1	This staggering, reeking drunk was once a sailor. Plied with drink, he will tell meandering stories about distant lands. Only one of his tales is true.	11	An ancient crone pulls a rickety cart from door to door, selling bundles of firewood gleaned by her grandchildren. She knows a secret way out of the city.
2	A young boy dressed in rags uses lumps of burned wood to create surprisingly good sketches, including one depicting a strange creature creeping forth from a sewer grate.	12	Two well-armed guards flank this well-dressed, sour-faced woman. She is a jeweler who also creates poison-needle rings, high-quality thieves picks, and other precision devices.
3	The weathered old man shuffling cards at the corner table is a popular local farmer. He's also a wickedly good card player.	13	Two careworn women, obviously farmers, guide a few scrawny cattle to the butcher's shop. Unnatural predators beset their farm, and they need help.
4	This street vendor is thin and old and sells cheap junk. His expensive clothes, now ragged and patched, mark him as a once-prominent figure. He knows many secrets of the rich and powerful.	14	A nervous young woman, dressed in new commoner's garb, roams a dangerous neighborhood. She's wealthy and looking for help. Several well-armed family retainers are watching over her.
5	An unimposing figure dressed in clerk's garb, this middle-aged man haunts area taverns and scribbles down the stories he overhears in a thick leather book using illegible shorthand.	15	Wearing a simple tunic of homespun cloth, this unkempt young woman is looking for work as a guard or soldier. She lacks gear and experience but has exceptional natural talent.
6	At first glance, one would think this middle-aged woman is a merchant selling fine china and cutlery. She is a foreign agent establishing a spy network using household servants.	16	The pile of rags in the gutter is actually a gaunt beggar. She barely has the strength to ply her trade, but she is immune to the nasty disease she carries. It affects anyone who touches her.
7	Immaculately dressed in the latest fashion, this mature man is loudly sharing his opinion about anything that catches his eye. While he is annoying, he's also a dedicated collector of trophies and skins. He also has lots of cash.	17	This old man is obviously making the best of a limited budget as he goes door to door asking for work dressed in patched and mended clothes. He is a skilled accountant and steward who was black-balled by his former employer.
8	It's hard to say how old this dark-eyed, long-haired beggar is, and his vermin-infested robes discourage close examination. He has the gift of prophecy and once served the royal court.	18	This servile waiter is deeply disturbed. He uses his extensive knowledge of horticulture to create slow-acting toxins that he introduces into the meals of anyone who offends him.
9	This middle-aged baker sells his loaves in the street and has strong opinions about the quality of his goods. He'll berate anyone who fails to praise his delicious bread and refuse to sell to them again.	19	This cheerful woman is neatly dressed and carries a large canvas bag containing her goods: perfumed candles and soap. Her wealthy clients often gossip in front of her, information she later sells.
10	Dressed in worn but clean clothes and carrying a massive bundle of linens, this young man appears to be a simple launderer. He's a courier for a local drug lord making deliveries.	20	A ruddy-faced, rotund man is offering free samples of ale to passersby. He is advertising for his new tavern, which he is opening in a once-abandoned building rumored to be haunted.
