FOREWORD

This document is designed to be an aid for players and referees alike. Naming is important in any culture, and even in our fantasy we like consistency; how many times while adventuring have you encountered an NPC with your character's first name or last name?

I don't know if it is possible to cover every name from every language, but with a broad base of names it is possible to create a fairly convincing simulation of it. In these Dutch Name Tables, I have more than 1600 female names, more than 1300 male names, more than 3000 surnames (not including an excess of 400 place names) and more than 800 nicknames for each gender. Players need never roll on these tables for their characters, although they might want to look at or roll on them at their discretion. PCs need never accept a name or nickname just because the dice rolled it.

Some nicknames are not positive and are used to imitate nicknames in society. Use at your own discretion and disregard any you find offensive.

I recommend generating a dozen or so names of each gender before play begins and keep that list on hand for any occasion.

Dutch names are ideal for Widamar on Terra Ferax.

DICE ROLLING

In this document, d00 indicates using percentile dice (a pair of ten-sided dice) rolled to produce a number from 1-100. One die is designated as the "tens spot", while the other is the "ones spot"; a pair of 0s (00) indicates a 100 was rolled.

No dice? No Problem! There are many Java-based die rollers (Java works with Sun-OS, Linux, Mac, Pc, etc.) on the web; the one at Irony games is excellent: <http://irony.com/igroll.html>

INSTRUCTIONS

Decide on the gender of the person you're generating a name for. Roll (or choose) from the name configuration table. If a Middle name is indicated, roll (or choose) an additional time from the First name tables.

NAME CONFIGURATION

d00	Configuration	Example
1-40	Firstname Surname	Johann Bach
41-55	Firstname Middlename (initial) Surname	Johann S. Bach
56-60	Firstname (initial) Middlename Surname	J. Sebastian Bach
61-72	Firstname (initial) Middlename (initial) Surname	J. S. Bach
73-00	Firstname Middlename Surname	Johann Sebastian Bach

Initials should only be used by characters who are literate or in campaigns with widespread literacy (such as the modern era); if an initial is inappropriate, treat all rolls above 40 as 73-00.

Nickname

d00	Nickname	Females	Males	Example
01-70	None
71-74	Table 1 Prefix Nickname	p.25	p.50	"Big Johann" Bach
75-77	Table 2 Prefix Nickname	p.26	p.51	"
78-80	Table 3 Prefix Nickname	p.27	p.52	"
81-83	Table 4 Prefix Nickname	p.28	p.53	"
84-85	Table 5 Prefix Nickname	p.29	p.54	"
86-88	Table 1 Suffix Nickname	p.30	p.55	"Johann the Big" Bach
89-91	Table 2 Suffix Nickname	p.31	p.56	"
92-94	Table 3 Suffix Nickname	p.32	p.57	"
95-97	Table 4 Suffix Nickname	p.33	p.58	"
98-00	Table 5 Suffix Nickname	p.34	p.59	"

Nicknames, Firstnames and Middlenames are rolled by gender.

Dutch Female (first and middle) names begin on the next page. Dutch Male (first and middle) Names are found on page 35. Surnames begin on page 60.

NOTES ON NAMES

These names are a collection of Dutch, German, and French names found in the Netherlands in history (1500-1700). Some names may seem "not quite Dutch" and you're free to decide which names you want and do not want. (Wondergem was and still is a family name, as is Quaak. Both surprised me. Wouter was a very popular name used for both first and middle names). With as many names as are available in these tables, just thumb down to the next acceptable name if you have a problem with any of them.

-tje (sometimes -je) is an ending meaning little. Jantje is little Jan. Depending on what I found, I may or may not have included both forms. If you see Achje and want to make it something like Achie or Acha, it would seem to be a reasonable change Yes, I found both Dirk and Dirkje as female names.

SURNAMES

Most surnames are patronymic (they come from the father); some are nicknames ('Bigge' indicating a large person), some were occupational (e.g. Smith) and some are locative ('of Sudbury').

Locative placenames are extremely rare and generally indicate a person who is not from the local area.

In Dutch a van (or von) indicates of. Van der is equivalent to "of the". As with the English of, a van remains lower case.

'The' is a tricky one, and can be de, den, der, and ten (de Boer, which can be der Boer <near German-speaking nations> or ten Boer <Boer is "farmer">). Other examples include de Goede ("the good"), de Graaf ("earl or count"), de Groot ("big"), and de Haan ("cock rooster"). A few places online which can translate Dutch to English and vice-versa are <http://www.freedict.com/>, <http://dictionaries.travlang.com/>, <http://www.taalthuis.com/> and <http://www.yourdictionary.com/languages/germanic.html> can all get you started. Thus if you wanted to be "the locksmith" you could look up and find de Slotenmaker.

For random determination, there is only a 5% chance (1-5 on percentile dice) of having a placename surname (see the next table), otherwise roll (or select) below on the Dutch Surnames table (page 67).

PLACES AS SURNAMES

In the Terra Ferax campaign, each map guide has a "Where Do I Come From" section, which will allow you to localize to that specific campaign map. The table below assumes you are using the Netherlands (roughly Medieval Holland, but not quite) as a background.

The following list provides some current places, many of which were in existence in the Middle Ages (Vlaardingen had a notable battle in 1018, Utrecht became a Catholic Diocese around 700 A.D., Wieringen received city rights in 1432, etc.). However, verifying that each and every one of these places was indeed in existence in the Middle Ages is beyond the scope this work.

Not all European Dutch speakers are isolated in the Netherlands. Some live in Belgium. The two sets of dice tables are so that you regionalize (only Dutch or Belgium) or generalize (any of the locations). And yes, these are modern divisions, not medieval ones (it depends when in the Middle Ages your campaign takes place as to which city is in which country).

Historically, Holland became a county (Western Frisia) Under Dirk I in 916. "Holland" comes into use as a descriptive adjective in 1061 under Dirk V. Holland translates as "Woodland" in old Dutch (Diets). House Holland rules until 1299 when the Hainauts rule, followed by the House of Bavaria in 1354. By 1572, William I, the silent, prince of Orange affected a transition from Holland being a county to a stadhold. The Kingdom of Holland (1806) and Kingdom of the Netherlands (1813) soon followed.
