 1 round.

Noxious Blast: Target must make Fortitude save or be nauseated.

Repelling Blast: Target must make Reflex save or be knocked back.

Vitriolic Blast: Blast ignores spell resistance and deals acid damage for several rounds.

DARK ELDRITCH ESSENCE INVOCATION

Utterdark Blast: Target must make Fortitude save or gain two negative levels.

BLAST SHAPE INVOCATIONS

Some of a warlock's invocations, such as eldritch spear, modify the range, target(s), or area of a warlock's eldritch blast.

These are called blast shape invocations.

Unless noted otherwise, eldritch blasts subject to blast shape invocations deal damage normally in addition to imparting the effects described in the invocation description.

A warlock can apply only one blast shape at a time to an eldritch blast, and he can choose from any of the blast shape invocations that he knows.

A warlock need not apply a blast shape invocation to his eldritch blast.

When a warlock applies a blast shape invocation to his eldritch blast, the spell-level equivalent is equal to the spell level of the eldritch blast or of the blast shape invocation, whichever is higher.

A warlock can apply a blast shape invocation and an eldritch essence invocation (see Eldritch Essence Invocations above) to the same blast.

When a warlock uses an eldritch essence and a blast shape to alter an eldritch blast, the spell-level equivalent is equal to the spell level of the eldritch blast, the eldritch essence invocation, or the blast shape invocation, whichever is higher.

Example: Morthos decides to make his eldritch blast attack a hellrime eldritch spear.

As a 6th-level warlock, Morthos's eldritch blast is the equivalent of a 3rd-level spell.

Eldritch spear is the equivalent of a 2nd-level spell, while hellrime blast is the equivalent of a 4th-level spell.

His hellrime eldritch spear is therefore the equivalent of a 4th-level spell.

LEAST BLAST SHAPE INVOCATIONS

Eldritch Spear: Blast range increases to 250 feet.

Hideous Blow: Melee attack channels eldritch blast.

LESSER BLAST SHAPE INVOCATION

Eldritch Chain: Blast jumps from initial target to secondary targets.

GREATER BLAST SHAPE INVOCATION

Eldritch Cone: Blast takes the shape of a cone.

DARK BLAST SHAPE INVOCATION

Eldritch Doom: Blast affects all enemies within 20 feet.

OTHER INVOCATIONS

In addition to the potent blast shape and eldritch essence invocations, warlocks learn a number of others that enable them to perform many tricks and attacks.

These invocations are briefly described below, and their full descriptions can be found in Chapter 4: Spells and Invocations.

LEAST INVOCATIONS

Baleful Utterance: Speak word of the Dark Speech and shatter objects as the shatter spell.

Beguiling Influence: Gain bonus on Bluff, Diplomacy, and Intimidate checks.

Breath of the Night: Create a fog cloud as the spell.

Dark One's Own Luck: Gain a luck bonus on one type of saves.

Darkness: Use darkness as the spell.

Devil's Sight: See normally in darkness and magical darkness.

Earthen Grasp: Use earthen grasp as the spell.

Entropic Warding: Deflect incoming ranged attacks, leave no trail, and prevent being tracked by scent.

Leaps and Bounds: Gain bonus on Balance, Jump, and Tumble checks.

Miasmic Cloud: Create a cloud of mist that grants concealment and fatigues those who enter.

See the Unseen: Gain see invisibility as the spell and darkvision.

Spiderwalk: Gain spider climb as the spell and you are immune to webs.

Summon Swarm: Use summon swarm as the spell.

LESSER INVOCATIONS

Charm: Cause a single creature to regard you as a friend.

Curse of Despair: Curse one creature as the bestow curse spell, or hinder their attacks.

The Dead Walk: Create undead as the animate dead spell.

Fell Flight: Gain a fly speed with good maneuverability.

Flee the Scene: Use short-range dimension door as the spell, and leave behind a major image.

Hungry Darkness: Create shadows filled with a swarm of bats.

Stony Grasp: Use stony grasp as the spell.

Voidsense: Gain blindsense 30 feet.

Voracious Dispelling: Use dispel magic as the spell, causing damage to creatures whose effects are dispelled.

Walk Unseen: Use invisibility (self only) as the spell.

Wall of Gloom: Use wall of gloom as the spell.

GREATER INVOCATIONS

Chilling Tentacles: Use Evard's black tentacles as the spell, and deal extra cold damage to creatures in the area.
 Devour Magic: Use targeted greater dispel magic with a touch and gain temporary hit points based on the level of spells successfully dispelled.

Enervating Shadow: Gain total concealment in dark areas and impose a Strength penalty on adjacent living creatures.

Tenacious Plague: Use insect plague as the spell, but the summoned locust swarm deals damage as a magic weapon.

Wall of Perilous Flame: Create a wall of fire as the spell, but half the damage from the wall results from supernatural power.

Warlock's Call: Use sending as the spell, but risk damage from recipient.

DARK INVOCATIONS

Dark Discorporation: Become a swarm of batlike shadows, gaining many benefits of the swarm subtype.

Dark Foresight: Use foresight as the spell, and communicate telepathically with a close target of the effect.

Path of Shadow: Use shadow walk as the spell and speed up natural healing.

Retributive Invisibility: Use greater invisibility as the spell (self only) that deals damage in a burst if dispelled.

Word of Changing: Use baleful polymorph as the spell, but the effect could become permanent.

HUMAN WARLOCK STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Heavy mace (1d8, 8 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning).

Light crossbow (1d8/19-20, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Use Magic Device	4	Cha	—
Disguise	4	Cha	—
Sense Motive	4	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Invocations Known: Baleful utterance.

Feat: Toughness.

Bonus Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, 1 day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 1-1: THE WARLOCK

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Invocations Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Eldritch blast 1d6, invocation (least)	1
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Detect magic	2
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Damage reduction 1/cold iron, eldritch blast 2d6	2
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Deceive item	3
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Eldritch blast 3d6	3
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	New invocation (least or lesser)	4
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Damage reduction 2/cold iron, eldritch blast 4d6	4
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6	Fiendish resilience 1	5
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6	Eldritch blast 5d6	5
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7	Energy resistance 5	6
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7	Damage reduction 3/cold iron, eldritch blast 6d6, new invocation (least, lesser, or greater)	7
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	Imbue item	7
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	Fiendish resilience 2	8
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9	Eldritch blast 7d6	8
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9	Damage reduction 4/cold iron	9
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	New invocation (least, lesser, greater, or dark)	10
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	Eldritch blast 8d6	10
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11	Fiendish resilience 5	11
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Damage reduction 5/cold iron	11
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Eldritch blast 9d6, energy resistance 10	12

WARMAGE

Some spellcasters care for only one thing: war.

They dream of steel and mighty blasts of devastating magic, the march of troops, and the unleashed destruction found on battlefields everywhere.

Graduates of special arcane war colleges, those known as warmages are drilled only and utterly in the casting of spells most useful for laying down destruction, confusing an enemy, or screening an allied action.

The utilitarian spells used by wizards and sorcerers have little importance to a warmage's way of thinking.

What are support casters for, after all?

A warmage cares only for success on the battlefield, or, in some cases, in the series of smaller campaigns favored by adventuring companies.

Adventures: Warmages sign up for stints with adventuring companies that require straightforward, military-style blasting magic.

Warmages hone and develop their arts through action rather than study, so without prolonged use of their powers in combat they cannot reach the pinnacle of their profession.

Good-aligned warmages are concerned with rebuffing the movements of warlike groups—who better to blast into smoking ruin than those who have it coming?

Evil-aligned warmages feel no constraints on who might become the targets of their spells. They adventure to gain destructive power.

Characteristics: Warmages access their magic peculiarly, at least compared to the way wizards, sorcerers, and clerics do. A warmage selects his spells from a limited pool of knowledge that rarely changes. Early in their difficult training, warmages instill deep within themselves the knowledge of all the spells they will ever need. Warmages know fewer spells than wizards and even sorcerers, but the spells they do know are enhanced. Warmages do not need to study spellbooks, but they do need to prepare their spells each day by spending time to call up the knowledge from their unconscious minds. Warmages do not specialize in schools of magic the way wizards can. In their training, warmages also learn a few mundane warlike skills. They develop proficiency with some weapons and armor, learning to use such items without incurring a risk of arcane spell failure.

Alignment: Because all alignments must be prepared to fight for their causes, warmages might be found among virtually any army that uses spellcasting as artillery on the battlefield.

Religion: Some warmages favor Boccob (deity of magic), while others follow Wee Jas (deity of death and magic). Many warmages revere no deity at all.

Background: Warmages are chosen (or apply) to attend special arcane war colleges. Such colleges are not for the weak of spirit. The rigors of both body and mind bear little resemblance to the apprenticeship undergone by regular wizards, or the self-taught fumbling of sorcerers. Warmage colleges are more similar to boot camps sponsored by large nation-states. Throughout their training, warmages are forced to wear ponderous garments (meant to familiarize their bodies with the limitations of movement in armor) while drilling constantly with spells, most of which are too high in level to be cast by the student. This vigorous drilling instills the spells in a warmage's unconscious mind, so that as he grows in power later in life, those spells become available for his use without his needing a spellbook. After their training, warmages share a deep feeling of camaraderie with their fellow students and continue to feel a slight affection for any well-run military outfit.

Races: Most warmages are humans or half-elves. But the toughness of spirit needed to survive a term at an arcane war college can manifest itself in any of the common races. It is rare for savage humanoids to be accepted into a war college, though some of the more organized societies might set up their own war colleges for arcane spellcasters.

Other Classes: Warmages find they have little in common with sorcerers and wizards, who learn their craft without the rigors or discipline of a warmage's apprenticeship. In fact, warmages are likely to be more comfortable with the regimented classes—those that appreciate military training—such as paladins, monks, and fighters.

Role: The warmage's spell selection is already determined.

He is the ranged magical artillery that military troops rely on, or the center of a smaller adventuring company's offensive power.

An adventuring company with a warmage should strongly consider including a second spellcaster, such as a bard, cleric, druid, or even a wizard, to complement the warmage's offensive focus with defensive and utilitarian abilities.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Warmages have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a warmage can cast, how many spells a warmage can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

A warmage's Intelligence bonus is added to damage dealt by spells through his warmage edge ability.

Like a sorcerer or wizard, a warmage benefits from high Dexterity and Constitution scores.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The warmage's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the warmage.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Warmages are proficient with all simple weapons, light armor, and light shields. At 8th level, a warmage gains proficiency with medium armor (see Armored Mage, below).

Spells: A warmage casts arcane spells (the same type of spells available to sorcerers and wizards), which are drawn from the warmage spell list given below.

He can cast any spell he knows without preparing it ahead of time the way a cleric or wizard must.

When a warmage gains access to a new level of spells, he automatically knows all the spells for that level listed on the warmage's spell list.

Essentially, his spell list is the same as his spells known list. Warmages also have the option of adding to their existing spell list through their advanced learning ability as they increase in level (see below).

See page 90 for the warmage's spell list.

To cast a spell, a warmage must have a Charisma score of 10 + the spell's level (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a warmage's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the warmage's Charisma modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a warmage can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-1: The Warmage.

In addition, he receives bonus spells for a high Charisma score (see Table 1-1, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Unlike a cleric or a wizard, a warmage need not prepare his spells in advance.

He can cast any spell he knows at any time, assuming he has not yet used up his spells per day for that spell level.

Armored Mage (Ex): Normally, armor of any type interferes with an arcane spellcaster's gestures, which can cause his spells to fail (if those spells have somatic components).

A warmage's limited focus and specialized training, however, allows him to avoid arcane spell failure as long as he sticks to light armor and light shields.

This training does not extend to medium or heavier armors, nor to heavy shields.

Nor does this ability apply to spells gained from a different spellcasting class.

At 8th level, a warmage learns to use medium armor with no chance of arcane spell failure.

Warmage Edge (Ex): A warmage is specialized in dealing damage with his spells.

Whenever a warmage casts a spell that deals hit point damage, he adds his Intelligence bonus (if any) to the amount of damage dealt.

For instance, if a 1st-level warmage with 17 Intelligence casts magic missile, he deals 1d4+1 points of damage normally, plus an extra 3 points of damage due to his Intelligence bonus.

The bonus from the warmage edge special ability applies only to spells that he casts as a warmage, not to those he might have by virtue of levels in another class.

A single spell can never gain this extra damage more than once per casting.

For instance, a fireball deals the extra damage to all creatures in the area it affects.

However, if a 3rd-level warmage casts magic missile and produces two missiles, only one of them (of the warmage's choice) gains the extra damage, even if both missiles are directed at the same target.

If a spell deals damage for more than 1 round, it deals this extra damage in each round.

Scrolls scribed by a warmage do not gain any benefit from warmage edge.

Scrolls activated by a warmage also gain no benefit from warmage edge.

The same is true for most other magic items, such as wands and potions.

However, staffs activated by a warmage use not only the warmage's caster level but also gain the benefits of the warmage edge, if applicable.

Advanced Learning (Ex): At 3rd, 6th, 11th, and 16th level, a warmage can add a new spell to his list, representing the result of personal study and experimentation.

The spell must be a wizard spell of the evocation school, and of a level no higher than that of the highest-level spell the warmage already knows.

Once a new spell is selected, it is forever added to that warmage's spell list and can be cast just like any other spell on the warmage's list.

Sudden Empower: At 7th level, a warmage gains Sudden Empower (described in Chapter 3) as a bonus feat.

If he already has the feat, he can choose a different metamagic feat.

Sudden Enlarge: At 10th level, a warmage gains Sudden Enlarge (described in Chapter 3) as a bonus feat.

If he already has the feat, he can choose a different metamagic feat.

Sudden Widen: At 15th level, a warmage gains Sudden Widen (described in Chapter 3) as a bonus feat.

If he already has the feat, he can choose a different metamagic feat.

Sudden Maximize: At 20th level, a warmage gains Sudden Maximize (described in Chapter 3) as a bonus feat.

If he already has the feat, he can choose a different metamagic feat.

HUMAN WARMAGE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Spear (1d8/x3, range inc. 20 ft., 6 lb., two-handed, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8/19-20, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Survival (cc)	2	Wis	—
Diplomacy (cc)	2	Cha	—
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	-1

Feat: Combat Casting.

Bonus Feat: Toughness.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, 1 day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Case with 10 bolts.

Spell component pouch.

Three torches.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

TABLE 1-2: THE WARMAGE

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Armored mage (light), warmage edge	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Advanced learning	6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Advanced learning	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Sudden Empower	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Armored mage (medium)	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Sudden Enlarge	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Advanced learning	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Sudden Widen	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	Advanced learning	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Sudden Maximize	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5

TARTH MOORDA

In the arid hills of the Abbor-Alz stands the old fortress of TARTH MOORDA, once used by the garrisons of Urnst where they guarded against gnoll and nomad raids from the Bright Desert, but falling into eventual abandonment and ruin when adventurers drove away the humanoid tribes. Fifteen years ago, the Duke of Urnst gave the fortress over to the Order of the Fire Hawk, a society of warmages loyal to the realm who desired an isolated stronghold where new initiates could be trained in solitude.

With its dun-colored walls rising forbiddingly above the rock-strewn hills and the sweeping view of the Bright Desert to the south, TARTH MOORDA is now the principal academy in which warmages loyal to the Duchy of Urnst are trained, and the emptiness around it rings with the sounds of martial exercises and mighty battle-magic. The uncomfortable climate of the citadel is seen as a distinct advantage by the order; the heat and rugged terrain serve to increase the rigorous nature of the initiates' exercises and training.

The Fire Hawks adhere to a strictly ordered martial hierarchy and vigorously patrol the hills and sands near their stronghold. Initiates who have not yet learned to cast their first spells serve as footsoldiers and sentries under the command of more senior students. As High Warmaster, the formidable warmage Sereda Ostarte is head of the order, and six warmasters under her directly oversee the training of new initiates. Sereda is quite concerned with the rise of Rary's sinister realm in the Bright Desert, and aggressively questions any adventurers found passing through her lands as she seeks word of events deep in the desert (even while hoping to ferret out any spies in the service of the fallen archmage).

WU JEN

Wu jen are spellcasters with mysterious powers. They command the elements, spirit forces, and the powers of nature.

They are seldom found living with the rest of human society.

Instead, they live as hermits in the wilderness, purifying their bodies and minds to contact the various natural and supernatural powers of the world.

From these entities they learn their spells—magical means to control the invisible forces of the world.

Adventures: Wu jen typically adventure to expand their knowledge of the world, both magical and mundane.

Like wizards, they tend to approach adventures with careful planning, since their daily spell selection is vitally important.

Characteristics: Wu jen are the arcane spellcasters of the Far East.

As with wizards, their spells are their primary class feature, and as such assume an all-important role in their lives.

Many wu jen spells draw on the power of the five elements (earth, fire, metal, water, and wood).

Finally, wu jen are adept at manipulating their spells, increasing their range, duration, or effect, or eliminating verbal or somatic components through permanent metamagic effects.

Alignment: Wu jen tend to stand apart from the lawful societies predominant in most cultures, flouting the rules and norms of decent folk.

They have a strong tendency toward chaos, but in any event they cannot be lawful.

Background: Wu jen crave magical power in a world where no organized colleges of wizardry typically exist.

Their thirst drives them to seek out others like themselves—hermits, recluses, or exiles who have gained the secrets they seek.

Nearly all wu jen are trained by a single mentor in this fashion, outcast from proper society and set apart by their fearsome supernatural powers.

Races: Most wu jen are humans, though members of all the common races of the eastern lands can learn their craft.

Other Classes: Wu jen generally don't like members of any other class.

At the same time, however, a wu jen is painfully aware that without fighters and samurai to block enemy soldiers, a shaman to heal her wounds, and perhaps a rogue to deal with locks and traps, her path to the knowledge she seeks might be blocked by insurmountable and possibly fatal obstacles.

This realization of her reliance on other classes might make her accept them or might make her resent them.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Wu jen have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Intelligence determines how powerful a spell a wu jen can cast, how many spells the wu jen can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a wu jen must have an Intelligence score of $10 +$ the spell's level.

A wu jen gets bonus spells based on Intelligence.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a wu jen's spell is $10 +$ the spell's level + the wu jen's Intelligence modifier.

High Dexterity is helpful for a wu jen, who typically wears little or no armor, because it provides her with an Armor Class bonus.

A good Constitution gives a wu jen extra hit points, a resource that she is otherwise very low on.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

A wu jen's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the wu jen.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wu jen are proficient with all simple weapons.

They are not proficient with any type of armor or shield.

Armor of any type interferes with a wu jen's arcane gestures, which can cause her spells with somatic components to fail.

Spells: A wu jen casts arcane spells, which are drawn from the wu jen spell list (page 91).

She is limited to a certain number of spells of each spell level per day, according to her class level.

A wu jen must choose and prepare spells ahead of time like a wizard (see Preparing Wizard Spells, page 177 of the Player's Handbook).

To learn, prepare, or cast a spell, a wu jen must have an Intelligence score of at least $10 +$ the spell's level.

A wu jen's bonus spells are based on Intelligence.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against wu jen spells is $10 +$ the spell's level + the wu jen's Intelligence modifier.

A wu jen's base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-3.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Intelligence score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Bonus Languages: A wu jen can substitute Draconic or Giant for one of the bonus languages available to the character because of her race, since many ancient tomes of magic are written in these languages and apprentice wu jen often learn them as part of their studies.

Watchful Spirit: Once per day, a wu jen can reroll an initiative roll she has just made before she knows her place in the initiative order.

She takes the better of the two rolls.

Bonus Feat: A wu jen begins play with a bonus metamagic feat.

Spell Secret: At 3rd level, and every three levels thereafter, a wu jen can choose one spell known to her that then becomes permanently modified as though affected by one of the following metamagic feats: Enlarge Spell, Extend Spell, Still Spell, or Silent Spell.

The spell's level does not change, and once the choice of spell and modification are chosen, they cannot be changed. As the wu jen goes up in level, she can choose the same spell to be modified in different ways with multiple spell secrets.

She does not need to know the feat she applies to the spell.

Elemental Mastery: Many of the wu jen's spells are divided into five elemental groups: earth, fire, metal, water, and wood.

At 6th level, instead of receiving a spell secret, a wu jen becomes a master of one of these five elements (her choice).

Thereafter, whenever a wu jen casts a spell of that element, her effective caster level (for purposes of determining level-dependent spell variables and for caster level checks) is increased by two.

In addition, the wu jen herself gets a +2 competence bonus on saving throws against spells of that element.

Certain spells on the wu jen spell list are designated "All"; this means they belong to all elemental groups, and a wu jen who is a master of any element gains the mastery bonuses with respect to those spells.

Spellbooks: A wu jen must study her spellbooks each day to prepare her spells, much like a wizard.

She cannot prepare any spell not recorded in her spellbook (except for read magic, which all wu jen can prepare from memory).

A wu jen begins play with a spellbook containing all 0-level wu jen spells plus three 1st-level spells of your choice.

For each point of Intelligence bonus the wu jen has (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8 of the Player's Handbook), the spellbook holds one additional 1st-level spell of your choice.

At each new wu jen level, she gains two new spells of any spell level or levels that she can cast (based on her new wu jen level).

For example, when Hide-yori achieves 5th level, she can cast 3rd-level spells.

At this point, she can add two 3rd-level spells to her spellbook, or one 2nd-level spell and one 3rd-level spell, or any combination of two spells between 1st and 3rd level.

At any time, a wu jen can also add spells found in other wu jen's spellbooks to her own, much like a wizard (see Adding Spells to a Wizard's Spellbook, page 178 of the Player's Handbook).

Taboos: To maintain their supernatural power, wu jen must abide by certain taboos that might seem inconsequential to other characters but are vitally important to the wu jen.

If a wu jen violates one of her taboos, she cannot cast any more spells that day.

A wu jen must choose one taboo at 1st level, and one additional taboo every time she learns a spell secret.

Possible taboos include:

- Cannot eat meat.
- Cannot own more than she can carry.
- Must make a daily offering (such as food, flowers, or incense) to one or many spirit powers.
- Cannot bathe.
- Cannot cut her hair.
- Cannot touch a dead body.
- Cannot drink alcohol.
- Cannot wear a certain color.
- Cannot light a fire.
- Cannot sit facing in a certain direction.

TABLE 1-3: THE WU JEN

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Watchful spirit, bonus feat	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3		4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Spell secret	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4		4	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4		4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Elemental mastery	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5		4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6		4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Spell secret	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7		4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7		4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	Spell secret	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9		4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Spell secret	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Spell secret	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4

COMPLETE DIVINE (3.5)

FAVORED SOUL

The favored soul follows the path of the cleric but is able to channel divine power with surprising ease.

She is able to perform the same tasks as her fellow divine spellcasters but with virtually no study; to her, it comes naturally.

Scholars wonder if favored souls have traces of outsider blood from unions, holy or unholy, centuries ago and generations removed.

Others suggest that divine training of the proper type awakens the ability, or that favored souls are simply imbued with their gifts by their gods when they begin the cleric's path.

In any case, favored souls cast their spells naturally, as much through force of personality as through study.

Though this gives them extraordinary divine abilities no normal person could ever match, they see their gift as a call to action, and so in some ways may lag behind their more studious colleagues.

Adventures: Favored souls are often loners, wandering the land serving their deities.

They are welcomed by their churches but treated as unusual and are sometimes misunderstood.

They are emissaries of their deities and outside the church's command structure—respected mystics not requiring the support normally crucial to a priest's success.

This makes them sometimes revered and sometimes envied by their cleric cousins.

While favored souls are occasionally disrespected for their perceived lack of discipline, devout worshipers know that they are a powerful message from, and indeed a living manifestation of, their deities.

Characteristics: Favored souls cast divine spells by means of an innate connection rather than through laborious training and prayer, so their divine connection is natural rather than learned.

These divine spellcasters know fewer spells and acquire powerful spells more slowly than clerics, but favored souls can cast spells more often, and they have no need to select and prepare them ahead of time.

Alignment: Divine magic is intuitive to a favored soul, not a matter of careful prayer.

This intuitive nature leads to a freer interpretation of faith and doctrine, and so favored souls tend slightly toward chaos over law.

A favored soul is often of the same alignment as her deity, though some are one step away.

For example, a favored soul could serve a lawful good deity and be neutral good herself.

A favored soul may not be neutral unless her deity is neutral.

Religion: A favored soul can be of any religion.

The most common deity worshiped by human favored souls in civilized lands is Pelor, god of the sun.

Among nonhuman races, favored souls most commonly worship the chief deity of their racial pantheon.

Unlike clerics, favored souls are not able to devote themselves to a cause or a source of divine power instead of a deity.

Background: Favored souls learn of their connection with the divine at a young age.

Eventually, a young favored soul understands the power that she has been wielding unintentionally.

Favored souls, as naturally inclined divine channelers, are also born loners.

Unlike clerics in a temple, they gain little by sharing their knowledge and have no strong incentive to work together.

Races: The innate talent of spontaneously channeling divine power is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Divine spellcasters from savage lands or from among brutal humanoid tribes (such as orcs or half-orcs) are more often favored souls than clerics.

Other Classes: Favored souls have the most in common with members of other self-taught classes, especially sorcerers, but also druids and rogues.

They sometimes find themselves at odds with members of the more disciplined classes, specifically clerics, whom they sometimes view as too wrapped up in doctrine and rigidly defined attitudes.

Role: The favored soul serves as a group's backup healer and defensive magic specialist.

She can hold her own in a fight, especially if she chooses to focus on powers that aid her in combat.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Favored souls have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how many spells the favored soul can cast per day.

Wisdom determines how hard the favored soul's spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

In addition to using Charisma and Wisdom for spellcasting, a favored soul also benefits from high Dexterity, Strength, and Constitution scores.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The favored soul's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int). See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the favored soul.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Favored souls are proficient with all simple weapons, with light and medium armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

A favored soul is also proficient with her deity's favored weapon.

Although a favored soul is not proficient with heavy armor, wearing it does not interfere with her spellcasting.

Spells: A favored soul casts divine spells (the same type of spells available to clerics), which are drawn from the cleric spell list.

She can cast any spell she knows without preparing it ahead of time the way a cleric must.

To cast a spell, a favored soul must have a Charisma score of $10 +$ the spell's level (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a favored soul's spell is $10 +$ the spell's level + the favored soul's Wisdom modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a favored soul can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-1: The Favored Soul.

In addition, she receives bonus spells for a high Charisma. Unlike a cleric, a favored soul's selection of spells is limited. A favored soul begins play knowing four 0-level spells and three 1st-level spells of your choice.

At each new favored soul level, she gains one or more new spells, as indicated on Table 1-2: Favored Soul Spells Known.

TABLE 1-2: FAVORED SOUL SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1st	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	5	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	6	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	7	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	7	6	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	8	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—
9th	8	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—
10th	9	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—
11th	9	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—
12th	9	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—
13th	9	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—
14th	9	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—
15th	9	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—
16th	9	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—
17th	9	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—
18th	9	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3
19th	9	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3
20th	9	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4

(Unlike spells per day, her Charisma score does not affect the number of spells a favored soul knows; the numbers on Table 1-2 are fixed).

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered favored soul level after that (6th, 8th, and so on), a favored soul can choose to learn a new spell in place of one she already knows.

In effect, the favored soul "loses" the old spell in exchange for the new one.

The new spell's level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level favored soul spell the favored soul can cast.

A favored soul may swap only a single spell at any given level, and must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that she gains new spells known for the level.

Unlike a cleric, a favored soul need not prepare her spells in advance.

She can cast any spell she knows at any time, assuming she has not yet used up her spells per day for that spell level.

Deity's Weapon Focus: At 3rd level, a favored soul gains the Weapon Focus feat with her deity's favored weapon.

If the character already has that feat, she can choose a different one.

Energy Resistance (Ex): At 5th level, a favored soul chooses an energy type and gains resistance 10 against that type.

At 10th level and 15th level, the character gains resistance 10 against another energy type of her choosing.

Deity's Weapon Specialization: At 12th level, a favored soul gains the Weapon Specialization feat with her deity's favored weapon.

If she already has that feat, she can choose a different one.

Wings (Ex): At 17th level, a favored soul gains wings and can fly at a speed of 60 feet (good maneuverability).

A good-aligned favored soul grows feathered wings, and an evil-aligned favored soul gains batlike wings.

A favored soul who is neither good nor evil may choose either type of wings.

Damage Reduction (Su): A 20th-level favored soul gains damage reduction.

If the character is lawful-aligned, the damage reduction is 10/silver.

If the character is chaotic-aligned, the damage reduction is 10/cold iron.

A favored soul who is neither lawful nor chaotic may choose either type of damage reduction.

HUMAN FAVORED SOUL STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Heavy mace (1d8, crit x2, 8 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Intimidate (cc)	2	Cha	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—
Survival (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Combat Casting.

Bonus Feat: Toughness.

Deity: Pelor.

Spells Known: 0—detect magic, cure minor wounds, light, read magic; 1st—bles, command, cure light wounds.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Wooden holy symbol (sun disc of Pelor).

Hooded lantern, 5 pints of oil.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 1-1: THE FAVORED SOUL

Class	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	—	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	—	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Deity's weapon focus	6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+4	+4	—	6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Energy resistance (1st type)	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+5	+5	—	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	—	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	—	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	—	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+7	+7	+7	Energy resistance (2nd type)	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+7	+7	+7	—	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Deity's weapon specialization	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
14th	+10/+5	+9	+9	+9	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+9	+9	Energy resistance (3rd type)	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	Wings	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+11	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+11	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+12	+12	Damage reduction	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6

SHUGENJA

A class inspired by the mythologies of Asian cultures, the shugenja is a divine spellcaster who casts spells by attuning himself to the primal energies around him and focusing such energy through his body to produce magical effects. Like the samurai (described in Complete Warrior), shugenjas are often members of the noble class, though they are not as bound by honor and the code of bushido as their martial counterparts.

Adventures: Shugenjas often adventure to increase their magical knowledge and personal power.

They are particularly drawn to investigate disturbances in the natural harmony of the four classical elements (earth, air, fire, and water).

Some shugenjas dedicate their lives to keeping the world's magic in balance, while others simply crave the power that the unchecked elements offer.

Still others are drawn to plumb the depths of magic for magic's own sake, hoping eventually to learn the mysteries of void, the "fifth element" that binds the others together. Characteristics: Shugenjas are much more than spell slinging sorcerers.

In a fantasy culture inspired by real-world Japan, they can be the foundation of religious life—priests who teach the rituals of piety, venerate the memory of long-departed ancestors, and even measure the passage of time. They study for years to learn even the fundamental elements of their magical practice, and are the most literate class in many quasi-Asian societies.

A shugenja's spells are written on ofudas (nonmagical prayer scrolls) that the shugenja carries with him, serving as a divine focus for casting the spell.

Alignment: While many shugenjas attempt to follow the standards of honor and loyalty, and thus adhere to a lawful alignment, not all shugenjas live up to those standards. Shugenjas have no alignment restrictions.

Religion: If you use shugenjas in your game, you should probably also develop an Asian culture with its own religious traditions to represent their home—even if the specific shugenjas in your campaign are thousands of miles away from it, hailing from a far-off land you don't plan to visit.

Some shugenjas exiled in a traditional D&D setting express an affinity for Boccob, Obad-Hai, or Wee Jas, while others see a parallel between the code of bushido and the teachings of Heironeous.

Background: Shugenjas are often members of the noble class.

They learn the practice of magic in religious orders attached to each clan or region, like their samurai kin.

You can easily invent your own shugenja orders, employing the same principles you'd use when inventing your own domain.

Races: Traditionally, Asian-themed D&D games have dispensed with or replaced the nonhuman races, so shugenjas have been overwhelmingly human.

You can invent your own Asian races, use those described in Oriental Adventures, or mix Asian culture with the elves, dwarves and other races of traditional fantasy.

With such a mix, dwarves and gnomes would be slightly more likely to become shugenjas because they have an affinity for earth.

Other Classes: Like samurai, shugenjas are set apart by their noble station and tend to look down upon members of other classes.

Despite the prevailing view of society, shugenjas do not believe that martial prowess is the ultimate expression of honor—in fact, they look down on the samurai who settle any disagreement or matter of honor with a duel to the death.

Shugenjas have little respect for members of other classes; however, shugenjas, especially adventurers, wisely understand that different classes have specialized skills and abilities often needed for success.

Role: Because they're the preeminent spellcasters in their culture, shugenjas' spell lists run the gamut from top-notch combat spells to powerful healing and versatile utility spells.

But they're less durable in a fight than their cleric brethren, and like sorcerers, they have a limited set of spells to choose from.

Oriental Classes in Nonoriental Settings: Some DMs may choose to allow classes such as the shugenja and the samurai in their nonoriental settings.

If they do, the character is most likely to be a traveler from a faraway land, most likely trained in his homeland in his oriental class.

Specific details of the character's background can be worked out with the DM and the player.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Shugenjas have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a shugenja can cast, how many spells the shugenja can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a shugenja must have a Charisma score of 10 + the spell's level + the shugenja's Charisma modifier. High Dexterity is helpful for a shugenja (who typically wears little or no armor) because it provides him with an Armor Class bonus.

A good Constitution gives a shugenja extra hit points, a resource that he is otherwise low on.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The shugenja's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the shugenja.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Shugenjas are proficient with all simple weapons and with the short sword (they often carry a masterwork short sword called a wakizashi). They are not proficient with any type of armor, nor with shields.

In their home culture, it is considered inappropriate for a shugenja to wear armor, although shugenjas serving with the military or traveling in foreign lands sometimes take the time to learn how to wear armor properly.

Armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Sleight of Hand, Swim, and Tumble. Armor does not interfere with his spellcasting.

Spells: A shugenja casts divine spells (the same type of spells available to clerics and druids), which are drawn from the shugenja spell list (page XX).

He can cast any spell he knows without preparing it ahead of time, the way a wizard or a cleric must (see below).

To learn or cast a spell, a shugenja must have a Charisma score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a shugenja's spell is 10 + the spell level + the shugenja's Charisma modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a shugenja can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-3: The Shugenja.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Charisma score (see page 8 in the Player's Handbook).

A shugenja's selection of spells is extremely limited.

A shugenja begins play knowing four 0-level spells and two 1st-level spells of his choice, plus one 0-level spell and one 1st-level spell determined by his shugenja order.

At each new shugenja level, he gains one or more new spells as indicated on Table 1-4: Shugenja Spells Known.

TABLE 1-4: SHUGENJA SPELLS KNOWN*

Level	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	o+2+2	o+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	o+3+2	o+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	o+3+2	o+2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	o+3+3	o+2+1	o+1+0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	o+4+3	o+2+2	o+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	o+4+3	o+2+2	o+1+1	o+1+0	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	o+4+4	o+3+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	o+4+4	o+3+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	o+1+0	—	—	—	—	—
9th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	—	—	—	—	—
10th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	o+1+0	—	—	—	—
11th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	—	—	—	—
12th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	o+1+0	—	—	—
13th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	—	—	—
14th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	o+1+0	—	—
15th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	—	—
16th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+1+1	o+1+0	—
17th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+2+1	o+1+1	—
18th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+2+1	o+1+1	o+1+0
19th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+2+1	o+2+1	o+1+1
20th	o+5+4	o+3+2	o+3+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+2	o+2+1	o+2+1	o+2+1	o+2+1

*At each level, a shugenja gets an order spell for each spell level, starting at 1st. The "o" on this list represents that. The number in the middle is the number of spells of the shugenja's favored element, and the final number is the additional number of spells known of any element.

(Unlike spells per day, the number of spells a shugenja knows is not affected by his Charisma score; the numbers on Table 1-4 are fixed).

One spell of every level is determined by the shugenja's order; sometimes these spells are normal spells on the shugenja spell list, but often they are additions to the spell list.

These spells are listed with the shugenja spell list below. Half of the spells a shugenja knows must be of his chosen element, as indicated on Table 1-4.

A shugenja may use a higher-level slot to cast a lower-level spell if he so chooses.

For example, if an 8th-level shugenja has used up all his 3rd-level spell slots for the day but wants to cast another one, he could use a 4th-level slot to do so.

The spell is still treated as its actual level, not the level of the slot used to cast it.

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered shugenja level after that (6th, 8th, and so on), a shugenja can choose to learn a new spell in place of one he already knows.

In effect, the shugenja "loses" the old spell in exchange for the new one.

The new spell's level must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level shugenja spell the shugenja can cast.

For instance, upon reaching 4th level, a shugenja could trade in a single 0-level spell (two spell levels below the highest-level shugenja spell he can cast, which is 2nd) for a different 0-level spell.

At 6th level, he could trade in a single 0-level or 1st-level spell (since he now can cast 3rd-level shugenja spells) for a different spell of the same level.

A shugenja may swap only a single spell at any given level, and must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that he gains new spells known for the level.

A shugenja still must honor his elemental focus.

Shugenjas do not have spellbooks, though they write their spells on ofudas.

These ofudas serve as divine focus items and must be read as part of the spellcasting process.

Shugenjas can use the Scribe Scroll feat to create magic scrolls that work the same as a wizard or cleric's scrolls. When casting metamagic spells, remember that the shugenja has not prepared the spell in advance, and is doing so on the spot.

The shugenja, therefore, must take more time to cast a metamagic spell than a regular spell.

If its normal casting time is 1 standard action, casting a metamagic spell is a full-round action for a shugenja.

For spells with a longer casting time, it takes an extra full-round action to cast the spell.

Shugenjas cannot use the Quicken Spell metamagic feat. Element Focus: All shugenjas have a favored element: air, earth, fire, or water.

A shugenja's choice of specialized element is sometimes determined by the shugenja order in which he studies.

At least half the spells a shugenja knows at each spell level must belong to his favored element, and the spell dictated by his order often belongs to that element as well.

This is reflected on Table 1-4, which indicates how many spells of each level must be spells of the shugenja's favored element.

At 1st level, for example, the shugenja Kitsu Mari must know at least three 0-level water spells—one water spell determined by his order and two additional water spells, plus two other 0-level spells of any element.

He also knows one 1st-level water spell from his order, one additional 1st-level water spell, and one 1st-level spell of any element.

Shugenjas automatically gain the benefits of the Spell Focus feat (+1 to spell DCs) for spells from their favored element, regardless of its school.

As the cost of specializing in one element, a shugenja is prohibited from learning spells associated with a different element.

The prohibited element is dictated by the favored element, as described below.

Air: Air spells are subtle, involving travel, intuition, influence, divination, and illusion.

Earth is the prohibited element for air shugenjas.

The Order of the All-Seeing Eye and the Order of the Spring Zephyr specialize in air magic.

Earth: Earth spells involve resilience and resolve, health and growth, and the strength of its body.

Air is the prohibited element for earth shugenjas.

The Order of the Impenetrable Crucible and the Order of the Perfect Sculpture specialize in earth magic.

Fire: Fire spells are destructive and blatant, though they also deal with intelligence, inspiration, and creativity.

Water is the prohibited element for fire shugenjas.

The Order of the Consuming Flame specializes in fire magic.

Water: Water spells involve transformation, cleansing, healing, and friendship.

Fire is the prohibited element for water shugenjas.

The Order of the Forbidding Wasteland and the Order of the Gentle Rain specialize in water magic.

The shugenjas of the Order of the Ineffable Mystery can specialize in any of the four elements.

The Ineffable Mystery also trains shugenjas who specialize the fifth element, void.

(See the void disciple prestige class in Chapter 2).

Sense Elements (Sp): One of the first “spells” a shugenja learns—a magical effect so basic that it becomes a spell-like ability—is the ability to sense elements.

As a full-round action, a shugenja can become aware of all sources of one chosen element (air, earth, fire, or water) within 10 feet of him.

The shugenja learns the size of the objects but not their precise location or actual nature.

By concentrating longer, a shugenja can either extend her magical senses or gather more information about the elements he has detected.

Each additional round spent in concentration allows the shugenja to add 5 feet to the radius of his sense ability, to a maximum of 5 additional feet per shugenja level.

Thus, at 4th level, Kitsu Mari can sense elements to a maximum range of 30 feet by concentrating for five full rounds.

Alternatively, the shugenja can focus on one source of the sensed element per round, attempting a Spellcraft check to determine more about that single item.

The amount of information he learns depends on his Spellcraft check result:

Check Result	Information Learned
20 or higher	Item's general location (square containing it, or its nearest boundary if it is larger than a 5-foot square)
25 or higher	Whether the item is natural or a spell effect. (A normal Spellcraft check against DC 20 + spell level can then determine the nature of the spell effect.)
30 or higher	Whether the item is a creature or an object.
35 or higher	The exact nature of the item (for example whether a creature is an efreeti or a fire elemental, whether an object is gold or stone, whether air is breathable or not.)

In subsequent rounds, a shugenja can retry his Spellcraft check on the same item, shift his attention to a different item, or extend the range of his senses.

A 1st-level shugenja can use this ability three times per day. Every five levels he advances as a shugenja allows him to use the ability an additional time per day (four times at 5th level, five times at 10th level, and so on).

Like many divination spells, a shugenja's sense elements ability is blocked by 1 foot of stone, 1 inch of common metal, a thin sheet of lead, or 3 feet of wood or dirt.

For example, Kitsu Mari enters a room and concentrates to sense water.

(Although he is a water shugenja, he could just as easily sense any other element, including fire).

He becomes aware of all sources of water within 10 feet.

A basin of water rests on the nightstand, a person lurks behind the door (living creatures are usually made of all four elements) holding a vial of poison—Kitsu Mari discovers three sources of water within 10 feet of him: one Medium, one Small, and one Fine.

Focusing on the Medium source and concentrating for a round, he makes a Spellcraft check and gets a result of 31.

He learns that the Medium source of water is a creature, that it is natural, and where it is.

If the assassin behind the door has not already jumped out to attack him, he has learned that a creature is hiding behind the door...but more likely, he has learned this too late.

HUMAN SHUGENJA STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None (speed 30 ft).

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19–20/x2, 2 lb., light, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Concentration	4	Con	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Heal	4	Wis	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (religion)	4	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Spellcraft	4	Int	—

Feat: Great Fortitude.

Bonus Feat: Alertness.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Three torches.

10 bolts.

Ofuda.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

TABLE 1-3: THE SHUGENJA

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Element focus, sense elements	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	—	6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	—	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	—	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	—	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+6	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+6	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
14th	+7	+4	+4	+9	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	3	—	—	—	—
15th	+7	+5	+5	+9	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	4	4	—	—	—
16th	+8	+5	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	5	5	3	—	—
17th	+8	+5	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—
18th	+9	+6	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	—	—
19th	+9	+6	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	—	—
20th	+10	+6	+6	+12	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	—	—

SPIRIT SHAMAN

Master of the spirit world, the spirit shaman follows a different divine tradition than the cleric or the druid. Her world is filled with powerful, living spirits, some helpful and some malign.

By bargaining with these spirits, the spirit shaman gains power over the natural world and mighty divine magic with which to aid her comrades or smite her enemies.

Adventures: Spirit shamans exist to mediate between the human world and the spirit world and make sure that humans (and dwarves, elves, orcs, and all other humanoid races, of course) respect the spirits as is only right and proper.

Spirit shamans adventure to advance the causes of whichever spirits they favor.

Those who venerate helpful spirits seek to assist people deserving of the spirits' protection.

Those who revere dark and vengeful spirits promote the chaos and suffering in which their patrons delight.

Through their actions, spirit shamans prove the power of their patron spirits and earn prestige and status in the spirit world.

Characteristics: Spirit shamans cast divine spells much the same way druids do, though they get their spells from powerful spirits of nature.

Their spells, like the druid's, are oriented toward nature and animals.

In addition to spells, spirit shamans gain an increasing array of spirit powers as they advance in level.

Alignment: Spirit shamans, in keeping with the indifference of the spirits, tend toward some measure of dispassion.

Unlike druids, they are more tribal than solitary, and involve themselves in the affairs of their fellows.

Most spirit shamans are neutral on at least one alignment axis, but it is not uncommon to find a spirit shaman who has become so caught up in the affairs of the living that she has lost her distance from human concerns.

Religion: A spirit shaman reveres the essence of religion more than the practice.

She gains her magical powers from the spirits that inhabit all things, living and dead, animate and inanimate. She combines ancestral worship with animal and nature worship.

The typical spirit shaman, like a druid, pursues a mystic spirituality of transcendent union with nature rather than devoting herself to a divine entity.

Still, some spirit shamans give honor to deities of nature such as either Obad-Hai (god of nature) or Ehlonna (goddess of the woodlands).

Background: Spirit shamans are first taught by older shamans.

When a tribe's spirit shaman feels that the time is right, she chooses a potential successor from among the young folk of the tribe.

Taking the youth into her own home, she spends years teaching her student the ways of both the natural world and the spirit realm.

Typically, when the young spirit shaman is ready, the older shaman then sends her student out to wander the world for a time in order to gain the wisdom and experience necessary to serve as the tribe's spirit shaman on his return.

Sometimes, a young shaman impatient with an overly cautious master strikes out on his own to seek out the knowledge he feels his master is withholding.

Races: Halflings, humans, and half-orcs are the races that more commonly give rise to the tribal cultures in which shamans flourish.

While rare groups of barbaric dwarves, elves, or gnomes favor a shamanic tradition instead of a cleric or druid one, these communities are uncommon at best.

Other Classes: Spirit shamans perceive a world that no other class truly understands.

As such, they feel it is their duty to advise their comrades and protect them from the wrath of the spirits.

Spirit shamans respect druids and get along well with them, but they feel that clerics do not pay sufficient respect to the spirit world, and often form long and bitter rivalries with clerics they meet.

Role: The spirit shaman is only a mediocre melee combatant, but she can hurl spell after spell in a combat situation.

No other character matches her ability to study a situation and customize her spell selection for offense, defense, or special purposes.

Like the druid, she can serve as a party's healer, but she is best in settings where she does not need to devote many of her spell choices to healing and can maximize spell choices that provide offense for the party and aid her companions in battle.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Spirit shamans have the following games statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom determines how powerful a spell a spirit shaman can cast and how many spells she can cast per day. Charisma determines how hard those spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

Like a druid, the spirit shaman benefits from high Dexterity and high Constitution due to the fact that she begins with proficiency with only light armor.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Dice: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The spirit shaman's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (local) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the spirit shaman.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A spirit shaman is proficient with the club, dagger, dart, hand axe, javelin, long spear, quarterstaff, shortspear, spear, sling, shortbow, throwing axe, and with light armor and shields.

These are the weapons commonly used by the tribal societies in which spirit shamans are found.

Spells: A spirit shaman casts divine spells from the druid spell list.

She can cast any spell she has retrieved, much like a bard or sorcerer can cast any spell she knows without preparing it ahead of time.

To retrieve or cast a spell, a spirit shaman must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell level (Wisdom 10 for 0-level spells, Wisdom 11 for 1st-level spells, and so on).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a spirit shaman's spell is 10 + the spell level + the spirit shaman's Charisma modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a spirit shaman can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-5: The Spirit Shaman.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Like a sorcerer, a spirit shaman knows only a small number of spells.

However, each day a spirit shaman may change the spells she knows.

When a spirit shaman meditates to regain her daily allotment of spells (see below), she sends forth her spirit guide to bargain with the spirits and retrieve knowledge of the specific druid spells she will be able to use that day.

She can cast any spell she has retrieved at any time, assuming she has not yet used up her spells per day for that spell level.

For example, a 3rd-level spirit shaman can retrieve three 0-level, two 1st-level, and one 2nd-level druid spells.

She can cast 0-level spells five times, 1st-level spells four times, and her 2nd-level spell two times in the course of the day.

She might end up using the same 0-level spell five times, or one 0-level spell two times and another 0-level spell three times, or any combination that adds up to five uses of any of her 0-level spells.

If a spirit shaman knows any metamagic feats, she applies them to her spells when she retrieves her spells for the day.

For example, a spirit shaman might choose to retrieve an empowered flame strike by using a 6th-level spell retrieved slot.

Any time she uses flame strike during the ensuing day, she must use a 6th-level spell slot to cast it, and it is always empowered.

A spirit shaman could use a 4th-level spell slot and a 6th-level spell slot to retrieve flame strike and empowered flame strike if she wanted to have both spells available to her in a day.

A spirit shaman cannot choose to alter her spells with metamagic feats on the fly, as other spontaneous casters do. Spirit shamans using metamagic feats do not have an increased casting time as sorcerers do.

Each spirit shaman must choose a time at which she must spend 1 hour in quiet meditation to regain her daily allotment of spells and bargain with the spirits for the specific spells she knows on that day.

TABLE 1-6: SPIRIT SHAMAN SPELLS RETRIEVED PER DAY

Level	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	3	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	3	3	1	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	3	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	3	3	2	1	1	—	—	—	—	—
8th	3	3	2	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
9th	3	3	3	2	1	1	—	—	—	—
10th	3	3	3	2	2	1	—	—	—	—
11th	3	3	3	3	2	1	1	—	—	—
12th	3	3	3	3	2	2	1	—	—	—
13th	3	3	3	3	3	2	1	1	—	—
14th	3	3	3	3	3	2	2	1	—	—
15th	3	3	3	3	3	3	2	1	1	—
16th	3	3	3	3	3	3	2	2	1	—
17th	3	3	3	3	3	3	3	2	1	1
18th	3	3	3	3	3	3	3	2	2	1
19th	3	3	3	3	3	3	3	3	2	2
20th	3	3	3	3	3	3	3	3	3	2

Spirit Guide: All spirit shamans have a spirit guide, a personification of the spirit world.

In some sense a spirit shaman and her guide are one being, both knowing and seeing and experiencing the same things.

Unlike a familiar, a spirit guide is not a separate entity from a spirit shaman.

She is the only one who can perceive or interact with her guide.

It exists only inside her own mind and soul.

The spirit shaman's spirit guide confers greater awareness of her surroundings, and grants her the Alertness feat. The spirit guide grants additional abilities at 5th and 10th level (see Follow the Guide and Guide Magic, below).

Spirit Guide	Characteristics
Badger	Orderliness, tenacity
Bear	Strength, endurance
Buffalo	Abundance, good fortune
Cougar	Balance, leadership
Coyote	Humor, trickiness
Crane	Balance, majesty
Crow	Intelligence, resourcefulness
Eagle	Perception, illumination
Elk	Pride, power, majesty
Fox	Cleverness, discretion
Hawk	Awareness, truth
Lizard	Elusiveness
Otter	Joy, laughter
Owl	Wisdom, night
Rabbit	Conquering fear, safety
Raccoon	Curiosity
Scorpion	Defense, self-protection
Snake	Power, life force, potency
Spider	Interconnectedness, industry
Turtle	Love, protection
Vulture	Vigilance, death
Wolf	Loyalty, interdependence

The exact form of the spirit guide is chosen by the spirit shaman at 1st level, usually for the qualities it represents, as shown above.

The exact form of a spirit guide is purely personal preference, and confers no special advantages or disadvantages.

Wild Empathy (Ex): Guided by her insight into animal spirits, a spirit shaman can use body language, vocalizations, and demeanor to improve the attitude of an animal (a monster of the animal type).

This ability functions just like a Diplomacy check made to improve the attitude of a person (see Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook).

The spirit shaman rolls 1d20 and adds her spirit shaman level and her Charisma modifier to determine the wild empathy check result.

The typical domestic animal has a starting attitude of indifferent, while wild animals are usually unfriendly. To use wild empathy, the spirit shaman and the animal must be able to study each other, which means that they must be within 30 feet of one another under normal conditions.

Generally, influencing an animal in this way takes 1 minute (as with influencing people, use of this ability might take more or less time).

A spirit shaman cannot use this ability to influence a magical beast.

Chastise Spirits (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a spirit shaman can use divine energy granted by her patrons in the spirit world to damage hostile spirits (see the What is a Spirit? sidebar).

Chastising spirits is a standard action that deals 1d6 damage/shaman level to all spirits within 30 feet of the shaman.

The affected spirits get a Will save (DC 10 + shaman level + Cha modifier) for half damage.

When using this ability against incorporeal creatures, a spirit shaman does not have to roll the normal 50% miss chance—the effect hits the spirits automatically.

A spirit shaman can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Charisma modifier.

Detect Spirits (Sp): The spirit shaman's spirit guide perceives nearby spirits.

At will, the spirit shaman can use detect spirits as a spell-like ability.

It functions just like detect undead, except it detects creatures that are considered spirits.

Blessing of the Spirits (Sp): Starting at 4th level, a spirit shaman can perform a special rite to gain a special blessing. The shaman goes into a meditative state in which she travels to the spirit world.

Performing the rite requires 10 minutes; the spirit shaman can only ward herself with this ability and cannot perform the rite for anyone else.

The blessing functions just like protection from evil, except it protects against spirits and lasts until it is dismissed or dispelled.

If this ability is dispelled, the spirit shaman can recreate it simply by taking 10 minutes to do so.

Follow the Guide (Su): At 5th level and higher, a spirit shaman's spirit guide helps her maintain control of her mind.

If a spirit shaman is affected by an enchantment spell or effect and fails her saving throw, she can attempt it again 1 round later at the same DC.

She only gets this one extra chance to succeed on her saving throw.

Ghost Warrior (Su): Beginning at 6th level, a spirit shaman confers the ghost touch special ability (see Magic Weapon Special Ability Descriptions, page 223 of the Dungeon Master's Guide) to any weapon she holds for as long as she holds it.

She also becomes resistant to the touch attacks of incorporeal creatures, and may use her normal Armor Class (not her touch AC) against any touch attack delivered by an incorporeal creature.

Warding of the Spirits (Sp): Starting at 7th level, a spirit shaman can perform a special rite once per day to ward herself and her companions against hostile spirits.

Performing the rite requires 1 minute.

The warding lasts for 10 minutes per level and otherwise functions like magic circle against evil, except it protects against spirits.

Spirit Form (Su): At 9th level and higher, a spirit shaman learns how to temporarily transform herself into a spirit. Once per day, as a standard action, she can make herself incorporeal for up to 1 minute.

While incorporeal, a spirit shaman gains all the advantages of the incorporeal subtype (see the Glossary of the Monster Manual), including immunity to all nonmagical attack forms, a 50% chance to ignore damage from any corporeal source, and the ability to enter or pass through solid objects.

The spirit shaman loses any armor or natural armor bonus to AC, but gains a deflection bonus equal to her Charisma modifier (minimum +1).

She has no Strength score against corporeal creatures or objects and cannot make physical attacks against them, but she gains the ability to make a melee touch attack (add the spirit shaman's Dexterity modifier to her attack roll) that deals 1d6 points of damage to a corporeal target. This effect is treated as a magic weapon for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

At 15th level and higher, a spirit shaman can use her spirit form twice per day.

At 20th level, she can use this ability three times per day.

Guide Magic (Su): Starting at 10th level, as a free action, a spirit shaman can assign her spirit guide the task of concentrating on a spell or spell-like ability that is maintained through concentration.

The spirit shaman can act normally while her spirit guide concentrates on the spell.

A spirit guide can concentrate on only one spell at a time.

If necessary to maintain the spell, the spirit guide makes Concentration checks for the spirit shaman, using the spirit shaman's normal Concentration modifier.

A spirit guide does not have to make Concentration checks for circumstances such as the spirit shaman taking damage.

The spirit itself is not present for anyone to interrupt or otherwise interact with.

Recall Spirit (Sp): At 11th level, a spirit shaman gains the ability to call back the spirit of a dead creature before the spirit of the deceased has completely left the body.

Once per week, she can reconnect a spirit to its body, restoring life to a recently deceased creature.

The ability must be used within 1 round of the victim's death.

This ability functions like raise dead, except that the raised creature receives no level loss, no Constitution loss, and no loss of spells.

The creature is only restored to -1 hit points (but is stabilized).

Exorcism (Su): Starting at 13th level, as a full-round action, a spirit shaman can force a possessing creature or spirit out of the body it inhabits (for example, a ghost with the malevolence ability).

To exorcise a possessing creature, she makes a class level check (also adding her Charisma modifier, if any), against a DC of 10 + the possessing creature's HD + its Charisma modifier (if any).

If her result equals or exceeds the DC, she succeeds in forcing the possessor from the body, with the normal results based on its method of possession.

A spirit so exorcised cannot attempt to possess the same victim for 24 hours.

Weaken Spirits (Su): At 16th level and higher, a spirit shaman can choose to strip spirits of their defenses instead of damaging them with her chastise spirits ability.

When a spirit is weakened, it loses its spell resistance and any damage reduction overcome by magic weapons, silver or cold iron weapons, and aligned weapons (but not damage reduction overcome by adamantite weapons or not overcome by anything).

In addition, an incorporeal spirit loses its immunity to nonmagical attack, its 50% chance to ignore damage from corporeal sources, and its ability to move into or through objects.

To weaken spirits, a spirit shaman uses her chastise spirits ability but chooses to do less damage in exchange for weakening the spirits for a short time.

For each 3d6 of chastise spirit damage the spirit shaman foregoes, the affected spirits are weakened for 1 round.

For example, a 16th-level spirit shaman chastising two dread wraiths deals 1d6 points of damage to each dread wraith, but she could choose to deal 7d6 points of damage to each wraith and weaken them for 3 rounds.

Spirits that make their Will save against the chastise spirits damage are unaffected by the weakening effect (but still take half the damage).

Spirit Journey (Sp): A spirit shaman knows how to vanish bodily into the spirit world beginning at 17th level.

This ability functions like the spell shadow walk, except that a spirit shaman can only transport herself.

She need not use the ability in a shadowy area, and she travels through the Plane of Spirits, not the Plane of Shadows.

A spirit shaman can use this ability once per day.

Favored of the Spirits (Sp): At 19th level, a spirit shaman learns how to perform a special rite that guards her from death.

Performing the rite requires 8 hours, and the spirit shaman must bargain away part of her life force, expending 1,000 experience points.

The rite's effect lasts until it is dismissed or discharged. While under the protection of this rite, a spirit shaman instantly receives the benefit of a heal spell (caster level equal to her spirit shaman level) if she is reduced to 0 hit points or lower or has any ability score reduced to 0.

The spirit shaman receives the spell's effect immediately, even if reduced to -10 hit points or lower by an enemy attack, and thus may survive a blow that otherwise would have killed her.

The rite's protection is discharged once it is triggered, and the spirit shaman must perform a new rite to use this ability again.

Spirit Who Walks (Ex): At 20th level, a spirit shaman becomes one with the spirit world.

She is forevermore treated as a fey instead of a humanoid for purposes of spells and magical effects.

Additionally, she gains damage reduction 5/cold iron.

HUMAN SHAMAN STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather +3 AC, armor check penalty -1 speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield +2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Handaxe (1d6, crit x3, 3 lb., one-handed slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Concentration	4	Con	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Survival	4	Wis	—
Swim	4	Str	-6

Feat: Toughness.

Bonus Feat: Combat Casting.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Twenty arrows, three torches.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

TABLE 1-5: THE SPIRIT SHAMAN

Class	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Spirit guide, wild empathy	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Chastise spirits	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Detect spirits	5	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Blessing of the spirits	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Follow the guide	6	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Ghost warrior	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Warding of the spirits	6	6	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	—	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Spirit form 1/day	6	6	6	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7	Guide magic	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Recall spirit	6	6	6	6	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Exorcism	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	Spirit form 2/day	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	2	—	—	—	—
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Weaken spirits	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Spirit journey	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	2	—	—	—
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Favored of the spirits	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Spirit form 3/day, spirit who walks	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	—

WHAT IS A SPIRIT?

Several of the spirit shaman's abilities affect spirits. For purposes of the spirit shaman's ability, a "spirit" includes any of the following creatures:

- All incorporeal undead
- All fey
- All elementals
- Creatures in astral form or with astral bodies (but not a creature physically present on the Astral Plane)

- All creatures of the spirit subtype (see Oriental Adventures)
- Spirit folk and telthors (see Unapproachable East)
- Spirit creatures created by spells such as dream sight or wood wose (see Chapter 7).

In the spirit shaman's worldview, elementals and fey are simply spirits of nature, and incorporeal undead are the spirits of the dead.

COMPLETE PSIONIC (3.5)

ARDENT

No two places in the multiverse are exactly alike.

Creatures teem across a multitude of terrains, forming infinitely diverse ecologies.

Despite the amazing variety displayed, however, some elements—or, as some call them, philosophies—persist.

These fundamental concepts about the way things function have a basic truth to them that transcends any physical, emotional, or ideological boundary.

Some enlightened individuals have found that by acknowledging these concepts, they can tap a reserve of great power.

These ideas, they believe, are the only constants throughout the multiverse; as such, they hold the potential to empower anyone who tries to understand them.

Through the strength of their minds, these individuals can master these constants, and the great power they offer.

They are known as ardent.

The philosophies ardent pursue include aspects such as life, death, annihilation, and fate, among others.

Each ardent chooses a philosophy that seems the most powerful to her, personally, based on her experience and mental and emotional leanings.

As a result, an ardent develops a unique understanding of her philosophy and approach to the pursuit of power.

An ardent gravitates toward a set of philosophical concepts suitable to her heritage, upbringing, and life experiences.

Many mistake an ardent for a cleric or paladin, because she is often as enthusiastic about her personal philosophies as any divine missionary could be.

Unlike a divine spellcaster who gains her power through a deity, an ardent directly taps the concepts the deity represents, bypassing any connection to a conscious higher power.

An ardent's pursuit of these cosmic philosophies gives her access to psionic power in a unique way: through psionic mantles.

Each mantle is tied to one of the universal true concepts that an ardent so admires, and is represented by a specific list of psionic powers and abilities.

An ardent gains access to new mantles as she gains levels, representing her growing awareness of the interconnected nature of core truths and a growing understanding of how the multiverse works.

All ardent focus on two mantles, known as their primary mantles.

These concepts are those that an ardent finds most appealing or that possess the most potential power in her eyes.

All other mantles are considered secondary mantles—philosophies certainly powerful and worthy of study, but not considered as central to the universe as the character's primary philosophies.

Mantles are described more fully on page 66 in Chapter 4.

MAKING AN ARDENT

The ardent's role in most groups is as a primary manifester, but she can contribute in other ways depending on the mantles she has selected.

She might be able to provide healing to the party, for example, or augment her melee capabilities and wade into the front line of combat.

Abilities: Wisdom helps an ardent manifest the powers to which she will eventually have access, but she also values Intelligence, since it helps her learn more about the philosophical concepts with which she is enamored.

Constitution is also important, giving her the stamina to travel and survive wherever her studies take her.

Races: Characters who feel inspired to become an ardent need to select their core philosophies and the mantles associated with them.

Among the humanoid races, humans seem most apt to follow such a course.

Ardents are rare among savage or monstrous humanoids, since being an ardent requires a philosophical mind and a certain amount of education in esoteric concepts and ideas.

Alignment: An ardent can be of any alignment.

Some ardens worship deities and choose mantles in line with their deities' portfolio and domains; these characters also share some component of their patrons' alignments.

In most other cases, ardens tend toward alignments that match their philosophical outlooks (few ardens who pursue the death mantle are good, for example).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Autohypnosis, Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Heal, Knowledge, Profession, Psicraft*.

See the Player's Handbook for standard skill descriptions.

* See skills in Chapter 3: Skills in Expanded Psionics Handbook.

CLASS FEATURES

Ardents master universal philosophies, drawing their power and strength from their knowledge of these concepts.

They also gain unique powers from each mantle they learn to wield.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Ardents are proficient with all simple weapons, with all types of armor (heavy, medium, and light), and with shields (except tower shields).

Power Points/Day: An ardent's ability to manifest powers is limited by the power points she has available.

Her base daily allotment of power points is given on Table 1–2: The Ardent.

In addition, she receives bonus power points per day if she has a high Wisdom score (see Table 2–1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Power Points, EPH 18).

Her race might also provide bonus power points per day, as might certain feats and items.

Powers Known: An ardent begins play knowing two of the first powers available to her based on her choice of mantles. Each mantle features at least one power or ability with a cost of 1 power point.

An ardent selects two of these powers from her two known mantles at 1st level.

At each additional level, an ardent learns one new power from her available mantles.

She must be able to manifest the new power at the level at which she learns it, however.

For example, an ardent who attains 5th level can learn any power from one of her mantles that costs 5 power points or less to manifest; she cannot learn a power from a mantle that costs more than 5 power points to manifest until she attains a level capable of manifesting a power with that cost. To learn or manifest a power, an ardent must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the power's level.

For example, an ardent with a Wisdom score of 13 can manifest powers of 3rd level or lower.

The total number of powers an ardent can manifest in a day is limited only by her daily power points.

In other words, an 9th-level ardent (with a total of 72 power points, not including bonus power points for a high Wisdom score) could manifest a power costing 1 power point seventy-two times in one day, a power costing 9 power points eight times in one day, or any combination of power point costs that does not exceed 72 power points in total.

An ardent simply knows her powers; they are ingrained in her mind.

She does not need to prepare them (in the way that some spellcasters prepare their spells), though she must get a good night's sleep each day to regain all her spent power points.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against ardent powers is 10 + the power's level + the ardent's Wis modifier. For example, the saving throw against a 6th-level power has a DC of 16 + Wis modifier.

Mantles: The first two mantles an ardent selects are her primary mantles.

All others gained are secondary mantles.

Primary mantles represent the two philosophies the ardent feels most strongly about and champions above all others.

An ardent must maintain at least as many powers in her primary mantles as she takes in her secondary mantles, reflecting that personal allegiance.

An ardent cannot choose a power from a secondary mantle if doing so would give her more powers known from that secondary mantle than she knows from either of her primary mantles.

For example, an ardent has the Fate and Good mantles as primary mantles and the Law and Light and Darkness mantles as secondary mantles.

When she gains a new level, she could only choose a power from one of her secondary mantles if she had fewer powers in those mantles than in either of her primary ones.

The exception to this rule is that if the only choice an ardent can make at a given level would give her more powers in a secondary mantle than in a primary mantle.

Under those conditions, that choice is allowed.

An ardent can choose to swap the priority of two mantles—making one primary and one secondary—at 8th level, and again at 15th level.

As an ardent gains experience, her worldview changes. Many find themselves more devoted to different concepts later in their careers.

If an ardent knows fewer powers from a newly designated primary mantle, she must take powers known exclusively from that mantle at each of the next few levels until she has learned more powers from that mantle than the rest of the mantles she has.

Assume Psionic Mantle: An ardent chooses a pair of psionic mantles at 1st level and assumes one additional mantle at 2nd, 5th, 10th, and 15th level.

Each mantle provides a list of powers (usually six or more) that an ardent can learn as she increases in level.

Each mantle also provides an ardent with a special granted power.

See Chapter 4 for a complete list of psionic mantles.

Mantles represent a psionic distillation of a universal concept or philosophical idea that the ardents believe transcends the multiverse.

These concepts exist beyond deities or any creation of a creature, whether mortal or immortal.

An ardent can select any mantle she wants over the course of her advancement, even choosing two that seem diametrically opposed to one another, such as Good and Evil.

Such ardents might seem to embody a series of contradictions, constantly seeking ways to balance (or not) the conflicting philosophies they endorse.

Other ardents who pursue this approach are merely scholars seeking to understand these powerful universal truths.

An ardent with both the Good and Evil (or Law and Chaos) mantles might share one or none of those alignment factors.

For example, some good ardents seek to better understand the evil they combat by taking up the mantle of Evil, and the reverse is also true.

Manifesting a power from an aligned mantle is considered an act of that alignment, however, so most ardents who take two opposed mantles are neutral.

Most of the powers provided by a mantle are psionic in nature.

Some mantles feature new abilities unlike any psionic power in existence.

These abilities are still treated as psionic powers in every respect, and always have a power point cost to manifest.

PLAYING AN ARDENT

Ardents are passionate adventurers and often see their involvement in a particular enterprise as a way to spread the knowledge of their personal philosophies, and to enlighten those who rely on less universally true sources for inspiration and guidance.

Ardents seek signs of their philosophies everywhere.

As such, they make excellent adventurers.

They seek support for their beliefs everywhere, and naturally gravitate toward groups willing to brave danger to bring the light of (their) truth to the world.

Communities with a strong religious presence sometimes take exception to ardents, believing that members of the class encourage people to divorce themselves from the churches.

This behavior further encourages ardents to travel.

Religion: Ardents, as a rule, avoid religion.

Most see deities as embodiments of the universal truths they pursue.

As ardents seek to understand these truths, they might come to think of deities that share their interest as powerful kindred spirits, but not necessarily as superior beings.

Only the universal philosophical concepts are truly worthy of devotion to an ardent.

That said, some ardents who share an especially similar devotion to that of a deity might show respect or even casual worship.

For example, an ardent with the Law, Magic, and Knowledge mantles might tithe to the church of Boccob or occasionally offer a prayer, although it would be couched more as a respectful expression of appreciation for the deity's mastery of these truths.

Other Classes: As natural travelers and adventurers, ardents seek out like-minded individuals.

Ardents sometimes see their adventuring companions as the first converts to their view of enlightenment, but they just as often leave their closest friends to a pursuit of their own personal truth.

To an ardent, such a quest is the most notable and worthy deed anyone can pursue.

That isn't to say that an ardent won't seek to sway others to her point of view, but most respect another's right to seek his own truth.

Only the most corrupt and dark ardents seek to force others down the path they have chosen for themselves.

Ardents have a special fondness for the company of other knowledgeable individuals, such as wizards or psions.

They are mostly ambivalent about other classes, although they might feel pity, disdain, or possibly unease around clerics, paladins, and druids.

They tend to see divinely focused folk as lacking in vision, or at the very least as competitors for the ear of the masses.

Combat: An ardent's role in combat is defined by her choice of mantles.

An ardent with the Conflict and Guardian mantles could easily use her powers and granted mantle abilities to wade into battle, mace swinging, while an ardent with the Energy or Mind mantle might be more comfortable manifesting devastating powers from the back ranks of her adventuring group.

Most ardents find that focusing on a single approach makes them more effective in combat.

Because ardents select mantles based on their philosophical approach to the multiverse, however, ardents of all walks can be found.

No matter their approach to combat, ardents always face the same question other power wielders face: how many power points to spend in a given encounter.

Unlike other psionics users, however, ardents can often tap their granted mantle abilities to supplement their power use, allowing them to conserve their energy when warranted.

Advancement: An ardent can select her mantles as she advances.

Her career path, in some respects, is open until she selects her final mantle at 15th level.

An ardent's experiences tend to dictate her choices—a character devoted to diplomacy or subterfuge is less likely to take the Force mantle, for example, but anything is possible.

Feat choice varies wildly from ardent to ardent.

Weapon-oriented ardents might choose Power Attack or Psionic Weapon, while ardents focused on dealing damage from afar might choose a number of metapsionic feats.

Feats that modify a character's ability to use or expend her psionic focus, such as Psionic Meditation, are useful to any ardent with granted mantle abilities that deal with psionic focus.

HUMAN ARDENT STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail and large wooden shield (+6 AC, armor check penalty -6, speed 20 ft., 40 lb.).

Weapons: Heavy mace (1d8, crit ×2, 8 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Autohypnosis	4	Wis	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Heal	4	Wis	—
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int	—
Psicraft	4	Int	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Combat Manifestation, Great Fortitude.

Mantles Known: Energy, Fate.

Powers Known: energy ray, offensive precognition.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Quiver with 20 bolts.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

TABLE 1–2: THE ARDENT

HIT DIE: D6

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Points/Day	Powers Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Assume psionic mantles (2)	2	2
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Assume psionic mantle	6	3
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	—	11	4
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	—	17	5
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Assume psionic mantle	25	6
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5	—	35	7
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	—	46	8
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6	—	58	9
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6	—	72	10
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7	Assume psionic mantle	88	11
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7	—	106	12
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	—	126	13
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	—	147	14
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9	—	170	15
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9	Assume psionic mantle	195	16
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	—	221	17
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	—	250	18
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11	—	280	19
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	311	20
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	—	343	21

DIVINE MIND

A divine mind is a psionic character who channels the power of the divine through psionic talent instead of faith.

“While a cleric or paladin must make do with whatever powers and abilities a deity decides to provide, a divine mind chooses among the domains of his deity for the ability he most requires to accomplish his goals, whether they are divinely inspired or not.

Divine minds can also call upon a list of psionic powers as they grow in faith and mental strength.

One of a divine mind's most noted abilities is his capacity to mentally distill a particular essence of his chosen deity and wear that essence as a mantle (see page 11).

Wearing this divinely fashioned mantle in a framework of mental desire is but one part of the divine mind's strength—he can also directly channel the beneficence of his deity into a mantle power.

MAKING A DIVINE MIND

A divine mind's role in most groups is that of a melee combatant.

He can also contribute in other ways, however, even potentially providing some healing ability to the party (depending on the domains of his chosen deity).

Abilities: While Wisdom helps a divine mind manifest the powers he'll eventually be able to access (requiring a score of 16 or higher to use the highest-level powers, and at least 11 to be able to manifest any at all), he cares more about Strength because of its importance in combat.

Races: Characters inspired to play a divine mind need merely to choose a deity.

Among the humanoid races, humans seem most apt to follow such a course.

Divine minds are rare among the savage and monstrous humanoids, since physical study of psionic lore is a requirement.

Alignment: A divine mind's alignment must not be opposed to any of his chosen deity's alignment factors. For instance, a neutral good divine mind can choose a lawful good deity, but a chaotic good divine mind could not.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Autohypnosis, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Jump, Knowledge (psionics), Knowledge (religion), Profession, Psicraft*, Ride, Swim. See the Player's Handbook for standard skill descriptions. * See skills in Chapter 3: Skills in Expanded Psionics Handbook.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the divine mind class. Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Divine minds are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor (heavy, medium, and light), and with shields (except tower shields).

Wild Talent: A divine mind gains Wild Talent as a bonus feat.

This class feature provides the character with the psionic power he needs to call down a mantle's special power, even if he otherwise has no power points.

Power Points/Day: A divine mind's ability to manifest powers is limited by the power points he has available. His base daily allotment of power points is given on Table 1-3: The Divine Mind.

In addition, he receives bonus power points per day if he has a high Wisdom score (see Table 2-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Power Points, EPH 18), plus the power points provided by his Wild Talent feat.

His race might also provide bonus power points per day, as might certain feats and items.

A 1st- through 4th-level divine mind gains no power points for his class levels; his bonus power points (if he is entitled to any) become available when he begins to accrue the power points provided by his class at 5th level.

Powers Known: A divine mind begins play without knowing any powers.

Beginning at 5th level, he learns one divine mind power of the player's choice.

As he goes up in level, he continues to unlock knowledge of new powers as shown on the divine mind class table.

Choose the power known from the list of powers belonging to the character's chosen mantle.

At each additional level, a divine mind gains one additional power (if available) from his chosen mantles.

A divine mind's manifester level is equal to his class level minus 4.

For example, a 10th-level divine mind is a 6th-level manifester.

A divine mind can manifest any power he knows that has a power point cost equal to or lower than his manifester level.

A divine mind simply knows his powers; they are ingrained in his mind.

He does not need to prepare them (in the way that some spellcasters prepare their spells), though he must get a good night's sleep each day to regain all his spent power points.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against divine mind powers is 10 + the power's level + the divine mind's Wis modifier.

For example, the saving throw against a 2nd-level power has a DC of 12 + Wis modifier.

Maximum Power Level Known: A divine mind begins play without the ability to learn powers.

At 5th level, he gains the ability to learn 1st-level powers. As he attains higher levels, he gains the ability to master more complex powers—for example, an 8th-level divine mind can learn powers of 2nd level or lower, an 11th-level divine mind can learn powers of 3rd level or lower, and so on.

To learn or manifest a power, a divine mind must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the power's level.

For example, a divine mind with a Wisdom score of 13 can manifest powers of 3rd level or lower (if he is at least 11th level).

Psychic Aura (Su): All divine minds know three basic auras: attack, defense, and perception (see below).

In addition, your chosen mantle adds a specialized aura to your options.

You chose one aura to manifest, and its benefits take effect in a radius around you as given on Table 1-3.

Most auras affect either you and your allies or just your enemies.

As you become more powerful, your aura spreads to encompass a wider area.

If you know multiple mantles, you chose which aura to manifest when you meditate.

You can spend an hour in meditation to change your aura.

At 10th level, you can have two auras active at the same time; at 20th level, you can have three active auras.

Attack: You and all allies within your aura gain a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five class levels you have.

Defense: You and all allies within your aura gain a +1 morale bonus to Armor Class.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five class levels you have.

Perception: You and all allies within your aura gain a +2 morale bonus on Initiative, Listen, and Spot checks.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five class levels you have.

Mantle (Ex): At 1st level, a divine mind chooses a deity to follow.

He then chooses from among that deity's assigned mantles (see Table 1-4, page 11), picking one that he adopts and learns to manifest powers from.

TABLE 1-4: MANTLES BY DEITY

Player's Handbook

Boccob	Deception, Fate, Knowledge, Magic
Corellon Larethian	Chaos, Good, Guardian, Magic
Ehlonna	Good, Guardian, Light and Darkness, Natural World
Erythnul	Chaos, Destruction, Evil, Pain and Suffering
Fharlanghn	Communication, Fate, Freedom, Time
Garl Glittergold	Good, Guardian, Deception, Knowledge
Gruumsh	Chaos, Destruction, Evil, Physical Power
Heironeous	Conflict, Good, Justice, Law
Hextor	Conflict, Destruction, Evil, Law
Kord	Chaos, Conflict, Good, Physical Power
Moradin	Creation, Good, Guardian, Law
Nerull	Consumption, Death, Destruction, Evil
Obad-Hai	Communication, Elements, Life, Natural World
Olidarmara	Chaos, Communication, Deception, Freedom
Pelor	Good, Force, Life, Light and Darkness
St. Cuthbert	Energy, Law, Justice, Physical Power
Vecna	Corruption and Madness, Evil, Knowledge, The Planes
Wee Jas	Death, Law, Magic, Mental Power
Yondalla	Communication, Freedom, Good, Repose

Expanded Psionics Handbook

Ilsensine	Evil, Law, Magic, Mental Power
Zuoken	Conflict, Knowledge, Mental Power, Physical Power

FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting

Azuth	Knowledge, Law, Magic, Mental Power
Bane	Conflict, Destruction, Evil, Law
Chauntea	Good, Guardian, Life, Natural World
Cyric	Chaos, Corruption and Madness, Deception, Evil
Eilistraee	Chaos, Good, Freedom, Light and Darkness
Gond	Creation, Elements, Knowledge, Repose
Helm	Guardian, Law, Physical Power, Repose
Ilmater	Good, Law, Life, Pain and Suffering
Kelemvor	Death, Fate, Guardian, Law
Kossuth	Destruction, Elements, Energy, The Planes
Lathander	Good, Life, Light and Darkness, Time
Lolth	Chaos, Destruction, Evil, Light and Darkness
Malar	Chaos, Evil, Natural World, Physical Power
Mask	Deception, Evil, Fate, Light and Darkness
Mielikki	Freedom, Good, Life, Natural World

FORGOTTEN REALMS Campaign Setting

Mystra	Deception, Good, Knowledge, Magic
Oghma	Communication, Fate, Freedom, Knowledge
Selune	Chaos, Freedom, Good, Light and Darkness
Shar	Deception, Evil, Knowledge, Light and Darkness
Shaundakul	Chaos, Elements, Freedom, The Planes
Silvanus	Guardian, Life, Natural World, Repose
Sune	Chaos, Communication, Good, Guardian
Talos	Chaos, Destruction, Evil, Natural World
Tempus	Chaos, Conflict, Force, Physical Power
Torm	Good, Guardian, Law, Physical Power
Tymora	Chaos, Fate, Freedom, Good
Tyr	Good, Justice, Knowledge, Law
Umberlee	Chaos, Destruction, Evil, Natural World
Uthgar	Conflict, Justice, Natural World, Physical Power
Waukeen	Consumption, Freedom, Guardian, Knowledge

EBERRON Campaign Setting

Silver Flame	Good, Guardian, Law, The Planes
The Sovereign Host
Arawai	Good, Guardian, Life, Natural World
Aureon	Knowledge, Law, Magic, Mental Power
Balinor	Elements, Guardian, Natural World, Repose
Boldrei	Communication, Good, Justice, Law
Dol Arrah	Conflict, Good, Law, Light and Darkness
Dol Dorn	Chaos, Conflict, Good, Physical Power
Kol Korran	Communication, Consumption, Guardian, Freedom
Olladra	Fate, Good, Guardian, Life
Onatar	Creation, Energy, Force, Good
The Dark Six
The Devourer	Destruction, Evil, Natural World, Pain and Suffering
The Fury	Consumption, Corruption and Madness, Deception, Evil
The Keeper	Consumption, Death, Evil, Time
The Mockery	Conflict, Destruction, Deception, Evil
The Shadow	Chaos, Evil, Light and Darkness, Magic
The Traveler	Chaos, Creation, Deception, Freedom
The Blood of Vol	Death, Evil, Knowledge, Law
The Dragon Below	Corruption and Madness, Elements, Evil, The Planes
The Path of Light	Guardian, Law, Light and Darkness, Repose
The Undying Court	Death, Fate, Good, Life

You begin play with access to a mantle and its mantle power. Each mantle has a specific granted ability that you can use.

While you do not immediately know any powers, the powers in the mantle are considered on your list for the purpose of using dorjes and other items.

When you gain a power known, select it from the mantle's list of powers.

At 6th level, you gain a second mantle; at 12th, you gain your third and final mantle.

The mantles and their aura powers are given below.

Chaos: You and all allies within your aura gain a +2 resistance bonus on saves against attacks made or effects created by nonchaotic creatures.

This bonus increases by 1 for every six class levels you have.

Communication: You and willing allies within your aura are linked together with the mindlink power (EPH 120).

If they leave the area of your aura, they leave the link.

They can automatically rejoin, however, once they reenter the area.

Conflict: You and allies affected by your aura gain a +2 bonus on rolls to confirm critical hits.

This bonus increases to +5 if you are a 10th-level divine mind.

Consumption: You can leech power points expended near you.

While the aura is active, you can expend your psionic focus as an immediate action when a power is manifested within your aura.

Doing so steals 1 power point from the power's manifester.

This extra power point is added to your power point reserve; you cannot gain more power points than your normal maximum.

This ability has no effect if used while you have a full power point reserve.

If stealing 1 power point would prevent the manifester from being able to manifest the power, you do not gain a power point but the manifester is unable to manifest the power; no power points are expended.

You can steal more power points at higher levels: 2 power points at 7th level, 3 at 14th level, and 4 at 20th level.

The same restrictions as described above apply.

Corruption and Madness: Your aura disquiets and disturbs the minds of those who oppose you.

All enemies within your aura must make Concentration checks (DC 10 + your Wis modifier + 1/2 your divine mind level) to manifest powers, cast spells, or use psi-like or spell-like abilities.

Creation: All constructs within your aura heal at a rate of 1 hit point every hour.

This rate increases to 1 hit point every 10 minutes at 5th level, 1 hit point every minute at 10th level, and 1 hit point every round at 17th level.

Death: You and your allies know the condition of creatures near death within your aura, as the deathwatch spell (PH 217).

Deception: You and your allies gain a +2 bonus on Bluff checks made to feint in combat (PH 155).

You can expend your psionic focus to feint as a move action, as if you had the Improved Feint feat.

Destruction: You grant your allies the ability to sunder objects more easily.

Any time creatures affected by your aura make sunder attempts, the hardness of objects they attempt to sunder is treated as half its normal value (the hardness of a wooden object, for example, would be 2 instead of 5).

Elements: When this aura goes into effect, you must choose to align it to one of the four elemental subtypes (air, earth, fire, water).

While you are psionically focused, your attacks and the attacks of allies within your aura overcome the damage reduction (if any) of any creatures of the subtype to which you are aligned.

Energy: Your wielded weapons and those wielded by allies within your aura deal 1 extra point of cold, electricity, or fire energy damage plus 1 point for every five class levels you have.

You select the energy type when you activate this aura.

Evil: While this aura is active, the weapons of affected allies are treated as evil-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

Fate: You give your allies insight into the battle being waged around you, allowing them to bend fate to their will. While the aura of fate is active, you and your allies gain a +2 insight bonus on any one d20 roll.

Once a particular ally chooses to use her bonus, the aura ends for that ally, but not for any other ally who has not yet used the insight bonus.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five class levels you have, to a maximum bonus of +5 at 15th level.

A specific creature can gain this bonus once per day.

Force: As a move action, you can expend your psionic focus to grant yourself and all allies within your aura the ability to strike an incorporeal creature without suffering the normal 50% miss chance.

This affects each ally's next attack, as long as that attack occurs before your next turn.

Freedom: You and allies within your aura gain a +2 bonus on Escape Artist checks and grapple checks made to resist or escape a grapple.

This bonus increases by 1 for every four class levels you have, to a maximum of +7 at 20th level.

Good: While this aura is active, the weapons of affected allies are treated as good-aligned for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

Guardian: You can grant allies in range damage reduction 1/- while you are psionically focused.

This damage reduction increases by 1 for every five class levels you have (DR 2/- at 5th level, 3/- at 10th level, and so on).

Justice: You and allies within your aura gain a +1 bonus on attack rolls against a foe that has attacked you or another ally.

This bonus increases by 1 for every six class levels you have.

Knowledge: You and allies within your aura gain a +1 bonus on all Knowledge checks.

This bonus increases by 1 for every six class levels you have.

Law: You and allies within your aura gain a +2 resistance bonus on saves against attacks made or effects created by nonlawful creatures.

This bonus increases by 1 for every six class levels you have.

Life: Creatures in your presence feel rejuvenated and are more resistant to death effects.

While it is active, allies affected by this aura gain a +2 bonus on saves against death spells and powers or psionic death effects.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five class levels you have, to a maximum of +5 at 15th level.

Light and Darkness: You and allies within your aura treat spells with the light or darkness descriptors as one level higher for countering the opposing effect.

Magic: You and allies within your aura are treated as wielding magic weapons for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

Mental Tower: You and allies within your aura gain a +2 bonus on saving throws against mind-affecting spells and abilities.

This bonus increases by 1 for every six class levels you have.

Natural World: All animals, plants, and fey within your aura heal at a rate of 1 hit point every hour.

This rate increases to 1 hit point every 10 minutes at 5th level, 1 hit point every minute at 10th level, and 1 hit point every round at 17th level.

Pain and Suffering: You and allies within your aura gain a +1 bonus on weapon damage rolls against wounded foes.

Physical Power.

You and allies within your aura gain a +1 bonus on opposed Strength checks, such as bull rush, trip, or disarm checks, as well as on grapple checks.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five class levels you have.

The Planes: You can pinpoint the location of any outsider or extraplanar creature within your aura.

You and allies within your aura gain a +2 bonus on caster level checks or manifester level checks made to overcome the spell resistance or power resistance of outsiders.

Repose: While you are psionically focused, you and allies within your aura ignore the effects of fatigue.

If an ally within your aura becomes exhausted for any reason, he is treated as fatigued instead.

Your aura does not dispel fatigue, it merely suppresses the negative effects.

Time: You give allies within your aura the ability to see just a moment into the future, increasing their reaction time.

Anyone affected by your aura gains a +2 bonus on initiative checks and a +1 bonus on Reflex saves.

This bonus on initiative checks stacks with the bonus provided by the Time mantle's granted ability.

Divine Grace (Su): Beginning at 4th level, you gain a bonus equal to your Charisma bonus (if any) on all saving throws.

Change Aura (Ex): At 8th level, you gain the ability to change between your mantle auras much more quickly.

It takes only a standard action to change between auras.

You can switch auras as a move action at 14th level, and at 18th level you can change your aura as a swift action.

PLAYING A DIVINE MIND

A divine mind is a passionate adventurer.

As a self-considered adjunct of his deity, he often sees his involvement in a particular enterprise as a divine blessing.

In his mind, his presence alone is enough to legitimize a quest, adventure, or tomb raid, rendering it holy by his participation.

Even simple tasks are additional opportunities to prove his own worth and the worth of his deity by accomplishing the task with alacrity and grace.

He is typically not hard-headed or desirous of personal power, however; just because his deity chooses to offer a benediction for the party through his involvement does not mean that he sees himself as the default leader for the group, nor that he feels he (or his church) should have the lion's share of the treasure.

Religion: Divine minds show no overarching fondness for any one deity, though those deities whose domains include War are sometimes favored.

Evil deities can be the choice of particularly foul and wicked divine minds.

Other Classes: Despite being pledged first to their god, divine minds enthusiastically join with those whose competencies and abilities supplement their own.

They are most happy dealing with clerics, paladins, and others of faith who serve the same deity.

Divine minds do not possess the active disdain that some paladins inflict on their peers in response to imagined slights or actual immoral deeds.

Divine minds have more equanimity—unless the deed directly contradicts a dictate or domain of their own faith, they are usually happy to allow others to travel their own paths.

Combat: For a divine mind, melee (or sometimes ranged) combat is the preferred method to overcome challenges. With their ability to switch between mantles that provide the best advantage in a given situation, divine minds have exceptional flexibility.

As with other psionic classes that can manifest powers, a divine mind can find further advantages in his power selection.

Advancement: Once a divine mind chooses his deity, many of his advancement choices are already made—at least until he is able to manifest powers at 5th level.

The only other choices that can be made are his personal feats gained every three levels.

Because a divine mind is melee oriented, feats in that vein are reasonable choices, including Weapon Focus, Power Attack, Cleave, and so on.

Others might choose the bow as their favored weapon, following the ranged attack feat path of Point Blank Shot, Precise Shot, Rapid Shot, and so on.

As a divine mind gains the ability to manifest powers, power selection becomes important; it makes sense to either supplement abilities where the divine mind's mantle ability falls short (such as healing), but other times it might make sense to "load up" on an ability that a mantle already provides.

EX-DIVINE MINDS

A character who grossly violates the ethics of his deity's alignment loses all divine mind powers and abilities (but not weapon, armor, and shield proficiencies).

He cannot progress further in levels as a divine mind.

He regains his abilities and advancement potential if he atones for his transgressions.

HALF-GIANT DIVINE MIND STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail and large wooden shield (+6 AC, armor check penalty -6, speed 20 ft., 40 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 4 Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Autohypnosis	4	Wis	—
Climb	4	Str	-6
Jump	4	Str	-6
Swim	4	Str	-12
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Mantle: Physical Power.

Power Known: None.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 1-3: THE DIVINE MIND

HIT DIE: d10

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Points/Day	Powers Known	Maximum Power Level Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Mantle (1st), psychic aura 5 ft., Wild Talent	0	0	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	—	1	0	—
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Psychic aura 10 ft.	2	0	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Divine grace	3	0	—
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Psychic aura 15 ft.	4	1	1st
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Mantle (2nd)	6	2	1st
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Psychic aura 20 ft.	8	2	1st
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	Change aura (standard action)	10	3	2nd
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Psychic aura 25 ft.	12	3	2nd
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7	Psychic aura (second aura)	14	4	2nd
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Psychic aura 30 ft.	18	4	3rd
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Mantle (3rd)	22	5	3rd
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Psychic aura 35 ft.	26	5	3rd
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	Change aura (move action)	30	6	4th
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	Psychic aura 40 ft.	35	6	4th
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	—	40	7	4th
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Psychic aura 45 ft.	45	7	5th
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	Change aura (swift action)	50	8	5th
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Psychic aura 50 ft.	55	8	5th
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Psychic aura (third aura)	62	9	6th

ERUDITE

An alternative to the standard psion class, the erudite is a psionic character who follows a scholarly and self-reflective road to power, instead of a merely self-conscious path like the psion follows.

An erudite's psionic powers stem from a schedule of austere study and continual practice.

Those who can master the teachings of erudite lore eventually call upon an internal reservoir of psionic power.

An erudite's strength lies in his array of powers.

His mental abilities are the result of hard work and prolonged study.

As with the psion, an erudite's aggressive powers do not freely scale like the spells of arcane and divine casters (though they can be augmented), but he enjoys supreme flexibility in accessing those powers with power points.

Unlike a psion, an erudite does not choose a discipline in which to focus; his ability to learn select discipline powers is somewhat restricted.

In addition to the powers he learns for free when gaining a new level, an erudite can learn powers as he comes upon them, which means his potential variety of powers is far broader than a psion's.

Additionally, an erudite can seed a crystal or gem with a fragment of his personality, creating a psicrystal as a class feature.

A psicrystal has special abilities that are helpful to an erudite.

MAKING AN ERUDITE

An erudite's role is slightly larger than that of a psion, in that an erudite has access to a wider base of powers and thus is even more flexible.

However, this flexibility comes at the price of limits in other areas.

Abilities: Intelligence determines the strength of an erudite's manifested powers, how hard those powers are to resist, and the size of his power point reserve.

See Class Features, below.

Races: Those who choose the way of an erudite must adhere to a rigorous path of study and practice.

Among the humanoid races, humans seem most apt to follow such a course.

Among the savage and monstrous humanoids, erudites are rare due to the required physical study of psionic lore.

Alignment: Studious erudites tend more toward law than chaos, but they are not required to follow any particular philosophical path to use their abilities.

Erudites are both good and evil in equal measure.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Gather Information, Knowledge (psionics), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Profession, Psicraft.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the erudite.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Erudites are proficient with the club, dagger, heavy crossbow, light crossbow, quarterstaff, and shortspear.

They are not proficient with any type of armor or shield.

Armor does not interfere with the manifestation of powers.

Armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Sleight of Hand, Swim, and Tumble.

Power Points/Day: An erudite's ability to manifest powers is limited by the power points he has available.

His base daily allotment of power points is given on Table 6–6.

In addition, he receives bonus power points per day if he has a high Intelligence score (see Table 2–1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Power Points, EPH 18).

His race might also provide bonus power points per day, as might certain feats and items.

Unique Powers per Day: An erudite manifests psionic powers, paying for each manifestation with an expenditure of power points.

Unlike a psion, an erudite is limited to manifesting a certain number of unique psionic powers of each level per day from, the repertoire of powers he knows, according to his class level.

Thus, a 1st-level erudite can manifest one unique power per day; however, the total number of powers he can manifest per day is limited only by his daily power points (that is, the erudite could manifest the unique power as many times per day as he has power points to pay for it).

An erudite simply knows his powers; they are part of his repertoire.

He does not need to prepare them, though he must get a good night's sleep to regain all spent power points the next day.

An erudite does not choose a primary discipline.

Powers Discovered (Repertoire): An erudite selects powers from the same power list that psions and wilders use.

An erudite begins play knowing two 1st-level powers of your choice.

For each point of Intelligence bonus your character possesses, he knows one additional 1st-level power when you begin play.

Each time he achieves a new level, he unlocks the knowledge of two new powers of any level or levels that he can manifest (according to his new level) from the psion/wilder power list.

An erudite cannot automatically learn powers from any of the discipline power lists.

However, he can learn such powers later, as described below under Learning Discipline Powers.

To learn or manifest a power, an erudite must have an Intelligence score of at least 10 + the power's level.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against erudite powers is 10 + the powers level + the erudite's Int modifier.

An erudite can later learn new powers from power stones, from the minds of other willing psionic characters, and from the minds of unwilling unconscious psionic characters (see Adding Powers to an Erudite's Repertoire, below).

Psicrystal: At 1st level, an erudite gains Psicrystal Affinity (EPH 49) as a bonus feat.

Bonus Feats: An erudite gains a bonus feat at 1st level, 5th level, 10th level, 15th level, and 20th level.

This feat must be a psionic feat, a metapsionic feat, or a psionic item creation feat.

These bonus feats are in addition to the feats that a character of any class gains every three levels (as shown on Table 3–2: Experience and Level-Dependent Benefits, PH 22).

An erudite is not limited to psionic feats, metapsionic feats, and psionic item creation feats when choosing these other feats.

ADDING POWERS TO AN ERUDITE'S REPERTOIRE

In addition to learning new powers for gaining a level like other psionic classes, erudites can add new powers to their repertoires through several other methods.

Powers Gained at a New Level: Erudites and other psionic characters perform a certain amount of personal meditation between adventures in an attempt to unlock latent mental abilities.

Each time a psionic character attains a new level, he learns additional powers according to his class schedule.

An erudite learns two powers of his choice to add to his repertoire in this fashion.

These represent powers unlocked through study, practice, and the accumulation of psionic lore.

The two free powers must be of levels the erudite can manifest, and they cannot be from a select discipline list.

Exception: If a character with erudite levels gains at least as many levels in another psionic class as he has in his erudite class, he permanently loses the ability to add additional powers (above and beyond the two gained at each new erudite level) to his repertoire of powers known.

Learning Discipline Powers: An erudite can learn discipline powers only by directly learning a power from another's repertoire, learning it from a power stone, or taking the Expanded Knowledge feat (EPH 46).

In any case, an erudite can learn a discipline-only power only if it is up to 1 level lower than the highest level power he can manifest.

No matter what the powers source, the character must first make mental contact (a process similar to addressing a power stone, requiring a Psicraft check against a DC of 15 + the highest-level power contained in the stone or the repertoire).

He can make mental contact only with a willing psionic character or creature (unconscious creatures are considered willing, but not psionic characters under the effects of other immobilizing conditions).

Mental contact requires 1 round of physical contact.

Once mental contact is achieved, the erudite becomes aware of all the powers stored in the power stone or all the powers known by the target up to the highest level of power the erudite knows himself (if the powers' host fails a Will save [DC 13 + erudite's Int bonus]).

Next, the erudite must make a Psicraft check (DC 15 power's level) for each power he is trying to learn to see if he understands that power.

If the selected power is not on his class list or on any of the select discipline lists, he automatically fails this check.

If the check fails, the erudite cannot understand, manifest, or learn the power.

He cannot attempt to manifest or learn it again, even if he studies it from another source, until he gains another rank in Psicraft.

If the power was being learned from a power stone, it does not vanish from the stone.

If the check succeeds, the erudite understands the selected power.

He can attempt to manifest the power normally on his next turn, as described in Expanded Psionics Handbook, or he can attempt to permanently commit the power to his own repertoire.

Committing the Power to Repertoire: Once an erudite understands a new power through the procedure of contact described above, he can learn it, permanently adding it to his repertoire.

Physical Requirements: The erudite doesn't need to keep the power stone or other psionic source nearby while he fixes the candidate power in his repertoire.

However, should he manifest any other power during the time requirement, he loses focus on the power to be added, forgoing the chance to learn that power until he gains at least one more rank in Psicraft.

Time: The process requires 8 hours, regardless of the power's level.

During those 8 hours, the erudite must remain in meditation.

XP Cost: To permanently learn a new power that is not one of the powers he learns automatically when gaining a level, he must expend 20 experience points per erudite level, which are deducted from the character at the end of the meditation.

At that time, the erudite permanently knows the power and it is in his repertoire just like any other power he knows.

An erudite cannot expend so much XP that he would lose a level.

If he doesn't have enough XP to spend on learning a power, he can't learn it until he gains more XP.

An erudite does not have to pay the costs in time or XP for the powers he gains for free at each new level.

He adds them to his repertoire as part of his ongoing meditation.

Other Considerations: In most cases, psionic characters or creatures charge a fee to erudites for the privilege of learning powers from their repertoires.

This fee is usually equal to the power's level \times 50 gp, though many jealously guard their higher-level powers and charge much more (or deny access to them altogether).

Erudites friendly to one another often trade access to equal-level powers from their repertoires at no cost.

If an erudite learns a power from a psionic character or creature, the process leaves the target's repertoire unharmed.

A power learned from a power stone disappears from the stone.

PLAYING AN ERUDITE

An erudite adventures to exercise his mastery over mental powers and fulfill his desire to discover new troves of psionic lore.

Of course, he can also have any of the noble or ignoble motivations that other adventurers have.

Religion: Erudites sometimes worship deities revered for their intelligence and wisdom.

Erudites who revere a deity do not conform to any particular choice.

Other Classes: Erudites enjoy traveling with companions with widely varying skills.

They prefer to manifest their powers from a protected flank, serving either as "artillery" or as support to their team.

Combat: An erudite wins his way to victory through the swift and merciless application of psionic powers.

Because of the character's limitation on the number of unique powers per day, it is important to keep in reserve at least one power that he can use for offense or defense.

Advancement: An erudite shares the psion's benefit of gaining bonus feats every five levels, beginning with 1st level.

If an erudite decides early that he'd like to rely on metapsionic feats, a good complementary feat to take is Psionic Meditation (EPH 50), which allows him to become psionically focused as a move action.

Unlike a psion, an erudite is not limited by the number of powers he can know.

This is an advantage that an erudite should maximize early and often, looking as hard as possible for new powers to add to his repertoire.

An erudite shouldn't wait for opportunities to discover new powers to fall into his lap.

Instead, he should actively seek them by making deals with other psionic characters, purchasing rare power stones and so on in pursuit of expanding the sphere of his psionic mastery.

HUMAN ERUDITE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Leather (+2 AC, armor check penalty 0, speed 30 ft., 15 lb.).

Weapons: Spear (1d6, crit \times 3, 3 lb., one-handed, piercing). Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/ \times 2, 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Concentration	4	Con	—
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int	—
Psicraft	4	Int	—
Gather Information	4	Cha	—
Sense Motive (cc)	2	Wis	—
Diplomacy (cc)	2	Cha	—
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	0
Move Silently (cc)	2	Dex	0
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Narrow Mind.

Bonus Feat (human): Psionic Endowment.

Bonus Feat (erudite): Power Penetration.

Powers Known: *Energy arc, *primal fear, psionic daze (EPH 90).

For each point of Intelligence bonus your character possesses, you know one additional 1st-level power.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Ten candles, map case.

Quiver with 20 bolts.

Gold: 4d6 gp.

TABLE 6-6: THE ERUDITE

HIT DIE: D4

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Points/Day	Unique Powers/Day	Maximum Power Level Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Psicrystal Affinity, bonus feat	2	1	1st
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	6	2	1st
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	—	11	2	2nd
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	17	3	2nd
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat	25	3	3rd
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	35	4	3rd
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	46	4	4th
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	—	58	5	4th
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	72	5	5th
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Bonus feat	88	6	5th
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	—	106	6	6th
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	126	7	6th
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	147	7	7th
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	—	170	8	7th
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Bonus feat	195	8	8th
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	221	9	8th
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	250	9	9th
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	280	10	9th
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	311	10	9th
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Bonus feat	343	11	9th

BEHIND THE CURTAIN: USING THE ERUDITE

A hallmark of most psionic classes is the ability to manifest a limited number of powers. The erudite breaks from this to provide an option for characters who want to have a variety of powers at their disposal. Limits are still in place—an erudite must choose whether a “utility” power is worth manifesting, when each new daily power restricts his later choices. In this way, an erudite is much more versatile at the beginning of an encounter than at the end.

LURK

A lurk is a psionic character who has honed her mental talents to a deadly focus.

With her extraordinary ability to perceive an enemy’s weaknesses, a lurk can take advantage of the slightest distraction to make vicious thrusts with her chosen weapon.

A lurk’s ability to lie in wait until just the right moment, as well as her talent for avoiding detection and lethal attacks, makes her a changeable hunter of those whose time is past. It is her profession to bring those unfortunate individuals to their awaited end without remorse and as efficiently as possible.

Because a lurk has access to a variety of psionic feats and powers, she is more effective than a simple killer or assassin.

She also holds to a purer morality—a lurk doesn’t kill indiscriminately, only bringing death to those who have outlived their time.

In her mind, those who meet their end at the end of her blade truly deserved to die.

MAKING A LURK

A lurk can’t stand up face to face with a bruiser as well as a fighter or even a psychic warrior can.

With her mental talents, however, she excels at taking the slightest opportunity and turning it to her advantage.

Her ability to slip under the notice of nearly any observer makes her a capable lone hunter, but her greatest strengths are found through interaction with her allies during a heated battle—she can use her enemy’s slightest distraction to deliver vicious thrusts with her blade, even creating her own opportunities as needed.

Abilities: Intelligence determines how many powers a lurk can manifest, how powerful those powers can be, and how hard those powers are to resist.

It is also important for bolstering the number of skill points to which she has access.

Her powers supplement her melee ability, however, so her Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution are also important considerations.

Races: Dwarves are slightly more likely to become lurks than members of other races, but beyond that, lurks are equally likely to come from any racial background.

Lurks are rare among savage and monstrous humanoids, since physical study of psionic lore is a requirement.

Alignment: A lurk always uses her abilities according to a personal code.

That code can be based on serving good, self-interest, or an inflexible ideology, but she sticks to whatever code she chooses.

Most lurks tend toward a lawful alignment, but the class has no restriction on alignment.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Autohypnosis*, Bluff, Climb, Concentration*, Craft, Disguise, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Knowledge (psionics), Listen, Move Silently, Profession, Psicraft, Sleight of Hand, Spot, Swim, Tumble, Use Psionic Device*.

See the Player’s Handbook for standard skill descriptions.

* See skills in Chapter 3: Skills in Expanded Psionics Handbook.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the lurk.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Lurks are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with light armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

Power Points/Day: A lurk's ability to manifest powers is limited by the power points she has available. Her base daily allotment of power points is given on Table 1-5.

In addition, she receives bonus power points per day if she has a high Intelligence score (see Table 2-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Power Points, EPH 18).

Her race might also provide bonus power points per day, as might certain feats and items.

Powers Known: A lurk begins play knowing one lurk power of the player's choice.

Each time she achieves a new level, she unlocks the knowledge of a new power.

Powers are chosen from the lurk power list.

(Exception: The Expanded Knowledge and Epic Expanded Knowledge feats from Expanded Psionics Handbook allow a lurk to learn powers from the lists of other classes).

A lurk can manifest any power that has a power point cost equal to or lower than her manifester level.

The total number of powers a lurk can manifest in a day is limited only by her daily power points.

A lurk simply knows her powers; they are ingrained in her mind.

She does not need to prepare them (in the way that some spellcasters prepare their spells), though she must get a good night's sleep each day to regain all her spent power points.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against lurk powers is 10 + the power's level + the lurk's Int modifier.

Maximum Power Level Known: A lurk begins play with the ability to learn 1st-level powers.

As she attains higher levels, she can gain the ability to master more complex powers—for example, a 4th-level lurk can learn powers of 2nd level or lower, a 7th-level lurk can learn powers of 3rd level or lower, and so on.

To learn or manifest a power, a lurk must have an Intelligence score of at least 10 + the power's level.

Lurk Augment (Ex): Beginning at 1st level, a lurk can augment her melee attack by selecting an ability from her available lurk augments.

Her level determines the abilities available for her to use (see Table 1-6).

TABLE 1-6: LURK AUGMENTS BY LEVEL

Minimum Level	Ability
1st	Additional sneak attack
1st	Unfocusing strike
3rd	Solid strike
3rd	Stunning attack
5th	Ignore concealment
5th	Mental assault
8th	Deceptive strike
8th	Reach attack
8th	Sneak attack undead
11th	Ghost touch
11th	Power drain
11th	Aligned attack
14th	Sneak attack constructs
14th	Stygian weapon
17th	Planar attack
17th	Synaptic disconnect
20th	Greater power drain

In some cases, she can also use power points to increase the power of her lurk augment.

The power of the lurk augment lasts for 1 round or until the lurk's next attack.

If that attack misses, that use is wasted.

Using a lurk augment is a swift action.

When powering an augment with power points, a lurk cannot spend more total power points than her lurk level on any single lurk augment.

A lurk can use her lurk augments a total number of times per day equal to her lurk level + her Int modifier.

At 10th level, a lurk can choose two augments from the list in the same swift action.

Both augments count against her daily total.

The total power points spent on the augments is still limited to her manifester level.

For example, an 11th-level lurk could choose to include a mental assault and a solid strike in her attack, and spend a total of 11 power points between the two abilities.

At 18th level, a lurk can choose three augments from the list in the same swift action, which counts as three against her daily limit.

The total power points spent is still limited to her manifester level.

Additional Sneak Attack: The lurk's next attack deals an extra 1d6 points of damage from a sneak attack.

For every 2 power points spent, this damage increases by 1d6 points.

The attack must be one to which sneak attack damage applies.

Minimum level 1st.

Unfocusing Strike: A creature hit by the lurk's attack must make a Will saving throw (DC 10 + Int modifier) or lose its psionic focus in addition to taking the damage from the attack.

For every 2 power points spent, the DC increases by 1.

Minimum level 1st.

Solid Strike: The lurk's attack deals an extra 2 points of damage.

For every power point spent, the damage increases by 1.

Minimum level 3rd.

Stunning Attack: A creature hit by the lurk's attack must make a Fortitude saving throw (DC 10 + lurk's Int modifier) or be stunned for 1 round in addition to taking the damage from the attack.

For every 2 power points spent, the DC increases by 1.

Minimum level 3rd.

Ignore Concealment: The lurk's next attack ignores the miss chance provided by concealment or total concealment.

The lurk must still attack the correct square when attacking an invisible creature.

Minimum level 5th.

Mental Assault: The lurk's next attack deals 2 points of either Intelligence or Wisdom damage in addition to its normal damage.

The lurk chooses which type of ability damage to deal when activating the power.

For every 2 power points spent, the ability damage increases by 1.

Minimum level 5th.

Deceptive Strike: The target of the lurk's next attack is denied his Dexterity bonus to AC for that attack.

This ability works against a target with uncanny dodge, but only if the lurk's class level is at least four levels higher than the target's effective rogue level.

Minimum level 8th.

Sneak Attack Undead: The lurk's sneak attack can damage undead creatures, if sneak attack damage would otherwise apply on the lurk's attack (for instance, if the undead is flanked or flat-footed).

Minimum level 8th.

Ghost Touch: The lurk's next attack can strike incorporeal creatures, as if her weapon had the ghost touch special ability.

Minimum level 11th.

Power Drain: The lurk's next attack drains a number of power points from the target equal to half the damage dealt. Drained power points are available for the lurk to use in the following round, but expire at the end of her next turn.

Minimum level 11th.

Aligned Attack: The lurk's next attack is treated as either good-aligned or evil-aligned (depending on the lurk's alignment) for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

A neutral lurk can choose either good or evil when she activates this ability.

Minimum level 11th.

Sneak Attack Constructs: The lurk's sneak attack can damage constructs, if sneak attack damage would otherwise apply on the lurk's attack (for instance, if the construct is flanked or flat-footed).

Minimum level 14th.

Stygian Weapon: A creature struck by the lurk's next attack gains 1d4 negative levels for 1 round, as the stygian weapon psionic power presented on page 102.

For every 4 power points spent, the duration of the negative levels is increased by 1 round.

Minimum level 14th.

Planar Attack: The lurk's next attack deals an extra 2d6 points of damage to either good or evil creatures (lurk's choice).

For every power point spent, the damage increases by 1d6 points.

Minimum level 17th.

Synaptic Disconnect: A creature struck by the lurk's next attack cannot cast spells, manifest powers, or use spell-like or psi-like abilities for 1 round unless it succeeds on a Will save (DC 10 + lurk's Int modifier).

For every 2 power points spent, the DC increases by 1.

Minimum level 17th.

Greater Power Drain: The lurk's next attack drains a number of power points from the target equal to the damage dealt by the attack.

Drained power points are available for the lurk to use in the following round, but expire at the end of her next turn.

Minimum level 20th.

Psionic Sneak Attack (Ex): While psionically focused, a lurk can strike a vital spot for extra damage if she attacks an opponent while he is unable to defend himself effectively. This is identical to the sneak attack ability of the rogue (PH 50), except the damage only applies when the lurk maintains a psionic focus.

Sneak attack damage and psionic sneak attack damage stack, whenever both would apply to the same target.

Initiative Boost (Ex): At 6th level and higher, a lurk can add her Intelligence bonus on her initiative checks.

Evasion (Ex): At 9th level and higher, a lurk can avoid even magical and unusual attacks with great agility as per the rogue ability.

If she makes a successful Reflex saving throw against an attack that normally deals half damage on a successful save, she instead takes no damage.

Slippery Mind (Ex): At 15th level and higher, if a lurk affected by an enchantment spell or effect fails her saving throw, she can attempt it again 1 round later at the same DC.

She gets only one extra chance to succeed on her saving throw.

PLAYING A LURK

A lurk sets out to locate and eliminate those who must be removed from the world according to the code she follows. Some presume to slay every instance of true evil; others work on commission.

All seek to exercise their abilities to grow to even greater levels of power.

Religion: Some lurks are quite religious, and in fact entwine their personal code with the dictates of their deity, slaying those who oppose religious truths.

Other lurks have codes that compel them to stamp out religious organizations where they have become so powerful as to potentially balloon into a theocracy.

Other Classes: Lurks particularly enjoy working with those who can provide a front-line offense, giving them a chance to come upon a foe unnoticed.

Likewise, those who can heal her if she becomes wounded are looked upon kindly.

In fact, lurks enjoy working with any class (or individual) that doesn't hinder them in the execution of their code.

Combat: A lurk rarely seeks to initiate combat—instead, she skulks about, looking for an opportunity to strike swiftly, applying her lurk augments to their greatest advantage.

At higher levels, she can tailor her attacks to her chosen target, using combinations of augments and powers to defeat her foes.

Advancement: As a psionic character, a lurk can benefit from many psionic feats, such as Psionic Weapon (EPH 50) or Deep Impact (EPH 45).

Those feats require expending her psionic focus, however, which in turn precludes the lurk from using her focused sneak attack ability.

A lurk can perhaps benefit more if she takes feats that require her to maintain her focus, such as Speed of Thought or Psionic Dodge.

A lurk can also choose from her list of powers as she advances in level.

Good choices include powers that add to her AC (such as defensive precognition), powers that enhance her ability to skulk (such as chameleon), and powers that allow her to avoid damage (such as evade burst).

ELAN LURK STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Short bow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Armor Check
		Ability	Penalty
Autohypnosis	4	Wis	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Escape Artist	4	Dex	-2
Listen	4	Wis	—
Move Silently	4	Dex	-2
Spot	4	Wis	—
Climb	4	Str	-2
Jump	4	Str	-2
Tumble	4	Dex	-2
Use Psionic Device	4	Cha	—
Swim	4	Str	-4
Ride (cc)	2	Dex	—
Intimidate (cc)	2	Cha	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—

Feat: Psionic Weapon.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 3d4 gp.

