Peasant

The stout backs upon which the feudal system was built! You are the salt of the earth, the bucolic beast of burden, a malnourished member of the unwashed masses. You've no title, but plenty of rank (phew!). Free from the burden of fate and expectations, you can be almost anything, except welcomed in polite society. No one likes a climber.

SPECIAL SERIOUS ABILITY: Revolt!

Something's just occurred to you...there's more of you than there are of them. At least you reckon so. You can't count. Or read. Or claim ownership over anything--even the filth you gather and stack, the cats you beat the jambs with, and the streams you swat belong to the lord or lady of the land. But you've got a vision, by God. A vision of a new way of doing things. Gather round, people and cattle, for you have something to say...

d30	Your Element is...	Recharges...
1-5	Stomped out before it can get off the ground. Suffer an immediate Dire Consequence and any animals and Agricultural (Animal Husbandry) Accountment you own are taken into custody/confiscated. You cannot use Animal Husbandry again until you meet the Recharge requirement.	When you get the harvest in.
6-14	Basically just you, ranting on a soap box. Well, probably not a soap box. A dung box is more likely. Without the box. Move Animal Husbandry one degree toward Silly.	Right away.
15-20	A handful of pamphlets. You are almost assuredly illiterate, so it's just pictures. Lower-Class persons and domestic animals nearby admire you a bit.	After 3 hours of redesigning your pamphlets.
21-24	A small but excited Lower-Class mob (if in towne) or menagerie of domesticable animals (if in the wild), and they are not entirely under your control. They march about chanting (or grunting) various slogans and generally annoying people. It might count as a successful Deed, depending on what you were trying to do. You may move Animal Husbandry or another applicable Trait one degree toward Serious.	After 1 week of public service or a day in the stocks.
25-27	Large and unruly. The local system is brought to a standstill by widespread strikes and unrest by the populace and domestic fauna. Ere long, the authorities will approach you with an offer to parley (which usually means buying you off). If you take the bribe, the mob disperses. If you refuse, it grows, but now you'll have a price on your head. You gain two revolutionary brothers and sisters as bodyguards. They will not fight for you, but they'll take bits of Death on your behalf. It only takes one bit of Death to martyr one. You may move Animal Husbandry or another applicable Trait two degrees toward Serious.	Next session.
28-29	Goes regional. All Lower-Class persons and domestic animals work on your behalf to disrupt the system until the revolution is put down...or its head is lopped off. You are at all times surrounded by 4d4 bodyguards. They will not fight for you, but they'll take bits of Death on your behalf. It only takes one bit of Death to martyr one. You may move Animal Husbandry or another applicable Trait three degrees toward Serious.	Next session.
30	Goes national! You are the recognised leader, an overnight sensation, a revolutionary hero. The entire social and economic order is upset and brought to a standstill. Who will make a new one? Everyone looks to you. You may move Animal Husbandry or another applicable Trait four degrees toward Serious.	Next session.
