Foreword

Welcome to another edition of "Grim's Amazing D100 Tables", this time we are dealing with the weird and wonderful realm of potion and spell components. This book is designed to create those rare items that are virtually unobtainable to the point of requiring a quest just to get them, of course not every one is so rare that your PCs will need to risk their lives for them, but could easily create the whole central focus of an entire campaign just getting hold of them. Clever GM's will have hours of fun with this, taunting and sending their players on wild goose chases to hunt down such things or even using the booklet to create totally weird new compounds that will test players abilities for that elusive magical ritual or elixir, that may even save the world....
