Description

Bam-Bee is a deer mutant. She has antlers, antennae (like a Bee), and her Antlers have Radar Dish like appendages. She will know if something is coming.

Bam-Bee hates being a seeker, seekers do dangerous stuff and are gonna die; but her tribe declared they must to do their part and have a seeker. Bam-Bee is totally afraid she is going to get killed, but she is smart and if she keeps the other seekers from dying, they might somehow keep her alive. She is mostly a sort of scout, and sometimes a healer. She has a rifle (although she is a bad shot), so she can shoot at a distance and her long spear keeps stuff away from her. She also can fix things and heal the others with her molecular integration.

Once recently she used her life force transference power and it nearly killed her, so she is kind of afraid to use it. She likes to think of herself as a team player, but not the fighting half of the team.

Although she is not a rover, she even has a little bit of skill with traps (due to her birth sign and high INT). Bam-Bee is fluent in Rabbit, and can speak with most non-predator woodland critters

Languages: Nu-Speak, Security Access

Items: Grappling Hook Launcher, with Duralloy Grappling hook and 100' Syntharope. Dazer Pistol (3 Charges), Gauzer Pistol (8 shots), Smoke Grenade (15')

Description

Bat Guy is a short little seeker (3'8"), although he likes to refer to himself as a crime fighter. He speaks in a deep raspy voice and likes to take charge. His mouth is fanged, and he has a set of bat wings on his back, it makes him sort of dark and brooding.

Sometimes when he is giving commands in his spooky voice, his eyes glow yellow, and most are compelled to do as he asks.

Bat Guy can generate a force field, but even when it deflects hits, he likes to make the motions that he is deflecting them himself (even though he is often a second behind).

Despite his size, he is quite strong and agile, and seems to be able to make his hits count (apocalypse sign +1 damage).

Even though his wings aren't functional for flight, Bat Guy seems to make good use of them, he can use them to slow his falls and assist with his many acrobatic leaps (+4 to Jumping).

Manifestation: Belle's body crackles and glows as balls of electricity form in her hands that can be thrown at target.

Effect: A mutation check roll is made each time the active mutation is used

Mental Mutations

Time Sense Type: Active Ref: MCC pg. 85 Roll: +4

Manifestation: Belle's face appears to blur horizontally as her eyes glow with a deep crimson light.

Effect: A mutation check roll is made each time the active mutation is used

Special

Belle always gets an extra +1 on all mutation checks (+4 total) and can use time sense as move action (she can't reroll it while it is in effect). In addition, she can't fail a time sense roll, she can only lose it for the rest of a combat (not the day).

Equipment & Notes

Armor: Hide with Fur Cloak +3AC, Shield +1AC, Metal Helmet (Cooking Pot) +1AC

Weapon: Duralloy Spear (1d8), Club (1d6), Flint Dagger (1d4)

Equipment: Rucksack, Salt Lick, Cow Bell, Bucket, I-Pod w speaker (she doesn't really understand it, currently it is stuck on shuffle/random), Mud-Flap skirt (w Silhouettes), Large Wedge of Cheese, Bottle of Milk.

Languages: Nu-Speak

Items: Cattle-Prod (+1 to hit, 1d8 & DC 14 Stun for 1 round /10 uses), Medishot, Com-Badge (Citizen Daisy Barton). Note Belle sucks with Tech and has only barely managed to be taught how to use the things she has.

Description

Belle is a cow-person. She isn't that strong or that smart, but she is tough (she rolled 1 off max HP and that has worked pretty good so far).

Belle felt mistreated by her some former teammates. Most of them considered her a meat shield, but she thought she was better than that. What kept surprising them is how Belle always just managed to do the right thing at the right time. Belle has mastered her time sense, which give her the brief precognitive ability to sense the future (or where not to stand). Belle always gets an extra +1 on all mutation checks (+4 total) and can use time sense as move action (she can't reroll it while it is in effect). In addition, she can't fail a time sense roll, she can only lose it for the rest of a combat (not the day).

Belle likes the group of Seekers she is with now; and tries to be a good teammate. She always offers to share her milk or cheese (don't ask). Belle, considers herself a good singer, but likes to save her singing for the important moments.

Items: Com Badge (Sergeant Joe Friday), Fusion Torch, Grav-Clamp, Plasma Sword (3 charges, battery is irreparably stuck)

Description

Bob-Dar is your stereotypical fighter. If we can kill it, that is probably the best answer. Less talky talk, unless its one of those cool AI's; they are pretty neat.

He has a Mohawk, and a darn cool sword and shield, and he keeps all his stuff in this really-awesome backpack. His plasma sword is his most prized possession, but he is afraid to use it; he knows it will only last for 3 more hits, and maybe a little more if he is lucky.

Bob-Dar, speaks in typical barbarian, a cross between Conan and Thundarr.

Description

Cap'n Platypus (a name he hates, but has come to accept), has useful but unfortunate mutations. Looking more like a weird manimal than a mutated human, he has a duckbill, a lion's mane, and porcupine quills covering most of his body. One must look hard to see his human looking eyes or the few patches of quillless skin.

On the plus side he has pretty good mutations, his quills are deadly accurate, and he can recover from most wounds with his regeneration. He can also teleport, which why he carries the rope/pitons: sometimes it is to help others get up, and sometimes it is because his teleport is on the fritz and he needs to get down.

Despite everything CP has the heart of hero; and has decided to make the best of things. He takes his unfortunate appearance in stride, and routinely makes bad puns at his own expense.

He is kind of afraid of radiation because he is sure that his next mutation will likely make him even that much less human, no matter how useful claws or wings might be.

He once defeated a cyborg and salvaged an arm and a heart. He contemplates the arm (because it is more human) but believes such an act might be selfish and he should save it; he is uncertain what to do with the heart.

Quote

"Why didn't you tell me to Duck?" (Tends to speak like a hero.)

Description

Dar-Ryl is just a good old boy, with a heart of gold. He is super capable and has a number of useful skills (including distilling moonshine). He is the heart of the team, and the glue that binds everyone together.

He likes using his crossbow (even though it takes a move action to load it), but if the chips are down he just as happy to blast away with his Mazer Pistol. His Flashlight is duct taped under his Crossbow, for easy of carrying.

He is super excited by his newest acquisition, the Holo-Cloak, but its control settings are a little messed up. It takes a DC 10 INT check to activate in combat, and sometimes requires similar adjustments while in operation (like when he gets hit or the environment shifts). He knows the holo-cloak battery is running low and hopes it does not run low at a crucial time.

He speaks with a slight southern accent.

Dok-Tor Zayiss

Equipment & Notes

Weapons: Makeshift Axe (1d8), Flint Dagger (1d4)

Armor: Hide +3AC, Fancy Headgear +1AC, Surprisingly Resilient Lab Coat (+1AC)

Items: Satchel/Shoulder Bag, Lab Coat, Duralloy Pizza Cutter, Sharpie, Pad of Post-It Notes, Small Ball of Flubber, Spice Girl T-Shirt (too small).

Languages: Nu-Speak, Orangu-twang, Techno Gibberish (not a real language)

Items: Dazer Pistol (7 Charges), Force Baton (6 charges), C-Cell, Grav-Clamp, Com-Badge (Jane Jetson)

Description

Dok-Tor Zayiss is a stretchy orangutan with a lab coat, or an orangu-twang, as he likes to refer to himself. He is also a distinguished scientist and a blithering idiot.

Dok-Tor likes to consider himself a man of science; unfortunately he is not that smart...but that does not stop him from trying. At any moment he tries to quantify things with techno gibberish and makes up words as he goes along.