TABLE 1-5: THE LURK

HIT DIE: d6

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Points/Day	Powers Known	Maximum Power Level Known
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Lurk augment	1	1	1st
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Psionic sneak attack +1d6	2	2	1st
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	—	3	3	1st
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	—	5	4	2nd
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	—	7	5	2nd
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Initiative boost	11	6	2nd
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Psionic sneak attack +2d6	15	7	3rd
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+6	—	19	8	3rd
9th	+6/+1	+3	+6	+6	Evasion	23	9	3rd
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+7	Lurk augment (two at once)	27	10	4th
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+7	—	35	11	4th
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8	Psionic sneak attack +3d6	43	12	4th
13th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8	—	51	13	5th
14th	+10/+5	+4	+9	+9	—	59	14	5th
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+9	Slippery mind	67	15	5th
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+10	—	79	16	6th
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+10	Psionic sneak attack +4d6	91	17	6th
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+11	Lurk augment (three at once)	103	18	6th
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+11	—	115	19	6th
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+12	—	127	20	6th

COMPLETE WARRIOR (3.5)

HEXBLADE

Combining the dynamic powers of martial prowess and arcane might, the hexblade presents a deadly challenge to opponents unused to such a foe.

Adventures: Hexblades adventure for personal gain, whether that gain is power, prestige, wealth, or all the above.

Characteristics: The hexblade balances talents in combat and arcane spellcasting.

At lower levels, the hexblade relies on melee ability augmented by his special power to curse his enemies.

As he gains experience, he becomes capable of casting a limited number of spells while his curse ability becomes more potent and he gains the ability to warp the normal laws of probability.

He can also draw upon the service of a familiar to further augment his abilities.

Alignment: The style of the hexblade tends to be selfish, sometimes even cruel, though it is by no means limited to evil characters.

Still, even the friendliest hexblade is at best neutral.

Hexblades may be tyrannical or free-minded, disciplined or creative, and thus have no particular bent toward law or chaos.

Religion: Most hexblades aren't very pious, relying on their own talents rather than counting on a deity to protect them.

Those who revere a deity often choose Wee Jas (deity of death and magic) or Boccob the Uncaring (deity of magic). Some particularly evil hexblades venerate Nerull (deity of death) or Vecna (deity of secrets).

Background: Like that of the sorcerer, the power of the hexblade often displays itself at an early age, frequently in the form of unexplained accidents or other incidents of bad luck experienced by those around the budding hexblade. Though the hexblade is ultimately a self-taught character, many receive rudimentary training from another arcane spellcaster, such as an older hexblade, sorcerer, wizard, or bard, before setting off on their own.

Unlike sorcerers, hexblades share a unique bond. Though two hexblades who meet in a tavern or apothecary won't necessarily strike up a lasting friendship, it is rare for two hexblades to oppose one another unless great personal gain is on the line.

Races: As with sorcerers, most hexblades are humans or half-elves.

Those few gnomes who enjoy a cruel twist to their levity may take up the tradition.

Elves wishing to mix magic and warfare more often become fighter/wizards.

Dwarves and halflings rarely exhibit the self-centered behavior common among hexblades.

Among the savage humanoids, hexblades may be found as leaders or advisors.

Other Classes: Hexblades tend to get along best with other classes whose members look out for themselves before others, including rogues, rangers, and barbarians. They avoid paladins and other characters dedicated to the service of good or other high-minded ideals.

Hexblades sometimes feel jealous of the sorcerer's superior arcane talents, and they shun wizards as weak book-learners.

Role: Though a capable melee combatant, the hexblade relies on opportunistic use of his spells and special abilities to augment this role in the group.

A hexblade with the proper skill selection can make a fine leader for a group comfortable with his style.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Hexblades have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma controls many of the hexblade's special powers, including his spellcasting.

Strength is important for him because of its role in combat.

Dexterity and Constitution both contribute to the hexblade's long-term survival.

Alignment: Any nongood.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The hexblade's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4 in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the hexblade.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Hexblades are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with light armor but not with shields.

Because the somatic components required for hexblade spells are simple, a hexblade can cast hexblade spells while wearing light armor without incurring the normal arcane spell failure chance.

However, like any other arcane spellcaster, a hexblade wearing medium or heavy armor or using a shield incurs a chance of arcane spell failure if the spell in question has a somatic component (and most do).

A multiclass hexblade still incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance for arcane spells derived from other classes.

Hexblade's Curse (Su): Once per day, as a free action, a hexblade can unleash a curse upon a foe.

The target must be visible to the hexblade and within 60 feet.

The target of a hexblade's curse takes a –2 penalty on attacks, saves, ability checks, skill checks, and weapon damage rolls for 1 hour thereafter.

A successful Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 hexblade's class level + hexblade's Cha modifier) negates the effect.

At every four levels beyond 1st (5th, 9th, 13th, and 17th) a hexblade gains the ability to use his curse one additional time per day, as indicated on Table 1–1.

Multiple hexblade's curses don't stack, and any foe that successfully resists the effect cannot be affected again by the same hexblade's curse for 24 hours.

Any effect that removes or dispels a curse eliminates the effect of a hexblade's curse.

Arcane Resistance (Su): At 2nd level, a hexblade gains a bonus equal to his Charisma bonus (minimum +1) on saving throws against spells and spell-like effects.

Mettle (Ex): At 3rd level and higher, a hexblade can resist magical and unusual attacks with great willpower or fortitude.

If he makes a successful Will or Fortitude save against an attack that normally would have a lesser effect on a successful save (such as any spell with a saving throw entry of Will half or Fortitude partial), he instead completely negates the effect.

An unconscious or sleeping hexblade does not gain the benefit of mettle.

Familiar: Beginning at 4th level, a hexblade can obtain a familiar.

Doing so takes 24 hours and uses up magical materials that cost 100 gp.

A familiar is a magical beast that resembles a small animal and is unusually tough and intelligent.

The creature serves as a companion and servant.

The hexblade chooses the kind of familiar he gets.

As the hexblade advances in level, his familiar also increases in power.

Treat the hexblade as a sorcerer of three levels lower for determining the familiar's powers and abilities (see the Familiars sidebar on page 52 of the Player's Handbook).

If the familiar dies or is dismissed by the hexblade, the latter must attempt a DC 15 Fortitude saving throw.

Failure means he loses 200 experience points per hexblade level; success reduces the loss to one-half that amount.

However, a hexblade's experience point total can never go below 0 as the result of a familiar's demise or dismissal.

A slain or dismissed familiar cannot be replaced for a year and day.

A slain familiar can be raised from the dead just as a character can be, but it does not lose a level or a point of Constitution when this happy event occurs.

A character with more than one class that grants a familiar may have only one familiar at a time.

Spells: Beginning at 4th level, a hexblade gains the ability to cast a small number of arcane spells, which are drawn from the hexblade spell list (see Chapter 3).

He can cast any spell he knows without preparing it ahead of time, just as a sorcerer can (see page 54 of the Player's Handbook).

To learn or cast a spell, a hexblade must have a Charisma score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, Cha 12 for 2nd-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a hexblade's spell is 10 + the spell level + the hexblade's Cha modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a hexblade can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-1.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Charisma score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

When Table 1-1 indicates that the hexblade gets 0 spells per day of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 4th-level hexblade), he gains only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Charisma score for that spell level.

The hexblade's selection of spells is extremely limited.

A hexblade begins play knowing no spells, but gains one or more new spells at certain levels, as indicated on Table 1-2.

TABLE 1-2: HEXBLADE SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	—	—	—	—
2nd	—	—	—	—
3rd	—	—	—	—
4th	2 ¹	—	—	—
5th	2	—	—	—
6th	3	—	—	—
7th	3	—	—	—
8th	4	2 ¹	—	—
9th	4	2	—	—
10th	4	3	—	—
11th	4	3	2 ¹	—
12th	4	4	3	—
13th	4	4	3	—
14th	4	4	4	2 ¹
15th	4	4	4	3
16th	4	4	4	3
17th	5	4	4	4
18th	5	5	4	4
19th	5	5	5	4
20th	5	5	5	5

¹ Provided the hexblade has sufficient Charisma to have a bonus spell of this level.

(Unlike spells per day, his Charisma score does not affect the number of spells a hexblade knows; the numbers on Table 1-2 are fixed).

Upon reaching 12th level, and at every third hexblade level after that (15th and 18th), a hexblade can choose to learn a new spell in place of one he already knows.

In effect, the hexblade "loses" the old spell in exchange for the new one.

The new spell's level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level hexblade spell the hexblade can cast. For instance, upon reaching 12th level, a hexblade could trade in a single 1st-level spell (two spell levels below the highest-level hexblade spell he can cast, which is 3rd) for a different 1st-level spell.

At 15th level, he could trade in a single 1st-level or 2nd-level spell (since he now can cast 4th-level hexblade spells) for a different spell of the same level.

A hexblade may swap only a single spell at any given level, and must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that he gains new spells known for the level. Through 3rd level, a hexblade has no caster level.

At 4th level and higher, his caster level is one-half his hexblade level.

Bonus Feat: At 5th level, and every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, and 20th), a hexblade gains a bonus feat, which must be selected from the following list: Combat Casting, Greater Spell Focus (enchantment, necromancy, or transmutation only), Greater Spell Penetration, Spell Focus (enchantment, necromancy, or transmutation only), Spell Penetration.

Greater Hexblade's Curse (Su): When a hexblade attains 7th level, the penalty on attacks, saves, ability checks, skill checks, and weapon damage rolls incurred by a target of the hexblade's curse becomes -4 instead of -2.

Aura of Unluck (Su): Once per day, a hexblade of 12th level or higher can create a baleful aura of misfortune.

Any melee or ranged attack made against the hexblade while this aura of unluck is active has a 20% miss chance (similar to the effect of concealment).

Activating the aura is a free action, and the aura lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + the hexblade's Charisma bonus (if any).

At 16th level and higher, a hexblade can use his aura of unluck twice per day.

A 20th-level hexblade can activate this aura three times per day.

Dire Hexblade's Curse (Su): When a hexblade attains 19th level, the penalty on attacks, saves, ability checks, skill checks, and weapon damage rolls incurred by a target of the hexblade's curse becomes -6 instead of -4.

EX-HEXBLADES

A hexblade who becomes good-aligned loses all hexblade spells and all supernatural class abilities.

His familiar becomes a normal animal and leaves the hexblade's service as soon as possible.

He may not progress any farther in levels as a hexblade.

He retains all the other benefits of the class (weapon and armor proficiencies and bonus feats).

HUMAN HEXBLADE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).
 Bonus Feat (Human): Improved Initiative.
 Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.
 Quiver with 20 arrows.
 Gold: 6d4 gp.

TABLE 1-1: THE HEXBLADE

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	— Spells per Day —
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+0	+0	+2	Hexblade's curse 1/day	—	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+0	+0	+3	Arcane resistance	—	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+1	+1	+3	Mettle	—	—	—	—
4th	+4	+1	+1	+4	Summon familiar	0	—	—	—
5th	+5	+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat, hexblade's curse 2/day	0	—	—	—
6th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+5	—	1	—	—	—
7th	+7/+2	+2	+2	+5	Greater hexblade's curse	1	—	—	—
8th	+8/+3	+2	+2	+6	—	1	0	—	—
9th	+9/+4	+3	+3	+6	Hexblade's curse 3/day	1	0	—	—
10th	+10/+5	+3	+3	+7	Bonus feat	1	1	—	—
11th	+11/+6/+1	+3	+3	+7	—	1	1	0	—
12th	+12/+7/+2	+4	+4	+8	Aura of unluck 1/day	1	1	1	—
13th	+13/+8/+3	+4	+4	+8	Hexblade's curse 4/day	1	1	1	—
14th	+14/+9/+4	+4	+4	+9	—	2	1	1	0
15th	+15/+10/+5	+5	+5	+9	Bonus feat	2	1	1	1
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+10	Aura of unluck 2/day	2	2	1	1
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	Hexblade's curse 5/day	2	2	2	1
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11	—	3	2	2	1
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Dire hexblade's curse	3	3	3	2
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Aura of unluck 3/day, bonus feat	3	3	3	3

SAMURAI

Known for their matchless bravery and strict code of honor, the samurai were the noble soldiers of feudal Japan. In a fantasy setting, the samurai brings that courage and honor to the service of a lord, general, or other leader. The reputation of samurai for being tenacious in combat often precedes them in battle, and their mere presence is often enough to make dishonorable enemies slink away in the darkness.

Adventures: Samurai undertake quests and other adventures at the behest of their lord, who often uses mid- to high-level samurai as troubleshooters.

A samurai might be ordered to defend a village beset by bandits, to lead allies in battle, or to hunt down and duel a rival who has stained the lord's honor.

Characteristics: Wielding their signature katana (bastard sword) and wakizashi (short sword) simultaneously, samurai are as potent in melee as a fighter, although they are less versatile.

Their adherence to the code of bushido is intimidating to their foes, and the fixed stare of a samurai can unnerve most opponents.

Alignment: Almost every aspect of a samurai's life is ruled by the code of bushido, which demands total obedience to one's lord, bravery in the face of utmost peril, and honor and respect to superiors, peers, and lessers alike. Samurai are always lawful, stoic in demeanor, and implacable when matters of honor and justice are concerned.

Religion: In a fantasy world, some samurai worship no deity, instead relying on the code of bushido for guidance on moral and ethical issues.

Others gravitate to the worship of deities of law, honor, and justice, such as Heironeous and St. Cuthbert.

Some evil samurai find the tyrannical teachings of Hextor acceptable.

Background: Samurai are traditionally of noble birth, although folk tales are replete with samurai who were orphans adopted by noble families or foot soldiers who showed outstanding bravery in battle.

Becoming a samurai means untold hours learning to use the katana and wakizashi, lessons in manners and etiquette, and relentless instruction in the tenets of bushido.

Races: The clan-based, lawful society of the dwarves would make a good match for samurai culture.

Elves' long lives and sense of history could lead them down the samurai's path.

Most halflings wander too much to make effective samurai, and gnomes show no particular affinity for the class.

Least likely of all are half-orcs, who rarely attain a high enough station in civilized society to become samurai.

Other Classes: Because both classes live their lives according to a code of behavior, samurai tend to get along well with paladins, although samurai are sometimes puzzled when paladins ask, "Is this the right thing to do?" (A typical samurai's response might be "You dishonor the lord by questioning his orders").

Monks are likewise admired for their strict training regimen and self-discipline.

Samurai also get along well with fighters, especially if they have served in an army, and bards whose art reflects appropriate themes.

Barbarians are tolerated with only a thin veneer of politeness, as are rogues who focus on larceny and other dishonorable activities.

Role: With heavy armor and a razor-sharp blade in each hand, samurai are front-line melee combatants.

They also benefit from a series of abilities that give morale penalties to their foes.

In addition, because they are trained in matters of etiquette, samurai make good negotiators and spokesmen.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Samurai have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is of paramount importance to the sword-wielding samurai, and Dexterity and Constitution help him survive in the midst of battle.

Many of the samurai's other class features depend on Charisma—a samurai's force of personality can make his enemies quake in fear.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The samurai's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (nobility and royalty) (Int), Ride (Dex), and Sense Motive (Wis).

See Chapter 4 in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the samurai.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A samurai is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with all types of armor, but not with shields.

Daisho Proficiency (Ex): In melee combat, a samurai favors the katana (a masterwork bastard sword) and the wakizashi (a masterwork short sword).

Many samurai receive an heirloom set of these two blades, known as the daisho.

Because a samurai is trained in their use, he gains Exotic Weapon Proficiency (bastard sword) as a bonus feat.

Two Swords as One (Ex): At 2nd level, a samurai has learned to wield the katana and wakizashi together.

He is treated as having the Two-Weapon Fighting feat when wielding a katana and wakizashi, even if he does not meet the prerequisites for that feat.

Kiai Smite (Ex): Once per day, a samurai of 3rd level or higher can give a great cry during combat that invigorates him.

When a samurai shouts (a free action), his next attack gains a bonus on the attack roll and the damage roll equal to his Charisma bonus (minimum +1).

As a samurai gains levels, he can make a kiai smite more often.

Iaijutsu Master (Ex): By 5th level, a samurai has become adept at iaijutsu, a fighting technique that concentrates on drawing his weapon and striking a foe in one fluid motion. He is treated as having the Quick Draw feat, but only when he draws his katana or wakizashi.

Staredown (Ex): At 6th level, a samurai becomes able to strike fear into his foes by his mere presence.

He gains a +4 bonus on Intimidate checks and can demoralize an opponent (as described in the Intimidate skill description, page 76 of the Player's Handbook).

Improved Initiative (Ex): At 8th level, the samurai has practiced iaijutsu techniques used in ritual duels between two samurai, and he is able to anticipate when any enemy will attack.

He now has the Improved Initiative feat.

Mass Staredown (Ex): At 10th level, a samurai has sufficient presence that he can cow multiple foes.

Using a Intimidate check, the samurai can demoralize all opponents within 30 feet with a single standard action.

Improved Two Swords as One (Ex): At 11th level, a samurai's prowess with the katana and wakizashi improves. He is treated as having the Improved Two-Weapon Fighting feat when wielding a katana and wakizashi, even if he does not meet the prerequisites for the feat.

Improved Staredown (Ex): At 14th level, even a glance from the hard eyes of a samurai is enough to give his foes pause.

The samurai can demoralize opponents within 30 feet as a move action, not a standard action.

Greater Two Swords as One (Ex): At 16th level, fighting with a katana and wakizashi becomes second nature for a samurai.

He is treated as having the Greater Two-Weapon Fighting feat when wielding a katana and wakizashi, even if he does not meet the prerequisites for that feat.

Frightful Presence (Ex): A 20th-level samurai's bravery, honor, and fighting prowess have become legendary.

When the samurai draws his blade, opponents within 30 feet must succeed on a Will save (DC 20 + samurai's Cha modifier) or become panicked for 4d6 rounds (if they have 4 or fewer Hit Dice) or shaken for 4d6 rounds (if they have from 5 to 19 Hit Dice).

Creatures with 20 or more Hit Dice are not affected.

Any foe that successfully resists the effect cannot be affected again by the same samurai's frightful presence for 24 hours.

EX-SAMURAI

A samurai who ceases to be lawful or who commits an act of grave dishonor loses all samurai class features that depend on Charisma or Charisma-based checks.

Minor embarrassments don't count, but major breaks with the code of bushido do.

Acts that could lose a samurai his status include disobeying an order from a superior officer or feudal lord, fleeing in cowardice from an important battle, being caught in a major lie or other breach of integrity, and appallingly rude behavior.

A disgraced character may not progress any farther as a samurai.

He regains his class features the ability to advance in the class if he atones for his violations (see the atonement spell, page 201 of the Player's Handbook), assuming the feudal lord offers a chance at redemption.

(Some feudal lords demand ritual suicide as the only act that cleanses the stain of dishonor).

Like a member of any other class, a samurai may be a multiclass character, but multiclass samurai face a special restriction.

A samurai who gains a level in any class other than samurai may never again raise his samurai level, though he retains all his current samurai abilities.

The way of the samurai demands constant adherence to the code of bushido.

Samurai may sometimes take levels in particular prestige classes without violating this code.

The kensai and the knight protector (both in this book) and the dwarven defender (in the Dungeon Master's Guide) are three such examples.

The Dungeon Master may designate other prestige classes as available to a samurai.

Some disgraced samurai take levels in the ronin prestige class (described in Chapter 2 of this book), which gives them a chance to regain their lost class features.

HUMAN SAMURAI STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Weapons: Bastard sword (1d10, crit 19-20/x2, 6 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Short sword (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 2 lb., light, piercing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Armor Check
		Ability	Penalty
Craft (calligraphy)	4	Int	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Knowledge (history)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (nobility and royalty)	4	Int	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Sense Motive	4	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (bastard sword).

Bonus Feat (Human): Combat Reflexes.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

bullseye lantern and 1 pint oil, 20 arrows.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 1-3: THE SAMURAI

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Daisho proficiency
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Two swords as one
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Kiai smite 1/day
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Iaijutsu master
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Staredown
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Kiai smite 2/day
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Improved Initiative
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	—
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Mass staredown
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Improved two swords as one
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Kiai smite 3/day
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4	—
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	Improved staredown
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	—
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	Greater two swords as one
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Kiai smite 4/day
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	—
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	—
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Frightful presence

SWASHBUCKLER

The swashbuckler embodies the concepts of daring and panache.

Favoring agility and wit over brute force, the swashbuckler excels both in combat situations and social interactions, making her a versatile character indeed.

Adventures: Swashbucklers adventure for a variety of motivations, based on their alignment and background.

Some seek to right injustices, while others seek only fame and fortune.

All swashbucklers, however, share a tendency to leap into action when the call comes, regardless of their personal views.

Characteristics: The swashbuckler combines skill and finesse with sheer combat prowess.

Though swashbucklers can't dish out quite as much damage as a typical fighter or barbarian, they tend to be more agile and mobile than most melee combatants.

When she can pick her battles carefully, a swashbuckler becomes a very deadly opponent (not to mention hard to pin down).

Swashbucklers also hold their own in social situations, unlike most fighters.

Alignment: Like rogues, swashbucklers tend to be diverse in their outlooks, and thus in their alignments.

Those who chafe under societal restrictions tend to be chaotic, while those who uphold honorable traditions may well be lawful.

Religion: Most swashbucklers pay at least some small amount of homage to Olidammara (deity of thieves), since that deity is renowned as being lucky.

Lawful or chivalrous swashbucklers may revere Heironeous (deity of valor) or even St. Cuthbert (deity of retribution).

Swashbucklers who choose the open road over a fixed residence often worship Fharlanghn (deity of roads).

Background: Many swashbucklers come from affluent backgrounds, but anyone valuing finesse over force can become a swashbuckler, regardless of background.

A common shared element among swashbucklers' backgrounds is life in an urban environment, whether the back alleys of a slum or the cultured halls of royalty.

Swashbucklers tend to see other swashbucklers as rivals rather than allies, even when sharing similar goals.

The swashbuckler's need for attention often outweighs her better judgment, leading either to friendly competition or even outright distrust and antipathy.

Races: Swashbucklers are most often humans, elves, or half-elves.

Humans and half-elves tend to have the daring nature required of a swashbuckler, and the natural grace of elves makes them well suited for the class.

Halflings and gnomes often have the temperament to become a swashbuckler, though their slower speed works against them.

Dwarves tend to prefer fighting in heavy armor with big weapons, and thus rarely become swashbucklers.

Among the savage humanoids, swashbucklers are virtually unknown.

Other Classes: Swashbucklers prefer to work with other quick, lightly armored characters.

They get along best with rogues and bards, and appreciate the agility and combat talents of the monk (though chaotic swashbucklers may chafe at the monk's ascetic nature).

Lawful good swashbucklers often share the paladin's honorable nature, but otherwise the classes tend to clash in their approach to life.

Swashbucklers have no particular distaste for spellcasters, and they appreciate the utility of a cleverly chosen, well-timed spell.

They don't interact with barbarians, druids, or rangers very often, since these characters tend to prefer natural settings to the typical urban environment of the swashbuckler.

Role: The swashbuckler is an able melee combatant, particularly when paired with a fighter or rogue. She can also make a fine party leader or spokesperson, thanks to her access to Charisma-based skills.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Swashbucklers have the following game statistics.

Abilities: The lightly armored swashbuckler depends on a high Dexterity for her Armor Class, as well as for many class skills.

High Intelligence and Charisma scores are also hallmarks of a successful swashbuckler.

Strength is not as important for a swashbuckler as it is for other melee combatants.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The swashbuckler's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Jump (Str), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4 in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the swashbuckler.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Swashbucklers are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with light armor.

Some of the swashbuckler's class features, as noted below, rely on her being no more than lightly armored and unencumbered.

Weapon Finesse (Ex): A swashbuckler gains Weapon Finesse as a bonus feat at 1st level even if she does not qualify for the feat.

Grace (Ex): A swashbuckler gains a +1 competence bonus on Reflex saves at 2nd level.

This bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and to +3 at 20th level.

A swashbuckler loses this bonus when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Insightful Strike (Ex): At 3rd level, a swashbuckler becomes able to place her finesse attacks where they deal greater damage.

She applies her Intelligence bonus (if any) as a bonus on damage rolls (in addition to any Strength bonus she may have) with any light weapon, as well as any other weapon that can be used with Weapon Finesse, such as a rapier, whip, or spiked chain.

Targets immune to sneak attacks or critical hits are immune to the swashbuckler's insightful strike.

A swashbuckler cannot use this ability when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

Dodge Bonus (Ex): A swashbuckler is trained at focusing her defenses on a single opponent in melee.

During her action, she may designate an opponent and receive a +1 dodge bonus to Armor Class against melee attacks from that opponent.

She can select a new opponent on any action.

This bonus increases by +1 at every five levels after 5th (+2 at 10th level, +3 at 15th, and +4 at 20th).

A swashbuckler loses this bonus when wearing medium or heavy armor or when carrying a medium or heavy load.

If the swashbuckler also has the Dodge feat, she need not designate the same target for this ability as for the Dodge feat.

(If she designates the same target, the bonuses stack).

Acrobatic Charge (Ex): A swashbuckler of 7th level or higher can charge in situations where others cannot. She may charge over difficult terrain that normally slows movement or allies blocking her path.

This ability enables her to run down steep stairs, leap down from a balcony, or to tumble over tables to get to her target. Depending on the circumstance, she may still need to make appropriate checks (Jump or Tumble checks, in particular) to successfully move over the terrain.

Improved Flanking (Ex): A swashbuckler of 8th level or higher who is flanking an opponent gains a +4 bonus on attacks instead of a +2 bonus on attacks.

(Other characters flanking with the swashbuckler don't gain this increased bonus).

Lucky (Ex): Many swashbucklers live by the credo "Better lucky than good".

Once per day, a swashbuckler of 11th level or higher may reroll any failed attack roll, skill check, ability check, or saving throw.

The character must take the result of the reroll, even if it's worse than the original roll.

Acrobatic Skill Mastery (Ex): At 13th level, a swashbuckler becomes so certain in the use of her acrobatic skills that she can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

When making a Jump or Tumble check, a swashbuckler may take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent her from doing so.

Weakening Critical (Ex): A swashbuckler of 14th level or higher who scores a critical hit against a creature also deals 2 points of Strength damage to the creature.

Creatures immune to critical hits are immune to this effect.

Slippery Mind (Ex): When a swashbuckler reaches 17th level, her mind becomes more difficult to control.

If the swashbuckler fails her save against an enchantment spell or effect, she can attempt the save again 1 round later at the same DC (assuming she is still alive).

She gets only this one extra chance to succeed at a certain saving throw.

Wounding Critical (Ex): A swashbuckler of 19th level or higher who scores a critical hit against a creature also deals 2 points of Constitution damage to the creature.

(This damage is in addition to the Strength damage dealt by the swashbuckler's weakening critical class feature).

Creatures immune to critical hits are immune to this effect.

HALF-ELF SWASHBUCKLER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Rapier (1d6, crit 18-20/×2, 2 lb., one-handed, piercing).

Dagger (1d4, crit 19-20/×2, 1 lb., light, piercing or slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit ×3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Climb	4	Str	-1
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Jump	4	Str	-1
Tumble	4	Str	-1
Use Rope	4	Dex	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (rapier).

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel, hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil, quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 6d4 gp.

TABLE 1-4: THE SWASHBUCKLER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Weapon Finesse
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Grace +1
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Insightful strike
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Dodge bonus +1
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	—
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Acrobatic charge
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Improved flanking
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	—
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Dodge bonus +2
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Grace +2, lucky
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	—
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4	Acrobatic skill mastery
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	Weakening critical
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	Dodge bonus +3
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	—
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Slippery mind
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	—
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	Wounding critical
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Dodge bonus +4, grace +3

DRAGON MAGIC (3.5)

DRAGONFIRE ADEPT

"I'll have no need of spells, skill alarms, or faith to defeat you. At my beck and call are the most powerful forces the world has seen—the flame and fury of dragons!"

—Tatiana, a dragonfire adept

Whether they are bold champions defending the weak and downtrodden, or merciless raiders seeking might and riches, dragonfire adepts are imposing figures who command the magic of dragonkind.

Able to call upon a dragon's fiery breath and augment themselves with spell-like abilities, dragonfire adepts have access to powers normally beyond the reach of humanoids. Dragonfire adepts have no arcane or divine magic, nor are they masters of martial prowess.

Instead, they draw upon a direct link with the nature of draconic existence, infusing their soul with the raw magic of dragons.

The most obvious incarnation of this link is their breath weapon, but as they gain experience, dragonfire adepts learn powerful invocations that allow them to access different draconic abilities.

Cunning, hearty, and learned, dragonfire adepts can be warleaders or sages with equal ease.

A dragonfire adept is a student devoted to understanding the ways of dragons and emulating them.

Evil dragonfire adepts are cruel tyrants who impose their will on others, seeking to control land, build strongholds, and amass vast treasures.

Good dragonfire adepts are champions of justice and freedom, using their powers to aid others.

Like a sorcerer, a dragonfire adept gains new powers automatically as she rises in level, tapping ever deeper into the draconic magic in her soul.

Unlike a sorcerer, however, a dragonfire adept manifests this magic not in the form of spells, but as invocations that emulate draconic powers.

MAKING A DRAGONFIRE ADEPT

A dragonfire adept is a flexible character, able to provide support in combat and aid her allies directly or indirectly. While she lacks the capacity of a fighter or wizard for dealing damage, she is more resistant to magical effects and can use her abilities to make her comrades more effective.

Abilities: Constitution is critical to a dragonfire adept; it makes her more resilient and affects how well targets can resist her breath weapon attacks.

Charisma, her second most important ability, impacts the effectiveness of her invocations.

Of course, Dexterity is useful for any character in combat, but this is especially true for a dragonfire adept.

She lacks skill with heavy armor, and her magic focuses on offense over defense.

Worse, a dragonfire adept has limited range with her breath weapon attacks, forcing her to move closer to combat than a typical arcane spellcaster.

A high Dexterity helps mitigate these various defensive drawbacks.

Races: Most dragonfire adepts are humans, elves, or half-elves, since the study of dragonkind is not unlike the study of arcane magic.

A surprising number of half-orcs also become dragonfire adepts, seeking either to find a place for themselves or to create one through force.

Dwarves are rarely dragonfire adepts because of their ancient enmity with dragonkind.

Most halflings and gnomes lack the burning drive needed to take this class.

Alignment: A dragonfire adept can be of any alignment, though her choice has a strong impact on which dragons she can associate with.

Dragonfire adepts often act similarly to dragons of the same alignment; for example, chaotic evil adepts are rapacious hunters of treasure and power, and lawful good adepts are noble defenders of a selected group or territory.

Alignment can also influence a dragonfire adept's choice of affinity when taking the Draconic Heritage feat (see page 17), though no game rule restricts this choice.

For example, a lawful good dragonfire adept can select red dragons when taking this feat.

Neutral dragonfire adepts are rare, but evil, good, lawful, and chaotic representatives are equally common.

The urge to delve into the mysteries of draconic energies comes more easily to those who have strong beliefs and wish to actively pursue them.

Starting Gold: 2d4×10 (50 gp).
Starting Age: As paladin (PH 109).

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Appraise, Bluff, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Listen, Search, Sense Motive, Speak Language, Spellcraft, Spot, Use Magic Device.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the dragonfire adept.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Dragonfire adepts are proficient with simple weapons, but not with armor or shields.

Like arcane spellcasters, a dragonfire adept wearing armor or using a shield incurs a chance of arcane spell failure (all invocations have somatic components).

Invocations: A dragonfire adept has a repertoire of attacks, defenses, and other abilities known as draconic invocations, which allow her to focus the draconic energy that suffuses her soul.

A dragonfire adept can use any invocation she knows at will.

A dragonfire adept's invocations are spell-like abilities: using an invocation is therefore a standard action that provokes attacks of opportunity.

To avoid provoking such attacks, a dragonfire adept can use an invocation defensively by making a successful Concentration check.

An invocation can be disrupted, just as a spell can be ruined during casting.

If a dragonfire adept is hit by an attack while invoking, she is entitled to a Concentration check to successfully use the invocation, just as a spellcaster would be.

Her invocations are subject to spell resistance unless an invocation's description specifically states otherwise.

A dragonfire adept's caster level with her invocations is equal to her class level.

She can dismiss any invocation as a standard action, just as a wizard can dismiss a spell.

If an invocation allows a saving throw, its DC is 10 + the equivalent spell level + the dragonfire adept's Cha modifier. Since spell-like abilities are not spells, a dragonfire adept cannot benefit from the Spell Focus feat or from draconic feats that let her convert or spend an arcane spell slot to produce some other effect.

She can.

however, benefit from the Ability Focus feat (MM 303), as well as from feats that emulate metamagic effects for spell-like abilities.

The four grades of draconic invocations, in order of their relative power, are least, lesser, greater, and dark.

A 1st-level dragonfire adept begins with knowledge of one least invocation, gaining access to more invocations and higher grades as she attains levels.

At any level when a dragonfire adept learns a new invocation, she can also replace an invocation she already knows with another invocation of the same or lower grade. See Draconic Invocations, below, for a list of available invocations.

Unlike other spell-like abilities, draconic invocations are subject to arcane spell failure chance as described under Weapon and Armor Proficiency, above.

Finally, just like warlocks (see Complete Arcane), dragonfire adepts can qualify for some prestige classes usually intended for spellcasters.

For details, see the Dragonfire Adepts and Prestige Classes sidebar on page 24.

Breath Weapon (Su): At 1st level, you gain a breath weapon that you can use at will as a standard action.

Each time you use your breath weapon, you can choose whether it takes the form of a 15-foot cone or a 30-foot line. This breath weapon deals 1d6 points of fire damage; a successful Reflex save (DC 10 + 1/2 your class level + your Con modifier) halves the damage.

As you gain levels, your breath weapon's damage increases, as shown on Table 2–1.

You are immune to the effect of your own breath weapon (but not to other breath weapons that produce similar effects, even those of other dragonfire adepts).

At 10th level, your cone-shaped breath weapon's range doubles to 30 feet, and your line-shaped breath weapon's range doubles to 60 feet.

Dragontouched: At 1st level, you gain Dragontouched (see page 18) as a bonus feat.

Breath Effect: At 2nd, 5th, 10th,

12th, 15th, and 20th level, you can select one of the breath effects in Table 2–2: Dragonfire Adept Breath Effects for which you meet the minimum level prerequisite.

TABLE 2–2: DRAGONFIRE ADEPT BREATH EFFECTS

Minimum Level	Breath Effect	Benefit
2nd	Frost Breath	Cone-shaped breath weapon deals cold damage
2nd	Lightning Breath	Line-shaped breath weapon deals electricity damage
2nd	Sickening Breath	Cone-shaped breath weapon sickens creatures
5th	Acid Breath	Breath weapon deals acid damage
5th	Shaped Breath	Create safe zones in your breath weapon's area
5th	Slow Breath	Cone-shaped breath weapon slows creatures
5th	Weakening Breath	Cone-shaped breath weapon imposes –6 penalty to Strength
10th	Cloud Breath	Breath weapon can take form of 20-foot radius cloud
10th	Enduring Breath	Breath weapon deals damage over 2 rounds
10th	Sleep Breath	Cone-shaped breath weapon puts weak creatures to sleep
10th	Thunder Breath	Cone-shaped breath weapon deals sonic damage
15th	Disincorporating Breath of Bahamut	Line-shaped breath weapon deals double damage, disintegrates creatures
15th	Force Breath	Line-shaped breath weapon deals force damage
15th	Paralyzing Breath	Cone-shaped breath weapon paralyzes creatures for 1 round
15th	Fivefold Breath of Tiamat	Breathe five different breath weapons simultaneously

These breath effects can alter your breath weapons damage type or area, or apply a condition to targets in place of damage.

Each rime you use your breath weapon, you can choose to apply any one breath effect that you know.

The chosen effect either replaces the normal fire damage dealt by your breath weapon or replaces the standard area of your breath weapon.

Some effects can be applied only to a cone-shaped breath weapon, and others only to a line-shaped breath weapon. You can't apply more than one breath effect to your breath weapon unless the effect specifically states otherwise.

Also, you can't apply the same breath effect to your breath weapon in two consecutive rounds (though you still can use your normal fire breath weapon every round).

See page 77 in Chapter 3: Draconic Magic for full descriptions of the breath effects.

Scales (Ex): At 2nd level, your skin becomes thick and scaly, granting you a +2 bonus to your natural armor.

The scales can be of any color or metallic hue; they are often (but not always) of a draconic hue that matches your outlook and alignment.

This bonus improves to +3 at 8th level, to +4 at 13th level, and to +5 at 18th level.

If you already have a natural armor bonus, use the higher of the two values.

Dragonkin (Ex): At 4th level, you gain a +4 competence bonus on Diplomacy checks made to influence the attitude of dragons or creatures of the dragonblood subtype (see page 4).

You are treated as a dragon for the purpose of determining whether frightful presence can affect you.

Damage Reduction (Ex): At 6th level, you gain damage reduction 2/magic.

At 16th level, this improves to damage reduction 5/magic.

Immunities (Ex): At 19th level, you gain immunity to paralysis and sleep.

DRACONIC INVOCATIONS

Each draconic invocation falls into one of four grades: least, lesser, greater, or dark.

These invocations are briefly described below.

See Chapter 3: Draconic Magic for full descriptions.

LEAST INVOCATIONS

Aquatic Adaptation: Breathe and use breath weapon underwater; gain swim speed.

Beguiling Influence: Gain bonus on Bluff, Diplomacy, and Intimidate checks.

Breath of the Night: Create a fog cloud as the spell.

Darkness: Create darkness as the spell.

Deafening Roar: Cone of sound deafens creatures.

Draconic Knowledge: Gain bonus on Knowledge and Spellcraft checks.

Endure Exposure: Use endure elements as the spell; target gains immunity to your breath weapon.

Magic Insight: Detect magical auras; identify magic items.

Scalding Gust: Use gust of wind as the spell; any creature in area takes fire damage equal to your level.

See the Unseen: Gain darkvision; gain see invisibility as the spell.

LESSER INVOCATIONS

Charm: Cause a single creature to regard you as a friend.

Draconic Flight: Sprout wings and fly at good maneuverability; fly longer overland.

Energy Resistance: Gain resistance 10 to acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic damage.

Enthralling Voice: Enthrall nearby creatures.

Frightful Presence: Make nearby creatures shaken.

Humanoid Shape: Take the form of any humanoid creature.

Voicesense: Gain blindsense 30 feet.

Voracious Dispelling: Use dispel magic as the spell, dealing damage to creatures whose effects are dispelled.

Walk Unseen: Use invisibility (self only) as the spell.

GREATER INVOCATIONS

Aura of Flame: Aura deals fire damage to creatures that strike you.

Baleful Geas: A single creature becomes your servant, but slowly sickens and dies.

Chilling Fog: Create solid fog that deals cold damage.

Devour Magic: Use targeted greater dispel innate with a touch and gain temporary hit points based on the level of the spell successfully dispelled.

Draconic Toughness: Gain temporary hit points equal to your level.

Terrifying Roar: Use fear as the spell; creatures shaken by effect can't attack you.

Wingstorm: Create powerful gusts of wind with your invocation-granted wings.

DARK INVOCATIONS

Draconic Flight, Greater: Sprout wings and fly at perfect maneuverability; gain overland speed.

Energy Immunity: Gain immunity to acid, cold, electricity, fire, or sonic damage.

Instill Vulnerability: Make target creature vulnerable to specified energy type.

Perilous Veil: Use veil as the spell; anyone succeeding on Will save to negate the illusion takes damage.

PLAYING A DRAGONFIRE ADEPT

You are a student of what is arguably the oldest and most powerful force any mortal can manipulate—the fiery breath of dragons.

Remember the nobility and grace of the forces you seek to understand, and act in all ways as you would expect a dragon to act.

You are fierce as a friend, terrible as a foe, and confident in all actions.

You see the value of treasure, but refuse to be defined or slowed down by what you own.

The only improvement worth your time is self-improvement, and you take any opportunity to test yourself against the challenges of the world.

You are steadfast in your goals, never allowing your quest for dragonlike powers to eclipse what you want to do with those powers.

Your goals are both simple and grand, requiring years or even a lifetime of work—eliminating one entire race of foes, ruling your own kingdom, founding your own school or community, righting an ancient wrong, being acknowledged by true dragons as one of their kind, and so on.

Nothing less is worthy of your time.

RELIGION

Most likely, you don't pay much attention to religion, focusing more on dragons than deities.

If you do have religious tendencies, you're drawn to the same gods as sorcerers: Wee Jas, Vecna, and Boccob.

Dragon deities, including Bahamut and Tiamat, are also popular choices, and you're willing to worship them even in lands where few others do so.

OTHER CLASSES

You value study, discipline, and raw power.

You get along well with spellcasters of all kinds, especially bards and druids, whom you see as delving into the essence of music or nature much as you delve into the essence of breath weapons.

You're similarly impressed with the skill shown by monks and fighters, who have devoted themselves to mastering styles of combat and self-improvement.

In fact, you're tolerant of all classes, as long as members of those classes show you respect and have compatible alignments.

COMBAT

You are best served by hitting your foes first and keeping your distance from them.

More resilient than a sorcerer, you still lack the defensive power of spellcasters or the armor of fighters, making you vulnerable (especially in melee).

However, you need not move close to a foe to deal damage, and you can often catch multiple targets in a breath weapon attack.

You are a heavy hitter in your party, but you depend on allies to keep foes from closing with you or focusing on you with ranged attacks.

As you advance, you are well served to invest in breath effects and invocations that have an effect other than dealing damage.

If you can't drop a foe in one or two attacks, you can use Sickening Breath, Slow Breath, the frightful presence invocation, or the like to make your opponent less dangerous in a prolonged fight.

ADVANCEMENT

You have spent your life trying to learn the secrets of a race older and more powerful than your own.

This interest in dragons is more than academic—it has been the motivating force for years of difficult study, practice, and experimentation.

Perhaps a dragon's breath weapon once destroyed your home or killed a loved one, and you vowed to gain control of the power that ruined your life.

Or perhaps a good dragon used its breath weapon to eliminate an entire horde that otherwise would have raided your homeland.

Whatever the case, since the day you first set foot on this path, you've worked to master a magic that is more primal than spells and more likely to provide defense than training with shields and armor.

The invocations you choose strongly shape your abilities. You are heavily invested in combat prowess as a result of the confrontational nature of breath weapons, but you have some flexibility in how you develop your power.

If you choose only offensive invocations, you will have few defenses and limited versatility beyond combat, but you'll be devastating even in situations when your breath weapon is not a strong tactical choice.

If you focus on other invocations, you will have more options outside a fight, but you might have only area attacks that could accidentally hurt a friend, or you might lack the elemental damage type needed to harm a particular foe.

HUMAN DRAGONFIRE ADEPT STARTING PACKAGE

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8, crit ×2, 6 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning and piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20 ×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Appraise	4	Int	—
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (nature)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (the planes)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (religion)	4	Int	—
Spot	4	Wis	—

Feat: Ability Focus (breath weapon).

Bonus Feats: Dragontouched (class), Improved Initiative (race).

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel, quiver with 20 bolts, hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

DRAGONFIRE ADEPTS IN THE WORLD

"Tatiana is effective, devoted, and loyal, but she's disturbing.

Dedicating yourself wholeheartedly to becoming something better, that I understand.

Dedicating yourself to becoming something inhuman—that I don't."

—Ember, human monk

Dragonfire adepts allow players to take the roles of dragons without eclipsing other characters.

A dragonfire adept can serve as a wise sage, a heavy-hitting source of mystic damage, or a crafty ally who confuses and weakens foes with invocations and breath effects.

Though its primary abilities are based on familiar game mechanics, this class gives players new options without making other classes obsolete.

It also brings dragons to the fore in a campaign, which gives players and Dungeon Masters alike new opportunities.

DAILY LIFE

Dragonfire adepts divide their time between practicing the power of their breath weapon, undertaking study of their arcane invocations, and working to build a strong base of allies and friends.

Good-aligned dragonfire adepts defend the weak and frightened, bringing the power of dragons to the aid of those in need.

Evil dragonfire adepts chase after more treasure and more power, not caring who they harm in the process.

Dragonfire adepts of all alignments remain alert for new sources of draconic lore and investigate likely leads or promising instructors.

NOTABLES

Dragonfire adepts know they are constantly struggling to become more like a race other than their own, and they revere figures in history who accomplished this to an amazing degree.

Among these notables, dragonfire adepts most commonly speak of Gannon Darkheart and Vorelei Frilltips. Both rose to master the draconic arts so perfectly that they were accepted by true dragons as equals, though not without trials and setbacks.

Gannon was a human of draconic heritage, the blood of black dragons having mixed into his family generations earlier.

Though born into the noble life, his avarice and wild temper made him an outcast, and he sought to become more dragonlike to punish his community for spurning him.

He had no concern for good or evil and willingly allied with any creature that could help him accomplish his goal. Though not actively evil, Gannon could not be trusted to keep his word or honor any deal or agreement he struck. He focused on the most damaging invocations and breath effects, charging heedlessly into battle under the assumption that he could kill any foe before it had a chance to seriously harm him.

Gannon earned his place beside true dragons after defeating the gold dragon Aghuty in single combat and taking its lair as his own.

He established a small kingdom from Aghuty's tower, slowly changing the surrounding territory into a dread marsh.

By contrast, Vorelei Frilltips began life poor and homeless on the streets of a large elf city, but she had an innate sense of fair play and concern for those in trouble.

Her bravery drew the attention of Gaulirden, a silver dragon living incognito in the city.

Gaulirden took her under his wing and raised her with his older children.

Constantly surrounded by dragons.

Vorelei learned their ways and assumed their powers as a means of helping the less fortunate.

She was responsible for destroying the Circle of Fire, a vile school for evil wizards, and she gave her life defending a town from a blackguard's army long enough for the innocent to escape.

After she fell, a council of good dragons buried her as one of their own, granting her in death an honor she never asked for in life.

If dragonfire adepts are a new element of your campaign, the stories of these notables might refer to legends from the ancient past or tales of dragonfire adepts on other worlds. They could also exist as allegories—stories of fictional figures that all dragonfire adepts use to explore their philosophies and beliefs.

NPC REACTIONS

The reactions dragonfire adepts receive from communities are directly tied to how those cultures regard dragons and those who wish to emulate them.

Residents who have suffered under the ravages of evil dragons are often fearful of—or hostile to—anyone who walks into town and lights a fireplace with a breath weapon, no matter her alignment.

In places where dragons are seen as defenders, or at least neutral sages, dragonfire adepts are more likely to be received as great manipulators of magic similar to sorcerers. Kingdoms in which dragonfire adepts are common are often more savvy in their dealings with the class.

Races: Dwarves are extremely suspicious of dragonfire adepts, viewing them as two-legged versions of the greedy, treasure-loving monsters that often raid their settlements. They are especially doubtful of dwarf dragonfire adepts, who are seen as traitors to their own race.

Other Classes: Sorcerers are drawn strongly to dragonfire adepts because the two classes share a primal link to dragonkind.

Monks, however, are often puzzled, branding dragonfire adepts as fools who seek to become something that is at best freakish and at worst monstrous.

DRAGONFIRE ADEPT LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana) can research dragonfire adepts to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: Dragonfire adepts are manipulators of arcane power who focus on breath weapon abilities.

DC 15: Dragonfire adepts access draconic magic not through the mystic spells of sorcerers but through invocations that give them dragonlike power.

Despite this strong connection to magic, they are not spellcasters.

DC 20: Dragonfire adepts can do things with breath weapons that even dragons can't match, allowing them to harm, hamper, or demoralize foes with a range of line and cone effects.

DRAGONFIRE ADEPTS IN THE GAME

As bottomless sources of arcane damage, dragonfire adepts serve roles similar to those of sorcerers and fighters, though they duplicate the abilities of neither.

They also contribute to overall party support, as do bards and clerics, though this is not their primary role.

The class should suit players who dislike the bookkeeping that comes with spellcasters but still want to experiment with arcane options and work with other characters to bring down particularly formidable foes.

Though the dragonfire adept class is not more powerful than other standard classes, it allows characters to forge a close connection to one of the most popular elements of the game—dragons.

Even if a dragonfire adept never faces other draconic foes, the player gets to call on dragonlike abilities often enough to feel important and special.

The DM should make sure that NPCs occasionally react to a character who commands the breath weapon of a dragon with the respect and awe the player is likely to expect.

Generally, dragonfire adepts act similarly to dragons of the same alignment, but they often display the concerns and biases of their own race as well.

An elf dragonfire adept can be found defending the forest home of his ancestors, or a half-orc dragonfire adept leading a raiding party into human territories.

Rather than devote their lives purely to the draconic, they add their desire to prove their dragonlike nature on top of more typical concerns.

ADAPTATION

With some work, it's possible to link dragonfire adepts to other powerful mythic creatures instead.

Any beast with a breath weapon and a tie to arcane magic can replace the dragon, allowing for winter wolf adepts or similar variants.

The class can also be adapted to elemental powers, making them closely related to genies or elemental outsiders.

TABLE 2-1: THE DRAGONFIRE ADEPT

HIT DIE: d8

Level	Base				Special	Draconic Invocations Known
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Breath weapon 1d6, Dragontouched, least invocations	1
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Breath effect, scales +2	1
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Breath weapon 2d6	2
4th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Dragonkin	2
5th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Breath weapon 3d6, breath effect	2
6th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Damage reduction 2/magic, lesser invocations	3
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Breath weapon 4d6	3
8th	+4	+6	+2	+6	Scales +3	4
9th	+4	+6	+3	+6	Breath weapon 5d6	4
10th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Breath weapon range doubles, breath effect	4
11th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Breath weapon 6d6, greater invocations	5
12th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Breath effect	5
13th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Scales +4	6
14th	+7/+2	+9	+4	+9	Breath weapon 7d6	6
15th	+7/+2	+9	+5	+9	Breath effect	6
16th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	Damage reduction 5/magic, dark invocations	7
17th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	Breath weapon 8d6	7
18th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Scales +5	8
19th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Immunities	8
20th	+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Breath weapon 9d6, breath effect	8

DRAGONFIRE ADEPTS AND PRESTIGE CLASSES

Dragonfire adepts benefit in a specific way from prestige classes that have a level advancement benefit of "+1 level of existing arcane spellcasting class" or "+1 level of existing spellcasting class." A dragonfire adept taking levels in such a prestige class does not gain any other benefits of that level increase, but she does gain an increased caster level when using her invocations and increased damage with her breath weapon. Levels of prestige classes that provide +1 level of spellcasting effectively stack with the dragonfire adept's level to determine her breath weapon damage and save DC. She also gains new invocations at each prestige class level as though she had risen a level in the dragonfire adept class.

A dragonfire adept cannot qualify for prestige classes (or other game options) with spellcasting level requirements, because she never actually learns to cast spells. However, prestige classes with caster level requirements are allowed—her caster level for her invocations fulfills this requirement. Her spell-like abilities do meet requirements for specific spell knowledge if they mimic the required spell.

DUNGEON MASTER'S GUIDE 3.0 (3.0)

ADEPT

Some tribal societies or less sophisticated regions don't have the resources to train wizards and clerics. Reflecting a lesser knowledge of magic yet an intriguing combination of arcane and divine skills, the adept serves these cultures as both wise woman (or holy man) and mystical defender.

Adepts can be found in isolated human, elf, dwarf, gnome, and halfling communities but are most prevalent among more bestial humanoid and giant species such as orcs, goblins, gnolls, bugbears, and ogres.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The adept's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), Spellcraft (Int), and Wilderness Lore (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the adept NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Adepts are skilled with all simple weapons.

Adepts are not proficient with any type of armor nor with shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Spells: An adept casts divine spells.

She is limited to a certain number of spells of each spell level per day, according to her class level.

Like a cleric, an adept may prepare and cast any spell on the adept list, provided she can cast spells of that level.

Like a cleric, she prepares her spells ahead of time each day (see page 156 in Chapter 10: Magic in the Player's Handbook).

The DC for a saving throw against an adept's spell is $10 + \text{spell level} + \text{the adept's Wisdom modifier}$.

Adepts, unlike wizards, do not acquire their spells from books or scrolls, nor prepare them through study. Instead, they meditate or pray for their spells, receiving them as divine inspiration or through their own strength of faith.

Each adept must choose a time each day at which she must spend an hour in quiet contemplation or supplication to regain her daily allotment of spells.

Time spent resting has no effect on whether an adept can prepare spells.

When the adept gets 0 spells of a given level (see Table 2-17: The Adept), she gets only bonus spells for that spell slot. An adept without a bonus spell for that level cannot yet cast a spell of that level.

Bonus spells are based on Wisdom.

Each adept has a particular holy symbol (as a divine focus) depending on the adept's magical tradition.

Familiar: At 2nd level, an adept can call a familiar, just like a sorcerer or wizard can.

See the section on familiars in the Player's Handbook (page 51) for more information.

STARTING GEAR

2d4x10 gp worth of equipment.

ADEPT SPELL LIST

Adepts choose their spells from the following list:

0 level—create water, cure minor wounds, detect magic, ghost sound, guidance, light, mending, purify food and drink, read magic.

1st level—bless, burning hands, cause fear, command, comprehend languages, cure light wounds, detect chaos, detect evil, detect good, detect law, endure elements, obscuring mist, protection from chaos, protection from evil, protection from good, protection from law, sleep.

2nd level—aid, animal trance, bull's strength, cat's grace, cure moderate wounds, darkness, delay poison, endurance, invisibility, mirror image, resist elements, see invisibility, web.

3rd level—animate dead, bestow curse, contagion, continual flame, cure serious wounds, daylight, deeper darkness, lightning bolt, neutralize poison, remove curse, remove disease, tongues.

4th.

level—cure critical wounds, minor creation, polymorph other, polymorph self, restoration, stonewall, wall of fire.

5th level—break enchantment, commune, heal, major creation, raise dead, true seeing, wall of stone.

TABLE 2-17: THE ADEPT

NPC	Base	Fort	Ref	Will
Level	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12

ARISTOCRAT

Aristocrats are usually educated, wealthy individuals born into high position.

Aristocrats are not only the well-born, but also the wealthy or politically influential people in the world.

They are given the freedom to train in the fields of their choice, for the most part, and to travel widely.

With access to all the best goods and opportunities, many aristocrats become formidable individuals.

Some even go on adventures with fighters, wizards, and other classes, although usually such activities are nothing more than a lark.

The aristocrat might offer potential as a PC class.

They have an impressive selection of skills and respectable combat training.

Being an aristocrat, however, isn't so much a choice as a position you're born into.

Characters cannot take aristocrat as a multiclass unless aristocrat is the class chosen first.

Special	Spells per Day
	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
	3	1	—	—	—	—
Summon familiar	3	1	—	—	—	—
	3	2	—	—	—	—
	3	2	0	—	—	—
	3	2	1	—	—	—
	3	2	1	—	—	—
	3	3	2	—	—	—
	3	3	2	0	—	—
	3	3	2	1	—	—
	3	3	2	1	—	—
	3	3	3	2	—	—
	3	3	3	2	0	—
	3	3	3	2	1	—
	3	3	3	2	1	—
	3	3	3	3	2	—
	3	3	3	3	2	0
	3	3	3	3	2	1
	3	3	3	3	2	1
	3	3	3	3	3	2
	3	3	3	3	3	2

Mostly, the DM should reserve the courtiers.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The aristocrat's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Bluff (Cha), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Innuendo (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (all skills taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Read Lips (Int, exclusive skill), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language, Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Wilderness Lore (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the aristocrat NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The aristocrat is proficient in the use of all simple and martial weapons and with all types of armor and shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

STARTING GEAR

6d8×10 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 2-18: THE ARISTOCRAT

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12

COMMONER

The common folk farm the fields, staff the shops, build the homes, and produce (and transport) the goods in the world around the adventurers.

Commoners usually have no desire to live the wandering, dangerous life of an adventurer and possess none of the skills needed to undertake the challenges adventurers must face.

Commoners are skilled in their own vocations and make up the majority of the population.

Player characters should not be commoners, since commoners make poor adventurers.

Instead, the commoner class should be reserved for everyone who does not qualify for any other class.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The commoner's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Profession (Int), Ride (Dex), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the commoner NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The commoner is proficient with one simple weapon.

He is not proficient with weapons, armor, or shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

STARTING GEAR

5d4 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 2-19: THE COMMONER

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+0
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+0
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+1
4th	+2	+1	+1	+1
5th	+2	+1	+1	+1
6th	+3	+2	+2	+2
7th	+3	+2	+2	+2
8th	+4	+2	+2	+2
9th	+4	+3	+3	+3
10th	+5	+3	+3	+3
11th	+5	+3	+3	+3
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+4
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+4
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+4
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+5
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+5
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+5
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+6
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+6
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+6

EXPERT

Experts operate as craftsfolk and professionals in the world. They normally do not have the inclination or training to be adventurers, but they are capable in their own field.

The skilled blacksmith, the astute barrister, the canny merchant, the educated sage, and the master shipwright are all experts.

Potentially, the expert could make a PC-worthy class choice, but only for those players willing to create a character focused in something other than traditional adventuring careers.

Experts have a vast number of skills.

Most towns and communities have at least a few experts in various fields.

DMs should use the expert class for NPCs such as elite craftsfolk, experienced merchants, seasoned guides, wily sailors, learned sages, and other highly skilled professions. Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The expert can choose any ten skills to be class skills.

One or two of these skills can be skills exclusive to some other class.

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(6 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $6 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the expert NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The expert is proficient in the use of all simple weapons and with light armor but not shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

STARTING GEAR

3d4×10 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 2-20: THE EXPERT

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12

WARRIOR

The warrior is a strong, stout combatant without the specialized training and finesse of a fighter, the survival and outdoor skills of the barbarian or ranger, or the sophistication and religious focus of a paladin.

The warrior is a straightforward and unsubtle opponent in a fight, but not an inconsiderable one.

Warriors are not as good as fighters, and thus PCs should be encouraged to avoid this class in favor of the standard combat-oriented ones given in the Player's Handbook.

Representing experience in fighting and related areas but not sophisticated training, warriors are common among the humanoids and giants (orcs, ogres, and so forth).

You should also use the warrior class for soldiers (although perhaps not for commanders or career soldiers), guards, local thugs, toughs, bullies, and even regular people who have learned to defend their homes with some ability.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The warrior's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Ride (Dex), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the warrior NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The warrior is proficient in the use of all simple and martial weapons and all armor and shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble, and that carrying heavy gear imposes a check penalty on Swim checks.

STARTING GEAR

3d4×10 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 2-21: THE WARRIOR

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6

DUNGEON MASTER'S GUIDE 1 3.5 (3.5)

ADEPT

Some tribal societies or less sophisticated regions don't have the resources to train wizards and clerics.

Reflecting a lesser knowledge of magic yet an intriguing combination of arcane and divine skills, the adept serves these cultures as both wise woman (or holy man) and mystical defender.

Adepts can be found in isolated human, elf, dwarf, gnome, and halfling communities but are most prevalent among more bestial humanoid and giant species such as orcs, goblins, gnolls, bugbears, and ogres.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The adept's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Survival (Wis). See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the adept NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Adepts are skilled with all simple weapons.

Adepts are not proficient with any type of armor nor with shields.

Spells: An adept casts divine spells (the same type of spells available to the cleric, druid, paladin, and ranger), which are drawn from the adept spell list (see below).

Like a cleric, an adept must choose and prepare her spells in advance.

Unlike a cleric, an adept cannot spontaneously cast cure or inflict spells.

To prepare or cast a spell, an adept must have a Wisdom score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Wis 10 for 0-level spells, Wis 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against an adept's spell is 10 + the spell level + the adept's Wisdom modifier.

Adepts, unlike wizards, do not acquire their spells from books or scrolls, nor do they prepare them through study.

Instead, they meditate or pray for their spells, receiving them as divine inspiration or through their own strength of faith.

Each adept must choose a time each day at which she must spend an hour in quiet contemplation or supplication to regain her daily allotment of spells.

Time spent resting has no effect on whether an adept can prepare spells.

Like other spellcasters, an adept can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 4-2: The Adept.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

When Table 4-2 indicates that the adept gets 0 spells per day of a given spell level (for instance, 0 2nd-level spells for a 4th-level adept), she gains only the bonus spells she would be entitled to based on her Wisdom score for that spell level.

Each adept has a particular holy symbol (as a divine focus) depending on the adept's magical tradition.

Summon Familiar: At 2nd level, an adept can call a familiar, just as a sorcerer or wizard can.

See the sidebar on page 52 of the Player's Handbook for more information.

STARTING GEAR

2d4×10 gp worth of equipment.

ADEPT SPELL LIST

Adepts choose their spells from the following list.

0 Level: create water, cure minor wounds, detect magic, ghost sound, guidance, light, mending, purify food and drink, read magic, touch of fatigue.

1st Level: bless, burning hands, cause fear, command, comprehend languages, cure light wounds, detect chaos, detect evil, detect good, detect law, endure elements, obscuring mist, protection from chaos, protection from evil, protection from good, protection from law, sleep.

2nd Level: aid, animal trance, bear's endurance, bull's strength, cat's grace, cure moderate wounds, darkness, delay poison, invisibility, mirror image, resist energy, scorching ray, see invisibility, web.

3rd Level: animate dead, bestow curse, contagion, continual flame, cure serious wounds, daylight, deeper darkness, lightning bolt, neutralize poison, remove curse, remove disease, tongues.

4th Level: cure critical wounds, minor creation, polymorph, restoration, stonkskin, wall of fire.

5th Level: baleful polymorph, break enchantment, commune, heal, major creation, raise dead, true seeing, wall of stone.

TABLE 4-2: THE ADEPT

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2		3	1	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Summon familiar	3	1	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3		3	2	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4		3	2	0	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4		3	2	1	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5		3	2	1	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5		3	3	2	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6		3	3	2	0	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6		3	3	2	1	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7		3	3	2	1	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7		3	3	3	2	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		3	3	3	2	0	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		3	3	3	2	1	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9		3	3	3	2	1	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9		3	3	3	3	2	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		3	3	3	3	2	0
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		3	3	3	3	2	1
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		3	3	3	3	2	1
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		3	3	3	3	3	2
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12		3	3	3	3	3	2

ARISTOCRAT

Aristocrats are usually educated, wealthy individuals who were born into high position.

Aristocrats are the wealthy or politically influential people in the world.

They are given the freedom to train in the fields of their choice, for the most part, and often travel widely.

With access to all the best goods and opportunities, many aristocrats become formidable individuals.

Some even go on adventures with fighters, wizards, and members of other classes, although usually such activities are nothing more than a lark.

The aristocrat might work as a PC class, since it has an impressive selection of skills and respectable combat training.

Being an aristocrat, however, isn't so much a choice as a position you're born into.

An aristocrat cannot be a multiclass character unless his or her first level is in the aristocrat class.

Mostly, you should reserve the aristocrat class for rulers, their families, and their courtiers.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The aristocrat's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Bluff (Cha), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (all skills taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language, Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Survival (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the aristocrat NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The aristocrat is proficient in the use of all simple and martial weapons and with all types of armor and shields.

STARTING GEAR

6d8x10 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 4-3: THE ARISTOCRAT

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12

COMMONER

The common folk farm the fields, staff the shops, build the homes, and produce the goods in the world around the adventurers.

Commoners usually have no desire to live the dangerous life of an adventurer and none of the skills needed to undertake the challenges adventurers must face.

Commoners are skilled in their own vocations and make up the majority of the population.

Commoners make poor adventurers.

This class should be reserved for everyone who does not qualify for any other class.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The commoner's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the commoner NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The commoner is proficient with one simple weapon.

He is not proficient with any other weapons, nor is he proficient with any type of armor or shields.

STARTING GEAR

5d4 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 4-4: THE COMMONER

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+0
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+0
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+1
4th	+2	+1	+1	+1
5th	+2	+1	+1	+1
6th	+3	+2	+2	+2
7th	+3	+2	+2	+2
8th	+4	+2	+2	+2
9th	+4	+3	+3	+3
10th	+5	+3	+3	+3
11th	+5	+3	+3	+3
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+4
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+4
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+4
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+5
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+5
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+5
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+6
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+6
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+6

EXPERT

Experts operate as craftsmen and professionals in the world. They normally do not have the inclination or training to be adventurers, but they are capable in their own field.

The skilled blacksmith, the astute barrister, the canny merchant, the educated sage, and the master shipwright are all experts.

The expert could make a PC-worthy class choice, but only for those players willing to create a character focused on something other than a traditional adventuring career.

Experts have a vast range of skills.

Most towns and communities have at least a few experts in various fields.

DMs should use the expert class for NPCs such as elite craftsmen, experienced merchants, seasoned guides, and other highly skilled professionals.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The expert can choose any ten skills to be class skills. See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(6 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $6 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the expert NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The expert is proficient in the use of all simple weapons and with light armor but not shields.

STARTING GEAR

3d4×10 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 4-5: THE EXPERT

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12

WARRIOR

The warrior is a strong, stout combatant without the specialized training and finesse of a fighter, the survival and outdoor skills of the barbarian or ranger, or the sophistication and religious focus of a paladin.

The warrior is a straightforward and unsubtle opponent in a fight, but a respectable one.

Warriors are not as good as fighters, and thus PCs should be encouraged to avoid this class in favor of the standard combat-oriented ones given in the Player's Handbook.

Representing experience in fighting and related areas but not sophisticated training, warriors are common among the humanoids and giants (orcs, ogres, and so forth).

You can also use the warrior class for soldiers (although perhaps not for commanders or career soldiers), guards, local thugs, toughs, bullies, and even regular people who have learned to defend their homes with some ability.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The warrior's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Ride (Dex), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following is a class feature of the warrior NPC class.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The warrior is proficient in the use of all simple and martial weapons and all armor and shields.

STARTING GEAR

3d4×10 gp worth of equipment.

TABLE 4-6: THE WARRIOR

NPC Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6

DUNGEONSCAPE (3.5)

FACTOTUM

"If anyone can do it, I can do it."

—Alerach Longseeker, half-elf factotum

It is foolhardy to explore a dungeon alone.

Those who attempt to do so quickly find that they lack the skills needed to get the job done.

Sometimes, this can happen in larger parties as well.

Enter the factotum, a new standard class, capable of mimicking the abilities of others and filling in when the need is greatest.

After a lifetime of work, few can claim even a fraction of the versatility that the factotum displays every day.

Skilled in nearly every art, factotums draw upon their lore to master almost any trade or ability for a brief period of time before other pursuits draw their attention.

Whereas bards use their general knowledge to aid others, factotums focus their abilities solely upon themselves.

Constantly on the hunt for new abilities and tricks, factotums eventually find the right tool to overcome practically any problem.

However, a factotum cannot go it alone.

He relies on sudden flashes of insight gleaned from his studies and the broad array of his experiences.

He might not be the best fighter or the mightiest spellcaster in a group, but when the party needs a stout warrior or an arcane spell, the factotum can provide it.

If you like having a trick up your sleeve, or if you want to have an answer to almost any problem, then the factotum is the class for you.

Your intellect bolsters your fighting ability, and your basic understanding of divine magic and arcane spells allows you to manipulate magical energy.

MAKING A FACTOTUM

As a factotum, you are a jack of all trades.

For short periods of time, you can stand in for almost any other member of the party.

Your intellect, training, and experiences allow you to bolster your efforts in almost any situation.

But your magical abilities are at best limited.

You can master potent spells, but your lack of formal training makes it difficult for you to use them more than once each day.

Furthermore, your understanding of magic is broad rather than deep.

Abilities: Intelligence is a factotum's most important ability.

Almost everything you do relies upon it.

You master so many areas of study because you have the keen mind needed to learn through observation and experience, rather than formal study.

When you fight, use a skill, or cast a spell, your Intelligence plays a role in your success.

Of course, Dexterity and Strength are useful, too.

When you cannot provide a cunning solution to a problem, you can heft an axe or fire a bow as well as a cleric.

Races: Factotums are commonly humans, halflings, and gnomes.

Those races are a natural fit because of their inquisitive nature, personal drive, and clever solutions to tough problems.

Longer-lived races, such as dwarves and elves, find a factotum's fickle nature to be a poor imitation of the true mastery that can be attained only through centuries of life. Due to their low Intelligence, half-orcs find the factotum class difficult to master, but some manage to make a name for themselves.

Alignment: Factotums can be of any alignment.

Some use their abilities for good, helping people in need and learning from the attendant challenges.

Other factotums view the world as a well that is rightfully theirs, and they take what they like from it.

Relying upon no one but themselves, these evil factotums steal and cheat to gain power and use their abilities to further their own ends.

The majority of factotums fall somewhere between these extremes.

They appreciate a stable, benevolent society, but they are too absorbed in travel and study to care much about others.

Factotums usually favor law over chaos; they love to find structure and insight in the topics they study.

Chaotic factotums are vagabonds and wanderers who experience life as it comes, believing that whatever topics happen to cross their paths are as good as any other.

Starting Gold: 6d4×10 gp (150 gp).

Starting Age: As wizard.

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level, × 4 at 1st level): All.

Factotums have a huge repository of knowledge, allowing them to treat any skill as a class skill.

CLASS FEATURES

You can fill almost any role in the party, but you typically do so only on a temporary basis.

If Jozan the cleric suffers a grievous injury, you can provide some healing until he recovers.

If mighty Tordek is paralyzed, you can draw your weapon and hold the line for a few rounds.

When a troll lurches into view, you can cast an acid spell if Mialee did not prepare one.

However, you can pull off such tricks only for a limited time each day.

The key to succeeding as a factotum lies in identifying what the group needs at a given moment and filling that need.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A factotum is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with light armor and shields (except tower shields).

Because he uses spells as if they were spell-like abilities, a factotum can wear armor without incurring the normal arcane spell failure chance.

A multiclass factotum still incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance for arcane spells received from other classes.

Inspiration: The factotum is a dabbler, a professional explorer who plunders a wide variety of fields to find the tools he needs to survive.

He reads through tomes of arcane magic to gain a basic understanding of spells.

He offers prayers to a variety of deities to gain their blessings.

He observes warrior stances and exercises to understand the art of fighting.

But while a factotum learns many paths, he masters none of them.

Rather than train in a given field, he masters all the basics and manages to pull out something useful when the situation is desperate enough.

To represent this seemingly random body of knowledge, a factotum gains inspiration points that he can spend to activate his abilities.

At the beginning of each encounter, he gains a number of inspiration points determined by his level (see Table 1-1).

Cunning Insight (Ex): Before making an attack roll, damage roll, or saving throw, you can spend 1 inspiration point to gain a competence bonus on the roll equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Cunning insight does not require an action, and you can use it as often as you wish during your turn or others' turns—provided that you have the inspiration points to spend.

Because this ability provides a competence bonus, it does not stack with itself.

Cunning Knowledge (Ex): When making a check involving a skill in which you have at least 1 rank, you can spend 1 inspiration point to gain a bonus on the check equal to your factotum level.

You can use this ability once per day for a particular skill.

For example, if you use cunning knowledge to gain a bonus on a Hide check, you cannot use the ability to improve other Hide checks for the rest of the day, though you can use it on different skills.

Trapfinding (Ex): You can use the Search skill to locate traps with a DC higher than 20, and you can use Disable Device to bypass a trap or disarm magic traps.

See the rogue class feature (PH 50).

Arcane Dilettante (Sp): At 2nd level, you acquire a vague understanding of magic.

You know that with a few weird hand gestures and an array of grunts and bizarre words, you can conjure up something that looks like a spell.

By spending 1 inspiration point, you can mimic a spell as a spell-like ability.

At the start of each day, choose a number of spells from the sorcerer/wizard spell list based on your factotum level.

You can choose one spell at 2nd level, and you gain additional spells as shown on Table 1-1. The maximum level of spell you can use, according to your class level, is also shown on the table. You can select any sorcerer/wizard spell up to that level, but you can prepare only one spell of your maximum level. Your caster level equals your level in this character class. The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against your spell is 10 + the spell level + your Int modifier. Once you have used a spell, you cannot use it again until you have rested for 8 hours. After resting for this time, you choose new spells and lose any unused spells from the previous day, though you can select the same spell on consecutive days. You cannot prepare the same spell multiple times to use it more than once during the same day. You cannot use spells that require an XP cost. You must otherwise provide the necessary material components as normal. If you wish to enhance a spell with a metamagic feat, you must apply the feat when you prepare the spell. In addition, you must be capable of using a spell of the modified spell's level.

Brains over Brawn (Ex): At 3rd level, you gain your Intelligence bonus as a modifier on Strength checks, Dexterity checks, and checks involving skills based on Strength or Dexterity, such as Hide, Climb, and Jump.

Cunning Defense (Ex): You study your opponents and learn to anticipate their attacks. Starting at 3rd level, you can spend 1 inspiration point to gain your Intelligence bonus as a dodge bonus to Armor Class against one opponent for 1 round. Using this ability is a free action. You gain this benefit even while wearing medium or heavy armor. You can use this ability multiple times to gain a bonus against different opponents, but you cannot use it more than once during your turn against a single foe.

Cunning Strike (Ex): With a quick study of a vulnerable opponent's defenses, you can spot the precise area you need to hit to score a telling blow. Starting at 4th level, you can spend 1 inspiration point to gain 1d6 points of sneak attack damage. You must spend the inspiration point to activate this ability before making the attack roll. When determining if you can use sneak attack against a target that has uncanny dodge, use your factotum level as your rogue level.

Opportunistic Piety (Su): Factotums are legendary for the number of holy symbols, lucky trinkets, and blessed items they keep handy. As the saying goes, there are no atheists in the dungeon. Starting at 5th level, you can spend 1 inspiration point to channel divine energy as a standard action. You can use this energy to heal injuries, harm undead, or turn undead. At 5th level, you can use this ability a number of times per day equal to 3 + your Wisdom bonus (if any). You gain one extra daily use of this ability at 10th level, 15th level, and 20th level. You cannot use opportunistic piety if you have exhausted your daily uses, even if you have inspiration points left to spend.

If you use this ability to heal injuries, you channel positive energy to heal a living creature of a number of points of damage equal to twice your factotum level + your Int modifier. The energy will also deal the same amount of damage to undead targets. If you use this ability to turn undead, you act as a cleric of a level equal to your factotum level. No matter what your alignment, you cannot control undead—your understanding of divine magic is too rudimentary.

Cunning Surge (Ex): Starting at 8th level, you learn to push yourself when needed. By spending 3 inspiration points, you can take an extra standard action during your turn.

Cunning Breach (Su): Starting at 11th level, your broad knowledge allows you to study an opponent and gain a brief flash of insight to breach her defenses. By spending 2 inspiration points as a free action, you can ignore a single target's spell resistance and damage reduction for 1 round. The target automatically fails any spell resistance check that she attempts to avoid your spell.

Cunning Dodge (Ex): Starting at 13th level, your luck, reflexes, and intuition allow you to avoid an attack or spell that would otherwise defeat you. If you take damage that would reduce you to 0 or fewer hit points, you can spend 4 inspiration points as an immediate action to ignore the damage. You dodge out of the way, take cover from a spell, or otherwise escape. You can use this ability once per day.

Improved Cunning Defense (Ex): At 16th level, you gain your Intelligence bonus as a dodge bonus to Armor Class. You no longer need to spend an inspiration point to gain this benefit. Unlike the standard cunning defense ability, you do not gain this benefit when wearing medium or heavy armor.

Cunning Brilliance (Ex): At 19th level, you become the ultimate jack of all trades. Your sharp mind and keen sense of your surroundings allow you to duplicate almost any ability you witness. At the start of each day, choose three extraordinary class abilities. Each ability must be available to a standard character class at 15th level or lower, and must appear on the advancement table or in the text description for that class. By spending 4 inspiration points as a free action, you gain the benefits and drawbacks of one chosen ability for 1 minute. You use the ability as if your level in the relevant class equaled your factotum level. You can use each chosen class ability once per day. For example, if you use a monk's flurry of blows ability, you gain all the benefits and drawbacks described under Flurry of Blows (PH 40). You do not gain the benefits of unarmed strike, because that is a separate ability in the monk's class description.

PLAYING A FACTOTUM
Knowledge is everything, and applied knowledge is even better. You adventure out of a sense of curiosity, a desire to pierce the veil of ignorance that shrouds so much of the world.

If you hear rumors of an island with beaches of diamonds and mountains of gold, you want to find the island, determine its origin, and learn its secrets.

To other adventurers, the entrance to a dungeon is a gateway to treasure and power.

To you, it is a promise of secrets waiting in the dungeon's deepest levels.

Think of yourself as an adventuring scholar, an expert who has the right answer at the right time, a seeker who finds the truths hidden in the world.

You are the one who notices that an ogre has a long scar along its leg, allowing you to strike the creature where the old wound has not fully healed.

You are the one who read a book on the dark arts, allowing you to conjure the spell needed to banish an ice devil.

Other adventurers must prepare their abilities and hope they have the right tools to overcome a challenge.

You wait for difficulties to present themselves and then decide what talents to employ.

Versatility is the key to your success.

In some encounters, you draw your weapon and hold back the enemy.

In others, you slip around behind the foe to unleash a potent spell.

At other times, you scout ahead, uncover traps, and clear the way for your friends.

RELIGION

Most factotums worship a variety of deities and have holy symbols for every occasion.

A typical factotum might offer one prayer to Obad-Hai before venturing into the wilds and another to Moradin while traveling through an abandoned dwarf mine.

Factotums seek a higher understanding of the world than a single deity can offer.

Besides, they know enough about divine magic to leech energy from number of gods.

It pays to spread the prayers out.

If a factotum favors one deity, it is usually Boccob the god of magic and knowledge.

But few factotums are religious fanatics.

Instead, they see Boccob as the ideal manifestation of their talents, a cunning mastermind who has accumulated boundless knowledge.

A few factotums of non-evil alignment revere Vecna.

They see that dread deity as the keeper of knowledge and secrets, and they hope to uncover his most potent mysteries to better master the world.

While they might revile Vecna's methods, they respect the knowledge he keeps and the secrecy with which he protects it.

OTHER CLASSES

You work well with other classes whose role is clearly defined, such as fighters, barbarians, clerics, sorcerers, and wizards.

While you appreciate the dual roles of paladins, druids, bards, and rangers, you often feel frustration at their difficulty in identifying where their skills are needed most. You have the most in common with rogues and wizards, whose reliance on cunning and knowledge is similar to your own.

COMBAT

You are best suited to filling whatever role the party needs, so try not to spend your inspiration points too early in a battle.

If the fighter falls to a lucky attack, you will have to take his place and hold back the enemy.

If the wizard runs out of spells, your arcane talents will prove crucial.

Likewise, save your healing for a critical juncture or until the cleric is down or out of spells.

ADVANCEMENT

You have unmatched flexibility in building your talents. You can emphasize one ability or nurse a broad range of abilities.

In most cases, feats that consistently improve your talents are better than feats that function only in certain situations. For example, Weapon Focus improves all your attacks, whereas Power Attack provides more limited benefits.

When multiclassing or taking levels in a prestige class, find combinations that broaden your abilities or that increase your flexibility.

Bonus feats allow you to improve your combat prowess while retaining much of your flexibility.

If your feats make you a more competent warrior, you can spend inspiration points on spells rather than on improving your attack rolls and damage rolls.

The chameleon prestige class (Races of Destiny) deserves special mention.

This class allows you to change your focus on a daily basis, making it possible to switch from being a skilled warrior to being a potent spellcaster.

This prestige class is a great combination with the factotum class.

The chameleon's focus allows you to fill a single role well, and the factotum's inspiration points let you retain the flexibility to heal an ally, make a sneak attack, or deliver a decisive blow.

In many ways, chameleons are factotums who specialize in a few narrow fields.

STARTING PACKAGE

Human Factotum

Ability Scores: Str 12, Dex 14, Con 13, Int 15, Wis 10, Cha 8.

Skills: Concentration, Disable Device, Hide, Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Sense Motive, Spot.

Languages: Common, Giant, Goblin.

Feats: Point Blank Shot, Precise Shot.

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8/x2), shortbow (1d6/x3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather armor (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Thieves' tools, flask of acid, alchemist's fire, 26 gp.

FACTOTUMS IN THE WORLD

"If you can put up with his lectures on ancient architecture, there's no one else I'd want to take with me into the dungeons beneath Castle Greyhawk."

—Dread Delgath, adventuring wizard

The factotum class gives players a chance to be the archetypal jack of all trades.

Inspiration points allow a factotum to excel in a wide variety of situations because he decides which of his capabilities to bolster.

While other classes are locked into certain abilities, a factotum has unmatched flexibility.

DAILY LIFE

Factotums are curious, driven, and inquisitive.

They adventure not only for gold and glory, but also to uncover lost secrets and expand their lore.

They find almost any situation interesting, wanting to learn everything from the intricate social protocols of a royal court to the tactics used by rampaging goblins.

Many factotums become sages and loremasters when they retire.

They catalog the lore they uncovered and use it to advise others, particularly adventurers.

A retired factotum likely has an archive of maps and charts from his previous exploits, tools that can prove useful for the next generation of explorers.

NOTABLES

Factotums rise to become advisors, sages, and experts in a variety of subjects.

Alerach Longseeker, for example, is famous for crossing the Barrier Peaks, the Hellfurnaces, and the Yatil Mountains in a series of solo expeditions.

Rumors say that he owns the last surviving map of the location of a fabled dungeon of metal corridors high in the Barrier Peaks.

ORGANIZATIONS

Rather than create their own organizations, factotums tend to join groups founded and run by others.

Many thieves' guilds employ a few factotums to handle unexpected dangers on a heist.

Some factotums join formal adventuring guilds and companies to find ready allies to help them on their expeditions.

NPC REACTIONS

Most commoners have no idea what to make of a factotum's unpredictable skills and abilities.

Barbarians, druids, and other folk of the wilderness see factotums as overeducated and overly civilized, but an adventure with one in the wilds quickly dispels that notion. Most adventurers are happy to have a factotum in the party, especially on a dungeon expedition during which traveling back to civilization will be difficult, and determining what dangers lie ahead nearly impossible.

FACTOTUM LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (local) can research factotums to learn more about them.

When a character succeeds on a skill check, the following lore is revealed, including the information from lower DCs. DC 15: Factotums are sages and experts who master a variety of talents.

DC 20: Factotums draw on their training and intelligence to fight well, cast spells, and heal wounds, but they lack the formal training needed to do so consistently.

FACTOTUMS IN THE GAME

Factotums are the closest characters in the D&D game to professional adventurers.

Fighters serve as soldiers and mercenaries, wizards delve into the secrets of magic, clerics lead the worship of deities, and rogues beg, borrow, and steal.

Factotums, however, explore the world and uncover its secrets.

They usually gather in large numbers near well-known dungeons.

Many children who dream of gaining wealth and fame by looting tombs, braving the planes, and defeating powerful monsters grow up to become factotums.

In rare cases, factotums form professional adventuring unions and guilds, just like blacksmiths, bakers, and other artisans.

The typical D&D campaign world has plenty of dungeons and treasure to go around.

It makes sense that a class of professional adventurers would arise in time.

Factotums fill this role—they are the experts who cultivate all the skills needed to make it as adventurers.

ADAPTATION

The factotum is readily adaptable to most campaign worlds as a sage, an expert, or a jack of all trades.

Fantasy literature offers many examples of a hero who uses his experience and cunning to overcome obstacles.

He need not wear heavy armor, carry a sword, or cast a spell to make a name for himself.

A quick wit, a brave heart, and boundless energy are enough to best many challenges.

A factotum is similar to an everyman hero, an average person who uses his wits and bravery.

Good examples include wandering adventurers, rugged explorers, and cunning archaeologists.

The Indiana Jones movies provide a perfect example of a factotum.

Indiana Jones dodges traps, uses his scholarly knowledge to find hidden treasures, handles a whip and a gun, and throws a mean left hook.

In a D&D campaign, replace his gun with a basic understanding of magic, and you have a factotum.

TABLE 1-1: THE FACTOTUM

HIT DIE: D8

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Spell Level	Inspiration Points	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	—	2	Inspiration, cunning insight, cunning knowledge, trapfinding
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	0	3	Arcane dilettante (1 spell)
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	1	3	Brains over brawn, cunning defense
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	1	3	Arcane dilettante (2 spells), cunning strike
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	2	4	Opportunistic piety
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	2	4	—
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	2	4	Arcane dilettante (3 spells)
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+2	3	5	Cunning surge
9th	+6/+1	+3	+6	+3	3	5	Arcane dilettante (4 spells)
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+3	4	5	Opportunistic piety (+1 use)
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+3	4	6	Cunning breach
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	4	6	Arcane dilettante (5 spells)
13th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	5	6	Cunning dodge
14th	+10/+5	+4	+9	+4	5	7	Arcane dilettante (6 spells)
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+5	6	7	Opportunistic piety (+1 use)
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	6	7	Improved cunning defense
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	6	8	Arcane dilettante (7 spells)
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+6	7	8	—
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+6	7	8	Cunning brilliance
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+6	7	10	Arcane dilettante (8 spells), opportunistic piety (+1 use)

EXPANDED PSIONICS HANDBOOK (3.5)

PSION

The striking fist or flashing sword pales beside a psion's focused stare.

Psionic powers arise from a regimen of strict mental discipline developed over months and years of self-scrutiny and subconscious discovery.

Those who overcome their personal demons, fears, and other pitfalls of intense self-reflection learn to call upon an internal reservoir of psionic power.

Psions depend on a continual study of their own minds to discover an ever wider range of mental powers.

They meditate on memories and the nature of memory itself, debate with their own fragment personalities, and delve into the dark recesses of their minds' convoluted corridors.

"Know thyself" is not just a saying for a psion—it's the road to power.

Adventures: A psion adventures to stimulate his mind.

New experiences translate to new avenues of thought, and eventually to the discovery of previously latent abilities.

A psion's powers are innate but not effortlessly attained. Good psions seek what is best in the world and attempt to preserve those elements with their mastery of mental powers.

Evil psions seek to mold others to their own desires, whether using their powers openly or in secret.

Characteristics: The psion draws real power from his mind. His power is a logical expression of lore attained through ongoing self-study.

His aggressive powers do not freely scale as do the spells of arcane and divine casters, but he enjoys supreme flexibility in accessing those powers.

A psion must choose one discipline in which to focus, at the cost of losing access to the signature powers found in other disciplines—so in a sense the psion character class is six classes rather than one.

A shaper (a psion who has selected metacreativity as her discipline) is a very different character from a telepath (a psion whose discipline is telepathy).

Alignment: For a psion, psionics is a personal art.

Psions look always inward, so they tend slightly toward neutrality over both chaos and law, but being neutral is not a requirement.

Psions can be either good or evil.

Religion: Psions are not particularly drawn to any deity, due to their exceptional focus on their own personal potential.

Psions who do revere a deity do not conform to any general choice.

Background: Those destined to be psions show signs of mental powers from the time they are just a few years old, but manifestations become especially noticeable at puberty. Unexplained noises and lights, crockery flying through the air of its own accord, and the appearance of small items out of thin air are common occurrences.

Many who have the gift grow out of it, turning away from their potential.

However, a few embrace their newfound special powers.

Psions are often on their own, misunderstood and feared by friends and family.

Sometimes, psions find others with similar abilities and form informal networks, small societies, or even tiny communes populated with individuals who all possess some psionic ability.

Races: The inborn gift for psionics is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Of the races with a penchant for psionic ability (those described in Chapter 1 of this book), elans are most likely to take up the psion mantle.

Mind flayers are especially likely to become psions, since their abilities are actually components of a deeper psionic nature—they possess awesome psionic might even without taking levels in the psion class.

Other Classes: Psions enjoy the company of monks and psychic warriors, sharing those characters' dedication to self-mastery.

Psions sometimes get off on the wrong foot with members of spellcasting classes such as sorcerers and wizards, because some psions feel that magic is a crutch for the mind.

They are very suspicious of wilders, since the uncontained raw emotion of the wilder is anathema to the psion's disciplined path.

Role: A psion's powers make him a good addition to any party.

Psions take on differing roles within a party, based on the discipline each one selects.

For example, seers (specialists in clairsentience) serve to guide parties in difficult spots, while shapers (psions who have chosen metacreativity as their discipline) vastly upgrade the party's options in a fight.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Psions have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Intelligence determines how powerful a power a psion can manifest, how many powers he can manifest, and how hard those powers are to resist.

See Class Features, below.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The psion's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration* (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually)* (Int), Profession (Wis), and Psicraft* (Int).

In addition, a psion gains access to additional class skills based on his discipline:

Seer (Clairsentience): Gather Information (Cha), Listen (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

Shaper (Metacreativity): Bluff (Cha), Disguise (Cha), and Use Psionic Device* (Cha).

Kineticist (Psychokinesis): Autohypnosis* (Wis), Disable Device (Dex), and Intimidate (Cha).

Egoist (Psychometabolism): Autohypnosis* (Wis), Balance (Dex) and Heal (Wis).

Nomad (Psychoportation): Climb (Str), Jump (Str), Ride (Dex), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Telepath (Telepathy): Bluff (Cha), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), and Sense Motive (Wis).

* See new skills and expanded uses of existing skills in Chapter 3 of this book.

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for other skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the psion.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Psions are proficient with the club, dagger, heavy crossbow, light crossbow, quarterstaff, and shortspear.

They are not proficient with any type of armor or shield.

Armor does not, however, interfere with the manifestation of powers.

Power Points/Day: A psion's ability to manifest powers is limited by the power points he has available.

His base daily allotment of power points is given on Table 2-3: The Psion.

In addition, he receives bonus power points per day if he has a high Intelligence score (see Table 2-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Power Points).

His race may also provide bonus power points per day, as may certain feats and items.

Discipline: Every psion must decide at 1st level which psionic discipline he will specialize in.

Choosing a discipline provides a psion with access to the class skills associated with that discipline (see above), as well as the powers restricted to that discipline.

However, choosing a discipline also means that the psion cannot learn powers that are restricted to other disciplines.

He can't even use such powers by employing psionic items. (See Psionic Disciplines, below, for a brief description of each discipline.)

Chapter 5 of this book contains a list of powers available to all psions and lists of powers restricted to certain disciplines).

Powers Known: A psion begins play knowing three psion powers of your choice.

Each time he achieves a new level, he unlocks the knowledge of new powers.

Choose the powers known from the psion power list, or from the list of powers of your chosen discipline.

You cannot choose powers from disciplines other than your chosen discipline.

(Exception: The feats Expanded Knowledge, page 46, and Epic Expanded Knowledge, page 34, do allow a psion to learn powers from the lists of other disciplines or even other classes).

A psion can manifest any power that has a power point cost equal to or lower than his manifester level.

The number of times a psion can manifest powers in a day is limited only by his daily power points.

For example, a 9th-level psion (with a total of 72 power points) could manifest a power costing 1 power point seventy-two times in one day, a power costing 9 power points eight times in one day, or any other combination of manifestations that does not exceed 72 power points in total.

A psion simply knows his powers; they are ingrained in his mind.

He does not need to prepare them (in the way that some spellcasters prepare their spells), though he must get a good night's sleep each day to regain all his spent power points.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against psion powers is 10 + the power's level + the psion's Intelligence modifier. For example, the saving throw against a 6th-level power has a DC of 16 + Int modifier.

Maximum Power Level Known: A psion begins play with the ability to learn 1st-level powers.

As he attains higher levels, a psion may gain the ability to master more complex powers—for example, a 3rd-level psion can learn powers of 2nd level or lower, a 5th-level psion can learn powers of 3rd level or lower, and so on.

To learn or manifest a power, a psion must have an Intelligence score of at least 10 + the power's level.

For example, a psion within an Intelligence score of 15 can manifest powers of 5th level or lower.

Bonus Feats: A psion gains a bonus feat at 1st level, 5th level, 10th level, 15th level, and 20th level.

This feat must be a psionic feat, a metapsionic feat, or a psionic item creation feat.

These bonus feats are in addition to the feats that a character of any class gains every three levels (as given on Table 3–2: Experience and Level-Dependent Benefits, page 22 of the Player's Handbook).

A psion is not limited to psionic feats, metapsionic feats, and psionic item creation feats when choosing these other feats.

PSIONIC DISCIPLINES

A discipline is one of six groupings of powers, each defined by a common theme.

The six disciplines are clairsentience, metacreativity, psychokinesis, psychometabolism, psychoportation, and telepathy.

Clairsentience: A psion who chooses clairsentience is known as a seer.

Seers can learn precognitive powers to aid their comrades in combat, as well as powers that permit them to gather information in many different ways.

Metacreativity: A psion specializing in metacreativity is known as a shaper.

This discipline includes powers that draw ectoplasm or matter from the Astral Plane, creating semisolid and solid items such as armor, weapons, or animated constructs to do battle at the shaper's command.

Psychokinesis: Psions who specialize in psychokinesis are known as kineticists.

They are the masters of powers that manipulate and transform matter and energy.

Kineticists can attack with devastating blasts of energy.

Psychometabolism: A psion who specializes in psychometabolism is known as an egoist.

This discipline consists of powers that alter the psion's psychobiology, or that of creatures near him.

An egoist can both heal and transform himself into a fearsome fighter.

Psychoportation: A psion who relies on psychoportation powers is known as a nomad.

Nomads can wield powers that propel or displace objects in space or time.

Telepathy: A psion who chooses the discipline of telepathy is known as a telepath.

He is the master of powers that allow mental contact and control of other sentient creatures.

A telepath can deceive or destroy the minds of his enemies with ease.

HUMAN PSION STARTING PACKAGE

This starting psion has chosen telepathy as his discipline.

If you choose a different discipline, adjust your skill selection and powers known accordingly.

Armor: Leather (+2 AC, armor check penalty 0, speed 30 ft., 15 lb.).

Weapons: Spear (1d6, 3 lb., one-handed, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Pscircraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Gather Information	4	Cha	—
Sense Motive	4	Wis	—
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	0
Move Silently (cc)	2	Dex	0
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Toughness.

Bonus Feat (human): Psionic Endowment.

Bonus Feat (psion): Extend Power.

Powers Known: Psionic charm, psionic daze, force screen.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Ten candles, map case.

Quiver with 20 bolts.

Gold: 4d6 gp.

PSICRYSTALS

A psicrystal is a fragment of a psionic character's personality, brought into physical form and a semblance of life (via the Psicrystal Affinity feat).

A psicrystal appears as a crystalline construct about the size of a human hand.

Complete statistics for the psicrystal can be found on page 207.

Because it is an extension of its creator's personality, a character's psicrystal is in some ways a part of him.

That's why, for example, a psionic character can manifest a personal range power on his psicrystal even though normally he can manifest such a power only on himself.

A psicrystal is treated as a construct for the purposes of all effects that depend on its type.

A psicrystal grants special abilities to its owner, as shown on the Psicrystal Special Abilities table below.

PSICRYSTAL SPECIAL ABILITIES

Owner Level	Natural Armor Adj.	Int Adj.	Special
1st–2nd	+0	+0	Alertness, improved evasion, personality, self-propulsion, share powers, sighted, telepathic link
3rd–4th	+1	+1	Deliver touch powers
5th–6th	+2	+2	Telepathic speech
7th–8th	+3	+3	—
9th–10th	+4	+4	Flight
11th–12th	+5	+5	Power resistance
13th–14th	+6	+6	Sight link
15th–16th	+7	+7	Channel power
17th–18th	+8	+8	—
19th–20th	+9	+9	—

In addition, a psicrystal has a personality (being a fragment of the owner's personality), which gives its owner a bonus on certain types of checks or saving throws, as given on the Psicrystal Personalities table below.

These special abilities and bonuses apply only when the owner and the psicrystal are within 1 mile of each other.

Psicrystal abilities are based on the owner's levels in psionic classes.

Levels from other classes do not count toward the owner's level for purposes of psicrystal abilities.

A psicrystal can speak one language of its owner's choice (so long as it is a language the owner knows).

A psicrystal can understand all other languages known by its owner, but cannot speak them.

This is a supernatural ability.

Psicrystal Basics: Use the statistics for a psicrystal as given on page 207, but make the following changes.

Saving Throws: A psicrystal uses its owner's base saving throw bonuses and ability modifiers on saves, though it doesn't enjoy any other bonuses its owner might have (from magic items or feats, for example).

Abilities: When its self-propulsion ability is not activated, a psicrystal has no Strength score and no Dexterity score.

Skills: A psicrystal has the same skill ranks as its owner, except that it has a minimum of 4 ranks each in Spot, Listen, Move Silently, and Search.

(Even if its owner has no ranks in these skills, a psicrystal has 4 ranks in each).

A psicrystal uses its own ability modifiers on skill checks.

Psicrystal Ability Descriptions: All psicrystals have special abilities (or impart abilities to their owners) depending on the level of the owner, as shown on the table above.

The abilities on the table are cumulative.

Natural Armor Adj. (Ex): This number noted here is an improvement to the psicrystal's natural armor bonus (normally 0).

It represents a psicrystal's preternatural durability.

Intelligence Adj. (Ex): Add this value to the psicrystal's Intelligence score.

Psicrystals are as smart as people (though not necessarily as smart as smart people).

Alertness (Ex): The presence of a psicrystal sharpens its master's senses.

While a psicrystal is within arm's reach (adjacent to or in the same square as its owner), its owner gains the Alertness feat.

Improved Evasion (Ex): If a psicrystal is subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, it takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw and half damage even if the saving throw fails.

Personality (Ex): Every psicrystal has a personality. See Psicrystal Personality, below.

Self-Propulsion (Su): As a standard action, its owner can will a psicrystal to form spidery, ectoplasmic legs that grant the psicrystal a land speed of 30 feet and a climb speed of 20 feet.

The legs fade into nothingness after one day (or sooner, if the owner desires).

Share Powers (Su): At the owner's option, he can have any power (but not any psi-like ability) he manifests on himself also affect his psicrystal.

The psicrystal must be within 5 feet of him at the time of the manifestation to receive the benefit.

If the power has a duration other than instantaneous, it stops affecting the psicrystal if it moves farther than 5 feet away, and will not affect the psicrystal again, even if it returns to its owner before the duration expires.

Additionally, the owner can manifest a power with a target of "You" on his psicrystal (as a touch range power) instead of on himself.

The owner and psicrystal cannot share powers if the powers normally do not affect creatures of the psicrystal's type (construct).

Sighted (Ex): Although it has no physical sensory organs, a psicrystal can telepathically sense its environment as well as a creature with normal vision and hearing.

Darkness (even supernatural darkness) is irrelevant, as are areas of supernatural silence, though a psicrystal still can't discern invisible or ethereal beings.

A psicrystal's sighted range is 40 feet.

Telepathic Link (Su): The owner has a telepathic link with his psicrystal out to a distance of up to 1 mile.

The owner cannot see through the psicrystal's senses, but the two of them can communicate telepathically as if the psicrystal were the target of a mindlink power manifested by the owner.

For instance, a psicrystal placed in a distant room could relay the activities occurring in that room.

Because of the telepathic link between a psicrystal and its owner, the owner has the same connection to an item or place that the psicrystal does.

For instance, if his psicrystal has seen a room, the owner can teleport into that room as if he has seen it too.

Deliver Touch Powers (Su): If the owner is 3rd level or higher, his psicrystal can deliver touch powers for him.

If the owner and psicrystal are in contact at the time the owner manifests a touch power, he can designate his psicrystal as the "toucher".

The psicrystal can then deliver the touch power just as the owner could.

As usual, if the owner manifests another power before the touch is delivered, the touch power dissipates.

Telepathic Speech (Ex): If the owner is 5th level or higher, the psicrystal can communicate telepathically with any creature that has a language and is within 30 feet of the psicrystal, while the psicrystal is also within 1 mile of the owner.

Flight (Su): If the owner is 9th level or higher, he can, as a standard action, will his psicrystal to fly at a speed of 50 feet (poor).

The psicrystal drifts gently to the ground after one day (or sooner, if the owner desires).

Power Resistance (Ex): If the owner is 11th level or higher, the psicrystal gains power resistance equal to the owner's level + 5.

To affect the psicrystal with a power, another manifester must get a result on a manifester level check that equals or exceeds the psicrystal's power resistance.

Sight Link (Sp): If the owner is 13th level or higher, the character can remote view the psicrystal (as if manifesting the remote view power) once per day.

Channel Power (Sp): If the owner is 15th level or higher, he can manifest powers through the psicrystal to a distance of up to 1 mile.

The psicrystal is treated as the power's originator, and all ranges are calculated from its location.

When channeling a power through his psicrystal, the owner manifests the power by paying its power point cost. He is still subject to attacks of opportunity and other hazards of manifesting a power, if applicable (for instance, he becomes visible when manifesting an offensive power if invisible, as does the psicrystal).

Psicrystal Personality (Ex): Each psicrystal has a distinct personality, chosen by its owner at the time of its creation from among those given on the following table.

PSICRYSTAL PERSONALITIES

Personality	Benefit to Owner
Artiste	+3 bonus on Craft checks
Bully	+3 bonus on Intimidate checks
Coward	+3 bonus on Hide checks
Friendly	+3 bonus on Diplomacy checks
Hero	+2 bonus on Fortitude saves
Liar	+3 bonus on Bluff checks
Meticulous	+3 bonus on Search checks
Nimble	+2 bonus on Initiative checks
Observant	+3 bonus on Spot checks
Poised	+3 bonus on Balance checks
Resolved	+2 bonus on Will saves
Sage	+3 bonus on checks involving any one Knowledge skill owner already knows; once chosen, this does not vary
Single-minded	+3 bonus on Concentration checks
Sneaky	+3 bonus on Move Silently checks
Sympathetic	+3 bonus on Sense Motive checks

At 1st level, its owner typically gets a feel for a psicrystal's personality only through occasional impulses, but as the owner increases in level the psicrystal's personality becomes more pronounced.

At higher levels, it is not uncommon for a psicrystal to constantly ply its owner with observations and advice, often severely slanted toward the psicrystal's particular worldview.

The owner always sees a bit of himself in his psicrystal, even if magnified and therefore distorted.

Artiste: This splinter personality notes without humility that it is wonderfully talented in almost any "cultured" occupation, be it dancing, opera, or cooking.

Equal parts truth and pretension make up this claim.

Bully: Sometimes bad seeds are still good for something. The bully splinter personality's overbearing harangues and constant insistence on getting its way can be trying, but its influence is sometimes handy for the owner.

Coward: Buried deep in everyone is a healthy dose of self-preservation.

When captured and magnified, the essence of cowardliness aids the owner in finding safe harbor in dangerous situations.

However, this psicrystal is far too eager to urge the owner to run and hide, even in not seriously dangerous situations.

Friendly: This splinter personality is disposed to promote the well-being of others—even of reviled enemies.

The owner puts up with lectures on his hard-hearted ways, but in return he is better able to deal with creatures in a nonviolent manner.

Hero: We all want to be heroes, and the psicrystal with this implanted splinter personality is that desire personified.

Given to urging the owner into dangerous situations, it pays back its owner with fortitude in moments of difficulty.

Liar: This psicrystal just can't help telling falsehoods, even to its owner—who knows all too well when it is prevaricating and when it is communicating truthfully. This inability to mislead its owner doesn't stop the psicrystal from lying anyway—and its lying ways can serve its owner in good stead when he is forced to stretch the truth himself.

Meticulous: A meticulous psicrystal has a hard time discerning between important details and those that are irrelevant.

In describing itself, it would say it is "punctilious in its attention to the rules of etiquette, and furthermore marked by extreme care in the treatment of details".

Sometimes maddening, this trait is at other times useful to the owner who attempts a precise study of his environment.

Nimble: Quick and dexterous, a nimble psicrystal is the perfect companion in any situation where reaction must follow on the heels of action.

If anything, this splinter personality is a little too prone toward seeing potential danger in every shadow.

Observant: "Did you see that?" is the most common communication between an observant psicrystal and its owner.

Sometimes a psicrystal with this personality enables its owner to note details he might have otherwise passed by. Poised: The ability to be constantly aware of your body and how it interacts with your surroundings is something often lost in the welter of more important thoughts.

Not so for this psicrystal, which is perfectly poised and sure of itself—if not its owner.

It often preaches the importance of equilibrium and readiness for action.

Resolved: Resolution is a quality everyone wishes he or she had, and this psicrystal has it in spades.

It is firm in purpose and belief, and its advice and observations are characterized by fierce determination.

Or, as its owner might say, it is a stubborn so-and-so.

Still, this unshakable faith aids the owner in all contests of will.

Sage: This splinter personality attempts to be a mentor to its owner, even though it is drawn from the owner's mind.

Still, unfettered by any other personality type, the sage sees itself as the be-all, end-all master of all spiritual and philosophical topics (not to mention the area of knowledge in which it is especially skilled).

Outside the scope of its particular area of expertise, the sage psicrystal's advice is some times suspect.

Single-Minded: A psicrystal with this personality has the ability to focus on the task at hand, ignoring all other environmental and emotional factors.

Sometimes its owner has a difficult time getting the psicrystal's attention, but its influence also magnifies its owner's ability to concentrate.

Sneaky: Why announce your presence with loud footfalls when you could just as easily glide in with less noise than a breath of air?

Or so asks the sneaky psicrystal, who believes wholeheartedly in the adage that silence is golden.

It is given to hushing its owner—and its owner's companions.

Still, its expertise in the area of quiet locomotion can't be denied.

Sympathetic: This personality allows a psicrystal to see into the hearts of other living things by putting itself in their shoes.

Unfortunately, the psicrystal also spends a lot of time analyzing the owner and his companions, commenting on their mental states, and making pronouncements about the fitness of their actions.

This personality can be useful, though, when the owner wants to determine the motives of a potential enemy.

TABLE 2-3: THE PSION

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Points/Day	Powers Known	Maximum Power Level Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Bonus feat, discipline	2	3	1st
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	6	5	1st
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	—	11	7	2nd
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	17	9	2nd
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat	25	11	3rd
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	35	13	3rd
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	—	46	15	4th
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	—	58	17	4th
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	72	19	5th
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Bonus feat	88	21	5th
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	—	106	22	6th
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	126	24	6th
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	147	25	7th
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	—	170	27	7th
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Bonus feat	195	28	8th
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	221	30	8th
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	250	31	9th
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	280	33	9th
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	311	34	9th
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Bonus feat	343	36	9th

PSYCHIC WARRIOR

One who turns the mind's potential to the warrior's art is known as a psychic warrior.

Where psions devote themselves wholly to the development of mind-engendered abilities, psychic warriors give emphasis to the development of the body. With mental and physical energy working in union, the psychic warrior strives toward martial perfection.

The sword, axe, and bow are physical tools that psychic warriors embrace along with their psionic abilities.

Well trained in both physical and psionic matters, the psychic warrior is a formidable adversary.

Adventures: Psychic warriors know that only through conflict will their skills grow.

Prone to showing off their flamboyant abilities, they claim to fear nothing.

Psychic warriors are eager to accumulate the treasure that adventuring brings and the power it buys.

Characteristics: The defining trait of the psychic warrior is his ability to supplement his physical attacks with psionic feats and powers.

A combination of strength, martial skill, and psionic ability allows the psychic warrior to match and sometimes surpass a normal fighter of equal experience.

As the psychic warrior gains experience and power, his fighting skills and psionic abilities grow in concert.

Alignment: A psychic warrior's training requires the ability to give equal shrift to what others consider polar opposites of physical and mental ability.

Psychic warriors tend toward chaotic alignments, but a chaotic outlook is not a requirement.

Religion: Psychic warriors prefer to worship nonlawful deities, often choosing Pelor (deity of the sun), Kord (deity of strength), or Erythnul (deity of slaughter).

But, as with psions, psychic warriors' reliance on their will and internal fortitude often make them poor supplicants.

Background: A psychic warrior typically grows up among a society or small community of "the like-minded", founded by psions who wished to develop their powers in seclusion.

Such communes are rare, but their existence provides some protection in a world often hostile to those with powerful mental abilities.

Psychic warriors are often the children of psions, and just as often grow up dissatisfied with the regimen of commune life.

Although many adopt the class out of this sense of rebellion, most psychic warriors still feel a deep connection to the commune or society in which they were raised and trained.

A few have no such connection, their only ties being to their own paths of personal development.

Races: The inborn gift for psionics is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Of the races with a penchant for psionic ability (those described in Chapter 1 of this book), half-giants are particularly drawn to this class, admiring the psychic warrior's mixture of mental might and physical prowess.

Among all other creatures, little opportunity for psychic warrior training is available; however, a few psychic warriors exist in the ranks of the mind flayers.

Other Classes: Psychic warriors get on well with anyone, regardless of class, who appreciates their unique contributions.

Psychic warriors make powerful comrades in combat, so most adventurers are happy to have one in their group.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Psychic warriors have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is an ideal ability for a psychic warrior, augmenting his melee prowess.

However, a good Wisdom score is also important for manifesting powers.

Dexterity provides better defense and bonuses on melee attacks.

Constitution upgrades the psychic warrior's toughness.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The psychic warrior's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Autohypnosis* (Wis), Climb (Str), Concentration* (Con), Craft (Int), Jump (Str), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), and Swim (Str).

* See new skills and expanded uses of existing skills in Chapter 3 of this book.

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for other skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the psychic warrior.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Psychic warriors are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor (heavy, medium, and light), and with shields (except tower shields).

Power Points/Day: A psychic warrior's ability to manifest powers is limited by the power points he has available.

His base daily allotment of power points is given on Table 2-4: The Psychic Warrior.

In addition, he receives bonus power points per day if he has a high Wisdom score (see Table 2-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Power Points).

His race may also provide bonus power points per day, as may certain feats and items.

A 1st-level psychic warrior gains no power points for his class level, but he gains bonus power points (if he is entitled to any), and can manifest the single power he knows with those power points.

Powers Known: A psychic warrior begins play knowing one psychic warrior power of your choice.

Each time he achieves a new level, he unlocks the knowledge of a new power.

Choose the powers known from the psychic warrior power list.

(Exception: The feats Expanded Knowledge, page 46, and Epic Expanded Knowledge, page 34, do allow a psychic warrior to learn powers from the lists of other classes).

A psychic warrior can manifest any power that has a power point cost equal to or lower than his manifester level.

The total number of powers a psychic warrior can manifest in a day is limited only by his daily power points.

In other words, a 11th-level psychic warrior (with a total of 35 power points) could manifest a power costing 1 power point 35 times in one day, a power costing 5 power points 7 times in one day, or any combination of power point costs that does not exceed 35 power points in total.

A psychic warrior simply knows his powers; they are ingrained in his mind.

He does not need to prepare them (in the way that some spellcasters prepare their spells), though he must get a good night's sleep each day to regain all his spent power points.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against psychic warrior powers is $10 + \text{the power's level} + \text{the psychic warrior's Wisdom modifier}$.

For example, the saving throw against a 6th-level power has a DC of $16 + \text{Wis modifier}$.

Maximum Power Level Known: A psychic warrior begins play with the ability to learn 1st-level powers.

As he attains higher levels, he may gain the ability to master more complex powers—for example, a 4th-level psychic warrior can learn powers of 2nd level or lower, a 7th-level psychic warrior can learn powers of 3rd level or lower, and so on.

To learn or manifest a power, a psychic warrior must have a Wisdom score of at least $10 + \text{the power's level}$.

For example, a psychic warrior with a Wisdom score of 13 can manifest powers of 3rd level or lower.

Bonus Feats: At 1st level, a psychic warrior gets a bonus combat-oriented feat in addition to the feat that any 1st-level character gets and the bonus feat granted to a human character.

The psychic warrior gains an additional bonus feat at 2nd level and every three levels thereafter (5th, 8th, 11th, 14th, 17th, and 20th).

These bonus feats must be drawn from the feats noted as fighter bonus feats on Table 5-1: Feats, page 90 of the Player's Handbook, or from the psionic feats in Chapter 3 of this book.

The psychic warrior must still meet all prerequisites for the bonus feat, including ability score and base attack bonus minimums as well as class requirements.

A psychic warrior cannot choose feats that specifically require levels in the fighter class (such as Greater Weapon Focus or Weapon Specialization) unless he is a multiclass character with the requisite levels in the fighter class.

These bonus feats are in addition to the feats that a character of any class gains every three levels (as given on Table 3-2: Experience and Level-Dependent Benefits, page 22 of the Player's Handbook).

A psychic warrior is not limited to fighter bonus feats and psionic feats when choosing these other feats.

HALF-GIANT PSYCHIC WARRIOR STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail and large wooden shield (+6 AC, armor check penalty -6, speed 20 ft., 40 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Autohypnosis	4	Wis	—
Climb	4	Str	-6
Jump	4	Str	-6
Swim	4	Str	-12
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Search	4	Int	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Bonus Feat (Psychic Warrior): Psionic Body.

Power Known: Expansion.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 2-4: THE PSYCHIC WARRIOR

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Points/Day	Powers Known	Maximum Power Level Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+0	Bonus feat	0*	1	1st
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+0	Bonus feat	1	2	1st
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+1	—	3	3	1st
4th	+3	+4	+1	+1	—	5	4	2nd
5th	+3	+4	+1	+1	Bonus feat	7	5	2nd
6th	+4	+5	+2	+2	—	11	6	2nd
7th	+5	+5	+2	+2	—	15	7	3rd
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+2	Bonus feat	19	8	3rd
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+3	—	23	9	3rd
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+3	—	27	10	4th
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+3	Bonus feat	35	11	4th
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+4	—	43	12	4th
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+4	—	51	13	5th
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+4	Bonus feat	59	14	5th
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+5	—	67	15	5th
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	—	79	16	6th
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Bonus feat	91	17	6th
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	—	103	18	6th
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	—	115	19	6th
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Bonus feat	127	20	6th

*The psychic warrior gains no power points from his class at 1st level. However, he does add any bonus power points he gains from a high Wisdom score, his race, and feats or other sources to his reserve. He can use these points (if any) to manifest his power.

SOULKNIFE

A soulknife recognizes his own mind as the most beautiful—and the most deadly—thing in all creation. With this understanding and through extended practice, a soulknife learns to forge his mental strength into a shimmering blade of semisolid psychic energy. Each soulknife's personal blade, referred to as a mind blade, differs in color and shape according to his personality, mental strength, and even mood. Although no two mind blades look alike, all share the same lethal qualities. Because soulknives turn the power of their minds to such weaponry, they are notorious for their violence. Adventures: While caution and forethought go into a soulknife's preparation for adventure, most have a hard time restraining their natural bravado and showmanship. After all, how many adventurers can dispatch opponents with a blade materialized from pure thought? Thus, for many soulknives, adventuring presents an opportunity to do what they love most: Wield the idealized blade wrought of their innermost desires. Characteristics: More than any other psionic class, the soulknife fights with psionic power directly in both melee and ranged combat. Strength, combat prowess, and psionic talent allow the soulknife to claim equal footing—at least—with any other combat-oriented class on the field of battle. Alignment: Despite their inborn showmanship, soulknives are often lawful, utilizing a disciplined mindset to idealize and materialize their mind blades. Chaotic-aligned soulknives rely on strength of spirit instead of rigid discipline to materialize their mind blades. Characters who are neutral with respect to law and chaos rarely become soulknives.

