
Crumb

A micro-game by Riverhouse Games

Patreon.com/RiverhouseGames

You are a tiny mouse.

You are a tiny mouse and you want a crumb. Just one crumb, because you are very hungry. You could have more than crumb if you could find more, but honestly even just one crumb would be enough. Because you are so tiny.

Search your kitchen for all the crumbs you can find. When you find a crumb, pick it up and examine it. Where did it come from and how tasty will it be?

When you have a crumb (or many crumbs), gobble them up (or throw them away). Scrub your floor clean, clean it until it squeaks just like you do. Remember that you are a tiny mouse. You are very tiny, what does your squeak sound like? How clean is your floor now?

There are no more crumbs left because someone has cleaned them all out. You are faced with a great famine due to this villain's destruction. You must plant more crumbs. Over the next few weeks and months, foster a growth of the crumb crop by cooking meals.

When your crumb crop has recovered, play this game again.

Toss Some Crumbs My Way

Thank you for playing this Riverhouse game. You can find more games at RiverhouseGames.com as well as podcasts and resources about queer & LGBT+ tabletop gaming. Thank you to the people backing the Riverhouse Games Patreon, such as:

Nyssa Mackinnon, Rohit Sodia & Gamersplane.com, Landan Smith, Katy Morgan, Elizabeth Bellisario, Kirsten Engeseth, Nicole Trainor, Corv Leary, Alice Tobin, Kyle Krueger, Paul Bennett, Rob Abrazado, and Tobie Abad: THANK YOU! If you want to see your name in upcoming Riverhouse games or podcasts, you can set a small monthly subscription at Patreon.com/RiverhouseGames