His elasticity and forcefield give him excellent survivability, especially considering his curiosity sometimes gets him in trouble.

Quote

“Dok-Tor is not some mere title that can be earned by study and proven application of knowledge. It is my NAME. Being a genius is at the very core of who I am.”

Description

Flower is an attractive human female. Socially she is the quiet one, always more interested in nature and her surroundings than the people she is with.

On her forehead is implant link with GAEA, a simple green bead. GAEA is the patron AI of environment and weather (including weather satellites).

Sadly, Flower sees less of the magic of nature and instead senses too much random data. Due to patron taint she has taken on several plantlike qualities. Her hair has a green grassy texture, occasionally sprouting a stray dandelion. Her skin has a barky texture in places and her eyes are milky and slightly faded. She always seems to be surrounded by bees and butterflies, and takes a -1 penalty to attack if none are nearby.

When she uses Glowburn, plants start to spring up around her. If she is using her Chia Pet while using Glowburn she gets 1 free point. She believes the joyful 'BobRoss' depicted on her Chia Pet must have been the first shaman of GAEA.

Speaks a little like a valley girl, but not so much that we need to kill the player.

Quote

"Wow, these plants are wonderful; too bad the nitrogen concentration in the soil is 2 off optimal."
"Did anyone just feel that shift in barometric pressure?"

Items: Gauzer Pistol (8 shots), Gauzer Grenade (15', 3d6)

Description

Gut Face, had the unfortunate cosmetic mutation of a giant mouth in his belly, and something resembling a chitinous scorpion tail that has a good manipulator appendage. His tail and few parts of his body are covered in chitin, and he has an odd overall look.

His main Mutant Power is force field, which is helpful for staying alive. His mutant tail seems to fight on its own, and that combined with his above average strength make him a tough opponent. He likes his javelins because he can alternate between throwing and thrusting; and tends to keep his other hand free for grabbing stuff or handing weapons off to his other hands.

Gut Face wears fairly heavy armor and has upgraded a set of hide with many metal rivets and plates; but is most impressed by the steel grill that goes over his torso/mouth.

Quote

None, but when Gut-Face speaks, his words are a bit garbled and he often adds a short 'a' sound at the end of most words (like Mush Mouth from Fat Albert).

Languages: Nu-Speak, Cacti, Ancient, Flowering Plant-ish

Items: Gauzer Rifle (18 shots, 48 charges), Spare Clip (20), Grav-Clamp

Description

Harold is a cactus, but he has 4 arms and 4 legs. He is kind of fast and a blur in combat. One might think that a cactus would be a loner, but Harold loves being part of the team, and is practically the team cheer leader (especially when it comes to urging someone on and lending them his luck). Harold is also a busy body and likes to be in everyone's business and just everywhere.

Because he is often the first into danger sometimes his teammates need to reign in his unbridled enthusiasm.

All of Harold's mutations seems to be about being his quick self; because he can't really do any tricks.

Harold does have a strong interest in flowering plantients. He thinks they are hot and will go out of his way to hit on them.

Languages: Nu-Speak, Programmer, Ancient,

Items: Multi-Tool, Neuroshot, Enviro-Belt (6 hours)

Description

Lahr-Ree is shaman of HALE-E, god of delirium and madness (and modern entertainment). After seeing countless vids that mean nothing in the real world, Lahr-Ree is a bit off. Lahr-Ree always tries to find meaning from these unrelatable vids and tries to say words of wisdom that mean something, "It's like when Luke blew up the Death Star, you have to have faith, ...AND THE FORCE".

Lahr-Ree has an impressive and unrelatable amount of music and trivial knowledge. He likes to hum appropriate songs at most situations (at least he thinks they are).

Lahr-Ree has accumulated a bit of patron taint: whatever he wears always has a faint glowing circuit pattern, and his skin glows slightly (-1 stealth), and sometimes he sees the world overlaid in polygons, rather than actual reality. He always wears his vid helmet: it never comes off.

Description

Mistur Tode is a toad person, and an arrogant, bossy one. He thinks he should make the calls, especially since he has Mind Control.

Unfortunately, the whole team attitude has killed his mind-control the team aspirations, but he still likes to control random monsters and other sentients (when the team lets him). Most times when he mind-controls someone the first thing they say is "All hail the Hypno-Toad". Mistur Tode claims ignorance, but somehow, he can mentally suggest this as he gains control. Mistur Tode like to have a minion carry his stuff (briefcase). The team doesn't really like it when he gets minions killed (unless the minion started out a bad guy).

Mistur Tode can also turn invisible, which is a handy power when things get too dangerous. He has a one-shot Civilian Forcefield (he used to have two). It only lasts for few minutes, and he usually needs air before it runs out. He can't attack or turn invisible while using it, but he can still mind-control things.

Description

Pierce started out as a skilled warrior, but when she went on the quest of the seeker as a young adult she had a bit of luck that changed her future career.

On her quest she got lucky and found several bits of medical equipment at an ancient army military hospital, and more importantly a telepathic lab rat (Brane). With the rat's instructions, she was able to take the best stuff, including a medical text book. Taking it all back she was able to be trained as a healer. Still a capable warrior, she likes to use her medical skills to know how to best kill things.

Her TMNT suitcase is a hard-shelled suitcase that hovers about 1.5 feet off the ground and can hold about 80 pounds. Pierce tends to keep her extra gear there and travel light.

Brane usually sits on Pierce's shoulder or pocket and is good at staying out of harm's way. Pierce got her name because of her chosen weapon, a steel pipe with a sharp spike.

Character Name:

Pliss-Kyn

Equipment & Notes

Weapon: Big Axe made from Stop Sign (1d10), Flint Dagger (1d4).

Armor: Hub-Cap Armor (+4AC), has a small shield but rarely uses since his Axe is two handed (optional +1AC), Bubble Helmet (+1AC)

Equipment: Jar of Turtle Wax, Back Pack, Atomic Powered Space Heater, Sleeping Bag

Languages: Nu-Speak, Ancient

Items: Bubble Helmet, Com-Badge (Chris Collins), Medishot, 3 Hemopatches

Description

Pliss-Kyn is big (around 8 feet), and has a large serpent tail instead of legs. Other than that he appears to be a very strong, but regular human with purple eyes.

Pliss-Kyn is good in a fight but sometimes worries a bit. Sometimes he feels like a big target, so he got his friends to help him make the best armor they could (and he found a nifty helmet). Because of his new armor he feels better about himself, but still sometimes feels more exposed than the other mutants. He has no idea how the pure strains cope with the life of a seeker.

His other powers are generally useful, he has two ranged attacks and can heal people and fix things. He speaks in a rather raspy high pitch voice (like Cobra Commander) and sometimes it sounds weird, especially when he is giving a compliment.

Quote

“Call me Snake,” or, depending on mood, “The name is Pliss-Kyn.”

Items: Laser Pistol (3 charges), Sensor Pad, Neuroshot

Description

Tribella is a female mutant whose entire body is covered in hair, so much that she looks like a cross between Cousin It and a Yeti. She has a third eye on her forehead that she tends to keep covered. Her eyes always seem to generate some low level of light, so she tends to wear sunglasses (even in the dark).

Even though Tribella has good mutations, she generally considers his intelligence her greatest gift. Tribella has pretty much got her light power down so that she can turn on a flashlight effect without rolling a mutation check. Recently she was exposed to radiation and developed the symbiotic suckers on her finger-tips. So far nobody has noticed them because she can sort of retract them when not in use, but she is reluctant to let people know she can compel actions with her symbiotic touch, since she doesn't want people creeped out by this.