Religion: Soulknives who prefer to worship sometimes choose deities such as St. Cuthbert (deity of retribution) or Heironeous (deity of valor).

Evil soulknives often follow Erythnul, delighting in their ability to slaughter with the power of their minds.

Background: Many who have the ability and desire to mix the manifestation of psionic power with military might become psychic warriors, but for those with the right mix of talent and skill, the way of the soulknife is more alluring. Soulknives are trained for the most part by older, more experienced soulknives.

Races: The inborn gift for psionics is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Of the races with a penchant for psionic ability (those described in Chapter 1 of this book), xephs seem especially likely to end up as soulknives.

Among all other creatures, virtually no opportunity for soulknife training is available.

Other Classes: Soulknives are most comfortable with those who have similarly aggressive bents, such as monks, fighters, and paladins.

They are less comfortable with psychic warriors (perhaps due to a feeling of competition), spellcasters, psions, and wilders, though a soulknife can discipline himself to manage most any relationship.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Soulknives have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is an ideal ability for a soulknife, augmenting his melee prowess.

Dexterity provides better defense and bonuses on ranged attacks, and is useful in the arts of stealth, at which many soulknives excel.

Constitution upgrades the soulknife's toughness.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The soulknife's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Autohypnosis* (Wis), Climb (Str), Concentration*

(Con), Craft (Int), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Spot (Wis), and Tumble (Dex).

* See new skills and expanded uses of existing skills in Chapter 3 of this book.

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for other skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the soulknife.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Soulknives are proficient with all simple weapons, with their own mind blades, and with light armor and shields (except tower shields).

Mind Blade (Su): As a move action, a soulknife can create a semisolid blade composed of psychic energy distilled from his own mind.

The blade is identical in all ways (except visually) to a short sword of a size appropriate for its wielder.

For instance, a Medium soulknife materializes a Medium mind blade that he can wield as a light weapon, and the blade deals 1d6 points of damage (crit 19–20/x2).

Soulknives who are smaller or larger than Medium create mind blades identical to short swords appropriate for their size, with a corresponding change to the blade's damage (see Table 7–4 and Table 7–5 in the Player's Handbook).

The wielder of a mind blade gains the usual benefits to his attack roll and damage roll from a high Strength bonus.

The blade can be broken (it has hardness 10 and 10 hit points); however, a soulknife can simply create another on his next move action.

The moment he relinquishes his grip on his blade, it dissipates (unless he intends to throw it; see below).

A mind blade is considered a magic weapon for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

A soulknife can use feats such as Power Attack or Combat Expertise in conjunction with the mind blade just as if it were a normal weapon.

He can also choose mind blade for feats requiring a specific weapon choice, such as Weapon Specialization.

Powers or spells that upgrade weapons can be used on a mind blade.

A soulknife's mind blade improves as the character gains higher levels.

At 4th level and every four levels thereafter, the mind blade gains a cumulative +1 enhancement bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls (+2 at 8th level, +3 at 12th level, +4 at 16th level, and +5 at 20th level).

Even in places where psionic effects do not normally function (such as within a null psionics field), a soulknife can attempt to sustain his mind blade by making a DC 20 Will save.

On a successful save, the soulknife maintains his mind blade for a number of rounds equal to his class level before he needs to check again.

On an unsuccessful attempt, the mind blade vanishes.

As a move action on his turn, the soulknife can attempt a new Will save to rematerialize his mind blade while he remains within the psionics-negating effect.

Weapon Focus (Mind Blade): A soulknife gains Weapon Focus (mind blade) as a bonus feat.

Wild Talent: A soulknife gains Wild Talent as a bonus feat.

(This class feature provides the character with the psionic power he needs to materialize his mind blade, if he has no power points otherwise).

Throw Mind Blade (Ex): A soulknife of 2nd level or higher can throw his mind blade as a ranged weapon with a range increment of 30 feet.

Whether or not the attack hits, a thrown mind blade then dissipates.

A soulknife of 3rd level or higher can make a psychic strike (see below) with a thrown mind blade and can use the blade in conjunction with other special abilities (such as Knife to the Soul; see below).

Psychic Strike (Su): As a move action, a soulknife of 3rd level or higher can imbue his mind blade with destructive psychic energy.

This effect deals an extra 1d8 points of damage to the next living, nonmindless target he successfully hits with a melee attack (or ranged attack, if he is using the throw mind blade ability).

Creatures immune to mind-affecting effects are immune to psychic strike damage.

(Unlike the rogue's sneak attack, the psychic strike is not precision damage and can affect creatures otherwise immune to extra damage from critical hits or more than 30 feet away, provided they are living, nonmindless creatures not immune to mind-affecting effects).

A mind blade deals this extra damage only once when this ability is called upon, but a soulknife can imbue his mind blade with psychic energy again by taking another move action.

Once a soulknife has prepared his blade for a psychic strike, it holds the extra energy until it is used.

Even if the soulknife drops the mind blade (or it otherwise dissipates, such as when it is thrown and misses), it is still imbued with psychic energy when the soulknife next materializes it.

At every four levels beyond 3rd (7th, 11th, 15th, and 19th), the extra damage from a soulknife's psychic strike increases as shown on Table 2–5.

Free Draw (Su): At 5th level, a soulknife becomes able to materialize his mind blade as a free action instead of a move action.

He can make only one attempt to materialize the mind blade per round, however (if, for example, he must make a Will save to materialize it within a null psionics field).

Shape Mind Blade (Su): At 5th level, a soulknife gains the ability to change the form of his mind blade.

As a full-round action, he can change his mind blade to replicate a longsword (damage 1d8 for a Medium weapon wielded as a one-handed weapon) or a bastard sword (damage 1d10 for a Medium weapon, but he must wield it as a two-handed weapon unless he knows the Exotic Weapon Proficiency (bastard sword) feat).

If a soulknife shapes his mind blade into the form of a bastard sword and wields it two-handed, he adds 1-1/2 times his Strength bonus to his damage rolls, just like when using any other two-handed weapon.

Alternatively, a soulknife can split his mind blade into two identical short swords, suitable for fighting with a weapon in each hand.

(The normal penalties for fighting with two weapons apply).

However, both mind blades have an enhancement bonus 1 lower than the soulknife would otherwise create with a single mind blade.

For example, a 12th-level soulknife normally creates a single +3 mind blade, but he could use this ability to instead materialize two +2 mind blades.

Mind Blade Enhancement (Su): At 6th level, a soulknife gains the ability to enhance his mind blade.

He can add any one of the weapon special abilities on the table below that has an enhancement bonus value of +1.

At every four levels beyond 6th (10th, 14th, and 18th), the value of the enhancement a soulknife can add to his weapon improves to +2, +3, and +4, respectively.

A soulknife can choose any combination of weapon special abilities that does not exceed the total allowed by the soulknife's level.

For example, an 18th-level soulknife could add two +2 weapon special abilities, or one +1 weapon ability and one +3 weapon ability.

The weapon ability or abilities remain the same every time the soulknife materializes his mind blade (unless he decides to reassign its abilities; see below).

The ability or abilities apply to any form the mind blade takes, including the use of the shape mind blade or bladewind class abilities.

A soulknife can reassign the ability or abilities he has added to his mind blade.

To do so, he must first spend 8 hours in concentration.

After that period, the mind blade materializes with the new ability or abilities selected by the soulknife.

For example, a 10th-level soulknife might have initially chosen to imbue his weapon with psychokinetic burst, a +2 weapon special ability.

Every time he materializes the weapon, it is a +2 psychokinetic burst mind blade.

However, on learning that he may face a mind flayer the next day, he could take 8 hours to change his mind blade's special ability from psychokinetic burst to mindcrusher.

Weapon Special Ability	Enhancement Bonus Value
Defending	+1
Keen	+1
Lucky*	+1
Mighty cleaving	+1
Psychokinetic*	+1
Sundering*	+1
Vicious	+1
Collision*	+2
Mindcrusher*	+2
Psychokinetic burst*	+2
Suppression*	+2
Wounding	+2
Body feeder*	+3
Mindfeeder*	+3
Soulbreaker*	+3

*See new special abilities in Chapter 3 of this book. All other special abilities are described in Chapter 7 of the Dungeon Master's Guide.

Speed of Thought: A soulknife gains Speed of Thought as a bonus feat at 6th level.

Bladewind (Su): At 9th level, a soulknife gains the ability to momentarily fragment his mind blade into numerous identical blades, each of which strikes at a nearby opponent.

As a full attack, when wielding his mind blade, a soulknife can give up his regular attacks and instead fragment his mind blade to make one melee attack at his full base attack bonus against each opponent within reach.

Each fragment functions identically to the soulknife's regular mind blade.

(For example, if the mind blade were in the form of a +1 keen bastard sword, due to the soulknife's mind blade enhancement and shape mind blade abilities, each fragment attacks and deals damage as a +1 keen bastard sword).

When using bladewind, a soulknife forfeits any bonus or extra attacks granted by other feats or abilities (such as the Cleave feat or the haste spell).

The mind blade immediately reverts to its previous form after the bladewind attack.

Greater Weapon Focus (Mind Blade): A soulknife gains Greater Weapon Focus (mind blade) as a bonus feat at 9th level.

Knife to the Soul (Su): Beginning at 13th level, when a soulknife executes a psychic strike, he can choose to substitute Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma damage (his choice) for extra dice of damage.

For each die of extra damage he gives up, he deals 1 point of damage to the ability score he chooses.

A soulknife can combine extra dice of damage and ability damage in any combination, so a 19th-level soulknife could choose to strike for 3 points of Charisma damage and an extra 2d6 points of damage.

The soulknife decides which ability score his psychic strike damages and the division of ability damage and extra dice of damage when he imbues his mind blade with the psychic strike energy.

Multiple Throw (Ex): At 17th level and higher, a soulknife can throw a number of mind blades per round equal to the number of melee attacks he could make.

Thus, a 17th-level soulknife could throw two mind blades, with a base attack bonus of +12/+7.

If he had used shape mind blade to materialize a mind blade for each hand and thus fight with two weapons, he could throw four mind blades in a round.

XEPH SOULKNIFE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Mind blade (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 2 lb., one-handed, piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Autohypnosis	4	Wis	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Hide	4	Dex	-2
Listen	4	Wis	—
Move Silently	4	Dex	-2
Spot	4	Wis	—
Climb	4	Str	-2
Jump	4	Str	-2
Tumble	4	Dex	-2
Ride (cc)	2	Dex	—
Swim (cc)	2	Str	-4
Intimidate (cc)	2	Cha	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—

TABLE 2-5: THE SOULKNIFE

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Mind blade, Weapon Focus (mind blade), Wild Talent
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3	Throw mind blade
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Psychic strike +1d8
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4	+1 mind blade
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4	Free draw, shape mind blade
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Mind blade enhancement +1, Speed of Thought
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5	Psychic strike +2d8
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+6	+2 mind blade
9th	+6/+1	+3	+6	+6	Bladewind, Greater Weapon Focus (mind blade)
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+7	Mind blade enhancement +2
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+7	Psychic strike +3d8
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8	+3 mind blade
13th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8	Knife to the soul
14th	+10/+5	+4	+9	+9	Mind blade enhancement +3
15th	+11/+6	+5	+9	+9	Psychic strike +4d8
16th	+12/+7	+5	+10	+10	+4 mind blade
17th	+12/+7	+5	+10	+10	Multiple throw
18th	+13/+8	+6	+11	+11	Mind blade enhancement +4
19th	+14/+9	+6	+11	+11	Psychic strike +5d8
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+12	+5 mind blade

WILDER

The psion draws his psionic ability from strict mental discipline and intellectual development. Not so the wilder—for her, raw emotion is the source of psionic power.

Emotion-triggered psionic ability is not a science, but a passion.

The zeal with which the wilder pursues the use of her psionic ability is so extreme that she can occasionally trigger a surge of power far beyond her normal capabilities. But with this ability comes a price: By exceeding her limits, the wilder may injure herself with psychic feedback.

Adventures: Wilders see dangerous quests as further opportunities to use their emotion-triggered psionic abilities.

Eager to show what they can do, wilders use their psionic abilities against whatever obstacles confront them.

Wilders are concerned first of all with the manifestation of their powers, but do not shy away from wealth or items that can further upgrade their abilities.

Characteristics: Wilders are passionate about their powers, often pushing themselves to their utter limits with their wild surges.

Feat: Psionic Weapon.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Gold: 3d4 gp.

However, they are not blind to the risks of the wild surge and the limited number of powers they can call upon. Thus, they develop their skills and fighting ability as best they can, honing themselves to be useful in all situations. Alignment: Wilders are capable of adopting any of the alignment viewpoints, none of which are at odds with personal psionic development.

Religion: A wilder is too self-centered to desire or seek after the philosophy of deities.

Background: A wilder is typically self-taught.

Most wilders were left too long on their own as children, sometimes forced by cruel circumstance to live alone in the wild.

Life in the wild doesn't usually forge many bonds, so when most wilders are eventually found, they return to civilization.

By that point, however, their mental development is set. When they take up residence in larger cities, wilders try to make up for their years of solitude by impressing others with their abilities.

Wilders recognize each other as fellow voyagers on the journey of personal discovery.

They may feel kinship with others of their kind, but they are just as likely to throw down a challenge.

Races: Wilders are more likely to spring up among maenads than in any other race.

Humans are a close second.

Dromites, elves, halflings, gnomes, and xephs are usually incapable of putting themselves in the emotional moment required to trigger psionic ability—they prefer the more disciplined approaches of other classes.

The wilder tradition is more akin to half-giant culture, and some few wilders are thus half-giants.

Surprisingly enough, a small number of dwarves, rebelling against their society, find the abilities of the wilder quite appealing and fall into the class by accident.

Other creatures with psionic ability are somewhat more likely to become wilders than to go take up any other psionic class.

Other Classes: While wilders are, on the one hand, turbulent individuals, on the other hand they enjoy dealing with others because they are happy to showcase their own prowess—through action or just through talk.

Role: A wilder is sometimes a front-line combatant, using her powers to boost her raw fighting ability.

Other wilders prefer second-line positions, relying wholly on powers to contribute to a group's offensive capabilities.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Wilders have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a power a wilder can manifest and how hard those powers are to resist.

Dexterity provides a wilder with a better defense and with bonuses on some class skills.

Strength helps a wilder's combat ability.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The wilder's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Autohypnosis* (Wis), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration* (Con), Craft (Int), Escape Artist (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis), Psicraft* (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

* See new skills and expanded uses of existing skills in Chapter 3 of this book.

See Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook for other skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the wilder.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wilders are proficient with all simple weapons, with light armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

Power Points/Day: A wilder's ability to manifest powers is limited by the power points she has available.

Her base daily allotment of power points is given on Table 2–6: The Wilder.

In addition, she receives bonus power points per day if she has a high Charisma score (see Table 2–1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Power Points).

Her race may also provide bonus power points per day, as may certain feats and items.

Powers Known: A wilder begins play knowing one wilder power of your choice.

At every even-numbered class level after 1st, she unlocks the knowledge of new powers.

Choose the powers known from the wilder power list.

(Exception: The feats Expanded Knowledge, page 46, and Epic Expanded Knowledge, page 34, do allow a wilder to learn powers from the lists of other classes).

A wilder can manifest any power that has a power point cost equal to or lower than her manifester level.

The total number of powers a wilder can manifest in a day is limited only by her daily power points.

In other words, a 9th-level wilder (with a total of 72 power points) could manifest a power costing 1 power point seventy-two times in one day, or a power costing 9 power points eight times in one day, or any combination of power point costs that does not exceed 72 power points in total. A wilder simply knows her powers; they are ingrained in her mind.

She does not need to prepare them (in the way that some spellcasters prepare their spells), though she must get a good night's sleep each day to regain all her spent power points.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against wilder powers is 10 + the power's level + the wilder's Charisma modifier.

For example, the saving throw against a 6th-level power has a DC of 16 + Cha modifier.

Maximum Power Level Known: A wilder begins play with the ability to learn 1st-level powers.

As she attains higher levels, she may gain the ability to master more complex powers—for example, a 4th-level wilder can learn powers of 2nd level or lower, a 6th-level wilder can learn powers of 3rd level or lower, and so on. To learn or manifest a power, a wilder must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the power's level.

For example, a wilder with a 16 Charisma can manifest powers of 6th level or lower.

Wild Surge (Su): A wilder can let her passion and emotion rise to the surface in a wild surge when she manifests a power.

During a wild surge, a wilder gains phenomenal psionic strength, but may harm herself by the reckless use of her power (see Psychic Enervation, below).

A wilder can choose to invoke a wild surge whenever she manifests a power.

When she does so, she gains +1 to her manifester level with that manifestation of the power.

The manifester level boost gives her the ability to augment her powers to a higher degree than she otherwise could; however, she pays no extra power point for this wild surge. Instead, the additional 1 power point that would normally be required to augment the power is effectively supplied by the wild surge.

Level-dependent power effects are also improved, depending on the power a wilder manifests with her wild surge.

This improvement in manifester level does not grant her any other benefits (psicrystal abilities do not advance, she does not gain higher-level class abilities, and so on).

She cannot use the Overchannel psionic feat (see page 49) and invoke her wild surge at the same time.

For example, Leila is a 3rd-level wilder who knows the power mind thrust (see page 120).

She can normally spend a maximum of 3 power points to deal 3d10 points of damage with this power.

If she invokes her wild surge when she manifests the power, she spends 3 power points to deal 4d10 points of damage (as if she were a 4th-level manifester, and thus able to spend up to 4 points on manifesting the power).

At 3rd level, a wilder can choose to boost her manifester level by two instead of one.

At 7th level, she can boost her manifester level by up to three; at 11th level, by up to four; at 15th level, by up to five; and at 19th level, by up to six.

In all cases, the wild surge effectively pays the extra power point cost that is normally required to augment the power; only the unaugmented power point cost is subtracted from the wilder's power point reserve.

Psychic Enervation (Ex): Pushing oneself by invoking a wild surge is dangerous.

Immediately following each wild surge, a wilder may be overcome by the strain of her effort.

The chance of suffering psychic enervation is equal to 5% per manifester level added with the wild surge.

For example, if, at 11th level, Leila uses wild surge to boost her manifester level by four, she has a 20% chance of suffering psychic enervation as a result.

A wilder who is overcome by psychic enervation is dazed until the end of her next turn and loses a number of power points equal to her wilder level.

Elude Touch (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a wilder's intuition supersedes her intellect, alerting her to danger from touch attacks (including rays).

She gains a bonus to Armor Class against all touch attacks equal to her Charisma bonus; however, her touch AC can never exceed her Armor Class against normal attacks.

Surging Euphoria (Ex): Starting at 4th level, when a wilder uses her wild surge ability, she gains a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls, damage rolls, and saving throws for a number of rounds equal to the intensity of her wild surge.

For example, if Leila uses wild surge to boost her manifester level by two, her morale bonus would last for 2 rounds.

(Even if she had the wild surge +4 ability, the fact that she boosted her manifester level by only two restricts the duration to 2 rounds).

If a wilder is overcome by psychic enervation following her wild surge, she does not gain the morale bonus for this use of her wild surge ability.

At 12th level, the morale bonus on a wilder's attack rolls, damage rolls, and saving throws increases to +2.

At 20th level, the bonus increases to +3.

Volatile Mind (Ex): A wilder's temperamental mind is hard to encompass with the discipline of telepathy.

When any telepathy power is manifested on a wilder of 5th level or higher, the manifester of the power must pay 1 power point more than he otherwise would have spent.

The extra cost is not a natural part of that power's cost.

It does not augment the power; it is simply a wasted power point.

The wilder's volatile mind can force the manifester of the telepathy power to exceed the normal power point limit of 1 point per manifester level.

If the extra cost raises the telepathy power's cost to more points than the manifester has remaining in his reserve, the power simply fails, and the manifester exhausts the rest of his power points.

At 9th level, the penalty assessed against telepathy powers manifested on a wilder is increased to 2 power points.

At 13th level, the penalty increases to 3 power points, and at 17th level it increases to 4 power points.

As a standard action, a wilder can choose to lower this effect for 1 round (in the event, for instance, that a friend attempts to manifest a beneficial telepathy power on her).

MAENAD WILDER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Spear (1d6, 3 lb., one-handed, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Autohypnosis	4	Int	—
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Sense Motive	4	Wis	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Tumble	4	Dex	-1

Feat: Speed of Thought.

Power Known: Mind thrust.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Ten candles, map case.

Quiver with 20 bolts.

Gold: 4d6 gp.

TABLE 2-6: THE WILDER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Points/Day	Powers Known	Maximum Power Level Known
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Wild surge +1, psychic enervation	2	1	1st
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Elude touch	6	2	1st
3rd	+2	+1	+1	+3	Wild surge +2	11	2	1st
4th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Surging euphoria +1	17	3	2nd
5th	+3	+1	+1	+4	Volatile mind (1 power point)	25	3	2nd
6th	+4	+2	+2	+5		35	4	3rd
7th	+5	+2	+2	+5	Wild surge +3	46	4	3rd
8th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+6		58	5	4th
9th	+6/+1	+3	+3	+6	Volatile mind (2 power points)	72	5	4th
10th	+7/+2	+3	+3	+7		88	6	5th
11th	+8/+3	+3	+3	+7	Wild surge +4	106	6	5th
12th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	Surging euphoria +2	126	7	6th
13th	+9/+4	+4	+4	+8	Volatile mind (3 power points)	147	7	6th
14th	+10/+5	+4	+4	+9		170	8	7th
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+9	Wild surge +5	195	8	7th
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10		221	9	8th
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	Volatile mind (4 power points)	250	9	8th
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11		280	10	9th
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Wild surge +6	311	10	9th
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Surging euphoria +3	343	11	9th

GHOSTWALK (3.0)

EIDOLON

The terrifying haunt, the spirit that rots, the raging poltergeist, the body thief—all are kinds of eidolons. Eidolons may be guardian spirits, evil haunts, or adventurers of any type.

Some are benign and use their abilities to help others, while others delve into the darker portions of the soul and emerge twisted and profane.

Eidolons that are not adventurers may be any sort of person, from a powerful sorcerer to a humble cleric to a greedy mercenary to a common farmer.

Adventures: Many eidolons see their nature as just another aspect of existence and follow the same goals they had while alive, including adventuring.

Others become eidolons only temporarily, forced down this path either when their bodies cannot be raised or when they must remain after dying to take care of unfinished business.

Characteristics: Eidolons have excellent fighting ability, even though they gain no additional proficiencies in weapons or armor (which are often useless for incorporeal creatures anyway).

The greatest benefit of the eidolon class is the rapid acquisition of ghost feats, which allow each individual ghost to progress along a particular path toward advanced ghost abilities.

Even nonfighters are helped by advancing in this class because of its good Will saving throw bonus and useful class skills.

Alignment: Eidolons may be of any alignment.

Good eidolons are often benign entities who try to aid others or combat the undead.

Lawful eidolons often work to protect the rights of ghosts in general or improve relations between ghosts and the living.

Chaotic eidolons may be pranksters or opportunists, using their new abilities for personal gain simply because they can.

Evil eidolons tend to be dangerous and malevolent spirits who seek revenge upon the living.

Religion: Most eidolons worship whatever deity they did in life, although most also revere Aluvan, protector of souls.

Some who are intent on entering the True Afterlife pay homage to Dracanish so that the body and soul may be properly united in death.

Most ghosts hate and fear Orcus, for worshipers of this foul deity often steal waiting bodies while their ghosts are away, making it difficult to return to life or gain their final peace in the afterlife.

Background: All eidolons originate in the same manner—a person spends enough time as a ghost and eventually develops ghost abilities.

Ghosts have a community of their own, for the bonds of death transcend race, nationality, or any other aspects of a person's background or personality.

They tend to make friends among other ghosts who died in a similar way or with those who are on the same path of ghost powers.

Races: Because only humanoids can become ghosts under normal circumstances, almost all eidolons are humanoids. Eidolons come from all walks of life, regardless of race; no race is more likely to become a ghost than any other, and no race has a tradition of following certain paths over others.

Other Classes: Although possessing amazing abilities, an eidolon must sometimes rely upon the skills of others. Eidolons are decent fighters, but lack the specific training of a fighter.

Their spellcasting ability does not improve after death, so a live spellcaster of equal experience is usually their better. While an eidolon might be sneaky when incorporeal, a manifested eidolon is no match for the quiet and skill of a true rogue.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Eidolons have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom and Charisma are especially important for eidolons, because many ghost feats rely on these ability scores, and Charisma determines the ghost's natural deflection bonus when it is incorporeal.

A high Dexterity is important, since incorporeal ghosts cannot wear armor unless it has the ghost touch ability.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The eidolon's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Intuit Direction (Wis), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Listen (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

Skill Points at 1st Level: 2 + Int modifier.

(You can never take eidolon as your first character class, so you never get the $\times 4$ multiplier for your skill points with this class).

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the eidolon.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: An eidolon gains no proficiency in any kind of weapons, armor, or shields.

Free Multiclassing: Taking the eidolon class does not incur the experience point penalties normally associated with multiclassing (although it does not negate any existing penalties the character may have incurred from multiclassing in standard classes).

Ghost Feats: At 1st level, an eidolon gets a bonus feat.

The eidolon gains an additional bonus feat at 2nd level and every two levels thereafter.

These bonus feats must be feats with the [Ghost] descriptor.

An eidolon must still meet all prerequisites for a feat, including ability-score minimums.

TABLE 1-1: THE EIDOLON

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+0	+0	+2	Ghost feat, free multiclassing
2nd	+2	+0	+0	+3	Ghost feat
3rd	+3	+1	+1	+3
4th	+4	+1	+1	+4	Ghost feat
5th	+5	+1	+1	+4
6th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+5	Ghost feat
7th	+7/+2	+2	+2	+5
8th	+8/+3	+2	+2	+6	Ghost feat
9th	+9/+4	+3	+3	+6
10th	+10/+5	+3	+3	+7	Ghost feat
11th	+11/+6/+1	+3	+3	+7
12th	+12/+7/+2	+4	+4	+8	Ghost feat
13th	+13/+8/+3	+4	+4	+8
14th	+14/+9/+4	+4	+4	+9	Ghost feat
15th	+15/+10/+5	+5	+5	+9
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+10	Ghost feat
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11	Ghost feat
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Ghost feat

EIDOLONCER

The eidolon class was designed with the idea that ghost characters who want to advance their ghost powers can keep levels in eidolon, while ghost characters who want to advance their abilities in a normal class can gain levels in a normal class.

The eidolon class allows most characters willing to dabble in ghost powers to do so, while still advancing their base attack bonus and providing a reasonable selection of skills. However, spellcasters are hurt the most by advancing as eidolons, and players of these characters may become frustrated by the stifled spell progression.

For these characters, the optional eidoloncer class is a much better option.

An eidoloncer follows all the same rules as an eidolon: A ghost character must take levels in either eidolon or eidoloncer, a ghost who is raised from the dead has a life epiphany and may convert eidoloncer levels to levels in another class, and so on.

Adventures: Most eidoloncers enjoy being ghosts as another aspect of existence and pursue the same interests and studies they had when alive.

Others become eidoloncers only temporarily, for the same reason people advance as eidolons.

Characteristics: Eidoloncers are poor fighters and have few skills.

Their greatest gift is to advance their spellcasting ability, although they gain a few ghost feats as well.

Alignment: Eidoloncers may be of any alignment and have the same habits and morals as their living counterparts and other characters of their spellcasting class.

Religion: Eidoloncers follow the same religious habits as their living spellcaster counterparts.

Background: All eidoloncers originate in the same manner: A person spends enough time as a ghost and eventually gains levels in the eidoloncer class.

Eidoloncers are part of the same community as eidolons and make friends in that community for the same reasons eidolons do.

Races: Because only humanoids can become ghosts under normal circumstances, almost all eidoloncers are humanoids.

Eidoloncers come from all walks of life, regardless of race, and no race is more likely to become a ghost or has a tradition of following certain paths.

Other Classes: Eidoloncers tend to fulfill the same roles as whatever spellcasting class they are advancing while ghosts.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Eidoloncers have the following game statistics.

Abilities: An eidoloncer's most important ability scores depend upon what spellcasting class the eidoloncer is practicing.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The eidoloncer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Scry (Int), and Spellcraft (Int). Skill Points at 1st Level: 2 + Int modifier.

(You can never take eidoloncer as your first character class, so you never get the $\times 4$ multiplier for your skill points with this class).

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the eidoloncer.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: An eidoloncer gains no proficiency in any kind of weapons, armor, or shields.
Free Multiclassing: Taking the eidoloncer class does not incur the experience point penalties normally associated with multiclassing (although it does not negate any existing penalties the character may have incurred from multiclassing in standard classes).

Ghost Feats: At 1st level, an eidoloncer gets a bonus feat. This bonus feat must be a feat with the [Ghost] descriptor. She must still meet all prerequisites for a feat, including ability-score minimums.

The eidoloncer gains another bonus ghost feat at 5th level and every five levels after that.

Spellcasting: An eidoloncer advances her spellcasting ability at every level in the eidoloncer class.

Thus, when a new eidoloncer level is gained, she gains new spells known and spells per day as if she had also gained a level in a spellcasting class she belonged to before gaining a level as an eidoloncer.

She does not, however, gain any other benefit a character of that class would have gained (improved chance of controlling or rebuking undead, metamagic or item creation feats, and so on).

This essentially means that she adds the level of eidoloncer to the level of some other spellcasting class the character has, then determines spells per day and caster level accordingly.

For example, Lhoga the 4th-level ghost sorcerer gains a level in eidoloncer.

Since her only spellcasting class is sorcerer, her eidoloncer level advances the spellcasting ability of her sorcerer class, giving her the spells known and spells per day of a 5th-level sorcerer.

She does not improve her familiar's abilities or gain any other benefits she would have received if she had gained an actual level in sorcerer.

When an eidoloncer has a life epiphany, any converted eidoloncer levels must be converted into levels in the spellcasting class she was advancing in.

When this occurs, the character gains all other abilities from that class that are not related to spellcasting, in addition to an exact conversion of spellcasting ability.

For example, when Lhoga is raised and decides to convert her eidoloncer level into a sorcerer level, her familiar's natural armor and Intelligence increase to that of a 6th-level sorcerer's familiar, and it gains the Speak with Master ability, just as if it had always been the familiar of a 6th-level sorcerer.

A ghost cleric/eidoloncer who converted eidoloncer levels would improve her turning ability, a ghost bard/eidoloncer would improve her bardic knowledge ability, and so on.

TABLE 1-2: THE EIDOLONCER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Ghost feat, free multiclassing, spellcasting
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Spellcasting
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Spellcasting
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Spellcasting
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Ghost feat, spellcasting
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Spellcasting
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Spellcasting
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Spellcasting
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Spellcasting
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Ghost feat, spellcasting
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Spellcasting
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	Spellcasting
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	Spellcasting
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	Spellcasting
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Ghost feat, spellcasting
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	Spellcasting
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	Spellcasting
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Spellcasting
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Spellcasting
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Ghost feat

HEROES OF HORROR (3.5)

ARCHIVIST

"You can either sell me the cursed stele, or you can wait for its original owner to come for it.

The choice is yours."

—Anselmo Durod, proctor abbot of the Hallowed Doctrine

An archivist is a wielder of divine magic, similar to a cleric only in the type and nature of the magic at his command.

Indeed, the archivist has more in common with the wizard than he does with the standard servant of the divine, due to the scholarly way in which he collects and maintains his spell selection.

Archivists seek out esoteric sources of divine lore, wherever those sources might be, securing those secrets for themselves and their fellow scholars.

MAKING AN ARCHIVIST

The archivist is a more academic profession than the cleric or paladin but harder and more worldly than the average cloistered wizard.

Due to the exploratory and often dangerous nature of their work, archivists develop techniques for safeguarding themselves and their allies from the foul taint that so often surrounds and accompanies the lost or forbidden lore they seek.

Archivists are thus exceptional support characters, bolstering the efforts of those who aid them in their scholarly pursuits.

Abilities: The most important characteristic for an archivist is a keen Intelligence.

That intellect must also be tempered with a high degree of Wisdom, due to the fine line the archivist must walk in studying evil without being corrupted by it.

A strong Constitution is also highly prized for dealing with the rigors of the archivist's missions.

Races: Elves tend to make the best archivists, due both to their longevity and to their natural proclivity for magic. Humans and gnomes can be drawn to the class as well, often becoming the most ambitious of seekers.

Dwarves make fine archivists but tend to view the entire profession as a little too morally gray for their liking. Halflings and half-orcs rarely take up the mantle of the archivist.

Alignment: Characters of any alignment can become archivists, but the class does require some measure of academic detachment.

As a result, archivists of an ethically lawful bent are quite common.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level): Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Gather Information, Heal, Knowledge (all skills, taken individually), Profession, Search, and Spellcraft.

CLASS FEATURES

The archivist's class features all serve to further his overall purpose, which is to seek out mystical, divine lore from strange and forbidden sources, and to gain both understanding and mastery thereof.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Archivists are proficient with all simple weapons and with light and medium armor, but not with shields.

Spellcasting: An archivist casts divine spells, drawn primarily from the cleric spell list although he can eventually uncover, learn, and prepare noncleric divine spells.

Unlike clerics, archivists prepare spells from a prayerbook, a collection of copied divine spells.

To learn, prepare, or cast a spell, an archivist must have an Intelligence score equal to at least 10 + the spell level.

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against an archivist's spell is 10 + the spell level + the archivist's Int modifier.

Like other spellcasters, an archivist can cast only a certain number of spells of each level per day.

His base daily allotment is given in Table 5-1: The Archivist.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1 on page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

He must choose and prepare his spells ahead of time by getting a good night's sleep and then spending 1 hour studying his prayerbook.

The archivist decides which spells to prepare while studying.

Prayerbook: Unlike a cleric, an archivist does not receive his daily spell complement from whatever deity or cosmic force he worships.

Rather, he must seek out and collect new spells much as a wizard does, but from such esoteric sources as holy tablets, ancient steles, or other magical scriptures.

He cannot prepare any spell not recorded in his prayerbook except for read magic, which archivists can prepare from memory.

An archivist begins play with a prayerbook containing all 0-level cleric spells plus three 1st-level cleric spells of the player's choice.

For each point of Intelligence bonus the archivist has, the prayerbook has an additional 1st-level cleric spell.

At each new class level, the archivist gains two new cleric spells for his prayerbook; these can be of any spell level or levels that he can cast (based on his new archivist level).

At any time, an archivist can also add spells found on scrolls containing divine spells to his prayerbook, but he must make any rolls and spend the time required (see Adding Spells to a Wizard's Spellbook on page 178 of the Player's Handbook).

The archivist can learn and thus prepare noncleric divine spells in this fashion but the two free spells he gains for advancing in class level must be selected from the cleric spell list.

Dark Knowledge: Three times per day, an archivist can draw upon his expansive knowledge of monsters, granting his allies benefits against the creatures they face.

Doing this counts as a move action.

The secrets of dark knowledge pertain only to aberrations, elementals, magical beasts, outsiders, or undead.

An archivist unlocks new dark knowledge abilities as his level increases and can also call upon his dark knowledge more often, gaining one additional daily use for every three archivist levels (4/day at 3rd level, 5/day at 6th level, and so forth).

Using dark knowledge requires a Knowledge check of a type appropriate to the creature faced.

A Knowledge (arcana) check reveals secrets of magical beasts, Knowledge (dungeoneering) pertains to aberrations, Knowledge (religion) covers undead, and Knowledge (the planes) applies to outsiders and elementals.

The DC of the check is 15.

Most of the archivist's dark knowledge abilities increase in effectiveness if he succeeds on his Knowledge check by 10 or more.

Dark knowledge can only be used once against any given creature.

The archivist's dark knowledge can affect a single creature or all creatures of the same race, depending on the effect used.

A target creature must be within 60 feet, and the archivist must be aware of the creature's presence, although he need not have a line of sight to it.

The effects of dark knowledge last for 1 minute, unless stated otherwise.

Tactics: The archivist knows the general combat behaviors of creatures of that race, granting his allies a +1 bonus to attack rolls made against them.

For example, an archivist confronted by corruption eaters* who succeeded on his Knowledge (dungeoneering) check would grant his allies the attack bonus against all the corruption eaters they fought in that encounter.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 10 or more, then this bonus increases to +2.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 20 or more, then this bonus increases to +3.

* New monster described on page 144.

Puissance: Starting at 5th level, the archivist can use his dark knowledge to help his allies fight off the corrupting influence of other creatures.

Allies within 60 feet of the archivist gain a +1 bonus on saving throws against the affected creature's abilities.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 10 or more, this bonus increases to +2.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 20 or more, this bonus increases to +3.

Foe: Starting at 8th level, an archivist can direct his allies to attack vital spots of his enemies.

On a successful Knowledge check, he grants them a bonus to weapon damage rolls made against the target creatures equal to 1d6 points of damage.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 10 or more, then this bonus increases to 2d6.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 20 or more, then this bonus increases to 3d6.

Dread Secret: By speaking aloud a dread secret of the target creature, an archivist of 11th level or higher can dazzle a target creature for 1 round.

Unlike other dark knowledge, this ability can be used only against a single creature.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 10 or more, then the target is dazed for 1 round.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 20 or more, then the target is stunned for 1 round (if the target is immune to being stunned but not immune to being dazed, such as most undead, then the archivist can choose to daze the target instead of stunning it).

Foreknowledge: Starting at 14th level, an archivist can better prepare his allies for the attacks of the affected creature, making it harder for the creature to land blows and successfully deal damage.

Allies within 30 feet of the archivist gain a +1 insight bonus to Armor Class that applies to attacks by the affected creature only.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 10 or more, this bonus increases to +2.

If the archivist succeeds on his Knowledge check by 20 or more, this bonus increases to +3.

Scribe Scroll: Archivists gain Scribe Scroll as a bonus feat.

Lore Mastery: Upon reaching 2nd level, an archivist gains a +2 bonus to all Decipher Script checks and to all checks of any one Knowledge skill of his choice.

Once this choice is made, it cannot be changed.

At 7th, 13th, and 17th level, the archivist can choose an additional Knowledge skill on which to gain the +2 bonus.

Still Mind (Ex): Starting at 4th level, an archivist gains a +2 bonus on saving throws against spells and effects from the school of enchantment, due to his rigorous focus and intense mental discipline.

Bonus Feat: When an archivist reaches 10th level, and again at 20th level, he can select a free feat from the following list:

Skill Focus (any Knowledge skill), Spell Focus, any metamagic feat, or any item creation feat.

PLAYING AN ARCHIVIST

As an archivist, you travel in search of new and unusual magic of a divine nature.

Since your understanding of magic revolves around the written word, you prize magical writings of any kind and will travel far to investigate a newly uncovered (or yet-to-be-discovered) holy scripture or mystical recitation.

Generally speaking, you aren't quite as stuffy as the average wizard, given your breadth of experience and high Wisdom score, but neither are you a chest-thumping champion of the gods.

The secrets you uncover are their own reward, and your confidence in yourself and in the job you do is more rewarding than the empty gratitude of some group or hierarchy.

RELIGION

While most archivists are religious, it is fundamentally their way to put more stock in the power of the divine than in the divine itself.

Archivists exist for virtually every known deity.

Some hunt down the secrets of ages past to exalt the greater glory of their deity, while others seek only to safeguard sacred lore from falling into the wrong hands.

Still others see very little connection between their personal devotion and the work they do, aside from perceiving their continued success as evidence of their god's favor.

OTHER CLASSES

Archivists tend to fare well in the company of wizards, who appreciate the scholarly approach they take to magical study.

By the same token, however, they have a mercurial relationship with standard clerics.

Some priesthoods view archivists as an essential arm of their god's following, while others see them as little more than shameless thieves who seek to despoil or abuse sacred texts.

Many druids look askance at their spells' being cast by those who do not follow druidic teachings.

Archivists often travel in the company of bards or rogues (another mark against them in the eyes of some narrow-minded priests), who share their interest in old lore and the recovery of long-lost treasure.

COMBAT

Archivists are not especially potent front-line fighters and will often hang back with the wizards when combat arises.

They are sturdier and usually better armored than their arcane counterparts, however, and boldly stride into combat when necessary (for example, when it means defending one who is weaker or easier to hit).

Archivists are especially effective in parties that contain other divine casters or bards.

Given preparation time, an archivist can use his magic to bolster party members, including the clerics, so that when combat begins, the clerics can wade into battle with the fighters, leaving the archivists free to heal.

If PCs are likely to face foes who have secret weaknesses, there can be an enormous benefit in recruiting an archivist.

An archivist can often provide information about a foe's weaknesses that spells the difference between failure and success against that adversary.

ADVANCEMENT

It is often said that archivists are born, not made.

Many who embrace this class do so out of a genuine thirst for learning, often accompanied by a reverence or admiration for divine power.

Some people who end up walking the path of the archivist began as apprentice wizards or junior clerics but soon felt the call to seek hidden knowledge.

Many archivists are archivists for life; the more hidden lore they uncover, the more they feel they still have to learn.

Others multiclass to complement their abilities, sometimes validating their pursuits in the eyes of a church hierarchy by taking levels in cleric or even paladin.

Less frequently, an archivist's hunger for lore causes him to branch out into the arcane arts, splitting his studies between divine exploration and wizardry.

The archivist is also an exceptionally versatile class for the purposes of prerequisites, acting as a natural gateway class for many prestige classes.

TABLE 5-1: THE ARCHIVIST

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	—Spellcasting—
						0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Dark knowledge (tactics) 3/day, Scribe Scroll	3	2
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Lore mastery	4	3
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Dark knowledge 4/day	4	3	2
4th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Still mind	4	4	3
5th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Dark knowledge (puissance)	4	4	3	2
6th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Dark knowledge 5/day	4	4	4	3
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Lore mastery	4	5	4	3	2
8th	+4	+6	+2	+6	Dark knowledge (foe)	4	5	4	4	3
9th	+4	+6	+3	+6	Dark knowledge 6/day	4	5	5	4	3	2
10th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Bonus feat	4	5	5	4	4	3
11th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Dark knowledge (dread secret)	4	5	5	5	4	3	2
12th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Dark knowledge 7/day	4	5	5	5	4	4	3
13th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Lore mastery	4	5	5	5	5	4	3	2
14th	+7/+2	+9	+4	+9	Dark knowledge (foreknowledge)	4	5	5	5	5	4	4	3
15th	+7/+2	+9	+5	+9	Dark knowledge 8/day	4	5	5	5	5	5	4	3	2
16th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	—	4	5	5	5	5	5	4	4	3
17th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	Lore mastery	4	5	5	5	5	5	5	4	3	2
18th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Dark knowledge 9/day	4	5	5	5	5	5	5	4	4	3
19th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	—	4	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	4	4
20th	+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Bonus feat	4	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	5

DREAD NECROMANCER

“Necromancy is not just one school of magic among many. It is an Art, one that requires the Artist’s entire devotion.”

—Kazerabet, Angel of the Dark

A specialist wizard who calls himself a necromancer or a cleric with the Death domain has significant power over undead and the forces of negative energy, but a dread necromancer is their true master.

A practitioner of vile and forbidden arts, the dread necromancer roots about in graveyards, searching out moldering components for her obscene spells.

She calls upon restless, tormented spirits of the dead, seeking their arcane secrets.

She might be a consummate villain, or perhaps a tortured hero whose obsession with death leads her along questionable moral paths.

MAKING A DREAD NECROMANCER

A dread necromancer is similar to other arcane spellcasters such as wizards, sorcerers, bards, or warmages.

She does not learn spells as quickly as wizards do, nor have access to such a great variety of spells, but she excels at her primary repertoire—necromantic, evil, and fear-related spells.

She is a combat caster, with more resilience than a wizard or sorcerer and a definite emphasis on combat-oriented necromantic spells.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a dread necromancer can cast, how many spells she can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

Like a sorcerer or wizard, a dread necromancer benefits from high Dexterity and Constitution scores.

Races: Of the standard races, humans are most likely to become dread necromancers.

They seem by nature to be more preoccupied with death than longer-lived races, and hence more apt to drift into a necromantic career.

Elf dread necromancers, while rare, are not unknown, and a few half-orcs inherit a morbid interest in death and gore from both sides of their lineage.

Among other races, dread necromancers are most common among the githyanki and the drow.

The githyanki actually hold dread necromancers in high esteem, while drow society shuns them—more because they dare to worship deities other than Lolth than because of any real revulsion toward them and their practices.

Alignment: Not all dread necromancers are evil, although the best of them could easily be described as evil-tolerant.

No dread necromancer can have a good alignment.

Performing evil acts is a basic feature of the class, but some dread necromancers manage to balance evil acts with good intentions, remaining solidly neutral (most PC dread necromancers fall into this category).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level): Bluff, Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Disguise, Hide, Intimidate, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (religion), Profession, and Spellcraft.

CLASS FEATURES

Spellcasting is your greatest strength, although your rate of spell acquisition is closer to that of a sorcerer than a wizard.

You make up for slower spellcasting progression with a wide array of special abilities, including a touch attack that uses negative energy to harm your foes.

This attack increases in strength and gains additional effects as you gain levels.

Because many of your abilities rely on your entering melee, you are proficient with light armor and have the ability to cast your spells while wearing light armor.

You also gain a resilience to damage that wizards or sorcerers do not possess.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A dread necromancer is proficient with all simple weapons and with one martial weapon of her choice.

Her choice of martial weapon is made when the character takes her first level of dread necromancer and cannot be changed.

Dread necromancers are also proficient with light armor, but not with shields.

The somatic components required for dread necromancer spells are simple, so members of this class can cast dread necromancer spells while wearing light armor without incurring the normal arcane spell failure chance.

She still incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance for arcane spells derived from other classes.

In addition, if a dread necromancer wears medium or heavy armor, or uses a shield, she incurs the same chance of arcane spell failure as any other arcane caster if the spell in question has a somatic component (and most do).

Spellcasting: A dread necromancer casts arcane spells, which are drawn from the dread necromancer's spell list (see page 87).

Like a sorcerer, she can cast any spell she knows without preparing it ahead of time.

When a dread necromancer gains access to a new level of spells, she automatically knows all the spells for that level given on the dread necromancer's spell list.

Dread necromancers also have the option of adding to their existing spell list through their advanced learning ability as they increase in level (see below).

To cast a spell, a dread necromancer must have a Charisma score of 10 + the spell's level.

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a dread necromancer's spell is 10 + the spell's level + her Charisma modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a dread necromancer can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given in Table 5-2: The Dread Necromancer.

In addition, she receives bonus spells for a high Charisma score (see Table 1-1 on page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Charnel Touch (Su): Negative energy flows through a dread necromancer's body, concentrating in her hands.

At will, but no more than once per round, she can make a melee touch attack against a living foe that deals 1d8 points of damage, +1 per four class levels.

This touch heals undead creatures, restoring 1 hit point per touch, +1 per four class levels.

A dread necromancer can use the spectral hand spell to deliver this attack from a distance.

Rebuke Undead (Su): A dread necromancer can rebuke or command undead creatures by channeling negative energy through her body.

See the cleric class feature described on page 33 of the Player's Handbook.

Lich Body: Starting at 2nd level, a dread necromancer begins her journey into undeath.

The first symptom is her body's increased resilience to physical harm.

She gains DR 2/bludgeoning and magic.

As the dread necromancer increases in level, this DR increases in effectiveness, to DR 4 at 7th level, DR 6 at 11th level, and DR 8 at 15th level.

Negative Energy Burst (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a dread necromancer gains the ability to emit a burst of negative energy from her body, harming living creatures within 5 feet of her.

This burst deals 1d4 points of damage per class level.

A successful Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 her class level + Cha modifier) reduces damage by half.

Undead creatures within this burst are healed the same amount of hit points as the damage she deals to living creatures.

A dread necromancer can use this ability once per day at 3rd level, and one additional time per day for every five levels she attains beyond 3rd (2/day at 8th level, 3/day at 13th level, and 4/day at 18th level).

Advanced Learning (Ex): At 4th level, a dread necromancer can add a new spell to her list, representing the result of personal study and experimentation.

The spell must be a cleric or wizard spell of the necromancy school, and of a level no higher than that of the highest-level spell the dread necromancer already knows.

Once a new spell is selected, it is added to that dread necromancer's spell list and can be cast just like any other spell she knows.

If a spell is both a cleric spell and a wizard spell, use the lower of the two spell levels (when different) to determine what level the spell is for a dread necromancer.

A dread necromancer gains an additional new spell at 8th, 12th, 16th, and 20th level.

Mental Bastion: Starting at 4th level, a dread necromancer gains a +2 bonus on saving throws made to resist sleep, stunning, paralysis, poison, or disease.

This bonus increases to +4 at 14th level.

Fear Aura (Su): Beginning at 5th level, a dread necromancer radiates a 5-foot-radius fear aura as a free action.

Enemies in the area must succeed on a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 her class level + her Cha modifier) or become shaken.

A creature who successfully saves cannot be affected by that dread necromancer's fear aura for 24 hours.

Scabrous Touch (Su): Starting at 6th level, once per day a dread necromancer can use her charnel touch to inflict disease on a creature she touches.

This ability works like the contagion spell (see page 213 of the Player's Handbook), inflicting the disease of her choice immediately, with no incubation period, unless the target makes a successful Fortitude save (DC 10 + 1/2 her class level + her Cha modifier).

The DC for subsequent saving throws to resist the effects of the disease depends on the disease inflicted; see page 292 of the Dungeon Master's Guide for details.

Activating this class feature is a swift action.

The effect lasts until the dread necromancer makes a successful charnel touch attack.

The spectral hand spell enables a dread necromancer to deliver a scabrous touch attack from a distance.

A dread necromancer can use this ability once per day at 6th level, twice per day at 11th level, and three times per day at 16th level.

Summon Familiar: At 7th level or anytime thereafter, a dread necromancer can obtain a familiar.

The familiar she acquires is more powerful than a standard wizard's or sorcerer's familiar, but it is unequivocally evil.

The player of a dread necromancer character chooses one of the following creatures: imp (devil), quasit (demon), vargouille, or ghostly visage.

All these creatures are described in the Monster Manual except for the ghostly visage, an undead symbiont described on page 221 of the Fiend Folio.

A dread necromancer's familiar gains the usual familiar benefits given on pages 52-53 of the Player's Handbook, with two exceptions.

Its type does not change, and it does not gain the exceptional ability to speak with other creatures of its kind. A dread necromancer's familiar can use its ability to deliver touch spells such as its master's charnel touch, scabrous touch, or enervating touch attack.

The master must use a standard action to imbue the touch attack into her familiar.

Undead Mastery: All undead creatures created by a dread necromancer who has reached 8th level or higher gain a +4 enhancement bonus to Strength and Dexterity and 2 additional hit points per Hit Die.

In addition, when a dread necromancer uses the animate dead spell to create undead, she can control 4 + her Charisma bonus HD worth of undead creatures per class level (rather than the 4 HD per level normally granted by the spell).

Similarly, when a dread necromancer casts the control undead spell, the spell targets up to (2 + her Cha bonus) HD/level of undead creatures, rather than the 2 HD/level normally granted by the spell.

Negative Energy Resistance: Beginning at 9th level, a dread necromancer gains a +4 bonus on saving throws made to resist negative energy effects, including energy drain, some ability drain, and inflict spells.

Light Fortification: Starting at 10th level, a dread necromancer gains 25% resistance to critical hits; this is the equivalent of the light fortification armor special ability described on page 219 of the Dungeon Master's Guide.

At 17th level, this fortification increases to 50%.

Enervating Touch (Su): When a dread necromancer reaches 12th level, she gains the ability to bestow negative levels when she uses her charnel touch attack.

Each day, she can bestow a total number of negative levels equal to one-half her class level, but no more than two negative levels with a single touch.

The saving throw to remove the negative levels has a DC of 10 + 1/2 her class level + her Charisma modifier.

Activating this class feature is a swift action.

The effect lasts until she makes a successful charnel touch attack.

A dread necromancer can use the spectral hand spell to deliver this attack from a distance.

Beginning at 17th level, the number of negative levels a dread necromancer can bestow per day increases to equal her class level.

Craft Wondrous Item: At 19th level, the dread necromancer gains Craft Wondrous Item as a bonus feat. This helps her prepare the phylactery required to become a lich.

Lich Transformation: When a dread necromancer attains 20th level, she undergoes a hideous transformation and becomes a lich.

Her type changes to undead, and she gains all the traits of the undead (see page 317 of the Monster Manual).

She no longer has a Constitution score, all her existing Hit Dice become d12s, and she must reroll her hit points.

A dread necromancer need not pay experience points or gold to create her phylactery.

A dread necromancer who is not humanoid does not gain this class feature.

DREAD NECROMANCER SPELL LIST

The dread necromancer's spell list appears below.

1st Level: Bane, *bestow wound, cause fear, chill touch, detect magic, detect undead, doom, hide from undead, inflict light wounds, ray of enfeeblement, *summon undead I, undetected alignment

2nd Level: Blindness/deafness, command undead, darkness, death knell, false life, gentle repose, ghoul touch, inflict moderate wounds, scare, spectral hand, summon swarm, *summon undead II

3rd Level: Crushing despair, death ward, halt undead, inflict serious wounds, ray of exhaustion, speak with dead, *summon undead III, vampiric touch

4th Level: Animate dead, bestow curse, contagion, death ward, dispel magic, enervation, Evard's black tentacles, fear, giant vermin, inflict critical wounds, phantasmal killer, poison, *summon undead IV

5th Level: Blight, cloudkill, *fire in the blood, greater dispel magic, insect plague, lesser planar binding, magic jar, mass inflict light wounds, nightmare, *oath of blood, slay living, *summon undead V, undeath to death, unhallow, waves of fatigue

6th Level: Acid fog, circle of death, create undead, eyebite, geas/quest, harm, mass inflict moderate wounds, planar binding, waves of exhaustion

7th Level: Control undead, destruction, finger of death, *greater harm, mass inflict serious wounds, song of discord, *vile death

8th Level: Create greater undead, horrid wilting, mass inflict critical wounds, symbol of death

9th Level: Energy drain, *imprison soul, *mass harm, *plague of undead, wail of the banshee

* New spell (see Dread Magic, starting page 125).

PLAYING A DREAD NECROMANCER

You hold the power of death in the palm of your hand (quite literally, albeit on a small scale at the start of your career).

If your career continues as planned, you will survive forever as a lich.

This destiny naturally makes you superior to lesser mortals who are doomed to molder in their crypts or shuffle about mindlessly as your animated minions.

You favor somber clothing, cultivate a pale and gaunt appearance, and speak in soft, low, sinister tones.

You might harbor some vague notions about using your dark powers for the good of the world, but your most important motivation is your own power—and, ultimately, your transformation into an eternal undead creature.

You approach every adventure with these goals at least in the back of your mind, if not at the forefront.

What forgotten secrets might you unearth on this journey?

What clues might you uncover to the location of ancient crypts and artifacts?

What elements of this tomb design might you incorporate into your own eventual lair?

Altruism rarely motivates you to undertake an adventure, but other motives might easily disguise themselves as concern for others.

RELIGION

The gods of good and light do not tolerate dread necromancers among their followers (even good-aligned death gods such as Osiris).

Most dread necromancers worship Wee Jas, Vecna, or especially Nerull, while some worship even darker gods, whose names are mentioned only in whispers, or fiendish lords such as Orcus.

Other dread necromancers are completely impious, seeking personal power in order to establish themselves as gods, rather than offering worship to any other deity, no matter how foul.

OTHER CLASSES

Dread necromancers have much in common with wizards, particularly specialist necromancers.

They often join associations of wizards or sorcerers, where such groups exist, in order to acquire more spells.

Paladins and clerics of good deities dislike dread necromancers, nor do druids hold any fondness for them.

Other character classes are able to work alongside dread necromancers, particularly if their own goals or methods are equally unsavory.

COMBAT

A dread necromancer's participation in combat is a balancing act.

She wants to be able to deliver touch attacks, but light armor and her relatively weak (d6) Hit Dice offer only modest protection against enemy attacks.

The spectral hand spell is an effective solution that allows her to remain apart from the thick of melee while using her charnel touch (and other spells).

Her familiar can also deliver these attacks for her, although it is little less fragile than the dread necromancer herself.

Gaining the ability to cast animate dead is a bit like taking the Leadership feat and acquiring a squadron of followers.

Skeletons and zombies can shield a dread necromancer from enemy attacks, open doors and spring traps while she remains at a safe distance, and wait on her hand and foot.

Dread necromancers always look for opportunities to animate fallen foes of Large or larger size, since they make even more effective combatants.

As a dread necromancer reaches the higher levels of her class, her charnel touch becomes ever more fearsome and she eventually transforms into an undead creature herself.

By this point she has probably acquired magic items that bring her Armor Class to a respectable level and thus might be more willing to wade into the thick of melee with her charnel touch.

Of course, by the time she can cast horrid wilting there might be little need for her to enter melee at all.

ADVANCEMENT

Dread necromancers often have some tragic experience in their early lives that marks the beginning of their fascination with death, undeath, and the power of necromancy.

She might have been the sole survivor of a terrible massacre, hiding somewhere while she watched her family, friends, and neighbors cut down, or perhaps forced to hide in a pile of corpses in order to escape the soldiers who razed her village.

Other dread necromancers experience some supernatural connection to a long-dead civilization or a single notable figure of the ancient past.

She might have been haunted since childhood by strange dreams in which she muttered phrases in some forgotten language, waking with the compulsion to investigate dusty ruins in search of arcane lore.

Corrupt spells (see page 125) represent a store of spells not on a dread necromancer's normal spell list that she can nevertheless learn and cast.

Feats that improve her spellcasting, particularly metamagic feats, are often the most useful, though Combat Casting and Mobility are particularly important for spellcasters who enter melee to deliver touch attacks.

TABLE 5-2: THE DREAD NECROMANCER HIT DIE: D6

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spellcasting
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Charnel touch, rebuke undead	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Lich body DR 2	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Negative energy burst 1/day	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Advanced learning, mental bastion +2	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Fear aura	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Scabrous touch 1/day	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Lich body DR 4, summon familiar	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Advanced learning, negative energy burst 2/day, undead mastery	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Negative energy resistance	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Light fortification 25%	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Lich body DR 6, scabrous touch 2/day	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	Advanced learning, enervating touch	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	Negative energy burst 3/day	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	Mental bastion +4	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Lich body DR 8	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	Advanced learning, scabrous touch 3/day	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	Enervating touch, light fortification 50%	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Negative energy burst 4/day	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Craft wondrous item	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Advanced learning, lich transformation	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	—	—	—	—

MAGIC OF INCARNUM

(3.5)

INCARNATE

“Good and evil, law and chaos—they are as real as fire and steel, and I am proof of that.”

—Ogava Basa, skarn law incarnate

Incarnum is a tool you can use to manipulate the physical manifestations of moral and ethical forces and wield them in righteous pursuit of an ideal.

Whether you are holy and righteous or corrupt and evil, you literally come to embody one cause or alignment, adding the distilled essence of good, evil, law, or chaos into your soulmelds.

MAKING AN INCARNATE

As an incarnate, you can expect to serve both a melee role and a supporting role by aiding other characters with your aligned aura and your soulmelds.

In certain situations you are as strong a fighter as a paladin, though you suffer more when out of your element.

Abilities: Constitution is perhaps your most important ability score, since it determines the maximum number of soulmelds you can shape at one time (as well as the duration of your incarnum radiance).

If your soulmeld selection focuses on melee combat, a high Strength score is important; if you use your soulmelds directly against foes, a high Wisdom score increases the save DCs against those abilities.

Races: Races inclined to alignment extremes make the best incarnates.

The heirs of the mishtai—rilkans and skarns—are by far the most common incarnates, producing mostly chaotic and lawful incarnates, respectively.

Dusk lings become chaotic (or occasionally evil) incarnates. Dwarves produce lawful incarnates, while elf incarnates embody their good nature.

Half-orcs might grow to be chaotic incarnates.

Among humans, evil incarnates are more common than good.

The planetouched races produce a great number of incarnates.

The most common savage humanoid incarnates are evil kobolds and evil orcs.

Alignment: Incarnates hold to one alignment extreme.

As an incarnate, you must choose one alignment component: good, evil, law, or chaos.

This alignment component defines you and serves as your guiding principle.

For incarnates, though, this is more than just belief, because incarnates channel souls that contain the very essence of this alignment component.

Because their devotion to one ideal is so great, an incarnate can only pick one extreme alignment component (good, evil, law, or chaos) and must be neutral in regards to the other alignment component.

This means that the only possible alignments for incarnates are neutral good, neutral evil, lawful neutral, or chaotic neutral.

Starting Gold: 5d4×10 (125 gp).

Starting Age: As cleric.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Concentration, Craft, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (religion), Knowledge (the planes), Profession, Spellcraft.

CLASS FEATURES

You embody the alignment ideal that you hold most dear (good, evil, law, or chaos): not only its principles and tenets, but also its underlying nature.

Incarnates of different alignments have different methods of fighting and different strengths in combat—good incarnates emphasize protection and resistance, while chaotic incarnates use speed to best their foes.

Lawful incarnates favor skill and accuracy in melee combat, while evil incarnates strive to do the most damage possible to their foes.

These principles carry through your abilities, including the physical changes you undergo as you meld more and more incarnum to your soul.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You are proficient with all simple weapons, light armor, medium armor, and shields (except tower shields).

Meldshaping: An incarnate's primary ability is shaping incarnum soulmelds, which are drawn from the incarnate soulmeld list (page 54).

You know and can shape any soulmeld from this list (but see Aligned Soulmelds, below).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against an incarnate soulmeld is 10 + number of points of essentia invested in the soulmeld + your Wisdom modifier.

Your meldshaper level is equal to your incarnate level.

An incarnate can shape only a certain number of soulmelds per day.

Your base daily allotment is given on Table 2–2: The Incarnate.

The maximum number of soulmelds that you can have shaped simultaneously is equal to your Constitution score minus 10 or the number of soulmelds allowed for your level, whichever is lower.

At 1st level, you can shape two soulmelds at a time (assuming you have a Constitution score of at least 12).

As you advance in level, you can shape an increasing number of soulmelds.

At 1st level, you also gain access to your personal pool of essentia, which can be invested into your soulmelds to increase their power.

Your essentia pool's size is shown on Table 2–2: The Incarnate.

Your character level, as noted on Table 2–1: Essentia Capacity, determines the maximum quantity of essentia that you can invest in any single soulmeld.

As a swift action, you can reallocate your essentia investments in your soulmelds every round (see Essentia, page 50).

An incarnate does not study or prepare soulmelds in advance, but must have a good night's rest and must meditate for 1 hour to shape his soulmelds for the day (see Shaping Soulmelds, page 49).

Aligned Soulmelds: You cannot shape soulmelds with an alignment descriptor that does not match your own.

For example, if you are a good incarnate, you cannot shape soulmelds with the chaotic, lawful, or evil descriptors.

Chakra Binds: Beginning at 2nd level, you can bind your soulmelds to your chakras, granting you new powers based on the soulmeld and the chakra chosen.

Binding a soulmeld to a chakra closes the body slot associated with that chakra (see Chakras, page 50), so that you cannot also benefit from a magic item worn on the body slot associated with that chakra.

The number of chakra binds that you can have active at any one time depends on your level (see the Chakra Binds column on Table 2–2: The Incarnate).

At 2nd level, you can bind a soulmeld to your crown chakra.

Beginning at 4th level, you can bind soulmelds to your feet or hands chakras.

At 9th level, you can bind soulmelds to your arms, brow, or shoulders chakras.

At 14th level, you can bind soulmelds to your throat or waist chakras.

At 16th level, you can bind a soulmeld to your heart chakra, and at 19th level you can bind a soulmeld to your soul chakra.

For more information on chakra binds, see page 51.

Aura (Ex): You have a particularly powerful aura corresponding to your alignment (see the detect evil spell).

The power of your aura is equal to your incarnate level, just like the aura of a cleric.

Similarly, your soulmelds always radiate good, evil, law, or chaos (according to your alignment) as though they were aligned magic items with a caster level equal to your class level.

Detect Opposition (Sp): At will, you can attempt to detect the presence of creatures whose alignment is opposite your own.

This ability works like the detect evil spell, except that it detects the specific alignment opposed to your own.

For example, a good incarnate can detect evil, while a chaotic incarnate can detect law.

Expanded Soulmeld Capacity (Ex): Incarnates are specially gifted in their ability to invest essentia into soulmelds.

At 3rd level and again at 15th level, the essentia capacity of your soulmelds increases by 1, superseding the number on Table 2–1.

This only applies to soulmelds, not to feats, class features, or other abilities that allow essentia investment.

Incarnum Radiance (Su): As an incarnate, you fuse incarnum with your very soul.

You can tap into your incarnum-fused soul to activate a visible radiant aura of power, granting you an increase in a particular area of prowess.

You can activate this ability as a free action once per day at 3rd level, twice per day at 8th level, and one additional time per day for every five levels gained thereafter (3/day at 13th level and 4/day at 18th).

This effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + your Constitution modifier (minimum 1 round).

Good: Your body shines with silvery light.

You gain a +1 bonus to AC; this bonus improves by 1 for every five levels gained (+2 at 5th level, +3 at 10th, +4 at 15th, and +5 at 20th level).

Evil: An ash-gray aura surrounds you.

You gain a +2 bonus on melee damage rolls; this bonus improves by 2 for every five levels gained (+4 at 5th level, +6 at 10th, +8 at 15th, and +10 at 20th level).

Lawful: You glow with a blood-red corona.

You gain a +1 bonus on melee attack rolls; this bonus improves by 1 for every five levels gained (+2 at 5th level, +3 at 10th, +4 at 15th, and +5 at 20th level).

Chaotic: A faint green nimbus surrounds your body.

You gain a 10-foot increase to your base land speed.

This is considered a bonus.

This increase improves by 10 feet for every five levels gained (+20 at 5th level, +30 at 10th, +40 at 15th, and +50 at 20th level).

Rapid Meldshaping (Su): As your ability to channel incarnum into soulmelds increases, you learn to shape a small number of soulmelds instantly.

Starting at 5th level, once per day you can unshape one of your existing soulmelds and immediately shape another soulmeld.

This process requires a full-round action and provokes attacks of opportunity.

The soulmeld that you shape cannot be bound to a chakra, even if the soulmeld that you unshape was bound to a chakra.

You can use this ability twice per day at 11th level and three times per day at 17th.

Share Incarnum Radiance (Su): As you gain control over your powers of incarnum, you learn to share the effect of your incarnum radiance with nearby allies who share at least some of your morals or ethics.

Beginning at 7th level, when you activate your incarnum radiance (see above) you can choose for its benefit to also affect all allies within 30 feet of you.

Any ally who moves more than 30 feet from you loses the benefit until he returns within range.

If you share your incarnum radiance with allies in this fashion, you become fatigued at the end of the power's duration (this fatigue fades in 10 minutes).

You must make this choice at the time the radiance is activated.

Allies who do not share your alignment cause cannot gain the benefit of your incarnum radiance.

For example, a good incarnate's incarnum radiance benefit cannot be shared with allies who are not good.

Beginning at 17th level, sharing your incarnum radiance with allies does not fatigue you.

Perfect Meldshaper (Su): At 20th level, you gain the ability to flood your body with incarnum for a brief period of time.

As a free action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity, you can increase the amount of essentia invested in each of the incarnate soulmelds that you currently have shaped to the maximum essentia capacity of that soulmeld.

This total will be greater than the amount of essentia normally available to you.

This ability lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + your Wisdom modifier.

During this duration, you can't reallocate essentia from your incarnate soulmelds.

You can use this ability once per day.

True Incarnation (Su): When you reach 20th level, the process of merging incarnum with your flesh is complete, and you are transformed into a new type of creature.

You gain the outsider type, as well as the alignment subtype corresponding to your incarnate cause.

Both your natural and weapon attacks are henceforth treated as having the alignment of that subtype for the purpose of overcoming damage reduction.

EX-INCARNATES

If you change alignment, you lose most of your class abilities, unless your new alignment is compatible with the incarnate class.

If it is not, you lose your aura, detect opposition, incarnate radiance, and meldshaping abilities.

You may not progress any further in levels as an incarnate. You regain all your abilities and advancement potential if you return to your previous alignment and receive an atonement spell.

If your alignment shift still qualifies you for the class—a fall from neutral good to neutral evil, for example—you retain your incarnate levels and your class features change to match your new alignment.

PLAYING AN INCARNATE

As an incarnate, alignment is all-important to you.

The most compelling reasons to adventure spring directly from it.

Good incarnates adventure to fight evil, to protect innocents from harm, to hunt fugitives, or to right an injustice.

Chaotic incarnates are drawn to oppose tyranny, champion freedom, and fight against the restrictions of law.

Evil incarnates actively seek to spread destruction, seize whatever they can reach and keep, and slaughter those who are weaker than they.

Lawful incarnates seek to expand their power within established frameworks, spreading the wisdom and order inherent to law.

Religion: A great many incarnates devote themselves to deities they consider exemplars of their alignment.

Good incarnates gravitate to Pelor, evil to Nerull, lawful to St. Cuthbert, and chaotic to Olidammara.

Nonhuman incarnates sometimes follow their racial deities as well.

Other incarnates believe that alignment is a higher power than any deity and revere their alignment above all else.

Such incarnates are friendly toward followers of deities who share their alignment, but only as long as they continue to uphold the precepts of the alignment.

Other Classes: Incarnates are often on very good terms with clerics of the same alignment and cooperate with them extensively.

Lawful and good incarnates also frequently work with paladins.

In general, you are happy to work with any character who shares your alignment, and tolerate characters whose alignment is close to yours.

Lawful and chaotic incarnates find it difficult, if not impossible to work together, even if their motives are both genuinely benign, which is not always the case.

Combat: How you engage in combat is almost directly a function of your alignment.

Your soulmelds and your incarnum radiance ability emphasize certain approaches to combat that vary by your alignment.

If you're good, you'll have a better Armor Class to stand up to melee attacks; if you're chaotic, you'll have more mobility to move in and out of melee range.

If you're lawful, you'll hit more often in melee, and if you're evil, you'll deal more damage with each hit.

Your incarnum radiance means that your allies can benefit if they're the same alignment as you are and share a similar approach to combat.

You can't always pick your adventuring companions, but you have concrete rewards to offer allies who adopt your alignment.

Advancement: Most incarnates were strongly inclined toward a specific alignment before their first encounter with incarnum.

You might have had a fierce sense of justice and good as a child, perhaps even considered the call of a paladin until you discovered that incarnum could transform good into a tangible force that you could hold in your hands.

You might have discovered incarnum by accidental experimentation, or another incarnate might have trained you.

Perhaps you were admitted into an order of incarnates, or learned under the tutelage of a lone hermit, one of only a handful of incarnates in the world.

Your meldshaping ability offers myriad opportunities for customizing your particular abilities, since so many soulmelds are available to you and each one can significantly shape your capabilities.

Your alignment determines which soulmelds are available; you cannot shape a soulmeld with an alignment descriptor opposed to your own.

These soulmelds encourage your combat abilities in a certain direction dependant on your alignment, so you should try to select feats that complement that combat style.

If you're good, Combat Expertise fits your combat idiom.

If you're chaotic, Dodge and related feats fit well.

For the evil incarnate, Power Attack is a natural choice, while lawful incarnates favor Weapon Focus and other feats that grant a bonus on attack rolls.

SKARN INCARNATE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8, crit x2, 6 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning and piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit x2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Knowledge (the planes)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (religion)	4	Int	—
Intimidate (cc)	2	Cha	—
Climb (cc)	2	Str	-6
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: If Strength is 13 or higher, Power Attack; if Strength is 12 or lower, Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.
3 torches.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 1d8 gp.

INCARNATES IN THE WORLD

"He's the most rigid, inflexible person I've ever known."

I'm all in favor of law, but sometimes you need to temper it with mercy.

Not so for Ogava Basa."

—Alhandra, human paladin

Incarnates fill a wide variety of roles in the world, but are united by one common theme: whatever causes they adopt, they exemplify the principles of their alignment.

In their actions and their capabilities, they add another concrete dimension to alignment in the D&D world.

Daily Life: The kinds of activities that appeal to incarnates depend largely on their alignment.

Good incarnates spend their time helping others in large or small ways, while evil incarnates are interested in helping themselves—and hurting others along the way.

Lawful incarnates work to promote order and gravitate toward ordered cities in lawful societies, while chaotic incarnates promote freedom and even anarchy, preferring small communities or even solitary lifestyles.

Notables: Incarnates of each alignment have particular exemplars and heroes they hold up as the ideals of their kind.

Revered by evil incarnates and reviled by good ones (as well as a significant number of law and chaos incarnates), Murthien the Soul-Render is a legendary figure of evil, known for storming the Bastion of Unborn Souls at the head of a legion of necrocarum zombies in an attempt to steal the energy of preincarnate souls for his own wicked ends.

Some accounts relate that Murthien began his career as a good incarnate, but in a spectacular fall became an evil incarnate whose wickedness was unmatched.

Davi the Trickster is a near-mythological chaos incarnate who figures prominently in rilkan romances.

Phanallashtam the Lawbringer, a law incarnate of ancient times, is commonly recognized as the author of one of the first and most important early legal codes.

N!doka the North Star is a good incarnate of more recent memory, whose fame as a champion of good and a fierce opponent of evil has spread far from her remote homeland. It is possible that incarnum is a relatively new discovery in your campaign world.

In that case, these notable incarnates might be modern figures, or their stories might originate on another plane or world where incarnum is more common.

Organizations: The size and importance of incarnate organizations depends largely on the role incarnum itself plays in your campaign.

If the use of incarnum is a recent development, there might not yet be any organizations in place to support those few individuals who experiment with its capabilities.

Even if incarnum has been around for a long time, it might be a tradition passed from mentor to pupil in a small but unbroken line from the ancient past.

If incarnates do gather into organizations in your campaign, their nature—as with all things involving incarnates—depends on their alignment.

Few, if any, organizations exist that draw their membership from all four alignments of incarnate.

Rather, incarnates of each alignment group with others who share their outlook, avoiding or actively opposing incarnates of other alignments.

Law incarnates are the most likely to form associations.

Even if their overall numbers are few in the world, scattered law incarnates find ways to join forces to contribute to the advancement of law and order. Both evil and chaos incarnates are more likely to work independently, while good incarnates lie between these two extremes.

More often than they form organizations of their own, incarnates join other organizations that share their alignment and overall goals.

Incarnates affiliate themselves with churches that share their alignment; some join knightly orders, arcane colleges, and even guilds of thieves or assassins in order to advance their causes.

NPC REACTIONS

People who have strong feelings about alignment have strong feelings about incarnates—being friendly or helpful toward incarnates who share their alignment and unfriendly or hostile to those who oppose it.

This category includes clerics and other devoutly religious followers of deities with nonneutral alignments, paladins and blackguards, soulborns, and members of races and other creatures with well-defined alignment tendencies.

The majority of humans and halflings, at least, tend toward neutral alignments largely by virtue of simply not feeling strongly enough about alignment to take sides.

These people are indifferent toward incarnates as well—although some have unfriendly feelings toward anyone who champions an alignment extreme.

INCARNATE LORE

Characters with Knowledge (arcana) or Knowledge (the planes) can research incarnates to learn more about them. Bardic knowledge reveals the same information.

DC 10: Incarnates embody the principles of the four alignments—chaos, evil, good, and law.

They draw magical power from a mysterious soul-energy called incarnum.

DC 15: Incarnates take this soul-energy and shape it into objects almost like magic items.

Their strengths and powers depend on their alignment: chaos incarnates move quickly and use ranged attacks, lawful ones hit hard in melee.

Evil incarnates will rip you to shreds, while good ones focus on protection.

DC 20: Incarnates shape incarnum into soulmelds.

Though the soulmelds themselves are relatively stable and long lasting, incarnates can quickly shift power among their different soulmelds.

Their soulmelds grow more powerful when bound to the power centers of the body, which they call chakras.

DC 30: Information about notable incarnates, drawn from the section above.

INCARNATES IN THE GAME

The incarnate class is the backbone of the new rules system presented in Magic of Incarnum.

Chapter 8: Incarnum Campaigns presents extensive advice about how to work incarnum into an ongoing or new campaign, and that advice applies directly to the incarnate class.

A player with an incarnate character will be happiest if the other members of the party have a similar alignment, if he has ample opportunity to use his soulmelds and incarnum radiance, and if he at least occasionally encounters NPC opponents and monsters that wield incarnum or use incarnum-related magic items.

In other words, while it is certainly possible for a player to make and play an incarnate while no one else at the gaming table even owns a copy of this book, the most satisfying play experience comes from a campaign where incarnum makes a more extensive appearance.

Adaptation: It could be possible to create a variant meldshaping class based on the incarnate but without the incarnate's rigid focus on alignment.

By deleting alignment-focused abilities (aura, detect opposition) and removing restrictions on shaping soulmelds that do not match the character's alignment, then replacing the incarnate radiance ability with a different class feature, you would create a more generalized meldshaper.

Encounters: An encounter with an NPC incarnate, friend or foe, could be an adventuring party's first brush with the magic of incarnum.

If this is the case, the DM should be sure to play up the strange and mysterious nature of the power this character wields.

Describe the character's soulmelds carefully, choosing evocative adjectives based on the tone you want to set for the encounter—they might seem “ghostly”, “radiant”, or “ethereal”, for example, depending on whether you want the incarnate to seem sinister, exalted, or mysterious.

TABLE 2-2: THE INCARNATE HIT DIE: d6

Level	Base				Special	Meldshaping
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		Soulmelds	Essentia	Chakra Binds
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Aura, detect opposition	2	1	0
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Chakra bind (crown)	3	2	1
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Expanded soulmeld capacity +1, incarnum radiance 1/day	3	3	1
4th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Chakra binds (feet, hands)	4	4	1
5th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Rapid meldshaping 1/day	4	5	1
6th	+3	+5	+2	+5		4	6	2
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Share incarnum radiance	5	7	2
8th	+4	+6	+2	+6	Incarnum radiance 2/day	5	8	2
9th	+4	+6	+3	+6	Chakra binds (arms, brow, shoulders)	5	9	2
10th	+5	+7	+3	+7		6	10	3
11th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Rapid meldshaping 2/day	6	11	3
12th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8		6	12	3
13th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Incarnum radiance 3/day	7	13	3
14th	+7/+2	+9	+4	+9	Chakra binds (throat, waist)	7	14	4
15th	+7/+2	+9	+5	+9	Expanded soulmeld capacity +2	7	16	4
16th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	Chakra bind (heart)	8	18	4
17th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	Rapid meldshaping 3/day, share incarnum radiance (no fatigue)	8	20	4
18th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Incarnum radiance 4/day	8	22	5
19th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Chakra bind (soul)	9	24	5
20th	+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Perfect meldshaper, true incarnation	9	26	5

SOULBORN

“I am strong.

Incarnum makes me stronger.”

—Thiera Donassik, azurin soulborn

As a soulborn, you use incarnum to enhance your natural combat ability.

You can also share the power of incarnum with your allies, making you a valuable member of any adventuring group. You have the ability to shape soulmelds, though you have less meldshaping power than an incarnate or totemist.

MAKING A SOULBORN

As a soulborn, you serve an adventuring party as a strong melee combatant.

Your soulmelds and related abilities serve to enhance your performance in battle without distracting you from striking at an opponent just about every round of combat.

Abilities: Soulborns rely heavily on Strength and Constitution because of their usefulness in combat.

Constitution is also crucial for the soulborn's meldshaping ability.

Charisma contributes to the soulborn's smite opposition class feature.

Races: Any race that traditionally emphasizes combat and physical prowess could include soulborns, including dwarves, half-orcs, and especially humans.

Of the new races presented in this book, azurins are drawn most strongly to the life of the soulborn, and some rilkans also find themselves suited for the class.

Among savage humanoids that have any knowledge of incarnum, soulborns are far more common than other soulmeld classes.

Such groups are known to include tribes of lizardfolk, gnolls, and hobgoblins.

Alignment: Soulborns are polarized in their alignments, hewing to strong convictions of morality and ethics.

As such, they can only be lawful good, chaotic good, lawful evil, or chaotic evil.

Starting Gold: 6d4×10 (150 gp).

Starting Age: As paladin.

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Climb, Concentration, Craft, Handle Animal, Heal, Jump, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (the planes), Profession, Ride, Spellcraft, Swim.

A lawful good soulborn adds Diplomacy to the soulborn class skills listed above.

A chaotic good soulborn adds Gather Information to the list.

A lawful evil soulborn adds Bluff to the list, and a chaotic evil soulborn adds Intimidate to the list.

CLASS FEATURES

The soulborn combines strong combat abilities with a limited ability to manipulate incarnum.

She can also enhance her allies' prowess, making her a good battlefield leader.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Soulborns are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with light, medium, and heavy armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

Aura (Ex): As a soulborn, you have a particularly powerful aura corresponding to your alignment (see the detect evil spell for details).

Smite Opposition (Su): Once per day you can channel the power of your incarnum-fueled convictions to attempt to smite a foe with a melee attack.

You add your Charisma bonus (if any) to your attack roll and deal 1 extra point of damage per soulborn level.

These bonuses apply only against creatures whose alignment opposes at least one component of yours—a lawful good soulborn smites chaotic and evil foes (any creature whose alignment includes either chaos or evil), while a chaotic good soulborn smites lawful and evil foes. If you accidentally smite a creature of the wrong alignment, the smite has no effect, but the ability is still used up for that day.

At 5th level and every five levels thereafter, you can smite opposition one additional time per day to a maximum of five times per day at 20th level.

Incarnum Defense (Su): Your incarnum-fused soul dramatically affects your body and mind.

At 2nd level, this manifests as a visible change in your appearance, as well as a particular immunity.

The appearance and effects of this fusion depend on your alignment: Lawful Good: Your eyes become orbs of solid gold in color, with no visible pupil or iris.

You gain immunity to fear.

Chaotic Good: Your irises turn emerald green.

You gain immunity to paralysis.

Lawful Evil: Your pupils display an unholy red hue.

You gain immunity to exhaustion (effects that would cause exhaustion render you fatigued instead).

Chaotic Evil: Your eyes become solid orbs of shadowy blackness, with no visible pupil or iris.

You gain immunity to any penalty, damage, or drain to your Strength.

Bonus Feat: At 3rd, 7th, and 11th levels, you gain a bonus incarnum feat (see Chapter 3) for which you meet the prerequisites.

Meldshaping: Beginning at 4th level, a soulborn gains a limited ability to shape soulmelds, which are drawn from the soulborn soulmeld list (page 56).

You know and can shape any soulmeld from this list (but see Aligned Soulmelds, below).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a soulborn soulmeld is 10 + number of points of essentia invested in the soulmeld + your Constitution modifier.

Your meldshaper level is equal to one-half your soulborn level.

A soulborn can shape only a certain number of soulmelds per day.

Your base daily allotment is given on Table 2–3: The Soulborn.

The maximum number of soulmelds that you can have shaped simultaneously is equal to your Constitution score minus 10 or the number of soulmelds on the table, whichever is lower.

At 4th level, you can shape one soulmeld at a time (assuming you have a Constitution score of at least 11).

As you advance in level, you can shape an increasing number of soulmelds.

At 6th level, you gain access to your personal pool of essentia, which can be invested into your soulmelds to increase their power.

Your essentia pool's size is shown on Table 2–3: The Soulborn.

Your character level, as noted on Table 2–1: Essentia Capacity, determines the maximum quantity of essentia that you can invest in any single soulmeld.

As a swift action, you can reallocate your essentia investments in your soulmelds every round (see Essentia, page 50).

A soulborn does not study or prepare soulmelds in advance, but must have a good night's rest and must meditate for 1 hour to shape her soulmelds for the day (see Shaping Soulmelds, page 49).

Aligned Soulmelds: You cannot shape soulmelds with an alignment descriptor that does not match your own.

For example, if you are a chaotic good soulborn, you cannot shape soulmelds with the lawful or evil descriptors.

Chakra Binds: Beginning at 8th level, you can bind your soulmelds to your chakras, granting you new powers based on the soulmeld and the chakra chosen.

Binding a soulmeld to a chakra closes the body slot associated with that chakra (see Chakras, page 50), so that you cannot also benefit from a magic item worn on the body slot associated with that chakra.

The number of chakra binds that you can have active at any one time depends on your level (see the Chakra Binds column on Table 2–3: The Soulborn).

At 8th level, you can bind soulmelds to your crown, feet, or hands chakras.

At 14th level, you can bind soulmelds to your arms, brow, and shoulders chakras.

At 18th level, you can bind soulmelds to your throat or waist chakras.

You never gain the ability to bind a soulmeld to your heart or soul chakras.

For more information on chakra binds, see page 51.

Share Incarnum Defense (Su): Starting at 9th level, once per day you can share your incarnum defense ability with a single ally, providing that character with the same immunity that you enjoy.

This requires you to touch the ally to be affected (a standard action).

No component of the ally's alignment may be opposed to yours; for example, a lawful good soulborn can affect creatures of lawful good, neutral good, lawful neutral, or neutral alignment, but cannot share the incarnum defense with a chaotic or evil ally.

The effect lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + your Charisma modifier.

You can use this ability one additional time per day for every four levels gained above 9th (2/day at 13th level and 3/day at 17th).

You can never use this ability on more than one ally at a time; sharing your incarnum defense with a second ally automatically ends the effect on the first.

Timeless Body (Ex): Upon attaining 19th level, the presence of incarnum within your body becomes so prevalent that your aging process changes dramatically. You no longer take penalties to your ability scores and cannot be magically aged.

Any such penalties that you have already taken, however, remain in place.

Bonuses still accrue, penalties continue to apply, and you still die of old age when your time is up.

EX-SOULBORNS

If you change alignment, you lose most of your class abilities unless your new alignment is compatible with the soulborn class.

If it is not, you lose your aura, smite opposition, incarnum defense, and meldshaping abilities.

You may not progress any further in levels as a soulborn.

You regain all your abilities and advancement potential if you return to your previous alignment and receive an atonement spell.

If your alignment shift still qualifies you for the class—a change from lawful evil to lawful good, for example—you retain your soulborn levels and your class features change to match your new alignment.

PLAYING A SOULBORN

Soulborns view adventures from a military perspective and refer to them as “missions” or “assaults”.

An adventure is a combat exercise, an opportunity to put your prowess to the test against new foes.

You might have a variety of reasons to adventure, whether the mercenary craving for gold or a desire to protect a community from marauders.

Religion: Soulborns are drawn to the same deities as fighters: Heironeous, Kord, Hextor, or Erythnul.

Although St. Cuthbert is popular among fighters, he is less favored by soulborns because of his lawful neutral alignment.

Many soulborns have no religious ties at all, viewing their power as something from outside the realm of divine control.

Other Classes: Soulborns particularly enjoy the company of other martial characters, particularly fighters and barbarians.

Most soulborns are concerned enough with strategy that they seek out companions whose strengths complement their own—they appreciate the contributions that characters of other classes make to the success of an adventuring party.

They can work well with similarly aligned incarnates, though heated debates as to the particular ethics or morality of a situation can come about between incarnum-wielding characters of similar but not necessarily identical alignments.

Combat: A soulborn's place is at the front of the party, wading into melee combat with your enemies.

You are most at home when engaging foes of the opposite alignment, allowing you to bring your smiting ability to bear.

At 4th level, when you start shaping soulmelds, you suddenly have a wider variety of options before you—but all these options fundamentally serve to improve what you're already good at, which is combat.

Meldshaping is just one more weapon in your arsenal for you to wield against your enemies.

You might like to wade into combat girded with armguards of disruption, or use thunderstep boots to bolster your attacks.

You might instead use your soulmelds for personal defense, shaping a flame cincture and impulse boots.

Every aspect of combat is receptive to improvement, so choosing your soulmelds is really a question of resource management: How can you best use the few soulmelds you can shape to maximize your strengths and minimize your weaknesses?

You can use soulmelds such as fearsome mask and hunter's circlet to improve skills that are already strong, or lucky dice and a crystal helm to bolster weaker saving throws.

Advancement: Most soulborns come from military backgrounds.

You might have been a soldier who stumbled upon incarnum by accident and uncovered its secrets by trial and error.

You might be a noble warrior whose skill at arms earned you indoctrination into a royal order of soulborns, where a superior officer trained you in the use of incarnum.

Perhaps you undertook a great quest to learn the ways of a soulborn from a mysterious master in some remote region. However you came to this class, you pursue it with single-minded devotion, spending most of your free time in studying the ways that incarnum can shape the world to your advantage in combat.

Though your meldshaping ability is a secondary feature, your choice of soulmelds each day has a significant impact on your character's capabilities.

As a combat-oriented character, select feats that enhance your preferred style of battle, such as Power Attack or Dodge.

General combat feats such as Weapon Focus and Improved Critical are also appropriate for your character.

Picking up a couple of incarnum feats can improve your meldshaping ability, your combat prowess, or both.

AZURIN SOULBORN STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Knowledge (the planes)	4	Int	—
Diplomacy (if LG)	4	Cha	—
Gather Information (if CG)	4	Cha	—
Bluff (if LE)	4	Cha	—
Intimidate (if CE)	4	Cha	—
Climb	4	Str	-6
Jump	4	Str	-6
Ride	4	Dex	—
Swim	4	Str	-12
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Bonus Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, three pints of oil.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 6d4 gp.

SOULBORNS IN THE WORLD

"When it comes to smiting evil, Thiera and I understand each other.

But when she starts talking about her chakra binds, I just smile and nod."

—Alhandra, human paladin

Soulborns seem to exist to do battle, like eternal crusaders against the alignment forces that oppose their own.

If incarnates exemplify the principles of their alignments, soulborns hammer principles of two alignments together and hone them into a keen-edged blade—then use that blade to smite the opposing alignments.

Soulborns are the paladins and blackguards of the incarnum world, stripped of religious trappings and whittled down to the combat essentials.

Daily Life: Many soulborns, even those of chaotic alignment, live the rigidly disciplined lives of soldiers, honing their martial skills through regular practice and moderation in all things.

Others rely on innate strength and the practice of regular action in combat, spending the intervals between battles in drinking and debauchery.

Notables: Odravan the Red is a legendary soulborn, a war hero who began his career as a mercenary soldier, rose to command his company, then took command of a military battalion and rose to rule a large kingdom.

Soulborns of all alignments point to Odravan as an example of what can be attained through dedication to the martial way of life.

In contemporary times, the well-known soulborns include Ghereff vin Callar, who held the walled city of Mordant against the hordes of the Lich Lord Angkath, and Lidyae the Occluded, who gained notoriety as a driving force behind those undead hordes.

Organizations: Soulborns do not form their own society, but naturally gravitate toward other organizations that welcome characters with their martial skills and inclinations.

Such groups include the churches of deities of war (Heironeous, Hextor, Erythnul, and, to a lesser extent, Kord), as well as mercenary companies, military units, knightly orders, and even gladiatorial schools.

NPC REACTIONS

Depending on one's perspective, a soulborn is either a heroic defender of one's community or a threat—actual or potential—to that community.

A soulborn defending a city is a hero to the people of that city.

A soulborn leading an army to the gates of that city is quite the opposite.

A mercenary soulborn between campaigns could be either—or just another annoying drunk at the local tavern. In general, NPCs greet soulborns with indifferent reactions unless they have reason to feel differently.

As with incarnates, people who feel strongly about their own alignment greet soulborns of a similar alignment with warmer reactions and those of an opposed alignment more coldly.

SOULBORN LORE

Characters with Knowledge (arcana) or Knowledge (the planes) can research soulborns to learn more about them.

DC 10: Soulborns are a bit like paladins, but they're not all lawful good.

And instead of divine magic, they draw magical power from a mysterious soul-energy called incarnum.

DC 15: Soulborns use this soul-energy to hone their skills in combat.

It gives them some protection, lets them smite their foes, and turns their eyes strange colors.

Some of them can also shape incarnum into objects almost like magic items.

DC 20: Soulborns are dedicated to alignment extremes—lawful good, chaotic good, lawful evil, or chaotic evil—and they can smite creatures of opposing alignment.

At higher levels, they can shape incarnum into soulmelds, which grow more powerful when bound to the power centers of the body.

They also learn to share their protective powers with their allies.

DC 30: Information about notable soulborns, drawn from the section above.

SOULBORNS IN THE GAME

If you use incarnum in your campaign, soulborns are an important part of the system—though not as central as incarnates.

It is certainly possible to revise the history of your campaign world so that important paladins and blackguards have actually always been soulborns, but it is equally possible to stipulate that soulborns are a new arrival in the world.

Chapter 8: Incarnum Campaigns offers more concrete suggestions for incorporating all things relating to incarnum into an ongoing campaign.

In some ways, soulborns are trickier to manage in a campaign than incarnates.

A player with an incarnate character will always feel like he's using the new system presented in this book—he brings plenty of his own incarnum to the table.

A player with a soulborn character could feel like he might as well have played a paladin or even a fighter, particularly at lower levels, unless the rest of the campaign has plenty of incarnum-wielding NPCs, monsters, and other elements involved.

Adaptation: Soulborns could be recast as amoral soldiers of incarnum, wielding their powers in the service of whatever martial cause claims their allegiance.

In this model, the class's smite opposition feature would become a simple smite ability, similar to the granted power of the Destruction cleric domain; soulborns might literally become simply champions of destruction.

They need not be evil, but they would certainly have a more sinister cast to them than the current class does, which might require some fundamental changes to the nature of incarnum as presented in this book.

Encounters: It is best to introduce NPC soulborns after an adventuring party has already had a brush with at least one incarnate—incarnates are stronger examples of the variety of powerful capabilities that incarnum makes possible.

On the other hand, the PCs might encounter one or more soulborns who are simply agents of a powerful incarnate, giving them a slight taste of incarnum's powers before unleashing the more powerful soulmelds of the incarnate.

TABLE 2-3: THE SOULBORN

HIT DIE: d10

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Meldshaping
						Soulmelds	Essentia	Chakra Binds
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura, smite opposition 1/day	0	0	0
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Incarnum defense	0	0	0
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Bonus feat	0	0	0
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1		1	0	0
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Smite opposition 2/day	1	0	0
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2		1	1	0
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Bonus feat	1	1	0
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Chakra binds (crown, feet, hands)	2	2	1
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	Share incarnum defense 1/day	2	2	1
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Smite opposition 3/day	2	3	1
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Bonus feat	2	3	1
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4		3	4	1
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4	Share incarnum defense 2/day	3	4	1
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	Chakra binds (arms, brow, shoulders)	3	5	2
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	Smite opposition 4/day	3	5	2
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5		4	6	2
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Share incarnum defense 3/day	4	7	2
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	Chakra binds (throat, waist)	4	8	3
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	Timeless body	4	9	3
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Smite opposition 5/day	5	10	3

TOTEMIST

“Power walks the earth in many forms, but it is the great beast lords that are most willing to share their power with us.”

—Quarranal Rhiannavar, duskling totemist

A mask representing a basilisk, a mantle of the displacer beast, boots of the landshark—these are the hallmarks of the totemist.

You channel the soul energy of magical beasts to make your soulmelds and claim them as your totems to acquire a share in their power.

MAKING A TOTEMIST

As a totemist, you have close ties to nature similar to those of a druid or ranger, but your power is drawn from incarnum rather than divine magic.

Your soulmelds primarily serve to give you new capabilities in combat, mostly new melee attack forms.

Several soulmelds increase your defenses and a few improve your ranged attacks, but in general you belong in the front lines of combat, slashing your opponents with displacer beast tentacles before teleporting away like a blink dog.

Abilities: Like all meldshapers, your Constitution score determines how many soulmelds you can have shaped at once; it also sets the saving throw DC for your soulmelds that allow saves.

A high Constitution score also increases your hit points, which is important in combat.

Since you are likely to engage in melee frequently, a high Strength score is important to improve your attacks, while a high Dexterity increases your Armor Class.

Races: Within all races, the groups most likely to produce totemists are those with relatively close ties to nature, who live by hunting and gathering or slash-and-burn farming rather than extensive agriculture.

Duskings are often totemists.

Wood and wild elves also have a strong totemist tradition, and some groups of humans produce totemists as well.

Only the wildest groups of halflings and gnomes include totemists, and this class is virtually unknown among dwarves.

Half-orcs and members of the savage humanoid races are occasionally totemists as well.

Alignment: Totemists can be of any alignment.

Many gravitate toward neutrality like the magical beasts they revere, while others adopt more extreme alignments—the lawful good of blink dogs and lammasus, the chaotic good of pegasi and unicorns, the lawful evil of displacer beasts, or the chaotic evil of chimeras and lamias. Starting Gold: 2d4×10 gp (50 gp).

Starting Age: As druid.

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Concentration, Craft, Handle Animal, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (nature), Knowledge (the planes), Listen, Profession, Ride, Spellcraft, Spot, Survival, Swim.

CLASS FEATURES

Like the incarnate, your primary class ability is meldshaping.

You have your own distinct soulmeld list, however, and the ability to bind soulmelds to a unique chakra—your totem chakra.

You gain special abilities related to your totem chakra, particularly the ability to quickly switch which soulmeld is bound to it.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: You are proficient with all simple weapons, with light armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

Meldshaping: A totemist's primary ability is shaping incarnum soulmelds, which are drawn from the totemist soulmeld list (page 58).

You know and can shape any soulmeld from this list.

Unlike the aligned forces of an incarnate's melds, your soulmelds channel the bestial spirits of nature.

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a totemist soulmeld is 10 + number of points of essentia invested in the soulmeld + your Constitution modifier.

Your meldshaper level is equal to your totemist level. A totemist can shape only a certain number of soulmelds per day.

Your base daily allotment is given on Table 2–4: The Totemist.

The maximum number of soulmelds that you can have shaped simultaneously is equal to your Constitution score minus 10 or the number of soulmelds on the table, whichever is lower.

At 1st level, you can shape two soulmelds at a time (assuming you have a Constitution score of at least 12).

As you advance in level, you can shape an increasing number of soulmelds.

At 1st level, you also gain access to your personal pool of essentia, which can be invested into your soulmelds to increase their power.

Your essentia pool's size is shown on Table 2–4: The Totemist.

Your character level, as noted on Table 2–1: Essentia Capacity, determines the maximum quantity of essentia that you can invest in any single soulmeld.

As a swift action, you can reallocate your essentia investments in your soulmelds every round (see Essentia, page 50).

A totemist does not study or prepare soulmelds in advance, but must have a good night's rest and must meditate for 1 hour to shape his soulmelds for the day (see Shaping Soulmelds, page 49).

Chakra Binds: Beginning at 2nd level, you can bind your soulmelds to your chakras, granting you new powers based on the soulmeld and the chakra chosen.

Binding a soulmeld to a chakra closes the body slot associated with that chakra (see Chakras, page 50), so that you cannot also benefit from a magic item worn on the body slot associated with that chakra.

The number of chakra binds that you can have active at any one time depends on your level (see the Chakra Binds column on Table 2–4: The Totemist).

At 2nd level, you can bind a soulmeld to your totem chakra (see below).

Beginning at 5th level, you can bind soulmelds to your crown, feet, or hands chakras.

At 9th level, you can bind soulmelds to your arms, brow, or shoulders chakras.

At 14th level, you can bind soulmelds to your throat or waist chakras.

At 17th level, you can bind a soulmeld to your heart chakra. You never gain the ability to bind a soulmeld to your soul chakra.

For more information on chakra binds, see page 51.

Totem Chakra Bind: At 2nd level, you gain access to a unique chakra: the totem chakra.

This chakra is not associated with any location on the body, but rather represents your connection to the wild soul energy of nature, embodied in the magical beasts of the world.

When you bind a soulmeld to your totem chakra, you take on characteristics of the creature represented by the meld—usually involving a limited physical transformation. Since the totem chakra doesn't match a body location, binding a soulmeld to this chakra doesn't restrict your use of magic items that take up a body location.

Any soulmeld bound to your totem chakra has an essentia capacity 1 higher than the normal capacity for your soulmelds.

For example, a 2nd-level totemist can invest up to 2 points of essentia in any soulmeld bound to his totem chakra bind (rather than the normal limit of 1 points of essentia).

At 15th level, the capacity of any soulmeld bound to your totem chakra increases by an additional point (meaning that a 15th-level totemist could invest up to 5 points of essentia in that soulmeld).

At 6th level, the effective meldshaper level of a soulmeld you have bound to your totem chakra is equal to your actual meldshaper level +1.

The primary effect of this benefit is to make that soulmeld harder to unshape.

At 11th level, you gain the ability to bind a single soulmeld to your totem chakra and to another chakra at the same time.

You gain the special benefits of both chakra binds.

Wild Empathy (Ex): As the druid class ability; see page 35 of the Player's Handbook.

You gain a +4 bonus on wild empathy checks made to influence the reactions of magical beasts of the same kind as the beast associated with the soulmeld bound to your totem chakra.

Thus, if you have a basilisk mask bound to your totem chakra, you gain the bonus on checks made to influence basilisks.

Illiteracy: Like barbarians, totemists do not begin the game knowing how to read and write.

You can spend 2 skill points to gain the ability to read and write all languages you are able to speak.

If you gain a level in any other class (except barbarian), you automatically gain literacy.

A barbarian who gains a totemist level remains illiterate.

Any other character who gains a totemist level does not lose the literacy he or she already had.

Totem's Protection (Ex): At 3rd level, you gain a +4 bonus on saving throws against the supernatural abilities of magical beasts.

Rebind Totem Soulmeld (Su): As your link to your totem chakra strengthens, you learn to shift the ties that bind your soulmelds.

Starting at 8th level, once per day you can unbind a soulmeld from your totem chakra and bind a different meld to that chakra, as long as the new meld is one you already have shaped.

This requires a full-round action and provokes attacks of opportunity.

You can use this ability one additional time for every four levels gained above 8th (2/day at 12th level, 3/day at 16th, and 4/day at 20th).

Totem Embodiment (Su): At 20th level, you gain the ability to temporarily link your body and soul to your totem chakra.

This greatly enhances the power of essentia invested in soulmelds bound to that chakra.

For the duration of this ability, your normal essentia capacity of any soulmeld bound to your totem chakra is doubled.

Every point of essentia invested in a soulmeld bound to your totem chakra counts as 2 points of essentia.

Activating this ability is a free action that does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

It can be used once per day and lasts for a number of minutes equal to your Constitution bonus (minimum 1).

PLAYING A TOTEMIST

As a totemist, you most likely come from a culture that might be considered primitive by other peoples.

You spent at least the early years of your life far more concerned with finding food and shelter than with formal education.

You probably still think of the most basic needs before less essential desires, such as gaining treasure or taking revenge. Those are luxuries.

It might be a personal goal of yours to reach a position in your life where you can afford luxuries, but in the meantime you function at a more basic level.

What are you doing in the towns and cities of civilized society?

What has brought you from your home in the wilderness regions of the world?

Why have you chosen to keep company with adventurers, and why these particular companions?

Answering these questions will give an important handle on your character.

Perhaps you have been banished from your people and taken up a life of adventure because it is the only way you can come close to fitting in to civilized society.

Perhaps your elders sent you on a quest and you hope your adventuring companions can help you accomplish it.

Religion: Most totemists worship the spirits of magical beasts, invoking them through prayers even as they bind their power into their soulmelds.

A few have adopted the worship of Obad-Hai or a similar nature deity, believing that he has authority over all nature spirits.

A handful of others worship Kord or Erythnul because their people revere these gods.

Other Classes: Totemists relate well to barbarians and, to a somewhat lesser extent, to druids.

In general, they gladly accept the company of any character who accepts them, rarely making quick judgments of any individual based on class.

Incarnates and soulborns recognize that the techniques of totemists are related to their own, but vary in their responses to totemists.

Incarnates in particular look down on totemists as savages who don't understand the correct use of incarnum, but most other meldshapers are intrigued by the uses to which totemists put incarnum and eagerly discuss their different thoughts and techniques.

Combat: Standing strictly on the basics (Hit Die, attack bonus, weapon and armor proficiency), you're a fair melee combatant comparable to a cleric.

Your soulmelds expand your combat capabilities, however, making a position in the front lines of battle even more viable.

You have a good mix of attack-enhancing soulmelds and those more focused on defense.

With the right soulmelds in place, you can attack effectively without a weapon and stand up in melee without armor.

You also have a wide variety of special abilities to choose from.

Do you want to roar like a dragonne, spit acid like an ankheg, trill like a frost worm, scare your enemies like a krenshar, petrify them like a basilisk, or grapple them like a girallon?

Do you want to blink like a blink dog, be displaced like a displacer beast, phase like a phase spider, or fly like a pegasus?

The special attacks and defenses you choose should give you plenty to do in any combat while ideally complementing the capabilities of your allies.

Advancement: Most totemists declare that they did not choose their career—it chose them.

You might have had a momentous encounter with a magical beast in the wild in your youth, one that left you close to death or simply feeling called.

It might have been your community that recognized something in you and thrust the role of a totemist on you.

Your initial training in the class probably consisted of a long period spent alone in the wilderness, fasting and communing with nature spirits to learn their secrets and invoke their blessings.

After emerging from that retreat, you learned to form incarnum into your soulmelds.

Like the incarnate, you have a large variety of options available to you in your soulmelds.

You have access to a long list of soulmelds from the start of your career.

Some totemists identify strongly with a specific magical beast and prefer to bind a related soulmeld to their soul chakra, or they focus on a small number of soulmelds they frequently bind to that chakra.

Others prefer to remain completely flexible in their soulmeld choices, using the rapid rebinding ability to quickly bind different soulmelds to their totem chakras.

DUSKLING TOTEMIST STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Shortspear (1d6, crit x2, range inc. 20 ft., 3 lb., one-handed, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Survival	4	Wis	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Knowledge (nature)	4	Int	—
Knowledge (the planes)	4	Int	—
Swim	4	Str	-6
Ride	4	Dex	—

Feat: Alertness.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

3 torches.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 1d6 gp.

TOTEMISTS IN THE WORLD

"Quarranal has the fury of a worg and the cunning of a blink dog."

—Vadania, half-elf druid

In the real world, people of different cultures esteem animals as exemplars of qualities that they seek to emulate. The totemist is an extension of this principle into the D&D universe: similar to animals but more powerful, magical beasts are a natural choice for totems.

Totemists use incarnum to channel the power they see embodied in magical beasts and claim it for their own.

Daily Life: In their native lands, totemists serve as spiritual leaders for their people, mediating between the mundane world and the spirit world of totem beasts.

They are also war leaders, embodying the strength and power of magical beasts in the forefront of raiding parties and armies.

They are part of two worlds, the material world and the spirit realm, and fully belong to neither.

They live as outsiders even in the midst of their communities.

Notables: Totemists appear here and there in the legends of different peoples as folk heroes.

The legendary duskling Tavannath Durimarrasha is sometimes called the Totem Bringer, for he is said to be the first totemist.

Areil Woodward is a wild elf totemist of modern times, known for mobilizing the magical beasts of her forest home to repel a gnoll invasion.

Gayadari the Dreamer is a human totemist from a remote land, known as a great hunter of dragons.

Organizations: Totemists as a rule do not form organizations.

Many totemists are part of tight tribal structures in their native lands, and totemists who leave those lands are such anomalies that they rarely find compatriots to form guilds or schools.

Some totemists have been known to join organizations that support druids, while others claim membership in societies that cater to foreigners in civilized lands.

In general, however, totemists are loners at heart, rejecting any organization larger than an adventuring company.

NPC REACTIONS

Totemists claim positions of respect (even if it is mingled with fear) among their own people and members of other societies that are familiar with their ways.

A member of a culture that includes totemists has at least a friendly reaction to any totemist, even one native to a different culture.

Even though they are friendly, however, such people are more likely to give concrete aid and escape the totemist's presence quickly rather than engage in casual conversation.

People whose native cultures do not have a place for totemists range from indifferent to unfriendly toward totemists, depending on their feelings about foreigners in general and a specific totemist's own culture specifically.

A lizardfolk or orc totemist is unlikely to find a warm reception in human lands, though he might be well received by wild elves who recognize his totemist status.

TOTEMIST LORE

Characters with Knowledge (the planes) or Knowledge (nature) can research totemists to learn more about them.
DC 10: Totemists worship magical beasts and have some ability to mimic their powers.

DC 15: Totemists wield a soul-energy called incarnum, which they draw from magical beasts and shape into objects almost like magic items.

They have some limited ability to change their shape to gain properties of the magical beasts they revere.

DC 20: Totemists shape incarnum into soulmelds that are related to various magical beasts.

By claiming different soulmelds as a totem, a totemist can take on physical characteristics of different magical beasts. They can also bind soulmelds to the power centers of the body to gain different abilities.

DC 30: Information about notable totemists, drawn from the section above.

TOTEMISTS IN THE GAME

Like the soulborn, the totemist is an important but not central part of the incarnum system.

They are an example of how to model an existing fantasy and mythological archetype, similar to the druid and the spirit shaman (from Complete Divine), using incarnum rather than divine magic.

You might consider revising your campaign history so that certain existing druids or spirit shamans are actually totemists instead, or you can posit that totemists are either a new arrival in the world or part of a distant culture that is only now arriving on the world stage.

See Chapter 8: Incarnum Campaigns for more advice about incorporating incarnum into your campaign.

Totemists have close ties to an existing fixture of almost all D&D worlds—the magical beasts that make up common encounters in most games.

For this reason, a player with a totemist can easily feel an important and meaningful part even of a campaign that otherwise makes little use of incarnum.

Even if a totemist character never sees another character or creature that uses incarnum and never acquires an incarnum-based magic item, he still has a place in the world and a unique relationship to the magical beasts all around him.

As a result, running a game that includes a totemist character requires little special attention.

Adaptation: With significant modifications or expansions, the totemist could be recast with ties to different creature types.

By renaming and tweaking their melds, totemists could invoke aberrations, fey, or dragons instead of magical beasts.

Encounters: NPC totemists might be encountered as leaders of small bands of savage humanoids in the wilderness, serving as opponents with unusual powers to challenge the PCs.

TABLE 2-4: THE TOTEMIST

HIT DIE: d8

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Meldshaping
						Soulmelds	Essentia	Chakra Binds
1st	+0	+2	+2	+0	Wild empathy, illiteracy	2	1	0
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+0	Totem chakra bind (+1 capacity)	3	2	1
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+1	Totem's protection	3	2	1
4th	+3	+4	+4	+1		4	3	1
5th	+3	+4	+4	+1	Chakra binds (crown, feet, hands)	4	3	1
6th	+4	+5	+5	+2	Totem chakra bind (+1 meldshaper level)	4	4	2
7th	+5	+5	+5	+2		5	5	2
8th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+2	Rebind totem soulmeld 1/day	5	5	2
9th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+3	Chakra binds (arms, brow, shoulders)	5	6	2
10th	+7/+2	+7	+7	+3		6	7	3
11th	+8/+3	+7	+7	+3	Totem chakra bind (double bind)	6	8	3
12th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+4	Rebind totem soulmeld 2/day	6	9	3
13th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+4		7	10	3
14th	+10/+5	+9	+9	+4	Chakra binds (throat, waist)	7	11	4
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+9	+5	Totem chakra bind (+2 capacity)	7	12	4
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+5	Rebind totem soulmeld 3/day	8	13	4
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+5	Chakra bind (heart)	8	14	4
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+11	+6		8	16	5
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+11	+6		9	18	5
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+12	+6	Totem embodiment, rebind totem soulmeld 4/day	9	20	5

MINIATURES HANDBOOK (3.5)

FAVORED SOUL

The favored soul follows the path of the cleric but is able to channel divine power with surprising ease.

She is able to perform the same tasks as her fellow divine spellcasters but with virtually no study; to her, it comes naturally.

Scholars wonder if favored souls have traces of outsider blood from unions, holy or unholy, centuries ago and generations removed.

Others suggest that the ability is awakened by divine training of the proper type, or that favored souls are simply imbued with their gifts by their gods when they begin training as clerics.

In any case, favored souls cast their spells naturally, as much through force of personality as through study.

Adventures: Favored souls are often loners, wandering the land serving their deities.

They are welcomed by their churches but treated as unusual and sometimes misunderstood.

They are emissaries of their deities, outside the church's command structure—respected mystics not requiring the support normally crucial to a priest's success.

This status makes them sometimes revered and sometimes envied by their cleric cousins.

While favored souls are occasionally disrespected for their perceived lack of discipline, devout worshipers know that they are a powerful message from, and indeed a living manifestation of, their gods.

Characteristics: Favored souls cast divine spells by means of an innate connection rather than through laborious training and prayer.

Their divine connection is natural rather than learned.

They know fewer spells than clerics do and acquire powerful spells more slowly than clerics, but they can cast spells more often than clerics can, and they have no need to select and prepare them ahead of time.

Alignment: Divine magic is intuitive to a favored soul, not a matter of careful prayer.

This intuitive nature leads to a freer interpretation of faith and doctrine, and so favored souls tend slightly toward chaos over law.

A favored soul is often of the same alignment as her deity, though some are one step away.

For example, a favored soul could serve a lawful good deity and be neutral good herself.

A favored soul may not be neutral unless her deity is neutral.

Religion: A favored soul can be of any religion.

The most common deity worshiped by human favored souls in civilized lands is Pelor, god of the sun.

Among nonhuman races, favored souls most commonly worship the chief deity of their racial pantheon.

Unlike clerics, favored souls are not able to devote themselves to a cause or a source of divine power instead of a deity.

Background: Favored souls learn of their connection with the divine at a young age.

Eventually, a young favored soul understands the power that she has been wielding unintentionally.

Favored souls, as naturally inclined divine channelers, are also born loners.

Unlike clerics in a temple, they gain little by sharing their knowledge and have no strong incentive to work together.

Races: The innate talent of spontaneously channeling divine power is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Divine spellcasters from savage lands or from among the brutal humanoids are more often favored souls than clerics.

Other Classes: Favored souls have the most in common with members of other self-taught classes, especially sorcerers, but also druids and rogues.

They sometimes find themselves at odds with members of the more disciplined classes, specifically clerics, whom they sometimes view as too wrapped up in doctrine and rigidly defined attitudes.

Role: The favored soul serves as a group's backup healer and defensive specialist.

She can hold her own in a fight, especially if she chooses to specialize in powers that aid her in combat.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Favored souls have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how many spells the favored soul can cast per day.

Wisdom determines how hard the favored soul's spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

In addition to using Charisma and Wisdom for spellcasting, a favored soul also benefits from high Dexterity, Strength, and Constitution scores.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The favored soul's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).
Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the favored soul.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Favored souls are proficient with all simple weapons, with light and medium armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

A favored soul is also proficient with her deity's favored weapon.

