DESCRIPTION: Brother Jonno used to be the happy clown – the one with the big red smile and funny-shaped balloons. But being boisterously happy all the time can weigh on a soul, especially when your art is not appreciated by little Timmy and his friends. Jonno is rarely hired for children's parties any more, not since the incident. These days, if you want to guarantee every child in the room is having a bad time, he's your Fool.

NAME: Brother Jonno

DESCRIPTION: The Professor is a stern Fool.

He knows the jokes and japes in all their most proper forms, many because he was around when they were written.

No mistimed pun or arrhythmic delivery gets past him.

Those that earn his displeasure best beware: despite his age he's a devil with a ladder and bucket of whitewash.

NAME:

Professor Biddleworth

(HE/HIM)

DESCRIPTION: They say you can't teach an old Fool new tricks, and as far as Jolly cares, they're absolutely right.

'Set in his ways' doesn't even cover it. This dwarf has been fooling for more years than any of you've been alive.

World weary, travel-worn and wearing the saddest grin anyone has ever seen, just the sight of Jolly can make a grown Fool weep.

NAME: Jolly Beerfulson

(HE/HIM)

ORGANISATION: Fools' Guild

BACKGROUND: Dwarf who's been around the block

NICHE: The saddest Fool

CORE:

QUIRKS: Been there told that

A fool of the world

Too old for this foolishness

CONSEQUENCES:

DESCRIPTION: Pyrite is small for a troll, but large for a Fool. At first glance many people think they are a golden troll, which has led to quite a few misunderstandings involving pickaxes and chisels. They are in fact fool's gold, and have always embraced this aspect of themselves. Seen as a good luck charm by the rest of the Guild, Pyrite is often the centre of attention, allowing other Fools to lay down their bladders and take a break from the limelight.

NAME: Pyrite

(THEY/THEM)

ORGANISATION: Fools' Guild