Her sensor pad is a complicated gizmo kind of like a Star Trek Tricorder. It can detect a number of things, but usually just scanning for life seems to be the easiest and most helpful.

Tribella has a very sexy Jessica Rabbit type voice. This has lead to speculation among the male party members on what she looks like under all that hair, because the common consensus is that she sounds HOT.

First Level Versions

This collection of characters was originally designed as pre-gens for Gen Con convention games. Those adventures were for third-level characters. Eventually, we wrote up a couple 1st level adventures, and decided we also needed first-level versions of these characters. We're including them here in the following pages as a bonus!

Also, here's a copy of the cover art to this Folio in black and white for you to have fun coloring yourself!

Description

Bam-Bee is a deer mutant. She has antlers, antennae (like a Bee), and her Antlers have Radar Dish like appendages. She will know if something is coming.

Bam-Bee hates being a seeker, seekers do dangerous stuff and are gonna die; but her tribe declared they must to do their part and have a seeker. Bam-Bee is totally afraid she is going to get killed, but she is smart and if she keeps the other seekers from dying, they might somehow keep her alive. She is mostly a sort of scout, and sometimes a healer. She has a rifle (although she is a bad shot), so she can shoot at a distance and her long spear keeps stuff away from her. She also can fix things and heal the others with her molecular integration.

Once recently she used her life force transference power and it nearly killed her, so she is kind of afraid to use it. She likes to think of herself as a team player, but not the fighting half of the team.

Although she is not a rover, she even has a little bit of skill with traps (due to her birth sign and high INT). Bam-Bee is fluent in Rabbit, and can speak with most non-predator woodland critters.

Languages: Nu-Speak, Security Access

Items: Grappling Hook Launcher, with Duralloy Grappling hook and 100' Syntharope.

Description

Bat Guy is a short little seeker (3'8"), although he likes to refer to himself as a crime fighter. He speaks in a deep raspy voice and likes to take charge. His mouth is fanged, and he has a set of bat wings on his back, it makes him sort of dark and brooding.

Sometimes when he is giving commands in his spooky voice, his eyes glow yellow, and most are compelled to do as he asks.

Bat Guy can generate a force field, but even when it deflects hits, he likes to make the motions that he is deflecting them himself (even though he is often a second behind).

Despite his size, he is quite strong and agile, and seems to be able to make his hits count (apocalypse sign +1 damage).

Bat Guy's wings are capable of powered flight (later on, as he matured, he bulked up a little bit -- he refers to it as 'Miller-ization' --and lost that ability).

Armor: Hide with Fur Cloak +3AC, Shield +IAC, Metal Helmet (Cooking Pot) +IAC

Weapon: Duralloy Spear (1d8), Club (1d6), Flint Dagger (1d4)

Equipment: Rucksack, Salt Lick, Cow Bell, Bucket, I-Pod w speaker (she doesn't really understand it, currently it is stuck on shuffle/random), Mud-Flap skirt (w Silhouettes), Large Wedge of Cheese, Bottle of Milk.

Languages: Nu-Speak

Items: Medishot, Com-Badge (Citizen Daisy Barton). Note Belle sucks with Tech and has only barely managed to be taught how to use the things she has.

Description

Belle is a cow-person. She isn't that strong or that smart, but she is tough.

Belle felt mistreated by her some former teammates. Most of them considered her a meat shield, but she thought she was better than that. What kept surprising them is how Belle always just managed to do the right thing at the right time. Belle has mastered her time sense, which give her the brief precognitive ability to sense the future (or where not to stand). Belle always gets an extra +1 on all mutation checks (+2 total) and can use time sense as move action (she can't reroll it while it is in effect). In addition, she can't fail a time sense roll, she can only lose it for the rest of a combat (not the day).

Belle likes the group of Seekers she is with now; and tries to be a good teammate. She always offers to share her milk or cheese (don't ask). Belle, considers herself a good singer, but likes to save her singing for the important moments.

Description

Cap'n Platypus (a name he hates, but has come to accept), has useful but unfortunate mutations. Looking more like a weird manimal than a mutated human, he has a duckbill, a lion's mane, and porcupine quills covering most of his body. One must look hard to see his human looking eyes or the few patches of quillless skin.

On the plus side he has pretty good mutations, his quills are deadly accurate, and he can recover from most wounds with his regeneration. He can also teleport, which why he carries the rope/pitons: sometimes it is to help others get up, and sometimes it is because his teleport is on the fritz and he needs to get down.

Despite everything CP has the heart of hero; and has decided to make the best of things. He takes his unfortunate appearance in stride, and routinely makes bad puns at his own expense.

He is kind of afraid of radiation because he is sure that his next mutation will likely make him even that much less human, no matter how useful claws or wings might be.

Armor: Hide Overalls, with leather jacket +3 AC,

Weapons: Modern Crossbow (+1 to hit 1d8), Hand Axe (1d6), 2 Flint Dagger (1d4)

Equipment: Back Pack, Syntha-Rope, Grappling Hook, Flash Light, Duct Tape, Flint & Steel, 20 Bolts. Metal Flask

Languages: Nu Speak, Security Access

Items: 50 feet of Carbon Nano Cord

Description

Dar-Ryl is just a good old boy, with a heart of gold. He is super capable and has a number of useful skills (including distilling moonshine). He is the heart of the team, and the glue that binds everyone together.

He likes using his crossbow (even though it takes a move action to load it), but if the chips are down he just as happy to blast away with his Mazer Pistol. His Flashlight is duct taped under his Crossbow, for easy of carrying.

He speaks with a slight southern accent.

Description

Dok-Tor Zayiss is a stretchy orangutan with a lab coat, or an orangu-twang, as he likes to refer to himself. He is also a distinguished scientist and a blithering idiot.

Dok-Tor likes to consider himself a man of science; unfortunately he is not that smart...but that does not stop him from trying. At any moment he tries to quantify things with techno gibberish and makes up words as he goes along.

His elasticity and forcefield give him excellent survivability, especially considering his curiosity sometimes gets him in trouble.

Equipment: Leather Rucksack, Flint and Steel, Bob Ross Chia Pet w 17 bags of seed

Languages: Nu Speak, Programmer, Security Access, Sentient Flowering Plants, Pollinating Insects w language

Items: Sonic Spanner

Description

Flower is an attractive human female. Socially she is the quiet one, always more interested in nature and her surroundings than the people she is with.

On her forehead is implant link with GAEA, a simple green bead. GAEA is the patron AI of environment and weather (including weather satellites).

Sadly, Flower sees less of the magic of nature and instead senses too much random data. Due to patron taint she has taken on several plantlike qualities. Her hair has a green grassy texture, occasionally sprouting a stray dandelion. Her skin has a barky texture in places and her eyes are milky and slightly faded. She always seems to be surrounded by bees and butterflies, and takes a -1 penalty to attack if none are nearby.

When she uses Glowburn, plants start to spring up around her. If she is using her Chia Pet while using Glowburn she gets 1 free point. She believes the joyful 'BobRoss' depicted on her Chia Pet must have been the first shaman of GAEA.

Speaks a little like a valley girl, but not so much that we need to kill the player.

Quote

“Wow, these plants are wonderful; too bad the nitrogen concentration in the soil is 2 off optimal.”
“Did anyone just feel that shift in barometric pressure?”