Although a favored soul is not proficient with heavy armor, wearing it does not interfere with her spellcasting.

Spells: A favored soul casts divine spells (the same type of spells available to clerics), which are drawn from the cleric spell list.

She can cast any spell she knows without preparing it ahead of time the way a cleric must.

To cast a spell, a favored soul must have a Charisma score of $10 + \text{the spell's level}$ (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a favored soul's spell is $10 + \text{the spell's level} + \text{the favored soul's Wisdom modifier}$.

Like other spellcasters, a favored soul can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-2: The Favored Soul.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Charisma score (see Table 1-1, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Unlike that of a cleric, a favored soul's selection of spells is limited.

A favored soul begins play knowing four 0-level spells and three 1st-level spells of her choice.

At each new favored soul level, she gains one or more new spells, as indicated on Table 1-3: Favored Soul Spells Known.

TABLE 1-3: FAVORED SOUL SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	5	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	6	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	7	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	7	6	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	8	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—
9th	8	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—
10th	9	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—
11th	9	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—	—
12th	9	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—
13th	9	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—	—
14th	9	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—
15th	9	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—	—
16th	9	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—
17th	9	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3	—
18th	9	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3
19th	9	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4	3
20th	9	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	4

(Unlike spells per day, the number of spells a favored soul knows is not affected by her Charisma score; the numbers on Table 1-3 are fixed).

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered favored soul level after that (6th, 8th, and so on), a favored soul can choose to learn a new spell in place of one she already knows.

In effect, the favored soul "loses" the old spell in exchange for the new one.

The new spell's level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level favored soul spell the character can cast.

A favored soul may swap only a single spell at any given level, and must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that she gains new spells known for the level.

Unlike a cleric, a favored soul need not prepare her spells in advance.

She can cast any spell she knows at any time, assuming she has not yet used up her spells per day for that spell level.

Deity's Weapon Focus: At 3rd level, a favored soul gains the Weapon Focus feat with her deity's favored weapon.

If the character already has that feat, she can choose a different one.

Energy Resistance (Ex): At 5th level, a favored soul chooses an energy type and gains resistance 10 against that type.

At 10th level and 15th level, the character gains resistance 10 against two other energy types of her choosing.

Deity's Weapon Specialization: At 12th level, a favored soul gains the Weapon Specialization feat with her deity's favored weapon.

If she already has that feat, she can choose a different one.

Wings (Ex): At 17th level, a favored soul gains wings and can fly at a speed of 60 feet (good maneuverability).

A good-aligned favored soul grows feathered wings, and an evil-aligned favored soul gains batlike wings.

A favored soul who is neither good nor evil may choose either type of wings.

Damage Reduction (Su): A 20th-level favored soul gains damage reduction.

If the character is lawful-aligned, the damage reduction is 10/silver.

If the character is chaotic-aligned, the damage reduction is 10/cold iron.

A favored soul who is neither lawful nor chaotic may choose either type of damage reduction.

HUMAN FAVORED SOUL STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Heavy mace (1d8, crit x2, 8 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Intimidate (cc)	2	Cha	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—
Survival (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Combat Casting.

Bonus Feat: Toughness.

Deity: Pelor.

Spells Known: 0—detect magic, cure minor wounds, light, read magic; 1st—bless, command, cure light wounds.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Wooden holy symbol (sun disc of Pelor).

Hooded lantern, 5 pints of oil.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 1-2: THE FAVORED SOUL

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	—	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	—	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Deity's weapon focus	6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+4	+4	—	6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Energy resistance (1st type)	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+5	+5	—	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	—	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	—	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	—	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+7	+7	+7	Energy resistance (2nd type)	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+7	+7	+7	—	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Deity's weapon specialization	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
14th	+10/+5	+9	+9	+9	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+9	+9	Energy resistance (3rd type)	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	Wings	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+11	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+11	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+12	+12	Damage reduction	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6

HEALER

The hurts of the world are manifold.

Minor accidents are common, and usually easily dealt with.

However, when conflict and all-out warfare occur, they leave misery and hurt in their wake that can stagger the imagination.

While good-aligned clerics are called upon to heal, their complex obligations and abilities often get in the way of pure solace and remediation.

Not so the healer.

One of the healer's great purposes in life is to provide protection, and failing that, healing, to all good people who require her aid.

Empathetic, a healer is adept both at detecting the ailments of allies and understanding the coarse, unruly thoughts of beasts.

Her way with animals wins her friends among otherwise savage creatures of the wild.

Adventures: The healer provides aid to members of her adventuring company, the soldiers of her religion, or the alliance to which she is pledged.

When a battlefield is strewn with wounded allies or an expedition team's members are sorely hurt, a healer cures the injuries of the faithful and those who have allied themselves with the side of good.

A healer might accept a commission to escort a company or warband on a dangerous mission, making herself available to cast divine protections and offer divine healing.

The healer is much revered for her services, and she may ask her companions for daily praise to her deity—or at least an equal share in any reward garnered after the successful conclusion of the adventure or military action.

Characteristics: Healers are masters of curative magic, outpacing even clerics in this regard.

This focus on healing comes with a trade-off: A healer's spell list is sharply constrained, and it lacks destructive magic and violent spells.

Healers have some combat capability and are familiar with basic weapons and some armor.

Alignment: Dedicating one's life to curative magic requires a good alignment.

Religion: Healers revere good-aligned deities or righteous causes.

Background: Some healers are unofficially attached members of religious organizations.

Others wander the lands freely, either alone or in adventuring companies.

Many also take up service in armies that combat evil, repel invasions, or otherwise "fight the good fight".

Healing all allies—no matter their philosophy—while at the same time eschewing the use of violent spells requires a selfless quality and dedication to good.

A healer must be gentle, but also strong in her convictions.

Races: The need for healing knows no racial boundaries, and healers include members of all the common races.

Adventuring healers are most often humans and elves.

Healers are less common among the dwarves, who would rather prevent wounds (by smashing the enemy) than cure them.

Other Classes: The healer is rarely snubbed in an adventuring company.

All realize that her presence could be the advantage that enables them to see their next quest through to the end.

Healers sometimes clash with clerics, since clerics represent a more dogmatic view of faith and reverence toward the deities.

Role: A healer is easy to spot.

She moves about behind an adventuring company or combat unit, applying her divine skills to bring relief to the injured.

After she passes, the wounded press forward with renewed vigor, and the fallen may yet rise again.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Healers have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom determines how many spells a healer can cast per day.

Charisma determines how effective the healer's spells are.

A high Constitution improves her hit points, allowing her to brave combat and letting her spend fewer healing spells on herself.

Alignment: Any good.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The healer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spellcraft (Int), and Survival (Wis).

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the healer.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Healers are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor.

Additionally, a healer who uses metal armor or any kind of shield is severely hampered.

The armor of a healer is restricted by traditional oaths, not simply training.

A healer knows how to wear light metal armor and could become proficient with medium or heavy armor, but wearing metal armor or bearing a shield would violate her oath and suppress her healer powers.

Her ethos requires a certain vulnerability that allows her to more fully empathize with those in their care.

A healer who uses prohibited armor is unable to cast healer spells or use any of her supernatural or spell-like class features while doing so and for 24 hours after the armor is taken off.

Spells: A healer casts divine spells (the same type of spells available to clerics), which are drawn from the healer spell list given below.

A healer must choose and prepare her spells in advance (see below).

To prepare or cast a spell, a healer must have a Wisdom score of $10 + \text{the spell's level}$ (Wis 10 for 0-level spells, Wis 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a healer's spell is $10 + \text{the spell's level} + \text{the healer's Charisma modifier}$.

Like other spellcasters, a healer can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1-4: The Healer.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Healers do not acquire their spells from books or scrolls, nor do they prepare them through study.

Instead, they meditate or pray for their spells, receiving them through their own strength of faith.

Each healer must choose a time at which she must spend 1 hour each day in quiet contemplation or supplication to regain her daily allotment of spells.

Time spent resting has no effect on whether a healer can prepare spells.

A healer may prepare and cast any spell on the healer spell list (see below), provided she can cast spells of that level, but she must choose which spells to prepare during her daily meditation.

Healing Hands (Ex): Whenever a healer casts a spell that cures hit point damage, she adds her Charisma modifier to the amount of damage healed.

For instance, if a 5th-level healer with an 18 Charisma casts cure light wounds, she cures $1d8+5$ points of damage normally, plus an additional 4 points of damage due to her Charisma bonus.

This bonus applies only to spells of the healing subschool that she casts as a healer, not to those that she may have by virtue of levels in another class.

Skill Focus (Heal): A healer's focused training grants her this bonus feat at 2nd level.

If she already has that feat, she may choose a different one.

Cleanse Paralysis (Su): A healer deals with certain kinds of maladies so often that eventually she can cure them without resorting to a spell.

At 3rd level, a healer gains the ability to cleanse paralysis once per day, as if casting a remove paralysis spell.

Cleanse Disease (Su): At 4th level, a healer gains the ability to cleanse disease once per day, as if casting a remove disease spell.

Cleanse Fear (Su): At 5th level, a healer gains the ability to cleanse fear once per day, as if casting a remove fear spell.

Cleanse Poison (Su): At 6th level, a healer gains the ability to cleanse poison once per day, as if casting a neutralize poison spell.

Effortless Healing (Ex): At 7th level, a healer has learned to cast spells of the healing subschool with minimal effort. She may cast such spells without provoking attacks of opportunity.

This ability applies only to spells of the healing subschool that she casts as a healer, not to those that she may have by virtue of levels in another class.

Unicorn Companion (Ex): When a healer attains 8th level, the deities recognize her devotion and grant her a celestial unicorn companion as her mount and aide.

The unicorn, a symbol of healing and purity, serves the healer willingly and unswervingly.

Once per day, as a full-round action, the healer may magically call her companion from the celestial realms in which it resides.

The companion immediately appears adjacent to the healer and remains for 2 hours per healer level.

It may be dismissed at any time as a free action.

The companion is the same creature each time it is called, though the healer may release a particular companion from service to gain a companion of a different kind.

Each time the companion is called, it appears in full health, regardless of any damage it may have taken previously.

The companion also appears wearing or carrying any gear it had when it was last dismissed.

Calling a companion is a conjuration (calling) effect.

A healer of 12th level or higher may select from alternative lists of companions (see the sidebar).

THE HEALER'S COMPANION

The healer's companion is different from a normal creature of its kind in many ways. The standard companion for a healer is a celestial unicorn. It is superior to a normal celestial unicorn and has special powers, as described below.

Healer Level	Bonus HD	Natural Armor Adj.	Str/Dex/Int Adj.	Special
8th–11th	+0	+0	+0	Empathic link, improved evasion, share saving throws, share spells
12th–14th	+2	+2	+2
15th–17th	+4	+4	+2	Devotion
18th–20th	+6	+6	+2	Improved speed, spell resistance

Healer's Companion Basics: Use the base statistics for a creature of the companion's kind, as given below or in the Monster Manual, but make the following changes:

Healer Level: The character's healer level, which has a direct effect on the extent of the companion's special powers.

Bonus HD: Extra eight-sided (d8) Hit Dice, each of which gains a Constitution modifier, as normal. Bonus Hit Dice improve the companion's base attack and base save bonuses. A companion's base attack bonus is the same as that of a cleric of a level equal to the companion's HD. A companion has good Fortitude and Reflex saves (treat it as a character whose level equals the creature's HD). The companion gains extra skill points and feats for bonus HD as normal for advancing a monster's Hit Dice (see the Monster Manual).

Natural Armor Adj.: The number noted here is an improvement to the creature's existing natural armor bonus. It represents the preternatural toughness of a healer's companion.

Str/Dex/Int Adj.: Add this figure to the companion's Strength, Dexterity, and Intelligence scores.

Empathic Link (Su): The healer has an empathic link with her companion out to a distance of up to 1 mile. The healer cannot see through the companion's eyes, but they can communicate empathically. Note that unicorns see the world differently from humans, so misunderstandings are always possible.

Because of this empathic link, the healer has the same connection to an item or place that her companion does, just as with a master and his familiar (see the Familiars sidebar, page 52 of the Player's Handbook).

Improved Evasion (Ex): When subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex save for half damage, a companion takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw and half damage even if the saving throw fails.

Share Saving Throws: For each of its saving throws, the companion uses its own base save bonus or the healer's, whichever is higher. The companion applies its own ability modifiers to saves, and it doesn't share any other bonuses on saves that the healer might have (such as from magic items or feats).

Share Spells: At the healer's option, she may have any spell (but not any spell-like ability) she casts on herself also affect her companion. The companion must be within 5 feet at the time of casting to receive the benefit. If the spell or effect has a duration other than instantaneous, it stops affecting the companion if the creature moves farther than 5 feet away and will not affect the companion again even if it returns to the healer before the duration expires. Additionally, the healer may cast a spell with a target of "You" on her companion (as a touch range spell) instead of on herself. A healer and her companion can share spells even if the spells normally do not affect creatures of the companion's type (magical beast).

Devotion (Ex): A companion's devotion to its master is so complete that it gains a +4 morale bonus on Will saves against enchantment spells and effects.

Improved Speed (Ex): The companion's base ground speed increases by 10 feet.

Spell Resistance (Su): A companion's spell resistance equals its master's healer level + 5.

ALTERNATIVE CELESTIAL COMPANIONS

A healer of sufficiently high level can select her celestial companion from the following list. Apply the indicated adjustment to the healer's level for purposes of determining the companion's characteristics and special abilities. For example, if a 14th-level healer takes a gynosphinx as a companion, the gynosphinx's special abilities are determined as if the healer were 10th level instead of 14th (due to the -4 adjustment). These companions are symbols of healing in various cultures.

12th Level or Higher (Level -4)

Lammasu

Gynosphinx

Water naga¹

16th Level or Higher (Level -8)

Androsphinx

Couatl

¹ Available only in an aquatic environment.

SAMPLE UNICORN COMPANION

The statistics below are for a celestial unicorn. The statistics do not include the modifications for being a companion as given on the table above.

Celestial Unicorn: CR 4; Large magical beast; HD 4d10+20; hp 42; Init +3; Spd 60 ft.; AC 18, touch 12, flat-footed 15; Base Atk +4; Grp +13; Atk +11 melee (1d8+8, horn); Full Atk +11 melee (1d8+8, horn) and +3 melee (1d4+2, 2 hooves); SA smite evil +4 1/day; SQ damage reduction 5/magic, darkvision 60 ft., immunity to poison, charm, and compulsion, low-light vision, magic circle against evil, resistance to acid 5, cold 5, electricity 5, scent, spell-like abilities, spell resistance 9, wild empathy; AL CG; SV Fort +9, Ref +7, Will +6; Str 20, Dex 17, Con 21, Int 10, Wis 21, Cha 24.

Skills and Feats: Jump +21, Listen +11, Move Silently +9, Spot +11, Survival +8; Alertness, Skill Focus (Survival).

Spell-Like Abilities: At will—detect evil as a free action; 3/day—cure light wounds (caster level 5th); 1/day—cure moderate wounds (caster level 5th), neutralize poison (caster level 8th), greater teleport within the boundaries of its home forest.

Should she select a companion from one of these alternative lists, the creature gains abilities as if the character's healer level were lower than it actually is. Subtract the value indicated in the appropriate list header from the character's healer level and compare the result with the healer level entry on the table in the sidebar to determine the companion's powers. (If this adjustment would reduce the healer's effective level to 0 or lower, she can't have that creature as a companion).

For example, a 12th-level healer could select a lammasu as a companion.

The lammasu would have characteristics and special abilities as if the healer were 8th level (taking into account the -4 adjustment) instead of 12th level.

Should the healer's companion die, it immediately disappears, leaving behind any equipment it was carrying. The healer may not call another companion for 30 days or until she gains a healer level, whichever comes first, even if the companion is somehow returned from the dead.

During this 30-day period, the healer is distraught and takes a -4 penalty on attack rolls and weapon damage rolls.

Cleanse Blindness (Su): At 9th level, a healer gains the ability to cleanse blindness once per day, as if casting a remove blindness/deafness spell.

Cleanse Spirit (Su): At 10th level, a healer gains the ability to restore a creature to health once per day, as if casting a greater restoration spell.

Cleanse Petrification (Su): At 13th level, a healer gains the ability to restore a petrified creature to health once per day, as if casting a stone to flesh spell.

New Limb (Su): At 15th level, a healer gains the ability to regrow a creature's lost or damaged body part once per day, as if casting a regenerate spell.

New Life (Su): Once per week, a 20th-level healer can bring a dead creature back to life, as if casting a true resurrection spell.

EX-HEALERS

A healer who grossly violates her ethos (such as by refusing to heal an ally or a good-aligned creature) loses all spells and class features (except for proficiency with simple weapons and light armor).

She cannot thereafter gain levels as a healer until she atones (see the atonement spell description, page 201 of the Player's Handbook).

HEALER SPELL LIST

Healers choose their spells from the following list.

0 Level: create water, cure minor wounds, deathwatch, detect magic, detect poison, light, mending, purify food and drink, read magic.

1st Level: bless water, cure light wounds, goodberry, protection from evil, remove fear, remove paralysis, sanctuary, speak with animals.

2nd Level: calm emotions, cure moderate wounds, delay poison, gentle repose, remove blindness/deafness, remove disease, lesser restoration.

3rd Level: close wounds, create food and water, cure serious wounds, neutralize poison, remove curse, restoration, status.*

4th Level: cure critical wounds, death ward, freedom of movement, mass cure light wounds, panacea.*

5th Level: atonement, break enchantment, mass cure moderate wounds, raise dead, revivify, stone to flesh, true seeing.*

6th Level: greater restoration, heal, heroes' feast, mass cure serious wounds, regenerate.

7th Level: mass cure critical wounds, repulsion, resurrection.

8th Level: discern location, holy aura, mass heal.

9th Level: foresight, gate, true resurrection.

* New spell described in Chapter 2 of this book.

HUMAN HEALER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Leather (+2 AC, speed 30 ft., 15 lb.).

Weapons: Longspear (1d8, crit ×3, 9 lb., two-handed, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Concentration	4	Con	—
Heal	4	Wis	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Sense Motive	4	Wis	—
Handle Animal	4	Cha	—
Survival	4	Wis	—
Craft	4	Int	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—

Feat: Scribe Scroll.

Bonus Feat: Toughness.

Deity: Pelor.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Scroll of cure light wounds.

Wooden holy symbol.

Bullseye lantern, 5 pints of oil.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 1-4: THE HEALER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Healing hands	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Skill Focus (Heal)	4	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+3	+1	+3	Cleanse paralysis	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Cleanse disease	5	4	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+4	+1	+4	Cleanse fear	5	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Cleanse poison	5	5	4	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+5	+2	+5	Effortless healing	6	5	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+6	+2	+6	Unicorn companion	6	5	5	4	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+6	+3	+6	Cleanse blindness	6	6	5	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+7	+3	+7	Cleanse spirit	6	6	5	5	4	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+7	+3	+7	—	6	6	6	5	5	4	3	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	5	5	4	4	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+8	+4	+8	Cleanse petrification	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	3	—	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+9	+4	+9	—	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	4	—	—	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+9	+5	+9	New limb	6	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	3	—	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	4	—	—	—
17th	+8/+3	+10	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	3	—	—
18th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	4	—	—
19th	+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	—	—
20th	+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	New life	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	5	4	—	—

MARSHAL

Sometimes it is not enough to be a conquering warrior, a champion of all that's right, an experienced sellsword, or an elite foot soldier.

Sometimes the circumstances require a solid commander of soldiers and situations.

Sometimes the circumstances demand a marshal.

Marshals inspire trust in those they lead.

They earn that trust by slogging through harsh landscapes, dangerous battlefields, and haunted catacombs along with those under their command.

With a look, they can see where to best deploy their resources or come up with a sneaky ruse to fool their enemies.

A marshal has a tactician's mind, a cartographer's overview of the disputed landscape (or dungeon warren), and a way with words that can inspire battle-hardened fighters to give it their all when melee breaks out.

Adventures: Whether leading troops or a company of adventurers, marshals accept commissions in return for their service.

Once a commission is accepted, most marshals feel honor-bound to see the contract through to its end.

If the choice is between honoring the commission and the survival of his company, though, many a marshal will break the commission and lead his forces to a new patron in distant lands.

Characteristics: Trained in the basics of fighting, marshals possess a general knowledge of weapons and armor. Their real strength is their ability to lead those who follow them to success they might not otherwise reach in combat. Marshals make passable warriors themselves, when personal danger finds them.

Alignment: Marshals may be of any alignment.

Good-aligned marshals are often crusading leaders who seek out and fight evil.

Lawful-aligned marshals accept commissions from people who face invasion by foreign aggressors.

Chaotic-aligned marshals lead mercenaries to wherever the pay is best.

Evil-aligned marshals tend to lead forces of foreign aggressors set on invasion and plunder.

Religion: Marshals often worship Heironeous (god of valor) or Kord (god of strength).

Some worship St. Cuthbert (god of retribution), Hextor (god of tyranny), or Erythnul (god of slaughter).

Background: Marshals come to their profession through study and desire.

Most have had formal training in a noble's army, where they were given positions of authority.

Others have trained in formal academies, preparing themselves for careers as a military officers.

Marshals see others of their class as part of a special group, especially those they have studied with.

Even enemy marshals can be afforded some respect, though the enemy's forces must be crushed all the same.

Races: Human marshals often follow in the footsteps of their parents, who served as officers in earlier wars, conflicts, or mercenary companies.

Dwarf marshals are trained to lead strike teams that protect the underground dwarven kingdoms.

Elf marshals rarely enroll in military academies, though half-elves often do.

Half-orc marshals fight an uphill battle in trying to garner respect in mixed-race units.

Among the brutal humanoids, few manage to enroll in the academies where the elite skills of command are taught.

Other Classes: The marshal relies on the other classes in all ways—it is his job to support a team, magnifying the strengths of each member for success in battles or forays into dangerous cavern complexes.

Role: In most adventuring parties, the marshal serves as the lead tactician, while his comrades support him with spells, ranged attacks, and other effects.

However, once a plan is in motion, most marshals enter the melee to assure victory.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Marshals have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma is especially important for marshals because it improves their standing with those they lead, as well as permitting them to magnify the efforts of the group. Constitution is important for a marshal's staying power. Intelligence is important for the many skills required by marshals to complete their commissions.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The marshal's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (Int), Listen (Wis), Perform (Cha), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language (n/a), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the marshal.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Marshals are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor (heavy, medium, and light), and with shields (except tower shields).

Auras (Ex): The marshal exerts an effect on allies in his vicinity.

He can learn to produce different effects, or auras, over the course of his career.

The marshal may project one minor aura and (starting at 2nd level) one major aura at a time.

Projecting an aura is a swift action (see Chapter 2: Magic).

The aura remains in effect until the marshal uses a free action to dismiss it or activates another aura of the same kind (major or minor).

A marshal can have an aura active continually; thus, an aura can be in effect at the start of a combat encounter even before the marshal takes his first turn.

Activating an aura involves haranguing, ordering, directing, encouraging, cajoling, or calming allies.

A marshal sizes up the enemy, allies, and the terrain, then gives allies the direction that they can use to do their best.

Unless otherwise noted, a marshal's aura affects all allies within 60 feet (including himself) who can hear the marshal.

An ally must have an Intelligence score of 3 or higher and be able to understand the marshal's language to gain the bonus.

A marshal's aura is dismissed if he is dazed, unconscious, stunned, paralyzed, or otherwise unable to be heard or understood by his allies.

A marshal begins play knowing one minor aura of his choice.

As his marshal level increases, he gains access to new auras, as indicated on Table 1–5: The Marshal.

All bonuses granted by a marshal's auras are circumstance bonuses that do not stack with each other.

Minor Aura: A minor aura lets allies add the marshal's Charisma bonus (if any) to certain rolls.

Accurate Strike: Bonus on rolls made to confirm critical hits.

Art of War: Bonus on disarm, trip, bull rush, and sunder attempts.

Demand Fortitude: Bonus on Fortitude saves.

Determined Caster: Bonus on rolls to overcome spell resistance.

Force of Will: Bonus on Will saves.

Master of Opportunity: Bonus to Armor Class against attacks of opportunity.

Master of Tactics: Bonus on damage rolls when flanking.

Motivate Charisma: Bonus on Charisma checks and Charisma-based skill checks.

Motivate Constitution: Bonus on Constitution checks and Constitution-based skill checks.

Motivate Dexterity: Bonus on Dexterity checks, Dexterity-based skill checks, and initiative checks.

Motivate Intelligence: Bonus on Intelligence checks and Intelligence-based skill checks.

Motivate Strength: Bonus on Strength checks and Strength-based skill checks.

Motivate Wisdom: Bonus on Wisdom checks and Wisdom-based skill checks.

Over the Top: Bonus on damage rolls when charging.

Watchful Eye: Bonus on Reflex saves.

Major Aura: Beginning at 2nd level, a marshal can project a major aura in addition to his minor aura.

A major aura lets allies add +1 to certain rolls.

This bonus improves by +1 at 7th, 14th, and 20th level.

Hardy Soldiers: The marshal's allies gain damage reduction equal to the amount of bonus the aura provides.

For example, if the marshal is 10th level, everyone affected gains DR 2/–.

Motivate Ardor: Bonus on damage rolls.

Motivate Attack: Bonus on melee attack rolls.

Motivate Care: Bonus to Armor Class.

Motivate Urgency: Allies' base land speed is increased by a number of feet equal to 5 × the amount of bonus the aura provides.

For example, the allies of a 10th-level marshal (+2 major aura) add 10 feet to their base land speed.

Resilient Troops: Bonus on all saves.

Steady Hand: Bonus on ranged attack rolls.

Skill Focus (Diplomacy): Because a marshal has a way with people, he gains this feat as a bonus feat.

If the marshal already has the feat, he can choose a different one.

Grant Move Action (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a marshal can direct and motivate his allies to act immediately.

Once per day, as a standard action, he may grant an extra move action to any or all of his allies within 30 feet (but not to himself).

Each of the affected allies takes this extra move action immediately, acting in their current initiative order.

This extra action does not affect the allies' initiative count; the round continues normally after the marshal's turn is over.

(This may mean, for example, that an ally whose initiative count immediately follows the marshal's may get an extra move action from the marshal, followed directly by a full round worth of actions on the ally's turn).

At 8th level, a marshal gains the ability to grant an extra move action to his allies twice per day.

The frequency increases to three times per day at 12th level, four times per day at 16th level, and five times per day at 20th level.

A character can take only one extra move action per round. (In other words, two marshals can't use this ability on the same ally in the same round).

If an ally chooses not to take the extra move action, it is lost.

HALF-ELF MARSHAL STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty –4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty –2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit ×3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Swim	4	Str	–12
Gather Information (cc)	2	Cha	—
Climb (cc)	2	Str	–6
Jump (cc)	2	Str	–6

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Minor Aura: Master of tactics.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Bullseye lantern, 5 pints of oil.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 1-5: THE MARSHAL

Level	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special	Auras Known
	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save		Minor	Major
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Skill Focus (Diplomacy), minor aura	1	0
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Major aura +1	1	1
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	—	2	1
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Grant move action 1/day	2	1
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	—	3	2
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	—	3	2
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Major aura +2	4	2
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	Grant move action 2/day	4	2
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	—	5	3
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7	—	5	3
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	—	5	3
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Grant move action 3/day	6	3
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	—	6	3
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	Major aura +3	6	4
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	—	7	4
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Grant move action 4/day	7	4
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	—	7	4
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	—	7	4
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	—	8	4
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Grant move action 5/day, major aura +4	8	5

WARMAGE

Some spellcasters care for only one thing: war. They dream of steel and mighty blasts of devastating magic, the march of troops, and the unleashed destruction found on battlefields everywhere.

Graduates of special arcane war colleges, those known as warmages are drilled only and utterly in the casting of spells most useful for laying down destruction, confusing an enemy, or screening an allied action.

The utilitarian spells used by wizards and sorcerers have little importance to the warmage's way of thinking.

What are support casters for, after all?

The warmage cares only for success on the battlefield, or, in some cases, in the series of smaller campaigns favored by adventuring companies.

Adventures: Warmages sign up for stints with adventuring companies that require straightforward, military-style blasting magic.

Warmages hone and develop their arts through action rather than study, so without prolonged use of their powers in combat they cannot reach the pinnacle of their profession.

Good-aligned warmages are concerned with rebuffing the movements of warlike groups—who better to blast into smoking ruin than those who have it coming?

Evil-aligned warmages feel no constraints on who might become the targets of their spells.

They adventure to gain destructive power.

Characteristics: Warmages access their magic peculiarly, at least compared to the way wizards, sorcerers, and cleric do its.

A warmage selects his spells from a limited pool of knowledge that rarely changes.

Early in his difficult training, each warmage instills deep within himself the knowledge of all the spells he'll ever need.

Warmages know fewer spells than wizards and sorcerers do, but the spells they do know are enhanced.

A warmage does not need to study a spellbook, but does need to prepare his spells each day by spending time to call up the knowledge from his unconscious mind.

Warmages do not specialize in certain schools of magic the way wizards may.

In their time spent training, warmages also learn a few mundane warlike skills.

They develop proficiency with some weapons and armor. They learn to use such items without incurring a risk of spell failure.

Alignment: Because all alignments must be prepared to fight for their causes, warmages might be found among virtually any army that uses spellcasting as artillery on the battlefield.

Religion: Some warmages favor Boccob (god of magic), while others follow Wee Jas (goddess of death and magic). Many warmages revere no deity at all.

Background: Warmages are chosen (or apply) to attend special arcane war colleges.

Such colleges are not for the weak of spirit.

The rigors of both body and mind bear little resemblance to the apprenticeship undergone by regular wizards, or the self-taught fumbling of sorcerers.

Warmage colleges are more similar to boot camps sponsored by large nation-states.

Throughout their training, warmages are forced to constantly wear ponderous garments (meant to familiarize their bodies with the limitations of movement in armor) while drilling constantly with spells, most of which are too high in level to be cast by the student.

This vigorous drilling instills the spells in the warmage's unconscious mind, so that as he grows in power later in life, those spells become available for his use without his needing a spellbook.

After their training, warmages share a deep feeling of camaraderie with their fellow students, and continue to feel a slight affection for any well-run military outfit.

Races: Most warmages are humans or half-elves.

But the toughness of spirit needed to survive a term at an arcane war college can manifest itself in any of the common races.

It is rare for savage humanoids to be accepted into a war college, though some of the more organized societies may set up their own war colleges for arcane spellcasters.

Other Classes: Warmages find they have little in common with sorcerers and wizards, who learn their craft without the rigors or discipline of the warmage's apprenticeship. In fact, warmages are likely to be more comfortable with the regimented classes—those that appreciate military training, such as paladins, monks, and fighters.

Role: The warmage's spell selection is already determined. He is the ranged magical artillery that military troops rely on, or the center of a smaller adventuring company's offensive power.

An adventuring company with a warmage should strongly consider including a second spellcaster, such as a bard, cleric, druid, healer, or even a wizard, to complement the warmage's offensive focus with defensive and utilitarian abilities.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Warmages have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a warmage can cast, how many spells the warmage can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

Like a sorcerer or wizard, a warmage benefits from high Dexterity and Constitution scores.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The warmage's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Intimidate (Cha), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the warmage.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Warmages are proficient with all simple weapons, light armor, and light shields.

At 8th level, a warmage gains proficiency with medium armor.

(See also Armored Mage, below).

Spells: A warmage casts arcane spells (the same type of spells available to sorcerers and wizards), which are drawn from the warmage spell list given below.

He can cast any spell he knows without preparing it ahead of time the way a cleric or wizard must.

To cast a spell, a warmage must have a Charisma score of 10 + the spell's level (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a warmage's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the warmage's Charisma modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a warmage can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1–6: The Warmage.

In addition, he receives bonus spells for a high Charisma score (see Table 1–1, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Unlike a cleric or wizard, a warmage need not prepare his spells in advance.

He can cast any spell he knows at any time, assuming he has not yet used up his spells per day for that spell level.

Armored Mage (Ex): Normally, armor of any type interferes with an arcane spellcaster's gestures, which can cause his spells to fail (if those spells have somatic components).

Warmages' limited focus and specialized training, however, allow them to avoid arcane spell failure as long as they stick to light armor and light shields.

This training does not extend to medium or heavier armors, nor to heavy shields.

Nor does this ability apply to spells gained from a different spellcasting class.

At 8th level, a warmage learns to use medium armor with no chance of arcane spell failure.

Warmage Edge (Ex): Warmages are specialized in dealing damage with their spells.

Whenever a warmage casts a spell that deals hit point damage, he adds his Intelligence bonus (if any) to the amount of damage dealt.

For instance, if a 1st-level warmage with 17 Intelligence casts magic missile, he deals 1d4+1 points of damage normally, plus an extra 3 points of damage due to his Intelligence bonus.

A single spell can never gain this extra damage more than once per casting.

For instance, a fireball deals the extra damage to all creatures in the area it affects.

However, if a 3rd-level warmage casts magic missile and produces two missiles, only one of them (of the warmage's choice) gains the extra damage, even if both missiles are directed at the same target.

If a spell deals damage for more than one round, it gains this extra damage in each round.

Advanced Learning (Ex): At 3rd, 6th, 11th, and 16th level, a warmage may add a new spell to his or her list, representing the result of personal study and experimentation.

The spell must be a wizard spell of the evocation school, and of a level no higher than that of the highest-level spell the warmage already knows.

Once a new spell is selected, it is forever added to that warmage's spell list and may be cast just like any other spell on the warmage's list.

Sudden Empower: At 7th level, a warmage gains Sudden Empower (described later in this chapter) as a bonus feat. If the warmage already has the feat, he can choose a different one.

Sudden Enlarge: At 10th level, a warmage gains Sudden Enlarge (described later in this chapter) as a bonus feat. If the warmage already has the feat, he can choose a different one.

Sudden Widen: At 15th level, a warmage gains Sudden Widen (described later in this chapter) as a bonus feat. If the warmage already has the feat, he can choose a different one.

Sudden Maximize: At 20th level, a warmage gains Sudden Maximize (described later in this chapter) as a bonus feat. If the warmage already has the feat, he can choose a different one.

WARMAGE SPELL LIST

Warmages choose their spells from the following list.

0 Level: acid splash, disrupt undead, light, ray of frost.

1st Level: *lesser acid orb, burning hands, chill touch, *lesser cold orb, *lesser electric orb, *lesser fire orb, magic missile, shocking grasp, sleep, *lesser sonic orb, true strike.

2nd Level: *blades of fire, continual flame, *fireburst, fire trap, flaming sphere, Melf's acid arrow, pyrotechnics, scorching ray, shatter.

3rd Level: fire shield, fireball, flame arrow, gust of wind, ice storm, lightning bolt, poison, *ring of blades, sleet storm, stinking cloud.

4th Level: *blast of flame, contagion, Evard's black tentacles, phantasmal killer, shout, wall of fire.

5th Level: *arc of lightning, cloudkill, cone of cold, *legion's fire shield, *greater fireburst, flamestrike.

6th Level: acid fog, blade barrier, chain lightning, circle of death, disintegrate, fire seeds, Otiluke's freezing sphere, Tenser's transformation.

7th Level: delayed blast fireball, earthquake, finger of death, fire storm, Mordenkainen's sword, prismatic spray, sunbeam, waves of exhaustion.

8th Level: greater shout, horrid wilting, incendiary cloud, polar ray, prismatic wall, scintillating pattern, sunburst.

9th Level: elemental swarm, implosion, meteor swarm, prismatic sphere, wail of the banshee, weird.

* New spell described in Chapter 2 of this book.

HUMAN WARMAGE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Spear (1d8, crit ×3, range inc. 20 ft., 6 lb., two-handed, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Survival (cc)	2	Wis	—
Diplomacy (cc)	2	Cha	—
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	-1

Feat: Combat Casting.

Bonus Feat: Toughness.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Spell component pouch.

Three torches.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

TABLE 1-6: THE WARMAGE

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Armored mage (light), warmage edge	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	—	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Advanced learning	6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Advanced learning	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Sudden Empower	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Armored mage (medium)	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Sudden Enlarge	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Advanced learning	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Sudden Widen	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	Advanced learning	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Sudden Maximize	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	—	—

ORIENTAL ADVENTURES (3.0)

SAMURAI

Samurai are professional warriors, members of the noble class who are trained in the arts of warfare.

They are not only trained for their role in society, they are born for it—born into a system of allegiance, loyalty, and honor that influences every stage of their lives.

A samurai cut loose from this system is no longer a samurai; he is an ordinary fighter, a ronin with no honor and no standing in society.

Adventures: A samurai's first responsibility is obedience to his lord, usually the head of his family.

This is simultaneously an endless source of adventures and a potential hindrance to a life of adventure.

A low-level samurai's lord may command him to investigate a mysterious occurrence or subdue a gang of bandits.

If he performs these duties well, his lord will call on him to deal with more significant problems.

However, a samurai usually cannot simply disappear on an expedition into the Shadowlands without his lord's command or at least permission, and if a samurai's lord has an important mission for him, he must make that his top priority.

Whether this is a significant hindrance or not is up to the Dungeon Master.

Characteristics: Samurai are distinguished from ordinary fighters by their adherence to bushido, a code of honor, loyalty, and obedience.

They have combat training—including some bonus feats—rivaling that of a fighter.

If a samurai remains honorable and true to his code of conduct, his swords—masterwork blades passed down through generations—may awaken in his hands, manifesting increasing magical abilities as the samurai advances in level and invests spiritual energy in them. To a samurai, dishonor is worse than death, and the loss of his swords is possibly the worst dishonor imaginable.

Alignment: Bushido, the code of the samurai, demands strict obedience to standards of behavior and honor.

Only lawful characters can adhere to this code and call themselves samurai.

Background: Samurai learn their combat techniques and the principles of bushido in established, well-organized schools.

In Rokugan, at least one family is responsible for training samurai within each clan.

The Crab's Hida school, the Crane's Daidoji and Kakita schools, the Dragon's Mirumoto school, the Lion's Akodo and Matsu schools, the Phoenix's Shiba school, the Scorpion's Bayushi school, and the Unicorn's Moto and Shinjo schools are the samurai schools of Rokugan.

Races: Almost without exception, all samurai in Rokugan are humans from the major clans.

In other campaign settings, only humans and spirit folk usually become samurai, because the samurai is very much a characteristic of human society.

Other Classes: Samurai consider themselves the pinnacle of the Celestial Order that structures their society.

Shugenjas are technically their equals in this order, but in a world where honor is virtually equated with battle prowess, shugenjas have a tenuous hold on that position.

Samurai respect only other samurai—as well as other characters (Unicorn barbarians, Crab rangers) who wear the daisho and uphold the code of bushido.

They are prone to treating members of other character classes as servants, or sidekicks at best, unless such characters are obviously well respected by the samurai's lord.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Samurai have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is especially important for samurai because it improves their melee attack and damage rolls.

Constitution is important for giving samurai lots of hit points, which they'll need in their many battles.

Dexterity is important for samurai who want to be skilled archers, improves their Armor Class, and allows them access to certain Dexterity-oriented feats.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

A samurai's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Iaijutsu Focus (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Sense Motive (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

The Iaijutsu Focus skill is described in Chapter 4 of this book.

Skill Points at 1st level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the samurai.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Samurai are proficient with all simple and martial weapons and with light and medium armor.

Samurai are not proficient with shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble. Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Ancestral Daisho: All samurai begin play with a katana and a wakizashi—two masterwork weapons.

These are weapons that belonged to the samurai's ancestors, and protecting the weapons is an important point of honor for the samurai.

As a samurai acquires treasure through adventuring, he has the option of awakening the supernatural abilities latent in the weapons.

This option allows a samurai who prefers to use his ancestral blade to wield a magic weapon, while a samurai who wields a tetsubo against Shadowlands fiends can use his treasure to acquire new jade or magic weapons.

At any time, a samurai may retreat to a temple or shrine and spend time in prayer in order to awaken the ancestral spirits in his katana or wakizashi.

(Most samurai improve their katanas and not their wakizashis).

This requires a sacrifice of valuable items worth the amount shown on Table 2-2: Ancestral Daisho.

TABLE 2-2: ANCESTRAL DAISHO

Weapon Bonus	Total Sacrifice Required	Minimum Character Level
+1	2,000 gp	4th
+2	8,000 gp	7th
+3	18,000 gp	9th
+4	32,000 gp	11th
+5	50,000 gp	13th
+6*	72,000 gp	14th
+7*	98,000 gp	15th
+8*	128,000 gp	16th
+9*	162,000 gp	17th
+10*	200,000 gp	18th

*A weapon can't actually have a bonus higher than +5. Use these lines to determine price when special abilities are added in. Example: A samurai who has a +4 katana can transform it into a +4 thundering katana with a sacrifice of 40,000 gp, since thundering is a special ability equivalent to a +2 bonus.

This sacrifice does not have to be gold—the character can sacrifice magic items or other goods worth the required amount, rather than selling his goods (at half value) to pay for the sacrifice.

The samurai must meet the minimum character level (including any prestige class levels) shown on the table, and he must spend one day per 1,000 gp sacrificed in the shrine or temple.

During this time, he must spend at least 8 hours each day kneeling before his ancestors and his weapons, not stopping to eat or rest.

Many samurai request the assistance of a shugenja in this process, but a shugenja is not required.

The values shown on Table 2–2 are the total value of sacrifice required to bring a single weapon to the listed weapon bonus.

If a samurai already has a +3 katana, he can raise it to a +4 katana by sacrificing 14,000 gp and spending two weeks in prayer.

If the same samurai wanted to bring his masterwork wakizashi to a +1 wakizashi, he would have to sacrifice 2,000 gp.

Before a samurai's ancestral sword becomes a +1 weapon, it is an ordinary masterwork weapon in every way.

Its latent supernatural powers do not cause it to be considered a magic weapon until those powers are awakened.

A samurai who loses his ancestral swords is dishonored until he can recover them.

He cannot enhance any other weapon in this way.

Note: In some campaigns, a samurai might begin play with a different ancestral weapon, such as a tulwar (scimitar) or a jian (longsword).

Bonus Feats: At 2nd level, the samurai gets a bonus feat. The samurai gains an additional bonus feat at 4th level and every three levels thereafter (7th, 10th, 13th, 16th, and 19th).

These bonus feats must be drawn from the list that appears below for the character's clan.

Crab—Emphasize heavy armor, great strength, and unusual weapons.

Feats: Armor Proficiency (heavy), Dodge (Mobility, Spring Attack), Endurance, Power Attack (Cleave, Improved Bull Rush, Sunder, Great Cleave), Run, Weapon Focus (battleaxe, greatclub, katana, or warhammer).

Crane—Emphasize speed and agility.

Feats: Dodge (Mobility, Spring Attack), Expertise (Improved Disarm, Improved Trip, Whirlwind Attack), Improved Initiative, Quick Draw, Skill Focus (Iaijutsu Focus), Toughness, Weapon Focus (katana).

Dragon—Teach two-weapon fighting and unarmed combat.

Feats: Exotic Weapon Proficiency (katana), Improved Grapple (Choke Hold), Improved Unarmed Strike (Defensive Throw, Deflect Arrows, Grappling Block, Great Throw, Stunning Fist), Power Attack (Cleave), Weapon Focus (katana).

Lion—Emphasize strategy, intelligence, and strength of will.

Feats: Endurance, Expertise (Improved Disarm, Improved Trip, Whirlwind Attack), Improved Initiative, Iron Will, Ki Shout (Great Ki Shout), Remain Conscious, Toughness, Weapon Focus (katana).

Phoenix—Emphasize mental and spiritual training.

Feats: Alertness, Blind-Fight, Combat Reflexes, Expertise (Improved Disarm, Improved Trip, Whirlwind Attack), Great Fortitude, Improved Initiative, Iron Will, Quick Draw, Weapon Focus (katana).

Scorpion—Emphasize mobility and dirty fighting.

Feats: Blind-Fight, Dodge (Mobility, Spring Attack), Expertise (Improved Disarm, Improved Trip, Whirlwind Attack), Improved Initiative, Prone Attack, Quick Draw, Weapon Focus (katana).

Unicorn—Emphasize mounted combat and archery.

Feats: Alertness, Mounted Combat (Mounted Archery, Trample, Ride-By Attack, Spirited Charge), Point Blank

Shot (Far Shot, Precise Shot, Rapid Shot, Shot on the Run), Weapon Focus (spear, lance, bow, or katana).

Characters without a clan should choose one clan that best represents the fighting style they wish to learn.

They must thereafter choose their bonus feats from the list for that clan.

Some of the bonus feats available to a samurai cannot be acquired until the samurai has gained one or more prerequisite feats; these feats are listed parenthetically after the prerequisite feat.

A samurai must still meet all prerequisites for a feat, including ability score and base attack bonus minimums.

Code of Conduct: A samurai must be of lawful alignment, and dishonors himself, his family, and his swords if he ever willingly commits a chaotic act.

Additionally, the samurai code of bushido requires that he be obedient to his lord, accept death at any time and face it bravely, avenge any dishonor, and shun any appearance of cowardice.

The core principles of bushido are honor, loyalty, and courage.

Violating these precepts results in dishonor, which may result in a samurai being stripped of his family name or being asked to commit seppuku (ritual suicide).

EX-SAMURAI

A samurai who becomes nonlawful or violates the tenets of bushido cannot gain new levels as a samurai.

He retains all his bonus feats, but his ancestral weapons lose any "awakened" magical abilities.

If the samurai returns to lawful alignment, he must atone for his violations (see the atonement spell description in the Player's Handbook) and redeem his honor in order to restore his weapons to their prior status and continue advancing as a samurai.

TABLE 2–1: THE SAMURAI

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Ancestral daisho
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Bonus feat
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Bonus feat
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+5
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+5	Bonus feat
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+6
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+6
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+7	Bonus feat
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+7
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+8
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+8	Bonus feat
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+9
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+9
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+10	Bonus feat
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Bonus feat
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12

SHAMAN

If a cleric's basic creed is that the handiwork of the deities is everywhere, a shaman's simple assertion is that the deities themselves are everywhere.

Shamans are intermediaries between the mortal world and the realm of spirits—the vast multitude of living beings that infuse the entire world with divine essence.

Shamans play a vital role in the world of Oriental Adventures—communicating with ancestor spirits, demons, nature spirits, and the most powerful of spirits, who might be considered deities.

The shaman offers sacrifices, prayers, and services to the spirits, and in return gains the favor of patron spirits who bestow spells and other magical abilities upon him.

With the exception of certain Lion clan “spirit talkers” of the Kitsu family, shamans are not found in Rokugan; shugenjas fill this role instead.

Adventures: Shamans often go on adventures not because of any desire of their own, but as a direct result of their unique relationship with the spirit world.

Ancestor spirits often have their own agendas—deeds left undone or wrongs unavenged—and call on their shaman descendants to carry them out.

Peasants and nobles alike often summon shamans if evil spirits or undead monsters cause trouble.

Even nature spirits, normally unconcerned with the affairs of humanity, might request assistance from a shaman if an evil influence (such as a bajang or buso) troubles the natural world.

Shamans who traffic with evil spirits are often driven to commit heinous deeds.

Shamans are both blessed and burdened by their gifts, and may sometimes feel like pawns in the games and machinations of the spirit world.

Characteristics: Shamans use divine magic, much like the clerics of the Player's Handbook.

In addition to healing, shaman spells naturally include means of contacting and communicating with spirits, winning favors from them, or warding against their influence.

Shaman spells are also more strongly oriented toward nature than cleric spells.

A shaman's spells are granted by spirits rather than deities. Shamans have some power over undead, but not as great as clerics have.

Nor are they as fearsome in combat as clerics, although they learn unarmed combat techniques as they advance in level.

Alignment: Most shamans are of good alignment, cooperating with kindly ancestor spirits and opposing evil spirits and undead.

A few shamans, however, side with the evil spirits, using the power the spirits bestow to increase their own power in the world.

Background: Individuals are often drawn to the shaman class because they possess a natural gift for dealing with spirits, rather than the other way around.

As with sorcerers, this gift typically manifests at puberty, though sometimes even young children display an unusual ability to see and communicate with spirits.

The transition from a gifted child or young adult to a powerful shaman, however, is not easy.

Typically, a shaman-to-be spends months in the wilderness, fasting and communing with the spirits, until finding two spirits to serve as patrons in a formal and ritualized relationship.

These two spirits grant the character his first spells, at which point he truly becomes a shaman.

Races: Shamans are typically found among all the races, although their approach to the spirits may vary.

Most shamans are human, because the human race is less in tune with the spirit world and therefore most in need of intermediaries who can communicate with spirits.

Hengeyokai and spirit folk consider themselves spirits, and sometimes see little need to venerate the spirits.

Hengeyokai shamans, who are quite rare, form partnerships with spirits based more on equal respect than on service and veneration.

Spirit folk shamans are somewhat more common, and revere both human ancestors and nature spirits.

Vanaras are quite commonly shamans, because they hold the spirit world in great respect.

Nezumi and korobokuru shamans are rare, but quite similar to human shamans in their practices.

Other Classes: While no adventurer will begrudge a shaman's power to heal and otherwise help an adventuring party, most adventurers view shamans with at least a hint of fear, awe, or wonder.

A shaman's powers are otherworldly, and the spirits that grant those powers often manifest in ways that make mundane-minded fighters and rogues more than a little uncomfortable.

The shaman occupies a unique and sometimes dangerous position on the border between the spirit world and the mortal world, and many characters find that position unnerving.

For their part, shamans tend to look kindly on members of most other classes, humbly offering their powers for the good of the party as a whole.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Shamans have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom determines how powerful a spell a shaman can cast, how many spells the shaman can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a shaman must have a Wisdom score of 10 + the spell's level.

A shaman gets bonus spells based on Wisdom.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a shaman's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the shaman's Wisdom modifier.

A high Constitution improves a shaman's hit points, and a high Charisma improves the shaman's saving throws.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

A shaman's class skills (and the key ability for each school) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Knowledge (spirits) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the shaman.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Shamans are proficient with all simple weapons and with light armor.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Spells: A shaman casts divine spells according to Table 2-3: The Shaman.

A shaman may prepare and cast any spell on the shaman spell list (see Chapter 7: Magic and Spells), provided he can cast spells of that level.

(Alignment restrictions mean that casting some spells may have unpleasant consequences).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a shaman's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the shaman's Wisdom modifier.

Shamans do not acquire their spells from books or scrolls, nor prepare them through study.

Instead, they meditate or pray for their spells, receiving them as gifts from the many spirits (nature spirits, animal spirits, ancestor spirits, and others) with whom the shaman deals.

Each shaman must choose a time at which he must spend an hour each day in quiet conversation with the spirits to regain his daily allotment of spells (typically, this hour is at dawn or noon for good shamans and at dusk or midnight for evil ones).

Time spent resting has no effect on whether a shaman can prepare spells.

In addition to his standard spells, a shaman gets one domain spell of each spell level, starting at 1st.

When a shaman prepares a domain spell, it must come from one of his two domains (see below for details).

Spirits, Domains, and Domain Spells: Choose two domains for your shaman.

Each domain represents an individual spirit with which you have a special relationship—a spirit of the dead (usually one of your ancestors), an animal spirit, or a nature spirit.

Each spirit gives you access to a domain spell at each spell level, from 1st on up, as well as a granted power.

Your shaman gets the granted powers of both domains you select.

With access to two domain spells at a given spell level, a shaman prepares one or the other each day.

If a domain spell is not on the Shaman Spells list, a shaman can only prepare it in his domain slot.

Domain spells and granted powers are given in Shaman Domains (see Chapter 7).

When a shaman reaches 11th level, he can choose a third domain, and gains access to the spells and granted power of this domain.

Each day, he can prepare two domain spells of certain spell levels, as shown on Table 2-3.

Spontaneous Casting: Good shamans can channel stored spell energy into healing spells that they haven't prepared ahead of time.

The shaman can "lose" a prepared spell in order to cast any cure spell of the same level or lower (a cure spell is any spell with "cure" in its name).

For example, a good shaman who has prepared bleed (a 1st-level spell) may lose bleed in order to cast cure light wounds (also a 1st-level spell).

Good shamans can cast cure spells in this way because they are especially proficient at wielding positive energy.

An evil shaman, on the other hand, can't convert prepared spells to cure spells but can convert them to inflict spells (an inflict spell is one with "inflict" in the title).

Such shamans are especially proficient at wielding negative energy.

A neutral shaman can convert spells either to cure spells or to inflict spells (player's choice), depending on whether the shaman is more proficient at wielding positive or negative energy.

Once the player makes this choice, it cannot be reversed.

This choice also determines whether the neutral shaman turns or rebukes undead (see below).

A shaman can't use spontaneous casting to convert domain spells into cure or inflict spells.

These spells arise from the particular powers of the shaman's chosen spirits, not divine energy in general.

Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells: A shaman can't cast spells of an alignment opposed to his own.

A good shaman cannot cast evil spells, and vice versa.

Spells associated with the alignments of chaos, evil, good, and law are identified as such on the "School, Subschool and Descriptors" line of the spell description.

Unarmed Strike: Shamans gain Improved Unarmed Strike as a bonus feat.

Animal Companion: A 1st-level shaman may begin play with an animal companion.

This animal is one that the shaman has befriended with the spell animal friendship.

It can have up to 2 Hit Dice.

(While the shaman is 1st level, this particular animal is loyal enough to stay with him, even though an adventuring shaman usually can only maintain animal friends whose Hit Dice total up to his level).

Alternatively, the shaman may have more than one animal companion provided the animals' total Hit Dice don't exceed 2.

The shaman can also cast animal friendship in play (see the spell description in the Player's Handbook).

Spirit Sight: A shaman of 2nd level and above can see ethereal creatures (including spirits) as easily as he sees material creatures and objects.

The shaman can easily distinguish between ethereal creatures and material ones, because ethereal creatures appear translucent and indistinct.

Turn or Rebuke Undead: When a shaman reaches 3rd level, he gains the supernatural ability to turn or rebuke undead.

He may use this ability a number of times per day equal to three plus his Charisma modifier.

He turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower would.

Neutral shamans must choose to either turn or rebuke undead (see Spontaneous Casting above).

Extra Turning: As a feat, a shaman may take Extra Turning. This feat allows the shaman to turn undead four more times per day than normal.

A shaman can take this feat multiple times, gaining four extra daily turning attempts each time.

Bonus Feat: At 4th level and every four levels thereafter, a shaman gains a bonus martial arts feat.

The shaman must choose these feats from the following list: Defensive Throw, Deflect Arrows (Grappling Block), Dodge, Expertise (Karmic Strike, Improved Trip, Defensive Strike, Superior Expertise), Great Throw, Improved Grapple (Choke Hold, Earth's Embrace), Stunning Fist (Falling Star Strike, Freezing the Lifeblood, Unbalancing Strike, Pain Touch).

Spirits' Favor: A shaman of 5th level or higher applies his Charisma modifier (if positive) as a bonus on all saving throws.

TABLE 2-3: THE SHAMAN

Level	Base		Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day ^a
	Attack	Bonus					0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1st	+0		+0	+0	+2	Unarmed strike, animal companion	3	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1		+0	+0	+3	Spirit sight	4	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2		+1	+1	+3	Turn or rebuke undead	4	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3		+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat	5	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3		+1	+1	+4	Spirits' favor	5	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+4		+2	+2	+5		5	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+5		+2	+2	+5		6	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1		+2	+2	+6	Bonus feat	6	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+6/+1		+3	+3	+6		6	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+7/+2		+3	+3	+7		6	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+8/+3		+3	+3	+7	Third domain	6	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—
12th	+9/+4		+4	+4	+8	Bonus feat	6	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—
13th	+9/+4		+4	+4	+8		6	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—
14th	+10/+5		+4	+4	+9		6	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—
15th	+11/+6/+1		+5	+5	+9		6	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—
16th	+12/+7/+2		+5	+5	+10	Bonus feat	6	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—
17th	+12/+7/+2		+5	+5	+10		6	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—
18th	+13/+8/+3		+6	+6	+11		6	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—
19th	+14/+9/+4		+6	+6	+11		6	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	—
20th	+15/+10/+5		+6	+6	+12	Bonus feat	6	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+2	4+1	4+1	4+1	4+1	—

^aIn addition to the stated number of spells per day for 1st- through 9th-level spells, a shaman gets a domain spell for each spell level, starting at 1st. The "+1" on this list represents that. These spells are in addition to any bonus spells for having a high Wisdom.

SHUGENJA

Shugenjas are divine spellcasters who cast spells by attuning themselves to the elements around them and focusing the power of the elements through their bodies to produce magical effects.

Like samurai, they are members of Rokugan's noble class, though they are not as bound by honor and the code of bushido as their warrior counterparts.

Shugenjas are found in Rokugan, and may not be appropriate for other campaign settings.

Adventures: Shugenjas often adventure to increase their magical knowledge and personal power.

They are particularly drawn to investigate disturbances in the natural harmony of the elements—particularly incursions of the Shadowlands or the activities of mahotsukai within the Empire.

Some shugenjas dedicate their lives to fighting the taint of maho (blood magic), while others crave the power that maho bestows.

Still others are drawn to plumb the depths of magic for magic's own sake, hoping eventually to learn the mysteries of Void, the "fifth element" that binds the others together.

Characteristics: Shugenjas are much more than spell-slinging sorcerers.

They are the foundation of Rokugan's religion—priests who teach the rituals of piety, keep the names of the Fortunes, and even measure the passage of time.

They study for years to learn even the fundamental elements of their magical practice, and are the most literate class of people in Rokugan.

A shugenja's spells are written on ofudas (nonmagical prayer scrolls) that the shugenja carries with her, serving as a divine focus for casting the spell.

Alignment: While many shugenjas attempt to follow the standards of honor and loyalty, and thus adhere to a lawful alignment, not all shugenjas live up to those standards.

There are no alignment restrictions on shugenjas.

Background: Shugenjas are members of Rokugan's noble class.

They learn the practice of magic in schools attached to each clan, like their samurai kin.

The shugenja schools of Rokugan include the Kuni school of the Crab clan, the Asahina school of the Crane clan, the Tamori school of the Dragon clan, the Kitsu school of the Lion clan, the Agasha and Isawa schools of the Phoenix clan, the Soshi and Yogo schools of the Scorpion clan, and the Iuchi school of the Unicorn clan.

Races: Almost without exception, all shugenjas are humans from the major clans.

In Rokugan, spellcasters from other races (and human peoples) are sorcerers.

In other campaign settings, most spellcasters are shamans, sorcerers, or wu jen.

Other Classes: Like samurai, shugenjas are set apart by their noble station and tend to look down upon members of other classes.

Despite the prevailing view of society, shugenjas do not believe that martial prowess is the ultimate expression of honor—in fact, they look down on the samurai who settle any disagreement or matter of honor with a duel to the death.

Shugenjas have little respect for members of other classes; however, shugenjas, especially adventurers, wisely understand that different classes have specialized skills and abilities often needed for success.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Shugenjas have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a shugenja can cast, how many spells the shugenja can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist. To cast a spell, a shugenja must have a Charisma score of 10 + the spell's level.

A shugenja gets bonus spells based on Charisma. The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a shugenja's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the shugenja's Charisma modifier.

High Dexterity is helpful for a shugenja (who typically wears little or no armor) because it provides her with an Armor Class bonus.

A good Constitution gives a shugenja extra hit points, a resource that she is otherwise low on.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The shugenja's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the shugenja.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Shugenjas are proficient with all simple weapons and with the wakizashi.

They are not proficient with any type of armor, nor with shields.

It is considered inappropriate for a shugenja to wear armor, and many samurai consider it an insult to their station to have a nonsamurai wearing the armor that they believe is a badge of their rank.

Likewise, while a shugenja is entitled to wear the wakizashi as a member of the noble class, wearing a katana is considered an indication that the wearer is prepared to use it in defense, and most shugenjas would rather leave the swordplay to the samurai.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Spells: A shugenja casts divine spells, but her spell knowledge is limited, much like that of a sorcerer.

Your shugenja begins play knowing four 0-level spells (also called inori) and two 1st-level spells of your choice, plus one 0-level spell and one 1st-level spell that are determined by your school.

At each level, the shugenja gains one or more new spells, as indicated on Table 2-5: Shugenja Spells Known.

TABLE 2–5: SHUGENJA SPELLS KNOWN*

Level	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1st	s+2+2	s+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	s+3+2	s+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	s+3+2	s+2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	s+3+3	s+2+1	s+1+0	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	s+3+3	s+2+2	s+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	s+4+3	s+2+2	s+1+1	s+1+0	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	s+4+3	s+3+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	s+4+4	s+3+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	s+1+0	—	—	—	—	—
9th	s+4+4	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	—	—	—	—	—
10th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	s+1+0	—	—	—	—
11th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	—	—	—	—
12th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	s+1+0	—	—	—
13th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	—	—	—
14th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	s+1+0	—	—
15th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	—	—
16th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+1+1	s+1+0	—
17th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+2+1	s+1+1	—
18th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+2+1	s+1+1	s+1+0
19th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+2+1	s+2+1	s+1+1
20th	s+5+4	s+3+2	s+3+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+2	s+2+1	s+2+1	s+2+1	s+2+1

*At each level, a shugenja gets a school spell for each spell level, starting at 1st. The “s” on this list represents that. The number in the middle is the number of spells of the shugenja’s favored element, and the final number is the additional number of spells known of any element.

One spell of every level is determined by the shugenja’s school; sometimes these spells are normal spells on the shugenja spell list, but often they are additions to the spell list.

These spells are listed with the shugenja spell list in Chapter 7: Magic and Spells.

(Note: The number of spells a shugenja knows is not affected by her Charisma bonus, if any; the numbers on Table 2–5 are fixed).

A shugenja is limited to casting a certain number of spells of each level per day, but she need not prepare her spells in advance.

The number of spells she can cast per day is improved by her bonus spells, if any.

For instance, at 1st level, Kitsu Mari can cast four 1st-level spells per day—three for being 1st level (see Table 2–4: The Shugenja), plus one thanks to her high Charisma.

However, she only knows three 1st-level spells: cure light wounds (her school spell of that level), bless, and burning hands (see Table 2–5: Shugenja Spells Known).

In any given day, she can cast cure light wounds four times, cast bless four times, cast burning hands four times, or cast some combination of the three spells a total of four times. She does not have to decide ahead of time which spells she’ll cast.

A shugenja may use a higher-level slot to cast a lower-level spell if she so chooses.

For example, if an 8th-level shugenja has used up all her 3rd-level spell slots for the day but wants to cast another one, she could use a 4th-level slot to do so.

The spell is still treated as its actual level, not the level of the slot used to cast it.

To learn or cast a spell, a shugenja must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell’s level.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against shugenja spells is 10 + the spell’s level + the shugenja’s Charisma modifier.

Shugenjas do not have spellbooks, though they write their spells on ofudas.

These ofudas serve as divine focus items and must be read as part of the spellcasting process.

Shugenjas can use the Scribe Scroll feat to create magic scrolls that work the same as a wizard’s or cleric’s scrolls.

When casting metamagic spells, remember that the shugenja has not prepared the spell in advance, and is doing so on the spot.

The shugenja, therefore, must take more time to cast a metamagic spell than a regular spell.

If its normal casting time is 1 action, casting a metamagic spell is a full-round action for a shugenja.

For spells with a longer casting time, it takes an extra full-round action to cast the spell.

Shugenjas cannot use the Quicken Spell metamagic feat. Element Focus: All shugenjas have a favored element: air, earth, fire, or water.

A shugenja's choice of specialized element is determined by the clan schools in which she studies.

At least half the spells a shugenja knows at each spell level must belong to her favored element, and the spell dictated by her school also belongs to that element.

This is reflected on Table 2–5, which indicates how many spells of each level must be spells of the shugenja's favored element.

At 1st level, for example, the shugenja Kitsu Mari must know at least three 0-level water spells—one water spell determined by her school and two additional water spells, plus two other 0-level spells of any element.

She also knows one 1st-level water spell from her school, one additional 1st-level water spell, and one 1st-level spell of any element.

Shugenjas automatically gain the benefits of the Spell Focus feat for spells from their favored element.

As the cost of specializing in one element, a shugenja is prohibited from learning spells associated with a different element.

The prohibited element is dictated by the favored element, as described below.

Air: Air spells are subtle, involving travel, intuition, influence, divination, and illusion.

Earth is the prohibited element for air shugenjas.

The Asahina school of the Crane clan and the Scorpion clan's Soshi school specialize in air magic.

Earth: Earth spells involve resilience and resolve, health and growth, the body and its strength.

Air is the prohibited element for earth shugenjas.

The Kuni school of the Crab clan, the Tamori school of the Dragon clan, and the Yogo school of the Scorpion clan specialize in earth magic.

Fire: Fire spells are destructive and blatant, though they also deal with intelligence, inspiration, and creativity.

Water is the prohibited element for fire shugenjas.

The Agasha school of the Phoenix clan specializes in fire magic.

Water: Water spells involve transformation, cleansing, healing, and friendship.

Fire is the prohibited element for water shugenjas.

The Kitsu school of the Lion clan and the Iuchi school of the Unicorn clan specialize in water magic.

The shugenjas of the Phoenix clan's Isawa school can specialize in any of the four elements.

The Isawa school also trains shugenjas who specialize in the fifth element, Void.

See the Void disciple prestige class in Chapter 3: Prestige Classes.

Sense Elements: One of the first "spells" a shugenja learns—a magical effect so basic that it becomes a spell-like ability—is the ability to sense elements.

As a full-round action, a shugenja can become aware of all sources of one chosen element (air, earth, fire, or water) within 10 feet of herself.

The shugenja learns the size of the objects but not their precise location or actual nature.

By concentrating longer, a shugenja can either extend her magical senses or gather more information about the elements she has detected.

Each additional round spent in concentration allows the shugenja to add 5 feet to the radius of her sense ability, to a maximum of 5 additional feet per shugenja level.

Thus, at 4th level, Kitsu Mari can sense elements to a maximum range of 30 feet by concentrating for five full rounds.

Alternatively, the shugenja can focus on one source of the sensed element per round, attempting a Spellcraft check to determine more about that single item.

The amount of information she learns depends on her Spellcraft check result:

Check Result	Information Learned
20 or higher	Item's general location (5-foot square containing it, or its nearest boundary if it is larger than a 5-foot square).
25 or higher	Whether the item is natural or a spell effect. (A normal Spellcraft check against DC 20 + spell level can then determine the nature of the spell effect.)
30 or higher	Whether the item is a creature or an object.
35 or higher	The exact nature of the item (for example, whether a creature is a human or an oni, whether an object is gold or stone, whether air is breathable or not).

In subsequent rounds, a shugenja can either retry her Spellcraft check on the same item, shift her attention to a different item, or extend the range of her senses.

A 1st-level shugenja can use this ability three times per day. Every five levels she advances as a shugenja allows her to use the ability an additional time per day (four times at 5th level, five times at 10th level, and so on).

Like many divination spells, a shugenja's sense elements ability is blocked by 1 foot of stone, 1 inch of common metal, a thin sheet of lead, or 3 feet of wood or dirt.

For example, Kitsu Mari enters a room and concentrates to sense water.

(Although she is a water shugenja, she could just as easily sense any other element, including fire).

She becomes aware of all sources of water within 10 feet.

A basin of water rests on the nightstand, a person lurks behind the door (living creatures are made of all four elements) holding a vial of poison—Kitsu Mari discovers three sources of water within 10 feet of her: one Medium-size, one Small, and one Fine.

Focusing on the Medium-size source and concentrating for a round, she makes a Spellcraft check and gets a result of 31.

She learns that the Medium-size source of water is a creature, that it is natural, and where it is.

If the assassin behind the door has not already jumped out to attack her, she has learned that a creature is hiding behind the door...but more likely, she has learned this too late.

TABLE 2-4: THE SHUGENJA

Level	Base		Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
	Attack	Bonus					0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1st	+0		+0	+0	+2	Element focus, sense elements	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1		+0	+0	+3		6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1		+1	+1	+3		6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2		+1	+1	+4		6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2		+1	+1	+4		6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3		+2	+2	+5		6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3		+2	+2	+5		6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4		+2	+2	+6		6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4		+3	+3	+6		6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5		+3	+3	+7		6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+5		+3	+3	+7		6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1		+4	+4	+8		6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1		+4	+4	+8		6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2		+4	+4	+9		6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
15th	+7/+2		+5	+5	+9		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
16th	+8/+3		+5	+5	+10		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—
17th	+8/+3		+5	+5	+10		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—
18th	+9/+4		+6	+6	+11		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—
19th	+9/+4		+6	+6	+11		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—
20th	+10/+5		+6	+6	+12		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	—

SOHEI

Sohei are warrior monks, religious soldiers who protect large monasteries.

Unlike shamans, sohei are more militant than holy, and receive very little religious instruction.

Instead they are trained in the art of fighting.

Sohei defend their monastery against attacks and advance its political claims in the outside world.

They are subject to the leader of their temple.

Sohei are not found in Rokugan.

Adventures: Like paladins, sohei think of their adventures as “quests” in the service of their religion.

Like samurai, however, they are typically sent on these quests by a superior whose command is law to the sohei.

Sohei are often charged with defending their temples in times of conflict, but they can also expect to strike against enemy temples, monks, or shamans, to hunt down evil monsters terrorizing the countryside, or to recover a relic that is sacred to their order.

They welcome all challenges as tests of their prowess and, secondarily, their faith.

Characteristics: Sohei mix martial prowess with divine power that grants them spell ability (as they gain experience), the ability to heighten their strength and speed in battle, and protection from mental and bodily harm.

Very experienced sohei can shrug off physical damage and ignore certain magical effects.

Their spells are useful in battle to grant protection, enhance attacks, and damage foes.

Alignment: Sohei, like monks, live a life of strict discipline and obedience to their orders.

Sohei must be lawful, and lose their divine power if they stray from the path of law.

Background: Sohei come from all walks of life to train in their temples and monasteries.

Many join their orders as children, and become sohei when they demonstrate a strength of both body and mind that lends itself to the temple’s defense.

Often, though, young men and women who show little promise for the contemplative life of the monk are the ones selected to become sohei.

Races: As with monks, most sohei are human or near-human (hengeyokai or spirit folk).

The monastic orders to which sohei belong are predominantly human, and korobokurus, nezumi, and vanaras rarely join such orders.

Other Classes: Sohei hold shamans and monks in deep respect, and may even be assigned to serve as bodyguard to such a character.

At the same time, they typically perceive themselves as spiritually inferior to such enlightened folk, and feel more kinship with samurai or “common” warriors (fighters, rangers, or even rogues).

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Sohei have the following game statistics.

Abilities: A Wisdom score of 14 or higher is required to get access to the most powerful sohei spells, and a score of 11 or higher is required to cast any sohei spells at all.

A high Constitution improves a sohei’s hit points, and a high Strength makes her more effective in melee combat, where she typically excels.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

A sohei’s class skills (and the key ability for each school) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Iaijutsu Focus (Cha), Knowledge (religion) (Int), and Profession (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player’s Handbook for skill descriptions.

The Iaijutsu Focus skill is described in Chapter 4 of this book.

Skill Points at 1st level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the sohei.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sohei are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with all armor (but no shields).

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble. Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Weapon Focus: Sohei gain Weapon Focus with a weapon of their choice as a bonus feat.

Many sohei choose the naginata, the traditional weapon of the sohei.

Spells: Beginning at 4th level, a sohei gains the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the sohei must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level, so a sohei with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Sohei bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a Difficulty Class of 10 + spell level + Wisdom modifier.

When the sohei gets 0 spells of a given level, such as 0 1st-level spells at 4th level, the sohei gets only bonus spells.

A sohei without a bonus spell for that level cannot yet cast a spell of that level.

The sohei's spell list appears in Chapter 7.

A sohei has access to any spell on the list and can freely choose which to prepare.

A sohei prepares and casts spells just as a cleric or shaman does.

Through 3rd level, a sohei has no caster level.

Starting at 4th level, a sohei's caster level is one-half her class level.

Ki Frenzy: Starting at 1st level, a sohei gains the ability to focus her ki power into a frenzy of berserk energy.

In this frenzied state, she temporarily gains +2 to Strength and +2 to Dexterity.

Her speed increases by 10 feet, and she can choose to make a flurry of blows with a full attack action in melee, making one extra attack per round while suffering a -2 penalty on every attack.

While in a ki frenzy, a sohei cannot use skills or abilities that require patience or concentration, such as moving silently or casting spells.

(She cannot use any class skills in a frenzy).

She can use any feat she might have except for Expertise, item creation feats, metamagic feats, and Skill Focus (if it's tied to a skill that requires patience or concentration).

A ki frenzy lasts for a number of rounds equal to three + the sohei's Constitution modifier.

The sohei may prematurely end the frenzy voluntarily. At the end of the frenzy, the sohei is fatigued (-2 to Strength, -2 to Dexterity, can't charge or run) for the duration of that encounter.

The sohei can only enter a frenzy once per encounter, and only a certain number of times per day (determined by level).

Entering a frenzy takes no time itself, but the sohei can only do it during her action, not in response to somebody else's action.

Deflect Arrows: At 3rd level, a sohei gains the Deflect Arrows feat (see Feats in the Player's Handbook), even if she doesn't have the prerequisite feat and Dexterity score.

Remain Conscious: At 5th level, a sohei gains the Remain Conscious feat (see Chapter 4 in this book), even if she doesn't have the prerequisite feats.

Strength of Mind: A sohei of at least 5th level is immune to stunning and sleep spells and effects.

Defensive Strike: At 7th level, a sohei gains the Defensive Strike feat (see Chapter 4 in this book), even if she doesn't have the prerequisite feats and ability scores.

Mettle: The sohei's special blessing allows her to shrug off magical effects that would otherwise damage or harm her.

If a sohei of at least 9th level makes a successful Will or Fortitude saving throw that would normally reduce the spell's effect, she suffers no effect from the spell at all.

Only those spells with a Saving Throw entry of "Will partial", "Fortitude half", or similar entries can be negated through this ability.

Damage Reduction: Starting at 11th level, the sohei gains the extraordinary ability to shrug off some amount of injury from each blow or attack.

Subtract 1 from the damage the sohei takes each time she is dealt damage.

At 14th level, this damage reduction rises to 2.

At 17th, it rises to 3.

At 20th, it rises to 4.

Damage reduction can reduce damage to 0 but not below 0.

EX-SOHEI

A sohei who becomes nonlawful loses all spells and her ki frenzy ability.

She also may not progress in levels as a sohei.

She regains her spells and ki frenzy ability if she atones for her violations (see the atonement spell description in the Player's Handbook), as appropriate.

TABLE 2-6: THE SOHEI

Class Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1	2	3	4
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Ki frenzy 1/day, Weapon Focus	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3		—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Ki frenzy 2/day, Deflect Arrows	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4		0	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Remain Conscious, strength of mind	0	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5		1	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Defensive Strike, ki frenzy 3/day	1	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6		1	0	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Mettle	1	0	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7		1	1	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Damage reduction 1/—, ki frenzy 4/day	1	1	0	—
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8		1	1	1	—
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8		1	1	1	—
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	Damage reduction 2/—	2	1	1	0
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	Ki frenzy 5/day	2	1	1	1
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		2	2	1	1
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Damage reduction 3/—	2	2	2	1
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11		3	2	2	1
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Ki frenzy 6/day	3	3	3	2
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Damage reduction 4/—	3	3	3	3

WU JEN

Wu jen are spellcasters with mysterious powers. They command the elements, spirit forces, and the very powers of nature.

They are seldom found living with the rest of human society.

Instead, they live as hermits in the wilderness, purifying their bodies and minds in order to contact the various natural and supernatural powers of the world.

From these entities they learn their spells—magical means to control the invisible forces of the world.

Wu jen are not found in Rokugan.

Adventures: Wu jen typically adventure to expand their knowledge of the world, both magical and mundane.

Like wizards, they tend to approach adventures with careful planning, since their daily spell selection is vitally important.

Characteristics: Wu jen are the arcane spellcasters of Oriental Adventures.

As with wizards, their spells are their primary class feature, and assume an all-important role in a wu jen's life.

Many wu jen spells draw on the power of the five elements (earth, fire, metal, water, and wood), and a wu jen who masters all the spells of one element gains additional power with those spells.

Finally, wu jen are adept at manipulating their spells, increasing their range, duration, or effect, or eliminating verbal or somatic components through permanent metamagic effects.

Alignment: Wu jen tend to stand apart from the lawful societies in which they live, flouting the rules and norms of decent folk.

They have a strong tendency toward chaos, but in any event cannot be lawful.

Background: Wu jen crave magical power in a world where no organized colleges of wizardry exist.

Their thirst drives them to seek out others like themselves, hermits, recluses, or exiles who have gained the secrets they seek.

Nearly all wu jen are trained by a single mentor in this fashion, outcast from proper society and set apart by their fearsome supernatural powers.

Races: Most wu jen are humans or hengeyokai, though members of all the common races of Oriental Adventures can learn the wu jen's craft.

Other Classes: Wu jen generally don't like members of any other class.

At the same time, however, a wu jen is painfully aware that without fighters and samurai to block enemy soldiers, a shaman to heal her wounds, and perhaps a rogue to deal with locks and traps, her path to the knowledge she seeks may be blocked by insurmountable and possibly fatal obstacles.

This realization of her reliance on other classes might make her accept them or might make her resent them.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Wu jen have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Intelligence determines how powerful a spell a wu jen can cast, how many spells the wu jen can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a wu jen must have an Intelligence score of 10 + the spell's level.

A wu jen gets bonus spells based on Intelligence.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a wu jen's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the wu jen's Intelligence modifier.

High Dexterity is helpful for a wu jen, who typically wears little or no armor, because it provides her with an Armor Class bonus.

A good Constitution gives a wu jen extra hit points, a resource that she is otherwise very low on.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

A wu jen's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills in the Player's Handbook for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

The following are class features of the wu jen.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wu jen are proficient with all simple weapons.

They are not proficient with any type of armor nor with shields.

Armor of any type interferes with a wu jen's movements, which can cause her spells to fail (if those spells have somatic components).

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Spells: A wu jen casts arcane spells.

She is limited to a certain number of spells of each spell level per day, according to her class level.

A wu jen must prepare spells ahead of time by getting a good night's sleep and spending 1 hour studying her spellbook.

While studying, the wu jen decides which spells to prepare (see Preparing Wizard Spells in the Player's Handbook).

To learn, prepare, or cast a spell, a wu jen must have an Intelligence score of at least $10 +$ the spell's level.

A wu jen's bonus spells are based on Intelligence.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against wu jen spells is $10 +$ the spell's level $+$ the wu jen's Intelligence modifier.

Unlike shugenjas and sorcerers, wu jen may know any number of spells.

Elemental Mastery: The spells of a wu jen are divided into five elemental groups: earth, fire, metal, water, and wood. When a wu jen learns all the spells of a single element up to the highest level of spells she can cast, she is considered a master of that element.

Thereafter, whenever the wu jen casts a spell of that element, the saving throw DC is increased by 2, while the wu jen herself gets a $+2$ competence bonus on saving throws against spells of that element.

This bonus stacks with the bonus conferred by the Spell Focus feat.

Note that when the wu jen gains the ability to cast higher-level spells, she loses her mastery until she learns all the spells of that element at the new spell level.

Certain spells on the wu jen spell list are designated "All"; this means they belong to all elemental groups, and a wu jen must learn these spells in order to achieve mastery of any element.

Bonus Languages: A wu jen may substitute Tengu, Draconic, or Giant for one of the bonus languages available to the character because of her race, since many ancient tomes of magic are written in these languages and apprentice wu jen often learn them as part of their studies.

Sudden Action: Once per day, a wu jen can focus her ki to burst into sudden action.

This gives her a $+4$ bonus on her initiative check for that combat.

Bonus Feat: A wu jen begins play with a bonus metamagic feat.

Spell Secret: At 3rd level, and every three levels thereafter, a wu jen can choose one spell known to her that then becomes permanently modified as though affected by one of the following metamagic feats: Enlarge Spell, Extend Spell, Still Spell, or Silent Spell.

The spell's level does not change, and once the choice of spell and modification are chosen, they cannot be changed. As the wu jen goes up in level, she can choose the same spell to be modified in different ways with multiple spell secrets.

She does not need to know the feat she applies to the spell.

Spellbooks: Wu jen must study their spellbooks each day to prepare their spells, much like wizards.

A wu jen cannot prepare any spell not recorded in her spellbook (except for read magic, which all wu jen can prepare from memory).

A wu jen begins play with a spellbook containing all 0-level wu jen spells plus three 1st-level spells of the player's choice.

For each point of Intelligence bonus the wu jen has, the spellbook holds one additional 1st-level spell.

Each time the wu jen achieves a new level, she gains two new spells of any level or levels that she can cast (according to her new level).

For example, when Hideyori achieves 5th level, she can add two 3rd-level spells to her spellbook.

The wu jen can also add spells found in the spellbooks of other wu jen.

Taboos: In order to maintain their supernatural power, wu jen must abide by certain taboos that may seem inconsequential to other characters but are vitally important to the wu jen.

If a wu jen violates one of her taboos, she cannot cast any more spells that day.

A wu jen must choose one taboo at 1st level, and one additional taboo every time she learns a spell secret.

Possible taboos include:

- Cannot eat meat.
- Cannot own more than she can carry.
- Must make a daily offering (such as food, flowers, or incense) to one or many spirit powers.
- Cannot bathe.
- Cannot cut her hair.
- Cannot touch a dead body.
- Cannot drink alcohol.
- Cannot wear a certain color.
- Cannot light a fire.
- Cannot sit facing in a certain direction.

TABLE 2-7: THE WU JEN

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Sudden action, bonus feat	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3		4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Spell secret	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4		4	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4		4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Spell secret	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5		4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6		4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	Spell secret	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7		4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7		4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	Spell secret	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9		4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Spell secret	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Spell secret	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	1	—
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	1
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4

PLAYER'S HANDBOOK 3.0 (3.0)

BARBARIAN

From the frozen wastes to the north and the hellish jungles of the south come brave, even reckless, warriors.

Civilized people call them barbarians or berserkers and suspect them of mayhem, impiety, and atrocities.

These “barbarians”, however, have proven their mettle and their value to those who would be their allies.

To enemies who underestimated them, they have proved their cunning, resourcefulness, persistence, and mercilessness.

Adventures: Adventuring is the best chance barbarians have of finding a place in a civilized society.

They're not well suited to the monotony of guard duty or other mundane tasks.

Barbarians also have no trouble with the dangers, the uncertainties, and the wandering that adventuring involves.

Barbarians may adventure to defeat hated enemies.

They have a noted distaste for that which they consider unnatural, including undead, demons, and devils.

Characteristics: The barbarian is an excellent warrior.

Where the fighter has training and discipline, however, the barbarian has a powerful rage.

While in this berserk fury, he becomes stronger and tougher, better able to defeat his foes and withstand their attacks.

These rages leave him winded, and he only has the energy for a few such spectacular displays per day, but those few rages are usually sufficient.

He is at home in the wilds, and he runs at great speed.

Alignment: Barbarians are never lawful.

They may be honorable, but at heart they are wild.

This wildness is their strength, and it could not live in a lawful soul.

At best, chaotic barbarians are free and expressive.

At worst, they are thoughtlessly destructive.

Religion: Some barbarians distrust established religions and prefer an intuitive, natural relationship to the cosmos over formal worship.

Others devote themselves to powerful deities, such as Kord, god of strength; Obad-Hai, god of nature; or Erythnul, god of slaughter.

A barbarian is capable of fierce devotion to his god.

Background: Barbarians come from uncivilized lands or from barbaric tribes on the outskirts of civilization.

A barbarian adventurer may have been lured to the settled lands by the promise of riches, may have escaped after having been captured in his homeland and sold into “civilized” slavery, may have been recruited as a soldier, or may have been driven out of his home by invaders.

Barbarians share no bond with each other unless they come from the same tribe or land.

In fact, they think of themselves not as barbarians but as warriors.

Races: Human barbarians come from the distant wild lands on the edge of civilization.

Half-orc barbarians lived among orcs before abandoning them for human lands.

Dwarf barbarians are rare, usually hailing from dwarven kingdoms that have fallen into barbarism as a result of recurrent war with goblinoids, orcs, and giants.

Barbarians of other races are very rare.

Among the brutal humanoids, barbarians are more common than fighters.

Orcs and ogres are especially likely to be barbarians.

Other Classes: As people of the wild, barbarians are most comfortable in the company of rangers, druids, and clerics of nature deities, such as Obad-Hai or Ehlonna.

Many barbarians admire the talents and spontaneity of bards, and some are enthusiastic lovers of music.

Barbarians don't trust that which they don't understand, and that includes wizardry, which they call “book magic”.

Barbarians find sorcerers more understandable than wizards, but maybe that's just because sorcerers tend to be more charismatic.

Monks, with their studied, practiced, deliberate approach to combat, sometimes have a hard time seeing eye to eye with barbarians, but members of these classes aren't necessarily hostile to each other.

Barbarians have no special attitudes toward fighters, paladins, clerics, or rogues.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Barbarians have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is important for barbarians because of its role in combat, and several barbarian skills are based on Strength.

Dexterity is also useful to barbarians, especially those who wear light armor.

Wisdom is important for several barbarian skills.

A high Constitution score lets a barbarian rage longer (and live longer, because it gives him more hit points).

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Hit Die: d12.

CLASS SKILLS

The barbarian's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Ride (Dex), Swim (Str), and Wilderness Lore (Wis). See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the barbarian.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A barbarian is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, light armor, medium armor, and shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Barbarian Rage: When he needs to, a barbarian can fly into a screaming blood frenzy.

In a rage, a barbarian gains phenomenal strength and durability but becomes reckless and less able to defend himself.

He temporarily gains $+4$ to Strength, $+4$ to Constitution, and a $+2$ morale bonus on Will saves, but suffers a -2 penalty to AC.

The increase in Constitution increases the barbarian's hit points by 2 points per level, but these hit points go away at the end of the rage when the Constitution score drops back to normal.

(These extra hit points are not lost first the way temporary hit points are; see Temporary Hit Points, page 129).

While raging, a barbarian cannot use skills or abilities that require patience and concentration, such as moving silently or casting spells.

(The only class skills he can't use while raging are Craft, Handle Animal, and Intuit Direction).

He can use any feat he might have except for Expertise, item creation feats, metamagic feats, and Skill Focus (if it's tied to a skill that requires patience or concentration).

A fit of rage lasts for a number of rounds equal to $3 +$ the character's (newly improved) Constitution modifier.

The barbarian may prematurely end the rage voluntarily.

At the end of the rage, the barbarian is fatigued (-2 to Strength, -2 to Dexterity, can't charge or run) for the duration of that encounter (unless the barbarian is 20th level, when this limitation no longer applies).

The barbarian can only fly into a rage once per encounter, and only a certain number of times per day (determined by level).

Entering a rage takes no time itself, but the barbarian can only do it during his action (see Initiative, page 120), not in response to somebody else's action.

A barbarian can't, for example, fly into a rage when struck down by an arrow in order to get the extra hit points from the increased Constitution, although the extra hit points would be of benefit if he had gone into a rage earlier in the round, before the arrow struck.

Starting at 15th level, the barbarian's rage bonuses become $+6$ to Strength, $+6$ to Constitution, and a $+3$ morale bonus to Will saves.

(The AC penalty remains at -2).

Fast Movement: The barbarian has a speed faster than the norm for his race by $+10$ feet when wearing no armor, light armor, or medium armor (and not carrying a heavy load). For example, a human barbarian in studded leather armor has a standard speed of 40 feet.

Normally, humans have a speed of 30 feet.

His speed when taking the double move action is 80 feet (rather than 60), and his running speed is 160 feet (rather than 120).

Uncanny Dodge: Starting at 2nd level, the barbarian gains the extraordinary ability to react to danger before his senses would normally allow him to do so.

At 2nd level and above, he retains his Dexterity bonus to AC (if any) regardless of being caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

(He still loses his Dexterity bonus to AC if immobilized).

At 5th level, the barbarian can no longer be flanked; he can react to opponents on opposite sides of him as easily as he can react to a single attacker.

This defense denies a rogue the ability to use a flank attack to sneak attack the barbarian.

The exception to this defense is that a rogue at least four levels higher than the barbarian can flank him (and thus sneak attack him).

At 10th level, the barbarian gains an intuitive sense that alerts him to danger from traps, giving him a $+1$ bonus to Reflex saves made to avoid traps and a $+1$ dodge bonus to AC against attacks by traps.

At 13th level, these bonuses rise to $+2$.

At 16th, they rise to $+3$, and at 19th they rise to $+4$.

Damage Reduction: Starting at 11th level, the barbarian gains the extraordinary ability to shrug off some amount of injury from each blow or attack.

Subtract 1 from the damage the barbarian takes each time he is dealt damage.

At 14th level, this damage reduction rises to 2.

At 17th, it rises to 3.

At 20th, it rises to 4.

Damage reduction can reduce damage to 0 but not below 0. Illiteracy: Barbarians are the only characters that do not automatically know how to read and write.

A barbarian must spend 2 skill points to gain the ability to read and write any language he is able to speak.

EX-BARBARIANS

A barbarian who becomes lawful loses the ability to rage and cannot gain more levels as a barbarian.

He retains all the other benefits of the class (fast movement, uncanny dodge, and damage reduction).

HALF-ORC BARBARIAN STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather +3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 40 ft., 20 lb.

Weapons: Greataxe (1d12, crit x3, 20 lb., Large, Slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing).

Dagger (1d4, crit 19-20/x2, 10 ft., 1 lb., Tiny, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Climb	4	Str	-1
Wilderness Lore	4	Wis
Listen	4	Wis
Jump	4	Str	-1
Swim	4	Str	-11*
Ride	4	Dex
Intimidate	4	Cha
Intuit Direction	4	Wis
Spot (cc)	2	Wis

*-1 per 5 pounds of equipment.

Feat: Weapon Focus (greataxe).

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE BARBARIAN STARTING PACKAGE

Same as half-orc barbarian, except Race: Human, dwarf, elf, half-elf.

Armor: Speed 30 ft. (dwarf only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier (human only).

Bonus Feat: Alertness (human only).

ALTERNATIVE BARBARIAN STARTING PACKAGE

Same as half-orc barbarian, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 30 ft., 10 lb.

Weapons: Battleaxe (1d8, crit x3, 7 lb., Medium-size, Slashing) instead of greataxe.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Swim	4	Str	-5*

*-1 per 5 pounds of equipment.

Feat: Weapon Focus (battleaxe) instead of Weapon Focus (greataxe).

Gold: 6d4 gp.

TABLE 3—3: THE BARBARIAN

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1	+1	+2	+0	+0	Rage 1/day; fast movement
2	+2	+3	+0	+0	Uncanny dodge (Dex bonus to AC)
3	+3	+3	+1	+1
4	+4	+4	+1	+1	Rage 2/day
5	+5	+4	+1	+1	Uncanny dodge (can't be flanked)
6	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2
7	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2
8	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Rage 3/day
9	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3
10	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Uncanny dodge (+1 against traps)
11	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Damage reduction 1/—
12	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Rage 4/day
13	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4	Uncanny dodge (+2 against traps)
14	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	Damage reduction 2/—
15	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	Greater rage
16	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	Rage 5/day, uncanny dodge (+3 against traps)
17	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Damage reduction 3/—
18	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6
19	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	Uncanny dodge (+4 against traps)
20	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Rage 6/day; no longer winded after rage; damage reduction 4/—

BARD

It is said that music has a special magic, and the bard proves that saying true.

Wandering across the land, gathering lore, telling stories, working magic with his music, and living on the gratitude of his audience: such is the life of a bard.

When chance or opportunity draws them into a conflict, bards serve as diplomats, negotiators, messengers, scouts, and spies.

A bard's magic comes from the heart.

If his heart is good, a bard brings hope and courage to the downtrodden and uses his tricks, music, and magic to thwart the schemes of evildoers.

If the nobles of the land are corrupt, the good bard is an enemy of the state, cunningly evading capture and raising the spirits of the oppressed.

But music can spring from an evil heart as well.

Evil bards eschew blatant violence in favor of manipulation, holding sway over the hearts and minds of others and taking what enraptured audiences "willingly" give.

Adventures: Bards see adventures as opportunities to learn. They practice their many skills and abilities, and they especially relish the opportunity to enter a long-forgotten ancient tomb, to discover ancient works of magic, to decipher old tomes, to travel to strange places, to encounter exotic creatures, and to learn new songs and stories.

Bards love to accompany heroes (and villains), joining their entourage to witness their deeds firsthand—a bard who can tell a marvelous story from personal experience earns renown among his fellows.

Indeed, after telling so many stories about heroes doing mighty deeds, many bards take these themes to heart and assume the role of hero themselves.

Characteristics: A bard brings forth magic from his soul, not from a book.

He can cast only a small number of spells, but he can cast them without selecting or preparing them in advance.

His magic emphasizes charms and illusions over the more dramatic evocation spells that wizards and sorcerers often use.

In addition to spells, a bard works magic with his music and poetry.

He can encourage allies, hold his audiences rapt, and counter magical effects that rely on speech or sound.

Bards have some of the skills that rogues have, although they are not as focused on skill mastery as rogues are.

Bards listen to stories as well as tell them, of course, so they have a vast knowledge of local events and noteworthy items.

Alignment: Bards are wanderers, guided by whim and intuition rather than by tradition or law.

The spontaneous talent, magic, and lifestyle of the bard are incompatible with a lawful alignment.

Religion: Bards revere Fharlanghn, god of roads.

They sometimes camp near his wayside shrines, hoping to earn some coin from the travelers who stop to leave offerings for the god.

Many bards, even those who are not elven, worship Corellon Larethian, god of elves and patron of poetry and music.

Good bards are also partial to Pelor, the sun god, believing that he watches over them in their travels.

Bards given to chaos and occasional larceny favor Olidammara, god of thieves.

Those who have turned to evil ways are known to worship Erythnul, the god of slaughter, though few will admit to it. In any event, bards spend so much time on the road that, while they may be devoted to a deity, they are rarely devoted to any particular temple.

Background: An apprentice bard learns his skills from a single experienced bard, whom he follows and serves until he is ready to strike out on his own.

Many bards were once young runaways or orphans, befriended by wandering bards who became their mentors. Since bards occasionally congregate in informal "colleges", the apprentice bard may meet many of the more prominent bards in the area.

Still, the bard has no strong allegiance to bards as a whole. In fact, some bards are highly competitive with other bards, jealous of their reputations and defensive of their territory.

Races: Bards are commonly human, elven, or half-elven.

Humans take well to the wandering life and adapt easily to new lands and customs.

Elves are talented in music and magic, so the career of the bard comes naturally to them.

A bard's wandering ways suit many half-elves, who often feel like strangers even when at home.

Half-orcs, even those raised among humans, find themselves ill suited to the demands of a bard's career.

There are no bardic traditions among dwarves, gnomes, or halflings, though occasional individuals of these races find teachers to train them in the ways of the bard.

Bards are exceedingly rare among the savage humanoids, except among centaurs.

Centaur bards sometimes train the children of humans or other humanoids.

Other Classes: A bard works well with companions of other classes.

He often serves as the spokesman of the party, using his social skills for the party's benefit.

In a party without a wizard or sorcerer, the bard relies on his magic.

In a party without a rogue, he uses his skills.

A bard is curious about the ways of more focused or dedicated adventurers, often trying to pick up pointers from fighters, sorcerers, and rogues.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Bards have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a bard can cast, how many spells the bard can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a bard must have a Charisma score of 10 + the spell's level.

A bard gets bonus spells based on Charisma.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a bard's spell is 10 + the spell's level plus the bard's Charisma modifier.

Charisma, Dexterity, and Intelligence are important for many of the bard's class skills (see below).

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The bard's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int, exclusive skill), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Pick Pocket (Dex), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), Sense Motive (Wis), Speak Language (Int), Spellcraft (Int), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Magic Device (Cha, exclusive skill).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All the following are class features of the bard.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A bard is proficient with all simple weapons.

Additionally, the bard is proficient with one of the following weapons: longbow, composite longbow, longsword, rapier, sap, short composite bow, short sword, shortbow, or whip.

Bards are proficient with light armor, medium armor, and shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor or equipment carried.

Like any other arcane spellcaster, a bard can cast spells while wearing armor or using a shield but suffers a chance of arcane spell failure if the spell in question has a somatic component (most do).

Spells: A bard casts arcane spells from the bard spell list (page 159) according to Table 3–4: The Bard and Table 3–5: Bard Spells Known.

TABLE 3–5: BARD SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6
1	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	5	2*	—	—	—	—	—
3	6	3	—	—	—	—	—
4	6	3	2*	—	—	—	—
5	6	4	3	—	—	—	—
6	6	4	3	—	—	—	—
7	6	4	4	2*	—	—	—
8	6	4	4	3	—	—	—
9	6	4	4	3	—	—	—
10	6	4	4	4	2*	—	—
11	6	4	4	4	3	—	—
12	6	4	4	4	3	—	—
13	6	4	4	4	4	2*	—
14	6	4	4	4	4	3	—
15	6	4	4	4	4	3	—
16	6	5	4	4	4	4	2*
17	6	5	5	4	4	4	3
18	6	5	5	5	4	4	3
19	6	5	5	5	5	4	4
20	6	5	5	5	5	5	4

* Provided the bard has sufficient Charisma to have a bonus spell of this level.

He casts these spells without needing to prepare them beforehand or keep a spellbook.

All bard spells have a verbal component (singing, reciting, or music).

Bards receive bonus spells for high Charisma, and to cast a spell a bard must have a Charisma score at least equal to $10 +$ the level of the spell (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a bard's spell is $10 +$ the spell's level + the bard's Charisma modifier.

Bardic Music: Once per day per level, a bard can use his song or poetics to produce magical effects on those around him.

Depending on the ranks he has in the Perform skill, he can inspire courage in allies, sing a countersong to protect those around him from sound-based magic, fascinate a creature, make a magical suggestion to a fascinated creature, help others perform skills better, or inspire greatness. While these abilities fall under the category of bardic music, they can include reciting poetry, chanting, singing lyrical songs, singing melodies (fa-la-la, etc.), whistling, playing an instrument, or playing an instrument in combination with some spoken performance.

As with casting a spell with a verbal component (see Components, page 151), a deaf bard suffers a 20% chance to fail with bardic music.

If he fails, the attempt still counts against his daily limit.

Inspire Courage: A bard with 3 or more ranks in Perform can use song or poetics to inspire courage in his allies, bolstering them against fear and improving their combat abilities.

To be affected, an ally must hear the bard sing for a full round.

The effect lasts as long as the bard sings and for 5 rounds after the bard stops singing (or 5 rounds after the ally can no longer hear the bard).

While singing, the bard can fight but cannot cast spells, activate magic items by spell completion (such as scrolls), or activate magic items by magic word (such as wands). Affected allies receive a $+2$ morale bonus to saving throws against charm and fear effects and a $+1$ morale bonus to attack and weapon damage rolls.

Inspire courage is a supernatural, mind-affecting ability.

Countersong: A bard with 3 or more ranks in Perform can use his music or poetics to counter magical effects that depend on sound (but not spells that simply have verbal components).

As with inspire courage, a bard may sing, play, or recite a countersong while taking other mundane actions, but not magical actions.

Each round of the countersong, he makes a Perform check. Any creature within 30 feet of the bard (including the bard himself) who is affected by a sonic or language-dependent magical attack (such as sound burst or command) may use the bard's Perform check result in place of his saving throw if, after rolling the saving throw, the Perform check result proves to be better.

The bard may keep up the countersong for 10 rounds.

Countersong is a supernatural ability.

Fascinate: A bard with 3 or more ranks in Perform can use his music or poetics to cause a single creature to become fascinated with him.

The creature to be fascinated must be able to see and hear the bard and must be within 90 feet.

The bard must also see the creature.

The creature must be able to pay attention to the bard.

The distraction of a nearby combat or other dangers prevents the ability from working.

The bard makes a Perform check, and the target can negate the effect with a Will saving throw equal to or greater than the bard's check result.

If the saving throw succeeds, the bard cannot attempt to fascinate that creature again for 24 hours. If the saving throw fails, the creature sits quietly and listens to the song for up to 1 round per level of the bard. While fascinated, the target's Spot and Listen checks suffer a -4 penalty.

Any potential threat (such as an ally of the bard moving behind the fascinated creature) allows the fascinated creature a second saving throw against a new Perform check result. Any obvious threat, such as casting a spell, drawing a sword, or aiming, automatically breaks the effect.

While fascinating (or attempting to fascinate) a creature, the bard must concentrate, as if casting or maintaining a spell. Fascinate is a spell-like, mind-affecting charm ability.

Inspire Competence: A bard with 6 or more ranks in Perform can use his music or poetics to help an ally succeed at a task. The ally must be able to see and hear the bard and must be within 30 feet.

The bard must also see the creature.

Depending on the task that the ally has at hand, the bard may use his bardic music to lift the ally's spirits, to help the ally focus mentally, or in some other way.

The ally gets a +2 competence bonus on his skill checks with a particular skill as long as he or she continues to hear the bard's music.

The DM may rule that certain uses of this ability are infeasible—chanting to make a rogue move more quietly, for example, is self-defeating.

The bard can maintain the effect for 2 minutes (long enough for the ally to take 20).

Inspire competence is a supernatural, mind-affecting ability.

Suggestion: A bard with 9 or more ranks in Perform can make a suggestion (as the spell) to a creature that he has already fascinated (see above).

The suggestion doesn't count against the bard's daily limit on bardic music performances (one per day per level), but the fascination does.

A Will saving throw (DC 13 + the bard's Charisma modifier) negates the effect.

Suggestion is a spell-like, mind-affecting charm ability.

Inspire Greatness: A bard with 12 or more ranks in Perform can use song or poetics to inspire greatness in another creature, granting extra fighting capability.

For every three levels the bard attains beyond 9th, the bard can inspire greatness in one additional creature.

To inspire greatness, the bard must sing and the creature must hear the bard sing for a full round, as with inspire courage.

The creature must also be within 30 feet.

A creature inspired with greatness gains temporary Hit Dice, attack bonuses, and saving throw bonuses as long as he or she hears the bard continue to sing and for 5 rounds thereafter.

(All these bonuses are competence bonuses).

The target gains the following boosts:

- +2 Hit Dice (d10s that grant temporary hit points).
- +2 competence bonus on attacks.
- +1 competence bonus on Fortitude saves.

Apply the target's Constitution modifier, if any, to each bonus Hit Die.

These extra Hit Dice count as regular Hit Dice for determining effects such as the sleep spell.

Inspire greatness is a supernatural, mind-affecting enchantment ability.

Bardic Knowledge: A bard picks up a lot of stray knowledge while wandering the land and learning stories from other bards.

A bard may make a special bardic knowledge check with a bonus equal to his level + his Intelligence modifier to see whether he knows some relevant information about local notable people, legendary items, or noteworthy places.

This check will not reveal the powers of a magic item but may give a hint as to its general function.

The bard may not take 10 or take 20 on this check; this sort of knowledge is essentially random.

The DM will determine the Difficulty Class of the check by referring to the table below.

DC	Type of Knowledge	Examples
10	Common, known by at least a substantial minority of the local population.	A local mayor's reputation for drinking; common legends about a powerful place of mystery.
20	Uncommon but available, known by only a few people in the area.	A local priest's shady past; legends about a powerful magic item.
25	Obscure, known by few, hard to come by.	A knight's family history; legends about a minor place of mystery or magic item.
30	Extremely obscure, known by very few, possibly forgotten by most who once knew it, possibly known only by those who don't understand the significance of the knowledge.	A mighty wizard's childhood nickname; the history of a petty magic item.

EX-BARDS

A bard who becomes lawful in alignment cannot progress in levels as a bard, though he retains all his bard abilities.

HALF-ELVEN BARD STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather +3 AC, speed 30 ft., 20 lb., armor check penalty -1, arcane spell failure 15%.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., Medium-size, Slashing).

This bard is proficient with the longsword.

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Perform*	4	Cha
Spellcraft	4	Int
Use Magic Device	4	Cha
Gather Information	4	Cha
Listen	4	Wis
Decipher Script	4	Int
Diplomacy	4	Cha
Knowledge (any)	4	Int
Pick Pocket	4	Dex	-1

*Epics, lute, melody, storytelling.

Feat: If Dex 13 or higher, Dodge; if Dex 12 or less, Improved Initiative instead.

Spells Known: Cantrips: detect magic, ghost sound, light, and read magic.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Three torches.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Lute (common), spell component pouch.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE BARD STARTING PACKAGE

Same as half-elven bard, except Race: Human, dwarf, elf, or half-orc.

Armor: Speed 20 ft. (dwarf only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier (human only).

Bonus Feat: If Dex 13 or higher, Improved Initiative; if Dex 12 or less, Skill Focus (Perform) instead (human only).

ALTERNATIVE BARD STARTING PACKAGE

Same as half-elven bard, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 20 ft., 10 lb.

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19–20/×2, 3 lb., Small, Piercing) instead of longsword.

This bard is proficient with the short sword.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 3—4: THE BARD

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1	2	3	4	5	6
1	+0	+0	+2	+2	Bardic music, Bardic knowledge	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	+1	+0	+3	+3		3	0	—	—	—	—	—
3	+2	+1	+3	+3		3	1	—	—	—	—	—
4	+3	+1	+4	+4		3	2	0	—	—	—	—
5	+3	+1	+4	+4		3	3	1	—	—	—	—
6	+4	+2	+5	+5		3	3	2	—	—	—	—
7	+5	+2	+5	+5		3	3	2	0	—	—	—
8	+6/+1	+2	+6	+6		3	3	3	1	—	—	—
9	+6/+1	+3	+6	+6		3	3	3	2	—	—	—
10	+7/+2	+3	+7	+7		3	3	3	2	0	—	—
11	+8/+3	+3	+7	+7		3	3	3	3	1	—	—
12	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8		3	3	3	3	2	—	—
13	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8		3	3	3	3	2	0	—
14	+10/+5	+4	+9	+9		4	3	3	3	3	1	—
15	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+9		4	4	3	3	3	2	—
16	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+10		4	4	4	3	3	2	0
17	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+10		4	4	4	4	3	3	1
18	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+11		4	4	4	4	4	3	2
19	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	3
20	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+12		4	4	4	4	4	4	4

CLERIC

The handiwork of the gods is everywhere, in places of natural beauty and in mighty crusades, in soaring temples, and in the hearts of worshippers.

Like people, gods run the gamut from benevolent to malicious, reserved to intrusive, simple to inscrutable.

The gods, however, work mostly through intermediaries—their clerics.

Good clerics heal, protect, and avenge.

Evil clerics pillage, destroy, and sabotage.

A cleric uses the power of his god to make his god's will manifest.

And if a cleric uses his god's power to improve his own lot, that's to be expected, too.

Adventures: Ideally, a cleric's adventures support his god's causes, at least in a general way.

A good cleric, for example, helps those in need.

If, through noble acts, he can bring a good reputation to his god or temple, that's even better.

An evil cleric seeks to increase the power of himself and his deity, so that others will respect and fear him.

Clerics sometimes receive orders, or at least suggestions, from their ecclesiastical superiors, directing them to undertake missions for the church.

They and their companions are compensated fairly for these missions, and the church may be especially generous with casting of spells or divine magic items as payment.

Of course, clerics are people, too, and they may have all the more common motivations for adventuring.

Characteristics: Clerics are masters of divine magic.

Divine magic is especially good at healing.

Even an inexperienced cleric can bring people back from the brink of death, and an experienced cleric can even bring back people who have crossed over that brink.

As channelers of divine energy, clerics can turn away or even destroy undead creatures.

An evil cleric, on the other hand, can bring undead under his control.

Clerics have some combat training.

They can use simple weapons, and they are trained in the use of armor, since armor does not interfere with divine spells as it does with arcane spells.

Alignment: Like the gods they serve, clerics can be of any alignment.

Because people more readily worship good deities than neutral or evil deities, good clerics are more numerous than evil ones.

Clerics also tend toward law instead of chaos, since lawful religions tend to be more structured and better able to recruit and train clerics.

Typically, a cleric is the same alignment as his deity, though some clerics are "one step" away from their respective deities.

For example, most clerics of Heironeous, god of valor (who is lawful good) are lawful good themselves, but some are lawful neutral or neutral good.

Additionally, a cleric may not be neutral unless his deity is neutral.

Exceptions are the clerics of St. Cuthbert (a lawful neutral deity), who may only be lawful good or lawful neutral.

Religion: Every common deity has clerics devoted to him or her, so clerics can be of any religion.

The most common deity worshiped by human clerics in civilized lands is Pelor, god of the sun.

Among nonhuman races, clerics most commonly worship the chief god of their respective racial pantheon.

Some clerics devote themselves not to a god but to a cause or a source of divine power.

These clerics wield magic the way clerics devoted to individual gods do, but they are not associated with a religious institution or a particular practice of worship.

A cleric devoted to Good and Law, for example, may be on friendly terms with the clerics of lawful and good deities and may extol the virtues of a good and lawful life, but he is not a functionary in a church hierarchy.

Background: Most clerics are officially ordained members of religious organizations, commonly called churches.

Each has sworn to uphold the ideals of his or her church.

Most clerics join their churches as young adults, though some feel themselves devoted to a god's service from a young age and a few feel "the call" later in life.

While some clerics are tightly bound to their churches' activities on a daily basis, others have more free rein to conduct their lives, as long as they do so in accordance with their gods' wishes.

Clerics of a given religion are all supposed to get along, though schisms within a religion are often more bitter than conflicts between religions.

Clerics who share some basic ideals, such as goodness or lawfulness, may find common cause with each other and see themselves as part of an order or body that supersedes any given religion.

Clerics of opposed goals, however, are sworn enemies.

In civilized lands, open warfare between religions occurs only during civil wars and similar social upheavals, but vicious politicking between opposed churches is common.

Races: Clerics include members of all the common races, since the need for religion and divine magic is universal.

The clerics of most races, however, are too focused on their religious duties to undertake an adventurer's life.

Crusading, adventuring clerics most often come from the human and dwarf races.

Among the savage humanoids, clerics are less common.

The exception is troglodytes, who take well to divine magic and are often led by priests, who make a practice of sacrificing and devouring captives.

Other Classes: In an adventuring party, the cleric is everybody's friend and often the glue that holds the party together.

As the one who can channel divine energy, a cleric is a capable healer, and adventurers of every class appreciate being put back together after they've taken some hard knocks.

Clerics sometimes clash with druids, since druids represent an older, more primal relationship between the mortal and the divine.

Mostly, though, the religion of a cleric determines how he gets along with others.

A cleric of Olidammara, god of thieves, gets along fine with rogues and ne'er-do-wells, for example, while a cleric of Heironeous, god of valor, rankles at such company.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Clerics have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom determines how powerful a spell a cleric can cast, how many spells the cleric can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a cleric must have a Wisdom score of 10 + the spell's level.

A cleric gets bonus spells based on Wisdom.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a cleric's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the cleric's Wisdom modifier.

A high Constitution improves a cleric's hit points, and a high Charisma improves his ability to turn undead.

Alignment: Varies by deity.

A cleric's alignment must be within one step of his deity's, and it may not be neutral unless the deity's alignment is neutral.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The cleric's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Domains and Class Skills: A cleric who chooses Animal or Plant as one of his domains also has Knowledge (nature) (Int) as a class skill.

A cleric who chooses Knowledge as one of his domains also has all Knowledge (Int) skills as class skills.

A cleric who chooses Travel as one of his domains also has Wilderness Lore as a class skill.

A cleric who chooses Trickery as one of his domains also has Bluff (Cha), Disguise (Cha), and Hide (Dex) as class skills.

See Deity, Domains, and Domain Spells, below, for more information.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the cleric.

Armor and Weapon Proficiency: Clerics are proficient with all simple weapons.

Clerics are proficient with all types of armor (light, medium, and heavy) and with shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Some deities have favored weapons (see Deities, page 90), and clerics consider it a point of pride to wield them.

A cleric whose deity's favored weapon is a martial weapon and who chooses War as one of his domains receives the Martial Weapon Proficiency feat related to that weapon for free, as well as the Weapon Focus feat related to that weapon.

See Chapter 5: Feats for details.

Spells: A cleric casts divine spells according to Table 3-6: The Cleric.

A cleric may prepare and cast any spell on the cleric spell list (page 160), provided he can cast spells of that level.

(Alignment restrictions mean that casting some spells may have unpleasant consequences).
 The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a cleric's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the cleric's Wisdom modifier. Clerics do not acquire their spells from books or scrolls, nor prepare them through study. Instead, they meditate or pray for their spells, receiving them through their own strength of faith or as divine inspiration.
 Each cleric must choose a time at which he must spend an hour each day in quiet contemplation or supplication to regain his daily allotment of spells (typically, this hour is at dawn or noon for good clerics and at dusk or midnight for evil ones).
 Time spent resting has no effect on whether a cleric can prepare spells.

In addition to his standard spells, a cleric gets one domain spell of each spell level, starting at 1st.
 When a cleric prepares a domain spell, it must come from one of his two domains (see below for details).
 Deity, Domains, and Domain Spells: Choose a deity for your cleric.
 Sample deities are provided on Table 3–7: Deities and in the descriptions on page 90.
 The cleric's deity influences his alignment, what magic he can perform, his values, and how others see him.
 If a race is listed under "Typical Worshipers" on Table 3–7, the cleric must be of one of those races to choose that deity as his own (the god may have occasional worshipers of other races, but not clerics).

TABLE 3–7: DEITIES

Deity	Alignment	Domains	Typical Worshipers
Heironeous, God of Valor	Lawful good	Good, Law, War	Paladins, fighters, monks
Moradin, God of Dwarves	Lawful good	Earth, Good, Law, Protection	Dwarves
Yondalla, Goddess of Halflings	Lawful good	Good, Law, Protection	Halflings
Ehlonna, Goddess of the Woodlands	Neutral good	Animal, Good, Plant, Sun	Elves, gnomes, half-elves, halflings, rangers, druids
Garl Gittergold, God of Gnomes	Neutral good	Good, Protection, Trickery	Gnomes
Pelor, God of the Sun	Neutral good	Good, Healing, Strength, Sun	Rangers, bards
Corellon Larethian, God of the Elves	Chaotic good	Chaos, Good, Protection, War	Elves, half-elves, bards
Kord, God of Strength	Chaotic good	Chaos, Good, Luck, Strength	Fighters, barbarians, rogues, athletes
Wee Jas, Goddess of Death and Magic	Lawful neutral	Death, Law, Magic	Wizards, necromancers, sorcerers
St. Cuthbert, God of Retribution	Lawful neutral	Destruction, Law, Protection, Strength	Fighters, monks, soldiers
Boccob, God of Magic	Neutral	Knowledge, Magic, Trickery	Wizards, sorcerers, sages
Fharlanghn, God of Roads	Neutral	Luck, Protection, Travel	Bards, adventurers, merchants
Obad-Hai, God of Nature	Neutral	Air, Animal, Earth, Fire, Plant, Water	Druids, barbarians, rangers
Olidammara, God of Thieves	Chaotic neutral	Chaos, Luck, Trickery	Rogues, bards, thieves
Hextor, God of Tyranny	Lawful evil	Destruction, Evil, Law, War	Evil fighters, monks
Nerull, God of Death	Neutral evil	Death, Evil, Trickery	Evil necromancers, rogues
Vecna, God of Secrets	Neutral evil	Evil, Knowledge, Magic	Evil wizards, sorcerers, rogues, spies
Erythnul, God of Slaughter	Chaotic evil	Chaos, Evil, Trickery, War	Evil fighters, barbarians, rogues
Gruumsh, God of Orcs	Chaotic evil	Chaos, Evil, Strength, War	Half-orcs, orcs

When you have chosen a deity and an alignment for your cleric, choose two from among the deity's domains for your cleric's domains.

While the clerics of a particular religion are united in their reverence for their deity, each religion encompasses different aspects.

You can only select an alignment domain (such as Good) for your cleric if his alignment matches that domain.

If your cleric is not devoted to a particular deity, you still select two domains to represent his spiritual inclinations and abilities (but the restriction on alignment domains still applies).

Each domain gives your cleric access to a domain spell at each spell level, from 1st on up, as well as a granted power. Your cleric gets the granted powers of all the domains selected.

With access to two domain spells at a given spell level, a cleric prepares one or the other each day.

If a domain spell is not on the Cleric Spells list, a cleric can only prepare it in his domain slot.

Domain spells and granted powers are listed in Cleric Domains, page 162.

For example, Jozan is a cleric of Pelor.

He chooses Good and Healing as his two domains.

He gets both granted powers of his selected domains.

The Good domain allows him to cast all spells identified by the good descriptor at +1 caster level (as if he were one level higher in experience as a cleric) as a granted power, and it gives him access to protection from evil as a domain spell.

The Healing domain allows him to cast all healing subschool spells of the Conjunction school at +1 caster level as a granted power, and it gives him access to cure light wounds as a domain spell.

When Jozan prepares his spells, he gets one 1st-level spell for being a 1st-level cleric, one 1st-level spell for having a high Wisdom (15), and one domain spell.

The domain spell must be one of the two to which he has access, either protection from evil or cure light wounds.

Spontaneous Casting: Good clerics (and neutral clerics of good deities) can channel stored spell energy into healing spells that they haven't prepared ahead of time.

The cleric can "lose" a prepared spell in order to cast any cure spell of the same level or lower (a cure spell is any spell with "cure" in its name).

For example, a good cleric who has prepared command (a 1st-level spell) may lose command in order to cast cure light wounds (also a 1st-level spell).

Clerics of good deities can cast cure spells in this way because they are especially proficient at wielding positive energy.

An evil cleric (or a neutral cleric of an evil deity), on the other hand, can't convert prepared spells to cure spells but can convert them to inflict spells (an inflict spell is one with "inflict" in the title).

Such clerics are especially proficient at wielding negative energy.

A cleric who is neither good nor evil and whose deity is neither good nor evil can convert spells either to cure spells or to inflict spells (player's choice), depending on whether the cleric is more proficient at wielding positive or negative energy.

Once the player makes this choice, it cannot be reversed. This choice also determines whether the neutral cleric turns or commands undead (see below).

Exceptions: All lawful neutral clerics of Wee Jas convert spells to inflict spells, not cure spells.

All clerics of St. Cuthbert and all nonevil clerics of Obad-Hai convert spells to cure spells, not inflict spells.

A cleric can't use spontaneous casting to convert domain spells into cure or inflict spells.

These spells arise from the particular powers of the cleric's deity, not divine energy in general.

Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells: A cleric can't cast spells of an alignment opposed to his own or to his deity's. For example, a good cleric or a neutral cleric of a good deity cannot cast evil spells.

Spells associated with the alignments of chaos, evil, good, and law are identified as such on the "School, Subschool and Descriptors" line of the spell description.

Turn or Rebuke Undead: A good cleric (or a neutral cleric who worships a good deity) has the supernatural ability to turn undead, such as skeletons, zombies, ghosts, and vampires, forcing these unholy abominations to recoil from the channeled power of the god the cleric worships.

Evil clerics (and neutral clerics who worship evil deities) can rebuke such creatures.

Neutral clerics of neutral deities can do one or the other (player's choice), depending on whether the cleric is more proficient at wielding positive or negative energy.

Once the player makes this choice, it cannot be reversed. This choice also determines whether the neutral cleric can cast spontaneous cure or inflict spells (see above).

Exceptions: All lawful neutral clerics of Wee Jas rebuke undead rather than turning them.

All clerics of St. Cuthbert and all non-evil clerics of Obad-Hai turn undead rather than rebuking them. (See Turn and Rebuke Undead, page 139).

A cleric may attempt to turn or rebuke undead a number of times per day equal to three plus his Charisma modifier.

Extra Turning: As a feat, a cleric may take Extra Turning. This feat allows the cleric to turn undead four more times per day than normal.

A cleric can take this feat multiple times, gaining four extra daily turning attempts each time.

Bonus Languages: A cleric's list of bonus languages includes Celestial, Abyssal, and Infernal, in addition to the bonus languages available to the character because of his race (see Race and Languages, page 12, and the Speak Language skill, page 73).

These are the languages of good, chaotic evil, and lawful evil outsiders, respectively.

EX-CLERICS

A cleric who grossly violates the code of conduct expected by his god (generally acting in ways opposed to the god's alignment or purposes) loses all spells and class features and cannot gain levels as a cleric of that god until he atones (see the atonement spell description, page 176).

HUMAN CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail +4 AC, large wooden shield +2 AC, armor check penalty -6, speed 20 ft., 40 lb.

Weapons: Heavy mace (1d8, crit x2, 12 lb., Medium-size, Bludgeoning).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Spellcraft	4	Int
Concentration	4	Con
Heal	4	Wis
Knowledge (religion)	4	Int
Diplomacy	4	Cha
Gather Information (cc)	2	Cha
Listen (cc)	2	Wis

Feat: Scribe Scroll.

Bonus Feat: Alertness.

Deity/Domains: Pelor/Good and Healing.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Wooden holy symbol: sun disc of Pelor.

Three torches.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

DWARVEN CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

As human cleric, except Armor: Speed 15 ft.

Weapons: Warhammer (1d8, crit x3, 8 lb., Medium-size, Bludgeoning) instead of heavy mace.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Martial Weapon Proficiency (warhammer).

Bonus Feat: None.

Deity/Domains: Moradin/Law and Protection.

Gear: Wooden holy symbol: hammer.

ELVEN CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

As human cleric, except Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., Medium-size, Slashing) instead of heavy mace.

Shortbow (1d6, x3 crit, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing) instead of crossbow.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feat: None.

Deity/Domains: Corellon Larethian/Protection and War.

Gear: Quiver of 20 arrows instead of case of bolts.

Wooden holy symbol: crescent moon.

GNOME CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

As human cleric, except Armor: No shield, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 15 lb.

Weapons: Battleaxe (1d8, crit x3, 7 lb., Medium-size, Slashing) instead of heavy mace.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Martial Weapon Proficiency (battleaxe).

Bonus Feat: None.

Deity/Domains: Garl Glittergold/Good and Trickery.

Gear: Wooden holy symbol: gold nugget.

Gold: 3d4 gp.

HALF-ELVEN CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

As human cleric, except Armor: Small wooden shield +1 AC instead of large wooden shield, armor check penalty -5, speed 20 ft., 35 lb.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., Medium-size, Slashing) instead of heavy mace.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Martial Weapon Proficiency (longsword).

Bonus Feat: None.

Deity/Domains: Ehlonna/Animal and Good.

Gear: Wooden holy symbol: unicorn.

HALF-ORC CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

As human cleric, except Armor: No shield, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.

Weapons: Shortspear (1d8, crit x3, 20 ft., 5 lb., Large, Piercing) instead of heavy mace.

Heavy crossbow (1d10, crit 19-20/x2, 120 ft., 9 lb., Medium-size, Piercing) instead of light crossbow.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feat: None.

Deity/Domains: Gruumsh/Chaos and War.

Gear: Wooden holy symbol: staring eye.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

HALFLING CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

As human cleric, except Armor: Speed 15 ft., 20 lb.

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 3 lb., Small, Piercing) instead of heavy mace.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Martial Weapon Proficiency (short sword).

Bonus Feat: None.

Deity/Domains: Yondalla/Law and Protection.

Gear: Wooden holy symbol: shield with cornucopia.

TABLE 3—6: THE CLERIC

Level	Base				Special	Spells per Day*
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1	+0	+2	+0	+2	Turn or rebuke undead	3	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	+1	+3	+0	+3		4	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3	+2	+3	+1	+3		4	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4	+3	+4	+1	+4		5	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5	+3	+4	+1	+4		5	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
6	+4	+5	+2	+5		5	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
7	+5	+5	+2	+5		6	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—
8	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6		6	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—
9	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6		6	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—
10	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7		6	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—
11	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7		6	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—
12	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8		6	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—
13	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8		6	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—
14	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9		6	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—
15	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—
16	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—
17	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1
18	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1
19	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1
20	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	4+1	4+1

*In addition to the stated number of spells per day for 1st- through 9th-level spells, a cleric gets a domain spell for each spell level, starting at 1st. The "+1" on this list represents that. These spells are in addition to any bonus spells for having a high Wisdom.

DRUID

The fury of a storm, the gentle strength of the morning sun, the cunning of the fox, the power of the bear—all these and more are at the druid's command.

The druid however, claims no mastery over nature.

That claim, she says, is the empty boast of a city dweller.

The druid gains her power not by ruling nature but by being at one with it.

To trespassers in a druid's sacred grove, to those who feel the druid's wrath, the distinction is overly fine.

Adventures: Druids adventure to gain knowledge, especially of animals and plants unfamiliar to them, and power.

Sometimes, their superiors call on their services.

Druids may also bring their power to bear against those who threaten what they love, which more often includes ancient stands of trees or trackless mountains than people.

While druids accept that which is horrific or cruel in nature, they hate that which is unnatural, including aberrations (such as beholders and carrion crawlers) and undead (such as zombies and vampires).

They sometimes lead raids against such creatures, especially when the creatures encroach on the druids' territory.

Characteristics: Druids cast divine spells much the same way clerics do, though most get their spells from the power of nature, not from deities.

Their spells are oriented toward nature and animals.

In addition to spells, druids gain an increasing array of magical powers as they gain experience, including the ability to take the shapes of animals.

The weapons and armor of a druid are restricted by traditional oaths, not simply training.

A druid could learn to use a two-handed sword, but using it would violate the druid's oath and suppress her druidic powers.

Druids avoid carrying much worked metal with them because it interferes with the pure and primal nature that they attempt to embody.

Alignment: Druids, in keeping with nature's ultimate indifference, must maintain at least some measure of dispassion.

As such, they must be neutral in some way, if not true neutral.

Just as nature encompasses dichotomies of life and death, beauty and horror, peace and violence, so two druids can manifest different or even opposite alignments (neutral good and neutral evil, for instance) and still be part of the druidic tradition.

Religion: Druids revere nature and gain their magical power from the forces of nature itself or from a nature deity.

They usually pursue a mystic spirituality of transcendent union with nature rather than devotion to a divine entity.

Still, some of them revere or at least respect either Obad-Hai, god of nature, or Ehlonna, goddess of the woodlands.

Background: Though their organization is invisible to most outsiders, who consider druids to be loners, druids are part of a society that spans the land, ignoring political borders. A prospective druid is inducted into this society through secret rituals, including tests that not all survive.

Only after achieving some level of competence is the druid allowed to strike out on her own.

All druids are nominally members of the druidic society, though some are so isolated that they have never seen high-ranking members or participated in druidic gatherings.

Still, all druids recognize each other as brothers and sisters.

Like true creatures of the wilderness, however, druids sometimes compete with or even prey on each other.

A druid may be expected to perform services for higher-ranking druids, though proper payment is expected for these assignments.

Likewise, a lower-ranking druid may appeal for aid from her higher-ranking brethren, for a fair price in coin or service.

Druids may live in small towns but always spend a good portion of their time in wild areas.

Even large cities otherwise surrounded by cultivated land as far as the eye can see often have druid groves nearby—small, wild refuges where druids live and which they protect fiercely.

Near coastal cities, the refuge is often a nearby island, where the druids can find the isolation they need.

Races: Elves and gnomes have an affinity for natural lands and are commonly druids.

Humans and half-elves are also frequently druids, and druids are particularly common among savage humans.

Dwarves, halflings, and half-orcs are rarely druids.

Few from among the brutal humanoids are inducted into druidic society, except that gnolls have a fair contingent of evil druids among them.

Gnoll druids are accepted by druids of other races, if not welcomed.

Other Classes: Druids share with rangers and many barbarians a reverence for nature and a familiarity with natural lands.

Druids dislike the paladin's devotion to abstract ideals instead of "the real world", they don't much understand the urban ways typical of a rogue, and they find arcane magic to be disruptive and slightly distasteful.

Druids, however, are nothing if not accepting of diversity, and they take little offense at others, even those very different from them.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Druids have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom determines how powerful a spell a druid can cast, how many spells the druid can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a druid must have a Wisdom score of 10 + the spell's level.

A druid gets bonus spells based on Wisdom.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a druid's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the druid's Wisdom modifier.

Since a druid wears light or medium armor, a high Dexterity improves her defensive ability.

Alignment: Neutral good, lawful neutral, neutral, chaotic neutral, or neutral evil.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The druid's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Animal Empathy (Cha, exclusive skill), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Intuit Direction (Wis), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), Spellcraft (Int), Swim (Str), and Wilderness Lore (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the druid.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Druids are proficient with the following weapons: club, dagger, dart, halfspear, longspear, quarterstaff, scimitar, sickle, shortspear, and sling.

Their spiritual oaths prohibit them from using weapons other than these.

They are proficient with light and medium armors but are prohibited from wearing metal armor (thus, they may wear only padded, leather, or hide armor).

They are skilled with shields but must use only wooden ones.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

A druid who wears prohibited armor or wields a prohibited weapon is unable to use any of her magical powers while doing so and for 24 hours thereafter.

(Note: A druid can use wooden armor that has been altered by the ironwood spell so that it function as though it was steel.

See the spell description, page 218).

Spells: A druid casts divine spells according to Table 3-8: The Druid.

A druid may prepare and cast any spell on the druid spell list (page 166) provided she can cast spells of that level. She prepares and casts spells the way a cleric does (though she cannot lose a prepared spell to cast a cure spell in its place).

To prepare or cast a spell, a druid must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell's level.

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a druid's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the druid's Wisdom modifier.

Bonus spells for druids are based on Wisdom (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells: A druid can't cast spells of an alignment opposed to her own.

For example, a neutral good druid cannot cast evil spells.

Spells associated with the alignments of chaos, evil, good, and law are identified as such on the "School, Subschool and Descriptors" line of the spell description.

Bonus Languages: A druid may substitute Sylvan for one of the bonus languages available to her because of her race.

In addition, a druid knows the Druidic language.

This secret language is known only to druids, and druids are forbidden from teaching it to nondruids.

Druidic has its own alphabet.

Nature Sense: A druid can identify plants and animals (their species and special traits) with perfect accuracy.

She can tell whether water is safe to drink or dangerous (polluted, poisoned, or otherwise unfit for consumption).

Animal Companion: A 1st-level druid may begin play with an animal companion.

This animal is one that the druid has befriended with the spell animal friendship.

It can have up to 2 Hit Dice.

(While the druid is 1st level, this particular animal is loyal enough to stay with her, even though an adventuring druid usually can only maintain animal friends whose Hit Dice total up to her level).

Alternatively, the druid may have more than one animal companion provided the animals' total Hit Dice don't exceed 2.

Woodland Stride: Starting at 2nd level, a druid may move through natural thorns, briars, overgrown areas, and similar terrain at her normal speed and without suffering damage or other impairment.

However, thorns, briars, and overgrown areas that are enchanted or magically manipulated to impede motion still affect the druid.

Trackless Step: Starting at 3rd level, a druid leaves no trail in natural surroundings and cannot be tracked.

Resist Nature's Lure: Starting at 4th level, a druid gains a +4 bonus to saving throws against the spell-like abilities of feys (such as dryads, nymphs, and sprites).

Wild Shape: At 5th level, a druid gains the spell-like ability to polymorph self into a Small or Medium-size animal (but not a dire animal) and back again once per day (see the polymorph self spell, page 237).

Unlike the standard use of the spell, however, the druid may only adopt one form.

As stated in the spell description, the druid regains hit points as if she has rested for a day.

Note: The creatures available include some giant animals but not unnatural beasts.

The druid may wild shape into a dog or a giant lizard, for example, but not into an owlbear.

The druid does not risk the standard penalty for being disoriented while in her wild shape (see the polymorph other spell, page 236).

The druid can use this ability more times per day at 6th, 7th, 10th, 14th, and 18th level, as noted on Table 3-8: The Druid.

In addition, the druid gains the ability to take the shape of a Large animal at 8th level, a Tiny animal at 11th level, and a Huge animal at 15th level.

At 12th level or higher, she can take the form of a dire animal.

At 16th level or higher, the druid may use wild shape to change into a Small, Medium-size, or Large air, earth, fire, or water elemental once per day.

She gains all the elemental's special abilities when she does so.

At 18th level, she can do this three times per day.

Venom Immunity: At 9th level, a druid gains immunity to all organic poisons, including monster poisons but not mineral poisons or poison gas.

A Thousand Faces: At 13th level, a druid gains the supernatural ability to change her appearance at will, as if using the spell alter self (page 172).

Timeless Body: After achieving 15th level, a druid no longer suffers ability penalties for aging (see Table 6-5: Aging Effects, page 93) and cannot be magically aged.

Any penalties she may have already suffered, however, remain in place.

Bonuses still accrue, and the druid still dies of old age when her time is up.

EX-DRUIDS

A druid who ceases to revere nature or who changes to a prohibited alignment loses all spells and druidic abilities and cannot gain levels as a druid until she atones (see the atonement spell description, page 176).

HALF-ELVEN DRUID STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Hide +3 AC, large wooden shield +2 AC, speed 20 ft., 35 lb., armor check penalty -5.

Weapons: Scimitar (1d6, crit 18-20/x2, 4 lb., Medium-size, Slashing).

Club (oaken cudgel): (1d6, crit x2, 10 ft., 3 lb., Medium-size, Bludgeoning).

Sling (1d4, crit x2, 50 ft., 0 lb., Small, Bludgeoning).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Spellcraft	4	Int
Animal Empathy	4	Cha
Concentration	4	Con
Wilderness Lore	4	Wis
Heal	4	Wis
Handle Animal	4	Cha
Knowledge (nature)	4	Int
Listen (cc)	2	Wis
Spot (cc)	2	Wis

Feat: Scribe Scroll.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Pouch with ten sling bullets.

Holly and mistletoe.

Three torches.

Animal Companion: Wolf (see the Monster Manual for details).

Gold: 1d6 gp.

ALTERNATIVE DRUID STARTING PACKAGE

Same as half-elven druid, except Race: Human, dwarf, elf, or half-orc.

Armor: Speed 15 ft. (dwarf only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier (human only).

Bonus Feat: Alertness (human only).

ALTERNATIVE DRUID STARTING PACKAGE

Same as half-elf druid, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 15 ft., 17 lb.

Weapons: Sickle (1d6, crit ×2, 3 lb., Small, Slashing) instead of scimitar.

Note: This druid uses her club two-handed.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 3—8: THE DRUID

Level	Base			Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save		0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1	0	+2	+0	+2	Nature sense, animal companion	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	+1	+3	+0	+3	Woodland stride	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3	+2	+3	+1	+3	Trackless step	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4	+3	+4	+1	+4	Resist nature's lure	5	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5	+3	+4	+1	+4	Wild shape (1/day)	5	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
6	+4	+5	+2	+5	Wild shape (2/day)	5	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
7	+5	+5	+2	+5	Wild shape (3/day)	6	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
8	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	Wild shape (Large)	6	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
9	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Venom immunity	6	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
10	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7	Wild shape (4/day)	6	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
11	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Wild shape (Tiny)	6	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
12	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Wild shape (dire)	6	5	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—
13	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	A thousand faces	6	5	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
14	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	Wild shape (5/day)	6	5	5	4	4	3	3	2	—	—
15	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	Wild shape (Huge), timeless body	6	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
16	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Wild shape (elemental 1/day)	6	5	5	5	4	4	3	3	2	—
17	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		6	5	5	5	5	4	4	3	2	1
18	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	Wild shape (6/day, elemental 3/day)	6	5	5	5	5	4	4	3	3	2
19	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11		6	5	5	5	5	5	4	4	3	3
20	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12		6	5	5	5	5	5	4	4	4	4

FIGHTER

The questing knight, the conquering overlord, the king's champion, the elite foot soldier, the hardened mercenary, and the bandit king—all are fighters.

Fighters can be stalwart defenders of those in need, cruel marauders, or gutsy adventurers.

Some are among the land's best souls, willing to face death for the greater good.

Others are among the worst, those who have no qualms about killing for private gain, or even for sport.

Fighters who are not actively adventuring may be soldiers, guards, bodyguards, champions, or criminal enforcers.

An adventuring fighter might call himself a warrior, a mercenary, a thug, or simply an adventurer.

Adventures: Most fighters see adventures, raids, and dangerous missions as their job.

Some have patrons who pay them regularly.

Others prefer to live like prospectors, taking great risks in hopes of the big haul.

Some fighters are more civic-minded and use their combat skills to protect those in danger who cannot defend themselves.

Whatever their initial motivations, however, fighters often wind up living for the thrill of combat and adventure.

Characteristics: Of all classes, fighters have the best all-around fighting capabilities (hence the name).

Fighters are familiar with all the standard weapons and armors.

In addition to general fighting prowess, each fighter develops particular specialties of his or her own.

A given fighter may be especially capable with certain weapons, another trained to execute specific fancy maneuvers.

As fighters gain experience, they get more opportunities to develop their fighting skills.

Thanks to their focus on combat maneuvers, they can master the most difficult ones relatively quickly.

Alignment: Fighters may be of any alignment.

Good fighters are often crusading types who seek out and fight evil.

Lawful fighters may be champions who protect the land and its people.

Chaotic fighters may be wandering mercenaries.

Evil fighters tend to be bullies and petty villains who simply take what they want by brute force.

Religion: Fighters often worship Heironeous, god of valor; Kord, god of strength; St. Cuthbert, god of retribution; Hextor, god of tyranny; or Erythnul, god of slaughter.

A fighter may style himself as a crusader in the service of his god, or he may just want someone to pray to before putting his life on the line yet another time.

Background: Fighters come to their profession in many ways.

Most have had formal training in a noble's army or at least in the local militia.

Some have trained in formal academies.

Others are self-taught—unpolished but well tested.

A fighter may have taken up the sword as a way to escape the limits of life on the farm, or he may be following a proud family tradition.

Fighters share no special identity.

They do not see themselves as a group or brotherhood.

Those who hail from a particular academy, mercenary company, or lord's regiment, however, share a certain camaraderie.

Races: Human fighters are usually veterans of some military service, typically from more mundane parents. Dwarven fighters are commonly former members of the well-trained strike teams that protect the underground dwarven kingdoms.

They are typically members of warrior families that can trace their lineages back for millennia, and they may have rivalries or alliances with other dwarven fighters depending on their lineages.

Elven fighters are typically skilled with the longsword. They are proud of their ability at swordplay and eager to demonstrate or test it.

Half-orc fighters are often self-taught outcasts who have achieved enough skill to earn recognition and something akin to respect.

Gnome and halfling fighters usually stay in their own lands as part of the area militia rather than adventuring.

Half-elves are rarely fighters, but they may take up swordplay in honor of the elven tradition.

Among the brutal humanoids, few can manage the discipline it takes to be a true fighter.

The militaristic hobgoblins, however, produce quite a number of strong and skilled fighters.

Other Classes: The fighter excels in a straight fight, but he relies on others for magical support, healing, and scouting. On a team, it is his job to man the front lines, protect the other party members, and bring the tough opponents down.

Fighters might not much understand the arcane ways of wizards or share the faith of clerics, but they recognize the value of teamwork.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Fighters have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is especially important for fighters because it improves their melee attack and damage rolls.

Constitution is important for giving fighters lots of hit points, which they'll need in their many battles.

Dexterity is important for fighters who want to be good archers or who want access to certain Dexterity-oriented feats, but the heavy armor that fighters usually wear reduces the benefit of a very high Dexterity.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The fighter's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Jump (Str), Ride (Dex), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the fighter.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The fighter is proficient in the use of all simple and martial weapons and all armor (heavy, medium, and light) and shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Bonus Feats: At 1st level, the fighter gets a bonus feat in addition to the feat that any 1st-level character gets and the bonus feat granted to humans.

The fighter gains an additional bonus feat at 2nd level and every two levels thereafter (4th, 6th, 8th, etc.).

These bonus feats must be drawn from the following list: Ambidexterity, Blind-Fight, Combat Reflexes, Dodge (Mobility, Spring Attack), Exotic Weapon Proficiency*, Expertise (Improved Disarm, Improved Trip, Whirlwind Attack), Improved Critical*, Improved Initiative, Improved Unarmed Strike (Deflect Arrows, Stunning Fist), Mounted Combat (Mounted Archery, Trample, Ride-By Attack, Spirited Charge), Point Blank Shot (Far Shot, Precise Shot, Rapid Shot, Shot on the Run), Power Attack (Cleave, Improved Bull Rush, Sunder, Great Cleave), Quick Draw, Two-Weapon Fighting (Improved Two-Weapon Fighting), Weapon Finesse*, Weapon Focus*, Weapon Specialization*.

Some of the bonus feats available to a fighter cannot be acquired until the fighter has gained one or more prerequisite feats; these feats are listed parenthetically after the prerequisite feat.

A fighter can select feats marked with an asterisk (*) more than once, but it must be for a different weapon each time.

A fighter must still meet all prerequisites for a feat, including ability score and base attack bonus minimums. (See Chapter 5: Feats for descriptions of feats and their prerequisites).

Important: These feats are in addition to the feat that a character of any class gets every three levels (as per Table 3-2: Experience and Level-Dependent Benefits).

The fighter is not limited to the list given here when choosing those feats.

Weapon Specialization: On achieving 4th level or higher, as a feat the fighter (and only the fighter) may take Weapon Specialization.

Weapon Specialization adds a +2 damage bonus with a chosen weapon.

The fighter must have Weapon Focus with that weapon to take Weapon Specialization.

If the weapon is a ranged weapon, the damage bonus only applies if the target is within 30 feet, because only at that range can the fighter strike precisely enough to hit more effectively.

The fighter may take this feat as a bonus feat or as a regular one.

DWARVEN FIGHTER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail +4 AC, large wooden shield +2 AC, armor check penalty -6 , speed 15 ft., 40 lb.

Weapons: Dwarven waraxe (1d10, crit x3, 15 lb., Medium-size, Slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Climb	4	Str	-6
Jump	4	Str	-6
Ride	4	Dex
Swim	4	Str	-12*
Listen (cc)	2	Wis
Search (cc)	2	Int
Spot (cc)	2	Wis

*-1 per 5 pounds of equipment.

Feat: Exotic Weapon Proficiency (dwarven waraxe).
 Bonus Feat (Fighter): Weapon Focus (dwarven waraxe).
 Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations,
 bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.
 Quiver with 20 arrows.
 Gold: 4d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE FIGHTER STARTING PACKAGE

Same as dwarven fighter, except Race: Human, elf, half-elf, or half-orc.

Armor: Speed 20 ft. instead of 15 ft.

Weapons: Bastard sword (1d10, crit 19–20/x2, 10 lb., Medium-size, Slashing) instead of dwarven waraxe.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier (human only).

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Swim	4	Str	-11*

*-1 per 5 pounds of equipment.

Feat: Exotic Weapon Proficiency (bastard sword) instead of (dwarven waraxe).

Bonus Feat (Fighter): Weapon Focus (bastard sword) instead of Weapon Focus (dwarven waraxe).

Bonus Feat: Improved Initiative (human only).

Gold: 2d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE FIGHTER STARTING PACKAGE

Same as dwarven fighter, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: 20 lb.

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19–20/x2, 3 lb., Small, Piercing) instead of waraxe.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Swim	4	Str	-5*

*-1 per 5 pounds of equipment.

Feat: Weapon Focus (short sword) instead of Exotic Weapon Proficiency (dwarven waraxe).

Bonus Feat (Fighter): If Dex 13 or higher, Dodge; if Dex 12 or less, Point Blank Shot instead.

Gold: 2d4x5 gp.

TABLE 3—9: THE FIGHTER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1	+1	+2	+0	+0	Bonus feat
2	+2	+3	+0	+0	Bonus feat
3	+3	+3	+1	+1
4	+4	+4	+1	+1	Bonus feat
5	+5	+4	+1	+1
6	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Bonus feat
7	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2
8	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Bonus feat
9	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3
10	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Bonus feat
11	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3
12	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Bonus feat
13	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4
14	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	Bonus feat
15	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5
16	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	Bonus feat
17	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5
18	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	Bonus feat
19	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6
20	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Bonus feat

MONK

Dotted across the landscape are monasteries—small, walled cloisters inhabited by monks.

These monks pursue personal perfection through action as well as contemplation.

They train themselves to be versatile warriors skilled at fighting without weapons or armor.

Monasteries headed by good masters serve as protectors of the people.

Ready for battle even when barefoot and dressed in peasant clothes, monks are able to travel unnoticed among the populace, catching bandits, warlords, and corrupt nobles unawares.

By contrast, monasteries headed by evil masters rule surrounding lands through fear, as an evil warlord's castle might.

Evil monks make ideal spies, infiltrators, and assassins.

The individual monk, however, is unlikely to care passionately about championing commoners or amassing wealth.

She cares for the perfection of her art and, thereby, her personal perfection.

Her goal is to achieve a state that is, frankly, beyond the mortal realm.

Adventures: Monks approach adventures as if they were personal tests.

While not prone to showing off, monks are willing to try their skills against whatever obstacles confront them.

Monks are not greedy for material wealth, but they eagerly seek that which can help them perfect their art.

Characteristics: The key feature of the monk is her ability to fight unarmed and unarmored.

Thanks to her rigorous training, she can strike as hard as if she were armed and strike faster than a warrior with a sword.

Though monks don't cast spells, they have a magic of their own.

They channel a subtle energy, called ki, which allows them to perform amazing feats.

The monk's best-known feat is her ability to stun an opponent with an unarmed blow.

A monk also has a preternatural awareness of attacks.

She can dodge an attack even if she is not consciously aware of it.

As the monk gains experience and power, her mundane and ki-oriented abilities grow, giving her more and more power over herself and, sometimes, over others.

Alignment: A monk's training requires strict discipline.

Only those who are lawful at heart are capable of undertaking it.

Religion: A monk's training is her spiritual path.

She is inner-directed, capable of a private, mystic connection to the spiritual world.

She needs neither clerics nor gods.

Certain lawful gods, however, may appeal to monks, and monks may meditate on the gods' likenesses and attempt to emulate their deeds.

The three most likely candidates for a monk's devotion are Heironeous, god of valor; St. Cuthbert, god of retribution; and Hextor, god of tyranny.

Background: A monk typically trains in a monastery.

Most monks were children when they joined the monastery, sent to live with the monks when their parents died, when there wasn't enough food in the family to keep them, or in return for some kindness that the monastery had performed for the family.

Life in the monastery is so focused that by the time a monk sets off on her own, she feels little connection to her former family or village.

In larger cities, master monks have set up monk schools to teach their arts to those who are interested and worthy.

The monks of these academies often see their rural cousins from the monasteries as backward.

A monk may feel a deep connection to her monastery or school, to the monk who taught her, to the lineage into which she was trained, or to all of these.

Some monks, however, have no sense of connection other than to their own paths of personal development.

Monks recognize each other as a select group set apart from the rest of the populace.

They may feel kinship, but they also love to compete with each other to see whose ki is strongest.

Races: Monasteries are mostly found among humans, who have incorporated them into their ever-evolving culture.

Thus, many monks are humans (or half-orcs and half-elves who live among humans).

Elves are capable of single-minded, long-term devotion to an interest, art, or discipline, and some of them leave the forests to become monks.

The monk tradition is alien to dwarven and gnome culture, and halflings are typically too mobile to commit themselves to a monastery, so dwarves, gnomes, and halflings are very rarely monks.

The savage humanoids do not have the stable social structure that allows monk training, but the occasional orphaned or abandoned child from some humanoid tribe winds up in civilized monasteries or adopted by a wandering master.

The evil subterranean elves known as the drow have a small but successful monk tradition.

Other Classes: Monks are sometimes distant from others because they have little in common with the motivations and skills of members of other classes.

Monks recognize, however, that they work well with the support of others, and they prove themselves reliable companions.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Monks have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom powers the monk's special offensive and defensive capabilities.

Dexterity provides the unarmored monk with a better defense and with bonuses to some class skills.

Strength helps a monk's unarmed combat ability.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The monk's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the monk.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Monks are proficient with basic peasant weapons and special weapons whose use is part of monk training.

The full list includes club, crossbow (light or heavy), dagger, handaxe, javelin, kama, nunchaku, quarterstaff, shuriken, siangham, and sling.

(See Chapter 7: Equipment for descriptions of these weapons).

A monk using a kama, nunchaku, or siangham can strike with her unarmed base attack, including her more favorable number of attacks per round (see below).

Her damage, however, is standard for the weapon ($1d6$, crit $\times 2$), not her unarmed damage.

The weapon must be light, so a Small monk must use Tiny versions of these weapons in order to use the more favorable base attack.

Monks are not proficient with armor or shields, but they are highly trained at dodging blows, and they develop a "sixth sense" that lets them avoid even unanticipated attacks.

A monk adds her Wisdom bonus (if any) to AC, in addition to her normal Dexterity modifier, and her AC improves as she gains levels.

(Only add this extra AC bonus if the total of the monk's Wisdom modifier and the number in the "AC Bonus" column on Table 3–10 is a positive number).

The Wisdom bonus and the AC bonus represent a preternatural awareness of danger, and a monk does not lose either even in situations when she loses her Dexterity modifier due to being unprepared, ambushed, stunned, and so on.

(Monks do lose these AC bonuses when immobilized).

A monk's special skills all require freedom of movement.

When wearing armor, a monk loses her AC bonus for Wisdom, AC bonus for class and level, favorable multiple unarmed attacks per round, and heightened movement.

Furthermore, her special abilities all face the arcane spell failure chance that the armor type normally imposes.

In addition, wearing armor heavier than leather imposes check penalties to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor or equipment carried.

Unarmed Strike: Monks are highly trained in fighting unarmed, giving them considerable advantages when doing so.

They deal more damage than normal, as shown on Table 3–10: The Monk.

A monk fighting unarmed gains the benefits of the Improved Unarmed Strike feat and thus does not provoke attacks of opportunity from armed opponents that she attacks.

A monk's attacks may be with either fist interchangeably or even from elbows, knees, and feet.

There is no such thing as an off-hand attack for a monk striking unarmed.

A monk fighting with a one-handed weapon can make an unarmed strike as an off-hand attack, but she suffers the standard penalties for two-weapon fighting (see Table 8–2: Two-Weapon Fighting Penalties, page 125).

Likewise, a monk with a weapon (other than a special monk weapon) in her off hand gets an extra attack with that weapon but suffers the usual penalties for two-weapon fighting and can't strike with a flurry of blows (see below). The unarmed damage on Table 3-10: The Monk is for Medium-size monks.

Small monks deal less than stated damage with unarmed attacks (see Table 3-11: Small Monk Damage and Speed).

Flurry of Blows: The monk may strike with a flurry of blows at the expense of accuracy.

When doing so, she may make one extra attack in a round at her highest base attack, but this attack and each other attack made that round suffer a -2 penalty apiece.

For example, at 6th level, Ember gets two unarmed attacks at +7 and +4.

If she executes a flurry of blows, she gets three attacks at +5, +5, and +2.

This penalty applies for 1 round, so it affects attacks of opportunity the monk might make before her next action. The monk must use the full attack action (see page 124) to strike with a flurry of blows.

A monk may also use the flurry of blows if armed with a special monk weapon (kama, nunchaku, or siangham).

If armed with one such weapon, she makes the extra attack either with that weapon or unarmed.

If armed with two such weapons, she uses one for the regular attack (or attacks) and the other for the extra attack. In any case, her damage bonus on the attack with her off hand is not reduced.

Usually, a monk's unarmed strikes deal normal damage, but she can choose to deal subdual damage instead with no penalty on her attack roll.

She has the same choice to deal normal or subdual damage while grappling (see Grapple, page 137).

Stunning Attack: A monk has the ability to stun a creature damaged by her unarmed attacks.

The monk can use this supernatural ability once per round, but no more than once per level per day.

The monk must declare she is using a stun attack before making the attack roll (thus, a missed attack roll ruins the attempt).

A foe struck by the monk is forced to make a Fortitude saving throw (DC 10 + one-half the monk's level + Wisdom modifier), in addition to receiving normal damage.

If the saving throw fails, the opponent is stunned for 1 round.

A stunned character can't act and loses any Dexterity bonus to AC, while attackers get a +2 bonus on attack rolls against a stunned opponent.

Constructs, oozes, plants, undead, incorporeal creatures, and creatures immune to critical hits cannot be stunned by the monk's stunning attack.

Evasion: A monk can avoid even magical and unusual attacks with great agility.

If a monk makes a successful Reflex saving throw against an attack that normally deals half damage on a successful save (such as a red dragon's fiery breath or a fireball), the monk instead takes no damage.

Evasion can only be used if the monk is wearing light armor or no armor.

It is an extraordinary ability.

Deflect Arrows: At 2nd level, a monk gains the Deflect Arrows feat (see page 81), even if she doesn't have the prerequisite Dexterity score.

Fast Movement: At 3rd level and higher, a monk moves faster than normal, as shown on Table 3-10: The Monk.

A monk in armor (even light armor) or carrying a medium or heavy load loses this extra speed.

A dwarf or a Small monk moves more slowly than a Medium-size monk (see Table 3-11: Small Monk Damage and Speed).

From 9th level on, the monk's running ability is actually a supernatural ability.

Still Mind: At 3rd level, a monk gains a +2 bonus to saving throws against spells and effects from the Enchantment school, since her meditation and training enable her to better resist mindaffecting attacks.

Slow Fall: At 4th level, a monk within arm's reach of a wall can use the wall to slow her descent.

The monk takes damage as if the fall were 20 feet shorter than it actually is.

Her ability to slow her fall (that is, to reduce the effective height of the fall when next to a wall) improves with her level until, at 18th level, the monk can use a nearby wall to slow her descent and fall any distance without harm.

See the "Special" column on Table 3-10 for details.

Purity of Body: At 5th level, a monk gains control over her body's immune system.

She gains immunity to all diseases except for magical diseases such as mummy rot and lycanthropy.

Improved Trip: At 6th level, a monk gains the Improved Trip feat (see page 83).

She need not have taken the Expertise feat, normally a prerequisite, before this.

Wholeness of Body: At 7th level, a monk can cure her own wounds.

She can cure up to twice her current level in hit points each day, and she can spread this healing out among several uses. Wholeness of body is a supernatural ability.

Leap of the Clouds: At 7th level or higher, a monk's jumping distance (vertical or horizontal) is not limited according to her height.

(See the Jump skill description, page 70).

Improved Evasion: At 9th level, a monk's evasion ability improves.

She still takes no damage on a successful Reflex saving throw against attacks such as a dragon's breath weapon or a fireball, but henceforth she only takes half damage on a failed save.

Ki Strike: At 10th level, a monk's unarmed attack is empowered with ki.

The unarmed strike damage from such an attack can deal damage to a creature with damage reduction, such as a wight, as if the blow were made with a weapon with a +1 enhancement bonus.

Ki strike improves as the monk gains experience, allowing her unarmed strike at 13th level to deal damage against creatures with damage reduction as if it were made with a weapon with a +2 enhancement bonus, and at 16th level to deal damage against creatures with damage reduction as if it were made with a weapon with a +3 enhancement bonus.

Ki strike is a supernatural ability.

Diamond Body: At 11th level, a monk is in such control of her own metabolism that she gains immunity to poison of all kinds.

Diamond body is a supernatural ability.

Abundant Step: At 12th level, a monk can slip magically between spaces, as per the spell dimension door, once per day.

This is a spell-like ability, and the monk's effective casting level is one-half her actual level (rounded down).

Diamond Soul: At 13th level, a monk gains spell resistance. Her spell resistance equals her level + 10.

In order to affect the monk with a spell, a spellcaster must roll the monk's spell resistance or higher on 1d20 + the spellcaster's level.

(See Spell Resistance, page 150).

Quivering Palm: Starting at 15th level, a monk can use the quivering palm.

This supernatural ability allows the monk to set up vibrations within the body of another creature that can then be fatal if the monk so desires.

The monk can use the quivering palm attack once a week, and she must announce her intent before making her attack roll.

Constructs, oozes, plants, undead, incorporeal creatures, and creatures immune to critical hits cannot be affected.

The monk must be of higher level than the target (or have more levels than the target's number of Hit Dice).

If the monk strikes successfully and the target takes damage from the blow, the quivering palm attack succeeds.

Thereafter the monk can choose to try to slay the victim at any later time within one day per level of the monk.

The monk merely wills the target to die (a free action), and unless the target makes a Fortitude saving throw (DC 10 + one-half the monk's level + Wisdom modifier), it dies.

If the saving throw is successful, the target is no longer in danger from that particular quivering palm attack (but may be affected by another one at a later time).

Timeless Body: After achieving 17th level, a monk no longer suffers ability penalties for aging and cannot be magically aged.

(Any penalties she may have already suffered remain in place).

Bonuses still accrue, and the monk still dies of old age when her time is up.

Tongue of the Sun and Moon: A monk of 17th level or above can speak with any living creature.

Empty Body: At 19th level or higher, a monk can assume an ethereal state for 1 round per level per day, as per the spell etherealness.

The monk may go ethereal on a number of different occasions during any single day as long as the total number of rounds spent ethereal does not exceed her level.

Empty body is a supernatural ability.

Perfect Self: At 20th level, a monk has tuned her body with skill and quasi-magical abilities to the point that she becomes a magical creature.

She is forevermore treated as an outsider (extraplanar creature) rather than as a humanoid.

For instance, charm person does not affect her.

Additionally, the monk gains damage reduction 20/+1.

This means that the monk ignores (instantly regenerates) the first 20 points of damage from any attack unless the damage is dealt by a weapon with a +1 enhancement bonus (or better), by a spell, or by a form of energy (fire, cold, etc.).

As an outsider, a 20th-level monk is subject to spells that repel enchanted creatures, such as protection from law.

Unlike other outsiders, the monk can still be brought back from the dead.

EX-MONKS

A monk who becomes nonlawful cannot gain new levels as a monk but retains all monk abilities.

Like a member of any other class, a monk may be a multiclass character, but monks face a special restriction.

A monk who gains a new class or (if already multiclass) raises another class by a level may never again raise her monk level, though she retains all her monk abilities.

HUMAN MONK STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6, crit x2, 4 lb., Large, Bludgeoning).

Sling (1d4, crit x2, 50 ft., 0 lb., Small, Bludgeoning).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Listen	4	Wis
Climb	4	Str	0
Move Silently	4	Dex	0
Tumble	4	Dex	0
Jump	4	Str	0
Escape Artist	4	Dex	0
Hide	4	Dex	0
Swim	4	Str	-4*
Balance	4	Dex	0

*-1 per 5 pounds of equipment.

Feat: If Dex 13 or higher, Dodge; if Dex 12 or less, Improved Initiative instead.

Bonus Feat: Skill Focus (Move Silently or other skill).

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Three torches.

Pouch with 10 sling stones.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE MONK STARTING PACKAGE

Same as human monk, except Race: Dwarf, elf, half-elf, or half-orc.

Armor: Speed 20 ft. (dwarf only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feat: None.

ALTERNATIVE MONK STARTING PACKAGE

Same as human monk, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 20 ft.

Weapons: Club (1d6, crit x2, 10 ft., 3 lb., Bludgeoning) instead of quarterstaff.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Swim	4	Str	-3*

*-1 per 5 pounds of equipment.

Bonus Feat: None.

TABLE 3—10: THE MONK

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Unarmed Attack Bonus	Unarmed Damage*	AC Bonus	Unarmored Speed†
1	0	+2	+2	+2	Unarmed Strike, stunning attack, evasion	+0	1d6	+0	30 ft.
2	+1	+3	+3	+3	Deflect Arrows feat	+1	1d6	+0	30 ft.
3	+2	+3	+3	+3	Still mind	+2	1d6	+0	40 ft.
4	+3	+4	+4	+4	Slow fall (20 ft.)	+3	1d8	+0	40 ft.
5	+3	+4	+4	+4	Purity of body	+3	1d8	+1	40 ft.
6	+4	+5	+5	+5	Slow fall (30 ft.), Improved Trip feat	+4/+1	1d8	+1	50 ft.
7	+5	+5	+5	+5	Wholeness of body, Leap of the clouds	+5/+2	1d8	+1	50 ft.
8	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	Slow fall (50 ft.)	+6/+3	1d10	+1	50 ft.
9	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	Improved evasion	+6/+3	1d10	+1	60 ft.
10	+7/+2	+7	+7	+7	Ki strike (+1)	+7/+4/+1	1d10	+2	60 ft.
11	+8/+3	+7	+7	+7	Diamond body	+8/+5/+2	1d10	+2	60 ft.
12	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Abundant step	+9/+6/+3	1d12	+2	70 ft.
13	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Diamond soul, Ki strike (+2)	+9/+6/+3	1d12	+2	70 ft.
14	+10/+5	+9	+9	+9		+10/+7/+4/+1	1d12	+2	70 ft.
15	+11/+6/+1	+9	+9	+9	Quivering palm	+11/+8/+5/+2	1d12	+3	80 ft.
16	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	Ki strike (+3)	+12/+9/+6/+3	1d20	+3	80 ft.
17	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	Timeless body, tongue of the sun and moon	+12/+9/+6/+3	1d20	+3	80 ft.
18	+13/+8/+3	+11	+11	+11	Slow fall (any distance)	+13/+10/+7/+4/+1	1d20	+3	90 ft.
19	+14/+9/+4	+11	+11	+11	Empty body	+14/+11/+8/+5/+2	1d20	+3	90 ft.
20	+15/+10/+5	+12	+12	+12	Perfect self	+15/+12/+9/+6/+3	1d20	+4	90 ft.

*Small monks deal less damage (see Table 3–11: Small Monk Damage and Speed).

This figure plus the monk's Wisdom modifier are added to the monk's AC (if this figure plus the monk's Wisdom modifier is not a positive number, do not add it). The AC bonus is 1/5 the monk's level.

†Small and dwarven monks are slower (see Table 3–11: Small Monk Damage and Speed).

TABLE 3—11: SMALL MONK DAMAGE AND SPEED

Level	Damage	Speed	Level	Damage	Speed
1–2	1d4	20 ft.	9–11	1d8	40 ft.
3	1d4	25 ft.	12–14	1d10	45 ft.
4–5	1d6	25 ft.	15	1d10	55 ft.
6–7	1d6	35 ft.	16–17	2d6	55 ft.
8	1d8	35 ft.	18–20	2d6	60 ft.

PALADIN

The compassion to pursue good, the will to uphold law, and the power to defeat evil—these are the three weapons of the paladin.

Few have the purity and devotion that it takes to walk the paladin's path, but those few are rewarded with the power to protect, to heal, and to smite.

In a land of scheming wizards, unholy priests, bloodthirsty dragons, and infernal fiends, the paladin is the final hope that cannot be extinguished.

Adventures: Paladins take their adventures seriously and have a penchant for referring to them as "quests".

Even a mundane mission is, in the heart of the paladin, a personal test—an opportunity to demonstrate bravery, to develop martial skills, to learn tactics, and to find ways to do good.

Still, the paladin really comes into her own when leading a mighty campaign against evil, not when merely looting ruins.

Characteristics: Divine power protects the paladin and gives her special powers.

It wards off harm, protects her from disease, lets her heal herself, and guards her heart against fear.

The paladin can also direct this power to help others, healing their wounds or curing diseases.

Finally, the paladin can use this power to destroy evil.

Even the least experienced paladin can detect evil, and more experienced paladins can smite evil foes and turn away undead.

In addition, this power draws a mighty steed to the paladin and imbues that mount with strength, intelligence, and magical protection.

Alignment: Paladins must be lawful good, and they lose their divine powers if they deviate from that alignment. Additionally, paladins swear to follow a code of conduct that is in line with lawfulness and goodness.

Religion: Paladins need not devote themselves to a single deity.

Devotion to righteousness is enough for most.

Those who align themselves with particular religions prefer Heironeous, god of valor, over all others, but some paladins follow Pelor, the sun god.

Paladins devoted to a god are scrupulous in observing religious duties and are welcome in every associated temple.

Background: No one ever chooses to be a paladin.

Becoming a paladin is answering a call, accepting one's destiny.

No one, no matter how diligent, can become a paladin through practice.

The nature is either within one or not, and it is not possible to gain the paladin's nature by any act of will.

It is possible to fail to recognize one's own potential, or to deny one's destiny.

Some who are called to be paladins deny the call and pursue some other life instead.

Most paladins answer the call and begin training as adolescents.

Typically, they become squires or assistants to experienced paladins, train for years, and finally set off on their own to further the causes of good and law.

Other paladins, however, find their calling only later in life, after having pursued some other career.

All paladins, regardless of background, recognize in each other an eternal bond that transcends culture, race, and even religion.

Any two paladins, even from opposite sides of the world, consider themselves comrades.

Races: Humans, with their ambitious souls, make great paladins.

Half-elves, who often have human ambition, may also find themselves called into service as paladins.

Dwarves are sometimes paladins, but becoming a paladin may be hard on a dwarf because it means putting the duties of the paladin's life before duties to family, clan, and king.

Elven paladins are few, and those few tend to follow quests that take them far and wide because their lawful bent puts them out of synch with life among the elves.

Members of the other common races rarely hear the call to become paladins.

Among the savage humanoids, paladins are all but unheard of.

Other Classes: Even though paladins are in some ways set apart from others, they eagerly team up with those whose skills and capabilities complement their own.

They work well with good and lawful clerics, and they appreciate working with those who are brave, honest, and committed to good.

While they cannot abide evil acts by their companions, they are otherwise willing to work with a variety of people quite different from themselves.

Charismatic, trustworthy, and well respected, the paladin makes a fine leader for a team.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Paladins have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma increases the paladin's healing, self-protective capabilities, and undead turning.

Strength is important for a paladin because of its role in combat.

A Wisdom score of 14 or higher is required to get access to the most powerful paladin spells, and a score of 11 or higher is required to cast any paladin spells at all.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The paladin's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Ride (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the paladin.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Paladins are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor (heavy, medium, and light), and with shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Detect Evil: At will, the paladin can detect evil as a spell-like ability.

This ability duplicates the effects of the spell detect evil.

Divine Grace: A paladin applies her Charisma modifier (if positive) as a bonus to all saving throws.

Lay on Hands: A paladin can heal wounds by touch.

Each day she can cure a total number of hit points equal to her Charisma bonus (if any) times her level.

For example, a 7th-level paladin with a 16 Charisma (+3 bonus) may cure up to 21 points of damage.

The paladin can cure herself.

She may choose to divide her curing among multiple recipients, and she doesn't have to use it all at once.

Lay on hands is a spell-like ability whose use is a standard action.

Alternatively, the paladin can use any or all of these points to deal damage to undead creatures.

Treat this attack just like a touch spell.

The paladin decides how many cure points to use as damage after successfully touching the undead creature.

Divine Health: A paladin is immune to all diseases, including magical diseases such as mummy rot and lycanthropy.

Aura of Courage: Beginning at 2nd level, a paladin is immune to fear (magical or otherwise).

Allies within 10 feet of the paladin gain a +4 morale bonus on saving throws against fear effects.

Granting the morale bonus to allies is a supernatural ability.

Smite Evil: Once per day, a paladin of 2nd level or higher may attempt to smite evil with one normal melee attack.

She adds her Charisma modifier (if positive) to her attack roll and deals 1 extra point of damage per level.

For example, a 13th-level paladin armed with a longsword would deal $1d8+13$ points of damage, plus any additional bonuses for high Strength or magical effects that normally apply.

If the paladin accidentally smites a creature that is not evil, the smite has no effect but it is still used up for that day.

Smite evil is a supernatural ability.

Remove Disease: Beginning at 3rd level, a paladin can remove disease, as per the spell remove disease, once per week.

She can use this ability more often as she advances in levels (twice per week at 6th level, three times per week at 9th level, and so forth).

Remove disease is a spell-like ability for paladins.

Turn Undead: When a paladin reaches 3rd level, she gains the supernatural ability to turn undead.

She may use this ability a number of times per day equal to three plus her Charisma modifier.

She turns undead as a cleric of two levels lower would.

(See Turn and Rebuke Undead, page 139).

Extra Turning: As a feat, a paladin may take Extra Turning. This feat allows the paladin to turn undead four more times per day than normal.

A paladin can take this feat multiple times, gaining four extra daily turning attempts each time.

Spells: Beginning at 4th level, a paladin gains the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the paladin must have a Wisdom score of at least $10 +$ the spell's level, so a paladin with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Paladin bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a Difficulty Class of $10 +$ spell level + Wisdom modifier.

When the paladin gets 0 spells of a given level, such as 0 1st-level spells at 4th level, the paladin gets only bonus spells (as per Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells).

A paladin without a bonus spell for that level cannot yet cast a spell of that level.

The paladin's spell list appears on page 167.

A paladin has access to any spell on the list and can freely choose which to prepare, just as a cleric can.

A paladin prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though the paladin cannot use spontaneous casting to substitute a cure spell in place of a prepared spell).

THE PALADIN'S MOUNT

The paladin's mount is different from a standard animal of its type in many ways. The standard mount for a Medium-size paladin is a warhorse, and the standard mount for a Small paladin is a warpony (see the Monster Manual for warhorse and warpony basic statistics). Your DM may work with you to select another kind of mount, such as a riding dog. A paladin's mount is a magical beast, not an animal. It is superior to a normal mount of its kind and has special powers, as shown below:

Paladin Level	Bonus HD	Natural Armor	Str Adj.	Int	Special
5-7	+2	4	+1	6	Improved evasion, share spells, empathic link, share saving throws
8-10	+4	6	+2	7
11-14	+6	8	+3	8	Command creatures of its kind
15-20	+8	10	+4	9	Spell resistance

Paladin Level: The level of the paladin. If the mount suffers a level drain, treat it as a mount of a lower-level paladin.

Bonus HD: These are extra eight-sided (d8) Hit Dice, each of which gains a Constitution modifier, as normal. Remember that extra Hit Dice improve the mount's base attack and base save bonuses.

Natural Armor: The number listed here is an improvement to the mount's AC. It represents the preternatural toughness of a paladin's mount.

Str Adj.: Add this figure to the mount's Strength score.

Int: The mount's Intelligence score.

Improved Evasion: If the mount is subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, it takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw and half damage even if the saving throw fails. Improved evasion is an extraordinary ability.

This mount is usually a heavy warhorse (for a Medium-size paladin) or a warpony (for a Small paladin).

Should the paladin's mount die, she may call for another one after a year and a day.

The new mount has all the accumulated abilities due a mount of the paladin's level.

Code of Conduct: A paladin must be of lawful good alignment and loses all special class abilities if she ever willingly commits an act of evil.

Additionally, a paladin's code requires that she respect legitimate authority, act with honor (not lying, not cheating, not using poison, etc.), help those who need help (provided they do not use the help for evil or chaotic ends), and punish those that harm or threaten innocents.

Associates: While she may adventure with characters of any good or neutral alignment, a paladin will never knowingly associate with evil characters.

A paladin will not continue an association with someone who consistently offends her moral code.

A paladin may only hire henchmen or accept followers who are lawful good.

EX-PALADINS

Through 3rd level, a paladin has no caster level.

Starting at 4th level, a paladin's caster level is one-half her class level.

Special Mount: Upon or after reaching 5th level, a paladin can call an unusually intelligent, strong, and loyal steed to serve her in her crusade against evil (see The Paladin's Mount sidebar).

Share Spells: At the paladin's option, she may have any spell she casts on herself also affect her mount. The mount must be within 5 feet. If the spell has a duration other than instantaneous, the spell stops affecting the mount if it moves farther than 5 feet away and will not affect the mount again even if the mount returns to the paladin before the duration expires. Additionally, the paladin may cast a spell with a target of "You" on her mount (as a touch range spell) instead of on herself. The paladin and the mount can share spells even if the spells normally do not affect creatures of the mount's type (magical beast).

Empathic Link: The paladin has an empathic link with the mount out to a distance of up to one mile. The paladin cannot see through the mount's eyes, but they can communicate telepathically. Even intelligent mounts see the world differently from humans, so misunderstandings are always possible. This is a supernatural ability.

Because of the empathic link between the mount and the paladin, the paladin has the same connection to an item or place that the mount does, just as a master and his familiar (see Familiars, page 51).

Share Saving Throws: The mount uses its own base save or the paladin's, whichever is higher.

Command: The mount's command ability is a spell-like ability that it can use at will against other creatures of its kind (for warhorses and warponies, this includes donkeys, mules, and ponies) with fewer Hit Dice than it has itself. The mount can use this ability once per day per two levels of its paladin, and the ability functions just like the spell command (for purposes of this spell, the mount can make itself be understood by any normal animal of its kind). Since this is a spell-like ability, the mount must make a Concentration check (DC 21) if it's being ridden at the time (as in combat). If the check fails, the ability does not work that time, but it still counts against the mount's daily uses.

Spell Resistance: The mount's spell resistance equals the paladin's level + 5. To affect the mount with a spell, a spellcaster must make a caster level check (1d20 + caster level) at least equal to the mount's spell resistance.

A paladin who ceases to be lawful good, who willfully commits an evil act, or who grossly violates the code of conduct loses all special abilities and spells, including the service of the paladin's warhorse.

She also may not progress in levels as a paladin.

She regains her abilities if she atones for her violations (see the atonement spell description, page 176), as appropriate.

Like a member of any other class, a paladin may be a multiclass character, but paladins face a special restriction.

A paladin who gains a new class or (if already multiclass) raises another class by a level may never again raise her paladin level, though she retains all her paladin abilities.

The path of the paladin requires a constant heart.

Once you undertake the path, you must pursue it to the exclusion of all other careers.

Once you have turned off the path, you may never return.

HUMAN PALADIN STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail +4 AC, large wooden shield +2 AC, armor check penalty -6, speed 20 ft., 40 lb.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., Medium-size, Slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, x3 crit, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Heal	4	Wis
Ride	4	Dex
Diplomacy	4	Cha
Spot (cc)	2	Wis
Listen (cc)	2	Wis
Climb (cc)	2	Str	-6
Search (cc)	2	Int

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Bonus Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, three pints of oil.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Wooden holy symbol: fist of Heironeous, god of valor.

Gold: 6d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE PALADIN STARTING PACKAGE

As human paladin, except Race: Dwarf, elf, half-elf, or half-orc.

Armor: Speed 15 ft. (dwarf only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feat: None.

ALTERNATIVE PALADIN STARTING PACKAGE

As human paladin, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 15 ft., 20 lb.

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 3 lb.), Small, Piercing) instead of longsword.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Weapon Focus (short sword) instead of Weapon Focus (longsword).

Bonus Feat: None.

Gold: 8d4 gp.

TABLE 3—12: THE PALADIN

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1	2	3	4
1	+1	+2	+0	+0	Detect evil , divine grace, lay on hands , divine health	—	—	—	—
2	+2	+3	+0	+0	Aura of courage , smite evil	—	—	—	—
3	+3	+3	+1	+1	Remove disease , turn undead	—	—	—	—
4	+4	+4	+1	+1		0	—	—	—
5	+5	+4	+1	+1	Special mount	0	—	—	—
6	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Remove disease 2/week	1	—	—	—
7	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2		1	—	—	—
8	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2		1	0	—	—
9	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	Remove disease 3/week	1	0	—	—
10	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3		1	1	—	—
11	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3		1	1	0	—
12	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Remove disease 4/week	1	1	1	—
13	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4		1	1	1	—
14	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4		2	1	1	0
15	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	Remove disease 5/week	2	1	1	1
16	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5		2	2	1	1
17	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5		2	2	2	1
18	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	Remove disease 6/week	3	2	2	1
19	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6		3	3	3	2
20	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6		3	3	3	3

RANGER

The forests are home to fierce and cunning creatures, such as bloodthirsty owlbears and malicious displacer beasts. But more cunning and powerful than these monsters is the ranger, a skilled hunter and stalker.

He knows the woods as if they were his home (as indeed they are), and he knows his prey in deadly detail.

Adventures: Rangers often accept the role of protector, aiding those who live in or travel through the woods.

In addition, they often carry grudges against certain types of creatures and look for opportunities to find and destroy them.

Additionally, rangers may adventure for all the reasons that fighters do.

Characteristics: The ranger is proficient with all simple and martial weapons and capable in combat.

His skills allow him to survive in the wilderness, to find his prey, and to avoid detection.

He also has special knowledge of certain types of creatures.

This knowledge makes him more capable of finding and defeating those foes.

Finally, an experienced ranger has such a tie to nature that he can actually draw on natural power to cast divine spells, much as a druid does.

An experienced ranger often has one or more animal companions to aid him, thanks to his animal friendship spell.

Alignment: Rangers can be of any alignment.

Most are good, and they are protectors of the wild areas.

In this role, a ranger seeks out and destroys or drives off evil creatures that threaten the wilderness.

Good rangers also protect those who travel through the wilderness, serving sometimes as guides and sometimes as unseen guardians.

Rangers are also mostly chaotic, preferring to follow the ebb and flow of nature or of their own hearts instead of rigid rules.

Evil rangers, though rare, are much to be feared.

They revel in nature's thoughtless cruelty and seek to emulate her most fearsome predators.

They gain divine spells just as good rangers do, for nature herself is indifferent to good and evil.

Religion: Though rangers gain their divine spells from the power of nature, like anyone else they may worship a chosen deity.

Ehlonna, goddess of the woodlands, and Obad-Hai, god of nature, are the most common deities among them, though some rangers prefer more martial deities.

Background: Some rangers gained their training as part of special military teams, but most learned their skills from solitary masters who accepted them as students and assistants.

The rangers of a particular master may count themselves as cohorts, or they may be rivals for the status of “best student” and thus the rightful heir to their master’s fame.

Races: Elves are commonly rangers.

They are at home in the woods, and they have the grace to move stealthily.

Half-elves who feel their elven parents’ connection to the woods are also commonly rangers.

Humans are often rangers as well, being adaptable enough to learn their way around the woods even if it doesn’t come naturally.

Half-orcs may find the life of a ranger more comfortable than life among cruel and taunting humans (or orcs).

Gnome rangers are more common than gnome fighters, but still they tend to remain in their own lands rather than adventure among “the big people”.

Dwarf rangers are rare, but they can be quite effective.

Instead of living in the surface wilderness, they are at home in the endless caverns beneath the earth.

Here they hunt down and destroy the enemies of dwarvenkind with the relentless precision for which dwarves are known.

Dwarf rangers are often known as “cavers”.

Halfling rangers are legendary—as in, you might hear stories about them but you’ll probably never meet one.

Among the savage humanoids, only gnolls are commonly rangers, using their skills to slyly stalk their prey.

Classes: Rangers get along well with druids and to some extent with barbarians.

They are known to bicker with paladins, mostly because they often share goals but differ in style, tactics, approach, philosophy, and esthetics.

Since rangers don’t much look to other people for support or friendship, they find it easy to tolerate people who are quite different from themselves, such as bookish wizards and preachy clerics.

They just don’t care enough to get upset about others’ differences.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Rangers have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Dexterity is important for a ranger because rangers tend to wear light armor and because several ranger skills are based on Dexterity.

Strength is important for them because rangers frequently get involved in combat.

Several ranger skills are based on Wisdom, and a Wisdom score of 14 or higher is required to get access to the most powerful ranger spells.

A Wisdom score of 11 or higher is required to cast any ranger spells at all.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The ranger’s class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Animal Empathy (Cha, exclusive skill), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Use Rope (Dex), and Wilderness Lore (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the ranger.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A ranger is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, light armor, medium armor, and shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a –1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

When wearing light armor or no armor, a ranger can fight with two weapons as if he had the feats Ambidexterity and Two-Weapon Fighting.

He loses this special bonus when fighting in medium or heavy armor, or when using a double weapon (such as a two-bladed sword).

Spells: Beginning at 4th level, a ranger gains the ability to cast a small number of divine spells.

To cast a spell, the ranger must have a Wisdom score of at least 10 + the spell’s level, so a ranger with a Wisdom of 10 or lower cannot cast these spells.

Ranger bonus spells are based on Wisdom, and saving throws against these spells have a Difficulty Class of 10 + spell level + Wisdom modifier.

When the ranger gets 0 spells of a given level, such as 0 1st-level spells at 4th level, the ranger gets only bonus spells.

A ranger without a bonus spell for that level (see Table 1–1: Ability Modifiers and Spells, page 8) cannot yet cast a spell of that level.

The ranger’s spell list appears on page 167.

A ranger has access to any spell on the list and can freely choose which to prepare.

A ranger prepares and casts spells just as a cleric does (though the ranger cannot use spontaneous casting to lose a spell and cast a cure spell in its place).

Through 3rd level, a ranger has no caster level.

Starting at 4th level, a ranger’s caster level is one-half his class level.

Track: A ranger gains Track (see page 85) as a bonus feat.

Favored Enemy: At 1st level, a ranger may select a type of creature (dragons, giants, goblinoids, undead, etc.) as a favored enemy.

(A ranger can only select his own race as a favored enemy if he is evil).

Due to his extensive study of his foes and training in the proper techniques for combating them, the ranger gains a +1 bonus to Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Wilderness Lore checks when using these skills against this type of creature.

Likewise, he gets the same bonus to weapon damage rolls against creatures of this type.

A ranger also gets the damage bonus with ranged weapons, but only against targets within 30 feet (the ranger cannot strike with deadly accuracy beyond that range).

The bonus doesn't apply to damage against creatures that are immune to critical hits.

At 5th level and at every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, and 20th level), the ranger may select a new favored enemy, and the bonus associated with every previously selected favored enemy goes up by +1.

For example, a 15th-level ranger will have four favored enemies, with bonuses of +4, +3, +2, and +1.

Table 3-14: Ranger Favored Enemies lists possible categories for a ranger's favored enemy.

TABLE 3-14: RANGER FAVORED ENEMIES

Type	Examples
Aberrations	Beholders
Animals	Bears
Beasts	Owlbears
Constructs	Golems
Dragons	Black dragons
Elementals	Xorns
Fey	Dryads
Giants	Ogres
Humanoid type	*
Magical beasts	Displacer beasts
Oozes	Gelatinous cubes
Outsider type	*
Plants	Shambling mounds
Shapechangers	Werewolves
Undead	Zombies
Vermín	Giant spiders

*Rangers may not select "humanoid" or "outsider" as a favored enemy, but they may select a more narrowly defined type of humanoid (such as goblinoids, humans, or reptilian humanoids) or outsider (such as devils, efreet, or slaadi). See the Monster Manual for more information on types of creatures. A ranger can only select his own race as a favored enemy if he is evil.

Improved Two-Weapon Fighting: A ranger with a base attack bonus of at least +9 can choose to gain the Improved Two-Weapon Fighting feat (see page 83) even if he does not have the other prerequisites for the feat.

The ranger must be wearing light armor or no armor in order to use this benefit.

ELVEN RANGER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather +3 AC, speed 30 ft., armor check penalty -1, 20 lb.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., Medium-size, Slashing).

Short sword, off hand (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 3 lb., Small, Piercing).

Note: When striking with both swords, the ranger is -2 with each attack.

If the ranger has a Strength bonus, add only half of it to damage with the short sword, which is in the ranger's off hand.

Longbow (1d8, x3 crit, 100 ft., 3 lb., Large, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Wilderness Lore	4	Wis
Animal Empathy	4	Cha
Hide	4	Dex	-1
Move Silently	4	Dex	-1
Listen	4	Wis
Spot	4	Wis
Search	4	Int
Heal	4	Wis
Intuit Direction	4	Wis

Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Favored Enemy: Magical beasts.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Three torches.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE RANGER STARTING PACKAGE

As elven ranger except Race: Human, dwarf, half-elf, or half-orc.

Armor: Speed 20 ft. (dwarf only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier (human only).

Bonus Feat: Skill Focus (Wilderness Lore or other skill) (human only).

ALTERNATIVE RANGER STARTING PACKAGE

As elven ranger except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 20 ft., 10 lb.

Weapons: Instead of longsword, short sword, and longbow:

Short sword (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 3 lb., Small, Piercing).

Dagger, off hand (1d4, crit 19-20/x2, 1 lb., Tiny, Piercing).

Note: When striking with both sword and dagger, the ranger is -2 with each attack.

Shortbow (1d6, x3 crit, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing).

Favored Enemy: Reptilian humanoids instead of magical beasts (gnome only).

Gold: 5d4x5 gp.

TABLE 3—13: THE RANGER

Level	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save		1	2	3	4
1	+1	+2	+0	+0	Track, 1st favored enemy	—	—	—	—
2	+2	+3	+0	+0		—	—	—	—
3	+3	+3	+1	+1		—	—	—	—
4	+4	+4	+1	+1		0	—	—	—
5	+5	+4	+1	+1	2nd favored enemy	0	—	—	—
6	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2		1	—	—	—
7	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2		1	—	—	—
8	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2		1	0	—	—
9	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3		1	0	—	—
10	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	3rd favored enemy	1	1	—	—
11	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3		1	1	0	—
12	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4		1	1	1	—
13	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4		1	1	1	—
14	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4		2	1	1	0
15	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	4th favored enemy	2	1	1	1
16	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5		2	2	1	1
17	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5		2	2	2	1
18	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6		3	2	2	1
19	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6		3	3	3	2
20	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	5th favored enemy	3	3	3	3

ROGUE

Rogues share little in common with each other. Some are stealthy thieves.

Others are silver-tongued tricksters.

Still others are scouts, infiltrators, spies, diplomats, or thugs.

What they share is versatility, adaptability, and resourcefulness.

In general, rogues are skilled at getting what others don't want them to get: entrance into a locked treasure vault, safe passage past a deadly trap, secret battle plans, a guard's trust, or some random person's pocket money.

Adventures: Rogues adventure for the same reason they do most things: to get what they can get.

Some are after loot, others experience.

Some crave fame, others infamy.

Quite a few also enjoy a challenge.

Figuring out how to thwart a trap or avoid an alarm is great fun for many rogues.

Characteristics: Rogues are highly skilled, and they can concentrate in any of several types of skills.

While not equal to members of many other classes in combat, a rogue knows how to hit where it hurts, and a rogue who can hit an opponent with a sneak attack can dish out a lot of damage.

Rogues have a sixth sense when it comes to avoiding danger.

Experienced rogues develop nearly magical powers and skills as they master the arts of stealth, evasion, and sneak attacks.

In addition, while not capable of casting spells on their own, rogues can "fake it" well enough to cast spells from scrolls, activate wands, and use just about any other magic item.

Alignment: Rogues follow opportunity, not ideals.

They are more likely to be chaotic than lawful.

Rogues, however, are a diverse bunch, and they may be of any alignment.

Religion: Rogues most commonly worship Olidammara, god of thieves, though they are not renowned for their piety.

Evil rogues might secretly worship Nerull, god of death, or Erythnul, god of slaughter.

Since rogues are a diverse crew, however, many of them worship other deities, or none at all.

Background: Some rogues are officially inducted into an organized fellowship of rogues or "guild of thieves".

Most, however, are self-taught or learned their skills from an independent mentor.

Often, an experienced rogue needs an assistant for scams, second-story jobs, or just for watching her back.

She recruits a likely youngster who then learns the skills of the trade on the job.

Eventually, the trainee is ready to move on, perhaps because the mentor has run afoul of the law, or perhaps because the trainee has double-crossed her mentor and needs some "space".

Rogues do not see each other as fellows unless they happen to be members of the same guild or students of the same mentor.

In fact, rogues trust other rogues less than they trust anyone else.

They're no fools.

Races: Adaptable and often unprincipled, humans take to the rogue's life with ease.

Halflings, elves, and half-elves, too, find themselves well suited to the demands of the career.

Dwarf and gnome rogues, while less common, are renowned as experts with locks and traps.

Half-orc rogues tend toward thuggery.

Rogues are common among brutal humanoids, especially goblins and bugbears.

Rogues who learn their arts in savage lands, however, generally don't have experience with complex mechanisms such as traps and locks.

Other Classes: Rogues love and hate working with members of other classes.

They excel when protected by warriors and supported by spellcasters.

There are plenty of times, however, that they wish that everyone else was as quiet, guileful, and patient as a rogue. Rogues are particularly wary of paladins, either endeavoring to prove themselves useful or just avoiding them.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Rogues have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Dexterity affects many rogue skills and provides the lightly armored rogue extra protection.

Intelligence and Wisdom are important for many of the rogue's skills.

A high Intelligence score also gives the rogue extra skill points, which can be used to expand her repertoire.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The rogue's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int, exclusive skill), Diplomacy (Cha), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Innuendo (Wis), Intimidate (Cha), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Perform (Cha), Pick Pocket (Dex), Profession (Wis), Read Lips (Int, exclusive skill), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), Use Magic Device (Cha, exclusive skill), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(8 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $8 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the rogue.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A rogue's weapon training focuses on weapons suitable for stealth and sneak attacks. Thus, all rogues are proficient with the crossbow (hand or light), dagger (any type), dart, light mace, sap, shortbow (normal and composite), and short sword.

Medium-size rogues are also proficient with certain weapons that are too big for Small rogues to use and conceal easily: club, heavy crossbow, heavy mace, morningstar, quarterstaff, and rapier.

Rogues are proficient with light armor but not with shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor, equipment, or loot carried.

Sneak Attack: If a rogue can catch an opponent when he is unable to defend himself effectively from her attack, she can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Basically, any time the rogue's target would be denied his Dexterity bonus to AC (whether he actually has a Dexterity bonus or not), or when the rogue flanks the target, the rogue's attack deals extra damage.

The extra damage is $+1d6$ at 1st level and an additional $1d6$ every two levels thereafter.

Should the rogue score a critical hit with a sneak attack, this extra damage is not multiplied.

(See Table 8–8: Attack Roll Modifiers, page 132, for combat situations in which the rogue flanks an opponent or the opponent loses his Dexterity bonus to AC).

Ranged attacks can only count as sneak attacks if the target is within 30 feet.

The rogue can't strike with deadly accuracy from beyond that range.

With a sap (blackjack) or an unarmed strike, the rogue can make a sneak attack that deals subdual damage instead of normal damage.

She cannot use a weapon that deals normal damage to deal subdual damage in a sneak attack, not even with the usual -4 penalty, because she must make optimal use of her weapon in order to execute a sneak attack.

(See Subdual Damage, page 134).

A rogue can only sneak attack a living creature with a discernible anatomy—undead, constructs, oozes, plants, and incorporeal creatures lack vital areas to attack.

Any creature that is immune to critical hits is also not vulnerable to sneak attacks.

The rogue must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach a vital spot.

The rogue cannot sneak attack while striking a creature with concealment (see Table 8–10: Concealment, page 133) or striking the limbs of a creature whose vitals are beyond reach.

Traps: Rogues (and only rogues) can use the Search skill to locate traps when the task has a Difficulty Class higher than 20.

Finding a nonmagical trap has a DC of at least 20, higher if it is well hidden.

Finding a magic trap has a DC of $25 +$ the level of the spell used to create it.

Rogues (and only rogues) can use the Disable Device skill to disarm magic traps.

A magic trap generally has a DC of $25 +$ the level of the spell used to create it.

A rogue who beats a trap's DC by 10 or more with a Disable Device check can generally study a trap, figure out how it works, and bypass it (with his party) without disarming it.

Evasion: At 2nd level, a rogue gains evasion.

If exposed to any effect that normally allows a character to attempt a Reflex saving throw for half damage (such as a fireball), she takes no damage with a successful saving throw.

Evasion can only be used if the rogue is wearing light armor or no armor.

It is an extraordinary ability.

Uncanny Dodge: Starting at 3rd level, the rogue gains the extraordinary ability to react to danger before her senses would normally allow her to do so.

At 3rd level and above, she retains her Dexterity bonus to AC (if any) regardless of being caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

(She still loses her Dexterity bonus to AC if immobilized).

At 6th level, the rogue can no longer be flanked; she can react to opponents on opposite sides of her as easily as she can react to a single attacker.

This defense denies other rogues the ability to use flank attacks to sneak attack her.

The exception to this defense is that another rogue at least four levels higher than the character can flank her (and thus sneak attack her).

At 11th level, the rogue gains an intuitive sense that alerts her to danger from traps, giving her a $+1$ bonus to Reflex saves made to avoid traps and a $+1$ dodge bonus to AC against attacks by traps.

At 14th level, these bonuses rise to $+2$.

At 17th, they rise to $+3$, and at 20th they rise to $+4$.

Special Abilities: On achieving 10th level and every three levels thereafter (13th, 16th, and 19th), a rogue gets a special ability of her choice from among the following:
Crippling Strike: A rogue with this extraordinary ability can sneak attack opponents with such precision that her blows weaken and hamper them.

When the rogue damages an opponent with a sneak attack, that character also takes 1 point of temporary Strength damage.

Ability points lost to damage return on their own at the rate of 1 point per day for each damaged ability.

Defensive Roll: The rogue can roll with a potentially lethal blow to take less damage from it.

Once per day, when a rogue would be reduced to 0 hit points or less by damage in combat (from a weapon or other blow, not a spell or special ability), the rogue can attempt to roll with the damage.

She makes a Reflex saving throw (DC = damage dealt) and, if she's successful, she takes only half damage from the blow.

She must be aware of the attack and able to react to it in order to execute her defensive roll—if she is denied her Dexterity bonus to AC, she can't roll.

Since this effect would not normally allow a character to make a Reflex save for half damage, the rogue's evasion ability does not apply to the defensive roll.

Improved Evasion: This ability works like evasion, except that while the rogue still takes no damage on a successful Reflex save against spells such as fireball or a breath weapon, she now takes only half damage on a failed save (the rogue's reflexes allow her to get out of harm's way with incredible speed).

Opportunist: Once per round, the rogue can make an attack of opportunity against an opponent who has just been struck for damage in melee by another character.

This attack counts as the rogue's attack of opportunity for that round.

Even a rogue with the Combat Reflexes feat can't use the opportunist ability more than once per round.

Skill Mastery: The rogue selects a number of skills equal to 3 + her Intelligence modifier.

When making a skill check with one of these skills, the rogue may take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent her from doing so.

She becomes so certain in her skill that she can use her skill reliably even under adverse conditions.

The rogue may gain this special ability multiple times, selecting additional skills for it to apply to each time.

Slippery Mind: This extraordinary ability represents the rogue's ability to wriggle free from magical effects that would otherwise control or compel her.

If a rogue with a slippery mind is affected by an enchantment and fails her saving throw, 1 round later she can attempt her saving throw again.

She only gets this one extra chance to succeed at her saving throw.

Feat: A rogue may gain a feat in place of a special ability.

HALFLING (OR GNOME) ROGUE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Leather +2 AC, speed 20 ft., 15 lb.

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19–20/x2, 3 lb., Small, Piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).

Dagger (1d4, crit 19–20/x2, 10 ft., 1 lb., Tiny, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 8 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Move Silently	4	Dex	0
Hide	4	Dex	0
Climb	4	Str	0
Disable Device	4	Int
Listen	4	Wis
Open Lock	4	Dex
Search	4	Int
Spot	4	Wis
Use Magic Device	4	Cha
Pick Pocket	4	Dex	0
Decipher Script	4	Int
Bluff	4	Cha
Intimidate	4	Cha

Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Thieves' tools.

Hooded lantern and three pints of oil.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE ROGUE STARTING PACKAGE

Same as halfling rogue, except Race: Human, dwarf, elf, half-elf, or half-orc.

Armor: Speed 30 ft. (nondwarves only).

Weapons: Rapier (1d6, crit 18–20/x2, 3 lb., Medium-size, Piercing) instead of short sword.

Shortbow (1d6, x3 crit, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing) instead of crossbow.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 9 + Int modifier (human only).

Bonus Feat: Alertness (human only).

Gear: Quiver with 20 arrows instead of case of crossbow bolts.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 3—15: THE ROGUE

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1	+0	+0	+2	+0	Sneak attack +1d6
2	+1	+0	+3	+0	Evasion
3	+2	+1	+3	+1	Uncanny dodge (Dex bonus to AC), sneak attack +2d6
4	+3	+1	+4	+1
5	+3	+1	+4	+1	Sneak attack +3d6
6	+4	+2	+5	+2	Uncanny dodge (can't be flanked)
7	+5	+2	+5	+2	Sneak attack +4d6
8	+6/+1	+2	+6	+2
9	+6/+1	+3	+6	+3	Sneak attack +5d6
10	+7/+2	+3	+7	+3	Special ability
11	+8/+3	+3	+7	+3	Uncanny dodge (+1 against traps), sneak attack +6d6
12	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4
13	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	Sneak attack +7d6, special ability
14	+10/+5	+4	+9	+4	Uncanny dodge (+2 against traps)
15	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+5	Sneak attack +8d6
16	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	Special ability
17	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	Uncanny dodge (+3 against traps), sneak attack +9d6
18	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+6
19	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+6	Sneak attack +10d6, special ability
20	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+6	Uncanny dodge (+4 against traps)

SORCERER

Sorcerers create magic the way a poet creates poems, with inborn talent honed by practice.

They have no books, no mentors, no theories—just raw power that they direct at will.

Some sorcerers claim that the blood of dragons courses through their veins.

It may even be true—it is common knowledge that certain powerful dragons can take humanoid form and even have humanoid lovers, and it's difficult to prove that a given sorcerer does not have a dragon ancestor.

Sorcerers even often have striking good looks, usually with a touch of the exotic that hints at an unusual heritage.

Still, the claim that sorcerers are partially draconic is either an unsubstantiated boast on the part of certain sorcerers or envious gossip on the part of those who lack the sorcerer's gift.

Adventures: The typical sorcerer adventures in order to improve his abilities.

Only by testing his limits can he expand them.

A sorcerer's power is inborn, and part of his soul.

Developing this power is a quest in itself for many sorcerers, regardless of how they wish to use their power.

Some good sorcerers are driven by the need to prove themselves.

Marked as different by their power, they seek to win a place in society and to prove themselves to others.

Evil sorcerers, however, also feel themselves set apart from others—apart and above.

Their adventure to gain power over those they look down on.

Characteristics: Sorcerers cast spells through innate power rather than through carefully trained skills.

Their magic is intuitive rather than logical.

They know fewer spells than wizards do and acquire powerful spells more slowly than wizards, but they can cast spells more often and have no need to select and prepare them ahead of time.

Nor do sorcerers specialize in certain schools of magic the way wizards may.

Since sorcerers gain their powers without undergoing the years of rigorous study that wizards go through, they have more time to learn fighting skills.

They are proficient with simple weapons.

Alignment: For a sorcerer, magic is an intuitive art, not a science.

Sorcery favors the free, chaotic, creative spirit over the disciplined mind, so sorcerers tend slightly toward chaos over law.

Religion: Some sorcerers favor Boccob, god of magic, while others revere Wee Jas, goddess of death magic.

However, many sorcerers follow some other deity, or none at all (wizards typically learn to follow Boccob or Wee Jas from their mentors, but most sorcerers are self-taught, having no master to induct them into a religion).

Background: Sorcerers develop rudimentary powers at puberty.

Their first spells are incomplete, spontaneous, uncontrolled, and sometimes dangerous.

A household with a budding sorcerer in it may be troubled by strange sounds or lights, creating the impression that the place is haunted.

Eventually, the young sorcerer understands the power that he has been wielding unintentionally.

From that point on, he can begin practicing and improving his powers.

Sometimes a sorcerer is fortunate enough to come under the care of an older, experienced sorcerer, someone to help him understand and use his new powers.

More often, however, sorcerers are on their own, feared by erstwhile friends and misunderstood by family.

Sorcerers have no sense of identity as a group.

Unlike wizards, they gain little by sharing their knowledge and have no strong incentive to work together.

Races: Most sorcerers are humans or half-elves.

The innate talent for sorcery, however, is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Arcane spellcasters from savage lands or from among the brutal humanoids are more likely to be sorcerers than wizards.

Kobolds are especially likely to be sorcerers, and they are fierce, if inarticulate, proponents of the “blood of the dragons” theory.

Other Classes: Sorcerers find they have the most in common with members of other self-taught classes, such as druids and rogues.

They sometimes find themselves at odds with members of the more disciplined classes, such as paladins and monks. Since they cast the same spells as wizards but do so in a different way, they are sometimes competitive toward them.

Since sorcerers often have a powerful presence that gives them a way with people, they frequently serve as the “face” for an adventuring party, negotiating, bargaining, and speaking for others.

The sorcerer’s spells often help him sway others or gain information, so he makes an excellent spy or diplomat for an adventuring party.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Sorcerers have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a sorcerer can cast, how many spells the sorcerer can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a sorcerer must have a Charisma score of 10 + the spell’s level.

A sorcerer gets bonus spells based on Charisma.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a sorcerer’s spell is 10 + the spell’s level + the sorcerer’s Charisma modifier.

Like a wizard, a sorcerer benefits from high Dexterity and Constitution scores.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The sorcerer’s class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the sorcerer.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sorcerers are proficient with all simple weapons.

They are not proficient with any type of armor, nor with shields.

Armor of any type interferes with a sorcerer’s arcane gestures, which can cause his spells to fail (if those spells have somatic components).

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a –1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Spells: A sorcerer casts arcane spells, the same type of spells available to wizards.

A sorcerer’s selection of spells is extremely limited.

Your sorcerer begins play knowing four 0-level spells (also called cantrips) and two 1st-level spells of your choice.

At each level, the sorcerer gains one or more new spells, as indicated on Table 3–17: Sorcerer Spells Known.

TABLE 3–17: SORCERER SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	5	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4	6	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6	7	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
7	7	5	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
8	8	5	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
9	8	5	4	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
10	9	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
11	9	5	5	4	3	2	—	—	—	—
12	9	5	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
13	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	—	—	—
14	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
15	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	—	—
16	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
17	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	—
18	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	1
19	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	2
20	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	3

(Note: The number of spells a sorcerer knows is not affected by his Charisma bonus, if any; the numbers on Table 3–17 are fixed).

These spells can be common spells chosen from the sorcerer and wizard spell list (page 168), or they can be unusual spells that the sorcerer has gained some understanding of by study.

For example, a sorcerer with a scroll or spellbook detailing an unusual sorcerer/wizard spell (one not on the wizard/sorcerer spell list in this book) could select that spell as one of his new spells for achieving a new level, provided the spell is the right level.

In any case, the sorcerer can’t learn spells at a faster rate due to this means.

A sorcerer is limited to casting a certain number of spells of each level per day, but he need not prepare his spells in advance.

The number of spells he can cast per day is improved by his bonus spells, if any.

For instance, at 1st level, the sorcerer Hennet can cast four 1st-level spells per day—three for being 1st level (see Table 3–16: The Sorcerer), plus one thanks to his high Charisma. However, he only knows two 1st-level spells: magic missile and sleep (see Table 3–17: Sorcerer Spells Known).

In any given day, he can cast magic missile four times, cast sleep four times, or cast some combination of the two spells a total of four times.

He does not have to decide ahead of time which spells he’ll cast.

A sorcerer may use a higher-level slot to cast a lower-level spell if he so chooses.

For example, if an 8th-level sorcerer has used up all of his 3rd-level spells slots for the day but wants to cast another one, he could use a 4th-level slot to do so.

The spell is still treated as its actual level, not the level of the slot used to cast it.

To learn or cast a spell, a sorcerer must have a Charisma score of at least 10 + the spell’s level.

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against sorcerer spells is 10 + the spell’s level + the sorcerer’s Charisma modifier.

Familiar: A sorcerer can obtain a familiar.

Doing so takes a day and uses up magical materials that cost 100 gp.

FAMILIARS

Familiars are magically linked to their masters. In some sense, the familiar and the master are practically one being. That's why, for example, the master can cast a personal range spell on a familiar even though normally he can only cast such a spell on himself. Familiars are similar to the normal creatures they resemble. However, some familiars have special abilities or grant special abilities to their master (a sorcerer or wizard), as given on Table 3-18: Familiars. These special abilities only apply when the master and familiar are within one mile of each other.

TABLE 3-18: FAMILIARS

Familiar	Special
Bat	—
Cat	Master gains a +2 bonus to Move Silently checks
Hawk	—
Owl	Has low-light vision; master gains a +2 bonus on Move Silently checks
Rat	Master gains a +2 bonus to Fortitude saves
Raven	Speaks one language
Snake (Tiny)	Poisonous bite
Weasel	Master gains a +2 bonus on Reflex saves
Toad	Master gains +2 to Constitution score

Familiar Basics: Use the basic statistics for a creature of its type, as given in the Monster Manual, but make these changes:

Hit Dice: Treat as the master's character level (for effects related to Hit Dice). Use the familiar's normal total if it is higher.

Hit Points: One-half the master's total, rounded down. For example, at 2nd level, Hennes has 9 hit points, so his familiar has 4.

Attacks: Use the master's base attack bonus. Use the familiar's Dexterity or Strength modifier, whichever is greater, to get the familiar's melee attack bonus with unarmed attacks. Damage equals that of a normal creature of that type.

Saving Throws: The familiar uses the master's base saving throw bonuses if they're better than the familiar's (Fortitude +2, Reflex +2, Will +0).

Skills: Use the normal skills for an animal of that type or the master's, whichever are better.

Familiar Ability Descriptions: All familiars have special abilities (or impart abilities to their masters) depending on the level of the master, as shown on Table 3-19. The abilities on Table 3-19 are cumulative.

Natural Armor: This number improves the familiar's AC. It represents a familiar's preternatural toughness.

Intelligence: The familiar's Intelligence score. Familiars are as smart as people (though not necessarily as smart as smart people).

Alertness: The presence of the familiar sharpens its master's senses. While the familiar is within arm's reach, the master gains Alertness.

Improved Evasion: If the familiar is subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, the familiar takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw and half damage even if the saving throw fails. Improved evasion is an extraordinary ability.

Share Spells: At the master's option, he may have any spell he casts on himself also affect his familiar. The familiar must be within 5 feet at the time. If the spell has a duration other than instantaneous, the spell stops affecting the familiar if it moves farther than 5 feet away. The

It is a magical beast, not an animal.

The creature serves as a companion and servant.

The sorcerer chooses the type of familiar he gets.

As the sorcerer increases in level, his familiar also increases in power.

If the familiar dies, or the sorcerer chooses to dismiss it, the sorcerer must attempt a Fortitude saving throw (DC 15).

If the saving throw fails, the sorcerer loses 200 experience points per class level.

A familiar is a magical, unusually tough, and intelligent version of a small animal (see the facing page).

spell's effect will not be restored even if the familiar returns to the master before the duration would otherwise have ended. Additionally, the master may cast a spell with a target of "you" on his familiar (as a touch range spell) instead of on himself. The master and familiar can share spells even if the spells normally do not affect creatures of the familiar's type (magical beast).

Empathic Link: The master has an empathic link with the familiar out to a distance of up to one mile. The master cannot see through the familiar's eyes, but the two of them can communicate telepathically. Note that the low Intelligence of a low-level master's familiar limits what it is able to communicate or understand, and even intelligent familiars see the world differently from humans. This is a supernatural ability.

Because of the empathic link between the familiar and the master, the master has the same connection to an item or place that the familiar does. For instance, if his familiar has seen a room, a master can teleport into that room as if he has seen it too.

Touch: If the master is 3rd level or higher, the familiar can deliver touch spells for the master. When the master casts a touch spell, he can designate his familiar as the "toucher." (The master and the familiar have to be in contact at the time of casting.) The familiar can then deliver the touch spell just as the master could. As normal, if the master casts another spell, the touch spell dissipates.

Speak with Master: The familiar and master can communicate verbally as if they were using a common language. Other creatures do not understand the communication without magical help.

Speak with Animals of Its Type: The familiar can communicate with animals of approximately the same type as itself (including dire variants): bats and rats with rodents, cats with felines, hawks and owls and ravens with birds, snakes with reptiles, toads with amphibians, weasels with creatures of the mustelidae family (weasels, minks, polecats, ermines, skunks, wolverines, and badgers). The communication is limited by the Intelligence of the conversing creatures.

Spell Resistance: If the master is 11th level or higher, the familiar gains spell resistance equal to the master's level + 5. If another spellcaster tries to affect someone else's familiar with a spell, that spellcaster must make a caster level check (1d20 + caster level) at least equal to the familiar's spell resistance.

Scry: If the master is 13th level or higher, the master may scry on the familiar (as if casting the spell scrying) once per day. This is a spell-like ability that requires no material components or focus.

TABLE 3-19: FAMILIAR SPECIAL ABILITIES

Master Class	Natural Armor	Int	Special
1-2	+1	6	Alertness, improved evasion, share spells, empathic link
3-4	+2	7	Touch
5-6	+3	8	Speak with master
7-8	+4	9	Speak with animals of its type
9-10	+5	10
11-12	+6	11	Spell resistance
13-14	+7	12	Scry on familiar
15-16	+8	13
17-18	+9	14
19-20	+10	15

A successful saving throw reduces the loss to half of that amount.

However, a sorcerer's experience point total can never go below zero as the result of a familiar's demise.

For example, Hennes is a 3rd-level sorcerer with 3,230 XP when his owl is killed by a bugbear.

Hennes makes a successful saving throw, so he loses 300 XP, dropping him below 3,000 XP and back to 2nd level

(the DUNGEON MASTER's Guide has rules for losing levels).

A slain or dismissed familiar cannot be replaced for a year and day.

Slain familiars can be raised from the dead just as characters can be, but do not lose a level or a Constitution point when this happy event occurs.

HUMAN SORCERER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Shortspears (1d8, crit x3, 20 ft., 5 lb., Large, Piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Spellcraft	4	Int
Concentration	4	Con
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int
Gather Information (cc)	2	Cha
Diplomacy (cc)	2	Cha
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	0
Move Silently (cc)	2	Dex	0

Feat: Toughness.

Bonus Feat: Skill Focus (Spellcraft or other skill).

Spells Known: 0-level spells—detect magic, ghost sound, light, read magic.

1st-level spells—magic missile, sleep.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 5 pints of oil.

Spell component pouch.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 3d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE SORCERER STARTING PACKAGE

As human sorcerer, except Race: Dwarf, elf, half-elf, half-orc.

Armor: Speed 20 ft. (dwarf only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feat: None.

ALTERNATIVE SORCERER STARTING PACKAGE

As human sorcerer, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 20 ft.

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8, crit x2, 8 lb., Medium-size, Bludgeoning and Piercing) instead of shortspear.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Bonus Feat: None.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

TABLE 3—16: THE SORCERER

Level	Base			Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save		Will Save	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1	+0	+0	+0	+2	Summon familiar	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	+1	+0	+0	+3		6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3	+1	+1	+1	+3		6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4	+2	+1	+1	+4		6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5	+2	+1	+1	+4		6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6	+3	+2	+2	+5		6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
7	+3	+2	+2	+5		6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
8	+4	+2	+2	+6		6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
9	+4	+3	+3	+6		6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
10	+5	+3	+3	+7		6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
11	+5	+3	+3	+7		6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
12	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
13	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
14	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9		6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—
15	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—
16	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—
17	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—
18	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3
19	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4
20	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6

ARCANE SPELLS AND ARMOR

Wizards and sorcerers do not know how to wear armor effectively. They can wear armor anyway (though they'll be clumsy in it), and they can gain training in the proper use of armor (with the various Armor Proficiency feats—light, medium, and heavy—and the Shield Proficiency feat) or multiclass to add a class that grants them armor use (see Multiclass Characters later in this chapter). By contrast, bards do know how to wear light and medium armor effectively. However, they too wear heavier armor ineffectively and must either learn to wear heavier armor via the feat Armor Proficiency (heavy) or add a class (such as fighter) that grants them such Armor Proficiency as a class feature. Even if a wizard, sorcerer, or bard is wearing armor with which he or she is proficient, however, it might still interfere with his or her spells.

Characters have a difficult time casting most arcane spells while wearing armor (see Arcane Spells, page 154). The armor restricts the complicated gestures that they must make while casting any spell that has a somatic component (most do). To find the chance of arcane spell failure for a wizard, sorcerer, or bard wearing different types of armor, see Table 7–5: Armor, page 104.

If a spell doesn't have a somatic component, arcane spellcasters can cast it with no problem while wearing armor. Such spells can also be cast even if the caster's hands are bound or if he or she is being grappled (although Concentration checks still apply). Also, the metamagic feat Still Spell allows a spellcaster to prepare or cast a spell at one level higher than normal without the somatic component, which is a way of casting a spell while wearing armor without risking the chance of arcane spell failure. See Chapter 5: Feats for more about metamagic feats such as Still Spell.

WIZARD

A few unintelligible words and a fleeting gesture carry more power than a battleaxe, when they are the words and gestures of a wizard.

These simple acts make magic seem easy, but they only hint at the time the wizard must spend poring over her spellbook preparing each spell for casting, and the years before that spent in apprenticeship to learn the arts of magic.

Wizards depend on intensive study to create their magic. They examine musty old tomes, debate magical theory with their peers, and practice minor magics whenever they can. For a wizard, magic is not a talent but a difficult, rewarding art.

Adventures: Wizards conduct their adventures with caution and forethought.

When prepared, they can use their spells to devastating effect.

When caught by surprise, they are vulnerable.

They seek knowledge, power, and the resources to conduct their studies.

They may also have any of the noble or ignoble motivations that other adventurers have.

Characteristics: The wizard's strength is her spells.

Everything else is secondary.

She learns new spells as she experiments and grows in experience, and she can also learn them from other wizards. In addition to learning new spells, over time a wizard learns to manipulate her spells so they go farther, work better, or are improved in some other way.

Some wizards prefer to specialize in a certain type of magic. Specialization makes a wizard more powerful in her chosen field, but prevents her from being able to cast some of the spells that lie outside her field.

(See School Specialization, page 54).

A wizard can call a familiar: a small, magical animal companion that serves her.

For some wizards, their familiars are their only true friends.

Alignment: Overall, wizards show a slight tendency toward law over chaos because the study of magic rewards those who are disciplined.

Illusionists and transmuters, however, are masters of deception and change, respectively.

They favor chaos over law.

Religion: Wizards commonly revere Boccob, god of magic. Some, especially necromancers or simply more misanthropic wizards, prefer Wee Jas, goddess of magic and death.

Evil necromancers are known to worship Nerull, god of death.

Wizards in general, however, are more devoted to their studies than to their spiritual sides.

Background: Wizards recognize each other as comrades or rivals.

Even wizards from very different cultures or magical traditions have much in common because they all conform to the universal laws of magic.

Unlike fighters or rogues, wizards see themselves as members of a distinct, if diverse, group.

In civilized lands where wizards study in academies, schools, or guilds, wizards also identify themselves and others according to membership in these formal organizations.

While a guild magician may look down her nose at a rustic wizard who learned his arts from a doddering hermit, she nevertheless can't deny the rustic's identity as a wizard.

Races: Humans take to magic for any of their varied reasons: curiosity, ambition, lust for power, or just personal inclination.

Human wizards tend to be practical innovators, creating new spells or using old spells creatively.

Elves are fascinated by magic, and many of them become wizards for love of the art.

Elven wizards see themselves as artists, and they hold magic in high regard as a wondrous mystery, as opposed to more pragmatic human wizards who see magic more as a set of tools or tricks.

Illusion magic comes so simply to gnomes that becoming an illusionist is just natural to brighter and more talented gnomes.

Gnome wizards that don't specialize in the school of illusion are rare, but they don't suffer under any special stigma.

Half-elf wizards feel both the elf's attraction to magic and the human's drive to conquer and understand.

Some of the most powerful wizards are half-elves.

Dwarf and halfling wizards are rare because their societies don't encourage the study of magic.

Half-orc wizards are rare because few half-orcs have the brains necessary for wizardry.

Drow (evil, subterranean elves) are commonly wizards, but wizards are quite rare among the savage humanoids.

Other Classes: Wizards prefer to work with members of other classes.

They love to cast their spells from behind strong fighters, to "magic up" rogues and send them out to scout, and to rely on the divine healing of clerics.

They may find certain types, such as sorcerers, rogues, and bards, not quite serious enough, but they're not judgmental.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Wizards have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Intelligence determines how powerful a spell a wizard can cast, how many spells she can cast, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a wizard must have an Intelligence score of 10 + the spell's level.

In addition, a wizard gets bonus spells based on Intelligence.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a wizard's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the wizard's Intelligence modifier.

High Dexterity is helpful for a wizard, who typically wears little or no armor, because it provides her with an Armor Class bonus.

A good Constitution gives a wizard extra hit points, a resource that she is otherwise very low on.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The wizard's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), Scry (Int, exclusive skill), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the wizard.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wizards are skilled with the club, dagger, heavy crossbow, light crossbow, and quarterstaff.

Wizards are not proficient with any type of armor nor with shields.

Armor of any type interferes with a wizard's movements, which can cause her spells to fail (if those spells have somatic components).

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Spells: A wizard casts arcane spells.

She is limited to a certain number of spells of each spell level per day, according to her class level.

A wizard must prepare spells ahead of time by getting a good night's sleep and spending 1 hour studying her spellbook.

While studying, the wizard decides which spells to prepare (see Preparing Wizard Spells, page 154).

To learn, prepare, or cast a spell, a wizard must have an Intelligence score of at least 10 + the spell's level.

A wizard's bonus spells are based on Intelligence (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

The Difficulty Class for saving throws against wizard spells is 10 + the spell's level + the wizard's Intelligence modifier. Unlike bards and sorcerers, wizards may know any number of spells (see Writing a New Spell into a Spellbook, page 155).

Bonus Languages: A wizard may substitute Draconic for one of the bonus languages available to the character because of her race (see Chapter 2: Races), since many ancient tomes of magic are written in Draconic and apprentice wizards often learn it as part of their studies.

Familiar: A wizard can obtain a familiar in exactly the same manner as a sorcerer.

See the sorcerer description and the accompanying Familiars sidebar for details.

Scribe Scroll: A wizard has the bonus item creation feat Scribe Scroll, enabling her to create magic scrolls (see the feat, page 84, and Magic Item Creation in the DUNGEON MASTER's Guide).

Bonus Feats: Every five levels, a wizard gains a bonus feat. This feat must be a metamagic feat, an item creation feat, or Spell Mastery (see below).

Note: these feats are in addition to those granted to every character by level regardless of class (see Table 3-2: Experience and Level-Dependent Benefits).

Feats granted by overall character level (as opposed to class level), and the starting bonus feat for human characters, need not be metamagic or item creation feats.

Spellbooks: Wizards must study their spellbooks each day to prepare their spells (see Preparing Wizard Spells, page 154).

A wizard cannot prepare any spell not recorded in her spellbook (except for read magic, which all wizards can prepare from memory).

A wizard begins play with a spellbook containing all 0-level wizard spells plus three 1st-level spells of the player's choice.

For each point of Intelligence bonus the wizard has (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8), the spellbook holds one additional 1st-level spell.

Each time the wizard achieves a new level, she gains two new spells of any level or levels that she can cast (according to her new level).

For example, when Mialee achieves 5th level, she can add two 3rd-level spells to her spellbook.

The wizard can also add spells found in other wizards' spellbooks (see Adding Spells to a Wizard's Spellbook, page 155).

Spell Mastery: A wizard (and only a wizard) can take the special feat Spell Mastery.

Each time the wizard takes this feat, choose a number of spells equal to the wizard's Intelligence modifier (they must be spells that the wizard already knows).

From that point on, the wizard can prepare these spells without referring to a spellbook.

The wizard is so intimately familiar with these spells that she doesn't need a spellbook to prepare them anymore.

ELVEN WIZARD STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6, crit x2, 4 lb., Large, Bludgeoning).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Toughness.

School Specialization: None.

Spellbook: All 0-level spells; plus charm person, summon monster I, and sleep; plus one of these spells of your choice per point of Intelligence bonus (if any): cause fear, color spray, magic missile, and silent image.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Ten candles, map case, three pages of parchment, ink, inkpen.

Spell component pouch, spellbook.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 3d6 gp.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Spellcraft	4	Int
Concentration	4	Con
Knowledge (arcane)	4	Int
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	0
Move Silently (cc)	2	Dex	0
Search (cc)	2	Int
Spot (cc)	2	Wis

ALTERNATIVE WIZARD STARTING PACKAGE

As elven wizard, except Race: Human, dwarf, half-elf, half-orc, or halfling.

Armor: Speed 20 ft. (dwarf and halfling only).

Weapons: Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Piercing) instead of shortbow.

Weapons: Club (1d6, crit x2, 10 ft., 3 lb., Bludgeoning) instead of quarterstaff (halfling only).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier (human only).

Bonus Feat: Skill Focus (Spellcraft or other skill) (human only).

Gear: Case with 10 bolts instead of quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 2d4.

GNOME ILLUSIONIST STARTING PACKAGE

As elven wizard, except Race: Gnome.

Armor: Speed 20 ft.

Weapons: Club (1d6, crit ×2, 10 ft., 3 lb., Bludgeoning) instead of quarterstaff.

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Piercing) instead of shortbow.

School Specialization: Illusion.

Prohibited School: Enchantment.

Spellbook: All 0-level spells; plus color spray, silent image, and summon monster I; plus one of these spells of your choice per point of Intelligence bonus: burning hands, cause fear, mage armor, and magic missile.

Gear: Case with 10 bolts instead of quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 3—20: THE WIZARD

Level	Base		Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
	Attack	Bonus					0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1	+0	+0	+0	+0	+2	Summon familiar, Scribe Scroll	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	+1	+0	+0	+0	+3		4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3	+1	+1	+1	+1	+3		4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4	+2	+1	+1	+1	+4		4	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5	+2	+1	+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
6	+3	+2	+2	+2	+5		4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
7	+3	+2	+2	+2	+5		4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
8	+4	+2	+2	+2	+6		4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
9	+4	+3	+3	+3	+6		4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
10	+5	+3	+3	+3	+7	Bonus feat	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
11	+5	+3	+3	+3	+7		4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
12	+6/+1	+4	+4	+4	+8		4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—
13	+6/+1	+4	+4	+4	+8		4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
14	+7/+2	+4	+4	+4	+9		4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—
15	+7/+2	+5	+5	+5	+9	Bonus feat	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
16	+8/+3	+5	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—
17	+8/+3	+5	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1
18	+9/+4	+6	+6	+6	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2
19	+9/+4	+6	+6	+6	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3
20	+10/+5	+6	+6	+6	+12	Bonus feat	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4

SCHOOL SPECIALIZATION

A school is one of eight groupings of spells, each defined by a common theme, such as illusion or necromancy. A wizard may specialize in one school of magic (see below). Specialization allows a wizard to cast extra spells from the chosen school, but the wizard then never learns to cast spells from one or more other schools. Essentially, the wizard gains exceptional mastery over a single school by neglecting the study of other schools. The more difficult a school is to master, the more one must give up in order to specialize in it. Some schools only require that a specialist give up one other school, while others might require the giving up of two or three. Spells of the school or schools that the specialist gives up are not available to her, and she can't even cast such spells from scrolls or wands. The wizard must choose whether to specialize and how at 1st level. She may not change her specialization later. The specialist can prepare one additional spell (of the school selected as a specialty) per spell level each day. The specialist gains a +2 bonus to Spellcraft checks to learn the spells of her chosen school (see Adding Spells to a Wizard's Spellbook, page 155).

The eight schools of arcane magic are Abjuration, Conjunction, Divination, Enchantment, Evocation, Illusion, Necromancy, and Transmutation. Spells that do not fall into any of these schools are called universal spells.

Abjuration: Spells that protect, block, or banish. An Abjuration specialist is called an abjurer. To become an abjurer, a wizard must select her prohibited school or schools from the following choices: (1) either Conjunction, Enchantment, Evocation, Illusion, or Transmutation; or (2) both Divination and Necromancy.

Conjunction: Spells that bring creatures or materials to the caster. A Conjunction specialist is called a conjurer. To become a conjurer, a wizard must select her prohibited school or schools from one of the following choices: (1) Evocation; (2) any two of the following three schools: Abjuration, Enchantment, and Illusion; (3) Transmutation, or (4) any three schools.

Divination: Spells that reveal information. A Divination specialist is called a diviner. To become a diviner, a wizard must select any other single school as her prohibited school.

Enchantment: Spells that imbue the recipient with some property or grant the caster power over another being. An Enchantment specialist is called an enchanter. To become an enchanter, a wizard must select her prohibited school or schools from the following choices: (1) either Abjuration, Conjunction, Evocation, Illusion, or Transmutation; or (2) both Divination and Necromancy.

Evocation: Spells that manipulate energy or create something from nothing. An Evocation specialist is called an evoker. To become an evoker, a wizard must select her prohibited school or schools from one of the following choices: (1) Conjunction; (2) any two of the following three schools: Abjuration, Enchantment, and Illusion; (3) Transmutation; or (4) any three schools.

Illusion: Spells that alter perception or create false images. An Illusion specialist is called an illusionist. To become an illusionist, a wizard must select her prohibited school or schools from the following choices: (1) either Abjuration, Conjunction, Enchantment, Evocation, or Transmutation; or (2) both Divination and Necromancy.

Necromancy: Spells that manipulate, create, or destroy life or life force. A Necromancy specialist is called a necromancer. To become a necromancer, a wizard must select any other single school as her prohibited school.

Transmutation: Spells that transform the recipient physically or change its properties in a more subtle way. A Transmutation specialist is called a transmuter. To become a transmuter, a wizard must select her prohibited school or schools from one of the following choices: (1) Conjunction; (2) Evocation; (3) any two of the following three schools: Abjuration, Enchantment, and Illusion; or (4) any three schools.

Universal: Not a school, but a category for spells all wizards can learn. A wizard cannot select universal as a specialty school or as a school to which she does not have access.

PLAYER'S HANDBOOK 1 3.5

(3.5)

BARBARIAN

From the frozen wastes of the north and the hellish jungles of the south come brave, even reckless, warriors.

Civilized people call them barbarians or berserkers and suspect them of mayhem, impiety, and atrocities. These "barbarians", however, have proven their mettle and their value to those who would be their allies.

To enemies who underestimated them, they have proved their cunning, resourcefulness, persistence, and mercilessness.

Adventures: Adventuring is the best chance barbarians have of finding a place in a civilized society.

They're not well suited to the monotony of guard duty or other mundane tasks.

Barbarians also have no trouble with the dangers, the uncertainties, and the wandering that adventuring involves.

They may adventure to defeat hated enemies.

They have a noted distaste for that which they consider unnatural, including undead, demons, and devils.

Characteristics: The barbarian is an excellent warrior. Where the fighter's skill in combat comes from training and discipline, however, the barbarian has a powerful rage. While in this berserk fury, he becomes stronger and tougher, better able to defeat his foes and withstand their attacks.

These rages leave him winded, and he has the energy for only a few such spectacular displays per day, but those few rages are usually sufficient.

He is at home in the wild, and he runs at great speed.

Alignment: Barbarians are never lawful.

They may be honorable, but at heart they are wild.

This wildness is their strength, and it could not live in a lawful soul.

At best, barbarians of chaotic alignment are free and expressive.

At worst, they are thoughtlessly destructive.

Religion: Some barbarians distrust established religions and prefer an intuitive, natural relationship to the cosmos over formal worship.

Others devote themselves to powerful deities, such as Kord (god of strength), Obad-Hai (god of nature), or Erythnul (god of slaughter).

A barbarian is capable of fierce devotion to his god.

Background: Barbarians come from uncivilized lands or from barbaric tribes on the outskirts of civilization.

A barbarian adventurer may have been lured to the settled lands by the promise of riches, may have escaped after being captured in his homeland and sold into "civilized" slavery, may have been recruited as a soldier, or may have been driven out of his homeland by invaders.

Barbarians share no bond with each other unless they come from the same tribe or land.

In fact, they think of themselves not as barbarians but as warriors.

Races: Human barbarians come from the distant wild lands on the edge of civilization.

Most half-orc barbarians lived among orcs before abandoning them for human lands.

Dwarf barbarians are rare, usually hailing from dwarven kingdoms that have fallen into barbarism as a result of recurrent war with goblinoids, orcs, and giants.

Barbarians of other races are very rare.

Among the brutal humanoid, barbarians are more common than fighters.

Orcs and ogres are especially likely to be barbarians.

Other Classes: As people of the wild, barbarians are most comfortable in the company of rangers, druids, and clerics of nature deities, such as Obad-Hai or Ehlonna.

Many barbarians admire the talents and spontaneity of bards, and some are enthusiastic lovers of music.

Barbarians don't trust that which they don't understand, and that includes wizardry, which they call "book magic".

They find sorcerers more understandable than wizards, but maybe that's just because sorcerers tend to be more charismatic.

Monks, with their studied, practiced, deliberate approach to combat, sometimes have a hard time seeing eye to eye with barbarians, but members of these classes aren't necessarily hostile to each other.

Barbarians have no special attitudes toward fighters, paladins, clerics, or rogues.

Role: A barbarian's typical primary role in a group of adventurers is as a front-line combat specialist.

No other character can match his sheer toughness.

He can also serve as a good scout, thanks to his speed, skill selection, and trap sense.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Barbarians have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is important for barbarians because of its role in combat, and several barbarian class skills are based on Strength.

Dexterity is also useful to barbarians, especially those who wear light armor.

Wisdom is also important for several of the barbarian's class skills.

A high Constitution score lets a barbarian rage longer (and live longer, because it gives him more hit points).

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Hit Die: d12.