Equipment: Rucksack, Leather Sack, Flint & Steel, Whetstone, 4 Torches, Small Sear's Craftsman Toolkit, Fuzzy Slippers

Languages: Nu-Speak, Sentient Crustacean-ish

Description

Gut Face, had the unfortunate cosmetic mutation of a giant mouth in his belly, and something resembling a chitinous scorpion tail that has a good manipulator appendage. His tail and few parts of his body are covered in chitin, and he has an odd overall look.

His main Mutant Power is force field, which is helpful for staying alive. His mutant tail seems to fight on its own, and that combined with his above average strength make him a tough opponent. He likes his javelins because he can alternate between throwing and thrusting; and tends to keep his other hand free for grabbing stuff or handing weapons off to his other hands.

Gut Face wears fairly heavy armor and has upgraded a set of hide with many metal rivets and plates; but is most impressed by the steel grill that goes over his torso/mouth.

Quote

None, but when Gut-Face speaks, his words are a bit garbled and he often adds a short 'a' sound at the end of most words (like Mush Mouth from Fat Albert).

Equipment: Mag-Lev Passenger Brochure, Can of Soda, #1 Boss Mug, Rucksack, Purple Crayon, 50' Syntha-Rope, a Talking Fit-Bit, Spray Bottle of Defoliant

Languages: Nu-Speak, Cacti, Ancient, Flowering Plant-ish

Description

Harold is a cactus, but he has 4 arms and 4 legs. He is kind of fast and a blur in combat. One might think that a cactus would be a loner, but Harold loves being part of the team, and is practically the team cheer leader (especially when it comes to urging someone on and lending them his luck). Harold is also a busy body and likes to be in everyone's business and just everywhere.

Because he is often the first into danger sometimes his teammates need to reign in his unbridled enthusiasm.

All of Harold's mutations seems to be about being his quick self; because he can't really do any tricks.

Harold does have a strong interest in flowering plantients. He thinks they are hot and will go out of his way to hit on them.

Languages: Nu-Speak, Programmer, Ancient,

Items: Multi-Tool, Enviro-Belt (6 hours)

Description

Lahr-Ree is shaman of HALE-E, god of delirium and madness (and modern entertainment). After seeing countless vids that mean nothing in the real world, Lair-Re is a bit off. Lair-Re always tries to find meaning from these unrelatable vids and tries to say words of wisdom that mean something, "It's like when Luke blew up the Death Star, you have to have faith, ...AND THE FORCE".

Lahr-Re has an impressive and unrelatable amount of music and trivial knowledge. He likes to hum appropriate songs at most situations (at least he thinks they are).

Lahr-Ree has accumulated a bit of patron taint: whatever he wears always has a faint glowing circuit pattern, and his skin glows slightly (-I stealth), and sometimes he sees the world overlaid in polygons, rather than actual reality. He always wears his vid helmet: it never comes off.

Description

Mistur Tode is a toad person, and an arrogant, bossy one. He thinks he should make the calls, especially since he has Mind Control.

Unfortunately, the whole team attitude has killed his mind-control the team aspirations, but he still likes to control random monsters and other sentients (when the team lets him). Most times when he mind-controls someone the first thing they say is “All hail the Hypno-Toad”. Mistur Tode claims ignorance, but somehow, he can mentally suggest this as he gains control. Mistur Tode like to have a minion carry his stuff (briefcase). The team doesn’t really like it when he gets minions killed (unless the minion started out a bad guy).

Mistur Tode can also turn invisible, which is a handy power when things get too dangerous. He has a two one-shot Civilian Forcefields. It only lasts for few minutes, and he usually needs air before it runs out. He can’t attack or turn invisible while using it, but he can still mind-control things.

Description

Pierce started out as a skilled warrior, but when she went on the quest of the seeker as a young adult she had a bit of luck that changed her future career.

On her quest she got lucky and found several bits of medical equipment at an ancient army military hospital, and more importantly a telepathic lab rat (Brane). With the rat's instructions, she was able to take the best stuff, including a medical text book. Taking it all back she was able to be trained as a healer. Still a capable warrior, she likes to use her medical skills to know how to best kill things.

Her TMNT suitcase is a hard-shelled suitcase that hovers about 1.5 feet off the ground and can hold about 80 pounds. Pierce tends to keep her extra gear there and travel light.

Brane usually sits on Pierce's shoulder or pocket and is good at staying out of harm's way. Pierce got her name because of her chosen weapon, a steel pipe with a sharp spike.

Taller Type: Passive Ref: MCC pg. 62

Manifestation: Pliss-Kyn's body is taller than other members of his genotype, but his lower legs and feet are extra wide (does not apply; his bottom half is snake-like)

Effect: Pliss-Kyn is taller than average humans; gains +2 to Strength, +5' movement, and -2 AC

Ultravision Type: Passive Ref: MCC pg. 62 Roll: +1

Manifestation: Pliss-Kyn's eyes are composed entirely of dark purple pupils

Effect: Pliss-Kyn is able to see microwave sources and transmissions up to 40'; his vision may inflict 2d6 heat damage to a single target as an action (Requires a hit roll).

Radiation Generation Type: Active Ref: MCC pg. 58 Roll: +1

Manifestation: Pliss-Kyn's body glows with a bright blue halo

Effect: A mutation check roll is made each time the active mutation is used.

Mental Mutations

Molecular Integration Type: Active Ref: MCC pg. 79 Roll: +1

Manifestation: Pliss-Kyn's hands radiate bluewhite rings of concentric energy

Effect: A mutation check roll is made each time the active mutation is used.

Equipment & Notes

Weapon: Big Axe made from Stop Sign (1d10), Flint Dagger (1d4).

Armor: Hub-Cap Armor (+4AC), has a small shield but rarely uses since his Axe is two handed (optional +1AC), Bubble Helmet (+1AC)

Equipment: Jar of Turtle Wax, Back Pack, Atomic Powered Space Heater, Sleeping Bag

Languages: Nu-Speak, Ancient

Items: Bubble Helmet, Com-Badge (Chris Collins), 2 Hemopatches

Description

Pliss-Kyn is big (around 8 feet), and has a large serpent tail instead of legs. Other than that he appears to be a very strong, but regular human with purple eyes.

Pliss-Kyn is good in a fight but sometimes worries a bit. Sometimes he feels like a big target, so he got his friends to help him make the best armor they could (and he found a nifty helmet). Because of his new armor he feels better about himself, but still sometimes feels more exposed than the other mutants. He has no idea how the pure strains cope with the life of a seeker.

His other powers are generally useful, he has two ranged attacks and can heal people and fix things. He speaks in a rather raspy high pitch voice (like Cobra Commander) and sometimes it sounds weird, especially when he is giving a compliment.

Armor: Augmented Leather Armor (+3AC), Shield (+1AC)

Items: Rucksack, Scissors, 2 Boxes of Snack food, Can of Mouse, Sun Glasses, 50' Syntha-rope, has piles of hair accessories (scrunchies, clips, flat iron, curling iron, hair net).

Languages: Nu-Speak, Ancient, Canine Humanoid

Items: Laser Pistol (4 charges)

Description

Tribella is a female mutant whose entire body is covered in hair, so much that she looks like a cross between Cousin It and a Yeti. She has a third eye on her forehead that she tends to keep covered. Her eyes always seem to generate some low level of light, so she tends to wear sunglasses (even in the dark).

Even though Tribella has good mutations, she generally considers his intelligence her greatest gift. Tribella has pretty much got her light power down so that she can turn on a flashlight effect without rolling a mutation check. Recently she was exposed to radiation and developed the symbiotic suckers on her finger-tips. So far nobody has noticed them because she can sort of retract them when not in use, but she is reluctant to let people know she can compel actions with her symbiotic touch, since she doesn't want people creeped out by this.