CLASS SKILLS

The barbarian's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Listen (Wis), Ride (Dex), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the barbarian.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A barbarian is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, light armor, medium armor, and shields (except tower shields).

Fast Movement (Ex): A barbarian's land speed is faster than the norm for his race by +10 feet.

This benefit applies only when he is wearing no armor, light armor, or medium armor and not carrying a heavy load.

Apply this bonus before modifying the barbarian's speed because of any load carried or armor worn.

For example, a human barbarian has a speed of 40 feet, rather than 30 feet, when wearing light or no armor.

When wearing medium armor or carrying a medium load, his speed drops to 30 feet.

A halfling barbarian has a speed of 30 feet, rather than 20 feet, in light or no armor.

When wearing medium armor or carrying a medium load, his speed drops to 20 feet.

Illiteracy: Barbarians are the only characters who do not automatically know how to read and write.

A barbarian may spend 2 skill points to gain the ability to read and write all languages he is able to speak.

A barbarian who gains a level in any other class automatically gains literacy.

Any other character who gains a barbarian level does not lose the literacy he or she already had.

Rage (Ex): A barbarian can fly into a screaming blood frenzy a certain number of times per day.

In a rage, a barbarian gains phenomenal strength and durability but becomes reckless and less able to defend himself.

He temporarily gains a +4 bonus to Strength, a +4 bonus to Constitution, and a +2 morale bonus on Will saves, but he takes a -2 penalty to Armor Class.

The increase in Constitution increases the barbarian's hit points by 2 points per level, but these hit points go away at the end of the rage when his Constitution score drops back to normal.

(These extra hit points are not lost first the way temporary hit points are; see Temporary Hit Points, page 146).

While raging, a barbarian cannot use any Charisma-, Dexterity-, or Intelligence-based skills (except for Balance, Escape Artist, Intimidate, and Ride), the Concentration skill, or any abilities that require patience or concentration, nor can he cast spells or activate magic items that require a command word, a spell trigger (such as a wand), or spell completion (such as a scroll) to function.

He can use any feat he has except Combat Expertise, item creation feats, and metamagic feats.

A fit of rage lasts for a number of rounds equal to 3 + the character's (newly improved) Constitution modifier.

A barbarian may prematurely end his rage.

At the end of the rage, the barbarian loses the rage modifiers and restrictions and becomes fatigued (-2 penalty to Strength, -2 penalty to Dexterity, can't charge or run) for the duration of the current encounter (unless he is a 17th-level barbarian, at which point this limitation no longer applies; see below).

A barbarian can fly into a rage only once per encounter.

At 1st level he can use his rage ability once per day.

At 4th level and every four levels thereafter, he can use it one additional time per day (to a maximum of six times per day at 20th level).

Entering a rage takes no time itself, but a barbarian can do it only during his action (see Initiative, page 136), not in response to someone else's action.

A barbarian can't, for example, fly into a rage when struck down by an arrow in order to get the extra hit points from the increased Constitution, although the extra hit points would be of benefit if he had gone into a rage earlier in the round, before the arrow struck Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 2nd level, a barbarian gains the ability to react to danger before his senses would normally allow him to do so.

He retains his Dexterity bonus to AC (if any) even if he is caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

However, he still loses his Dexterity bonus to AC if immobilized.

If a barbarian already has uncanny dodge from a different class (a barbarian with at least four levels of rogue, for example), he automatically gains improved uncanny dodge (see below) instead.

Trap Sense (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a barbarian has an intuitive sense that alerts him to danger from traps, giving him a +1 bonus on Reflex saves made to avoid traps and a +1 dodge bonus to AC against attacks made by traps.

These bonuses rise by +1 every three barbarian levels thereafter (6th, 9th, 12th, 15th, and 18th level).

Trap sense bonuses gained from multiple classes stack.

Improved Uncanny Dodge (Ex): At 5th level and higher, a barbarian can no longer be flanked; he can react to opponents on opposite sides of him as easily as he can react to a single attacker.

This defense denies a rogue the ability to sneak attack the barbarian by flanking him, unless the attacker has at least four more rogue levels than the target has barbarian levels.

If a character already has uncanny dodge (see above) from a second class, the character automatically gains improved uncanny dodge instead, and the levels from the classes that grant uncanny dodge stack to determine the minimum level a rogue must be to flank the character.

Damage Reduction (Ex): At 7th level, a barbarian gains the ability to shrug off some amount of injury from each blow or attack.

Subtract 1 from the damage the barbarian takes each time he is dealt damage from a weapon or a natural attack.

At 10th level, and every three barbarian levels thereafter (13th, 16th, and 19th level), this damage reduction rises by 1 point.

Damage reduction can reduce damage to 0 but not below 0.

Greater Rage (Ex): At 11th level, a barbarian's bonuses to Strength and Constitution during his rage each increase to +6, and his morale bonus on Will saves increases to +3.

The penalty to AC remains at -2.

Indomitable Will (Ex): While in a rage, a barbarian of 14th level or higher gains a +4 bonus on Will saves to resist enchantment spells.

This bonus stacks with all other modifiers, including the morale bonus on Will saves he also receives during his rage.

Tireless Rage (Ex): At 17th level and higher, a barbarian no longer becomes fatigued at the end of his rage.

Mighty Rage (Ex): At 20th level, a barbarian's bonuses to Strength and Constitution during his rage each increase to +8, and his morale bonus on Will saves increases to +4.

The penalty to AC remains at -2.

EX-BARBARIANS

A barbarian who becomes lawful loses the ability to rage and cannot gain more levels as a barbarian.

He retains all the other benefits of the class (damage reduction, fast movement, trap sense, and uncanny dodge).

HALF-ORC BARBARIAN STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 40 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Greataxe (1d12, crit ×3, 12 lb., two-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit ×3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., Piercing).

Dagger (1d4, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 10 ft., 1 lb., light, piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Climb	4	Str	-1
Survival	4	Wis	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Jump	4	Str	-1
Swim	4	Str	-2
Ride	4	Dex	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

TABLE 3-3: THE BARBARIAN

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Fast movement, illiteracy, rage 1/day
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Uncanny dodge
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Trap sense +1
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Rage 2/day
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Improved uncanny dodge
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Trap sense +2
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	Damage reduction 1/—
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Rage 3/day
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	Trap sense +3
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Damage reduction 2/—
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	Greater rage
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Rage 4/day, trap sense +4
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4	Damage reduction 3/—
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	Indomitable will
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	Trap sense +5
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	Damage reduction 4/—, rage 5/day
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Tireless rage
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	Trap sense +6
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	Damage reduction 5/—
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Mighty rage, rage 6/day

BARD

It is said that music has a special magic, and the bard proves that saying true.

Wandering across the land, gathering lore, telling stories, working magic with his music, and living on the gratitude of his audience—such is the life of a bard.

When chance or opportunity draws them into a conflict, bards serve as diplomats, negotiators, messengers, scouts, and spies.

A bard's magic comes from the heart.

If his heart is good, a bard brings hope and courage to the downtrodden and uses his tricks, music, and magic to thwart the schemes of evildoers.

If the nobles of the land are corrupt, the good bard is an enemy of the state, cunningly evading capture and raising the spirits of the oppressed.

But music can spring from an evil heart as well.

Evil bards forego blatant violence in favor of manipulation, holding sway over the hearts and minds of others and taking what enraptured audiences “willingly” give.

Adventures: Bards see adventures as opportunities to learn. They practice their many skills and abilities, and they especially relish the opportunity to enter a long-forgotten tomb, to discover ancient works of magic, to decipher old tomes, to travel to strange places, to encounter exotic creatures, and to learn new songs and stories.

Feat: Weapon Focus (greataxe).

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

Bards love to accompany heroes (and villains), joining their entourage to witness their deeds firsthand—a bard who can tell a marvelous story from personal experience earns renown among his fellows.

Indeed, after telling so many stories about heroes doing mighty deeds, many bards take these themes to heart and assume heroic roles themselves.

Characteristics: A bard brings forth magic from his soul, not from a book.

He can cast only a small number of spells, but he can do so without selecting or preparing them in advance.

His magic emphasizes charms and illusions over the more dramatic evocation spells that wizards and sorcerers often use.

In addition to spells, a bard works magic with his music and poetry.

He can encourage allies, hold his audiences rapt, and counter magical effects that rely on speech or sound.

Bards have some of the skills that rogues have, although bards they are not as focused on skill mastery as rogues are. A bard listens to stories as well as telling them, of course, so he has a vast knowledge of local events and noteworthy items.

Alignment: Bards are wanderers, guided by whim and intuition rather than by tradition or law.

The spontaneous talent, magic, and lifestyle of the bard are incompatible with a lawful alignment.

Religion: Bards revere Fharlanghn (god of roads).

They sometimes camp near his wayside shrines, hoping to earn some coin from the travelers who stop to leave offerings for the god.

Many bards, even those who are not elves, worship Corellon Larethian, god of elves and patron of poetry and music.

Many good bards are partial to Pelor (god of the sun), believing that he watches over them in their travels.

Bards given to chaos and occasional larceny favor Olidammara (god of thieves).

Those who have turned to evil ways are known to worship Erythnul (the god of slaughter), though few will admit to it. In any event, bards spend so much time on the road that, while they may be devoted to a deity, they are rarely devoted to any particular temple.

Background: An apprentice bard learns his skills from a single experienced bard, whom he follows and serves until he is ready to strike out on his own.

Many bards were once young runaways or orphans, befriended by wandering bards who became their mentors. Since bards occasionally congregate in informal "colleges", the apprentice bard may meet many of the more prominent bards in the area.

Still, the bard has no strong allegiance to bards as a whole. In fact, some bards are highly competitive with other bards, jealous of their reputations and defensive about their territories.

Races: Bards are commonly human, gnome, elf, or half-elf. Humans take well to the wandering life and adapt easily to new lands and customs.

Gnomes have a sense of humor and trickery that lends itself to a bardic career.

Elves are talented in music and magic, so the career of the bard comes naturally to them.

A bard's wandering ways suit many half-elves, who often feel like strangers even when at home.

Half-orcs, even those raised among humans, find themselves ill suited to the demands of a bard's career.

There are no bardic traditions among dwarves, or halflings, though occasional individuals of these races find teachers to train them in the ways of the bard.

Bards are exceedingly rare among the savage humanoids, except among centaurs.

Centaur bards sometimes train the children of humans or other humanoids.

Other Classes: A bard works well with companions of other classes.

He often serves as the spokesman of the party, using his social skills for the party's benefit.

In a party without a wizard or sorcerer, the bard contributes his magic.

In a party without a rogue, he uses his skills.

A bard is curious about the ways of more focused or dedicated adventurers, so he often tries to pick up pointers from fighters, sorcerers, and rogues.

Role: The bard is perhaps the ultimate generalist.

In most adventuring groups, he works best in a supporting role.

He can't usually match the stealth of the ranger or the rogue, the spellcasting power of the cleric or the wizard, or the combat prowess of the barbarian or the fighter.

However, he makes all the other characters better at what they do, and he can often fill in for another character when needed.

For a typical group of four characters, the bard is perhaps the most useful fifth character to consider adding, and he can make a great team leader.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Bards have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a bard can cast, how many spells he can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

Charisma, Dexterity, and Intelligence are important for many of the bard's class skills.

Alignment: Any nonlawful.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The bard's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Speak Language (n/a), Spellcraft (Int), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Magic Device (Cha).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (6 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the bard.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A bard is proficient with all simple weapons, plus the longsword, rapier, sap, short sword, shortbow, and whip.

Bards are proficient with light armor and shields (except tower shields).

Because the somatic components required for bard spells are relatively simple, a bard can cast bard spells while wearing light armor without incurring the normal arcane spell failure chance.

However, like any other arcane spellcaster, a bard wearing medium or heavy armor or using a shield incurs a chance of arcane spell failure if the spell in question has a somatic component (most do).

A multiclass bard still incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance for arcane spells received from other classes.

Spells: A bard casts arcane spells (the same type of spells available to sorcerers and wizards), which are drawn from the bard spell (page 181) list.

He can cast any spell he knows without preparing it ahead of time, the way a wizard or cleric must (see below).

Every bard spell has a verbal component (singing, reciting, or music).

To learn or cast a spell, a bard must have a Charisma score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a bard's spell is 10 + the spell level + the bard's Charisma modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a bard can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 3-4: The Bard.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Charisma score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

When Table 3-4 indicates that the bard gets 0 spells per day of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 2nd-level bard), he gains only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Charisma score for that spell level. The bard's selection of spells is extremely limited.

A bard begins play knowing four 0-level spells (also called cantrips) of your choice.

At most new bard levels, he gains one or more new spells, as indicated on Table 3-5: Bard Spells Known.

TABLE 3-5: BARD SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th
1st	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	5	2 ¹	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	6	3	—	—	—	—	—
4th	6	3	2 ¹	—	—	—	—
5th	6	4	3	—	—	—	—
6th	6	4	3	—	—	—	—
7th	6	4	4	2 ¹	—	—	—
8th	6	4	4	3	—	—	—
9th	6	4	4	3	—	—	—
10th	6	4	4	4	2 ¹	—	—
11th	6	4	4	4	3	—	—
12th	6	4	4	4	3	—	—
13th	6	4	4	4	4	2 ¹	—
14th	6	4	4	4	4	3	—
15th	6	4	4	4	4	3	—
16th	6	5	4	4	4	4	2 ¹
17th	6	5	5	4	4	4	3
18th	6	5	5	5	4	4	3
19th	6	5	5	5	5	4	4
20th	6	5	5	5	5	5	4

¹ Provided the bard has a high enough Charisma score to have a bonus spell of this level.

(Unlike spells per day, the number of spells a bard knows is not affected by his Charisma score; the numbers on Table 3-5 are fixed).

Upon reaching 5th level, and at every third bard level after that (8th, 11th, and so on), a bard can choose to learn a new spell in place of one he already knows.

In effect, the bard "loses" the old spell in exchange for the new one.

The new spell's level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level bard spell the bard can cast.

For instance, upon reaching 5th level, a bard could trade a single 0-level spell (two spell levels below the highest-level bard spell he can cast, which is 2nd) for a different 0-level spell.

At 8th level, he could trade in a single 0-level or 1st-level spell (since he now can cast 3rd-level bard spells) for a different spell of the same level.

A bard may swap only a single spell at any given level, and must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that he gains new spells known for the level.

As noted above, a bard need not prepare his spells in advance.

He can cast any spell he knows at any time, assuming he has not yet used up his allotment of spells per day for the spell's level.

For example, at 1st level, Gimble the bard can cast two 0-level spells per day for being 1st level (see Table 3-4: The Bard).

However, he knows four 0-level spells: detect magic, ghost sound, light, and read magic (see Table 3-5: Bard Spells Known).

Thus, on any given day, he can cast some combination of those four spells a total of two times.

He does not have to decide ahead of time which spells he'll cast.

Bardic Knowledge: A bard picks up a lot of stray knowledge while wandering the land and learning stories from other bards.

He may make a special bardic knowledge check with a bonus equal to his bard level + his Intelligence modifier to see whether he knows some relevant information about local notable people, legendary items, or noteworthy places. (If the bard has 5 or more ranks in Knowledge (history), he gains a +2 bonus on this check).

A successful bardic knowledge check will not reveal the powers of a magic item but may give a hint as to its general function.

A bard may not take 10 or take 20 on this check; this sort of knowledge is essentially random.

DC	Type of Knowledge	Examples
10	Common, known by at least a substantial minority of the local population.	A local mayor's reputation for drinking; common legends about a powerful place of mystery.
20	Uncommon but available, known by only a few people in the area.	A local priest's shady past; legends about a powerful Magic item.
25	Obscure, known by few, hard to come by.	A knight's family history; legends about a minor place of mystery or magic item.
30	Extremely obscure, known by very few, possibly forgotten by most who once knew it, possibly known only by those who don't understand the significance of the knowledge.	A mighty wizard's childhood nickname; the history of a petty magic item.

The DM can determine the Difficulty Class of the check by referring to the table above.

Bardic Music: Once per day per bard level, a bard can use his song or poetics to produce magical effects on those around him (usually including himself, if desired).

While these abilities fall under the category of bardic music and the descriptions discuss singing or playing instruments, they can all be activated by reciting poetry, chanting, singing lyrical songs, singing melodies (fa-la-la, and so forth), whistling, playing an instrument, or playing an instrument in combination with some spoken performance.

Each ability requires both a minimum bard level and a minimum number of ranks in the Perform skill to qualify; if a bard does not have the required number of ranks in at least one Perform skill, he does not gain the bardic music ability until he acquires the needed ranks.

Starting a bardic music effect is a standard action.

Some bardic music abilities require concentration, which means the bard must take a standard action each round to maintain the ability.

Even while using bardic music that doesn't require concentration, a bard cannot cast spells, activate magic items by spell completion (such as scrolls), or activate magic items by magic word (such as wands).

Just as for casting a spell with a verbal component (see Components, page 174), a deaf bard has a 20% chance to fail when attempting to use bardic music.

If he fails, the attempt still counts against his daily limit.

Countersong (Su): A bard with 3 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use his music or poetics to counter magical effects that depend on sound (but not spells that simply have verbal components).

Each round of the countersong, he makes a Perform check. Any creature within 30 feet of the bard (including the bard himself) that is affected by a sonic or language-dependent magical attack (such as a sound burst or command spell) may use the bard's Perform check result in place of its saving throw if, after the saving throw is rolled, the Perform check result proves to be higher.

If a creature within range of the countersong is already under the effect of a noninstantaneous sonic or language-dependent magical attack, it gains another saving throw against the effect each round it hears the countersong, but it must use the bard's Perform check result for the save. Countersong has no effect against effects that don't allow saves.

The bard may keep up the countersong for 10 rounds.

Fascinate (Sp): A bard with 3 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use his music or poetics to cause one or more creatures to become fascinated with him.

Each creature to be fascinated must be within 90 feet, able to see and hear the bard, and able to pay attention to him.

The bard must also be able to see the creature.

The distraction of a nearby combat or other dangers prevents the ability from working.

For every three levels a bard attains beyond 1st, he can target one additional creature with a single use of this ability (two at 4th level, three at 7th level, and so on).

To use the ability, a bard makes a Perform check.

His check result is the DC for each affected creature's Will save against the effect.

If a creature's saving throw succeeds, the bard cannot attempt to fascinate that creature again for 24 hours.

If its saving throw fails, the creature sits quietly and listens to the song, taking no other actions, for as long as the bard continues to play and concentrate (up to a maximum of 1 round per bard level).

While fascinated, a target takes a -4 penalty on skill checks made as reactions, such as Listen and Spot checks.

Any potential threat requires the bard to make another Perform check and allows the creature a new saving throw against a DC equal to the new Perform check result.

Any obvious threat, such as someone drawing a weapon, casting a spell, or aiming a ranged weapon at the target, automatically breaks the effect.

Fascinate is an enchantment (compulsion), mind-affecting ability.

Inspire Courage (Su): A bard with 3 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use song or poetics to inspire courage in his allies (including himself), bolstering them against fear and improving their combat abilities.

To be affected, an ally must be able to hear the bard sing. The effect lasts for as long as the ally hears the bard sing and for 5 rounds thereafter.

An affected ally receives a +1 morale bonus on saving throws against charm and fear effects and a +1 morale bonus on attack and weapon damage rolls.

At 8th level, and every six bard levels thereafter, this bonus increases by 1 (+2 at 8th, +3 at 14th, and +4 at 20th).

Inspire courage is a mind-affecting ability.

Inspire Competence (Su): A bard of 3rd level or higher with 6 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use his music or poetics to help an ally succeed at a task.

The ally must be within 30 feet and able to see and hear the bard.

The bard must also be able to see the ally.

Depending on the task that the ally has at hand, the bard may use his bardic music to lift the ally's spirits, to help him or her focus mentally, or in some other way.

The ally gets a +2 competence bonus on skill checks with a particular skill as long as he or she continues to hear the bard's music.

The DM may rule that certain uses of this ability are infeasible—chanting to make a rogue move more quietly, for example, is self-defeating.

The effect lasts as long as the bard concentrates, up to a maximum of 2 minutes.

A bard can't inspire competence in himself.

Inspire competence is a mind-affecting ability.

Suggestion (Sp): A bard of 6th level or higher with 9 or more ranks in a Perform skill can make a suggestion (as the spell) to a creature that he has already fascinated (see above).

Using this ability does not break the bard's concentration on the fascinate effect, nor does it allow a second saving throw against the fascinate effect.

Making a suggestion doesn't count against a bard's daily limit on bardic music performances.

A Will saving throw (DC 10 + 1/2 bard's level + bard's Cha modifier) negates the effect.

This ability affects only a single creature (but see mass suggestion, below).

Suggestion is an enchantment (compulsion), mind-affecting, language dependent ability.

Inspire Greatness (Su): A bard of 9th level or higher with 12 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use music or poetics to inspire greatness in himself or a single willing ally within 30 feet, granting him or her extra fighting capability.

For every three levels a bard attains beyond 9th, he can target one additional ally with a single use of this ability (two at 12th level, three at 15th, four at 18th).

To inspire greatness, a bard must sing and an ally must hear him sing.

The effect lasts for as long as the ally hears the bard sing and for 5 rounds thereafter.

A creature inspired with greatness gains 2 bonus Hit Dice (d10s), the commensurate number of temporary hit points (apply the target's Constitution modifier, if any, to these bonus Hit Dice), a +2 competence bonus on attack rolls, and a +1 competence bonus on Fortitude saves.

The bonus Hit Dice count as regular Hit Dice for determining the effect of spells such as sleep.

Inspire greatness is a mind-affecting ability.

Song of Freedom (Sp): A bard of 12th level or higher with 15 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use music or poetics to create an effect equivalent to the break enchantment spell (caster level equals the character's bard level).

Using this ability requires 1 minute of uninterrupted concentration and music, and it functions on a single target within 30 feet.

A bard can't use song of freedom on himself.

Inspire Heroics (Su): A bard of 15th level or higher with 18 or more ranks in a Perform skill can use music or poetics to inspire tremendous heroism in himself or a single willing ally within 30 feet, allowing that creature to fight bravely even against overwhelming odds. For every three bard levels the character attains beyond 15th, he can inspire heroics in one additional creature. To inspire heroics, a bard must sing and an ally must hear the bard sing for a full round.

A creature so inspired gains a +4 morale bonus on saving throws and a +4 dodge bonus to AC.

The effect lasts for as long as the ally hears the bard sing and for up to 5 rounds thereafter.

Inspire heroics is a mind-affecting ability.

Mass Suggestion (Sp): This ability functions like suggestion, above, except that a bard of 18th level or higher with 21 or more ranks in a Perform skill can make the suggestion simultaneously to any number of creatures that he has already fascinated (see above).

Mass suggestion is an enchantment (compulsion), mind-affecting, language-dependent ability.

EX-BARDS

A bard who becomes lawful in alignment cannot progress in levels as a bard, though he retains all his bard abilities.

GNOME BARD STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, arcane spell failure chance n/a, speed 20 ft., 10 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 2 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Light crossbow (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 6 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Perform (string instruments)	4	Cha	—
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Use Magic Device	4	Cha	—
Gather Information	4	Cha	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Decipher Script	4	Int	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Knowledge (any one)	4	Int	—
Sleight of Hand	4	Dex	-1
Disguise	4	Cha	—

Feat: If Dexterity is 13 or higher, Dodge; if Dexterity is 12 or lower, Improved Initiative instead.

Spells Known: 0 level—detect magic, ghost sound, light, read magic.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Three torches.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Lute (common).

Spell component pouch.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 3-4: THE BARD

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th
1st	+0	+0	+2	+2	Bardic music, bardic knowledge, countersong, fascinate , inspire courage +1	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+3		3	0	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+3	Inspire competence	3	1	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+1	+4	+4		3	2	0	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+1	+4	+4		3	3	1	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+2	+5	+5	Suggestion	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
7th	+5	+2	+5	+5		3	3	2	0	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+6	Inspire courage +2	3	3	3	1	—	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+3	+6	+6	Inspire greatness	3	3	3	2	—	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+7		3	3	3	2	0	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+7		3	3	3	3	1	—	—
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8	Song of freedom	3	3	3	3	2	—	—
13th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+8		3	3	3	3	2	0	—
14th	+10/+5	+4	+9	+9	Inspire courage +3	4	3	3	3	3	1	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+9	Inspire heroics	4	4	3	3	3	2	—
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+10		4	4	4	3	3	2	0
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+10		4	4	4	4	3	3	1
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+11	Mass suggestion	4	4	4	4	4	3	2
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	3
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+12	Inspire courage +4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4

CLERIC

The handiwork of the gods is everywhere—in places of natural beauty, in mighty crusades, in soaring temples, and in the hearts of worshippers.

Like people, gods run the gamut from benevolent to malicious, reserved to intrusive, simple to inscrutable.

The gods, however, work mostly through intermediaries—their clerics.

Good clerics heal, protect, and avenge.

Evil clerics pillage, destroy, and sabotage.

A cleric uses the power of his god to make his god's will manifest.

And if a cleric uses his god's power to improve his own lot, that's to be expected, too.

Adventures: Ideally, a cleric's adventures support his god's causes, at least in a general way.

A good cleric, for example, helps those in need.

If, through noble acts, he can improve the reputation to his god or temple, that's even better.

An evil cleric seeks to increase his own power and that of his deity, so that others will respect and fear both.

Clerics sometimes receive orders, or at least suggestions, from their ecclesiastical superiors, directing them to undertake missions for the church.

The clerics and their companions are compensated fairly for these missions, and the church may be especially generous with the casting of needed spells or divine magic items as payment.

Of course, clerics are people, too, and they may have any or all the more common motivations for adventuring.

Characteristics: Clerics are masters of divine magic, which is especially good at healing.

Even an inexperienced cleric can bring people back from the brink of death, and an experienced cleric can bring back people who have crossed over that brink.

As channelers of divine energy, clerics can affect undead creatures.

A good cleric can turn away or even destroy undead; an evil cleric can bring undead under his control.

Clerics have some combat training.

They can use simple weapons, and they are trained in the use of armor, since armor does not interfere with divine spells the way it does with arcane spells.

Alignment: Like the gods they serve, clerics can be of any alignment.

Because people more readily worship good deities than neutral or evil ones, there are more good than evil clerics. Clerics also tend toward law instead of chaos, since lawful religions tend to be more structured and better able to recruit and train clerics than chaotic ones.

Typically, a cleric is the same alignment as his deity, though some clerics are one step away from their respective deities in alignment.

For example, most clerics of Heironeous, the god of valor (who is lawful good) are lawful good, but some are lawful neutral or neutral good.

Additionally, a cleric may not be neutral (that is, neutral on both the good-evil axis and the lawful-chaotic axis) unless his deity is neutral.

Religion: Every reasonably well-known deity has clerics devoted to him or her, so clerics can be of any religion.

The deity most common worshiped by human clerics in civilized lands is Pelor (god of the sun).

The majority of nonhuman clerics are devoted to the chief god of the appropriate racial pantheon.

Most clerics are officially ordained members of religious organizations, commonly called churches.

Each has sworn to uphold the ideals of his church.

Some clerics devote themselves not to a god but to a cause or a source of divine power.

These characters wield magic the way clerics devoted to individual gods do, but they are not associated with any religious institution or any particular practice of worship.

A cleric devoted to good and law, for example, may be on friendly terms with the clerics of lawful and good deities and may extol the virtues of a good and lawful life, but he is not a functionary in a church hierarchy.

Background: Most clerics join their churches as young adults, though some are devoted to a god's service from a young age, and a few feel the call later in life.

While some clerics are tightly bound to their churches' activities on a daily basis, others have more freedom to conduct their lives as they please, as long as they do so in accordance with their gods' wishes.

Clerics of a given religion are all supposed to get along, though schisms within a church are often more bitter than conflicts between religions.

Clerics who share some basic ideals, such as goodness or lawfulness, may find common cause with each other and see themselves as part of an order or body that supersedes any given religion.

Clerics of opposed goals, however, are sworn enemies.

In civilized lands, open warfare between religions occurs only during civil wars and similar social upheavals, but vicious politicking between opposed churches is common.

Races: All the common races are represented in this class, since the need for religion and divine magic is universal.

The clerics of most races, however, are too focused on their religious duties to undertake an adventurer's life.

Crusading, adventuring clerics most often come from the human and dwarf races.

Among the savage humanoids, clerics are less common.

The exception is troglodytes, who take well to divine magic and are often led by priests, who make a practice of sacrificing and devouring captives.

Other Classes: In an adventuring party, the cleric is everybody's friend and often the glue that holds the party together.

As the one who can channel divine energy, a cleric is a capable healer, and adventurers of every class appreciate being put back together after they've taken some hard knocks.

Clerics sometimes clash with druids, since druids represent an older, more primal relationship between the mortal and the divine.

Mostly, though, the religion of a cleric determines how he gets along with others.

A cleric of Olidammara (god of thieves), gets along fine with rogues and ne'er-do-wells, for example, while a cleric of Heironeous (god of valor) rankles at such company.

Role: The cleric serves as a typical group's primary healer, diviner, and defensive specialist.

He can hold his own in a fight but usually isn't well served by charging to the front of combat.

The cleric's domains and spell selection can greatly affect his role as well.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Clerics have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom determines how powerful a spell a cleric can cast, how many spells he can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

A high Constitution score improves a cleric's hit points, and a high Charisma score improves his ability to turn undead.

Alignment: A cleric's alignment must be within one step of his deity's (that is, it may be one step away on either the lawful-chaotic axis or the good-evil axis, but not both).

Exceptions are the clerics of St. Cuthbert (a lawful neutral deity), who may choose only between lawful good and lawful neutral for their alignment.

A cleric may not be neutral unless his deity's alignment is also neutral.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The cleric's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (history) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Knowledge (the planes) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Domains and Class Skills: A cleric who chooses the Animal or Plant domain adds Knowledge (nature) (Int) to the cleric class skills listed above.

A cleric who chooses the Knowledge domain adds all Knowledge (Int) skills to the list.

A cleric who chooses the Travel domain adds Survival (Wis) to the list.

A cleric who chooses the Trickery domain adds Bluff (Cha), Disguise (Cha), and Hide (Dex) to the list.

See Deity, Domains, and Domain Spells, below, for more information.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the cleric.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Clerics are proficient with all simple weapons, with all types of armor (light, medium, and heavy), and with shields (except tower shields).

Every deity has a favored weapon (see Deities, page 106), and his or her clerics consider it a point of pride to wield that weapon.

A cleric who chooses the War domain receives the Weapon Focus feat related to that weapon as a bonus feat.

He also receives the appropriate Martial Weapon Proficiency feat as a bonus feat, if the weapon falls into that category.

See Chapter 5: Feats for details.

Aura (Ex): A cleric of a chaotic, evil, good, or lawful deity has a particularly powerful aura corresponding to the deity's alignment (see the detect evil spell for details).

Clerics who don't worship a specific deity but choose the Chaotic, Evil, Good, or Lawful domain have a similarly powerful aura of the corresponding alignment.

Spells: A cleric casts divine spells (the same type of spells available to the druid, paladin, and ranger), which are drawn from the cleric spell list (page 183).

However, his alignment may restrict him from casting certain spells opposed to his moral or ethical beliefs; see Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells, below.

A cleric must choose and prepare his spells in advance (see below).

To prepare or cast a spell, a cleric must have a Wisdom score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Wis 10 for 0-level spells, Wis 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a cleric's spell is 10 + the spell level + the cleric's Wisdom modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a cleric can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 3-7: The Cleric.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

A cleric also gets one domain spell of each spell level he can cast, starting at 1st level.

When a cleric prepares a spell in a domain spell slot, it must come from one of his two domains (see Deities, Domains, and Domain Spells, below).

Clerics do not acquire their spells from books or scrolls, nor do they prepare them through study.

Instead, they meditate or pray for their spells, receiving them through their own strength of faith or as divine inspiration.

Each cleric must choose a time at which he must spend 1 hour each day in quiet contemplation or supplication to regain his daily allotment of spells.

Typically, this hour is at dawn or noon for good clerics and at dusk or midnight for evil ones.

Time spent resting has no effect on whether a cleric can prepare spells.

A cleric may prepare and cast any spell on the cleric spell list (page 183), provided that he can cast spells of that level, but he must choose which spells to prepare during his daily meditation.

Deity, Domains, and Domain Spells: Choose a deity for your cleric.

Sample deities are listed on Table 3-7: Deities and described on page 106-108.

TABLE 3-7: DEITIES

Deity	Alignment	Domains	Typical Worshipers
Heironeous, god of valor	Lawful good	Good, Law, War	Paladins, fighters, monks
Moradin, god of the dwarves	Lawful good	Earth, Good, Law, Protection	Dwarves
Yondalla, goddess of the halflings	Lawful good	Good, Law, Protection	Halflings
Ehlonna, goddess of the woodlands	Neutral good	Animal, Good, Plant, Sun	Elves, gnomes, half-elves, halflings, rangers, druids
Garl Glittergold, god of the gnomes	Neutral good	Good, Protection, Trickery	Gnomes
Pelor, god of the sun	Neutral good	Good, Healing, Strength, Sun	Rangers, bards
Corellon Larethian, god of the elves	Chaotic good	Chaos, Good, Protection, War	Elves, half-elves, bards
Kord, god of Strength	Chaotic good	Chaos, Good, Luck, Strength	Fighters, barbarians, rogues, athletes
Wee Jas, goddess of death and magic	Lawful neutral	Death, Law, Magic	Wizards, necromancers, sorcerers
St. Cuthbert, god of retribution	Lawful neutral	Destruction, Law, Protection, Strength	Fighters, monks, soldiers
Boccob, god of magic	Neutral	Knowledge, Magic, Trickery	Wizards, sorcerers, sages
Fharlanghn, god of roads	Neutral	Luck, Protection, Travel	Bards, adventurers, merchants
Obad-Hai, god of nature	Neutral	Air, Animal, Earth, Fire, Plant, Water	Druids, barbarians, rangers
Olidammara, god of thieves	Chaotic neutral	Chaos, Luck, Trickery	Rogues, bards, thieves
Hextor, god of tyranny	Lawful evil	Destruction, Evil, Law, War	Evil fighters, monks
Nerull, god of death	Neutral evil	Death, Evil, Trickery	Evil necromancers, rogues
Vecna, god of secrets	Neutral evil	Evil, Knowledge, Magic	Evil wizards, sorcerers, rogues, spies
Erythnul, god of slaughter	Chaotic evil	Chaos, Evil, Trickery, War	Evil fighters, barbarians, rogues
Gruumsh, god of the orcs	Chaotic evil	Chaos, Evil, Strength, War	Half-orcs, orcs

The cleric's deity influences his alignment, what magic he can perform, his values, and how others see him.

You may also choose for your cleric to have no deity.

If the typical worshipers of a deity include the members of a race, a cleric must be of the indicated race to choose that deity as his own.

(The god may have occasional worshipers of other races, but not clerics).

When you have chosen an alignment and a deity for your cleric, choose two domains from among those given on Table 3–7 for the deity.

While the clerics of a particular religion are united in their reverence for their deity, each cleric emphasizes different aspects of the deity's interests.

You can select an alignment domain (Chaos, Evil, Good, or Law) for your cleric only if his alignment matches that domain.

If your cleric is not devoted to a particular deity, you still select two domains to represent his spiritual inclinations and abilities.

The restriction on alignment domains still applies.

Each domain gives your cleric access to a domain spell at each spell level he can cast, from 1st on up, as well as a granted power.

Your cleric gets the granted powers of both the domains selected.

With access to two domain spells at a given spell level, a cleric prepares one or the other each day in his domain spell slot.

If a domain spell is not on the cleric spell list (page 183), a cleric can prepare it only in his domain spell slot.

Domain spells and granted powers are given in Cleric Domains, pages 185–189.

For example, Jozan is a 1st-level cleric of Pelor.

He chooses Good and Healing (from Pelor's domain options) as his two domains.

He gets the granted powers of both his selected domains.

The Good domain allows him to cast all spells with the good descriptor at +1 caster level (as if he were one level higher as a cleric) as a granted power, and it gives him access to protection from evil as a 1st-level domain spell.

The Healing domain allows him to cast all healing subschool spells of the conjuration school at +1 caster level as a granted power, and it gives him access to cure light wounds as a 1st-level domain spell.

When Jozan prepares his spells, he gets one 1st-level spell for being a 1st-level cleric, one bonus 1st-level spell for having a high Wisdom score (15), and one domain spell. The domain spell must be one of the two to which he has access, either protection from evil or cure light wounds.

Spontaneous Casting: A good cleric (or a neutral cleric of a good deity) can channel stored spell energy into healing spells that the cleric did not prepare ahead of time.

The cleric can “lose” any prepared spell that is not a domain spell in order to cast any cure spell of the same spell level or lower (a cure spell is any spell with “cure” in its name).

For example, a good cleric who has prepared command (a 1st-level spell) may lose command in order to cast cure light wounds (also a 1st-level spell).

Clerics of good deities can cast cure spells in this way because they are especially proficient at wielding positive energy.

An evil cleric (or a neutral cleric of an evil deity), on the other hand, can't convert prepared spells to cure spells but can convert them to inflict spells (an inflict spell is one with “inflict” in its name).

A cleric who is neither good nor evil and whose deity is neither good nor evil can convert spells to either cure spells or inflict spells (player's choice), depending on whether the cleric is more proficient at wielding positive or negative energy.

Once the player makes this choice, it cannot be reversed. This choice also determines whether the cleric turns or commands undead (see below).

Exceptions: All lawful neutral clerics of Wee Jas (goddess of death and magic) convert prepared spells to inflict spells, not cure spells.

All clerics of St. Cuthbert (god of retribution) and all nonevil clerics of Obad-Hai (god of nature) convert prepared spells to cure spells, not inflict spells.

Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells: A cleric can't cast spells of an alignment opposed to his own or his deity's (if he has one).

For example, a good cleric (or a neutral cleric of a good deity) cannot cast evil spells.

Spells associated with particular alignments are indicated by the chaos, evil, good, and law descriptors in their spell descriptions (see Chapter 11: Spells).

Turn or Rebuke Undead (Su): Any cleric, regardless of alignment, has the power to affect undead creatures (such as skeletons, zombies, ghosts, and vampires) by channeling the power of his faith through his holy (or unholy) symbol (see Turn or Rebuke Undead, page 159).

A good cleric (or a neutral cleric who worships a good deity) can turn or destroy undead creatures.

An evil cleric (or a neutral cleric who worships an evil deity) instead rebukes or commands such creatures, forcing them to cower in awe of his power.

If your character is a neutral cleric of a neutral deity, you must choose whether his turning ability functions as that of a good cleric or an evil cleric.

Once you make this choice, it cannot be reversed.

This decision also determines whether the cleric can cast spontaneous cure or inflict spells (see above).

Exceptions: All lawful neutral clerics of Wee Jas (goddess of death and magic) rebuke or command undead.

All clerics of St. Cuthbert (god of retribution) and all nonevil clerics of Obad-Hai (god of nature) turn or destroy undead.

A cleric may attempt to turn undead a number of times per day equal to 3 + his Charisma modifier.

A cleric with 5 or more ranks in Knowledge (religion) gets a +2 bonus on turning checks against undead.

Bonus Languages: A cleric's bonus language options include Celestial, Abyssal, and Infernal (the languages of good, chaotic evil, and lawful evil outsiders, respectively). These choices are in addition to the bonus languages available to the character because of his race (see Race and Languages, page 12, and the Speak Language skill, page 82).

EX-CLERICS

A cleric who grossly violates the code of conduct required by his god (generally by acting in ways opposed to the god's alignment or purposes) loses all spells and class features, except for armor and shield proficiencies and proficiency with simple weapons.

He cannot thereafter gain levels as a cleric of that god until he atones (see the atonement spell description, page 201).

HUMAN CLERIC STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty –4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty –2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Heavy mace (1d8, crit ×2, 8 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning).
 Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).
 Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Heal	4	Wis	—
Knowledge (religion)	4	Int	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Gather Information (cc)	2	Cha	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—

TABLE 3–6: THE CLERIC

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day ¹
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Turn or rebuke undead	3	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3		4	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3		4	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4		5	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4		5	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5		5	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5		6	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6		6	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6		6	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7		6	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7		6	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8		6	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—	—
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8		6	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—	—
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9		6	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—	—
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—	—
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	2+1	1+1	—	—	—
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—	—
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	3+1	3+1	2+1	—	—
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12		6	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	5+1	4+1	4+1	4+1	4+1	4+1	4+1	4+1

¹ In addition to the stated number of spells per day for 1st- through 9th-level spells, a cleric gets a domain spell for each spell level, starting at 1st. The "+1" in the entries on this table represents that spell. Domain spells are in addition to any bonus spells the cleric may receive for having a high Wisdom score.

DRUID

The fury of a storm, the gentle strength of the morning sun, the cunning of the fox, the power of the bear—all these and more are at the druid's command.

The druid however, claims no mastery over nature. That claim, she says, is the empty boast of a city dweller. The druid gains her power not by ruling nature but by being at one with it.

To trespassers in a druid's sacred grove, and to those who feel her wrath, the distinction is overly fine.

Adventures: Druids adventure to gain knowledge (especially about animals and plants unfamiliar to them) and power.

Sometimes, their superiors call on their services. Druids may also bring their power to bear against those who threaten what they love, which more often includes ancient stands of trees or trackless mountains than people. While druids accept that which is horrific or cruel in nature, they hate that which is unnatural, including aberrations (such as beholders and carrion crawlers) and undead (such as zombies and vampires). Druids sometimes lead raids against such creatures, especially when they encroach on the druids' territory.

Feat: Scribe Scroll.

Bonus Feat: Alertness.

Deity/Domains: Pelor/Good and Healing.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Wooden holy symbol (sun disc of Pelor).

Three torches.

Gold: 1d4 gp.

Characteristics: Druids cast divine spells much the same way clerics do, though most get their spells from the power of nature rather than from deities.

Their spells are oriented toward nature and animals.

In addition to spells, druids gain an increasing array of magical powers, including the ability to take the shapes of animals, as they advance in level.

The armor of a druid are restricted by traditional oaths to the items noted in Weapon and Armor proficiency (below). All other armor is prohibited.

Though a druid could learn to wear full plate, putting it on would violate her oath and suppress her druidic powers.

Druids avoid carrying much worked metal with them because it interferes with the pure and primal nature that they attempt to embody.

Alignment: Druids, in keeping with nature's ultimate indifference, must maintain at least some measure of dispassion.

As such, they must be neutral on at least one alignment axis (chaotic-lawful or good-evil), if not both.

Just as nature encompasses such dichotomies as life and death, beauty and horror, and peace and violence, so two druids can manifest different or even opposite alignments (neutral good and neutral evil, for instance) and still be part of the druidic tradition.

Religion: A druid reveres nature above all. She gains her magical power either from the force of nature itself or from a nature deity.

The typical druid pursues a mystic spirituality of transcendent union with nature rather than devoting herself to a divine entity.

Still, some druids revere or at least respect either Obad-Hai (god of nature) or Ehlonna (goddess of the woodlands).

Background: Though their organization is invisible to most outsiders, who consider druids to be loners, druids are actually part of a society that spans the land, ignoring political borders.

A prospective druid is inducted into this society through secret rituals, including tests that not all survive.

Only after achieving some level of competence is the druid allowed to strike out on her own.

All druids are nominally members of this druidic society, though some individuals are so isolated that they have never seen any high-ranking members of the society or participated in druidic gatherings.

All druids recognize each other as brothers and sisters. Like true creatures of the wilderness, however, druids sometimes compete with or even prey on each other.

A druid may be expected to perform services for higher-ranking druids, though proper payment is tendered for such assignments.

Likewise, a lower-ranking druid may appeal for aid from her higher-ranking comrades in exchange for a fair price in coin or service.

Druids may live in small towns, but they always spend a good portion of their time in wild areas.

Even large cities surrounded by cultivated land as far as the eye can see often have druid groves nearby—small, wild refuges where druids live and which they protect fiercely.

Near coastal cities, such refuges may be nearby islands, where the druids can find the isolation they need.

Races: Elves and gnomes have an affinity for natural lands and often become druids.

Humans and half-elves also frequently adopt this path, and druids are particularly common among savage humans.

Dwarves, halflings, and half-orcs are rarely druids.

Few from among the brutal humanoids are inducted into druidic society, though gnolls have a fair contingent of evil druids among them.

Gnoll druids are accepted, though perhaps not welcomed, by druids of other races.

Other Classes: The druid shares with rangers and many barbarians a reverence for nature and a familiarity with natural lands.

She doesn't much understand the urban mannerism typical of a rogue, and she finds arcane magic disruptive and slightly distasteful.

The typical druid also dislikes the paladin's devotion to abstract ideals instead of "the real world".

Druids, however, are nothing if not accepting of diversity, and they take little offense at other characters, even those very different from them.

Role: The druid enjoys extraordinary versatility.

Though she lacks the sheer healing power of the cleric, she makes up for it with additional offensive power, thanks to her spell selection and wild shape ability.

A druid back up by another secondary healer (such as a paladin) can prove extremely valuable to a group of adventurers.

Her animal companion also provides valuable melee combat support.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Druids have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom determines how powerful a spell a druid can cast, how many spells she can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist.

To cast a spell, a druid must have a Wisdom score of 10 + the spell's level.

A druid gets bonus spells based on Wisdom.

The Difficulty Class of a saving throw against a druid's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the druid's Wisdom modifier.

Since a druid wears light or medium armor, a high Dexterity score greatly improves her defensive ability.

Alignment: Neutral good, lawful neutral, neutral, chaotic neutral, or neutral evil.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The druid's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Spellcraft (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), and Swim (Str).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the druid.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Druids are proficient with the following weapons: club, dagger, dart, quarterstaff, scimitar, sickle, shortspear, sling, and spear.

They are also proficient with all natural attacks (claw, bite, and so forth) of any form they assume with wild shape (see below).

Druids are proficient with light and medium armor but are prohibited from wearing metal armor; thus, they may wear only padded, leather, or hide armor.

(A druid may also wear wooden armor that has been altered by the ironwood spell so that it functions as though it were steel.

See the ironwood spell description, page 246) Druids are proficient with shields (except tower shields) but must use only wooden ones.

A druid who wears prohibited armor or carries a prohibited shield is unable to cast druid spells or use any of her supernatural or spell-like class abilities while doing so and for 24 hours thereafter.

Spells: A druid casts divine spells (the same type of spells available to the cleric, paladin, and ranger), which are drawn from the druid spell list (page 189).

Her alignment may restrict her from casting certain spells opposed to her moral or ethical beliefs; see Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells, below.

A druid must choose and prepare her spells in advance (see below).

To prepare or cast a spell, the druid must have a Wisdom score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Wis 10 for 0-level spells, Wis 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a druid's spell is 10 + the spell level + the druid's Wisdom modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a druid can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 3–8: The Druid.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

She does not have access to any domain spells or granted powers, as a cleric does.

A druid prepares and casts spells the way a cleric does, though she cannot lose a prepared spell to cast a cure spell in its place (but see Spontaneous Casting, below).

A druid may prepare and cast any spell on the druid spell list (page 189), provided that she can cast spells of that level, but she must choose which spells to prepare during her daily meditation.

Spontaneous Casting: A druid can channel stored spell energy into summoning spells that she hasn't prepared ahead of time.

She can "lose" a prepared spell in order to cast any summon nature's ally spell of the same level or lower.

For example, a druid who has prepared repel vermin (a 4th-level spell) may lose repel vermin in order to cast summon nature's ally IV (also a 4th-level spell).

Chaotic, Evil, Good, and Lawful Spells: A druid can't cast spells of an alignment opposed to her own or her deity's (if she has one).

For example, a neutral good druid cannot cast evil spells. Spells associated with particular alignments are indicated by the chaos, evil, good, and law descriptors in their spell descriptions (see Chapter 11: Spells).

Bonus Languages: A druid's bonus language options include Sylvan, the language of woodland creatures.

This choice is in addition to the bonus languages available to the character because of her race (see Race and Languages, page 12, and the Speak Language skill, page 82). A druid also knows Druidic, a secret language known only to druids, which she learns upon becoming a 1st-level druid.

Druidic is a free language for a druid; that is, she knows it in addition to her regular allotment of languages and it doesn't take up a language slot.

Druids are forbidden to teach this language to nondruids. Druidic has its own alphabet.

Animal Companion (Ex): A druid may begin play with an animal companion selected from the following list: badger, camel, dire rat, dog, riding dog, eagle, hawk, horse (light or heavy), owl, pony, snake (Small or Medium viper), or wolf. If the DM's campaign takes place wholly or partly in an aquatic environment, the DM may add the following creatures to the druid's list of options: crocodile, porpoise, Medium shark, and squid.

This animal is a loyal companion that accompanies the druid on her adventures as appropriate for its kind.

A 1st-level druid's companion is completely typical for its kind except as noted in the sidebar on page 36.

As a druid advances in level, the animal's power increases as shown on the table in the sidebar.

THE DRUID'S ANIMAL COMPANION

A druid's animal companion is superior to a normal animal of its kind and has special powers, as described below.

Class Level	Bonus HD	Natural Armor Adj.	Str/Dex Adj.	Bonus Tricks	Bonus Special
1st–2nd	+0	+0	+0	1	Link, share spells
3rd–5th	+2	+2	+1	2	Evasion
6th–8th	+4	+4	+2	3	Devotion
9th–11th	+6	+6	+3	4	Multiattack
12th–14th	+8	+8	+4	5
15th–17th	+10	+10	+5	6	Improved evasion
18th–20th	+12	+12	+6	7

Animal Companion Basics: Use the base statistics for a creature of the companion's kind, as given in the Monster Manual, but make the following changes.

Class Level: The character's druid level. The druid's class levels stack with levels of any other classes that are entitled to an animal companion (such as the ranger) such for the purpose of determining the companion's abilities and the alternative lists available to the character.

Bonus HD: Extra eight-sided (d8) Hit Dice, each of which gains a Constitution modifier, as normal. Remember that extra Hit Dice improve the animal companion's base attack and base save bonuses. An animal companion's base attack bonus is the same as that of a druid of a level equal to the animal's HD. An animal companion has good Fortitude and Reflex saves (treat it as a character whose level equals the animal's HD). An animal companion gains additional skill points and feats for bonus HD as normal for advancing a monster's Hit Dice (see the Monster Manual).

Natural Armor Adj.: The number noted here is an improvement to the animal companion's existing natural armor bonus.

Str/Dex Adj.: Add this value to the animal companion's Strength and Dexterity scores.

Bonus Tricks: The value given in this column is the total number of "bonus" tricks that the animal knows in addition to any that the druid might choose to teach it (see the Handle Animal skill, page 74). These bonus tricks don't require any training time or Handle Animal checks, and they don't count against the normal limit of tricks known by the animal. The druid selects these bonus tricks, and once selected, they can't be changed.

Link (Ex): A druid can handle her animal companion as a free action, or push it as a move action, even if she doesn't have any ranks in the Handle Animal skill. The druid gains a +4 circumstance bonus on all wild empathy checks and Handle Animal checks made regarding an animal companion.

Share Spells (Ex): At the druid's option, she may have any spell (but not any spell-like ability) she casts upon herself also affect her animal companion. The animal companion must be within 5 feet of her at the time of casting to receive the benefit. If the spell or effect has a duration other than instantaneous, it stops affecting the animal companion if the companion moves farther than 5 feet away and will not affect the animal again, even if it returns to the druid before the duration expires. Additionally, the druid may cast a spell with a target of "You" on her animal companion (as a touch range spell) instead of on herself. A druid and her animal companion can share spells even if the spells normally do not affect creatures of the companion's type (animal).

Evasion (Ex): If an animal companion is subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, it takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw.

Devotion (Ex): An animal companion's devotion to its master is so complete that it gains a +4 morale bonus on Will saves against enchantment spells and effects.

Multiattack: An animal companion gains Multiattack as a bonus feat if it has three or more natural attacks (see the Monster Manual for details on this feat) and does not already have that feat. If it does not have the requisite three or more natural attacks, the animal companion instead gains a second attack with its primary natural weapon, albeit at a –5 penalty.

Improved Evasion (Ex): When subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, an animal companion takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw and only half damage if the saving throw fails.

ALTERNATIVE ANIMAL COMPANIONS

As explained in the text on page 35, a druid of sufficiently high level can select her animal companion from one of the following lists, applying the indicated adjustment to the druid's level (in parentheses) for purposes of determining the companion's characteristics and special abilities.

4th Level or Higher (Level –3)

Ape (animal)	Dire weasel
Bear, black (animal)	Leopard (animal)
Bison (animal)	Lizard, monitor (animal)
Boar (animal)	Shark, Large ¹ (animal)
Cheetah (animal)	Snake, constrictor (animal)
Crocodile (animal) ¹	Snake, Large viper (animal)
Dire badger	Wolverine (animal)
Dire bat

7th Level or Higher (Level –6)

Bear, brown (animal)	Dire wolverine
Crocodile, giant (animal)	Elasmosaurus ¹ (dinosaur)
Deinonychus (dinosaur)	Lion (animal)
Dire ape	Rhinoceros (animal)
Dire boar	Snake, Huge viper (animal)
Dire wolf	Tiger (animal)

10th Level or Higher (Level –9)

Bear, polar (animal)	Shark, Huge ¹ (animal)
Dire lion	Snake, giant constrictor (animal)
Megaraptor (dinosaur)	Whale, orca ¹ (animal)

13th Level or Higher (Level –12)

Dire bear	Elephant (animal)
Octopus, giant ¹ (animal)

16th Level or Higher (Level –15)

Dire shark ¹	Triceratops (dinosaur)
Dire tiger	Tyrannosaurus (dinosaur)
Squid, giant ¹ (animal)

¹ Available only in an aquatic environment.

If a druid releases her companion from service, she may gain a new one by performing a ceremony requiring 24 uninterrupted hours of prayer.

This ceremony can also replace an animal companion that has perished.

A druid of 4th level or higher may select from alternative lists of animals (see the sidebar).

Should she select an animal companion from one of these alternative lists, the creature gains abilities as if the character's druid level were lower than it actually is.

Subtract the value indicated in the appropriate list header from the character's druid level and compare the result with the druid level entry on the table in the sidebar to determine the animal companion's powers.

(If this adjustment would reduce the druid's effective level to 0 or lower, she can't have that animal as a companion). For example, a 6th-level druid could select a leopard as an animal companion.

The leopard would have characteristics and special abilities as if the druid were 3rd level (taking into account the -3 adjustment) instead of 6th level.

Nature Sense (Ex): A druid gains a +2 bonus on Knowledge (nature) and Survival checks.

Wild Empathy (Ex): A druid can use body language, vocalizations, and demeanor to improve the attitude of an animal (such as a bear or a monitor lizard).

This ability functions just like a Diplomacy check made to improve the attitude of a person (see Chapter 4: Skills).

The druid rolls 1d20 and adds her druid level and her Charisma modifier to determine the wild empathy check result.

The typical domestic animal has a starting attitude of indifferent, while wild animals are usually unfriendly.

To use wild empathy, the druid and the animal must be able to study each other, which means that they must be within 30 feet of one another under normal conditions.

Generally, influencing an animal in this way takes 1 minute but, as with influencing people, it might take more or less time.

A druid can also use this ability to influence a magical beast with an Intelligence score of 1 or 2 (such as a basilisk or a girallon), but she takes a -4 penalty on the check.

Woodland Stride (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a druid may move through any sort of undergrowth (such as natural thorns, briars, overgrown areas, and similar terrain) at her normal speed and without taking damage or suffering any other impairment.

However, thorns, briars, and overgrown areas that have been magically manipulated to impede motion still affect her.

Trackless Step (Ex): Starting at 3rd level, a druid leaves no trail in natural surroundings and cannot be tracked.

She may choose to leave a trail if so desired.

Resist Nature's Lure (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a druid gains a +4 bonus on saving throws against the spell-like abilities of fey (such as dryads, pixies, and sprites).

Wild Shape (Su): At 5th level, a druid gains the ability to turn herself into any Small or Medium animal and back again once per day.

Her options for new forms include all creatures with the animal type (see the Monster Manual).

This ability functions like the polymorph spell, except as noted here.

The effect lasts for 1 hour per druid level, or until she changes back.

Changing form (to animal or back) is a standard action and doesn't provoke an attack of opportunity.

The form chosen must be that of an animal the druid is familiar with.

For example, a druid who has never been outside a temperate forest could not become a polar bear.

A druid loses her ability to speak while in animal form because she is limited to the sounds that a normal, untrained animal can make, but she can communicate normally with other animals of the same general grouping as her new form.

(The normal sound a wild parrot makes is a squawk, so changing to this form does not permit speech).

A druid can use this ability more times per day at 6th, 7th, 10th, 14th, and 18th level, as noted on Table 3-8: The Druid.

In addition, she gains the ability to take the shape of a Large animal at 8th level, a Tiny animal at 11th level, and a Huge animal at 15th level.

The new form's Hit Dice can't exceed the character's druid level.

For instance, a druid can't take the form of a dire bear (a Large creature that always has at least 12 HD) until 12th level, even though she can begin taking Large forms at 8th level.

At 12th level, a druid becomes able to use wild shape to change into a plant creature, such as a shambling mound, with the same size restrictions as for animal forms.

(A druid can't use this ability to take the form of a plant that isn't a creature, such as a tree or a rose bush).

At 16th level, a druid becomes able to use wild shape to change into a Small, Medium, or Large elemental (air, earth, fire, or water) once per day.

These elemental forms are in addition to her normal wild shape usage.

In addition to the normal effects of wild shape, the druid gains all the elemental's extraordinary, supernatural, and spell-like abilities.

She also gains the elemental's feats for as long as she maintains the wild shape, but she retains her own creature type (humanoid, in most cases).

At 18th level, a druid becomes able to assume elemental form twice per day, and at 20th level she can do so three times per day.

At 20th level, a druid may use this wild shape ability to change into a Huge elemental.

Venom Immunity (Ex): At 9th level, a druid gains immunity to all poisons.

A Thousand Faces (Su): At 13th level, a druid gains the ability to change her appearance at will, as if using the alter self spell (page 197), but only while in her normal form.

Timeless Body (Ex): After attaining 15th level, a druid no longer takes ability score penalties for aging (see Table 6-5: Aging Effects, page 109) and cannot be magically aged.

Any penalties she may have already incurred, however, remain in place.

Bonuses still accrue, and the druid still dies of old age when her time is up.

EX-DRUIDS

A druid who ceases to revere nature, changes to a prohibited alignment, or teaches the Druidic language to a nondruid loses all spells and druid abilities (including her animal companion, but not including weapon, armor, and shield proficiencies).

She cannot thereafter gain levels as a druid until she atones (see the atonement spell description, page 201).

HALF-ELF DRUID STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Hide (+3 AC, armor check penalty -3, speed 20 ft., 25 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Scimitar (1d6, crit 18-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Club (oaken cudgel): (1d6, crit x2, 10 ft., 3 lb., one-handed, bludgeoning).

Sling (1d4, crit x2, rang inc. 50 ft., 0 lb., Medium, Bludgeoning).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Survival	4	Wis	—
Heal	4	Wis	—
Handle Animal	4	Cha	—
Knowledge (nature)	4	Int	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Spot	4	Wis	—

Feat: Scribe Scroll.

TABLE 3-8: THE DRUID

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Animal companion, nature sense, wild empathy	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Woodland stride	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Trackless step	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Resist nature's lure	5	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Wild shape (1/day)	5	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Wild shape (2/day)	5	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Wild shape (3/day)	6	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	Wild shape (Large)	6	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Venom immunity	6	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7	Wild shape (4/day)	6	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Wild shape (Tiny)	6	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Wild shape (plant)	6	5	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	A thousand faces	6	5	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	Wild shape (5/day)	6	5	5	4	4	3	3	2	—	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	Timeless body, wild shape (Huge)	6	5	5	5	4	4	3	2	1	—
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Wild shape (elemental 1/day)	6	5	5	5	4	4	3	3	2	—
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		6	5	5	5	5	4	4	3	2	1
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	Wild shape (6/day, elemental 2/day)	6	5	5	5	5	4	4	3	3	2
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11		6	5	5	5	5	5	4	4	3	3
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Wild shape (elemental 3/day, Huge elemental)	6	5	5	5	5	5	4	4	4	4

FIGHTER

The questing knight, the conquering overlord, the king's champion, the elite foot soldier, the hardened mercenary, and the bandit king—all are fighters.

Fighters can be stalwart defenders of those in need, cruel marauders, or gutsy adventurers.

Some are among the land's best souls, willing to face death for the greater good.

Others are among the worst, with no qualms about killing for private gain, or even for sport.

Fighters who are not actively adventuring may be soldiers, guards, bodyguards, champions, or criminal enforcers.

An adventuring fighter might call himself a warrior, a mercenary, a thug, or simply an adventurer.

Adventures: Most fighters see adventures, raids, and dangerous missions as their job.

Some have patrons who pay them regularly.

Others prefer to live like prospectors, taking great risks in hopes of the big haul.

Some fighters are more civic-minded and use their combat skills to protect endangered people who cannot defend themselves.

Whatever their initial motivations, however, fighters often wind up living for the thrill of combat and adventure.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Pouch with 10 sling bullets.

Holly and mistletoe.

Three torches.

Animal Companion: Wolf (see the Monster Manual for details).

Gold: 1d6 gp.

Characteristics: Of all classes, fighters have the best all-around fighting capabilities (hence the name).

Fighters are familiar with all the standard weapons and armors.

In addition to general fighting prowess, each fighter develops particular specialties of his own.

A given fighter may be especially capable with certain weapons, another might be trained to execute specific fancy maneuvers.

As fighters gain experience, they get more opportunities to develop their fighting skills.

Thanks to their focus on combat maneuvers, they can master the most difficult ones relatively quickly.

Alignment: Fighters may be of any alignment.

Good fighters are often crusading types who seek out and fight evil.

Lawful fighters may be champions who protect the land and its people.

Chaotic fighters may be wandering mercenaries.

Evil fighters tend to be bullies and petty villains who simply take what they want by brute force.

Religion: Fighters often worship Heironeous (god of valor), Kord (god of strength), St. Cuthbert (god of retribution), Hextor (god of tyranny), or Erythnul (god of slaughter).

A fighter may style himself as a crusader in the service of his god, or he may just want someone to pray to before putting his life on the line yet another time.

Background: Fighters come to their profession in many ways.

Most have had formal training in a noble's army or at least in the local militia.

Some have trained in formal academies.

Others are self-taught—unpolished but well tested.

A fighter may have taken up the sword as a way to escape the limits of life on the farm, or he may be following a proud family tradition.

Fighters share no special identity.

They do not see themselves as a group or brotherhood. Those who hail from a particular academy, mercenary company, or lord's regiment, however, share a certain camaraderie.

Races: Human fighters are usually veterans of some military service, typically from more mundane parents.

Dwarf fighters are commonly former members of the well-trained strike teams that protect the underground dwarven kingdoms.

They are typically members of warrior families that can trace their lineages back for millennia, and they may have rivalries or alliances with other dwarf fighters of a different lineage.

Elf fighters are typically skilled with the longsword.

They are proud of their ability at swordplay and eager to demonstrate or test it.

Half-orc fighters are often self-taught outcasts who have achieved enough skill to earn recognition and something akin to respect.

Gnome and halfling fighters usually stay in their own communities as part of the area militia rather than adventuring.

Half-elves are rarely fighters, but they may take up swordplay in honor of the elven tradition.

Among the brutal humanoids, few can manage the discipline it takes to be a true fighter.

The militaristic hobgoblins, however, produce quite a number of strong and skilled fighters.

Other Classes: The fighter excels in a straight fight, but he relies on others for magical support, healing, and scouting. On a team, it is his job to man the front lines, protect the other party members, and bring the tough opponents down.

Fighters might not understand the arcane ways of wizards or share the faith of clerics, but they recognize the value of teamwork.

Role: In most adventuring parties, the fighter serves as a melee combatant, charging into the fray while his comrades support him with spells, ranged attacks, and other effects.

Fighters who favor ranged combat can prove very deadly, though without other melee support, they can find themselves in front-line combat more often than they might prefer.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Fighters have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is especially important for fighters because it improves their melee attack and damage rolls. Constitution is important for giving fighters lots of hit points, which they need in their many battles.

Dexterity is important for fighters who want to be good archers or who want access to certain Dexterity-oriented feats, but the heavy armor that fighters usually wear reduces the benefit of a very high Dexterity score.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The fighter's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Ride (Dex), and Swim (Str). See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(2 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the fighter.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A fighter is proficient with all simple and martial weapons and with all armor (heavy, medium, and light) and shields (including tower shields).

Bonus Feats: At 1st level, a fighter gets a bonus combat-oriented feat in addition to the feat that any 1st-level character gets and the bonus feat granted to a human character.

The fighter gains an additional bonus feat at 2nd level and every two fighter levels thereafter (4th, 6th, 8th, 10th, 12th, 14th, 16th, 18th, and 20th).

These bonus feats must be drawn from the feats noted as fighter bonus feats on Table 5-1: Feats (page 90).

A fighter must still meet all prerequisites for a bonus feat, including ability score and base attack bonus minimums. (See Chapter 5: Feats for descriptions of feats and their prerequisites).

These bonus feats are in addition to the feat that a character of any class gets from advancing levels (see Table 3-2: Experience and Level-Dependent Benefits, page 22).

A fighter is not limited to the list of fighter bonus feats when choosing these feats.

DWARF FIGHTER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Dwarven waraxe (1d10, crit $\times 3$, 8 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit $\times 3$, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to $2 + \text{Int modifier}$.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Climb	4	Str	-6
Jump	4	Str	-6
Ride	4	Dex	—
Swim	4	Str	-12
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (dwarven waraxe).

Bonus Feat (Fighter): If Strength is 13 or higher, Power Attack; if Strength is 12 or lower, Improved Initiative instead.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel, quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

HUMAN FIGHTER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Weapons: Greatsword (2d6, crit 19–20/×2, 8 lb., two-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit ×3, 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Climb	4	Str	–6
Jump	4	Str	–6
Ride	4	Dex	—
Swim	4	Str	–12
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (dwarven waraxe).

Bonus Feat (Fighter): If Strength is 13 or higher, Power Attack; if Strength is 12 or lower, Improved Initiative instead.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel, quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 3–9: THE FIGHTER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Bonus feat
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Bonus feat
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Bonus feat
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Bonus feat
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Bonus feat
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Bonus feat
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Bonus feat
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	Bonus feat
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	Bonus feat
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	Bonus feat
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Bonus feat

MONK

Dotted across the landscape are monasteries—small, walled cloisters inhabited by monks who pursue personal perfection through action as well as contemplation.

They train themselves to be versatile warriors skilled at fighting without weapons or armor.

The inhabitants of monasteries headed by good masters serve as protectors of the people.

Ready for battle even when barefoot and dressed in peasant clothes, monks can travel unnoticed among the populace, catching bandits, warlords, and corrupt nobles unawares.

In contrast, the residents of monasteries headed by evil masters rule the surrounding lands through fear, as an evil warlord and his entourage might.

Evil monks make ideal spies, infiltrators, and assassins.

The individual monk is unlikely to care passionately about championing commoners or amassing wealth.

She cares primarily for the perfection of her art and, thereby, her personal perfection.

Her goal is to achieve a state that is beyond the mortal realm.

Adventures: A monk approaches an adventure as if it were a personal test.

While not prone to showing off, monks are willing to try their skills against whatever obstacles confront them.

They are not greedy for material wealth, but they eagerly seek that which can help them perfect their art.

Characteristics: The key feature of the monk is her ability to fight unarmed and unarmored.

Thanks to her rigorous training, she can strike as hard as if she were armed and strike faster than a warrior with a sword.

Though a monk casts no spells, she has a magic of her own. She channels a subtle energy, called ki, which allows her to perform amazing feats.

The monk's best-known feat is her ability to stun an opponent with an unarmed blow.

A monk also has a preternatural awareness that allows her to dodge an attack even if she is not consciously aware of it.

As the monk gains experience and power, her mundane and ki-oriented abilities grow, giving her more and more power over herself and, sometimes, over others.

Alignment: A monk's training requires strict discipline.

Only those who are lawful at heart are capable of undertaking it.

Religion: A monk's training is her spiritual path.

She is inner-directed and capable of a private, mystic connection to the spiritual world, so she needs neither clerics nor gods.

Certain lawful gods, however, may appeal to monks, who may meditate on the gods' likenesses and attempt to emulate their deeds.

The three most likely candidates for a monk's devotion are Heironeous (god of valor), St. Cuthbert (god of retribution), and Hextor (god of tyranny).

Background: A monk typically trains in a monastery.

Most monks were children when they joined the monastery, sent to live there when their parents died, when there wasn't enough food to support them, or in return for some kindness that the monastery had performed for the family.

Life in the monastery is so focused that by the time a monk sets off on her own, she feels little connection to her former family or village.

In larger cities, master monks have set up monk schools to teach their arts to those who are interested and worthy.

The monks who study at these academies often see their rural cousins from the monasteries as backward.

A monk may feel a deep connection to her monastery or school, to the monk who taught her, to the lineage into which she was trained, or to all of these.

Some monks, however, have no sense of connection other than to their own path of personal development.

Monks recognize each other as a select group set apart from the rest of the populace.

They may feel kinship, but they also love to compete with each other to see whose ki is strongest.

Races: Monasteries are found primarily among humans, who have incorporated them into their ever-evolving culture.

Thus, many monks are humans, and many are half-orcs and half-elves who live among humans.

Elves are capable of single-minded, long-term devotion to an interest, art, or discipline, and some of them leave the forests to become monks.

The monk tradition is alien to dwarf and gnome culture, and halflings typically have too mobile a lifestyle to commit themselves to a monastery, so dwarves, gnomes, and halflings very rarely become monks.

The savage humanoids do not have the stable social structure that allows monk training, but the occasional orphaned or abandoned child from some humanoid tribe winds up in a civilized monastery or is adopted by a wandering master.

The evil subterranean elves known as the drow have a small but successful monk tradition.

Other Classes: Monks sometimes seem distant because they often have neither motivation nor skills in common with members of other classes.

Monks do, however, work well with the support of others, and they usually prove themselves reliable companions.

Role: The monk functions best as an opportunistic combatant, using her speed to get into and out of combat quickly rather than engaging in prolonged melees. She also makes an excellent scout, particularly if she focuses her skill selection on stealth.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Monks have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Wisdom powers the monk's special offensive and defensive capabilities.

Dexterity provides the unarmored monk with a better defense and with bonuses to some class skills.

Strength helps a monk's unarmed combat ability.

Alignment: Any lawful.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The monk's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Sense Motive (Wis), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), and Tumble (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (4 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 4 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the monk.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Monks are proficient with certain basic peasant weapons and some special weapons that are part of monk training.

The weapons with which a monk is proficient are club, crossbow (light or heavy), dagger, handaxe, javelin, kama, nunchaku, quarterstaff, sai, shuriken, siangham, and sling. (See Chapter 7: Equipment for descriptions of these weapons).

Monks are not proficient with any armor or shields—in fact, many of the monk's special powers require unfettered movement.

When wearing armor, using a shield, or carrying a medium or heavy load, a monk loses her AC bonus, as well as her fast movement and flurry of blows abilities.

AC Bonus (Ex): A monk is highly trained at dodging blows, and she has a sixth sense that lets her avoid even unanticipated attacks.

When unarmored and unencumbered, the monk adds her Wisdom bonus (if any) to her AC.

In addition, a monk gains a +1 bonus to AC at 5th level.

This bonus increases by 1 for every five monk levels thereafter (+2 at 10th, +3 at 15th, and +4 at 20th level).

These bonuses to AC apply even against touch attacks or when the monk is flat-footed.

She loses these bonuses when she is immobilized or helpless, when she wears any armor, when she carries a shield, or when she carries a medium or heavy load.

Flurry of Blows (Ex): When unarmored, a monk may strike with a flurry of blows at the expense of accuracy.

When doing so, she may make one extra attack in a round at her highest base attack bonus, but this attack takes a –2 penalty, as does each other attack made that round.

The resulting modified base attack bonuses are shown in the Flurry of Blows Attack Bonus column on Table 3–10: The Monk.

This penalty applies for 1 round, so it also affects attacks of opportunity the monk might make before her next action.

When a monk reaches 5th level, the penalty lessens to –1, and at 9th level it disappears.

A monk must use a full attack action (see page 143) to strike with a flurry of blows.

When using flurry of blows, a monk may attack only with unarmed strikes or with special monk weapons (kama, nunchaku, quarterstaff, sai, shuriken, and siangham).

She may attack with unarmed strikes and special monk weapons interchangeably as desired.

For example, at 6th level, the monk Ember could make one attack with her unarmed strike at an attack bonus of +3 and one attack with a special monk weapon at an attack bonus of +3.

When using weapons as part of a flurry of blows, a monk applies her Strength bonus (not Str bonus × 1-1/2 or × 1/2) to her damage rolls for all successful attacks, whether she wields a weapon in one or both hands.

The monk can't use any weapon other than a special monk weapon as part of a flurry of blows.

In the case of the quarterstaff, each end counts as a separate weapon for the purpose of using the flurry of blows ability.

Even though the quarterstaff requires two hands to use, a monk may still intersperse unarmed strikes with quarterstaff strikes, assuming that she has enough attacks in her flurry of blows routine to do so.

For example, an 8th-level monk could make two attacks with the quarterstaff (one with each end) at a +5 attack bonus and one with an unarmed strike at a +0 attack bonus, or she could attack with one end of the quarterstaff and one unarmed strike each at a +5 attack bonus, and with the other end of the quarterstaff at a +0 attack bonus, or she could attack with one end of the quarterstaff and one unarmed strike at a +5 attack bonus each, and with the other end of the quarterstaff at a +0 attack bonus.

She cannot, however, wield any other weapon at the same time that she uses a quarterstaff.

When a monk reaches 11th level, her flurry of blows ability improves.

In addition to the standard single extra attack she gets from flurry of blows, she gets a second extra attack at her full base attack bonus.

Unarmed Strike: Monks are highly trained in fighting unarmed, giving them considerable advantages when doing so.

At 1st level, a monk gains Improved Unarmed Strike as a bonus feat.

A monk's attacks may be with either fist interchangeably or even from elbows, knees, and feet.

This means that a monk may even make unarmed strikes with her hands full.

There is no such thing as an off-hand attack for a monk striking unarmed.

A monk may thus apply her full Strength bonus on damage rolls for all her unarmed strikes.

Usually a monk's unarmed strikes deal lethal damage, but she can choose to deal nonlethal damage instead with no penalty on her attack roll.

She has the same choice to deal lethal or nonlethal damage while grappling.

A monk's unarmed strike is treated both as a manufactured weapon and a natural weapon for the purpose of spells and effects that enhance or improve either manufactured weapons or natural weapons (such as the magic fang and magic weapon spells).

A monk also deals more damage with her unarmed strikes than a normal person would, as shown on Table 3–10: The Monk.

The unarmed damage on Table 3–10 is for Medium monks. A Small monk deals less damage than the amount given there with her unarmed attacks, while a Large monk deals more damage; see Table: Small or Large Monk Unarmed Damage.

TABLE 3–11: SMALL OR LARGE MONK UNARMED DAMAGE

Level	Damage (Small Monk)	Damage (Large Monk)
1st–3rd	1d4	1d8
4th–7th	1d6	2d6
8th–11th	1d8	2d8
12th–15th	1d10	3d6
16th–19th	2d6	3d8
20th	2d8	4d8

Bonus Feat: At 1st level, a monk may select either Improved Grapple or Stunning Fist as a bonus feat.

At 2nd level, she may select either Combat Reflexes or Deflect Arrows as a bonus feat.

At 6th level, she may select either Improved Disarm or Improved Trip as a bonus feat.

(See Chapter 5: Feats for descriptions).

A monk need not have any of the prerequisites normally required for these feats to select them.

Evasion (Ex): A monk of 2nd level or higher can avoid even magical and unusual attacks with great agility.

If she makes a successful Reflex saving throw against an attack that normally deals half damage on a successful save (such as a red dragon's fiery breath or a fireball), she instead takes no damage.

Evasion can be used only if a monk is wearing light armor or no armor.

A helpless monk (such as one who is unconscious or paralyzed) does not gain the benefit of evasion.

Fast Movement (Ex): At 3rd level, a monk gains an enhancement bonus to her speed, as shown on Table 3–10. A monk in armor (even light armor) or carrying a medium or heavy load loses this extra speed.

Still Mind (Ex): A monk of 3rd level or higher gains a +2 bonus on saving throws against spells and effects from the school of enchantment, since her meditation and training improve her resistance to mind-affecting attacks.

Ki Strike (Su): At 4th level, a monk's unarmed attacks are empowered with ki.

Her unarmed attacks are treated as magic weapons for the purpose of dealing damage to creatures with damage reduction (see Damage Reduction, page 291 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

Ki strike improves with the character's monk level.

At 10th level, her unarmed attacks are also treated as lawful weapons for the purpose of dealing damage to creatures with damage reduction.

At 16th level, her unarmed attacks are treated as adamantite weapons for the purpose of dealing damage to creatures with damage reduction and bypassing hardness (see Smashing an Object, page 165).

Slow Fall (Ex): At 4th level or higher, a monk within arm's reach of a wall can use it to slow her descent.

When first using this ability, she takes damage as if the fall were 20 feet shorter than it actually is.

The monk's ability to slow her fall (that is, to reduce the effective distance of the fall when next to a wall) improves with her monk level until at 20th level she can use a nearby wall to slow her descent and fall any distance without harm. See the Special column on Table 3–10 for details.

Purity of Body (Ex): At 5th level, a monk gains control over her body's immune system.

She gains immunity to all diseases except for supernatural and magical diseases (such as mummy rot and lycanthropy).

Wholeness of Body (Su): At 7th level or higher, a monk can heal her own wounds.

She can heal a number of hit points of damage equal to twice her current monk level each day, and she can spread this healing out among several uses.

Improved Evasion (Ex): At 9th level, a monk's evasion ability improves.

She still takes no damage on a successful Reflex saving throw against attacks such as a dragon's breath weapon or a fireball, but henceforth she takes only half damage on a failed save.

A helpless monk (such as one who is unconscious or paralyzed) does not gain the benefit of improved evasion.

Diamond Body (Su): At 11th level, a monk is in such firm control of her own metabolism that she gains immunity to poisons of all kinds.

Abundant Step (Su): At 12th level or higher, a monk can slip magically between spaces, as if using the spell dimension door, once per day.

Her caster level for this effect is one-half her monk level (rounded down).

Diamond Soul (Ex): At 13th level, a monk gains spell resistance equal to her current monk level + 10.

In order to affect the monk with a spell, a spellcaster must get a result on a caster level check (1d20 + caster level; see Spell Resistance, page 177) that equals or exceeds the monk's spell resistance.

Quivering Palm (Su): Starting at 15th level, a monk can set up vibrations within the body of another creature that can thereafter be fatal if the monk so desires.

She can use this quivering palm attack once a week, and she must announce her intent before making her attack roll.

Constructs, oozes, plants, undead, incorporeal creatures, and creatures immune to critical hits cannot be affected. Otherwise, if the monk strikes successfully and the target takes damage from the blow, the quivering palm attack succeeds.

Thereafter the monk can try to slay the victim at any later time, as long as the attempt is made within a number of days equal to her monk level.

To make such an attempt, the monk merely wills the target to die (a free action), and unless the target makes a Fortitude saving throw (DC 10 + 1/2 the monk's level + the monk's Wis modifier), it dies.

If the saving throw is successful, the target is no longer in danger from that particular quivering palm attack, but it may still be affected by another one at a later time.

Timeless Body (Ex): Upon attaining 17th level, a monk no longer takes penalties to her ability scores for aging and cannot be magically aged.

Any such penalties that she has already taken, however, remain in place.

Bonuses still accrue, and the monk still dies of old age when her time is up.

Tongue of the Sun and Moon (Ex): A monk of 17th level or higher can speak with any living creature.

Empty Body (Su): At 19th level, a monk gains the ability to assume an ethereal state for 1 round per monk level per day, as though using the spell etherealness.

She may go ethereal on a number of different occasions during any single day, as long as the total number of rounds spent in an ethereal state does not exceed her monk level.

Perfect Self: At 20th level, a monk has tuned her body with skill and quasi-magical abilities to the point that she becomes a magical creature.

She is forevermore treated as an outsider (an extraplanar creature) rather than as a humanoid for the purpose of spells and magical effects.

For instance, charm person does not affect her.

Additionally, the monk gains damage reduction 10/magic, which allows her to ignore the first 10 points of damage from any attack made by a nonmagical weapon or by any natural attack made by a creature that doesn't have similar damage reduction (see Damage Reduction, page 291 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

Unlike other outsiders, the monk can still be brought back from the dead as if she were a member of her previous creature type.

EX-MONKS

A monk who becomes nonlawful cannot gain new levels as a monk but retains all monk abilities.

Like a member of any other class, a monk may be a multiclass character, but multiclass monks face a special restriction.

A monk who gains a new class or (if already multiclass) raises another class by a level may never again raise her monk level, though she retains all her monk abilities.

HUMAN MONK STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None (speed 30 ft).

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6/1d6, crit ×2, 4 lb., two-handed, bludgeoning).

Sling (1d4, crit ×2, range inc. 50 ft., 0 lb., bludgeoning).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Listen	4	Wis	—
Climb	4	Str	0
Move Silently	4	Dex	0
Tumble	4	Dex	0
Jump	4	Str	0
Escape Artist	4	Dex	0
Hide	4	Dex	0
Swim	4	Str	0
Balance	4	Dex	0

Feat: If Dexterity is 13 or higher, Dodge; if Dexterity is 12 or lower, Improved Initiative instead.

Bonus Feat: If Dexterity is 13 or higher, Mobility; if Dexterity is 12 or lower, Blind-Fight instead.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Three torches.

Pouch with 10 sling stones.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 3–10: THE MONK

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Flurry of Blows Attack Bonus	Unarmed Damage ¹	AC Bonus	Unarmored Speed Bonus
1st	+0	+2	+2	+2	Bonus feat, flurry of blows, unarmed strike	-2/-2	1d6	+0	+0 ft.
2nd	+1	+3	+3	+3	Bonus feat, evasion	-1/-1	1d6	+0	+0 ft.
3rd	+2	+3	+3	+3	Still mind	+0/+0	1d6	+0	+10 ft.
4th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Ki strike (magic), slow fall 20 ft.	+1/+1	1d8	+0	+10 ft.
5th	+3	+4	+4	+4	Purity of body	+2/+2	1d8	+1	+10 ft.
6th	+4	+5	+5	+5	Bonus feat, slow fall 30 ft.	+3/+3	1d8	+1	+20 ft.
7th	+5	+5	+5	+5	Wholeness of body	+4/+4	1d8	+1	+20 ft.
8th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	Slow fall 40 ft.	+5/+5/+0	1d10	+1	+20 ft.
9th	+6/+1	+6	+6	+6	Improved evasion	+6/+6/+1	1d10	+1	+30 ft.
10th	+7/+2	+7	+7	+7	Ki strike (lawful), slow fall 50 ft.	+7/+7/+2	1d10	+2	+30 ft.
11th	+8/+3	+7	+7	+7	Diamond body, greater flurry	+8/+8/+8/+3	1d10	+2	+30 ft.
12th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Abundant step, slow fall 60 ft.	+9/+9/+9/+4	2d6	+2	+40 ft.
13th	+9/+4	+8	+8	+8	Diamond soul	+9/+9/+9/+4	2d6	+2	+40 ft.
14th	+10/+5	+9	+9	+9	Slow fall 70 ft.	+10/+10/+10/+5	2d6	+2	+40 ft.
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+9	+9	Quivering palm	+11/+11/+11/+6/+1	2d6	+3	+50 ft.
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	Ki strike (adamantine), slow fall 80 ft.	+12/+12/+12/+7/+2	2d8	+3	+50 ft.
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+10	Timeless body, tongue of the sun and moon	+12/+12/+12/+7/+2	2d8	+3	+50 ft.
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+11	+11	Slow fall 90 ft.	+13/+13/+13/+8/+3	2d8	+3	+60 ft.
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+11	+11	Empty body	+14/+14/+14/+9/+4	2d8	+3	+60 ft.
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+12	+12	Perfect self, slow fall any distance	+15/+15/+15/+10/+5	2d10	+4	+60 ft.

¹ The value shown is for Medium monks. See Table 3–11: Small or Large Monk Unarmed Damage for Small or Large monks.

PALADIN

The compassion to pursue good, the will to uphold law, and the power to defeat evil—these are the three weapons of the paladin.

Few have the purity and devotion that it takes to walk the paladin's path, but those few are rewarded with the power to protect, to heal, and to smite.

In a land of scheming wizards, unholy priests, bloodthirsty dragons, and infernal fiends, the paladin is the final hope that cannot be extinguished.

Adventures: Paladins take their adventures seriously and have a penchant for referring to them as quests.

Even a mundane mission is, in the heart of the paladin, a personal test—an opportunity to demonstrate bravery, to develop martial skills, to learn tactics, and to find ways to do good.

Still, the paladin really comes into her own when leading a mighty campaign against evil, not when merely looting ruins.

Characteristics: Divine power protects the paladin and gives her special powers.

It wards off harm, protects her from disease, lets her heal herself, and guards her heart against fear.

The paladin can also direct this power to help others, healing their wounds or curing diseases.

Finally, the paladin can use this power to destroy evil. Even the least experienced paladin can detect evil, and more experienced paladins can smite evil foes and turn away undead.

In addition, this power draws a mighty steed to the paladin and imbues that mount with strength, intelligence, and magical protection.

Alignment: Paladins must be lawful good, and they lose their divine powers if they deviate from that alignment. Additionally, paladins swear to follow a code of conduct that is in line with lawfulness and goodness.

Religion: Paladins need not devote themselves to a single deity—devotion to righteousness is enough.

Those who align themselves with particular religions prefer Heironeous (god of valor) over all others, but some paladins follow Pelor (the sun god).

Paladins devoted to a god are scrupulous in observing religious duties and are welcome in every associated temple.

Background: No one ever chooses to be a paladin.

Becoming a paladin is answering a call, accepting one's destiny.

No one, no matter how diligent, can become a paladin through practice.

The nature is either within one or not, and it is not possible to gain the paladin's nature by any act of will.

It is possible, however, to fail to recognize one's own potential, or to deny one's destiny.

Occasionally, one who is called to be a paladin denies that call and pursues some other life instead.

Most paladins answer the call and begin training as adolescents.

Typically, they become squires or assistants to experienced paladins, train for years, and finally set off on their own to further the causes of good and law.

Other paladins, however, find their calling only later in life, after having pursued some other career.

All paladins, regardless of background, recognize in each other an eternal bond that transcends culture, race, and even religion.

Any two paladins, even from opposite sides of the world, consider themselves comrades.

Races: Humans, with their ambitious souls, make great paladins.

Half-elves, who often have human ambition, may also find themselves called into service as paladins.

Dwarves are sometimes paladins, but becoming a paladin may be hard on a dwarf because it means putting the duties of the paladin's life before duties to family, clan, and king.

Elf paladins are few, and they tend to follow quests that take them far and wide because their lawful bent puts them out of synch with life among the elves.

Members of the other common races rarely hear the call to become paladins.

Among the savage humanoids, paladins are all but unheard of.

Other Classes: Even though paladins are in some ways set apart from others, they eagerly team up with those whose skills and capabilities complement their own.

They work well with good and lawful clerics, and they appreciate working with those who are brave, honest, and committed to good.

While they cannot abide evil acts by their companions, they are otherwise willing to work with a variety of people quite different from themselves.

Charismatic, trustworthy, and well respected, the paladin makes a fine leader for a team.

Role: The paladin's chief role in most groups is as a melee combatant, but she contributes other useful support as well. She makes a good secondary healer, and her high Charisma opens up fine leadership opportunities.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Paladins have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma enhances a paladin's healing, self-protective capabilities, and undead turning ability.

Strength is important for a paladin because of its role in combat.

A Wisdom score of 14 or higher is required to get access to the most powerful paladin spells, and a score of 11 or higher is required to cast any paladin spells at all.

Alignment: Lawful good.

Hit Die: d10.

CLASS SKILLS

The paladin's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Knowledge (nobility and royalty) (Int), Knowledge (religion) (Int), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), and Sense Motive (Wis).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the paladin.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Paladins are proficient with all simple and martial weapons, with all types of armor (heavy, medium, and light), and with shields (except tower shields).

Aura of Good (Ex): The power of a paladin's aura of good (see the detect good spell) is equal to her paladin level, just like the aura of a cleric of a good deity.

Detect Evil (Sp): At will, a paladin can use detect evil, as the spell.

Smite Evil (Su): Once per day, a paladin may attempt to smite evil with one normal melee attack.

She adds her Charisma bonus (if any) to her attack roll and deals 1 extra point of damage per paladin level.

For example, a 13th-level paladin armed with a longsword would deal 1d8+13 points of damage, plus any additional bonuses for high Strength or magical affects that would normally apply.

If the paladin accidentally smites a creature that is not evil, the smite has no effect, but the ability is still used up for that day.

At 5th level, and at every five levels thereafter, the paladin may smite evil one additional time per day, as indicated on Table 3-12: The Paladin, to a maximum of five times per day at 20th level.

Divine Grace (Su): At 2nd level, a paladin gains a bonus equal to her Charisma bonus (if any) on all saving throws.

Lay on Hands (Su): Beginning at 2nd level, a paladin with a Charisma score of 12 or higher can heal wounds (her own or those of others) by touch.

Each day she can heal a total number of hit points of damage equal to her paladin level × her Charisma bonus.

For example, a 7th-level paladin with a 16 Charisma (+3 bonus) can heal 21 points of damage per day.

A paladin may choose to divide her healing among multiple recipients, and she doesn't have to use it all at once.

Using lay on hands is a standard action.

Alternatively, a paladin can use any or all of this healing power to deal damage to undead creatures.

Using lay on hands in this way requires a successful melee touch attack and doesn't provoke an attack of opportunity.

The paladin decides how many of her daily allotment of points to use as damage after successfully touching an undead creature.

Aura of Courage (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, a paladin is immune to fear (magical or otherwise).

Each ally within 10 feet of her gains a +4 morale bonus on saving throws against fear effects.

This ability functions while the paladin is conscious, but not if she is unconscious or dead.

Divine Health (Ex): At 3rd level, a paladin gains immunity to all diseases, including supernatural and magical diseases (such as mummy rot and lycanthropy).

Turn Undead (Su): When a paladin reaches 4th level, she gains the supernatural ability to turn undead.

She may use this ability a number of times per day equal to 3 + her Charisma modifier.

She turns undead as a cleric of three levels lower would. (See Turn or Rebuke Undead, page 159).

Spells: Beginning at 4th level, a paladin gains the ability to cast a small number of divine spells (the same type of spells available to the cleric, druid, and ranger), which are drawn from the paladin spell list (page 191).

A paladin must choose and prepare her spells in advance. To prepare or cast a spell, a paladin must have a Wisdom score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Wis 11 for 1st-level spells, Wis 12 for 2nd-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a paladin's spell is 10 + the spell level + the paladin's Wisdom modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a paladin can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 3-12: The Paladin.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

When Table 3-12 indicates that the paladin gets 0 spells per day of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 4th-level paladin), she gains only the bonus spells she would be entitled to based on her Wisdom score for that spell level. The paladin does not have access to any domain spells or granted powers, as a cleric does.

A paladin prepares and casts spells the way a cleric does, though she cannot lose a prepared spell to spontaneously cast a cure spell in its place.

A paladin may prepare and cast any spell on the paladin spell list (page 191), provided that she can cast spells of that level, but she must choose which spells to prepare during her daily meditation. Through 3rd level, a paladin has no caster level.

THE PALADIN'S MOUNT

The paladin's mount is superior to a normal mount of its kind and has special powers, as described below. The standard mount for a Medium paladin is a heavy warhorse, and the standard mount for a Small paladin is a warpony (see below for statistics). Your DM may work with you to select another kind of mount, such as a riding dog (for a halfling paladin) or a Large shark (for a paladin in an aquatic campaign). A paladin's mount is treated as a magical beast, not an animal, for the purpose of all effects that depend on its type (though it retains an animal's HD, base attack bonus, saves, skill points, and feats).

Paladin Level	Bonus HD	Natural Armor Adj.	Str Adj.	Int	Special
5th–7th	+2	+4	+1	6	Empathic link, improved evasion, share spells, share saving throws
8th–10th	+4	+6	+2	7	Improved speed
11th–14th	+6	+8	+3	8	Command creatures of its kind
15th–20th	+8	+10	+4	9	Spell resistance

Paladin's Mount Basics: Use the base statistics for a creature of the mount's kind, as given in the Monster Manual, but make changes to take into account the attributes and characteristics summarized on the table and described below.

Bonus HD: Extra eight-sided (d8) Hit Dice, each of which gains a Constitution modifier, as normal. Extra Hit Dice improve the mount's base attack and base save bonuses. A special mount's base attack bonus is equal to that of a cleric of a level equal to the mount's HD. A mount has good Fortitude and Reflex saves (treat it as a character whose level equals the animal's HD). The mount gains additional skill points or feats for bonus HD as normal for advancing a monster's Hit Dice (see the Monster Manual).

Natural Armor Adj.: The number on the table is an improvement to the mount's existing natural armor bonus. It represents the preternatural toughness of a paladin's mount.

Str Adj.: Add this figure to the mount's Strength score.

Int: The mount's Intelligence score.

Empathic Link (Su): The paladin has an empathic link with her mount out to a distance of up to 1 mile. The paladin cannot see through the mount's eyes, but they can communicate empathically. Note that even intelligent mounts see the world differently from humans, so misunderstandings are always possible.

Because of this empathic link, the paladin has the same connection to an item or place that her mount does, just as with a master and his familiar (see Familiars, page 52).

Improved Evasion (Ex): When subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, a mount takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw and half damage if the saving throw fails.

Share Spells: At the paladin's option, she may have any spell (but not any spell-like ability) she casts on herself also affect her mount. The

This mount is usually a heavy warhorse (for a Medium paladin) or a warpony (for a Small paladin). Once per day, as a full-round action, a paladin may magically call her mount from the celestial realms in which it resides. This ability is the equivalent of a spell of a level equal to one-third the paladin's class level.

At 4th level and higher, her caster level is one-half her paladin level.

Special Mount (Sp): Upon reaching 5th level, a paladin gains the service of an unusually intelligent, strong, and loyal steed to serve her in her crusade against evil (see the sidebar).

mount must be within 5 feet at the time of casting to receive the benefit. If the spell or effect has a duration other than instantaneous, it stops affecting the mount if it moves farther than 5 feet away and will not affect the mount again even if it returns to the paladin before the duration expires. Additionally, the paladin may cast a spell with a target of "You" on her mount (as a touch range spell) instead of on herself. A paladin and her mount can share spells even if the spells normally do not affect creatures of the mount's type (magical beast).

Share Saving Throws: For each of its saving throws, the mount uses its own base save bonus or the paladin's, whichever is higher. The mount applies its own ability modifiers to saves, and it doesn't share any other bonuses on saves that the master might have (such as from magic items or feats).

Improved Speed (Ex): The mount's speed increases by 10 feet.

Command (Sp): Once per day per two paladin levels of its master, a mount can use this ability to command other any normal animal of approximately the same kind as itself (for warhorses and warponies, this category includes donkeys, mules, and ponies), as long as the target creature has fewer Hit Dice than the mount. This ability functions like the command spell, but the mount must make a DC 21 Concentration check to succeed if it's being ridden at the time (in combat, for instance). If the check fails, the ability does not work that time, but it still counts against the mount's daily uses. Each target may attempt a Will save (DC 10 + 1/2 paladin's level + paladin's Cha modifier) to negate the effect.

Spell Resistance (Ex): A mount's spell resistance equals its master's paladin level + 5. To affect the mount with a spell, a spellcaster must get a result on a caster level check (1d20 + caster level; see Spell Resistance, page 177) that equals or exceeds the mount's spell resistance.

SAMPLE PALADIN'S MOUNTS

The statistics below are for normal creatures of the appropriate kinds; they do not include the modifications given on the table above.

Heavy Warhorse: CR 2; Large animal; HD 4d8+12; hp 30; Init +1; Spd 50 ft.; AC 14, touch 10, flat-footed 13; Base Atk +3; Grp +11; Atk +6 melee (1d6+4, hoof); Full Atk +6/+6 melee (1d6+4, 2 hooves) and +1 melee (1d4+2, bite); Space/Reach 10 ft./5 ft.; SQ low-light vision, scent; SV Fort +7, Ref +5, Will +2; Str 18, Dex 13, Con 17, Int 2, Wis 13, Cha 6.

Skills and Feats: Jump +12, Listen +5, Spot +4; Endurance, Run.

Warpony: CR 1/3; Medium animal; HD 2d8+4; hp 13; Init +1; Spd 40 ft.; AC 13, touch 11, flat-footed 12; Base Atk +1; Grp +3; Atk +3 melee (1d3+2, hoof); Full Atk +3/+3 melee (1d3+2, 2 hooves); Space/Reach 5 ft./5 ft.; SQ low-light vision, scent; SV Fort +5, Ref +4, Will +0; Str 15, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 2, Wis 11, Cha 4.

Skills and Feats: Jump +6, Listen +5, Spot +5; Endurance.

See page 85 of the Dungeon Master's Guide for more information on how to read a creature's statistics block.

The mount immediately appears adjacent to the paladin and remains for 2 hours per paladin level; it may be dismissed at any time as a free action. The mount is the same creature each time it is summoned, though the paladin may release a particular mount from service (if it has grown too old to join her crusade, for instance). Each time the mount is called, it appears in full health, regardless of any damage it may have taken previously.

The mount also appears wearing or carrying any gear it had when it was last dismissed (including barding, saddle, saddlebags, and the like).

Calling a mount is a conjuration (calling) effect.

Should the paladin's mount die, it immediately disappears, leaving behind any equipment it was carrying.

The paladin may not summon another mount for thirty days or until she gains a paladin level, whichever comes first, even if the mount is somehow returned from the dead. During this thirty-day period, the paladin takes a -1 penalty on attack and weapon damage rolls.

Remove Disease (Sp): At 6th level, a paladin can produce a remove disease effect, as the spell, once per week.

She can use this ability one additional time per week for every three levels after 6th (twice per week at 9th, three times at 12th, and so forth).

Code of Conduct: A paladin must be of lawful good alignment and loses all class abilities if she ever willingly commits an evil act.

Additionally, a paladin's code requires that she respect legitimate authority, act with honor (not lying, not cheating, not using poison, and so forth), help those in need (provided they do not use the help for evil or chaotic ends), and punish those who harm or threaten innocents.

Associates: While she may adventure with characters of any good or neutral alignment, a paladin will never knowingly associate with evil characters, nor will she continue an association with someone who consistently offends her moral code.

A paladin may accept only henchmen, followers, or cohorts who are lawful good.

EX-PALADINS

A paladin who ceases to be lawful good, who willfully commits an evil act, or who grossly violates the code of conduct loses all paladin spells and abilities (including the service of the paladin's mount, but not weapon, armor, and shield proficiencies).

She may not progress any farther in levels as a paladin.

She regains her abilities and advancement potential if she atones for her violations (see the atonement spell description, page 201), as appropriate.

Like a member of any other class, a paladin may be a multiclass character, but multiclass paladins face a special restriction.

A paladin who gains a level in any class other than paladin may never again raise her paladin level, though she retains all her paladin abilities.

The path of the paladin requires a constant heart.

If a character adopts this class, she must pursue it to the exclusion of all other careers.

Once she has turned off the path, she may never return.

HUMAN PALADIN STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2, 10 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Heal	4	Wis	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—
Listen (cc)	2	Wis	—
Climb (cc)	2	Str	-6
Search (cc)	2	Int	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Bonus Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, three pints of oil.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Wooden holy symbol (fist of Heironeous, god of valor).

Gold: 6d4 gp.

TABLE 3-12: THE PALADIN

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Aura of good, detect evil , smite evil 1/day	—	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Divine grace, lay on hands	—	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Aura of courage, divine health	—	—	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Turn undead	0	—	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	Smite evil 2/day, special mount	0	—	—	—
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Remove disease 1/week	1	—	—	—
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2		1	—	—	—
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2		1	0	—	—
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	Remove disease 2/week	1	0	—	—
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Smite evil 3/day	1	1	—	—
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3		1	1	0	—
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Remove disease 3/week	1	1	1	—
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4		1	1	1	—
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4		2	1	1	0
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	Remove disease 4/week, smite evil 4/day	2	1	1	1
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5		2	2	1	1
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5		2	2	2	1
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	Remove disease 5/week	3	2	2	1
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6		3	3	3	2
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Smite evil 5/day	3	3	3	3

RANGER

The forests are home to fierce and cunning creatures, such as bloodthirsty owlbears and malicious displacer beasts. But more cunning and powerful than these monsters is the ranger, a skilled hunter and stalker.

He knows the woods as if they were his home (as indeed they are), and he knows his prey in deadly detail.

Adventures: A ranger often accepts the role of protector, aiding those who live in or travel through the woods.

In addition, a ranger carries grudges against certain types of creatures and looks for opportunities to find and destroy them.

He may adventure for all the reasons that a fighter does.

Characteristics: A ranger can use a variety of weapons and is quite capable in combat.

His skills allow him to survive in the wilderness, to find his prey, and to avoid detection.

He also has special knowledge about certain types of creatures, which makes it easier for him to find and defeat such foes.

Finally, an experienced ranger has such a tie to nature that he can actually draw upon natural power to cast divine spells, much as a druid does.

Alignment: Rangers can be of any alignment.

Most are good, and such rangers usually function as protectors of the wild areas.

In this role, a ranger seeks out and destroys or drives off evil creatures that threaten the wilderness.

Good rangers also protect those who travel through the wilderness, serving sometimes as guides and sometimes as unseen guardians.

Most rangers are also chaotic, preferring to follow the ebb and flow of nature or of their own hearts instead of rigid rules.

Evil rangers, though rare, are much to be feared.

They revel in nature's thoughtless cruelty and seek to emulate her most fearsome predators.

They gain divine spells just as good rangers do, for nature herself is indifferent to good and evil.

Religion: Though a ranger gains his divine spells from the power of nature, he like anyone else may worship a chosen deity.

Ehlonna (goddess of the woodlands) and Obad-Hai (god of nature) are the most common deities revered by, though some prefer more martial deities.

Background: Some rangers gained their training as part of special military teams, but most learned their skills from solitary masters who accepted them as students and assistants.

The rangers of a particular master may count themselves as cohorts, or they may be rivals for the status of best student and thus the rightful heir to their master's fame.

Races: Elves often choose the ranger's path.

They are at home in the woods, and they have the grace to move stealthily.

Half-elves who feel their elf parents' connection to the woods are also likely to adopt this class.

Humans are often rangers as well, being adaptable enough to learn their way around the woods even if it doesn't come naturally to them.

Half-orcs may find the life of a ranger more comfortable than life among cruel and taunting humans (or orcs).

Gnome rangers are more common than gnome fighters, but still they tend to remain in their own lands rather than adventure among "the big people".

Dwarf rangers are rare, but they can be quite effective.

Instead of living in the surface wilderness, they are at home in the endless caverns beneath the earth.

Here they hunt down and destroy the enemies of dwarvenkind with the relentless precision for which dwarves are known.

Dwarf rangers are often known as cavers.

Halfling rangers are highly respected for their ability to help communities of halflings prosper as they pursue their nomadic lifestyle.

Among the savage humanoids, only gnolls are commonly rangers, using their skills to slyly stalk their prey.

Classes: Rangers get along well with druids and to some extent with barbarians.

They are known to bicker with paladins, mostly because they often share goals but differ in style, tactics, approach, philosophy, and esthetics.

Since rangers don't often look to other people for support or friendship, they find it easy to tolerate people who are quite different from themselves, such as bookish wizards and preachy clerics.

They just don't care enough to get upset about others' differences.

Role: The ranger's best role is that of a scout and secondary combatant.

Without the heavy armor of the fighter or the staying power of the barbarian, the ranger should focus on opportunistic and ranged attacks.

Most rangers use their animal companions as sentries, scouts, or to assist them in melee combat.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Rangers have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Dexterity is important for a ranger both because he tends to wear light armor and because several ranger skills are based on that ability.

Strength is important because rangers frequently get involved in combat.

Several ranger skills are based on Wisdom, and a Wisdom score of 14 or higher is required to get access to the most powerful ranger spells.

A Wisdom score of 11 or higher is required to cast any ranger spells at all.

One of the ranger's trademark skills, his ability to track foes, is based on Wisdom.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The ranger's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Handle Animal (Cha), Heal (Wis), Hide (Dex), Jump (Str), Knowledge (dungeoneering) (Int), Knowledge (geography) (Int), Knowledge (nature) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Profession (Wis), Ride (Dex), Search (Int), Spot (Wis), Survival (Wis), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex). See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (6 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 6 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the ranger.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: A ranger is proficient with all simple and martial weapons, and with light armor and shields (except tower shields).

Favored Enemy (Ex): At 1st level, a ranger may select a type of creature from among those given on Table 3–14: Ranger Favored Enemies.

TABLE 3–14: RANGER FAVORED ENEMIES

Type (Subtype)	Examples
Aberration	beholder
Animal	bear
Construct	golem
Dragon	black dragon
Elemental	invisible stalker
Fey	dryad
Giant	ogre
Humanoid (aquatic)	merfolk
Humanoid (dwarf)	dwarf
Humanoid (elf)	elf
Humanoid (goblinoid)	hobgoblin
Humanoid (gnoll)	gnoll
Humanoid (gnome)	gnome
Humanoid (halfling)	halfling
Humanoid (human)	human
Humanoid (orc)	orc
Humanoid (reptilian)	kobold
Magical beast	displacer beast
Monstrous humanoid	minotaur
Ooze	gelatinous cube
Outsider (air)	arrowhawk
Outsider (chaotic)	demon
Outsider (earth)	xorn
Outsider (evil)	devil
Outsider (fire)	salamander
Outsider (good)	angel
Outsider (lawful)	formian
Outsider (native)	tiefling
Outsider (water)	tojanida
Plant	shambling mound
Undead	zombie
Vermin	monstrous spider

Due to his extensive study on his chosen type of foe and training in the proper techniques for combating such creatures, the ranger gains a +2 bonus on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Survival checks when using these skills against creatures of this type.

Likewise, he gets a +2 bonus on weapon damage rolls against such creatures.

At 5th level and every five levels thereafter (10th, 15th, and 20th level), the ranger may select an additional favored enemy from those given on the table.

In addition, at each such interval, the bonus against any one favored enemy (including the one just selected, if so desired) increases by 2.

For example, a 5th-level ranger has two favored enemies; against one he gains a +4 bonus on Bluff, Listen, Sense Motive, Spot, and Survival checks and weapon damage rolls, and against the other he has a +2 bonus.

At 10th level, he has three favored enemies, and he gains an additional +2 bonus, which he can allocate to the bonus against any one of his three favored enemies.

Thus, his bonuses could be either +4, +4, +2 or +6, +2, +2.

If the ranger chooses humanoids or outsiders as a favored enemy, he must also choose an associated subtype, as indicated on the table.

If a specific creature falls into more than one category of favored enemy (for instance, devils are both evil outsiders and lawful outsiders), the ranger's bonuses do not stack; he simply uses whichever bonus is higher.

See the Monster Manual for more information on types of creatures.

Track: A ranger gains Track (see page 101) as a bonus feat.

Wild Empathy (Ex): A ranger can use body language, vocalizations, and demeanor to improve the attitude of an animal (such as a bear or a monitor lizard).

This ability functions just like a Diplomacy check to improve the attitude of a person (see page 72).

The ranger rolls 1d20 and adds his ranger level and his Charisma bonus to determine the wild empathy check result.

The typical domestic animal has a starting attitude of indifferent, while wild animals are usually unfriendly.

To use wild empathy, the ranger and the animal must be able to study each other, which means that they must be within 30 feet of one another under normal visibility conditions.

Generally, influencing an animal in this way takes 1 minute, but, as with influencing people, it might take more or less time.

The ranger can also use this ability to influence a magical beast with an Intelligence score of 1 or 2 (such as a basilisk or a girallon), but he takes a –4 penalty on the check.

Combat Style (Ex): At 2nd level, a ranger must select one of two combat styles to pursue: archery or two-weapon combat.

This choice affects the character's class features but does not restrict his selection of feats or special abilities in any way.

If the ranger selects archery, he is treated as having the Rapid Shot feat, even if he does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

If the ranger selects two-weapon combat, he is treated as having the Two-Weapon Fighting feat, even if he does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

The benefits of the ranger's chosen style apply only when he wears light or no armor.

He loses all benefits of his combat style when wearing medium or heavy armor.

Endurance: A ranger gains Endurance (see page 93) as a bonus feat at 3rd level.

Animal Companion (Ex): At 4th level, a ranger gains an animal companion selected from the following list: badger, camel, dire rat, dog, riding dog, eagle, hawk, horse (light or heavy), owl, pony, snake (Small or Medium viper), or wolf.

If the DM's campaign takes place wholly or partly in an aquatic environment, the DM may add the following creatures to the ranger's list of options: crocodile, porpoise, Medium shark, and squid.

This animal is a loyal companion that accompanies the ranger on his adventures as appropriate for its kind.

(For instance, an aquatic creature can't adventure with a ranger on land and shouldn't be selected by a nonaquatic character without extenuating circumstances).

In most cases, the animal companion functions as a mount, sentry, scout, or hunting animal, rather than as a protector.

This ability functions like the druid ability of the same name (see page 35), except that the ranger's effective druid level is one-half his ranger level.

For example, the animal companion of a 4th-level ranger would be the equivalent of a 2nd-level druid's animal companion.

A ranger may select from the alternative lists of animal companions just as a druid can, though again his effective druid level is half his ranger level.

Thus, he must be at least an 8th-level ranger to select from the druid's list of 4th-level animal companions, and if he chooses one of those animals, his effective druid level would be reduced by 3, to 1st level.

Like a druid, a ranger cannot select an alternative animal if the choice would reduce his effective druid level below 1st.

Spells: Beginning at 4th level, a ranger gains the ability to cast a small number of divine spells (the same type of spells available to the cleric, druid, and paladin), which are drawn from the ranger spell list (page 191).

A ranger must choose and prepare his spells in advance (see below).

To prepare or cast a spell, a ranger must have a Wisdom score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Wis 11 for 1st-level spells, Wis 12 for 2nd-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a ranger's spell is 10 + the spell level + the ranger's Wisdom modifier. Like other spellcasters, a ranger can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 3-13: The Ranger.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Wisdom score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

When Table 3-13 indicates that the ranger gets 0 spells per day of a given spell level (for instance, 1st-level spells for a 4th-level ranger), he gains only the bonus spells he would be entitled to based on his Wisdom score for that spell level.

The ranger does not have access to any domain spells or granted powers, as a cleric does.

A ranger prepares and casts spells the way a cleric does, though he cannot lose a prepared spell to cast a cure spell in its place.

A ranger may prepare and cast any spell on the ranger spell list, provided that he can cast spells of that level, but he must choose which spells to prepare during his daily meditation.

Through 3rd level, a ranger has no caster level.

At 4th level and higher, his caster level is one-half his ranger level.

Improved Combat Style (Ex): At 6th level, a ranger's aptitude in his chosen combat style (archery or two-weapon combat) improves.

If he selected archery at 2nd level, he is treated as having the Manyshot feat (page 97), even if he does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

If the ranger selected two-weapon combat at 2nd level, he is treated as having the Improved Two-Weapon Fighting feat (page 96), even if he does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

As before, the benefits of the ranger's chosen style apply only when he wears light or no armor.

He loses all benefits of his combat style when wearing medium or heavy armor.

Woodland Stride (Ex): Starting at 7th level, a ranger may move through any sort of undergrowth (such as natural thorns, briars, overgrown areas, and similar terrain) at his normal speed and without taking damage or suffering any other impairment.

However, thorns, briars, and overgrown areas that are enchanted or magically manipulated to impede motion still affect him.

Swift Tracker (Ex): Beginning at 8th level, a ranger can move at his normal speed while following tracks without taking the normal -5 penalty.

He takes only a -10 penalty (instead of the normal -20) when moving at up to twice normal speed while tracking.

Evasion (Ex): At 9th level, a ranger can avoid even magical and unusual attacks with great agility.

If he makes a successful Reflex saving throw against an attack that normally deals half damage on a successful save (such as a red dragon's fiery breath or a fireball), he instead takes no damage.

Evasion can be used only if the ranger is wearing light armor or no armor.

A helpless ranger (such as one who is unconscious or paralysed) does not gain the benefit of evasion.

Combat Style Mastery (Ex): At 11th level, a ranger's aptitude in his chosen combat style (archery or two-weapon combat) improves again.

If he selected archery at 2nd level, he is treated as having the Improved Precise Shot feat (page 96), even if he does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

If the ranger selected two-weapon combat at 2nd level, he is treated as having the Greater Two-Weapon Fighting feat (page 95), even if he does not have the normal prerequisites for that feat.

As before, the benefits of the ranger's chosen style apply only when he wears light or no armor.

He loses all benefits of his combat style when wearing medium or heavy armor.

Camouflage (Ex): A ranger of 13th level or higher can use the Hide skill in any sort of natural terrain, even if the terrain doesn't grant cover or concealment.

Hide in Plain Sight (Ex): While in any sort of natural terrain, a ranger of 17th level or higher can use the Hide skill even while being observed.

ELF RANGER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed, slashing).

Short sword, off hand (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, 2 lb., light, piercing).

Note: When striking with both swords, the ranger takes a -4 penalty with his longsword and a -8 penalty with his short sword.

If he has a Strength bonus, add only one-half of it to his damage roll with the short sword, which is in his off hand, but add the full Strength bonus to his damage roll with the longsword.

Longbow (1d8, crit x3, range inc. 100 ft., 3 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 6 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Survival	4	Wis	—
Hide	4	Dex	-1
Move Silently	4	Dex	-1
Listen	4	Wis	—
Spot	4	Wis	—
Knowledge (nature)	4	Int	—
Climb	4	Str	-1
Heal	4	Wis	—
Swim	4	Str	-2
Search	4	Int	—

Feat: Point Blank Shot.

Favored Enemy: Magical beast.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Three torches.

Quiver with 20 arrows.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 3-13: THE RANGER

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1st	+1	+2	+2	+0	1st favored enemy, Track, wild empathy	—	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+3	+0	Combat style	—	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+3	+1	Endurance	—	—	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+4	+1	Animal companion	0	—	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+4	+1	2nd favored enemy	0	—	—	—
6th	+6/+1	+5	+5	+2	Improved combat style	1	—	—	—
7th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+2	Woodland stride	1	—	—	—
8th	+8/+3	+6	+6	+2	Swift tracker	1	0	—	—
9th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+3	Evasion	1	0	—	—
10th	+10/+5	+7	+7	+3	3rd favored enemy	1	1	—	—
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+7	+3	Combat style mastery	1	1	0	—
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+8	+4		1	1	1	—
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+8	+4	Camouflage	1	1	1	—
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+9	+4		2	1	1	0
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+9	+5	4th favored enemy	2	1	1	1
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+10	+5		2	2	1	1
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+10	+5	Hide in plain sight	2	2	2	1
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+11	+6		3	2	2	1
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+11	+6		3	3	3	2
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+12	+6	5th favored enemy	3	3	3	3

ROGUE

Rogues share little in common with each other. Some are stealthy thieves.

Others are silver-tongued tricksters.

Still others are scouts, infiltrators, spies, diplomats, or thugs.

What they share is versatility, adaptability, and resourcefulness.

In general, rogues are skilled at getting what others don't want them to get: entrance into a locked treasure vault, safe passage past a deadly trap, secret battle plans, a guard's trust, or some random person's pocket money.

Adventures: Rogues adventure for the same reason they do most things: to get what they can get.

Some are after loot; others want experience.

Some crave fame; others seek infamy.

Quite a few also enjoy a challenge.

Figuring out how to thwart a trap or avoid an alarm is great fun for many rogues.

Characteristics: Rogues are highly skilled, and they can concentrate on developing any of several categories of skills.

While not equal to members of many other classes in combat, a rogue knows how to hit where it hurts, and she can dish out a lot of damage with a sneak attack.

Rogues have a sixth sense when it comes to avoiding danger.

Experienced rogues develop mystical powers and skills as they master the arts of stealth, evasion, and sneak attacks.

In addition, while not capable of casting spells on their own, rogues can "fake it" well enough to cast spells from scrolls, activate wands, and use just about any other magic item.

Alignment: Rogues follow opportunity, not ideals.

They are more likely to be chaotic than lawful, they are a diverse bunch, so they may be of any alignment.

Religion: Although they are not renowned for their piety, most rogues revere Olidammara (god of thieves).

Evil rogues might secretly worship Nerull (god of death), or Erythnul (god of slaughter).

Since rogues are so diverse, however, many of them worship other deities, or none at all.

Background: Some rogues are officially inducted into an organized fellowship of rogues or "guild of thieves".

Some are self-taught; others learned their skills from independent mentors.

Often, an experienced rogue needs an assistant for scams, second-story jobs, or just for watching her back.

She recruits a likely youngster, who then learns the skills of the trade on the job.

Eventually, the trainee is ready to move on, perhaps because the mentor has run afoul of the law, or perhaps because the trainee has double-crossed her mentor and needs some "space".

Rogues do not see each other as fellows unless they happen to be members of the same guild or students of the same mentor.

In fact, rogues trust other rogues less than they trust anyone else.

They're no fools.

Races: Adaptable and often unprincipled, humans take to the rogue's life with ease.

Halflings, elves, and half-elves also find themselves well suited to the demands of the career.

Dwarf and gnome rogues, while less common, are renowned as experts with locks and traps.

Half-orc rogues tend toward thuggery.

Rogues are common among brutal humanoids, especially goblins and bugbears.

Rogues who learn their arts in savage lands, however, generally don't have much experience with complex mechanisms such as traps and locks.

Other Classes: Rogues love and hate working with members of other classes.

They excel when protected by warriors and supported by spellcasters.

There are plenty of times, however, that they wish everyone else was as quiet, guileful, and patient as they.

Rogues are particularly wary of paladins, so they endeavor to prove themselves useful when contact with paladins is unavoidable.

Role: The rogue's role in a group can vary dramatically based on her skill selection—from charismatic con artist to cunning burglar to agile combatant—but most rogues share certain aspects.

They aren't capable of prolonged melee combat, so they focus on opportunistic sneak attacks or ranged attacks.

The rogue's stealth and her trapfinding ability make her one of the best scouts in the game.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Rogues have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Dexterity provides extra protection for the lightly armored rogue.

Dexterity, Intelligence and Wisdom are important for many of the rogue's skills.

A high Intelligence score also gives the rogue extra skill points, which can be used to expand her repertoire.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d6.

CLASS SKILLS

The rogue's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Appraise (Int), Balance (Dex), Bluff (Cha), Climb (Str), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Diplomacy (Cha), Disable Device (Int), Disguise (Cha), Escape Artist (Dex), Forgery (Int), Gather Information (Cha), Hide (Dex), Intimidate (Cha), Jump (Str), Knowledge (local) (Int), Listen (Wis), Move Silently (Dex), Open Lock (Dex), Perform (Cha), Profession (Wis), Search (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), Sleight of Hand (Dex), Spot (Wis), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), Use Magic Device (Cha), and Use Rope (Dex).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(8 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $8 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the rogue.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Rogues are proficient with all simple weapons, plus the hand crossbow, rapier, sap, shortbow, and short sword.

Rogues are proficient with light armor, but not with shields.

Sneak Attack: If a rogue can catch an opponent when he is unable to defend himself effectively from her attack, she can strike a vital spot for extra damage.

Basically, the rogue's attack deals extra damage any time her target would be denied a Dexterity bonus to AC (whether the target actually has a Dexterity bonus or not), or when the rogue flanks her target.

This extra damage is 1d6 at 1st level, and it increases by 1d6 every two rogue levels thereafter.

Should the rogue score a critical hit with a sneak attack, this extra damage is not multiplied.

(See Table 8–5: Attack Roll Modifiers and Table 8–6: Armor Class Modifiers, page 151, for combat situations in which the rogue flanks an opponent or the opponent loses his Dexterity bonus to AC).

Ranged attacks can count as sneak attacks only if the target is within 30 feet.

A rogue can't strike with deadly accuracy from beyond that range.

With a sap (blackjack) or an unarmed strike, a rogue can make a sneak attack that deals nonlethal damage instead of lethal damage.

She cannot use a weapon that deals lethal damage to deal nonlethal damage in a sneak attack, not even with the usual –4 penalty, because she must make optimal use of her weapon in order to execute a sneak attack.

(See Nonlethal Damage, page 146).

A rogue can sneak attack only living creatures with discernible anatomies—undead, constructs, oozes, plants, and incorporeal creatures lack vital areas to attack.

Any creature that is immune to critical hits is not vulnerable to sneak attacks.

The rogue must be able to see the target well enough to pick out a vital spot and must be able to reach such a spot.

A rogue cannot sneak attack while striking a creature with concealment (see page 152) or striking the limbs of a creature whose vitals are beyond reach.

Trapfinding: Rogues (and only rogues) can use the Search skill to locate traps when the task has a Difficulty Class higher than 20.

Finding a nonmagical trap has a DC of at least 20, or higher if it is well hidden.

Finding a magic trap has a DC of $25 +$ the level of the spell used to create it.

Rogues (and only rogues) can use the Disable Device skill to disarm magic traps.

A magic trap generally has a DC of $25 +$ the level of the spell used to create it.

A rogue who beats a trap's DC by 10 or more with a Disable Device check can study a trap, figure out how it works, and bypass it (with her party) without disarming it.

Evasion (Ex): At 2nd level and higher, a rogue can avoid even magical and unusual attacks with great agility.

If she makes a successful Reflex saving throw against an attack that normally deals half damage on a successful save (such as a red dragon's fiery breath or a fireball), she instead takes no damage.

Evasion can be used only if the rogue is wearing light armor or no armor.

A helpless rogue (such as one who is unconscious or paralyzed) does not gain the benefit of evasion.

Trap Sense (Ex): At 3rd level, a rogue gains an intuitive sense that alerts her to danger from traps, giving her a +1 bonus on Reflex saves made to avoid traps and a +1 dodge bonus to AC against attacks made by traps.

These bonuses rise to +2 when the rogue reaches 6th level, to +3 when she reaches 9th level, to +4 when she reaches 12th level, to +5 at 15th, and to +6 at 18th level.

Trap sense bonuses gained from multiple classes stack.

Uncanny Dodge (Ex): Starting at 4th level, a rogue can react to danger before her senses would normally allow her to do so.

She retains her Dexterity bonus to AC (if any) even if she is caught flat-footed or struck by an invisible attacker.

However, she still loses her Dexterity bonus to AC if immobilized.

If a rogue already has uncanny dodge from a different class (a rogue with at least two levels of barbarian, for example), she automatically gains improved uncanny dodge (see below) instead.

Improved Uncanny Dodge (Ex): A rogue of 8th level or higher can no longer be flanked; she can react to opponents on opposite sides of her as easily as she can react to a single attacker.

This defense denies another rogue the ability to sneak attack the character by flanking her, unless the attacker has at least four more rogue levels than the target does.

If a character already has uncanny dodge (see above) from a second class, the character automatically gains improved uncanny dodge instead, and the levels from the classes that grant uncanny dodge stack to determine the minimum rogue level required to flank the character.

Special Abilities: On attaining 10th level, and at every three levels thereafter (13th, 16th, and 19th), a rogue gains a special ability of her choice from among the following options.

Crippling Strike (Ex): A rogue with this ability can sneak attack opponents with such precision that her blows weaken and hamper them.

An opponent damaged by one of her sneak attacks also takes 2 points of Strength damage.

Ability points lost to damage return on their own at the rate of 1 point per day for each damaged ability.

Defensive Roll (Ex): The rogue can roll with a potentially lethal blow to take less damage from it than she otherwise would.

Once per day, when she would be reduced to 0 or fewer hit points by damage in combat (from a weapon or other blow, not a spell or special ability), the rogue can attempt to roll with the damage.

To use this ability, the rogue must attempt a Reflex saving throw (DC = damage dealt).

If the save succeeds, she takes only half damage from the blow; if it fails, she takes full damage.

She must be aware of the attack and able to react to it in order to execute her defensive roll—if she is denied her Dexterity bonus to AC, she can't use this ability.

Since this effect would not normally allow a character to make a Reflex save for half damage, the rogue's evasion ability does not apply to the defensive roll.

Improved Evasion (Ex): This ability works like evasion, except that while the rogue still takes no damage on a successful Reflex saving throw against attacks such as a dragon's breath weapon or a fireball, henceforth she henceforth takes only half damage on a failed save.

A helpless rogue (such as one who is unconscious or paralysed) does not gain the benefit of improved evasion.

Opportunist (Ex): Once per round, the rogue can make an attack of opportunity against an opponent who has just been struck for damage in melee by another character.

This attack counts as the rogue's attack of opportunity for that round.

Even a rogue with the Combat Reflexes feat can't use the opportunist ability more than once per round.

Skill Mastery: The rogue becomes so certain in the use of certain skills that she can use them reliably even under adverse conditions.

Upon gaining this ability, she selects a number of skills equal to 3 + her Intelligence modifier.

When making a skill check with one of these skills, she may take 10 even if stress and distractions would normally prevent her from doing so.

A rogue may gain this special ability multiple times, selecting additional skills for it to apply to each time.

Slippery Mind (Ex): This ability represents the rogue's ability to wriggle free from magical effects that would otherwise control or compel her.

If a rogue with slippery mind is affected by an enchantment spell or effect and fails her saving throw, she can attempt it again 1 round later at the same DC.

She gets only this one extra chance to succeed on her saving throw.

Feat: A rogue may gain a bonus feat in place of a special ability.

HALFLING ROGUE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Leather (+2 AC, speed 20 ft., 7-1/2 lb.).

Weapons: Short sword (1d4, crit 19-20/x2, 1 lb., light, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d6, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 80 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Dagger (1d3, crit 19-20/x2, range inc. 10 ft., 1/2 lb., light, piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 8 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Move Silently	4	Dex	0
Hide	4	Dex	0
Spot	4	Wis	—
Listen	4	Wis	—
Search	4	Int	—
Disable Device	4	Int	—
Open Lock	4	Dex	—
Climb	4	Str	0
Use Magic Device	4	Cha	—
Sleight of Hand	4	Dex	0
Decipher Script	4	Int	—
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—

Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Thieves' tools.

Hooded lantern and three pints of oil.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 4d4 gp.

TABLE 3–15: THE ROGUE

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+0	+0	+2	+0	Sneak attack +1d6, trapfinding
2nd	+1	+0	+3	+0	Evasion
3rd	+2	+1	+3	+1	Sneak attack +2d6, trap sense +1
4th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Uncanny dodge
5th	+3	+1	+4	+1	Sneak attack +3d6
6th	+4	+2	+5	+2	Trap sense +2
7th	+5	+2	+5	+2	Sneak attack +4d6
8th	+6/+1	+2	+6	+2	Improved uncanny dodge
9th	+6/+1	+3	+6	+3	Sneak attack +5d6, trap sense +3
10th	+7/+2	+3	+7	+3	Special ability
11th	+8/+3	+3	+7	+3	Sneak attack +6d6
12th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	Trap sense +4
13th	+9/+4	+4	+8	+4	Sneak attack +7d6, special ability
14th	+10/+5	+4	+9	+4	—
15th	+11/+6/+1	+5	+9	+5	Sneak attack +8d6, trap sense +5
16th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	Special ability
17th	+12/+7/+2	+5	+10	+5	Sneak attack +9d6
18th	+13/+8/+3	+6	+11	+6	Trap sense +6
19th	+14/+9/+4	+6	+11	+6	Sneak attack +10d6, special ability
20th	+15/+10/+5	+6	+12	+6	—

SORCERER

Sorcerers create magic the way a poet creates poems, with inborn talent honed by practice.

They have no books, no mentors, no theories—just raw power that they direct at will.

Some sorcerers claim that the blood of dragons courses through their veins.

That claim may even be true in some cases—it is common knowledge that certain powerful dragons can take humanoid form and even have humanoid lovers, and it's difficult to prove that a given sorcerer does not have a dragon ancestor.

It's true that sorcerers often have striking good looks, usually with a touch of the exotic that hints at an unusual heritage.

Others hold that the claim is either an unsubstantiated boast on the part of certain sorcerers or envious gossip on the part of those who lack the sorcerer's gift.

Adventures: The typical sorcerer adventures in order to improve his abilities.

Only by testing his limits can he expand them.

A sorcerer's power is inborn—part of his soul.

Developing this power is a quest in itself for many sorcerers, regardless of how they wish to use their power.

Some good sorcerers are driven by the need to prove themselves.

Marked as different by their power, they seek to win a place in society and to prove themselves to others.

Evil sorcerers, however, also feel themselves set apart from others—apart and above.

They adventure to gain power over those they look down upon.

Characteristics: Sorcerers cast spells through innate power rather than through careful training and study.

Their magic is intuitive rather than logical.

Sorcerers know fewer spells than wizards do and acquire powerful spells more slowly than wizards, but they can cast spells more often and have no need to select and prepare their spells ahead of time.

Sorcerers do not specialize in certain schools of magic the way wizards sometimes do.

Since sorcerers gain their powers without undergoing the years of rigorous study that wizards go through, they don't have the background of arcane knowledge that most wizards have.

However, they do have more time to learn fighting skills, and they are proficient with simple weapons.

Alignment: For a sorcerer, magic is an intuitive art, not a science.

Sorcery favors the free, chaotic, creative spirit over the disciplined mind, so sorcerers tend slightly toward chaos over law.

Religion: Some sorcerers favor Boccob (god of magic), while others revere Wee Jas (goddess of death and magic). However, many sorcerers follow some other deity, or none at all.

(Wizards typically learn to follow Boccob or Wee Jas from their mentors, but most sorcerers are self-taught, with no master to induct them into a religion).

Background: Sorcerers develop rudimentary powers at puberty.

Their first spells are incomplete, spontaneous, uncontrolled, and sometimes dangerous.

A household with a budding sorcerer in it may be troubled by strange sounds or lights, which can create the impression that the place is haunted.

Eventually, the young sorcerer understands the power that he has been wielding unintentionally.

From that point on, he can begin practicing and improving his powers.

Sometimes a sorcerer is fortunate enough to come under the care of an older, more experienced sorcerer, someone who can help him understand and use his new powers.

More often, however, sorcerers are on their own, feared by erstwhile friends and misunderstood by family.

Sorcerers have no sense of identity as a group.

Unlike wizards, they gain little by sharing their knowledge and have no strong incentive to work together.

Races: Most sorcerers are humans or half-elves, but the innate talent for sorcery is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Arcane spellcasters from savage lands or from among the brutal humanoids are more likely to be sorcerers than wizards.

Kobolds are especially likely to take up this path, and they are fierce, if inarticulate, proponents of the “blood of the dragons” theory.

Other Classes: Sorcerers find that they have the most in common with members of other largely self-taught classes, such as druids and rogues.

They sometimes find themselves at odds with members of the more disciplined classes, such as paladins and monks. Since they cast the same spells as wizards but do so in a different way, they sometimes find themselves in competition with wizards.

Role: A sorcerer tends to define his role based on his spell selection.

A sorcerer who focuses on damage-dealing spells becomes a center of the party’s offensive power.

Another may rely on more subtle magics, such as charms and illusions, and thus take a quieter role.

A party with a sorcerer should strongly consider including a second spellcaster, such as a bard, cleric, druid, or even a wizard, to make up for the sorcerer’s lack of versatility.

Since a sorcerer often has a powerful presence that gives him a way with people, he may serve as the “face” for an adventuring party, negotiating, bargaining, and speaking for others.

The sorcerer’s spells often help him sway others or gain information, so he makes an excellent spy or diplomat for an adventuring party.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Sorcerers have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Charisma determines how powerful a spell a sorcerer can cast, how many spells he can cast per day, and how hard those spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

Like a wizard, a sorcerer benefits from high Dexterity and Constitution scores.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The sorcerer’s class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Bluff (Cha), Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Knowledge (arcana) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the sorcerer.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Sorcerers are proficient with all simple weapons.

They are not proficient with any type of armor or shield.

Armor of any type interferes with a sorcerer’s arcane gestures, which can cause his spells with somatic components to fail.

Spells: A sorcerer casts arcane spells (the same type of spells available to bards and wizards), which are drawn primarily from the sorcerer/wizard spell list (page 192).

He can cast any spell he knows without preparing it ahead of time, the way a wizard or a cleric must (see below).

To learn or cast a spell, a sorcerer must have a Charisma score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Cha 10 for 0-level spells, Cha 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a sorcerer’s spell is 10 + the spell level + the sorcerer’s Charisma modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a sorcerer can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

His base daily spell allotment is given on Table 3–16: The Sorcerer.

In addition, he receives bonus spells per day if he has a high Charisma score (see Table 1–1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

A sorcerer’s selection of spells is extremely limited.

A sorcerer begins play knowing four 0-level spells (also called cantrips) and two 1st-level spells of your choice.

At each new sorcerer level, he gains one or more new spells, as indicated on Table 3–17: Sorcerer Spells Known.

TABLE 3–17: SORCERER SPELLS KNOWN

Level	Spells Known
	0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	5	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	6	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	6	4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	7	4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	7	5	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	8	5	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
9th	8	5	4	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
10th	9	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
11th	9	5	5	4	3	2	—	—	—	—
12th	9	5	5	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
13th	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	—	—	—
14th	9	5	5	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
15th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	—	—
16th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
17th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	—
18th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	2	1
19th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	2
20th	9	5	5	4	4	4	3	3	3	3

(Unlike spells per day, the number of spells a sorcerer knows is not affected by his Charisma score; the numbers on Table 3–17 are fixed).

These new spells can be common spells chosen from the sorcerer/wizard spell list (page 192), or they can be unusual spells that the sorcerer has gained some understanding of by study.

For example, a sorcerer with a scroll or spellbook detailing an unusual sorcerer/wizard spell (one not on the sorcerer/wizard spell list in this book) could select that spell as one of his new spells for attaining a new level, provided that it is of the right spell level.

The sorcerer can’t use this method of spell acquisition to learn spells at a faster rate, however.

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered sorcerer level after that (6th, 8th, and so on), a sorcerer can choose to learn a new spell in place of one he already knows.

In effect, the sorcerer “loses” the old spell in exchange for the new one.

The new spell’s level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level sorcerer spell the sorcerer can cast.

For instance, upon reaching 4th-level, a sorcerer could trade in a single 0-level spell (two spell levels below the highest-level sorcerer spell he can cast, which is 2nd) for a different 0-level spell.

At 6th level, he could trade in a single 0-level or 1st-level spell (since he now can cast 3rd-level sorcerer spells) for a different spell of the same level.

A sorcerer may swap only a single spell at any given level, and must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that he gains new spells known for the level. Unlike a wizard or a cleric, a sorcerer need not prepare his spells in advance.

He can cast any spell he knows at any time, assuming he has not yet used up his spells per day for that spell level. For example, at 1st level, the sorcerer Henneshew can cast four 1st-level spells per day—three for being 1st level (see Table 3-16: The Sorcerer), plus one thanks to his Charisma score of 15 (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

However, he knows only two 1st-level spells: magic missile and sleep (see Table 3-17: Sorcerer Spells Known).

Thus, on any given day, he can cast some combination of the two spells a total of four times.

He does not have to decide ahead of time which spells he'll cast.

Familiar: A sorcerer can obtain a familiar.

Doing so takes 24 hours and uses up magical materials that cost 100 gp.

A familiar is a magical beast that resembles a small animal and is unusually tough and intelligent.

FAMILIARS

Familiars are magically linked to their masters. In some sense, the familiar and the master are practically one being. That's why, for example, the master can cast a personal range spell on a familiar even though he can normally cast such a spell only on himself. A familiar is a normal animal that gains new powers and becomes a magical beast when summoned to service by a sorcerer or wizard. It retains the appearance, Hit Dice, base attack bonus, base save bonuses, skills, and feats of the normal animal it once was, but it is treated as a magical beast instead of an animal for the purpose of any effect that depends on its type. Only a normal, unmodified animal may become a familiar. Thus, a druid/sorcerer can't use her animal companion as a familiar.

A familiar also grants special abilities to its master (a sorcerer or wizard), as given on the table below. These special abilities apply only when the master and familiar are within 1 mile of each other.

Levels of different classes that are entitled to familiars (such as sorcerer and wizard) stack for the purpose of determining any familiar abilities that depend on the master's level.

Familiar	Special
Bat	Master gains a +3 bonus on Listen checks
Cat	Master gains a +3 bonus on Move Silently checks
Hawk	Master gains a +3 bonus on Spot checks in bright light
Lizard	Master gains a +3 bonus on Climb checks
Owl	Master gains a +3 bonus on Spot checks in shadows
Rat	Master gains a +2 bonus on Fortitude saves
Raven ¹	Master gains a +3 bonus on Appraise checks
Snake ²	Master gains a +3 bonus on Bluff checks
Toad	Master gains +3 hit points
Weasel	Master gains a +2 bonus on Reflex saves

1 A raven familiar can speak one language of its master's choice as a supernatural ability.

2 Tiny viper.

The creature serves as a companion and servant.

The sorcerer chooses the kind of familiar he gets.

As the sorcerer advances in level, his familiar also increases in power.

If the familiar dies or is dismissed by the sorcerer, the sorcerer must attempt a DC 15 Fortitude saving throw.

Failure means he loses 200 experience points per sorcerer level; success reduces the loss to one-half that amount.

However, a sorcerer's experience point total can never go below 0 as the result of a familiar's demise or dismissal.

For example, suppose that Henneshew is a 3rd-level sorcerer with 3,230 XP when his owl familiar is killed by a bugbear.

Henneshew makes a successful saving throw, so he loses 300 XP, dropping him below 3,000 XP and back to 2nd level

(see the Dungeon Master's Guide for rules for losing levels).

A slain or dismissed familiar cannot be replaced for a year and day.

A slain familiar can be raised from the dead just as a character can be, and it does not lose a level or a Constitution point when this happy event occurs.

A character with more than one class that grants a familiar may have only one familiar at a time.

Familiar Basics: Use the basic statistics for a creature of the familiar's kind, as given in the Monster Manual, but make the following changes:

Hit Dice: For the purpose of effects related to number of Hit Dice, use the master's character level or the familiar's normal HD total, whichever is higher.

Hit Points: The familiar has one-half the master's total hit points (not including temporary hit points), rounded down, regardless of its actual Hit Dice. For example, at 2nd level, Henneshew has 9 hit points, so his familiar has 4.

Attacks: Use the master's base attack bonus, as calculated from all his classes. Use the familiar's Dexterity or Strength modifier, whichever is greater, to get the familiar's melee attack bonus with natural weapons. Damage equals that of a normal creature of the familiar's kind.

Saving Throws: For each saving throw, use either the familiar's base save bonus (Fortitude +2, Reflex +2, Will +0) or the master's (as calculated from all his classes), whichever is better. The familiar uses its own ability modifiers to saves, and it doesn't share any of the other bonuses that the master might have on saves (from magic items or feats, for example).

Skills: For each skill in which either the master or the familiar has ranks, use either the normal skill ranks for an animal of that type or the master's skill ranks, whichever are better. In either case, the familiar uses its own ability modifiers. Regardless of a familiar's total skill modifiers, some skills (such as Craft) may remain beyond the familiar's ability to use.

Familiar Ability Descriptions: All familiars have special abilities (or impart abilities to their masters) depending on the master's combined level in classes that grant familiars, as shown on the table below. The abilities given on the table are cumulative.

Natural Armor Adj.: The number noted here is an improvement to the familiar's existing natural armor bonus. It represents the preternatural toughness of a spellcaster's familiar.

Int: The familiar's Intelligence score. Familiars are as smart as people, though not necessarily as smart as smart people.

Alertness (Ex): The presence of the familiar sharpens its master's senses. While a familiar is within arm's reach, the master gains the Alertness feat (page 89).

Improved Evasion (Ex): When subjected to an attack that normally allows a Reflex saving throw for half damage, a familiar takes no damage if it makes a successful saving throw and half damage even if the saving throw fails.

Share Spells: At the master's option, he may have any spell (but not any spell-like ability) he casts on himself also affect his familiar. The familiar must be within 5 feet at the time of casting to receive the benefit. If the spell or effect has a duration other than instantaneous, it stops affecting the familiar if it moves farther than 5 feet away and will not affect the familiar again even if it returns to the master before the duration expires. Additionally, the master may cast a spell with a target of "You" on his familiar (as a touch range spell) instead of on himself. A master and his familiar can share spells even if the spells normally do not affect creatures of the familiar's type (magical beast).

Empathic Link (Su): The master has an empathic link with his familiar out to a distance of up to 1 mile. The master cannot see through the familiar's eyes, but they can communicate empathically. Because of the limited nature of the link, only general emotional content (such as fear, hunger, happiness, curiosity) can be communicated. Note that the low Intelligence of a low-level master's familiar limits what the creature is able to communicate or understand, and even intelligent familiars see the world differently from humans, so misunderstandings are always possible.

Because of this empathic link, the master has the same connection to an item or place that his familiar does. For instance, if his familiar has seen a room, the master can teleport into that room as if he has seen it too.

Deliver Touch Spells (Su): If the master is 3rd level or higher, a familiar can deliver touch spells for him. If the master and the familiar are in contact at the time the master casts a touch spell, he can designate his familiar as the "toucher." The familiar can then deliver the touch spell just as the master could. As usual, if the master casts another spell before the touch is delivered, the touch spell dissipates.

Speak with Master (Ex): If the master is 5th level or higher, a familiar and the master can communicate verbally as if they were using a common language. Other creatures do not understand the communication without magical help.

Speak with Animals of Its Kind (Ex): If the master is 7th level or higher, a familiar can communicate with animals of approximately the same kind as itself (including dire varieties): bats with bats, rats with rodents, cats with felines, hawks and owls and ravens with birds, lizards and snakes with reptiles, toads with amphibians, weasels with similar creatures (weasels, minks, polecats, ermines, skunks, wolverines, and badgers). Such communication is limited by the intelligence of the conversing creatures.

Spell Resistance (Ex): If the master is 11th level or higher, a familiar gains spell resistance equal to the master's level + 5. To affect the familiar with a spell, another spellcaster must get a result on a caster level check (1d20 + caster level; see Spell Resistance, page 177) that equals or exceeds the familiar's spell resistance.

Scry on Familiar (Sp): If the master is 13th level or higher, he may scry on his familiar (as if casting the scrying spell) once per day.

Master Class Level	Natural Armor Adj.	Int	Special
1st–2nd	+1	6	Alertness, improved evasion, share spells, empathic link
3rd–4th	+2	7	Deliver touch spells
5th–6th	+3	8	Speak with master
7th–8th	+4	9	Speak with animals of its kind
9th–10th	+5	10	—
11th–12th	+6	11	Spell resistance
13th–14th	+7	12	Scry on familiar
15th–16th	+8	13	—
17th–18th	+9	14	—
19th–20th	+10	15	—

HUMAN SORCERER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None (speed 30 ft.).

Weapons: Short spear (1d6, crit ×2, range inc. 20 ft., 3 lb., one-handed, piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Bluff	4	Cha	—
Gather Information (cc)	2	Cha	—
Diplomacy (cc)	2	Cha	—
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	0
Move Silently (cc)	2	Dex	0

Feat: Toughness.

Bonus Feat: Combat Casting.

Spells Known: 0-level spells—detect magic, ghost sound, light, read magic.

1st-level spells—magic missile, sleep.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 5 pints of oil.

Spell component pouch.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 3d4 gp.

TABLE 3-16: THE SORCERER

Level	Base	Fort	Ref	Will	Special	Spells per Day
	Attack Bonus	Save	Save	Save		0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Summon familiar	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3		6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3		6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4		6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4		6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5		6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5		6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6		6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6		6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7		6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7		6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9		6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12		6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6

WIZARD

A few unintelligible words and fleeting gestures carry more power than a battleaxe, when they are the words and gestures of a wizard.

These simple acts make magic seem easy, but they only hint at the time the wizard must spend poring over her spellbook preparing each spell for casting, and the years before that spent in apprenticeship to learn the arts of magic.

Wizards depend on intensive study to create their magic. They examine musty old tomes, debate magical theory with their peers, and practice minor magics whenever they can. For a wizard, magic is not a talent but a difficult, rewarding art.

Adventures: Wizards conduct their adventures with caution and forethought.

When prepared, they can use their spells to devastating effect.

When caught by surprise, they are vulnerable.

They seek knowledge, power, and the resources to conduct their studies.

They may also have any of the noble or ignoble motivations that other adventurers have.

Characteristics: The wizard's strength is her spells.

Everything else is secondary.

She learns new spells as she experiments and grows in experience, and she can also learn them from other wizards.

In addition to learning new spells, a wizard can, over time, learn to manipulate her spells so they go farther, work better, or are improved in some other way.

Some wizards prefer to specialize in a certain type of magic. Specialization makes a wizard more powerful in her chosen field, but it denies her access to some of the spells that lie outside that field.

(See School Specialization, page 57).

Like a sorcerer, a wizard can call a familiar—a small, magical animal companion that serves her.

For some wizards, their familiars are their only true friends.

Alignment: Overall, wizards show a slight tendency toward law over chaos because the study of magic rewards those who are disciplined.

Illusionists and transmuters, however, are masters of deception and change, respectively.

They favor chaos over law.

Religion: Wizards commonly revere Boccob (god of magic).

Some, especially necromancers or simply more misanthropic wizards, prefer Wee Jas (goddess of death and magic).

Evil necromancers are known to worship Nerull (god of death).

Wizards in general are more devoted to their studies than to their spiritual sides.

Background: Wizards recognize each other as comrades or rivals.

Even wizards from very different cultures or magical traditions have much in common because they all conform to the same laws of magic.

Unlike fighters or rogues, wizards see themselves as members of a distinct, if diverse, group.

In civilized lands where wizards study in academies, schools, or guilds, wizards also identify themselves and others according to membership in these formal organizations.

But while a guild magician may look down her nose at a rustic wizard who learned his arts from a doddering hermit, she nevertheless can't deny the rustic's identity as a wizard.

Races: Humans take to magic for any of various reasons: curiosity, ambition, lust for power, or just personal inclination.

Human wizards tend to be practical innovators, creating new spells or using old spells creatively.

Elves are enthralled by magic, and many of them become wizards for love of the art.

Elf wizards see themselves as artists, and they hold magic in high regard as a wondrous mystery, as opposed to the more pragmatic human wizards, who see magic more as a set of tools or tricks.

Illusion magic comes so simply to gnomes that becoming an illusionist is just natural to brighter and more talented ones.

Gnome wizards who don't specialize in the school of illusion are rare, but they don't suffer under any special stigma.

Half-elf wizards feel both the elf's attraction to magic and the human's drive to conquer and understand. Some of the most powerful wizards are half-elves. Dwarf and halfling wizards are rare because their societies don't encourage the study of magic.

Half-orc wizards are rare because few half-orcs have the brains necessary for wizardry.

Drow (evil, subterranean elves) often take up wizardry, but wizards are quite rare among the savage humanoids.

Other Classes: Wizards prefer to work with members of other classes.

They love to cast their spells from behind strong fighters, to "magic up" rogues and send them out to scout, and to rely on the divine healing of clerics.

They may find members of certain classes (such as sorcerers, rogues, and bards) to be not quite serious enough, but they're not judgmental.

Role: The wizard's role depends somewhat on her spell selection, but most wizards share certain similarities in function.

They are among the most offensively minded of the spellcasting classes, with a broad range of options available for neutralizing enemies.

Some wizards provide great support to their comrades by way of their spells, while others may focus on divination or other facets of wizardry.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Wizards have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Intelligence determines how powerful a spell a wizard can cast, how many spells she can cast, and how hard those spells are to resist (see Spells, below).

A high Dexterity score is helpful for a wizard, who typically wears little or no armor, because it provides her with a bonus to Armor Class.

A good Constitution score gives a wizard extra hit points, a resource that she is otherwise very low on.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The wizard's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration (Con), Craft (Int), Decipher Script (Int), Knowledge (all skills, taken individually) (Int), Profession (Wis), and Spellcraft (Int).

See Chapter 4: Skills for skill descriptions.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the wizard.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Wizards are proficient with the club, dagger, heavy crossbow, light crossbow, and quarterstaff, but not with any type of armor or shield.

Armor of any type interferes with a wizard's movements, which can cause her spells with somatic components to fail.

Spells: A wizard casts arcane spells (the same type of spells available to sorcerers and bards), which are drawn from the sorcerer/wizard spell list (page 192).

A wizard must choose and prepare her spells ahead of time (see below).

To learn, prepare, or cast a spell, the wizard must have an Intelligence score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Int 10 for 0-level spells, Int 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a wizard's spell is 10 + the spell level + the wizard's Intelligence modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a wizard can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Her base daily spell allotment is given on Table 3-18: The Wizard.

In addition, she receives bonus spells per day if she has a high Intelligence score (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8).

Unlike a bard or sorcerer, a wizard may know any number of spells (see Writing a New Spell into a Spellbook, page 179).

She must choose and prepare her spells ahead of time by getting a good night's sleep and spending 1 hour studying her spellbook.

While studying, the wizard decides which spells to prepare (see Preparing Wizard Spells, page 177).

Bonus Languages: A wizard may substitute Draconic for one of the bonus languages available to the character because of her race (see Chapter 2: Races).

Many ancient tomes of magic are written in Draconic, and apprentice wizards often learn it as part of their studies.

Familiar: A wizard can obtain a familiar in exactly the same manner as a sorcerer can.

See the sorcerer description and the accompanying Familiars sidebar for details.

Scribe Scroll: At 1st level, a wizard gains Scribe Scroll as a bonus feat.

This feat enables her to create magic schools (see Scribe Scroll, page 99, and Creating Magic Items, page 282 of the Dungeon Master's Guide).

Bonus Feats: At 5th, 10th, 15th, and 20th level, a wizard gains a bonus feat.

At each such opportunity, she can choose a metamagic feat, an item creation feat, or Spell Mastery.

The wizard must still meet all prerequisites for a bonus feat, including caster level minimums.

(See Chapter 5 for descriptions of feats and their prerequisites).

These bonus feats are in addition to the feat that a character of any class gets every three levels (as given on Table 3-2: Experience and Level-Dependent Benefits, page 22).

The wizard is not limited to the categories of item creation feats, metamagic feats, or Spell Mastery when choosing these feats.

Spellbooks: A wizard must study her spellbook each day to prepare her spells (see Preparing Wizard Spells, page 177). She cannot prepare any spell not recorded in her spellbook, except for read magic, which all wizards can prepare from memory.

A wizard begins play with a spellbook containing all 0-level wizard spells (except those from her prohibited school or schools, if any; see School Specialization, page 57) plus three 1st-level spells of your choice.

For each point of Intelligence bonus the wizard has (see Table 1-1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8), the spellbook holds one additional 1st-level spell of your choice.

At each new wizard level, she gains two new spells of any spell level or levels that she can cast (based on her new wizard level) for her spellbook.

For example, when a wizard attains 5th level, she can cast 3rd-level spells.

At this point, she can add two new 3rd-level spells to her spellbook, or one 2nd-level spell and one 3rd-level spell, or any combination of two spells between 1st and 3rd level.

At any time, a wizard can also add spells found in other wizards' spellbooks to her own (see Adding Spells to a Wizard's Spellbook, page 178).

ELF WIZARD STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None (speed 30 ft.).

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6/1d6, crit ×2, 4 lb., two-handed, bludgeoning).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/×2, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Spellcraft	4	Int	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Knowledge (arcana)	4	Int	—
Decipher Script	4	Int	—
Hide (cc)	2	Dex	0
Move Silently (cc)	2	Dex	0
Search (cc)	2	Int	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

TABLE 3–18: THE WIZARD

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Summon familiar, Scribe scroll	3	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3		4	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3		4	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4		4	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4		4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5		4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5		4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6		4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6		4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7		4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7		4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9		4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9		4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	2	1
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3	2
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	3
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12		4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4

ARCANE SPELLS AND ARMOR

Wizards and sorcerers do not know how to wear armor effectively. If desired, they can wear armor anyway (though they'll be clumsy in it), or they can gain training in the proper use of armor (with the various Armor Proficiency feats—light, medium, and heavy—and the Shield Proficiency feat), or they can multiclass to add a class that grants them armor proficiency (see Multiclass Characters later in this chapter). Even if a wizard or sorcerer is wearing armor with which he or she is proficient, however, it might still interfere with spellcasting.

Most characters have a difficult time casting arcane spells while wearing armor or carrying shields (see Arcane Spell Failure, page 122). The armor restricts the complicated gestures that a wizard or sorcerer must make while casting any spell that has a somatic component (most do). To find the arcane spell failure chance for a wizard or sorcerer wearing a certain type of armor, see Table 7–6: Armor and Shields (page 123).

Feat: Toughness.

School Specialization: None.

Spellbook: All 0-level spells; plus charm person, summon monster I, and sleep; plus one of these spells of your choice per point of Intelligence bonus (if any): cause fear, color spray, magic missile, and silent image.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Ten candles, map case, three pages of parchment, ink, inkpen.

Spell component pouch, spellbook.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Gold: 3d6 gp.

By contrast, bards not only know how to wear light armor effectively, but they can also ignore the arcane spell failure chance for such armor. However, they too wear heavier armor ineffectively and must either learn to wear heavier armor via the appropriate Armor Proficiency feat (medium or heavy) or add a class (such as fighter) that grants them such proficiency as a class feature. A bard wearing armor heavier than light or using any type of shield incurs the normal arcane spell failure chance, even if he becomes proficient with that armor.

If a spell doesn't have a somatic component, an arcane spellcaster can cast it with no problem while wearing armor. Such spells can also be cast even if the caster's hands are bound or if he or she is grappling (although Concentration checks still apply normally). Also, the metamagic feat Still Spell allows a spellcaster to prepare or cast a spell at one spell level higher than normal without the somatic component. This also provides a way to cast a spell while wearing armor without risking arcane spell failure. See Chapter 5: Feats for more about metamagic feats such as Still Spell.

SCHOOL SPECIALIZATION

A school is one of eight groupings of spells, each defined by a common theme, such as illusion or necromancy. If desired, a wizard may specialize in one school of magic (see below). Specialization allows a wizard to cast extra spells from her chosen school, but she then never learns to cast spells from some other schools. Essentially, the wizard gains exceptional mastery over a single school by neglecting the study of other schools.

A specialist wizard can prepare one additional spell of her specialty school per spell level each day. She also gains a +2 bonus on Spellcraft checks to learn the spells of her chosen school (see Adding Spells to a Wizard's Spellbook, page 178).

The wizard must choose whether to specialize and, if she does so, choose her specialty at 1st level. At this time, she must also give up two other schools of magic (unless she chooses to specialize in divination; see below), which become her prohibited schools. For instance, if she chooses to specialize in conjuration, she might decide to give up enchantment and necromancy, or evocation and transmutation. A wizard can never give up divination to fulfill this requirement. Spells of the prohibited school or schools are not available to the wizard, and she can't even cast such spells from scrolls or fire them from wands. She may not change either her specialization or her prohibited schools later.

The eight schools of arcane magic are abjuration, conjuration, divination, enchantment, evocation, illusion, necromancy, and trans-mutation. Spells that do not fall into any of these schools are called universal spells.

Abjuration: Spells that protect, block, or banish. An abjuration specialist is called an abjurer.

Conjuration: Spells that bring creatures or materials to the caster. A conjuration specialist is called a conjurer.

Divination: Spells that reveal information. A divination specialist is called a diviner. Unlike the other specialists, a diviner must give up only one other school.

Enchantment: Spells that imbue the recipient with some property or grant the caster power over another being. An enchantment specialist is called an enchanter.

Evocation: Spells that manipulate energy or create something from nothing. An evocation specialist is called an evoker.

Illusion: Spells that alter perception or create false images. An illusion specialist is called an illusionist.

Necromancy: Spells that manipulate, create, or destroy life or life force. A necromancy specialist is called a necromancer.

Transmutation: Spells that transform the recipient physically or change its properties in a more subtle way. A transmutation specialist is called a transmuter.

Universal: Not a school, but a category for spells that all wizards can learn. A wizard cannot select universal as a specialty school or as a prohibited school. Only a limited number of spells fall into this category.

PLAYER'S HANDBOOK 2 (3.5)

BEGUILER

"You know me.

I'm as good as my word, and my life is an open book."

—said with a straight face by Anastria Nailo, half-elf beguiler

Some hold truth to be the greatest virtue, but it can do more damage than fiction.

Everyone lives in a constant state of deception.

White lies, false smiles, and secret thoughts keep society running smoothly.

Honesty is a virtue only up to a certain point.

Beguilers understand these ideas better than anyone, and they use deception, misunderstanding, and secrets as skillfully as a soldier employs weapons of war.

Beguilers see lying and manipulation as tools.

Just as a hammer can be used to build a house or crack a skull, deceit and the ability to control others can be used for good or ill.

A lie whispered in the right ear can ruin lives, but a dishonest smile and honeyed words can open doors, turn foes into friends, and even end wars.

Beguilers have reputations as rakes, thieves, spies, and puppet masters, but they can also be diplomats, peacemakers, or heroic leaders who give hope in desperate situations.

If you delight in manipulating others, either to their disadvantage or for their own good, then the beguiler is the class for you.

More than any other kind of character, you rely on Charisma-based skills to change the reactions of others, while your other class abilities enable you to catch others off guard with devastating spell-based attacks.

MAKING A BEGUILER

As a beguiler, you possess many useful skills and spells.

If your adventuring group lacks a rogue, you make a great substitute for all but the rogue's melee combat strengths.

If the group lacks a wizard or other arcane caster, you can also fill that role with your command of illusions and enchantments, although you lack a wizard's array of spells that deal damage and you possess less spellcasting versatility.

Your main strategy should be to control enemies, bolster your allies, and take command of the battlefield.

Abilities: Beguilers have quick wits, deft hands, and compelling personalities.

You need a high Intelligence to get the most from your spells and skills.

A high Charisma helps you be more convincing in your deceptions, while a high Dexterity helps you with the sneaky tasks you are likely to pursue.

Don't neglect Constitution; although you have the same Hit Die as a rogue, your Constitution score influences your ability to cast defensively and thus how well you can use your surprise casting class feature.

Races: Beguilers can be found among any race, but gnomes and half-elves seem to most appreciate the beguilers' flexible philosophy about truth.

Being tricksters and inquisitive by nature, gnomes gravitate to the beguiler class due to the interesting deeds it allows them to accomplish.

Half-elves, trapped as they are between the worlds of elves and humans, find that a beguiler's abilities help them better exist in both.

Humans, elves, and halflings also foster beguilers in their midst, but dwarves and half-orcs rarely become members of the class.

Dwarves tend to dislike dissembling, and half-orcs typically lack the mental discipline and likable personality required to make a good beguiler.

Alignment: The beguilers' outlook about truth is neither good nor evil, and beguilers of all alignments walk the world.

Nevertheless, those well practiced in the arts of deception and manipulation rarely put much stock in others' laws, and they often display a self-centered attitude. Lawful good beguilers are like lawful good necromancers—rare and foreign even to their fellows.

Starting Gold: 6d4×10 gp (150 gp).

Starting Age: As wizard (PH 109).

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Appraise, Balance, Bluff, Climb, Concentration, Decipher Script, Diplomacy, Disable Device, Disguise, Escape Artist, Forgery, Gather Information, Hide, Jump, Knowledge (arcana), Knowledge (local), Listen, Move Silently, Open Lock, Profession, Search, Sense Motive, Sleight of Hand, Speak Language, Spellcraft, Spot, Swim, Tumble, Use Magic Device.

CLASS FEATURES

Your spells and skills make you well suited to espionage and dungeon delving.

In addition to being able to find and disarm traps your group might encounter, you can charm and confound guards, turning what could be dangerous encounters into simple steps toward your goal.

In combat, you can use your spells to trick and outmaneuver foes.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Beguilers are proficient with all simple weapons plus the hand crossbow, rapier, shortbow, and short sword.

Beguilers are proficient with light armor, but not with shields.

Spells: A beguiler casts arcane spells, which are drawn from the beguiler spell list on page 11.

When you gain access to a new level of spells, you automatically know all the spells for that level on the beguiler's spell list.

You can cast any spell you know without preparing it ahead of time.

Essentially, your spell list is the same as your spells known list.

You also have the option of adding to your existing spell list through your advanced learning class feature (see below) as you increase in level.

To cast a beguiler spell, you must have an Intelligence score of 10 + the spell's level (Int 10 for 0-level spells, Int 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against a beguiler's spell is 10 + the spell's level + the beguiler's Int modifier.

Like other spellcasters, a beguiler can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

The base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1–1.

In addition, you receive bonus spells for a high Intelligence score (PH 8).

A beguiler need not prepare spells in advance.

You can cast any spell you know at any time, assuming you have not yet used up your spells per day for that spell level.

Armored Mage (Ex): Normally, armor of any type interferes with an arcane spellcaster's gestures, which can cause your spells to fail if those spells have a somatic component.

A beguiler's limited focus and specialized training, however, allow you to avoid any chance of arcane spell failure as long as you restrict yourself to light armor.

This training does not extend to any other form of armor, nor does this ability apply to spells gained from other spellcasting classes.

Trapfinding: Beguilers can use the Search skill to locate traps when the task has a Difficulty Class higher than 20. Finding a nonmagical trap has a DC of at least 20, or higher if it is well hidden.

Finding a magic trap has a DC of 25 + the level of the spell used to create it.

Beguilers can use the Disable Device skill to disarm magic traps.

A magic trap typically has a DC of 25 + the level of the spell used to create it.

A beguiler who beats a trap's DC by 10 or more with a Disable Device check can study a trap, figure out how it works, and bypass it (with his allies) without disarming it. Cloaked Casting (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, a beguiler's spells become more effective when cast against an unwary foe.

You gain a +1 bonus to the spell's save DC when you cast a spell that targets any foe who would be denied a Dexterity bonus to AC (whether the target actually has a Dexterity bonus or not).

At 8th level, you gain a +2 bonus on rolls made to overcome the spell resistance of any affected target.

At 14th level, the bonus to your spell's save DC increases to +2.

At 20th level, you become able to automatically overcome the spell resistance of any affected target.

Surprise Casting (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, when you successfully use the Bluff skill to feint in combat, your target is denied its Dexterity bonus (if it has one) to AC for the next melee attack you make against it or the next spell you cast.

You must remain in melee with the target, and the attack must be made or the spell cast on or before your next turn. The target is not considered flat-footed and therefore can make attacks of opportunity against you if you do not cast defensively.

At 6th level, you gain the ability to feint in combat as a move action instead of a standard action.

If you have the Improved Feint feat, you can now feint in combat as a swift action.

Advanced Learning (Ex): At 3rd level, you can add a new spell to your list, representing the result of personal study and experimentation.

The spell must be a sorcerer/wizard spell of the enchantment or illusion school and of a level no higher than that of the highest-level spell you already know.

Once a new spell is selected, it is forever added to your spell list and can be cast just like any other spell on your list.

You gain another new spell at 7th, 11th, 15th, and 19th level.

Silent Spell: At 5th level, you gain Silent Spell as a bonus feat.

Still Spell: At 10th level, you gain Still Spell as a bonus feat.

PLAYING A BEGUILER

Truth lies in the eye of the beholder.

Manipulation of truth—and others' visions of it—is a part of life.

Everyone does it; you just do it better than everyone else. If you nudge someone into doing something he otherwise wouldn't have done, that person still did the actual deed, and some part of him must have wanted it done.

You trick fools, charm egocentrics, influence schemers, and control the weak-willed.

In a way, you're doing them a favor.

If they're clever enough to figure out they've been manipulated, they'll be better prepared to defend themselves against the later manipulations of those who mean them harm.

If they don't figure it out, they'll get tricked again, but that's no concern of yours.

Life is a game that you win by coming out on top, and the best way to do that is to convince others to give you a boost. You might adventure because you desire excitement. Someone with your smarts gets bored with mundane pursuits.

Alternatively, you might have set off on a life of adventure after some trick or manipulation gone wrong.

You have to keep moving, and adventuring offers you a regular change of scenery.

In any case, a life of adventure allows you to see new things, meet interesting people, and garner a name for yourself.

Of course, it might not be your real name, but fame is fame. You always look to expand your knowledge and increase your power.

You are clever enough to know there's always more to learn.

Although you tend to be self-reliant, you understand the value of friendship and allies in your pursuits.

Truth might be mutable, but friends value honesty and trust, so you make sure not to entangle your allies in your webs of lies and trickery.

RELIGION

Beguilers favor deities who share their unfettered outlook and who would seem to appreciate their schemes and strategies.

Most beguilers look to Olidammara for obvious reasons, but others prefer Fharlanghn since he shares their love of new beginnings and travel.

Gnome beguilers largely put their faith in Garl Glittergold, and some nongnome beguilers follow suit.

Many also follow Boccob; the Lord of All Magics cares little to what use beguilers put their spells, and beguilers prefer it that way.

Evil beguilers often join Vecna's fold—the Master of All that Is Secret and Hidden welcomes beguilers, manipulating them toward ever greater acts of villainy even as they take advantage of their victims.

OTHER CLASSES

Few know of characters such as yourself because many beguilers pretend to be something other than what they are, and you can easily pass as a rogue, bard, wizard, or sorcerer.

Those who learn of the class often have a poor impression of beguilers unless they call one a friend.

Wizards consider characters such as you to be undisciplined and limited in their magic.

Knights, paladins, and monks rightly think of you as untrustworthy.

Rangers, dragon shamans, barbarians, and druids rarely have patience for your prevarications and your enjoyment of civilized society.

Rogues, duskblades, sorcerers, and fighters tend to be more practical: If your abilities make their jobs easier, then you find a welcome reception.

Bards often find the life led by beguilers fascinating and are intrigued by a beguiler's exploits.

COMBAT

You're at your best when you can catch foes unaware.

Use your spells to hide and disguise yourself and your allies so that you can employ surprise tactics.

If you get into melee, use the Bluff skill to feint in combat and thus get the drop on your enemy with cloaked casting or surprise casting.

Control the terrain with spells such as grease and fog cloud. Control foes with charm person and dominate monster spells.

ADVANCEMENT

Remaining a beguiler typically presents the best course of advancement.

The rogue class might seem like a natural choice for multiclassing, but you don't gain much from taking levels in it.

Although it gives you the sneak attack ability, it detracts from your spellcasting prowess.

You should assign skill points according to your role in your adventuring group.

If the group already has a rogue who is good at finding traps and sneaking about, boost your ranks in social skills such as Diplomacy and Gather Information.

Remember that you can use spells such as invisibility and silence for stealth, and spells such as knock and spider climb to do things for which rogues must use skills.

High bonuses in Bluff and Concentration are a must if you're going to use the surprise casting ability.

You have many good options for feats, but be sure to take Combat Casting, Combat Expertise, and Improved Feint to get the most from surprise casting and cloaked casting. Complete Adventurer offers Mobile Spellcasting, a feat that allows you to cast a spell and move as a single standard action.

Combining this with the benefits provided to you by Improved Feint and the Tumble skill, you could move into melee, feint, and cast a spell that gets the benefit of cloaked casting or surprise casting.

You should also consider taking the Battle Caster feat from Complete Arcane, which allows a beguiler to wear medium armor without spell failure.

Combining it with the Armor Proficiency (medium) feat gives you much greater protection.

If you're interested in having a lot of feats, it might be worthwhile to take a level of fighter, since the 1st level of the fighter class gives you proficiency with all types of armor and a bonus feat you could use for Combat Expertise or Improved Feint.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Controller

Human Beguiler

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 12, Int 15, Wis 10, Cha 13.

Skills: Bluff, Concentration, Disable Device, Hide, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Sense Motive, Spot.

Languages: Common, Goblin, Orc.

Feat: Improved Initiative, Spell Focus (enchantment).

Weapons: Short sword (1d6/19–20), Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, spell component pouch, thieves' tools, 20 gp.

Package 2: The Investigator

Half-Elf Beguiler

Ability Scores: Str 8, Dex 14, Con 10, Int 15, Wis 12, Cha 13.

Skills: Bluff, Gather Information, Hide, Move Silently, Open Lock, Search, Sense Motive, Spot.

Languages: Common, Dwarven, Elven, Goblin.

Feat: Spell Focus (enchantment) Weapons: Rapier (1d6/18–20), shortbow with 20 arrows (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, spell component pouch, thieves' tools, 23 gp.

Package 3: The Trickster

Gnome Beguiler

Ability Scores: Str 10, Dex 14, Con 12, Int 15, Wis 8, Cha 13.

Skills: Bluff, Disguise, Escape Artist, Hide, Move Silently, Search, Spot, Use Magic Device.

Languages: Common, Giant, Gnome, Goblin.

Feat: Spell Focus (illusion).

Weapons: Morningstar (1d6), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy steel shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, spell component pouch, thieves' tools, 40 gp.

BEGUILERS IN THE WORLD

"Just wait 'till I get my hands on her.

No one makes a fool of Obramus Tumbor!"

—Obramus Tumbor, being made a fool of by a beguiler

The beguiler class gives players a chance to play the archetypal trickster.

The class provides the skill set of a rogue and a selection of arcane spells without the complications of balancing multiple classes.

Beguilers also make great villains.

By manipulating NPCs and situations the PCs encounter, an evil beguiler can operate behind the scenes and trick the adventurers to his own ends.

DAILY LIFE

The way a beguiler behaves depends on his or her individual sense of morality.

Some think nothing of adopting false identities or impersonating others as a matter of course.

They rely on their spells and their charm to get others to give them what they want.

Other beguilers find themselves driven to use their powers of persuasion to help people.

They see the daily troubles of others and can't help getting involved in solving arguments, matchmaking, and ending feuds.

Regardless of outlook, a beguiler in a civilized area rarely gets bored.

There's always something to meddle in or some grand scheme to enact.

Beguilers can become great leaders.

With their sharp minds and great charisma, beguilers would be natural leaders were it not for their inconstancy. Beguilers regularly devise brilliant plans for espionage or trickery—plans that usually require them to play a major role—but their natural penchant for improvisation and secrecy often means that such plans possess unpredictable elements or key parts hidden from all other participants. If a beguiler earns the trust of companions, they value her leadership.

Lacking that trust, a beguiler rarely leads for long.

NOTABLES

Beguilers often gain notoriety for their deeds, although usually under a false identity.

They earn fame, rather than infamy, when they use their abilities to serve a greater good.

Anastria Nailo did so when she tricked an entire orc army into a box canyon where it could be ambushed, and again when she charmed a leader of a city and learned that he had already been charmed by a mind flayer.

Since she was pretending to be a famous elf bard at the time, Anastira can still maintain a low profile despite her famous deeds, which is just the way she likes it.

ORGANIZATIONS

Beguilers don't organize together, but they often join other organizations, especially thieves guilds and secret political groups.

A beguiler joining an organization probably has a specific goal in mind and takes a position that best allows her to attain it.

A long-term commitment to such a group rarely appeals to a beguiler, but if the organization champions a cause close to the beguiler's heart, it can count on her very best efforts.

NPC REACTIONS

Few common folk understand beguilers to be different from sorcerers or wizards who have some rogue training, and many more mistake them for bards.

Beguilers further confuse the issue by regularly adopting false identities and hiding their varied abilities.

Thus, the reaction a beguiler gets from those she meets depends on what she is pretending to be at the time.

Individuals who know about the beguiler class and the outlook common to its members greet beguilers with an attitude one step more hostile than normal.

Paladins and knights in particular look poorly upon beguilers, as does anyone who puts great importance in forthrightness.

BEGUILER LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana) can research beguilers to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs. DC 15: Beguilers are arcane spellcasters who focus on illusions and enchantments.

They employ deception and compulsory magic to get what they want.

DC 20: Beguilers can cast spells in light armor, and they have many of the skills of rogues.

BEGUILERS IN THE GAME

Beguilers fit smoothly into any ongoing game, since they are little known and don't require the insertion of an organization into the world or the addition of lots of new mechanics to the game.

You can have a beguiler first appear as a villain when players discover a secret manipulator behind foul deeds they have been investigating.

A beguiler might first appear as a foe and end up an ally, or the reverse could happen.

A PC beguiler can be introduced to the party just as any rogue, bard, or wizard would be.

Think of a beguiler as similar to Loki of Norse myth or the Coyote in Native American tales.

The player of a beguiler wants her to be smooth, sly, smart, likable, and light on her feet.

Keeping this player happy is a matter of helping the player to feel that way.

You might be tempted to make the player's schemes go awry because that seems more interesting to you, but instead you should allow good schemes to work most of the time.

Let a player with a beguiler character feel empowered to try crazy ideas and dangerous plans.

If it becomes too much of a good thing, then that's when the guards see through her disguise or the villain allows the unwitting PCs to infiltrate their way into his clutches.

ADAPTATION

When adapting the beguiler to your campaign, look at how rogues and bards fit into your game.

The beguiler fills a similar niche, and any organizations that cater to such classes likely prove helpful for beguilers.

A thieves' guild might have a small cabal of beguilers associated with it.

The beguilers aid the guild on any missions that require their magical talents.

In return, the beguilers receive protection, a share of the loot, and a headquarters.

Young thieves who show a knack for magic might be shepherded into the beguiler class.

In a kingdom or land where magic is common, beguilers might replace the typical rogue, diplomat, or spy.

A bandit gang might consist of several beguilers and a number of fighters.

In such lands, magic supersedes a rogue's talent with skills.

With their talent for deception, a beguiler might have a reputation similar to the ninja.

The common folk fear the beguilers for their ability to bend minds and to use magic to slip away from the authorities.

Every royal court employs a few mages charged with using their spells to ferret out beguilers.

In this case, the beguilers are secretive, clannish, and difficult to find.

They gather in secret societies and never reveal their lore to those whom they do not trust.

Becoming a beguiler is a process of winning the trust of one's master, not simply mastering a few simple spells.

BEGUILER SPELL LIST

The beguiler's spell list appears below.

Spells printed in this book are marked with an asterisk. 0 Level: dancing lights, daze, detect magic, ghost sound, message, open/close, read magic.

1st Level: charm person, color spray, comprehend languages, detect secret doors, disguise self, expeditious retreat, hypnotism, mage armor, obscuring mist, *rouse, silent image, sleep, undetected alignment, *whelm.

2nd Level: *blinding color surge, blur, daze monster, detect thoughts, fog cloud, glitterdust, hypnotic pattern, invisibility, knock, minor image, mirror image, misdirection, see invisibility, silence, spider climb, *stay the hand, touch of idiocy, *vertigo, *whelming burst.

3rd Level: arcane sight, clairaudience/clairvoyance, *crown of veils, deep slumber, dispel magic, displacement, glibness, *halt, haste, *hesitate, hold person, *inevitable defeat, invisibility sphere, *legion of sentinels, major image, nondetection, slow, suggestion, *vertigo field, zone of silence.

4th Level: charm monster, confusion, crushing despair, freedom of movement, greater invisibility, *greater mirror image, locate creature, *mass whelm, *phantom battle, rainbow pattern, solid fog.

5th Level: break enchantment, dominate person, feeblemind, *friend to foe, hold monster, *incite riot, mind fog, Rary's telepathic bond, seeming, sending, *swift etherealness.

6th Level: greater dispel magic, mass suggestion, mislead, *overwhelm, repulsion, shadow walk, true seeing, veil.

7th Level: ethereal jaunt, greater arcane sight, mass hold person, mass invisibility, phase door, power word blind, project image, spell turning.

8th Level: demand, discern location, mind blank, moment of prescience, power word stun, scintillating pattern, screen.

9th Level: dominate monster, etherealness, foresight, mass hold monster, power word kill, time stop.

TABLE 1-1: THE BEGUILER HIT DIE: d6

Level	Base				Special	— Spells per Day —
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save		0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
1st	+0	+0	+0	+2	Armored mage, trapfinding	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2nd	+1	+0	+0	+3	Cloaked casting (+1 DC), surprise casting	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3rd	+1	+1	+1	+3	Advanced learning	6	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4th	+2	+1	+1	+4	—	6	6	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5th	+2	+1	+1	+4	Silent Spell	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Surprise casting (move action)	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
7th	+3	+2	+2	+5	Advanced learning	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—	—
8th	+4	+2	+2	+6	Cloaked casting (+2 to overcome SR)	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—	—
9th	+4	+3	+3	+6	—	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—	—
10th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Still Spell	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—	—
11th	+5	+3	+3	+7	Advanced learning	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—	—
12th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—	—
13th	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—	—
14th	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9	Cloaked casting (+2 DC)	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—	—
15th	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9	Advanced learning	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—	—
16th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3	—
17th	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4	—
18th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	—	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5	3
19th	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Advanced learning	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	4
20th	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Cloaked casting (overcomes SR)	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	5

DRAGON SHAMAN

"I possess a dragon's power.

Beware lest you awaken that dragon's wrath."

—Kalia, last and greatest dragon shaman of the Blackspear tribe

Empires crumble, eons pass, and even gods wither and die, but dragons remain.

Mortal but eternal, the races of true dragons weather the roll of the ages because of their unsurpassed might.

Few creatures can match a dragon in its full fury, whether in a combat of arms or battle of wits.

Dragon shamans recognize this fact and see true dragons as more than powerful beings.

To a dragon shaman, the passing shadow of a dragon flying overhead isn't a sign that invokes fear; it's a blessing that reveals you to be in the presence of greatness.

Dragon shamans respect true dragons as power incarnate. Some worship dragons, but most simply aspire to gain dragon powers for themselves.

In assuming the abilities and the likeness of a dragon, a dragon shaman seeks to emulate that might and embody that power within himself.

If you gaze at dragons with awe and aspire to share their power and majesty, then the dragon shaman is the class for you.

By choosing a totem dragon, you partake of a true dragon's power and take on aspects of a particular kind of dragon.

MAKING A DRAGON SHAMAN

As a dragon shaman, you primarily act as a melee combatant, but your class features also allow you to grant benefits to those fighting around you.

In a standard group of adventurers, you can stand in for the fighter or the cleric.

Your combat prowess isn't quite as great as a fighter's, but you can employ special attacks and special defenses a fighter can't access.

Although you lack many of the cleric's specialized spells, you do possess the ability to heal and remove negative conditions.

As a dragon shaman, you can grow tough scales, breathe fire or another type of energy, and soar on dragon wings—and that barely scratches the surface of the powers at your command.

Abilities: As with any melee-oriented class, Strength is a key ability for dragon shamans.

Constitution provides you with increased hit points as usual, and it also increases the save DC of your breath weapon.

If you want to make good use of the dragon shaman's ability to heal and remove negative conditions, you'll need a high Charisma.

Races: Although humans make up the majority of dragon shamans, any community of people with a close connection to true dragons can produce dragon shamans.

Typically, dragon shamans come from savage societies that live near the lairs of dragons, but even highly civilized populations can produce dragon shamans.

In any race or society, dragon shamans tend to dedicate themselves to the dragons native to the area.

Thus, elf dragon shamans from a forest nation often aspire to the qualities of a green dragon, whereas the dwarf dragon shamans of a high mountain citadel would seek to gain the qualities of a silver dragon.

Alignment: Attaining the abilities of a true dragon requires a deep understanding of the chosen kind of dragon.

An aspiring dragon shaman must make a study of the dragon's typical mindset and emotions; adopting these for himself opens the door to the dragon's power.

Thus, dragon shamans align their morals to suit the outlook of the color of true dragon to which they dedicate themselves.

Each kind of metallic or chromatic dragon has a particular alignment with which it is associated.

A dragon shaman who turns away from the alignment of his chosen dragon type loses many of his powers unless he can successfully adopt another dragon type as his chosen dragon (see Ex-Dragon Shamans, below).

Neutral individuals with no preference for law, chaos, good, or evil cannot properly attain the outlook of a true dragon and therefore cannot become dragon shamans.

Starting Gold: 4d4×10 gp (100 gp).

Starting Age: As druid (PH 109).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Climb, Craft, Intimidate, Knowledge (nature), Search (plus others depending on the chosen totem dragon).

CLASS FEATURES

As a dragon shaman, you function most effectively on the front lines of any combat.

Your class abilities allow you to boost your combat effectiveness and that of your party, and the touch of vitality ability provides you with the power to heal others and remove negative conditions that affect them, giving you more reason to take the fight to your foes and stay close to those melee-oriented allies most likely to need your aid.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Dragon shamans are proficient with simple weapons, with light and medium armor, and with shields (except tower shields).

Bonus Languages: A dragon shaman's bonus language options include Draconic.

Draconic Aura (Su): You can channel the mighty powers of dragonkind to project an aura that grants you and nearby allies a special benefit.

Projecting an aura is a swift action (see page 4), and you can only project one draconic aura at a time.

An aura remains in effect until you use a free action to dismiss it or you activate another aura in its place.

You can have a draconic aura active continually; thus, an aura can be in effect at the start of an encounter even before you take your first turn.

Unless otherwise noted, your draconic aura affects all allies within 30 feet (including yourself) with line of effect to you.

Your aura is dismissed if you become unconscious or are slain, but otherwise it remains in effect even if you are incapable of acting.

The bonus granted by your aura begins at +1 and increases to +2 at 5th level, +3 at 10th level, +4 at 15th level, and +5 at 20th level.

As a 1st-level dragon shaman, you know how to project three auras chosen from the list below.

At every odd-numbered level after that, you learn one additional draconic aura of your choice, until all seven auras are known at 9th level.

Each time you activate a draconic aura, you can choose from any of the auras that you know.

Energy Shield: Any creature striking you or your ally with a natural attack or a nonreach melee weapon is dealt 2 points of energy damage for each point of your aura bonus.

The energy type is that of your totem dragon's damage-dealing breath weapon (see below).

Power: Bonus on melee damage rolls equal to your aura bonus.

Presence: Bonus on Bluff, Diplomacy, and Intimidate checks equal to your aura bonus.

Resistance: Resistance to your totem dragon's energy type equal to $5 \times$ your aura bonus.

Senses: Bonus on Listen and Spot checks, as well as on initiative checks, equal to your aura bonus.

Toughness: DR $1/\text{magic}$ for each point of your aura bonus (up to $5/\text{magic}$ at 20th level).

Vigor: Fast healing 1 for each point of your aura bonus, but only affects characters at or below one-half their full normal hit points.

Totem Dragon: You must choose a totem dragon from among the true dragons appearing in the Monster Manual (black, blue, brass, bronze, copper, gold, green, red, silver, or white).

You must choose a dragon whose alignment is within one step of yours, as described in the following table.

You gain additional class skills and a particular sort of breath weapon based on the dragon you select as your totem.

Skill Focus: At 2nd level, you gain Skill Focus as a bonus feat.

You must apply the feat to one of the three class skills granted by your chosen totem dragon.

For example, a blue dragon shaman can select Skill Focus (Bluff), Skill Focus (Hide), or Skill Focus (Spellcraft).

At 8th level, and again at 16th level, you gain Skill Focus in another of the class skills granted by your chosen totem dragon.

If you already have Skill Focus in all three of the skills associated with your totem dragon, you gain Skill Focus in any other dragon shaman class skill.

Draconic Adaptation (Ex or Sp): At 3rd level, you take on an aspect of your totem dragon.

Some adaptations are extraordinary abilities that are always active; others are spell-like abilities that you can activate at will.

Spell-like abilities have a caster level equal to your class level and a save DC equal to $10 + \text{spell level} + \text{Cha modifier}$.

Black—Water Breathing (Ex): You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use spells and other abilities underwater (always active).

Blue—Ventriloquism (Sp): As the spell (at will).

Brass—Endure Elements (Sp): As the spell, except you can only target yourself (at will).

Bronze—Water Breathing (Ex): You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use spells and other abilities underwater (always active).

Copper—Spider Climb (Sp): As the spell, except you can only target yourself (at will).

Gold—Water Breathing (Ex): You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use spells and other abilities underwater (always active).

Green—Water Breathing (Ex): You can breathe underwater indefinitely and can freely use spells and other abilities underwater (always active).

Red—Treasure Seeker (Ex): You gain a +5 competence bonus on Appraise and Search checks (always active).

Silver—Feather Fall (Sp): As the spell, except you can only target yourself (at will).

White—Icewalker (Ex): You can walk across icy surfaces without reducing your speed or making Balance checks (always active).

At 13th level, you can choose as a swift action (see page 4) to share the effect of your draconic adaptation with any or all allies within 30 feet.

In the case of spell-like abilities, you must make this decision when you activate the ability.

The benefit lasts until you spend a free action to rescind it or (if the effect has a limited duration) the effect ends, whichever comes first.

Breath Weapon (Su): At 4th level, you gain a breath weapon corresponding to your totem dragon.

Regardless of the area one affects or the type of energy damage it deals, all breath weapons deal 2d6 points of damage, plus an extra 1d6 points of damage for every two additional class levels (3d6 at 6th level, 4d6 at 8th level, and so forth).

A successful Reflex save halves the damage dealt; the save DC is equal to $10 + 1/2$ your dragon shaman level + your Con modifier.

Just like a true dragon, once you breathe you must wait 1d4 rounds before you can use your breath weapon again.

Cone-shaped breath weapons extend out to 15 feet at 4th level, increasing to 30 feet at 12th level and to 60 feet at 20th level.

Line-shaped breath weapons are 30 feet long at 4th level, increasing to 60 feet at 12th level and to 120 feet at 20th level.

Draconic Resolve (Ex): At 4th level, you gain immunity to paralysis and sleep effects.

You also become immune to the frightful presence of dragons.

Touch of Vitality (Su): At 6th level, you can heal the wounds of living creatures (your own or those of others) by touch.

Each day you can heal a number of points of damage equal to twice your class level \times your Charisma bonus.

For example, a 7th-level dragon shaman with a Charisma score of 14 (+2 bonus) can heal 28 points of damage.

You can choose to divide your healing among multiple recipients, and you don't have to use it all at once.

Using your touch of vitality is a standard action.

It has no effect on undead.

Beginning at 11th level, you can choose to spend some of the healing bestowed by your touch of vitality to remove other harmful conditions affecting the target.

For every 5 points of your healing ability you expend, you can cure 1 point of ability damage or remove the dazed, fatigued, or sickened condition from one individual.

For every 10 points of your healing ability you expend, you can remove the exhausted, nauseated, poisoned, or stunned condition from one individual.

For every 20 points of your healing ability you expend, you can remove a negative level or the blinded, deafened, or diseased condition from one individual.

You can remove a condition (or more than one condition) and heal damage with the same touch, so long as you expend the required number of points.

For example, if you wanted to heal 12 points of damage and remove the blinded and exhausted conditions from a target, you would have to expend 42 points (12 hit points restored plus 20 points for blinded plus 10 points for exhausted).

Natural Armor (Ex): At 7th level, your skin thickens, developing faint scales.

Your natural armor bonus improves by 1.

At 12th level, this improvement increases to +2, and at 17th level to +3.

Energy Immunity (Ex): At 9th level, you gain immunity to the energy type of the breath weapon you gained at 4th level.

Commune with Dragon Spirit (Sp): At 14th level, you gain the ability to contact your dragon totem directly to ask questions of it.

This is the equivalent of casting a commune spell, except that it has no material component, focus, or XP cost and allows only one question per three class levels.

After using this ability, you cannot use it again for seven days.

Draconic Wings (Ex): At 19th level, you grow a pair of wings that resemble those of your totem dragon.

They allow flight at a speed of 60 feet (good maneuverability).

You can even fly while carrying a medium load, though your fly speed drops to 40 feet in this case.

If you already have wings, you can choose whether these draconic wings replace your own.

PLAYING A DRAGON SHAMAN

As a dragon shaman, you believe the acquisition of power is a worthy end in itself.

By having power, you can effect your will in the world, be it beneficent or malign.

Those who have or seek power deserve your respect, while those who have power but fail to use it earn your derision. Your strength comes from devoting yourself to dragons, the primal embodiment of the principle of power, but you worship dragons in the abstract, honoring them much as a cleric might honor light as a symbol of purity and goodness.

Dragons gather power to themselves simply by living and aging, but you must actively seek the influence and might you desire.

As a dragon hungers for flesh to feed itself or for treasure to enlarge its hoard, so you hunger for power.

You adventure out of a desire to test yourself and prove your worth; whatever the specific inducement, the urge to gain more power underlies every quest.

Drawn by your power, others follow your lead, and you are happy to command them.

Being a great leader is just one of the many ways you can manifest your power.

RELIGION

Dragon shamans can worship any deity, but most worship divine powers that encourage their worshipers to be proactive in pursuit of the deity's goals.

Dragon shamans often worship Erythnul, Gruumsh, Heironeous, Hextor, Kord, or St. Cuthbert, as well as dragon deities such as Bahamut and Tiamat.

They rarely find much to admire in more passive or protective deities such as Boccob, Ehlonna, Fharlanghn, and Yondalla.

Dragon shamans from more primitive societies sometimes worship true dragons.

These savage dragon shamans might worship all true dragons, assigning each color or metallic hue its own place in a crude pantheon of totemic spirits.

Or they might worship a single color or metal as the best among all the true dragons, finding it the most representative of pure power.

In rare cases, a dragon shaman worships and serves a particular true dragon.

How the dragon reacts to such worship depends on that individual dragon; even good dragons might take advantage of a dragon shaman's worship to achieve their own aims.

OTHER CLASSES

You work well with melee-oriented allies such as fighters, duskblades, barbarians, rogues, and even druids.

Those characters value the benefits a dragon shaman can grant them and rarely make an issue of their source.

Clerics, paladins, knights, and monks are often suspicious of your moral outlook unless you have dedicated yourself to a kind of dragon that associates itself with a code of ethics similar to their own.

Wizards, bards, and beguilers view you indifferently, whereas sorcerers might seek you out to learn more of the source of your power and your connection to dragons.

Rangers might or might not take issue with your abilities; a ranger whose favored enemy is dragons might attack you on sight.

COMBAT

Dragon shamans lead from the front, rather than directing battles from a safe position behind others.

Keep as many allies as possible within the range of your draconic aura, but focus on those in melee with your foes. Pick a draconic aura that grants your allies the best benefit for the situation, and don't hesitate to switch it during the fight should conditions change and another aura prove more useful.

Outside combat, employ the senses or presence aspects of your draconic aura.

If you have a cleric or other healer in your group, save your touch of vitality for removing conditions or for emergency healing.

If no other healer is present, use it to heal yourself and your allies after combat.

ADVANCEMENT

You profit most from remaining a dragon shaman throughout your advancement, so that your breath weapon and draconic aura continue to improve as you gain levels.

If you do multiclass, a level of barbarian is an excellent choice; the benefits it grants help you in combat regardless of when you take that 1st level.

Alternatively, you might consider beginning your career as a 1st-level barbarian for the greater hit points and skill points that option offers, then multiclassing into the dragon shaman class at 2nd level.

The fighter class might seem like a strong second choice, but unless you need a fighter bonus feat for a particular kind of character, you'll see better long-term advantages from the barbarian class.

The bard class can be an interesting multiclass option, since the benefits provided by bardic music stack with those provided by your draconic aura.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Defender

Dwarf Dragon Shaman (Gold)

Ability Scores: Str 14, Dex 12, Con 15, Int 8, Wis 10, Cha 13.

Skills: Heal.

Feat: Shield Specialization (heavy)*.

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+3 AC [includes Shield Specialization]).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 15 gp.

Package 2: The Destroyer

Half-Orc Dragon Shaman (Red)

Ability Scores: Str 16, Dex 12, Con 13, Int 6, Wis 10, Cha 13.

Skills: Intimidate.

Feat: Power Attack.

Weapons: Morningstar (1d8), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 10 gp.

Package 3: The Second-Rank Warrior

Human Dragon Shaman (Copper)

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 14, Con 12, Int 8, Wis 10, Cha 13.

Skills: Hide, Jump.

Feat: Combat Reflexes, Power Attack.

Weapons: Longspear (1d8/×3), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1d6/×3, 60 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 8 gp.

DRAGON SHAMANS IN THE WORLD

"There are differences from one to another, based on the dragon each shaman honors, but the main thing to remember is this: The whole lot of them are mad for power."

—Durven Ironscale, a dwarf sorcerer instructing the young of the Ironscale clan

Dragon shamans put the power and appeal of dragons in players' hands while providing DMs with a new way to put dragons in the D&D game.

The class provides an uncomplicated way to have a new play experience, and each NPC dragon shaman could provide the nucleus for an interesting cult or villainous organization the PCs must face.

DAILY LIFE

A dragon shaman remains ever ready to face the challenges of a new day.

Without the need to rest, study, or pray for their powers, dragon shamans can leap up in pursuit of power whenever they desire.

This capability causes most dragon shamans to be decisive and swift to act.

Chaotic dragon shamans are often impetuous and energetic, while lawful dragon shamans tend to be more ready to improvise and less rigid in their thinking than some might expect.

Dragon shamans desire power and constantly seek the means to gain it.

To dragon shamans, life and adventure are one and the same.

Dragon shamans often possess the charisma and take-charge attitude required of great leaders, but many suffer from an inability to empathize with those they lead.

Dragon shamans respect the pursuit of might and its use, and they often minimize the value of those who adhere to other philosophies.

Even among themselves, dragon shamans tend to be contentious, and a single dragon shaman rarely takes a leadership role over a group of his fellows for any length of time.

Although dragon shamans give great respect to one another, each is always trying to outdo the others in all pursuits.

The most powerful dragon shaman leaders arise among savage tribes that worship dragons, where a single dragon shaman relies on his forceful personality and impressive powers to win the hearts of comrades.

NOTABLES

The pursuit of power garners notoriety for a dragon shaman, but it also can bring about his death or force him into exile.

A powerful dragon shaman warlord might suddenly arise and terrorize an area for a time, only to fall from power as swiftly as he appeared.

A case in point would be the history of a barbaric human named Kalia.

Under her leadership, her tribe of red dragon worshipers raided and razed hundreds of elf and human towns on the border between two nations.

Then she vanished, and soon afterward her leaderless tribe was caught in an ambush and exterminated.

Some say she died in a squabble with a fellow dragon shaman, but other believe she left her tribe to directly serve a red dragon wyrm that laired in distant mountains.

ORGANIZATIONS

Dragon shamans rarely work together for long unless they are led by a dragon of the type to which all the shamans present have dedicated themselves.

In such cases, the dragon is either worshiped or leads because the dragon shamans see it as the embodiment of all they seek; thus, obeying the dragon's edicts presents the swiftest path to that desired goal.

Rank and privilege rarely have much meaning in such groups.

Instead, the dragon decides each shaman's duties according to his or her merit, changing such assignments as necessary.

Such a group exists among the Ironscale clan.

Tied to a long-dead silver dragon by blood, the dwarf clan fosters sorcerers and is led by a half-dragon.

Despite these firm ties to dragonkind, the clan views its dragon shaman members with some suspicion, since they follow the orders of an unrelated silver dragon that lairs near the clan home.

NPC REACTIONS

Dragon shamans who don't show aspects of their affiliation with dragons rarely elicit an unusual reaction from others. To most they seem like simple warriors or perhaps barbarians.

Those who know of their pursuit of draconic power or who see evidence of it, such as scales or a dragon shaman's breath weapon, react depending on their attitude toward the dragon shaman's totem dragon.

This reaction is one step closer to hostile if the dragon is of a kind feared or hated by that individual.

The reaction is one step closer to friendly if that individual is directly associated with a dragon of that kind.

Clerics, paladins, and others who are deeply entrenched in a particular moral outlook view the dragon shaman's devotion with suspicion, and their reaction is one step closer to hostile regardless of the dragon shaman's totem dragon.

DRAGON SHAMAN LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana) can research dragon shamans to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs. DC 10: Dragon shamans devote themselves to dragons and aspire to their power.

DC 15: A dragon shaman devotes himself to a particular kind of true dragon and gains powers based on the dragon chosen.

He can use the dragon's breath weapon and grow dragonlike scales.

Very powerful dragon shamans can grow dragon wings and fly.

DC 20: In addition to the details above, this result allows the PC to know that a dragon shaman projects an aura that can bolster himself and his allies in a number of ways and can heal damage or remove negative conditions somewhat like a paladin.

DRAGON SHAMANS IN THE GAME

Dragon shamans fit easily into any ongoing campaign because true dragons are a cornerstone of nearly every DUNGEON & DRAGONS game.

The PCs might first learn of dragon shamans by encountering a cult of dragon worshippers near a dragon's lair.

Alternatively, a more civilized group of dragon shamans might serve a dragon who rules a city.

A lone dragon shaman makes an excellent new villain, a powerful temporary ally, or an eager participant in an ongoing plot because his focused pursuit of power can get him involved in anyone's scheme to gain it.

Dragon shaman PCs should present no more difficulty than introducing a monk or cleric of a lesser-known deity. Although the character's abilities might be somewhat foreign, the idea that an individual is so dedicated to one philosophy that it grants him powers should be easily understood.

The player of a dragon shaman usually finds the character's association with dragons to be the most entertaining part of the class.

Before featuring adventures that deal with dragons, ask that player about her character's philosophy concerning dragons.

Does the character admire dragons in the abstract, worship them as living gods, or hold to a philosophy between these extremes?

The answer should inform your adventure planning and inspire new adventure ideas.

Be careful about using the PC's dedication to dragons to manipulate the character's actions: Occasional use of this idea might provoke some interesting roleplaying, but the player won't enjoy your game if a dragon shows up every session to boss her PC around.

ADAPTATION

You can alter the dragon shaman to suit your game in a number of ways.

You could decide that all dragon shamans are barbaric, or that all them are civilized and sophisticated disciples of dragons who prefer to work behind the scenes through such agents.

You might decide that only good dragons are available to your players for their totem dragons, or that a particular organization fosters dragon shamans devoted to a single kind of dragon.

If you feature other dragons prominently in your game, such as the gem dragons from Monster Manual II or the deep dragon and the shadow dragon from Monsters of Faerûn, you might consider changing the class's features to allow a dragon shaman to follow other kinds of dragons as well.

TABLE 1-2: THE DRAGON SHAMAN HIT DIE: d10

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Draconic Auras Known
1st	+0	+2	+0	+2	Draconic aura +1, totem dragon	3
2nd	+1	+3	+0	+3	Skill Focus	3
3rd	+2	+3	+1	+3	Draconic adaptation	4
4th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Breath weapon (2d6; 15-ft. cone or 30-ft. line), draconic resolve	4
5th	+3	+4	+1	+4	Draconic aura +2	5
6th	+4	+5	+2	+5	Breath weapon (3d6), touch of vitality (heal wounds)	5
7th	+5	+5	+2	+5	Natural armor +1	6
8th	+6/+1	+6	+2	+6	Breath weapon (4d6), Skill Focus	6
9th	+6/+1	+6	+3	+6	Energy immunity	7
10th	+7/+2	+7	+3	+7	Breath weapon (5d6), draconic aura +3	7
11th	+8/+3	+7	+3	+7	Touch of vitality (remove conditions)	7
12th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Breath weapon (6d6; 30-ft. cone or 60-ft. line), natural armor +2	7
13th	+9/+4	+8	+4	+8	Draconic adaptation (share with allies)	7
14th	+10/+5	+9	+4	+9	Breath weapon (7d6), commune with dragon spirit	7
15th	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+9	Draconic aura +4	7
16th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Breath weapon (8d6), Skill Focus	7
17th	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10	Natural armor +3	7
18th	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	Breath weapon (9d6)	7
19th	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11	Draconic wings	7
20th	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Breath weapon (10d6; 60-ft. cone or 120-ft. line), draconic aura +5	7

Totem Dragon	Acceptable Alignment	Class Skills	Breath Weapon Energy Type
Black	NE, CE, CN	Hide, Move Silently, Swim	Line of acid
Blue	NE, LE, LN	Bluff, Hide, Spellcraft	Line of electricity
Brass	NG, CG, CN	Bluff, Gather Information, Survival	Line of fire
Bronze	NG, LG, LN	Disguise, Survival, Swim	Line of electricity
Copper	NG, CG, CN	Bluff, Hide, Jump	Line of acid
Gold	NG, LG, LN	Disguise, Heal, Swim	Cone of fire
Green	NE, LE, LN	Bluff, Hide, Move Silently	Cone of acid
Red	NE, CE, CN	Appraise, Bluff, Jump	Cone of fire
Silver	NG, LG, LN	Bluff, Disguise, Jump	Cone of cold
White	NE, CE, CN	Hide, Move Silently, Swim	Cone of cold

EX-DRAGON SHAMANS

Dragon shamans who change alignment could lose their powers. If a dragon shaman changes to an alignment still appropriate to the dragon to which he is already dedicated, nothing happens. However, if the dragon shaman changes to an alignment inappropriate for his chosen dragon, he immediately loses all abilities granted by the dragon shaman class and becomes an ex-dragon shaman.

An ex-dragon shaman can choose a new color or metallic hue of true dragon to emulate and thus regain the powers granted by the class. To switch to a new totem dragon, he must find a dragon shaman of higher level who is dedicated to that dragon type. The higher-level dragon shaman must willingly expend all her touch of vitality on the ex-dragon shaman each day for a week. At the end of the week, the ex-dragon shaman gains the class features of a dragon shaman dedicated to the newly chosen totem dragon, including exchanging the focus of any class-granted Skill Focus feats. Most dragon shamans who are asked to perform this service demand payment in the form of some great deed. This deed might be a demand that the ex-dragon shaman retrieve magic items that will add to his sponsor's power or simply a short quest to prove the ex-dragon shaman's worth.

Dragon shamans can go through the same process to switch chosen totem dragons even if they don't change alignment. If a dragon shaman has an alignment appropriate for a different true dragon color or hue, the shaman can switch to that kind of dragon through a process identical to the one described above for ex-dragon shamans.

DUSKBLADE

"My blade and my magic are one and the same."

—Yele, elf duskblade

The duskblade blurs the line between spellcaster and warrior, marrying the power of magic with hand-to-hand combat prowess.

A student of ancient elven spellcasting techniques, the duskblade combines arcane spellcasting with the combat skills of a fighter.

While the ability to cast arcane spells in armor originated with the elves, over the millennia the secrets of the duskblade have been disseminated to the other races, and today members of any race can become a duskblade.

If you find you can't choose between being an arcane spellcaster who zaps your enemies with powerful spells and a nimble, powerful front-line melee character who lays them low with a sword, the duskblade is the perfect class for you.

Combining arcane magic with melee prowess, you're prepared in any situation.

Enemies who underestimate you never get a second chance, since you don't even have to switch back and forth between hands-on combat and spellcasting; you can do both simultaneously.

MAKING A DUSKBLADE

The duskblade is a quintessential hybrid character, simultaneously a potent spellcaster and an effective melee combatant.

The original duskblades were elite guardians in an ancient elf empire, duelmasters and arcane spellcasters beyond compare.

Historical accounts vary on why they were called duskblades; some say the name is symbolic of how they combined swordplay and arcane magic—a night-and-day combination.

Others contend that the duskblades earned their name when they were charged with preserving the elf race in the face of a tide of darkness and evil.

The most powerful duskblades can duel a fighter to a standstill and match a wizard spell for spell—for a while, at least.

But the class really comes into its own when you embrace your hybrid nature, using a quick-cast spell to supplement your melee attacks or combining a touch spell with a devastating sword strike.

The duskblade is a good choice for players who know they want a sword-wielding arcane spellcaster from the beginning.

By contrast, multiclass fighter/wizard combinations and prestige classes such as the eldritch knight are better suited for characters who begin their careers as fighters or arcane spellcasters and only later contemplate embracing their opposite.

Abilities: Your Intelligence and Strength scores should be as high as possible, since your spellcasting and melee combat depend upon them.

Your Constitution is also important, because you need all the hit points you can get.

Races: The duskblade class originated among the ancient elves, and to this day most duskblades are elves.

However, some humans and half-elves also have proved adept at mastering the class's dual focus on combat and spellcasting.

Halflings, gnomes, dwarves, and half-orcs rarely enter this class.

Alignment: Since the duskblade class originated among the elves, those who undergo the intense training required to master the class abilities at the hands of an elf mentor often end their apprenticeship sharing the chaotic good alignment of most elves.

However, duskblades are highly individualist and can be of any alignment.

Starting Gold: 6d4×10 gp (150 gp).

Starting Age: As wizard (PH 109).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Climb, Concentration, Craft, Decipher Script, Jump, Knowledge (all skills taken individually), Ride, Sense Motive, Spellcraft, Swim.

CLASS FEATURES

Your class features are simple to characterize: constant improvement in your spellcasting, a fighter's base attack bonus progression, and ever-increasing mastery of arcane magic in melee combat.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Duskblades are proficient with all martial weapons, as well as all armors and shields (except tower shields).

Spells: You cast arcane spells, which are drawn from the duskblade spell list on page 98.

You can cast any spell you know without preparing it ahead of time.

To learn or cast a spell, you must have an Intelligence score equal to at least 10 + the spell level (Int 10 for 0-level spells, Int 11 for 1st-level spells, and so forth).

The Difficulty Class for a saving throw against your spell is 10 + the spell level + your Int modifier.

You can cast only a certain number of spells of each spell level per day.

Your base daily spell allotment is given on Table 1–3.

In addition, you receive bonus spells per day if you have a high Intelligence score (see Table 1–1: Ability Modifiers and Bonus Spells, page 8 of the Player's Handbook).

Spells Known: You begin play knowing two 0-level spells and two 1st-level spells, chosen from the duskblade spell list.

You also know one additional 0-level spell for each point of Intelligence bonus.

Each time you gain a new class level, you learn one additional spell of any level you can cast, chosen from the duskblade spell list.

Upon reaching 5th level, and at every subsequent odd-numbered level, you can choose to learn a new spell in place of one you already know.

In effect, you lose access to the old spell in exchange for gaining the new one.

The new spell's level must be the same as that of the spell being exchanged, and it must be at least two levels lower than the highest-level spell you can cast.

For instance, upon reaching 9th level, you could trade in a single 1st-level spell (two levels below the highest-level spell you can cast, which is 3rd) for a different 1st-level spell.

You can swap only a single spell at any given level and must choose whether or not to swap the spell at the same time that you gain new spells known for the level.

You need not prepare spells in advance.

You can cast any spell you know at any time, assuming you have not yet used up your spells per day for that spell level.

Arcane Attunement (Sp): You can use the spell-like powers dancing lights, detect magic, flare, ghost sound, and read magic a combined total of times per day equal to 3 + your Int modifier.

These spell-like powers do not count against your total of spells known or spells per day.

Armored Mage (Ex): Normally, armor of any type interferes with an arcane spellcaster's gestures, which can cause spells to fail if those spells have a somatic component.

A duskblade's limited focus and specialized training, however, allows you to avoid arcane spell failure so long as you stick to light armor and light shields.

This training does not extend to medium or heavy armors, nor to heavy shields.

This ability does not apply to spells gained from a different spellcasting class.

At 4th level, you learn to use medium armor with no chance of arcane spell failure.

At 7th level, you learn to use a heavy shield with no chance of arcane spell failure.

Combat Casting: At 2nd level, you gain Combat Casting as a bonus feat.

Arcane Channeling (Su): Beginning at 3rd level, you can use a standard action to cast any touch spell you know and deliver the spell through your weapon with a melee attack. Casting a spell in this manner does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

The spell must have a casting time of 1 standard action or less.

If the melee attack is successful, the attack deals damage normally; then the effect of the spell is resolved.

At 13th level, you can cast any touch spell you know as part of a full attack action, and the spell affects each target you hit in melee combat that round.

Doing so discharges the spell at the end of the round, in the case of a touch spell that would otherwise last longer than 1 round.

Quick Cast: Beginning at 5th level, you can cast one spell each day as a swift action, so long as the casting time of the spell is 1 standard action or less.

You can use this ability twice per day at 10th level, three times per day at 15th level, and four times per day at 20th level.

Spell Power (Ex): Starting at 6th level, you can more easily overcome the spell resistance of any opponent you successfully injure with a melee attack.

If you have injured an opponent with a melee attack, you gain a +2 bonus on your caster level check to overcome spell resistance for the remainder of the encounter.

This bonus increases to +3 at 11th level, to +4 at 16th level, and to +5 at 18th level.

PLAYING A DUSKBLADE

A duskblade can take the fighter's place in the front ranks of a party or ensorcel his foes from a distance like a wizard. While you aren't quite as good as either a dedicated fighter or a dedicated wizard or sorcerer in those roles, you're reasonably effective in either, and you can change roles on a round-by-round basis as needed.

Choosing the path of the duskblade means you don't have to choose between being a combat specialist and a spellcaster.

You enjoy the best of both worlds, and you'll undertake any quest that promises to improve either your spellcasting or your melee prowess.

Driven to simultaneously master both swordplay and spellcasting, you might devote yourself to delving into ancient ruins to learn more about the original duskblades or wander far and wide looking for other duskblades interested in restoring the class to its previous glory.

RELIGION

The demands of martial and arcane discipline don't leave much room for religion in the typical duskblade.

Good-aligned duskblades typically venerate Corellon Larethian, even if they aren't elves, because he supposedly taught the first duskblades the secret of combining melee combat with arcane casting.

A few worship Boccob as the personification of their own mastery of magic, while more honor Wee Jas, who exemplifies both the magic they wield and also the death that they deal.

OTHER CLASSES

You get along well with members of other classes who share a rigorous devotion to a chosen path, such as paladins, dragon shamans, and monks.

You are the object of envy to sorcerers and of admiration to bards, who sometimes try to emulate your abilities (often with disastrous results).

Among members of the two classes whose portfolios you draw from, fighters and wizards, some view you with disdain while others are fascinated by your unique meld of melee combat and arcane spellcasting.

Barbarians, clerics, and knights tend to distrust you, while rogues, rangers, druids, and beguilers view you and other duskblades with indifference.

COMBAT

You might sometimes feel you have too many options, too many things you can do in a single round.

Use that flexibility to confound your enemies, outfighting what you can't outspell and outspelling what you can't outfight.

The monster that engages you in melee, hoping to get an attack of opportunity that spoils your next spell, is in for a surprise—a surprise consisting of three feet of razor-sharp steel.

Most of a duskblade's spells target a single creature or have a range of touch, so you are most effective when you single out and focus upon defeating a single opponent.

Your spells that affect areas are limited mostly to cones, which means you need to be on or near the front lines to get the greatest effect from them.

Even if you come close to being as effective as a fighter or a sorcerer in his chosen field, you're certainly not as effective as a fighter and a sorcerer.

You'll occasionally cast a spell and strike with your blade in the same round, but pure spellcasters such as the sorcerer are more able to affect a crowd of foes or blast a group of opponents.

That said, actions are the D&D game's most fundamental currency, and you'll be able to take advantage of additional actions in the round, as you combine spellcasting with melee attacks and eventually gain the ability to cast any spell you know as a swift action a number of times per day.

ADVANCEMENT

Like the sorcerer, you face a crucial decision: which spells to put on your spells known list.

The offensive spells on your spell list fall into three primary categories: touch spells, single-target ranged spells, and short-range cones.

Choose at least one touch spell, such as shocking grasp, to take advantage of your arcane channeling ability.

You should also take a movement spell, such as swift expeditious retreat, and an attack-enhancing spell such as true strike or magic weapon.

Future spell selections can tailor your repertoire to the role you find yourself most commonly filling, whether it be a front-line fighter or a finesse caster.

Assign as many skill points as possible to Concentration, Knowledge (arcana), and Sense Motive.

For feats, take the Weapon Focus (longsword) feat and also consider sudden metamagic feats, such as Sudden Silent and Sudden Empower, both from the Complete Arcane supplement.

Do not neglect to put some thought into your gear as well. Spend 30% of your wealth on the heaviest armor you can manage without risking arcane spell failure chance (often mithral and/or having the twilight special ability).

Spend 20% on your primary weapon and 20% on items that improve your Intelligence, Strength, and saving throws.

Spend 20% on wands and scrolls and the remaining 10% on miscellaneous items and a basic adventuring package.

Your spellcasting and fighting prowess also allow you the opportunity to enter into prestige classes that are suited to either melee or spellcasting.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Blaster

Human Duskblade

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 13, Con 12, Int 14, Wis 10, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Concentration, Jump, Knowledge (arcana), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Draconic, Elven.

Feat: Point Blank Shot, Weapon Focus (ranged spell).

Weapon: Greataxe (1d12/x3), 3 javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 10 gp.

Spells Known: 1st—Kelgore's fire bolt, ray of enfeeblement; 0—acid splash, disrupt undead, ray of frost, touch of fatigue.

Package 2: The Defender

Dwarf Duskblade

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 13, Con 14, Int 14, Wis 10, Cha 6.

Skills: Concentration, Decipher Script, Knowledge (arcana), Spellcraft.

Languages: Common, Dwarven, Goblin, Orc.

Feat: Toughness.

Weapon: Dwarven waraxe (1d10/x3).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), light wooden shield (+1 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 22 gp.

Spells Known: 1st—lesser deflect, resist energy; 0—acid splash, disrupt undead, ray of frost, touch of fatigue.

Package 3: The Skirmisher

Elf Duskblade

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 15, Con 10, Int 14, Wis 10, Cha 8.

Skills: Climb, Concentration, Jump, Spellcraft, Spot (cc).

Languages: Common, Draconic, Elven, Sylvan.

Feat: Dodge.

Weapons: Glaive (1d10/x3), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC).

Other Gear: Spell component pouch, standard adventurer's kit, 42 gp.

Spells Known: 1st—swift expeditious retreat, true strike; 0—acid splash, disrupt undead, ray of frost, touch of fatigue.

DUSKBLADES IN THE WORLD

"Your spells cannot penetrate my magical defenses.

You are helpless, wizard!"

—Last words of Zufir Halaq, rakshasa lord

The duskblade combines the best features of the fighter and wizard.

Duskblades make dangerous foes because they have so many options, magical and martial, available to them every round; their ability to deliver touch spells through a melee attack is particularly potent.

DAILY LIFE

The life of a duskblade is one of constant training.

Each duskblade must simultaneously be a swordmaster, a deft spellcaster, and an expert in the esoteric techniques of arcane channeling.

Each of those elements requires years to master; put them together, and you have a training regimen that only the most driven characters can maintain.

The typical duskblade is doing calisthenics in the castle courtyard before the other characters wake up in the morning and practicing somatic gestures long after everyone else has gone to sleep in the evening.

Exceptions exist, of course, but in general duskblades have a reputation as driven, focused individuals.

NOTABLES

Since duskblades are few and far between, they are natural loners, wandering far and wide in search of adventures that will prove a suitable challenge for their unique combination of abilities.

Such is the case with Gwilor the Swift, a wild elf who adventured in the woodlands of his people for a century or so before he committed himself entirely to a crusade against the duergar and spent the rest of his long career on extended forays into the underground.

Other duskblades join like-minded adventuring groups. Given their own mix of melee and spellcasting abilities, duskblades are willing to try unusual combinations, such as in the case of Taiglin the Fair, a gray elf duskblade who formed a highly successful party with a human hexblade and a halfling warmage.

Still others are restless, moving from group to group and area to area in search of new challenges.

For example, Hallia Yelebane, a self-taught half-elf duskblade, rarely stays in the same country more than a month or two.

She arrives, seeks out a suitable challenge for her talents, throws herself into that adventure, and then moves on.

In the course of her career (brief by elven standards), she has rescued a halfling metropolis from a cabal of mind flayers who were "farming" the small humanoids for their brains, teamed with a githzerai monk to defeat a famed githyanki knight (and claimed his silver sword as her own), and exposed malenti infiltrators in an aquatic elf community and thus turned back a sahuagin invasion, along with other exploits.

Hallia's nickname derives from her unexpected victory, early in her career, over one of her fellow duskblades, the elf Yele, who until then had boasted that he had never been defeated in a one-on-one duel.

The two became fast friends and now make a point to duel at least once every year.

ORGANIZATIONS

Because of the elven heritage of the class, many duskblades gravitate toward the elf lands even if they aren't elves themselves.

Knowledge of duskblade fighting techniques is sufficiently rare that no large company of duskblades exists—or, if one does, it's a well-kept secret.

For centuries, the class has been sustained by nothing more than solitary masters who teach duskblade skills and spells to worthy apprentices, and by those who have taught themselves the techniques from long-neglected tomes and training manuals.

More recently, some self-taught duskblades have appeared who master the difficult techniques required by the class through some innate instinct.

No matter what their origin, all are equals in the eyes of their fellow duskblades.

Duskblades love to test themselves against each other; on the rare occasions when the paths of two duskblade adventurers happen to cross, they will always make time for a friendly duel before they part.

Given elf life spans, some duskblades maintain friendly rivalries that can last for centuries.

NPC REACTIONS

Few common folk understand who or what duskblades truly are, and most assume those duskblades they happen to meet are simply fighters with a bit of sorcerer ability (or vice versa).

Legends speak of elf heroes skilled with both blade and spell, but these tales do little to inform anyone of the specific abilities of the duskblades.

Most adventurers react to duskblades with some wariness because a duskblade's combination of abilities makes it very hard to judge how powerful or capable such a character is in any situation.

DUSKBLADE LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (arcana) can research duskblades to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs. DC 10: Some elves have the ability to cast arcane spells while engaged in melee combat; such elves are known as duskblades.

DC 15: Not all duskblades are elves; sometimes members of other races master the class's special techniques of spellcasting in melee.

DC 20: Duskblades preserve an ancient tradition that enables them to deliver spell damage through weapon strikes.

DUSKBLADES IN THE GAME

Duskblades fit easily into an ongoing game because of their small numbers and enigmatic mix of abilities.

The presence of the class is easily explained as your players explore more of the world—they simply hadn't encountered any duskblades until now, or had mistaken those they did encounter for multiclass fighter/wizards. Now that they've discovered this aspect of the setting, however, they're free to multiclass into the duskblade class or to begin a new character with levels only in the new class.

ADAPTATIONS

One of the more interesting ways to adapt this class to your campaign is to keep the class abilities more or less the same but to change the race involved.

For example, the githyanki have a tradition of multiclass fighter/wizards known as gish; these individuals could easily be reconceived as a gith duskblade class.

Unexpected combinations would be the most striking, such as a previously unrevealed halfling duskblade class. After all, few expect halflings to engage in melee except when making sneak attacks, but when magically boosted by bull's strength and the like and fighting with oversized weapons, they could prove unexpectedly deadly against those who underestimate them—which, after all, is the essence of the duskblade class.

DUSKBLADE SPELL LIST

The duskblade's spell list appears below.

Spells printed in this book are marked with an asterisk.

0 Level: acid splash, disrupt undead, ray of frost, touch of fatigue.
1st Level: *Bigby's tripping hand, *blade of blood, burning hands, cause fear, chill touch, color spray, jump, *Kelgore's fire bolt, *lesser deflect, magic weapon, obscuring mist, ray of enfeeblement, resist energy, *rouse, shocking grasp, *stand, swift expeditious retreat, true strike.

2nd Level: *animalistic power, bear's endurance, *Bigby's striking fist, bull's strength, cat's grace, darkvision, *deflect, *dimension hop, ghoul touch, Melf's acid arrow, scorching ray, see invisibility, *seeking ray, spider climb, *stretch weapon, *sure strike, swift fly, swift invisibility, touch of idiocy.

3rd Level: *crown of might, *crown of protection, *dispelling touch, *doom scarabs, *energy aegis, *energy surge, greater magic weapon, *halt, keen edge, protection from energy, ray of exhaustion, *regroup, vampiric touch.

4th Level: Bigby's interposing hand, *channeled pyroburst, dimension door, dispel magic, enervate, fire shield, phantasmal killer, shout, *toxic weapon.

5th Level: Bigby's clenched fist, chain lightning, disintegrate, hold monster, polar ray, *slashing dispel, *sonic shield, waves of fatigue.

SWIFT EXPEDITIOUS RETREAT, SWIFT FLY, AND SWIFT INVISIBILITY

Three spells on the duskblade's spell list—swift expeditious retreat, swift fly, and swift invisibility—appear in Spell Compendium. If you do not have that book, treat these spells as their nonswift versions, except that their casting time is 1 swift action and the duration of each spell is 1 round.

TABLE 1-3: THE DUSKBLADE

HIT DIE: d8

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Spells per Day
						0	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
1st	+1	+2	+0	+2	Arcane attunement , armored mage (light)	3	2	—	—	—	—
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+3	Combat Casting	4	3	—	—	—	—
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+3	Arcane channeling	5	4	—	—	—	—
4th	+4	+4	+1	+4	Armored mage (medium)	6	5	—	—	—	—
5th	+5	+4	+1	+4	Quick cast 1/day	6	5	2	—	—	—
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+5	Spell power +2	6	6	3	—	—	—
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+5	Armored mage (heavy shield)	6	6	5	—	—	—
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+6		6	7	6	—	—	—
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+6		6	7	6	2	—	—
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+7	Quick cast 2/day	6	8	7	3	—	—
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+7	Spell power +3	6	8	7	5	—	—
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+8		6	8	8	6	—	—
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+8	Arcane channeling (full attack)	6	9	8	6	2	—
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+9		6	9	8	7	3	—
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+9	Quick cast 3/day	6	9	8	7	5	—
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+10	Spell power +4	6	9	9	8	6	—
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+10		6	10	9	8	6	2
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+11	Spell power +5	6	10	9	8	7	3
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+11		6	10	10	9	7	5
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+12	Quick cast 4/day	6	10	10	10	8	6

KNIGHT

"I offer you surrender or an honorable death in battle. The choice is yours."

—Archibold the Impetuous

A knight is a proud, skilled melee combatant who fights in the name of honor and chivalry.

A knight relies on more than a sharp sword and a stout suit of armor to defeat her foes.

Her drive, determination, and fighting spirit allow her to control the battlefield in ways that others cannot match.

A knight can challenge an opponent to a duel, calling upon the foe's pride and ego to force his hand.

The knight's talent with heavy armor, shields, and defensive tactics grant her the ability to disrupt her foe's plans.

Only the most talented rogues and monks can slip past a knight's defenses to strike at her allies.

An adventuring group with wizards, sorcerers, and other lightly armored members thrives with the assistance of a knight.

While the knight keeps enemies occupied, her allies can use their talents and abilities without fear of attack or harassment.

The knight class is a great choice if you want to play a tough, durable melee combatant whose strong personality allows you to manipulate your foes.

Weaker foes cower in fear before you, while stronger foes move to strike you rather than your allies when you play on their egos and challenge them to duels.

Your expertise in using armor and carrying a shield allows you to form an impregnable defensive line.

Once you engage a foe, he has difficulty moving away to threaten your allies.

If you want to be a front-line melee combatant who defends the rest of the party and manipulates opponents, the knight is a good choice.

MAKING A KNIGHT

A low-level knight is similar to a cross between a fighter and a bard.

You have many hit points, a high Armor Class, and an ability similar to bardic music (the knight's challenge class feature).

You can pick a single foe, usually the one who poses the most dangerous physical threat, and gain a bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls against that opponent.

You must pay close attention to the knight's code of conduct, since it forbids you from taking advantage of several tactically useful situations.

You excel in combat in a manner similar to a fighter—but while a fighter can slay a monster, your primary talent is your ability to keep that monster away from your allies while you battle it.

It might take you longer to win the day, but your many hit points and strong defensive abilities help preserve you.

Best of all, your defense enables your allies to function at full capacity without being subject to the monster's attacks.

Any sorcerer or wizard in the party thrives when you are there to absorb attacks and hold back your mutual foes.

As you advance in level, you gain the ability to dictate a foe's actions, forcing him to attack you instead of other targets.

Weaker opponents, which typically appear in numbers too large for you to hold them all back, quail in terror when you menace them.

Even if they slip past you, they take penalties when they attack your allies.

Your knight's challenge and shield block class features combine to let you excel in one-on-one melee, granting you a bonus on attack rolls, damage rolls, and Armor Class against a single foe of your choice.

If the group faces a mighty villain or a single, overwhelming physical threat, it's up to you to keep the monster occupied while your allies cast their spells or maneuver for position.

Abilities: You benefit from a high Charisma score, since it determines how often you can use some of your abilities and the save DC of those abilities.

A high Constitution allows you to increase your already impressive hit point total, thus bolstering your capacity to defend your allies.

Strength improves your combat abilities, making you more effective as a front-line character.

Races: The majority of knights are dwarves, humans, and half-elves.

The dwarf's tendency toward order, combined with that race's militaristic bent, gives rise to fighting orders dedicated to upholding justice and obeying an honorable code.

Dwarf knights also serve as wandering dispensers of justice between isolated settlements who enforce the rule of law and protect small clanholds.

Humanity, with its sprawling kingdoms and empires, produces many knights who fight as much for king and country as for personal honor and monetary rewards.

Some half-elves enter into such service as well and can rise to high ranks within such orders.

Gnomes and halflings rarely become knights, since the knight's straightforward code of conduct runs counter to the small races' reliance on trickery and clever planning. Few half-orcs have the opportunity to become knights, but when they do their natural strength serves them well.

Elf knights are rare, since elves prefer freedom and flexibility over the rigid code of honor all knights must follow.

Alignment: Knights are always lawful.

Their dedication to a code of conduct is but one expression of their devotion to order.

Most knightly orders arise as institutions forged to protect a kingdom from invaders or to enforce the law against chaos from within.

While knights value order, they tend in equal numbers toward good, evil, and neutrality.

Lawful good knights see order as a tool to protect the innocent and weak from evil.

Lawful evil knights believe that the social order serves to reward the strong.

Lawful neutral knights abhor the destruction and suffering that chaos can bring and so uphold order for its own sake.

Starting Gold: 6d4×10 gp (150 gp).

Starting Age: As paladin (PH 109).

CLASS SKILLS

(2 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Climb, Handle Animal, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Ride, Swim.

CLASS FEATURES

Your class features involve mastering the use of armor and shields and learning how to manipulate your foes so that melee combat takes place on your terms, not theirs.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Knights are proficient with all simple and martial weapons and with all armor (heavy, medium, and light) and all shields (except tower shields).

Knight's Challenge: Your dauntless fighting spirit plays a major role in your fighting style, as important as the strength of your arm or the sharpness of your blade. In battle, you use the force of your personality to challenge your enemies.

You can call out a foe, shouting a challenge that boosts his confidence, or issue a general challenge that strikes fear into weak opponents and compels strong opponents to seek you out for personal combat.

By playing on your enemies' ego, you can manipulate your foes.

You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to $1/2$ your class level + your Charisma bonus (minimum once per day).

As you gain levels, you gain a number of options that you can use in conjunction with this ability.

Even if you and your foes lack a shared language, you can still effectively communicate through body language, tone, and certain oaths and challenges you learn from a variety of different tongues.

Fighting Challenge (Ex): As a swift action, you can issue a challenge against a single opponent.

The target of this ability must have an Intelligence of 5 or higher, have a language of some sort, and have a CR greater than or equal to your character level minus 2.

If it does not meet these requirements, a use of this ability is expended without effect.

If the target does meet the conditions given above, you gain a +1 morale bonus on Will saves and a +1 morale bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls against the target of this ability.

You fight with renewed vigor and energy by placing your honor and reputation on the line.

If your chosen foe reduces you to 0 or fewer hit points, you lose two uses of your knight's challenge ability for the day because of the blow to your ego and confidence from this defeat.

The effect of a fighting challenge lasts for a number of rounds equal to 5 + your Charisma bonus (if any).

If you are capable of issuing a knight's challenge more than once per day, you can use this ability more than once in a single encounter.

If your first chosen foe is defeated or flees the area, you can issue a new challenge to a different foe.

You cannot switch foes if your original target is still active.

At 7th level, the bonus you gain from this ability increases to +2.

At 13th level, it rises to +3.

At 19th level, it increases to +4.

Test of Mettle (Ex): Starting at 4th level, you can shout a challenge to all enemies, calling out for the mightiest among them to face you in combat.

Any target of this ability must have a language of some sort and an Intelligence score of 5 or higher.

Creatures that do not meet these requirements are immune to the test of mettle.

You must have line of sight and line of effect to the targets of this ability.

As a swift action, you can expend one use of your knight's challenge ability to cause all your enemies within 100 feet with a CR greater than or equal to your character level minus 2 to make Will saves (DC 10 + $1/2$ your class level + your Cha modifier).

Creatures that fail this save are forced to attack you with their ranged or melee attacks in preference over other available targets.

If a foe attacks by casting a spell or using a supernatural ability, he must target you with the attack or include you in the effect's area.

An opponent compelled to act in this manner is not thrown into a mindless rage and does not have to move to attack you in melee if doing so would provoke attacks of opportunity against him.

In such a case, he can use ranged attacks against you or attack any opponents he threatens as normal.

If anyone other than you attacks the target, the effect of the test of mettle ends for that specific target.

If you are reduced to 0 or fewer hit points by an opponent forced to attack you due to this ability, you gain one additional use of your knight's challenge ability for that day.