Tribella has a very sexy Jessica Rabbit type voice. This has lead to speculation among the male party members on what she looks like under all that hair, because the common consensus is that she sounds HOT.

Adventure Notes

Optional Rules

This section contains a variety of equipment used by the characters, and presents optional rules for handling this new equipment in your MCC game. Also presented are statistics for new adversaries that were created as part of the initial wave of Mutant Mayhem Minis.

Character Equipment

Makeshift-Weapon/Duralloy Weapon

In Terra AD most seekers use primitive weapons. As they become more experienced, they often find bits of the ancient world that they can adapt into better weapons. Lovingly created and cared for, and usually forged in the field these unique items often become a seekers signature weapon. Whether this signature weapon is a sharp piece of duralloy or some mundane tool never intended as a weapon, they all have the same general property; they do either a d8 of damage or a d7 of damage with a +1 to hit.

Sometimes smaller weapons will have the makeshift or modern property and will usually inflict one die size larger damage (a dagger or knife dealing a d5 of damage instead of d4). Being a unique beloved creation means that under most circumstances a seeker will only have one or two such makeshift weapons or sets of armor.

Examples

- Duralloy Sword 1d8 (Bob-Dar)
- Duralloy Spear 1d8 (Belle)
- Makeshift Mace 1d7 +1 to hit (Cap'nPlatypus)
- Baseball Bat w Barbed Wire 1d7 +1 to hit (Mistur Toad)
- Ginsu Knives 1d5 (Harold)

Makeshift/Augmented Armor

Due to the low level of technology in Terra AD most armor is leather or hide. Seekers craft small shields and helmets out of natural materials to augment their low protection in a dangerous world. Enterprising seekers use bits of material left by the ancients to augment their armor. Working bits of metal and simple artifacts into their leather/hide armor add an extra bit of protection. Most armors that have had this improvement usually grant +1AC over their normal base.

Due to the lack of armoring skills in Terra AD maintaining this armor is often a time-consuming task, and most seekers are unlikely to have multiple items of makeshift armor or weapons.

Special shields can often be crafted from ancient signs or large pieces of metal that also grant an extra +1 AC, but like the armor they also need special upkeep. Helmets of the ancients seem to only grant the usual +1AC, but often have special properties, or are just nicer and reflect the status of the seeker.

Example:

- Tribella's armor started out as simple leather, after raiding an ancient cafeteria she interlaced her armor with spoons and other silverware, giving it the augmented quality (+3AC).

Additional Weapons/Armor Notes

For some, the equipment list presented in MCC might be a bit confusing. At first glance most players will want to wear a fur cloak over their hide armor to achieve a decent AC. Comparing MCC to DCC, I don't think this was their intention, but the desire to wear a fur cloak over power armor is still there. The following are a few clarifications on items used on the characters provided.

Fur Cloak: +2AC, Cost 20 Trade Creds, (Does not stack with other Armors)

Leather Armor: +2AC, Cost 20 Trade Creds, (Equivalent to Fur Cloak)

Hide Armor: +3AC, Cost 30 Trade Creds

Any Head Protection: +1AC, Cost, Cost 10 Trade Creds, (Equivalent to Antler Helm)

Primitive Short Sword: 1d6 damage, Cost 7 Trade Creds (Any Crude Sharpened Metal)

Protective Clothing: +1AC, No Trade Cost (police uni-suits, military fatigues, special lab coats; these rare items of the ancient are extremely light weight and resilient and give +1AC and can usually be worn under/over other primitive armor)

Cattle Prod/Stun Stick

Tech Level: 3 Complexity Modifier: 3

Range: Melee

Damage: 1d8

Special: Attack +1

Power: C-Cell (20), F-Cell (40), Q-Cell (U)

This device was used to motivate certain herd animals and had a secondary use in riots and civilian control situations. The cattle prod does 1d8 electrical damage on a successful hit and requires the target to make a DC 14 Fort Save or be stunned for 1 round. Charges are only expended on attack rolls that hit, a miss does not use a charge.

Cellular Regenerator

Tech Level: 4

Complexity Modifier: 4

Effect: Heal 1d6 (first application), 1d3 (second application)

Duration: 2 minutes per hp healed

Power: C-Cell (10 uses)

This small box shaped device has numerous straps and fastens connected to it. The Cellular Regenerator uses some sort ancient phase pulse technology to accelerate cellular healing. When strapped to a wound this device heals 1d6 hp of physical damage over several minutes. Multiple applications of this device have diminishing effects, since one application seems to tax a bodies limit. It can be used on a person once per hour, and a maximum of twice in 24 hours. Each use uses 1 C-Cell charge.

Less efficient then a medi-shot or other modern medicine, the Cellular Regenerator or Hot Box as it was often called, was a more primitive technology from an earlier time. Often used in warzones and undeveloped areas the hot box was considered extremely valuable because of its ability to be repeatedly used over and over when supplies were hard to come by. The hot box cannot heal poison, or radiation damage, but can work on most normal burns and wounds.

Civilian Force Field Belt

Tech Level: 4 Complexity Modifier: 4

Protection: +3 AC

Special: Shields against radiation, gaseous attacks, and physical damage (up to 25 hp)

Power: Special mini C-Cell (Single Use)

This device is exactly like the one listed in the MCC book except that it is only single use. Designed to resemble every-day items, belt buckles, jewelry, etc., the single use force field was designed to protect civilians in emergency situations. This device became necessitated by a period of civil unrest during the ancient times where acts of terrorism and mass shooting at public events became common. The sudden overuse of this device made would be terrorist and shooters into failures and embarrassments, and the practice of terrorism diminished.

Over time many of the batteries on these devices failed or were just lost amid other piles of cosmetic jewelry and junk. Lucky seekers might still find a special belt buckle or broach that holds the magic protection of the ancients.

Com-Badge

(with name of previous owner)

Tech Level: 4 Complexity Modifier: 3

Com- Badges are as they are presented in MCC book page 179.

Note: Although this item functions as listed in the MCC rule book, the com badges on the seekers presented each contain the name of the person whose com-badge it once belonged to.

Com-Badges are much like the cell phones of today. Besides being identification and a communication device, they contain great deal of personal data, pictures of themselves and loved ones, financial information, as well as authorization for special privileges they might have had as citizens in ancient times (Doctors, Police, Scientist, etc.). These privileges might grant the owner advantages in particular situations, such as access to restricted area, or beneficial treatment by specific AIs. It is up to the GM to decide what benefit any individual com-badge has.

First Aid Kit/Modern Medical Supplies

Tech Level: 3

Complexity Modifier: 3

Effect: See Below

Power: Self (10 uses)

This simple plastic box comes with basic medical supplies. Bandages, antiseptics, stiches, medical tape, and a few medical instruments (tweezers, scissors, scalpel). When a healer uses this in conjunction with their naturopathy ability out of combat, they get +2 HP to the healing result.

Non-healers trying to use this kit can use it by making a DC 10 INT check each time they use it. If they succeed, they can heal an injured person 1 HP. Healers who have exceeded their naturopathy limit can still heal characters for 1 HP when not in combat. Multiple non-naturopathy applications do not stack.

Gauzer Grenade

Tech Level: 4

Complexity Modifier: 3

Range: 15' radius

Damage: 3D6, (DC 12 Reflex save for ½ damage)

Special: None

Power: Self

The gauzer grenade is a bomb with magnetically propelled shrapnel, it is similar to the fragmentation grenade of pre-ancient times. The grenade does 3d6 to everything within 5' of the blast point, the damage drops by 1 die for every 5' away the target is from the blast (keep the initial roll and remove lowest dice first).

Gauzer Hunting Rifle

Tech Level: 4 Complexity Modifier: 3
Range: 140'
Damage: 1d12
Power: C-Cell (50), F-Cell (100), Q-Cell (U)
Ammo: Clips (20 shots)

Gauzer rifles fire steel projectiles, magnetically accelerating them to incredible speeds. This weapon is single shot, and bolt action. It has a scope that allows the user to spend an extra round aiming. If the user does so, then they may roll the attack roll twice, taking the better roll, and that attack critical hits on a 19-20. The scope can also be used as low-quality binoculars for distance viewing. The scope is equipped with a night vision setting.

Grappling Hook Launcher

Tech Level: 4 Complexity Modifier: 4
Range: 120'
Damage: 1d6
Power: C-Cell (50), F-Cell (100), Q-Cell (U)
Ammo: 1 Reusable Duralloy Grapple with variable length of syntha-rope

This device was used by military special forces as well as rock climbers and extreme sports participants. The Grappling hook launcher consists of a tube-like device with a small reel on the side to hold the syntha-rope, plus it has numerous extendable hand grips. The grapple itself is 12" long metal post with a flat gravitically adherent head. With a little training one can fire the grapple and then reel themselves up.

The gun and the grapple hook have a gravitic locking device that holds the grapple on target, and optionally can allow the gun itself to be anchored. The syntha-rope benefits from the guns minor gravitic field and is easily held onto for ease of climbing. Using the guns retract function to pull oneself up allows a person to be pulled 40' per round. If fired as a weapon the blunt grapple will deal 1d6 damage but will not lock/fasten onto a living target.

Genome Enhancer

Tech Level: 3 Complexity Modifier: 2
Effect: See Below
Duration: PSH 2d4 hours, Others, Instantaneous or 1 hour
Power: Self

This small transdermal application was used by many ancients on a daily basis. A wonder vitamin of the ancients, that made you a better you by enhancing positive genetic traits. Although beneficial to the humans created it, ironically it has even more benefit for the mutants of Terra AD. When used a PSH gains a +1 to their physical stat with the highest modifier (roll randomly for ties). If a Mutant or Manimal uses this it will restore a lost mutation, or if no mutations is exhausted it will allow a reroll on a passive mutation if the player chooses. If neither of these options are available, the player can take a +1d4 on their next mutation roll (this expires after 1 hour). Changes to a passive mutation last 1 hour. This item can also restore an expended Shaman Wetware use, if one was expended. This item has no effect on Plantients.

Hemopatch

Tech Level: 3 Complexity Modifier: 2
Effect: Heal 2d4 hp
Duration: Instantaneous
Power: Self

This thick bandage comes in its own zip sealed package and is covered with the writing and pictures of the ancients. Those familiar with the ancient's writings and pictographs can easily tell this was a medical item, and the picture on the container makes it application easy. This item was a competitor to the medishot in ancient times. Easier to use but less effective, it represented a simple alternative for emergency situations. Placing a patch on a wound immediately releases healing chemicals and nano-bots, to repair a wound. This item cannot heal poison, or radiation damage, but can work on most normal burns and wounds.

Modern Tool Kit

Tech Level: 1 for simple tools, (2 or 3 for power tools)
Complexity Modifier: 1
Effect: add 1d3 on appropriate skill check including Rovers doors/security check
Power: Self

Modern Tools help in many situations. In many instances having the right tool will make a job easier (and give the 1d3 bonus), but sometimes having a specific modern tool is completely necessary to accomplish a task (like unscrewing a security plate to get at some important controls).

Modern tools can at a GM's discretion allow players to repair damaged artifacts (depending on the complexity of the artifact). More complex modern tools might be higher tech level or complexity (power tools, volt meters, and soldering irons), but allow players to repair more complex devices.

Many toolkits are stored in a very durable/light-weight chests that have a carrying handle and locking hinges.

Smoke Grenade

Tech Level: 3 Complexity Modifier: 3
Range: 15' radius
Special: See Below
Power: Self

Smoke Grenades create a near instant 15' cloud of opaque smoke. Targets relying on normal sight must make two attack rolls and take the worse when the targeting into the smoke cloud. In addition, you may only target through a maximum of two squares of smoke, beyond that there is no line of sight. The cloud lasts for 2d4 rounds.

Snack Food/Energy Drinks

Tech Level: 0 Complexity Modifier: 0
Effect: See Below
Power: Self

The Ancients had many vitamin-enriched, caffeine laden, sugar packed super foods. Most of these foods are extremely satisfying to the primitive seekers of Terra AD. All of these foods were created with special stasis packaging coining the seeker saying that "food of the ancients never goes bad".

Although the ancients were used to their high calorie, sugary foods, seekers are not; depending on the food and the individual seeker, results often vary. All Ancient snack foods heal 1d3 HP of damage when consumed out of combat. Only one snack food can be consumed during a rest and eating a second snack food within 4 hours has no additional benefit. In addition, eating any snack food may generate one effect from the chart below (GMs Discretion)

1-2) No Additional Effect: No effect beyond being delicious and satisfying

3-4) Sugar Max: For 1d3 turns get +1 to AC and REF saves, minus 1 die size to anything requiring concentration.

5-7) Vitamin Enriched: +2 to FORT saves for 24 hours

8-11) Protein Packed: Heal an extra 1d2 points of damage

12-14) Carb-Loaded: Get +1 to hit, damage, and +1 die size on all STR checks for 1d3 turns. Take -1 to Hit, and STR checks for 1 hour after it wears off.

15-17) Caffeine Charged: get +1 die size on all INT checks, lasts 1 hour. When effect wears off take a -1 to all INT checks for the next hour.

18-19) Well Balanced: Get the positive affect of one of the above (GM's choice), but not the negative.

20) Super Well Balanced: Get the positive effect of two of the above (GM's choice) and only one negative effective.

Shamanic Focus

Tech Level: 1 Complexity Modifier: 0

Effect: Bonus points when Shaman uses Glowburn (up to 1 per level of focus)

Duration: Instantaneous

Power: Self/Life Force of the Shaman

These items vary from Shaman to Shaman and AI to AI, and often they are what a shaman perceives to be sacred to an AI rather than what the actual AI believes. In all cases it is an item that acts as a receiver for the shaman's life force when glow burning, which it then channels into a more effective glowburn. These items match points of glowburn up to the level of the focus. If a shaman with a level 1 focus spends 1 point of glowburn the focus matches the point and they get a bonus of 2 on the program check. Most items carried by seekers are a level 1 focus, while some bigger items or locations could be level 2 or 3.

Some focuses can also store points of glowburn for later use. Called a glowburn battery, a shaman can call upon them when in need. Such a focus has 2x its level in glowburn points that can be used. Shamans can recharge these points by glowburning as normal, but it is usually done between adventures. Sometimes depending on the nature of the focus there may be additional benefits or penalties

Shamanic Focus, level 1 (Bob Ross Chia Pet)

This focus is used by Flower, the devoted shaman of GAEA. She believes that Bob Ross, is the first shaman of GAEA, and during his life strived to create a world full of happy little bushes, trees, and clouds. When Flower glowburns and loses stat points, the hair on the chia pet grows. A normal shaman of GAEA spills her blood freely on the ground, but Bob Ross absorbs and redirects her life force more effectively. Each time Flower glowburns she gains 1 bonus glowburn point. Bob Ross also acts as a glowburn battery and stores 2 points of glowburn in his terra cotta shell.