This additional use comes from increased confidence and the knowledge that you have proved your mettle as a knight against your enemies by calling out foes even against overwhelming odds.

This additional use disappears if you have not used it by the start of the next day.

You can only gain one additional use of your knight's challenge ability in this manner per day.

The effect of a test of mettle lasts for a number of rounds equal to 5 + your Charisma bonus (if any).

Whether a creature fails or succeeds on its save against your test of mettle, it can only be targeted by this effect once per day.

Call to Battle (Ex): Starting at 8th level, you become an inspiring figure on the battlefield.

When all seems lost, you are a beacon of hope who continues to fight on despite the odds.

No cause is yet lost when a knight still battles on its name.

As a swift action, you can expend one use of your knight's challenge ability to grant an ally another save against a fear effect.

The target gains a bonus on this save equal to your Charisma bonus (if any).

If the target succeeds on this save, he gains the benefit for a successful save against the attack or spell.

This ability reflects your talent to inspire your allies in the face of a daunting foe.

For example, Lidda fails her save against a lich's fear spell.

On his next action, Sir Agrivail uses his call to battle ability to grant Lidda another save.

If she succeeds, she immediately shrugs off the effect of the fear spell.

Daunting Challenge (Ex): Starting at 12th level, you can call out opponents, striking fear into the hearts of your enemies.

In this manner you separate the strong-minded from the weak-willed, allowing you to focus on opponents that are worthy foes.

As a swift action, you can expend one use of your knight's challenge ability to issue a daunting challenge.

This ability affects all creatures within 100 feet of you that have a CR less than your character level minus 2.

Targets must be able to hear you, speak or understand a language of some sort, and have an Intelligence score of 5 or more.

All targets who meet these conditions must make Will saves (DC 10 + $1/2$ your class level + your Cha modifier) or become shaken.

Whether a creature fails or succeeds on its save against your daunting challenge, it can only be targeted by this effect once per day.

Bond of Loyalty (Ex): Starting at 16th level, your loyalty to your comrades endures even in the face of powerful magic. You can expend one use of your knight's challenge ability to make an additional saving throw against a mindaffecting spell or ability.

You can use this ability once per round as a free action and can continue to use it even if an opponent is controlling your actions with a mind-affecting spell or ability.

Loyal Beyond Death (Ex): At 20th level, if you are reduced to 0 or fewer hit points by an effect that otherwise leaves your body intact, you can expend one use of your knight's challenge ability to remain conscious and continue to act for 1 more round before dying.

You can use this ability even if your hit point total is -10 or lower.

If your body is somehow destroyed before your next action (such as by disintegrate), then you cannot act.

You can continue to expend uses of your knight's challenge ability to survive from round to round until you run out of uses.

If you receive healing that leaves you with more than -10 hit points, you survive (or fall unconscious, as appropriate to your new hit point total) when you stop using this ability.

Otherwise, death overtakes you when you run out of uses of your knight's challenge ability.

The Knight's Code: You fight not only to defeat your foes but to prove your honor, demonstrate your fighting ability, and win renown across the land.

The stories that arise from your deeds are just as important to you as the deeds themselves.

A good knight hopes that her example encourages others to lead righteous lives.

A neutral knight wishes to uphold the cause of his liege (if he has one) and win glory.

An evil knight seeks to win acclaim across the land and increase her own personal power.

The knight's code focuses on fair play: A victory achieved through pure skill is more difficult, and hence wins more glory, than one achieved through trickery or guile.

- A knight does not gain a bonus on attack rolls when flanking.

You still confer the benefit of a flanking position to your ally, but you forgo your own +2 bonus on attack rolls.

You can choose to keep the +2 bonus, but doing so violates your code of honor (see below).

- A knight never strikes a flat-footed opponent.

Instead, you allow your foe to ready himself before attacking.

- A knight never deals lethal damage against a helpless foe. You can strike such a foe, but only with attacks that deal nonlethal damage.

If you violate any part of this code, you lose one use of your knight's challenge ability for the day.

If your knight's challenge ability is not available when you violate the code (for example, if you have exhausted your uses for the day), you take a -2 penalty on attack rolls and saves for the rest of that day.

Your betrayal of your code of conduct undermines the foundation of confidence and honor that drives you forward.

While you cleave to your view of honor, chivalry, and pursuit of glory, you do not force your views on others.

You might chide a rogue for sneaking around a battlefield, but you recognize (and perhaps even feel a bit smug about) the reality that not everyone is fit to follow the knight's path.

Mounted Combat: At 2nd level, you gain Mounted Combat as a bonus feat.

Shield Block (Ex): Starting at 2nd level, you excel in using your armor and shield to frustrate your enemy's attacks. During your action, designate a single opponent as the target of this ability.

Your shield bonus to AC against that foe increases by 1, as you move your shield to deflect an incoming blow, possibly providing just enough protection to turn a telling swing into a near miss.

This shield bonus increases to +2 at 11th level and +3 at 20th level.

Bulwark of Defense (Ex): When you reach 3rd level, an opponent that begins its turn in your threatened area treats all the squares that you threaten as difficult terrain.

Your strict vigilance and active defensive maneuvers force your opponents to move with care.

Armor Mastery (Ex): Starting at 4th level, you are able to wear your armor like a second skin and ignore the standard speed reduction for wearing medium armor.

Starting at 9th level, you ignore the speed reduction imposed by heavy armor as well.

Bonus Feat: At 5th level, you gain a bonus feat chosen from the following list: Animal Affinity, Diehard, Endurance, Great Fortitude, Iron Will, Quick Draw, Ride-By Attack, Spirited Charge, Trample, or Weapon Focus (lance).

You must still meet any prerequisites for the feat.

You gain an additional bonus feat from this list at 10th level and again at 15th level.

Vigilant Defender (Ex): Starting at 5th level, you stand your ground against all enemies, warding the spot where you make your stand to prevent foes from slipping past and attacking those you protect.

If an opponent attempts to use the Tumble skill to move through your threatened area or your space without provoking attacks of opportunity, the Tumble check DC to avoid your attacks of opportunity increases by an amount equal to your class level.

Shield Ally (Ex): Starting at 6th level, as an immediate action you can opt to absorb part of the damage dealt to an adjacent ally.

Each time this ally takes damage from a physical attack before your next turn, you can take half this damage on yourself.

The target takes the other half as normal.

You can only absorb damage from physical melee attacks and ranged attacks, such as an incoming arrow or a blow from a sword, not from spells and other effects.

Improved Shield Ally (Ex): At 14th level, your ability to absorb damage increases.

Once per round you can absorb all the damage from a single attack directed against an adjacent ally.

In addition, you continue to absorb half the damage from other physical attacks on an adjacent ally, if you so choose.

You must decide whether to use this ability after the attacker determines that an attack has succeeded but before he rolls damage.

Impetuous Endurance (Ex): Starting at 17th level, your fighting spirit enables you to push your body beyond the normal limits of endurance.

You no longer automatically fail a saving throw on a roll of 1.

You might still fail the save if your result fails to equal or beat the DC.

PLAYING A KNIGHT

As a knight, you are driven to prove your abilities, showcase the code of chivalry as a proper way to live, and defend your allies.

You are impetuous and brave, never backing down from a challenge.

When you face a mighty foe, you take a moment to call out a challenge to him, salute his fighting ability, or list his crimes that you seek to avenge.

RELIGION

Knights value order and honor in all things.

They worship lawful gods, though whether their patrons are good, neutral, or evil depends solely on the knight's preferences.

Good knights favor Heironeous, while neutral ones follow St. Cuthbert.

Evil knights, if they venerate a god, offer prayers to Hextor.

Knights of Heironeous and Hextor are renowned for the epic duels they have fought against each other.

Opposing armies sometimes halt their advance to allow these sworn enemies to duel to the death before the rest of the battle is joined.

OTHER CLASSES

You respect paladins for their skill in combat and devotion to a code of conduct, although their path is somewhat different from your own.

You see wizards, sorcerers, clerics, and bards as useful allies who should stay back away from combat; individual knights sometimes travel partnered with a member of one of these classes.

Most knights consider barbarians to be crazed lunatics who lack the honor, self-control, and training to fight in a proper civilized manner, yet a skilled barbarian can earn a knight's grudging respect through deeds in battle.

You have little regard for rogues, beguilers, or others who rely on stealth or deceit.

In general, you have no feeling one way or the other toward druids, monks, and rangers.

You distrust the duskblade's mix of melee combat and spellcasting but can empathize with the dragon shaman's devotion to his totem dragon, though you might be wary of particular shamans (those devoted to chaotic dragons).

In general, you feel protective (but with a touch of condescension) toward adventurers who cannot handle heavy armor and weapons.

COMBAT

You serve two basic roles in battle.

You excel at dominating the field of battle, since your defensive abilities make it difficult for opponents to move past you and strike vulnerable members of your party.

You believe that the best way to face an enemy is to challenge him to an honorable duel and kill him fair and square, claiming all the glory for yourself.

When faced with multiple foes, you can strike fear into some and goad others into attacking you rather than your allies.

You are the sorcerer's, wizard's, or bard's best friend.

Your commanding presence draws attacks to you, while your hit points and heavy armor make you ideally suited to absorb blows.

While you are engaging foes in combat, your allies can use their spells and special abilities without interference.

ADVANCEMENT

When looking at feats to select as you gain levels, you have two basic paths.

You can focus on your fighting skill, or you can attempt to expand your capabilities to serve as the party's spokesman. The former option is best when you are the group's primary combat specialist.

If the party includes a barbarian, paladin, fighter, ranger, or duskblade, you can afford to dabble in feats that improve your Charisma-based skills.

Although Diplomacy is not a class skill for you, the Skill Focus feat combined with your superior Charisma and a few cross-class ranks makes you a serviceable emissary.

When it comes to combat feats, look to ones that improve your ability to deal damage.

Your class features already enhance your defense, making feats such as Power Attack, Weapon Focus, and so forth excellent options to boost your offense.

Alternatively, you could focus on crippling your foe's ability to deal damage.

Combat Expertise combined with Improved Disarm and Improved Trip form a potent combo.

When you lure a foe into attacking you, you can pluck his weapon from his hand or knock him to the ground.

In either case, your opponent is neutralized as a threat to you or your allies.

Improved Initiative is a critically important feat, since it allows you to act first, move forward, and defend your allies. The sooner you find a place at the front line, the longer you can hold back the monsters.

STARTING PACKAGES

Package 1: The Cavalier

Human Knight

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 12, Con 13, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 14.

Skills: Diplomacy, Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Ride.

Feats: Mounted Combat, Skill Focus (Ride).

Weapons: Lance (1d8/×3), longsword (1d8/19–20), three javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Chain shirt (+4 AC), heavy wooden shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 11 gp.

Package 2: The Defender

Dwarf Knight

Ability Scores: Str 15, Dex 12, Con 15, Int 10, Wis 8, Cha 12.

Skills: Diplomacy, Ride.

Feat: Shield Specialization (heavy).

Weapons: Dwarven waraxe (1d10/×3), warhammer (1d8/×3), 5 javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy steel shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 18 gp.

Package 3: The Destroyer

Half-Orc Knight

Ability Scores: Str 16, Dex 12, Con 13, Int 8, Wis 8, Cha 13.

Skill: Intimidate.

Feat: Power Attack.

Weapons: Battleaxe (1d8/×3), five javelins (1d6, 30 ft.).

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC), heavy steel shield (+2 AC).

Other Gear: Standard adventurer's kit, 50 gp.

KNIGHTS IN THE WORLD

"I like having a knight in front of me in a fight.

He holds the line and allows me to work my spells in peace.

Best of all, so long as he has his back to me I can't hear him prattling on about honor, strength, and chivalry."

—Vaarlis Runespeaker, mage-initiate of Wee Jas

The concept of the knight, or cavalier, or chevalier has arisen in many cultures that used mounted warriors in their armies.

Typically, knights were members of the rich, land-owning upper class who could afford to buy and maintain heavy armor and a horse.

Such individuals served an elite role in the military not only for their fighting talents and ability to ride over and smash through infantry who lacked polearms but also for their social standing.

For the historical knight, his status as a rich landowner was the basis of his superiority to others.

Legend transformed the concept of the knight to focus on one who sets forth searching for deeds that will win him glory, drawing on his code of conduct and charismatic personality to defeat his enemies.

Since a character who owns land and sits on a fortune in gold makes for a poor adventurer in a traditional D&D game, the knight character class focuses on the concept of a heavily armored melee combatant who fights according to a strict code of conduct.

Fidelity to that code grants the knight the confidence and fighting spirit to excel on the battlefield and hence the glory he or she seeks.

DAILY LIFE

A knight adventures to prove her skill at arms, to advance the cause of whatever lord she might serve, and to further her own aims.

She rides forth from her lord's castle to right wrongs, quest in her lord's name, and prove herself worthy of knighthood.

By actively seeking fame, glory, and acclaim, the knight brings praise and respect to the code of honor that she fights under.

Some knights are lone wanderers with neither castle nor king.

A bloody war might leave a knight without a master. Homeless and with little more than her armor and weapons, this knight adventures to further the cause she still holds dear.

She could work to bring down the enemies who defeated her lord or attempt to do as much good across the land as possible, winning glory all the while.

She might seek for a new cause worthy of her devotion. The knight's order might fall, but the concepts of honor and chivalry endure so long as one knight holds them dear.

Other knights are similar to paladins in that they place their faith in a cause, though for a knight this cause is rooted in the world rather than a divine power.

A knight might fight against oppression and brutality in all its forms, such as when a dwarf knight ventures into the underground with his companions on a crusade to defeat drow, duergar, and other horrors before they can threaten the surface.

Such a knight doesn't need a lord or an order.

All he needs is a sharp sword, a stout shield, and an indomitable belief in his cause.

The knight of the D&D game is a wanderer who hunts down the red dragon that has despoiled the countryside, or the hero who mans the walls and rallies the town guard when a horde of orcs appears on the horizon.

The knight fights for a cause, and it matters not whether that cause is upholding the crown or a ceaseless desire to bring justice and hope to the land.

NOTABLES

Knights gain notoriety for their deeds, whether triumphs in combat or selfless acts of great honor.

Many an adventurer grew up on stories such as that of Archibold the Impetuous, who after the defeat of his liege's army stood alone to block pursuit on a narrow bridge while his allies withdrew to safety.

The bards claim that Sir Archibold slew more than a hundred hobgoblins before he finally fell, by which time his allies had reached the safety of a nearby fortress.

Another legend tells of Lady Attis, an evil but brave knight who drove off a rampaging red dragon that had terrorized the region, not from any beneficence toward the inhabitants but to win the fame of defeating a foe no one else dared face.

ORGANIZATIONS

Knights often band together into orders of knighthood, and many of these organizations have storied histories.

Knightly orders typically allow their members to spend much of their time on individual quests, requiring only that the knight live by the code of the order and be willing to return to the order's headquarters when called upon.

Knightly orders have a proud tradition of using heraldic symbols to identify themselves, and knights who belong to the order often carry these symbols on their shields and armor to identify their affiliation.

NPC REACTIONS

Individuals react to knights based on their previous interactions with other members of the class.

A heroic knight meets stony silence and suspicion in a land where evil knights oppress the poor.

By the same token, a villainous knight finds that folk who assume knights are chivalrous, fair, and honorable are quick to trust her and willing to believe the best about her.

Such trust might indeed bring out the best in her, or it might lead swiftly to disaster, depending on the knight.

A knight who has retired from adventuring typically acquires some position of authority, with commensurate political power, whether as general, king's champion, or ruler of some city or outpost.

People's opinions of knights are thus often the same as their views of authority in general.

KNIGHT LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (nobility and royalty) can research knights to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs. DC 10: Knights are skilled mounted fighters who specialize in defensive combat.

DC 15: Knights are combat-oriented characters adept at protecting their companions and stopping foes from getting past them.

They follow a strict code of honor.

DC 20: Knights are masters of armor and shield use. They can lure foes into one-on-one combat through sheer force of will.

KNIGHTS IN THE GAME

Because of their obvious place in real-world history, knights fit well into any campaign with a medieval setting. The class can be available to characters of almost any race or origin, or you can tie the class to a specific kingdom or group of cultures in your campaign world.

Either way, the knight provides an exciting option for players interested in a melee-oriented character capable of holding a line of combat and really protecting her allies, as well as challenging monsters in single combat.

ADAPTATION

This class can fit in a campaign in many ways—to serve a specific plot need, you can tie its history to a race or add a connection to a mysterious organization. The class description assumes that many races and cultures produce knights, but in your world perhaps only lawful societies might field knights as part of their armed forces, creating an instant and flavorful difference between lawful and chaotic culture groups.

If you take this route, create a chaotic-oriented group of hexblades, rangers, or scouts who oppose the order of knights.

EX-KNIGHTS

A knight who is no longer lawful loses the benefits of her knight's challenge ability. As a result, she cannot use class features that require her to expend uses of the knight's challenge ability, such as fighting challenge, test of mettle, and call to battle. She no longer takes penalties for violating her code of conduct. A knight can regain her status by returning to a lawful alignment.

TABLE 1-4: THE KNIGHT HIT DIE: d12

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special
1st	+1	+0	+0	+2	Fighting challenge +1, knight's challenge, knight's code
2nd	+2	+0	+0	+3	Mounted Combat, shield block +1
3rd	+3	+1	+1	+3	Bulwark of defense
4th	+4	+1	+1	+4	Armor mastery (medium), test of mettle
5th	+5	+1	+1	+4	Bonus feat, vigilant defender
6th	+6/+1	+2	+2	+5	Shield ally
7th	+7/+2	+2	+2	+5	Fighting challenge +2
8th	+8/+3	+2	+2	+6	Call to battle
9th	+9/+4	+3	+3	+6	Armor mastery (heavy)
10th	+10/+5	+3	+3	+7	Bonus feat
11th	+11/+6/+1	+3	+3	+7	Shield block +2
12th	+12/+7/+2	+4	+4	+8	Daunting challenge
13th	+13/+8/+3	+4	+4	+8	Fighting challenge +3
14th	+14/+9/+4	+4	+4	+9	Improved shield ally
15th	+15/+10/+5	+5	+5	+9	Bonus feat
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+5	+5	+10	Bond of loyalty
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+5	+5	+10	Impetuous endurance
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+6	+6	+11	—
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+6	+6	+11	Fighting challenge +4
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+6	+6	+12	Loyal beyond death, shield block +3

PSIONICS HANDBOOK (3.0)

PSION

The striking fist or flashing sword pales before a psion's focused stare.

Psionic powers arise from a regimen of strict mental discipline developed over months and years of self-scrutiny and mind-actualization.

Those who overcome personal demons, neuroses, and other pitfalls of intense self-reflection learn to call upon an internal reservoir of power.

Psions depend on a continual study of their own minds to discover an ever-wider range of mental powers.

They meditate on memories and the nature of memory itself, debate with their own fragment personalities, and delve into the dark recesses of their minds' convoluted corridors.

"Know thyself" is not just a saying for a psion, but the road to power.

Adventures: A psion adventures to stimulate his or her mind.

New experiences translate to new avenues of thought and eventually the discovery of previously latent abilities. A psion's powers are innate, but are not effortlessly attained.

Good psions are keenly aware of the corrupting effect telepathic powers can have if used unethically.

They strive to keep mental infiltration to a minimum and only strike at an enemy's mind when there is no alternative. Evil psions, however, have no such compunctions against mental violence.

If they corrupt the dreams or personalities of those who stand in their way, they take it as proof of their own mental superiority.

Characteristics: The psion draws real power from his mind. His power is a logical expression of lore attained through ongoing individual self-study.

He has access to fewer powers than a wizard or sorcerer of equal level has spells, but he enjoys supreme flexibility in accessing those powers.

A psion chooses one primary discipline, gaining knowledge of additional powers from that discipline first, although he can learn powers from any discipline if his appropriate ability scores are high enough.

A psion can seed a crystal or gem with a fragment of his personality, creating a psicystal.

A psicrystal has special abilities that are helpful to the psion.

Psions gain their powers as self-knowledge grows.

To truly know oneself, one must not only study mentally, but also physically: Psions learn a few rudimentary fighting skills and are proficient with simple weapons.

Alignment: For a psion, psionics is a personal art.

Psions look always inward, so they tend slightly toward neutrality over both chaos and law, but being neutral is not a requirement.

Psions are both good and evil, in equal measure.

Religion: Psions are not particularly drawn to any deity, due to their exceptional focus on their own personal potential.

Psions who do revere a deity do not conform to any general choice.

Background: Those destined to be psions shows signs of mental powers from the time they are just a few years old, but manifestations become especially noticeable at puberty. Unexplained noises and lights, crockery flying through the air of its own accord, and the appearance of small items out of thin air are common.

Most who have the gift grow out of it, turning away from their potential.

However, a few embrace their differences.

From that point on, the budding psion can begin practicing and improving his or her powers.

Like spell-wielding sorcerers, psions are often on their own, misunderstood and feared by friends and family.

Sometimes, psions find others with similar abilities and form informal networks, small societies, or even tiny communes populated with individuals possessing some psionic ability.

Races: The inborn gift for psionics is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Illithids are especially likely to be psions, since their abilities are actually components of a deeper psionic nature they possess awesome psionic might even without taking levels in the psion class.

Other Classes: Psions enjoy the company of monks, sharing their dedication to self-mastery.

Psions sometimes get off on the wrong foot with members of spellcasting classes such as sorcerers and wizards, because some psions feel that magic is a crutch for the mind.

Psions often rib psychic warriors, and vice versa, but their rivalry rarely leads to out-and-out conflict.

A psion's powers make him a good addition to any party.

Psions take on differing roles within a party, based on their discipline.

For example, Clairvoyance specialists serve to guide parties in difficult spots, while psions who have chosen Psychoportation as their primary discipline vastly upgrade the party's mobility.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Psions have the following game statistics.

Abilities: A psion's ability scores are all potentially important, because each discipline has a key ability score that affects powers used from within that discipline (see the side bar on Disciplines).

Every power falls within one of six psionic disciplines, and each discipline is keyed to a different ability score.

For instance, Dexterity is key for Psychoportation.

The same key ability score governs all the powers within a particular discipline.

When a psion uses a psionic power, he "manifests" it.

To manifest a 1st-level or higher power, the psion must have a key ability score of 10 plus the power's level (thus, a psion cannot manifest powers in a particular discipline if his key ability score for that discipline is less than 10).

The psion must also possess sufficient power points to pay the power's cost.

Choosing ability scores is also important because a defender's Will save DC against an attacking psion's power is set by the attacker each time a power is manifested: 1d20 roll + the power's level + the key ability modifier.

(See Chapter 4: Psionics for more detailed information).

A psion also gets bonus power points based on the key ability score for his primary discipline (this never varies).

Table 1-2: Psion Bonus Power Points shows bonus power points a psion with a high ability score in his primary discipline gains as level increases.

The points are additive; thus, a 5th-level psion with a score of 18 in his key ability has 1 + 3 + 5 = 9 bonus power points. Likewise, an 8th-level psion with a score of 15 in his key ability still gets the 1 + 3 = 4 bonus power points granted from earlier levels.

Bonus power points only accrue from a high ability score that has not fluctuated for 24 hours.

In addition to having a high ability score, a psion must be of sufficient level to gain bonus power points of a given level.

For instance, at 3rd level, the psion Alexandra (primary discipline Psychoportation) has Dexterity 16, good enough to get 1 bonus power point at 1st level and 3 at 3rd level. Once she reaches 5th level, she will receive an additional 5 power points.

If your character's key ability score is 9 or lower, you can't manifest powers tied to that ability (powers keyed to that discipline).

For example, if Alexandra's Dexterity drops to 9 because of a poison or psionic combat, she is unable to manifest even her simplest psychoportation powers until cured.

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d4.

CLASS SKILLS

The psion's class skills vary by the psion's primary discipline.

The egoist's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Autohypnosis* (Wis), Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration* (Con), Jump (Str), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Psicraft (Int), Stabilize Self (Con), and Swim (Str).

The nomad's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Climb (Str), Concentration* (Con), Escape Artist (Dex), Intuit Direction (Wis), Jump (Str), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Psicraft (Int), Remote View* (Int), Ride (Dex), Swim (Str), and Use Rope (Dex).

The savant's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Autohypnosis (Wis), Concentration (Con), Disable Device (Int), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Open Lock (Dex), Pick Pocket (Dex), Psicraft* (Int), Remote View* (Int), and Search (Int).

The shaper's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Alchemy (Int), Appraise (Int), Concentration* (Con), Craft (any) (Int), Disguise (Cha), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Perform (Cha), Psicraft* (Int), and Remote View* (Int).

The seer's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Concentration* (Con), Gather Information (Cha), Intuit Direction (Wis), Knowledge (psionics)* (Int), Listen (Wis), Psicraft* (Int), Remote View* (Int), Sense Motive (Wis), and Spot (Wis).

The telepath's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Animal Empathy (Cha), Bluff (Cha), Concentration* (Con), Diplomacy (Cha), Gather Information (Cha), Knowledge (psionics) (Int), Psicraft (Int), Remote View* (Int), and Sense Motive (Wis).

* See Chapter 2: Skills for new skill descriptions.

Other skills are found in Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook.

Skill Points at 1st Level: $(4 + \text{Int modifier}) \times 4$.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: $4 + \text{Int modifier}$.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the psion.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: Psions are proficient with all simple weapons.

They are not proficient with any type of armor or shield.

Armor does not interfere with the use of psionic powers, but psions who wear armor with which they are not proficient or who hold a shield with which they are not proficient suffer the armor check penalty on attack rolls and on the use of the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble. (See Chapter 7 of the Player's Handbook for armor check penalties).

Powers: A psion manifests psionic powers.

A psion's selection of powers is extremely limited, although he enjoys ultimate flexibility.

Your psion begins play knowing two 0-level powers (also called talents) of your choice and zero 1st level powers, plus one extra power within his primary discipline for each power level known, for a total of three 0-level powers and one 1st-level power.

At each level, your psion discovers one or more previously latent powers, as indicated on Table 1-1: The Psion.

Psions can pick powers from any discipline, but the "d" in each column represents a single extra power learned from the psion's primary discipline.

A "—" indicates no extra powers are known a "d" or a number indicates that the psion can choose one or more powers at the given level.

Powers discovered can be common powers chosen from the psion power list (see Chapter 5: Powers), or they can be unusual powers that the psion has gained some understanding of by study.

For example, a psion with a power stone encoded with an unusual psionic power (one not on the psion power list) could select that power as one of his new powers for achieving a new level, provided the power is the right level. In any case, the psion can't learn powers at a faster rate in this manner.

It simply allows the psion to occasionally select powers that aren't found on the psion power list.

To manifest a power within a particular discipline, a psion must have a key ability score of at least 10 + the power's level.

(Psionic attack and defense modes are exempt from this restriction, and do not possess levels).

The DC for saving throws to resist a psion's powers is $1d20 + \text{the power's level} + \text{the psion's key ability modifier}$.

The $1d20$ roll is made by the attacking psion when the power is manifested.

(Psionic attack and defense modes add a special modifier instead).

Certain powers can be enhanced as they are manifested, at the cost of additional power points.

Chapter 3: Feats describes a number of psionic power enhancement feats.

Note: A psion may choose to discover a lower-level power in place of a higher-level power normally granted by level advancement.

Thus, a psion advancing to 9th level may normally learn another 4th-level power but could instead learn a 3rd- or lower-level power in its place.

If a psion chooses to learn a lower-level power instead of his first discipline power for a particular level (indicated by a "d" on Table 1-1), the substitute lower-level power must be in the psion's primary discipline.

Power Points: A psion can manifest a certain number of 1st-level and higher powers per day based on his available power points, but he need not prepare his powers in advance; he just pays the power point cost of a power to manifest it.

The number of available power points per day is improved by his bonus power points, if any, as shown on Table 1-2.

TABLE 1-2: PSION BONUS POWER POINTS

Ability	Bonus Power Points (by Psion Level)
Score	1-2	3-4	5-6	7-8	9-10	11-12	13-14	15-16	17-18	19-20
1-9	Can't manifest powers with this key ability
10-11	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
12-13	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
14-15	1	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
16-17	1	3	5	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
18-19	1	3	5	7	—	—	—	—	—	—
20-21	3	3	5	7	9	—	—	—	—	—
22-23	3	5	5	7	9	11	—	—	—	—
24-25	3	5	7	7	9	11	13	—	—	—
26-27	3	5	7	9	9	11	13	15	—	—
28-29	5	5	7	9	11	11	13	15	17	—
30-31	5	7	7	9	11	13	13	15	17	19
32-33	5	7	9	9	11	13	15	15	17	19
34-35	5	7	9	11	11	13	15	17	17	19
36-37	7	7	9	11	13	13	15	17	19	19
38-39	7	9	9	11	13	15	15	17	19	21
40-41	7	9	11	11	13	15	17	17	19	21

etc. . .

For instance, at 1st level the telepath Ialdabode gets 2 power points per day (see Table 1-1: The Psion), plus 1 additional power point for his high score in Charisma (which is the key ability for his primary discipline).

Ialdabode also selected the Inner Strength feat, which grants 1 power point, for a daily total of 4.

He only knows one 1st-level power, disable, chosen from his primary discipline.

He also knows any five psionic combat modes (see below), which also cost power points to manifest.

On any given day, he can manifest disable four times (using up all his power points that day).

Special rules govern the manifestation of 0-level powers and psionic combat modes.

0-Level Powers: Also called talents, 0-level powers have a special power point cost.

A psion can manifest any talent he knows for free a number of times per day equal to his level + 3.

After exhausting his daily allotment, the psion must pay 1 power point per manifestation of a 0-level power for the rest of the day.

Thus, a 1st-level psion can manifest four talents for free, then must pay 1 power point for each additional 0-level manifestation that day.

Psionic Combat Modes: At 1st level, the psion can choose to learn five of the ten psionic combat modes.

(A full description of psionic combat, along with summaries of each power, is presented in Chapter 4: Psionics).

At every odd-numbered level from 3rd through 11th, he can learn one additional psionic combat mode.

The five attack modes are ego whip, id insinuation, mind blast, mind thrust, and psychic crush.

The five defense modes are empty mind, intellect fortress, mental barrier, thought shield, and tower of iron will.

Psionic attack and defense modes are most effective against psionic characters and creatures, but they can affect nonpsionic beings as well.

Attack and defense modes are treated like psionic powers in some ways, but they have their own special qualities that powers do not share.

Psionic combat modes have varying manifestation costs: Low-level psions are cautioned to choose powers with lower costs.

For instance, a psion could choose mind blast at 1st level, but its high power point cost (9) makes it inaccessible to the psion for several levels.

Psicrystal: A psion can encode a psicrystal (see Psicrystals, below).

Doing so takes a day and requires materials that cost 100 gp (usually, the gem used as the basis for the psicrystal represents at least 50% of the total cost).

A psicrystal is a psionically charged crystalline stone no more than 1 inch in diameter.

It carries a fragment personality seeded from the psion's own mind, with which the psion can empathically interact and from which he can derive benefits.

A psion may possess no more than one psicrystal at any one time.

The psion chooses the type of psicrystal he gets, that is, what fragment of his personality is encoded in the stone. As the psion increases in level, his psicrystal also increases in utility, as shown on Table 1-5: Psicrystal Special Abilities.

If the psicrystal is destroyed, whether by accident or on purpose, the psion must attempt a Fortitude save (DC 15).

If the saving throw fails, the psion loses 200 experience points per class level.

A successful saving throw reduces the loss by half.

However, a psion's experience can never go below 0 as the result of a psicrystal's destruction.

For example, Ialdabode is a 3rd-level psion with 3,230 XP when his psicrystal is eaten by a xorn.

Ialdabode makes a successful saving throw, so he loses 300 XP, dropping him below 3,000 XP and back to 2nd level (the DUNGEON MASTER's Guide has rules for losing levels).

A destroyed psicrystal cannot be replaced for six months. Starting Gold: $3d4 \times 10$ gp (unless using a starting package).

PSICRYSTALS

Except to its owner, a psicrystal appears to be a normal gem worth 100 gp.

However, a psicrystal grants a special ability to its psion owner depending on the fragment personality seeded in the stone, as given on Table 1-4: Psicrystals.

TABLE 1-4: PSICRYSTALS

Psicrystal Personality	Special
Artiste	Owner gains +2 bonus on Craft checks.
Bully	Owner gains +2 bonus on Intimidate checks.
Coward	Owner gains +2 bonus on Hide checks.
Friendly	Owner gains +2 bonus on Diplomacy checks.
Hero	Owner gains +2 bonus on Fortitude saves.
Liar	Owner gains +2 bonus on Bluff checks.
Meticulous	Owner gains +2 bonus on Search checks.
Observant	Owner gains +2 bonus on Spot checks.
Poised	Owner gains +2 bonus on Balance checks.
Resolve	Owner gains +2 bonus on Will saves.
Sage	Owner gains +2 bonus on any one Knowledge skill he already knows; once chosen this does not vary.
Singleminded	Owner gains +2 bonus on Concentration checks.
Sneak	Owner gains +2 bonus on Move Silently checks.
Sympathetic	Owner gains +2 bonus on Sense Motive checks.

Physically, psicrystals have AC 13, hardness 8, and 20 hit points.

Psicrystals "regenerate" their crystal matrix at rate of $2d4$ hit points per day if damaged.

If a psicrystal is brought to 0 hit points, it is destroyed.

Psicrystal Personality Descriptions: All psicrystals have distinct personalities.

At 1st-level, the psion only gets a feel for the crystal's personality through strong feelings, but at higher levels the psicrystal is free to telepathically provide the psion with advice, severely slanted toward the psicrystal's particular world view.

The owner always sees a bit of herself in her psicrystal, even if magnified and therefore distorted.

Artiste: This splinter personality notes without humility that it is wonderfully talented in almost any occupation, be it dancing, opera, or cooking.

Equal parts troth and pretension make up this claim.

Bully: Sometimes bad seeds are still good for something.

The bully splinter personality's overbearing harangues and nearly constant insistence that only its way is right is trying, but its influence is sometimes handy for the psion.

Coward: Buried deep in everyone is a healthy dose of self-preservation.

When captured and magnified, the essence of cowardliness aids the psion in finding safe harbor in dangerous situations.

However, this psicrystal is far too eager to urge the psion to run and hide, even in only moderately dangerous situations.

Friendly: This splinter personality is disposed to promote the well-being of another, even of a revealed enemy.

The psion owner puts up with lectures on his hard-hearted ways, but in return the psion is better able to deal with creatures in a nonviolent manner.

Hero: We all want to be heroes, and the psicrystal with this implanted splinter is that feeling personified.

Given to urging the psion into dangerous situations, it pays back its owner with physical resolve in difficult situations.

Liar: The lying psicrystal just can't help telling falsehoods, even to its owner who knows all too well when it is prevaricating and when it is communicating truthfully.

This doesn't stop the psicrystal.

Its laying ways serve the psion in good stead when she is forced to attempt the same.

Meticulous: The meticulous psicrystal has a hard time discerning between important details and those that are irrelevant.

In describing itself, it would say it is "punctilious in its attention to the roles of etiquette, and furthermore marked by extreme care in the treatment of details".

Sometimes maddening, this trait is sometimes useful to the psion who attempts a precise study of his environment.

Observant: "Did you see that?" is the most common communication between a psicrystal and its owner.

Often enough, the psion has seen the proffered sight and ignored it as, unimportant.

Sometimes, though this observant quality allows the psion to note things she might have otherwise passed by.

Poised: The ability to be constantly aware of your body and how it interacts with your surroundings is something often lost in the welter of more important thoughts.

Not so for this psicrystal, which is perfectly poised and sure of itself, if not its owner.

It often preaches the importance of equilibrium and the readiness for action, and its influence actually grants the psion a bonus in situations where balance is important.

Resolve: A quality everyone wishes they had, this psicrystal has it in spades.

It is firm in purpose and belief, and its advice and observations are characterized by firmness and determination.

Or, as the psion might say, it is a stubborn so-and-so.

Still, this unshakable faith aids the psion in all contests of will.

Sage: This splinter personality attempts to be a mentor to its owner, even though it is drawn from the owner's mind.

Still, unfettered with any other personality type, the sage sees itself as the be-all, end-all master of spiritual and philosophical topics, not to mention the area of Knowledge in which it is specialized.

Beyond its specialization, the sage psicrystal's advice is sometimes suspect.

Single-minded: The ability to focus in on the task at hand, ignoring all other environmental and emotional factors, is the personality seeded in this psicrystal.

Sometimes the psion has a very difficult time getting the psicrystal's attention if it is focused on a specific task, but its influence also magnifies the psion's own concentration abilities.

Sneak: Why announce your presence with loud footfalls when you could just as easily glide in with less noise than a breath of air?

Or so asks the sneaky psicrystal, who believes wholeheartedly in the role that silence is golden.

It is given to hushing its owner, and its owner's companions, at higher levels.

Still, its expertise in the area of quiet locomotion can't be denied.

Sympathetic: This quality allows the psicrystal to see into the hearts of other living things by putting itself in their shoes. Unfortunately, the psicrystal also spends a lot of rime analyzing the psion and his companions, commenting on their mental states, and making pronouncements about the fitness of their actions of course, this is useful when the psion wants to determine the motives of a potential enemy.

Psion Level: The level of the psion.

Psicrystal Ability Descriptions: All psicrystals have special abilities that depend on the level of the owner.

These abilities are cumulative.

Intelligence: The psicrystal's Intelligence score.

Psicrystals are smart, but their personality trait colors all empathic, telepathic, or verbal interaction.

Sighted: Though it possesses no physical sensory organs, a psicrystal can telepathically sense its environment as well as a sighted, hearing creature can.

Darkness (even supernatural darkness) is irrelevant, as are areas of supernatural silence, though a psicrystal still can't discern invisible or ethereal beings.

The psicrystal's sighted range is 40 feet.

Empathic Link: The psion has an empathic link with his or her psicrystal to a distance of up to one mile.

Psions cannot see using the psicrystal's sighted ability, but they can communicate empathetically.

The empathic link between a psicrystal and its owner limits communication to strong feelings, such as confidence, fear, uncertainty, resolve, and so on, so misunderstandings are always possible.

Telepathic Link: The psion has a telepathic link with his or her psicrystal to a distance of up to one mile.

Psions cannot see using the psicrystal's sighted ability, but they can communicate telepathically.

The telepathic link allows actual communication.

For instance, a psicrystal placed in a distant room could relay the activities occurring in that room.

psicrystals know all the languages their psion owners know.

Self-Propulsion: If the psion pays the cost of 1 power point, his or her psicrystal forms spidery, ectoplasmic legs for a day.

The legs grant the psicrystal a speed of 30 feet.

The psicrystal can climb walls and ceilings with its legs like a real spider at a speed of 20 feet.

The legs fade to nothingness when their duration expires, or if the psicrystal takes 1 or more points of damage that penetrate its hardness.

Speak with Other Creatures: The psicrystal can communicate mentally with its owner, other creatures, or psicrystals within 60 feet, using any language known to its psion owner (other creatures must speak aloud to return communication, except for the owner and other psicrystals).

To those familiar with the psion, the psicrystal's mental voice sounds very similar; however, all exchanges are colored by the psicrystal's particular personality trait.

Power Resistance: The psicrystal's power resistance (PR) equals the psion owner's level plus 5.

To affect the psicrystal with a power, an enemy manifester must make a manifester level check (1d20 + enemy's manifester level) at least equal to the psicrystal's power resistance.

Unless the Psionics Are Different option is used (see Chapter 4: Psionics), the psicrystal's spell resistance (SR) equals its power resistance.

Sight Link: Once per day, the psicrystal's owner can see what the crystal sees for a period of 1 hour, as long as the psion and the crystal are not separated by more than one mile.

Channel Power: The psion can manifest powers through the psicrystal to a distance of up to one mile.

The psicrystal is treated as the power's originator, and all ranges are calculated from that location.

When channeling a power through his psicrystal, the psion manifests the power by paying its cost.

He is still subject to attacks of opportunity and other hazards of manifesting a power, if applicable.

TABLE 1-5: PSICRYSTAL SPECIAL ABILITIES

Psion Level	Psicrystal Intelligence	Special
1-2	6	Sighted, empathic link
3-4	7	Telepathic link
5-6	8	Self-propulsion
7-8	9	Speak with other creatures
9-10	10
11-12	11	Power resistance
13-14	12	Sight link
15-16	13	Channel power
17-18	14
19-20	15

HUMAN PSION (EGOIST) STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Halbspear (1d6, crit x3, 20 ft., 3 lb., Medium-size, Piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 50 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability
Autohypnosis	4	Wis
Balance	4	Dex
Climb	4	Str
Concentration	4	Con
Jump	4	Str
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int
Psicraft	4	Int
Stabilize Self	4	Con
Swim*	4	Str
Heal (cc)	2	Wis
Tumble (cc)	2	Dex

*Effective modifier reduced -1 per 5 lb. of equipment.

Feat: Inertial Armor.

Bonus Feat: Two-Weapon Fighting.

Powers Known: 0-level—lesser natural armor, talons, verve.
1st-level—bite of the wolf.

Modes Known: Ego whip, id insinuation, and mind thrust; empty mind and thought shield.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Meditation mat.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Clothes (including cloak, cap, boots, tunic, and pants).

Gold: 1d2 gp.

HUMAN PSION (NOMAD) STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Shortspear (1d8, crit x3, 20 ft., 5 lb., Large, Piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).

Skill	Ranks	Ability
Climb	4	Str
Concentration	4	Con
Escape Artist	4	Dex
Intuit Direction	4	Wis
Jump	4	Str
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int
Psicraft	4	Int
Remote View	4	Int
Ride	4	Dex
Swim	4	Str
Rope Use (cc)	2	Dex
Tumble (cc)	2	Dex

*Effective modifier reduced -1 per 5 lb. of equipment.

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Feat: Inertial Armor.

Bonus Feat: Dodge.

Powers Known: 0-level—catfall, burst, float.

1st-level—spider climb.

Modes Known: Ego whip and mind thrust; empty mind, intellect fortress, and thought shield.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

50-ft. silk rope.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Clothes (including cloak, cap, boots, tunic, and pants).

Gold: 1d2 gp.

HUMAN PSION (SAVANT) STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Shortspear (1d8, crit x3, 20 ft., 5 lb., large, Piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).

Skill Selection: pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability
Autohypnosis	4	Wis
Concentration	4	Con
Disable Device	4	Int
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int
Open Lock	4	Dex
Pick Pocket	4	Dex
Psicraft	4	Int
Remote View	4	Int
Search	4	Int
Listen (cc)	2	Wis
Spot (cc)	2	Wis

Feat: Inner Strength.

Bonus Feat: Inertial Armor.

Powers Known: 0-level—catfall, far punch, my light.

1st-level—lesser concussion.

Modes Known: Mind thrust and psychic crush; empty mind, mental barrier, and thought shield.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Hammer, chisel, 20 nails.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Clothes (including cloak, cap, boots, tunic, and pants).

Gold: 1d2 gp.

HUMAN PSION (SHAPER) STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Shortspear (1d8, crit x3, 20 ft., 5 lb., large, Piercing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability
Alchemy	4	Int
Appraise	4	Int
Concentration	4	Con
Craft (any)	4	Int
Disguise	4	Cha
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int
Perform	4	Cha
Psicraft	4	Int
Remote View	4	Int
Spot (cc)	2	Wis
Use Rope (cc)	2	Dex

Feat: Inner Strength.

Bonus Feat: Talented.

Powers Known: 0-level—daze, finger of fire, trinket.

1st-level—firefall.

Modes Known: Ego whip and mind thrust; empty mind, mental barrier, and thought shield.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.

Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.

Hammer, chisel, 20 nails.

Case with 10 crossbow bolts.

Clothes (including cloak, cap, boots, tunic, and pants).

Gold: 1 d2 gp.

HUMAN PSION (SEER) STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.

Weapons: Quarterstaff (1d6/1d6, crit x2, 4 lb., large, Bludgeoning).
 Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).
 Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability
Concentration	4	Con
Gather Information	4	Cha
Intuit Direction	4	Wis
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int
Listen	4	Wis
Psicraft	4	Int
Remote View	4	Int
Sense Motive	4	Wis
Spot	4	Wis
Diplomacy (cc)	2	Cha
Search (cc)	2	Int

Feat: Inertial Armor.
 Bonus Feat: Mental Adversary.
 Powers Known: 0-level—detect psionics, finger of fire, inkling.
 1st-level—destiny dissonance.
 Modes Known: id insinuation, mind thrust, and psychic crush; empty mind and thought shield.
 Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.
 Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.
 Chalk.
 Case with 10 crossbow bolts.
 Clothes (including a cloak, a cap, boots, tunic, and pants).
 Gold: 1d2 gp.

HUMAN PSION (TELEPATH) STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: None, speed 30 ft.
 Weapons: Shortspear (1d8, crit x3, 20 ft., 5 lb., Large, Piercing).
 Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 80 ft., 6 lb., Small, Piercing).
 Skill selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 5 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability
Animal Empathy	4	Cha
Bluff	4	Cha
Concentration	4	Con
Diplomacy	4	Cha
Gather Information	4	Cha
Knowledge (psionics)	4	Int
Psicraft	4	Int
Remote view	4	Int
Sense Motive	4	Wis
Disguise (cc)	4	Cha
Intimidate (cc)	4	Cha

Feat: Inertial Armor.
 Bonus Feat: Inner Strength.
 Powers Known: 0-level—daze, missive, control shadow.
 1st-level—disable.
 Modes Known: Empty mind, thought shield, and tower of iron will; id insinuation and mind thrust.
 Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.
 Hooded lantern, 3 pints of oil.
 Mirror.
 Ink, quill, and 10 sheets of parchment.
 Case with 10 crossbow bolts.
 Clothes (including cloak, cap, boots, tunic, and pants).
 Gold: 1d2 gp.

ALTERNATIVE PSION STARTING PACKAGE

As human psion (any discipline), except Race: Dwarf, elf, half-elf, half-orc.
 Armor: Speed 20 ft. (dwarf only).
 Skill selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.
 Bonus Feat: None.

ALTERNATIVE PSION STARTING PACKAGE

As human psion (any discipline), except Race: Gnome or halfling.
 Armor: Speed 20 ft.
 Weapons: Morningstar (1d8, crit x2, 8 lb., Medium-size, Bludgeoning and Piercing) instead of shortspear.
 Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.
 Bonus Feat: None.
 Gold: 1 gp.

TABLE 1-1: THE PSION

Level	Base				Special	Power Pts/Day	Powers Discovered
	Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save			0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
1	+0	+0	+0	+2	Psicrystal, five psionic combat modes	2	2+d	d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	+1	+0	+0	+3		3	2+d	1+d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
3	+1	+1	+1	+3	Psionic combat mode	4	2+d	2+d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4	+2	+1	+1	+4		7	3+d	2+d	d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
5	+2	+1	+1	+4	Psionic combat mode	10	3+d	2+d	1+d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
6	+3	+2	+2	+5		15	4+d	2+d	1+d	d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
7	+3	+2	+2	+5	Psionic combat mode	20	4+d	3+d	2+d	1+d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
8	+4	+2	+2	+6		27	5+d	3+d	2+d	1+d	d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
9	+4	+3	+3	+6	Psionic combat mode	34	5+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
10	+5	+3	+3	+7		43	6+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	d	—	—	—	—	—	—
11	+5	+3	+3	+7	Psionic combat mode	52	6+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	—	—	—	—	—	—
12	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		63	7+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	d	—	—	—	—	—
13	+6/+1	+4	+4	+8		74	7+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	—	—	—	—	—
14	+7/+2	+4	+4	+9		87	7+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	d	—	—	—	—
15	+7/+2	+5	+5	+9		100	7+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	—	—	—	—
16	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		115	7+d	4+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	d	—	—	—
17	+8/+3	+5	+5	+10		130	7+d	4+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	—	—	—
18	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		147	7+d	4+d	4+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	d	—	—
19	+9/+4	+6	+6	+11		164	7+d	4+d	4+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	1+d	1+d	—	—
20	+10/+5	+6	+6	+12		183	7+d	4+d	4+d	4+d	4+d	3+d	3+d	2+d	2+d	1+d	1+d	—

Level: The psion's level.

Base Attack Bonus: The psion's base attack bonus and number of attacks.

Special: Level-dependent psionic abilities, explained in the "Class Features" section that follows.

Power Points/Day: How many psionic power points the psion has access to each day. Psions manifest powers when they pay that power's cost with power points. The psion possesses a maximum number of power points equal to the given number of power points per day plus any bonus power points per day, no more. Bonus power points are shown on Table 1-2.

DISCIPLINES

A discipline is one of six groupings of powers, each defined by a common theme, such as Metacreativity or Telepathy. Every known psionic power is aligned with one of the six disciplines. A psion must choose one psionic discipline as his or her primary discipline at character creation. A psion can choose powers from any discipline according to the schedule shown in Table 1-1, but a psion knows one additional power per accessible power level within his primary discipline. A psion may not change his primary discipline once chosen. The psion's primary discipline also determines which ability score provides the psion's bonus power points (see Table 1-2).

TABLE 1-3: DISCIPLINES AND ASSOCIATED ABILITIES

Discipline	Associated
	Ability	Subclass in Brief	Nickname
Psychometabolism	Strength	Psi-biofeedback	Egoist
Psychoportation	Dexterity	Move in spacetime	Nomad
Psychokinesis	Constitution	Manipulate energy	Savant
Metacreativity	Intelligence	Out of thin air	Shaper
Clairsentience	Wisdom	See what's hidden	Seer
Telepathy	Charisma	Mental contact	Telepath

Psychometabolism: Powers that alter the psion's own physiobiology. A psion whose primary discipline is Psychometabolism is called an egoist. Strength is the key ability score for all powers within the Psychometabolism discipline and is the ability score egoists use to determine bonus power points.

Psychoportation: Powers that propel or displace objects in space or time. A psion whose primary discipline is Psychoportation is called a nomad. Dexterity is the key ability score for all powers within the Psychoportation discipline and is the ability score nomads use to determine bonus power points.

Psychokinesis: Powers that manipulate and transform physical properties. A psion whose primary discipline is Psychokinesis is called a savant. Constitution is the key ability score for all powers within the Psychokinesis discipline and is the ability score savants use to determine bonus power points.

Metacreativity: Powers that draw matter from the Astral Plane, creating semisolid and solid items. A psion whose primary discipline is Metacreativity is called a shaper. Intelligence is the key ability score for all powers within the Metacreativity discipline and is the ability score shapers use to determine bonus power points.

Clairsentience: Powers that reveal information. A psion whose primary discipline is Clairsentience is called a seer. Wisdom is the key ability score for all powers within the Clairsentience discipline and is the ability score seers use to determine bonus power points.

Telepathy: Powers that allow mental contact and control of other sentient creatures. A psion whose primary discipline is Telepathy is called a telepath. Charisma is the key ability score for all powers within the Telepathy discipline and is the ability score telepaths use to determine bonus power points.

PSYCHIC WARRIOR

One who rums the mind's potential to the warrior's an is known as a psychic warrior.

Where psions devote themselves wholly to the development of mind-engendered abilities, psychic warriors give emphasis to the development of the body. With mental and physical energy working in union, the psychic warrior strives toward martial perfection.

The sword, axe, and bow are physical tools that psychic warriors embrace along with their psionic abilities.

Applying equal pans physical training and psionic discipline, the psychic warrior is a worthy adversary.

Adventures: Psychic warriors know that only through conflict will their skills grow.

Prone to showing off their flamboyant abilities, they claim to fear nothing.

Psychic warriors are eager to accumulate treasure that adventures bring in order to upgrade their weapons and armor.

Characteristics: The defining trait of the psychic warrior is her ability to supplement her physical attacks with psionic feats and psionic powers.

A combination of Strength, martial skill, and psionic ability allows the psychic warrior to equal and sometimes surpass a normal fighter of equal experience.

As the psychic warrior gains experience and power, her fighting skills and psionic abilities grow in concert.

Alignment: A psychic warrior's training requires the ability to give equal shrift to what others consider polar opposites of physical and mental ability.

Psychic warriors tend toward chaotic alignments, but chaotic alignment is not a requirement.

Religion: Psychic warriors prefer to worship any nonlawful god, often choosing Heironeous, god of valor; Kord, god of strength; or Erythnul, god of slaughter.

But, like psions, psychic warriors' reliance on their will and internal fortitude often make them poor supplicants.

Background: A psychic warrior typically grows up among psions who have formed a society or small community of the "like-minded".

Such communes are rare, but their existence provides some protection in a world often hostile to those with purely mental abilities.

Psychic warriors are often the children of psions who grow up dissatisfied with directly following the dictates of their parents.

Without the support of those who have fully plumbed the depths of psionic ability, though, it is doubtful that the hybrid psychic warrior could ever come into being.

Although they have chosen their class out of a sense of rebellion, most psychic warriors still feel a deep connection to the commune or society where they were raised and trained.

Of course, a few have no connection other than to their own paths of personal development.

Races: The inborn gift for psionics is unpredictable, and it can show up in any of the common races.

Mind Flayers are more likely to be psions than psychic warriors, especially since a chaotic viewpoint aids the dual discipline; however, a few illithid psychic warriors exist.

Other Classes: Psychic warriors get on well with anyone, regardless of class, who appreciates their unique contributions.

Because the psychic warrior is good to have in a fight, most adventurers are happy to ask her to join their merry band.

GAME RULE INFORMATION

Psychic warriors have the following game statistics.

Abilities: Strength is an ideal ability for the psychic warrior, augmenting both melee prowess and Psychometabolism powers.

Dexterity provides better defense and bonuses to melee attacks.

Constitution upgrades the psychic warrior's toughness.

As with a psion, all the ability scores are potentially important because of the psionic disciplines tied to them.

Choosing ability scores is also important because a defender's Will save DC against an attacking psychic warrior's power is set by the attacker each time a power is manifested: 1d20 roll + the power's level + the key ability modifier.

(See Chapter 4: Psionics for more information).

Alignment: Any.

Hit Die: d8.

CLASS SKILLS

The psychic warrior's class skills (and the key ability for each skill) are Autohypnosis* (Wis), Balance (Dex), Climb (Str), Concentration* (Con), Jump (Str), Stabilize Self* (Str), Swim (Str), Tumble (Dex), and Use Psionic Device* (Cha).

* See Chapter 2: Skills for new skill descriptions.

Other skills are found in Chapter 4 of the Player's Handbook.

Skill Points at 1st Level: (2 + Int modifier) × 4.

Skill Points at Each Additional Level: 2 + Int modifier.

CLASS FEATURES

All of the following are class features of the psychic warrior.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: The psychic warrior is proficient in the use of all simple and martial weapons and all armor (light, medium, and heavy armor) and shields.

Note that armor check penalties for armor heavier than leather apply to the skills Balance, Climb, Escape Artist, Hide, Jump, Move Silently, Pick Pocket, and Tumble.

Also, Swim checks suffer a -1 penalty for every 5 pounds of armor and equipment carried.

Bonus Feats: At 1st level, the psychic warrior gets a bonus feat in addition to the feat that any 1st-level character gets and the bonus feat granted to humans.

The psychic warrior gains an additional bonus feat at 2nd level and every three levels thereafter (5th, 8th, 11th, and so on).

These bonus feats can be selected from all psionic feats (see Chapter 3: Feats) as well as the following feats from the Player's Handbook: Ambidexterity, Blind-Fight, Combat Reflexes, Dodge (Mobility, Spring Attack), Exotic Weapon Proficiency*, Expertise (Improved Disarm, Improved Trip, Whirlwind Attack), Improved Critical*, Improved Initiative, Improved Unarmed Strike (Deflect Arrows, Stunning Fist), Mounted Combat (Mounted Archery, Trample, Ride-By Attack, Spirited Charge), Point Blank Shot (Far Shot, Precise Shot, Rapid Shot, Shot on the Run), Power Attack (Cleave, Improved Bull Rush, Sunder, Great Cleave), Quick Draw, Two-Weapon Fighting (Improved Two-Weapon Fighting), Weapon Finesse*, and Weapon Focus*.

Feats dependent on other feats are given parenthetically after the prerequisite feat.

Some of the psionic feats also have feats from the above list as prerequisites, as noted in Chapter 3 of this book.

A character can select feats marked with an asterisk (*) more than once, but it must be for a different weapon each time.

Characters must still meet all prerequisites for a feat, including ability score and base attack bonus (see Chapter 5 of the Player's Handbook for descriptions of feats and their prerequisites).

Important: Bonus feats are in addition to the feat that any character gets every three levels.

The psychic warrior is not limited to the list given here when choosing those fears.

Powers: A psychic warrior manifests psionic powers.

A psychic warrior's selection of powers is more limited than a psion's.

Your psychic warrior begins play knowing two 0-level powers (talents).

At each level, your psychic warrior discovers one or more previously latent powers, as indicated on Table 1-6: The Psychic Warrior.

These powers are chosen from the psychic warrior power list (see Chapter 5: Powers).

To manifest a power within a particular discipline, a psychic warrior must have a key ability score of at least 10 + the power's level.

(Psionic attack and defense modes are exempt from this restriction and do not possess levels).

The DC for saving throws to resist a psychic warrior's powers is 1d20 + the power's level + the psychic warrior's key ability modifier.

The 1d20 roll is made by the attacking psion when the power is manifested.

(Psionic attack and defense modes add a special modifier instead).

Certain powers can be enhanced as they are manifested, at the cost of additional power points.

Chapter 3: Feats describes a number of psionic power enhancement feats.

Note: A psychic warrior may choose to discover a lower-level power in place of a higher-level power normally granted by level advancement, just as psions can.

Power Points: A psychic warrior can manifest a certain number of 1st-level and higher powers per day based on her available power points, but she need not prepare her powers in advance—she just pays the power point cost of a power to manifest it.

Psychic warriors do not gain bonus power points for exceptional ability scores, and so at 1st level have only 2 power points.

Special rules govern the manifestation of 0-level powers and psionic combat modes.

0-level Powers: Also called talents, 0-level powers have a special power point cost.

A psychic warrior can manifest any talent she knows for free a number of times per day equal to her level + 2.

After exhausting her daily allotment, the psychic warrior must pay 1 power point per manifestation of a 0-level power for the rest of the day.

Thus, a 1st-level psychic warrior can manifest three talents for free, then must pay 1 power point for each additional 0-level manifestation that day.

Psionic Combat Modes: At 1st level, a psychic warrior can choose to learn two of the ten psionic combat modes.

(A full description of psionic combat, along with summaries of each power, is presented in Chapter 4: Psionics).

At succeeding levels, she can learn one additional psionic combat mode according to the schedule shown on Table 1-6: The Psychic Warrior.

The five attack modes are ego whip, id insinuation, mind blast, mind thrust, and psychic crush.

The five defense modes are empty mind, intellect fortress, mental barrier, thought shield, and tower of iron will.

Psionic attack and defense modes are most effective against psionic characters and creatures, but they can affect nonpsionic beings as well.

Attack and defense modes are treated like psionic powers in some ways, but they have their own special qualities that powers do not share.

Psionic combat modes have varying manifestation costs:

Low-level psychic warriors are cautioned to choose powers with lower costs.

For instance, a psychic warrior could choose mind blast at 1st level, but its high power point cost (9) makes it inaccessible to her for several levels.

Weapon Specialization: On achieving 6th level, a psychic warrior gains the Weapon Specialization feat.

Weapon Specialization adds a +2 damage bonus with a chosen weapon.

The psychic warrior must have Weapon Focus with that weapon to gain Weapon Specialization.

If the weapon is a ranged weapon, the damage bonus applies only if the target is within 30 feet, because only at that range can the psychic warrior strike precisely enough to hit more effectively.

Psychic warriors gain Weapon Specialization as a free feat; it doesn't count against the character's bonus and regular feat acquisition.

The character cannot take Weapon Specialization as a bonus or regular feat at any other level.

Starting Gold: 5d4×10 gp (unless using a starting package).

HUMAN PSYCHIC WARRIOR STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail +4 AC, large wooden shield +2 AC, armor check penalty -6, speed 20 ft., 40 lb.

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., Medium-size, Slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit ×3, 60 ft., 2 lb., Medium-size, Piercing).

Skill Selection: pick a number of skills equal to 3 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor
Autohypnosis	4	Wis
Balance	4	Dex
Climb	4	Str	-6
Concentration	4	Con
Jump	4	Str	-6
Stabilize Self	4	Con
Swim	2	Str	-12
Tumble	4	Dex
Use Psionic Device	4	Cha
Listen (cc)	2	Wis
Spot (cc)	2	Wis

*Effective modifier reduced -1 per 5 lb. of equipment.

Feat: Power Attack.

Bonus Feat: Psionic Weapon.

Bonus Feat: Stand Still.

Powers Known: 0-level—elfsight, verve.
 Modes Known: Mind thrust; thought shield.
 Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, and flint and steel.
 Quiver with 20 arrows.
 Gold: 2d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE PSYCHIC WARRIOR STARTING PACKAGE

Same as human psychic warrior, except Race: Elf, half-elf, or half-orc.

Skill Selection: pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Power Attack.

Bonus Feat: Stand Still.

Powers Known: 0-level—daze, far punch.

ALTERNATIVE PSYCHIC WARRIOR STARTING PACKAGE

Same as human psychic warrior, except Race: Gnome or halfling.

Armor: Speed 15 ft. instead of 20 ft.

Weapons: Short sword (1d6, crit 19–20/x2, 3 lb., small, Piercing) instead of longsword.

Skill Selection: pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Power Attack.

Bonus Feat: Rapid Metabolism.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

ALTERNATIVE PSYCHIC WARRIOR STARTING PACKAGE

Same as human psychic warrior, except Race: Dwarf.

Armor: Speed 15 ft. instead of 20 ft.

Weapons: Dwarfven waraxe (1d10, crit x3, 15 lb., Medium-size, Slashing) instead of longsword.

Skill selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 2 + Int modifier.

Feat: Power Attack.

Bonus Feat (Psychic Warrior): Weapon Focus (dwarven waraxe).

Powers Known: 0-level—daze, far punch.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

TABLE 1-6: THE PSYCHIC WARRIOR

Level	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save	Special	Power Pts/Day	Powers Discovered
							0	1	2	3	4	5	6
1	+0	+2	+0	+0	Bonus feat, two psionic combat modes	2	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
2	+1	+3	+0	+0	Bonus feat	3	3	—	—	—	—	—	—
3	+2	+3	+1	+1	Psionic combat mode	4	3	1	—	—	—	—	—
4	+3	+4	+1	+1		5	3	2	—	—	—	—	—
5	+3	+4	+1	+1	Bonus feat	8	3	3	1	—	—	—	—
6	+4	+5	+2	+2	Weapon Specialization	11	3	3	2	—	—	—	—
7	+5	+5	+2	+2	Psionic combat mode	16	3	3	2	1	—	—	—
8	+6/+1	+6	+2	+2	Bonus feat	21	3	3	3	1	—	—	—
9	+6/+1	+6	+3	+3	Psionic combat mode	26	3	3	3	2	—	—	—
10	+7/+2	+7	+3	+3	Psionic combat mode	33	3	3	3	2	1	—	—
11	+8/+3	+7	+3	+3	Bonus feat	40	3	3	3	3	1	—	—
12	+9/+4	+8	+4	+4	Psionic combat mode	47	3	3	3	3	2	—	—
13	+9/+4	+8	+4	+4	Psionic combat mode	56	3	3	3	3	2	1	—
14	+10/+5	+9	+4	+4	Bonus feat	65	3	3	3	3	3	1	—
15	+11/+6/+1	+9	+5	+5	Psionic combat mode	74	3	3	3	3	3	2	—
16	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Psionic combat mode	85	3	3	3	3	3	2	1
17	+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	Bonus feat	96	3	3	3	3	3	3	1
18	+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6		107	3	3	3	3	3	3	2
19	+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6		118	3	4	3	3	3	3	2
20	+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Bonus feat	129	3	4	3	3	3	3	3

Powers Discovered: The number of powers of each level that the psychic warrior knows. A "—" indicates no powers are available.

TOME OF BATTLE (3.5)

CRUSADER

"Make your peace with whatever vile deity you worship, monster, for I am the sword of Pelor, and I will not fail in my strike!"

—Daresa, crusader of Pelor

Devoted knight, divine agent, instrument of vengeance, peerless fighting machine—the crusader is a warrior dedicated to good, evil, law, chaos, or some other cause. She seeks out and destroys the enemies of her chosen faith. Strengthened by prayer or absolute devotion to a principle, armored by unshakable faith, and driven by her convictions, a good crusader is a mighty weapon against injustice and malice.

An evil crusader, on the other hand, is a cruel and fearsome warrior of darkness.

A crusader who embraces a religion or holy faith is similar to a paladin in that she commands a number of holy (or unholy) powers.

However, a crusader has no skill with divine spellcasting; she is a martial adept whose maneuvers are unpredictable gifts of divine power.

Trusting in the power of her chosen deity, she allows faith and intuition to guide her through battle.

Many crusaders receive the call to their cause early in life, but never study formally at a temple or monastery.

These warriors are gifted with a natural ability to channel the divine energies of their cause, but in a raw, untamed manner.

A crusader has absolute faith in her ability to draw on the source of her power, but she never quite knows how that power will manifest.

MAKING A CRUSADER

A crusader is primarily a front-line melee battler, much like the fighter or paladin.

Her martial maneuvers give her more tactical flexibility than the fighter and make her a dynamic and well-rounded combatant.

Most crusaders also make good leaders, since they are both charismatic and dedicated.

Abilities: Strength and Constitution are vital to a crusader, since she is often in harm's way.

Intelligence is useful for gaining plenty of skill points, which a crusader needs to purchase the ranks in Diplomacy.

Intimidate, and Balance, the key skills for her martial disciplines.

Dexterity is useful for any character in combat, but a crusader's ability to wear heavy armor means that she is not as dependent on a high Dexterity score as other characters.

Races: Most crusaders are humans, half-elves, or dwarves, because the ideals of dedication, service, zeal, and courage are important in both dwarf and human cultures.

Elves, gnomes, and halflings generally lack the seriousness, single-minded devotion, and moderate fanaticism required to succeed as crusaders.

Half-orcs rarely become crusaders, but those who do follow this path often excel at it.

Many half-orcs spend their lives searching for an ideal to believe in or a community to which they can belong, and the way of the crusader appeals to such souls.

Alignment: A crusader can choose any alignment except neutral—she must stand for some ideal, whether chaos, good, evil, law, or a combination of principles.

To be a crusader is to devote oneself wholeheartedly to a cause or deity, and this way of life leaves no room for indecision or unwillingness to commit.

A crusader's alignment reflects her chosen cause, and in some cases molds the maneuvers she can use.

Good and lawful crusaders are more common than chaotic or evil ones, since obedience and service come more easily to characters of the former alignments.

However, the rare evil crusader is a force to be reckoned with.

She is a cruel and fearsome reaver—a scourge who preys on the weak and defenseless to honor her dark patrons.

Starting Gold: 6d4×10 gp (150 gp).

Starting Age: As paladin (PH 109).

CLASS SKILLS

(4 + Int modifier per level, ×4 at 1st level): Balance, Concentration, Craft, Diplomacy, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (history), Knowledge (religion), Martial Lore*, Ride.

* New skill described on page 28.

CLASS FEATURES

First and foremost, a crusader is a competent combatant.

She fights as skillfully as a fighter, paladin, or ranger does, relying on heavy armor and a good selection of weapons to gain the edge over her opponents.

To this basic fighting prowess, she adds several abilities derived from her absolute faith and devotion to her chosen ideal.

When fighting for her cause, a crusader becomes an unstoppable force on the battlefield.

Terrible injuries might send less dedicated warriors running from the fight, but a crusader transforms such setbacks into martial fury that enables her to fight on long after other warriors would have been overwhelmed.

A crusader masters a small number of martial maneuvers as she gains levels.

Derived from her extraordinary self-discipline, these maneuvers include catechisms of faith, spiritual devotions, and the ability to strike spectacular blows in the service of her patron or cause.

Armed with the power of her faith, she can shatter boulders, shrug off enemy attacks, or rally an army with a single act of bravery.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: As a crusader, you are proficient with simple weapons, martial weapons, light, medium, and heavy armor, and all shields.

Maneuvers: You begin your career with knowledge of five martial maneuvers.

The disciplines available to you are Devoted Spirit, Stone Dragon, and White Raven.

Once you know a maneuver, you must ready it before you can use it (see Maneuvers Readied, below).

A maneuver usable by crusaders is considered an extraordinary ability unless otherwise noted in its description.

Your maneuvers are not affected by spell resistance, and you do not provoke attacks of opportunity when you initiate one.

You learn additional maneuvers at higher levels, as shown on Table 1–1.

You must meet a maneuver's prerequisite to learn it. See Table 3–1, page 39, to determine the highest-level maneuvers you can learn.

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered crusader level after that (6th, 8th, 10th, and so on), you can choose to learn a new maneuver in place of one you already know.

In effect, you lose the old maneuver in exchange for the new one.

You can choose a new maneuver of any level you like, as long as you observe your restriction on the highest-level maneuvers you know; you need not replace the old maneuver with a maneuver of the same level.

For example, upon reaching 10th level, you could trade in a single 1st-, 2nd-, 3rd- or 4th-level maneuver for a maneuver of 5th level or lower, as long as you meet the prerequisite of the new maneuver.

You can swap only a single maneuver at any given level.

Maneuvers Readied: You can ready all five maneuvers you know at 1st level, but as you advance in level and learn more maneuvers, you must choose which maneuvers to ready.

You ready maneuvers by praying for 5 minutes.

The maneuvers you choose remain readied until you decide to pray again and change them.

You need not sleep or rest for any long period of time in order to ready your maneuvers; any time you spend 5 minutes in prayer, you can change your readied maneuvers.

You begin an encounter with all your readied maneuvers unexpended, regardless of how many times you might have already used them since you chose them.

When you initiate a maneuver, you expend it for the current encounter, so each of your readied maneuvers can be used once per encounter (unless you recover them, as described below).

Crusaders are unique among martial adepts, relying on flashes of divine inspiration to use their martial maneuvers. As such, you do not control access to your readied maneuvers.

Before you take your first action in an encounter, two of your readied maneuvers (randomly determined) are granted to you.

The rest of your readied maneuvers are withheld, currently inaccessible.

At the end of each turn, one previously withheld maneuver (again, randomly determined) is granted to you, and thus becomes accessible for your next turn and subsequent turns.

You can freely choose to initiate any maneuver that is currently granted when your turn begins, but you cannot initiate a withheld maneuver, if you choose not to employ a maneuver in a given round, your currently granted maneuvers remain available, and a previously withheld maneuver is granted, as described above.

In other words, it doesn't matter if you use your maneuvers or not—at the end of each of your turns, one withheld maneuver from your selection of readied maneuvers is granted to you.

Over the course of a few rounds, all your maneuvers will eventually be granted.

If, at the end of your turn, you cannot be granted a maneuver because you have no withheld maneuvers remaining, you recover all expended maneuvers, and a new pair of readied maneuvers is granted to you.

Randomly determine which of your maneuvers are granted and which are withheld.

At the end of your next turn, a withheld maneuver is granted to you, and the whole process of divine inspiration begins again.

You begin an encounter with an additional granted maneuver at 10th level (bringing your total to three), and again at 20th level (bringing your total to four).

Stances Known: You begin play with knowledge of one 1st-level stance from the Devoted Spirit, Stone Dragon, or White Raven discipline.

At 2nd, 8th, and 14th level, you can choose an additional stance.

Unlike maneuvers, stances are not expended, and you do not have to ready them.

All the stances you know are available to you at all times, and you can change the stance you currently use as a swift action.

A stance is an extraordinary ability unless otherwise stated in the stance description.

Unlike with maneuvers, you cannot learn a new stance at higher levels in place of one you already know.

Steely Resolve (Ex): Your supreme dedication and intense focus allow you to temporarily set aside the pain and hindering effects of injuries.

When an opponent strikes you, the injury does not immediately affect you.

You have a delayed damage pool that allows you to forestall the effects of many injuries.

This pool begins at 0 with each encounter.

When you are attacked, any hit point damage the blow deals is added to your delayed damage pool.

At the end of your next turn, you take damage equal to the total stored in your delayed damage pool, which then resets to 0.

Any healing you receive can either increase your current hit point total as normal or reduce the total damage in your delayed damage pool.

When you receive healing, you choose whether it affects your damage pool, your hit points, or both (you can split the amount of healing as you wish).

Most crusaders opt to keep as much damage in their delayed damage pool as possible to maximize the benefit of their furious counterstrike ability (see below).

Special effects tied to an attack, such as energy drain, stun, and so forth, still affect you as normal, and their effects are not delayed by this ability.

For example, if you are bitten by a venomous spider, you must still attempt a Fortitude save against the poison immediately, even though the bite damage shifts into your delayed damage pool.

By the same token, any other special attack that imposes a condition, such as a medusa's petrifying gaze, takes immediate effect on you.

At 1st level, your delayed damage pool can hold up to 5 points of damage.

Any damage beyond that comes off your hit points as normal.

The maximum damage your pool holds increases by 5 at 4th, 8th, 12th, 16th, and 20th level.

Furious Counterstrike (Ex): You can channel the pain of your injuries into a boiling rage that lets you lash out at your enemies with renewed vigor and power.

Each attack that strikes you only pushes you onward to greater glory.

During your turn, you gain a bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls equal to the current value of your delayed damage pool (see steely resolve, above) divided by 5, and rounding down (minimum +1).

You can only gain a maximum bonus on attack rolls and damage rolls of +6 from furious counterstrike.

Use the table below to quickly determine the attack bonus and damage bonus from furious counterstrike, based on the amount of damage in your delayed damage pool.

Delayed Damage Pool Points	Furious Counterstrike Bonus
1–9	+1
10–14	+2
15–19	+3
20–24	+4
25–29	+5
30+	+6

This ability's benefits last until the end of your turn.

Indomitable Soul (Ex): Beginning at 2nd level, you draw upon the power of your unwavering faith to steel yourself against the enemies you face.

Your personality, energy, and dedication to your faith make it possible for you to shrug off attacks that target your willpower.

You add your Charisma bonus (if any) as a bonus on Will saves.

This bonus does not stack with that from a paladin's divine grace ability.

Zealous Surge (Ex): Your boundless energy and dedication to your cause allow you to throw off the effect of a special attack, spell, or other attack that would otherwise hinder or harm you.

Once per day, from 3rd level on, you can opt to reroll a single saving throw.

You must abide by the result of the new, second saving throw, even if it is lower than the first.

This ability does not require an action.

You simply decide to use it after seeing the result of your saving throw roll but before the DM tells you if it fails or succeeds.

Smite (Ex): Driven by the courage of your convictions and the ironclad strength of your beliefs, you can strike back at those who dare stand against your cause.

Starting at 6th level, once per day, you can concentrate all your anger, hatred, and determination into a single attack.

On the next melee attack you make, you gain a bonus on your attack roll equal to your Charisma bonus (if any) and a bonus on damage equal to your crusader level.

At 18th level, you gain an additional use of smite per day.

Die Hard (Ex): At 10th level, you gain Die Hard as a bonus feat.

Mettle (Ex): You can resist magical attacks with greater effectiveness than other warriors.

Beginning at 13th level, by drawing on your boundless energy and dedication to your cause, you can shrug off effects that would hinder even the toughest warrior, if you succeed on a Fortitude or Will save against an attack that would normally produce a lesser effect on a successful save (such as a spell with a saving throw entry of Will half or Fortitude partial), you instead negate the effect.

You do not gain the benefit of mettle when you are unconscious or sleeping.

PLAYING A CRUSADER

When fog chills the battlefield, and your frost-rimed mail weighs on your stiffening muscles, your faith warms you.

It is the fire that burns inside, illuminating your life with the ideals of your patron or cause.

Alms or arms for the impoverished, a hand or a lash for the downtrodden, mercy or cruelty—you decide according to your faith.

As a living instrument of your cause, you have worked for years to become a weapon worthy of your ideal.

Where others hesitate, you press on with certainty, unshakable in your beliefs.

As a crusader, you undertake adventures according to the dictates of your cause, your temple, or your conscience.

You might find yourself in a swampy mausoleum slaying infidel trolls with a sword in one hand and a flask of acid in the other, or bouncing across sahuagin-infested waves on a halfling sloop because you owe a friend safe passage across the straits.

You might even find yourself on the cold, muddy field of battle, charging shoulder to shoulder with peasants and soldiers, raising pitchforks and shields against the pelting ice storms of the enemy.

The only constant is the depth of your devotion to your cause—the night winds will snuff out the stars before your fidelity ever wavers.

RELIGION

Your choice of deity is paramount, since religion is an obvious target for the devotion and zeal embodied by this class.

If you are good, you might serve Pelor or St. Cuthbert, or perhaps join the beleaguered crusaders of Heironeous, who are famous for their tenacious defense of many a lost cause. Alternatively, if you are a dwarf, Moradin is a natural choice for patron.

You might join the Ruby Knights of Wee Jas, who are reputed to be tainted by the necromancy of their Witch Goddess.

Chaotic crusaders are rare, but those who worship Kord are often paragons of the Stone Dragon discipline, and Ehlonna's ambushing crusaders tend to be adept at taking and holding forestland.

If you are evil, you might take up the cause of Nerull or Erythnul the Many, whose crusaders are plagues upon the land.

OTHER CLASSES

Your power stems from your devotion to your cause, and you value martial prowess, dedication, and self-discipline. You generally get along well with paladins, clerics, fighters, and warblades, as long as their alignments are compatible with yours.

You might scorn those of antithetical alignments as heathens or target them with your proselytizing, depending on the evangelism inherent in your own religion.

Monks and swordsages are also worthy companions for you, although their reliance on ki and skill, rather than faith and armor, is suspect.

The subterfuge of rogues, the superficiality of bards, and the susceptibility of most arcane casters to a single greataxe blow force members of those classes to prove themselves before earning your esteem.

COMBAT

Your specific tactics in battle depend on the discipline you chose and the maneuvers you have learned.

However, certain tactics are common to all crusaders. As a zealous proponent of your cause, you are generally at the forefront of any battle.

Fighting on the front line allows you to maximize the benefits you gain from your class abilities, and also to protect a weaker ally by absorbing an enemy's blows yourself.

Doing so benefits both you and your party in various ways. First, your steely resolve ability makes any attacks you deliver after taking damage both more accurate and more powerful than they were before you were injured.

Furthermore, if opponents focus on you, they cannot injure your allies.

Thus, taking damage each round should be your goal.

The sooner you can engage the toughest opponent in melee, the faster you can bolster your attacks.

As a crusader, you're at your best when you can take on the monster or opponent that deals the most damage.

Other tactics vary according to your chosen discipline.

Stone Dragon crusaders favor head-on charges, boulder-rolling into opponents and mountain-hammering anyone left standing.

If you have a high Strength score, you should consider feats that take advantage of that ability if you choose this path (such as Power Attack, Cleave, Improved Bull Rush, Improved Overrun, and Improved Sunder).

As a Devoted Spirit crusader, some of your maneuvers function only against creatures with opposed alignments. Devoted Spirit crusaders are often hunters on the battlefield, dedicated to chasing down the most dangerous foes.

If you are a White Raven crusader, you are more group-oriented than other crusaders.

Fighting shoulder to shoulder with allies, directing flanks, coordinating charges, and covering a cleric while he heals the wounded are among the specialties of a White Raven crusader.

At high levels, your mettle ability affords you an extra measure of confidence when you confront enemies that use spells or spell-like abilities.

Many demons, devils, and other outsiders have spell-like abilities, and these are precisely the foes that you are trained to vanquish (particularly if you're a Devoted Spirit crusader).

Combined with the indomitable soul ability, mettle can prove to be surpassingly powerful.

ADVANCEMENT

Ever since the Spirit Seeker was torn apart by demons during the catastrophic battle that ended in the destruction and dispersal of the Shadow Tiger horde, master crusaders have sought to attain his perfect harmony of spirit, body, and weapon mastery.

In three warring stone citadels, the combat masters of the Vix Tholm, the Ruby Knights of Wee Jas, and the reth dekala (see page 154) each teach pilgrims the three precepts of combat: skill, self-discipline, and knowledge.

To take training at a citadel, you must maintain maximum ranks in your most important skills.

Rare is a crusader who does not have maximum ranks in the skill most appropriate to her path (Balance for Stone Dragon, Intimidate for Devoted Spirit, and Diplomacy for White Raven).

In addition, you live and die by your discipline.

If you hope to achieve true mastery, you must choose your discipline wisely and devote yourself to it completely, if you're physically weak, you would be ill-advised to pursue the path of the Stone Dragon, but your strength of will might serve you well on the path of the Devoted Spirit.

If you're advancing as a Stone Dragon adept, you seek to acquire items, learn feats, and develop maneuver combinations that emphasize strength and direct confrontation.

If yours is the path of the White Raven, you focus on your leadership abilities and the tactical details of combat.

If you embrace the Devoted Spirit discipline, you turn inward, cultivating wisdom and devout faith.

HUMAN CRUSADER STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Scale mail (+4 AC, armor check penalty -4, speed 20 ft., 30 lb.).

Heavy wooden shield (+2 AC, armor check penalty -2 10 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19-20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed slashing).

Shortbow (1d6, crit x3, range inc. 60 ft., 2 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 4 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Balance	4	Dex	—
Concentration	4	Con	—
Diplomacy	4	Cha	—
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Jump	4	Str	-6
Martial Lore	4	Int	—
Ride	4	Dex	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—

Feat: Weapon Focus (longsword).

Bonus Feat: Iron Will.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel, 3 torches, quiver with 20 arrows, tent, traveler's outfit, cold weather outfit, holy symbol.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

CRUSADERS IN THE WORLD

"Howling over the thunder, the antlered demons leapt down from the peak.

The demon blades were as numerous as the driving spikes of steel, but the Vix Tholm crusaders held their ground.

I began to believe that the mountain would slide out from under the crusaders' feet before they yielded an inch."

—Darh Nas'urb, dwarf pilgrim of Heironeous

Crusaders bring clashing steel, stirring speeches, and intense fervor to the campaign.

The first sign of a crusader's presence might be a knight-herald riding alone down the Processional to the King's Fane, where he tacks a scroll to the door and promptly gallops off, his helmeted visage revealing nothing.

Crusaders can launch grand crusades, each of which can serve as the foundation for a thousand adventures.

Crusaders who support less than popular causes might hold clandestine meetings in the night, filled with whispered negotiations.

Alternatively, if war has already broken out, the campaign might feature battles along ramparts studded with ballistae and bombarded with darning pitch.

A crusader might be a one-time occurrence when a passing army moves through the kingdom's hinterlands, or it might serve as the entire focus of the campaign, with the PCs moving up through the ranks of a holy army to lead the charge on the infidels' stronghold.

Crusaders can also move through a campaign world individually.

Perhaps a PC crusader is the last adherent of her cause, destined to make a glorious final stand against an evil that has consumed her heritage.

She might join with other adventurers, seeking strength in their company.

A PC crusader could also be an evangelist from a far land who has come to the campaign area to spread the word of her cause—and perhaps even to recruit adventurers whom she can take back to her homeland to fight alongside her.

Perhaps a PC crusader is falsely accused of heresy and forced to travel alone, dodging bounty hunters and assassins, all while upholding her ideals without the support or respect of her erstwhile colleagues.

DAILY LIFE

A crusader views the world through the twin lenses of faith and battle.

A farmer seeding the furrows, a merchant hawking oranges and pottery, an apprentice toasting his fingers with an ironically misfired burning hands—to the crusader, these everyday sights are not random occurrences, but building blocks in the battle between good and evil, law and chaos. For whom does the farmer toil, and to whom does he pay taxes—a good baron, an evil count?

Is the merchant trading with priests of Nerull or changing monies with dark emissaries from the reth dekala?

If the apprentice learns his spells, to what end will he use them?

In every facet of life, the crusader sees some embodiment of her principles.

NOTABLES

Over the centuries since the great battle that resulted in the destruction of the Shadow Tiger horde, many crusaders have sought to emulate the Spirit Seeker.

This enigmatic crusader slew the Shadow Master and was subsequently torn apart by demons, but few facts about his life are known.

Many, in fact, argue that the Spirit Seeker was a female, and many more argue over the exact faith that this mysterious figure embraced.

The Vix Tholm believe that the Seeker was a devotee of Heironeous, but the Chapeaux and Stars of St. Cuthbert claim him as their own.

The Ruby Knights of Wee Jas claim that he sought the spirits of the dead and was thus firmly in the Jasite camp.

ORGANIZATIONS

After the Temple of Nine Swords collapsed, many crusaders founded martial orders allied with their religions. These new organizations placed the deity before the sword—a reversal of the temple's priorities.

The most powerful and secretive of these orders survive today.

Many, however, perished as a result of ecclesiastical infighting.

The established church hierarchies did not trust these new “sword orders”, many of which had recovered enough treasure from the fallen Temple of Nine Swords to make their members very wealthy.

Purges and pogroms were common as the churches asserted control over the orders and seized their wealth. The church of St. Cuthbert subsumed its crusader order, but many other churches exterminated their crusaders in the night.

The church of Heironeous rose above such petty tyrannies, and it still maintains a cordial relationship with its crusader order, the Vix Tholm, though the relationship is sometimes strained by rivalry.

From the start, the Ruby Knights of Wee Jas swore a binding covenant—a dark pact, according to some—to serve the high priests and priestesses as the military arm of the Witch Goddess's temples, and they continue to do so. Crusader orders dedicated to Pelor, Hextor, Ehlonna, and Nerull also exist, and rumors abound of hidden temples that house crusaders who narrowly escaped the purges.

In a large and openly acknowledged crusader order, promotion is based on battlefield performance.

The battlefield, however, is generously defined.

It could be a political battlefield on which victory consists of the grant of the western valley's taxation rights from the Exchequer.

It might also be a specific battlefield, such as the hedge prison of a demon prince in an ancient dungeon, where victory can be attained by thwarting the captive's attempts at escape.

The battlefield could even be a spiritual one, where victory is the delivery of pilgrims to a holy site that will inspire them to new heights of religious fervor.

In a persecuted crusader order, promotion is often based simply on survival.

New blood is vital and special, so a crusader who successfully recruits a reliable new member is accorded great honor.

Many persecuted orders develop pyramidal hierarchies in which a member's recruits all rank below her in seniority.

NPC REACTIONS

Many lay people cannot tell a crusader from a paladin until the latter calls his horse from the sky or lays hands on the maimed.

Like paladins, crusaders of good alignment often become heroes to peasants, laborers, and others to whom gold is a dream and silver an always fleeting reality.

Most nobles distrust crusaders because their beliefs take a higher priority in their lives than wealth and status.

Paradoxically, most established clerics also distrust crusaders—not only because of faith-based rivalries but also because of the implicit acknowledgment that a crusader order could weaken the influence of nonaffiliated churches in a region's political landscape.

CRUSADER LORE

Characters with ranks in Knowledge (religion) can research crusaders to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs.

DC 10: Crusaders are hot-blooded zealots whose fervor is unrelieved by wisdom.

DC 15: Crusaders follow the Sublime Way, seeking to perfect their combat skill to better serve their deity.

They're not like clerics, and they don't heal the sick or exorcise undead.

Crusaders possess very little overt magic, unless you consider what they can do with their swords as magical.

DC 20: Crusaders can stand up to punishment that no other individual can endure, shrugging off even the most powerful of attacks.

CRUSADERS IN THE GAME

Depending on their alignment and disposition, crusaders can appear as allies or enemies, patrons or tyrants.

You can use large crusader organizations to offer the PCs work guarding pilgrim caravans, retrieving items from a rival religion's vaults, or representing the organization at court.

An evil crusader order might target the PCs' homeland for invasion or persecute all members of their race.

The leader of an evil crusader order can make an excellent recurring villain for your campaign—especially if he uses his political clout to pass laws that make life difficult for the PCs.

For example, he might institute 2-hour delays at the city gates, forbid foreigners to possess mithral and adamantite, require that all spellbooks be registered and copies stored at the owner's expense, or the like.

A crusader character expects that his combat prowess will aid the party in its fights and that his religious affiliation will have meaningful consequences in the game world.

Accordingly, you should populate your encounters with monsters that oppose your crusader's ideals.

Sketching out in advance how a campaign's important NPCs will react to zealot warriors is time well spent.

ADAPTATION

One way to adapt crusaders is to remove the religious flavor from the class and replace it with regional or racial elements.

In such an arrangement, a crusader would oppose creatures from enemy territory or of a different race.

In like manner, her martial maneuvers would represent not catechisms of faith and divine magic, but a battle tradition of slayers handed down over the centuries.

TABLE 1-1: THE CRUSADER

Level	Hit Die: d10			Special	Maneuvers Known	Maneuvers Readied	Stances Known
	Base Attack Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save					Will Save
1st	+1	+2	+0	+0	Furious counterstrike, steely resolve 5	5	5 (2)	1
2nd	+2	+3	+0	+0	Indomitable soul	5	5 (2)	2
3rd	+3	+3	+1	+1	Zealous surge	6	5 (2)	2
4th	+4	+4	+1	+1	Steely resolve 10	6	5 (2)	2
5th	+5	+4	+1	+1	—	7	5 (2)	2
6th	+6/+1	+5	+2	+2	Smite 1/day	7	5 (2)	2
7th	+7/+2	+5	+2	+2	—	8	5 (2)	2
8th	+8/+3	+6	+2	+2	Steely resolve 15	8	5 (2)	3
9th	+9/+4	+6	+3	+3	—	9	5 (2)	3
10th	+10/+5	+7	+3	+3	Die Hard	9	6 (3)	3
11th	+11/+6/+1	+7	+3	+3	—	10	6 (3)	3
12th	+12/+7/+2	+8	+4	+4	Steely resolve 20	10	6 (3)	3
13th	+13/+8/+3	+8	+4	+4	Mettle	11	6 (3)	3
14th	+14/+9/+4	+9	+4	+4	—	11	6 (3)	4
15th	+15/+10/+5	+9	+5	+5	—	12	6 (3)	4
16th	+16/+11/+6/+1	+10	+5	+5	Steely resolve 25	12	6 (3)	4
17th	+17/+12/+7/+2	+10	+5	+5	—	13	6 (3)	4
18th	+18/+13/+8/+3	+11	+6	+6	Smite 2/day	13	6 (3)	4
19th	+19/+14/+9/+4	+11	+6	+6	—	14	6 (3)	4
20th	+20/+15/+10/+5	+12	+6	+6	Steely resolve 30	14	7 (4)	4

SWARDSAGE

"Thick armor indicates a lack of skill.

If you lack the framing to avoid your enemies' blows, perhaps you should leave the fighting to me."

—Chen, swordmage

A master of martial maneuvers, the swordmage is a physical adept—a blade wizard whose knowledge of the Sublime Way lets him unlock potent abilities, many of which are overtly supernatural or magical in nature.

Depending on which disciplines he chooses to study, a swordmage might be capable of walking through walls, leaping dozens of feet into the air, shattering boulders with a single touch, or even mastering the elements of fire or shadow.

Whatever his specific training, a swordmage blurs the line between martial prowess and magical skill.

MAKING A SWARDSAGE

Despite his spectacular combat moves, a swordmage is not a typical front-line melee combatant.

Although a fighter, barbarian, or warblade might swing a sword more accurately, or with greater force, a swordmage depends on his repertoire of martial strikes and stances.

This character is also not intended to be a replacement for an arcane spellcaster, even though he can create a number of short-range area effects.

A swordmage's role within an adventuring party isn't easily defined, but his combination of maneuverability, supernatural power, and martial arts is useful in almost any encounter.

Abilities: Dexterity and Wisdom are crucial to a swordmage.

Since he wears only light armor, he must rely on agility and shrewdness to avoid attacks, and as such his Armor Class is augmented by his Wisdom modifier as well as his Dexterity modifier.

A swordmage can get along with an average Wisdom score, but to excel, he wants a good Wisdom bonus.

Since a swordmage often engages in melee, Strength is also important—although he can use the Weapon Finesse feat to overcome a low Strength score, and his array of martial strikes can make up for any lack of damage potential.

Intelligence helps a swordmage master the skills necessary to continue progressing along the path of the Nine Swords, and Constitution is as important to him as it is to any character.

Races: Most swordmages are humans.

It is not uncommon for members of other races to take up the path, though dwarves and gnomes rarely do.

Dwarves are too firmly grounded to adapt easily to the ascetic lifestyle swordmages often favor, and the few dwarf swordmages who do exist typically focus on the Stone Dragon discipline.

Gnomes find most swordmages singularly humorless, although members of this race occasionally take up the discipline of the Setting Sun, because they understand better than most how weakness can be turned to strength. Half-orcs account for a surprising number of swordmages, especially in the more warlike disciplines of Stone Dragon and Tiger Claw.

Members of this race are well suited to endure the difficult physical regimen of study and practice that these disciplines require.

Alignment: A swordmage can choose any alignment.

The study of the Sublime Way is its own end, and whether any particular student chooses to employ what he has learned in the service of good, evil, law, or chaos is not considered significant by most who follow this path. Accordingly, a typical swordsage has at least one neutral component in his alignment, representing a certain detachment from worldly matters.

Good swordsages tend to be free-roaming champions of the weak and downtrodden.

The less commonplace evil swordsages believe that their mastery of the martial arts has made them superior to everyone around them.

Starting Gold: 4d4×10 (100 gp).

Starting Age: As monk.

CLASS SKILLS

(6 + Int modifier per level, ×6 at 1st level): Balance, Climb, Concentration, Craft, Heal, Hide, Intimidate, Jump, Knowledge (history), Knowledge (local), Knowledge (nature), Knowledge (nobility and royalty), Listen, Martial Lore*, Move Silently, Profession, Ride, Sense Motive, Swim, Tumble.

* New skill described on page 28.

CLASS FEATURES

Of all three martial adept classes, swordsages learn and can ready the most maneuvers.

This advantage gives them unparalleled versatility in a given encounter.

In one battle, a swordsage might fulfill the role of the rogue, lurking in shadows and striking when foes are least prepared.

In another, he might be scorching enemies with area attacks, much like a wizard.

In still another fight, he might tear an enemy apart with his bare hands, matching a barbarian's ferocity with his own distinctive style of bloodthirstiness.

Whatever the occasion, a swordsage is able to contribute, often in completely unexpected ways.

Weapon and Armor Proficiency: As a swordsage, you are proficient with simple weapons, martial melee weapons (including those that can be used as thrown weapons), and light armor, but not with shields.

Maneuvers: You begin your career with knowledge of six martial maneuvers.

The disciplines available to you are Desert Wind, Diamond Mind, Setting Sun, Shadow Hand, Stone Dragon, and Tiger Claw.

Once you know a maneuver, you must ready it before you can use it (see Maneuvers Readied, below).

A maneuver usable by swordsages is considered an extraordinary ability unless otherwise noted in its description.

Your maneuvers are not affected by spell resistance, and you do not provoke attacks of opportunity when you initiate one.

You learn additional maneuvers at higher levels, as shown on Table 1–2.

You must meet a maneuver's prerequisite to learn it. See Table 3–1, page 39, to determine the highest-level maneuvers you can learn.

Upon reaching 4th level, and at every even-numbered swordsage level after that (6th, 8th, 10th, and so on), you can choose to learn a new maneuver in place of one you already know.

In effect, you lose the old maneuver in exchange for the new one.

You can choose a new maneuver of any level you like, as long as you observe your restriction on the highest-level maneuvers you know; you need not replace the old maneuver with a maneuver of the same level.

For example, upon reaching 10th level, you could trade in a single 1st-, 2nd-, 3rd- or 4th-level maneuver for a maneuver of 5th level or lower, as long as you meet the prerequisite of the new maneuver.

You can swap only a single maneuver at any given level.

Maneuvers Readied: You can ready four of your six maneuvers known at 1st level, and as you advance in level and learn more maneuvers, you are able to ready more, but you must still choose which maneuvers to ready.

You ready your maneuvers by meditating and exercising for 5 minutes.

The maneuvers you choose remain readied until you decide to meditate again and change them.

You need not sleep or rest for any long period of time to ready your maneuvers; any time you spend 5 minutes in meditation, you can change your readied maneuvers.

You begin an encounter with all your readied maneuvers unexpended, regardless of how many times you might have already used them since you chose them.

When you initiate a maneuver, you expend it for the current encounter, so each of your readied maneuvers can be used once per encounter (unless you recover them, as described below).

You can recover an expended maneuver by using a full-round action to quickly meditate.

Doing this does not provoke attacks of opportunity.

If you complete your meditation, you can choose one expended maneuver to refresh.

It is now available for use in a subsequent round.

Stances Known: You begin play with knowledge of one 1st-level stance from any discipline open to you.

At 2nd, 5th, 9th, 14th, and 20th level, you can choose additional stances.

Unlike maneuvers, stances are not expended, and you do not have to ready them.

All the stances you know are available to you at all times, and you can change the stance you currently use as a swift action.

A stance is an extraordinary ability unless otherwise stated in the stance description.

Unlike with maneuvers, you cannot learn a new stance at higher levels in place of one you already know.

AC Bonus: Starting at 2nd level, you can add your Wisdom modifier as a bonus to Armor Class, so long as you wear light armor, are unencumbered, and do not use a shield. This bonus to AC applies even against touch attacks or when you flat-footed.

However, you lose this bonus when you are immobilized or helpless.

Discipline Focus (Ex): As a swordsage, you can focus training to take advantage of each discipline's fighting style. Each time you gain the discipline focus ability, select one of the six swordsage disciplines to which that focus applies. You can select a different discipline each time you gain discipline focus, but you must know at least one martial maneuver from the selected discipline.

Even if you select a different discipline at higher levels, your discipline choice for earlier abilities does not change.

This focus manifests in the following ways.

Weapon Focus: At 1st level, you gain the benefit of the Weapon Focus feat for weapons associated with the chosen discipline.

See the discipline descriptions in Chapter 4.

Insightful Strikes: At 4th level, you can add your Wisdom modifier as a bonus on damage rolls whenever you execute a strike from the chosen discipline.

At 12th level, you can choose a second discipline to which this ability applies.

Defensive Stance: At 8th level, you gain a +2 bonus on saving throws whenever you adopt a stance from the chosen discipline.

At 16th level, you can choose a second discipline to which this ability applies.

You gain a +2 bonus on Martial Lore checks made regarding a maneuver in a discipline in which you have discipline focus.

Quick to Act (Ex): You gain a +1 bonus on initiative checks. This bonus increases by 1 at 5th, 10th, 15th, and 20th level.

Sense Magic (Su): Beginning at 7th level, you can spend 10 minutes focusing upon a weapon or suit of armor.

If you succeed on a level check (DC 10 + the caster level of the weapon or armor), you can identify the properties of that item, including its enhancement bonus and special abilities.

This ability does not reveal the properties of artifacts or legacy weapons, though it does indicate that such items are significantly powerful.

Evasion (Ex): At 9th level, you can avoid even magical and unusual attacks with great agility.

If you make a successful Reflex saving throw against an attack that normally deals damage on a successful save, you instead take no damage.

Evasion can be used only if you are wearing light armor or no armor, if you are helpless, you do not gain the benefit of evasion.

Improved Evasion (Ex): From 17th level on, you gain the benefit of improved evasion.

You still take no damage if you make a successful Reflex save against an attack, and even if you fail the Reflex save, you take only half damage from the attack.

If you are helpless, you do not gain the benefit of improved evasion.

Dual Boost (Ex): When you reach 20th level, you can use two boost maneuvers simultaneously.

Whenever you initiate a boost maneuver, you can also initiate any other boost maneuver that you know as a free action.

Both boosts you initiate are expended normally.

You can use this ability three times per day.

PLAYING A SWORDSAGE

To you, a sword is not simply a sharpened length of steel. It is the wisdom of the smith, the fire of the forge, and the shouts and ringing blows of your battles.

It is your teacher and your student, your life and your death.

When your mind is tempered like the blade, no feat of combat prowess is beyond you.

You can run on the weapons of your foes, strike an enemy unseen, and flip insouciantly away from the frustrated riposte.

Through it all, you seek to understand the secret knowledge of combat.

Every blow is a revelation, and every wound an apocalypse. In the end, you and your sword are nothing without each other.

You and your fellow swordsages adventure for a plethora of reasons.

Neither the religious fervor of the crusader nor the honor quest of the warblade causes you to travel the world.

More than faith, more than glory, you seek truth.

Whether you find that truth in the burbling acid swamps south of the Deluge Jungle, in a screeching jungle harpy roost, or in the gullet of a purple worm, you are driven to uncover it, learn it, and master it.

RELIGION

Religion might be entirely immaterial to you, or you might find comfort in the existence of the Upper (or Lower) Planes.

If you are among the minority of swordsages who revere a deity, you worship one who is remote and generally retrains from meddling in the lives of mortals.

Boccob the Uncaring is a favorite among your fellow swordsages.

A few, however, choose to worship the Shalm, Obad-Hai, because his neutrality aligns well with the swordsage notion that the truth of steel is not what you want it to be, but simply what it is.

OTHER CLASSES

You have learned to look past the profession and see the individual, finding more truth in a person's deeds than in her abilities.

Once you have ascertained the measure of her soul, you consider her profession and skills.

You prize other martial adepts—especially other swordsages—as friends and allies, both for their combat prowess and for their ability to play to each other's strengths.

Flanking rogues are also valuable allies in battle.

Clerics and arcane casters are invaluable companions, but you resent spellcasters who cast area spells, wall spells, or similar dweomers that alter the battlefield and limit your mobility and options.

COMBAT

Rather than rushing into combat with the mindless rage of a barbarian or the foolhardy courage of a warblade, you assess your opponents and try to achieve tactical supremacy through position and martial maneuvers.

Your lack of armor proficiency means that you are best suited to a skirmish-style attack—one in which you can use your high mobility to flank an enemy and strike hard and fast.

However, you are perfectly capable of standing toe to talon with rocks and wyverns when necessary, parrying fang with blade and using your martial maneuvers to cut a path through your enemy's front ranks.

You have access to an amazing array of powerful martial maneuvers.

You have exclusive access to the Desert Wind, Shadow Hand, and Setting Sun disciplines, and you would do well to learn at least some maneuvers from these.

You have the greatest range of maneuvers of any martial adept, so you should have multiple strikes, counters, stances, and boosts available after just a few levels in the class.

ADVANCEMENT

Your training began when you won an apprenticeship with a mentor—either an individual hermit swordmage or an instructor at an ancient swordmage temple dating back to the Battle of the Shadow Tiger Horde.

You knew that winning a swordmage apprenticeship would not be easy—that in fact, it would be an ordeal designed to test your worth in some unusual way.

The masters of the Harad Devin Temple are known to make the young boys and girls wishing to undertake training wait in the courtyard for seasons on end, through rain, snow, and the acid cloud storms of reth dekalas attacks. Occasionally the masters might send a pot of porridge to the courtyard for the aspirants, and even more occasionally—never more than once per season—they select one child to enter through the Ivory and Horn Gates. The Eighty Empresses have a different selection process for their protégés.

The masters bring each young lady separately into the Dressing Room of Opala I, whose walls, mirrors, incense lamps, pots of rouge, and songbird cages are draped with 1,080 shimmering gold, red, pink, orange, and fuchsia silk ribbons.

The girl is allowed to stay as long as she likes in the dressing room; she has but to give a signal when she is ready to leave.

After she is led away, one ribbon is removed from the room. Then she is brought back.

If she can name the color of the ribbon that was removed, she is accepted; otherwise, she is turned away forever.

As a swordmage, your selection of disciplines and martial maneuvers is paramount to your success.

You might choose to focus on maneuvers from a single discipline, but learning a few maneuvers from the other schools is almost always advisable.

True success in combat requires a wide variety of martial maneuvers.

HUMAN SWORDMAGE STARTING PACKAGE

Armor: Studded leather (+3 AC, armor check penalty -1, speed 30 ft., 20 lb.).

Weapons: Longsword (1d8, crit 19–20/x2, 4 lb., one-handed slashing).

Light crossbow (1d8, crit 19–20, range inc. 80 ft., 4 lb., piercing).

Skill Selection: Pick a number of skills equal to 6 + Int modifier.

Skill	Ranks	Ability	Armor Check Penalty
Balance	4	Dex	-1
Concentration	4	Con	—
Heal	4	Wis	—
Hide	4	Dex	-1
Intimidate	4	Cha	—
Jump	4	Str	-1
Knowledge (local)	4	Int	—
Martial Lore	4	Int	—
Move Silently	4	Dex	-1
Ride	4	Dex	—
Sense Motive	4	Wis	—
Spot (cc)	2	Wis	—
Tumble	4	Dex	-1

Feat: Dodge.

Bonus Feat: Improved Initiative.

Gear: Backpack with waterskin, one day's trail rations, bedroll, sack, flint and steel, 3 torches, quiver with 20 arrows, tent, traveler's outfit, cold weather outfit.

Gold: 2d4 gp.

SWORDMAGES IN THE WORLD

"I could smell the jasmine perfume lingering in the torchlight. The Eighty Empresses had entered the castle here, through this door.

The sentinel, crumpled on the parapet, was still smiling."

—Kalin Stonehelm, castellan of Orlep Tor

The pontificating recluse, the wandering mystic, the martial scholar—all these and more are swordmages. These martial adepts bring a combination of mental acumen and physical prowess to the world.

With a potential to advance in a number of different directions—offensive, defensive, support, and quick-strike—they make excellent additions to adventuring parties.

When the campaign action veers out of the dungeon and into the royal courts, darkened chambers, and diplomatic halls of the kingdom, a swordmage's inclination toward intellectual pursuits and his natural role as a scholar—martial and otherwise—allow him to remain a strong contributor to the party.

DAILY LIFE

A swordmage spends the majority of his time perfecting his art.

The mental and spiritual demands of the Sublime Way require constant attention, so he can spare little time for carousing.

Art in all its forms is often a passion for swordmages. Many find refreshment and a wellspring of strength in the arts of sculpting, painting, poetry, calligraphy, rock-stacking, or illusory patterns.

A swordmage with an apprentice spends much of his time training his student.

A swordmage without an apprentice might or might not spend time seeking one out, according to his whims.

NOTABLES

Opala I, the Empress Incarnadine and founder of the Eighty Empresses, was a swordmage.

Known as much for her wisdom, her dance, and her ribbons as for her swords, she is regarded by many as the prototypical swordmage—serene, poised, and deadly.

Modern notable swordmages include the Sage of Snow and Shadow, who lives at the peak of one of the Sunspires near Koshtra Amnorn, and Skurrgh, a half-orc pariah who is shunned by his native tribe for questioning the unmitigated war frenzy dictated by the shamans of He Who Watches.

Skurrgh is presently looking for an apprentice but has yet to find one he considers suitable.

Many of the more dedicated aspirants prefer to wait in the rain and snow outside the Harad Devin Temple rather than risk their training on a rogue half-orc.

ORGANIZATIONS

The Harad Devin Temple has recruited and trained swordmages for centuries.

Many of its alumni wear intricate tattoos or brands on the inside of their forearms that record fragments of the order's history.

It is said that if all the sages of the Harad Devin Temple were to line up, one could read the entire history of the Sunspire Mountains and Deluge Jungle regions from their tattoos, and that their brands are sigils that can unlock a spell of epic proportions.

The women of the Eighty Empresses also carry the marks of their order, which in this case are ribbons.

Each young lady who wins acceptance to the order adopts the ribbon from her induction ceremony as her personal symbol.

Unlike the markings associated with the Harad Devin Temple, no legend connects the ribbons of the Eighty Empresses with greater epic.

In fact, these decorations appear to have no meaning at all. No color, braidwork, or fringe signifies rank within the order, and no particular manner of display—hair bow, choker, or wristband—has any meaning beyond the preference of the individual member.

Many other swordmage organizations exist as well.

The typical order is a small, well-organized, organic unit that exists for a single purpose.

One swordmage organization might focus on the history of a particular combat style, while another is sworn to protect the ruler of a local population.

At least one swordmage organization has devoted itself to Studying the combat techniques, migratory patterns, and warren culture of the Sunspire Mountain umber hulks, presumably with an eye toward eventually exterminating them.

Such daunting tasks are typical fare for swordmages, whose patience and calmness often lead them to consider plans that might take decades or even centuries to execute.

NPC REACTIONS

Most authority figures and government officials do not appreciate swordmages.

Like crusaders, these martial adepts are often dedicated to a higher cause than the interests of the local earl or lord, and unlike warblades, swordmages are not easily bought.

Thus, governments, churches, and other civic and religious organizations generally treat swordmages with a great deal of caution.

Merchants, on the other hand, embrace swordmages.

Who else would buy an ancient coin, the chipped comb of a long-dead princess, or a petrified dragon claw?

In addition to purchasing curiosities and art supplies particular to his interests, a swordmage also provides business for smiths, carpenters, and stables as he practices his martial maneuvers in an effort to maintain a constant state of patient readiness.

RACES

Elves and swordmages often get along famously because of their similar long-term viewpoints and their appreciation for history.

Dwarves appreciate the serious nature of swordmages and the fine sculpture that many of them produce.

Gnomes have a love-hate relationship with these masters of martial knowledge: They appreciate the swordmages' sense of history and love of bardic arts but dislike their tendency to take life seriously.

Half-elves often dislike swordmages, seeing in their selective apprenticeship process an echo of the exclusionary attitude that those of mixed blood sometimes experience.

OTHER CLASSES

Swordmages tend to have more in common with clerics and wizards than with the melee fighting classes.

Barbarians in particular are apt to be annoyed by a swordmage's proclivity to analyze or at least contemplate a combat before, during, and after the actual fighting.

One of Opala's favorite questions was, "How does a sword mean?" It is said that the orc barbarian horde-king Blech Forktongue slew twenty subchieftains in a rage while trying to discover the meaning of that question.

SWORDSAGE LORE

Characters with ranks in Gather Information or Knowledge (history) can research swordmages to learn more about them.

When a character makes a skill check, read or paraphrase the following, including the information from lower DCs. DC 10: A swordmage is a fancy sword-slinger who thinks he knows more about swordplay than anyone else.

DC 15: Like warblades and crusaders, swordmages walk the Sublime Way.

But they don't just walk—they study it, they search it, they think there's a meaning in it.

They look for the wisdom of their swords, the story of each swing, and the history of each foe.

DC 20: Swordmages are patient, calm, and lethal.

They gain the most mystical powers of all those who walk the Sublime Way.

SWORDMAGES IN THE GAME

When characters need to know the truename of a reth dekala prophet, the resting place of the last lieutenant of the Shadow Tiger Horde, or the secrets of the Perfect Strike, they are likely to seek out a swordmage.

Such moments provide excellent opportunities to introduce swordmages into an ongoing campaign that has not previously included martial adepts.

If a player wants to play a swordmage in such a campaign, the character might be sought out by an ancient swordmage—the last practitioner of his kind—and taught the secrets of the Sublime Way.

If you are using Dungeon Master's Guide II, a PC could acquire a spirit companion—the spirit of an ancient swordmage who has selected her to be the first in a new generation of martial scholars.

When developing a swordmage character, consider his focus.

Does he define himself by his martial maneuvers, his art, and his relationships with NPCs?

Provide a swordmage with challenges to all facets of his character.

His high skill points, excellent combat abilities, and magical flair ensure that he is equally at home in a dungeon, in the halls of a palace, and in a wizard's tower. A good enemy for a swordmage is one against whom he must use all his skills, all his maneuvers, and all his knowledge.

ADAPTATION

The name "swordmage" naturally implies a character who carries a sword or weapon of some kind.

However, a swordmage works very well as a supernatural martial artist of almost any school or origin.

To create a monklike character with a tremendous array of fantastic moves and strikes, give the swordmage the monk's unarmed strike progression and remove his light armor proficiency.

If you prefer, you could instead emphasize the magical talents of the swordmage by giving the swordmage the ability to learn arcane spells in place of maneuvers of equivalent level.

In general, spells from the schools of abjuration, evocation, and transmutation are most appropriate for a swordmage of this type, especially spells with a range of personal or touch.

The arcane spell is “cast” as if it were a martial maneuver. In this case, you should remove the class’s light armor proficiency and reduce the swordmage’s Hit Die to d6.

Level	Base		Hit Die: d8			Special	Maneuvers Known	Maneuvers Readied	Stances Known
	Attack	Bonus	Fort Save	Ref Save	Will Save
1st	+0		+0	+2	+2	Quick to act +1, discipline focus (Weapon Focus)	6	4	1
2nd	+1		+0	+3	+3	AC bonus	7	4	2
3rd	+2		+1	+3	+3	—	8	5	2
4th	+3		+1	+4	+4	Discipline focus (insightful strike)	9	5	2
5th	+3		+1	+4	+4	Quick to act +2	10	6	3
6th	+4		+2	+5	+5	—	11	6	3
7th	+5		+2	+5	+5	Sense magic	12	6	3
8th	+6/+1		+2	+6	+6	Discipline focus (defensive stance)	13	7	3
9th	+6/+1		+3	+6	+6	Evasion	14	7	4
10th	+7/+2		+3	+7	+7	Quick to act +3	15	8	4
11th	+8/+3		+3	+7	+7	—	16	8	4
12th	+9/+4		+4	+8	+8	Discipline focus (insightful strike)	17	8	4
13th	+10/+5		+4	+8	+8	—	18	9	4
14th	+10/+5		+4	+9	+9	—	19	9	5
15th	+11/+6/+1		+5	+9	+9	Quick to act +4	20	10	5
16th	+12/+7/+2		+5	+10	+10	Discipline focus (defensive stance)	21	10	5
17th	+13/+8/+3		+5	+10	+10	Improved evasion	22	10	5
18th	+13/+8/+3		+6	+11	+11	—	23	11	5
19th	+14/+9/+4		+6	+11	+11	—	24	11	5
20th	+15/+10/+5		+6	+12	+12	Dual boost 3/day, quick to act +5	25	12	6

WARBLADE

*“I was born for war.
I have the heart of a lion, the swiftness of an eagle, and the strength of a dragon!
In battle I find purpose.
In conflict perfection, and in victory exaltation.
The gods themselves envy my hour of glory.”*

—Arzimon, a warblade

The warblade was born for conflict.

Swift, strong, enduring, and utterly confident in his martial skills, he seeks to test himself against worthy foes.

Battle is beautiful to him—a perfect moment in which life hangs suspended on the bright edge of a sword.

Sheer combat skill is important to a warblade, so he trains intensely with his chosen weapons.

But even more important are his athleticism, endurance, daring, recklessness, and joy in the hour of danger.