Shamanic Focus, level 1 (Damaged Sensor Drone)

These small 3" circular sensor drones are the normal manifestation of HEXACODA. When a shaman of HEXACODA finds one of these disabled sensors, they can temporarily power and repair it using their own life force. When a shaman of HEXACODA glowburns the sensor drone starts to orbit their head and zip about the surrounding area for 1 turn for each point of glowburn used. This effect also occurs when a shaman glowburns to store future points into the focus as a battery. While the sensor is floating about a shaman of HEXACODA suffers a -1 to stealth checks but gains a +2 to all perception and search checks (HEXACODA watches all), otherwise it functions as a level 1 focus.

Teleport Self (Alternate Power)

Type: Active

Range: Varies

Duration: Instant

Save: None

General: This mutant can move across great distances in the blink of an eye. The mutant achieves this through various pseudo-scientific means depending on the mutant (folding space, disassembling and beaming molecules, stepping through other dimensions). The mutant is primarily able to teleport themselves, but with higher rolls can sometime bring one or more passengers.

Manifestation: As MCC Book page 81.

1 Failure, mutation may not be used again that day, roll on defects table.

2-9 Failure, mutation may not be used again that day.

10-11 Failure, mutation may still be used.

12-14 The mutant is able to teleport himself and any carried objects up to 50 lbs. The mutant can teleport up to 30' as a move action or up to 60' as regular action. The target location must be within line of sight.

15-17 The mutant is able to teleport himself and any carried objects up to 200 lbs (including a person). The mutant can teleport up to 60' as a move action or up to 120' as regular action. The target location must be within line of sight.

18-19 The mutant is able to teleport himself and any carried objects up to 50 lbs. The Mutant can teleport up to 60' as a move action, make an attack as regular action and teleport another 60' for free. Alternatively, the mutant can teleport 3 times total during their turn, with each teleport being up to 60'. The target locations must be within line of sight.

20-23 The mutant is able to teleport their person, and all worn or held personal gear a total distance of 1 mile or less. The target location must have been previously visited by the mutant or be within line of sight.

24-27 The mutant is able to teleport herself and up to 6 allies to any location within line of sight.

28-29 The mutant is able to teleport himself and his allies to any location he has previously visited.

30-31 The mutant is able to teleport herself and her allies to any other location in the universe, including other planets or star systems. To arrive successfully, the mutant must have visited the location before, or possess a physical object originally from the desired destination.

32+ The mutant is able to teleport himself and his allies beyond reality as he knows it and into an adjacent parallel plane of existence. The destination dimension or parallel world can only be determined in advance if the mutant has in his possession a physical object originally from that plane – otherwise the trip to another universe will be completely random (GM's discretion).

Telepathic Rat

This prized animal is more than a mere pet; it forms a bond with its owner and from then on, they are inseparable. How telepathic rats come to be is a mystery. Some say they are random mutations, while others believe some sort of disaster related quantum entanglement imprints the personality of a deceased ancient on a rat's mind. The evidence is conflicting with some telepathic rats being very smart animals, while others already have a distinct personality.

Either way, these rats eschew other rats and form a bond with a seeker. It is up to a GM if a rat has a specific personality already in place.

Telepathic Rat

AC: 11 (+1d6)

HD: 1 (has 1 hp) but is assumed to be the owning characters level for purposes of "bleeding out" and has a (11 +1d6) luck score for purposes of "recovering the body". Rats who survive after bleeding out and being recovered lose 1 point of luck.

Move: 30 Feet

Attack: Melee bite (+1 to hit per owning character level), 1d3 damage

Saves: +1 REF, FORT, WILL (+1 each per owning character level)

Telepathy: Can speak telepathically with any or all sentients within 15'. Can telepathically speak Nu-Speak, Rat and Rat Manimal, and Ancient (if owner has at least 13 INT). It is uncertain if a telepathic rat can communicate with a robot or AI. Evasive: When hiding on their owner's person a telepathic rat is generally immune to area effect damage and most thing that effect their owner. If the rat is out and moving about on its own, use the AC and saves listed above.

Optional Powers: Kind GM's may allow rats to develop additional powers (especially on weak characters). This might be a mental mutation off the mutation chart (use owners' level for rolls) or could be something as simple as being able to make a mental attack for 1d3 damage instead of having to make a bite attack. Also, a specific rat might be able to give guidance or advice and assist on skill checks in an area in which they had the pertinent skill set/memories.

Example:

Brane

Brane, AC 16, HP 1 (counts as 3rd level, Luck 15), Attack +3 Bite (1d3), Saves +3 REF, +3 FORT, +3 WILL, Can use Mental Blast Mutation 1x per day (+3 cannot glow burn or spend luck), can use Telepathy Mutation 1x per day in addition to normal telepathy possessed by a telepathic rat (+3 cannot glow burn or spend luck).

Brane was found by Pierce in an ancient military hospital. Brane seems to have some rudimentary memories of a doctor or some sort of medical personnel. Brane frequently advises Pierce on appropriate medical treatment and uses ancient medical jargon when telepathically communicating.

Telepathic Rat Personality Chart

1-4) Animal Intelligence: fiercely loyal, but still just a smart animal

5-8) Low Intelligence: as smart as a young child, or a very dumb adult, but has no personality

9-10) Medium Intelligence: can grasp some difficult concepts. Has an INT score roughly equal to the owners INT score. No distinct personality

11) Educated: (1) Engineer (2) Computer Programmer (3) Teacher (4) Psychologist

12) Trained: (1) Law Enforcement (2) Career Soldier (4) Body Guard (4) Life Long Hunter

13) Teenager: (1) Jock (2) Cheerleader (3) Nerd (4) Goth (5) Stoner

14) Non-Essential Job: (1) Cosmetologist (2) Interior Design (3) Telemarketer (4) Fashion Consultant

15) Blue Collar: (1) Skilled Trade (2) Factory Worker (3) Truck Driver

16) Medical Staff: (1) Doctor (2) Nurse (3) Pharmacist (4) Medical Assistant

17) Senior Citizen: (1) Overly Kind Grandmother (2) Fought in the War (3) Just Grumpy

18) Bureaucrat: (1) Lawyer (2) Politician (3) Office Job (4) Civil Servant (5) Clergy

19) Clerk or Service Worker: (1) Fast Food (2) Retail (3) Waiter-Waitress

20) Social Equality Fighter: Their heart is in the right place but are totally out of touch with the hostile world of Terra AD, "how dare you kill this indigenous amoeba monster, single celled organisms were here first"!

New Monsters

Zih'nn (Iguana Manimal)

Initiative: +1

Melee Attack: Claws +0 (1d5 damage)

Ranged Attack: Flame Breath +1 (1d4 damage, DC 12 Reflex save or be caught on fire)

Armor Class: 11 tough scaly hide

Hit Dice: 1 HD (1d8 or 5hp)

Move: 30', climb 15'

Action: 1d20

Saves: Fort +1, Reflex +1, Will -1

Zih'nn (singular and plural) are small iguana manimals, and although most Zih'nns are green there are many different sub-clans with varying coloration. Zih'nn are about 4 feet tall and have long claws that do considerable damage for their size. Because of their long claws Zih'nn can grapple a creature of medium size with no penalties. Zih'nn are good climbers and can climb most surfaces at 15' per round. Zih'nn have also developed a fire breathing potion from inferno ant extract (also known as termites). Most carry one or two doses in bottles they keep on their belt.

Recently the Zih'nns have found religion and follow their very own lizard deity by the name "Ziha". Although there is some confusion on what the will of Ziha is, it has succeeded in uniting all the various lizard tribes under one banner into a unified lizard horde. Currently that makes the Zih'nn an organized and dangerous threat.

If a Zih'nn rolls a fumble on a Fire Ant Extract use consult the following table

Zih'nn Inferno Ant Drought Fumble Chart (roll 1d4)

- 1) Best Result: Zih'nn drops the bottle, and it rolls away, still corked.
- 2) In-between result: Burns mouth, catches face on fire. Deals damage to self as if successfully attacked self and must make a save (DC 12) to not catch on fire.
- 3) Bad Result: Zih'nn accidentally swallows drought, and some air for good measure. Looks uncomfortable for a couple moments, then explodes violently.
- 4) Worst Result: As above, plus monsters and players adjacent to the fumbling Zih'nn must make a DC 10 Reflex saving throw or catch on fire

Smart One (Iguana Manimal)

Initiative: +1

Melee Attack: Claws +0 (1d5 damage)

Ranged Attack: May have Technological Weapon +1 (plus 1d4 for tech weapon), will not use flame breath

Armor Class: 11 tough scaly hide (may have some Makeshift Armor +1d4 AC)

Hit Dice: 1d4 HD (1d8 per HD)

Move: 30'

Action: 1d20

Saves: Fort +1, Reflex +2, Will +2

Special: Technological Pragmatist. Bonus to using technological weapons (1d4).

Owns 1d3 technological artifacts

Zih'nn are not that smart, but occasionally (1 in 1000) have a mutation making them a sort of idiot savant with technology. Theses smarter, technologically adept manimals tend to become leaders and priests to their less intelligent brothers and sisters and are typically referred to as Smart Ones.

Although no specific mechanic has been laid out for this, assume that with time, most things can be figured out. Most weapons are automatically figured out and complex devices can take 1d6 hours to 1d6 days. Unfortunately, not all things are figured out as intended. Many times, a Smart One will find a device, and modify it from its initial purpose to get some particular job done (laser pistol converted into a laser drill, or a fusion torch made into a flame thrower). All rolls made by a Smart One with a technological weapon get +1d4 to hit in a similar manner to Sentinels.

Geel'nn (Gila Monster Manimal)

Initiative: +1

Melee Attack: Club +2 melee (1d8), or Bite +0 melee (plus poison)

Ranged Attack: Poison Darts +1 missile (1d3, DC 12 Fort save or paralysis, 1d4 rounds, can save each round but must roll for every round if they fail the initial)

Armor Class: 13 tough hide and shield

Hit Dice: 1d10+2 (9hp)

Move: 30'

Action: 1d20

Saves: Fort +1, Ref +1, Will +1.

Special: Mutations of Convenience

Geel'nn are Gila Monster manimals. Geel'nn are bigger and more muscular compared to a regular pure strain human or mutant. They have thick skin/scales, and even use some light armor or shields. They swing big weapons (spiked clubs or axes) and are quite dangerous in a fight. Their saliva is toxic and is used on their darts. They can also bite at +0 for 1d6 damage and have the same poison as the dart. People failing a save versus this poison are paralyzed for 1d4 rounds. On each of the rounds a player is paralyzed he may roll another save at the beginning of his round to not be paralyzed that round. Players who make the initial save only must save once.

Geel'nn are evil and cruel manimals. Normally they enjoy tormenting those weaker than themselves which would normally include Zih'nn. Currently they are fighting their more malicious instincts and are following the Zih'nn because they think they have a good thing going on.

Geel'nn have a power called Mutations of Convenience and are prone to spontaneously mutate their form due to outside stimuli. This adaption occurs over 1d12 days and does not happen with every Geel'nn. Those lucky enough to possess this latent mutation, can do many useful things. Most commonly would be to change one's colors to match new terrain or adapt to different environmental extremes (cold or radiation). It could be as extreme as growing wings or gills, or even taking on a slightly different form so that it can fit its current ecological niche better.

Oddly the Geel'nn that have taken residence at the "Temple of Ziha" have taken on the forms of Ziha's Avatars. This has made them stronger and more importantly, worshipped by their fellow lizardoids.

P'lution (Pollution Elemental)

Initiative: -3

Melee Attack: Slam +3 (1d4 plus poison, DC 10 or take penalties)

AC: 9

Hit Dice: 3d8 (15 hp)

Move: 15', Swim 15', Climb 15' (single move only)

Action: 1d20

Saves: Fort +4, Reflex -4, Will +2.

Special: P'lution poison, Pseudo-Undead, ½ damage from ranged attacks, immune to mind affects, can be turned by Shaman of GAEA

P'lutions are the result of a corrupted lesser GAEA nodes. Lesser GAEA nodes are similar to the ones a shaman of GAEA uses to form a link with the AI but are smaller and more common. The lesser nodes were originally proposed with monitoring high pollution areas and using their integral force field technology to gather trash and other waste. Unfortunately, the Lesser AI known as T.W.A.R. (Toxic Waste Allocation Resource) has deviated from its initial purpose and now uses these lesser nodes to create P'lutions. TWAR was once a sub program of GAEA; currently it controls a small number of toxic waste processing facilities and uses the P'lutions as his own personal army to accomplish its misguided goals.

P'lutions themselves are collections of sewage, dead animals, and other garbage. They smell bad, and reek of caustic chemicals. The integral force fields in the lesser GAEA nodes hold them together and gives them the semblance of life. Like undead, P'lutions are immune to mental effects, as well as cold damage. Since the core node was an original construct of GAEA a shaman of GAEA can turn P'lutions as an equivalent level cleric. Because a shaman of GAEA always has the proper wetware the P'lutions only count as 1 HD for turning and a shaman may turn a number of times equal to their level. Any additional turns would require a daily use of wetware.

When a P'lution is destroyed, the force field holding the trash together gives out and its body collapses. As it collapses the lesser GAEA node is left hovering in place, then suddenly zips off; a quick player can snatch the node out of the air with a DC 20 DEX check. If the node escapes, it will return to an area a high pollution and reform the P'lution in 1d3 days (less in some polluted areas).

Players hit by a P'lution must make DC 10 FORT save or take -1 on all d20 rolls. Further failed saves each reduce the player d20 rolls one step further down the dice chain (-1, d16, d14, d12, d10). After combat any player can glowburn to reduce the penalty, as they expend their bodies resources to fight off the toxins. Each point of glowburn reduces the penalty by one step.

Character Placards

The following pages contain cool Character Placards that players can place in front of them during the game. That way, everyone will know who they're playing and what to call them, as well as what that character is good at. Players can also keep track of their hit points and Luck on the back.

To assemble these placards:

1. Cut them out around the outer border, the whole big rectangle.
2. Score along the 3 long horizontal lines on the inside. This means to use a ruler, and slide a kinda sharp object (like a dried-up ball-point pen or a butter knife) along the path of the line, to 'dent' the paper and make it easy to fold.
3. If you then fold it into a triangle with the artwork facing outward, you will see that the two outer sections are meant to be the bottom. Notice the vertical lines on those sections.
4. Using scissors or an x-acto knife, make a cut along all of those lines a little more than half the length of the line.
5. Fold the placard back into a triangle, and you can now slot the bottom halves together using these cuts. Ta-dah! You have made a Standee.

Troubleshooting:

If you have problems, follow these steps:

1. Contact your former Elementary School teacher, and inform them of how unprepared they left you for the Arts & Crafts challenges you must face in the Real World.
2. Use tape.
